

MORE THAN MERE TIME!

П

Successful radio has outgrown the sale of mere time units that crowd rate cards. Their generally unknown value has been linked to a broadcasting skill that transforms the minutes and hours of radio time into action-packed units of effective service to listeners and advertisers.

The six Fort Industry Stations are keyed by seasoned and intelligent management to a PLUS Service that makes mere radio time bow to the incessant drive of a severe taskmaster—CONSISTENT RESULTS!

There is much more than mere proof of performance behind a Fort Industry affidavit!

"MOST MAIL I'VE SEEN COMING TO ONE PLACE SINCE I WORKED AT WLS!""

e do get more mail than many stations . . . probably more letters than most radio stations. Of course that makes us happy—as it does advertisers. For instance, we used 100 announcements in one month to offer listeners an invasion map of Europe for a dime . . . and we received 50,000 requests! This is only one of many success stories, one example to bear out our slogan: WLS Gets Results. We can show lots of further evidence. Just ask us . . . or ask any John Blair man.

SESAC OFFERS STATIONS SIX PROVEN SALES PLANS PLUS THE ASSISTANCE OF THE SESAC STATION RELATIONS STAFF WITHOUT CHARGE

HERE are six sales ideas that have been originated and profitably used by stations throughout the country. Each plan is simple, applicable to any size station, clear channel, regional or local. In each case, where one of the plans has been used, increased revenue has resulted.

HERE is what some of the station managers say about these plans:

"For a long time I have been wanting to tell you what a swell job you are doing. I think it is grand of your organization to give stations so much of your time, thought, money and energy,"—Gen. Mgr. Regional Network.

"Your representative's visit was the first occasion that we have had anyone from a music licensing organization call on us with so many helpful ideas and an attempt to be of service to us as broadcasters."—Station Owner.

"Your representative's two-day visit and his assistance to our sales staff were very productive and greatly appreciated."—Station Mgr.

"My sincere appreciation for the efforts you put forth in our behalf this week. Sears Roebuck just called back to reserve the maximum number of periods."—Station Owner.

WHY DOES SESAC MAKE THIS OFFER? Because Sesac is a service organization serving the broadcasting industry. Our station relations staff all have thorough broadcasting experience and personally call on every radio station throughout the year to assist station executives with their programs, sales and operating problems. These revenue producing ideas and assistance are offered to all broadcasters as another Sesac service to the industry. Get complete details on the six plans from your Sesac station relations representative, or write or wire: Sesac Program Service Dept.

EXPLORING with CROSSLEY

UNTIL Mr. Crossley came onto the scene some weeks ago, there was no complete statistical record of the listening habits of the radio families within the "Hudson Circle"—that prosperous, multicitied region in Eastern New York and Western New England. At WGY's request Mr. Crossley explored the region exhaustively, both in space (all the important cities) and time (around the clock). For a complete account of his adventures, write to WGY, Schenectady, N. Y. and ask for a copy of "Exploring with Crossley."

The Human Ear Learns Quickly!

The first time your ear ever heard somebody say Guadalcanal, you probably got nothing whatsoever out of it. But now you not only "get" it instantly, but your mind also flashes up a picture of jungles, gunfire and conquest.

Pardon us for being elementary, but it's the same way with Sonovox. The first time you hear a talking locomotive, or a singing violin, or whatever, your ear says "Thanks, but I guess we've not been introduced." You may not recognize the voice, or even understand the words. Okay-it was probably the same way when you first met your wife! But look how it is now!

Seriously-some advertisers have turned down perfectly swell Sonovox ideas because their ears didn't "get" the first audition-and then these same ideas have produced beautifully, later, for other advertisers. . . . We just thought we'd tell you about that, and point out that the human ear learns quickly!

Noble Buys Blue for 8 Millions in Cash

3 Outlets Included; Fly's Blessing Given Deal

SALE OF the Blue Network Co., to Edward J. Noble, owner of WMCA, New York, and chairman of Life Savers Corp., and former Undersecretary of Commerce, for $8,-000,000 cash, subject to necessary approvals, was announced last Friday, July 30, by David Sarnoff, RCA president, as owner of the network.

Mr. Noble, it was stated. has agreed to sell WMCA as soon as a purchaser can be found, thus eliminating the only forseeable barrier to the transaction. Assurances were given that Mark Woods, BLUE president, would remain operating head of the network, and that the entire staff would be retained. Mr. Noble paid $850,000 cash for WMCA in January, 1941, and will sell the station to conform with FCC requirements regarding multiple ownership of stations in the same community.

Closed Circuit Talk

Affiliates of the BLUE were told about the transaction in a closed circuit talk late Friday afternoon. Mr. Woods told the station heads about Mr. Noble, and the new owner in turn told of his plans as a practical business and advertising man, to make the BLUE preeminent in its field.

In announcing the transaction, Mr. Sarnoff said the move comes a year-and-a-half after the BLUE was organized as a separate entity in conformity with the new regulations of the FCC relating to ownership of more than one network by any single organization. RCA, he explained, remains the owner of NBC, which "will continue to operate the Red network."

The new ownership was said to be effective immediately, with the applications for the transfer of the three Blue-owned stations now being prepared. The transaction, of course, was viewed as contingent upon approval of these transfers, considered likely. FCC Chairman James Lawrence Fly, in New York last Friday when he conferred with Messrs. Sarnoff and Noble, described the sale as "a significant example of industry and Government cooperation." He pointed out it was in accordance with "Government policy and at the same time Government never placed any immediate requirement on the company to make a sale. They have taken their time and made an orderly disposition of the properties, and I am hopeful that the result will be constructive for all concerned."

Mr. Woods, in his closed circuit talk introducing Mr. Noble as the new BLUE owner, pointed out that as first chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Authority and as president of the board of trustees of St. Lawrence U., Mr. Noble "is imbued with the fundamental concept of public service. He represents the type of forward-looking man that assures the continued operation of the BLUE Network in the public interest."

Spiking reports that immediately cropped up in New York, Edwin L. James, managing editor of the New York Times, said "the Times is neither buying nor bidding for WMCA." The FCC legally will not pass upon sales of the BLUE itself, since networks are not licensed. But it will be called upon to approve the transfers of WJZ, New York; KGO, San Francisco, and WENR, Chicago, owned by the BLUE, and which would change hands.

McGraw Withdrew

The contract with Mr. Noble represented an 11th hour modification. The original proposal, it was reported, made orally and presumably accepted by RCA, represented a joint purchase plan by James H. McGraw Jr., president of McGraw-Hill Publishing Co., and Mr. Noble. Mr. McGraw's association with the publishing business, which, it was felt might fall within the purview of the FCC's pending order on newspaper ownership, was believed to be the primary factor in eliminating his participation. Mr. Woods reported that affiliate reaction was favorable.

Mr. Fly's presence in New York Friday was linked with the decision to eliminate the McGraw participation.

A hearing before the FCC on the station transfers was seen possible in some quarters because of the (Continued on page 52)

Miller Remains as President of NAB

But Board Paves Way For His Successor; Lewis Praised

SUCCESSFULLY resisting the third effort in the last year to force a change in industry leadership, Neville Miller was continued as NAB president with full powers by action of the board of directors at an extraordinary meeting in Chicago last Friday called by petition of the members of the legislative committee also serving on the board.

Lewis Not Candidate

The board's action, however, paved the way for nomination of a new president prior to the expiration of Mr. Miller's term July 1, 1944. William B. Lewis, former CBS vice-president and until recently OWI assistant director, had been proposed as Mr. Miller's successor, but the day before the board meeting withdrew his name from consideration on the ground that the industry's greatest need is for "unity of purpose and action".

The board adopted a resolution asserting that the purpose of the meeting was "misrepresented to some sections of the industry as bearing on the termination of the contract of the incumbent as president before the termination thereof." It stated the board "emphatically declares" this was not the purpose of the meeting and it "did not form any part of its deliberation."

Tribute was paid Mr. Lewis in another resolution. The board said it sincerely desired to consider him for the post but since Mr. Lewis found it necessary to withdraw his name (in a telegram to Don S. Elias, WWNC, Asheville, N. C., leader of the group espousing his candidacy) it expressed its regret that "extenuating circumstances intervened to preclude Mr. Lewis' availability".

Under another resolution, the board named a nominating committee of six of its membership, instructed to present to the board recommendations for presidency of the NAB upon expiration of Mr. Miller's contract. The committee is to report at its next regular board meeting, or a special meeting called for that purpose. Named as members of this committee were Mr. Elias; G. Richard Shafto, WIS, Columbia, S. Candy Time Looks Up as Sugar Eases

Business Depending On Ingredient Supply Situation

CANDY ADVERTISING is holding up well despite restricted supplies of sugar and other ingredient materials, and may be prime for an increase as sugar and shipping prospects improve. Some foundation for such a prediction can be found in the report that the sugar supply outlook is the best it has been in months, with the strong possibility that September-October quotas for industrial users will be increased from the current 70% level.

On the other hand, sugar may have to pinch-hit for decreased supplies of corn syrup and dextrose, important candy ingredients likely to be rationed due to the corn shortage.

Summing up, if the ingredient picture improves, it is a virtual certainty that candy advertising will increase materially, just as coffee advertising jumped when the supply increased.

N. Y. Agency Reports

Heading the list of candy industry sponsors, The Council on Candy as Food in the War Effort, cooperating with the National Confectioners Assn., has renewed its NBC program, Washington Reports on Rationing, effective Aug. 15. Ernest K. Lindley, Washington chief for Newsweek, is the commentator on the Sunday program (3 p.m. EWT) over 48 stations. Many prominent Government officials have made guest appearances.

A check of New York advertising agencies shows that whereas a few candy brands stepped up advertising during the year, most companies maintained the previous level of appropriations.

Sweets Co., New York, makers of Tootsie Rolls, is among those which have expanded during the first year of sugar rationing. After using limited spot radio for a number of years, the firm entered network radio last March with Captain Marvel, children's serial, on the BLUE, later shifting to Dick Tracy.

Sweets Co. will introduce a new product, Tootsie V-M, with a radio test campaign in Connecticut. Product is described as a milk fortifier, containing various diet supplements including several vitamins and malt, and having a flavor similar to the Tootsie Roll candy. To promote Tootsie V-M, Sweets Co., in resuming in the fall sponsorship of Dick Tracy on the BLUE, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 5:15-5:30 p.m. for Tootsie Rolls, will add Tuesday and Thursday programs, using only Connecticut stations carrying the program.

Also in March of this year, Charms Candy Co., Bloomfield, N.

J., started a spot campaign for Tastyeast Candy Bar on two stations, later adding four in New York. No further expansion is indicated at present.

One of the largest spot advertisers in the candy field, American Chicle Co., L. I. City, is continuing unabated its schedule of announcements for chicklets on between 150 and 155 stations throughout the country. Peter Paul Inc., Naugatuck, Conn., is likewise continuing present schedules, which include spot announcements in 20-30 major markets, and sponsorship of a thrice-weekly fiveminute news period on the CBS Pacific Coast Network. Paul products include Walnettos, Mounds, and Charcoal Gum.

Fanny Farmer Candy Shop's spot campaign started towards the end of last year, remains unchanged. Schedule includes participations on the New England Regional Network and on 12 additional stations.

Returning to the BLUE with double the network formerly used, D. L. Clark Co., Pittsburgh, started the news program Where Do We Stand on 110 BLUE stations last February, and renewed the series in May.

Midwest Picture

While some Midwest candy manufacturers have radio plans for the future, "when production difficulties from shortages in manpower and ingredients" are overcome, others are expanding their present time. Schutter Candy Co., Chicago (Old Nick and Bit-O-Honey), is now sponsoring two weekly quarter - hour programs, Curt Massey & Co., on 18 NBC stations, scheduled to begin Saturday, July 24, and a quarter-hour drama program, Coronet Little Show, heard Sundays on 45 CBS stations from 1:45-2 p.m., which started July 11. Stations carrying the latter program, which origi-nates out of WBBM, Chicago, will be KVOR KLZ WTOP WGST WROW WBBM KRNT WHAS WWL KWKH WABI WGAN WLAW WEEI WMAS WJR WCCO KMBC KMOX WKNE WOKO WKBW WABC WFBL WBT WLW KOMA WHP WJAS WCSC WSPA WNAX KRLD KTRH KTSA KSL WCAX WRVA WISN KFH KTUL KLRA. Agency is Schwimmer & Scott, Chicago.

Curtiss Candy Co., Chicago, at present has a network program and two local shows on the air, all placed through C. L. Miller Adv. Co., Chicago. On 114 CBS stations Curtiss sponsors a fiveminute news program (Butterfingers) at 12-12:05 p.m., Sat.-Sun., originating out of WABC, New York; on WGN, Chicago, Curtiss sponsors Greetings From Your Boy, (Baby Ruth) a weekly service camp letter program, heard Sundays at 11-11:25 a.m.; and on KMBC, Kansas City, Mo., Curtiss (Butterfingers) sponsors five-minute announcements on Tues.-Thurs.-Sat.

