they say Acme's got an 'in' at our place

MAYBE YOU'VE heard it said at the Ad Club. Or at Stouffer's on a Wednesday noon. Sometimes perhaps at the Hapsburg. But the comment's always the same—"Say, Larry—looks like Acme's got an 'in' at WOR." The remark usually follows the rumor that another Acme radio client is crossing the finish line laps ahead of competitors whose dust he at one time paced.

We're sorry, but Acme's^{*} got no 'in' at our place. We'll give you a spy's glance though at one very good reason for the remark. It's simply that Acme – and a lot of other smart timebuyers – are keenly aware of the fact that the WOR markets are as specialized a timebuy as fancy diamond selection. Here is a market group and a people as different from any other as Hollywood is from Holyoke. Ergo, you get listening tastes and habits as different as H is from H.

So Acme calls constantly on WOR's long-and-very-speciallyaccumulated knowledge of WOR listeners' listening and other ways of life. And, in doing so, Acme gets that very valuable edge that people blithely call an 'in'.

Actually, it's just a matter of thrifty business.

ZINSMASTER BAKING COMPANY

MINNEAPOLIS. MINNESOTA

Radio Station WCCO 625 Second Avenue South Minneapolis, Minnesota

June 9, 1941

PAUL-DULUTH-HIBBING

Gentlemen:

Just a little over a year ago, the Zinsmaster Baking Company started its fifteen-minute, five-day-a-week show, "Master Meets the Missus," on WCCO. At this time, it is a pleasure for us to report to you that it has been one of the most successful advertising campaigns ever introduced by our company.

It is our conviction that the program has had a three-way appeal and that each appeal has been equally successful.

- 1. The show definitely appeals to the consumer. It has resulted in an increased desire for Zinsmaster products.
- 2. It has built dealer good will and aided us in cementing our friendship with the trade.
- 3. The fact that members of our own sales organization are heard on these broadcasts tends to stimulate sales effort and build morale.

We are highly gratified by the results of this campaign on WCCO and hope that the very pleasant relations between your organization and ours may continue for a long time to come.

Very truly yours, provides another of those success stories that WCCO likes. It is a further proof of The Zinsmaster Baking Company's experience with WCCO radio's unparalleled power to move minds and merchandise ... and of WCCO's ability to put radio's power to work. • City slickers, we've always heard, are the original genuine Grade A fall guys of the world.

Maybe that's wrong. But when it comes to planning farm advertising promotions, we do know that most time salesmen are city men —hence do have a pretty tough time trying to visualize the typical kind of farm prospect. Without real farm experience, even a conscientious salesman may unwittingly mislead both himself and his customer.

As representatives for a number of stations with very large farm followings, it has behooved F&P to dig more deeply into farm merchandising than you'd normally expect. . . . More than that, several of our fifteen fellows operate their own farms, and quite a few have worked in agricultural jobs, or have sold farm products. Best of all, we have actually helped build a lot of successful farm campaigns.

So if you want some radio help on any kind of farm or small-town product, give us a ring. You won't have to explain that a battery chicken isn't a live-wire young lady!

ANPA Enters Wide-Open Press Battle

Resentment Aroused as FCC's Probers Raid Newspaper and Radio Files

A WIDE OPEN fight, with no holds barred, against the FCC's station-newspaper divorcement proceedings was presaged last week with the revelation that the American Newspaper Publishers' Assn. will intervene in the inquiry now scheduled to begin July 23. ANPA is entering the case out of conviction that the issue transcends mere fact-finding and is really aimed at the nation's press.

Simultaneously, there developed deep resentment among newspaper stations over the latest foray of the FCC in rummaging through the files of stations to procure grist for the inquiry. In a dozen quarters, widely separated geographically, Commission investigators have in effect flashed their badges and demanded the right to examine all files relating to any aspect of joint operation of newspapers and stations.

Raiders of Files

Press associations serving radio, and even the major networks, have been called on during the last fortnight, it was reported, under instruction of the FCC investigating unit, headed by David Lloyd, who in turn received orders from FCC Chairman Fly.

Branded as an out-and-out "fishing expedition", these intramural investigations evidently have sought only data that would reflect unfavorably upon dual radio-newspaper operation, according to reports received by BROADCASTING. In several instances the investigators were asked to specify the precise correspondence or contractual data they desired. NBC and CBS, it is understood, declined to throw open their files unless specific data were enumerated.

Last Friday Commissioner Ray C. Wakefield admitted he had signed "several subpoenas" but indicated that they had not yet been served. The FCC had authorized Commissioner Wakefield to sign subpoenas. MBS as well as the other networks was called on by FCC investigators, and indicated it would "cooperate". It is understood that among the subpoenas already signed are those covering NBC and CBS. In one quarter it was stated the subpoenas were more in the nature of "indictments".

Acting upon instruction of the ANPA board of directors, Walter M. Dear, president of ANPA and publisher of the Jersey (City) Journal, announced last Wednesday the board had instructed its general counsel, Elisha Hanson, of Washington, to appear in the investigation. Mr. Hanson will file an appearance on behalf of the powerful newspaper group by July 18, the due date.

"This action has been taken," Mr. Dear announced, "because it is apparent that the inquiry is undertaken for the purpose of disqualifying anyone engaged in the newspaper publishing business from engaging in radio broadcast business. An order to this effect would clearly be discriminatory and illegal.

"The views of this association will be presented through counsel. Every effort will be made to protect all engaged in our business from such discriminatory action."

The ANPA action came after distribution by the FCC of its 14page questionnaire to all stations, eliciting information on newspaperstation practices by going far beyond the scope of station operation per se [BROADCASTING, July 7]. The questionnaire, together with a supplemental order (79-A) outlining issues to be met at the hearing, were released by the Commission 10 days ago.

Immediate reaction was that the Commission did not propose to con-day were Niles Trammell, president, and Frank Mullen, vice-president and general manager, of NBC; Edward Klauber, executive vice-president, and Paul Kesten, vice-president of CBS; and Fred

Weber, general manager, and Louis

G. Caldwell, general counsel, of MBS. With Wm. S. Paley, CBS

president, substituted for Mr.

Kesten, they also were the participants in the meeting the preceding

Thursday in New York, as well as at the June 30 session in Washington, attended also by Senator

Wheeler and Ed Craney, general manager of KGIR, Butte [BROAD-

CASTING, July 7]. Mr. Trammell, it is understood, conferred informally with Chairman Fly last Tuesday in Washington. Mr. Paley also was in Washington but did not visit the FCC.

Both network heads, however, conferred separately Wednesday with fine its inquiry to the question of newspaper ownership, but that it proposed to go far beyond this and actually invade press association activities, purported coloring of news by radio sponsors, and the competitive effect of joint ownership upon independently-owned stations.

This reaction was buttressed when the corps of FCC investigators descended upon stations, networks and press associations to comb through their files.

Until a week or so ago, reports had been received of sporadic "investigations" by the FCC investigations" by the FCC investigation unit, created by FCC Chairman Fly about a year ago. But the "dragnet" type of field investigation apparently did not develop until late June when Chief Investigator Lloyd sent forth his men as well as a number of attorneys and accountants borrowed from other divisions. This came, presumably, when Chairman Fly decided to proceed with the July 23 date for opening of the inquiry.

Gestapo?

One of the recent reports, only whispered about in the industry, was the sudden appearance June 17 of two FCC investigators at NBC headquarters in Washington. This was the day NBC President Niles Trammell was to testify before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee on the White Resolution designed to stop the FCC's anti-monopoly regulations and provide a full-scale investigation of the FCC, with a view toward new legislation.

The investigators, according to the report, asked for local cor-respondence files. Upon advice of counsel, however, the data was not turned over, with the suggestion that specific requests be made.

No official comment came from NBC or its attorneys, but those who had heard of the incident branded it a "Gestapo" type of operation and probably designed to unnerve the NBC president before his committee appearance.

While it had been freely stated until a few days ago that the July 23 starting date would not hold, since neither the FCC nor the Newspaper-Radio Committee conceivably could be ready, there is no (Continued on page 48)

Three Major Networks Confer To Avert Monopoly Action

Wheeler-Inspired Sessions Take Up Main Issues; Prospects of Postponement Thought Bright Present at the session last Thurs-

WITH LESS than a month remaining before the Aug. 2 effective date of the far-reaching network monopoly rules, directing heads of the three major networks have been holding periodic meetings in the hope of narrowing differences on the rules and paving the way for action calculated to result in a postponement.

Following sessions held in both Washington and New York during the week of June 30, heads of NBC, CBS and MBS met in New York last Thursday in a third conference, upon suggestion of Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, that they endeavor to settle their own disputes by compromise.

Further Sessions

If and when that is accomplished it is presumed Senator Wheeler will be notified and possibly a session arranged with FCC Chairman James Lawrence Fly, spearhead of the Government drive to regulate relations between affiliates and networks.

Rising Scale of Fees Offered To NBC Networks by ASCAP

Society Counters With Its Own Blanket Proposal; Triple Damage Suit Still Discussed

AVOIDING a rejection of NBC's proposal for return of its repertoire to the Red and Blue, ASCAP has countered with another blanket contract proposal, with both groups studying the figures in the hope of reaching an accord.

Following a meeting of the ASCAP board July 3, during which both the NBC and CBS contract proposals were discussed, E. Claude Mills, chairman of the ASCAP administrative committee, and John G. Paine, ASCAP general manager, conferred last Monday with Niles Trammell, president, and Mark Woods, vice-president and treasurer of NBC.

Rising Rate

The tentative counter-proposition, it is understood, provided for a blanket commercial network contract calling for $2\frac{1}{2}$ % of net receipts from the sale of time for the initial two years 3% for the balance of the proposed nine-year period. This was as against NBC's proposition of a flat $2\frac{1}{2}$ % for the duration of the contract [BROAD-CASTING, June 30].

On both sides it was indicated the discussions are entirely harmonious and an amicable solution appears in the offing. Any proposition agreed to as between NBC and ASCAP negotiators, however, presumably will be subject to approval of their respective boards.

Apparently, serious negotiations with CBS on its proposal have not been undertaken, pending the outcome of the NBC conversations. ASCAP heretofore has insisted that it would stand on the MBS contract, which, under blanket license provisions, called for a 3% royalty on network programs for four years and for 3½% thereafter until 1950. The CBS proposal to pay ASCAP 2% of network net receipts after deduction of line costs and expenses, with a graduated scale based on income, had been branded "ridiculous" by ASCAP.

ASCAP's revenue from the MBS-type contract, if applied horizontally to the industry, would bring an estimated yield of about $4,200,000 per year, as against $5,100,000 paid by the industry in 1940. This latter figure, however, is bracketed against the $8,000,000 to $9,000,000 which the industry would have been forced to pay ASCAP if the contract originally proffered by the Society had been accepted.

ASCAP contends that the CBS proposal, if applied to the industry, would yield only about $2,-500,000 from radio, while the NBC proposal would give ASCAP an estimated annual revenue of more than $3,000,000.

Triple-Damage Suit

Meanwhile, ASCAP persists in keeping alive its threatened tripledamage suit against the industry, specifying NBC, CBS, NAB and BMI and their officers, on grounds of allegedly conspiring to put the Society out of business and bar its music from the air. More than a month has elapsed since ASCAP made its original threat declaring that its lawyers were preparing the suit seeking to reimburse the Society for losses allegedly sustained as a result of the banning of ASCAP music from the major networks and the bulk of the stations since Jan. 1.

In industry quarters, it was thought there was little substance to the threat and that, as a matter of fact, the industry might find itself in a position of turning tables on ASCAP, since it was subjected to payment of arbitrary royalties over a period of years and since ASCAP, in Supreme Court litigation, in effect was adjudged an illegal combination only a few months ago.

Not to Say 'Stalin Line'

EXPRESSING complete amaze-ment at the action, Senator Danaher (R-Conn.) last week sar-castically criticized FCC Chairman James Lawrence Fly's "Stalin Line Conference" in which the chairman suggested to Washington newspaper and radio representatives that they eliminate reference to the "Stalin Line" as such.

Senator Danaher's remarks came after the story of the supposed "highly confidential" meeting had reached Capitol Hill an hour after the conference ended. The Connecticut Republican said:

"Now we have come to the point where newspaper and radiomen must get approval of news, not from a cabinet official, but from the head of an administrative agency. The news the American people read and hear is being colored at the source.

The 'Record' Next

"Things have come to a pretty pass when a nation not at war has its newspaper and radio reporters -the latter servants of companies operating with licenses from the Government-told how they should present the news to which the American people are entitled without coloring. Probably the next step will be to censor the Congressional Record."

The conference, which was a chief topic of Washington newspaper gossip last week as well as main topic of conversation prior to President Roosevelt's Friday press conference, was called suddenly Thursday afternoon.

News commentators H. R. Baukhage of NBC, Fulton Lewis Jr. of MBS and Albert Warner of CBS, of whom only the latter directs a network news bureau, were among those summoned to the chairman's office. Others asked to attend included representatives of the United Press, International News Service and Associated Press as well as the New York Times.

It is understood the meeting was called as a part of the activities of the Defense Communication Board of which Mr. Fly is chairman.

Substance of the now famous conference was that Chairman Fly suggested to the radio and newspaper representatives that they refrain from use of the phrase "Stalin Line" in their broadcasts or dispatches. He pointed out that it was merely a suggestion, not a request or an order, and that if they didn't agree with the idea not to pay any attention to it.

One of those attending asked if there was any such thing as a "Stalin Line" and to determine that point a call was placed to the War Department. There it was said no accurate information was available turn Friday, eve of the strike deadline, when the station obtained an injunction in the Cincinnati Common Pleas Court restraining the AT&T and the Cincinnati & Suburban Telephone Co. from discontinuing MBS network service. The temporary injunction was granted by Common Pleas Judge Dudley Outcalt.

