Mrs. D. R., Los Angeles

As the mother of a pre-school girl I would like to say I think it is a crime that Little Schoolhouse has been taken off the air.

The program was not only a fine educational show but one of the only ones suitable for children to watch.

Our daughter was permitted to see only two shows a day: Little Schoolhouse and the Mickey Mouse Club. Now the TV set is silent until 5 p.m.

L. G., Highland

To the people who make the Old Gold filter cigarette commercial:

After all the destructive forest fires we had this year and then to see a lighted cigarette laying on a package of cigarettes amidst a lot of grass and leaves, to me is certainly not a sensible advertisement.

PAUL PRAISED

M. H., Vista

Thanks for the wonderful article on Paul Coates. He really deserves all the nice things you said about him. We think Confidential File is tops.

Mrs. E. A. T., Los Angeles

I thoroughly agree that Bill Gwinn's What's the Name of the Song? is a fine program. But the reference to the "tin cup devices" of other programs which give help to those who need and deserve it, made me angry.

Perhaps this person should give a bit of thought to "There but by the grace of God go I." For none of us can be too sure that we may never need help.

G. M., Newport Beach

I thought Red Skelton's recent rib toward "the pelvis" was the best I've heard in a long time.

Say, what happened to Mayor of the Town? All of a sudden it just popped off the air.

According to KTTV, they do not expect the "Mayor" to return either. It's a film series, though, so it may "pop back" on some other local station.

T. B., Los Angeles

I like Ethel and Albert very much. Other people liked them too. Please bring them back again. I and others regret that they are not on.

BENNY BLASTED

BETTER THAN BENNY?
PRETTIER, ANYHOW.

Hugh H., Los Angeles

For the life of me I cannot understand why Private Secretary has to give way on alternate weeks to such a complete washout as Jack Benny.

Jack Benny on radio was good, but for television he simply does not have it. And that fishy-eyed star, forcing the audience to laugh, leaves me cold. Isn't there some way to convince his sponsors that his program is a total waste of that half hour and . . . that there are a multitude of comedians who are actually good — which Jack definitely is not?

T. K., Montebello

Why all the fuss about Elvis Presley when that Larry Collins on Town Hall Party makes a fool of himself and gets away with it?

M. G., Hollywood

Nelson Eddy's all too infrequent TV guestings such as on the Danny Thomas show and with Ed Sullivan garner tremendous enthusiasm among the viewing public and there is nothing more eagerly awaited than the TV release of those unforgettable Eddy-MacDonald musicals. What other star could offer a sponsor a ready-made public that has remained fantastically loyal for over 20 years? Why is it no sponsor has the intelligence to recognize this fact as you have?