'Gestapo' Tactics Used by FCC in Foreign Language Field to Be Probed by House Committee

WITH THE scheduled opening of hearings in New York Tuesday (Aug. 3) on the so-called "Gestapo" activities of the FCC in the foreign language station field, reports were current that the House select committee investigating the FCC shortly would hold hearings on two fronts simultaneously.

The Washington hearings have been recessed until Aug. 9 and if the New York sessions are not completed by that time, the twoman subcommittee will continue that phase of the inquisition. Chairman Cox (D-Ga.), Rep. Miller (R-Mo.), and possibly Rep. Magnuson (D-Wash.), who has been absent since the initial hearing July 2, will sit at the Washington proceedings.

The New York hearings before Reps. Hart (D-N. J.), chairman, and Wigglesworth (R-Mass.) have been called for 10 a.m. at the Federal Bldg., Foley Square, in Room 110.

Sensational developments were predicted at the New York inquiry, which will cover alleged use of improper tactics by the FCC in the regulation of a number of stations in New York handling foreign language programs. Emphasis, it is reported, will be on Malian language stations and on purported hiring and firing of announcers and "commentators" at the direction of Government authorities in Washington, including the FCC and the OWI foreign language branch. Stations named by Mr. Garey were WBNX, WOV and WHOM.

A clash of jurisdiction between the U. S. Office of Censorship and the other Government agencies is expected to be bared. Circumstances surrounding alleged use of violence in certain instances also may be view of shortages is devoting most of its copy to promoting the war effort. Oh Henry Dramas

Williamson Candy Co., Chicago (Ch Henry), sponsors Famous Jury Trials, now in its third year, on 71 BLUE stations. Originating out of New York, it is heard from 9 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesdays. Agency is Aubrey, Moore & Wallace, Chicago. Peter & Paul, Inc., Chicago (Mounds), sponsors three quarterhour news shows at 5:45 to 6 p.m. on WMAQ, Chicago. Agency is Platt-Forbes, New York.

While many candy sponsors see the need to continue institutional advertising and also are using scheduled time for war effort copy, others have not decided on further air time until supplies of corn syrup and powdered milk, as well as manpower, are available to them.

revealed. Eugene L. Garey, general counsel of the committee, reported that some 100 persons, including station owners, managers and foreign language commentators are on the list of scheduled witnesses.

Mr. Garey will conduct the examination. His chief assistant will be Ambrose V. McCall, a member of his staff, who will carry on if Mr. Garey returns to Washington for the main proceedings.

Italian Incident

Evidently tying directly into one aspect of the "Gestapo" inquiry were published reports last Thursday that a Congressional source authorized release of a report on purported Communistic penetration in the OWI. This dealt primarily with the OWI broadcast in which King Victor Emmanuel of Italy was called a "moron" and Marshal Badoglio a "Fascist". President Roosevelt earlier had repudiated the broadcast and OWI was severely taken to task.

The report, prepared for a Congressional committee, dealt largely with the foreign language section of OWI, which allegedly indicated Communistic party line leanings. Mentioned specifically were Alan Cranston, chief of the foreign division; Lee Falk, radio specialist, and David Karr. The latter two were said to have attempted to compel Italian-Americans to ad-(Continued on page 59)

Statistical Static and Advertising Media

A GROUP of men were climbing a rugged mountain peak out West; coming to a puffing halt, they sat down for a rest and that second wind necessary for the last and steepest leg in a long morning's effort. Around the bend up ahead they noticed three men descending, and as they approached, one of the party in the group going up asked:

"How far is it to the top?"

"Five hose lengths," replied one of the three.

"What do you mean, hose lengths?" asked the first man.

"Well," said the other, "we're firemen and we measure in hose lengths."

Unknown Quantity

By this time they had made the next turn and disappeared from sight leaving behind what Elizabeth Drew, the critic, has described as ". . . words without communication". Since no one in the first party knew the number of feet in a hose length, the distance to the top of the peak was still an unknown quantity.

Measurements of advertising values quite often suffer from this kind of semantic confusion. Competitive enthusiasm seems to bring about an intensity of subjective analysis which blinds the individual to objective reality. While in this state, apples look like oranges because both are round, and decimal points, like flyspecks, are dropped wherever they chance to fall. Flies, we presume, get some relief, but the same cannot be said for the readers of such comparisons.

Several statements recently given wide circulation are typical of the dangers inherent in comparisons of one medium with another when actually both differ completely in their method of idea communication, yet are measured with a mathematical scale, which in itself, does not have measurements common to the objects to be measured. However, let us examine one or two specific statements in mind: Recent Coverage Comparisons Found To Be Replete with Faulty Data

> By CHARLES B. BROWN Director of Advertising & Promotion

National Broadcasting Co.

MEN WHO know their data best were upset at a recent set of arguments advanced in 'Editor & Publisher' on behalf of the selling power of newspapers. Titled 'Are Daily Newspapers Today the Third-Rate Medium?' an article by Wm. J. Swagerman set out to show that money spent on newspapers could do a much more effective job than money spent on radio. All-out war is under way in the advertising field, the article stated. Because radio came out second best in some of the claims made in the article, 'Broadcasting' asked Mr. Brown, a recognized expert in the media field, to tell the other side.

With a grand total of 18,595,460 circulation (based on ABC reports of March, 1942), the daily papers proposed for inclusion in the NNO [National Newspaper Organization] plan will afford an over-all coverage of 60% of the 30,000,000 family units of the entire country!

No radio network, no group of radio stations, can furnish such 1 enetration or market coverage. In fact, all radio stations combined cannot do so. Surveys of radio listening indicate that in the best listening months of the year, morning or evening, all radio stations fail to reach most of the market. According to a CAB report, covering listening by months for the year 1940, January and February were the peak listening months for both day and evening programs. In those months, a high average of 34.5% of sets were tuned in to morning programs, Thus, all radio stations miss 80% of the homes in the morning, and 64.5% of the

Here we find a number of interesting fallacies. Radio ownership is 92% of all urban, and 82.8% of all homes, against the 60% distribution for the newspaper group in question. But the comparison above is drawn between the over-all coverage figures for the NNO papers (60%) and the average of radio sets-in-use figures for half-hour periods, morning and evening. If we compare the over-all newspaper coverage figure of 60% with similar figures for radio; namely, figures representing sets-in-use at some time during broad periods of the day, we find a quite different picture.

Sets-in-Use-Any Radio-Total U. S.*

Annuai Average	Monrr.	ruu
1938-1939	Average	Week
Morning (6 a.m12 noon Evening (6 p.mmid.) All Day (6 a.mmid.)	1) 50.3 76.4 84.4	48.8 75.1 83.7
Winter
1938-1939

MOLL	iing	(0)	a.m12 noon)	53.1	01.2

All I)ay	(6	a.mmid.)	88.2	87.8
* S			NAB-CBS-NBC	Urban	Study.
	193	8-19	939.

And since we are talking of actual usage, let us not forget that each one of these radios was actually turned on at some time; thus even here we limit radio to actual use while counting newspaper circulation as total delivered, but not checked as papers actually opened or in use.

Another Example

Let us examine still another typical statement:

Take. for example, the case of a grocery product advertiser who used a network of 57 stations to promote a low-priced staple. His program ran for 15 minutes each evening, five days a week. His program was "rated" at less than 10% for January-February 1942. He spent nearly $1,250,000 for time alone; another $400,000 for talent. Twenty-three states were represented in the network used, with a total count of 18,556,000 radio homes.

On the basis of its time cost only, this particular program offers the following comparison of values as between radio and newspapers. Assuming its rating to be 10% (which is actually higher than it was), and contrasting the effectiveness of radio with that of one duily paper in each of the 57 markets of the network, we have the following:

Time and Space 65 hours 80,800 l	ines
Unit	ines
Frequency 5 ti. w'kly 5 ins. w	'kly
Rating & Coverage 10% 60%
Aver, Audience 1,855,600 10,582	,938
Weekly
Impressions 9,278,000 52,814	,000
Yearly

Impressions ___ 482,456,000 2,746,328,000

For his time investment alone, this advertiser could have been by long odds the most important single product advertiser in the newspapers of America. His 80,000-line schedule would have been the largest grocery product campaign ever to appear in newspapers. He could have obtained market saturation through newspapers instead of 10% coverage through radio. He could have enjoyed over two billion additional advertising impressions through newspapers in contrast with radio.

The statement then contrasts the effectiveness of racio and newspaper advertising. The writer assumes that if this same advertisement in each of 57 daily newspapers, five days a week, and assuming 60% newspaper coverage of these 18,556,000 radio homes, the newspaper advertising schedule would result in 52,814,000 impressions per week, or 2,746,328,000 per year—or an advantage of two billion impressions per year over radio!

Obvious Fallacy

The fallacy in this last statement is again that of measuring 10% actual radio use with 60% coverage of newspapers. This figure, of course, in no way represents readership of a specific advertise-Newspaper advertising ment. readership figures, which are most nearly comparable to the radio listening percentage or rating, run a good deal lower than 60%. As a matter of fact, according to figures of the Advertising Research Foundation, the median readership of a 325-line food advertisement is

Summer Good, Fall Net Prospects Bright

Most Big Programs Will Come Back On the Air

PREDICTIONS made at the end of last year by leading radio executives that "radio is destined to hold its own as a medium during the second year of war" are certainly proving true, according to a survey by BROADCASTING of summer programs currently sponsored on the networks in the evening hours as well as an overall outlook on the network picture for this fall and winter.

When the few network advertisers who took advantage of summer hiatus periods this summer return to the air in September and October, along with the new fall shows, which have been gradually taking shape the past few weeks, there will be little choice evening time open to late buyers, a large group of whom already are on waiting lists for time on NBC and CBS. This optimistic outlook for the major networks follows out the current and future boom in spot radio, surveyed in BROADCASTING, July 19.

NBC Evenings Full

Evening hours after 7 p.m. on NBC are already sold solid through 11 p.m. across the board, except for a few quarter-hours between 7-8 p.m., the quarter-hour 10:45-11 p.m. Friday nights, and Saturday

DON IOSET LEAVES FT. INDUSTRY JOB

AFTER TEN YEARS identifica-tion with The Fort Industry Co., Don Ioset, former managing di-rector of WAGA Atlanta, has resigned, effective Aug. 1.

During the decade, he managed three of Fort Industry's six stations, not simultaneously, but soon after each was acquired by the alter each was acquired by the company. Those under his manage-ment were; old WALR of Zanes-ville, Ohio, now carrying call let-ters WHIZ; WLOK Lima, Ohio, and WAGA Atlanta, Ga.

Mr. Ioset was relieved of the management of WAGA in Nov., 1942, when he was given an assignment to follow through on certain Cuban matters for the company. He made two trips to Cuba in that activity, the latter visit necessitat-ing his staying in that country for three months, and returning to the United States in July of this year.

Prior to association with the Fort Industry Co., Mr. Ioset was di-rector of advertising for firms in Toledo and Buffalo; and was a sales manager for firms in Cincinnati and Buffalo. Previous to that activity he operated his own advertising agency.

He has not announced his immediate plans but indicates he will continue in radio broadcasting, perhaps acquiring a small interest in some station.

7-7:30 p.m. Because of this situa-tion, NBC so far has no new shows scheduled to start in the fall. Its regular programs, which have had substitutes this summer, returning as usual, include Information Please, Fibber McGee & Molly, Bob Hope, Red Skelton, Eddie Cantor, The Aldrich Family, Tommy Riggs & Betty Lou (unless Riggs is drafted), Abie's Irish Rose, Truth Or Consequences, The Great Gildersleeve, Jack Benny, and Edgar Bergen-Charlie McCarthy.

CBS is sold solid Monday through Sunday between 8 and 10 p.m., and the majority of its 7-8, and 10-11 p.m. time is taken as well. The network recently sold its sustaining program Report to the Nation, heard Tuesdays 9:30-10 p.m., to a group of Electric Companies, and R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. is keeping its option on the Saturday 7:30-8 p.m. spot, which Thanks to the Yanks occupied before its shift to Saturdays at 10 p.m.

Elgin Watch Co. will again sponsor The Man Behind the Gun series this fall, CBS having presented the program on a sustaining basis this summer, 7-7:30 p.m. Saturday. Kate Smith will resume her Friday evening spot for General Foods Corp., and Texas Co. is expected back on the air Sunday evenings, although it is practically definite that Fred Allen will not be on the show until later in the year, due to his health.