The petition alleged that MBS already had asked AT&T to eliminate WKRC from the MBS network on the July 12 deadline. The petition at the same time asked for a permanent injunction against discontinuance of the service.

Inasmuch as there is an Ohio law which makes such an injuncbut it was thought that what is generally referred to as the "Stalin Line" is merely a series of individual fortifications, nothing comparable to the Maginot Line of France.

Mr. Fly explained his "suggestion", saying he thought that if the Germans pierced the line it would have a bad effect upon the morale of the American people. He also is quoted as saying that he checked his suggestion with Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles, who agreed that it was "a good idea".

At one point during the conference it is reported someone asked what could be done about use of the term by such people as Walter Winchell, H. V. Kaltenborn, and Elmer Davis who operate out of New York. No provision had evidently been made for them to be included in the "suggestion."

As BROADCASTING went to press no news agency had deleted the term from its dispatches.

the possibility of being unable to feed any agency-produced commercial shows to its entire station list.

Affects Agency Shows

AFRA and MBS attorneys, as BROADCASTING went to press, were endeavoring to take legal action to avert this. Previously, it had been agreed at a special MBS board meeting in Chicago attended by AFRA negotiators including Miss Emily Holt, executive secretary of the union, that MBS could send its agency produced shows - using AFRA talent exclusively-to all its affiliates except WKRC.

Hulbert Taft Jr., manager of the station, had attended the meeting in Chicago but was said to have left before the agreement was reached between MBS and AFRA. Conferences between Miss Holt and Mr. Taft were resumed in Cincinnati Thursday and Friday but reached a stalemate over employment of three staff members, alleged by the union to be "strike-breakers", and a demand by Miss Holt for a letter of apology from Radio Artists Assn., an independent union at the station. The station management also charged that the union wanted included in any AFRA agreement persons not previously mentioned in discussions.

As BROADCASTING went to press, station officials had decided to take no action until after Sunday night, pointing out that only one commercial, agency - produced show would be affected by the AFRA ban scheduled for July 12.

Despite the apparent breakdown of negotiations on several fronts, there still appeared to be a basis for resumption late Friday. At president in charge of programs, emerging as a possible purchaser of the NBC Artists Service, when and if it is sold, NBC during the last week continued conversations with another prospective purchaser, Music Corp. of America, which recently completed a deal for CBS Artists Bureau.

Conferences with William Morris Agency, another principal prospect, are scheduled for the week of July 14. However, conversations have not yet elicited any definite offer, NBC indicated Friday.

Mark Woods, NBC vice-president and treasurer, met last Thursday with executives of MCA, and it is thought a concrete offer may soon come from either or both MCA and the Morris Agency. It is also under-stood that W. (Biggie) Levin, inde-pendent talent agent of Chicago, has shown interest in acquiring the NBC talent agency. He was in New York last Tuesday getting an outline of the organization from NBC officials, and is now studying the proposition in Chicago.

Mr. Strotz has been rumored for some time to be slated to take over management of the talent organi-zation if NBC sells it, in compliance with the FCC monopoly order forcing liquidation of extra-broadcast network activities. Although he admitted interest in acquiring the artists service himself. rather than managing it for someone else, Mr. Strotz had nothing to say about identity of his backers and declared that he has not yet made any offer to NBC.

that time the Radio Artists Assn., which AFRA charges is a company union, was meeting to discuss the AFRA proposition for wages and hours. If the independent union accepts the terms, it was considered possible that Mr. Taft and Miss Holt would resume discussions.

Late Friday when word of the developments reached New York, MBS General Manager Fred Weher, MBS attorney Emanuel Dannett and AFRA Attorney Henry Jaffee flew to Cincinnati to discuss a possible truce.

Started in June

The first strike in AFRA history started June 20, when four AFRA members of the 17-man WKRC announcing staff failed to report to work and started picketing the WKRC studios, assigned by other local union members [BROADCAST-ING, June 23, 30]. The station meantime has continued operating on full schedule, with the majority of the staff staying on the job. They are members of the recentlyorganized Radio Artists Assn., an independent union considered by AFRA to be an "administrationdominated organization".

Prior to the June 20 strike RAA had been sure enough of its position to petition the National Labor Relations Board for an election to determine which union should act as collective bargaining agent for WKRC talent, with AFRA opposing the move.

Shutdown by October Feared; Repair Allotment Seen

TAKING official cognizance for the first time of shortages in material causing a reduction in the production of receiving sets [BROADCAST-ING, May 5, June 2] and possibly transmitting equipment, F C CChairman James Lawrence Fly warned last week that there would be a curtailment in receiving sets by October.

The chairman pointed out that if a radio manufacturer couldn't get aluminum in July he would not be manufacturnig in October. Mr. Fly said he was anxious to avoid a drastic curtailment of operations not only because of the unemployment that would result but also because he feels radios and maintenance of radio communication are important to civilian morale.

Mr. Fly was definite in his prediction of a cut in receiving sets. Difficulty of obtaining steel has already postponed work on the new NBC building in San Francisco, and has delayed numerous station antenna installations.

A step to alleviate the material shortage as far as transmitting equipment is concerned was taken last week [BROADCASTING, July 7] when the Office of Price Administration & Civilian Supply announced a priority status for materials necessary to keep commercial broadcast and communications equipment, as well as equipment in other specified industries, in good working order.

It is understood that allotments under this announcement would go principally for transmitters and transmitter equipment. The Office of Production Management also is considering grant of a small aluminum allotment to the radio industry to avoid a practical stoppage in set production. This would offer only temporary relief, however. Announcement of a decision on the aluminum allocation for set manufacture will be made in about two weeks, it is understood.

Replacement Sets

Officials of the Radio Manufacturers Assn. say their figures show that 1,000,000 sets become obsolete in a year and they feel provision should be made at least for replacement during the coming season. However, the attitude of officials in Washington has been that sets presently in homes can provide good listening and that the industry could give more of its production facilities directly to defense output.

Chairman Fly pointed out, however, that only a small part of the industry's capacity is engaged in supplying defense items. This, he (Continued on Page 47) ACTING voluntarily to prevent recurrence of an unfortunate episode in their relations with Broadcast Music Inc., more than 50 small music publishers have formed Independent Music Publishers Assn., designed to operate as a "buffer" between publisher members and BML

Meanwhile, BMI announced last Wednesday that contracts had been completed with six new publishing firms to license their music for use by BMI subscribers—Fountain Music Co.; Harmony Music Publishers; Melo-Dee Music Co.; Modern Standard Music Co.; Morrell Schwartz Music Co.; Merrell Schwartz Music Co.; Merrell Son, musical director of the Maxwell House Program.

The group, formed July 3, met in New York last Tuesday and has scheduled a general meeting for July 21, at which members will ratify a formal constitution and by-laws now being formulated by an organizational committee.

Bookkeeping Error

IMPA came into being following commission of an admitted bookkeeping error on the part of BMI, as a result of which many small publishers received from BMI what were regarded as minuscule performing rights payments for the first quarter of 1941 [BROADCAST-ING, July 7].

Making prompt amends by putting its accounting staff on a 24hour basis refiguring payments and rushing supplementary payments into the mails, BMI voiced apology and explained that the small payments resulted because payments for network performances had not been included in the calculations.

At the initial IMPA meeting July 3 Sydney M. Kaye, BMI executive vice-president, and M. E. Tompkins, vice-president and general manager, explained the embarrassing situation and volunteered to adjust any matter pertaining to individual publisher payments. A vote of confidence in the management and policies of

BMI EXPLOITATION Subsidiary Is Organized to Promote Numbers

ASSERTEDLY to provide an increasing variety of popular music under the BMI banner, Broadcast Music Inc. has organized Radio Tunes Inc as its first subsidiary, to publish and exploit popular music. Chief executives have not been selected, although Sydney M. Kaye, BMI executive vice-president, Merritt E. Tompkins, vicepresident and general manager, and Robert J. Burton were named as directors.

Radio Tunes will establish a professional department and other divisions essential to a music company of its kind. "In establishing a subsidiary, BMI is profiting from the experience of other music publishers who have found additional companies useful in the promotion of their music," BMI declared. Legal aspects were handled by Rosenberg, Goldmark & Colin.

BMI was offered by attending publishers.

At this meeting a committee of publishers also was appointed to cooperate with BMI in obtaining the highest degree of accuracy possible in its system of performance payments. The committee also was authorized to formulate a formal constitution and by-laws for subsequent ratification by the entire membership.

Following a second meeting last Tuesday, this committee indicated that a standard contract form would be developed for use by publisher members, and that IMPA would ask for a periodic audit of BMI accounts, in the interest of working out an accounting method equitable to all concerned. Although committee members felt confident current differences would be adjusted satisfactorily, it was evident that several publishers still were dissatisfied after even their corrected royalty payments.

Members of the IMPA organizational committee include Peter Doraine, Doraine Music Publishing Co., chairman; Andrew D. Weinberger, counsel; Harold Oxley, New Era Music Corp.; Bill Lackenbauer, Encore Music Co.; Berkley Graham, London Music Co.; Ben Sabia, Mutual Music Co.

The organizational meeting July 3 was attended by 49 publishers, with 10 other out-of-town publishers indicating their cooperation through letters. IMPA leaders believe the membership will include eventually all the publisher members of BMI.

Battle of Releases

Meantime, the bookkeeping incident has lent new fury to the acrimonious exchange of press releases between BMI and ASCAP and associated organizations. Among the first to seize upon the incident was Irving Caesar, president of Song Writers' Protective Assn., who declared last Wednesday that the situation "marked the broadcasters' music publishing house as a sweatshop".

"BMI (the implement and creation of CBS and NBC) has never found it consistent with its business interest that the writer and publisher should participate in a disposition of mechanical rights, transcription rights and performing rights to their mutual advantage. BMI evidently thinks it silly to yield to writers the basic elemental rights that SPA has achieved for writers in its minimum basic agreement," Mr. Caesar said.

"It is all too evident that BMI was organized by the broadcasters for the sole purpose of destroying the rights vested in writers and putting songwriters in the category of sweat-shop workers. The creative artist, whether he be a Victor Herbert or a John Philip Sousa, should, according to these broadcasters, be grateful for whatever crumbs are thrown his way." In a twicel answer to ASCAP

In a typical answer to ASCAP blasts, BMI declared:

"ASCAP, by the circulation of a number of misstatements, is attempting to foment discord between BMI and its affiliated music publishers. This comes with singularly bad grace from ASCAP, as the music publishers to which it refers are the very persons it has for years excluded from membership and prevented from gaining a foothold in the music field.

"It may be noted that BMI affiliated publishers will do better during subsequent quarters than they did during the first quarter of 1941. This is by reason of the fact that the vast majority of BMI affiliates were publishers who came into being after the existence of BMI which, for the first time, afforded them an open market for music. It is of interest to note that half of the numbers on the current Hit Parade are the publications of firms which had not been in business prior to the formation of BMI and had not been able to obtain exploitation of their works."

More Than a Krafty Foot in the Door

Radio Salesman Right in the House; Kraft Sales Climb and Climb

By JOHN H. PLATT

Director of Advertising, Kraft Cheese Co., Chicago

N A WARM July night in 1933, radio merchandising history was made when Kraft Cheese Co. launched a revolutionary new radio program. It was a two-hour show under the baton of Paul Whiteman, starring a brand new Kraft product, Miracle Whip Salad Dressing.

Radio itself, as a great commercial selling medium, was young enough then so that such a program based on the soundest merchandising principles we knew, to sell a product whose "rightness" for the market had been pre-tested in every way, represented a real adventure in the—for us—uncharted seas of radio selling.

History Is Made

The program had been carefully planned to introduce in the eastern section of the United States this newest product of the Kraft line. The trade had been fully and dramatically primed for the new show and the new product. A powerful newspaper campaign, carrying a "double your money back" guarantee was ready to go.

That first two-hour show on an eastern group of NBC network stations was in itself a gigantic pretest, before going national with the product and the merchandising.

What happened the day following that first two-hour program, and on subsequent days, too, in grocery stores throughout the East, and shortly thereafter all over the country, made merchandising history. Success of that radio show which introduced Miracle Whip Salad Dressing and continued, nationally, on an hour program, to sell it and many other Kraft products, is outstanding even for radio which has scores of notable merchandising stories to tell.

Now sponsored on 89 NBC-Red stations, plus many Canadian outlets, the formula of the present one-hour Kraft Music Hall, starring Bing Crosby and Bob Burns, was arrived at Jan. 2, 1936. We have kept the formula for certain definite reasons. We believe, on the basis of performance, that they are good reasons for us, and for the products we have to sell. The uniform selling performance of the weekly show over this period is no matter of peaks of success here and there. We know what the program has done, can do, and is doing, consistently, week in and week out, 52 weeks a year.

Within a few weeks after its introduction on the air, Miracle Whip Salad Dressing became the leader among all salad dressings on the market. Within little more than a ycar, it was outselling the next 20 brands combined! There were, of course, many factors entering into the phenomenal and immediate success of Miracle Whip. The product itself was right, new, designed to meet a special American taste.

One at a Time

Research to perfect the product had been far-reaching. The product had been carefully, and without promotion of any kind, tested in scattered markets. Kraft salesmen and the retail trade were ready for the introduction. The radio show was thoughtfully prepared; all commercials, all copy keyed to one hard-hitting central idea.

The story of Miracle Whip, in which the radio program played so dramatic a part, is mentioned specifically because it perfectly illustrates the working p h i l os o p h y which Kraft Cheese Co. has used in its advertising and merchandising since the concern began national advertising in 1919.

Part of that philosophy, simply stated, is this: Sell one idea at a time; sell it hard; sell it straight and sell it fast. We have followed this simple rule consistently on the Kraft Music Hall for eight years selling one product at a time, selling it straight and fast.

