Atlantic Price Increase Enrages Retailers

By JOHN SIPPEL

LOS ANGELES—Major accounts hope other manufacturers don't follow the lead set by Atlantic Records in raising three top albums by $1 to $9.98 list. They were told via a WEA directive of the price hike, effective Monday (12), on the current titles by the Rolling Stones, Genesis and Yes.

Sterling Lanier of the 36 Record Factory stores in San Francisco, is representative. "I surely hope this time the $1 increase is not a trend, as it always has been before," he says. "We're just getting the consumer in again. We seem to be going the wrong way. Can I sell at $5.98, as we hoped in our holiday advertising, after getting the increase?"

Barrie Bergman of the 150-plus Record Bars says, "We won't sell them. We think it's a consumer gouge. It's unprincipled. Anybody with feeling would have waited till after Christmas."

Doug Severson, who operates seven Boogie and Full Moon stores in Michigan, states, "Just when we start to see a ray of light down the road after a long wait, this had to happen. I'm going to put out fliers, telling the customer about who raised the price."

"It's real dumb" is the way Howard Applebaum of Kemp Mills Records describes the WEA move. "Do acts get that much royalty? Will the label put the money back in advertising and marketing? We've spent a lot of time convincing record buyers that we are offering a bargain. We don't want our customers buying just twice a year the way they would a sports jacket. That 18-to-24 age group has still not benefited from the growing recovery."

"This will take important customers out of the market," Al Franklin of the two Music World stores says. "This further complicates our billing."

Here's another price classification. We have enough trouble now trying to decipher prices when we get our invoices."

"I'm ready to put up signs in my stores telling my customers to call Atlantic Records, WCI and the local WEA branch about this $1 increase,"

WEA, MCA Pact Globally; Motown, RCA Extend Ties

This story was prepared by Paul Grein in Los Angeles and Peter Jones in London.

LOS ANGELES—MCA Records and Motown Records disclosed new and separate international deals last week, with WEA International and RCA respectively.

The wider agreement finds WEA International set to begin distributing MCA in many key territories as of Jan. 1, with an eye toward assuming distribution in all global markets outside North America (excluding the U.K. and Ireland). "This is the first step towards MCA getting back in the international record business," says Irv Azoff, president of the MCA Records Group.

The Motown/RCA deal extends existing ties between the two companies in Europe. It renews RCA's two-and-a-half-year relationship with Motown for manufacturing, sales and distribution in the U.K. and expands it to include Germany, Austria, Switzerland, France, Benelux and Scandinavia. RCA already holds licensing rights for Spain and Portugal. In Italy, Motown continues with Dischi Ricordi of Milan.

Though it kicks off Jan. 1 in some markets, the MCA/WEA International arrangement becomes effective later in others. Key territories ex-

TEST FOR NEW PRICE POINT?

Droz Defends Atlantic's Move

By LEO SACKS

NEW YORK—WEA Distributing president Henry Droz, standing behind Atlantic Records' decision to up the list price of the new Rolling Stones, Genesis and Yes albums to $9.98, says that accounts that "intelligently projected their holiday needs" should not suffer from the new price point.

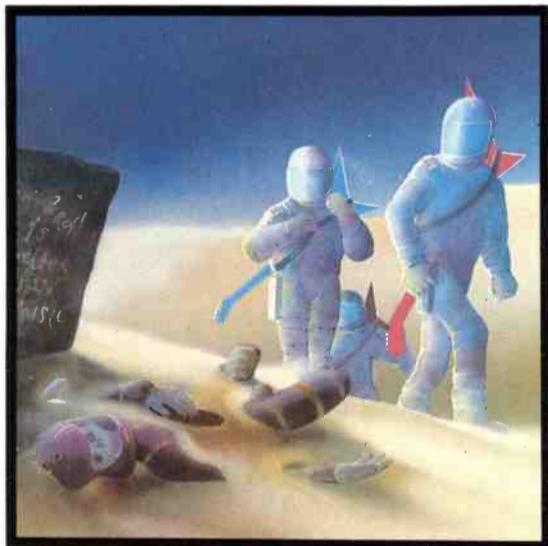

And to make sure that stock stays strong on those titles, WEA this week is offering a 10% discount off the new $9.98 wholesale price on the albums. The "My One And Only" cast record, which was increased to $10.98 in a notice to dealers last week, is not included in the one-time program, which runs through Dec. 29.

Droz, acknowledging that reaction to the WEA/Atlantic move has been negative, declines to discuss the potential impact of the new price point. But most industry observers believe that other major labels will similarly test the $9.98 level with selected hit product if consumers continue to buy the Atlantic titles at the new mark.

"Most retailers were not aware of the price increases when they made their sales reports last week," says Marty Feely, Billboard's associate publisher and director of research.

Dealers, One-Stops Report Sales Maintaining Hot Thanksgiving Pace

By JOHN SIPPEL

LOS ANGELES—The strong business upturn noted over the strategic Thanksgiving weekend (Billboard, Dec. 10) continues, with hit product dominating.

Buoying a persistent feeling that this could be the best Yuletide since 1979 is the meteoric resurgence of Michael Jackson's "Thriller" to No. 1 on the Billboard album chart. Dealers and one-stops report the LP and cassette moving out at a pace even stronger, in many cases, than in its early release history a year ago (separate story, page 6).

"People are coming in and staying in the front of the store," says Joe Andrules of Spec's, the Florida chain, describing how patrons purchase hit product in his stores. Spec's is up an estimated 10%-15%. Business was beefed up by "a couple hundred generic tv spots. We got little help from the labels. We began tv in 1980, went heavier last year and this year it's the key."

James Bennett of Bennett's, Jackson, Miss., one-stop, feels his individual dealer customers are better. "Those who are now left are stronger. The true dealers move out more soul. There are many good albums selling. We are moving more accessories, especially blank tape, than in the last couple of years."

Jeff Boyd of Vinyl Vendors, Kalamazoo, Mich., also says his customer base is strengthened. An aggressive program to enlist new stores was conducted over the past year. He finds he is getting more business from established chains like Crazy Larry's, Believe In Music and even Chicago's Rolling Stone stores.

Seventy percent of pre-Christmas business has been hit albums, says Bob Giglio of Arc Distributing, Cin-

CED Vidisk Prices Tumble; CBS/Fox Leads The Way

By LEO SACKS

NEW YORK—CBS/Fox Video, in a move to stimulate sales of CED videodisks, has reduced the suggested list price of over 225 catalog titles to $19.98 from $29.98.

Len White, senior vice president of North American sales and marketing, said at a press conference here Dec. 9 that the price reduction was timed to "salvage" the holiday selling season. "We've seen CED rentals increase rapidly, and this is a move to slow that development," White said, noting that the company will have sold between eight million and 10 million CEDs by the end of 1983.

In a related development, RCA VideoDiscs has informed its distributors that the company will reduce 30 titles in the CED format to $19.98 from $29.98 in January. The new price point, tied to the marketing of the company's leader-player model for $199 (Billboard, Dec. 10), will be supported with a national advertising campaign in over 22 newspapers. Among the titles affected by the move are "Jaws," "War Games," "Blue Thunder," "Animal House," "On Golden Pond" and "Chariots Of Fire."

The new CBS/Fox price point is seen as a "significant" step in establishing consumer "collectability" of the CED format, according to Gene Silverman, president of Video Trend Inc. in Farmington Hills, Mich. "The promise of CED was that it would be simpler and cheaper than tape," he says. "Well, now it's cheaper."

Silverman, whose firm services 350 retail accounts, says that CBS/Fox offered him "approximately" 178 musical and theatrical titles in the CED format below his new distributor cost to equalize the value of his existing inventory. "They weren't necessarily the best selections," he says, noting that he would have preferred the company credit him with the difference between what he paid for the product and what his new cost amounts to.

Still, Silverman is pleased with the timing of the move and expects the strategy to have considerable impact on other studios. He notes, for example, that Paramount Home Video will hit the street with a "Staying Alive" CED at $19.95, a rollback from the $29.95 price point originally announced to distributors.

PolyGram Maps CD Awareness Campaign

By IS HOROWITZ

NEW YORK—PolyGram Records has laid the groundwork for a series of promotional drives to stimulate consumer consciousness of the Compact Disc in a program that will involve hardware firms and radio as well as retailers.

The campaign, which will see the label collaborate with Sony and Technics in a number of key markets across the country, comes on the heels of a three-day push in the Chicago area involving three of the Laury's stores. That chain has pioneered the new format in its territory.

The latter effort, mounted jointly with the WEA family of labels, resulted in the sale of about 1,000 CDs over the Dec. 9-11 weekend. It also brought into its promotional orbit the United Audio Centers, high-end hardware dealers who provided CD players for demonstration in the Laury's shops.

For the run of the campaign, Laury's offered all its CDs at 10% off normal store prices, regardless of label, although radio promotion stressed PolyGram and WEA merchandise. Spots calling attention to what its sponsors tagged a "CD Spectacular" were aired on classical station WFMT and AOR station WXRT.

Normal CD shelf price in the Laury's web is $19.98 for WEA product, $19.98 for PolyGram pops and $21.98 for its classics, with $20.98 the consumer price for CBS titles. Laury's claims to have sold more than 10,000 CDs since it began stock-

Dan Davis Steps Down As NARM VP

NEW YORK—Dan Davis has resigned his post as executive vice president of the National Assn. of Recording Merchandisers (NARM) and its sister group, the Video Software Dealers Assn. (VSDA).

Davis, who assumed the post a year ago from Joe Cohen, now a consultant to NARM, says he will leave his post late in January. He plans to return to California, where he spent over 18 years at Capitol Records before assuming his NARM assignment.

Davis, who officially resigned Dec. 8, cites "personal reasons" for his departure. He adds that he desired to work once again within "the bottom-line business community."

Davis' action apparently nullifies for the time being a contemplated move of NARM offices to Los Angeles from Cherry Hill, N.J., although this matter is likely to be raised at a special NARM board meeting to take place in Chicago on Dec. 29. That move was due to be made shortly following the 1984 NARM convention in March. Joe Cohen will be among those attending the Chicago gathering. IRV LICHTMAN

Vidgame Console Sales Post Surprising Jump

By FAYE ZUCKERMAN

LOS ANGELES—Low pricing and consumer uncertainty over which home computer system to purchase have prompted an unexpected surge in video game console sales during this year's holiday selling season. The upswing offers further evidence of how susceptible to quick reversals the video game hardware industry has become.

Video game console makers, surprised over this resurgence, predict that hardware retailers will run out of machines before the selling season comes to a close. Calling the unexpected VCS boom an "incredible" turn of events, Bruce Entin, vice president of corporate communications for Atari, comments that retailers will likely have trouble getting the company's 2600 game machines.

Entin estimates that some 3.5 million game units will sell this holiday season. "People were all ready to write the obituary for this industry," he adds.

Mattel Intellivision and Coleco's video game hardware, ColecoVision, have also attracted increased sales. Mattel, which recently posted net losses of $46 million, evinced surprise over the renewed popularity of its machine.

A spokeswoman for Coleco attributes its healthy sales to the fact that its VCS can upgrade to a computer via the company's Adam home computer system. She notes, "There are some consumers who simply want a game machine. Other consumers cannot afford a computer. They bought the VCS planning to upgrade to a computer later."

Many retailers speculate that low pricing on the machines wooed customers. Says John Chase of the Child World chain of stores, "Computer hardware has been in insufficient supply this year." He too was surprised to find how well the VCS machines are selling at his stores.

Six-figure sales come as a pleasant surprise to most of the third party video game makers, whose software sales plummeted throughout 1983. Now they hope that the glut of heavily discounted, poor quality games clogging the retail pipeline will push through, and allow for higher quality, regularly priced titles to get placement on retail shelves.

Activision's Jim Levy, placing video game hardware penetration at some 14 million, predicts that the excess product will work its way through next year, and that retailer stocks will be nearly balanced after Christmas.

Video game software maker Parker Bros. attributes increased VCS games to consumer hesitation about home computers and to the low prices.

Tom Dusenberry, manager of consumer electronics sales for Parker Bros., observes that first-time video game owners tend to purchase the discounted, low ticket games first. "Then they rapidly become dissatisfied with the quality of those games, and purchase the premium titles," he says.

Meanwhile, home computer companies including Apple and Commodore have also reported increased sales. They predict that computer penetration will have increased by more than two million by year's end.

Retailers charge, however, that computer companies have not shipped adequate numbers of computers. Many believe that home com-

"He's making a list/Checking it twice/Gonna find out who's naughty or nice."

Santa Claus came to town a bit ahead of schedule this year and judged Linda Ronstadt to be very nice indeed, and Paul McCartney, the Rolling Stones, Paul Simon and Earth, Wind & Fire to be naughty as hell.

How else do you explain the fact that Ronstadt's album "What's New" streaks into the top three this week, while new releases by McCartney and the Stones are already heading down the charts? Or that the latest by Simon is apparently peaking at 37? Or that the new Earth, Wind & Fire is struggling just to hit the top 40?

You could explain it by saying that that's the nature of the business: Hit streaks will inevitably be broken, just as there will always be albums that come out of left field to score big.

Second Half Of '83 Yields Bumper Crop Of Hits, Misses

By PAUL GREIN

Here are some key albums from the past six months that have done significantly better or worse than expected.

Bad news first. The disappointments:

1. "Pipes Of Peace," Paul McCartney, Columbia. This album drops from its number 15 peak to 19 this week, becoming McCartney's first regular studio album to miss the top 10 in his 20-year chart career. This despite having the No. 1 single for the third straight week in "Say Say Say."

2. "Hearts And Bones," Paul Simon, Warner Bros. By peaking at number 37, this becomes the lowestcharting album of Simon's career, with or without Art Garfunkel. Even 1974's "Live Rhymin'" managed to hit 33. Simon's last regular studio set, "Still Crazy After All These Years," reached No. 1—but that was more than eight years ago.

3. "Undercover," Rolling Stones, Rolling Stones. While McCartney's album has been savaged by most critics, the Stones' latest has drawn generally laudatory reviews. That makes this album's slippage from number four to number five this week all the more surprising. The album could just be experiencing a temporary lull, but that in itself is unusual for the Stones: The group's last eight studio albums shot straight to No. 1.

4. "Electric Universe," Earth, Wind & Fire, Columbia. This album inches up one notch this week to number 41. It's likely to become the group's first Columbia album to fall short of the top 30 since their label debut, "Last Days And Time," in 1972.

5. "Alpha," Asia, Geffen. Asia's debut album logged nine weeks at No. 1 and more than six months in the top 10. But this followup wasn't even able to crack the top five: It peaked at number six in September. It just goes to show how hard it is to follow a monster album.

6. "Flick Of The Switch," AC/DC, Atlantic. AC/DC's last four albums went platinum; its last three reached the top five. But this album stopped at gold and peaked at number 15 in September. One possible problem: the rise of new heavy metal favorites like Def Leppard and Quiet Riot.

7. "Rant'n'Rave With The Stray Cats," EMI America. The Strays' debut album logged 15 weeks at number two, but this followup couldn't climb higher than number 14. The band may have simply fallen victim to the sophomore jinx that also afflicted A Flock Of Seagulls, Quarterflash, Aldo Nova and Saga.

8. "Album," Joan Jett & the Blackhearts, Blackheart/MCA. Jett's last album, "I Love Rock'N' Roll," climbed to number two and produced back-to-back top 10 single

'Thriller' Album Returns To Top

LOS ANGELES—Michael Jackson, at least, is having a merry Christmas. His smash Epic album "Thriller" jumps back to No. 1 this week as it begins its second year on the pop chart. And his Vestron video, "Making 'Michael Jackson's Thriller,'" has shipped a reported 100,000 units—the highest initial shipment in history for an original non-theatrical video program.

The resurgence of the "Thriller" album is due to two main factors: the exposure received by the "Thriller" video and the arrival of the holiday gift-giving season. According to CBS, the album has now topped the 12 million mark in the U.S., and is selling at a clip of more than 600,000 a week. It reportedly sold 225,000 copies last Monday (12) alone.

"We went into the holidays with a forecast of moving over a million albums," says a top CBS official. "We had our fingers crossed, but felt that with all that was happening, the album had that kind of potential. We quickly upped that projection to a million and a half, and we've already gone through all of those."

The executive sees several reasons for the resurgence. "The Thanksgiving weekend was an explosive one for records generally, and coincident with that weekend was the announcement of the 'Thriller' video and the announcement of the Jacksons' concert tour. Each element of the exposure has contributed because each attracts a different audience."

A spot check of top chains confirms the resurgence of the album. Lou Fogelman of Music Plus notes that the album became that chain's No. 1 seller again last week. "I guess the biggest factor is the play the video's been getting," he says, "plus all the media hype."

Lee Cohen of Licorice Pizza cites another factor. "The big record of the year traditionally has a strong resurgence at the holiday season. 'Thriller' is obviously the album of the year, so it's what people are buying as Christmas gifts."

Rick Giering of Budget Tapes & Records in Denver says it's mainly the video. "It went on MTV, and all of a sudden we started selling mass quantities of the album again. Just when it starts to peter out he'll do something like this and it will take off all over again. As long as we keep coming up with new ways of merchandising the album, I think it will just keep on selling."

The success of the Vestron video, which lists for a low $29.95, is equally significant. One King Karol store in midtown Manhattan sold 60 copies of the video Thursday (15), after receiving 240 copies earlier that day. The store expected a shipment of 400 more copies the following day.

Consumers Report Problems With Adam Computer

By FAYE ZUCKERMAN

LOS ANGELES—Merchandisers of Coleco's Adam home computer system are now warning purchasers to test the system at home immediately, following retailer reports that an increasing number of defective systems are being returned. Dealers fear an onslaught of dissatisfied Adam owners after Christmas.

A spokeswoman for Coleco says that the company is doing exchanges with retailers. Coleco's switchboard, she adds, has been lighting up "like a Christmas tree" with consumers reporting problems with their Adam systems.

The Hartford-based company, which is said to be monitoring retail sales closely, places the defective rate at 10%, which is standard. Coleco attributes the defects to "consumer misuse," charging that first-time us-

As more and more people discover the Compact Disc, they also learn that Denon was the first Company to apply digital technology to audio recording. They find out that over the past 11 years Denon has assembled the largest Digital library and is currently using fifth generation Denon-developed digital studio recorders.

It is no wonder that Denon has become one of, if not the largest CD manufacturer in the world and is quickly earning the reputation for producing the "best sounding" Compact Discs.

When you combine the finest performances of world-renowned masterpieces with unparalleled sound quality, you have the Denon Reference CD's.

The first Compact Discs anyone serious about music will want to own. From the Company that was the first to take Digital Recording seriously.

Four Daily Hours Of Music Slated For U.K. Channel

LONDON—Cable homes in three regions of the U.K. will start receiving the English-language service of Satellite TV early next year, the first stage of what is hoped will be genuinely pan-European coverage by the pioneering DBS company, now owned by Rupert Murdoch's News International. By April, 50% of the service's broadcast hours will consist of music programming.

The advertising-supported entertainment service, whose format relies heavily on music, feature movies and sports, has been renamed Sky Channel. Programming will be boosted from three to five hours daily as of Jan. 16, increasing to eight hours daily by April. Broadcasting has just been transferred from the OTS satellite to the new ECS-1 European Communications Satellite, on which Satellite TV has been allocated one of 12 transponders.

By April, the music programming will consist of two hours of pop-oriented material in the morning and two further hours in the evening with more of an MOR slant. The daily "Cable Countdown" program, co-produced with Virgin's Cable Music, will be dropped after Jan. 1 and replaced with a similarly formatted co-production with Thorn EMI's rival Music Box. Satellite TV insists that relations with Virgin are still good, however, and one-off acquisitions will continue.

Also scheduled is "Live From London," a weekly show featuring live concerts from the capital's Marquee Club rock venue, produced as a joint venture with Trillion Pictures and hosted by disk jockey Nicky Horne.

Since it began transmitting in 1982, Satellite TV has built up a viewership of some 500,000 cable homes and hotel rooms, chiefly in Finland, Norway and Switzerland. By the end of 1984, it plans to add up to half a dozen further territories, including Sweden, Denmark, Holland and Morocco. In Britain, Radio Rentals (Swindon), Greenwich Cablevision (southeast London) and SelecTV (Milton Keynes) have agreed to start re-transmissions in January.

In West Germany, the Ludwigshafen network will take the service at about the same time, with Munich following in late spring.

PRS CASE SETS PRECEDENT

British Composer Guilty Of Fraud

LONDON—A composer member of the Performing Right Society (PRS) here pleaded guilty in a North London Crown Court, Dec. 9 to four charges of fraud and falsification of accounting relating to information given by him on program returns of live public performances of his music in two venues.

Guitarist Roger Scarrott, 39, professionally known as Roger James, was handed a sentence of 15 months in jail on each charge, to run concurrently, but suspended for two years under a supervision order. He was also ordered to pay PRS $3,600.

This was the first prosecution of its kind in the 69-year history of PRS. Following Scarrott's guilty plea, a society representative said, "He sought to secure royalties from the society to which he was not entitled, by making false information claims on return forms for live performances.

"It was as a result of the vigilance of society staff concerned with the

CBS Greatly Increases Share Of German Charts

By JIM SAMPSON

MUNICH—Propelled by platinum product from Michael Jackson and local group Nena, CBS significantly improved its share of the German sales charts in 1983. According to trade magazine Musikmarkt, CBS cornered nearly one quarter of the album action this year and finished second to Ariola in the singles sector.

All record companies in Germany trimmed their release schedules this year, some cutting back by half. Among music publishers, CBS Songs had more than twice as much action in the singles chart as number two company Melodie der Welt.

In its first full year of operations, Virgin Germany grabbed over 7% of the German singles chart and nearly 5% of the albums. WEA improved its share of both charts.

The year's biggest losers were domestic artists, who saw last year's chart gains quickly evaporate. And EMI Electrola, leader of both charts in 1982, saw its singles share nearly cut in half while falling to third place in the album list.

The year's biggest singles hits in Germany were both familiar to international listeners: Peter Schilling's "Major Tom" (WEA) and Nena's "99 Luftballons" (CBS), followed by Mike Oldfield's "Moonlight Shadow" (Virgin/Ariola). The only artist with two singles among Germany's processing of program returns on live performances that there might exist a very small minority of members prepared to influence royalty distribution for their personal advantage by the supply of program returns containing false information as to the performance of their music."

The society then started a major review of its method of acceptance and processing of program returns. This, in turn, led to the successful prosecution of Scarrott, who had claimed his works had been regularly performed at the Connaught Rooms in London and at Pilgrims Wine Bar in Barnet, North London.

The PRS, noting that Scarrott's offenses date back some two years, says, "The PRS has a record as one of the most efficient and cost-effective rights societies in the world. It is our duty and commitment to preserve this high reputation.

"This is a non-profit-making membership organization. A fraud by one

BPI Figures Paint Bright Picture: Labels' Six-Month Turnover Up

By PETER JONES

LONDON — In the past six months, turnover for record companies in the U.K. has gone up by around 10%, with LP sales levelling out, prerecorded cassettes gaining more and more popularity, and only the singles sector remaining flat.

That's the picture to emerge from an enthusiastically optimistic report from John Deacon, director general of the British Phonographic Industry (BPI), national IFPI group, as a result of a survey of U.K. trade deliveries covering the third quarter this year.

"Record companies are now well poised to take advantage of the usual Christmas upsurge in sales," Deacon says. "During the middle of this year, a base has been developed which will allow the industry to exploit the seasonal peak to the full."

Deacon points to the uplifting statistic that retail activity in all industries in Britain has increased by 5% in the past 12 months. He adds that this is mirrored in deliveries of records and prerecorded tapes to the retail trade.

He continues: "Most encouraging is the fact that in the past half year, turnover for record companies has gone up by over 10%. The ratio of tape to LP sales is now four to three, and the rate of album sales (on tape and disk together) has gone up 12% since March. Early signs are that demand will not slacken in the last quarter."

Deacon admits that singles sales, down 11.6% in the third quarter compared with the same period of 1982, represent a "flat spot." "But value was only slightly down due to the increasing proportion of 12-inch singles purchased, for they are now nearly 30% of sales in this sector," he adds.

"In the view of the BPI statistics committee, lower sales can be attributed to some extent to the slightly smaller number of new acts attractive to the 15-19 age group. This group in itself seems to be becoming less dominant in the fashion market (it is declining proportionately), and fashion impetus may be moving to the album market.

"Even so, LP sales have not gone up as much as could reasonably have been expected, due as ever to the pernicious habit of home taping, though also coupled with the high level of unemployment among young people."

Deacon adds: "In summary, the

Sony Develops Half-Size Digital Tape

TOKYO—A half-size digital audiocassette offering three hours of playing time has been developed here by Sony. The format uses helical scan technology as employed in video recorders, combined with 16-bit digital signal encoding.

Dimensions of the cassette are two-and-a-half inches by two inches, while the accompanying recorder measures roughly six inches by five inches by two inches. No prices have been set for the new system, which Sony now hopes to see adopted as a world standard for digital cassettes.

If the company is successful in this aim, there will clearly be implications for sales of Compact Disc systems, just as analog cassettes, when launched, affected conventional vinyl volume.

A Hit Is A Hit Is A Hit

Do our eyes and ears deceive us, or is the MTV playlist becoming a shade more liberal? The addition of such video clips as Ashford & Simpson's "It's Much Deeper," Earth, Wind & Fire's "Magnetic" and Andre Cymone's "What Are We Doing Here" brings to mind the recent, provocative memorandum by radio consultant Dwight Douglas. In it, he observed that the nation has turned "extremely horizontal" in its musical tastes, and that to become hits, records must reach at least three demographic groups.

MTV's Les Garland has been quoted as saying that the play-listing of the above clips does not represent a change from its basic rock'n'roll programming philosophy. The channel's John Sykes took a similar position at the recent Billboard Video Music Conference. He reiterated the rock commitment, but used the deliciously vague phrase "new music" in response to a question from the audience.

Obviously that "new music" has to be compatible with the tastes of MTV's targeted demographic, but it's good news that Les, John and their colleagues now believe that acts such as Ashford & Simpson and Earth, Wind & Fire are capable of that compatibility.

How has this come about? In part, we believe, it's the Cross-over Principle at work: The mass appeal of performers like Michael Jackson and Lionel Richie is so great that programmers—in video or in radio, for that matter—ignore the implications at their own risk.

Les Garland is on record as saying that more black acts are beginning to fit "the MTV sound." If the "MTV sound" extends to "Magnetic" and "All Night Long," as now it does, hurrah!

This turn of events is not without irony. It was MTV's willingness, early on, to program new artists and music that brought many in radio (especially AOR programmers) to the recognition that their conservatism was not sufficiently in tune with the public mood. The switch of many AOR stations to top 40 has intensified the public's appetite for hits—which, in turn, may be influencing MTV to tilt just a tad more "horizontal."

Billboard welcomes the development. Multi-format hits, the kind that trample underfoot every programming barrier, are good for the music business, in creative as well as commercial terms. They reach the broadest possible universe of consumers, and excite their taste buds for more. A hit is a hit is a hit, as people are fond of saying.

Oligopoly Is Not A Dirty Word

By IRWIN H. STEINBERG

In a speech at Billboard's International Music Industry Conference (IMIC) in Holland in 1978 I stated the belief that the record industry in the U.S., out of necessity, would have to move toward oligopoly. It was there that I discovered how inflammatory the word "oligopoly" was. You would have thought by the reaction that I was accusing the industry of having structural herpes.

Would you believe that a special meeting was called at IMIC to tar and feather me, at least symbolically? Some even suggested that I be barred from the Stage Delicatessen, others that my Studio 54 dancing shoes be hung upside down.

Who were these people who reacted so violently? They were not the people in the major record companies. They were primarily independent producers, small label owners, their artists, lawyers and managers. And this reaction came after I expressed the thought that at the nucleus of this possible direction there existed a springboard for creative activity such as never existed before; that oligopoly would create unsated demand, and therein lay the opportunity for those on the periphery of the oligopoly.

I was so surprised by the violent reaction that I quickly conferred with Daniel Webster. Webster advised me that oligopoly defined the market situation in which a few companies strongly affect, but do not wholly control, the marketplace; or alternately, a market situation in which a few producers control the demand from many buyers.

So what the hell was everybody so violent about? I can't believe that they preferred a placebo to a possible cure. I had to conclude that fear was obscuring vision.

'In periods of very high concentration, record sales fall; in periods of lower concentration, sales increase'

In the 1950s, shortly after Mercury's founding, there were 1,200 active labels, many separately owned and staffed and selling through independent distributors who controlled both radio and retail in their respective markets. A few companies were stronger than others, but one might have to examine 25 to locate 85% of the industry's volume.

Discounting and home taping were unknown. Independent promotion and its costs were as remote as Pluto to Earth.

Let's observe this data, by corporate participant, now. January to December, 1982 Billboard chart action revealed that five corporations "affect," as Webster euphemistically would have it, the 85%. And this proportion will be skewed further via the RCA liaison with Arista and, similarly, MCA's with Motown.

At the very least, I think my Studio 54 dancing shoes should be returned and my right to once again be nourished by the Stage Delicatessen restored.

What are the underlying causes of this change in the industry? In talks I gave before industry groups in 1980, I concluded that a record company with an artist roster of 50 and a total staff of 165

Irwin Steinberg, a founder of Mercury Records and former chairman of PolyGram Record Operations, is chairman of Complete Entertainment Corp. in Nashville, and president of Domilun Films in New York. He is also an adjunct professor at Columbia College of the Arts in Chicago.

(not including distribution personnel in branch-owned distribution) needed $100 million to break even. Costs which escalated three to six times over a period of 10 years—vinyl, independent promotion, local advertising, interest, royalty rates—as well as inelastic retail prices and undercapitalized retailers in a growing market—were the prime causes.

How many such companies in the record industry had such volume? Very few! And if company-owned distribution was factored in, the volume requirement might approach $200 million.

Now let's look at oligopoly, or concentration. In the record industry, I contend that as the number of competing firms declines, so does the number of hit records, so that fewer hits are being released by fewer producers. I further contend that if this is not treated as antithetical to industrywide success, then all participants in the industry suffer. In this contention, we will find the opportunity.

Prof. John W. Dimmick of Ohio State Univ., in an article entitled "Popular Music: Concentration & Diversity in the Record Industry, 1974-1980," published in the Journal of Communications (Winter '82), wrote as follows:

"In many of the industries of mass communication, concentration is a fact of life; a few firms dominate the production and distribution of cultural products. While on the surface, the competitive structure of mass media industries might seem of interest only to economists or lawyers in the antitrust field, the level of concentration directly affects the choices offered to media consumers. Concentration in cultural industries, as in other sectors of the economy, leads to an increasing homogenization or lack of diversity in cultural products."

Prof. Dimmick went on to argue and support his contention with data which proved that a pattern of increasing concentration is accompanied by a decline in the diversity of music. Similarly, Dimmick showed that diversity is further limited during such periods when the number of producers declines as record companies tend to rely more heavily on producers with proven track records.

Researchers Peterson and Berger, using data similar to the Dimmick Tables in an article in the American Sociological Review, suggest that in periods of high concentration the consequent homogeneity of the product results in unsated demand. The lack of diversity in the musical product, they hypothesize, leaves the tastes of some consumers unsatisfied. As a result, recording sales fall from their previous levels. They show that in periods of very high concentration, recording sales fall; in periods of lower concentration, sales increase.

I agree with these conclusions, although economic conditions and shifting age groups can also be a factor. But why catalyze the later two factors by failing to encourage diversity?

This brings us face-to-face with the opportunity, one that must be developed by the outside creator, and by the companies which are the oligopolists providing marvelous machinery for financing, reaching the audience, and for maximizing retail exposure.

However, the data clearly shows that those very companies tend to dampen or limit creativity. The antidote is to open more doors to independent labels and producers who, historically, have been the trend makers, rather than trend followers.

There is an essential symbiosis here, the remaining corporations providing overhead of sales and administration which need not be replicated by others, and the creative people who are not part of these corporations encouraged to discover and add to the diversity of the industry.

KING TAKES OVER IN SAN FRANCISCO

KSFO Eyes Return To Past Glory

SAN FRANCISCO—At 12:01 a.m. Tuesday (13), months of preparation became reality as King Broadcasting acquired KSFO here from Golden West.

The name value of the "new" staff alone merits publicity. Former KYA and KSFO morning personality Gene Nelson again does mornings, followed by Russ (The Moose) Syracuse. Syracuse first emerged in this area as PD of KYA in 1962, moving to KSFO 12 years ago in the same midday shift he now occupies.

Local personality Sam VanZandt does noon to 3, followed by Carter B. Smith, a KSFO mainstay in the Don Sherwood days of the late '50s, who has continually been a factor in the market, coming from rival KNBR. Following sports talk and an hour of radio drama, which also dominates the 2-6 a.m. block, is Al Jazzbeaux Collins, who returns to the market doing 10-2 a.m. Collins most recently hosted the "Milkman's Matinee" on New York's WNEW-AM.

Even Dan Sorokin is back. Sorokin, a morning institution on Chicago's WCFL, is known as one of America's most irreverent radio wits. He came to the Bay Area in the '60s, abandoning radio after a stint at KSFO to become heavily involved with the anti-drug group Synanon. Still currently associated with that organization, Sorokin can be heard this week (and for many weeks, due to a liberal vacation allowance) filling in for morning man Nelson.

The on-air support staff includes the city's first airborne traffic reporter, Hap Harper ("He went up one morning to do a news story while he was working with Don Sherwood," notes KSFO's current program manager Ken Dennis. "While he was en route, he reported traffic conditions. It was so successful it became a feature." With a large news and sports department as well, the station is intent on reviving the glory days. Backed with King's resources, the details have been worked out—even to the re-hiring of Hugh Heller, the man responsible for KSFO's recognizable music ID packages in the '50s and '60s.

But the decision to return to the past isn't based on emotional desire or even the gut reactions vital to its initial growth. "We're attacking a void that our research has pinpointed in the market," says Dennis. "We're not attacking any one station. We're positioned between KNBR and (the big band sound) KSFO was recently doing."

The word "research" would have Don Sherwood turning over in his grave. But Dennis does not plan to program by numbers. "We have weekly music meetings involving all the airstaff. Collectively, their local experience is astounding, and they have input into what we play."

While the bulk of the day is pre-programmed, consisting of an 80% mix of oldies leaning towards the MOR standards (Sinatra, Bennett, Streisand, Diamond), the late night hours belong to Jazzbeaux. "He has free reign to program his own music. That's how he works best, and that's O.K. with us," says Dennis.

Aimed at the 35-54 demographic, the company is launching a major outdoor and tv mix built around the slogan "We've got personalities." The campaign will run continuously through February.

At the time of the changeover, "all we did was change the phone lines," says Dennis, who also remains program director of KYA-FM. KYA-AM has been spun off to Bonneville.

RODNEY ON THE STREET—Rodney Dangerfield, left, raps with WKQX Chicago's "Murphy In The Morning" host Robert Murphy about his single "Rappin' Rodney," which is currently getting some respect on Billboard's Hot 100.

Barrett Out At Doubleday's WAVA

By ROLLYE BORNSTEIN

The format is in but the GM is out at Washington's WAVA. David J. Barrett—who also served as Doubleday Broadcasting's executive VP, overseeing the chain's WAPP New York—has exited the Washington top 40 outlet. No replacement has been named as yet.

Les Tracy is out at KOME San Francisco, and promotion director Pat Evans moves into his PD slot at the Infinity station. Pat, who was MD at Chicago's WMET under Tripp Reeb, formerly served as PD at ABC's KSFX San Francisco, where she also worked with consultant Jeff Pollack.

And at Infinity's WIVY Jacksonville, Robert John's PD post has been filled. Joining the company from Greater Media's WHND/WMGC Detroit, where he served as music director, is Michael Fuszner.

Back in Detroit, CKLW Windsor has a new PD in the form of former WCZY program director Dave Shafer. Dave's no newcomer to the "Big 8." He did mornings there twice, from 1964-69 and again from 1971-74.

★ ★ ★

John Long, PD of several legends including WROR Boston, KRUX Phoenix, B-100 (KFMB-FM) San Diego, The Big Ape (WAPE Jacksonville), Memphis' WHBQ, and most recently Minneapolis' WCCO-FM, joins Houston-based Bill Young Productions, heading the company's new video division. Young has been producing radio spots for the concert and touring industry for the past 12 years, and due to new competition in the form of MTV, "Friday Night Videos" and the like, he's formed the new division.

Broad Street Communications has undergone some staff restructuring with WELI New Haven VP/GM Larry Getz becoming senior VP/cable program development for the company. Moving up to station manager is GSM Stanley M. Shields, and PD Chuck Gross becomes operations manager.

Moving up to GSM at Unity's KATZ/WZEN St. Louis is account exec Thomas Roper. . . Carol Ford gets a new morning partner on her FM 108 (WDMT Cleveland) morning show in the form of PD Jeffrey B. Kelly. . . Bill Wise's promotion director post at 96 Rock (WKLS Atlanta) has been filled by 97 Rock (KSRR Houston, where WLKS PD Alan Sneed formerly worked) promotions assistant Larry Schuster. . . Joining WMYM New York as advertising and promotion coordinator is NBC-TV's Maggie Day.

Speaking of New York, WCB5-FM has released its list of the top 500 of all time, and all's well with the world. "In The Still Of The Night" by the Five Satins is up there at No 1, followed by "Earth Angel," "Will You Love Me Tomorrow," "My Way," and "Tonight Tonight" by the Mello-Kings. Coming in at 500 is Creedence Clearwater Revival's "Proud Mary" . . . Meanwhile, across town at country-formatted WKHK, Rosemary Young returns from Long Island's WGBB. This time around she'll do 8 p.m.-midnight . . . Joining the WABC talk lineup is clinical psychiatrist David Viscott. He'll appear Friday afternoons.

Clayton Webster Is Sued Over 'Rarities' Program

By MAURIE H. ORODENKER

PHILADELPHIA—A breach of contract involving the syndicated "Rarities" radio show has been filed by Monumental Blunders Inc. of New York and Dave Herman, radio personality on WNEW-FM New York, against Clayton Webster Corp. of St. Louis. The action, calling for a jury trial and seeking damages exceeding $10,000 exclusive of costs and interest, was filed Dec. 1 by Steven M. Kramer, local attorney long active in the rock music industry, in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York.

"Rarities," a five-minute segment syndicated nationally five days a week since November, 1981, is narrated by Herman. The unique program features a different recording artist and a rarely heard song of that artist daily. Clayton Webster is a radio program syndicator, marketing such programs nationally.

Clayton Webster is also charged with unlawful appropriation of Monumental Blunders' property rights. It is alleged that on or about Dec. 27, 1982, there was a written agreement for Monumental Blunders to produce "Rarities," the agreement to run until Dec. 31, 1983. During that period, Monumental Blunders was to provide a taped "Rarities" program each month, and Clayton Webster was to syndicate, distribute and promote the taped program to radio stations across the country.

The program contained a commer-

Dancer Fitzgerald Sample's new AIM (Audience Image Marketing) division, headed by Mike Davison, has signed its first client. cial for Anheuser-Busch. Monumental Blunders and Herman were to receive from Clayton Webster, depending on the number of stations buying the program; a monthly payment of from $6,650 to $9,200. The alleged breach of contract was a letter sent to Monumental Blunders and Herman on Nov. 4, 1983.

Clayton Webster's reasons for cancellation were poor program quality, despite repeated requests made for the plaintiffs to improve the show and the allegation that material used on "Rarities" may have been made available by the plaintiff company to other rock music syndicated shows. A question was also raised about the plaintiffs obtaining all the necessary releases for material used.

Plaintiffs also claim that the monthly payments for October-November have been refused and are seeking $19,950 from Clayton Webster. They also charge that they have been refused documentation showing the number of stations airing the program. Monumental Blunders is also seeking return of all the master tapes and disks of the show held by Clayton Webster.

Charge is also made of unfair competition. It is claimed that Clayton Webster has now put out a program called "Rare Trax," using the same format, concept and other characteristics of "Rarities," even using Herman's voice.

Washington Roundup

By BILL HOLLAND

The FCC now says it plans no "freeze" on applications and petitions for assignments from broadcasters eager to file for the proposed new commercial FM stations to be added to the dial as a result of the Commission's Docket 80-90.

However, there will be guidelines to deal with the procedural free-for-all. Basically, if broadcasters had filed before Friday (16), the filings would be entered into the FM data base, and won't be precluded by any proposals in the upcoming omnibus rule making. After that date, those not in conflict with any channel assignment in the omnibus, or any counterproposal, will be processed "in the normal course of business." Those late filings that are in conflict will be consolidated into the rule-making process, which means waiting a longer period of time.

Broadcasters also should know, says the Commission, that only counterproposals will be accepted during the comment period.

Last May, the FCC okayed in principle Docket 80-90, which will add nearly 600 allocations for new Class B1, C1 or C2 stations, as well as opportunities for owners of Class A stations to upgrade their facilities to Class B or Class C channels.

President Reagan gave the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB) "a most wonderful holiday present," according to CPB President Ed Pfister. He signed H.B. 2755, the FCC Authorization Bill, which contains the CPB funds to be distributed to public tv and radio. Congress approved, and Reagan okayed a 5.6% increase: up to $145 million for fiscal 1984, $153 million for fiscal 1985, and $162 million for fiscal 1986. Reagan signed the bill Dec. 8.

Will Fowler deregulate the ponies? That's the question the National Assn. of Broadcasters (NAB) is asking after urging the FCC on Dec. 9 to drop policies that "unduly restrict the broadcasting of horse race information."

The policies go back to a 1964 policy statement designed to prohibit broadcasting of information that could be used by tipsters and gamblers. NAB says that the FCC's jurisdiction in this area is "questionable" and that there's no public benefit to offset the unwarranted costs on the Commission and licensees.

Good Lord! That's the general message of statistics to be published in the 1984 Directory of Religious Broadcasting, which point out a 10.2% increase in religious broadcasting in the U.S. during 1983, according to the National Religious Broadcasters (NRB).

AM-FM format duplication does not equal inferior service—that's the judgment of the U.S. Appeals Court here, which ruled last month in favor of the recent FCC decision to renew the license of WABZ in Albemarle, N.C. The station was simulcasting its programming on its FMer, and a challenger objected, but the Commission still found the stations' performance superior.

Expect hearings in late January or early February in the Senate Communications subcommittee on Sen. Robert Packwood's "Freedom of Expression Act," S. 1917, which would give broadcast media the same protection and freedom from regulation as print media. The bill, supported by the major broadcast organizations, would repeal the Fairness Doctrine and Equal Opportunity provisions of the Communications Act, and prohibit the FCC from regulating electronic journalism. Packwood introduced the bill in October, but there wasn't time to work on the proposed legislation.

The first volume lists 666 individual co-op sources representing 51 product and service categories as offering 100% co-op programs. Additional copies of the book are available to RAB members for $5.00 a pop (c/o RAB, 485 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017)

How to avoid spending too much on too little mixer.

Introducing the Ramsa WR-8210A.

When you sit down in front of the new Ramsa WR-8210A, you'll discover a level of performance, ease of operation and flexibility you'd expect to find in more expensive mixers.