With three new evening programs starting in September on the BLUE and a fourth in August, that network is gradually filling in its evening time to a solid booking. Aug. 14, O'Sullivan Rubber Co. starts Leon Henderson in the Saturday, 6:45-7 p.m. period, while Sept. 4, RCA will start its full hour What's New? program on the full BLUE network, and F. W. ACCORDING to an article in the New York Herald Tribune by John Steinbeck, Comedian Bob Hope deserves recognition for his service

Hours May Resume?

Although the rumor has been denied by the agencies involved, it has been reported several times in the last week or so that some of the half-hour programs which were formerly an hour in length may return to that status this fall.

Mentioned were Kate Smith, Major Bowes and the Chase & Sanborn Show, but in each case the ensuing half-hours are already filled with commercial shows, which would entail complicated juggling of schedules by CBS and NBC, a near impossibility considering the present "tightness" of their evening availabilities.

In connection with this rumor, it is interesting to note that in January, 1942, there were 10 hour shows on CBS, NBC and the BLUE, a total which has dropped to three as of the present writing-not including the new RCA program, starting in September on the BLUE. Present hour programs are Kay Kyser (NBC), Lux Radio Theatre (CBS), and the Good Will Hour (BLUE).

Petrillo's Live Music Tour Is Called 'Unequaled Hypocrisy'

Plan for Symphony Concerts in Smaller Cities is a 'Transparent Gesture' Says NAB Head

ANNOUNCEMENT last Tuesday by James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians, of plans for a series of concerts to be put on by major symphony orchestras in small cities throughout the country to bring god music to those usually unable to hear it, was described as "unequaled for hypocrisy" in a comment issued on Wednesday by Neville Miller, NAB president.

Mr. Petrillo stated that the AFM had appropriated $500,000 for the project, which he estimated would cover the cost of 570 concerts. Mr. Miller retorted, "If Mr. Petrillo were seriously interested in the welfare of symphonic music, he could, by lifting his ban [on recordings], permit the equivalent, not of 570, but of hundreds of thousands of times 570 concerts."

'Transparent Gesture'

Mr. Miller declared that by "this transparent gesture, Mr. Petrillo drops the last vestige of justification for his ban. He has contended that records commercially used in the smaller cities deprive local musicians of employment opportunities. Yet, when the union sets aside $500,000 to bring some music to the American people it does not employ local musicians, but instead spends it on bringing into the communities the performances of fully employed musicians who have always made recordings."

Declaring that Mr. Petrillo "has done more to prevent symphonic music in the United States than any other man in the history of our country," Mr. Miller stated that before the union leader halted the making of records a year ago "the great orchestras could reach all of our people through phonograph records. Records so made were available for the home, schools, broadcasting stations and for all of our citizens wherever situated and whenever they wanted to hear symphonic music, not merely once each in communities handpicked by the union."

Mr. Miller pointed out that all symphony organizations are nonprofit institutions which derive a substantial part of their revenue from royalties on phonograph records, and that the individual musicians in these orchestras, as well as the orchestras themselves, have been deprived of this source of income by the ban on recording. On the proposed series of concerts, Mr. Miller stated, "At his own figures, Mr. Petrillo is allotting less than $10 a man per concert to cover salary, railroad fares, hotels, meals, baggage car for instruments, cartage of instruments and music stands to place of performance and incidental expenses. It is obvious that Mr. Petrillo proposes to pay the men no compensation or only nominal compensation.

"The essence of Mr. Petrillo's gesture, therefore, is that he is going to compel some of his members to render free services and the orchestral societies to lend their names and reputations to his enterprise so that he may take unto himself the credit for their services."

The idea originated with the President of the United States, Mr. Petrillo said, explaining that he met with President Roosevelt last Dec. 29 at the White House at the President's invitation. "The President," Mr. Petrillo said, "was very much concerned that the people in the smaller cities in the United States are not getting enough first class concert music, especially during wartime.

"He pointed out to me that in many foreign countries, concert orchestras are sent from city to city so that the people who are not in a financial position to travel to the big cities to hear the larger orchestras could hear the finest music free of charge. He was wondering whether or not the AFM could do something along the same lines. I told the President that I would be very happy to take this matter up with the international executive board of the AFM and I felt sure something could be done about it."

Questioned concerning the President's ideas on the matter, Secretary Stephen Early at the White House confirmed Mr. Petrillo's statement. He said that the plan fulfilled an idea which the President has had in mind for a number of years. According to Mr. Early, Mr. Roosevelt suggested, when the work relief program was started, that musicians organize symphony orchestras which would play in communities never visited by larger musical groups. Last December he passed the idea along to the labor leader.

$250,000 Appropriated

At the board meeting in Chicago on June 7, Mr. Petrillo said, an appropriation of $250,000 was approved for this purpose, with Mr. Petrillo authorized to double the sum if it is found necessary. No charge will be made for admission to the concerts, he said, nor will the AFM locals be asked to share in the expenses, the national union paying scale to all musicians who participate in the concerts and also paying all expenses.

WLB Expected to Name Panel To Hear AFM Strike Claims

APPOINTMENT of a three-man panel to hear arguments on the y e ar - old AFM transcriptionrecording controversy is expected this week by the War Labor Board, coincident with the release of its order and decision accepting jurisdiction. It will mark the first time that WLB has ordered a hearing on the merits, with a so-called "strike" still in progress.

Announcement was expected last week of the Board's order and decision indicating the scope and area of its acceptance of jurisdiction. The disclosure that WLB had accepted jurisdiction without ordering musicians back to work brought criticism from transcription company representatives [BROADCAST-ING, July 26].

It was learned on high authority that the Board panel of three members will comprise one of the most prominent industrialists in the country as the industry member. The labor member is expected to be the president of an AFL international union (AFM is affiliated with AFL). The chairman of the group will be the public member, who also is understood tentatively to have been selected.

It was thought likely the order of WLB, to be announced by Chairman William H. Davis, will authorize the panel at any time during its proceedings to petition the Board to order AFM members back to work. The board departed from its usual custom when it took no action to force resumption of work coincident with its assumption of jurisdiction.

It is expected that the proceedings will be held in New York, particularly if the participants request it. Two and probably all three of the panel members will be New Yorkers.

MARGARINE OUTPUT TO BE INCREASED

WAR FOOD Administration has announced that in the next 12 months production of about 27 per cent more oleomargarine will be permitted, thereby lending support to the view that advertising of leading brands of the product will at least be maintained at current levels, if not increased. WFA states that the ensuing year will also see a reduction of about 20 per cent in butter available for civilians. Normally the ratio of butter to margarine is about four to one, with peak butter output exceeding two billion pounds.

A 10% total cut in all edible fats and oils is in prospect, giving civilians about 44 lbs. per capita.

Among leading brands of margarine, and their producers, are: Nucoa, The Best Foods Inc., New York; Parkay, Kraft Cheese Co., Chicago; Good Luck, John F. Jelke Co., Chicago; All-Sweet, Swift & Co., Chicago; Blue Bonnet, Standard Food Products, Indianapolis; Dixie, Capital City Products Co., Columbus; Durkee's, Durkee Famous Foods Inc., Chicago.

Already effecting an increase in advertising, as previously reported in BROADCASTING, plentiful coffee supplies have finally justified complete removal of rationing restrictions. The WFA announcement came out after the President broke the news in his fireside chat of July 28.

In addition, occasional concerts will be given by orchestras maintained in 55 other cities.

RADIO STATIONS will henceforth receive information on allclear signals following real or test air raids from the First Fighter Command instead of from the Service Commands, the Army announced last week.

The new order, which became effective at 12:01 a.m. July 28, is designed to "provide a uniform method of announcing the radio allclear throughout the entire Eastern Defense Command," comprising the Atlantic Coast from Maine to Florida. the announcement stated.

"Broadcasting stations in the blackout or test areas will receive their all-clear data from the information center of the particular Air Defense Wing or Region in their territory," the announcement continued. "The information centers will transmit the all-clear authorization to certain key stations. These key stations will then send a signal tone (a 1,000-cycle note) to get the attention of the radio audience and immediately thereafter will broadcast a standard all-clear message.

Time Lag Seen

"The message will contain a brief description of the territory affected. Following the announcements by key stations, other radio stations which monitor the key stations will rebroadcast the same message to insure that the information is widely disseminated.

"The radio announcement of the all-clear messages will not replace the recently approved audible allclear signals which will be continued."

Some broadcasters believe that the new system will fail to achieve the "uniformity" desired by the Army in anything but the wording of the all-clear announcements, and that it will probably result in an appreciable interval between the time of the first all-clear announcements made by the key stations and the times when these announcements are repeated by the other stations in the area.

Heretofore the time of the allclear has been supplied to all stations in advance, with instructions to broadcast it at a specified time. which was always set at a station break to avoid causing any cooperating station to lose revenue by interrupting a commercial. While no broadcaster has objected to such an interruption, which would be of only a few seconds duration, there will necessarily be a lag of several minutes between the announcements of the key stations and those of the monitoring stations, which may cause confusion among the civillan population and the volunteer defense organizations when different groups receive the all-clear at varying times. If the audible allclear signals prove generally successful, the radio all-clears will not be so important however.

Another objection voiced by certain broadcasters is that formerly they received information concerning the times of all signals-the Blue alerting the public and the Red signifying planes overhead, as well as the all-clear-from a single source, but that now the earlier signals come from the Service Commands while the all-clear comes from the First Fighter Command. Fear was expressed that this divided military authority would increase the chance of error in the transmission of information to broadcasters and to the public.

In answer to these criticisms it was pointed out that the Army's aim is to familiarize the public with the procedure that will apply under actual raid conditions and that at such times there would be no advance notice of when the Blue and Red and all-clear signals will be sounded. The chief difference, insofar as radio is concerned, between simulated and actual raid conditions under the new set-up, is that in a test the stations will continue to broadcast their normal program schedule, while in a real raid all stations in the raid area would be silenced to avoid their use as guide posts by enemy pilots.

ONLY THE WEST among the four principal geographical areas of the United States has increased in civilian population in the period since the 1940 Census, according to a preliminary estimate issued July 30 by the Bureau of the Census, U. S. Dept. of Commerce.

The report says that when their natural increase is taken into account, the Northeastern States, the North Central States and the South together lost more than 6,000,000 persons to the West and the Armed Forces, although their net loss in civilian population was only about 3,700,000.

Movement of large numbers to the regions of greatest war activity accounts for the population shift. Analysis shows that the gain in the West is largely concentrated in the Pacific division and the numerical loss of other sections was chiefly in the Middle Atlantic and West North Central divisions. The only section except the Pacific to show an increase in civilian population was the South Atlantic, with a modest 0.1%.

War Activity Shown

To quote the report of Census Director C. J. Capt, the "differences among the states further reflect the localized intensity of war activity.

"Twelve states and the District of Columbia showed an increase in civilian population. In the West, all of the three Pacific states and three of the eight mountain states (Arizona, Utah, Nevada) had substantial proportionate gains. East of the Mississippi river, three states (Florida, Maryland and Virginia) and the District of Columbia, all in the South Atlantic division, had appreciable increases. Three other states, Michigan, Connecticut and Delaware had slight increases. The heaviest loser was New York with a drop of about 650,000 in civilian population. A more detailed analysis will be possible when estimates for counties have been completed."

U. S. civilian population in total decreased approximately 3,100,000, or 2.4% between April 1, 1940, and March 1, 1943, according to the preliminary figures. This reflects

Blue Day Repeats Are Pushed Again Plan Pits Big Night Shows Against Daytime Serials

BLUE Network salesmen are again contacting advertisers and agencies with proposals that they buy daytime periods on the BLUE to rebroadcast by transcription their big evening programs for the benefit of night workers and other daytime listeners unable to listen during the evening hours.

Idea was originally broached several months ago and several sponsors of nighttime shows were reported interested, but the plan was dropped because of pressure from NBC, which has always maintained that the admission of recordings on the network will result in weakening the network system of broadcasting, which is based on simultaneous broadcasting of a live performance by a number of wirelinked stations. Only a month ago the BLUE squelched the suggestion that the Gracie Fields programs be continued through the summer via recordings shipped from England because of its ruling, inherited from NBC, barring recordings from the network.

Now, with an announcement that RCA has sold the BLUE expected daily, the network has taken an independent position on the question. A survey of daytime listening made for the BLUE [BROADCAST-ING, May 24] indicated that dissatisfaction with current daytime programs keeps daytime listening far below the nighttime level, a fact which undoubtedly will be stressed in the campaign to get advertisers to use the BLUE to put their big evening programs opposite daytime serials on other networks. The Plan will be confined to dramatic and other "talk" programs until the AFM ban on musical recordings has been lifted.

'Video Problems Political'—Fortune

Magazine Sees Industry Threatened by Past Investment

MAJOR PROBLEMS in the postwar development of television are economic and political rather than technical, according to an article, "The Promise of Television", in the August issue of Fortune.