OFF THE AIR . . . BUT STILL SMILING

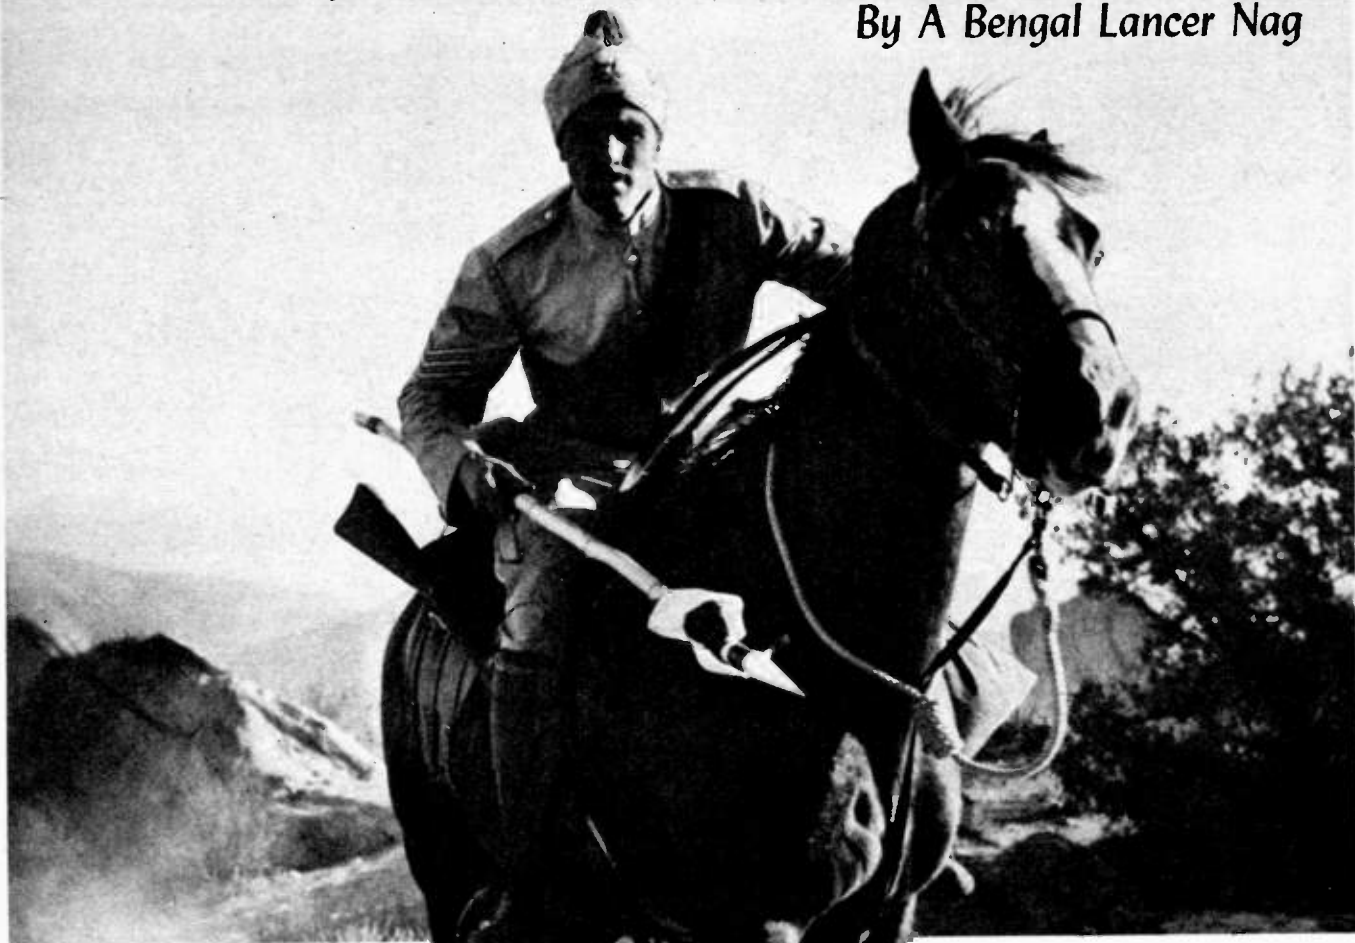

Bernice, Wilmington

I heartily agree with those in Harbor City. We really miss Liberace. What can we do to get him back.

Letters such as this help. So would a sponsor. Meanwhile, Lee is not starving these days, and is fully able to pay his dentist bills with various personal appearances.

A Day in My Life . . .

By A Bengal Lancer Nag

BEING a movie horse has its exciting moments. But a satisfactory existence in this business depends upon the actor one has to carry around. That's where I'm lucky.

The stable chose me to work in The 77th Bengal Lancers, and we shoot at the Vasquez Rocks out on the Mojave Desert.

I'm not a particularly handsome animal, so I don't get the leads. But in Bengal Lancers I got a break because I'm assigned to a young actor named Mike Carr. He plays an Indian Sergeant by the name of Dafdar Noor Ali. I can't pronounce it so I call him "Whinny."

Horses in the picture business have to get up as early as the players. And, of course, it's sixty miles out to the Rocks, so that means, thanks to the motor age, we're up and in the horse van by 4 a.m. When we get there, the cast starts arriving, along with the camera crews. Mike shows up in a horseless convertible and he always comes right over and pats me. He always brings me something, too, like a lump of sugar.

Later when the filming gets under way, we have to ride and ride hard.

That's why I like Mike even more. He feels good up there, almost like part of me. He yells a lot and swings his lance around like he meant it and when we pitch into those battle scenes, I forget myself and feel I'm in a real fight. I know he does, too. He can wheel me around and swing me into other "enemy" horses and their riders, and they know we mean business.

Special Bit

Last week Director Doug Heyes called me and Mike over. He told Mike he wanted him to do a special bit by ourselves. He told Mike to ride over to one end of the fort and then, with lance straight out, ride across the compound. In the middle of the compound was a piece of paper Mike had to pick up with the tip of his lance.

You can bet we were excited. We rode far out of camera range and stood still waiting for Director Heyes to give us the signal. Mike leaned forward and patted me, "don't let me down, old boy, will you?" I bobbed my head a couple of times. I felt pretty chesty, with all the rest of the horses looking on. Then Director Heyes yelled "go!" And did we go! Mike flicked up that paper with the point of his spear.

"Good boy," said Director Heyes.

"Thanks," said Mike. And as we wheeled away, he called over his shoulder, "I got a good horse!"

I knew he meant it. That's why I like Mike. In Hollywood, actors don't share their glory readily — even with a horse!

Candid Profile of John Lupton

The young star who has helped to zoom Broken Arrow into top ratings is a much different man by his own fireside, as these personal revelations prove.

By Jack Holland

JOHN LUPTON as Indian agent Tom Jeffords takes time out to admire Gene Howell in scene for the ABC-TV series, Broken Arrow.

behind me then to take care of a wife. In a moment of weakness, Anne said yes, which was certainly a lucky break for me.

Marriage

"We went to Honolulu for our honeymoon. We were supposed to go to a luau at the Beachcombers on our arrival, but got there too late so we got on a bus and took a tour of the island. There was no other person on the trip our age but we had a ball anyway. We ended up having hot dogs and hamburgers—of all things—in a lean-to restaurant. This wasn't exactly the proper initiation into Hawaiian life, but it was fun."

John is definitely the doting husband—and soon he is to be a father. He gives Anne credit for practically all of his good fortune, and he certainly acts like the happy man about the fireside.

"Anne is the greatest woman ever," he said seriously. "She would have to be to put up with me. Her patience is really something! For one thing, I've been working about ten hours a day and studying my script at night. This schedule has been very confining but Anne takes it all in her stride. While I'm studying she's usually reading or watching TV. The apartment we live in is so small that during the summer I would go outside and study in the patio. I had to be by myself because I like to read my lines out loud and this can be rather distracting. Anne used to think I read them too loudly so I found my own private corner."

"Anne understands my work, though, but she would be a lot happier, I think, if I had a job that took me on a lot of travels. She loves to see the world—and maybe one of the reasons she married me was that she thought I might have to go to Europe to make a few pictures," John added with a laugh.