During the major portion of these years the show, on the entertainment side, has sparkled with the amiable talents of Bing Crosby, Bob Burns and their guests. In the Kraft Music Hall's history on the air, the commercials have sold many Kraft products. Virtually every major product in the whole line of cheeses and salad products has received its full share of the spotlight. But we have never tried to sell them simultaneously. Always one at a time, always hard, always straight!

We have followed this simple and direct method of selling on the air for several equally simple reasons. In the first place, fortunately or unfortunately, a radio listener can hear only one program at a time, one message at a time.

When a radio advertiser com-

petes for circulation, he's competing with everything else on the air. But if he has his customer tuned to his show, he has that customer exclusively. The salesman has more than a foot in the door. He's inside the house selling his wares. We think the customer likes to get the message straight from the shoulder. We think he, or principally she, likes the message short and snappy. We believe that more than one idea at a time, an attempt to sell more than one product at a time, in any one commercial, or on any one show, is confusing.

Four Out of Sixty

The selling time on any given radio period is too short. In the case of Kraft Music Hall, that selling time is four minutes out of 60. Those four minutes have to pay. In our experience the best way to use these four minutes pay is to use them for a straight selling job.

Ken Carpenter does that job for us. He does it admirably, as any grocer can testify Friday morning after Friday morning when the grocery orders for the week-end begin coming in. For the real test of the Kraft Music Hall performance is to be found in the Friday and Saturday sales records of the grocery store.

Sometimes we are asked why, with such engaging talent as Crosby and Burns, we don't use them in publication advertising and in the

THEY don't want any birdshot around Kraft headquarters when the "Music Hall" is on the air. For Kraft shoots one thing at a time, and shoots hard and straight. Others may scatter their shot, but Kraft has found that that three snappy Thursday night plugs for one product will bring countless thousands into grocery stores Friday and Saturday. They come to buy a Kraft product—the one featured on the NBC-Red program. The Kraft story is one of the interesting success tales of radio. Nobody knows the details better than John H. Platt, advertising director, because it's his baby. Now let him do the talking!

radio commercials. In spite of the natural temptation which such a suggestion offers, we have always used radio talent exclusively as talent.

Crosby and Burns are artists, valuable in the field for which they are famous, valuable as entertainers. If they stepped out of character to become commercial salesmen, we think the listening audience might resent it, and with some justification.

It may be that Bing Crosby could go out on a cheese truck and sell cheese as it has never been sold before, but he's doing all right for Kraft just being Bing Crosby. We have, in the last eight years, always given the 56 minutes of the show devoted to entertainment the full limit of that value, merely as entertainment. Four minutes each Thursday night we devote to straight selling.

Kraft has continued through eight years, 52 weeks a year, to maintain a full-hour show. We have done so for several reasons important to us, and to the kind of selling job the show must do.

For one thing, analysis of listening audiences has shown that the average audiences for all hour shows are two times as great as those for half-hour shows, with average talent costs only 1¼ times as great, and average time costs just 1.6 as great.

The advertising impact of the hour show is more than double that of the half-hour, many radio advertising authorities agree, because of the fact that in the hour show the advertiser has the opportunity of talking to his particular audience more times about his subjects, driving home his selling message.

An Hour Preferred

On the Kraft Husic Hall, each hour's program contains three hardselling commercials. In the course of a year, the program sells many products, but never simultaneously. For some products, a single product associated with a single name, the half-hour, or quarterhour show has proved eminently successful.

For selling a series of products successfully, we believe that only a big full-hour show does the big fulltime job of selling required.

The hour program makes it possible not only to implant the name Kraft, but to apply intense sales pressure for a few weeks on particular items of the Kraft line without ever losing sight of the fact that the whole operation is that of the Kraft Company. The weight of a full-hour show holds the Kraft identity over the entire series of intensive selling programs.

A vital reason for the success of the Kraft Music Hall program is that it offers, and must offer, significant entertainment. And enter-(Continued on page 34)

Auto Cut Likely to Affect All Media Tax on Cosmetics

Spot May Be an Early Victim; Big Debut Business Seen

WITH further curtailment of auto production a certainty, BROADCAST-ING last week contacted leading agencies handling automotive ac-counts in New York and Chicago as well as industry sources in Detroit in an effort to determine the effect on radio advertising.

The overall feeling among agency and industry sources sums up as follows:

1-All media will suffer.

2-There is disagreement as to what media will feel the cut first. Agencies are of the opinion network radio will be last to feel the pinch, with the big companies continuing network shows such as Major Bowes Amateur Hour while slashing spot mercilessly.

3-Detroit reports an outlook for a fairly good volume of "kickoff" advertising to introduce the new models this fall. This would apply to all media. From present indications the volume of radio advertising may approach the time-buying at the start of the 1940 model season last autumn.

Shortage of Material

This last prediction is the bright spot in an otherwise pessimistic picture.

Originally the OPM decreed a 20% reduction for 1942 model cars. to provide savings in strategic materials needed in the defense program. Late in June leading auto manufacturers were called to Washington for a meeting with OPM officials. The meeting was private but it is known the manufacturers were told a further cut in production was inevitable due to skyrocketing defense demands for such necessary material as aluminum, chromium, zinc, nickel and steel. For example, after Army and Navy defense requirements are filled the ratio of apparent civilian demands to the remaining supply of aluminum is 15 to 1, and this includes all industries.

Armament Needs First

Now the word has gone out that there will be no more flat reductions in percentage terms but that production will depend on the materials available after armament needs are met. After the first cut, the Office of Price Administration is expected to enter the picture and allocate the residual materials among competing civilian demands. Depending on OPA's decision, the auto industry's output for civilian consumption may be further reduced to release goods for other non-defense lines.

Although no one in Washington would hazard a guess as to the amount of reduction, Detroit sources are estimating up to 50% for the entire model year-or about 2,600,000 cars and trucks. This would be about on a par with production in the 1938 calendar year which was considered exceedingly dull from an advertising standpoint.

The 1942 Problem

In Detroit it is expected the bulk of the curtailment will come after Jan. 1, 1942. Up to that time, it is felt, there will be sufficient materials and manpower to keep assembly lines moving in good volume. After that, however, defense production in automobile areas will be moving in high gear and the diversion of materials will be substantial.

Some sources feel that as many as 1,500,000 cars and trucks will be produced by next January, in the first four or five months of the model year, but hardly more than a million from January to next summer. When it is considered that more than 5,000,000 cars and trucks were produced this year, the impact of the reduction is easily seen.

On the brighter side of the picture, as far as radio goes, the sharply curtailed new car output will naturally mean greater interest in the used market. With huge lots seemingly filled with used cars, it would seem there are plenty to take care of needs. But, industry authorities point out, the used car has its own distinctive market. In times of normal production many sections report used-car sales averaging better than two for every one new car sold. If the used-car market becomes as highly competitive as this reasoning would indicate, local dealers, always consistent radio users, may concentrate on radio campaigns to call attention to their product.

Another bright side of the otherwise generally gloomy picture has been the urging by manufacturers for dealers to give greater attention to profits to be gained in wider promotion of retail service departments. In many cities this would take the form of intensive radio campaigns to promote service features.

Demand vs. Supply

New York agencies contend that with reduced new-car production the market will grow increasingly competitive and radio, as well as other media, will be used considerably. This is discounted in other places, where it is contended the demand will so far outstrip the supply that advertising budgets will be held to a minimum.

In Chicago, agencies handling automobile business were of the opinion that spot radio would be the first to go when an advertising cut is instituted. This is borne out in New York where it was pointed out that spot is designed for a direct selling job in pointof-sale merchandising campaigns.

The overall picture appears hazy but definite portents are taking shape. They all seem to indicate that automobile advertising nationally, reduced though it may be, will take on a more institutional flavor -for which radio is ideally suited; there will be a good run of usedcar business on a local basis as long as the supply holds out and probably a good increase, locally, in promotion of service features such as repairs and accessories.

Said to Prejudice Advertising Funds

Proposed Levy Would Remove Present Exemption Plan

COSMETIC advertising is affected by an excise tax proposal adopted by the House Ways & Means Committee in the new $3,500,000,000 national defense tax bill. The committee voted to hase the 11% cosmetic excise tax on the wholesale price or value of the cosmetic item.

This tax would be computed on a basis which includes the advertising and selling costs, recommended by the Treasury, which estimated the change would increase the an-nual yield by $5,000,000 without changing the 11% rate set by the first national defense tax bill passed in 1940. For the year ended June 30, 1940, the industry paid $7,700,000 in excise taxes.

Ended Litigation

A 10% cosmetic excise tax was first imposed in the 1933 "nuisance' taxes. From 1933 until 1939, the tax basis included advertising and selling costs, but in June, 1939 the industry got Congress to pass an amendment which, in effect eliminated advertising and selling costs. This amendment ended litigation between the industry and the Government over the tax.

When the Treasury proposed a change in the basis of payment at the Ways & Means Committee hearings, industry leaders suggested the 11% rate be increased to secure the $5,000,000 additional revenue, but that the basis of paying the tax be kept intact.

Private brands of cosmetics are given an unfair competitive advantage over advertised brands, industry leaders say, under the Ways & Means proposal.

An unbranded, non-advertised item selling for $1 might carry a tax of 3 cents, whereas the same item, branded and advertised, selling at the same price, might carry a levy of 6 cents. In some quarters it was believed the Treasury desires to get at advertising expenditures for tax purposes.

Copy With a Hook Urged by Morgan Tells PACA Much Copy Now Is Cluttered With Words

IT TAKES more than just another radio show to sell merchandise, Raymond R. Morgan, head of the Hollywood agency bearing his name, told the radio departmental session of the Pacific Advertising Clubs Assn. convention at Santa barbara, Cal., July 1 [BROADCAST-ING, June 20].

Criticizing the type of commercial copy used on many current programs, he said that to make radio do the job expected, agency men must create an idea and then get the right twist to make that idea sell. He said much copy today is insipid, pointless and cluttered up with meaningless adjectives.

An Idea First

"Get the right angle, apply it correctly and radio will sell your client's merchandise," he continued. "If you haven't an idea, don't start on radio. Also please don't blame the poor downtrodden copywriter for bad commercials. Nine times out of ten it isn't his fault if the selling message is weak. It is probably your own, or that of the sponsor.

sor. "In building a radio campaign, the importance of the commercial is unfortunately relegated to the background, with the copywriter being brought in at the last minute to perform his important chore. Build your radio around your selling message."

Mr. Morgan pointed out that many sponsors unfortunately want commercial copy to their own tastes. "They like highly technical stuff or wordy copy that is over the head of the average radio listener," he said. He advised sponsors to use a hook, a premium of some sort, and gave several case histories to show its success. By such a procedure, according to Mr. Morgan, the sponsor, too, will get a more accurate check on just how completely his radio sales message is getting over. The answer lies in sales.

Mr. Morgan said big time shows with Hollywood name talent are fine to listen to, but "don't necessarily sell the sponsor's product. The thing that sells merchandise is not the radio program. It is the commercial copy. A simple, inexpensive program, properly directed, with good copy and the right kind of hook will do the job."

To obtain sure-fire copy, Mr. Morgan pleaded that greater recognition and financial consideration be given the commercial copywriter, who, he pointed out, is an integral factor in the success of commercial radio.

A question and answer roundtable, covering a variety of subjects on Pacific Coast radio advertising and coverage followed Mr. Morgan's talk. Donald W. Thornburgh, CBS Pacific Coast vice-president, presided as chairman, with participants including William B. Ryan, sales manager, KPO-KGO, San Francisco; George Moskovics, CBS Pacific Coast sales promotion director; R. L. Counselors Inc., Phoenix; Howard Willoughby, executive of Foster & Kleiser, San Francisco; Claire Drew Forbes, Seattle department store advertising manager.

The five-day convention, which ended July 3, was attended by approximately 500 radio and agency executives from the 11 western states.

TWO-REEL motion picture, "Turnover", convincing argument in favor of radio as an advertising medium, is being shown throughout the country by General Mills. It depicts to the grocer for the first time a visual story of General Mills' radio advertising program, showing how advertising on the air and merchandising can be synchronized perfectly.

The General Mills programs mentioned in the film include Betty Crocker, radio's oldest daytime network commercial feature; Arnold Grimm's Daughter, Valiant Lady, Hymns of All Churches, Stories by Kathleen Norris, Jack Armstrong, Billy & Betty, Carolyn's Golden Store, Beat the Band and baseball.

Quick Turnover

All these programs get results that mean turnover of product on the grocers' shelves approximately 15 times a year, the film brought out. Because the housewife buys 90% of the food, the majority of General Mills radio programs are designed to appeal to her. General Mills claims that Jack Armstrong and its baseball broadcasts have made Wheaties the best selling cereal on the market, also that one out of every three youngsters in the United States has a Jack Armstrong plane.

The company studied some 6,000 premiums before selecting the airplane and other giveaways used in connection with its programs. H. G. Gieseke of the Sperry Flour Co., General Mills subsidiary,

H. G. Gieseke of the Sperry Flour Co., General Mills subsidiary, Stated at a showing before the San Francisco Advertising Club that the movie has brought home its point to grocers and that General Mills has been able to get additional cooperation in the way of displays after retailers have seen the film.

In its house organ, Modern Mill-wheel, General Mills has this to say about its film and its radio:

"Whenever a General Mills salesman makes a sale to a grocer, he sells fine cereal products, of course, but he also sells the grocer something even more important—turnover. Turnover, or resale value, means profits to the grocer. The average grocer's stock of Wheaties "turns over" completely every 25 days. The other General Mills products enjoy equally outstanding rates of turnover.

of turnover. "What great force keeps this river of distribution in motion? The new sound motion picture, "Turnover", produced by the merchandising department of GMI, under the direction of Charles H. Bell, answers: "The power of daytime radio advertising keeps General Mills products moving. The end result of all this forceful advertising is speedy turnover."