"Technically", Fortune states, "television has been ready to make a start for over five years—not in a perfect state by any means, but improving rapidly as the war closed in. . At the point that the war immobilized civilian television, the U. S. televison picture was a flickerless image, synchronized at 30 frames per second and 525-line definition, by authority of the Federal Communications Commission ... Exactly what the war developments will do to this image is largely in the realm of military secrecy and conjecture."

Vested Interests Threatened

Citing television's contribution to radar, which "undoubtedly will have some contributions in return," Fortune continues: "What can be solidly predicated upon the war is that all of this work in the ultrahigh frequencies will advance television techniques, and particularly television relays."

In a brief review of television's recent past, Fortune points out that industry disagreement over standards, the FCC's "plain and fancy muddling," the opposition of "financial groups with heavy investments in present forms of communications, threatened by technological change; and Hollywood. whose whole structure may be made over by television," and the rise of FM, which found itself "in the anomolous position of being forced to fight television for space," combined to delay television's commercial debut almost up to America's entry into the war.

Today, with the slate wiped clean by war, Fortune goes on, "there is a score of industry spokesmen who recognize that now is the golden opportunity for revaluating all developments and soundly preparing for the future. But there are still the clawing factions . . . a big broadcasters group that seems ready to use television as a counter in corporate strategy to hem in FM in the spectrum to maintain the status quo in radio. . . There is, counterwise, an FM group that is disposed to push FM ahead of television." Three main factions are listed:

Three Points of View

"First, there are the irreconcilables, who say that television isn't going anywhere, at least for a long time. They say that television may be ready technically 'but economically it is just as unsound as it always was.' The argument is that civilian radios will be so depleted at war's end that the industry will have to bend all its efforts simply to shoveling out prewar models, perhaps with FM; later on it can sell the same market all over again with sets incorporating some of the new war developments. Forget about television for awhile. The theme, already sounded in other industries, is an attack upon 'crystalgazers' and a warning to the public not to expect new products to come too fast after the war. This group is strictly status quo, with little research or patent stake in television.

"Second, there is the school that says television should remain in its present position in the radio spectrum and at substantially the same technical standards as before the war. Its argument, supported heavily by the business-sales side of the industry, is that if television is to get off to the fastest possible start to exert a maximum pull on postwar employment, it ought not to be burdened with excessive changes. To shift higher in the spectrum, it contends, would mean one to two and maybe more years of delay after the war, testing, redesigning, and training personnel in an unfamiliar part of the spectrum. This school is partly status quo, with a strong economic and patent interest in the present area of the spectrum.

"Third, there is the school that says television should move now, while it has the chance, up further into the roomier ultra-short waves. This school is supported generally by venturesome engineers. The argument is that the upper reaches of the ultra-shorts are television's natural habitat, and all the trouble about shortages of channels has been caused by putting television in the lower part of the ultra-short spectrum where, from an engineering standpoint, it has no business to be.

Now Working at 3,000 mc

"Radio television before the war had not ventured to any practical extent beyond 100 megacycles, but in war development it is now moving easily at 3,000 megacycles and beyond. The greater number of frequencies and wider channels possible in this upper region opens the air to more stations, higher definition, better technical operation. Moreover, there are revolutionary developments coming along in the Iconoscope-Kinescope system that will make the 1941 standards look like an old hat. Electronic color television will come only in this region of the spectrum; and it is here that someday both the audible and visible channels of television may be brought together on FM, a development that a minority of engineers believes is bound to come for technical unity and simplification.

If television is already in the higher ultra-short waves, savs this group, it will be ready to take such developments in stride. Growing military and aircraft communications demands in the lower part of the present television band are going to force television to move, and, economically, television must move, because its present eighteen channels are insufficient for a television system comparable to radio between Washington and Boston. If work is begun, the argument continues, sometime before the actual end of the war, television can be moved upstairs bodily in six months to a year. This school is out to construct an open patent pool."

Elbow Room

After a detailed discussion of the opening up of the upper reaches of the radio spectrum by warborn developments, Fortune concludes: "Only the full, fruitful expansion of the spectrum-FM, television, and facsimile-can create elbowroom for freedom. Past investment in television should not be allowed to freeze that growth.... If the industry does not take the initative. the government, holding a big stick of war-developed patents of its own, is likely to force it. The whole future of television and radio depends upon the clarity and unity with which the industry now moves."

INTERNATIONAL CP's ARE ASKED BY CBS

FCC CONSTRUCTION permit for a new international broadcast station at Brentwood, N. J., was applied for last week by CBS New York. Two other 50 kw highfrequency transmitters are expected to be ready about Aug. 31 and Sept. 15 at the CBS Wayne, N. J. transmitter site [BROADCAST-ING, July 12]. News of Mussolini Flashed by Radio Duce Resignation Feature of Toscanini's NBC Concert

THE NEWS of Benito Mussolini's resignation as Premier of Italy, which reached this country via London at 5 p.m. on Sunday, July 25, went out over the major networks at various times within the ensuing quarter-hour in the form of flash bulletins.

Listeners to the NBC Symphony Sunday afternoon and members of the studio audience heard the news under probably the most dramatic circumstances, as. Arturo Toscanini, overcome with emotion when he learned that the man he had 30 long opposed had at last been ousted, conducted the latter half of an all-Italian concert, which he had selected by coincidence.

Following the ovation on his return to the podium after the intermission, the maestro conducted the third act of Rigoletto brilliantly, and brought the War Bond concert to a close amid cheers both for the news announcement and in tribute to his own fight against Fascism.

Break Into Programs

Most stations broke into whatever programs they had on the air to bring the news to their audiences. Radio news services supplied frequent bulletins and background material during the evening.

After the first news flash on the BLUE at 5:11 p.m., the bulletin was rushed to John W. Vandercook and Leland Stowe, war correspondents and authors, who were in the midst of their Where Do We Stand program on the BLUE.

Instead of the usual procedure of answering questions during the last quarter-hour of the show, the two commentators discussed the sensational development, offering their opinions as to the effect of Mussolini's resignation after 21 years as dictator of Italy.

Mutual broke the news shortly after 5 p.m. Seymour Korman, Mutual correspondent in Algiers, gave his report at 7:15 p.m. which was recorded and rebroadcast at 10:15 p.m. on the network.

Frank Singiser, Samuel Grafton, and Gabriel Heatter on their Sunday evening programs on WOR, New York outlet of Mutual, and also on Mutual, gave listeners their interpretations of the event, and WOR was able to point to the prediction July 24 by Sydney Moseley that "in the very near future Mussolini would attempt to flee the country."

Flash Bulletins

Breaking into the Prudential Family Hour, CBS announced the Mussolini resignation at 5:04 p.m., followed by more complete flash bulletins during its regular programs until 8:55 p.m. when Ned Calmer's news broadcast for Parker Pen Co. covered the news more fully. Other CBS news commenta-

Heard by 100 Million

THE GREAT majority of the nation's 100 million listeners heard at least one message in the OWI "Eat More Potatoes" radio campaign, conducted during the period July 3 to July 25, OWI estimated last week. The campaign, requested by the Department of Agriculture because of an imminent surplus of new potatoes, resulted in an estimated 111,800,000 listener impressions, OWI reported. A total of 48 network sustaining programs, 19 special network assignments and 6,804 local station announcements were scheduled to carry the campaign message.

ESSO IS PRAISED FOR NEWSCAST AID

CONGRATULATING Esso marketers for the eight years of its presentation of factual news, Carleton D. Smith, general manager of WRC, Washington, in a special talk on that station July 30 following the 10,000th consecutive broadcast of the Esso Reporter, pointed out that since Pearl Harbor the company has devoted 32% of its commercial time to war messages. These messages, Mr. Smith said, did not include the many additional service announcements, such as those for the American Legion, China relief, Boy and Girl Scouts and the USO.

Carl Ecgusts and the USO. "In other words," he continued, "over one-third of the time ordiing his own merchandise, as noted in the case of Esso Marketers, has been devoted to some extremely worthwhile service message which would further our progress in the waging of a successful war against our enemies both at the battlefront and on the homefront... We of WRC are proud to have been one of the original stations on which the Esso Reporter started back in 1935, during the days of peace. And we are glad to pay tribute to the Esso Marketers for pioneering in this consistent, reliable public service which through the past eight years has brought clear accurate, unbiased news reports to our radio audience."

Fly Urges Shortwaves For Post-War Culture

CHAIRMAN James Lawrence Fly of the FCC joined with Walt Disney, creator of Mickey Mouse, and Francis S. Harmon, executive vicepresident of the War Activities Committee of the motion picture industry last Saturday in a discussion of "The World of Sight and Sound" on the NBC post-war planning series For This We Fight, broadcast at 7 p.m. (EWT). The program is one of NBC's Inter-American University of the Air series.

Mr. Fly urged that nations should begin to plan now to avail themselves of the opportunities for greater mutual understanding through the exchange of ideas and cultural information which postwar development of shortwave, FM broadcasting and the use of film for recording and rebroadcasting televised programs will make possible. It is the responsibility of all nations acting together, he said, to provide intelligent direction in the use of communication facilities for promoting international goodwill.

Foundation Report

NATIONAL Foundation for Infantile Paralysis presented a report on its annual fund-raising drive on NBC July 30, marking the first time radio has been used for this purpose. During the ten years of its existence, the organization has reported on the final results of the drive primarily through the press. Neville Miller, NAB president and chairman of the Foundation's 1943 national radio division, introduced Basil O'Connor, president, who gave the report.

Effect of Advertising Appeal Rulings Involving Special Sales Is Explained

AMPLIFYING its July 15 request that textile retailers refrain from "buy now" advertising appeals, the War Production Board last week issued two further interpretations in response to inquiries from the trade.

Arthur D. Whiteside, vice-chairman for civilian requirements, announced that "dollar days" and similar special sales events are included in the WPB policy declaration since they are closely allied to the "buy now" forms of promotion. He also ruled that goods classed as "seconds" be labeled as such and advertised at a stated price without comparison to prices of standard merchandise in the same class.

To Avoid Rationing

The policy declaration, Mr. Whiteside explained, is an advertising and promotion code for textile retailers "designed to bring about orderly and adequate distribution of textiles" and is part of Chairman Donald M. Nelson's program to make clothes rationing unnecessary.

To its earlier request to retailers to eliminate "buy now" and "scarce" advertising of textiles WPB added rugs, floor coverings and draperies, luggage, upholstered furniture, mattresses and fur coats. "All of these products," Mr.

Bank Renews

CONTINUING its campaign against hoarding and needless spending of money, Savings Banks of New York State has renewed participations on women's programs and musical clocks on seven of the New York State stations on which the drive started early this year, having dropped two up-state outlets. Drive encourages savings through purchase of War Bonds or the deposits in Savings Banks. Agency is Ruthrauff & Ryan, New York.

Convention by Air

RADIO will be the means by which the National Assn. of Foremen will hold its convention in September, according to Frank H. Ireland, vice-president. This is one of many instances in which the medium has been so employed since the Institute of Radio Engineers met two years ago via airwaves. Use of radio for the NAF convention is prompted by war demands on transportation, hotel accommodations, and time. Proceedings will be limited to one hour, broadcast over a nationwide network, not yet selected, with member clubs holding local meetings at which the broadcast is heard and discussions held. Whiteside said, "are so closely allied to textiles as such that excessive promotion of a type contrary to the policy declaration would confuse the public and interfere with the success of the voluntary program."

The WPB program has caused some apprehension on the part of merchants which has been reflected in plans for local radio advertising. The NAB cited, as an example, a telegram from a radio station manager who reported some of his clients as "extremely jittery" regarding future promotion. The manager stated that one of his advertisers may cancel his program to conform with the WPB ruling.

Inquiries at WPB developed that it is the type of appeal rather than the volume of advertising that is affected by the textile policy declaration. The Government is enlisting the cooperation of retailers in preventing unnecessary buying and to avoid rationing, it was explained.

Lew Avery, NAB director of broadcast advertising, stated the new policy declaration presents a sales problem to the small stations which calls for ingenuity and enterprise. He saw in it an opportunity for development of new ideas in institutional and other forms cf promotion.

Disc Package Schedule Devised for Piel Series

DESPITE last week's reports of a beer shortage, Piel Bros., Brooklyn, which is not affected by transportation problems to the same extent as distributors over large areas, is starting the most elaborate radio schedule in its history. Starting Aug. 2, the brewery will sponsor a five-weekly five-minute program of live music by the Korn Kobblers, musical novelty band, on WJZ, New York, and three quarter-hours weekly by the same talent on four Eastern stations—WICC WDEL WTOP WRAW.

The sponsor has worked out the equivalent of a pre-ban transcribed package musical program. Each station has a set of recordings of pre-ban releases with a separate set of commercials to be cued in during each quarter-hour program. Series will run 20 weeks. Agency is Sherman K. Ellis & Co., New York.