"She is very frank about my work. She has been after me recently for my habit of holding my chin down in pictures. I take criticism fairly well but usually add, 'Well, that's the way I am.' Anne doesn't make it her devoted purpose in life to watch every Broken Arrow show but she does see it quite often, probably because I have it on all the time to study it."

John is a quiet-spoken young guy with a compelling sincerity. There is tremendous sensitivity about him too.

BROKEN ARROW, the KABC-TV series, has been doing very nicely for the network but especially it has been good to John Lupton, who stars in the program, along with Michael Ansara as Cochise.

For one thing, it enabled him to get married.

When John was in New York not too long ago he met a girl named Anne who had been going with a friend of his. This particular friend had to leave town so John squired Anne about to keep her from getting lonesome. As such things often turn out the two fell in love. Fortunately, John's friend was in no way upset or annoyed by this sudden turn of events.

"I was in no financial position at the time to think of getting married," John said. "But along came Broken Arrow and the whole picture changed."

"I had returned to Hollywood while Anne remained in New York. One day my agency asked me to make a test with a girl they were bringing out from New York. Irving Asher, producer of the 20th Century-Fox TV shows, was considering the girl for some roles at the studio."

"As a result of this test, Mr. Asher decided I was the one to play a leading role in the original 20th Century-Fox TV Hour presentation of Broken Arrow. At first the sponsor wanted a bigger name for the part, but Mr. Asher held out for me. Then, later, when it was decided to make a series of the story, the whole deal hinged on the sponsor's insistence that I play the same role."

"With this steady job under my belt I went right back to New York and talked Anne into marrying me. I had already done the pilot for the series and I felt I had enough security

He admits he's also fairly moody, which he blames on the fact that he is very possessed with his work.

Characteristics

"I've played a lot of sensitive characters, particularly the role I had in 'Battle Cry,'" John went on. "And the one in 'The Great Locomotive Chase' too. My part in Broken Arrow, however, gives me more variety and is a stronger character. It has finally brought me out of the type-casting rut I was in."

Outside of his acting, John is interested in sculpture. His grandmother was rather well known as an artist so his appreciation of art is a natural development. He took up sculpture when he was in the hospital during his Army days. A nurse brought in some clay one day and he started working on figures.

THE HOME-SIDE of the hero of Broken Arrow. John with his wife, Anne. Both seem to be in a happily casual frame of mind. (Color photo by 20th Century-Fox TV.)

"I was in the hospital because of a bad back," John explained. "When I was a kid I fell out of a tree and broke up three vertebrae in my back. I've had trouble with it ever since."

John is not only clever at sculpture—he also is an accomplished do-it-yourself man.

"I kind of wing such jobs but I have fun," he grinned. "I just barge in and put things together."

"Probably my most pronounced characteristic is my sentimentality," he said. "I'm an incurable sentimentalist. I like buying surprise presents for Anne and I always try to keep them a secret from her, but she can't wait to know what I have so I usually wind up telling her. She's a sentimentalist too—but in a different way from me."

Such is a candid picture of the man who helped make Broken Arrow a stalwart new TV entry. John Lupton should emerge from this series as one of the most popular stars in the business.

All of which will not hurt him in the least.

ONCE CONFINED to playing sensitive and retiring characters, John is now being given a chance to escape type-casting in Broken Arrow. It's his best break to date.

An oriental star is gradually bathing the western world in star dust.

By Will Drennan

MIYOSHI (translated, means "Beautiful Life") Umeki is a lovely Oriental with a soft, lilting quality of singing who is gradually capturing Western audiences. Miyoshi, at present, is busy working on a near 24-hour-a-day schedule, what with her five-day-a-week KNXT television show, Fare For Ladies, and her night club appearances seven days a week. She has recently been signed to costar with Marlon Brando in Warner Bros. attraction "Sayonara." This means "Good-bye" in Japanese.

During her stay in the United States, Miyoshi has done phenomenally well in the entertainment world. Since making her professional debut in Japan, singing for American GIs, she has entertained American audiences via three mediums: night clubs, television and recordings. When asked about her romantic interests, Miyoshi replied "I don't have time for boy friends."

Important Adjustment

Born off the Japanese mainland on an island named Hokkaido, Miyoshi has been in the United States for only one year and has already adjusted herself to Western-world customs. One example of this adjustment is, as Miyoshi relates it, "I went hungry several times when offered food in the United States because in Japan it is custom to refuse food three times before accepting. I soon learned to accept the first time here." Not having studied English for any considerable length of time in Japan, Miyoshi speaks and comprehends English surprisingly well. However, she still might get "piece of pie" confused with "Pizza Pie" (her favorite Western-world food).

One of Miyoshi's ambitions in life is to marry and have five children. However, she is willing to wait. In the meantime, it's her career for her.

★ TV-RADIO LIFE ANNOUNCES ITS FOURTEENTH ANNUAL DISTINGUISHED ACHIEVEMENT AWARDS

THIS week TV-Radio Life announces its Fourteenth Annual Distinguished Achievement Awards for the Top Ten New TV and radio shows or performances of 1956.

For many years, TV-Radio Life magazine has been the leader in presenting such annual awards, in both TV and radio. In the past few years, however, many publications and organizations have literally hopped on the "award bandwagon" — many of them strictly for promotional purposes.

"Let's give an award to someone," they have reasoned. "Who cares whether or not they deserve it — just as long as they mention our name."