In fact, one of the more innovative design features of the WR-8210A is it lets you record, overdub and mixdown without having to repatch.

The flexible send system allows you to simultaneously send a cue signal to the studio as well as a mixdown signal to the control room.

In order to give you the tone control you need, the three-band variable frequency equalizer will balance the highs, midrange and lows. And the electronically balanced Mic inputs will keep unwanted noise from coming between you and your sound.

What's more, Ramsa's Phantom Mic Power provides you with up to 48 V DC to drive condenser microphones.

And to keep an eye on everything, the four LED bar graph meters are designed for quick response and easy reading.

The Ramsa WR-8210A. Not only is it one of the easiest high-performance mixers to use, but its price makes it easy to own.

AT ALL-WOMAN WWMN

'Female' Format Flying In Flint

By LEO SACKS

NEW YORK—Linda Lanci was not eligible to win WWMN's "woman of the year" listener award when the station, located in Flint, Mich., made its selection last week following a month-long promotion. But Lanci, the station manager and program director of the nation's lone "female contemporary" outlet, certainly laid claim to the title in spirit.

The concept of all-female radio certainly isn't new: Sun Records pioneer Sam Phillips used female jocks to lure male listeners at his properties in Memphis (WHER) and West Palm Beach (WLIZ) about 20 years ago. It was also tested by program director Bob Herpe of WOMN New Haven, and at WSDM Chicago (billed as "Smack Dab In The Middle" before its call letter change to WLUP) and WNEW-FM here (where Allison Steele got her start).

WWMN, however, gears its programming to a female audience, and when the station in the state's third largest city celebrates its second anniversary on Jan. 1, Lanci says that the AM daytimer will have "beaten the odds."

"No one, quite frankly, ever thought we'd last this long," says the programmer, who handles the midday shift and doubles as music director and weekend air personality at AOR "brother" station WWCK. "But we've given it our all, and it's starting to pay off." Response from listeners on the phones and through the mail leads her to believe that "Flint's New Woman" will cop a 2 share in the winter Arbitron, up from the .9 registered in the spring book.

The sound, targeted to the 18-40 age group, is described by Lanci as "beautiful, hit-oriented soft rock." The narrowcasting concept does not exclude male performers, however.

Her adds last week included the latest singles by Lionel Richie and Culture Club, augmenting a rotation highlighted by Jeffrey Osborne, Billy Joel, Elton John, Dionne Warwick, the Motels, Crystal Gayle and the Carpenters.

"People ask me why we're doing this in Flint," Lanci says, "and my response is, 'Why not?' This is a town that needs something. Don't forget, we had the highest unemployment in the nation at 25% not too long ago."

The station, which reaches some of Lansing and Detroit, used to program three hours of talk each day. The plan was shelved when Lanci replaced Marsha Kloor as station manager, and since then listenership has improved, according to Lanci.

Her team, which consists of Diane Brewer (mornings), music director Sally Ryann (afternoons) and news director Susie Essex, works out of a studio decorated with newspaper and magazine clippings, hanging plants and a stained glass window emblazoned with the "Flint's New Woman" monicker. "It's a homey kind of atmosphere," says Lanci. "When you're on the air, you want to be as up as possible."

5,000-WATT COUNTRY AM

Fire Destroys WNAX Yankton

NEW YORK—Paul Shay and his family got a "bird's eye view" of the blaze that gutted the office and studio of WNAX Yankton, S.D.

Shay, the music director of the AM country outlet, known as "Your Big Friend In The Midwest" for its five-state reach, lives across the street from the three-story brick building which housed the station. A fire of undetermined origin swept through the structure just after midnight on Dec. 9, causing over $1 million in damage, according to Shay. "Everything was destroyed—records, equipment, production gear, everything," he says.

Two employees, in the building at the time of the fire, escaped unharmed and ran three blocks to a fire station, he says. Firefighters, hampered by zero-degree weather, battled the blaze for 24 hours and remained on the scene for another 12 hours. A Yankton fire marshal was quoted as saying that over one million gallons of water was pumped by his men, notes Shay, adding that an investigation into the cause of the fire began Dec. 12.

The country station, whose 5,000-watt signal at 570 on the dial covers the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa and Nebraska, was back on the air five hours after the blaze, broadcasting from a makeshift studio at the side of the WNAX transmitter in Mission Hill, S.D., three miles northeast of Yankton. Two local stations, adult contemporary-oriented KYNT and AOR-formatted KQHU, have assisted the station with news and weather copy and equipment during its hour of need.

KKGO To Build New AM Facility

LOS ANGELES—KKGO, this city's highly regarded jazz outlet, has been granted permission to construct an AM facility licensed to Hesperia, Calif. according to KKGO president Saul Levine.

The 5,000-watt daytimer at a frequency of 540, lying northeast of the metropolitan area, will, with its southwest directional pattern, cover Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Riverside and Orange County.

According to Levine, once the engineering study was complete and the application filed for, no competing applicants came forth. Currently under construction, target air date is July 1, with the call letters KKAR applied for.

While an all-news and information format has been decided upon, no staff as yet have been hired or considered. The company has agreed to become the exclusive CNN news affiliate for the Southern California area and plans a mix of 60% CNN features, 40% local origin.

KEYI Austin Circumvents Jock's Non-Compete Clause

AUSTIN—When Dave Jarrott, this city's most popular morning man, left his four-year shift at K-98 (KHFI) Oct. 15 at the end of his contract to join forces with its AC competitor, Key-103 (KEYI), K-98 was granted a temporary injunction preventing Jarrott's new employer from using his name or likeness on the air until his 90-day non-compete clause expires Jan. 16.

Key-103 took the issue to trial, and the outcome was mixed. "I could not go on the air live for 90 days within a 70-mile radius of Austin, but I could do prerecorded commercials," says Jarrott. With that flexibility, the station devised a plan whereby Jarrott took to the studio each morning at Key-103 and taped the commercials live, incorporating his breaks on either side, just minutes before playing them back on the air.

The tie-in, which provides Key-103 listeners with much the same material Jarrott presented on K-98, provides sponsors with the real advantage. For a 60-second rate, they get billboarded spots. "We're sold out through December," says Jarrott. "We increased the morning drive rate after two weeks of this."

At K-98, PD Roger W. Garrett has unsuccessfully filled the morning drive slot once, with former Key-103 personality Ray Lincoln, who departed recently. Regarding Jarrott, he says, "We took the man for his legal word. Dave was just testing the non-compete clause."

Counters Jarrott, "They've had seven months' notice. As early as last March I told them I would not renew my contract."

Pro-Motions

STATION: WVLK Lexington (AC) and others

CONTACT: Tom Richards, production director

CONCEPT: Cabbage Patch Dolls

EXECUTION: By far the biggest gift demand this season is the Cabbage Patch Doll. Sensing the publicity such a giveaway would generate, several outlets around the country have secured one or two of these dolls, but 'VLK happened upon more than they could handle. The only consideration (other than a lot of money) was a promise that the station would use them as on-air promotional items exclusively. In this case, 'VLK awarded a doll to a specified caller, who phoned the station after a sequence of five artists (any song, even Christmas selections) were aired in order. By not limiting the artists to a particular song, the station was able to use the same five image artists throughout the promotion.

In the case of New York's WHN, the dolls arrived in a Brinks truck to be given away to the 50th caller each time a Dolly Parton song is played... Across town at WKHK, the morning team has "Dougie Rick" up for adoption in a cash and prizes contest where listeners are asked to count the number of songs aired... WHWH Princeton is keeping little "Gilda Maggie" in the vault of a client bank, and she will be awarded to the person who comes closest to guessing the exact date Gilda emerged from the cabbage patch... Many other variations on a theme have occurred, but perhaps the best is occurring on KUBE Seattle. That station is seeking qualified adoptive parents by asking listeners to write in describing why their family would make a good home for a loveable, lonely cabbage patch kid. Over 100 letters a day have been received, ranging from desperate to humorous. Each winner must appear at the station, sign the adoption papers and recite the "parents' oath."

STATION: 98 Rock (WIYY) Baltimore (AOR)

CONTACT: Richard D. Byrd, director of creative projects

CONCEPT: Thanksgiving on the Mayflower

EXECUTION: Several outlets around the country, such as Denver's AC, KHOW, tied into this non-format-specific jewel with Mayflower Moving & Storage. Tongue-in-cheek on-air promos advertised the chance to win a traditional Thanksgiving dinner on the "Mayflower." In Baltimore, the feast included a full-course

FCC Approves U.S.-Canada AM Agreement

WASHINGTON—A new U.S.-Canada AM broadcasting agreement, two years in the making, has been approved by the FCC, with noteworthy features that will permit pre-sunrise and post-sunset operation for U.S. stations near the Canadian border as long as protection is given to co-channel Canadian stations, and an elimination of former barriers forbidding assignment of new clear channel stations within 650 miles of the border.

The new agreement, announced by the Commission Nov. 18, replaces the North American Regional Broadcasting Agreement (NARBA). It incorporates an agreed plan of all the AM assignments the U.S. and Canada have recorded, notified and accepted under the old agreement, plus additional assignments agreed on at the Regional Administrative Radio Conference held in Rio de Janeiro in 1981.

meal with the morning team. Denver offered wine, candlelight and dinner music along with the tuxedo-clad air staff. The bottom line was that winners never got whisked off to New England, didn't even see much water, but had a great time on a fully decked out 10-ton moving van. The winning WIYY listener was a hippopotamus keeper at the local zoo who thought she deserved the meal with the morning team because "I spend five days a week slinging hippo manure, so it's only fitting that I spend Thanksgiving with the two biggest manure slingers in broadcasting."

STATION: KSJO San Jose (AOR)

CONTACT: John Cotter

CONCEPT: contest entry

EXECUTION: Since many on-air contests require nothing more than registration, KSJO has instituted a hotline connected to an automatic answering device that lets listeners register for various giveaways. On the air, the 90-minute cassette is stopped at random intervals, netting the appropriate amount of winners. Listener response has been higher than it was when previous methods were used: 3,400 entries were recorded over a one-week period, and listeners to this format are more likely to participate by phone than by traditional mail-in methods.

You're looking at a man who could use some good news. The new AP Network News.

As Program Director, your job is to get and keep listeners. To do that you need good strategy, determination and the best tools to work with.

At AP Network News, we want to help. That's why we're generating an additional 24 dynamic, drive-time news updates each day. All free of commercial clearances.

A two-minute NewsWatch highlights breaking news at the bottom of the hour. Our 60 second NewsMinute features the top stories at two minutes before the hour.

We've added these reports to our schedule of hourly newscasts, already available in 2½ and five minute versions.

Our new reports are short, and they're jammed with reliable information. You'd expect that from AP.

What's more, they add unmatched flexibility to your overall programming.

And AP Network News actually helps you keep listeners tuned to your station while keeping them tuned-in to the world.

There's more. AP Network

News has expanded its feature programming, from consumer affairs to computer news. It's information programming you and your audience will enjoy.

Best of all, our increased service comes without an increase in cost.

Psychic Predicts Good Grosses, Emphasis Programming

By ROLLYE BORNSTEIN

LOS ANGELES—Spot rates will go up as commercial loads go down, sales of stations will make some owners overnight millionaires, beautiful music will hold its own and AOR will continue to decline in 1984, predicts nationally known psychic Page Bryant.

Bryant, one of the first psychics to hold a full-time radio shift, started her on-air career in 1974 at Tampa's WDAE and WLCY-TV, moving to Ft. Lauderdale's WFTL prior to relocating in Flagstaff. From her Arizona base, she became a daily part of Gary Owens' afternoon show on KMPC Los Angeles, is a regular KTAR Phoenix feature and is currently heard three times a week on WTKN Pittsburgh's Scott Cassidy show. Her perspective on radio is limited to her on-air experiences, and the following predictions reflect her psychic impressions:

"I think you're going to find as far as networks are concerned that there'll be more of them popping up in '84, and a lot more of them going down. A few will be outstanding and doing well, but for the most part it will be a shakedown." Regarding one network steeped in talk, Bryant says, "I think they'll go downhill severely in '84, and go out totally in '85, or at least change direction dramatically." Of another similarly-formatted venture, she says, "I feel good with that. I see a major management change making the difference. They'll become very innovative, very strong.

"Sales of radio stations will increase a lot. You won't start really seeing the trend till late in the year; it will continue heavily through '85, but in '86 a lot of people are going to find out they're stuck with a lot of garbage and no way out. Look for sales in Tampa, Miami, Pittsburgh, Omaha, New York, Los Angeles, Dallas and Houston, probably in that order, and probably in the second half of the year.

"1984 is a '4' year in terms of numerology. Four is a hard-work number, a keep your nose to the grindstone effect. Finances will improve in all facets, but the real emphasis will be on programming. There will be more concern with formats than sales, more innovation. You'll see general managers more interested in programming than they have been.

"You'll also see a great deal of changeover of personnel, more of a turnover than we've seen in any one year, and that trend will increase further in 1985. You'll find top level execs constantly looking over their shoulders. The role of consultant will start to change. Jobs there will be less plentiful, and duration of contracts shorter."

Arbitron, too, will face some challenges, according to the lecturer and author. "They'll continue to be steady, but faced with new competition. Birch will continue to make great inroads—look to autumn of this year as a positive turning point for Birch. But a new company will come up, possibly in '85 at the latest, and the combination of Birch and that company will have Arbitron making some changes. I also see a new system, possibly a phone-in system like the 800 numbers where people can call in and report what they're listening to.

"FM will show good steady income, but will start showing many format changes in '84; in fact, there will be more FM switches than AM changes then. You'll start seeing talk and information playing a part on FM. AM will continue in that talk direction, and financially make a comeback. At least it will stabilize in '84, but stations will continue to change hands.

"Country will continue its leveling-off process. Big AM stations that changed to the format a few years ago will look for alternatives, and start playing 'gold country.' You'll see nostalgia in general on the upswing, but not the big-band format, more of the early rock or the Sinatra-Como era.

"Urban will fairly well hold its own, leveling off also in '85, but a big fad will come out of urban in '84. It's this 'scratch music.' It will be very big but totally gone by '85.

"I see specialty shows on the increase, both on networks and locally, dealing with survival, planning, growing-type features. I see stations offering college courses like tv now does, and, strange as it sounds, I see an all-weather format coming up."

Getting more specific, Bryant sees Gannett selling some radio properties, purchasing others. "Something will occur in June that will boost their earnings tremendously. They'll be down until the middle of the year, then up.

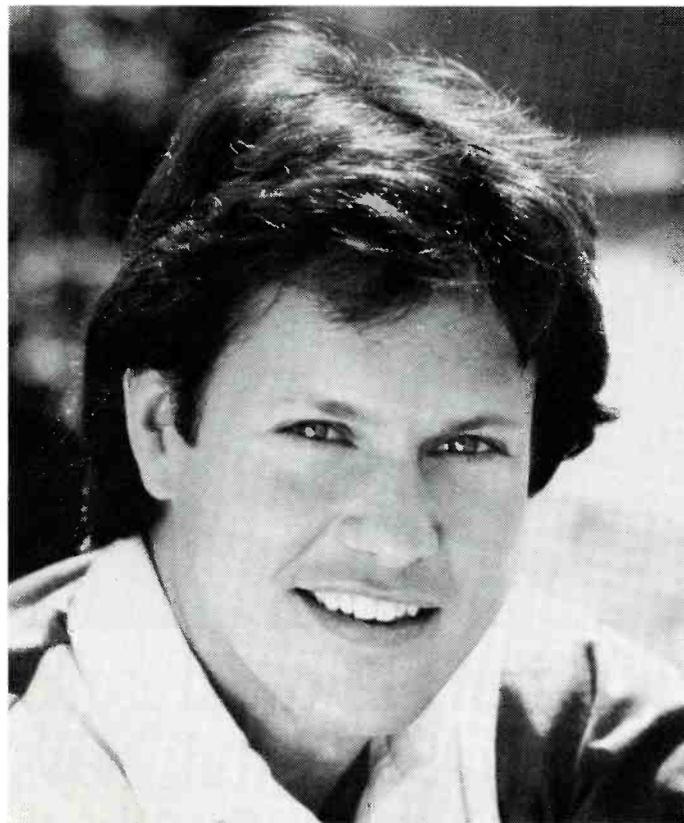

"Doubleday is solid financially, more so than most companies. Format-wise, they'll make some moves, and personnel-wise as well, but Gary Stevel will remain. If he were to make a move, it would be of his own choosing."

As for Malrite, Bryant sees them selling one or two radio stations and going more heavily into tv. Marty Greenberg and Duffy "are in a solid position. You'll see slow, careful growth. They'll do fairly well in '84, and emerge in '85." While seeing the CBS FM Group as strong, Bryant does predict "a major management change in '84."

Bryant also predicts that a major trade association will be faced with some problems: "I see people moving away from them into a new organization that will be discussed in '84 and formed in '85.

"On the whole it will be a good year for radio. The dollar won't buy as much as it did for the advertisers in the past, but as for gross revenue, you'll see an increase."

RKO's Dick Bartley Prospects For More 'Solid Gold'

By ROLLYE BORNSTEIN

LOS ANGELES—"I'm still missing a true stereo copy of Shelley Fabares' 'Johnny Angel' ", muses Dick Bartley, host of RKO's popular "Solid Gold Saturday Night." "It's on the 'Here's Shelley' LP, and there aren't many around in stereo. I could also use a clean stereo version of Gene Chandler's 'Duke of Earl.' "

While the original hit master is mandatory, Bartley, unlike most collectors, quickly passes up an original label, the first 45 pressing or an early 78, in favor of quality. The music may come from analog days (the show concentrates on 1956-72) but Bartley's thinking is clearly digital. "There are probably a lot of people with a bigger collection, but I can't imagine there's anyone with a better one."

Self-described as "a stereo detective," Bartley boasts of rarities including "the original stereo jukebox single of Paul Anka's 'Put Your Head On My Shoulder' ". But he quickly adds, "we've got to move on CD. There's just no comparison."

"'He's A Rebel,' 'Da Do Ron Ron,' 'Surfin' USA,' 'Town Without Pity'—those were the first singles I bought—New York, East Coast top 40." (Bartley lived in Schenectady and Syracuse before moving with his family to Lynchburg, Va. while in junior high.) "Those weren't oldies; they were, and are, just good songs. 'Rubber Soul' was the album that got me into collecting albums. Before that I bought singles, but this was an album that spoke to me."

It was Bartley's first job, at WWOD in Lynchburg while he was still in high school, that got him involved with oldies. "We had to play the top 30 hits, like the long version of 'Inna Gadda Da Vida' (I still play the short version on the national show). The station had a tremendous oldies collection, and the one format rule they did have was two oldies to one current, so I was exposed to a lot of products."

Through college radio (his degree is in English lit) and a full-time job at Charlottesville's WELK, Bartley's career "never left me time to decide if this is what I wanted to do." Jumping to Chicago in 1975, first at WBBM-FM and then WFYR three years later, Bartley became PD in 1980, a post he held until early '82 when he opted to concentrate full-time on his mid-day shift and new network show.

The idea for a weekly oldies show started during PD Dave Martin's tenure. "I said, 'Let's play the Crystals, Creedence, Motown; people will go nuts for it.' So Dave started doing it himself in May 1980 and gave it to me in July."

"I learned a lot from that show—about chart positions not meaning anything in terms of what people want to hear. Good-time fun party records with good memories associated with them—Dion, Motown, girl groups, specific Beatles titles like 'Twist and Shout' "

While Bartley's local offering was bringing in number-one ratings, RKO Radio Networks "ran some research asking PDs and GMs what they wanted," remembers Bartley. "Third on the list was a weekend oldies show." The choice was a natural one, and in January, 1982, "Solid Gold Saturday Night" was born.

What differentiates Bartley's show from previous efforts is the "live" approach. It's broadcast via satellite from 6 to 11 p.m. central time on Saturday, and Bartley himself mans the 13 request lines and eight toll-free numbers. "My theory is that not everybody wants to participate, but for those who do for those for whom the promise is real—they're investing an enormous amount of time getting through to make that request, and they really ought to talk to someone who can play it. It also helps me keep a pulse on what's going on," he says.

What Bartley has discovered from the phones is "that there are definite regional pockets of interest in the way rock'n'roll is perceived. 'Beach music' for instance, is big in the southeast. Not like Jan & Dean, but relatively obscure r&b oldies of the '50s and '60s that peaked between 30 and 70 nationally. Chicagoans aren't into that. What 'Solid Gold Saturday Night' is challenged to do is to find the highest common denominator (Continued on page 31)

New On The Charts

This weekly feature is designed to spotlight new artists on Billboard's pop, country and black music charts.

CYNDI LAUPER

Preceded by lots of positive press, Cyndi Lauper's Portrait debut "She's So Unusual" has spawned its first charting single, "Girls Just Want To Have Fun," which moves up to 69 in its second week on the Hot 100.

An example of truth in advertising, everything about the singer is unusual, from her modern gypsy dress to her high-strung vocals. A Brooklyn native, Lauper began playing guitar at the age of 12 and during college discovered some harmonics in her voice. "It's kind of like whistle notes, and you can hear them on this album," she says.

In 1977, Lauper joined saxophonist/keyboardist John Turi to form Blue Angel, which released a critically acclaimed album for Polydor three years later.

Although Lauper doesn't like singing other people's material, "She's So Unusual" contains some unique covers that she says "enabled me to keep my integrity and meant something to me." A Robert Hazard tune, "Girls Just Want To Have Fun" epitomizes Lauper's rambunctious and witty style and sets the tone for the album, which also includes Prince's classic "When You Were Mine" and a lovely Lauper/Rob Hyman original entitled "Time After Time."

For more information, contact David Wolff & Joseph Zynczak, 65 W. 55th St., New York, N.Y. 10019; (212) 977-9340.

DREAMBOY

Formerly known as Foreplay, the new moniker Dreamboy seems more appropriate for the Detroit quintet, whose electrified funk has taken them from high school talent shows to the Black LP chart, where their self-titled Qwest EP moves up to 63.

The Dreamboys are lead singer/songwriter Jeff Stanton, guitarist Jeff Bass, keyboardist Jimmy Hunt, bassist Paul Stewart Jr., and drummer George Twymon. A good-looking and flamboyant group, Dreamboy's goal from the beginning was "to be something that males and females could relate to," says Stanton. At the same time the group is interested in creating a mystique and subsequently has only made one live appearance for a benefit at Detroit's Roostertail. "When a band goes through the bar scene, everybody gets so used to seeing them that they burn out before they really get started," Stanton says.

Stylistically, Dreamboy falls in with the likes of Prince and the Time, although Stanton asserts, "The only thing we want to label it is the sound of the '80s. We admire Prince as a genius, and he's opened up a whole new block of music. Now we've just moved our house to that same block."

For more information, contact Ed Eckstine, Qwest Records, 7250 Beverly Blvd., Suite 207, Los Angeles, Calif. 90036; (213) 934-4711.

GRANDMIXER D. ST.

Grandmixer D. St. has emerged from the New York hip-hop scene to the Black Singles chart, where his Celluloid/Island debut "Crazy Cuts" moves up to 58.

His name is taken from New York's Delancey St., famous for its immigrant groups and ethnic mixes that have created a vast array of cultures surrounding the street in Manhattan's Lower East Side. But it was on the West Side that Grandmixer got his start as a disk jockey at the Roxy.

The club was once the hub of hip-hop, and working there, Grandmixer not only helped popularize the genre but also became one of the first hip-hop artists to write and produce his own records. His first release was last February's "Cuts It Up," which garnered significant airplay in New York but eluded the charts.

With his group the Infinity Rappers, Grandmixer has toured the world, getting especially warm receptions in France and England. In addition, he has worked with the Gotham-based avant-garde funk group Material, including a gig with them at the Montreux Jazz Festival and an appearance on their last single. His latest collaboration was with Herbie Hancock on the latter's "Rockit" single.

For more information contact Jean Karakos, c/o Celluloid Records, (212) 730-7911, or Ruben Rodriguez, Island Records, (212) 477-8000.

"Chipped Chopped Ham And Myron" by the Flyboys is getting a lot of play on the station. Over the instrumental riffs, members of the band shout Cope's favorite expressions, which include "yoy" and "okle-dokle" . . . Not to be outdone, B-94 (WBZZ Pittsburgh) morning guy Banana Don Jefferson and afternoon drive jock Bruce Kelly, in the true Buchanan & Goodman tradition, have come up with "Cabbage Patch Fever."

Cousin Brucie's 92K (WKGL Middletown, N.Y.) has a new lineup now that PD Ken Windheim's on board. No major changes, just rearrangement, as Windheim now does mornings, Gary Manheim middays, Bob Weil afternoons and Matt Paulson nights. Staff and company expansion have Windheim looking for talent, so you may want to send him a tape . . . Moving up to PD at Ashboro's WGWR/WCSE is Penny S. Nance, who retains her music director title . . . Rocky Leonard leaves Uniontown, Pa.'s WPQR to join up with former 'PQR cohort Jerry Gyurke at country-formatted WASP in Brownsville, Pa.

What do former Oakland A's announcers do? Well, one of them, Monte Moore, owns a radio station, KTIP Porterville, Calif., and new to the AM/FM combo is afternoon drive jock and music director George Feola from Lakeport, Calif.'s KBLC. He replaces Jeff Cotta. Moving up into Dave Stephons' night shift is Eldon K. Bertram D. Ashe moves from middays to mornings, picking up an MD title along the way, at Boyce, La.'s WBCE. Former over-nighter Wade Hampton fills the mid-day slot, with David Metoyer coming in doing all nights . . . In Tyler, Tex. at Big Thicket's KTYL, Pat O'Brian leaves the FM side to do mornings and program the AM. Moving up from overnights into the 10-2 FM shift, and picking up O'Brian's music director chores, is Joel Davis. Sabra moves into full-time overnights, and Janet Drake moves into sales. Morning co-host Bobbie Kerns takes over Drake's former news and operations duties.

WCSY-AM-FM South Haven,

'83 NRBA Survey Finds AC Still The Top Format

WASHINGTON—The National Radio Broadcasters Assn. (NRBA) tabulated the results of its new 1983 programming survey last Wednesday (14), and initial conclusions show that once again the adult contemporary format is the most popular for AM and FM stations nationwide, although country music is gaining ground.

Twenty-nine percent of the stations reporting were AC. Country stations accounted for 28%.

There was also a change in the percentage of reporting stations' market size. This year, 48% were medium market, 27.5% small market and 24.5% large market. Last year half of the stations reporting were small market, 35.5% medium and only 14.5% large market.

Some of the changes, NRBA says, are due to the surprising jump in sta-responses to the survey. Last year, 1,900 stations responded (27%), but this year, there were 3,351 (44%). An NRBA staffer says the increase makes the new survey "more accurate" in spotting nationwide trends.

Mich. picks up KalaMusic's "Lite Contemporary" format . . . Fairbanks' WKOX Framingham (Boston) takes advantage of new daytime hours, extending its broadcast day to pre- and post-sunrise hours.

Four different types of stations were surveyed this year; FM, AM, AM daytimer and AM/FM simulcast. Top FM formats were AC, country and top 40, which edged out beautiful music for the number three spot this year. Top AM formats were AC, country and news talk, which took the number three spot from religious. Oldies jumped from number five to four.

Top five AM/FM simulcast formats were country, AC, hit, AOR and religious. Top five AM daytime formats were country, AC, religious, oldies and news/talk.

Camelot Pushing Video Rentals

Variety of Promotions Utilizes Computerized Roster

By EARL PAIGE

LOS ANGELES—Camelot Enterprises is targeting its video rental club membership in a series of promotions, led by the chain's "Join A Friend" push, which encourages present members to recruit new ones, says Kevin Kilroy, video department director working out of the Port Richey, Fla. unit.

Utilizing the membership roster of 6,000 maintained on computer at Camelot's North Canton, Ohio headquarters as a resource, other promotions are rolling out, including a mail order offer. Here, in conjunction with MGM/UA, Camelot is offering "The Wall" free for any order of "The Compleat Beatles" at $69.95.

Camelot even sent each of its club members a Christmas present, the $9.95 list book "Rating The Movies." "That'll pay off," says Kilroy. "It gets people into the product, and it's great for catalog volume."

Another ploy for "cloning" members is the gift certificate program.

Kilroy emphasizes that club members enjoy an automatic 10% discount on everything, including the gift certificate. Because lifetime memberships are $50, the club member saves $5.

In the works is a promotion built around "Thriller" that Camelot has still to firm up. "We're beginning to see what prerecorded music video products can do," says Kilroy. He says "Flashdance" was a prime indicator.

But nothing currently tops "Join A Friend," conceived by vice president Joe Bresl. For getting a friend to join, the present member earns five free movie rentals, each worth $3. The grand prize in the promotion is a trip for two to Los Angeles, offering five nights and four days including a tour of Universal Studios and $400 in pocket money. Second prize is 50 free movie rentals, and third prize is a case of T-120 blank videotapes.

As might be anticipated, Camelot believes rental or video is here to stay—pending, of course, the outcome of federal legislation. In fact, after only a brief test in two Florida units, Camelot is now renting CED videodisks throughout the nine full-line video departments.

What has helped accelerate rental is the vast sophistication in transaction time at the counter, Kilroy says. Camelot has gone to the quick-rental card and has installed night drops in several units despite being mall oriented. "The night drop here at Port Richey has been phenomenal," he says.

Because of mall regulations and because some customers live a long distance from a Camelot store, night drops have proven difficult to line up, Kilroy says, but not impossible.

Kilroy does not wax philosophical about the future of rental or why people will go on renting. "We're selling home entertainment excitement," he says flatly, "whether it's via rental or sale. We're offering what we believe the consumer wants to respond to. We're creating excitement."

AT TUCSON'S SOUND BARRIER

Video Growth Affects Music Sales

LOS ANGELES—For record/tape retail veteran Ed Hardy, explosive growth for home video sales is already eclipsing his original inventory base in recorded music. Owner of the single-unit Sound Barrier in Tucson, Hardy reports that video sales now account for 70% of his total dollar volume.

One effect of adding video in April has been a greater focus on the categories of records/tapes that turn more often, says Hardy, who ended up in Arizona with Record Bar and also had stints with Leonard Silver, Pickwick and King Carol. He opened Sound Barrier two years ago.

Being "full-line" in both music and video becomes too capital intensive, Hardy indicates, and space is also a consideration—Sound Barrier is 2,600 square feet. "We carry basically the top 200 LPs (and cassettes) along with some catalog pop and easy listening. We have little demand for classical or country."

As an indication that Sound Barrier isn't going to drop music altogether, the store does stock singles, and Hardy is "just starting to get into Compact Disc." LP pricing on new releases runs $6.99 with catalog at $7.49 and singles at $1.59. "We also feature sales regularly at $5.98 on LPs," he says.

Hardy's decision to jump into video came when he realized there was no competition "for miles around and it (video) was growing like mad." Sound Barrier's location in northwest Tucson also spurred Hardy on. He's situated next door to a high-traffic Super Cuts and near a pizza restaurant in a strip that has "the highest grossing Safeway in Arizona."

While acknowledging that Safeway and other grocery chains are jumping into video rental, Hardy says, "They (Safeway) only have a small rack of records so far." He says his big competition is probably Wherehouse, the giant West Coast-based chain that has paced video rental for several years. Wherehouse has three Tucson units.

"We went in at $1, $2, and $2.50 a day on movies because we saw what Wherehouse was doing. The thing with their $1 movies is, try to find them once you're in there. We've also cut back on our $1 and $2 movie selection because this is where the market is going."

Hardy says he has never had a movie club. "We are, however, renting machines. Our deal is a machine and three movies for $10.95, Monday through Thursday." As is becoming a trend with record/tape stores entering video, Sound Barrier's hours are unusually long: 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday to Thursday, extended to midnight Friday and Saturday; and Hardy says his video library is growing so fast "I can barely estimate it, especially with 'Raiders' like it is now. I'd say 2,000 titles is about where we are." Sound Barrier has never ventured into videodisk or video games either dedicated cartridge or computer.

Federated Opens Audio 'Superstore'

LOS ANGELES — Federated Group is taking the audio store concept to the supersize level with its newest store here in Carson, a two-level, 24,300 square foot outlet that includes a component furniture section. The emphasis on audio now finds Federated's 17 units carrying Compact Disc players from six manufacturers, says store spokesman Gary Wolfson.

Federated continues to pace the market here in video rental, advertising "Raiders Of The Lost Ark" plus eight other titles at 98 cents per day. Ad copy plugs "hundreds of titles." www.americanradiohistory.com

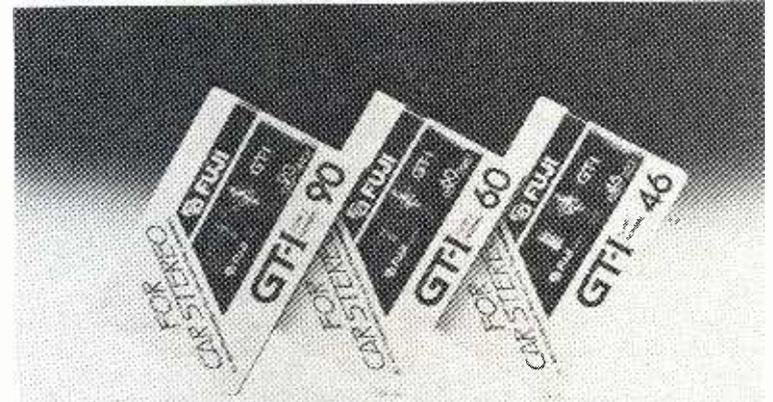

New Products

Adcom of East Brunswick, N.J. introduces its first new line of Dual turntables since its distributorship deal with the West German company. Both the 500 and 600 series feature sophisticated suspension systems with tonearm, platter and complete drive system isolated from the base by four independent shock absorbers.

The Covox Co. of Eugene, Ore. introduces the Voice Master, a digital speech recording device that allows Commodore 64 owners to enter individual words or phrases through a microphone and play them back in any order with simple BASIC instructions. Each word requires about 400 bytes, and the addressable vocabulary size is limited only by available memory. Voice Masters for other popular computers will be on the market soon.

To overcome heat damage sustained by cassettes in car sound systems, Fuji has introduced the GT-I series. The cassettes feature heat resistant shells and heavy-duty base and binders. The tapes can endure temperatures up to 230 degrees.

MAXELL ADVANCES STATE OF THE ART TECHNOLOGY TO A HIGHER STATE.

MAXELL INTRODUCES THREE NEW PREMIUM PRODUCTS.

Over the years, Maxell has been the leader in the audio/video/computer software business. And the advanced tape technology used to create our three new products will keep us on top for years to come.

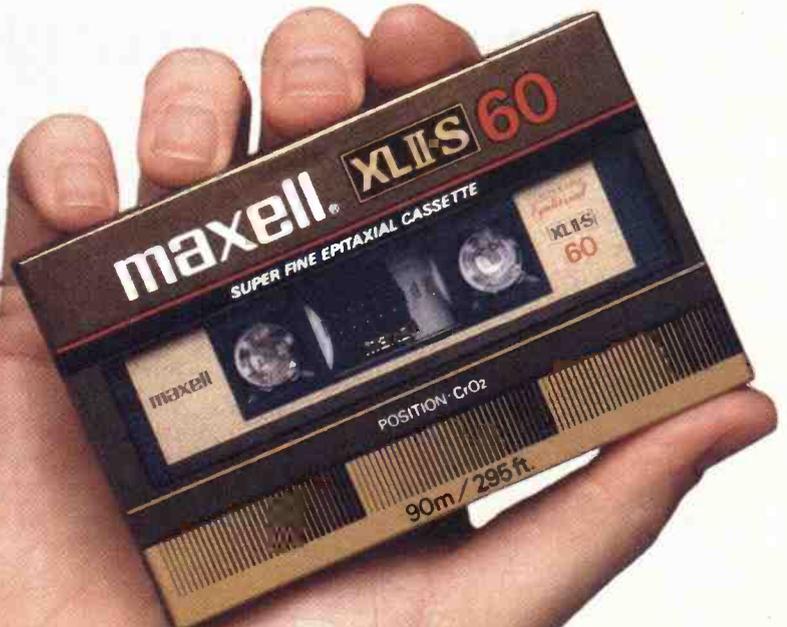

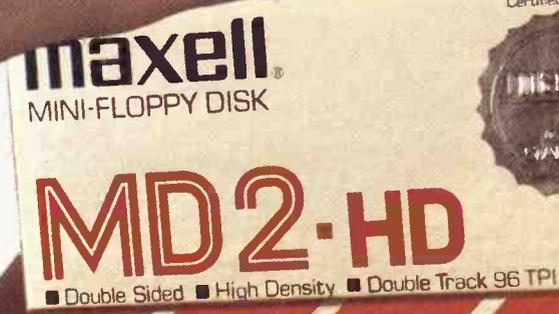

For the new XL-S Recording Tape, we developed a superfine Epitaxial formulation. This greatly increases its dynamic range, making the XL-S the ideal tape for all high performance recording needs and perfect for digital audio disc recording.

We also developed a totally new Epitaxial formulation for HGX Gold Videotape. Its superfine particles deliver brighter chroma levels and higher audio sensitivity. And the binding process, using molecular fusion, gives our new VHS and Beta video cassettes unmatched durability.

For the new Gold Standard Floppy Disks, which exceed the industry standards in error-free performance and durability, we have developed an improved jacket. It is heat-resistant to 140° to withstand drive heat without thermal expansion and without risk of mistracking. This further extends disk life.

But product advances alone won't sell new products. So Maxell backs you up with one of the best marketing programs in the industry. And that gives you profits few can match.

Second-Hand Disks Pay Off For San Francisco Chain

By EARL PAIGE

LOS ANGELES—Principals of decade-old Used Record Shoppe see the trade-in and second-hand side of the record business continuing to grow and gain respectability. Used records, in fact, have allowed the three-unit San Francisco chain to enlarge its new product offerings.

One element not often considered as crucial for conventional record/tape store location is that of locating used record outlets near major traffic arteries.

"Our philosophy has been to stay near Highway 101 as we add stores, because in the used record business you have to make it extra convenient in that customers are bringing records to you," says Tom Strange, manager at the chain's nine-month-old Mill Valley unit.

Used Record Shoppe has a unique history in store location in that founders Jim Throckmorton and Marty Arbutich originally opened at 701 Irving in San Francisco on a balcony of a Record Factory unit, in 1973. Three years later, when the 30-unit Record Factory opened a unit in San Rafael, Used Record Shoppe was invited to lease next door.

The proximity to Record Factory is no accident, according to Ernie DeLisle, the San Rafael manager, who has been with Throckmorton and Arbutich from the start. He notes that each store generates its own traffic, but that they are totally complementary.

Noting the first departure from the cozy relationship with the chain, Strange says the move to Mill Valley in May did not involve an adjacent Record Factory. "Also, Record Factory is moving about four blocks away in San Rafael and we're staying." This means, say Strange and DeLisle, that more new records and tapes will be carried. "We're 50% new product in Mill Valley," Strange says, "but in San Rafael we did not want to compete that much with Record Factory."

On the question of adding more stores, the three managers are reserved. The company is not just in retail. Arbutich, an avid private collector, launched Solid Smoke Records as a label featuring '50s music and then shuttered it. Now he's launched a new label, Double Dare.

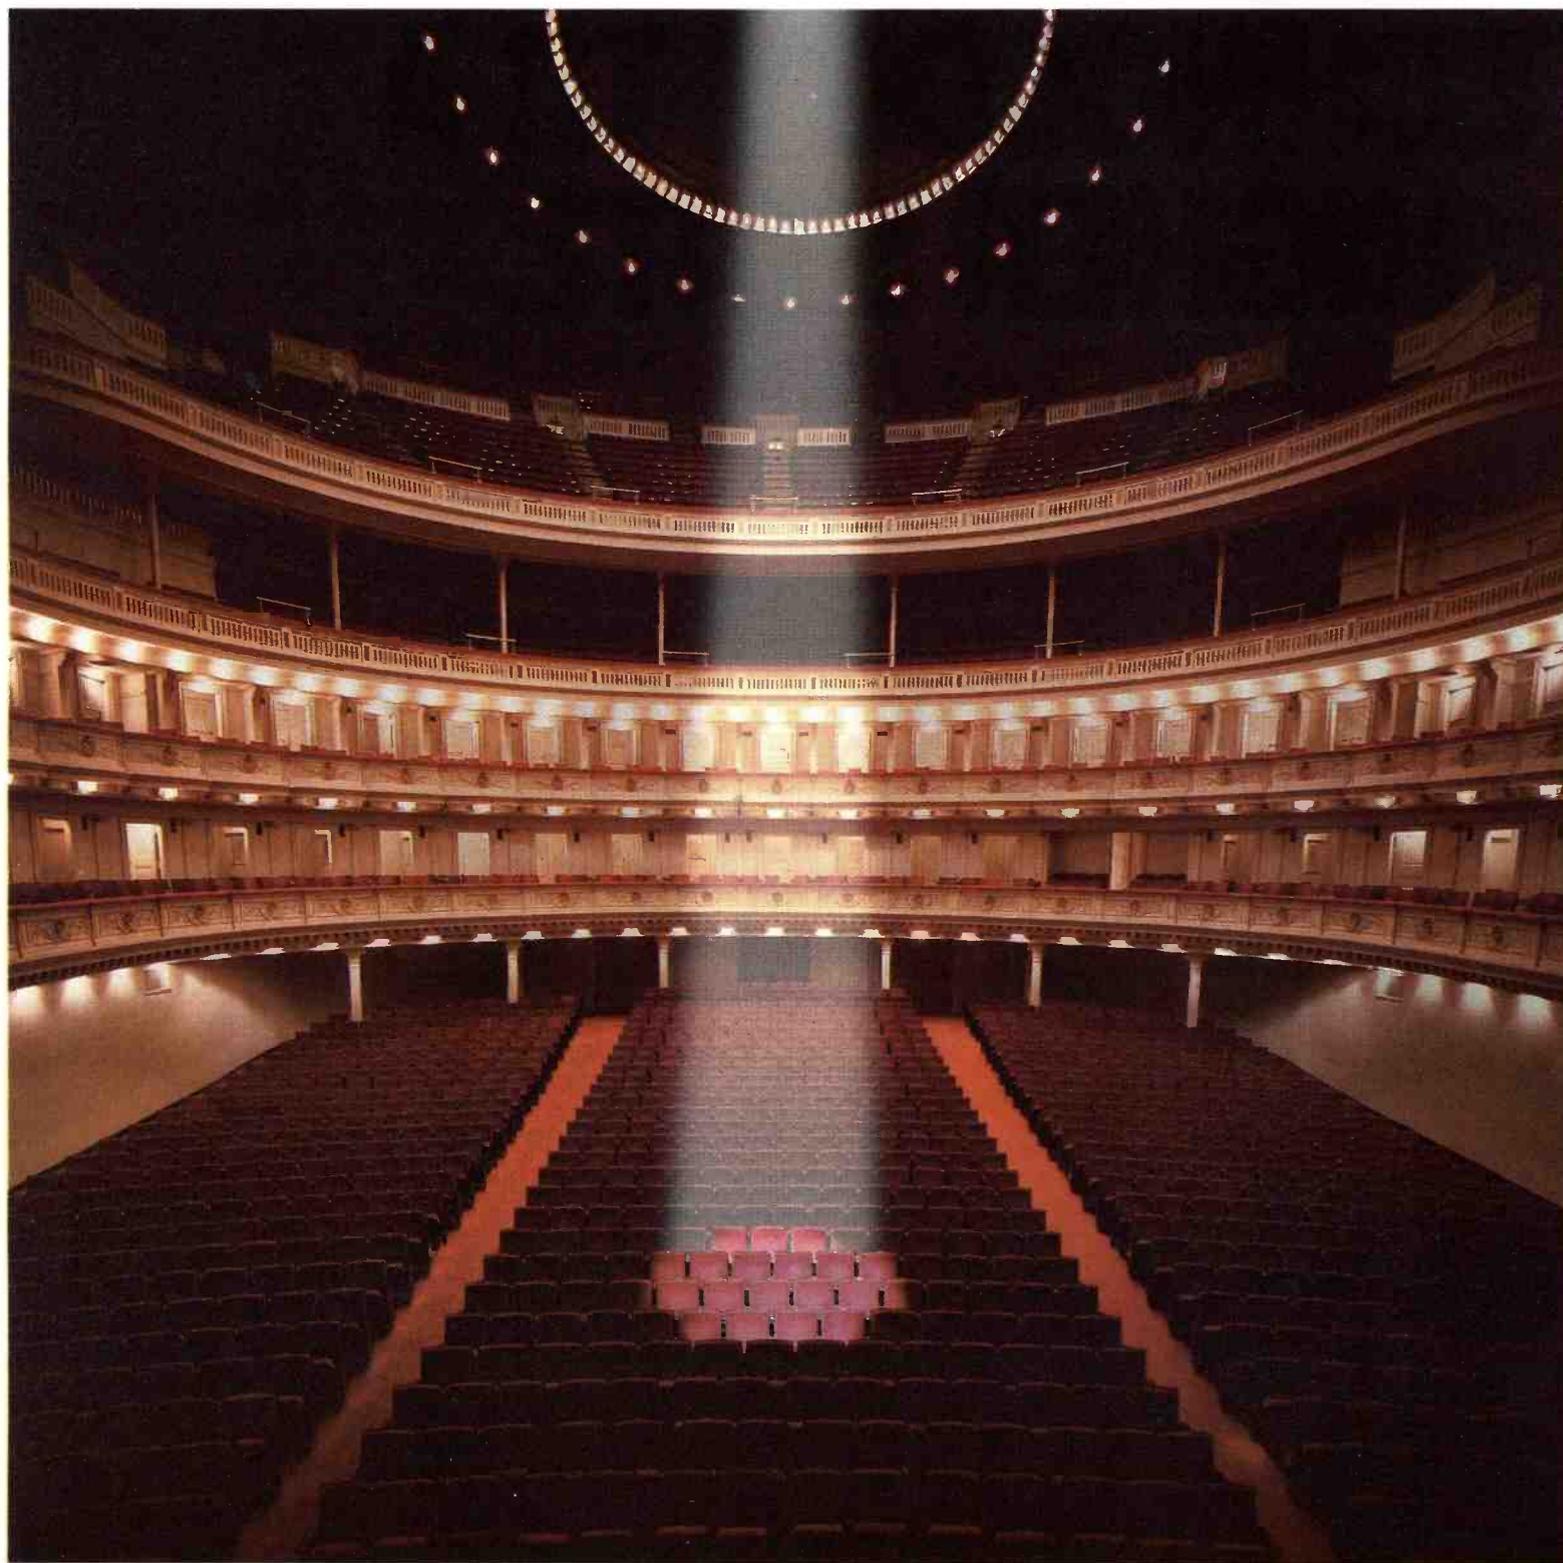

Strange and DeLisle indicate that Arbutich felt Solid Smoke was taking too much of his time. The co-owner for the past year or so has directed more attention to the stores. Strange, DeLisle and White, all industry veterans in their 30s, offer a combined experience that finds all three units operating comparatively autonomously.