SELF-CENSORSHIP At KVOO Is Aided By Poster Warnings

KVOO Tulsa, in an effort to maintain a high standard of self-censorship in the interest of national security, has posted a notice in its studios and waiting room to guard against improper release of information which might prove helpful to listening enemy ears.

The poster warning, according to Wm. B. Way, general manager of KVOO, is primarily concerned with ad lib slips which might possibly be made on guest, quiz, or audience participation programs. Weather conditions, past, pres-

NEEDLE PLACING on records and transcriptions is made easier with a new marking device called the "Spot-O-Graph". In 10, 12, 16inch sizes, it is a product of Heroservice, 45 W. 45th St., New York City. Bowles in Office; To Fight Pressure New OPA Official to Use Air

In Resisting Such Groups CHESTER BOWLES, radio minded Deputy Administrator of the

ed Deputy Administrator of the OPA, will take the air to secure public support against pressure groups seeking selfish advantages which would wreck OPA's effectiveness for the general public good.

Mr. Bowles, former partner of William Benton in the New York firm of Benton & Bowles, gave up the job as head of the Connecticut State OPA to come to Washington as assistant to Prentiss Brown with powers of a general manager [BROADCASTING, July 19]. He succeeds Lou Maxon, head of the Detroit agency bearing his name, who left as OPA's chief executive officer two weeks ago with a blast at OPA for being hampered by "red tape" and "legalistic snarls".

Reminding that he had frequently spoken out on the subject in his "own little neck of the woods", Mr. Bowles said he leaned to the theory that an over-all control of prices was a better method than concentrating control over a few basic items. He said he would sit in with Mr. Brown in shaping OPA policy. "It will be my responsibility to examine and, if necessary, to reorganize each division of the organization," he declared.

Seeks New Talent

People have been too hard on the "professors", he asserted. One thing he learned from 20 months work as head of the Connecticut OPA, said Mr. Bowles, is that no one group has a monopoly on ability, and he declared his intention to get outstanding people from among farm and labor leaders, lawyers, economists.

Other lessons learned on his Connecticut job, he said, are that people cheerfully accept wartime regulations when they understand the need. He promised to use all available channels to educate the public on reasons for various OPA regulations and to make the regulations themselves as simple as possible. On organization, Mr. Bowles has concluded that further decentralization is in order and promises to give local boards the help and authority they need.

Most people are honest, he declared, and promised to justify public respect for the OPA by taking vigorous action against black markets and other abuses.

ARTHUR KRON, secretary, treasurer, and head of radio time and talent activities at Gotham Adv., New York, has been elected president of the Assn. of Export Advertising Agencies. Other officers are Irwin A. Vladimir, president, Irwin Vladimir & Co., vicepresident; and Joseph Palmer, executive vice-president of the Foreign Advertising Service Bureau, secretary and treasurer. Thomas M. Quinn was named honorary president.

Ever stop to think how you tie your shoe? You don't think about it. The habit is so strong you do it automatically — unconsciously.

To people in Southern New England, tuning in to WTIC is a habit as firmly fixed as tying their shoes. Because WTIC has been the leading station in this market for more than 18 years.

The importance of this to advertisers is obvious. Your message over WTIC enjoys the added power of being associated with an established listening habit. In this rich area it reaches more peoplemore quickly — and at lower cost per thousand. What is more, the income of WTIC's listeners is far above the national average. They have the buying power to translate sales suggestions into sales action.

The best way to cover one of America's best markets is to use WTIC.

WTIC gratefully acknowledges an award from THE BILLBOARD in recognition of "an amazingly thoro job of public service programing that blanketed every phase of civic effort and war activity."

The correct comparison then should be 60% coverage with 82.9% sets in use sometime during the evenings at that period of the year, (5 times weekly), as was found in the previous table. Thus, even though we give the papers the advantage of papers distributed as against actual sets-in-use sometime during this period, we still find the following comparative picture:

Consideration is not given, of course, to the comparison of relative competition within each respective medium, i.e., the total number of advertisements vs. total number of radio programs available. Certainly the number of competitive messages in the newspapers is many times that of similar competition in radio.

And so, we could go on and on into pointless decimal points. We must recall, however, that sales effectiveness per dollar spent is not an inconsiderable measurement in evaluating advertising investment. Certainly radio can stand up under any comparative analysis on this basis. Aside from all dollar cost comparisons, radio enjoys a number of truly amazing achievements. Just to list a few facts:

One hundred and one million radio receivers have been purchased in the past 20 years. This is over 5 billion dollars worth.

There are as many (figures in millions) radio sets as the combined ownership of electric irons, washing machines and toasters. Nine out of ten homes have

Yes, radio can defend itself in or out of the clinches. However, we feel that we do a disservice to the whole structure of advertising when we confuse the buyer and arouse doubt and misgiving through statistical static.

CIVILIANS in this country last Saturday heard on Mutual a program produced by Army personnel from four expeditionary stations in Africa for troops stationed on that Continent. The show was made up of the *G. I. Capt. Andre Baruch, former announcer, was m.c. of the show, titled U. S. Army in Africa.

The agency is currently lining up the fall-winter campaign to start in early October. Donahue & Coe also places advertising in the East and South for Groves vitamin products, and is preparing a 26-week campaign of transcribed spots to start the end of September on an extensive list of stations.

Radio Branch Is Formed By Hillman Periodicals

HILLMAN PERIODICALS Inc., New York, has set up a publicity and radio relations department to channel its story material on the air, allowing for the first time ra-dio dramatization of its material. The firm is negotiating with stations and networks for programs and regular radio series based on features and characters appearing in Hillman publications. Firm publishes 11 magazines in the comic, romantic and mystery field.

Hillman's attitude towards radio is that it is supplementary to and does not compete with the magazine field as a source of entertainment. Publisher is entering into this cooperative venture with broadcast-ing, with a view to building post-war insurance for circulation rather than to stimulate immediate sales.

Richard H. Roffman, New York newspaperman, heads the depart-ment with Kenneth Joy as advertising director. Publications in-clude Real Romance, Real Story and Real Confession, in the women's group; two comic books; Sensation, Real Detective and Crime Confession in the men's mystery category.

Freeze Leak

THAT PLAINTIVE wail heard the other day from many of the country's broadcasters was prompted by the FCC decision authorizing a new 50,000-watt daytime station at Corpus Christi, Tex., to Carr P. Collins, of Crazy Water Crystals fame, and Baylor U. It has the industry wondering whether the April 27, 1942 "freeze order" is a device simply to annoint the favored or whether it was intended to speed the war effort by conserving equipment and critical manpower.

We haven't heard of any lack of coverage in the Texas-Louisiana area of the nature that might cause our wartime officials to certify need for a new high-power station. That was supposed to be the only basis upon which new facilities would be granted. We are aware of the contention that no critical material will be entailed because the present Collins border station, XEAW, at Reynosa, is to be moved. But the freeze order covers critical manpower, too, and we surmise that perhaps a strand or two of copper wire, and a replacement part here or there will be needed in reassembling the 50,000-watt transmitter.

Moreover, it was made abundantly clear that the reason the FCC wouldn't license new stations, unless they were needed in the war effort, was because of the appalling shortage of technicians and personnel. In Mexico, the Collins' station, under Mexican law, had to employ a given percentage of Mexican nationals. At Corpus Christi it must draw upon our depleted personnel resources.

Some Strange Aspects

There are many other curious aspects of the grant. The presence of the two sons of Senator W. Lee O'Daniel as stockholders, for example, and the loan of half of the capital ($75,000) to Baylor by Mr. Collins, to be paid back out of anticipated earnings of the station. Then there's the question of placing another 50,000-watt station on 1010 kc., a Canadian I-A frequency.

But all that aside, there is one thing we can't fathom. There are literally dozens of applications pending before the FCC for modification of construction permits. Many of them do not entail critical materials. We know of several where all the equipment is in hand and where the station technical personnel is in position to make the installations. The only result of action by the FCC would be to improve the service to listeners and expand coverage.

Yet in these cases, the FCC has refused to act on the ground that the spirit, if not the letter of the April 27 "freeze" order would be violated. There is the added contention, we hear, that if such grants are made, they would encourage other broadcasters to acquire equipment in one way or another, and perhaps lead to something akin to "black market" purchases.

That to us, is the bunk. If a 50,000-watt station in Corpus Christi is justifiable in these times, and under rather unique auspices, certainly the FCC can authorize a broadcaster to activate equipment already in hand, and ready to go.

This most recent action has set many foiks in radio wondering all over again whether something more than an application, duly and properly executed, is necessary to get a grant.

RADIO FOLKS figured they had done a reasonably respectable job in war advertising, with something like $100,000,-000 in time and talent contributed during the last year. That turns out to be only half enough. Radio, along with other media, is called upon to double its contribution in the new campaign evolved by the War Advertising Council in cooperation with OWI, as unveiled a fortnight ago in an unprecedented broadcast over NBC to media men, business executives, and agencies congregated at listening centers. After the inspirational talks of the nation's home front battery of Nelson, Vinson, Marvin Jones and Elmer Davis, buttressed by the appeal of LaRoche for the Council, it's a safe bet that the slogan, "A War Message in Every Ad" will be put over, and that advertising's contribution of $250,000,000 last year, will be doubled "as advertised".

The Real Job

DIGITS that dance from one advertising medium to another can be utilized in all sorts of ways by persons adept at the art of digit manipulation. The art was successfully employed recently to reveal radio as a costly medium that brings results far, far below those brought by newspapers.

Charles B. Brown, NBC Director of Advertising & Promotion, has just done a job on a recent bit of fancy figuring on behalf of newspapers (see page 11). The figures appeared in an article in Editor & Publisher.

It's all part of the lively competition among the various advertising media. The competition is healthy and nobody is going to suffer any fatal injuries if a set of figures is variously interpreted.

Fallacy behind much of the elastic reading of data is the fact that no common set of standards governs all media. Newspapers have their circulation and readership figures; radio has its percentage figures covering listening. But they can't be reduced to a common denominator because radio's percentage figures are based on individual programs, for the most part. Thus an effort to take a 10% Hooper or Crossley for a program and compare it with a newspaper figure fails to take into account the fact that the figure covers merely one small unit of the day.

Newspapers are following radio's lead in initiating promotion drives designed to sell retailers on medium advantages. In radio's case, the retail field has been neglected because most retail advertising men are spaceminded and broadcasters have been so busy selling a comparatively new medium to the nation that they have neglected this particular field.

After the smoke clears, radio and newspapers alike should concentrate on a mutual task-that of inducing advertisers to increase their total appropriations. That being done, then the bars are down and may the best man win.

On that occasion, William A. McGuineas, sales manager, and Frank P. Schreiber, station manager, presented Meyers with an engrossed testimonial commemorating the $3,000,000 in sales which he has chalked up during a decade and a half.

Almost slight, slim, alert, and occasionally fiery, the 46-year-old Meyers was born in South Bend, Ind., whence his family made seasonal peregrinations over the U.S. and Canada with Chautauqua, fair and circus promotions. By the time the Meyers family decided to make Chicago its home-base, around 1906, Reed's world was peopled with actors and clowns, trainers and agents, musicians and stagehands. While still attending Chicago's Hyde Park high school he spent his evenings as a box-office assistant in various "loop' theaters and his summer vacations touring Canada as an advance publicity agent for a Chautauqua unit. After several seasons with Redpath, Reed joined Ringling Brothers' promotion staff, but it was through his next job that he was to meet the future headliners of radio. That was in the capacity of a booking agent with Orpheum in Chicago, just prior to World War I.

Meyers well recalls seeing Jack Benny, Phil Baker, Bob Burns and others doing their routines in local theaters to mildly appreciative audiences. Of these present-day radio stars. Meyers says emphatically, "Only such training as they had, can groom talent for the big time." And that brings him to the subject of the future of radio, which he says will be hampered seriously unless radio institutes an "open door" policy to encourage and stimulate talent. He contends that radio listeners are weary of cut and dried formats and that "programming itself must strive for greater diversity and flexibility to entertain.

Reed first applied his flair for entertaining at the age of 20, when he was appointed director of the Liberty theater and of camp entertainments at Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., soon after the U.S. entered the first world war, and he served in a similar capacity at Camps Sherman and Bowie in the South.

Following the war he turned to theater management, motion picture sales and publicity, industrial films and talent booking. In 1927 Myers promoted one of the first known instances of an authentic show given to further a business interest. This was a three-act (Continued on page 36)

WHAT CAN'T RADIO SELL?

WOODBURY

It's no dark secret that labor is 'tight' in Baltimore. It's a boom town if you ever saw one. If you've ever walked down Baltimore Street at high noon, you know you've seen one!

Can radio be used successfully to scrape the manpower barrel here? Can it 'sell' employment as it sells merchandise? Well, just ask BALTIMORE CONTRACTORS who have found by experience that Station W I T H can get them carpenters, maintenance men and laborers.