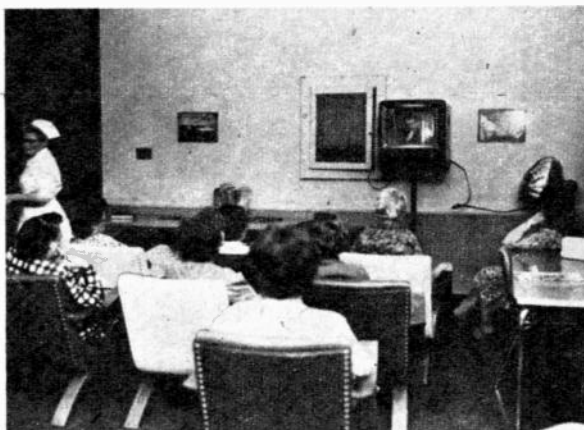

Frankly, this year TV-Radio Life was tempted to discontinue its honors, largely because we did not want people to feel we were presenting these accolades for promotional or publicity purposes. Unlike others, though, we are not "asking for plugs." We believe our awards have more dignity than that.

During the entire past year our staff has been monitoring and sifting TV and radio presentations. Final selections were made from new or single-time shows or personalities only. We are proud to present herewith our Top Ten.

SOME DUBIOUS SOULS THINK that the sensational Charles Van Doren of Twenty-One fame really knows his answers but dramatizes his replies by making a struggle with the posers. Could be, but for my money he's a whiz, does a great show and is responsible for lifting Twenty-One into the realm of everyday talk just the way Gino Proto zoomed $64,000 Question into the limelight. I'll bet the Twenty-One producers are wondering whom to put on when Van Doren exits. He'll be tough to follow.

BECAUSE MY DEVOTION TO TV is deep I've been distressed over the stars bowing out of their TV Academy nominations telecast. Sponsor conflicts. Mostly among personalities appearing for auto makers like Welk (Dodge), Lundigan (Chrysler), Sullivan (Lincoln-Mercury) because the check for the show was being paid by another car-maker, Oldsmobile. Sponsor identification with these stars is very strong for besides doing TV shows they also make personal appearances and are virtually public ambassadors for their car manufacturers. I can see why Olds might not want a star completely identified with another car to take up time (with proper plug, sneaked in of course) on a show Olds is paying for, but I heard no objection from Olds. The rub was from other car creators. I guess they think the mere presence of their personalities on an Olds-sponsored telecast might look as if the stars realized there were other cars than the ones they sell. I doubt if the TV Academy could dig up a sponsor both rich enough to foot the telecast bill yet sufficiently innocuous so that everyone could appear. It's especially too bad about Ed Sullivan not being able to be on the nominations, for he's head of the N. Y. Academy.

JACK BENNY HAD BETTER LOOK to his laurels in Waukegan where they've always loved him, because Dinah Shore took the place over on her recent 35-day cross-country tour. Coming back home for a breather before opening in Las Vegas Valentine's evening, Dinah presided over a press luncheon in the Derby's American Room to relate some of her experiences.

Accompanying her on the tour were Producer Bob Banner, The Skylarks, Ticker Freeman (Dinah's arranger) and Harry Zimmerman plus other technical personnel to make up a party of 22. Dinah received considerable ribbing over her enormous amount of luggage. "Then, first thing when I landed in New York I realized I hadn't brought along a scarf and had to go out shopping for one," she exclaimed.

THE TRIP WAS AN EYE-OPENER regarding tastes of the American people. Dinah found ballads extremely popular, favorites even of teen-agers who still think rock 'n' roll, however, is the big thing and are reluctant to accept the new calypso surge. When asked if she would advise other performers to get out of Hollywood to do a few shows, Dinah said, "Yes, but only if you are in the pink of condition."

KULDIP SINGH DROPPED by the office to say he had just waxed some records and opens next at the Mocambo. "Are you on Cloud 99?" I asked. "No, more than that," he answered. "Cloud 101!" Seems his immigration problem has been settled.

COMMENDATIONS TO THE RADIO-TV NEWS CLUB for taking steps to define meaning of the word "exclusive" as applied to news items. Any story should really be exclusive to rate this adjective. As for tacking on the description "award-winning" when referring to a newscaster, the Club wants the years of the award and what the award was for included. Good!

Pick OF THE Pix

BY AUBREY DAHL

I THINK the public is fed up with entertainment.

"Lifeboat." (11) Feb. 27, 7:00. 1944. A luxury ship is torpedoed and the survivors crowd into a lifeboat for the aimless voyage to safety. The group is motley, of course... a wealthy woman of questionable virtue, Tallulah Bankhead; a couple of crew members, John Hodiak and Canada Lee; a crooked industrialist, Henry Hull; a German, Walter Slezak; and assorted fishes of the sea, Hume Cronyn, William Bendix, Heather Angel and Mary Anderson. Also, in his usual small part as the before and after of a reducing advertisement, is the director, Alfred Hitchcock. All the action in the film, and there is plenty of it, takes place on the lifeboat (in the lifeboat?) and the fact that it doesn't pall is a tribute to director and performers.

"John Loves Mary." (5) Feb. 24, 7:30. 1948. Ronald Reagan is John, and his Mary, Patricia Neal, waits impatiently for him to return from four years in the army. When he does, it is as a married man... he wed a British girl to get her into the States as a favor to a buddy, Jack Carson. Now, the problem is to keep the marriage a secret, get a divorce and marry Mary before she gets suspicious. This requires considerable misunderstanding and several pratfalls and much frantic running around.

"Berlin Express." (9) Beginning Feb. 26, 9:00. 1948. This is a pretty good movie... the head of a commission to unify Germany disappears and the occupying powers and a newspaperman combine to locate him and there's a good cast... Merle Oberon, Robert Ryan and Paul Lukas.