All buy separately. Co-owner Throckmorton, whose specialty is bookkeeping, is the glue that holds the operation on course. The chain employs 15 people.

Over the years, Used Record Shoppe's very name has at times worried management. "We're playing up just the 'Record Shoppe' part of the name in our logo," says Strange. He says the chain has a strict policy of discouraging home taping and has never rented.

Moreover, a policy of high-quality used disks, along with a practice of offering test play in the store as well as a guarantee, finds Used Record Shoppe enjoying a reputation that has spread internationally. "We get people in here from Europe, and they go wild when they find they can try out records," says Strange.

INTRODUCING THE SONY COMPACT DISC PLAYER.

You are looking at an invention so extraordinary that High Fidelity magazine has hailed it as "the most fundamental change in audio technology in more than eighty years."

A piece of audio equipment that permits you to hear something you've never heard before: perfection.

Sony is pleased to raise the curtain on the world's first digital audio compact disc player. The CDP-101.

THE END OF HI-INFIDELITY.

The CDP-101 uses a laser beam to play compact discs that hold far more musical information than conventional records ever could. The result: fidelity and depth of sound that no conventional turntable could ever deliver.

This highest of fidelity remains faithful too. Because the digital discs are read by laser beam, there is absolutely no physical wear. Nor is there any distortion from such annoyances as dust, fingerprints or even scratches. The laser simply sees through them.

Equally ingenious, an infrared remote control lets you select tracks without budging from your armchair.

While an ever-expanding library of compact discs lets you listen to your favorite artists as though you, and your armchair, were centered in the spotlight above.

Maybe most important, the CDP-101 is fully compatible with the conventional equipment you may own.

We suggest you hear the Sony Compact Disc Player soon. For a sound you can't believe, from the audio innovator you assuredly can.

Store Branches Out Into Video Rental & More

LOS ANGELES—While many record/tape stores are diversifying into video rental, few have branched out as much as DJ's Music & Video. The store—located in Temecula, between here and San Diego—has adjuncts ranging from musical instruments and lessons to a video arcade next door with 33 machines.

Managing all this demands a sophistication that is being supplied by a Star Tracer computer. Cheryl Dublino, one of four co-owners, says that getting a handle on the complexity of video rental was a first priority. Volume runs 200-300 movies daily, jumping to 500-700 on weekends. The solution was bar coding the membership card to match the bar coded library folder.

"If six people dump movies all at once on Monday morning and one is broken," Dublino says, "we can instantly match the bar coding and identify the customer." She says that computerization has streamlined the whole video rental process.

Opening in 1979 in just 1,200 square feet, the store went to video early this year in a new 2,300 square foot location. The size accommodated the musical instrument department and the burgeoning video hardware section. Four music teachers are employed.

The growth in video rental has been explosive, Dublino says. "We started with just 40 movies. Now we have 1,400 and more every day."

There is no audio hardware, but this might be the next product expansion. The four owners, brothers Jim and Dom Dublino and their wives Cheryl and Marie, all in their 30s, are intrigued by the Compact Disc.

Then there's the arcade. Now situated in a shopping center, DJ's operates an annex arcade with 33 video games handled by a supplier/contractor. The arcade idea evolved as a way for music students waiting for lessons to entertain themselves. It's now a profit center, too.

It all adds up to a lively location. There's a Slater Bros. grocery on one side of DJ's and the Winchester movie theatre and a fast food restaurant, Naugles, on the other side.

Despite the arcade, the Dublinos have never carried video games in the store. "We just touched on it, and it was so changeable, so hard to handle," Cheryl says. They likewise may take a pass on computer software, not wanting to go too far in diversification. However, because the store revolves around its own computer, Cheryl isn't ruling out computers yet.

DJ's involvement in musical instruments and lessons derives from Jim's and Dom's early career as musicians in a club act called Fun Factory. In fact, DJ's was initially called DJ's Music Factory. "They still keep their hand in, doing parties for friends and so on," says Cheryl. The two couples were Orange County residents. "We took a drive and fell in love with the area," she says, describing it as "semi-rural, with minimum developments of an acre."

Happily, DJ's has no nearby competition. "It's 35 minutes to Wherehouse, Licorice Pizza and the other chains (nearer San Diego)." All the same, LPs and tapes are discounted to $7.98. In addition, the store stocks a plentiful offering of midline and regularly features sale prices.

In music, Cheryl says the inventory is full-line except classical. "We feel that if we can't offer a more complete selection we will special order it." Singles are maintained only on a top 20 basis; here, too, special ordering is involved.

Acknowledging that the store opened in the depths of the record industry slump, Cheryl says, "All our friends warned us. We never knew the good times." But there was the benefit of having a lock on the burgeoning community of Temecula, plus the video.

So far, DJ's has not felt the competitive thrust of Licorice Pizza and Wherehouse in video rental, with their $2 pricing, because DJ's was always at that price: "We used to drive around Orange County and be amazed at the prices dealers were getting for rental." DJ's does offer every seventh movie rental free. Club membership is $25 yearly or $75 for lifetime. While all video inventory initially was VHS, Beta is now making a comeback. "We bought out a competitor (video store) and that brought up our Beta ratio," Cheryl says. DJ's never experimented with videodisks.

Describing DJ's as a "mini K-mart" for all its diversification, Cheryl Dublino says there is a cross-pollination between record/tape and movie customers, "especially in product like 'Flashdance.'" In fact, we initially saw adding video in terms of prerecorded video concerts."

Giant $39.95 hits like "Raiders of The Lost Ark" will revolutionize the video retail business, the Dublinos think. In terms of total transactions, not volume, rental is still 80%. The store is signing on with the Video Software Dealers Assn. to join in the First Sale Doctrine battle.

Cheryl says 70 copies of "Raiders" sold out immediately. "I wish we had 'Star Wars' at $39.95 instead of $69.95," she adds. EARL PAIGE

FOUR STORES SET FOR REMODELING

JR's Chain Continues Expansion

By MOIRA McCORMICK

CHICAGO—The JR's Music Shop chain here continues to grow, having recently opened new outlets in Milwaukee and downstate Illinois, with another pair of stores set to debut early next year at unspecified locations. In addition, says president Bob Kennedy, at least four of the chain's 22 existing outlets are to undergo remodeling to the tune of $50,000 each with completion set for next June.

Kennedy says that the unusual holiday openings of the Milwaukee and Washington, Ill. locations were necessary because of lease arrangements. "Rather than waiting till next year, we chose to open now," he explains, adding that "a lot of nights and weekends," were devoted to the projects. The Milwaukee outlet opened in early November, the Washington store Dec. 1. Kennedy says he prefers not to reveal the locations of the two stores set for opening in March, 1984, due to incomplete leases.

The four JR's Music Shops scheduled for remodeling include the flagship store at the Yorktown Mall in suburban Lombard, as well as those located in Peoria, North Riverside, and Ford City in Southern Chicago. Kennedy says the remodeling will update these stores' look to that found in the newest JR's outlets, with "gray, modernistic, neon-lit" interiors.

In addition to new openings and remodeling, JR's continues to centralize its administration and inventory in a new 8,000 square foot central office/warehouse in suburban Rolling Meadows. Computerization of those procedures has been under way since last August, according to Kennedy, and is "complete in all areas save inventory control, which will be implemented completely by February."

Previously, Kennedy says, administration and warehousing had been headquartered in three separate buildings, including the back of the Rolling Meadows store.

Another innovation expected for the first of the year is the test addition of video software to the Rolling Meadows outlet of JR's budget branch, Oranges. Video titles will be sold outright or rented at $3-5 per 48-hour period, according to Kennedy.

Mickey Mouse Dealer Offer From Disney Vid

LOS ANGELES—Walt Disney Home Video will launch a new dealer promotion starting Jan. 1 whereby dealers ordering 12 qualifying videocassette titles from the company's new catalog will receive a free men's or women's Mickey Mouse watch.

Over 50 Disney feature films and cartoon titles may be applied towards the watch offer, including "Tex," "The Love Bug," "Mary Poppins" and "Something Wicked This Way Comes." Disney titles scheduled to be removed from the market as of Jan. 31 also apply to this promotion. These include ITA Golden Videocassette Award winners "Pete's Dragon," "Alice In Wonderland," "Bedknobs And Broomsticks," "The Many Adventures Of Winnie The Pooh" and six cartoon collections.

The seven titles offered in Walt Disney's "Wrapped And Ready To Give" Christmas promotion, all Muppet Home Video titles, and Bill Burrud's "Amazing Animal World" titles do not qualify. The offer ends Jan. 31.

Used Record Shoppe Chain

Used records are not shrink-wrapped but are integrated with new copies in alphabetized sections. New product remains sealed. One turntable is available in each store. "We have a 10-minute limit unless we're not crowded," notes Strange, adding that all three units are in high-traffic locations.

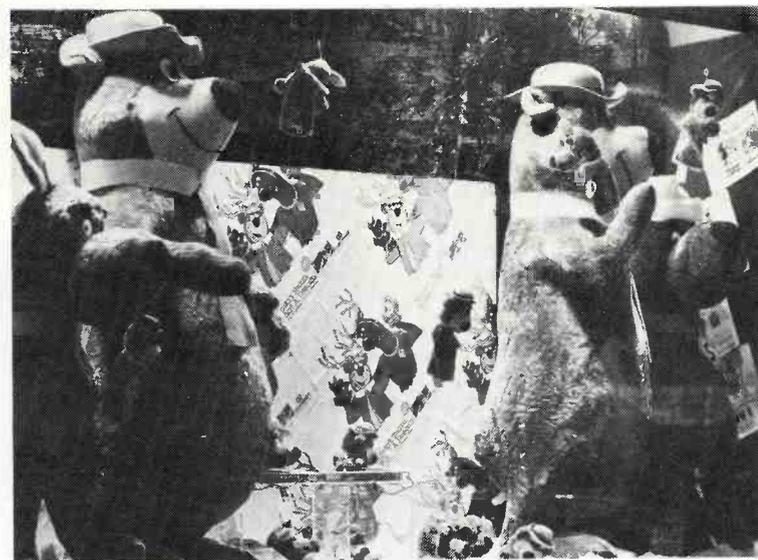

Prices paid for used LPs range from 50 cents to $2. If the record was originally purchased from the store, Used Record Shoppe will offer a customer $2.50. However, $3 in trade value is offered. In fact, the trade value allows the stores to sell new product at $7.99, a comfortable list in highly competitive San Francisco.

While day-in, day-out collectors come in with three or four used records, the chain also buys whole lots. The stock of a mail order record marketer recently swelled inventory by 10,000 titles.

Used Record Shoppe got into emphasizing quality years ago, say DeLisle and Strange, because San Francisco is a center for used record stores. What causes most damage to disks, according to Strange, is just plain carelessness.

"Kids just don't think. They take out an LP and slap it around. Then they bring it in for trade and the cover is often perfect but it's all nicked. They paid $8 for it, but we just won't bother with anything that is going to be a problem."

The Used Record Shoppe managers note that while second-hand recordings remain an integral part of the chain's success, emphasis is growing in the area of cutouts and import

YOGI'S ON THE GO—Worldvision Home Video star Yogi Bear makes his debut at New York's Thanksgiving Day Parade before making an in-store appearance with his pal Scooby Doo at the Video Shack there. The two are working hard to promote the Worldvision videocassettes "Yogi's First Christmas" and "Scooby & Scrappy Doo."

Our games have birthdays, but they don't get old.

Say Happy Birthday to two of the biggest hits in the business.

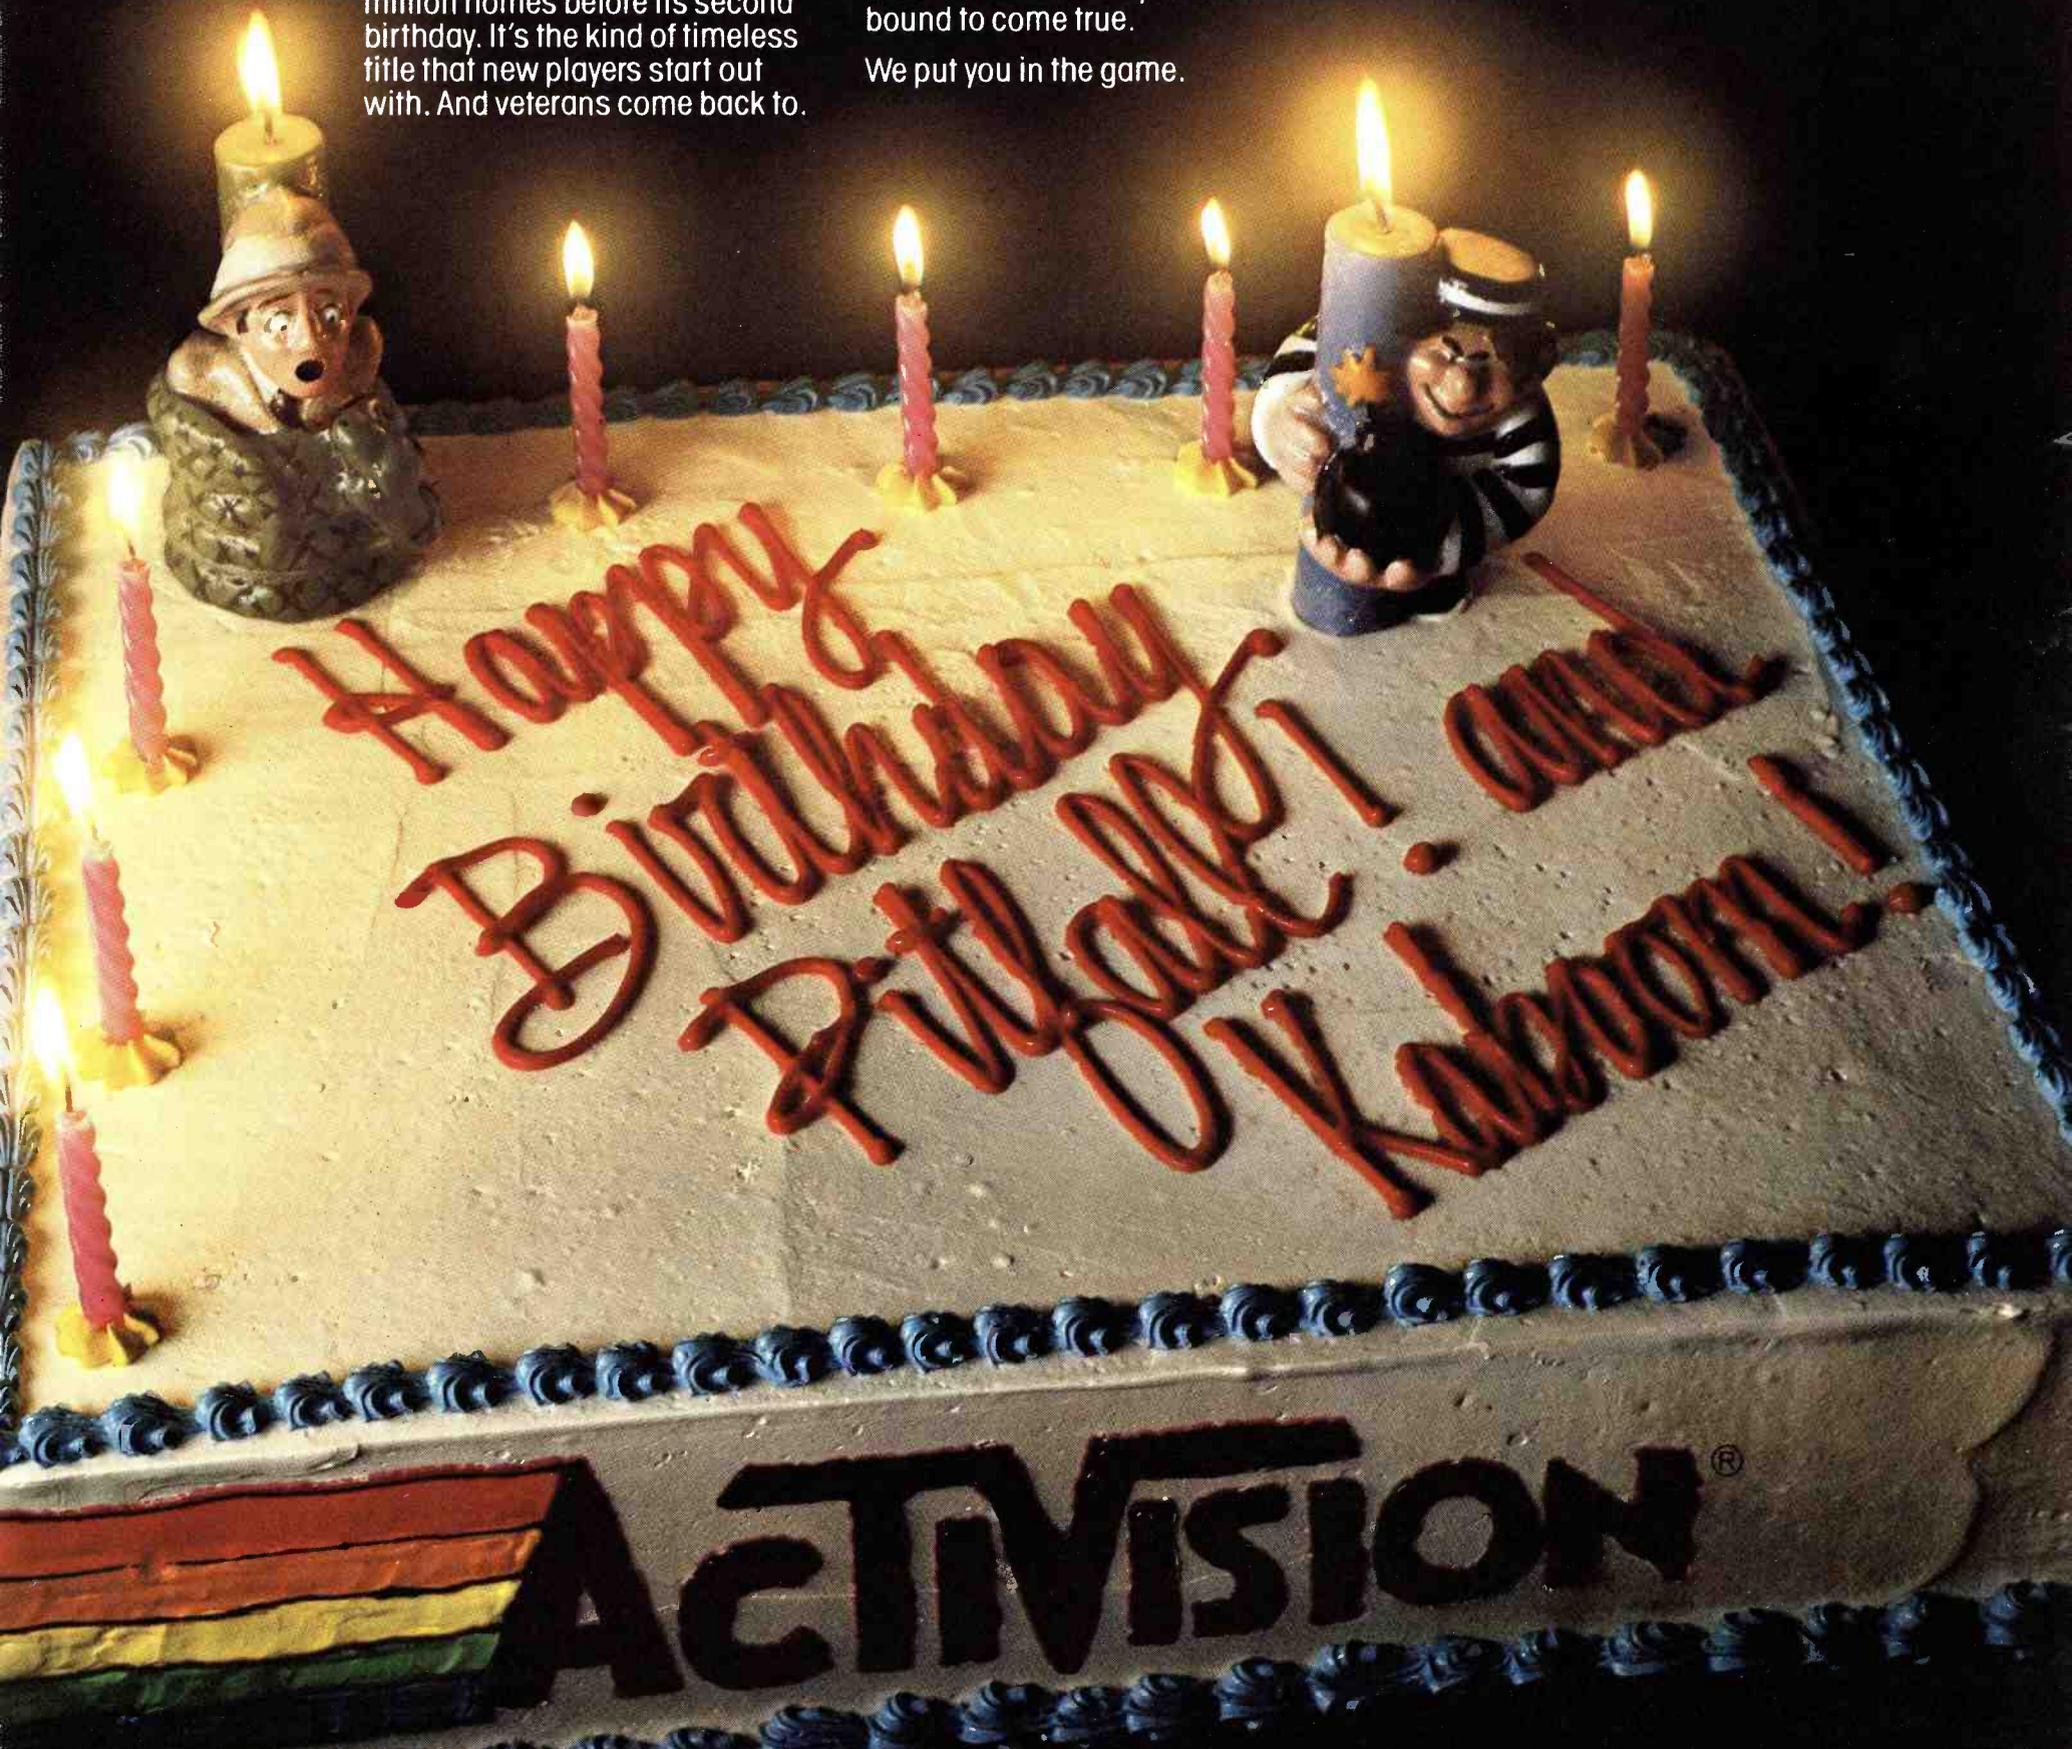

Pitfall!™ Billboard's #1 Game for 15 weeks straight. And it's still a top-selling hit after a year. No wonder they named it Billboard's Game of the Year.

Kaboom!™ It was in one-and-a-half million homes before its second birthday. It's the kind of timeless title that new players start out with. And veterans come back to.

Why don't these games get old? Because they were designed around an original idea. A big idea. And that makes them more than just hits. That makes them classics.

So blow out the candles, and wish for more of the same from Activision. Because your wish is bound to come true.

We put you in the game.

“THEY LAUGHED WHEN WE SAT DOWN TO THE TYPEWRITER AND STARTED TO PLAY...”

Eight years ago, my partner Sam Holdsworth and I played music for a living. And although there were dozens of music magazines already in the market, not a single one of them satisfied our musical interests or appealed to our sense of the art. Realizing the need for such a publication, we set aside our instruments and Musician Magazine was born.

For the next two years, Musician built its credibility by delivering the most in-depth interviews with the most interesting and influential artists, providing information that serviced the music professional while satisfying the active music consumer.

In 1979, we caught the interest and imagination of the entire music industry when we published a very special Paul McCartney interview that broke his long silence on the Beatle years, and produced it on record in cooperation with CBS Records. After the album's second pressing, Musician became the first publication ever to be recognized by the National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences (NARAS) with a Grammy nomination.

Since then, we have continued to strengthen our position and impact on the market. In 1981, Musician was bought by Billboard Publications to continue publishing as the leading consumer music magazine. We consistently upgraded our look and improved upon a format that had already become the new standard for other magazines to follow - Musician has won fifteen art and design awards from both the Art Directors Club and Society of Publication Designers. And just this past October, Musician was voted "Magazine of the Year," 1983, by 4,000 executives from the fields of recording, radio, video and publishing at the New Music Awards in New York City.

Now, as 1984 begins, we find ourselves with over 400,000 readers, with the typical reader being anything but typical: writers, producers, programmers, engineers, record executives, artist management and, of course, the largest and most accomplished musician audience around. The story continues but we believe the moral has been told. Whether your involvement with music is for profit or pleasure, you owe it to yourself to subscribe to Musician today.

Softwaire Centres Stages Long Beach Opening

By FAYE ZUCKERMAN

LONG BEACH, Calif.—Softwaire Centres International recently opened a store here via grand opening festivities that included free giveaways and demonstrations by manufacturer representatives. Bill Budge, who authored "Pinball Construction Set," was there showing prospective customers some tricks and gimmicks for his popular program.

Ashton-Tate's West Coast representative explained "dBase II" to a crowd that numbered about 75. Continental Software set up self-running demonstrations for its "Ultra File" package on the store's two IBM display units.

The store, which measures 3,000 square feet, opened for business nearly six weeks ago. Computer software is displayed face forward along the walls. Educational software is separated out and labeled. Due to its cost, business/home management software is strategically placed behind the main counter.

Some 2,000 software packages are sold there, explain Rod Ohlwiler and Jack McDonald, the store owners. Nearly 20% of the store's sales are entertainment software titles, with Broderbund and Electronic Arts titles the top sellers, they say.

The business/home management area makes up the bulk of their sales, "about 50%," says McDonald. Educational software sales are about 15%.

"A big draw is our books," Ohlwiler comments. The store's book displays appear in rows down the center of the store. Some 100 different computer book titles are offered. Off to the side, computer magazines are on sale.

Customers, generally students, come into the store to browse its book selection. "Usually, a person who is contemplating buying a computer will purchase an introductory book and read about the industry before making a buying decision," says McDonald. But, adds Ohlwiler, "We get a group of technically-oriented customers who want to buy books."

A common scene at their store, they say, is a youngster dragging his or her parents into the store to investigate software. "Many times people analyze software offerings for various computer systems before making a hardware purchase," Ohlwiler notes.

Additionally, a number of their repeat customers are first-time computer owners who have bought software from a mass merchandiser and then come by the store to learn how to use it.

SALE/RENTAL AT PATHMARK

Grocery Video Trial A Success

LOS ANGELES — Pathmark Stores has informed Win Records and Video, Long Island City, N.Y., that the trial phase of an experiment in the sale and rental of prerecorded video in its supermarkets is a success.

Sam Weiss of Win set up the $50,000 trial department in a pre-selected Pathmark outlet several months ago. Fixturing, Weiss says, was a joint effort. Weiss says he feels that all 80 of the Pathmark stores in the East will eventually have video departments.

An atmosphere of open merchandising was created, with Win taking all prerecorded Beta and VHS packages, breaking them open and inserting a Styrofoam block into the empty carton and re-shrinkbagging it. These dummy containers are placed out in stock. All videocassettes are maintained behind the counter in storage boxes.

The Pathmark stores will not have a video club. Customers pay a deposit and rent for $3 per day, Weiss said. Pathmark departments will also sell videocassettes. Thus far, no videodisks are being stocked or rented.

Weiss worked out the stocking arrangement with Jack Futterman of Pathmark.

JOHN SIPPEL

Tower Favorable Toward Romox Software Units

LOS ANGELES—Response to Romox electronic software distribution units has been favorable among Tower Records stores, which were included in the company's test market. "The unit saves us having to do stock balancing," says Mike Joy, manager of the Concorde Tower Records in California.

The only complaint retailers have about the unit is that it doesn't offer most of the top-selling software titles. "It only offers a limited number of titles," Joy says.

The positive response to the Romox system by Tower Records is welcomed by the chain, whose vice president of sales Stan Goman admits that Tower has had a difficult time dealing with computer software. "Initially, we failed miserably at selling such products," he says.

Meanwhile, company chairman Paul Terrell reports that the machine has been updated to include self-running demonstrations of the game. He plans to offer third-party vendors commercial time on the unit for a fee.

Romox has currently signed 32 vendors and offers 117 titles. Terminals have been placed in bookstores as well. It is believed that select Warehouse record stores will begin to carry the units.

In addition to offering the terminals in America, Terrell has investigated the foreign market and will start to distribute software electronically in Canada, Germany, France and the U.K.

Some feel that Romox might do well in foreign markets where software imported from the U.S. is nearly double the price. "The cost is only that of an international telephone call while the game is being downloaded," Terrell notes.

TO MAKE A CASSETTE TAPE SOUND LIKE MUSIC, YOU'VE GOT TO KNOW WHAT MUSIC SOUNDS LIKE.

Think about it. What other tape manufacturer also builds professional recording equipment including 24-track and digital studio tape recorders? What other tape manufacturer has 72 years of experience as a major record company? Other tape manufacturers may talk about "digital ready," but do you know Denon developed the digital recording process in 1972?

It is this unique combination of technical and musical expertise that led Denon to use Dynamic Distortion Testing to optimize DX cassette tape performance in the presence of real musical signals, not mere laboratory test tones. The result is the most musical of all cassette tape. Denon DX-Cassette tape. When we claim it's better, we say it with music.

SOFTWARE CHART ANALYSIS

Arcade Games Maintain Momentum

By FAYE ZUCKERMAN

Conversions of popular arcade video games to computer media continue to show "hit" qualities, just as they did when they were first converted to be played on video game machines. The marked movement of "Q-Bert," which jumps from number 11 to number 8 this week on the entertainment software chart, underlines the fact that classic arcade titles consistently command healthy sales.

"Zaxxon" and "Frogger," two other arcade conversions, have maintained top positions on the entertainment chart for nearly 11 weeks. "Zaxxon" moved into the No. 1 position for two weeks seven weeks ago.

This week's new entry, "Pole Position," is a top arcade game that has also enjoyed healthy sales as a video game. This week, the title, which enters the chart at number 16, is said to be Atari's second-best seller on the 2600 game system.

"Pole Position" entered the arcades in January, 1983. Atari licensed the rights to the game from Namco, and its arcade division took charge of the game's distribution. It was an overnight success in the arcades.

Game action entails driving in the yearly Japanese grand prix at the Fuji racetrack. As in the Japanese race, gamers need to qualify for a race or pole position. Once qualified, players drive against eight other cars.

The home computer version of the title shipped in early November. It is offered only as a cartridge for Atari computers.

Another new entry onto the Billboard computer charts is the 1983 version of "Tax Advantage," published by Continental Software. It enters the chart at number 9, and is said to have sold some 9,000 copies the first week it entered the marketplace. The IBM version goes into distribution this week.

Authored by the programming team of Harry Koons and Henry Hilton, the tax program prepares and can print information directly onto 1983's tax forms. It also integrates with the company's "Home Accountant." Hence, one's financial information can be transformed onto a "Tax Advantage" diskette, put into "tax" form, and then printed out onto the appropriate IRS form.

Now Playing Apple Software Offers Course In Music Theory

By FAYE ZUCKERMAN

A Sherman Oaks, Calif. company that until now was primarily concerned with publishing music instruction books and sheet music has launched the only music theory computer software instruction package for Apple computers. Developed by composer/arranger/author Sandy Feldstein, the package includes three volumes accompanied by supplemental textbooks and diskettes.

The package, entitled "Practical Theory Of Music," sequentially takes the user through a series of tasks which must be successfully completed before moving up a level. The user is reinforced not only visually, but aurally.

Alfred Publishing Co. Inc. spearheaded the introduction. The entire package will cost $199.95 suggested retail, or $79.95 for each volume and two diskettes when sold separately.

And now for more music: A new entry in the teach-yourself-music-at-home field comes from a joint venture between Hal Leonard Publishing and Syntauri Corp. of Los Altos, Calif. Leonard's music teaching books, "Medley Way For Piano" and Syntauri's "Simply Music," a software package for Apple computers, have been combined to form a music learning package.

The first course takes the learner through introductory keyboard exercises to some advanced classical se-

Two on one: Boston Celtic Larry Bird and Philadelphia 76er Julius "Dr. J" Erving have teamed up with Electronic Arts programmer Eric Hammond to create a basketball simulation game.

The game reproduces seemingly real-life images of players moving about a basketball court. To make real-life graphics, Hammond studied films of Bird and Erving, who go one-on-one in the game, says company president Trip Hawkins.

Entitled "One-On-One," the game is only available on Apple computers at a $40 suggested retail price. Atari and Commodore versions are slated for 1984 launches. In the game, look for a 24-second-shot clock, a scoreboard and a backboard which shatters if a player makes a forceful dunk.

Retailer casualty: Although unavailable for comment, the Intellectrix store chain, based in San Antonio, reportedly liquidated its computer wares and closed up its estimated 15 stores. The retail outlet sold Texas Instruments, Atari and Commodore products only. It was a victim of 1983's severe price slashing and the resulting glut of heavily discounted product during the market's shakeout.

Mitchell H. Kaliff, the chain's buyer, noted in an interview earlier this year that the stores' sales were higher than expected. He said that other local retailers used Intellectrix stores as a model to scheme their way into the computer business. After nearly four years, one of the oldest computer store chains appears to have permanently posted the "closed" sign in its windows.

New conversions: Carol Shaw-created "River Raid" now plays on Intellivision systems. It will cost $34.95. On the Intellivision, River Raiders can start at more advanced levels, the software's publisher Activision notes.

Look for Broderbund to roll out "Drol" on diskette for Commodore 64 and Atari computers. In game play, users are expected to save a little girl and her beanie brother, who have wandered off. It will cost $34.95.

Print On Print

This column offers dealers a sampling of major new folio releases.

Hal Leonard Publishing has made an exclusive print representation agreement with Neil Diamond's publishing companies, calling for Hal Leonard to represent Diamond's songs in all areas of print, including matching folios to all albums by the superstar. First project under the deal is a matching piano/vocal folio of "Classics—The Early Years." Prior to the agreement, Hal Leonard produced several Diamond publications on a project-by-project basis. Also at Hal Leonard, the company and Syntauri Corp. have joined forces to offer a new learning program for beginning keyboard students. Deal combines Hal Leonard's "Medley Way For Piano" teaching method books with Syntauri's "Simply Music" Apple II-based computer music system.

Newcomers from Warner Bros. Music Publications include "An American In Paris Plus 43 Creative Piano Solos," compiled and edited by Dan Coates ($8.95), "Elvis Costello's Everyday I Write The Book" ($14.95) and Dan Coates' "The Best In Pops—Piano Solo Arrangements" ($5.95).

Cherry Lane Music has marketed the first collection of Def Leppard Music—appropriately called "Def Leppard" ($9.95), and part of Cherry Lane's "Play It Like It Is" series of guitar books.

Columbia Pictures Publications' new entries include "Theme From Ice Castle Plus 15 Pop Classics" ($6.95); "I'd Rather Be Playing . . . Book 3," a series of $4.95 publications with a dozen songs for piano/vocal, easy piano, Big Note piano, easy organ and guitar; and, from Big 3, "50 Easy Clarinet Solos" ($9.95).

Music Plus Plans CES Trip

LOS ANGELES—Perhaps the best informed group of store managers on 1984 home electronics and accessories will be the 29 Music Plus and two Videon store bosses who take their second annual junket to the Consumer Electronics Show, Jan. 7-8.

In conjunction with Maxell and its Southern California rep, Jack Carter & Associates, Music Plus toppers Lou Fogelman and Dave Berkowitz will shepherd the 31 managers, along with accessories buyers Shelly Tucker and Dave Bradley, chief buyer Mitch Perlis and creative services director Alan Schwartz.

The Music Plus entourage assembles in Pasadena, where buses will transport them to Las Vegas. There they will visit the Convention Center show base starting at noon on Saturday.

Fogelman says that managers and six assistant managers on the trip will be asked to make written recommendations to purchasing as to which new products they viewed at CES should be introduced in their stores.

CABLE PROJECT FOR DISNEY CHANNEL

Steve Allen Opens 'Music Room'

By SAM SUTHERLAND

LOS ANGELES—Classic jazz performers play key roles in a new cable music project helmed by Steve Allen, and it's hardly an accident: "Steve Allen's Music Room," a series of six one-hour music specials slated for airing over the Disney Channel next year, actually stems from a cable jazz series planned by the veteran entertainer.

"The original concept was something I devised for a company called UTV," explains Allen. "It was just to be limited to jazz. We'd take an hour, book all the great orchestras and musicians, and that was it."

Instead, Allen says, the prospective cable partner went under, a victim of the financial vulnerability of the cable marketplace. Then, a new outlet materialized via overtures from Disney's Jim Jimirro.

Allen and Jimirro agreed to shift the focus beyond jazz, with the projected host and producer supplying a new, broader goal. "The criteria were simply that it should be very good music," Allen recalls.

Thus, the six shows taped here over the past two weeks offer a mix of traditional pop stylists and veteran jazz and big band artists, a mix which somewhat underscores the degree to which pre-rock pop is now directly adjacent to "straight-ahead" acoustic jazz. Artist pairings include Sarah Vaughan with Henry Mancini, Rosemary Clooney with Lou Rawls and Joe Williams with Paul Williams. Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme and a package offering Burt Bacharach, Carole Bayer Sager and Anthony Newley complete the first six shows, with Allen's wife, Jayne Meadows, featured on two of the programs.

Allen himself is hardly apologetic about the musical mix, his own disinterest in modern rock and pop (an attitude he evinced in rock's infancy) unchanged. "If the sound of people throwing up could sell, you could be confident that someone would be most eager to record it," he says.

On a more serious note, however, Allen contends that older jazz and pop performers may have a reach little understood by the industry's mainstream. Arguing that there's "a counter-movement to the record business as it's existed in recent years," he suggests there's a younger adult market for traditional fare, one he's witnessed during his own live concerts and lecture tours.

Thus, while he expects that the show's initial appeal will be to older adults who've followed Allen since his emergence during television's "golden age" in the '50s, the prolific composer, comedian, pianist and writer clearly hopes he'll pull younger viewers raised on rock but ready for jazz and classic pop.

The show's format, he notes, is itself rooted in the straightforward live format of '50s television. "It was very much like slipping into the groove of those nights on the old 'Tonight' show when we'd specialize in music," he observes.

In those less structured days, the presence of a major performer could easily yield spontaneous changes in plans to accommodate longer sets or impromptu collaborations with Allen or other guests. Toward that end, the "Music Room" taping was conducted without tight scripting. Allen encouraged band members to speak up, "as they would in rehearsal," a form of exchange shared with his past variety series.

Less obviously, Allen's own kinship with musicians and his respect for strong playing has inspired some unusual elements to the new series. With a blue chip big band assembled from such musical strongholds as Terry Gibbs' big band and the current "Tonight" orchestra, Allen insisted on keeping the players on camera throughout much of the taping. "When we had them do solos, we superimposed their names every time," he says. "I feel very strongly about that kind of identification."

Given his bandstand support, Allen can hardly be blamed. Among the 17 members of the core band assembled for the tapings are such veterans as Gibbs, Frank Capp, Alan Broadbent, Pete and Conte Candoli, Med Flory, Plas Johnson, Jerome Richardson, Dick Hyde and Tommy Tedesco.