How do they get 'em—by buying the station? No sir! Each time BALTIMORE CONTRACTORS WIN A NEW WAR CON-STRUCTION CONTRACT two or three spots daily is all that is necessary to produce the urgently needed manpower!

> We mention this unique case of radio 'selling' because it is more corroborative evidence of this fact. You, like the other national 'names' shown in the border, can do a great job in Baltimore with WITH.

Other instances of Meyers' enterprising nature are shown in his association with the late Orlando Marsh, inventor and pioneer in the development of electrical recording and its application to radio, and his partnership with the late Harry Spingold, pioneer producer, said to be the organizer of the first radio acting school in the Midwest. With Spingold, Meyers produced the first dramatic hour out of Chicago, The Spingold Players, in 1928. Miller Retains Post at NAR

WHO, Des Moines; James D. Shouse, WLW, Cincinnati, and Paul W. Morency, WTIC, Hart-WLW, Cincinnati, and ford. The committee will select its own chairman. Of this group, Messrs. Elias, Shafto and Shouse are members of the legislative committee which was instrumental in calling the special meeting.

The board's action was regarded as in the nature of a rebuke to those who had "misrepresented" the purpose of the special meeting. The fact that a nominating committee is named means that Mr.

Miller can be renominated or that Mr. Lewis or some other new name can be brought in.

The effort to provoke a change at this time was characterized by Miller proponents as a "rump movement". The board action also was viewed by some as a rebuff to those who have fostered what the opposition has described as an "appeasement" of FCC Chairman James Lawrence Fly, a vituperative Miller opponent. Mr. Miller, on the other hand, has more than inferred that F. M. Russell, NBC vice-president, has been a leader in the effort to bring about his ouster.

By virtue of the action, it was thought possible that the NAB helm might shortly announce new additions to the staff to bolster legislative activity, particularly in the light of Congressional plans to rewrite the Communications Act at this session. Retention of a Washington law firm versed in radio and legislative activity as NAB special counsel has been indicated, along with a possible new appointment to the executive staff to coordinate that activity.

The board convened at 10 a.m. Friday, recessed for lunch about noon and returned about 1:15. Mr. Miller left the meeting about 3 o'clock and C. E. Arney Jr., secretary-treasurer, about an hour later. Both were called back at 5:30, after which the resolutions were drawn and the meeting anjourned.

There were only two absentees among the board members-Arthur Westlund, KRE Berkeley, Cal., who was on vacation; and Frank King, WMBR Jacksonville, Fla. In attendance, aside from the six members of the nominating committee, were Kolin Hager, WGY; Roy F. Thompson, WFBG; James W. Woodruff Jr., WRBL; Hoyt B. Woodruff Jr., WRBL; Hoyt B. Wooten, WREC; Nathan Lord, WAVE; John E. Fetzer, WKZO; Leslie C. Johnson, WHBF; E. L. Hayek, KATE; William B. Way, KVOO; Hugh A. L. Halff, WOAI; Ed Yocum, KGHL; Calvin J. Smith, KFAC; Harry R. Spence, KXRO; Barney J. Lavin, WDAY; Herbert Hollister, KANS; Paul W. Kesten, CBS; Frank M. Russell, NBC.

The resolutions adopted by the board follow:

WHEREAS the board of directors of the NAB met in Chicago on July 30 to consider proposals of its legislative committee, and

Whereas the purpose of this meet-ing was misrepresented to some sec-tions of the industry as bearing on the termination of the contract of the incumbent as president before the termination thereof,

Therefore be it resolved that the board of directors of the NAB em-phatically declares that such was not the purpose of the meeting nor did it form any part of its deliberation.

PRAISED BY BOARD

W. B. LEWIS

WHEREAS the name of William B. Lewis was suggested to the board of directors of the NAB as a possible successor to Neville Miller at the ex-piration in 1944 of the latter's six-year incumbency in office, and Whereas the board of directors sin-cerely desires to consider the name of Mr. Lewis for this post, and Whereas Mr. Lewis for reasons which the board respects and admires found it necessary to withdraw his found it necessary to withdraw his name from such consideration,

Be it resolved that the board ex-presses its regret that extenuating circumstances intervened to preclude Mr. Lewis' availability.

"RESOLVED that a nominating "RESOLVED that a nominating committee of six be elected to present to the board its recommendations for presidency of the NAB, and that at the expiration of the incumbent's contract; the committee to report to the board at its next regular meeting or a special meeting called for that purpose."

Third Attempt

The Chicago meeting marked the third open effort to unseat Mr. Miller. The first came at a board meeting in Chicago on July 15, 1942, and the second at a Chicago meeting last Oct. 13. Proponents of the change have insisted it was not premised on the Fly-Miller dispute, but rather on the desire to get an aggressive practical broadcaster handling the Washington legislative front during these times.

Mr. Lewis was not a candidate for the post and did not seek it, according to his supporters. A delegation of broadcasters—members of the legislative committee —sought him out for it. Mr. Lewis has had proffers of several positions, it is understood, but withheld action upon insistence of the segment of the board which fostered his appointment.

Mr. Lewis may either rejoin Columbia as program executive, probably with restoration of his vice-presidency, or he may become a partner in an advertising agency important in the radio programming field.

The Miller ouster move crystallized following the meeting of the legislative committee of the NAB in Washington on July 21. It was not discussed at the threehour session [BROADCASTING, July 26] but was agreed upon at a meeting presided over by Mr. Elias that afternoon. Mr. Miller was not present. Following the meeting, it was decided that seven members of the board should petition the NAB for a special meeting, to consider a "report" to be submitted by the legislative committee. All members of the committee are members of the board.

The seven directors who petitioned for the special meeting, pursuant to requirements of the bylaws, were Don S. Elias, WWNC Asheville; G. Richard Shafto, WIS Columbia, S. C.; James W. Woodruff Jr., WRBL Columbus, Ga.; E. L. Hayek, KATE Albert Lea, Minn.; James D. Shouse, WLW-WSAI Cincinnati; John E. Fetzer, WKZO Kalamazoo, Mich.; and Hoyt B. Wooten, WREC Memphis.

Miller Defies Move

Members of the legislative committee, who met in Washington July 21, at President Miller's call, were Messrs. Elias, Shafto, Woodruff and Shouse, plus Nathan Lord, WAVE Louisville; Ed Yocum, KGHL Billings, Mont.; Clair R. McCollough, WGAL Lancaster; Frank M. Russell, NBC Washington vice-president; and Joseph H. Ream, CBS vice-president and secretary, pinch-hitting for Paul W.

"Yes, suh! We BOTH gonna lissen tuh WFDF Flint, Michigan!"

NEVILLE MILLER

Kesten, CBS vice-president and general manager.

Mr. Miller immediately announced it was not his intention to leave the presidency or to take a back seat. Long distance telephone wires burned. The ouster group felt it had sufficient votes to make the Lewis appointment, irrespective of the Miller opposition.

Several alternative propositions had been mentioned for Mr. Miller. One was that he complete his tenure through July 1, 1944 as a sort of president emeritus, handling special assignments, with Mr. Lewis taking over all regular functions. Another proposition, later advanced, was that Mr. Miller remain as president, with Mr. Lewis named as vice-president and general manager and as "heir apparent" upon expiration of Mr. Miller's contract. Mr. Miller has drawn $35,000 a year salary and $5,000 for allowances (which he hasn't always used) since 1940. During his first two years his salary was $25,000 plus $5,000 for allowances.

The report current was that Mr. Lewis would be paid Mr. Miller's salary but that allowances for housing and entertainment be made which would make available to him an aggregate of $50,000, instead of the $40,000 allowed Mr. Miller.

Ethridge Stepped In

It was reported reliably that Mark Ethridge, publisher of the Courier Journal and Louisville Times, operating WHAS, Louisville, and Edwin W. Craig, directing head of WSM, Nashville, who in 1938 sponsored Mr. Miller's candidacy, promptly took up the cudgels in his defense. Mr. Ethridge had served as interim president of the NAB in 1938, preparatory to retention of Mr. Miller, as the industry's first paid president. He had tussled with Chairman Fly, too. In recent months, however, he has been relatively inactive in

LEWIS TELEGRAM TO ELIAS

IN A TELEGRAM to Don S. Elias, WWNC, Asheville, acting on behalf of the NAB board group sponsoring a change in the association's presidency, W. B. Lewis, former CBS vice-president in charge of broadcasts and until recently with the OWI headquarters staff in Washington, withdrew his name from consideration. His telegram follows in full text:

"I have read trade press reports linking my name with move to remove Neville Miller as president of the NAB and to elect me to this position. I have also received from presumably reliable sources word that these reports have created dissension among NAB members.

"It is my firm belief that at no time has there been a greater need for unity of purpose and action among the broadcasters in this country, and especially among their leaders. I feel strongly that it would be a disservice to broadcasting to allow my name to be used in any way which stimulated division or controversy within the industry. Under these circumstances, I must request that my name be withdrawn from any consideration it may be receiving."

radio because of the pressure of his newspaper duties and active war work. Mr. Craig, though preoccupied with his duties as executive vice-president of the National Life & Accident Insurance Co., as well as Selective Service activities in Tennessee, took time out to rally forces for Mr. Miller's defense.

It was made abundantly clear to board members that any change in presidency at this time might lead to serious repercussions in Congress. The House select committee investigating the FCC, it was thought, might find it expedient to turn its inquisition toward the NAB, in an effort to prove that Chairman Fly was seeking to dominate industry affairs. Moreover, there were misgivings about the attitude of Chairman Wheeler, of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, who has already announced plans for hearings on new radio legislation this fall.

A substantial portion of the board was represented as feeling that the NAB membership itself should be called upon to vote on the matter of a change in presidency. One key director said he did not think the board should assume that responsibility since it would entail a drastic, top-to-bottom upheaval.

The upshot of the long distance telephoning last week, immediately preceding the board meeting, was that Mr. Russell was said to have been instructed by Niles Trammell. NBC president, not to vote on the Miller ouster. This was the second time Mr. Russell had been so instructed. It occurred previously at the board meeting in Chicago on Oct. 13, 1942, when Mr. Miller's tenure was continued by a tie 10-10 vote. Mr. Russell's inability to vote resulted in the tie. This incident was mentioned by Chairman Fly in his testimony before the Cox Committee on July 9.

Similarly, it was reported that Mr. Kesten, in behalf of CBS, had decided to abstain from voting. He was represented, however, as favoring Mr. Lewis' retention as vicepresident and general manager, with his assumption of the presidency upon the expiration of Mr. Miller's term July 1.

DISTRICT MEETINGS SCHEDULED BY NAB

A SERIES of four district meetings of the NAB, to be held between Aug. 4 and Sept. 3, was announced last Friday by the NAB.

C. E. Arney Jr., NAB secretarytreasurer, will attend the scheduled meetings in a swing across country. District 11 (Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, excluding certain counties, and Michigan) meets at the Hotel Nicollet, Minneapolis, Aug. 4-5. District 15 (Northern California, Nevada and Hawaii) meets in San Francisco Aug. 6, at which time Mr. Arney will informally discuss industry affairs. District 14 (Colorado, Idaho, Utah, Wyoming, Montana, the South Dakota counties excluded from District 11) meets in Salt Lake City Aug. 30-31. Election of a district director to succeed Ed Yocum KGHL, Billings, Mont., is scheduled.

District 4 (D. C., North Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia) meets in Asheville, N. C., Sept. 3. A district director to succeed G. Richard Shafto, WIS, Columbia, S. C., will be elected.

WABY Renewal Upset

SETTING aside its action of July 27 granting application of WABY, Albany, N. Y., for renewal of license on the regular basis, the FCC on July 29 placed the station on a temporary extension of license pending final disposition of the WOKO renewal application.

OPA Acts to End Marking Grades Amending 20 Regulations At Congress' Bidding

OFFICE of Price Administration announced last week it had revoked its requirement that retail grocers who buy in bulk and then repackage before reselling must show the grade on their retail packages, if it had been shown on the original package.

This is the first action taken by OPA under the amendment to the Commodity Credit Corp. Act (HJ Res.-147) eliminating compulsory grade labeling and indicates that even where the retailer repackages he cannot be compelled to indicate the grade, OPA explained.

The OPA ruled, however, that retailers are still required to post with their selling prices the grades of eggs sold by them at the place in their store where they are sold. The revocation regarding repackaging is purely a blanket provision and does not apply to any particular commodities, it was stated.

Other Changes to Come

OPA, is was learned, is now preparing amendments to about 20 regulations which will remove whatever grade labeling or grade marking requirements conflict with the congressional ban. The majority of the amendments, it was pointed out, apply to wholesalers

FTC Complaint

GATTIS CHEMICAL Co., Nashville, is subject of an FTC complaint in which radio and other advertising for "Gattis' K & B Pills" is alleged to be false. Radar Again Is Closely Restricted As Censorship Office States Position

PUBLIC discussion of radar has again come under close Government restriction following a period in which bans had been eased. Office of Censorship has taken steps to prevent unauthorized publication of material involving radar and its wartime application.