"Test Pilot." (11) March 1, 8:00. 1938. Clark Gable is an ace test pilot and Spencer Tracy is his ace ground crew man and Clark is forced down on a Kansas farm where he meets Myrna Loy and they're married and she doesn't understand flying and Spencer nearly cracks up because he understands and loves them both.

"The Long Night." (13) Feb. 26, 8:30. This is a pretty good film that hasn't been on TV for a while. Henry Fonda returns from the wars and falls for a simple girl, Barbara Bel Geddes, but his love is cheapened by a machiavellian vaudeville performer, Vincent Price. He kills Price and is holed up in a room with the police converging on him while the picture makes the good plea for understanding and social justice.

"Lady at Midnight." (2) Feb. 28, 4:30. I was there when the clock tolled one... but I won't tell a soul.

The Frozen Most

Down Laguna Beach way they say he's "The Most." The reference is to Mike Jackson, columnist on The Laguna Post. Jackson uses the most statistics and makes them most interesting.

Here's just 2 per cent of some statistics used by Jackson in one week: most paid to an artist in his lifetime for one painting — $70,000, to De-gas, for his painting "Dancer at the Bar." Most in demand as TV guest, Elvis Presley. Most divorces won by an American female, 13, by Beverly O'Malley. Most captive water in a single tank, ¼ million gals., Marineland.

Most hamburgers eaten at one sitting, 77, by Philip Yazdick. Most fin on a '57 car, Dodge. Most waistline on a Miss America, 27" on the 1948 winner.

Cooky with the most seeds — fig newton. Most games played in one doubles tennis match in five sets, 135 — Schroeder & Falkenberg defeating Gonzalez & Stewart. Most passes caught in one football season, 84 by Ram and Tom Fears, 1950.

This is an Adv. It's "sponsored." If Eleanor Roosevelt were presented through the sponsorship of, say, Geritol, would it make any difference?

I, Beck, am sponsored by Kold-Kist, a superior line of very delicious frozen cooked foods and meat products. Mike Jackson of The Laguna Beach Post didn't mention it, so I will. The KoldKist line is The Most. And right now the most of the most is our tasty and satisfying KoldKist Roast Beef Dinner — right now specially reduced in price for a limited time at leading markets. It gives you THE MOST for your money in delicious good eating.

Another most-for-the-money is our wonderful KoldKist Chop Suey — 2 kinds, one with the most pork, one with the most chicken. How MOST for the money? Buy three packages, mail 'us the three labels, we'll return 1/3 of what you paid IN CASH! The most?

Please close the door when you leave so the porcupines won't get in and eat the seat.

FREE RECIPE BOOK

Record Notes

MANY fine pop vocal long-play albums have appeared on the record shelves this week, and since most are standards, you'll hear many selections from them on our "Turn Back The Clock" program (KFI, 8:45 to 9:30 a.m., Mon. thru Fri.). One of the best of these is Frank Sinatra's "Close To You" (Capitol). Not only is this in Sinatra's most intimate mikeside manner, but Nelson Riddle, in providing top background music, has added the classic sound and skill of the Hollywood String Quartet as an extra feature and giving Frank a perfect setting for his most engaging style...

...Sarah Vaughn (Mercury) sings great songs from hit shows for her top-drawer two-volume offering with the orchestra backing provided by Harold Mooney. It's hard to pick the standouts from the two dozen selections, for each was (and as Sassy sings 'em, still is) great musical listening. When the program includes "Poor Butterfly," "My Heart Stood Still," "September Song," "Lucky In Love" and tunes of similar calibre, who's to say which is best?...

Frank Parker, one of today's great tenors, returns to records with an album called "Requests From The Mail Bag" (Coral). Although Parker is capable of much higher repertoire, selections are medleys of pop tunes of yesterday and light concert favorites that include "My Lindy Lou," "Jealous" and "Sweet And Lovely"...

Doris Day makes one of her infrequent appearances on a Columbia long-play album, "Day By Day." With Paul Weston providing lush backgrounds, here is a collection to provide heart-warming listening; fine songs, a fine artist and some of her finest performances stamp this platter as one that'll bear repeat hearings Day by Day... especially "Autumn Leaves"...

"Here's Hibbler" (Decca) pairs the entertaining stylist with Jack Pleis and his Orchestra and what this combo cooks up musically provides plenty of surprise on this collection of standards in a variety of styles... A.M.

The Last Word

Sunday, 11:30 A.M.

CBS-TV, Channel 2

With the market on learning and erudition at an all-time high due to the prevalent quiz shows, it is a welcome respite to discover that knowledge is as fascinating on its own terms without the golden gimmicks of pay-offs in pots of gold.

Paying off handsomely to those who delight in nimble-witted handling of the English language is CBS' Public Affairs Program, The Last Word, hosted by Dr. Bergen Evans, aided and abetted by John Mason Brown, the drama critic.

Just to clarify the subject, The Last Word is a half-hour program on the English language. Now, as any high school student can tell you, this can be a fearsome subject indeed. Those who may have some trepidation concerning any entertainment value in the subject matter, may rest assured they will be assaulted by nothing formidable, nothing academic.

The Last Word bounces merrily along thanks to the sparkling repartee of Brown, Evans and a delightful company of guests who obviously relish the delight of good talk and banter. Discussion of language, its uses, nuances and subtleties can be not only a form of snobbism, but incredibly boring. That The Last Word falls into neither category despite its solemn and somewhat pontifical title is a tribute to all concerned.