With the initial six shows finished, Allen says the fate of the project rests with the Disney Channel and its audience. But if viewer response is strong enough, he hopes to create future shows around unknown new talent. Another concept close to Allen's heart—and one familiar from his early days in television—would be the development of these shows around single composers or styles.

Allen's producing the show through his own Meadowlane Productions, and his experiences in creating for cable point up one problem area critical for music. Legal clearances and cable usage fees posed snags for the initial shows, as when last minute problems over certain Bacharach copyrights arose.

Allen contends that publishers seeking the highest fees for cable usage may be pricing their songwriting and composing clients out of the market. "I think it would be smart for music publishers at this point to be cooperative in clearing music for the medium," he argues.

CDs Due From Windham Hill

LOS ANGELES—Windham Hill leaps into the Compact Disc market this month with five CD titles and plans for five more early in 1984.

Label founder (and first artist) William Ackerman has signaled the small Northern California label's intention of transferring its masters to the new laser-read format early. Windham Hill was the first company to contract with Virginia-based Digital Images for CD production.

But Digital Images failed to meet its original schedule of CD manufacturing by late 1983. David Steffen, A&M's sales vice president, says Windham Hill's early start on its CD catalog made it practical to give some of A&M's existing CD capacity to permit manufacturing of the distributed label's product.

Steffen adds that the label's longstanding audiophile image augurs well for Windham Hill's CDs, which also influenced A&M's readiness to give some of its capacity over. Suppliers included Nippon Columbia.

Windham Hill's initial offering includes Ackerman's "Passages," "Solid Colors" by Liz Story, George Winston's "December," "Shadow Dances" by Shadowfax, and the label's 1982 sampler album of various roster acts. Another five are expected to ship sometime during the first two months of 1984.

ALBUM SERIES REVIEW

'Philharmonic' Series Has Something For Everyone

LOS ANGELES—PolyGram's generous release of 10 LPs embracing the best of the "Jazz At The Philharmonic" concerts shapes up as one of the two or three most entertaining series of 1983.

There's not a bomb in the batch, although some of the music is repetitious, and there probably are too many long cuts devoted to ad-libbed blues solos. Still, there's something on all 10 albums for everyone devoted to jazz.

"Bird & Prez At Carnegie Hall 1949" will attract the most attention. Saxophone titans Charlie Parker and Lester Young blow feverishly on four tracks, including two blues, "Lester Leaps In" and "Embraceable You." Roy Eldridge, Buddy Rich and Flip Phillips are also audible.

"The Coleman Hawkins Set" displays the Bean's tenor on seven titles with small combo backing. "Stuffy," "Time On My Hands" and "Yesterdays" are included. The sessions track back to 1950-57.

"The Rarest Concerts" offers Hawkins, Young, Eldridge, Charlie Shavers, Bill Harris, Buck Clayton, Benny Carter, Willie Smith, Ben Webster, Gene Krupa and other stellar jazzmen romping through three

Thiele To Release Ellington Product

NEW YORK—Two albums by Duke Ellington's orchestra will be issued every year on the Doctor Jazz label here as a result of a contract signed last week by the late bandleader's son, Mercer Ellington, and Doctor Jazz president Bob Thiele.

All masters offered in the coming series will be previously unreleased performances by Ellington's big band and his various small groups.

cuts, a 22-minute blues bash from 1953 the standout. Dizzy Gillespie is heard soloing 1954 style on "The Challengers," with Eldridge, Phillips, Harris and Webster contributing valuably to Diz' imaginative trumpet tooting.

"The Challenges" (a subtle difference in LP titles) also showcases Diz, with the same group, while "The Ella Fitzgerald Set" comprises 12 evergreens—all tasty—sung by the First Lady. Charlie Parker appears on her frenetic version of "Flyin' Home."

The Canadian piano virtuoso Oscar Peterson is heard on two albums, "One O'Clock Jump 1953" and "Blues In Chicago 1955." The first offers three tracks, "Jump" running 14:52 with a sterling lineup of Shavers, Eldridge, Harris, Carter, Phillips, Webster, Young, Herb Ellis, Ray Brown and J.C. Heard. "Blues" has Peterson's piano, Illinois Jacquet, Ellis, Rich, Gillespie and other stalwarts collaborating cohesively.

"Norgran Blues 1950" teams Young, Phillips, Rich, Harry Edison, Hank Jones and others on four titles taped at Carnegie Hall, and the 10th set is titled "Gene Krupa & Buddy Rich: The Drum Battle." Lionel Hampton, Barney Kessel and Buddy DeFranco all pop up as soloists, effecting relief from the noisy, boring preponderance of percussion.

The quality of sound varies throughout the series. Some is poor, some is acceptable and some is good. Credit promoter/producer Norman Granz for assembling so many jazz giants of the 20th century. Graphics, and annotation by Bob Porter, are of average quality. Barry Feldman is the executive producer, and Steve Baldwin competently engineered the entire release.

1984 Talent Almanac

IT TAKES:

A great record company (RCA), with the best promotion and sales people, plus the nation's radio and retail support, along with a fantastic band, crew, agency (ICM), public relations firm (Rogers & Cowan), merchandiser (EMMC), the leading concert promoters and, of course, the record and tape buyer and concertgoer...

TO MAKE:

"Living In Oz" our third straight platinum album, with the "Living In Oz World Tour" one of the most successful tours of 1983 with over 100 concerts performed in front of over 1.5 million people in five countries.

Thanks for a great year!

Nineteen eighty three was the year in which the music industry, in the United States at least, could feel good again about being the music industry. And to paraphrase the title of one of the albums responsible . . . what a feeling!

Blockbusters by Michael Jackson, the Police, Def Leppard and David Bowie, plus the "Flashdance" soundtrack, generated domestic sales of close to 30 million units, and lifted both spirits and profitability. The success of these releases and of tours by Bowie and the Police, coupled with consumer enthusiasm for video music and Compact Disc, also precipitated extensive media coverage that was in sharp contrast to the gloomy tales which accompanied the industry's post-1978 decline.

Comprehensive reports of that decline's arrest and reversal appeared throughout the year in Billboard, and this special issue is designed to provide both a 12-month recap with charts and editorial, and analyses of what the New Year holds in store. Two mini-directories also appear herein, the first tabulating top recording and performing artists, personal managers, booking agents and related contacts; the second listing leading video producers, production facilities and suppliers.

These reference sources correlate with two of the factors most responsible for helping the music business regain its self-esteem and self-confidence in '83. The way in which artists, both new and established, joined with record companies to fulfill the potential of video music in general, and of MTV in particular, translated into increased sales of records and tapes—and offered new horizons hardly dreamed about the year before.

Visual images have historically lent dimension and excitement to the best artists, of course, but never have these images been so effectively purveyed, so freely available, as they were this past year. Sales of the "Thriller" album represent just one example of video music's promotional power, and Michael Jackson's "Beat It" and "Billie Jean" clips may have become the most-seen "soap operas" in the history of television.

Video music's growth was also significant for radio. Not all broadcasters viewed it as a threat, but the willingness of MTV to program new rock acts threw into sharp relief the conservatism of many AOR programmers. This occurred as the format grappled with other challenges, including the resurgence of mass appeal radio, a trend starkly documented in the summer Arbitrons.

On a broader scale, the industry trend towards consolidation accelerated dramatically in 1983, sparked by the separate decisions of two German giants, Bertelsmann and Siemens, to reduce their music industry holdings in Arista Records and PolyGram, respectively. The result was the acquisition by RCA of a reported 50% stake in Arista (plus domestic distribution rights) and the beginning of the complex negotiations by which Warner Communications would acquire 80% of PolyGram's U.S. recorded music operations, and 50% of its international music interests.

Hardest hit by the RCA/Bertelsmann deal were independent distributors in the U.S., for whom the loss of Arista came only a short time after Chrysalis' switch to CBS. A third blow occurred in July, when Motown went branch at the hands of MCA—an early coup for the major's new chief, Irv Azoff. All three exits from the indie ranks generated legal activity. Acrimony among independent labels also attended the departure of Pickwick from distribution in the spring.

Meanwhile, the Warner/PolyGram proposal incensed CBS Records' Walter Yetnikoff, who declared his opposition to the

INTRODUCTION TO YEAR END CHARTS

The 1983 Year End charts are compiled by computer from Billboard's weekly, bi-weekly and monthly charts during the eligibility period of Nov. 1, 1982 through Oct. 31, 1983.

Final Year End chart positioning is based upon a point system. Points for each record (single or album) are awarded equally to:

- the artist
- the producer
- the label
- the publisher (singles only)
- the record itself

Points are awarded based on the chart position of a record for every week it is on the chart. The points it accumulates are based on an inverse relationship between the chart position and the number 100. For example, if a record is at number 100, the artist, the producer, the label, the publisher and the record each receives one point. When a record reaches No. 1, it receives 100 points and also receives bonus points.

The Year End charts represent the accumulation of all points respective artists, labels, publishers, etc. have received for all their charted records during Nov. 1, 1982 through Oct. 31, 1983.

The U.K. singles and albums charts are compiled by Gallup, based on data from Jan. 1, 1983 through Oct. 29, 1983.

merger on anti-trust grounds, and who then set about lobbying international governments to halt it. He also extended an invitation to other labels who might be interested in merging with CBS, should PolyWarner become a reality.

The prospect of real and "invited" mergers on the international scene was set against a backdrop of generally depressed sales. The U.S. upturn had few parallels in other major markets, with the exception of West Germany and Canada, and the problem was compounded abroad for American-based multinationals by the strength of the dollar.

So it was that these and other developments underscored the industry's ongoing need to change and adapt, to meet the challenges of creativity, efficiency and profitability. The cassette's move to parity with disk in the U.S. was seen as encouraging, while merchandisers began to expand into other product areas. Home video was the generally preferred option, spurred by an active rental market and signs of stronger sales. Lower-priced product such as "An Officer And A Gentleman" and "Flashdance" was partly responsible for the latter trend. A number of record/tape chains also moved into computer software, although the decline of the video game market as well as computer hardware price upheavals lent an air of uncertainty to the field.

As to the year ahead, indicators are positive on most fronts. Industryites generally believe that business will continue its most tangible upswing, even as it faces such knotty problems as home taping (audio and video) and proposed repeal of the First Sale Doctrine. Perhaps if Michael Jackson would star in a movie (also available on home video, of course) with guest performances by Sting and David Bowie, and a Giorgio Moroder-produced soundtrack written by Def Leppard . . .

OVERVIEW

Charts '83

The fact that Michael Jackson dominates Billboard's year-end chart awards is hardly a surprise, but what is striking is the magnitude of his sweep. Jackson is the year's top artist in pop, black music and dance/disco, and has the No. 1 pop and black album of the year with "Thriller."

What's more, the first five singles released from "Thriller" are all listed among the year's top 100 pop hits, with "Billie Jean" second only to the Police's "Every Breath You Take." "Billie Jean" is also ranked second on the black chart, behind Marvin Gaye's "Sexual Healing." But "Billie Jean" and "Beat It" combine to take the top spot in dance/disco.

Jackson's strong showing is all the more noteworthy because it runs counter to two of the year's prevailing pop trends—the dominance of new acts and international acts.

More than half of the year's top 100 pop hits are by acts that first cracked the Hot 100 in the '80s. And half of the top 10 is taken up by acts that broke through in this decade: Irene Cara, Men At Work, Patti Austin with James Ingram, Michael Sembello and Eurythmics.

Sembello and Eurythmics both entered the Hot 100 for the first time in 1983, as did a dozen other acts with singles on the year-end top 100: Dexys Midnight Runners, Thomas Dolby, After The Fire, Taco, Men Without Hats, Naked Eyes, Kajagoogoo, Madness, DeBarge, Def Leppard, Spandau Ballet and Frank Stallone.

The year's other major music trend was the popularity of international acts. Nearly half of the year's top 100 pop singles are by acts that hail from outside the U.S. The U.K. accounts for a commanding 31 of the top 100 hits, and that doesn't even count three split-nationality duets by Kenny Rogers & Sheena Easton, Joe Cocker & Jennifer Warnes and Michael Jackson & Paul McCartney.

Australia follows with seven of the top 100 singles—three by Men At Work, plus single entries by Rick Springfield, Little River Band, Air Supply and Moving Pictures. Canada is represented with hits by three acts: Men Without Hats, Bryan Adams and Loverboy. Holland has two: Golden Earring and Taco. Countries with a single entry are Brazil (Sergio Mendes), Norway (Frida) and Guyana (Eddy Grant).

Another key development this year has been the popularity of dance-oriented music. No fewer than 14 of the year's top 50 pop singles are also listed among the top 50 dance hits. These dual pop/dance smashes include new music-oriented hits like Eurythmics' "Sweet Dreams" and Thomas Dolby's "She Blinded Me With Science," black music hits like Donna Summer's "She Works Hard For The Money" and mainstream pop/rock records like David Bowie's "Let's Dance" and the Greg Kihn Band's "Jeopardy."

But the year's biggest multi-format hit is Irene Cara's "Flashdance... What A Feeling," which is in the top 20 on four of Billboard's year-end charts. It's number three on the pop chart, number seven on the dance chart and number 15 black and number 17 adult contemporary.

1983 marks the third time in the past five years that the No. 1 single of the year has been by an act that grew out of the new wave. The Police's "Every Breath You Take" follows the Knack's "My Sharona," Billboard's No. 1 single of 1979, and Blondie's "Call Me," the top single of '80.

Jackson's sweep, combined with the strong showing of Patti Austin & James Ingram's "Baby, Come To Me" (the year's number eight single), made Quincy Jones the No. 1 producer of the year for the second time in four years. Jones also took the prize in 1980. Only two other producers have managed to top Billboard's year-end producer's poll more than once since its introduction in the mid-'60s: Norman Whitfield was the top pop producer in both 1969 and '70; Thom Bell was No. 1 in both '73 and '74.

CBS had an extraordinary year, with Jackson's blitz augmented by a strong showing by Men At Work and Marvin Gaye. In fact, CBS sweeps all of the year-end black and dance/disco awards. And in the pop field the only awards to elude CBS are those to the Police on A&M, Irene Cara and the "Flashdance" soundtrack on Casablanca and Stevie Nicks on Modern.

But RCA maintains its customary lock on the country awards, with the big prizes shared by Alabama and Charley Pride.

Lionel Richie dominated the year in adult contemporary, with his first solo singles all placing in the top five for the year. If that's one sign of crossover, so is the fact that Culture Club, Daryl Hall & John Oates and Paul McCartney all finish among the year's top acts on the black charts.

But the major area of crossover in 1983 wasn't between the pop and black charts, but between the American and global music markets; between radio, the dance floor and the video channel.

In these respects, at least, the year was as vital and dynamic as at any point since the Beatles emergence nearly 20 years ago.

Rock '83

1983 was the year new wave peaked commercially, heavy metal overwhelmed its critics, AOR radio went through a crisis of confidence, a new English invasion swept into America, and Boy George became an international superstar.

In terms of No. 1 LPs, there were only three that mattered: "Business As Usual" by Men At Work in the beginning of the year, followed by Michael Jackson's "Thriller" and the Police's "Synchronicity."

"Business As Usual" fell out of the top 10 by the summer and its followup didn't do nearly as well. Nor were there any more giant groups popping out of Australia, indicating that the musical flood from Down Under has abated at least for the time being, though not for want of trying. To introduce Midnight Oil to this country the Rogers & Cowen public relations agency sent along a file an inch thick on their newest raves, but whether it was its weight or that of the group itself, at year's end Midnight Oil was still struggling to take off.

The same could not be said for either Michael Jackson or the Police, certainly the year's two megastars. Jackson was significant in the world of rock in that he more than anybody broke the color barrier in both AOR radio (thanks, too, to a guitar solo by Eddie Van Halen) and MTV (thanks to widely reported pressure by CBS that allegedly threatened to boycott the video cable station unless it did play Jackson's videos).

Nothing speaks as loudly or sounds as good in the record and music business as the ring of busy cash registers, and as the sales of "Thriller" and its array of singles, went past two, three, four, five, six, seven and beyond million, suddenly two things became very clear: people were still buying a lot of records so making predictions about the demise of the record business at best a bit premature; and, as it has been historically true in the history of rock'n'roll, white folks will buy black music if they are exposed to it.

Twenty five years after Chuck Berry, Little Richard, and the Drifters, let alone the civil rights revolution in the real world, that would seem to be an odd statement. Yet in the insulated world of album oriented radio, and its video clone, MTV, that became a big shock, especially at AOR radio, which found itself losing its audience to contemporary hit radio, or CHR, son of once despised top 40, which was actually playing hipper and more exciting music than that being dredged up from the AOR dinosaurs, even with a few new wave acts grudgingly thrown in.

If AOR finally lurched into playing new wave music after the 1982 New Music Seminar, then after the "biggest-ever-one" in 1983 it was being pushed by its gurus (i.e. consultants) into playing "horizontal" music, which is to say playing more hits, including most pointedly black hits by no longer little Michael Jackson.

In fact, if there is any one event that marks the time when new wave/new music (started circa 1975) finally began showing its age, it was at that same self-congratulatory New Music seminar, which cheered keynoter Miles Copeland's call to be ever on the lookout for new musical trends while at the same time blithely forgetting that it was the same Copeland who had recently closed down his Faulty Products operation, at least briefly stifling independent punk and new wave distribution on the West Coast. If new wave/new music was ever an alternative to the established business, that ended right there.

But it's hard to be very alternative when your band is sitting atop the charts and it's playing Shea Stadium to boot. Indeed the Police, and David Bowie, whose record $17 million deal with EMI was soon overshadowed by the $25 million plus offering to the Rolling Stones by CBS, were only the most visible and elder representatives of a new wavish English invasion that also saw acts like Flock Of Seagulls, Duran Duran, Dexys Midnight Runners, U2, Adam Ant, Musical Youth, and most unlikely, Culture Club come into their own in the U.S.

Yet if they came, they did not conquer, and such home-grown acts as Journey, Toto, Pat Benatar, Missing Persons, Berlin, Hall & Oates, Lionel Richie, Prince, Stray Cats, Laura Branigan, and ZZ Top could not complain about their year.

Also not complaining has been a new generation of heavy metal bands, acts such as Def Leppard, Quiet Riot, Iron Maiden, Judas Priest, and others, who proved themselves the mainstay of the live concert business and who sold a ton of records as well. It has been speculated, in fact, that nothing helped these acts so much as when AOR radio turned away from them and began playing more new music. It's said that in order to hear them after that, their legion of young, mostly male fans, had no other choice but to buy the record and see the show.

Country '83

Country continued to make it look easy, while the rest of the music industry coped with the problems of economic recovery. Country just kept on keeping on, expanding what's now become a substantial share of the market.

Nashville labels cast a wary eye on their bottom line receipts, of course; but since country never has been known for lavish budgets, extravagant signings or overblown promotions, things remained more or less status quo for 1983.

There were exceptions. Elektra/Asylum decided to withdraw from the country field, merging its Nashville division with Warner Bros., under the direction of Jimmy Bowen. Epic, Columbia and RCA went heavier into video. Kenny Rogers and Juice Newton left the Capitol/Liberty fold for RCA. PolyGram looked closer at country in Nashville, installed Frank Jones as chief and signed several unknowns, one of whom—Kathy Mattea—scored very well on her debut single, "Street Talk." Irving Azoff gave MCA Nashville the green light for expansion and the label suddenly escalated its activity, adding both newcomers and established names like Reba McEntire and Larry Gatlin, while rumors hinted at enlarged staff and office space in the not-distant future. Monument Records kicked into high gear—then faltered and went into Chapter XI for most of the year.

1983 found Ray Charles, Dan Seals, Bob Seger, Exile and Jose Feliciano on the country charts. It saw international star

Julio Iglesias cutting a duet with Willie Nelson. It sprung John Anderson onto the pop charts with a '50s-sounding dance tune called "Swingin'," country's only gold single of the year. And it continued to see an exodus of country releases flowing over into rock and pop, through the efforts of Kenny Rogers, Alabama, Willie Nelson, Eddie Rabbitt, Dolly Parton, Crystal Gayle and Ronnie Milsap, among others.

There were no show-stopping surprises in 1983 for country music—unless you count its rock-solid steady growth in an otherwise shakily-recovering economy. Perhaps in the final analysis, that's as show-stopping as anything.

Concerts '83

From all indications the 1983 live concert business wasn't as bad as some of the previous years, but nobody was celebrating yet the return of the good old days of the middle '70s.

Of course, it depended on who you were. If you were the Police or David Bowie or Simon & Garfunkel, you did just fine, even if you didn't sell out every set in every venue. If you were Styx or Men At Work or Asia or Stevie Nicks, you had your ups and downs, but mostly you made it through okay, or else you just got off the road and headed for Tokyo for an MTV special.

If you were heavy metal, life was pretty good, too, for such acts as Van Halen, Def Leppard, Quiet Riot, Judas Priest, Iron Maiden, or even Journey or Loverboy, because as far as the concert scene went, 1983 was the year of heavy metal, its overblown presentation and gestures just perfect for the arena crowds.

It was a tribute to heavy metal's drawing power that the largest crowd at the largest concert event of the year was the day devoted to heavy metal at the 83 US Festival when over 300,000 fans braved over 90 degree temperatures to see Van Halen, Judas Priest, Triumph, and the like.

The US Festival itself, which drew about a half million fans and some 2,000 reporters, managing to infuriate the latter, if not the former, was deemed a bust at year's end, losing some $10 million, despite being later rebroadcast on Showtime. All of it that is, except David Bowie, who apparently won his game of one-upmanship with Van Halen, who said they wouldn't appear unless they got as much money as Bowie (about $1.5 million). Van Halen got it, too, but Bowie got to keep his video. Either way the US Festival turned out to be an overheated failure, and nothing has been set for 1984, though who knows in 1985?

It's hard to say who played to more fans and who made more money this year: the Police or David Bowie as at the time of this writing both were still out on the road on worldwide tours that began before summer. Nevertheless it could be said that after this year, neither act need ever work again.

The concert year pretty much goes as well as the peak summer season, and this year agents and promoters say that Bowie and Police megatours may have done so well that they took a lot of the concert dollars that might have otherwise gone to intermediate acts. And, say many in the business, there may just have been too many acts out on the road this summer, which did nobody any good.

Coincidentally or not, when the fall rolled around, concert traffic slowed down, which created a vacuum of sorts, notes Ian Copeland of Frontier Booking International, who has a whole slew of acts out there on the road, until the snows.

Copeland says the new wave acts he represents are doing well, if not better, than they ever did which is probably true. But if there were two categories of acts that saw a real if unpublicized resurgence it was the adult contemporary and urban contemporary acts playing such adult oriented venues as Radio City in New York and the Universal Amphitheatre in Los Angeles. These venues normally charge a higher ticket price and attract an older audience that is willing to pay the premium for seeing an act in a venue more comfortable than a basketball game.

On the club side, at least in New York, the year's end saw the emergence of a number of new places: the Limelight, Cats, Be Bop, and Rags, but it was a measure of the stability of the situation that there were still only three major club venues to see live entertainments: the Ritz, the Peppermint Lounge and Danceteria, though the Red Parrot and Roseland were beginning to show more activities. Ron Delsener's Palladium, which closed, and was to reopen as a giant ballroom, remained dark into the winter.

Inside these clubs the big influence, as everywhere else, was the influx of black music. But points out Frank Roccio of the Peppermint Lounge, that wasn't the only crossover. Acts that before would never be played in a dance club, like ZZ Top or Quiet Riot, were now becoming part of the mix. Which, in a way, made it all the more exciting.

This was the year of Michael Jackson. No question about that. Simply put, no black singer has ever sold as many copies of a single album as he has of "Thriller." Ignoring his videos, his charisma, and the strength of the music, that fact alone makes this 25-year old the reigning prince (oops), I mean king of black music.

But Jackson was far from the only success story in black music. Marvin Gaye and George Clinton, two of the most important figures in the history of black music, made come back from years of artistic and financial turmoil. For Gaye the vehicle was "Sexual Healing," the "Let's Get It On" of the '80s that re-established Gaye as an innovative musician and supremely sensual singer. Clinton, his P-Funk army on the decline, wrapped his weirdness in a synthesized package and walked his "Atomic Dog" back to the top of the black chart.

Other veterans showing impressive staying power were Gladys Knight & the Pips with their fine "Visions" album and the Isley Brothers with "Between The Sheets." James Mtume, who with partner Reggie Lucas had a string of hits producing for Stephanie Mills, had his first major hit as an artist with "Juicy Fruit." Meanwhile, the Gap Band with three strong singles ("Early In The Morning," "You Dropped A Bomb On Me," "Outstanding"), Rick James with "Cold Blooded," the album and single, and the Whispers maintained their position as three of black music's most consistent record sellers.

Of the youngbloods, producer-writer turned performer Kashif, Janet Jackson, and the Mary Jane Girls all started their careers impressively. However, of all the industry's good young acts it was DeBarge, who've been teen magazine pin ups for years before having a significant hit, made the most progress. Two excellent singles, "I Like It" and "All This Love," and an appearance on the "Motown 25" special gave DeBarge a major black and crossover sales.

Two of the most interesting stories of the year involve artists who are musically worlds apart, Z.Z. Hill and Prince. With his "The Rhythm And The Blues" and before that with "Down Home," nearing 100 weeks on the black album chart, Hill and all the folks at Jackson, Mississippi's Malaco records have shown there is a lot of spunk left in good old rhythm & blues.

Meanwhile, the uncrowned Prince of black music had the audacity, in the midst of a recession and widespread unemployment, to release a double album, "1999." A risky move? Definitely. But as he has done again and again in his short, but remarkable career, Prince made it work. His reward was a platinum album. In addition, he served notice on Michael Jackson that he wasn't the only royalty on the scene today.

International '83

The year 1983 could well go down in popular music history as a watershed chapter when geographical boundaries were finally swept aside by a tidal wave of multinational talents, trends and productions.

For the cautious observer, maybe it's still early days to be fully convinced but the foundations of true worldwide free trade in pop have surely been laid.

While the U.S. and U.K. continued producing the usual steady (though numerically diminishing) flow of mega-sellers, with Michael Jackson and David Bowie respectively out front in most territories, other countries, even as small as Denmark (population four million), are grabbing increasingly larger shares of the action.

Irish group the Chieftains journey to the Great Wall of China

The Australian music business (Men At Work brand leaders, but hotly challenged by a dozen others) has earned a top five slot, surely, in terms of international approbation and sales.

In the unceasing U.S. versus U.K. supremacy battle, the latter has seldom had it so good. Suffice it just to list some of the outstanding acts which have charted regularly in the U.S. this year: Duran Duran, the Police, Culture Club, Def Leppard, Dexys Midnight Runners, the Thompson Twins, ABC, Phil Collins, Sheena Easton, Spandau Ballet, Bonnie Tyler, Thomas Dolby, the Eurythmics, Heaven 17.

BOTH A 'THRILLER' AND A CHILLER

By SAM SUTHERLAND

No single trend in popular music proved more pervasive during 1983 than visual musical programming. The success for musical video clips over cable systems spawned the proliferation of new music video shows for network and local television, while long form musical programs for the home video market notched major sales and rental successes.

That pattern was underscored by the level of clip production, not only at major record labels but at the grass roots level. As symbolized by MTV's Basement Tapes, young bands increasingly employed self-produced video pieces as vehicles for career advancement; to many performers trying to break into recording contracts, the music video clip became a more potent tool than conventional demo tapes, affording a link not only to prospective record companies, but to the public at large.

Spurring the market's growth were a number of factors. Apart from the ongoing expansion of cable television services, the consumer electronics industry made significant progress in mating audio and video technology in a host of new products: component television, providing more sophisticated monitors, tuners and audio systems, as well as the market launch for Sony's Beta Hi-Fi videocassette recorder (and the inevitable rush to market by competitors with their own improved stereo VCRs), dramatized the evolution of home entertainment as a marriage between high-performance audio and video gear. That scenario in turn made the appeal of visual music focal to home video programmers seeking to exploit the new technical horizons at hand.

George Clinton's "Atomic Dog"

THE IMPACT OF VISUAL MUSIC

As for visual music itself, however, the mushrooming quantity of programming was offset by a central paradox. With record companies still the primary financiers for clips, the issue of payment loomed ever larger. Because music clips remained promotional tools rather than profit-earning programs, the form increasingly represented a Catch 22 for music marketers. Rising production costs were amplified by the growing demand for video production assurances from performers; with video thus a major negotiating issue, labels found themselves forced to underwrite video clips for more artists than ever.

That, in turn, drove total investments in video programming ever upward for record companies, affecting their ability to carry other marketing costs. A number of major labels did seek fees from cable users and clubs to defray duplication costs, but recouping the actual production investment remained a point of conjecture. While acknowledging visual music's impact on a new generation of record and tape consumers, most industry executives privately questioned the long-term wisdom of creating a mini-industry in which program users reaped profits while producers continued to spend without any clear guarantee of reimbursement.

Less obviously, that cycle trapped music clips in a creative cul de sac. With labels intent on curbing production costs, the visual vocabulary for music clips was itself restricted in its growth. And while the nation of young music video enthusiasts didn't complain, musicians, directors and producers often seemed trapped on a treadmill where the same images, effects and symbolic conceits were repeated time and again.

If the rank and file of visual music clips thus hosted their own cliches, the best clips did open up fertile new ground. Dance was rediscovered as a natural visual counterpart to music, with a number of ambitious clips employing elaborate choreography. Computer graphics and animation, while economically daunting for more modest productions, likewise provided inventive alternatives to the usual litany of camera moves and visual images.

The popularity for visual music clips also attracted established filmmakers to the new form. Top commercial directors like Bob Giraldi began testing the video music waters, while two of the year's most publicized clips were the work of motion picture directors: Bob Rafelson worked with Lionel Richie on Richie's video for "All Night Long," while John Landis reportedly set a new record in clip production costs with his short piece on the title song from Michael Jackson's "Thriller," the year's blockbuster album hit.

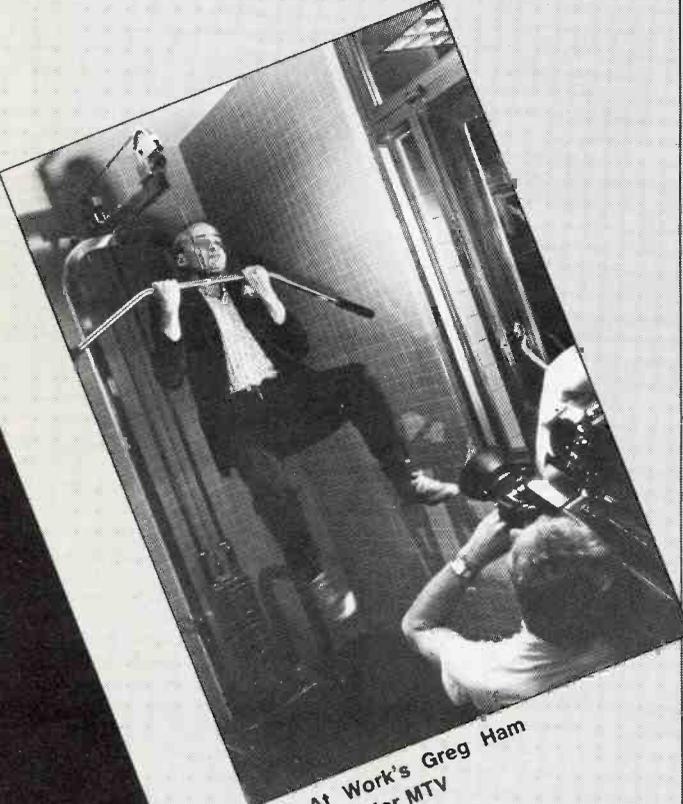

The Thriller clips also signaled possible new avenues for clip exposure. In order to qualify the film for the Academy Awards, "Thriller" was screened in a limited engagement in movie theaters; in Los Angeles, the piece was appropriately added to a re-release of Walt Disney's "Fantasia," itself a landmark in visual music. And "Thriller," in addition to its cable and broadcast tv airings, was also used as the centerpiece for a Vestron Videocassette, "Making Michael Jackson's 'Thriller.'" Such ancillary uses made Landis' reported seven figure budget seem less perilous.

Among the musical idioms addressed by film and video directors, rock remained by far the most visible. But despite more limited avenues for exposure, black and country performers were showcased in their own video clips, and video club operators began exploring the potential for alternative programming that could reach audiences other than the young rock constituency wooed by MTV, "Night Flight," "Friday Night Videos" and other music video programs.

In the realm of long form visual music programs, filmed and videotaped concerts remained the most frequent source for home video programs and cable specials. But successful documentary programs tailored for the home video market, along with video "albums" devoted to conceptual clips, signaled new diversity in this still fledgling area. Equally important, the creation of programs for sale to the home market, while less dramatic than the boom in cable and broadcast usage for music video, served as heartening proof that visual music can grow into a legitimate industry where program producers can profit along with their cable and broadcast users.

The Year's Top Stories

JANUARY

- MECHANICAL RATE RISES from four cents to 4.25 for all recordings (1/8).
- CBS RECORDS sets pricing parity for rack jobbers, one-stops and retail chains. Previously, retail paid a higher price (1/15).
- ELEKTRA/ASYLUM RECORDS shifts its headquarters to New York in the wake of Joe Smith's resignation to assume a post at WCI in the sports area. Bob Krasnow is appointed chairman and Bruce Lundvall president (1/22).
- POLYGRAM RECORDS mulls 6-by-12 inch CD box with a fixture (and lock) feature, showcasing the augmented package at RIAA meetings (1/29). (The concept eventually became industry standard for augmented CD packaging.)

FEBRUARY

- BURKHART/ABRAMS/MICHAELS/DOUGLAS and Associates order up more new music for AOR at "SuperStars" strategy session. AOR's pressing need to evolve was also the focus of Billboard's Radio Programming Convention, which drew more than 500 registrants (2/5).
- CBS RECORDS institutes contract clause forbidding the use of video clips on broadcasts advertising or promoting blank tape and recording equipment (2/12).

MARCH

- CBS RECORDS Claims in its battle against parallel imports, that, according to the 1976 Copyright Act, it has exclusive rights in the U.S. to recordings released by its subsidiaries abroad (3/5).
- TOTO TAKES FIVE GRAMMIES, matching previous achievements by Quincy Jones and Christopher Cross. The awards included those for record, album and producer of the year (3/5).
- E.B. MARKS MUSIC, one of the few remaining oldline music publishers owned by descendants of the original founders, is acquired by publisher Freddy Bienstock and Hammerstein Music and Theatre Co., via a partnership deal (3/12).
- CBS INC. is planning the sale of 50% of its recently acquired United Artists Music Catalog. The sale would leave CBS as a general partner (3/26).

APRIL

- ARISTA DEFECTS to branch distribution, following RCA's acquisition of a reported 50% interest in the company from its German parent, Bertelsmann. Following on the heels of Chrysalis' move to the CBS branch network, the change is seen as impetus to legal action by independent distributors (4/2 & 4/9).
- RIAA FIGURES show a decline for the fourth consecutive year of manufacturer net shipments of recordings in both units and dollars at suggested retail list price (4/16).
- PICKWICK DISTRIBUTING is no longer viable, following the defection of Chrysalis, Arista and Motown from indie ranks, says topper Jim Moran at the NARM convention. The firm has shuttered branches and announced stringent new credit policies (4/9, 4/16 & 4/23).
- SCHWARTZ BROS. INC. slaps Arista Records & RCA with a $5 million breach of contract suit, claiming fraudulent conduct, unfair competition, contractual interference and conspiracy (4/23).
- THE VIDEO GAME trade's rapid evolution and continued volatility are spotlighted at Billboard's first Video Game Conference, co-sponsored with Video Marketing Game Letter (4/30).

MAY

- IRVING AZOFF, newly appointed president of the MCA Records Group, is looking beyond records to all facets of home entertainment—"from records to cable to music publishing to merchandising to home video" (5/7).
- CD SALES will match those of the conventional LP in 1989, and will supersede it a few years later, predicts PolyGram president Jan Timmer. His remarks came at Billboard's International Music Industry Conference (IMIC) (5/14).

JUNE

- SENATE SUBCOMMITTEE marks up and reports to the full Senate Judiciary Committee the audio rental bill, which requires the permission of sound recording copyright owners before rental can be lawfully authorized (6/4).
- BMI SEEKS CANCELLATION of music performance licenses for CBS owned and operated television stations (6/4).
- THE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF MUSICIANS (AFM) and label representatives reach agreement on royalty payments for the commercial use of promotional video clips, pending ratification by AFM members (6/11).
- COMPACT DISCS begin moving out to U.S. record and tape retailers, but quantities will be severely limited. Initially, most labels will not tag their CDs with a suggested retail price, allowing for wholesale price adjustments (6/18).
- MTV TESTS its concert promotion power by linking up with A&M Records and Frontier Booking Int'l for the Police's national tour (6/18).
- TOWER RECORDS, Russ Solomon's Los Angeles-based retail chain, opens a New York superstore with a $250,000 ad blitz to promote the 28,000 square foot site (6/25).

JULY

- PRESLEY LAWSUITS SETTLED, with an 'amicable' pact reached between Col. Tom Parker and RCA Records (7/2).
- WARNER COMMUNICATIONS AND POLYGRAM disclose that they are in discussions for a joint venture in which Warners would acquire an 80% stake in PolyGram U.S. and 50% in the company abroad (7/9).
- PROMOTERS JOHN SCHER and Cedric Kushner are indicted by a federal grand jury in Trenton, N.J. on charges of violating Section 1 of the Sherman Antitrust Act (7/9).
- MOTOWN RECORDS and the MCA Records Group near a new distribution link, dealing independent distributors their third major label loss this year (7/9).
- THE SUPREME COURT postpones a decision on the Beta-max home video recording issue until the fall session (7/16).

AUGUST

- ARIOLA is expected to handle European distribution for computer software and video games made by four major U.S. manufacturers (8/6).
- MOTOWN DISTRIBUTION VIA MCA BARRED by a Maryland judge in the mid-Atlantic territory formerly handled by Schwartz Bros. (8/6).
- CBS RECORDS SCORES against parallel imports, winning its suit against New York retailer Jimmy's Music World for importing and selling copies of Michael Jackson's "Thriller" and any other CBS product (8/6).
- BIG STATE DISTRIBUTING in Dallas seeks $450,000 in annual damages for an "indeterminate" period from Motown, following its switch to the MCA branch system. The suit follows Schwartz Bros. Inc.'s $5 million suit against Motown and MCA (8/13).
- WARNER PUBLISHING'S newly formed Warner Software division seeks entry into the computer software industry via major acquisition offers, with DataSoft said to be close to an equity agreement where Warner Software would purchase 50% of the company (8/20).
- THIRD SUIT AGAINST MOTOWN filed by Associated Distributors of Phoenix. The suit follows those filed by Schwartz Bros. and Big State, over Motown's defection from indie ranks to MCA for distributing (8/20).
- THE ROLLING STONES prepare to ink with CBS for $25 million for four albums after leaving Atlantic (8/27).
- SCHWARTZ BROS. SETTLES Motown and MCA suit out of court (8/27).

SEPTEMBER

- VSDA PANEL DEBATES spark discussion over proposed repeal of the First Sales Doctrine, home taping, piracy and formats at the second annual Video Software Dealers Assn.'s conference (9/10).
- WEA DROPS CD PREPACK title allocations, enabling accounts to select product by title (9/17).
- WHEREHOUSE ENTERTAINMENT has purchased hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of computer software and is believed to be planning to set up software centers virtually overnight in its Wherehouse Records stores (9/24).
- WEA, POLYGRAM AND SONY plan to unite in a major CD promotion slanted toward the youth market, with digital promotion galas in the U.S. next month. Also participating is High Fidelity magazine (9/24).
- 'FLASHDANCE' VIDEO, listed at $39.95, is poised to become the best-selling home video program to date, with the order level soaring to 177,629 units after one week at retail (9/24).