"Rapidly and convincingly, with narrator, music, and fine photography, the film tells the story of the big selling job General Mills daytime shows do for the grocer. Individually the programs are reviewed. The careful tailoring of the programs to the needs and desires of Mrs. Housewife and her family is stressed, together with the careful testing, producing, and analyzing for results.

The Backbone

"Daytime radio has become the backbone of General Mills advertising. There are twice as many radios as telephones in American homes. And the chances are that the average grocer's store is located in the very center of a community of regular General Mills listeners. If he were to call them up on the telephone personally, he could not do half so powerful a selling job. "Fourteen years ago the first General Mills national program was "Fourteen years ago the first General Mills national program was heard over the air: Betty Crocker —once a week, 52 times a year. This year, in 1941, listeners will hear 9,000 individual General Mills programs!

"Each grocery products branch office has been supplied with a copy of the film, together with a projector and sound equipment. General Mills is all set to tell the story of "Turnover' to grocers and trade associations all over America!"

Talent Sale Plans Disclosed by CBS

DETAILS of the deals whereby CBS is disposing of its talent services are disclosed in a call for a special meeting of CBS stockholders to be held Aug. 11 in New York. The notice to stockholders by President William S. Paley points out that the company in recent years "has from time to time been criticized for acting, directly or through its subsidiaries, in a dual capacity by both managing artists and buying their services for broadcasting on behalf of the corporation itself or of the sponsors of its commercial programs".

"Although an order of the FCC, dated May 2, 1941, adopting certain regulations as a result of such investigation [network monopoly], does not refer to the management of artists by the said subsidiaries of CBS", says the proxy statement, "questions have been raised in a report accompanying the order as to the propriety of CBS continuing to have an interest in the management companies. The board of directors of CBS believes there has been and is no impropriety in its having such interests, but in view of the questions and the fact that the continuance of the management business is no longer necessary to insure to CBS a supply of radio talent, its board of directors believes it desirable that the interests of CBS in such subsidiaries be disposed of at this time".

The 61 shares of preferred stock will be sold for $61,000 and the 9,684 shares of common of Columbia Concerts Corp. will be sold for $150,000, subject to approval of two-thirds of the stockholders, to Arthur Judson, F. C. Coppicus, Frederick C. Schang Jr., Lawrence Evans, Jack Salter, Ward French, Calvin M. Franklin and Horace J. Parmelee, all executives of that company but none an officer or director of CBS.

The 100 shares of Columbia Artists Inc. (all) and as much of Columbia Management of California Inc. as CBS shall own at time of sale (but not less than 51%) would be sold for $176,190 to Music Corp. of America, also subject to ratification by two-thirds of the stockholders.

commercial shortwave stations. No other purchase of time is contemplated, committee officials stated.

Also included in the appropriation bill was an item for $325,000 which has not yet been earmarked. Whether any of this sum might be used for sponsorship of other Government programs could not be learned at the committee. Committee officials denied reports, however, that the money would be paid NBC and CBS to pay line charges on point-to-point broadcasts rebroadcast over South American stations.

In this connection the committee is endeavoring to have American manufacturers purchase time on local Latin American stations for presentations of news furnished by American wire services. This would be in addition to time purchased on United States short wave stations.

The committee also received $75,-000 which will probably be used in purchasing space in Latin American newspapers to advertise American programs and airmailing American schedules in Spanish and Portuguese. No decision has been made on these plans but it is expected that they will be put into effect shortly.

Nation Dominates In Shortwave War

RCA Finds Argentina First in Number of Receivers

AMERICA is achieving a dominant position in international broadcasting, largely through development by United States technicians of devices making possible country-tocountry broadcasts "with efficiency undreamed of during World War I", according to a statement last Monday by RCA reviewing the Western Hemisphere operations of NBC's two international shortwave stations, WRCA and WNBI, Bound Brook, N. J.

Terming the advance of American shortwave broadcasting "one of the miracle stories of the current war period", the RCA statement gave the bulk of the credit to refinement of the vacuum tube and development of steerable "searchlight" antennas.

Describing the efficiency of these newly-perfected antennas, RCA explained the 50,000-watt beamed signal is the equivalent of a 1,200,000watt signal broadcast to the four winds. When both of the NBC 50,-000-watt shortwave stations are synchronized on the same frequency to beam on adjoining language countries in Latin America, the effective power is 1,700,000 watts, RCA stated.

They Listen Anyhow

"Since the European war broke out, America's horizon of steel towers and tall wooden masts has widened in the interests of national defense and international communications," the RCA statement commented. "Despite the fact that heavy penalties are meted out in oppressed countries on the continent of Europe to those caught listening to foreign broadcasts, mail reaching the United States from foreign shores furnishes proof that the American shortwave broadcasts of unbiased news are overspreading the hemispheres and finding ears that are long-distant targets for truth."

Tabulating the number of radio sets in the countries of South America the RCA Review for July lists Argentina first, with 1,050,000 sets; Brazil, 500,000; Mexico, 300,000; Chile, 160,000; Uruguay and Cuba, 150,000 each; Venezuela, 138,000; Colombia, 100,000; Peru, 68,000, and all other Latin American countries below that number. North American broadcasters consider Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires the centers of the most important language areas of South America, it was stated.

Commenting on NBC's development of international broadcasting in the Review, Raymond F. Guy, NBC radio facilities engineer stated:

"For many years NBC has conducted an effective international broadcasting service. With the outbreak and spread of the present world conflict and the continuous improvement in radio facilities, the value of this service has multiplied in importance and scope. Thousands of letters and telegrams incessantly convey that fact with stirring impact. International broadcasting as conducted by the democracies has become a powerful instrument which has earned the respect and confidence of foreign listeners through the truthfulness of its reporting and the character of its programs."

RALPH NICHOLSON, co-publisher of the Tampa Times, operating WDAE. has severed his connection with that newspaper and has purchased the New Orleans Item, which he will actively head.

KARM Names F & P

FREE & PETERS has been appointed exclusive national representatives of KARM, Fresno, Cal. The station was recently granted a FCC construction permit for an increase in power from 250 watts to 5,000 watts, and the new transmitter is expected to be in operation by Oct. 1.

EUROPE SHORTWAVE EXPANDED BY NBC EQUALING its shortwave service to South America, NBC's International Division has started regular program service to European countries, quadrupling the signal strength of its WNBI and WRCA to a combined power of 100,000 watts. According to O. B. Hanson, NBC vice-president in charge of engi-neering, WNBI has been recon-structed and its power increased from 25,000 to 50,000 watts. A new directional beam antenna was built for the new transmitter to operate on 11.89 mc., teaming with WRCA which continues on 17.78 me.

The rear lobe or tail of the new directional antenna picks up European programs and carries them to New Zealand and Australia with much better reception.

The beam antenna required 16 additional acres at its location at Bound Brook, N. J., where 70 acres are now occupied by 11 directional beam antennas, nine of which are in operation serving Europe and Latin America.

Muzak FM Grant Arouses Interest

FCC Not Fully in Accord Over Memorandum Opinion

MORE THAN casual concern is being evinced in Washington radio circles over the July 1 action of the FCC in granting to Muzak Corp., New York, a construction permit for a developmental FM broadcast station which would provide a subscriber-type program service to listeners [BROADCASTING, July 7].

The FCC itself, it is understood, was not fully in accord in the issuance of a memorandum opinion, which appeared to reflect Commission support of the projected new method whereby listeners would pay a monthly rental for program service, with no commercial sponsorship of the programs. Moreover, the fact that the FCC departed from its regulations, which specify that no developmental station may make a direct or indirect charge for program transmission, waiving this requirement with respect to the Muzak grant, was viewed with concern.

FCC Quotes Muzak

The FCC prior to publication of its memorandum opinion, issued a three-page press release July 1, publicizing the grant as providing a "new type of subscriber broad-cast service". It pointed out that the service would enable the public to obtain selected programs by direct payment, rather than indirect payment through purchasing products advertised on the air, and then quoted the Muzak application as follows:

"There is no reason why the public should pay directly for moving pictures and indirectly for radio. It is merely a matter of circumstance that radio in the United States is available to the public only in connection with advertising announcements which frequently are highly disturbing or irritating. The American people have never decided or been given the opportunity to decide that radio should not be sold in the usual manner by direct payment for the service."

Headed by Catchings

Muzak, which for several years has provided hotels, restaurants and some home subscribers with program service via wire, is a subsidiary of Associated Music Publishers, which, among other things, provides a commercial transcription service for broadcast stations.

Waddill Catchings, head of both AMP and Muzak, is also a director and chairman of the Finance Committee of Warner Bros. Muzak is an off-shoot of Wired Radio Inc., originally set up by the North American Co., public utility operators, with a view toward providing a service competitive to radio by power or telephone lines into homes.

Action Is Awaited On New Tax Bill House Group Nearing End of

Its Revenue Hearings

HAVING weathered the first phase of House Ways & Means Committee consideration of new tax legislation without a franchise tax on broadcasting, the radio industry is awaiting emergence of the House measure prior to the end of the month, to ascertain how much of a dent the new war levies will make.

It is known that a number of items in the measure, as it went to the House drafting conference, would affect the radio industry, particularly in connection with increased taxes on receiving sets and parts. A proposal [BROADCASTING, July 7] to place a franchise tax on broadcasting facilities per se was dropped.

Leased Wire Levy

It also has been learned that there will be no special taxes on wires or tickers used by press associations or broadcasting stations for "the gathering of news". Other leased wire services for the dissemination of news to private subscribers, however, will carry a 5% tax, under the committee draft.

It is expected the Ways & Means Committee will begin consideration of the final draft in executive session within 10 days. Items other than those already incorporated in the measure can be inserted, it was pointed out, but those of major significance already rejected, which might have far-reaching effect upon any industry, probably will not be revived in the committee. That may develop on the floor, however, when the measure is given final House consideration, probably during latter July or early August.

In the Senate, acting Chairman George (D-Ga.) of the Finance Committee, asserted 10 days or two weeks of hearings would be held, with the hope of procuring Senate consideration the latter part of August or early September.

Revival of proposals to impose special taxes upon advertising generally and also upon broadcasting, or some variation of a franchise tax basis, is possible on either the House floor or in the Senate committee hearings, it was pointed out. Past efforts of this nature, however, have fallen because of contentions of unfair discrimination.

Rep. Lambertson said he could see no reason for correcting his statements, despite evidence by two other Congressmen that they were incorrect. His May 27 remarks, he said, were based on articles in Philadelphia newspapers and he added that he hadn't seen any corrections in these newspapers. He said he was not interested in checking with the FCC to see if the newspaper statements or his remarks had accurately presented the facts.

Rep. McGranery (D-Pa.), in a speech before the House July 3, corrected Rep. Lambertson's remarks and introduced an exchange of correspondence between the Kansan and Mr. Rosenbaum. Rep. McGranery stated he was introducing the correspondence "in the interest of justice and fair play". He was joined by Rep. Eberharter (D-Pa.), who said:

"It seems to me the remarks of the gentleman from Kansas at that time were intended to promote disunity at a time when we should have every effort made to promote unity and not stir up emotions which are perhaps engendered by racial feelings."

To Manage New KSKY

A. L. CHILTON, chief owner of KLRA and KGHI, Little Rock, will himself manage the new KSKY, Dallas, when that station goes on the air in the early autumn. The FCC last March authorized Chilton Radio Corp. to erect the new station as a 1,000-watt daytime outlet on 660 kc. Mr. Chilton reports that RCA transmitter equipment and a 300-foot Wincharger tower have been ordered and will shortly be delivered, but personnel has not yet been selected.

"No, son, we ain't sailing today"

"We're loading today. See them hoists and booms. Look at them roustabouts wheeling the stuff aboard. No loafing today. We sail tomorrow."

The same principle applies to time-selling this summer. It's the extra-hard impact of your sales story in July and August that brings extra-nice business to your station in September and October. Sales Management's survey of AAAA agencies revealed that the three summer months are the second most important quarter of the year for the preparation of advertising campaign plans.

Extra-hard impact, that's what BROADCASTING promotion delivers this summer. Write for rates.

Mrs. Bloom's Boom Zooms Sears' Sales

ABOUT seven months ago, in November, my interoffice telephone rang.

"Skipper Leo Downs of WIS to see you, Mr. Aylward." "Oh, yes", I said. "Probably

"Oh, yes", I said. "Probably thinking about Christmas spots already. O. K. Send him in!"

Salesman Downs came in, but it wasn't spot announcements, our usual seasonal radio diet, that "Skipper" had on his mind.

"Got something new in the way of a radio program for Sear's, Jerry," said Leo. "Want to hear it?"

"What's it like?"

Meet Mrs. Bloom !

"It's like nothing you ever knew before. A woman's hour that's really different. You'll have to hear it to believe it."

"O. K., Skipper. We're always looking for a better way to advertise Sear's. When do I listen?"

"Ten o'clock in the morning," said Mr. Downs, "if that suits you. And you won't be disappointed."

Next morning, I settled down in the WIS client's room and the announcer introduced Winefred Bradford Bloom with a program titled "The Missus Goes Shopping". It was my first meeting with Mrs. Bloom . . . and a memorable occasion it was.

She greeted us in a warm and friendly voice . . . then started out on a descriptive word tour of a large Columbia department store. Mrs. Bloom said it was a rainy day, and she wanted to do all her shopping in one place. Interested in a new home, she went into the paint department. Floor covering caught her eye . . . then furniture. The program was chatty, informal. Minutes slipped away . . . and then, just at the end of the show, Mrs. Bloom said she had done all her shopping at Sear's. It was hard for me to believe . . . because I'd heard things described that I didn't know were in the store myself.

"How'd you like it?", said Skipper Downs.

"I don't quite know," said I, impressed but wanting confirmation of my opinion from some of my own staff. "Could you do it over? I'd like some of the department heads to listen."