Label Talk
BY TERREA LEA

HOW would you like to have a beautiful 21" Emerson Television set? That's kind of a silly question to ask, isn't it. Most anyone would love to have a new T. V. set — especially a color one.

Well, you just keep reading and I'll tell you how George Super Cleaner can help you. There's a new contest starting at Label Bank and here's how it works.

Two of these color sets will be given.

One to the individual and one to the club that sends in the greatest number of box tops from George Super Cleaner. All box tops must be in on or before April 31, 1957. In case of a tie — tie breaking questions will be asked. The individuals compete against each other and the clubs compete against other clubs and organizations. So, by George, buy George and save those box tops to send in for the contest.

While writing about George, I might just as well tell you that this product is made by Bu-Tay, makers of Blue Rain Drops, Water Softener, and Diaper Sweet. George is one of the finest products I've ever used — believe me. It's made just for that chore of cleaning a floor — linoleum — asphalt — tile — rubber — plastic and cork tile. And walls and woodwork come clean so easy without removing the paint. There's no rubbing, no scrubbing, no rinsing, and no wiping dry. If your market doesn't carry George — ask the manager to stock it.

Oh, yes — I'm on television, Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays, from 12:00 to 1:00 — KTLA, Channel 5. That's Doye O'Dell's new Chuck-N-Luck program. It's audience participation so why don't you come on down and get in on the fun.

More Label Talk next week about another big contest. Until then — 'bye for now.

MUSCLES

Li'l Arnold Stang, one of television's popular character actors, has taken on a new look for his current appearances on CBS Television's December Bride comedy series. The diminutive chap is using muscles he never knew existed for a sequence with middle-weight boxer Art Aragon and a run on a racing track as a jockey. For these taxing roles Arnold Stang has been taking boxing and horseback riding lessons with . . . "muscles popping out all over the place."

BEAUTY JOB

Watching a statuesque actress sulter by, another one said to actress Edith Terry, "Sure she's built and I can tell you the name of the beauty salon that did the job."

HORSES ACT, TOO

Any Western movie star is only as good as his horse, says John Derek.

Currently playing a cavalry officer in Screen Gems' CBS Television Playhouse 90 production "Massacre At Sand Creek," Derek comments:

"Put a dashing cowboy hero on a drooping, plodding horse and the kids would pelt the television screen with everything from insults to wadded bubble gum. A spirited, prancing hunk of horseflesh is as necessary to a Western as a camera with film in it. If the horse stands in a dejected position with his head and tail hanging in passive boredom — the audience will be bored too."

BACHELOR PROBLEM

Schultz, secretary on the Bob Cummings Show says married men get into less trouble than bachelors because it's hard to raise kids and Cain at the same time!

AROUND the HORSE RACING CIRCLE at SANTA ANITA

HANDLING THE COLOR for this year's meet is KNXT capable Sports Director Gil Stratton. Gil presents behind-the-scenes interviews and descriptions during the half-hour telecasts. Hal Moore handles the other announcing chores.

THEY'RE OFF! At Santa Anita. And once again this year, the KNXT, Channel 2 cameras are on hand to bring viewers every stride of the Feature Race each Saturday afternoon. In addition, 18 other CTPN stations carry the event.

ON THE BEAUTIFUL SANTA ANITA grounds — a great attraction in itself — Gil looks at one of the statues erected by the public in 1949 in honor of the great jockey George Woolf.

AS IN THE PAST EIGHT WEEKS, KNXT will be on hand this Saturday (February 23), for the second of the big $100,000 races: The Santa Anita Handicap. Last year's winner was Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Kerr's Bobby Brocato ridden by Johnny Longden. The same horse annexed four stakes during the meet for the all-time record earnings by a single thoroughbred during a Santa Anita season.

Zsa Zsa Gabor...

YOU HAVE to knock on Zsa Zsa's door to get in. The bell doesn't work. Not a revolting, but at least a revealing development. Especially for a high-rent district such as the top of a hill overlooking the ultra exclusive Bel Air Estates.

How does one happen to be here on a brilliantly sunny Saturday afternoon? It was arranged the night before at the Tom Duggan show at the KCOP studios:

I met Miss Gabor in the make-up room just a few minutes before she went on the air for a verbal debate with smiling, sharp-tongued Tom.

"Oh yes, you are ze fellow with zat em-possible long name," she remarked after I introduced myself. "I am so sorry, but I cannot talk to you tonight. Perhaps tomorrow, yes? For lunch. You come to my place . . ."

She gave me the address.

"And ef you get lost—it is not zo easy to find—you call this number and I will direct you. It is Granite . . ."

Just then some guy who was standing next to her—he was dressed in one of those charcoal executive suits—interrupted the conversation in soft secretive tones:

"Zsa Zsa don't you think . . ."

Miss Gabor gave him a quick, but nevertheless penetrating glance, and gave me the rest of the number.

I caught the show. And might add the banter between her and Duggan was the best adlibbing job I had ever seen her do. Far better than when she teamed with her perennial antagonist, Paul Coates. And to be brutally frank—it was the very first time I had ever enjoyed Miss Gabor as a public performer. And that includes TV as well as the movies . . .

Back Home

Back to Bel Air:

After the maid showed me to a very comfortable room, Miss Gabor strutted in (in a beautiful negligee, of course) and sat next to me on the couch. Well, there was a comfortable four feet between us.