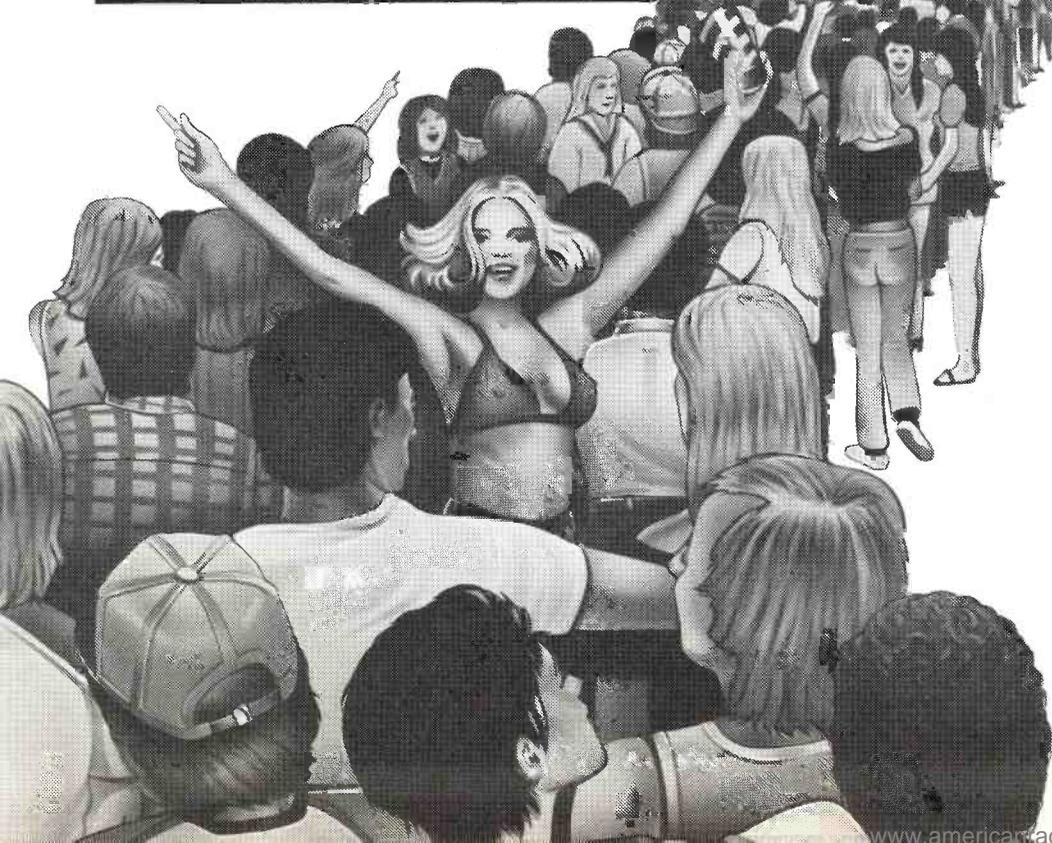

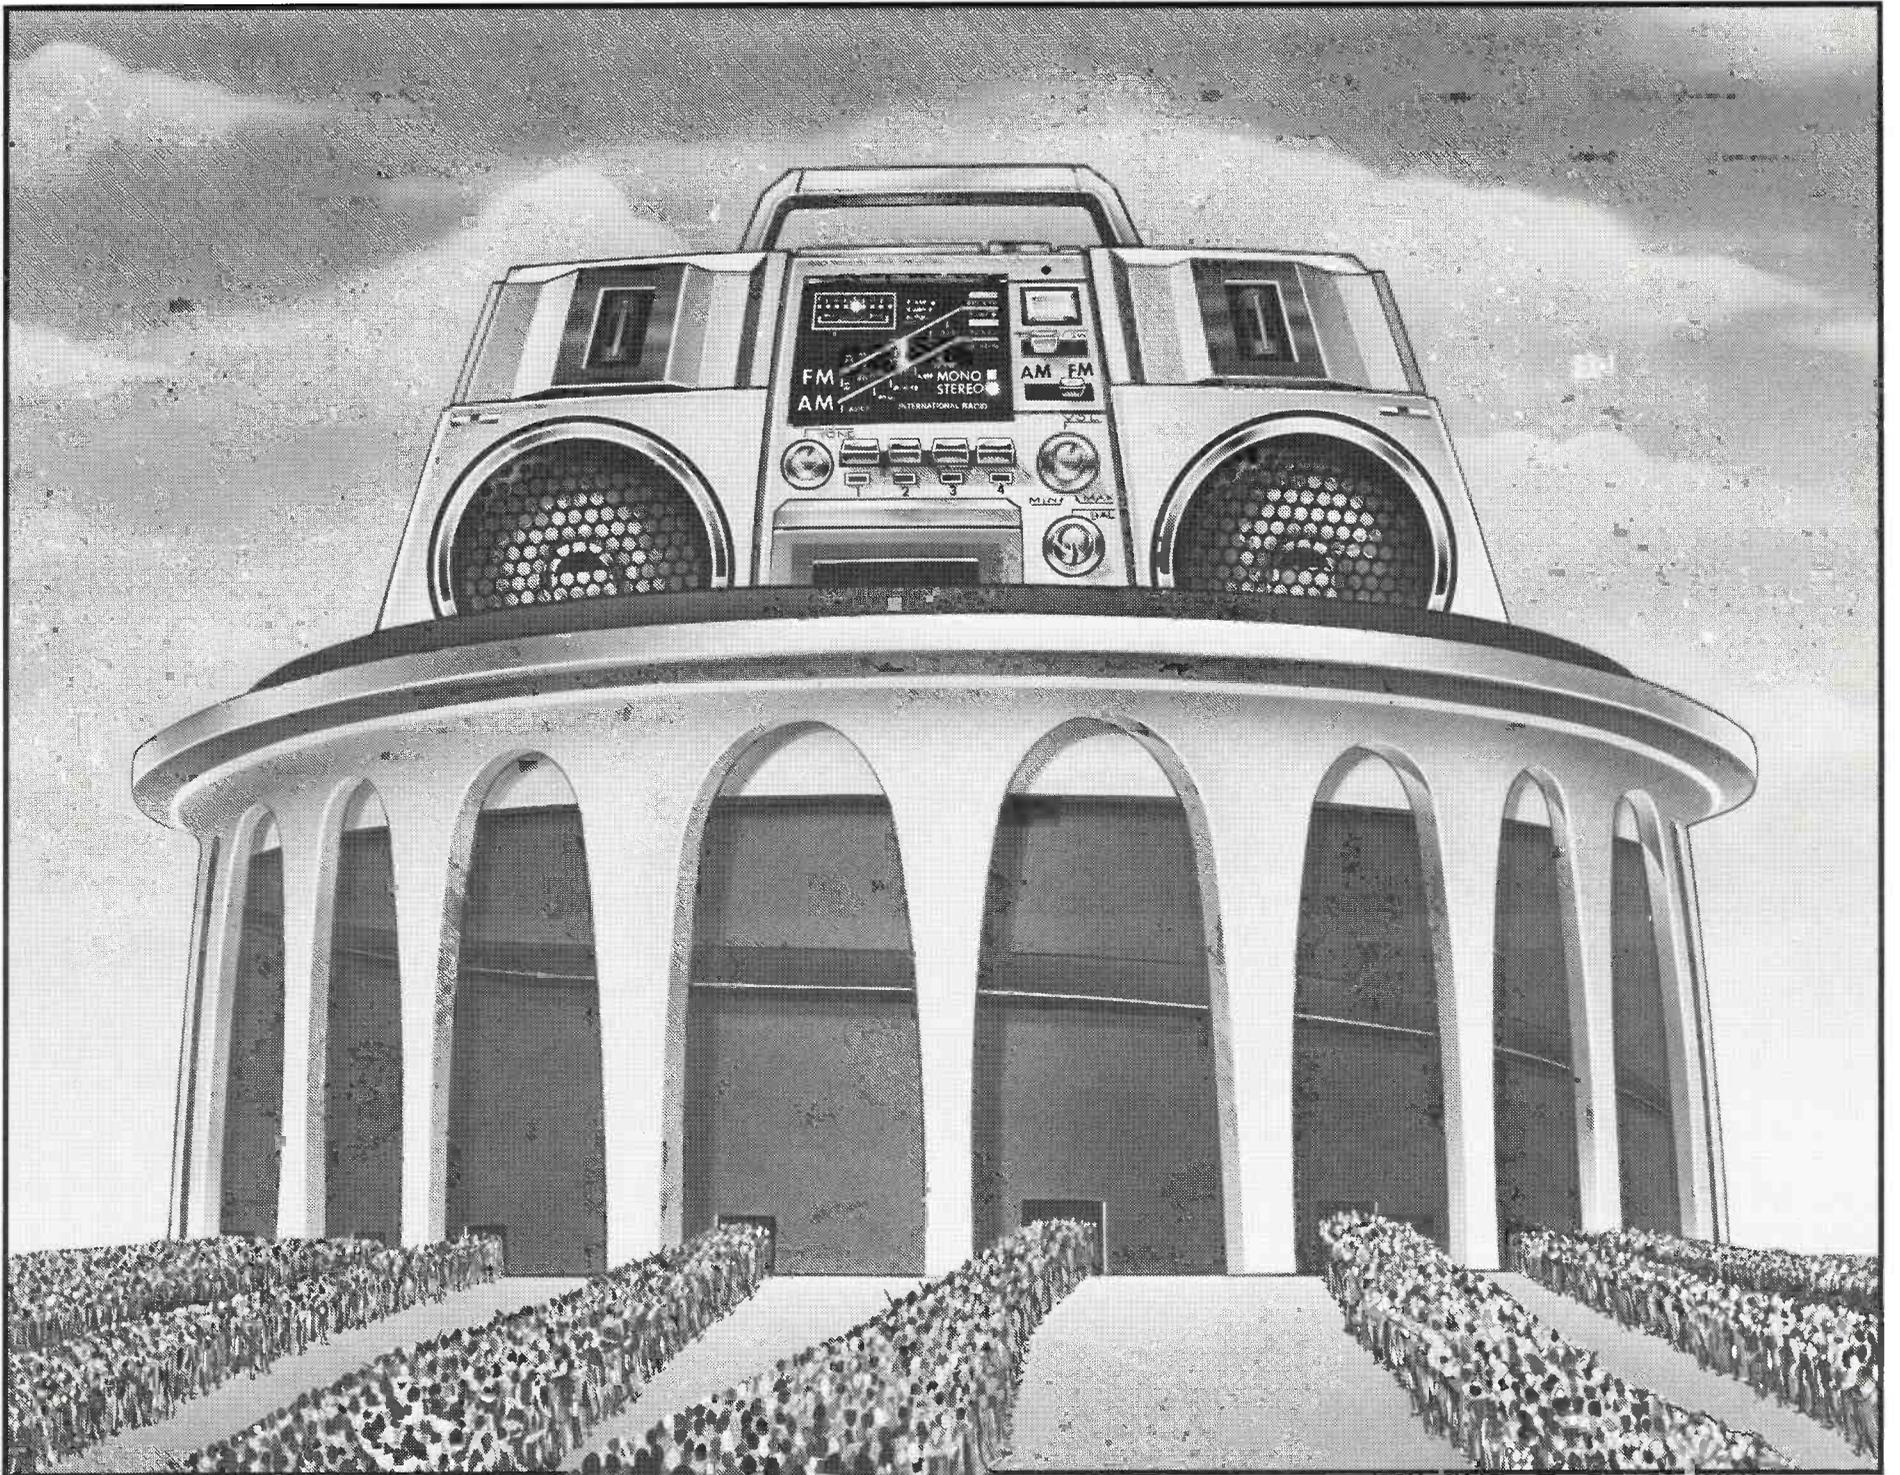

OCTOBER

- CHAPPELL MUSIC and its associated companies are put up for sale by the PolyGram Group for an estimated $150 million (10/8).
- TOP 40 dominates four major markets—Houston, Cleveland, Boston and Los Angeles—in the summer Arbitron (10/15).
- 'BLACK FRIDAY', a two-hour shutdown of organized video dealers in Arizona, Minnesota and California, is planned to

THE TRUTH ABOUT NEW MUSIC

By BRIAN CHIN

Has the new wave arrived or what? In its welter of white dreadlocks, conceptual video and contradictions, 1983 was the year when record labels, radio stations and fans of music jumped at the term "new music."

"New music" is a fittingly vague term, with several crucial challenges built right in. Most of all, it forces everyone, whether consumer, musician or businessperson, to be more of a fan. The reason: to be able to judge or even recognize what is "new" demands involvement in what has preceded the new.

That's why interviews with the foremost British "new music" invaders so often turn into passionate discussions of recent pop, rock, soul and disco history. The affection with which Eurythmics' Annie Lennox speaks of Sam and Dave and the defiance with which Culture Club's Boy George calls himself a "plagiarist" bespeak the pride that any fan of music has in being part of that following. They also slag their peers for perceived failings as freely as any fan disappointed with a new record, or skeptical of an artist's intentions.

New music represents in large part the return of the cult, the aficionado, the social aspect of sharing music for its own sake.

And when the music itself is the point—when there is no pervasive political context by which to judge the correctness of music (which is what '60s nostalgists seem to miss)—all kinds of interesting things start happening.

A British man in powder and dreadlocks starts singing soul ballads to a rock audience and is called the most commercial voice of the year . . . A rock club posts a "No Disco!" placard at the door while video clips by such uncompromising rockers as Michael Jackson, David Bowie, and Prince play inside and the all-electronic featured band sings, "Yes, it's safe to dance" . . . Top 40 and alternative radio outmaneuver both AOR and urban contemporary radio by daring to expose music from both categories to listeners who have all along been interested in and buying in both categories . . . It becomes common to hear rock DJs play an entire evening of Arthur Baker/Tommy Boy music to a crowd of the fashionably punk. In other words, standards and formats start crumbling.

Making sense of all the influences and ironies that exist within the new music is about as hard as untying the mythical Gordian knot. New music—or the new music listener—refuses to be logical or predictable, and tolerates the bafflingly avant-garde as well as the crassly commercial.

It has shown the most fascinating capacity for turning on itself and making what was "out" suddenly "in" again—witness the smash success of the disco-disco "Blue Monday" by New Order, and the increasing pervasiveness of music that's basically inspired by mainstream black music (Talking Heads, Madonna, Duran Duran, Adele Bertel, Thompson Twins, Greg Kihn Band). Formerly dirty words like "disco" and "Top 40" have turned out to be critical in the emergence of new music as a noticeable trend.

And when radical music of any sort arrives on the scene—rap, hip-hop, ethnic, foreign-language—there is a genuine championing of its potential to widen the horizons of the audience, resulting in phenomena like the second surprise from New Order, their hip-hop "Confusion," Falco's German rap funk, and the exchange of the scratch hits "Buffalo Gals" and "Rockit" from a rock audience to the street-funk crowd, and vice versa.

All of this explains why the term "new music" sends more people in the music business running for cover than any other, except, perhaps, "payola." The implicit demand of new music is that it be listened to in the here-and-now, with immediate gut reaction—this is partly because of the strong dance-club influence and partly because the fashion influence makes everything about it highly self-conscious.

Recognizing a sincere homage, an inside joke, a put-on or put-down, or a case of simple exploitation takes an instinct that's quite apart from the necessary business and marketing framework. That's the instinct of the listener. Few in the music industry identify enough with the fan to have confidence in judging with first-person authority what is substantial or the insubstantial in the genre.

Example: even after radio consultants were discredited in their transformation of AOR into a heavy-metal oldies format, they found themselves able to speak with surprising credibility about "new music" because radio programmers were hoping that the consultants would also be able to feed correct information to them on this new manifestation—somehow, it didn't occur to them to investigate their own tastes, or the tastes of local listeners.

That's something that goes exactly counter to the meaning of the last four years of "new wave" turning into "new music." The far-flung sounds and fashions of the new music are more indicative of an environment or a system than of the development of a specific style. It's an environment in which musicians and fans alike are allowed to experiment seriously or jokingly, to delve faithfully into the past or indulge the present.

The "new music" is a variety of music led by a vanguard of artists who dared to pick up rejected music and polish it into something challenging and unique. It's followed by a heterogeneous crowd that's even more open than it realizes.

After all, the new wave was a rejection of the commercial pop-rock and pop-disco of the time. In four short years, much to the benefit of radio and the music business, the new music following has taught itself to appreciate song and production craft so much that its many-faceted products have found their way into every part of the musical spectrum.

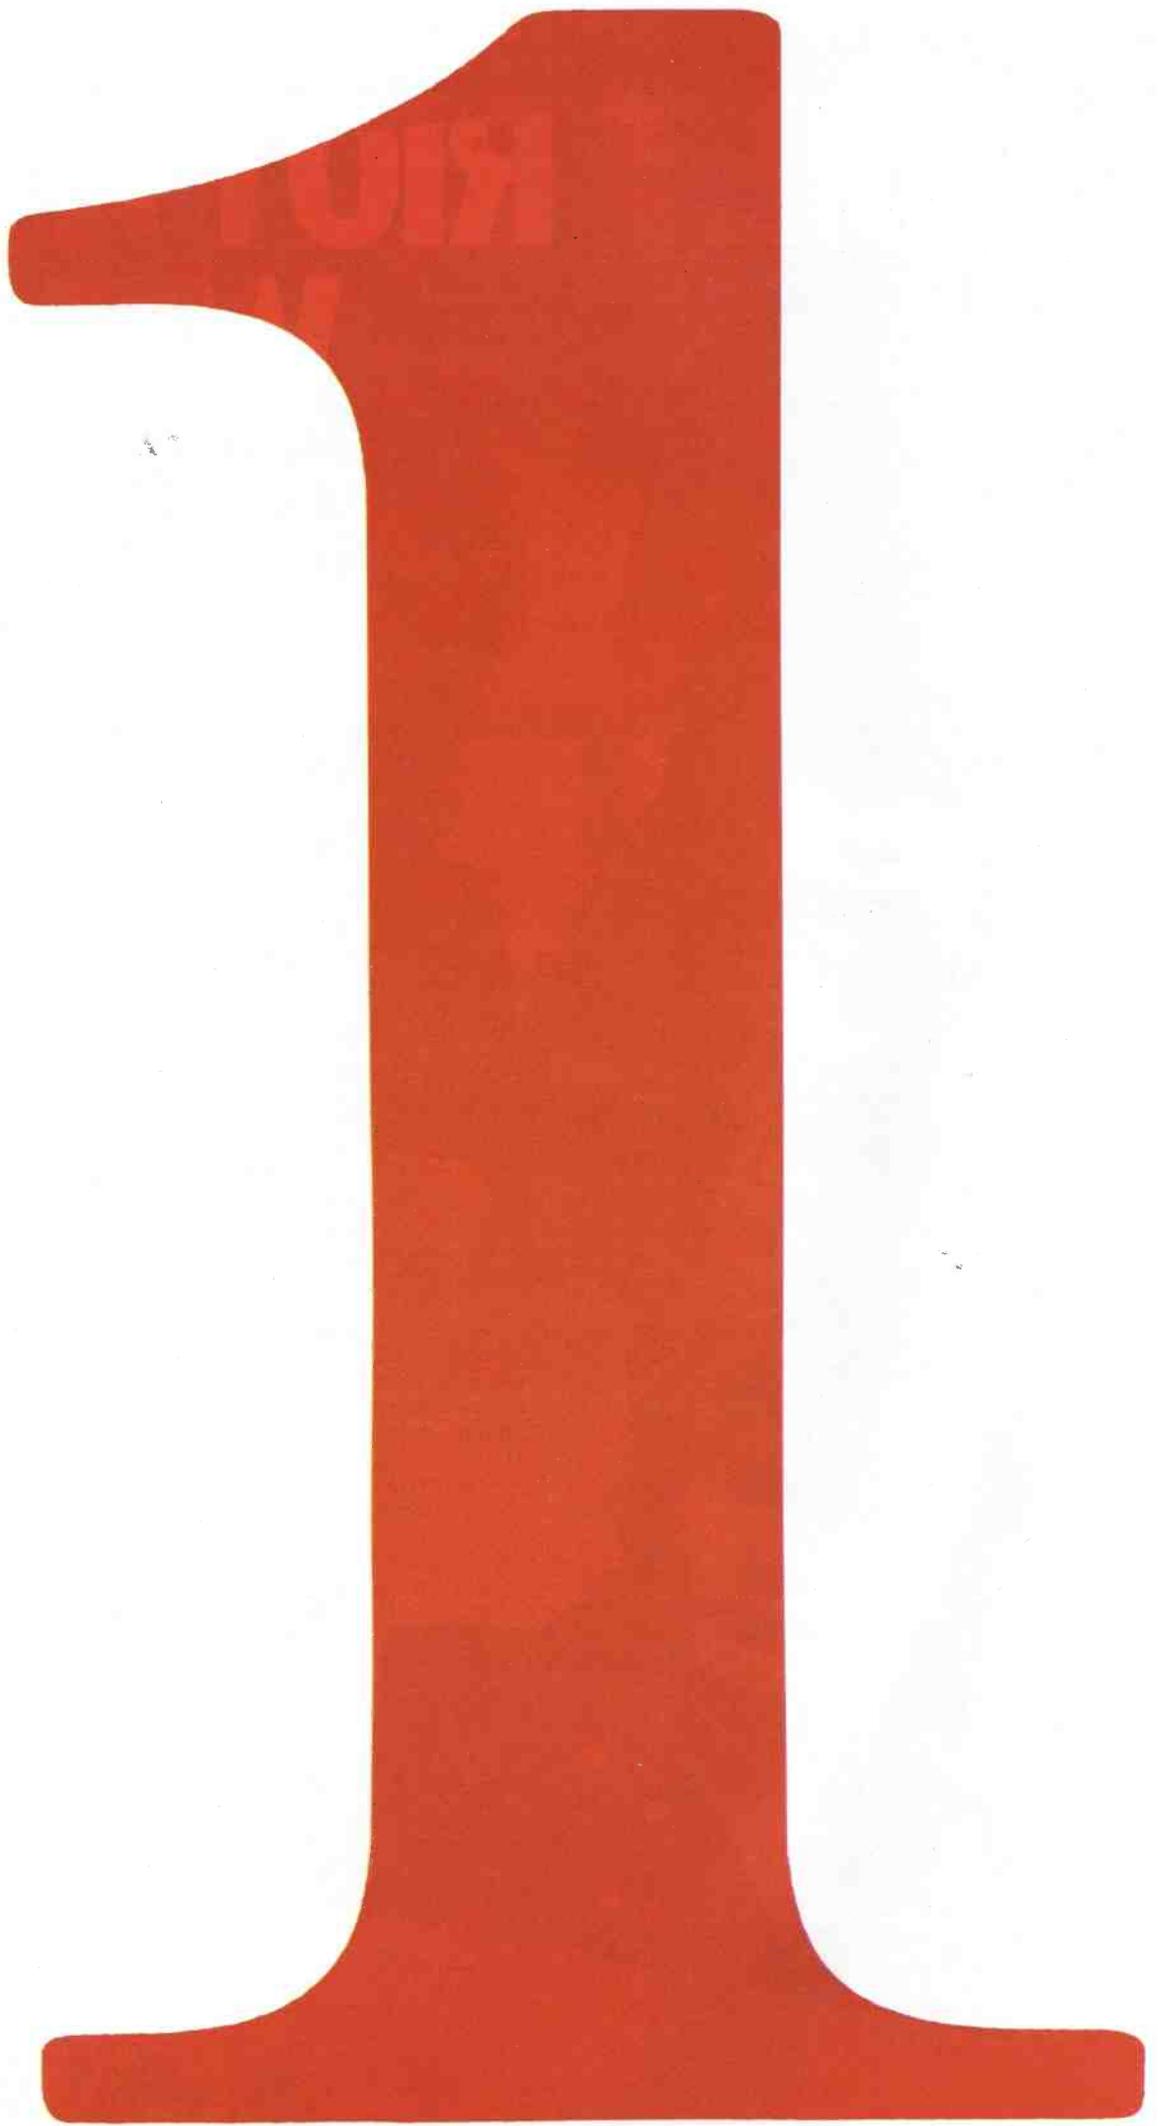

New music is not merely colorful, shocking, weird, rude, arrogant and/or unusual. It's open to a greater degree than pop music has been in years, and all-inclusive of the whims and fancies of both musician and fan. It's now up to the industry at large to get closer to this group, which cared about music enough to create a new genre and continue evolving with it.

Despite the menacing cloud of economic recession hovering over virtually all countries, the international talent store has built to new peak acceptance levels on both artistic and technological accounts.

In West Germany, the record industry rallied after the premature death of its then life-saving new wave movement to showcase new names, new sounds: Peter Schilling's "Major Tom," Taco's "Puttin' On The Ritz."

The Italian record industry was officially declared by the government to be in a state of "crisis," but the talent flow show it travels well. The biggest single of the year was "Vamos A La Playa," by the brothers Righeira, who scored heavily through Europe. Rondo Veneziana, uniquely Italian, mixed Vivaldi-type music with a disco beat to become another valued export.

Denmark, Sweden, and Holland have all had duly registered and noted hits in widespread territories and from all kinds of musical sources. From the Netherlands, the Star Sisters revived (and charted widely) the close-harmony sister-act sound according to the 1940s gospel of the Andrews Sisters.

JEAN-MICHEL JARRE, on his decision to auction off the sole copy of his LP, "Music For Supermarkets"

"The idea of this move is simply to produce a single copy for a single buyer, just like a painting. At a time when everything is standardized, overbroadcast, and when we're endlessly overinformed, saturated with sound and images, it seems to be a worthwhile thing to demonstrate that a record is not only a piece of merchandise without value, infinitely multipliable, but it can, like a painting or a sculptor's bronze, be an integral part of a musician's creation." Auction price: $8,960 with proceeds to UNICEF

Even Hong Kong started exporting pop. The group Chyna's "There's Rock 'n' Roll In China" was a near-perfect example of how apparently disparate music styles can merge, for it was a definitive Eurasian song: English lyrics, a Mandarin chorus, Western electronic instruments, plus traditional Chinese instruments like the gu-geng.

A worldwide break for African music looks much closer at this year's end, through tours by Sunny Ade, Juluka, Fela Kuti and others, and the multi-national record companies are edging into black territories with hard-cash interest.

While the strengthening of the U.S. dollar against some currencies was a problem, coupled with the sky-high fees demanded by the top names, the general touring business worldwide showed an upturn this year. And if record sales were on average some 7% to 15% down on 1982, an even worse slump was averted by the growing use and quality of promotional video, with London generally accepted as the key creative center.

It was in London that the Everly Brothers got back together to fuel a worldwide yen for nostalgia. It was in London that Chris Sievey of EMI linked a computer game with an audio single to feed the international demand for experimental technology.

The energy of pop creativity outside the old U.S./U.K. axis is even extending to Japan where the obvious language problem is eliminated by the increasing export of that nation's "karaoke" singalong music, instrumental tracks with spaces left for do-it-yourself vocals.

The year in video music was summed up at Billboard's Fifth Annual Video Music Conference in November. There, artists, managers, record company executives, producers, directors, and others in the field gathered to discuss state of the art and offer their prophecies on the future.

Music has become more visible today than ever before, with television shows galore cropping up in 1983 to take advantage of freely supplied videoclips from the labels; plus shows ranging from small local programs on low-power tv and cable to MTV, the grandfather of them all at the still young age of two.

Stepped-up production means videoclips for virtually every top 40 album on the charts. And budgets are climbing too—though they rarely approach the estimated $750,000 of Michael Jackson's 14-minute "Thriller," completed late this year.

Still, video music 1983 can be summed up in one word: competitive. With commercial and feature film directors getting into the act, labels seem to be falling over themselves in an attempt to create the biggest, longest, most beautiful, most grotesque, and most derivative video music productions.

The industry is at a crossroads as labels examine the way they do business. Labels are trying to figure out how to recoup the monies spent on videoclips while still retaining the rights to them; which means that contractual arrangements with artists are becoming more complicated. The traditional three-minute videoclip is metamorphosing into projects that find their way into theatrical release and into the home video marketplace.

The home video market shows great promise for music titles for 1984 and beyond. Since virtually every movie ever made has been released on videocassette and/or videodisk, home video companies are turning to original programming to satisfy the needs of consumers for new titles. Music already plays an important role and one that can only grow.

A number of original music projects are in the works now for release next year, and home video companies are tying in with labels and with MTV to promote them.

IAN COPELAND, president, Frontier Booking International, on MTV's promotional support to the Police's "Synchronicity" tour

"Radio has never been one of my greatest servants. Maybe I learned something from his (father, a former CIA agent) tactics, but I had to circumvent radio completely and build a street following through the clubs when the Police first played here in 1978."

Radio '83

In many ways it's been as if the radio industry has spent 1983 in a time machine—a cosmic version of a digital delay unit with technology expanding rapidly into the future, programming contracting back to the past. CBS, for example, brought its network affiliates to the brink of the 21st century stopping all land line feeds in favor of satellite delivery this summer, while continuing to convert the majority of its owned and operated FMs to a format made popular in 1956.

Be it top 40, Hot Hits!, Hit Radio, or contemporary hits, the formatics expounded upon by Mike Joseph, Todd Storz, and Gordon McLendon at the 1959 disk jockey convention are back almost in their entirety today. CBS' "Hot Radio," patterned on the same basics down to its noticeable reverb, is having noticeable success.

More and more station execs, such as WFIL Philadelphia GM Bruce Holberg, are looking to that "element of fun" in their programming description. Holberg, like many AM operators who switched to country as an alternative over the past few years, discovered in 1983 it was not the quick fix he had hoped. Similarly those rushing to news/talk discovered the format was not only slow in developing on new outlets but sometimes cost prohibitive. As some AMs looked to more information, others reverted to music. Regardless of the shifting, and much did occur, AM's future continued to be a topic of concern. While stereo proliferated on the band, it remained non-existent to the listener. What the listener heard was often second rate. Programming, not technology, continued to drive audience shares to FM.

In the battle for supremacy, promotion continued to emerge as a major factor. Positioning, a concept unknown in earlier top 40 days, now accounts for a growing number of success stories including L.A.'s KIIS-FM.

Top 40's return, while a throwback to the past, has been dominated by the music produced today. The energy and vibrancy of a Thomas Dolby or the Eurythmics demand a corresponding level of excitement from air personalities. Just as the Eagles or Seals & Croft paved the way for the laid back adult contemporary of the '70s, Hall & Oates provide the spawning ground for contemporary hit radio's rebirth.

Perhaps most affected by the musical shift is AOR—a format more music dependent than any—short of easy listening. ABC's WPLJ New York is somewhat representative of the pressure many AOR facilities now face. As the year began PD Larry Berger attributed WPLJ's great success to consistency. By summer he had switched to top 40. At that point he denied the changeover saying "we're simply playing more music," but by fall pretenses were off, and Casey Kasem's "American Top 40" was on. Doubleday, steeped in the format in 1982—to the point of committing itself to the now cancelled joint AOR program venture with Mutual—now finds synergy secondary to winning and has switched to an all-out top 40 approach in Denver and Washington, D.C. while refining its remaining AOR properties to include more hit product. Boston, an area known for its AOR appeal is down to one such outlet, with top 40 WHTT dominating the market.

And personalities, relegated to reading liner cards by several facilities years ago, are beginning to re-emerge. Washington D.C. is again dominated by personality radio. Dick Biondi is back in a major market... Even the hint of payola scandals of days gone by returned in 1983—albeit long on allegation, void of substance.

If the past continues to play a major part in the future where will 1984, the year of George Orwell, take us? Optimistically, back to common sense. To a blending of sterile research with vibrant gut decisions to render that illusive element, the urgency and excitement, the fun so many again hunger for. Realistically, major corporations will continue to amass properties that are escalating in value. One can hope they'll note that the emotion of radio, which cast a nation of young people spellbound three decades ago, lies well between the corporate lines of their P & L sheets.

Radio Editor

KEVIN DUBROW, lead singer, Quiet Riot

"The album came out March 1, and we had the normal six-week wait after it came out, and then we went straight out, going from sedans to station wagons to RVs to the tour bus route. We made the transportation transition in a very short time. We still have a way to go, but as our status level has gone up, so has our comfort level."

Compact Disc '83

It's little more than a year since Compact Disc was launched on the international scene, first in Japan, then Europe and finally, just this past spring, in the United States. The dramatic qualities of the new playback system captured the imagination of the public here and abroad as perhaps no past development in recorded music since the invention of the recorded sound itself.

Bringing computer technology to the reproduction of music in the home has a drama and currency that people find easy to relate to. Even easier to adapt to for most listeners exposed to the playback systems is the absence of a host of problems that plague conventional disk reproduction—surface noise, restricted dynamic range, inhibited bass response on long LP sides, inner-groove distortion, etc.

Here, finally, was a system that bypassed these inherent disk defects, and promised timeless, pristine reproduction with only moderate care. A laser beam reading microscopic pits and bumps through a protected surface could not wear the storage medium, no matter how often played. Master quality in the home, was the claim, and if there were some, here and there, who took issue with what they labeled as hyperbole, most who heard CD came away convinced.

Even more were enamored of the new convenience in disk

playback that CD provides. Uninterrupted play for an hour or more, computerized selectivity of bands in any programming order, and across-the-room remote control capability in some models, offered a cornucopia of options that few could resist.

There were some, in the euphoria of CD introduction, who saw the LP, already suffering major inroads by prerecorded cassettes, slated for quick oblivion. But more seasoned observers placed its takeover at a decade or more hence, following gradual adoption by consumers as prices of CD hardware and software came down to levels more competitive with the LP medium, and repertoire on CD became more plentiful.

Best estimates placed the number of CD players introduced into the U.S. marketing pipelines in 1983 at about 50,000, with somewhat more than 450 disk titles turned out in inventory depth of approximately one million units. In 1984, these figures will double or even treble, industry insiders predict.

Greater productivity at existing CD pressing plants in Japan and Germany and the anticipated launch of new manufacturing facilities in the U.S. and Great Britain in the new year will help bridge a production gap that has so far meant allocations and short supply, and the lack of any pressing time at all for some labels seeking entry.

At year's end, industry optimism sparked by an improving economy, already made itself evident through heightened promotion of the new playback format. And far-sighted observers were looking beyond the introduction of personal Walkman-type and car CD players a couple years down the road, to an eventual adaptation of CD as a prime storage medium for home computers.

THE EDGE, guitarist, U2

"Something we're at pains to point out is that 'new music' is a meaningless phrase. Basically, what we play is U2 music. Apart from that, we don't want to be part of any movement. Trends and fads come and go quickly."

Disco/Dance '83

"Come back, all is forgiven," was the message the music industry gave to dance music in 1983. Club crossovers, almost nonexistent in 1981 and considered freak accidents in 1982—the pop success of "Gloria," for example—proliferated to the point where the pop singles top 10 for most of the summer and fall could have been the peak-hour playlist of your favorite club DJ.

To be entirely fair, it can't quite be said that the clubs supplied the dance-oriented smashes to the mass pop audience. "Billie Jean" and "Let's Dance," once recorded and released, were surely destined to be as popular as they were, with club play or without. But because clubs continue to provide a musical and social context for the very existence of a genre, you can bet that if every dance club disappeared tomorrow, a great many songs would never be written at all.

How valuable that setting was became more and more apparent over the course of the year:

—Video, music and dance became interlocked in a new media mix that added up to something far greater than any of its parts: video productions such as "The Message," "Rockit" and "Maniac" hit the audience with a momentum that redoubled in the pile-up of sensory input—the sound, the sight, the dance.

—The ability to pick a left fielder was still the pride of the clubs: the "new music" explosion was, more than anything, a raising of consciousness that, in its finest moments, put Joan Jett and Peter Schilling into discos and Grand Master Flash and Shannon into rock clubs. And it put all of those artists onto radio stations that kept their ears to the clubs.

—It looked as if the club DJ was at last positioned professionally in the music business at large: four years after the first flurry of remix work abated, a DJ hit the Hot 100 as a producer. The record was Madonna's "Holiday," produced by John "Jellybean" Benitez; in the course of its chart run, 13 other records elsewhere on the singles chart had been mixed by him for commercial 12-inch singles.

Though Benitez led the boom with a daunting list of top 40 credits, a host of other DJ remix or production credits appeared on records dotting the pop and black charts: Mark Kamins; John Luongo; Ivan Ivan; Larry Levan; Francois Kevorkian; David Todd and Nick Martinelli; Tony Humphries; Shep Pettibone; Hippie Torrales; Raul Rodriguez; Rusty Garner; Sergio Munzibai and John Morales; Nelson Cruz.

Another healthy sign was that club music began looking at its own history, as records hearkened back to Philadelphia (quite literally, with the re-release of records by First Choice and Loleatta Holloway); to electronic Eurodisco, and also to the disco-diva form that had traditionally kept a much higher representation of female artists on the dance chart than on any other.

In all, traffic on the dance floor was still as hectic as ever, and the attention paid to club music by the rest of the industry served to remind many that standards are still set in the clubs.

Computer Software/
Video Games '83

Mass confusion best describes the intensely volatile home computer industry. This year in computers, major hardware firm, Texas Instruments, bowed out of the low-end market while high-end computer giant, IBM, shocked the electronics community with its entry into this unpredictable market with a $700 machine called PCjr.

All the while, the already-existing home computer makers fought to stay afloat in a low-end market riddled with price slashing and bargain basement close out sales. Retailers pulled their hair out wading through weekly price reductions, and hoping that the industry stays alive through the 1984 holiday selling season.

What has come as such a shock to the financial community is how susceptible to quick reversals the low-end computer and video game industry has become. Companies in the Silicon Valley, the corridor of high technology companies between San Jose and Palo Alto that makes up the hub of computer activity, observed Mattel Electronics, Atari, Activision, Milton-Bradley, Apple Computer, Fox Video Games, Imagic, CBS Electronics, Parker Bros., and others announce layoffs and equity losses.

In 1982, Mattel, Atari and Texas Instruments enjoyed million-dollar earnings. Skyrocketing sales and stock prices reflected new growth and the potential for continued growth. But by 1983's first quarter all this changed, and the incredible earnings of 1982 turned into million-dollar losses.

Video games became the industry most hard hit with losses. Gamesters retired their machines and purchased computers priced below video game consoles. Consumers shifted their computer interest from arcading to doing education, home management and high-level fantasy-role playing applications.

Titles like "Home Accountant," "Bank Street Writer" and "Algebra" became popularly touted among computer owners. Billboard magazine, which became the voice of the video game industry, launched a computer chart that tracked these new categories of software. It found that word processing programs are extremely popular.

Although the computer industry has survived 1983's price wars, it took another rollercoaster ride during that year's fourth quarter. Instead of price slashing, this time price hikes characterized the volatile marketplace.

With the impending launch of two versions of IBM's new machine, one at $700 and the other being about $1,200, Atari and Coleco, on the same day, announced price increases slated for Jan. 1.

The Atari and Coleco new prices kicked off panic computer buying. At the height of the 1983 holiday selling season, retailers found their shelves nearly barren. Now, it is believed that nearly five million American homes plugged into computer technology this year, the year of the home computer.

PERCY WATTS-RUSSELL, manager, Berlin

"We went to all the record companies in Los Angeles and they all said there was no market for this ('Pleasure Victim' EP) in America. They said it was too European sounding. I was told this by every label, including Geffen." The group ultimately signed to Geffen.

Classical '83

Evidence that classics held up well during the lean record years came earlier this year when the Recording Industry Assn. of America released results of recent buying trend studies. Data furnished by a consumer panel of 13,000 families pointed to an increase to 6% in 1982 from 4% the prior year in the share devoted to classics of all dollars spent on recordings.

This was encouraging news to a segment of the industry whose return on investment comes at a much slower pace than in other areas of repertoire. Even if, as some maintain, a good deal of the increase is traceable to crossover product which garners respectable pop market consumption, the fact that it was prepared and marketed under classical department supervision bodes well for the status of the genre within large record operations.

Special opportunity is seen for classics in the developing Compact Disc field which has nowhere else to turn to at present for significant numbers of recordings produced in the digital format. For some years now, digital has been the configuration of preference for practically all new classical recordings, and the stockpile of such master recordings is enormous.

The full benefits of CD can only be heard when the digital process has been used from studio through to disk, say the experts, and only a relative handful of non-classical recordings qualify in this way at the present time. So for a while to come, classics will realize bonus sales, through CD, it would not otherwise earn.

Prerecorded cassettes, largely in the budget area, continued to broaden the market for classics during 1982, even though the spectacular gains enjoyed by nominally $3.98 tapes tapered off a bit. Practically every label was in the market at this price level by year's end and duplication of repertoire by artists of stature daunting.

One of the more remarkable trends, still continuing without abatement, was the presentation of early music played by instruments and in performance styles appropriate to the period. Who would have thought that Mozart symphonies offered in this way would have risen to best selling status, as they did in the case of the Christopher Hogwood productions? We had become accustomed to such treatment of Baroque scores, and years earlier to Renaissance and Medieval works, but not to periods of music that approached nearer our own. Now, we are promised Mozart operas in this manner, and scholar/performers are looking much more closely at performing practices of the Romantic era.

The power of superstars to generate big sales, however, remains at the glamorous core of the classical side of the industry, as it does in all other repertoire categories. And most promising is the quality of a host of younger artists—instrumentalists and singers—who are gaining footholds in this elect group, even as their seniors hold strong.

Tracing the course of jazz during the past year, fans and involved professionals could be forgiven for finding more contradictions than lucid conclusions. From a business standpoint, the picture remained bleak, darkened considerably by further attrition in the available avenues for mass exposure and the continuing retreat of major record companies from the jazz arena. Yet the music itself continued to undergo fresh transformations, as a new generation of performers helped advance not only their own careers, but the emergence of several new streams flowing from the jazz tradition.

More than ever, smaller independent jazz labels loomed as defenders of the jazz faith. Established independents like Fantasy, Concord Jazz, Pausa, Muse and others were able to broaden their chart stature, partially as a result of the majors' lengthening distance from the field. Younger independents, notably Palo Alto Records, likewise benefitted from new clout with their distributors, who lost their remaining mainstream pop lines during the year.

Yet the pull of the major branch systems even thinned out these ranks. Two promising young labels, Gramavision and Windham Hill, pacted with majors, Gramavision entering a distribution deal with PolyGram while Windham Hill entered its own new arrangement with A&M. Among other corporate majors, Elektra/Musician, Warner Bros. and CBS remained the most visible.

Explaining the branch firms' reluctance, at least in part, was the turmoil seen in radio. With formal commercial jazz formats nearly extinct, jazz artists had come to rely upon the national reach of National Public Radio stations, but NPR financial problems led to the cancellation of the networks' influential "Jazz Alive!" series and curtailment of its satellite-fed jazz programming blocks. Meanwhile, live jazz, like live music in other genres, faced the encroachment of recorded entertainment, a force now driven with the added dazzle of projection video, which increasingly entered into club owners' blueprints for entertainment.

Ironically, jazz may have been more pervasive a musical and commercial force than many onlookers realized. Further evolution in the musical dialog between jazz and other idioms, especially folk, bluegrass, swing and classical styles, was apparent in the rise of hybrids drawing from each. As Rounder Records, a respected folk music label, dubbed the movement, "New Acoustic Music" became a quiet but significant new subgenre bridging jazz, pop, folk and other audiences.

Perhaps more promising, at least in commercial terms, was the interplay between modern jazz players and the mercurial new world of commercial dance music. The "no wave" collaborations between jazz and rock players of the late '70s became more influential during 1983, as contemporary urban rock and r&b mirrored the experimental funk, free jazz and musique concrete elements audible in the work of Material, Ronald Shannon Jackson, Herbie Hancock (whose "Rockit" emerged as a telling summary of the trend, fusing dance, "scratch" and electronic music), Oliver Lake, Jamaaladeen Tacuma and others.

MARVIN GAYE

"I just don't want to say anything. I want to say something profound. It calls for fasting, feeling, praying, lots of praying and maybe we can come up with a more spiritual social statement that will provide some food for thought."

BOY GEORGE

"We don't ask people at the door, 'Hey, are you a fag?' It doesn't matter. Pop music is popular. And popular is everyone. As long as people enjoy our music, that's what we are there for."

GREG KIHN

"Isn't that shocking? Me with a dance hit ('Jeopardy'). I can't dance two steps in a row. I have trouble walking across the room without stumbling."

JEFF PORCARO, Toto drummer

"Most critics aren't musicians and don't have the faintest idea of what it is to play that tight and that good. We have just as much raw energy as other bands, but you're hearing music that's in tune; you're hearing play capabilities that get better and better each year."

CARLOS BARBA, president, WNJU-TV, N.Y., which handles promotion for Menudo in the U.S. and new territories

"It's not just records that we're selling. It's dance, tv, a whole image. We've worked hard on this project. We've built it up just like the Beatles were built."

The following is a list of top chart artists and their record labels, booking agents, personal managers and contacts. Artist selection was based predominantly upon point totals that accounted for the number of records each artist had on a particular Billboard chart, the positions of those records and the number of weeks they were on a chart.

Charts used include the following: Adult Contemporary Artists, Black Singles, Black LPs, Country Singles, Country LPs, Disco/Dance Artists, Jazz LPs, Pop Singles, and Pop LPs.

Artists who made the same charts during the same time period (November 1982-October 1983) but without sufficient point totals to make the top artist listings for any of the aforementioned charts are not included. Also, eligible artists without any agent, manager or contact reference are not listed.

Information was supplied mainly by the artists' record companies and booking agents. All listing information is checked for accuracy as of editorial listing deadline. However, Billboard is not responsible for changes in management, bookings or any other related business associations that may supersede the listings contained herein.

The addresses and telephone numbers for the booking agents, personal managers and contacts follow this section.

Lost big money?

It happens every day! Talent buyers and others in the Touring Talent Industry are called upon to make quick decisions. Experience alone is not enough. A lack of current information leads to that lost opportunity or bad decision that can cost thousands of dollars. That's the reason industry leaders like Avalon, Bill Graham, Contemporary, JAM, John Scher, PACE and many others including major clubs, colleges, facilities, record labels, and tour support services subscribe to P.O.L.L. Promoters On-Line Listings is the Information Service for business people who understand that quality information leads to quality decision-making and therefore the strongest possible bottom line. After all, a dollar is a terrible thing to waste—especially in large quantities.

THANK YOU!