Byron Price, Director of the Office, last Thursday issued a statement explaining the Office's position on radar discussion. Col. John K. Winterich, chief of the Review Branch, Bureau of Public Relations, Signal Corps., recently asked manufacturers to discontinue radar publicity and advertising.

Need of Secrecy

Director Price's notice to commentators and correspondents reads as follows:

"The extent of current public discussion of radar is causing increasing concern to the Government.

"The principle of radar is generally understood here and abroad and some limited disclosures have been made officially. New methods of applying the principle are being developed, however, and there is much the enemy does not know.

"The fact of prior publication should not be used to cover added description, discussion and deductions, or to support a theory or to draw a conclusion.

"Radar is a secret weapon within the meaning of the code. Editors and broadcasters are especially requested to be alert to every mention of radar and military electronic devices; to establish beyond all question that there is appropriate authority for every statement made; and to submit all material on the subject—other than that released by appropriate government authority—to the Office of Censorship for review in advance of publication or broadcast. "So inclusive a request would not be made if the highest considerations of national security were not directly involved."

Army Action

Because of its conviction that recent radar publicity has not been conducive to the winning of the war, the War Dept. has sent letters to manufacturers requesting that publicity and advertising of radar be discontinued. The letter, signed by Col. John K. Winterich, chief of the review branch, Bureau of Public Relations, Signal Corps, asserts:

"During the past two months a tremendous amount of publicity has been devoted to the subject of radar. Some of the proposed publicity has included classified information, release of which would be of great value to the enemy. Other types of publicity have promoted controversy as to allocation of credit for the development of radar. This has not been conducive to cooperation at home and abroad —cooperation which is essential to the winning of the war.

"It is requested, therefore, that publicity and advertising featuring radar be discontinued. Your company's cooperation in this matter will be a contribution in the national interest."

Until the lifting of news on radar about three months ago by the War and Navy Depts., the word was in the category of a military secret [BROADCASTING, April 26]. Government agencies have issued several articles on the subject since that time and voluminous publicity and advertising embracing radar has been circulated through press and radio.

deal hung fire for several weeks after the expected transfer date. There have been repercussions on it in Congress, because of allegations by Donald Flamm, former owner, that he had been "forced" to sell.

One of the reports current was that Mr. Noble had already resold WMCA to Mr. Flamm but this was denied by the latter. He told BROADCASTING that "whatever may happen in the future, there are no present negotiations in prospect."

Mr. Noble acquired WMCA for $850,000 cash, said to have been the largest cash payment for a station, although others have been sold for higher prices. Mr. Flamm since that time has acquired a substantial interest in WPAT, Paterson, N. J., and on several occasions has been reported as interested in regaining ownership of WMCA.

While no details of the sale beyond the formal announcement were divulged, it was reported the parties definitely agreed to retention of the present management and operating structure. Conversations were held, it is understood, regarding diversification of ownership so that affiliated stations,

MARK WOODS

BLUE network management and possibly the public could participate in ownership. Mr. Noble, however, would retain control. Under the permanent structure, it is expected such provisions will be considered. Many of the affiliated stations had sought to participate in the ownership and two separate proposals for purchase by a group of affiliates had been rejected.

KFH WICHITA CBS...5000 WATTS DAY & NIGHT CALL ANY EDWARD PETRY OFFICE It was logically assumed that the White House would be or perhaps had been consulted. Under the network regulations, the BLUE was to have been sold promptly. White House intervention, it has been reliably reported, resulted in the action of the FCC in placing in its regulations the six-month clause to avoid a forced sale.

Management Unchanged

Assurances were given by Mr. Noble in the closed circuit talk, that the operating management of the BLUE would remain unchanged, with Mr. Woods continuing as president and Edgar Kobak, former official of McGraw-Hill, as executive vice-president. The tremendous strides made by the BLUE since it became a separate company last January augurs for retention of the present management, it was said.

The BLUE itself has no record of earnings except for the year 1942, since its books previously were kept in conjunction with NBC. The three M & O stations, however, are understood to have made sufficient money in 1942 to offset the net operating loss shown by the BLUE by some $30,000. Estimated earnings for 1943 are understood to be in the neighborhood of $800,000 or $1,000,000.

WJZ is a fulltime 50,000-watt station; KGO operates with 7,500 watts and is eligible for 50,000 watts, while WENR operates with 50,000 watts half time, sharing with WLS, also on the BLUE but independently owned.

It has been contended that the three stations as individual operations could be sold for $6,000,000. Based on that arithmetic, an $8,

It was reported on Wall Street prior to the announcement that there were at least two other major groups willing to bid up to the same amount, though the details were not divulged. Mr. Noble was said to have made the best cash offer. Dillon, Read & Co., New York banking house, had been actively negotiating for about a year, evidently desiring to resell the network in a public stock sale. This project had considerable support, even among officials of the BLUE Network Co. and among affiliates.

Another group was said to represent a combination of Marshall Field interests and the Mellon properties in Pittsburgh. Mr. Field, publisher both of PM and the Chicago Sun, which have vigorously supported the New Deal, apparently was blocked from direct participation because of the newspaper ownership controversy. It was thought, however, that he was prepared to participate on any acceptable bas's, because of his intense interest in radio.

$500,000 Jumps

It has been variously reported that some 30 separate offers, in one form or another, had been made. Among the more prominent earlier bidders was said to have been Paramount Pictures, due to its interest in television development in the post-war period. Paramount formerly was 50% owner of CBS, but divested itself of that interest in the middle 30's.

McGraw-Noble subsequently in-creased to 7 million, which was rejected by RCA. When the latter group inquired about a firm bid of $7,500,000, it learned that Dillon, Read had boosted its bid to $7,800,-000, after which the 8 million dollar bid was forthcoming from McGraw-Noble.

Other bidders variously mentioned have included General Electric Co., which held substantial RCA stock dating back to the 1932 consent decree; DuPont; James A. The policies and practices which have been responsible for the network's record of accomplishment will be continued. As a matter of fact the network officials plan to extend its services to listeners, advertisers and its affiliated stations. I accept fully the responsibility of public service which ownership of the BLUE Network will place upon me. In fact, I regard this responsibility to the people much as an elected officials sees his responsibility to the public. In every phase of broadcasting-public service, the all-important war service, news, information, entertainment -the BLUE will continue to serve its listeners and to increase its service to the nation.

The principle station of the BLUE Network, WJZ, is operated from New York City. In accordance with the current policies of the FCC I propose to dispose of all my interest in WMCA as soon as a suitable purchaser is found.

Blue's Farm Coverage Has Big Increase

When KMA, Shenandoah, Iowa, increased its nighttime power from 1 to 5 thousand watts recently, it meant important new farm areas for Blue Network advertisers. "Our nighttime service area is now up 2½ times," KMA President Earl May reports, "and the increase is represented largely by the most prosperous Iowa counties — the western ones ranging north from Shenandoah to Fort Dodge and vicinity."

Operating on 960 kilocycles with 5000 watts fulltime, KMA is considered one of the best regional stations for coverage to be found anywhere. According to Andy Ring, of the firm of Ring & Clark, Consulting Engineers, Washington, D. C., "KMA has an unusually large coverage. Its vertical radiator is of optimum height, and the directional array provides a very effective night time pattern. The conductivity of the soil throughout most of the region served by KMA is equal to the best we have ever measured, which further explains the exceptional coverage of the station".

KMA is now more than ever the No. 1 Farm Station of the No. 1 Farm Market, Earl May said. "Furthermore," he continued, "KMA is the only fulltime Blue Network outlet serving the Omaha-Council Bluffs market—giving it a 5 millivolt signal NIGHT as well as day".

"If you want to know what that means," Earl May smiled, "ask our friends in the Blue Network—or at Free & Peters—or let me tell you. I have a new Market Data Brochure coming off the press soon, and it's free to all advertisers who want it!"

State Dept. Is Seen Advising the OWI 24-Hour Contact the Outcome Of 'Moronic King' Blunder

OWI's overseas branch may escape the consequence of State Dept. control resulting from the blunder made last week when a broadcast beamed at England referred to Victor Emmanuel as Italy's "moronic little king," and Marshal Badoglio as a "leading fascist," but it is assured that much closer liaison will be maintained in the future.

After President Roosevelt blasted the diplomatic error of OWI employes, Robert E. Sherwood, head of the overseas branch, later had a friendly conference with Secretary of State Cordell Hull, from which he emerged saying: "We won't get off the beam again."

Mr. Sherwood said that Secretary Hull was cordial and helpful in outlining this country's foreign policy. He said they "did not discuss the late unpleasantness at all. "The purpose was to get our

"The purpose was to get our policy on the beam, but in connection with Italy it is a little difficult because the situation in Italy is so uncertan."

On Thursday he told newsmen that the blunder occurred in part because proper State and War Dept. officials could not be reached on a "nice summer Sunday evening." Mr. Sherwood stated that in the future contact between OWI and the State Dept. would be maintained "hour by hour, seven days a week, day and night."

Eisenhower's Statement

After President Roosevelt had lectured OWI for permitting a group of employes to attempt the creation of U. S. foreign policy at a time when difficult international negotiations and soldiers' lives are at stake, it was indicated that there would be further investigation of the "blunder." This was expected to result in a shake-up that would put OWI propaganda activities under the control of the State Department.

The acting OWI director, Milton

"Prior to Sunday we attacked fascism on our broadcasts and all individuals connected with it. Since Sunday the tone and substance of the OWI broadcasts indicate that OWI policy is that any government, such as this one, which announces adherence to Hitler and continues to fight with him and against the forces of the United States, is an enemy of the United States and other United Nations forces."

The OWI explanation indicated that the broadcast was intended 'o show the British that American public opinion is set against toleration of fascism or any relaxation of the demand for unconditional surrender.

Other explanations of OWI theory and policy underlying the broadcast were negated by the President's criticism. He declared that the OWI foreign broadcasting division had not consulted him, cr the Secretary of State, or its own director, Robert E. Sherwood, before going on the air with the offending script:

Six Weeks War Work Yearly IN PREVIOUS seasons prelimin-To Be Given by Members

NATIONAL Entertainment Industry Council last week set in motion plans for a "pcol" of the talent and resources of the radio, film and theatre industry, through the distribution to its 47 member organizations of a war service pledge card.

The pledge, as approved by the Council's coordinating committee last week, is to be signed by individual members of the cooperating organization, and will commit them to a minimum per year of six weeks of war effort work, or 36 performances, at the request of the Council. The signed pledges will be read at a rally of the entertainment world in New York, scheduled for Sept. 20.

Developments in the radio phases of the Council's activities as worked out by the special projects committee of the American Federation of the Radio Artists, headed by Minerva Pious, of AFRA's National Board, include plans for the production of eight programs to be offered through the OWI, and special non-broadcast performances in connection with Third War Loan drive. Following up the suggestion made by Walt Dennis, news chief of the NAB, that a script file be set up as a source for war effort broadcasts, it was announced that the Treasury Department had offered its Treasury Star Parade programs for this purpose.

Next meeting of the Council has been set for Sept. 1. Chief committee set up last week was the projects committee headed by Philip Loeb, Actors Equity, chairman, and Anita Graniss, AFRA, vice-chairman, who has also been elected to the coordinating committee.

ary plans for football broadcasts were pretty well lined up by August. In this second summer of the war advance preparations have been slow in getting started, with many colleges reported abandoning football for the duration because of transportation difficulties and lack of coaches and players.

Plans Uncertain

One of the first stations to announce the acquisition of football broadcasting rights is WHN, New York, which last week reported it had arranged to broadcast all home and away games of the New York Giants during the 1943-44 season. The schedule will probably start in early October, but no details are vet available.

Other advertisers, such as Atlantic Refining Co. and P. Lorillard Co., which usually sponsor fall football, have not yet indicated their plans for this season.

Wartime restrictions on gasoline for civilians seem to have brought about a 100% increase in baseball listening on WHN over that of 1942, the station further reported last week on the basis of a five-day survey made in July. The station found that Saturday and Sunday baseball listening started approximately 50% below 1942 figures and gradually rose to a 50% increase in June over 1942, and 85% increase over July 1942.

The increase in listeners to Brooklyn Dodgers games on WHN is attributed by the station to the fact that it is the only major sta-

Durr Says Engineers, Not Lawmakers Likely To Decide Who Shall Use Air

RADIO ENGINEERS rather than our lawmakers may ultimately answer the questions of who shall use the air and how it shall be used, FCC Commissioner C. J. Durr told the Democratic National Women's Club in Washington last Monday. "New techniques for the use of frequencies are constantly being developed," he said. "Many remarkable developments now secret will doubtless come to light when the war is over. Some day we may have a frequency for everybody who wants to start a radio station, but that day isn't here yet."