Once again, quite frankly, I had full intentions to be polite—but to be slightly skeptical and just as sarcastic as she. I hadn't liked what I had heard about her, and I had never particularly admired her as a performer.

What happened during the next two hours that we were together—talking—eating lunch—playing with her dogs—chatting with her daughter, Francesca—opening gift packages—discussing her parents, her past marriages, her "affairs"—a million and one other things—would be utterly impossible to do full justice to in just a few pages, or even a few dozen pages of type.

I had met Zsa Zsa before at several cocktail parties, and presented her with a TV-Radio Life award back in 1952 on Bachelor's Haven (I didn't remind her of this), and had observed her from a distance at various TV studios doing some kind of a show.

But I had never seen her at home. Sure, some actors and actresses never stop "acting," even when they are home. At least, when a reporter is around. But not Zsa Zsa. Not, at least, on this particular day.

Significant Quotes

It's difficult, even now, to remember everything that was said. But I can remember small significant bits of conversation:

"You like this house? I am glad. I pour money into it. Why not? It is home for myself and my daughter . . . Francesca! Will you ever learn ow to eat properly! (Her twelve-year-old daughter giggles and continues to sprawl her knife and fork and spoon over the plate, intent only on enjoying the well-cooked hamburger in front of her.) And to think she has had the best training (Zsa Zsa laughs) . . . I have married some very rich men (we are alone now) but I support myself . . . I do not like night club work. It frightens me. But the money, it is very good . . . Of course, I want happiness. I could marry so-and-so. He is very rich. But I would not be happy with him. I am happy now. Not as happy as I would like to be. But happier than I have ever been in my life . . ."

Some presents arrive. "I have to order most of my things by mail. Fame. We all want it. And then when we get it, it becomes such a nuisance."

Her daughter tries on several of the coats and dresses. Both mother and daughter are pleased with them.

The dogs—she has three of them—keep biting at Zsa Zsa's legs. It hurts. But she always laughs. She speaks of them fondly and loves them very much.

She examines the loose-hanging threads on her daughter's dresses. In just the glint of her eye, you see that she has a woman's natural instinct for fine craftsmanship. She is sad, but not melancholy or bitter when she says: "They are beautiful. But the Americans have too much money." You look at the loose threads and see the words "Mass Production" written all over them.

Rating Raiser

Business-wise, you tell her you are supposed to write a story on how her TV appearances have helped to raise the ratings of practically every show she has been on.

She is pleased to hear you "are going to write something nice about me: It is so, you know. I have been on 30 different shows. From Peter Potter to Herb Shriner to Tennessee Ernie—he is a wonderful person; with a little more poise he could be another Clark Gable. They tell me that every time I appear, I, how do you say, boost their ratings. I am glad. That makes them happy. And me too."

After almost two hours of sitting in Zsa Zsa's house you become more and more comfortable and at ease.

You almost get to the point where you feel like flinging your feet upon the table, flipping the TV dial, and yelling: "Hey honey, how about a beer?"

But it doesn't happen—thankfully. You finally excuse yourself, thank your hostess for her time and her food, leave the front door, and drive away.

Heading for home again along Sunset Boulevard, you realize that a de-glamourized Gabor may not make "good copy," but she does make "good company."

You're also pleased to know that a woman such as this—a woman who at sixteen was entertaining the kings and queens of Europe—can't help being a little different from the average American housewife. But she's not that much different.

All in all, she was a person I was glad to have met. She destroyed, for me, one myth—and in its place substituted some basic reality. And reality—in Zsa Zsa's case—is not too hard to take. Even in the bright sunlight after she has just gotten up.

THE SHOW THAT SHUNS

Sensationalism

"Court of last appeal" for many a teen-ager and parent, KRCA's Teen-Age Trials has a three-year record of unparalleled public service

By Jean Corlis

STAN BRADY accepting award for Teen-Age Trials from Kenneth Hahn, member of the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors. KRCA executive assistant George Greaves looks on with pleased interest.

THIS IS a story about a program, Teen-Age Trials, but it's a story you can't tell fully without going behind the scenes to the "heart" of the program — Stan Brady, producer of the show.

Stan, like most producers, isn't known to the viewing public, but he's well-known to the anguished teen-agers and parents who write or call Teen-Age Trials for help, and to the judges, doctors, and social workers for whom he is the liaison between problem and solution. "Though we've been on the air for three years without a sponsor (a condition we'd like to change!), our reward has been the knowledge that 90% of the problems presented have been satisfactorily solved by the advice of our teen-age panelists and the help of judges, doctors and other professional people," Stan commented.

So far as Stan is concerned, that's reward enough. Though in "real life" he's a businessman, producing Teen-Age Trials has become such an avocation that he spends over 75% of his time on it.

All calls or letters for help come to Stan. The letters are locked in a file in his office, and he alone knows the identity of the people seeking help. Each case must be thoroughly checked, and he does this himself, regardless of the number of hours it requires each week.

Many times he must spend every evening, meeting and talking with young people and their parents, with public officials, doctors and teachers.

When all the facts are checked the program is developed without any attempt to shock the viewing audience, even when the problems involved concern an unwed mother; a boy involved with companions who use dope; or a girl whose parents disapprove of friendship with a girl of a different religious background. The identity of the teen-ager and parent are scrupulously protected. They are ushered into an anteroom of the studio without the necessity of giving their names. Masks are provided, and they are not seen by the panelists until they appear on the stage. After the show they wait in the anteroom again until everyone else has left.