"We brought in some of the store executives, and they agreed with me. It was a good program. We didn't know exactly how good but we were willing to give it a whirl. Sears' Woman's Hour . . . with Winefred Bradford Bloom . . .went on the air over WIS, 5,000-watt NBC - Red station covering the whole State of South Carolina from the capital, Columbia, for the first time Nov. 18, 1940. It was on the air six times a week until January. Then, we dropped to three-a-week. Mrs. Bloom came to the store several hours each day after the program to meet customers and advise them about buying, interior decorColumbia Shopperess Tells What She Sees and In Come the Customers

Then, there were the "Lone Ranger" watches. The department head told Mrs. Bloom his quite large stock wasn't moving. She said she'd buy two for her own grandsons ... just to get the ball rolling.

but first, she mentioned the watches on her program. A couple of days later, Mrs. Bloom went by to pick up the watches . . . and found that they had been completely sold out!

Large Unit Sales

Like most Sears-Roebuck retail stores in cities the size of Columbia (85,000), we maintain rather complete departments in many lines . . . furniture, for instance. Until Sears' Woman's Hour came along we concentrated more or less on selling individual pieces—a chair, rug, table, bed or lamp.

Now . . . we sell a whole room, thanks to Mrs. Bloom and Sears' Woman's Hour. She talks about a chair in relation to the rest of the room — harmonizing draperies, lamps, tables, rugs and fixtures. The result: Unit sales, and large ones.

There are many reasons for the success of Sears' Woman's Hour ... and not the least of these is Winefred Bradford Bloom. She's BUSINESS was good—well, good enough—at the Sears store in Columbia. And then came Mrs. Bloom! Since which time Mrs. Bloom has started a boom. And Mrs. Bloom's boom has zoomed the sales curve so nicely that the store's manager, Jerry Aylward, decided to write a piece about it. When a customer comes in to buy a rug, Mrs. Bloom sells a room—chairs, drapes and all that goes with it. Which is the point of this story, because the individual sales are being built into large unit sales. an experienced showman as well as an interior decorator, horticulturist and designer of note. Her programs offer sound, practical advice on decorating, color schemes, furniture arrangement and the like. At the store, her services (free to all Sears' customers) are constantly being sought by an ever-increasing number of people. And mail is coming in from every corner of the State. Mrs. Bloom, personally, answers each letter, and out-of-town customers are on the increase.

Then, there are the programs themselves. They're friendly, helpful programs, not high-pressure selling jobs. Each has a definite theme. Sample titles are "Thanksgiving Decorations", "What to Give at Christmas", "Occupation, Housewife", and "Friday, the 13th". And the programs have variety, too. The Christmas show was transcribed, each department head wishing his friends and customers a happy holiday in a different, original way. Earlier, wives were invited to write in what they wished to receive from their husbands at Christmas. Then selected letters with initials were read on the Woman's Hour on a holiday, when the women could see to it that their husbands were home listening!

Into the Store

Showmanship counts in selling via the airwaves, and Mrs. Bloom puts plenty of it into Sears' Woman's Hour!

Everything mentioned on the program, of course, can be obtained at Sears'. Since a prime purpose of the show is to get customers into the retail store, the catalogue isn't mentioned on the air. But we're doing an increasing amount of catalogue-order business for customers brought into the store by the program.

Rarely does Mrs. Bloom mention prices in her portion of the Woman's Hour. This is handled by the announcer who has a special of one of two items, with prices, in the short commercial near the end of the show.

Yes, my meeting with Winefred Bradford Bloom was a memorable one. And the success of Sears' Woman's Hour bids fair to be a memorable chapter in the history of our advertising efforts for the Columbia store.

With the Woman's Hour over WIS we're not selling just the sizzle... we're selling the whole ham! And, believe me, larger single sales mean a much merrier ring on the cash register!

Prudent Hedging

SO FAR, the impact of production cuts forced by defense priorities has hardly been felt by retailers of such durable consumer commodities, as automobiles, radios, tires, household appliances and the like. Substantial inventories and fairly regular deliveries up to now are cushioning the effects, and advertising of such lines has yet suffered little curtailments. But there can be no doubt that the cuts will be felt later this year, and through next year.

These are all-important items in many a station's sponsorship budget, and the loss of local dealer advertising, will be felt keenly unless it is replaced by something else. It is time, therefore, for station managers to begin thinking now how to hedge against the inevitable.

To take up the slack, the best suggestion we have heard—and the prudent sales manager will act at once—is that used car sales will be stepped up; that old radios will be repaired; that tire-rebuilding will take on new importance; that household appliances will be fixed when they cannot be replaced.

In a word, service and repair, hitherto sideline or small-time functions, will become major activities of many sponsors now using radio advertising primarily to move new and replacement goods. This will be especially true locally. And radio can repeat in the servicing field the selling records it has created in other lines.

Life and Taxes

UNCLE SAM, in his quest for funds to finance the colossal national defense program, can be expected to tap every conceivable revenue source. Already it is evident that general corporate and income taxes will be more than doubled in the average brackets. Special levies, such as those on amusements, automobiles, radio sets and other so-called luxury items, which can be lopped off easily once the emergency is over, already are provided in the revenue measure being drafted by the House Ways & Means Committee in collaboration with the Treasury Department.

Every true American, though he doesn't relish the outlook, is willing to pull in his belt a few notches in the interest of the national welfare. The broadcasting industry, and advertising generally, are prepared to bear their portion of the tax burden.

But now there is disconcerting talk in inner circles of special imposts, superimposed over all general taxes, upon broadcasting income and upon advertising generally. Pressure groups long have advocated a sort of "franchise tax" for broadcasting, but in the past it has never been seriously considered because of the palpable discrimination. The same has been true of certain consumer groups with regard to advertising as a whole.

Advertising is a business, and broadcasting is just one branch of it, albeit different because of the distinctive character of the public service it renders. To impose a discriminatory tax upon advertising, or any of its offshoots, in the long run would be only another re-enactment of the "killing the goose" fable. Advertising creates consumer demand, which in turn creates profits for industry or service, which in turn produce the bulk of the revenues filtering into the Treasury from American business.

Boring In

SCANT NOTICE was given in the trade to the July 1 ruling of the FCC granting Muzak Corp. of New York a construction permit for a developmental FM station for subscriber-type broadcast service. Yet it may have deep significance, for it appears to be another in the series of regulatory moves calculated to undermine broadcasting by the American Plan.

Muzak for several years has been providing by wire what amounts to central-station jukebox service to hotels, taverns and other public places. It grew out of the Wired Radio project of a decade back under which a service competitive to space radio would have been created by supplying programs to the public via power or telephone lines with the subscriber paying a monthly rental on the receiver. There would have been no advertising sponsorship. Via FM, Muzak, successor to Wired Radio, proposes to revive the subscriber method of payment, stressing its advertising-free character.

There can be no quarrel with Muzak's ambitions to expand its commercial efforts, though an anomaly appears in the fact that Associated Music Publishers Inc., which sells transcriptions to broadcast stations for commercial sponsorship, is the parent of Muzak. Waddill Catchings, prominent industrialist and chairman of the finance committee of Warner Bros., which long has aspired to nationwide radio operations, is head of both Muzak and AMP. The degree a way are it is expressed in

The danger, as we see it, is expressed in the FCC's memorandum opinion granting the JAMES F. WATERS, originator of the Court of Missing Heirs program, is writing a book to be published Aug. 11, with the same title as his radio program. The volume will contain the stories of more than 80 heirs who have been discovered by the Court. It also will list 3,000 other estates whose heirs have not yet been discovered, complete with all available clues to their identity.

AVAILABLE for royalty-free non-commercial use by stations, schools and radio workshops and clubs, 100 Non-Royalty Radio Plays, compiled by William Kozlenko [Greenberg: Publisher, N. Y., $4.25], offers 100 tested quarter and half-hour dramatic scripts in a single volume, with an introduction by Sherman H. Dryer, U of Chicago radio director.

A DOZEN short plays, four of them written for radio production, are included in the volume, American Scenes, edited by William Kozlenko [John Day Co., New York, $2.50]. The four radio plays are "Fire and Cloud", by Richard Wright, dealing with a southern Negro bread riot; "Ask Anybody in the Neighborhood", a city slum drama by Benjamin Appel; "The Doorway to Limbo", a fantasy by Oscar Saul and Lew Lantz; "Freedom Is a Trumpet", a verse drama by William Merrick.

Muzak application. Keep in mind that in recent months this same Commission decreed its "death sentence" regulations on network broadcasting and its newspaper-divorcement proceedings.

Now, in sanctioning the Muzak experiment, the FCC blandly changes its existing rules providing that a developmental station shall not make any charge, directly or indirectly, for the transmission of programs. It does this on the ground that the method of charging the subscriber for program service is "worthy of investigation".

The whole tenor of the FCC's opinion exudes an anti-commercial broadcasting viewpoint. For example, it points out that the practice of public support of broadcast service in this country is not through any "direct change, but through the purchase of articles and services advertised by radio". Then it adds, "This is not true in all countries of the world".

Perhaps the FCC, in its wisdom, regards European radio as superior to ours. Perhaps it considers the Government-operated systems of the Nazis, the Fascists and the Communists fairer and freer than our own.

The whole trend of FCC thinking certainly should give broadcasters pause. Hitting only the high spots of its recent course, we find it proposing to regulate station-network contractual relations in its network regulations; thinking about forcing newspapers to divest themselves of broadcast interests, however remote the publishing interest may be; and now apparently toying with the idea of espousing the ultimate breakdown of American radio through an adaptation of the European system of no advertising.

All of this adds up to the crying need for a redefinition by Congress of the 14-year-old radio law.

JOSEPH R. STAUFFER

F YOU are looking for the cinema version of an advertising agency executive, complete with distressed secretaries scurrying around to interpret his every brainstorm, don't go to Joseph R. Stauffer, newly appointed radio director of Kenyon & Eckhardt, New York. For he refuses to become upset, no matter what complexities. Asked if he "blew up" under tension, he quietly smiled, "I never get under tension."

Completely unassuming, yet instantly tractable is Joe Stauffer. Perhaps much of his demeanor of quiet assurance springs from early military training. After being graduated in June, 1916 from high school in his home town, Scottdale, Pa., he attended prep school at Washington for one year, entering West Point in 1917. He emerged in 1920 as second lieutenant. In September that year he was assigned to the Cavalry, attending the Army Cavalry School at Fort Riley, Kansas, for a year, doubling in theatricals.

After resigning from the Army in June, 1921, he returned to Scottdale and became assistant sales manager of a family-owned manufacturing concern engaged in a water purifying process. During his five years with this firm, a Philadelphia branch was opened, which he managed for 18 months.

But the call of show business would not be stilled. He devoted his leisure time to Little Theatre work, the various groups playing "the sticks". Profits were donated to playgrounds and similar worthy projects. In October, 1926 he resigned from the family corporation, and the succeeding three years were spent with the New Jersey Public Service Transportation Department.

September of 1929 found him headquartered in New York as associate editor of the Electric Railway Journal, a McGraw-Hill publication. Then in January, 1931 he was transferred to Chicago as western editor of that magazine.

Through the years the desire to produce radio shows persisted, and he haunted the broadcasting stations regularly. The radio idea took on actual form in 1934 when he joined the New York radio department of Young & Rubicam.

Among his assignments were daytime service shows for General Foods Corp., Borden Co., and Fels Co. Nighttime and major productions included a variety show for Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Co., two seasons of the NBC Packard Hour, starring Lawrence Tibbett; Helen Hayes' first radio series under sponsorship of General Foods, and others.

Then on June 1, 1936 he was transferred to Hollywood, continuing in a production capacity. His assignment was the new NBC Packard Show, starring Fred Astaire. Approximately a year later, in September, 1937, he stepped out of the production assignment to take over talent buying and supervisory work for the agency on the West Coast.

At this time International Silver Co. started its CBS Silver Theatre with guest-star policy. The Young & Rubicam 1938 Christmas gift to Joe Stauffer was management of the agency's Southern California branch office.

As far as his personal history is concerned, here are on-the-record facts. Joseph R. Stauffer was born in Scottdale, Pa., Oct. 27, 1897, and attended primary as well as high school in that city. He emphatically swears that the "R" in his name serves only one purpose; it stands for absolutely nothing. His late grandfather adopted that initial in his youth. Young Joe followed suit. He recalls the unhappiness caused him in school days by continuously explaining away the "R".

Joe Stauffer married the former Eleanor Stevenson of Scottdale on

ANN GINN

SEVENTEEN YEARS experience rest lightly on the shoulders of Ann Ginn, director of women's activities of WTCN, Minneapolis. Only 10 of the 17 years have been spent in radio, but the other seven years were a perfect training period. Five years as merchandiser for one of the world's largest hosiery manufacturers gave Ann Ginn an understanding of the advertiser's problems. Two years on the stage as a dramatic actress taught her the value of selling personality. She uses both her merchandising experience and her personality daily on the Around the Town with Ann Ginn. The program has been used by local and national accounts for seven years and now over 3,000 Northwest housewives have volunteered to assist Ann in the selection, approval, and merchandising of her accounts. These homemak-ers form the Northwest Homemaker's Testing Bureau.

How Kraft Sales Climbed

tainment can only be significant when the program is hand-tailored to fit its stars. Krajt Music Hall, with its varied entertainment, the special nature of its stars and guest talent, fits better into the hour pattern than into any other. The stars of Kraft Music Hall are on the air almost constantly during the full hour.

The fact that they are both on almost all the time and are likely to sing or talk at almost any moment, commands constant listener attention for 60 solid minutes. The full hour program give Crosby and

Burns the time required to provide the sort of entertainment listeners tune into week after week, and year after year.

We know that the Kraft Music Hall audience has increased many times since introduction of the program on the NBC-Red network. One reason for this tremendously increased circulation is the greater number of radio sets in American homes. Today there are something in the neighborhood of 46 million radios in the United States. When we first went on the air with Kraft Music Hall, there were around 18 million.