Commissioner Durr's talk was on "Radio and Freedom of Speech". He observed that while nearly everyone agrees in principle with the simple words of the Constitution guaranteeing freedom of speech and of the press, it is often extremely difficult to agree on application of the principle to specific cases.

Network Rules

The chain broadcasting regulations were cited as an example of two opposite views on the application of the principle of freedom of speech. "The Commission called its regulations a Magna Carta for the independent broadcasting stations," said Mr. Durr, who was not a member of the Commission at the time the network regulations were adopted, "and claimed that it was extending a degree of free speech to a field where it had theretofore been restricted." Mr. Durr declared that he favored the regulations "in principle" and explained that his lack of knowledge of detailed testimony in the case prevented an endorsement in detail.

Another point raised by the network case is that the chief bar to free speech may be by action of private parties rather than the more traditional suppression by Government, he said. "Traditionally, the threat to free speech against which John Milton inveighed and from which the Founding Fathers sought to protect us was the threat of suppression by a powerful government. Today, free speech may also depend upon access or lack of access to privately controlled facilities for the dissemination of information-the press and radio. It may be as effectively curtailed by private economic sanctions as by the Government."

Pointing out that radio frequencies may not be privately owned because Congress has expressly reserved title in the people, Mr. Durr took issue with the right of private interests to "control" what goes on the air, mentioning specifically last year's Cooperative League case.

There isn't room on the air or time on the stations for all who want to have their say, and these physical limitations mean that someone must choose what shall and shall not be broadcast, said Mr. Durr. "Here arises the question as to whether or not Congress should lay down further standards and set up a Board of Review to pass upon complaints of unfair exclusion from the air.

"I won't give you the answer," he concluded, "because, frankly, I don't know what it should be." Mr. Durr then outlined several points for and against such a board of review.

A CHAIN of 23 U.S. shortwave stations and 90 overseas longwave transmitters are operated by the Special Service Division of the Army Service Forces, War Dept. testimony at hearings before the House Appropriations Committee revealed. Facilities are used for the information and entertainment

"We found that the troops over-seas need radios," said Gen. F. H. Osborn, SSD chief, "and they de-pend on radios for news and information, particularly in isolated posts. We found, for instance, that all through the Aleutians the stations in Alaska did not reach the far Aleutian Islands and the only radio they were hearing was the Japanese radio, broadcasting in English, and they did not get any American news."

Gen. Osborn related that the War Dept. began to put up small stations, with a radius of only a few miles. Five are operating in the Aleutians, and nine more are going up. At present, the Special Service Division provides the stations with 34 programs a week. About $21,100,000 of the money requested for radio equipment for overseas forces would be used to buy small radio sets for servicemen during the next fiscal year, and about $800,000 to pay for broadcasting stations, the general said.

THE Hired Hand Exchange, feature of WGY, Schenectady, N. Y., through cooperation with the U. S. Employ-ment Service, filled 45% of all the em-ployment requests received for farm help by WGY during the first six months of 1943.

mit Communists to the organization of "Victory Councils".

The report also referred to the murder on Jan. 4 of Carlo Tresca, Italian editor and radio commentator and an enemy of Communism and Fascism. This, it was held, brought to light a controversy of long standing between the pro-Democratic Italians and the "pro-Communistic groups in the OWI."

All this data, it is understood, have come into the hands of the FCC investigating committee, along with allegations that OWI and the FCC's former War Problems Division, handling foreign language matters, collaborated in the regulation of Italian language broadcasts. The Office of Censorship, Radio Branch, headed by J. Harold Ryan, is understood to have been on the other side of the fence.

No announcement was made last week regarding the phase of the hearings to be picked up Aug. 9 in Washington. The only aspect thus far covered has been the socalled war activities of the FCC, involving the Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Division. An interim report, it was learned, will be filed along with a bill proposing to transfer FBIS and RID to the military services or to other wartime Government agencies.

Fred R. Walker, District attorney, assistant general counsel of the committee, probably will take examination of witnesses in up Washington, Aug. 9. He has been covering specialized phases of the Commission's activities with considerable attention devoted to the "secret" trial of Neville Miller, NAB president, by the Board of War Communications because of purported "breach of trust" in connection with certain matters handled by the Domestic Broadcasting Committee of BWC, of which he is chairman.

Chairman Fly, at his press conference last Monday, in commenting on the proceeding, said there had been "quite a bit of reaction from the industry" on the Cox Committee, particularly from small stations. Expressing satisfaction over these comments, he said he thought most of the stations "realize that the Commision has done more to protect them than anything else." He cited another comment from a small broadcaster stating the Commission was the "small broadcaster's best guarantee of fair treatment in the industry."

Asked whether these expressions all came from small stations, Mr. Fly said there were comments from other groups, too. All this has been "rather encouraging," he said.

Assails Committee

Maintaining his strafing attack upon the Cox committee, Mr. Fly said there had been "some backfire from stations that have been pressed by the staff of the committee to give evidence or make statements against the Commission when those stations were un-willing to do so." He added there had been "a pretty broad circularization of the various stations by the committee's counsel in an effort to get them to make statements against the Commission, and in certain cases where they have declined to make such statements, they received sharp reprimands from the counsel of the committee.'

Asked about the "nature of the backfire," Mr. Fly refused comment but observed that "you can imagine about what that has been."

Urges Record Copyright

SUGGESTED solution to the present ban on recordings placed by the American Federation of Musicians was given prominence on the radio page of the July 25 New York Times, with Olin Downes devoting his music column entirely to a letter he had received from Sir Thomas Beecham, eminent British conductor. The conductor advised passage of a law for copyright of recordings.

SPENDING a whole week in Washington, Cliff Gray, farm service director of WSPA Spartanburg, S. C., confered with high officials in order to gain a clear conception of the present farm picture and the Government's food program.

Before leaving, director Gray announced to his listeners on the Piedmont Home Hour that he was going to Washington, and if there were any questions they wanted answered about the farm and food program to send them in. Mr. Gray arrived in Washington with a brief case, full of questions—so many that War Food Administrator Marvin Jones exclaimed that it would take his staff two weeks to answer all of them. War Song Drive

WAYS of swelling the volume of good war songs, through stimulat-ing new compositions and making full use of the proper outlets to put them over, were discussed last week at the first mass meeting of the American Theatre Wing's newly-organized Music War Committee. Formation of the group six weeks ago was inspired by the activities of the Writers' War Board and performs a similar function.

FOR THE THIRD successive year, Harry James emerges as winner of the 15th Semi-Annual orchestra popu-larity poll conducted by Martin Block on his Make Believe Ballroom pro-gram of recorded music on WNEW, New York. Glenn Miller takes second place, and Tommy Dorsey, third.

Added Funds Aid Mutual Programs Will Cut Unsuited Programs; Replace With New Shows

AN "AGGRESSIVE" new program policy made possible through additional funds voted for the purpose at the July 14 meeting of the MBS board of directors and the formation of a special Mutual Program Operating Board were announced last week by Miller Mc-Clintock, MBS president, following a three-day program clinic in New York of the network's Executive Advisory Program Committee [BROADCASTING, July 26].

According to Mr. McClintock, the group "made a critical analysis of Mutual's entire program structure and decided to eliminate various types of programs not currently suited to the overall program policy and replace them with name-star, dramatic and idea shows of outstanding character." The best quality sustaining shows with strong commercial possibilities will be purchased by Mutual, under the new program policy, it was stated.

Continue Sustaining Shows

"Mutual will continue to originate "sound sustaining shows from its principal talent stations, but with the added principle of direct network aid in every way towards the creation and production of the best possible shows," Mr. McClintock emphasized.

Backing up the new program policy, the Program Operating Board will meet once a month under the chairmanship of Mr. McClintock, with Adolph Opfinger, Mutual program director, serving as vicechairman. Members of the board, in addition to Mr. McClintock and Mr. Opfinger, are: Frank P. Schreiber, general manager, WGN, Chicago; Julius F. Seebach, vicepresident in charge of programs, WOR, New York; Theodore C. Streibert, executive vice-president, WOR; C. M. Hunter, program director, WHK-WCLE, Cleveland; Linus Travers, executive vice-president of Yankee Network; Willet Brown of the Don Lee Network and Robert A. Schmid, MBS research and promotion manager.

Two Words

ACCORDING to Kemp Malone of Johns Hopkins U. in the American Speech Quarterly, "ration" is not one, but two distinct words. Public confusion over the pronunciation of "ration" may be traced to radio commentators, says Mr. Malone. "Ration" is the typical army term from the French military term for a soldier's daily food allotment. "Ration", pronounced like "nation", is a doublet of "ratio" and has the traditional Latin, school pronunciation.

KMBC TO HAVE OWN FARM Twice-Daily Broadcasts to Originate From 400-Acre Project in Kansas

KMBC, Kansas City, has just completed preliminary plans to operate a 400-acre livestock farm in service to the farmers of the "Heart of America", according to Arthur B. Church, KMBC president.

Located 20 miles from downtown Kansas City, just across the Missouri line in Kansas, the farm will originate twice-daily broadcasts by Phil Evans, KMBC farm editor, presenting graphic on-the-scene reports of farm problems with recommended solutions.

Mr. Church invited all interested to send in suggestons of a name for the new farm. A $100 War Bond will be given the one whose suggestion is selected as the official name of this new KMBC "first" in the "Heart of America".

Even a Lake

The new KMBC farm is no gentleman farm, but one rather that lends itself to everyday, down-toearth practices. Work has been completed on modernizing the main farmhouse including an acoustically treated office-broadcasting studio. The barns, silos and sheds show fresh coats of brown and green paint. A stock pond has been dug, and plans are being put into effect to provide the farm with a lake to protect against a possible serious drought.

"While it is the purpose of KMBC to make this developmental farm of maximum service to our listeners, to be successful it must be self-supporting and profitable," explained Mr. Church. "Located as we are, servng the 'Heart of America', the great grain and livestock area, we feel we can do a lot of good by actually putting into practice, so all can observe, the things our farm experts have been recommending to KMBC farm listeners.

"Careful development and planning have featured KMBC's farm service. In view of the fact that practically half of the listeners in the Kansas City area reside on farms, it is of primary importance to maintain a close balance of programming in service to both rural and urban listeners.

"KMBC takes pride in that it is the only station in the Kansas City area with two fulltime farm men. Bob Riley, the station's fulltime marketcaster, recently started his fifth consecutive year in the exclusive broadcasting of official livestock reports direct from the largest livestock exchange building in America.

"The KMBC farm will maintain a pure-bred herd of Angus cattle, Berkshire and Hampshire hogs, Hampshire sheep, New Hampshire and Leghorn chickens, and a dairy herd of Guernsey cattle. Crops to be raised include corn, sorghum, wheat, oats, flax, soybeans and alfalfa, for just a few. The farm is self-supporting in the sense of feeding such grains produced to livestock.

"Phil Evans, farm authority, will conduct his daily morning and noon farmcasts direct from the farm. It was felt that through building up such a farm, a practical application of Evans' teachings could be made, and listeners will share his problems, learning by first hand experience what works out and what doesn't."

MARTIN GOSCH has resigned as associate producer of 20th Century-Fox, returning to William Esty & Co. as Hollywood producer of Bud Abbott & Low Costello Show in the fall. His contract permits him to make outside film studio deals.

PURPLE HEART award has been posthumously cited to Ensign Thomas A. McClelland, former chief engineer at KLZ Denver, who was killed in action at Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941 [BROADCASTING, Dec. 22, 1941]. Ensign McClelland was radio's first casualty in the present war.

After long experience in commercial radio, Ensign McClelland volunteered for active service and was commissioned as a naval reserve officer in April of 1941, being sent to the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis for a "refresher" course in communications.

OVER 50,000 persons turned out for a giant "Newcomers Picnic" co-sponsored July 27 by KDYL Salt Lake City, and local newspapers. An all-day and evening affair, the huge celebration was promoted by the combined efforts of press and radio.

Myron Fox, KDYL promotion manager, arranged ten hours of continuous entertainment for the affair and the KDYL orchestra was joined by five military bands and orchestras. Sgt. Emerson Smith, former KDYL production director, was mc for the show which had two broadcasts over KDYL, including a giant "singtime", and "opportunity contest" which gave winning newcomer appearance over NBC network, originating at KDYL. The Salt Lake Council of Women took care of the registration at the park, grouping the newcomers according to their respective states.

Lutheran Publicity

ESTIMATING some 17,000.000 children are not receiving religious instruction, the American Lutheran Publicity Bureau, New York, will start a drive in September to increase enrollment in Suuday schools of all denominations, according to a Bureau spokesman. The cooperation of local stations and networks is being solicited. Bureau will use the facilities of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod's St. Louis station, KFUO, and Mutual's Lutheran Hour, sponsored by Lutheran Layman's League, with which the bureau is affiliated.