"The young people who come to Teen-Age Trials for help are not delinquents," Stan asserted. "Many of them never would be, some of them could be. The program attempts to solve problems which are pretty general with most teen-agers, and which with some could lead to delinquency. It depends to a great extent on their home environment. Usually, however, where the question has caused enough emotional disturbance to call for outside help, it does indicate a failure in the home."

Lenient Parents

By far the greatest proportion of letters come from parents who cannot cope with their teen-agers. Many of them have been too lenient with them up to the age of fifteen or sixteen. By this time the boys and girls have become used to doing as they pleased and they become rebellious when the parents start to take an interest in their friends and their social activities.

"Investigation often proves of course, that the problem is only in the tortured mind of the parent, and does not really exist," acknowledged Stan. "Either from the experience of their youth, or what they have read, many parents conjure up visions of what their children are doing which have no basis in fact.

"Many times the teen-ager may be at the home of one of his friends whose parents have provided a gathering spot for young people," Stan continued. "He is probably completely unaware of the situations his parents are sitting home worrying about."

Not all of the questions presented to Teen-Age Trials are behavior problems. The program has an enviable record for getting behind the various community appeals for help.

Public Service

"For instance," Stan explained. "When the drive for funds for Muscular Dystrophy research was on we had as our guest a girl who had the disease. She was very fond of horses, and before being stricken had done a lot of riding. Since her illness had been arrested she wanted to ride again, but her parents were afraid to let her. The panel of teen-agers, all victims of muscular dystrophy, gave their opinion that she should be allowed to ride as good therapy, and the doctors on the panel were in agreement. In riding she would use muscles not ordinarily used, and by strengthening these she could prevent further inroads of the disease. We had a good indication of the size and power of our audience on that occasion—$6,000 was sent to us for the drive."

Appeals for the Heart Association, Community Chest, Association for the Deaf and others have met with enthusiastic response. In connection with the appeal for the deaf, Teen-Age Trials had the first panel show telecast with an all-deaf panel and guest. With the exception of the moderator, Paul Pierce, no one spoke. All of the questions and answers were read by lip movements.

Teen-Age Trials' service to the community has been acknowledged by fourteen awards, including the only award in the history of the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors for work with the youth of Los Angeles County. It is the only television program which has been instrumental in having a municipal law enacted—the juvenile knife-carrying law, which for a while was known as the "Brady" law.

No, there's nothing sensational about KRCA's Teen-Age Trials — except the good it has accomplished!

WHY KMPC's DISC JOCKEYS

Never Get Bored

These fellows might get tired of hearing themselves talk if it weren't for some off-and-on-the-air interests

By Charles Stalnaker

IFIVE DISC jockeys, working on a 24-hour format, might have good reason to get bored with their work when you stop to think that they daily must play music, talk on the telephone, read the weather reports, tell the time and report the news. However, the disc jockeys at KMPC all love their work and their community. And you don't get bored doing what you love.

Dick Whittinghill

Dick Whittinghill likes to look through magazine publications for subject matter to discuss on the air. Dick is the informed, chatty type who enjoys trading views about records with his equally chatty audience. Other than this, he spends a lot of time looking at his calendars and pin-ups, some of which have been sent him by his radio audience. I guess these never get boring.

John McShane

John McShane seems to be the night owl of the group in that he has an early a.m. show. The biggest portion of his time is spent programming the next day's show. He does this by making selections of male, female, group and instrumental recordings from a working library of over 500 records. Since John plays over 120 records per night, his selections can be quite varied. He also plays over the air interviews with certain personalities by recording the phone conversation on tape. For example, the weatherman is apt to be on often when giving weather reports.

Johnny Grant

A sizeable portion of the Freeway Club—hosted by Johnny Grant—is consumed with his telephone conversations. It is an important part of the show since Johnny likes to banter the talk back and forth to the delight of his radio audience. Johnny is quite well-known for his many charitable hours devoted to the entertainment of the armed forces overseas. In fact he has just returned from a trip to Tokyo, where he was entertaining for the services.

Ira Cook

Ira Cook, for instance, has a tremendous mail reaction to his program. He answers all of it, about half on his show. He also gets phone calls concerning the history of various records and promptly answers the questions, sometimes on the air. If he doesn't have the information at hand, he will take time to look it up and answer it by mail. Sometimes he can spot a tune that is destined to become a hit, simply from three or four phone calls that come in. He also uses these calls as a guide in programming the future shows in that he tries to play the records that the public wants to hear. Aside from these facts, Ira loves good music and could listen to the records he plays indefinitely.

Bill Stewart

An individual who tries to promote a certain kind of music is Bill Stewart. He likes to play the greatest all-time records on his show. These are the records he loves, therefore, he never tires of them. Bill is somewhat of a promoter along other lines too. He earned a goodly portion of credit by bringing the Ronnie Deauville situation to light. Ronnie, you remember, was paralyzed as the result of an automobile accident. In the recent Malibu fire, Bill was responsible for having 11 truckloads of sandwiches sent out to the fire for the volunteer firefighters. Most of these charitable projects are conducted and publicized by him on the air. He is also a news hound in that he will try to trace down the slightest bit of news in order to pass it along to his radio audience.

Although the individual likes and dislikes of the various deejays at KMPC may vary, there are a few principles that are common to all five. This family of deejays is trying to bring the radio audience something different as far as music is concerned. They are aided tremendously by the station in that they are given a free hand as far as programming their shows. A lot of time and research go into their daily shows in order to bring the audiences something good in radio.

One can readily see that they will never get bored with their work as long as they remain the enthusiastic guys they are.