It is difficult of course to analyze radio circulation exactly, even with most accurate checking services, coincidentals, and private surveys of many kinds. They do give us accurate bases for judgment, however, and on these bases, listening attention and numbers of our audiences have held a very high rate over cight years of performances.

At Point of Sale

The individual stars of the show have many times taken top honors in various popularity polls. Year after year, Bing Crosby has been voted most popular male singer in America. Ken Carpenter has been well out in front among popular announcers. Bob Burns, too, has been voted one of the leading comedians in popular favor.

Not to be forgotten of course is Connie Boswell, another top number in popularity polls. Then there is Don Ameche, newly added to the weekly show.

These are all signs, and gratifying signs, of the kind of listening audiences Kraft Music Hall possesses.

Most gratifying of all, however, from the standpoint of any advertiser, is the response at the point of sale. In our case, this response comes at the grocery stores of America. That response is consistent, immediately reflected in sales all over the country. Whichever Kraft product receives the weight of the selling on a Thursday night broadcast is spot-lighted the following morning in increased sales of that commodity.

We merchandise the show to dealers. We keep them aware of the job the program is doing. We do it by direct mail, and by announcement to the trade. Also through enthusiastic "selling" on the part of our salesmen. As a matter of fact, the grocers themselves frequently, and eloquently, tell us what the

Radio, Phonograph Sales Of Seven Firms Found To Be 75% of the Total CONSOLIDATED SALES of seven of the leading radio and phonograph manufacturing corporations for 1939 aggregated $208,263,235 or 75½% of the total national output of such products, according to a survey recently completed by the FTC. Almost 9% of the business reported for that year consisted of export and foreign sales and services. Of their total receipts from net sales and services $190,208,270 or 91.3% represented domestic sales and services and $18,054,965 or 8.7% represented export and foreign sales and services.

antointed very dollar of sales. The combined net income (before deduction of interest on long-term borrowings and income taxes) on the average total capital employed by the seven corporations represented a rate of return of 13.9%. The net income on the average corporate net worth investment, of stockholders' equity before provisions for income taxes was 14.7% of the stockholders' investment.

Cash dividends paid during 1939 represented a return of approximately 7.4% to the stockholders on the average ledger value (not market value) of their equity of $101,610,262.

CBS Drops Schedules

BECAUSE in the majority of cases individual CBS stations provide their own local program schedules to radio editors, the network as of July 13 discontinued its comprehensive schedule of CBS broadcasts, heretofore issued each week. According to Louis Ruppel. CBS director of publicity, WABC, New York, for instance, will provide its own program schedule folio together with a summary of other network features.

AMERICAN JUNIOR RED CROSS next fall will become a collaborator in the CBS School of the Air of the Americas programs, recommending regular listening for its student members and related societies in Latin America and Canada.

weekly broadcast is doing for them. They're enthusiastic about it, not They're enthusiastic about it, not only as Crosby and Burns fans, but because of what the show does to the jingle of their cash registers. In the last analysis, sales at the corner grocery store and in the big city markets, week in and week out, 52 times a year, constitute the real "success story" of Kraft Music Hall.

SINCE public surveys seem to show that some listeners like "hot" music and others like it "sweet," Joc Rines, musical director of WMCA, New York, has arranged a weekly program Sweet & Hot which offers samples of music in its various styles and announces for listeners other musical shows on WMCA during the week.

ACCEPTING outstanding Georgia college students as fledgling radio men, WSB, Atlanta, has set up a systematic program of apprentice instruction. Under the plan, instruction is given in announcing, production, writing, dramatics, sports and special events, newscasting and commercial radio. In previous years WSB brought in apprentices to learn radio, but no definite system of instruction was employed.

Two students already have started their six-week course of instruction—Mark Waits, of the U of Georgia, and Robert Finklestein. of Georgia Tech. Classes are held each morning for one hour, with a different subject studied each day. Outside assignments are given. Attendance at certain programs is compulsory.

Staff members acting as instructors are Bob Pollock, announcing and production; Elmo Ellis, writing; Madelinn Chace, dramatics: Marcus Bartlett, sports and special events; Walter Paschall, news editing and presentation; John Outler, commercial radio.

Ed East's "Breakfast in Bedlam" pulled 29,473 responses in one week!

Are people wide awake enough at 7 A. M. to respond to a radio offer? But...definitely?

Ed East's "Breakfast in Bedlam" has long been a favorite with the "early birds" who live in the World's Richest Market. But even we were surprised when 29,473 people wrote in for a four-page newspaper about the program. We had to print three editions to take care of the demand! And we had to hire five extra people to get them out. This response is still another amazing indication of "Breakfast in Bedlam's" audience size and responsiveness.

It's concrete evidence that Ed East's "Breakfast in Bedlam" has "what it takes." He can sell your product as he has sold dozens of others. May we show you how?

You may buy 15-minute units, 50- or 100-word live announcements, or 1-minute transcribed announcements in "Breakfast in Bedlam" (7 to 7:55 A. M., Monday through Suturday).

California PTA Group Finds Children Prefer Programs Directed to Adults

BY AND LARGE, children don't like juvenile radio programs. But they do like Jack Benny, Fibber McGee & Molly and Bob Hope. These facts were revealed recently when the 10th District, California Congress of Parents & Teachers, under the direction of Mrs. J. Sherwood Hewitson, radio chairman, rcleased an exhaustive survey made among children from the fourth grade through high school to determine the reaction of radio programs.

Of 15 ranking shows favored by students in the fourth to sixth grade group, only five could be classified as children's shows. Of 1,299 queried, 138 favored quiz shows, six operas. The top 15 ranking shows in order of preference were: Lone Ranger, Capt. Midnight, Blondie, Shafter Parker, Jack Benny, I Love a Mystery, Fibber McGee & Molly, Bob Hope, Superman, Aldrich Family, Jack Armstrong, Lux Radio Theatre, Big Town, Gang Busters and Orphan Annie. It was noted that in this list no musical nor educational programs appear.

Reasons for Choices

In asking 500 children why they liked their radio programs it was learned that 300 said because of mystery, excitement and adventure; 123 for comedy; 20 for music; 29 for education or patriotism; seven for drama. Of 512 youngsters, 299 said that nothing on the radio made them afraid and 92 said they were frightened at times. Suggestions for future programs were stories and plays about the lives of famous explorers, people and adventures, favorite stories made into plays, adventures of a boy and girl on a trip around the world and stories about events in history.

By the time the child has reached junior high school the juvenile program is "out" and drama and music have come into prominence. Jack Benny and Bob Hope, in this classification, move up to first and second place, respectively, but Fibber McGee & Molly drop back one place to eighth position.

Of 3,285 junior high school students questioned, 1,412 listed Jack Benny as their favorite comedian, while only 371 preferred Fred Allen. It was found that in this age group, the favorite listening period was between dinner and bedtime. Of 4,584 elementary and junior high school students in the survey, only 1% had no radio.

In the high school classification, the variety show type of program continued to lead.

GE TO CONTINUE VIDEO PROGRAMS

BROADCASTING of original television programs over W2XB, General Electric station at Schenectady, is to be resumed with greatly increased transmitting power upon completion of the new studio building and changes in the transmitter to incorporate the new standards with a few weeks, according to Robert S. Peare, GE manager of broadcasting.

Power at the transmitting station in the Helderberg mountains, 12 miles south of Schenectady, will be increased from 3,000 to 20,000 watts for sound and eventually from 10,000 to 40,000 watts for scene transmission. Locally originated programs, discontinued last December after 18 months of experimentation, will be both live and film.

Since December GE telecasting has been confined to the relaying of NBC programs originating in New York by means of the relay and transmitting stations in the Helderbergs. These rebroadcasts were discontinued temporarily as of June 30 to permit changing the transmitting equipment to conform to the new picture and sound standards established by the FCC.

W2XB had been telecasting under an experimental license in Channel 3 and expects to apply for a commercial license in this channel. With completion of the changes, GE is planning to enter the commercial telecasting field with a minimum schedule of 15 hours weekly. GE receiving sets in the Albany, Troy and Schenectady area served by W2XB and in metropolitan areas served by other television stations will be adapted to the new standards.

Mr. Rintoul, an account executive with The Katz Agency, New York, reports he hopes to have the station on the air by early September. RCA transmitter equipment, General Radio frequency monitor and a Lehigh tower have been ordered.

Jurisdiction Issue Facing Television Unions at Standstill Pending Settlement of Problems

ALTHOUGH moves to unionize talent and the production end of visual broadcasting have stalled, pending determination of a jurisdictional problem between the American Federation of Radio Artists, Actors' Equity and Screen Actors' Guild, technical staffs now are substantially in the union fold.

IATSE Agreement

CBS on July 3 worked out an agreement with Associated Broadcast Technicians Unit, of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, which in effect applies to technicians of CBS' television station, WCBW, the same agreement covering CBS broadcast technicians since 1937. The CBS-ABTU agreement, retroactive to July 1, is identical with the earlier broadcast agreement except for addition of a new employe classification—television technicians' helper —it was stated.

Both NBC and CBS recently announced a mid-June working agree-

INSIGHT into television problems was supplied by CBS last Tuesday on a special half-hour visual program, *The Boys in the Back*room, on WCBW, CBS television station in New York. From its new television studios in the Grand Central Bldg. ment with International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, covering property men, carpenters and lighting technicians employed in television operations. NBC's technical video employes have been covered for several years through their own union, National Assn. of Broadcasting Engineers & Technicians.

No meetings or other definite action have been scheduled to iron out the problem of representation for talent and production employes, although this is a matter sure to develop before long, with television at last operating on a commercial scale. The initial move to cover these employes was dropped about a year ago at the time the FCC rescinded its order authorizing "limited commercial" operation of television.

Both Equity and SAG at the moment are inclined to await participation by AFRA before trying to untangle the jurisdictional snarl that developed early during the initial negotiations. It is believed the three will get together as soon as possible, when the WKRC-MBS-AFRA strike situation eases up, to adjust their differences and resume conversations wth video operators.

IBEW NEGOTIATES NORTHWEST PACTS

BROADCAST division of International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers in the West announces it has established a broadcast unit in Medford, Ore., which has all of Oregon outside of Portland in its jurisdiction. A drive is now under way to sign stations.

Five agreements came up for their first renewals in Washington. In Seattle $210 per month has been established as a minimum wage for technicians and $240 per month for chiefs. Tentative agreements have been reached with KVOS, KXRO and KPQ establishing a scale of $190 per month for stations of less than 1 kw. outside the metropolitan areas.

In San Francisco KSFO is operating under a new agreement with IBEW. The new contract provides $50 per week for six months and $52.50 per week for the balance of the contract, which became effective July 1.

 To Serve Well The Broadcasting Engineer

CREL Training

lncreases

Technical Efficiency

Alert Chief Engineers are encouraging CREI training for their employees-for it means:

Step-up of individual efficiency

Increased personal worth to station

Additional technical ability

Yes, men who devote their own money and spare-time toward improving their technical ability through CREI training are an asset to any station.

In our entire 14 years the CREI home study courses have been written and planned exclusively for the professional radioman to enable him to improve his technical ability and to be in a position to assume added technical duties.

The remarkable achievements made by CREI men throughout the broadcasting field are convincing testimony that our efforts, properly confined to this one important course in Practical Radio Engineering, have been of real value to radio in train-ing better engineers. The fact that radiomen in more than 400 broad-casting stations enrolled for CREI training to increase their ability proves the point.

Chief engineers fully recognize the need in radio for men with modern technical training, and many welcome regular reports concerning students' progress. (Reports of student's enrollment and progress are made to employers only upon the direct request of the student.)

For example, a Chief Engineer of one of the large broadcasting chains writes: "We are happy to know that Mr. Ellis has taken steps to improve his technical knowledge." Another engineer writes: "I shall be glad to have you keep us in touch with his progress as he seems to be very much interested and it is a very worthwhile undertaking."

We, at CREI are proud to add our contribution to broadcasting by training men who are equipped to fulfill your demands. Perhaps a recommendation of our home study courses to your associates might be as appreciated by them as it would be by us. May we send you our booklet and complete details?

RALPH L. CLARK, member of the Washington consulting engineering firm of Ring & Clark, last week was designated technical advisor for National Independent Broadcasters in matters relating to the work of the Domestic Broadcasting Committee of the Defense Communications Board. PROVISION FOR FM GRANTED AMATEURS FOSTERING a move to encourage activity among amateur radio operators in developing FM equipment as well as to obtain data respecting characteristics of the amateur band for FM use and to accommodate the increasing number of amateur radiotelephone stations, the FCC June 9 amended its rules governing amateur radio service at the request of the American Radio Relay League.

Under Section 12.117 an alloca tion of 50 kc. for utilization of FM was made while Section 12.115 was changed to make an additional 400 kc. available for voice communication, As a result the amateur band now extends from 28,100 to 30,000 kc. instead of 28,500 to 30,000 kc. as heretofore, and the frequencies 29,250 to 30,000 kc. have been assigned for FM transmission.

At the same time the Commission amended Section 12.63, on its own motion, to clarify operation of amateur station by remote control. This move will tend to eliminate misunderstandings about the re-quirements of the FCC that an amateur desiring to operate by remote control must submit information on location of control point, his right to use of the premises, means by which remote control is effected, and the equipment used to monitor the transmissions from the control point.

THE statements by NBC President Niles Trammell and CBS President William S. Paley before the Scnate Interstate Commerce Committee considering the White Resolution have been issued as booklets by the networks.

Shepard Is Named to Serve as Chairman Of NAB National Radio Defense Group

APPOINTMENT of a National Radio Defense Committee of the NAB, to collaborate with Governmental defense agencies in future planning, was announced last Friday by NAB President Neville Miller. The committee was appointed pursuant to a resolution adopted at the NAB convention in St. Louis May 12-15.