Ontario Place extends a thank you as big as all Canada to the galaxy of talent that helped make the 1983 season at the Forum our greatest ever. Better than 880,000 people packed our seats and grassy slopes to applaud 200 performances from May 12 to Sept. 11. As you can see, our programming covers the who's who of international talent and the spectrum of entertainment tastes. With its intimate waterfront setting, its revolving stage, and its accommodating staff, the Forum amphitheatre is an entertainment environment second to none. So, whether your star is just rising or long established, come and enjoy the warmth of Toronto's audiences in a setting that will bring out your best...and ours.

Make Waves at Three Rivers.

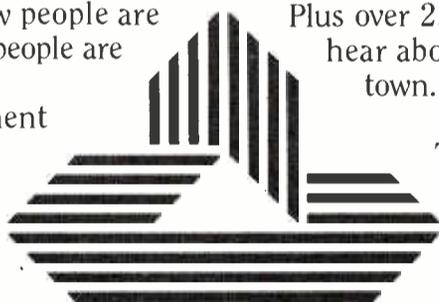

Everybody knows the Steelers and Pirates play at Three Rivers Stadium.

Not everybody knows that people like Simon & Garfunkel and professional Supercross motocross are playing here now, too.

The fact is, these new people are playing here because new people are working here.

Expect The World

SING IT! PLAY IT! SHOW IT!

For spectacular performances

Expect your event to be a grand occasion. And draw great box office. In this fabulous stadium. It's Canada's first, North America's largest, the world's most beautiful air supported dome. B.C. Place Stadium, in Vancouver, British Columbia.

A worldly audience

1.3 MILLION people live within a 40-minute drive of the new stadium. Located in downtown Vancouver, it's easy to get to by car or public transit. With ample parking.

British Columbians respond to diverse attractions. Plus, this city by the sea is a year round favourite for tourists. Expect enthusiastic ticket sales.

Stadium seating for over 60,000

Every seat offers a panoramic view. On-the-floor seating expands the audience potential to over 65,000. Plenty of room for promoters to profit.

For trade or consumer shows, the stadium can be adapted readily to exhibit space totalling 230,000 square feet (21,340 square metres). That's more than 700 booths, 10 feet (3.05 metres) square.

World's finest facilities

Designed to be as efficient as it is beautiful, this multi-purpose facility offers the utmost in state-of-the-art technology. Everything from a high quality sound system and an electronic colour video messageboard to "elephant doors" for easy vehicle access. Excellent accommodations. And a trained staff, ready, willing and able to work to make your event a big success.

by PETER JONES & VITTORIO CASTELLI

The well-known Italian capacity to draw inspiration from adversity has rarely been tested more thoroughly than in this year's record industry crisis.

That's an official "state of crisis," rubber-stamped as such by the Italian government. Formal acceptance of that status brings industry-salvaging financial benefits.

Talk of crisis as such built as figures for the first four months of the year were announced, showing sales of LPs, singles and prerecorded cassettes were down 27.8% to 10.8 million units from the same period of 1982. Those figures were, in turn, down 28.3% from the final four months of last year.

So the industry, united by stark economic horror, applied for "cassa integrazione," or "integration funds," a financial aid scheme developed in recent years by the various governments in this economically turbulent territory.

Under the scheme, companies are permitted to allow some workers to stay at home, either for a full working week or part of it, with salaries maintained proportionately to a maximum 80% from public funds.

To catalog the myriad problems which have harassed the industry into its state of crisis is a long job.

Rising costs, falling sales, Value Added Tax, the imposition for a while of a 16% consumption tax on all stocks, overexposure of music on the proliferating radio and tv networks, an inadequate retail trade, piracy, home taping, problems (linguistic mainly) of spreading Italian talent worldwide... the list goes on.

Yet, from the adversity, the inspiration is filtering through. Many companies report first flickerings of revival in the post-summer months. The Italians have, for instance, staged a healthy invasion of the U.K. charts, and in other territories, through singles like the Club House disco mix "Do It Again/Billie Jean," through the Rondo Veneziana classical/disco blend, through Righeira's "Vamos A La Playa," through the Europe-wide Ryan Paris hit "La Dolce Vita," and Black Lace's "Superman."

The overall economic situation in Italy is as shaky as ever. But the record industry draws inspiration from its own creativity.

Piero La Falce, managing director of CBS Dischi, has his own woefully long list of reasons which, singly or en masse, conspire to keep people out of the record shops. The 16% "consumption" tax imposed by the government on all stocks of goods, the workers' contract renewal negotiations nationwide, home taping, piracy, loss of creativity, high prices and too much "free music made available" top the list.

He says ruefully: "The strange thing is that there's more and more demand for music, yet sales have dropped."

CBS in Italy, in its fifth year as a separate operation, has done well, improving its market share consistently to gain a place with the leaders. Says La Falce: "We observe the crisis from the standpoint of a company which has sold well but could have done much, much better if it hadn't been for the tough economic times."

He's by no means pessimistic. "One of the reasons we've done well is our local talent involvement, alongside our traditionally powerful international repertoire." On the domestic roster: Claudio Baglioni, Banco, Loredana Berté, Marcella and others.

He says: "We're working flat out on breaking new talent, or bringing back talent which initially didn't really reach full potential, such as Anna Oxa, Ivano Fossati and Laura Luca. And there's Julio Iglesias, who's so popular in Italy. He's succeeded here because Italian people claim him as an Italian artist, hence his wide national appeal."

La Falce, one of two presidents of Italian IFPI group AFI, goes on: "You have to stick with new releases for a long time. It's not true they last only a short time in the marketplace."

He agrees tv is more and more important in breaking new product. "The visual image is now 50% of the business of establishing new hits. But to beat the sales slump, record companies must be more selective over new releases. And so much tv-merchandising albums represents a negative phenomenon, I think. It cuts the singles market even more."

Good music is still being created but is often buried deep beneath growing amounts of "inferior rubbish," according to Alex Rotelli, EMI Italiana managing director. This stifling of new talent is high on his list of problems, alongside the economic/political hassles.

Facing Problems, Forging Solutions

Peter Jones is Billboard's International Editor in London. Vittorio Castelli is Billboard's correspondent in Milan.

Home taping, he says, with the enormous number of radio stations (at least 3,000) and tv outlets (several hundreds, hard to be accurate) means the constant increase of demand for music is "satisfied" even before the disks and cassettes are bought.

"With music so easily available free, the few dollars left in times of economic crisis for leisure go over to other entertainment fields. While tv merchandising is appealing to the consumer, it hits sales of original albums by the individual artists. The logic of this kind of release is smudged. There's too much of it."

EMI Italiana started 1983 well enough in sales terms with seven top 20 albums staving off the crisis. But Rotelli sees the year-end results falling in line with the doomy 28% overall fall of the first quarter (as against January-March last year) and the 21% dip second quarter.

Video games, he says, may help a company's economic status but won't solve music sector problems. "In the long term, they could prove another factor in cutting back the record business. EMI Italiana is not involved in games nor, at this time, in video."

Local talent adds up to 40% of EMI's Italian non-classical unit sales and the aim is to build it to 50-50 status. Nada, as recording artist and concert draw, is a strong newcomer and EMI looks for Garbo to break big.

As for concerts, Rotelli says: "The number of 30-40 year-olds who go is increasing but many are kept away by poor amenities. They're not kids any more. You just can't put them in open-air sites lacking all comforts."

With such a bad start to 1983, even with the first flickering of a recovery from June onwards, it's impossible now for the Italian industry even to equal 1982 trading results, admits Sandro Delor, general manager, CGD Dischi.

But the optimistic view that the worst is over is backed, he says, by CGD sales over budget by 30% for August and 70% in September. Big-name releases, delayed at crisis height, will help the last quarter.

Top hits for CGD were Righeira's "Vamos A La Playa" and the "16 Rounds" compilation, plus "Bandiera Gialla," by Ivan Cattaneo, a tv collection of hit songs, not records, of the 1960s, a package which fits well into Italy's current taste for nostalgia.

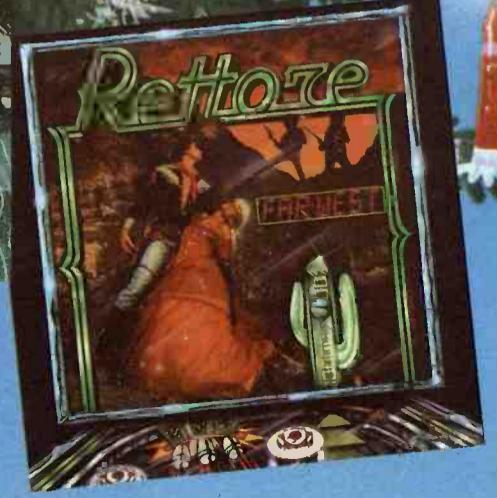

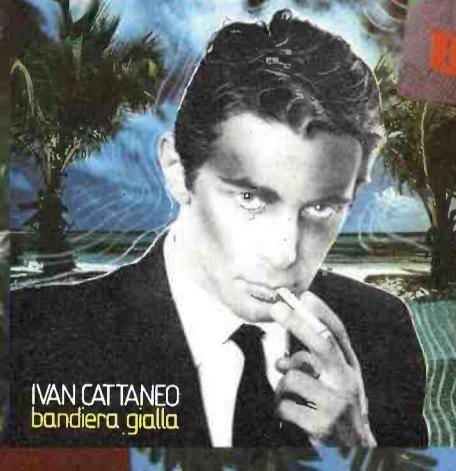

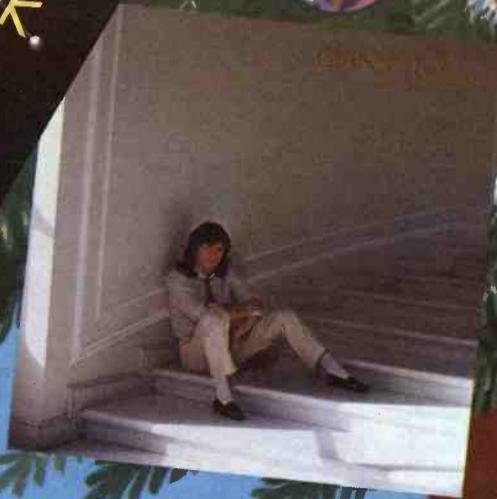

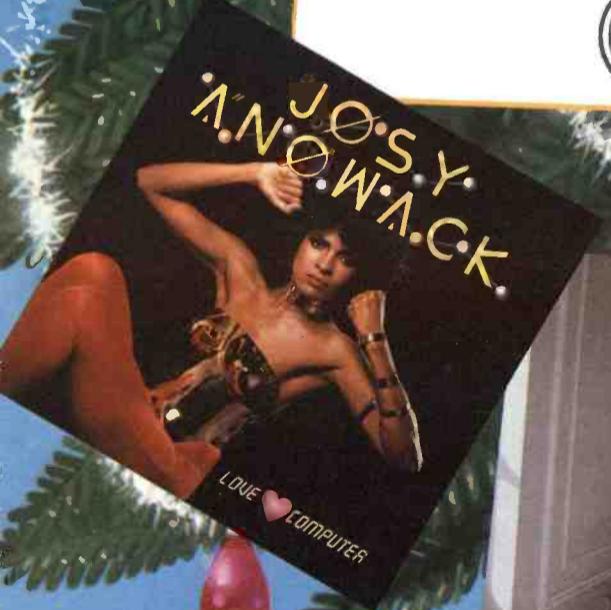

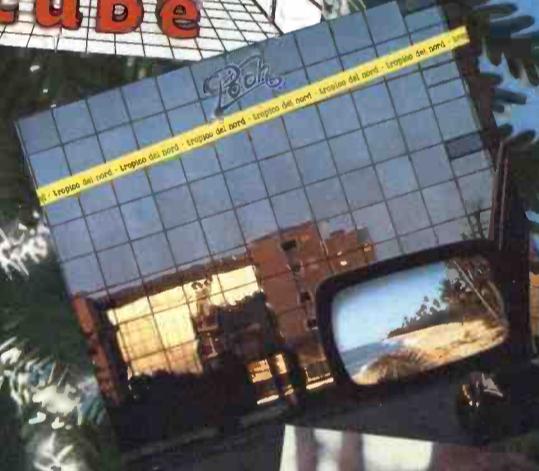

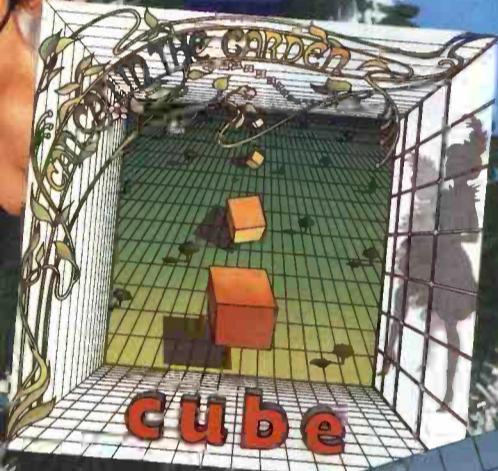

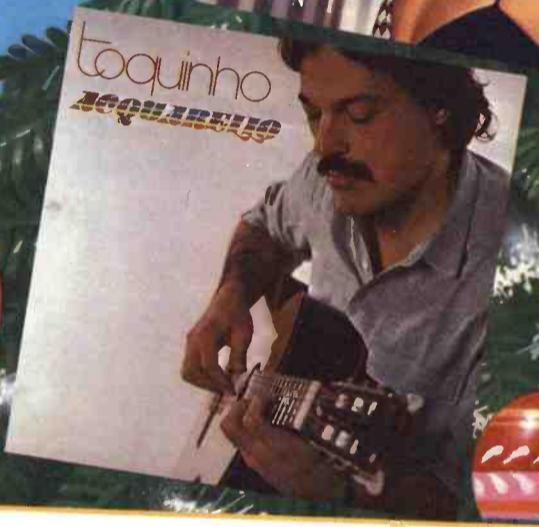

Says Delor: "One positive feature emerging from the crisis slump is that it's opened industry eyes to the horrific promotion problems. We've had to consider quality and pricing of our product. We've had to cut exposure in various media areas and events."

"We've opted to work with 30 of the hundreds of radio sta-

Industry Battles Too Much Music, Too Little Money In Long Climb Back

TV AND PROMOTION: Sandro Delor, CGD General Manager

In Italy, record promotion on radio and television is a more complex matter than in any other European territory, a situation created by the proliferation of networks, an estimated 3,000 for radio and at least 400 for tv, in recent years. Over-exposure, or too much free music, is the cause of the industrywide headache.

Says Sandro Delor, general manager, Dischi CGD: "In Italy now, we're going through a very delicate time in the areas of on-air and on-screen promotion.

"In the last few months, dozens of tv programs, crammed with an indiscriminate selection of singers, have been put out by all the Italian State and commercial tv stations, resulting in a highly detrimental excess of exposure. What's more, it is for the most part boring for the audience which suffers through the same over-repeated and endless parade of artists.

"The problem now is to regulate all these programs and somehow make them more varied and professional. The cost of these shows is effectively borne by the record company, but the show organizers and local tv stations get all the financial benefit from the advertising spots.

"The tv program has a real use when it is professional and discriminating, when the artist can express himself in the right technical setting. But we've all seen far too many shows in which singers have had either little rehearsal or no rehearsal. Shows put together at the last moment. The length of programs is another vital factor. There are shows running two or three hours, and that's simply an open invitation to the viewer to switch on to another channel.

"And on the radio side, Italy has hundreds and hundreds of private stations unregulated by any kind of laws. So record companies have a difficult choice: either collaborate only with those stations which follow the AFI (national IFPI group) or SIAE (copyright society) regulations, or go for wider collaboration in order to avoid the home taping at present made too easy by many stations.

"This is a crucial period in Italian industry development. This overdose of music makes the product less valued, valuable and also less appealing. Promotion departments should now aim at imposing some sense of order through tactful and tactical links with the mass media.

"And as for the tv-merchandized albums, this success will continue only if the advertising is of all-round excellence, and the concept, record and video of high quality. But at a certain point, the law of diminishing returns comes into operation. The balance between advertising investment and return can easily become negative.

"In Italy today, tv-merchandized disks have a future only if of consistently higher quality, supported by advertising slots of greater artistic invention."

VIDEO GAMES: Piero La Falce, CBS Dischi Managing Director

Intensive marketing and promotion campaigns in the video games sector are building up in the Italian marketplace and many top record business executives see this as a field of profitability while the record/music industry fights its way back from its crisis.

Piero La Falce, managing director, CBS Dischi, in Milan, says: "The first video games were introduced in Italy some eight years ago. They consisted of electronic accessories which could be connected to a television set in the home, so paving the way for a virtual transformation of tv and home entertainment.

"But the first video games were obviously of limited potential. They were in black and white, with simple graphics. Then, in 1979, three years after the first games appeared, second-generation games, featuring sophisticated color graphics were introduced and the brand name Atari launched a whole new era in the field, in Italy as in most of the rest of the world.

"Between 1979 and 1981, video game sales in Italy averaged a modest 40,000 units a year. But it would be a mistake to think that the Italian public was not yet ready for this range of home entertainment.

"The fact is very little was done, publicity-wise, to arouse consumer interest and encourage inquiries or buying of the new product. So the real boom in the field started in 1982, when sales figures were twice the level of the previous two years. In unit terms, there were around 100,000 video game consoles and 400,000 games cartridges in action.

"New forecasts for this full year are ambitious at an estimated 250,000 hardware units and more than a million cartridges. Though these figures seem, at first glance, pretty high, they really represent only the beginning. There are currently around 10 million color tv set owners in Italy and only 2.5% of them will own a video game unit. Yet ownership in the U.S. is estimated at some 18% and in the U.K. is 6%.

"This merely underlines what enormous potential this product has in Italy. The first really serious marketing effort is only just taking off here and 1984 will witness intense nationwide promotional activity in the field.

"The latest development is the third generation console launched by CBS Colecovision, which can be adapted for use as a microprocessor and which has an advanced memory capacity. It's currently the only video game unit with this potential, and it's the first offering home users the sophisticated graphics of arcade games. It's not surprising, then, that Colecovision is already giving its competitors a hard time in its first year on offer.

"Colecovision is marketed in Italy by CBS Dischi through a newly-created division, CBS Electronics, which should be fully staffed by the end of this year. In the meantime, to ride the momentum of consumer interest fostered by Coleco's participation in the major trade fairs this year, distribution is set with important organizations already operating in the various channels.

"So 1984 will clearly be the year of Colecovision. Since September, Coleco consoles have been available at various points of sale, with a range of 19 cartridges compatible with Atari, Intellelevision (Mattel) and Coleco hardware. The product line will soon include expansion modules (No. 1 and 2) transforming the Coleco console so as to accept turbo cartridges and all Atari VCs and compatible cartridges such as Activision, Imagic, Parker Brothers and so on. With these modules, Colecovision will become the video game with the most extensive potential cartridge library.

"We're planning point-of-sale support, of course, including a marketing and sales manual to keep dealers updated on the latest product and promotion developments.

"Orders processed in Italy in July exceeded estimates, confirming strong market interest aroused at the three trade fairs, Toy Fair, Videogames Exhibition in the U.S. and SIM in Italy.

"The video games business here is emerging as one of the most competitive and aggressive in home entertainment, parallel to the home and personal computer market, where the struggle for leadership now being fought out between Texas Instruments, Commodore and Atari will soon be extended to include CBS with its highly sophisticated and competitive 1984 entry, Adam."

DISTRIBUTION: Giuseppe Velona, WEA Italiana Managing Director

Distribution, an increasingly important aspect of today's Italian record industry, has in most cases had to be modified to meet new demands. Computerization is a vital key, expensive but essential.

Giuseppe Velona, managing director, WEA Italiana, says: "For many years, it was customary to evaluate a record company on the basis of the quality of its artists and its creative departments. Distribution was seen as just a service accessory, like the pressing plant of the record studio.

"But these were the years when, if a record could not be found in the marketplace for a few days or weeks, it wasn't a serious matter. The potential purchaser simply kept on looking until he found it. And often he'd be willing to pay a little more for it.

"Things in Italy changed fast when the independent radio stations sprang up like mushrooms nationwide. In the absence of a record from the local store racks, the potential purchaser filled the gap by listening to his neighborhood radio station—or, worse, recorded off air the item he wanted.

"For those companies which, to a great extent, base their turnover on international repertoire, there was the emergence of the European Economic Community and the consequent free circulation of recorded product through the territories involved. So, if a multi-national company, or licensee of foreign catalogs, isn't instantly prompt in fulfilling orders, tions in promotion terms. We're rejecting tv requests for our artists unless they're guaranteed a worthwhile showcase."

Comparative figures for CGD show: third quarter (July-September) 1982, budget $3.5 million, actual $4.7 million; same quarter this year, budget $4 million, actual $4.7 million. That's just on the record division statistics, but this company is into many other areas linked with music, through CGD Videosuono, of which Roberto Guerrazzi is general manager.

Musical instruments (best-sellers mini-keyboards and professional electronic lines) look like reaching seven billion liras (roughly $4.37 million) by year's end, as against just over half that for 1982.

CGD-Massaggerie Musicali's sheet music division is barely clinging on to last year's sales levels, but it will receive urgent attention next year. In home video, the company has pacts with CVR, Video Box and Avelca. On the way is a license deal with Arts International (London) to provide 10 operas shot "live" in top opera houses and featuring such names as Placido Domingo and Kiri Te Kanawa.

The company also scores with a series of videocassettes, featuring classical guitar lessons by Ruggero Chiesa, and this is proving a neat way of linking corporate musical instrument sales with sheet music and home video. But feature films on video are hard hit by piracy and this division is anyway restricted by the small number of VCRs in Italy as yet. However the company does produce its own line, Asaka, of blank cassettes, manufactured by Magnex, while it imports Americanino product on an exclusive basis.

The CGD group also distributes for such prestigious labels as Baby.

Despite the corporate successes, Delor remains realistic about the gravity of the problems. Television records reach the adults and people living in remote areas who don't normally go for in-store shopping. Concerts are very important, but today a crowd of 30,000 is rare, whereas much higher attendances used to be commonplace.

He'd like to see closer links between artists and record companies.

CGD artists moving into the Compact Disc format include Ornella Vanoni, Adriano Celentano and Pooh. CGD is constantly seeking new consumer-slanted campaigns, he says, a new one being "Musica Fortunata," ("Lucky Music"), based on an idea often used in other areas but debuting in the Italian music industry.

Each new release has a picture of a dollar coin printed on the inside jacket, or cassette folder. Buyers can cut out the coin, send it to CGD and so participate in a lottery with a top prize of $100,000 and cars and holidays among runner-up awards.

Giuseppe Ornato, managing director of RCA Italiana and new president of AFI, the national IFPI branch, is deeply concerned about the retail situation in Italy.

"It's a terrible problem. Many shops not into specializations and therefore unable to offer the wide range of product the public wants, are going through tough times. Many will go out of business," he says.

Again, the 16% "consumption" tax takes the rap, for it applied not only to goods sold but those in stock. It led to de-stocking, not re-stocking, says Ornato. And for RCA Italiana, the sales dip has been worst for singles, an overall marketplace finding, and for LPs. Cassettes held up better as the crisis bit.

Says Ornato: "The market nowadays is slanted towards hits compilations, but that's no good sign. These records seriously affect sales of corporate repertoire. We brought out just one this year, for the Festivalbar event. We didn't apply the so-called tv 'ticket' price mark-up for dealers, even though it was heavily promoted on television."

RCA policy is strongly slanted to local talent, with 70% of the catalog in this category. The rest is of classical and international product, the former also including recordings by top Italian musicians such as violinist Uto Ughi. But new releases have been cut by half, linked with more careful promotion selectivity.

The Italian RCA branch now distributes Siglaquattro, which in turn provides valued promotional outlets via the Retequattro tv network, the second most important in Italy.

Last year, RCA Italiana broke new ground by releasing a country music series which started out well, slipped in the slump, but which will be re-started. The company isn't yet into video and a 1984 launch depends on hardware sales growth.

The timing of the imposition of the 16% "consumption" tax, government-levied, came just as retailers were re-stocking after the 1982 Christmas sales boom. The result: the industry virtually came to a standstill, according to Marco Bignotti, managing director PolyGram Dischi.

He says: "Add to the social and economic reasons for records falling from favor is the unprecedented spread of free music. Radio and tv even hits the concert business. Show tickets are expensive and public fascination in top artists is weakened by too much tv exposure.

"Just as bad is the spread of disco/dance records by anonymous and faceless studio musicians. They simply mean the performer loses more ground as a star image for kids to follow.

"At PolyGram, we've suffered like everybody else. But we're fighting back. Second half 1983 figures seem promising. Our great advantage is width of repertoire. Our classical catalogs, DG and Philips, alone have a sales budget as big as most medium-sized companies. The wide range of our pop product gives us a wide marketing scope."

At pop level, national domestic talent has a 60% overall share, says Bignotti, and PolyGram reflects that trend. This year Teresa de Sio and Dire Straits took first prizes, national and international, in the "Vela d'Oro" contest. Latest addition to the roster is Heather Parisi, in fact from the U.S. but an Italian phenomenon, via the Saturday evening "Fantastico" tv series, which is coupled with the state lottery and rated a top promotional showcase. PolyGram has most of the artists involved, including Teresa de Sio, the Bee Gees, Elton John and Tony de Vita.

Bignotti says of television promotion: "What deeply concerns me is the proliferation of record companies owned by, or linked with, private tv networks. Though it is respectable entrepreneurial behavior, I think it's dangerous that tv networks are allowed to start production of goods which are nothing to do with tv. It's unfair competition."

While WEA Italiana has been hit by what Giuseppe Velona, managing director, calls "the big slump," the company's market share was improved. In the first quarter it was up from 7.1% to 7.6% and, while it bottomed out at peak crisis points at 6.1%, results being readied will show a share of around 8%.

Velona is one leading executive who'd like to see "rivalry put aside for while" in a general industry campaign to per-the missing software is imported direct by retailers and wholesalers.

"Be it in terms of relations between multi-nationals and trade, or local company and retailer, and with the attendant financial commitments, often substantial, the consequence of product absence from the market is much more serious nowadays.

"On top of that, there is the piracy problem which certainly takes advantage of any distribution failure and goes on to build even higher sales of illegitimate product. Distribution, then, is of prime importance, the catalyst through which the efforts of the creative and promotional departments become hits. Old distributive systems have had to be modified, rationalized, to get optimum effect.

"Total computerization is the keystone of the transformation of the Italian distribution networks. Once the time of transmission and receipt of orders, from sales forces or customers direct, is reduced to a minimum, you have to have an on-line system available which gives instant check of the credit position of the orderer, prepares the shipping documents, books the required product, maintains an inventory.

"This all tends to imply special training of staff on computer use.

"But in setting up the data processing center at WEA Italiana, the aim was to avoid turning the computer into the hallowed terrain of the experts. On the contrary, the user was encouraged to use the system directly, through terminals and printers.

"Once the level of operating efficiency has been reached, we found the modern distribution system doesn't need the support of numerous branches which were, at one time, perhaps necessary. We've simply split Italy into two large geographical areas: the north and part of the center, served from Milan, and the south and remainder of the center and the islands, served from Rome.

"Now we've achieved a distribution system with a very high rate of efficiency which is, particularly as regards the computer, the most advanced in certainly the Italian record sector."

COMPACT DISC: Marco Bignotti, PolyGram Dischi Managing Director

Whether or not the Compact Disc replaces the analog record in the near future is not a matter which unduly exercises top Italian music business executives. What they are agreed on as the key factor is that CD is a vital ingredient in the battle to regain sales ground lost in the overall economic slump.

Marco Bignotti, managing director, PolyGram Dischi, in Milan, says: "The Compact Disc hit the Italian marketplace last spring. At that time, record sales were tumbling, in an atmosphere of psychological stress caused by the inflicting of the 16% 'consumption' tax and then its eventual repeal.

"The new soundcarrier format made its entry, injecting a certain amount of hope, relief even, into the heart of the retail trade. The question was: would the Compact Disc offer a real prospect of bringing the customers back into the stores again?

"The public, in fact, had been kept well informed through a long promotional campaign of the main features of Compact Disc technology. Naturally enough, in Italy as elsewhere, the first in-store action came from the more sophisticated section of the music-buying public. Hi fi bugs and real music fans were the pioneer purchasers.

"Response from the start was exceptionally good. Right through the fall it's true to say that all allocated product was sold out as soon as it reached the shops. There were many cases of Compact Disc buyers purchasing software before they'd even installed a hardware unit. That was seen as a trade oddity, a quirk, but the main reason is partly one of sheer enthusiasm for ownership of the new software and also a general belief that CD player prices would be substantially reduced in a short time.

"There's no disputing the fact that the Italian CD market is still at its very beginning. We're only just through the first order-fulfillment stage. By October this year, there were only three companies, CBS, Decca Dischi Italia and PolyGram, out taking on consistent roles in the marketplace. Therefore it's too early to evaluate sales figures and marketing data statistics.

"But in the meantime, CD promotion campaigns continue. After that first period spent informing the general public about the technical features of the system, and the Italian press in general, not just the specialist publications, was receptive, we're not into a new phase where the basic emphasis is placed on the sound qualities of the new medium.

"As far as the future of the Compact Disc in Italy is concerned, it obviously has the greatest of potential in terms of sales and profitability. Once the product availability problems are sorted out, we can depend on CD reaching that full potential.

"Nevertheless, it's my belief that what we have in CD is another wonderful means of reproducing music. I don't think it will take the place of the analog disk for a long time yet.

"Compact Disc technology, though, will prove an effective factor in developing the record market in general and so help us get out of the tough situation the recorded music business finds itself in right now."

ITALIAN REPERTOIRE ABROAD: Freddy Naggiar, Baby Records President

While Italian music is popular in many foreign territories, notably in South America, there remain many problems of distribution, promotion and finance in establishing it internationally. Maybe, think some industry executives, it would help if artists and producers got together to try to get top-level backing and support.

Says Freddy Naggiar, president of Baby Records: "Over the past four years, more than 15 Italian records have been sold outside Italy. That's an exciting figure to report and it underlines the kind of support that exists worldwide for Italian sounds and singers.

"It wasn't always like that. Up to a few years ago, you could track down Italian compositions enjoying popularity round the world, but seldom in their original performance versions. I'm lucky enough, in my role with Baby Records, to have been deeply involved in this success story. I know the facts, rather than the abstract observations generally offered about Italy's role in the worldwide music business.

"When I started travelling round Europe to see if I could do something with our Italian hits, I found myself in a tricky situation. Because of our rather easy-going attitude, especially where promotional engagements were concerned, Italian artists and producers had gained a somewhat unhappy reputation for unreliability.

"That was a big handicap to overcome. I had to emphasize and build our professionalism. I had to convince, one by one, disk jockeys, radio/tv people and others that we were serious about our music and had good product to offer.

"Now things have changed. I'm proud to have pioneered new trends. People worldwide have come to realize Italy isn't just pizza and spaghetti these days. As Gianni Versace and Giorgio Armani did in fashion, so we're proving that Italian music travels well. There's still a lot to be done, granted. For a start, we haven't really succeeded in breaking our artists in the Anglo-American markets. The reasons for this are different and many.

"Language is high on the list of problems. It can be overcome by artists singing in English. At Baby Records, we know something about this since our latest big hit is 'I Like Chopin' by Gazebo and that is simply an English-language Italian hit. This, and Ryan Paris' 'Dolce Vita' have charted within the Anglo-American markets."

suaude the public back into the record shops.

He says: "We believe in local talent. Local hits mean bigger sales here than international hits. But nowadays we're very choosy over artist selection and subsequent promotion. As for hit collections, the wise course is not to make use of very recent, still active hit singles."

In Italy, WEA is into the videocassette business, rental only. Says Velona: "That was a tricky decision. The Italian public isn't familiar with the rental concept. But now we have a catalog of around 70 titles. The problem was finding the right sales outlets. We're in only some 150 from an estimated 1,500 sales points.

"But that 16% 'consumption' tax operates on video hardware, pegging sales back at a precise point where the industry was taking tentative steps forward."

It was Ricordi's turn this year to put out the album covering the San Remo Song Festival entries and that recently revitalized selling bonus produced 400,000-plus sales, which helped soften the blow of generally slashed profits. Ricordi distributed Carosello and Ariston San Remo product, which also garnered sales, though WEA Italiana had the winning singer, Tiziana Rivale.

Ricordi also has the biggest chain of music stores in Italy. They show monetary increases, cassettes up 20% on 1982 and LPs 10%, these figures seen in the light of a 12% price increase last December. Says Guido Rignano, Ricordi managing director: "Even in the light of reasonably rosy figures, problems are tough because of profit squeezes and money-collection hassles."

He says tv-merchandising throws up mixed results: local group Squallor scored heavily with "Arrapan," but the MCA "E.T." soundtrack flopped. Rignano, though his company hasn't used the ploy, is in favor of what's known in Italy as the "tv ticket," where the retailer is charged an extra 1,000 liras (around 60 cents) for records getting television promotion, to help with the cost, plus compensation for the expected extra sales action.

Rignano, the immediate past president of AFI, cites the familiar problems: too low prices, young people disaffected with records, too much music handed out free, but adds in the exchange rate of the U.S. dollar against the lira. "We're still into contracts which were signed when the rate was 1,000 liras to the dollar. Now it's around 1,600."

Even so, Ricordi is showing second half trading improvements, with products from such as Edoardo Bennato, Milva and Frabrizio De Andre. Another plus is the distribution deal with Fonit Cetra, the state record company now linked the oldest private enterprise music outfit.

Says Rignano: "There is concern on both sides over the growing power of the multinationals. Italian industry couldn't stay split, private from the public. The multinational conglomerate is a greater danger to independents. And further mergers are causing concern in political circles, too."

Baby Records, a leading Italian independent, reflects the international expansionist views of Freddy Naggiar, president, in that today 50% of its sales are in foreign territories. This year has proved one of consolidation, via increased sales from foreign license deals.

Even so, the crisis bit during a doomy first half of 1983 before acts like Ricchi & Poveri and Romina Power & Al Bano helped the fight back. Gazebo and the chart-topping "I like Chopin" is a highlight of the Italian music year.

Other successes: "Disco Samba," Brazilian music with a basic disco beat, from Mexico (via the Musart license deal) and hits compilation "Mixage," number one in the summer. Naggiar invested in the heaviest television campaign ever in Italy to help build sales 20% higher in the first nine months of the year compared with 1983.

New artists on the way through for Baby are Dario Farina (who wrote many of the Bano/Power and Ricchi & Poveri hits), French artists Gilbert Montagne, disco group BB and Band and girl singer Laura Babini.

Says Naggiar: "Really I don't like disco music, because it has little variety. But it helps maintain our position abroad. Disco sales are bad in Italy, down maybe 50%. Now if we had real artists like Michael Jackson or the Police in Italy, that would be a different story. But, ironically, it was Baby which started the whole disco business in Italy with La Bionda some six or seven years ago.

"Gazebo could start something new, though. He's Italo-American, real name Paul Mazzolini, and he's had work offers for U.S. movies."

Naggiar, in the past, has had a poor opinion of Italian recording studios and mainly depended on studio facilities in Munich, Germany. Now he's using domestic studios and musicians. "The technicians have learned how to handle the latest equipment, and I'm sure they are of international quality standards.

"Now we're opening our own studios. I see no reason why we can't persuade foreign companies to come here to record."

The Italian industry crisis concerns the record as a material marketplace commodity, not the actual music it carries. Working on that conviction, Sergio De Gennaro, president of Panarecord and vice president of AFI, the IFPI group, is in favor of a generic industrywide campaign to upgrade the image of the disk and public awareness of it.

"One reason for the poor image is that the record costs so much less than it should. If only prices had followed the overall cost of living in recent years, we could have retained that old pride of possession people had in records."

Panarecord was hard hit in the first six months this year. Returns during the months of the 16% "consumption" tax reached the 30% where the Panarecord average is 10% normally.

"But on top of that, a key problem is that there are fewer points of sale. Even big general stores like Upim and Standa are closing down their record departments, reverting to more profitable and faster-moving lines. The retail trade also has cash problems."

Panarecord's promotional achievements work specially well with foreign artists and De Gennaro points to Imagination (1982) and Wall Street Crash (1983). The company used to support, with freebies, the massive national radio station web. Now the product is for sale only.

And on tv-merchandising, De Gennaro says: "It's virtually the only fast-selling format we have. Record companies can't be blamed for cashing in."

Formerly operating in Italy under a license deal with Ricordi, Virgin set up its own operation in March, 1983, in Italy. The first six months were "brilliant," asserts Luigi Mantovani, managing director, with sales doubling those of the whole of the previous years. And he believes the 10 months of 1983 will, in sales terms, emerge finally as three times total 1982 sales.

Top month has been August, when most Italian companies close down for the holidays. But Virgin traded on through a handful of wholesalers, building a notable hit for the new Mike Oldfield album, with August sales of 70,000-plus units.

Wide product appeal and ultra-careful promotion planning are, says Mantovani, main reasons for the success. No independent radio station was fed with free disks, though many bought them, and video clips of Virgin acts were given only to the state-controlled RAI network. But there were prestigious live tv slots for acts such as Culture Club, Orchestral Manoeuvres, Oldfield and Simple Minds.

First Italian artist to be signed worldwide by Virgin is Riccardo Cocciante.

For Ariston, where Alfredo Rossi is president, it's been a mixed year which started off well enough, then dipped away so that corporate trading figures look eventually like matching those of the rest of the crisis hit industry.

The San Remo Song Contest which, in recent years, got back to its old record sales spin-off power, provided Matia Bazar, Ariston's flagship group (it features 1950s-ish girl voice with contemporary electronic backing), with a chart topping song, "Vacanza Romana."

But, says Riccardo Benini, who heads the Ariston record division: "That did well sell, but nowhere near comparable to what we'd have expected in 1982." Then, in summer, despite critical acclaim Ariston product flopped and the crisis bit deep into mid-price lines, where Ariston is traditionally very active.

With renewed activity in old catalog material, and important new deals with Charly (U.K.) and Audio Fidelity, Ariston is opting for expansion. Its pressing plant and offices are in San Giuliano, out of Milan, but it plans new offices in Milan itself. The complex will include a new recording studio, including computerized MCI desk. And the company still scores with pressing for non-Italian firms.

Sandro Coppola, president of the Atlas/Delta group, admits: "Kids seem to have grown more and more disenchanted with records." And company sales this year will be down, despite some crisis-fighting hits, so that release schedules are being pruned.

Says Coppola: "The singles situation is markedly worse than a year ago. For instance, in 1982, the film theme 'Reality' went to number two with sales of 870,000. Now 'Your Eyes' has made number two and sold only 270,000. Outside the top 10, sales are miserably low."

In some cases, Atlas/Delta have produced records for foreign markets only, postponing or cancelling domestic release.

But Coppola reports good production results for foreign countries, with English or other language lyrics. Armando is a case point, with records made in Italy but performed in various languages for Europe and South America.

Says Coppola: "It's not true that there is little talent about. But it seems in short supply because there are fewer chances of promoting new artists. Television is over-active, the public's attention is split and anyway that medium wants only well-known talent."

And he's pessimistic about the very future of tv records and spot promotion. "Indiscriminate use will kill this medium, which used to work so well for us, in maybe just six months."

To meet the crisis in a practical way, Carosello Cemed adopted a policy of releasing only "indispensable" records this year. The result: just three albums out, with two items from the San Remo Contest (by Toto Cutugno and Vasco Rossi) charting as singles. The latter artist also won the Festivalbar, biggest summer promotional event, based on jukebox plays nationwide.

Mario Rapallo, general manager, is nevertheless worried about the general lack of new talent emerging and the insatiable appetite of tv for all talent.

"Artists are taking a much firmer line over which appearances are right, and which wrong, for them. It takes nerve and courage to turn down work dates, but the cut-back pays in terms of extra record sales."

Rapallo has found a dramatic way to fight piracy, he says. "Though our sales rate is now one to one in terms of LPs and cassettes, we've moved towards an album-only policy where possible.

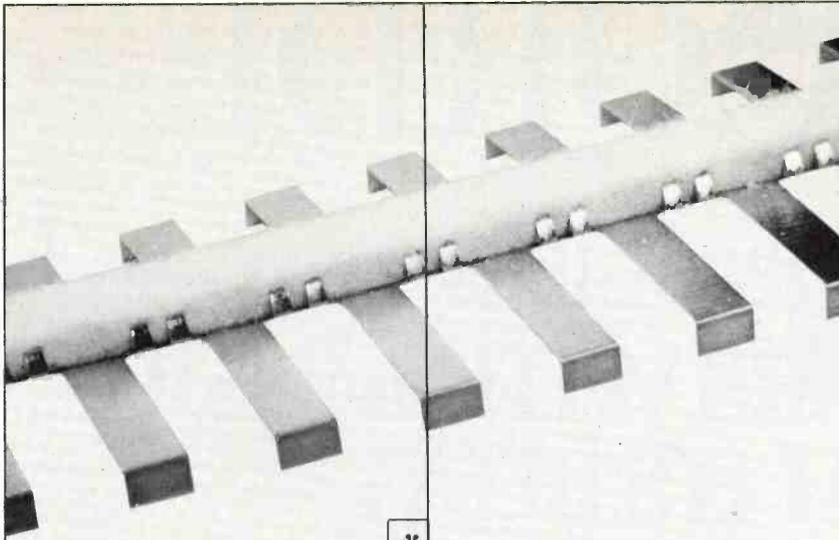

"We instituted the concept 'Spotdisc.' People want the original product, but most pirated product is bought as if bona fide. It's very difficult to copy 'Spotdisc,' which is something like a picture disk, with a complex sleeve design and much too costly for a pirate to follow.

"By going for albums only, it means that if someone buys a cassette with our name on it, it must necessarily be pirated. We think we'll make up losses in cassette sales through increased disk sales."

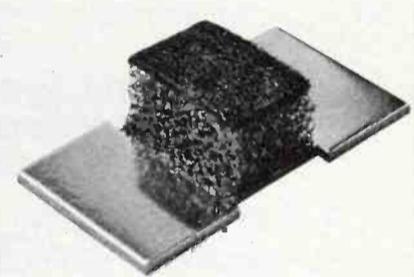

Rapallo adds his voice to the television controversy. "They won't look at new acts. It took us five years to break an artist like Vasco Rossi. The stations want only the big names. We must turn them down. We're not here just to be of service to television stations."

Sales this year at Durium, where repertoire is equally split between domestic and international, have been very bad, agrees Elisabel Mintangian, international manager. But she's detecting some signs of an upturn since the summer holidays.

A new Italian talent for Durium is Fiordaliso, who impacted at the San Remo Festival. And, says Mintangian, there's also Rocco, who writes MOR songs "and is just 11 years old."

Durium enjoys consistent sales with local dance music with English lyrics, the group Passengers being particularly successful. But, says Elisabel Mintangian: "The slump has forced us to be cautious about picking up new acts. We'll still experiment in music, though."

One such test was with the group Erba Blu, also the name of the debut album. That name is a local translation of Blue Grass and the production is the matching of bluegrass music with Italian lyrics. Durium also scores with the instrumentalists Fausto Papetti (saxophone) and Nini Rosso (trumpet) worldwide, with strong sales in the Soviet Union. The former is reportedly the best-selling Italian artist round the world.

