FOREWORD

The ASCAP Biographical Dictionary traditionally has been a valuable reference tool for ASCAP writer and publisher members and the music community at large. Now, in response to so many requests, the ASCAP Biographical Dictionary is being offered commercially to the public.

I am very pleased by this special demand for the dictionary from the non-music industry community, because it represents to me an increasing interest on the part of the general public in the history of American music, its creators, and particularly in the rich legacy of our ASCAP writers.

If an ASCAP biographical dictionary had been published in 1914, when the Society was founded, the resulting volume would have contained a few scant pages. The book would have consisted of only 200 entries: 8 founding members (Victor Herbert, Louis A. Hirsch, Raymond Hubbell, Silvio Hein, Gustave Kerker, Jay Witmark, George Maxwell and Nathan Burkan) and 170 charter writer members.

Actually, the Society's first biographical dictionary was published in 1948 and contained 1,887 biographies. The present updated fourth edition, 32 years later, has over 8,000 writer member entries, which represent only a portion of the Society's current membership.

Each day songwriters and publishers are joining the ASCAP family, motivated by a strong belief in the organization that has protected their rights as music makers since 1914. ASCAP members reflect all areas of the music community: pop, rock, country, gospel, jazz, rhythm and blues, new wave, theater, film, symphonic and concert, electronic, etc. ASCAP, therefore, offers a catalogue of music that is diverse and comprehensive in scope — music that has been both a part of our national and international scene.

ASCAP was founded to make it possible for creators of music to be paid for performances of their compositions. Holders of an ASCAP license have the right to use for nondramatic public performance the works of any of our members (plus members of affiliated foreign societies).

This volume represents a conscientious effort to present an accurate picture of the highlights in the careers of the Society's writer members. The directory also includes information on the birth dates and birth places of our members as well as other biographical data.

Not every ASCAP member appears here, nor is every work listed of those members mentioned. In preparing the present edition, we have been guided by the entries in our previous editions and have relied upon our members' responses to a questionnaire from the publisher of the Dictionary. Where there was no response, available source material was consulted. In reporting the works of members, we were primarily governed by the members' own submissions. We encourage our readers to consult the Society for any information not contained here.

We hope this Dictionary will continue to be a useful reference tool to the music industry and a new, exciting discovery for lovers of music everywhere.

Hal David
President of ASCAP

PREFACE

The fourth edition of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers Biographical Dictionary is compiled and edited for the Society by Jaques Cattell Press, a subsidiary of R. R. Bowker Company, publishers. 8,200 individual members are profiled in the main section followed by a listing of the over 7,000 publisher members.

Questionnaire forms were sent to qualified ASCAP members, their heirs or representatives during March and April of 1980. Information given in response to these requests has been edited to conform to the entry format approved by ASCAP. In some cases information has been reprinted from the previous edition or taken from other published sources, and submitted to members for verification.

With few exceptions members are listed alphabetically by given name and cross-referenced by professional pseudonym.

A member's musical works are grouped under three main headings: Songs, Instrumental Works and Scores. These categories can be defined further by subheadings: Music or Lyric for Songs, and Opera/Ballet, Broadway Show or Film/TV for Scores. When specific information was not available, works appear under the general heading Songs and Instrumental Works.

The following sample illustrates the arrangement and content of a typical entry. The names and information are fictional.