John Shepard 3d, Yankee Network, was named chairman of the committee, which is scheduled to hold its first meeting in Washington Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. Other basic committee members are Ben Ludy, WIBW, Topeka; Leo Fitzpatrick, WJR, Detroit; H. Vernon Anderson, WJBO, Baton Rouge; A. J. Fletcher, WRAL, Raleigh.

NBC and CBS have not yet formally named their representatives but they are expected to be F. M. Russell, NBC Washington vicepresident, and Harry C. Butcher, CBS Washington vice-president.

District Liaisons

In addition, Mr. Miller has asked the 17 district directors to designate a broadcaster in each district to serve as field liaison representative for the committee. District members, however, will not attend the Washington conferences regularly.

At the initial sessions, it is expected the committee will meet with public relations and radio officials of the Army and Navy as well as other Governmental agencies identified with defense.

With the increased defense tempo, the NAB convention, based on recommendation of its board of directors, had decided upon appointment of such a committee. Ed Kirby, public relations director of the NAB now on leave as radio chief of the War Department public relations branch, originally had urged creation of such an industry committee.

SUMMER SCHEDULE ARRANGED BY FCC

ALTHOUGH no definite plans have been announced, it is indicated the FCC during the summer months will go into quasi-recess, with no schedule of meetings and employing the same less-than-quorum procedure followed in previous years. Chairman Fly at a recent press conference said the FCC will hold "frequent, if not regular meetings."

No regular schedule for meetings is likely, and meetings may be held and actions taken without presence of a quorum. All sections, however, are subject to ratification by the full FCC.

The principal proceeding is the newspaper ownership hearing, set for July 23. The Commission would sit en banc on this matter. It is believed this proceeding may be postponed again, however, probably until Sept. 15.

Few of the six commissioners have formulated any definite plans for their summer activities. Commissioner Case was expected to return to his office about July 8 after a short time at his summer home on Narragansett Bay. Commissioner Wakefield, scheduled to preside at a telephone hearing in Hoquiam, Wash., on Aug. 18, may leave early in August for a brief visit on the West Coast, it is understood. He will return to Washington via St. Paul, where he plans to attend the meeting of the National Assn. of Railroad & Utility Commissioners on Aug. 26. Commissioner Craven is vacationing in New Jersey for the next few weeks, but plans to return to Washington

Free Speech Acts Of FCC Approved Civil Liberties Union Likes Network Monopoly Report

SUPPORT of the FCC's attitude on free speech, as reflected both in the Network Monopoly Report and in an opinion involving WAAB, Boston, was voiced by the American Civil Liberties Union in its review of the year, issued last week.

In a chapter devoted to censorship, the Union cited that radio, as the single greatest instrument of free speech, has been strengthened not only by the two-year-old code of the NAB, but was reinforced by an order of the Commission directed to WAAB, whose license "was challenged on the ground of favoritism" in the discussion of public issues.

"The Commission," contended the report, "held that a station is operating in the public interest only if it affords equal facilities to all sides of controversial questions.

Political Rights

"Even more important from the point of view of long-range effect on free speech was the Commission's monumental report on the monopoly practices of national networks. Diversity in ownership and control is an obvious requirement for greater freedom on the air; and the Commission directed its order to restore a greater degree of freedom and competition. The Commission also insisted, during the political campaign, that candidates for national office must be afforded equal facilities even in States where their parties were not on the ballot."

In what it described as a "Balance Sheet of Civil Liberties", the Union commended the FCC decision in the WAAB case, the monopoly report and the FCC action in "insisting on the rights of candidates in the national election to equal facilities on the radio, even in States where national candidates were not on the local ballot".

C. L. MENSER, NBC New York production manager, is currently in Hollywood for discussions on added summer replacement shows.

Shortages

manufacturers. A rise in the price of sets, caused by the shortage in material and rising costs, is also predicted. Some estimates place the increase at 10% but this is regarded as high by RMA officials.

A curtailment of 25% already is contemplated under the 12,000,000 sets produced last year by the major manufacturers. It is felt the curtailment will go much higher because of material shortage.

Set Industry Worried

If radio set manufacturers are unable to obtain aluminum within a short time, the entire industry will be at a standstill by October, according to Paul V. Galvin, vicepresident of the Radio Mfrs. Assn., and chairman of the Governmental relations and priorities committees of the RMA.

Mr. Galvin, who is president of the Galvin Mfg. Corp., Chicago (Motorola), stated that "FCC Commissioner Fly, concerned over the shortages, has a sympathetic understanding of both the problems of the OPM and in the industry, and is cooperating with James S. Knowlson, president of the RMA, in an effort to ease the situation." (Mr. Knowlson is president of Stawart Warney Com. Chicage)

Stewart-Warner Corp., Chicago.) The industry has substituted various metals for aluminum", Mr. Galvin said, "including the use of alnico, an alloy of steel, scrap aluminum, and nickel, which is now being used for magnets in the permanent magnet speakers. Last year, the industry used 4,000,000 pounds of aluminum, but this year, through the use of substitutes, the industry will use only 10% of that, or about 400,000 pounds. However, the metal is badly needed for the electrolytic condensers, and no substitute has been found that has the electro-chemical qualities of aluminum essential in the condensers."

"But far more serious to the broadcasting industry," Mr. Galvin said, "is the inability of tube manufacturers—of which there is only a half-dozen in the United States to obtain nickel and tungsten. The tube manufacturers are rapidly depleting their inventories, and will have to shut down in the fall if unable to obtain the metals."

In the meantime, the set manufacturers are tapering production while waiting for word from OPM, and the greatest backlog of orders in the history of radio manufacturing is steadily piling up.

ANPA Enters Press Battle present indication of a postponement request from the newspaper group, created last April to combat the regulations.

Harold V. Hough, Chairman of the Committee, and Sydney M. Kaye, associate counsel for the group, were in Washington last Wednesday and Thursday with C. H. Sundberg, secretary of the committee, to complete arrangements for the inquiry, presumably to be conducted before the FCC sitting en banc.

It has been an open secret that Chairman Fly did not propose to postpone the hearings unless the burden was squarely upon the newspaper committee, and even then, because of the most recent developments, some doubt was expressed as to his action.

Chairman Fly has insisted that the hearings should be started promptly because of the hue and cry from the industry about the holding up of applications for both standard and FM facilities where newspaper-ownership is involved, however indirectly. Since promulgation of the inquiry order (No. 79) last March, the FCC has shunted to the pending file all applications for new facilities involving newspapers, save in a few instances which have been branded as discriminatory, but has authorized improved facilities in some cases with the proviso that they are subject to whatever policy action the FCC might take pursuant to the inquiry.

On behalf of the Newspaper-Radio Committee, it was indicated it will state it is not ready to make an affirmative presentation on behalf of newspaper-owned stations on July 23, but intends to appear in the proceedings.

In Midst of Summer

The newspaper committee originally had requested a postponement of the proceedings from July 25 until Sept. 15. The Commission, however, granted an adjournment only until July 23. It was then presumed that, upon proper petition, it would grant another postponement since several members of the Commission have no intention of sitting through such proceedings day in and day out during the heat of a Washington summer.

Aside from calling upon all of the press associations, FCC investigators have visited such operations as Hearst Radio in New York; the Cowles stations headquarters in Des Moines; WDAF, Kansas City, owned by the Star; WSPA-WORD, Spartanburg, S. C., non-newspaper owned; WTMA, Charleston, S. C., owned by the News & Courier and Post, WCBA, Allentown, owned by the Call, among others.

In one instance, more than a week was spent examining files, including personal memoranda, contracts, news continuities, newspaper program listings and, in fact, everything having any bearing, direct or indirect, upon newspaper station operation. Questions often ran to ridiculous extremes, it was reported. The investigators wanted to know who dictated the news broadcasts, whether advertisers had any degree of control over news content, relationships with press associations, complaints against stations or newspapers, whether the stations had an "editorial policy" and a myriad other inquiries. Files as far back as six years, including those stored away in attic or basement, were carefully perused.

But, according to one broadcaster, only such data that might be employed to show partiality, wrongdoing, unfair competition or public complaint proved of interest. In this particular case, the organization took the position it had nothing to hide and threw open everything.

Preparing the Data

The Newspaper-Radio Committee, it is understood, has a staff of nearly 40 preparing data for the hearings, based largely upon the results of a confidential questionnaire dispatched June 27, a day before the FCC questionnaire went out. The committee, with well over $100,000 already committed by newspaper-owned stations toward a budget of some $200,000, proposes an exhaustive presentation. Questionnaires were not due until July 10, and it was thought it would be physically impossible to prepare all of the data in time for presentation to the FCC July 23.

Thomas D. Thacher, former Solicitor General of the United States, is chief counsel for the committee, with Mr. Kaye and Abe Herman, of Fort Worth, as his associates.

Unlike the FCC questionnaire, the committee asked no questions about program listings in newspapers, or other matters regarded as extraneous to the main issue. The four-phase questionnaire covered station ownership and history, including profits and losses for each year and physical investment; commercial policy, covering joint sale of newspaper space and station time or combination rates; news broadcasting, covering news services subscribed to; news program breakdowns, both commercial and sustaining; handling of news and commentators; and general policy of stations, relating to NAB code adherence on controversial issues, religious services, complaints, public service programs and the like.

In its preface, the committee said the survey was intended to portray a faithful picture of the effects of newspaper relationship on radio stations. "No matter how slight or tenuous the relationship," the stations were told, "it is imperative that these questions be answered fully. Whether your station is directly licensed to a newspaper, directly controlled by a newspaper through a broadcast corporation, or even if only as little as 10% of the stock is owned by any persons connected with any newspaper anywhere, your station is concerned."

BOSCO Co., New York (milk amplifier), on July 7 started Bosco Bandstand, a program of transcribed music, 8:30-8:45 a.m. (EDST), six times weekly, on KYW, Philadelphia. Mutual Compares Network Payments Cisler Compilation Basis of

Relative Monthly Issue

CLAIMING a net monthly return over 350% greater than the net resulting to the station if it were affiliated with NBC-Blue, MBS last Monday released a "balance sheet" compiled by S. A. Cisler, general manager of WGRC, New Albany-Louisville, in which he compared figurative results "of what WGRC could expect to receive from MBS against NBC-Blue" figured on a $120 per hour rate, with 20 hours of time sold per month. The Cisler analysis showed a possible net revenue of $350.70 per month from MBS, compared with $96 from NBC-Blue.

The office of William S. Hedges, NBC vice-president in charge of station relations, declined to comment on the MBS comparison until an opportunity is afforded to study the analysis made by Mr. Cisler.

Deals Compared

According to the comparative breakdowns, based on a gross revenue for 20 hours of $2,400, the station would pay $600 for line charges, with no time given to the network, under the "Mutual deal"; while under the "NBC-Blue deal" it would pay no line charges but would give 16 hours free time to the network.

On the MBS side, after allowing a maximum volume discount of 50%, net revenue for the 20 hours would be $1,200, from which would be deducted $180 for 15% commissions, the $600 in line charges, $21 representing 3½% for MBS on the $600 figure, another $48.30 repre-senting 111/2 % for MBS of the $420 remaining after agency commissions were deducted from the $1,200 net revenue-leaving a net return to the station of $350.70.

On the NBC-Blue side, NBC would take the first 16 hours free, Mr. Cisler explained, paying $24, or 20% of the $120 hourly rate, for each of the next four hoursleaving a net return to the station of $96. Commenting further, Mr. Cisler declared it would take approximately 31 hours of NBC-Blue to equal the revenue from MBS on 20 hours, on this basis. When MBS sells 31 hours, the revenue rises to $847.18, which he said amounted "to more than twice what NBC-Blue pays out for the same amount of time".

Freedom Group Attacks Wheeler in Removal of Winchell From Z-Bar

AN ATTACK Senator upon Wheeler (-Mont.), isolationist leader, for allegedly having used his influence to prevent broadcasts of Walter Winchell's Sunday night program over the Z-Bar Network stations in Montana was made last week by F. H. Peter Cusick, executive secretary of Fight for Freedom Inc., New York.

The Winchell broadcasts, plus those of other commensators, have not been caried for several weeks on KGIR, Butte: KPFA, Helena, and KRBM, Bozeman, all operated by Ed Craney. While Mr. Craney has made no formal announcement, it is understood he based his action on the ground that the commenta-tors did not present both sides of the war issue.

Mr. Cusick said Senator Wheeler "must certainly be defended in his right to speak in Atlanta, or any-where else, but we think it should be pointed out that Wheeler does not believe the same rights apply to his opponents". He quoted reports from Montana which he said indicated that the Senator had used his influence to ban Winchell's broadcasts, declaring that listeners in that State now must tune to KSL or KOA for the commentator.

Mr. Cusick also quoted the Great July 4 that Senator Wheeler "can-not forever shut off the people of Montana from hearing Winchell if they choose to".

Networks Confer on Monopoly

the filing of an appropriate petition with the FCC setting forth reasons, preparatory to the opening of discussions with the Commission.

Won't Surrender Rights

In the conversations, the matter of new legislation, to supplant the existing law, has not been over-looked. The major networks are proceeding on the premise that they should not surrender any of their legal rights in the joint effort to narrow existing differences. It is recognized that new legislation can not be procured overnight, and it is felt that the FCC, Congress and the industry all are interested in procuring the proper sort of redefinition of the statute.

One solution, looked upon as entirely possible, is suspension of the existing rules, promulgation of modified rules by the FCC and then voluntary action by the FCC in suspending the effective date of the rules until there can be a court adjudication of the FCC's authority to invoke them.

Meanwhile, there was doubt as to whether the hearings on the White Resolution calling for a fullscale investigation of radio regulation, which would stay the effective date of the FCC regulations, would be reopened at all.