According to Liliana Azzolini, general manager, K-tel International, Italy, first half sales this year were some 5% down on last year. But higher costs meant many more records had to be sold to maintain balance, so there was a profit dip of around 30%. The company has also had repertoire availability problems in licensing material, a severe handicap for what is essentially a compilation producer of tv-merchandised music.

The K-tel policy has switched more to concept albums, sets of classic love songs, or "Moonlight," made up of hits of the 1940s. From having the tv field to itself, K-tel now has to contend with stiff competition.

A new project is "Incontri Musicali," a classical series produced with excerpts (the cuts made by musicologists aiming to respect original composer concepts) from most popular works. Says Azzolini: "I think there's a very big public for classical music, but people are a little scared of it. This could be one way to convince them."

The new series is sold through shops (K-tel is distributed by RCA) and by mail-order, a new move for the normally tv-dependent company. Says Azzolini: "Mail order could be the answer in getting music to the over-30s, those who don't usually frequent record stores."

Fonit-Cetra, the state-owned record company with RAI-TV links, now distributed by Dischi Ricordi, also links on repertoire and production matters with the independent firm. And as distribution problems have vanished for the state-run outfit, so greater emphasis is placed on technological sectors, not least classical digital recordings using the new Fonit-Cetra mobile studio.

Says Carlo Fontana, managing director: "As a public sector business, we've always stressed the cultural role of product rather than merely being profit-orientated."

"Classical music is increasingly important to us and is now 28% of our total sales. But a drop in pop sales meant a first-half total sales reduction of around 25%."

"Though we have links with the state network, we have as a record company to watch this build-up of promotional media, notably tv and radio. Customers ask why they should bother to buy records when the music is available so easily elsewhere. The best way to beat the crisis is by opting for quality, not quantity."

Most Italian record companies have, in recent years, neglected the adult public, "the very people who might well spend most," according to Vladimiro Albera, general manager of Five Music, which is the parent company of Canale Cinque, the top independent tv channel in Italy.

Five started up in 1982, trading briskly in tv themes and compilations promoted via television. Hits this year have included music from the Smurfs' television cartoon series, plus "Twist '83" and "Superstar 35" compilations. Coming soon: a Frank Pourcel digital LP and a package from jazzman Gerry Mulligan.

Says Albera: "Our business neglects the older public at its peril. Television is the right way to get to those who don't go round the record stores. And these older folk generally aren't the ones who play with recorders on home taping."

"I don't go along with blaming television all the time for the build-up of free music use. Music is just one feature of tv programming. But radio is a wholly music-based business."

There's the long-standing argument in Italy that tv-owned record companies build suspicion that they have an extra hold on artists because of the links with small-screen promotion. But Albera says: "Not so. We have problems getting promotion for our records through other tv networks. As tv-owned set-up, we have to behave with scrupulous fairness to everybody."

With its selective use of material, Five Records has a remarkably low rate of sales returns, just over half of one percent in 1982. The crisis bit and the rate went up to 1.8%. "Still negligible," says Albera, "especially compared with the average 7% returns of other companies."

Within the Italian record business, Saar is unusual in that it has no artist of its own and lives on catalog material, dealing only in low-price product, which means there's no money for promotion.

But, observes Sergio Balloni, sales and marketing chief: "The crisis hasn't hit us in terms of sales, though profits have been squeezed a little. In critical times, cut-price material doesn't suffer. People turn to us because they don't have the cash for high price material."

Saar, seeing prerecorded cassettes grow to a 65% share of total sales, sells through record stores as well as general store bookshops. Siglaquattro is joint venture between the book/magazine publishers Arnaldo Mondadori and the Brazilian Globo group, which in turn is into tv, radio, records, and publications. It's based in Rome, distribution through RCA Italiana. The company has strong links with the privately-owned (by Mondadori) tv network Retequattro, a natural main promotional outlet.

A key selling line is of albums of music and soundtracks from Brazilian tv soap operas from Globo and featured on the network. But Cesare Benvenuti, managing director, is working on plans to put out a wider range of material.

"Compilations of oldies is one answer," he says. "Then we'll move on to developing new local talent and try to build Brazilian music here. It's not so bad starting a new company in times of crisis. Competitors have so many things to think about they leave us plenty of room in which to start building."

Ducale, headed by Davide Matalon, president, is a "full-circle" company, taking in all aspects of the record business, from pressing, duplication, mastering equipment (disks and tapes), blank tapes and production, fully-computerized where possible.

This year the company has developed its record production side. It bought the Arion label, which it previously distributed, and license deals, most recently with Bainbridge and Palo Alto Jazz have been completed for pan-European handling.

Says Matalon: "I've great faith in jazz as a seller. Our Palo Alto deal proves the scene is still alive, with new things happening in it."

The La Bionda group, run by brothers Michelangelo and Carmelo La Bionda, recording artists in their own right, takes in Bionda Records and Strum Edizioni (production and song-writing/publishing).

The duo produced what is a front-runner for "record of the year" status in Italy, "Vamos A La Playa," by Righeira, another brotherly duo from Torino. This was the theme of the Festivalbar telecast in the summer. It's on the CGD International label as a Strum production in Italy, while worldwide deals are finalized.

La Bionda is also involved in the massive hit medley "Do It Again/Billie Jean." by Club House, an Italian production which has charted worldwide.

In recent months, the Italian record business has seen the development of a potentially potent new force. Wholesalers have started producing their own records, mainly in the disco-dance field.

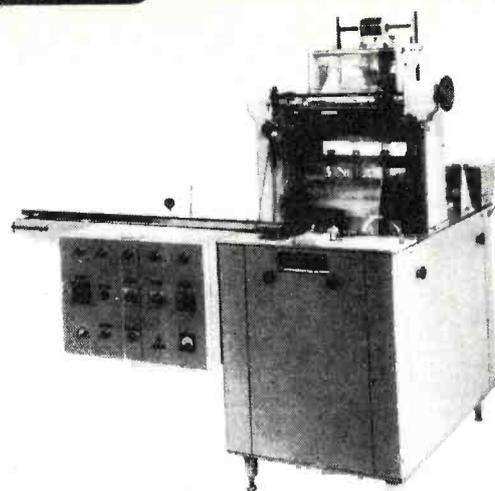

The stories of most are similar: that of Discotto is representative. A retail outlet in 1979, turning to imports, it had its own warehouse operation, then a larger shop, a full wholesale division and then to disk production in 1982.

Says Roberto Fusar Poli, Discotto chief: "We filled a void left by the record companies. There's a demand for our kind of product, and retailers looked to us. We look on the record industry crisis as something to worry the other half, the majors. We've had excellent business in the first part of 1983, with imports and our own productions up 50% on last year."

SPARS To Co-Host Digital Meet Univ. Of Miami Conference Aims To 'Sort Out' Issues

By RADCLIFFE JOE

NEW YORK—The Society of Professional Audio Recording Studios (SPARS) will co-host a three-day conference in Miami in an attempt to "sort out the claims and counter-claims" swirling around the evolution of digital recording technology.

The conference will be presented in association with the Univ. of Miami's music engineering technology program. It will be held on the university's campus March 8-10.

According to Mack Emerman, chairman of the board of SPARS, the issue of digital technology is clouded by the biases of interested parties. "Some would have us embrace any new technology without regard for its longterm merit, while others would prefer to suppress the new and the different."

Emerman adds, "In their commitment to engineering excellence, the member studios of SPARS are interested in defining the proper role to be played by digital technology, both today and in the future."

The SPARS executive continues, "The Univ. of Miami has a similar commitment to excellence through education. Under the joint auspices of SPARS and the Univ. of Miami, the conference is planned in the hope that it may shed some objective light on the state of the digital art."

The conference will get underway on Thursday, March 8, with a seminar titled "An Introduction To Digital Audio." Emerman explains that this session is designed to review the basics of digital technology. It will also offer seminar participants a "status report" on digital audio. The session will be hosted by Ken Pohlman, director of music engineering technology for the Univ. of Miami.

On March 9, the conference will probe "Digital Audio On Trial." This session will ask the questions, "Are the promoters of digital audio technology trying to sell us an immature technology? Are the technology's critics expressing nothing more than the usual distrust of new technology? Is there something inherently wrong with the concept of pulse-coded music?"

This session will be moderated by Michael Tapes of Sound Workshop. Panelists will include Doug Sax of the Mastering Lab and John Eargle of JBL.

Also slated for March 9 is a session titled "Digital In Perspective." This meeting will pose the questions, "What is the proper role of digital technology? Is it supposed to eventually replace everything else? Are there some tasks that will always be better left to analog? Are we making unrealistic demands on the medium at this time?"

At a session titled "Digital For Dollars," the conference will explore the question, "In the studio survival game, is an investment in digital hardware a good way to stay in business or a fast way to get out of it?" This session will be moderated by Hamilton Brosius of Audiotechniques. Panelists will include Joe Tarsia of Sigma Sound Studios and Bruce Botnick of Digital Magnetics.

A seminar scheduled for Saturday, March 10 will pose the question, "Is it time for standards in the digital audio industry?" Grappling with this question will be Pohlman, Almon Clegg of Matsushita and Bob Youngquist of the 3M Co.

SPARS and the Univ. of Miami share the conviction that premature standardization brings with it the risk of "freezing tomorrow's technology to the capabilities of today." They point to FM and NTSC as examples of what can happen when standards are applied too early to an emerging technology.

At the seminar on standards, Pohlman will present a brief description of the emerging DASH (Digital Audio Stationary Head) format. He will also explore the theory that adoption of a unified format by several manufacturers of digital audio equipment may bring the industry closer to a de-facto standard that may eventually be followed by more formal standards.

The conference will also look at Compact Disc recordings and their potential for the future. This session will be hosted by Len Feldman, an independent professional audio consultant, and Richard Elen of Studio Sound.

A seminar titled "Ear Training" will feature a concert of acoustic music by faculty and student artists of the Univ. of Miami School of Music.

Registration fees for the conference will range from $75 for students to $325 for professionals. There is a special "early bird" registration fee of $250 for those registering before the end of this month. There is also a special rate for members of SPARS.

Further information on the conference can be obtained from such SPARS executives as Dave Teis and John Woram in New York, and Gary Helmers in California.

RKO Broadcast Called Digital First

NEW YORK—Two dbx model 700 Digital Audio Processors have been successfully utilized by the RKO Radio Network in a coast-to-coast transmission of a concert by the Little River Band.

The digital transmission, believed to be a first for the broadcasting industry, took place from the Universal Amphitheatre in Los Angeles, and was supervised in New York by Dave Pollard, RKO's chief engineer, and Joe Maguire, the firm's vice president and director of engineering.

According to Pollard, digital bit stream information from one dbx unit was relayed via satellite to New York, where another dbx unit performed the digital-to-analog conversion for broadcast from RKO affiliate stations throughout the country.

The audio processors were provided by dbx and Martin Audio, its New York dealer. The dbx CPDM system (Companded Predictive Delta Modulation) was developed for the firm's model 700 Digital Audio Processor. It was introduced last year, and, according to dbx officials, provides sound quality equal to that of professional 16-bit Linear PCM processors at a much lower cost.

VCA Teletronics Finishes Expansion

NEW YORK—VCA Teletronics has completed a significant expansion of its support facilities at Center Stage, the company's Manhattan-based studio complex. The expansion, which began earlier this year, includes the enlargement of the studio's makeup room and wardrobe area, and the expansion and redecoration of a lounge facility for clients, visiting artists and their guests.

Thomas DeMaeyer, executive vice president of VCA, says his firm is "always giving its fullest consideration to the needs of MTV, and to the artists and staff who work at Center Stage. While having a first-rate crew and technical facility are paramount, we feel it's equally important to have a working environment that's comfortable and pleasant."

Univ. Of Miami Puts Emphasis On Digital

By SARA LANE

CORAL GABLES, Fla.—The music engineering technology department of the Univ. of Miami is encouraging its students to take courses in digital electronics.

According to Ken Pohlman, director of the department, "The growing use of digital technology in recording studios will require students to rethink all recording techniques. They must now learn to use different miking techniques, how to record differently and what to listen for in a recording."

Pohlman, who runs the department with assistance from John Monmort, says he is convinced that digital recording techniques "are here to stay." He adds that it will be easier for students to master digital recording techniques than it will be for "those in the industry who have spent years in analog." He continues, "When our students graduate, they will be very good at digital, both in terms of maintenance, and in operating the equipment."

The department has a digital console on loan from Technics, and Pohlman says, "Panasonic has been very supportive of the efforts of the school, and nice about allowing our students to work with prototypes in return for feedback." The school also expects to receive a dbx model 700 processor for evaluation.

Pohlman says his department has enjoyed a good relationship with professional equipment manufacturers, and a good track record with firms that loan prototypes for students to work with and to evaluate. He dis-closes, "Our students often see recording industry products a year or more in advance of the rest of the industry. This compensates for not having access to a multi-million-dollar recording studio."

While admitting that digital recording concepts are not without their problems, Pohlman and Monmort emphasize that they are committed to the technology. "In much the same way that we made the transition from acoustical to electrical recording, and from vacuum tubes to transistors, digital technology is the next logical step in the development of recording technologies," Monmort says.

In the school's music engineering course, seniors take a full year of study in the theory of digital audio. Since its inception three years ago, the course has grown to the point where it will soon become a second- as well as a first-semester subject. Since Pohlman began keeping track of student employment two years ago, he claims that there has been a 100% employment rate among graduates. He attributes this to the fact that the School of Music "is extremely selective about whom it enrolls in the department."

Graduate students have found employment as maintenance technicians, recording engineers and sales representatives. Says Pohlman, "It is a pretty wide variety of fields, and students in the department have enough leeway to nail down their own special interests."

Today's best investment. Now warehoused in USA.

CBS/Fox Video Gets A Mirage

FARMINGTON HILLS, Mich.—CBS/Fox Video, based here, has acquired a digital video effects system from MCI/Quantel Mirage. According to Steven Wild, CBS/Fox director of studio operations, the Mirage transcends conventional digital effects systems, and opens video to the world of real-time animation.

"From any video input signal it can create cylinders or spheres, swirl it like a whirlpool, fold up the corner in a page turn, explode into fragments, or design any shape imaginable," Wild says. He adds that each manipulation is smooth, in perspective, with superior picture quality and resolution. He continues, "The Mirage performs visual effects that until now could only be produced using costly and time-consuming film optical techniques."

Wild says that due to the Mirage's extensive programming capabilities, CBS/Fox is now able to offer an on-line with edit suite service to manipulate images during post-production, by using any of nearly 40 standard Mirage effects, or with new effects that have been especially designed for the client. The shape design service will be performed off-line on a Hewlett Packard computer terminal to allow inexpensive time for designing and creative composition.

PREREGISTRATION UP 50%

NAMM Exhibit Space 'Sold Out'

By RADCLIFFE JOE

NEW YORK—The National Assn. of Music Merchandisers (NAMM) has established a waiting list for manufacturers making a last-minute effort to acquire exhibit space at its upcoming Winter Market '84.

According to Larry Linkin, NAMM's executive vice president, the show, the biggest of its kind in NAMM's history, is completely sold out. "We may or may not be able to accommodate those firms on our waiting list," he says.

The show, to be held at the convention center in Anaheim, is scheduled for Jan. 20-22. Already, more than 155,000 square feet of display space has been sold to 348 exhibitors. Pre-registration to the exposition is also up by close to 50% over last year. Dealer/buyer pre-registration, in particular, is up by more than one-third over last year.

According to Dr. Ray Williams, NAMM's director of marketing and education, the association has structured a comprehensive series of educational programs designed to "help NAMM members in their search for improved business practices."

Included in the agenda are such sessions as:

- "Applications & Use Of Microphones For Musicians": According to Dr. Williams, this session is aimed at being a mini-workshop offering "hands on" demonstrations and guidance. It will be moderated by Tony Hawkins, national sales manager of Beyer Dynamics.

- "Selling Digital Keyboard Technology In The 1980s": Moderated by Paul Damiano, product planning manager for Kaman Music Distributors, this session will present what is described as a "user friendly" introduction to digital technology in today's electronic keyboards. Dr. Williams says that the session will place particular emphasis on understanding digital harmonic addition method sound synthesis and digital sequencing using Random Access Memory (RAM).

- "Premium Grade Loudspeakers For Guitar Amplifiers": Moderated by Cliff Henricksen of Electro-Voice, this seminar will include what Dr. Williams calls a thorough discussion of features, benefits and design criteria of premium grade loudspeakers, and how dealers can make additional profit from the sale of replacement speakers for guitar amplifiers.

- "Forum On Sound Reinforcement": This session, featuring "some of the most successful professionals in the business," is being sponsored by Cameo (the Creative Audio & Music Electronics Organization). It will run for two hours, and audience participation is encouraged.

Also slated are seminars on sales techniques aimed at increasing piano sales, the outlook for the band instrument industry in 1984, information on how to best service the professional equipment marketplace and a session titled "Scientific Salesmanship."

Under the banner of "Excellence In High Tech," a number of seminars are scheduled which will attempt to keep pace with the latest advances in music technology:

- "The Best Song I've Ever Seen": This session will try to show how inexpensive multitrack recording equipment can be used with lower-cost home video equipment to produce music videos. This session will be hosted by Mark Schover, national training manager for Teac.

- "Creative Use of Electronic Musical Instruments In Motion Picture Sound Production": Moderated by Frank Serafine of Serafine FX, this session will show how to create full musical orchestration, as well as audio sensations that complement futuristic visual concepts.

- "MIDI And The Future—Understanding Trends And Opportunities Represented By Musical Instrument-To-Computer Interfacing": This seminar will be co-hosted by NAMM and the International MIDI Assn. (IMA). It will be conducted by Roger Clay, network coordinator for IMA. Dr. Williams explains that it will have a special focus on the MIDI (Musical Instrument Digital Interface) standard. Attendees will be provided with the opportunity for "hands on" experience with MIDI hookups, and will receive support literature covering the important aspects of the session.

A schedule of entertainment featuring a jazz trumpeter, a brass quintet, a 30-piece trombone choir and other musical talent will be offered over the course of the exposition and conference.

DIRTY SCHOOL GIRLS—Mercury/PolyGram heavy metal group Girlschool relaxes at Portland Studios, England, following the recording of its latest album, "Play Dirty." The record was produced by Noddy Holder and Jim Lea, formerly of Slade.

Peirce-Phelps Forms Audio Arm

PHILADELPHIA—Peirce-Phelps, a wholesaler and supplier of professional video and audio systems based here, has formed an audio systems division.

The new division will distribute the professional products of such manufacturers as Sony/MCI, Telex, Electro-Voice and TOA. It will also represent such other companies as Altec, JBL, Crown, Otari, Yamaha, Bose, Biamp and Audio Technica.

Products that are being handled by the new division include recording consoles, amplifiers, crossovers, equalizers, test equipment, microphones, digital delay devices, speaker systems and components, electronic cables and accessories.

Charles Moore, a past president of Dimension Five, will manage the division. His chief engineer is W. Douglas Wilkins, with David Meyer serving as sales representative. John Hefferfinger is systems supervisor.

According to Henry Grove, vice president of Peirce-Phelps, the company was formed in 1926, and is a diversified facility serving as a wholesaler distributor, a supplier of professional audio and video equipment and systems. The company's Philadelphia warehouse and offices are located in a 200,000 square foot facility on 11 acres of land. Another branch located at Camp Hill, Pa., has 80,000 square feet of space on 11½ acres of real estate. There are also offices in Rockville, Md.

New Video Facility Opens In Nashville

NASHVILLE—Post Masters, a $1.5 million television post-production facility, has been opened here by the Television Center of Nashville. The facility, said to be the most complete in the area by its president, Tom Brannon, is available for use by producers of tv programming and advertising.

Brannon states that Post Masters houses the newest and most modern equipment available to the industry. This includes five VTR machines, ADO digital effects, Chyron character generator, audio sweetening, and the first CMX full-function 3400 computerized editor to be installed in this country, according to Brannon. Post Masters also features a single camera remote truck for location work.

Brannon has retained Terry Climer, four-time Emmy nominee for videotape editing, as senior editor of the new facility. Climer was most recently a design engineer and production manager for CMS-Oroxo of California. He has also worked with Pacific Video and Complete Post of Hollywood, where he edited tv specials for Steve Martin, Olivia Newton-John and Donna Summer.

Brannon is himself a veteran of the broadcast business. He worked at WNEW-TV in New York, and was recently appointed to serve an industry group formed to provide local support to Tennessee's Film & Video Commission. He is also a member of the film/video division of the Nashville Music Assn.

AMPEX GRAND MASTER® 456

Success in the professional recording business comes from using the best—the best talent, the best music, and the best tape.

That's why more of today's top recording studios have the confidence to choose Ampex 2" tape over all other professional studio mastering tapes. Combined.

Confidence that comes from consistency.

Proven consistency. Proven by testing every reel of Ampex Grand Master® 456 end-to-end and edge-to-edge, to make certain you get virtually no tape-induced level variations from reel-to-reel, or case-to-case. And we even include a strip chart in every box of 2" 456 to prove it.

With Ampex Studio Mastering Tape you also get consistency of delivery. Because we stock our tape inventory in the field, we're always there when you need us.

Cable TV Programmers Explore Opportunities, Problems Of Music

By SAM SUTHERLAND and FAYE ZUCKERMAN

LOS ANGELES—Music programming for cable television continues to spawn new original programs despite continued wariness on the part of some key cable giants. That was the view underlined here during the National Cable Programming Conference last Sunday and Monday (11-12), where music video surfaced in panel discussions and speeches by cable trade executives.

Evidence that music's role in attracting cable subscribers is still disputed emerged in the remarks of Home Box Office president Frank Biondi, who implied that his service's interest remains largely confined to concert specials. Dismissing more ambitious long-form musical programs as "arcane," Biondi pegged his stance to mixed results for musical programs. "You never know how well music programs will work," he complained. "And (music's) popularity comes in cycles."

He used "Flashdance" as an example of the unpredictability of musical programs, terming its boxoffice and home video successes as a "fluke" rather than a planned hit.

If Biondi's comments, made during Sunday's opening survey of "What's New Versus What's Needed" in pay tv, were critical, other cable and pay executives clearly disagreed. Market researcher Paul Lenburg of ASI Market Research ranked music high among viewer draws, listing movies, music and news as the types of programming preferred by cable owners in a recent poll.

Other cable services indicated that they plan an increased commitment to music during the coming year. The Disney Channel has three musical projects, including "DTV," in which pop and rock songs will be featured in special clips utilizing Disney cartoon characters. Disney Channel president Jim Jimirro says the pieces will be patterned after Disney's animated visual music classic, "Fantasia."

Jimirro says the Burbank-based family viewing service will also pursue a "non-MTV" audience through "Steve Allen's Music Room," a set of six specials (separate story, page 43) hosted by the entertainer, and "Anka," a half-hour variety series starring Paul Anka.

Showtime meanwhile promises concerts by the Stray Cats, A Flock

Warner Bros., Pools Agree On Clip Use

By LAURA FOTI

NEW YORK—Next month, Warner Bros. Records becomes the first label to have written agreements with all video clip pools distributing its product—and the first to charge for use of its clips.

Ted Cohen, who is in charge of video promotion to clubs at the label, explains that he has met with the heads of all clip services in the last few months. Each has offered input and requested changes in the wording of the final agreement, but none has refused to sign, he adds.

The head of one pool, Cohen says, had threatened a lawsuit if he was not serviced with Warner Bros. product. "But the owner of the clip can control where it goes," Cohen says. "Once our agreement exists, I don't have to service 50 pools that are willing to sign it, if five cover the whole country."

Rather than balking at royalty charges for clips, pool owners have instead entered a bidding war, offering Cohen additional monies for exclusive rights. "If I were to base my decision on sheer volume of clubs," he notes, "I would lean toward Rock America." However, to deny other pools product would be to cut down on promotion of Warner Bros. acts, he adds.

Cohen's agreement, which he hopes will serve as a "guiding light" for other labels, offers pools the "non-exclusive right to incorporate Warner Bros. videos into compilations which are then rented to their clients." Length of the agreement is one year, and it covers the U.S. only.

The agreement does not cover use of Warner clips for video jukeboxes, by mobile VJs, on college campuses or cable television. "Pay-for-play" situations, such as paid-for requests to clip programmers, are also forbidden.

In addition, the pool is not permitted to edit the tape in any way. "A club can do what it wants with the compilation, but we want to make sure our videos get to the clubs in the way we gave them to the pools," Cohen says.

Any clip made available to one pool is also immediately available to every other pool with which Warner Bros. has an agreement, Cohen says. "There will be no exclusives on any clips."

The royalty charge is based on the pool's price to clubs for its video compilations. If, for example, a pool charges $100 for a one-hour (15-song) compilation, the label receives $1 per each of its songs included. This amount is then multiplied by the number of clubs receiving the compilation.

"It's a token payment," Cohen concedes, "a way of overcoming some of the paranoia at our company. People there ask, 'How do we know what happens to tapes after we send them out?' This is a way of answering some of their questions."

Additional facets of the pool agreement include a technical memorandum

Media Home To U.K.'s Heron

LOS ANGELES—Heron International PLC, a London-based firm, has acquired majority ownership in Media Home Entertainment here for an undisclosed amount.

The purchase of the video software manufacturer and distributor marks an expansion in Heron's efforts in motion pictures and related activities, as well as an extension of its general business interests in the U.S. Heron already owns Videofarm, which specializes in the purchase of video rights to television and theatrical films and in the rental and sale of prerecorded videocassettes to retail outlets in the U.K.

Joseph Wolf, former chairman of Media Home Entertainment, and Ron Safinick, president, will continue to operate the business and will each retain a minority ownership interest. Heron chairman Gerald Ronson becomes chairman of Media and Wolf vice chairman, while Safinick remains president.

Ronson says he plans for Media to participate in the financing of theatrical films for which the company will then have rights to equity and to distribution for video and cable markets worldwide. He also plans to enter allied technical areas, such as educational, industrial and training films.

Heron International is active globally in industrial, commercial and residential real estate; insurance; consumer products; and U.S. financial institutions.

Overseas 'Day After' Rights To CBS/Fox

NEW YORK—CBS/Fox Video has acquired overseas home video rights to "The Day After," last month's ABC-TV movie about the effects of nuclear war.

The title is scheduled for distribution in the U.K., Sweden, France, Italy, Japan and Latin America in early 1984, according to Steve Diener, president of CBS/Fox Video International.

"We feel this is a subject that deserves the widest possible dissemination," Diener adds. "The viewpoint presented in the story is a terribly important one."

RISKY BUSINESS

Warner Home Video—4

"Risky Business" is a contemporary comedy featuring Tom Cruise as a strait-laced high school senior in the fast lane toward adulthood. Taking care of the house during his parents' absence, Cruise gets a crash course in love, sex and free enterprise.

This column is designed to spotlight titles making their debut on Billboard's Videocassette Top 40.

New Clip Distrib Throws Competitors Into Disarray

NEW YORK—Supplying promotional video clips to clubs was once a small business, dominated by one firm, RockAmerica. Competition has increased in the last year, however, with several new services targeting the same market.

The latest newcomer is Lawrence Enterprises, headed by Larry La Spina. The five-year-old New York company was founded as an audio consulting firm but now does clip distribution and has thrown the field into disarray by undercutting long-established prices.

La Spina charges his customers $55 for a one-hour reel of 15 songs—less than half the prices currently in effect at competing services, and an 8% markup for the company. "That's a realistic price for club owners," La Spina says. "We want to help make the market happen because there's a huge growth potential."

"In spite of reports to the contrary, he estimates there are only between 400 and 500 video clubs in the country—about 5% of all clubs in the country, he says. "I get lots of calls from clubs with no video who want to get into it but don't know anything about hardware or costs," he adds.

Lawrence Enterprises is strictly in the business of promotional distribution and does not do installations. La Spina says he refers clubs just converting to video to other companies and will soon choose one to use exclusively.

"Promotion is the business," La Spina says, "and right now competition is the name of the game. It's unfair for a service to pay $5 for VHS stock and charge more than $100 for a compilation. I'm not out to rape people—my goal is not excess profits.

"Also, lower prices for tapes mean more people can afford them and, consequently, more promotion. Many clubs are not aware of the cost of investment to get into video. I tell them it's $8,000-$10,000 initially, and after that it's cheap."

La Spina recommends that clubs invest in three-quarter-inch equipment but is a believer in the laser videodisk format for the future. "Laser is inevitable," he says. "We're willing to get into it at a loss at first, then gradually phase out our tape service, except for people already on board. A number of clubs already have laserdisk players for movies, even though they're not supposed to."

He estimates costs for laserdisk compilations of video clips would run clubs about $25 each. "The cost is in the masters—copies are pennies," he points out. Lawrence Enterprises currently is at work licensing clips for laserdisk release. "Why should I make available an inferior product when I can have a better one at a lower price?" he asks.

La Spina's personnel include Paul Andrew Thorne, who handles quality control of tapes and keeps in touch with all clubs; Dean Scalzo, programming director; and Solveig Lamberg, who coordinates distribution with clubs and labels.

"There's money to be made just doing your job," La Spina says. "And that job is promotion. We have to get back to basics—selling records."

He says he worries about market saturation and too much exposure of video music as a genre. "This is not a fad. It's here to stay, and, in fact, will become even more important. But it's all growing so fast.

"Yes, it's a big market, but there are limits. On radio you can hear the same song all over the dial, but your eyes get bored more quickly than your ears."

Allied/Dallas Sees Growing Area Market

DALLAS—Allied/Dallas Film & Video is finding increasing demand for its 35mm processing and printing capabilities as more feature-length film and video producers discover the Southwest as an important center for production and post-production. So says Charles Floyd, sales manager of the company.

Says Floyd, "The film community is taking a fresh look at Allied/Dallas. We anticipate a continued increase in feature film processing while offering the same benefits to all our clients."

Floyd adds that coupled with the audio and video services of sister company WBS Post-Production Services, Allied/Dallas can easily answer the film and video needs of the growing Dallas production market.

Team On Right Wavelength For Environment Designs

By ETHLIE ANN VARE

EL SEGUNDO, Calif.—Brian Edwards' Wavelength grossed $4 million last year, and 1983 figures should be even better. Along with partner Bert Kronfeld, Edwards has made Wavelength here a major designer and installer of sound, lighting and—most importantly—video systems in clubs and restaurants.

In the past two years, Wavelength has put video environments into more than 100 rooms, including major chains like Black Angus, Red Onion, Velvet Turtle, Marriott Hotels and the Hungry Tiger. However, Edwards does not view video as a great new toy, but as a factor in the "entertainment concept" of a lounge, a way to keep customers buying drinks.

With a staff of 40, the seven-year-old firm designs, installs and services video systems that range from a $10,000 single-screen layout to $40,000-and-up multiple VCR setups.

The idea, says Edwards, is for the club to look at its potential business and then work backwards to find a logical investment, one that doesn't involve over-capitalization. "One room we worked with was doing business in the single-digit thousands," he says. "They added lighting, audio and video, and almost quadrupled their numbers."

"Say you're looking at an $80,000 cost going in, and you increase your sales by $10,000 a week. You're now bringing in half a million gross a year on an $80,000 investment."

But, he warns, don't expect video to be a miracle cure. "There's always a balance between food, service and entertainment. You can't call hardware the key to the success of a room. And, in fact, there can come a point where you've got too much attention on those screens and you're not selling drinks."

In designing and equipping mainstream restaurants and lounges, Edwards has found that the biggest stumbling block to video is the lack of software. "Who wants to see Mick Jagger get shot in the head while waiting with their kids to eat a hamburger?" he asks. "You have to open a restaurant at 11 a.m., and have programming till the dance set starts at 10 o'clock at night. That's 11 hours a day of programming no one has addressed."

Cable Programmers Explore Music

Of Seagulls and Lena Horne, along with a new series, "Video Rock." As for HBO/Cinemax, in addition to its concerts, the service will continue its "Album Flash" series.

Music video's growing importance was underlined by the conference planners in a separate panel devoted to "The Video Beat." Moderating was Robert Pittman, executive vice president of Warner Amex and one of the architects of MTV's success, who stressed the breakthrough of contemporary music video as "the first time a major new form of programming hasn't been offered by the networks first."

If MTV's own success, as measured by the sponsoring National Cable Television Assn., now places it seventh among national cable systems, other panelists were ready to stress problems as well as opportunities. Video producer Simon Fields cautioned, "I think the industry has an unusual luster to it—it looks much more lucrative than it actually is."

Fields also offered the perhaps surprising view that record companies, as primary financiers for the short clips that have driven MTV's acceptance, need to have a stronger role in shaping artists' video pieces.

Capitol Records president Jim Mazza agreed but allowed that most artists "have a pretty good idea of what their image is and how it should be handled." Mazza was generally upbeat about video's role in breaking key Capitol and EMI acts such as Duran Duran and the Stray Cats but also admitted that the budgetary commitment is growing rapidly. To Pittman's question of whether labels now have criteria for dictating which artists receive video support, Mazza responded that such a choice is already out of the label's hands. "Visual exposure of the artist is essential for developing new talent," he said.

Mazza agreed that video clips remain promotional and thus unprofitable in themselves, while allowing for an eventual realignment as profitable uses are developed. For now, however, the cost remains high, and likely to increase: he noted an outlay of about $1 million for clip production during 1983, and added that Capitol and its PMI music arm are projecting a $7 million budget next year.

Robert Johnson, president of Black Entertainment Television, noted a distinction between other cable systems' viewers and his service's audience base in terms of demographic response. Unlike other services, on which youth-oriented music video tends to alienate other age groups, BET viewers are seen as unified by their interest. Johnson suggested that urban contemporary artists reach across demographics to constitute a true family lure.

Johnson was enthusiastic about the cost-effectiveness of music video shows. "It's good-quality, inexpensive programming from the cable system's point of view... If you show one hour of programming comprised of eight videos costing an average of $40,000 each, that's a $240,000 show," he said.

When Pittman asked what Johnson would do should labels demand payment, the BET chief joked, "I'll call the NAACP." On a serious note, he added, "The record companies giveth, and the record companies taketh away."

Attorney Mickey Shapiro, who has also produced cable specials and home video programs for such acts as Fleetwood Mac, Bob Welch and Mac co-founder Mick Fleetwood, warned, "Video is not for every artist. I think it's difficult enough being a good player, singer and writer. The imposition of a video career on top of that challenge can be a bad idea."

Shapiro contended that while younger, emerging acts may be more naturally attuned to visual presentations, the majority of older, established acts lack the skill and may, in fact, be uncomfortable with the notion that video clips are now a necessary career component.

He also urged potential video producers to allow projects to develop naturally. Fleetwood's "The Visitor," a unique documentary in which the drummer and other Western rock musicians travelled to Africa to perform with native percussionists, worked because its creative concept preceded specific album and video plans, Shapiro said.

Fleetwood himself agreed, saying video could be "suicide" for acts when their visual image becomes "totally alien to what they do onstage." The veteran musician continued that "Real discretion has to be borne in mind... I'd hate to be the first person to experience being a dead loss onstage after being successful on video or film."

• Dancing Galore: Lensed at the Fun House in New York, Planet Patrol's video clip, "I Didn't Know I Loved You Till I Saw You Rock And Roll," shows the band as characters in a video game. The clip, which cost a reported $15,000, was directed by Nick Hutak and produced by Jeff Folmsbee for Tommy Boy Records.

• A Steal: "Robbery," the title song from Teena Marie's latest Epic album, was turned into a video with help from Pendulum Productions. Based on a concept by Desmond Nakano, the clip combines a contemporary look with '40s-style black-and-white footage and features choreography by Rhaz Zeisler. Alexis Omeltchenko produced, Marcelo Epstein directed.

• Run With It: Lionel Richie seems to have an affinity for commercial directors turned music video directors. His latest clip, "Running With The Night," was written and directed by Bob Giraldi in Los Angeles. ("All Night Long" had been directed by Bob Rafelson.) The scenario of the clip, which premiered on MTV Friday (16), shows a group of "night people" strutting through the streets. Michael Peters choreographed, and also makes a guest appearance. "Running" was produced by Bob Giraldi/GASP! Productions.

• Magnetic Promotion: WTBS' "Night Tracks" weekend music video show kicked off a national promotion for Earth, Wind & Fire's single "Magnetic" Friday (16). The group's leader, Maurice White, has taped a series of promotional spots, directed by "Night Tracks" co-producer Thomas Lynch, inviting viewers to send in postcards for a chance to win prizes. Previous promotions have featured Shalamar, Kansas and Anne Murray.

• ZZ TV Dinners: The current video clip from ZZ Top's "Eliminator" album is "TV Dinners," produced at Ardent Teleproduction in Memphis. The same studio also produced the album.

• Record "Breakers": Leslie Ugams hosted "The Big Break Dance Contest" finals Saturday (17) on WABC-TV New York. Local radio station WKTU had held four preliminary contests for 700 non-professional contestants over the previous three weeks, leading to the choice of 16 dance "crews" as finalists. The winner receives $2,500 and guest appearances in Harry Belafonte's new break-dance film "Beat Street" and WABC's "New York Hot Tracks."

• Lights, Action, Dialog: The opening of Air Supply's latest video clip "Making Love (Out Of Nothing At All)" features scripted dialog between Graham Russell and actress Jody Varble. Master Digital's Kit Hudson directed the video, which was shot by Brian Reynolds and Daren Okada in 35mm film on location in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Cedar City, Utah.

Warner Bros., Clip Pools Agree

dum listing required specifications for quality control and a section noting that the pool has fulfilled its requirements to notify its clients of any necessary rights clearances.

The agreement also requires that pools supply Warner Bros. with a complete list of all clubs receiving its videos. "In return, we guarantee that all information will be held confidential," Cohen says. "We would never give one service's names to another service. We just want to be able to give a composite list to our local promotion guys of all clubs playing our videos, with no designation of the source of their clips."

Titles identifying the artist, song, album and record label must appear at the beginning of each clip used by the pools. Such titles must run over the video itself, not over black—making it impossible for them to be edited out.

"This will be a standard agreement for all services," says Cohen, "although a few details may differ depending on what their individual lawyers find important as far as wording or other requests." He points out that the agreement is non-discriminatory, and adds, "I'm not here to help aspiring young video pools get off the ground."

Warner Bros. currently services about 100 clubs directly. Cohen says some of the money received from the pools in the form of royalties will be used to send out clips to these clubs—particularly clips that none of the pools have utilized.

WITH 11 FISHING TITLES

3M Enters Prerecorded Field

NEW YORK—Blank tape supplier 3M Co. has entered the prerecorded field, with the introduction of 11 titles on fishing. "The Sportsman's Video Collection" consists of six videocassettes about fly-fishing for trout and five about fishing for bass.

3M is also reported to be the world's largest manufacturer of fly fishing lines, offering more than 315 types.

"Fly fishermen are an upscale, well-educated, top-income group with a high percentage of VCR ownership. They are also information-hungry," notes Mark Kuipers, who heads videocassette activity for 3M's Leisure Time Products Project. He estimates that there are 60 million active fishermen in the U.S., and that approximately one of every three persons entering a video store belongs to a fishing family.

An upscale consumer is required for this product line—total retail cost for the 11 titles is $769.45. Prices range from $59.95 each for several 30-minute titles ("Bass In Heavy Cover," "Surface Lures & Buzz Baits" and "Nymphing With Gary Borger") to $89.95 for the 50-minute "Bigmouth" and $69.95 to $79.95 for other 60- and 90-minute titles.

Four of the trout tapes feature Gary Borger, an author and biology professor at the Univ. of Wisconsin. The five bass tapes feature Homer Circle, angling editor of Sports Afield magazine, and experts Al Lindner, Roland Martin and Glen Lau.

Rock'n'Rolling Stiv Fights The Finnish; Cyndi Wrestles With Fame

By ROMAN KOZAK

Stiv Bators, leader of the post-punk, post-psychedelic Lords Of The New Church, says that he wants to go out and play on a heavy metal arena tour.

"We are playing the same clubs for the third time around now, and thanks to MTV we are now setting attendance records, but basically, we are playing to the same people. It's now time to go after a new audience," says Bators, who adds he'd like to be playing to an Ozzy Osbourne type of audience. His band's leather/voodoo/demonic trappings are not much different from many heavy metal bands.

With a new album out on IRS, Bators says the plan calls for him to be doing his club dates in the U.S. before going to Europe, where the band has a growing cult audience, especially in France. They also had some legal problems in Finland.

"We've been on the road for the last three months, and the only time I've had off was the four days I spent in jail in Finland," remembers Bators. "It was in October, on my birthday and two days before my wedding anniversary. I sent my wife a letter, 'Don't wait up,'" he laughs.

"We were finishing up our European tour and it was the second to the last date, and I thought it was great. It was the first tour that I didn't get hurt, or break anything, or get shot, or get arrested.

Global Game Plan Helps Chrysalis Break Billy Idol

By NICK ROBERTSHAW

LONDON—Pat Benatar and Huey Lewis may be the label's front-runners, but the only Chrysalis artist with three albums in the U.S. top 200 right now is the former British punk Billy Idol, whose new release "Rebel Yell" just joined "Billy Idol" and "Don't Stop" in the charts, and who company staffers on both sides of the Atlantic believe is set to break through in a big way.

In New York, East Coast a&r director Brendan Bourke says: "We expect the new album to go gold by Christmas. For two years we were banging on the door and only got maybe 200 radio stations. Now we've had as many in the space of a few weeks." And Doug D'Arcy, managing director of Chrysalis Records in the U.K., states: "Billy has enormous potential. We see him as a major name for the future in international markets."

Both regard Idol's growing success as vindication of the company's switch from independent to branch distribution a year ago, and its move from Los Angeles to New York. "At the time that was thought of as a backward step," D'Arcy notes, "but you have to judge by results. The fact is that with branch distribution we cover more accounts in greater depth than before, and sell more records. As for the relocation, it's easier for us here to coordinate with New York than the West Coast for purely geographical reasons, and the current

Australian Music's Worldwide Impact Still Strong

By GLENN A. BAKER

SYDNEY—Fears that the early-'80s explosion of Australian acts on the international scene may have exhausted the talent pool of the lower continent were proved groundless through 1983, when a vast and exciting crop of new recording entities arose to challenge the chart supremacy of Men At Work, Inxs, Mental As Anything, Icehouse, Little River Band, Moving Pictures, Split Enz and others.

Australian music, local executives note with satisfaction, is not a "flavor of the month" or passing fad. It now stands firm as the third most important repertoire source for world markets, after the U.S. and U.K.

Most of Australia's well-established major rock acts enjoyed a strong 1983. But perhaps the most impressive performance was from Australian Crawl, which, after three consecutive No. 1 albums, scored again with the "Semantics" EP, which topped the singles chart.

Cold Chisel enjoyed far less chart action during the year, but the band's swan song tour, on its 10th anniversary, grossed an estimated $2 million and drew 60,000 fans in Sydney alone. And Mental As Anything remained a consistent singles act and undertook its second U.S. tour.

The Divinyls spent most of the year in the U.S. but figured strongly on the home charts. Flash & the Pan, alter-ego of producer/songwriters Harry Vanda and George Young since 1976, performed only moderately in this market but cracked the British top 10 with "Waiting For A Train."