When the hearings were recessed June 20, at the call of Chairman Wheeler, it was understood that Mr. Fly would be recalled for rebuttal testimony. Chairman Fly himself has indicated that he did not expect to reappear, but the Commission has made no move to defer the effective date of the regulations, obviously awaiting overtures from the industry or possibly from Senator Wheeler.

There appears to be little doubt that a postponement will be forthcoming, in one way or another. Should the preliminary conversations break off, both NBC and CBS are prepared to start litigation challenging the FCC's jurisdiction. But such a move would be in the nature of a last resort.

It is assumed that counter-proposals will be broached by NBC and CBS, looking toward revision of the proposed regulations. With the "forced sale" aspect of NBC's disposition of the Blue Network no longer involved, by virtue of voluntary action by the FCC, the most important phases of the eight regulations commanding attention of the older networks are those relating to exclusivity and time option bans and the divestment of owned or managed stations in markets other than New York, Chicago and Los Angeles-San Francisco.

Bone of Contention

The primary bone of contention in the intra-network discussions, it is understood, has been in connection with the exclusivity and time option phases. The conversations, it is understood, have returned to an earlier suggestion that there be exclusive contracts and fulltime options in markets in which at least four fulltime outlets are available, thus caring for each of the four existing networks. However, in markets having less than four stations, the discussion is surrounding some means of an option formula basis, whereby each of the four networks would be accorded outlets.

In any event, it was regarded as likely that at some point prior to the Aug. 2 deadline the network executives would sit down with Chairman Fly and an adequate basis for postponement would be reached. There is the possibility that each rule would be appraised individually in a series of conferences with the FCC and invoked piecemeal, if litigation were averted.

Meanwhile, it was stated at the office of Senator Tobey (R-N.H.) that he desired to call more witnesses on the White Resolution. Absent when Mr. Trammell appeared for NBC and during a portion of Mr. Paley's testimony he had indicated he desired to crossexamine these witnesses, as well as to delve into the circumstances surrounding the sale of WMCA, New York, by Donald Flamin to Edward J. Noble, chairman of the Life Saver Corp. and former Undersecretary of Commerce. Senator Tobey had inquired into this transaction when Commissioner T. A. M. Craven was on the stand during the White Resolution Hearings and said at that time he hoped to pursue this matter with other witneses.

Fear an Inquisition

If the hearings are reopened for Chairman Fly's rebuttal testimony, Senator Tobey has indicated he desires to call other members of the FCC to ascertain their views, not only on the network monopoly regulations but on the WMCA case.

A number of committee members -possibly a majority-appear disposed not to favor reopening of the hearings, lest it become a fishing expedition along the lines of the Tobey-directed inquisition during hearings on the confirmation on the late Thad H. Brown last vear.

Considerable sentiment exists on the committee for new legislation to supplant the 14-year-old cominunications law, but there is not a great deal of enthusiasm apparent for the White Resolution because of its all-inclusive nature.

Most committee members, it is thought, favor the course outlined by Chairman Wheeler toward compromise of the regulations, with new legislation to be introduced as early as possible. It is generally felt that an entire new law could not be pressed through Congress in the immediate future, with the war situation dominating all Govvernmental activity.

MORRIS PLAN'S SPELLING BEE

Third Season Completed by Sponsor on WGL as —Schools Compete for Honors-

RAPIDLY assuming the proportions of a tradition is the radioinstituted and radio-promoted Allen County Spelling Bee, which has just concluded its tenth annual series on WGL, Fort Wayne.

The program consists of approximately six weeks of broadcast spelling matches among boys and girls of the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades of all schools in the county. Through elimination, the best spellers in each grade are determined, then the champions of the city schools and county schools and then these two are pitted against each other to determine the grand champion. In effect, the contest amounts to the official spelling match of the area, sanctioned by educators.

Morris Plan Sponsors

The Spelling Bee was inaugurated in 1931 and has continued annually ever since. For the past three years it has been sponsored by the Fort Wayne Morris Plan. Cooperation with the schools is intensive and embraces not only public but Catholic and Lutheran schools, assuring 100% interest throughout the county.

The station and sponsor cooperate in presenting a traveling plaque each year to the school represented by the winner. This plaque hangs in the school for one year, and has space for the names of winners until 1964. The traditional value of the plaque is expected in time to match proportionately such trophies as the Indiana-Purdue "Old Oaken Bucket".

In addition, individual awards in the form of medals are given to each grand champion and each grade winner.

Morris Plan's advertising manager, James Studer, acts as announcer on the show, using three carefully-worded individual announcements during the 45-minute period. R. Nelson Snider, principal of South Side High School of Fort Ship Operators Rules Are Suspended by FCC SUSPENSION for six months of the requirement that commercial radio operators possess at least a half-year's previous ship service to be eligible for employment as the radio operator on a cargo ship was announced last Friday by the FCC to help meet the demand for radio telegraph operators in the expanding merchant marine.

FCC Appointment Remains in Doubt Commission Operating With Only Four Present

THE FCC limped along last week with only four of its six members present and with no indication from the White House as to the appointment of a successor to Frederick L Thompson, whose term expired June 30. Commissioners T. A. M. Craven and George H. Payne were vacationing.

At his press conference last Friday, President Roosevelt said he had not decided on the FCC appointment. Asked about the possibility of naming Edward Roddan. assistant publicity director of the Democratic National Committee and a former Washington newspaperman, to the Thompson vacancy, the Chief Executive said he had no information.

Favored by Fly

In some Administration quarters it was thought the President might take his time filling the Thompson vacancy. While it is still possible the Alabaman will be renamed, the chances are believed remote. The President has made several recent appointments to other agencies weeks prior to expiration of the terms of the incumbents. It was thought that if he had any intention of renaming Mr. Thompson. whose two-year tenure had aroused considerable opposition, he would have done so some time back.

FCC Chairman James Lawrence Fly, according to reports, has been urging the Thompson reappointment, primarily because the Commissioner has voted with the majority on controversial issues and was in the forefront of both the chain monopoly regulations and the newspaper - divorcement proceedings.

Other possible appointees have been rumored in Washington. Possible promotion of T. J. Slowie, FCC secretary and Iowa Democrat, to the Commissionership is the latest report. Other names previously mentioned are those of G. W. Johnstone, former radio director of the Democratic National Committee and pioneer network public relations officer; Fulton J. Redman, Portland, Me., attorney, and Thomas E. (Buster) Lawson Jr., Attorney General of Alabama.

Tightened Censorship In Berlin Is Observed As Lanius Is Cut Off

FUFTHER indications of the tightening German policy on American broadcasters in Berlin was evidenced last week as Charles Lanius, NBC correspondent in the Nazi capital, was cut off the air by censor for 40 seconds during his regular morning broadcast last Thursday.

This came as the status of Harry Flannery, CBS correspondent in Berlin, was still in doubt after he had been refused radio facilities by the German government in reprisal for statements made on a domestic CBS network by Elmer Davis, CBS news commentator, regarding the air debut of P. G. Wodehouse, "incarcerated" English author.

It had been rumored that Flannery's broadcasting privileges would be restored but as BROAD-CASTING went to press Friday this report could not be confirmed.

Lanius was cut off the air during a description of a German newsreel depicting the activities of Nazi troops in the war against Russia. The NBC reporter likened the reactions of German troops under fire to a well-drilled American football team which seemed to know exactly what to do next. In some quarters it was thought he was cut off the air because the German censor thought he was trying to convey to his listeners the idea that the pictures were "faked". When Lanius was cut, NBC switched the program to Washington so that when he returned to the air he was not heard by American listeners.

Joint Antenna in Houston

DESPITE a difference in corporate ownership, KXYZ and KPRC, Houston, were authorized by the FCC last Wednesday to make joint use of the same antenna for day and night operation. KXYZ operates on 1470 kc. with 1,000 watts, and KPRC is assigned to 950 kc. with 5,000 watts local sunset and 1,000 night. The latter station, however, is slated for operation on 1320 kc. with 5,000 watts fulltime when KTRH, present occupant of that frequency, shifts to 740 kc. with 50,000 watts, probably later this year. KXYZ is owned by Tilford Jones, nephew of Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones, and KPRC is controlled by the Houston Post.

WH18. Bluefield, W. Va., has joined NBC as a basic supplementary outlet to both Red and Blue networks, instead of joining the Blue Southeastern Group, as previously announced. The station operates on 1440 kc., 1.000 local sunset and 500 watts night power. Evening hour rate is $80, and charges for cut-in amouncements are $7 night, $4 day, and $5 Sunday afterFlorida Citrus to B-S-H FLORIDA Citrus Commission, Lakeland, Fla., on July 11 announced the appointment of Blackett-Sample-Hummert, New York, as its agency. A five-man c.mmittee headed by Thomas B. Swann, chairman of the Commission, had been in New York for over a week conferring with the various agencies bidding for the account. The new agency will handle both fresh and canned fruit advertising for the Commission. Arthur Kudner formerly had the account.

COLOMBIA OUTLET JOINS CBS HOOKUP

CBS has increased its "Network of the Americas" to 62 stations with the addition July 10 of Radio Nutibara, HJDT, in Medellin, Colombia.

In building its Latin American chain, Columbia also is negotiating with other Latin American stations, according to Edmund A. Chester, CBS director of shortwave broadcasting and Latin American relations. CBS aims to provide programs for every one of more than 4,000,000 radio sets below the United States border.

CBS engineers are rushing work on the two 50,000 watt transmitters for WCBX and WCRC, Brentwood, L. I., the network's international stations which originate programs for all points in the world. These two stations will devote eight directional antennas exclusively for transmissions to the south.

Though capable of 19 different broadcasting combinations, five other antennas, with 13 more broadcasting combinations, have been assigned to blanket coverage of Mexico, with provisions for shifting to shortwave toward Europe. These transmitters are to begin operation in September.

Approval of President Awaited on OPM Plan To Start Daylight Time

WHILE an expression of approval from President Roosevelt is expected shortly on the Office of Production Management's request for universal daylight time, as BROAD-CASTING went to press the recommendation was still on Mr. Roosevelt's desk.

The OPM recommendations, asking the President to request legislation to institute daylight time on a year-round basis, have been at the White House for 10 days or more but the press of other business, it is thought, has kept the President from acting on them. When action comes it will probably in the form of a letter to Congressional leaders.

Last week Sen. Guffey (D-Pa.) introduced a bill in the Senate which would reenact the law of March 19, 1918 to provide "fast" time between the last Sunday in March and the last Sunday in October each year.

Donovan Heads News

APPOINTMENT of William J. (Wild Bill) Donovan, former Army colonel and attorney, as coordinator of information on national security, was announced last Friday by resident Roosevelt. As a civilian official, Col. Donovan "will collect and assemble information and data bearing on national security" from Government agencies and analyze and collate it for the President, it was announced. Previously, it had been reported Col. Donovan would be named chief of military intelligence with a major general's rank. His new work will not duplicate activities of the Army General staff, the regular intelligence services or the FBI.

U. S. to Cooperate In Draft Coverage Names of Those Drawn to Be Made Available Locally BROADCAST stations will have the cooperation of the Selective Service System in connection with the second registration to be held at 7 p.m. (EST) July 17 in Washington, according to Maj. Ernest M. Culligan, Public Relations Officer.

Replying to a letter from Arthur Stringer, of the NAB, who had written about past difficulty experienced by stations in getting draft information from local boards, Maj. Culligan wrote:

"It is my pleasure to assure you that instructions have been issued to all members of the Selective Service System to make information regarding Selective Service readily available to the press and radio news agencies. During the past several months we have corrected many situations where local boards were reluctant to release information and I am sure that radio stations will not encounter any difficulty in this connection.

Promises to Help

"Should any situation come to your attention that requires corrected action, please advise me and I assure you the matter will be straightened out."

A number of stations complained during the first registration that they were unable to obtain lists of names from local boards at the same time they were released to the press. Mr. Stringer said that Maj. Culligan's statement indicates this difficulty should not be encountered during the second registration. He urged stations to reestablish contacts immediately with local sources of names. Stations were advised to notify NAB headquarters if any difficulty is met. The drawing of the 750 num-

The drawing of the 750 numbers in the second registration is expected to take about two hours. After the drawing, the news will originate in various centers throughout the country.

ELEVEN Ohio stations are broadcasting Liberty Under Law under the auspices of local bar associations and the public relations committee of the Ohio State Bar Assn. REVIVAL-of 522 CHURCHES

TWO and one-half years ago when the matter was first investigated, over 5,000 churches had been abandoned high on rock-ribbed mountains, deep in pebbled gulches throughout the hilly regions of WLW's coverage area in Kentucky, West Virginia, Tennessee, and other states. This had come about because the tiny pastorates could not support individual pastors.

Today, 522 of these rural churches are again open every Sunday. 30,000 men, women, and children in the 522 churches alone gather in groups ranging from 25 to 400 each, to hear the sermon over WLW by Reverend E. Howard Cadle.

PREVIOUSLY ABANDONED, THIS ATHOL, KY. CHURCH new provides comfort for its mountainside area.

REVEREND E. HOWARD CADLE His WLW program, originating from Indianapolis is heard in 522 churches, by 30.000 people ABANDONED, ALSO, HAD BEEN THIS CROWD of rural church goers who are now provided with weekly sermons—through WLW. It was Rev. Cadle's inspiration to re-open these churches. And it was WLW's privilege to assist him in every possible way, Radios were installed in these remote spots, stimulating attendance . . . And so, already, through WLW's cooperation, a sizeable number of the idle churches are again alive and helpful.

These are the people who need this type of service, probably to an even greater degree than their city cousins.

The many who are sensitive to an inborn urge for religious expression are aided through other WLW programs, also. There is the "Church By the Side of the Road", a presentation of hymns by the Crosley Employees Choir, with a sermonette by pastors of different faiths from all parts of WLW-land.

Together, these programs are more reasons why so many rural people consider WLW a part of their lives ... it is stations like WLW who can and do provide this type of service.