Split Enz stayed mostly low profile, allowing leader Tim Finn to pursue a short but productive solo exercise. Dubbed "the Paul McCartney or Michael Jackson of Australia" for his deft mastery of pop melodies, Finn culled four big hits from his debut album "Escapade," becoming a major figure here, irrespective of his band.

Another veteran, Ross Wilson, was the force behind his wife Pat Wilson's No. 1 hit "Bop Girl," his most successful composition since the 1971 Daddy Cool chart-topper "Eagle Rock." Midnight Oil this year finally broke with the multi-platinum album "10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1," produced by Britain's Nick Launay.

Others to achieve major chart breaks this past year included Wendy & the Rocketts, Sharon O'Neill, Redgum and the Models, all established domestic acts. Others, notably Real Life (first signing to Glenn Wheatley's new RCA-distributed label), the Expression, Hoodoo Gurus, wacky ska band the Allnites, Machinations, Kids In The Kitchen and the Duran Duran-ish Pseudo Echo, hit the charts after emerging from "nowhere."

The Australian record industry is convinced that these hot young groups, along with the likes of Choir Boys, Hunters & Collectors, the Scientists, Little Heroes, the Dugites, the Church, the Reels, Sunnyboys, Avion, Rose Tattoo, the Johnnies, Heaven, Swanee and the Uncanny X-Men, will keep Australian pop high in world esteem through the '80s.

By way of return traffic, the big international successes in Australia this past year have been from Michael Jackson, Eurythmics, Culture Club, "Flashdance," Duran Duran, Wham!, Spandau Ballet, Malcolm McLaren and Eddy Grant. As in previous years, infiltration of foreign repertoire still strongly favored British product, with many major U.S. acts, including Van Halen, Journey and Asia, virtually ignored here.

Aussie Invasion Continues As Real Life Eyes U.S.

By KIM FREEMAN

NEW YORK—The quest from Down Under to up top is on for yet another Australian band, Real Life, whose MCA debut "Heartland" was released in the States three weeks ago and features the "Send Me An Angel" single, which broke the band in their homeland, reaching number three there and No. 1 in New Zealand shortly after its April release.

Planning a U.S. tour in early spring, the quartet's strategy centers on their live act, with a reported 110 performances on a recent 132-day Australian tour. "Australian a&r men are very lazy," says temporarily croak-throated lead singer David Sterry. "Our country has produced some great live acts because you don't get a record deal until you're established on tour."

Keyboardist Richard Zatorski guesses that Real Life played over 400 gigs before landing a contract and says, "By the time we get here, we'll have the experience we need." He adds that Australia's current recession forces bands to give the crowd their money's worth. For this band that involves dramatic attire, "falling about on stage" and the use of sequencers, click tracks and electronic percussion.

Zatorski, a former waiter who began his musical career as a classical violinist, and Sterry, a former taxi driver, are Real Life's songwriting base. They've been working together for three years and auditioned 64 drummers before landing percussion-ist Danny Simcic. Allan Johnson had played with several hard rock bands around Melbourne before joining Real Life. His alternating bass and mini-keyboards are another feature the band is banking on.

Sterry says their origins give Real Life an edge on American and European bands. "We haven't been out of Manny's (a music store here) much in the last three days," says Sterry. "Some of the guys in there just jamming are incredible."

was a deliberate strategy," says D'Arcy. "In the U.K. market a single can easily get overlooked at this time of the year."

Instead, a four-track video EP and 12-inch audio EP featuring Idol's earlier hits "Dancing With Myself" and "Hot In The City" have been put out, partly to capitalize on the artist's visual impact and partly, as D'Arcy explains, "because Billy's been seen in the U.K. as at a bit of a standstill, and we're trying to say this is where he is up to now." In New York, Brendan Bourke's main priority at the moment is live exposure. "A college tour before Christmas to work in the new guys, and then a proper tour in January with a bit of production," he summarizes. After that will come tours to Britain and possibly Europe, and maybe a trip to Australia, where Idol has already had top 20 hits with "White Wedding" and "Hot In The City."

As a British artist who came to the States to make it and is now trying to break back into his own market, Idol adds a new twist to the British invasion. In fact, it was the Stateside success of "Dancing With Myself," which stayed on the U.S. disco charts 32 weeks after doing nothing in the U.K., that prompted his move to New York in 1981, after four years with Chrysalis punk band Generation X. His contract as a solo artist was reassigned to Chrysalis U.S., and Bill Aucoin, who had liked his earlier work, picked him up shortly afterwards for management. Being regarded as a punk, Idol found airplay hard to come by at first. "We had to use the rock discos instead," recalls Bourke. "We put out 'Mony Mony' and went after the market we knew that Billy went in. We did 50,000 EPs, which was fine but not exactly mega-sales."

The 1982 single "Hot In The City" did considerably better, reaching number 23 position on the Hot 100. The album "Billy Idol" also charted strongly, despite a period of unavailability during the distribution changeover. Meanwhile, a video of "White Wedding" had gone on MTV and secured heavy rotation.

"People really jumped on that song," says Bourke, "even though it was 18 months old, and that meant the AOR stations picked up on it too. MTV has really helped us to break Billy, and now he's going on their live New Year's Eve show as a guest VJ, along with three other acts from the different time zones. That should have an audience of about 13 million." Response to the "White Wedding" video in the U.K. has been equally strong, though outside of broadcast programming the opportunities to exploit video clips are much more limited. "We're trying to find ways to counter the non-MTV situation here," says D'Arcy, "but it's true there aren't enough outlets for video." The video EP has gone into Britain's growing network of video jukebox sites.

Newest Member Of Menudo Sings In Two Languages

NEW YORK—The young Puerto Rican supergroup Menudo has a new, bilingual member, Robby Rosa, a 13-year-old ninth grader from Hato Rey, Puerto Rico. The young singer's bilingualism, which stems from his growing up in Westbury, L.I., is seen as one of the group's moves to capture the English-speaking market.

Robby will be featured in Menudo's first English-language LP, to be released by RCA Records in early 1984. He replaces 16-year-old Johnny Lozada. Both Rosa and Lozada will appear in the group's series of 10 concerts at Radio City Music Hall, to begin on Valentine's Day.

The youngster was chosen in a final audition in September. Menudo members are replaced by younger singers as they grow older and their voices change from the sweet, youthful sound that is the group's trademark. Rosa will perform the solo in "Like A Cannonball," the theme song of the forthcoming film "Cannonball Run II," which will be featured on the group's next album.

RONNIE LANE BENEFIT Madison Square Garden, New York Tickets: $20

There are two ways of looking at the benefit tour for Ronnie Lane, which ended with two concerts at Madison Square Garden, Dec. 8-9.

The first is as a praiseworthy event in itself, with the friends of a musician stricken with multiple sclerosis donating their time and effort to raise money to battle the disease. Such events are rare enough, and when they do happen they are virtually beyond criticism.

Then there is the purely show business star quality of the shows. Unless some disaster happens, how bad can a concert be that features Eric Clapton, Jeff Beck and Jimmy Page on guitars and Joe Cocker, Andy Fairweather Low and Paul Rodgers on vocals, playing in front of such "sidemen" as Kenney Jones, Charlie Watts, Bill Wyman, Chris Stainton, Jan Hammer, Ray Cooper, Fernando Saunders, Simon Phillips and James Hooker?

That's quite a lineup, and if the concert were being held for purely commercial reasons, it probably would never have happened, though according to sources, the good cheer did not extend beyond the concert stage into the realm of video or recording.

Managerial/ego/record company considerations have reportedly nixed any chance that a live concert video or record will ever emerge from the U.S. dates.

So it was a virtually one-of-a-kind experience, and both the audience and performers seemed to know it. And it was quite a show, staged so that though it was, in effect, a battle of three guitar heroes, everybody had his chance, singularly and together.

The three-hour show, performed under a giant video screen allowing virtually everybody a closeup view, was opened by Eric Clapton, performing a rather laid-back set highlighted by "Lay Down Sally." Manning the drums for his set were Charlie Watts and Kenney Jones, while Bill Wyman played bass. During the New York shows, another Stone, Ron Wood, made surprise appearances on "Cocaine." He was the only unbilled guest of the evenings.

Closing the first half of the concert was Joe Cocker, who joined the musicians already on-stage for such songs as "Feeling Alright," "Watching The River Flow" and "Seven Days." It may have been that the concert was, after all, for a debilitating disease, or it may have been that all this time singing next to Jennifer Warnes has calmed him down, but Cocker performed with a great deal more self control than a few years ago.

There was plenty of space in the music for the guests to show off their own stuff when Clapton played guitar, but there was no space for anyone to jump into the buzzing and soaring work that characterized Jeff Beck's playing. With Hammer on portable keyboards, Saunders on bass, Phillips on drums and Fairweather Low coming in toward the end as vocalist, Beck marked his set with some of the most virtuoso rock guitar playing heard in a long time. To these ears, he stole the show.

It's not easy to follow Jeff Beck, but if you are Jimmy Page, the audience helps a great deal. To many, Led Zeppelin still lives with the gods, and for this crowd he could do no wrong. Robert Plant no longer does Led Zep material, but Page still does, and he did: an acoustic version of "Stairway To Heaven" with no vocals. The audience loved it.

After that, everybody came back for "Layla" and "With A Little Help From My Friends." Then Ronnie Lane himself came on to sing BECK AT BENEFIT—Jeff Beck makes a rare New York concert appearance during the ARMS benefit for Ronnie Lane at Madison Square Garden.

"April Fool." It was a heartfelt moment. After that there was nothing left but to sing "Good-night Irene." ROMAN KOZAK seats of selling out Madison Square Garden on Dec. 5 despite the fact that "Flick Of The Switch," AC/DC's most recent Atlantic release, peaked at "only" number 15 on the album chart.

AC/DC—Angus and Malcolm Young, Brian Johnson, Cliff Williams and newcomer Simon Wright—keep it simple, to be sure, but seem to have the uncanny knack of knowing precisely what the audience wants to hear. Driven by Angus' high-voltage guitar lines, coupled with his on-stage antics and schoolboy attire, AC/DC cranked up high-energy versions of "Bedlam In Belgium," "Flick Of The Switch" and "Guns For Hire" from the new LP.

But it was the classic metal the audience craved, and Angus knew when to let it loose. In stunning succession, the band blew out "Hell's Bells," "The Jack," "Highway To Hell" and "Dirty Deeds Done Dirt Cheap" at ear-deafening volume. On "Let There Be Rock," Angus leaped on Brian Johnson's shoulders and was carried into the audience, all the while bashing out power chords to the crowd's delight.

But wait, AC/DC had more tricks up their sleeves, such as the "21-gun salute" with real-life cannons blasting off every few seconds on "T.N.T." That was followed by another classic, "For Those About To Rock (We Salute You)," as the concert wrapped up. Make no mistake about it, Angus Young and company are masters of metal, and who can blame them if they give the teenagers exactly what they want? When you consider energy and intensity, there are few heavy metal combos that can top this band.

Opener Fastway—led by Fast Eddie Clarke—play heavy rock at a roaring volume, much like AC/DC, but put on less of a stage show. Since lead vocalist David King doesn't play, the band performs as a musical trio, with Charlie McCracken and Jerry Shirley rounding out Fastway on bass and drums.

There wasn't much complicated about the music, but it was good straight-ahead rock and was surprisingly well received by the audience. Highlights of the Fastway set included "You Got Me Runnin'," "Give It Some Action," "Feel Me, Touch Me (Do Anything You Want)" and an interesting version of "Far From Home," a new Fastway song not found on the first Columbia release. Lead singer King reminded this reviewer of a young Robert Plant and sang with power and poise. Watch this group grow.

SPANDAU BALLET
Savoy, New York
Tickets: $15, $13.50

Somewhere in the shuffle of success, it seems Spandau Ballet has lost its soul. While the music has the scope and depth the band has been perfecting for over four years, their Dec. 8 show displayed a sad lack of identity.

Lead singer Tony Hadley is a better-looking Barry Manilow with a beautiful voice who needlessly parades the affected mannerisms of a Las Vegas lounge singer. The quintet's most impressive member is Steve Norman, who alternates between island-flavored percussion and a lilting sax. Bass player Martin Kemp and guitarist Gary Kemp keep their licks in line while running around the stage and offering vocal harmonies here and there.

The crowd was ecstatic during the nearly two-hour show, and well coordinated lighting effects added to the high-powered flash of the show. The group's American hit "True" was flawed only by the contributions of two scantily-clad backing vocalists who couldn't quite match those airy back-ups that Hadley does on the vinyl version. "Lifeline" was an upbeat orchestration that came off beautifully live, and the band's first British hit, "Chant No. 1," was a driving funk tribute to Spandau's early days and influences.

Throughout the set, Spandau Ballet's music stood as evidence of the group's substance. Now, if they could just reflect themselves and the sources of the sound rather than "reflecting their audience," as their label bio reads.

KEITH JARRETT
Avery Fisher Hall, New York
Tickets: $20, $15, $10

Keith Jarrett had announced that his Dec. 3 concert at Avery Fisher Hall would be his last solo piano recital in New York for some time, which gave the event an added patina of historical significance. But for the adoring throng that filled the hall, it would have been a significant event in any case; the admiration that Jarrett inspires often seems to border on worship.

Even to one who has never quite come under the spell of Jarrett's completely improvised solo performances, his superior musicianship is obvious. He has impeccable technique and a strong melodic sense. And it is not easy to create an entire concert (90 minutes, with intermission, on this occasion) out of whole cloth, let alone to do it as many times as Jarrett has done it over the past decade or so.

But while Jarrett's feat of improvising a whole concert with no source material to build on may be impressive, it is hardly superhuman. There are plenty of other gifted jazz pianists who could undoubtedly do it if they wanted to; Jarrett just happens to be the only one who has ever wanted to so consistently.

And as relatively spontaneous as a Jarrett solo recital may be, it is inevitable that he will from time to time—as he did here—fall back on some of his familiar clichés, such as ominous rumblings in the bass clef and treacherous impressionistic trilling, at those times when his inspiration flags. There were moments of great beauty throughout the concert, but there were also moments of empty posturing and obnoxious grandiosity.

Interestingly, the most effective moments of the evening for at least one listener were the most traditional: a stretch toward the end of the first half when Jarrett dug into the good old 12-bar blues for a while, and the second and final encore—which, in a departure from Jarrett's spontaneity-at-all-costs philosophy, was a very pretty reading of a standard tune, "Nancy With The Laughing Face." PETER KEEPNEWS

LORDS OF THE NEW CHURCH
The Palace, Los Angeles
Tickets: $12.50

First let's set the scene. It's the 10th of December. The club is crammed with a crowd that ranges from posey Bananarama and Alarm clones to some seriously disturbed children. Fights are breaking out at the door, and the dance floor is no place to be if you value life and limb.

The stage is awash in fog, and to strains of Henry Purcell's "Music For The Funeral Of Queen Mary" (better known as the theme from "A Clockwork Orange"), a fluorescent cross backdrop reveals itself to be the hilt of a giant dagger. The Lords come onstage snarling, dressed in black leather and bare skin. And then they proceed to put on a remarkable show.

Jim Morrison may (or may not) be dead, but his spirit of pure rebellion and youth appeal lives in the unlikely form of skinny Stiv Bator, former vocalist for the Dead Boys. When he sings "Eat Your Heart Out," you know this guy means it literally. Trashing monitors, lowering himself into the crowd, and flailing the microphone around so ferociously he threatened to either strangle or castrate himself with the cord, Bator worked the crowd into a genuine—and dangerous—frenzy.

Kids were climbing onstage and taking nose-dives back into the sea of bodies. At times, Bator would grab a fan and variously hug, clutch or hump him or her—depending on whether it was a him or her. Nicky Turner kept the tribal rhythm frantic behind a drum kit that consisted almost entirely of tom-toms. Former Damned guitarist Brian James, bassist Dave Tregunna and guest keyboard player Matt Irving fleshed out the throb.

In an hour and 20 minutes, the Lords covered a lot of their IRS product: "Dance With www.americanradiohistory.com Me," the highly political "Open Your Eyes," "Russian Roulette" and "Holy War." The Grass Roots' "Live For Today" was introduced with the inevitable "There ain't no tomorrow," and the encore of "You Really Got Me" put Van Halen's cover to shame for pure esprit de garage.

Anything the Lords lack musically, they make up for in undiluted intensity. For threat, menace and rock'n'roll energy, the Lords Of The New Church are truly the keepers of the flame.

CLARENCE CLEMONS
The Palace, Los Angeles
Tickets: $12.50

True, there were a few people at the sold-out performance on Dec. 9 who turned out hoping that Bruce Springsteen would make an appearance at his sax man's solo gig. But most were there to see The Big Man, as they call him. And even though his show started two hours late and he had a lot of unhappy muttering to overcome, Clemmons proved he can hold a crowd in the palm of that big hand with no trouble at all.

Working through the Palace's new 40-channel, 8,000-watt sound system, Clemmons and his Red Bank Rockers gave a 100-minute set that suffered because it never found a niche. There was not a hint of the E Street style, but neither was the show a horn-heavy Stax revue. J.T. "Johnny" Bowen's voice is hewn from the same gravel pit as James Brown's, and he has a penchant for performing Otis Redding material, but with only one-and-a-half horns (Clemmons plus a keyboard/sax switch-hitter), the Bar-Kays' richness was sorely missed.

Clemmons went through most of the material from his Columbia LP: "Jump Start My Heart," "Rock'n'Roll DJ," "Heartache #99" and the terrific "A Woman's Got The Power." The Big Man told the story of his first saxophone (a Christmas present at age nine, when he really wanted an electric train) and then dedicated "Soul Serenade" to the man whose music taught him to love that present, King Curtis.

The show ended with "Savin' Up," and then Clemmons and vocalist Bowen came back, arms entwined, for an encore that was the high point of the evening. To shouts of "Big Man, Big Man," they breezed through "A Hard Day's Night," "Fire" and "Can't Turn You Loose."

Some people have said that as a frontman, Clarence Clemmons makes a great sideman. Actually, his stage presence and charisma are more than adequate to satisfy a crowd of 1,200. But if he is looking for longevity, he will need to sharpen his material and find a cohesive voice.

ELVIS BROTHERS
Park West, Chicago
Tickets: $13.50

It isn't exactly your proverbial piece of cake to open for a group as rabidly anticipated by the sardine-can crowd as Big Country was here Nov. 4, but when you're the Elvis Brothers, you don't worry. Not when you've developed a local rep as the best live band going, and when merely to step on stage ensures that a party is to follow in short order.

The Elvis Brothers play it for laughs, which fortunately doesn't disguise their capable chops and maddeningly catching tunes. There's no big message here, other than "enjoy yourself"—what else would you expect from a band that has, in its brief career, been known to take the stage variously as the Ozzy Osbourne Brothers, the Weather Report Brothers, the Flashdance Brothers, the Michael Jackson Brothers, the Bow Wow Wow Brothers and the Burl Ives Brothers?

The Brothers Elvis' collective middle name is "fun," in short, and they knock off their neo-rockabilly, neo-pop, and (even) neo-ska tunes with much more sass and verve than another (Continued on opposite page) trio they may superficially resemble, the Stray Cats. The lineup and the look may be similar—three cute guys on guitar, bass and standup drums—but where the Cats seem content to recycle rockabilly, the Brothers capriciously refuse to be pigeonholed.

Rob, Graham and Brad Elvis had the fan-filled crowd pretty much conquered from chord one, and newcomers to the Champaign-based trio's repertoire were won over by assorted selections from their debut Portrait LP, "Movin' Up," from the ingenuous title track to the crazed rockabilly raveup "Long Gone," complete with its clever little "shave and a haircut" drum break. Stealing the spotlight at all times was drummer Brad Elvis, whose percussive antics appeared inspired rather than rehearsed.

URBAN BLIGHT
The Ritz, New York
Tickets: $12.50

T'was the hour before UB40 and all through the house, not a creature was idle, nor a heart unroused. Opening act Urban Blight performed with an infectious energy that stems naturally from the eclectic sources of their upbeat tunes. Rock, reggae, funk and soul were thrown into deceptively graceful arrangements, augmented by clean-cut vocal harmonies, a swinging horn section and some crack choreography. This sharp-looking sextet was the most fun since a slippery slide on the summer lawn.

While the band has only recently released an album in the States, A&M's "Labour of Love," UB40 drew a sold-out, delighted crowd to the Ritz Dec. 2. The British octet ambled through 90 minutes of relaxing, borderline boring reggae, in line with the club's "vacation" motif of the week.

The group blended island percussion, electric guitars and spontaneous vocal arrangements into a sinuous stream of traditional reggae melodies. Neil Diamond's "Red Red Wine" and Lesley Kong's "Sweet Sensation" (an old Melodians tune) were the band's strongest new material, while cuts from their five U.K. albums had the audience singing along.

While most of the crowd swayed deliriously through the set, some searched in vain for a needed edge to the music. KIM FREEMAN

JOBBOXERS
The Ritz, New York

After a lukewarm reception at the same club in July, the JobBoxer's return Nov. 24 was a fitting tribute to the success of their RCA debut album "Like Gangbusters," and the single "Just Got Lucky" in particular.

The five-piece British band has an ingratiating energy that was sustained without pause throughout the hour set. Lead singer Dig Wayne is a charismatic front man with a powerful voice that was backed consistently by harmonies from the rest of the band. Dave Colard's keyboards and a rollicking horn section supplied a strong swing base, while the band crossed into rockabilly for "Not My Night" and an upbeat mix of soul, jazz and r&b for the rest of the set.

The relentless drive of "Boxerbeat" and "She's Got Sex" made them irresistible dance tunes, although the venue unfortunately was too crowded for people to breathe, let alone dance. KIM FREEMAN

PRIDE & JOY MOTOWN REVUE
Sweetwater, Mill Valley, Calif.
Tickets: $4

One of the clichés about the Bay Area music scene is that the region is so rich in live music that you can walk almost anytime into any small club and have a reasonable shot at seeing a truly first-class act. It would be difficult to imagine a better proof of the maxim than the Pride & Joy Revue, without doubt one of the most potent and polished unsigned acts this writer has ever encountered purely by accident.

The Revue is composed of four exceptional and exciting vocalists—two male, two female—fronting a basic quartet of equally adept and charged-up musicians. The four vocalists exchange lead chores like a relay team passing a baton, and each seems continually to top the others as the sets unfold.

Their Nov. 26 performance showed them to be slightly misnomered, since they mix in non-Motown numbers like "Good Lovin'" and "Mustang Sally" with the bonafides like "Shotgun" and "Where Did Our Love Go," and in fact it was Atlantic and Stax Volt numbers—"Respect" and "Dock Of The Bay" that along with "Shotgun" were the most dazzling. But all the tunes were re-created with equal passion and electricity in conjuring up the audio picture of the era.

CHIPPENDALE'S REVUE

Chippendale's, New York
Admission: $15, reserved seating $5

The entertainment at Chippendale's is "tongue-in-cheek"—in more ways than one. The most established male burlesque club on the West Coast has opened a branch in New York, and the all-female audiences are reacting with pleasure.

Mercifully, it's all done with a sense of humor. Although things sometimes get a bit tedious during the course of a three-hour show, the entertainment is generally lively.

Music consists mostly of such recordings as "It's Raining Men," "I'm So Excited" and "Ladies Night," with a couple of original songs also included. The recorded music is more enjoyable to listen to, and seems less forced.

The club, formerly occupied by the Magique disco, has been redesigned with video in mind, but not audio. There are five large screens and three smaller monitors scattered around the room, but while images are clear, sound is muddy and overamplified—sometimes barely tolerable.

Still, it's not the sounds the audience comes for, it's the sights. And the well-choreographed, campy skits aside, there are plenty of those.

Here, the audience is a major part of the act. Women have to be forcibly restrained from pawing the performers—but are permitted to buy kisses from them. Some just take more advantage of the opportunity than others, that's all.

Actually, all the tipping and buying gets a bit overwhelming about halfway into the show. The MC constantly reappears, playing the nerd and reminding customers that they can purchase Chippendale's designer jeans, playing cards, G strings, calendars, "Muscle Motion" exercise videocassettes and numerous other items in the gift shop. This member of the audience began to feel just a bit too captive after listening to repeated sales pitches (but bravely stayed through to the end, nonetheless).

As for the performers themselves, the small portion of singing that was not lip-synched sounded fine. The show, though, is in the dancing, the role-playing and the interaction with the audience. And that show is one worth seeing, if only for the sociological lessons it teaches.

Men are admitted to Chippendale's, but can only view the proceedings from behind a one-way glass on the second floor—a concession to New York liquor laws. LAURA FOTI

HELPING OUT—Ian McDonald, formerly of Foreigner, joins his wife Laura McDonald, lead singer of Maiden America, on stage at Trax in New York.

The Charlie Daniels Band's 10th annual Volunteer Jam is scheduled for Feb. 4 at the Municipal Auditorium in Nashville. As usual, no guest appearances are being announced in advance... Among those seen backstage at the Ronnie Lane benefits in New York were Pete Townshend, Phil Collins, Lou Reed, Billy Squier, Paul Stanley, Gene Simmons, Stevie Nicks, Joe Walsh, Chris Difford and Glenn Tolbrook. Among those seen in Los Angeles were John Travolta, Bette Midler and Mick Fleetwood.

In response to the published requests for audition tapes from aspiring lead singers, the English Beat have gotten over 300 tapes. They still haven't found anybody, though... Also looking for a singer, as well as a keyboardist, are Wall Of Voodoo... "War," by U2, has been voted the best album of 1983 by the reviewers of Contemporary Christian Magazine. Three of the four members of U2 profess Christianity as their faith, says the magazine.

Herbie Hancock has assembled an electric band for his current tour, which has him playing mostly dance rock venues... REO Speedwagon is sponsoring speed skater Erik Henrikson, paying for his training for the Olympics... Motley Crue to be special guests on Ozzy Osbourne's tour... The dBs are recording their debut LP for Bearsville, with Chris Butler producing... The Alarm will be opening on the upcoming Pretenders tour.

"Glitter-metallist" Kery Doll recently raised a stir at the Mojave Desert when he played the Antelope Valley Fairgrounds. The local paper wouldn't accept ads for his show, declaring it "obscene"... Sly & the U.K.'s Roman Holliday Jiving Across The U.S.

By ETHLIE ANN VARE

LOS ANGELES—The seven young Englishmen in Roman Holliday bounce off one another like the harmonies in their sprightly songs. They are ingenuous, excitable and wide-eyed with wonder on their first tour of the United States.

Family Stone have long broken up, but there is a New Family Stone led by Tony Hooks playing "high tech pop funk"... Airtio playing on the next LP by Darius & the Magnets... If the theatre in the Sony VCR print ads looks familiar, that's because it's the Ritz Theatre in Elizabeth, N.J.

Signings: R&b performer Duke Bootee to PolyGram Records worldwide... Country pop group Atlanta to MCA... Boston band Face To Face to Epic... Phill McHugh to River Oaks music... Headpins to Premier Talent for bookings.

Here is a band that named itself after an Audrey Hepburn movie most of them had never seen, and plays swing music without having been fans of the original artists. But, as the acceptance of their Arista debut, "Cookin' On The Roof," shows, enough enthusiasm and melody can make up for such discrepancies.

"When 'Stand By' started getting a lot of airplay over here," says lead singer Steve Lambert, "I was really surprised. People said taking swing and jive and jazz to America is like taking coals to Newcastle."

"But we were never purist or revival," adds bassist Jon Durno. "I think that's a mistake. We don't really even know that much about the original music, and that helps. It makes us update it, make it our own sound."

"We started out as a pop band," explains Lambert. "But we just got fed up with the scene—so many people doing the same thing. So we found this new sound. And even then, people criticized us for doing it half-heartedly. We never went onstage wearing zoot suits; we never use double bass."

"If Cab Calloway had electric bass," adds Durno, "I'm sure he would have used it."

Recorded in a quick 15 days, "Cookin' On The Roof" owes much of its clean pop accessibility to producer Peter Collins, who was also responsible for the Belle Stars' delightful "Sign Of The Times" and the chart-topping "Pass The Dutchie" by Musical Youth.

"We just went in and done it," says Lambert, "and Peter's great. But it was a bit frustrating at times, doing it so fast."

"Still," says Durno, "you've got to be careful not to go over the top in studio time. You can't go wild."

"Our engineer worked with Def Leppard," says Lambert, "and he said they spent six months just doing the vocals. He spent two weeks just getting one 'wow' right. I couldn't believe it. If we'd done that, we'd be kicked right out."

The entourage is conscious of keeping costs down, both in the studio and on tour, where they share hotel rooms and go everywhere by bus. They have an eye towards staying power in their incipient career. To that end, they also hope to reach more than a trendy new music audience.

"We want to be played on Radio 2 as well as Radio 1," says keyboard player Adrian York.

"Adults, if you have a good record, will start to trust you," says Durno. "And they'll buy your next record."

"It's fun," says Lambert, "when the kids turn up at the gigs in dough-boy hats [the band's video trademark]. But next week they'll be coming to see someone else, dressed another way."

Bethlehem, Pa. Plans Big Music Fest For Summer

By MAURIE H. ORODENKER

BETHLEHEM, Pa.—An ambitious 10-day international music festival, "Musikfest '84," will be staged in this city's historic district next Aug. 17-26. The event, expected to draw at least 100,000 people from the Eastern Pennsylvania region and beyond, will offer a wide variety of musical styles, including German, classical, folk, bluegrass and dixieland.

Planned to stimulate tourism, the summer musical fare will complement the traditional Bach festival that attracts thousands here at Christmastime. "Musikfest '84" will play on the city's German and Moravian heritage, and corporate sponsorship will enable the city to offer many of the musical events free of charge.

The First National Bank and the Stroh Brewery Co., as sponsors of the festival, are the major underwriting contributors, but other corporate donations will be sought to support one or a series of events or performances. Overall coordinator for the festival is the Bethlehem Musikfest Assn., a non-profit corporation, which will work with city officials to make arrangements for parking and other practical details.

New Album, Video Herald Chad & Jeremy Comeback

By ETHLIE ANN VARE

LOS ANGELES—With a new album out on Rocshire and a $50,000 Limelight video in the works (starring supermodel Lauren Hutton, no less), Chad Stuart and Jeremy Clyde are making their comeback with a splash, after being apart for 14 years.

"We were offered all those '60s revival shows during the '70s," says Clyde, who has been a successful actor in the interim. "And we could have, I suppose, made a living. But we turned them down. We didn't want to rest on our laurels."

"We thought our laurels were a little brown around the edges," adds Stuart, who has spent the past decade as a record producer and arranger.

The pair, now both 42, likes the way the music business has progressed since the days they were being chased through airports by screaming throngs of teenyboppers. And they feel more prepared to deal with it.

"You had no instruction books then," says Stuart. "Clive Davis hadn't written his book; Brian Epstein hadn't written his book. You had no way of knowing what was coming."

"The business has organized itself now," adds Clyde. "Now one has the right not to be worked to death. The first two years, we practically didn't have a life anywhere except on tour buses."

"We grew to hate the William Morris Agency," says Stuart, "although it really wasn't their fault. They'd just begun the touring thing, and didn't know any better."

Now that the business has organized itself into a series of large and efficient corporate structures, the singers made a conscious decision to sign with a small, independent label. "We started with a very small label in this country (World Artists), who put everything they had behind us because they needed to put everything they had behind us," says Clyde. "And Rocshire seems to be prepared to put an enormous push behind us, which is what it takes nowadays. And they are distributed by MCA."

"They have this naive and idealistic belief that the company is a family. And there is this extraordinary conviction that they can make it work," says Stuart. "And I prefer that to the corporate sharks every time."

You can't argue with a firm putting up a major budget for a video of the first single, "Bite The Bullet," to be directed by Peter Sinclair (Culture Club, Dire Straits). "Lauren (Hutton) is in the video because she's an old friend," notes Clyde. "She was in town and we were in town and she asked us if we'd like her to be in it, and we weren't exactly going to say 'Sorry, darling, no place for you.'"

As far as the sound of the record, titled "Chad Stuart & Jeremy Clyde," it harkens all the way back to the duo's early singles, rather than their "concept" period of "Cabbages And Kings" and "The Ark." It would not be far off-base to call it middle-period Simon & Garfunkel.

"Jeremy wants to sound like J.J.

Cale meets Dave Edmunds," laughs Stuart, "and he thinks I want to sound like Alan Parsons meets Keith Emerson. We had to build up a trust, work together, stop struggling and meet in the middle."

As an arranger, Stuart also had to refrain from overwhelming the album with the electronic toys available to him today that did not exist in 1964. "I would have hated to come out sounding like a couple of guys frantically running behind the bus, shouting 'Hey, wait for us, we've got synths and we used an Oberheim DX and we're hip, hey!'" says Stuart. "We didn't want to sound like the Eurhythmics."

Teens Invited To Philly Club

PHILADELPHIA—During the heyday of disco, clubs would reach out to the younger generation trade with Sunday afternoon sessions for the teen crowd, and the bar served only soft drinks. In this day of rock clubs, center-city spot Filly's has adopted the same technique.

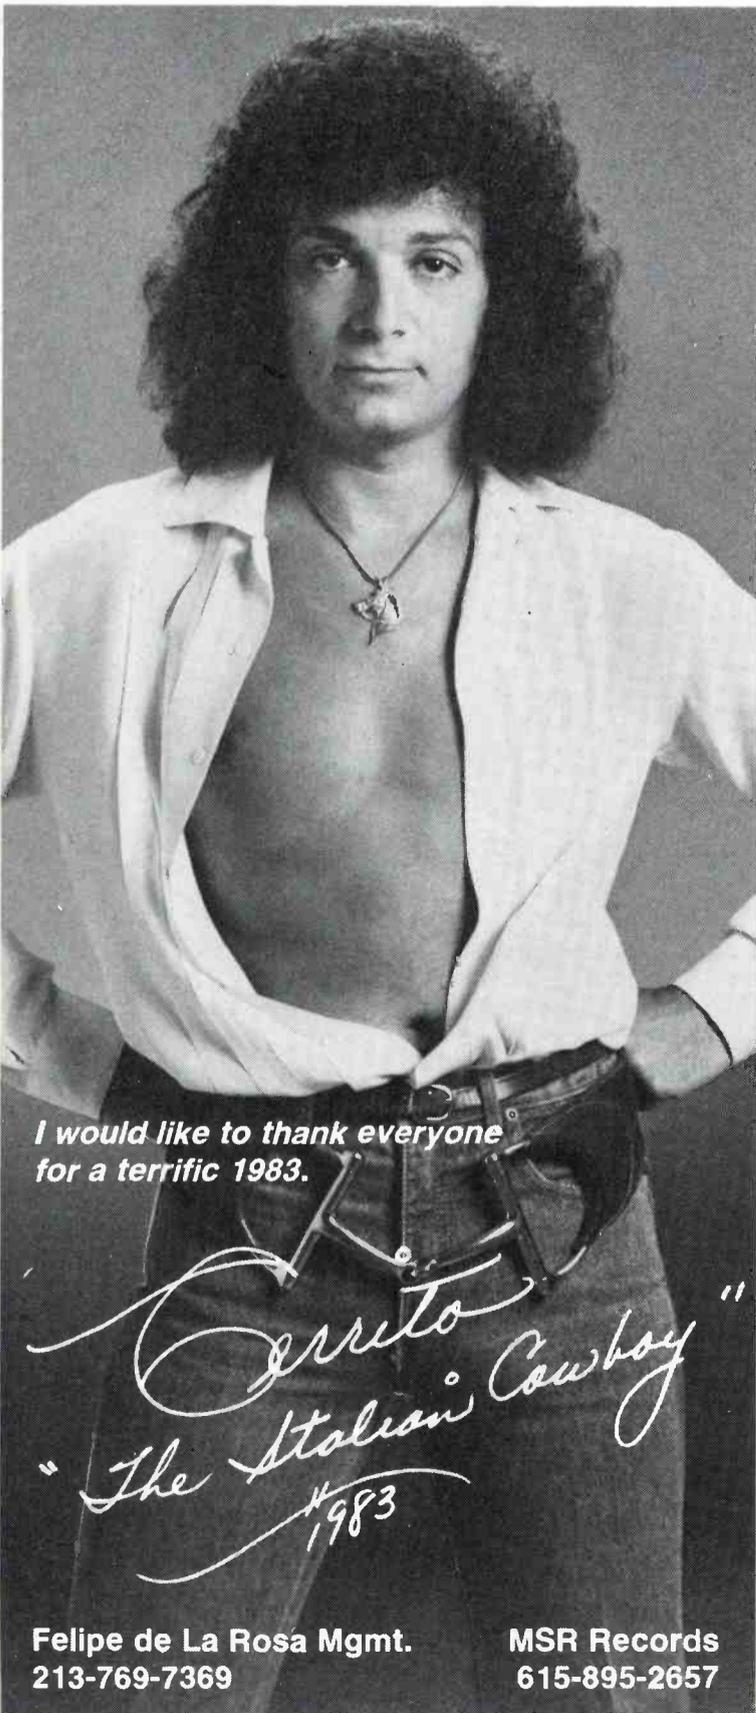

Owner Stan Chapman has instituted a Sunday break-dance party for people under 21 to give them a chance to learn the new style. Those over 21 are not welcome.

"But I spoke too soon. We were going to a club after our date, and they wouldn't let us in. I was talking to some fans and was a little drunk. The bouncers started laughing at the band, so I made an obscene gesture. There were six of them and they decided to dance on me.

"I had something in my hand that they thought was a knife," he continues. "They went back inside and I went back to the hotel and when I woke up there were 12 cops in riot gear with baseball bats standing around the bed. They hauled me down to the police station, and the next day they took me down to our last gig in police custody, standing around the stage worrying if I would escape.

"But the cops were really cool. They saw after being with me that I am not a violent person and it just could have been a misunderstanding. They apologized for keeping me in jail and took me out to dinner the next day. It turned out that the police chief's daughter is a big fan of ours. And there were 200 kids camped outside the police station. One kid got himself arrested to get inside to share a cell with me.

"Then the ambassador called from the U.S. Embassy and I told him to call my manager, Miles Copeland. He knew Miles' father from the CIA, but when they (the Finnish police) heard the CIA mentioned they got really worried. They started asking me, 'What's this about the CIA?,' envisioning these helicopters and gunships coming.

"Anyway, with all that pressure, with reporters calling up, sort of like Sid Vicious in New York, and that scene—front pages of the newspapers three days running—they dropped the charges. They found out that I had a chrome cigarette lighter, and when I was lighting a cigarette in the dark, the club bouncers thought I had a knife. The police figured that out.

"They kept asking, Where's the knife?, and I said I didn't have one. And then I'm sitting in the cop car on the way to the airport and I pulled out my cigarette lighter. And they all jumped. Then they saw what it was, and they figured it out what it must have been. They're a bit nervous, the Finns," he says.

Cyndi Lauper, former lead singer of Blue Angel, has embarked on a new solo career with an album, "She's So Unusual," recently released on Portrait Records. Like just about every artist, she has a manager (David Wolf), but she also has an "advisor." His name is Captain Lou Albano and he's a manager in his own right: He manages such "bad guy" professional wrestlers as the Wild Samoans, the Magnificent Morocco and Mr. Fuji. (Lauper's not the only rock'n'roller he works with; he's also managed NRBQ for some time.)

Albano appears as the distraught father in Lauper's video of "Girls Just Want To Have Fun," and when the record company threw a party for its new artist, he was there as well, taking part in a hilarious mock press conference. Albano is a fearsome brawler and yeller, while Lauper sounds a bit like, and has the humor of, a Gracie Allen.

"I met him on a plane to Puerto Rico, asked him for his autograph and if he would work with me some time, maybe on a commercial. I always had the idea of making a funny record commercial, and he said sure, sure, but gave me his home number," she recalls.

"I didn't see him for a long time, and the whole thing with Blue Angel went on and on, but all the while David (her manager) was a wrestling freak. He's always got to watch wrestling and 'The Honeymooners.' And then I started watching it and there was Captain Lou. I didn't say anything, but when we started doing the video and thinking about a script, we thought about using a wrestler, so we called Captain Lou. We didn't know until the last minute if he would do it, but he did.

"Since then he has been my personal advisor, and he teaches me the PEG principle. PEG stands for politeness, etiquette and grooming. You have to be polite, because if you're rude you never get anywhere in this field. You have to know how to eat, because, as you know, everything is done over eating. It's very rough because if you're sitting down and eating and talking business and somebody says something you don't agree with, and you have a mouthful of food and you feel that you have to say something, you have to know how to pick up the napkin and then very daintily put it down and then say 'no' or 'yes.'

"This is etiquette. Also, you have to know what to do if you are cutting your food and somebody says something that upsets you and you don't cut it but it goes flying. So you have to know how to eat. And grooming—grooming is fashion. Rock'n'roll is very fashionable and glamorous. And Captain Lou is definitely teaching me all that. He grooms the Samoans. I think that they are very new-music-looking. And they are even a little heavy-metal-looking to me. Captain Lou is just phenomenal. His earrings are incredible. I think that's what attracted me to him—his earrings and the rubber band in the beard."

Dance Trax

By BRIAN CHIN

As has always been the case with any form of music distinctive enough to have acquired a label of its own, the crucial question facing dance music (for about the umpteenth time in its history) is: "Will success spoil disco?"

A big part of the answer lies in understanding the fact that post-Motown, post-Sly Stone dance music, created by the interplay of musicians and business-people in New York, Philadelphia, Miami, Los Angeles and Germany, among other locales, in the early- to mid-'70s, has gone through several phases of decay and rebirth.

The rise-and-fall cycle of several "sounds" has marked dance music's 10-year history as an identifiable trend. There was the Philadelphia sound, which continues to be mined with the remix of older sides such as "Let No Man Put Asunder" and "Love Sensation." There was a similar, but somehow glitzier "New York" sound, a European sound, a Miami sound, and, at the turn of the decade, a British sound, a new New York sound tagged "street music," and a new fusion of European electronics and American rap culture, called "hip-hop."

Make no mistake about it: Even the most ardent partisans of club culture admit that there is occasional exhaustion among record producers, DJs, even the audience. Certainly, someday only those who still keep the faith will be able to mention the word "hip-hop" with a straight face—the same sort of people who will always hold genuine reverence for records like "Free Man," "Weekend," "Dancing With Myself" or "It's Raining Men."

When, as was the case in 1983, there isn't a distinct new musical trend, there is self-conscious worry among the club trendsetters. In the midst of the "new music" explosion this fall, for example, Rockpool's newsletter was moved to beg its readership of DJs and record company executives to "Wake Up!" lest the term "new music" make itself a code name for formulaized music with a more saleable image.

Only the most disingenuous of industry hypesters would deny that much of the "new music" borrows from disco, if only because it has made the revolutionary discovery (as disco did long ago) that in the dance-club environment, a prominent, well engineered beat is easier to dance to than an inconsistent, carelessly produced one.

Therefore, if it can be accepted that even "new music" feeds on the old (whether the "older" style is in fact outdated or merely needs a more acceptable image), the pressure toward generating trends that can be greeted as "new"—and then formulaized, criticized and discarded on schedule—should disappear.

Music does exhaust itself periodically, but none of us should be hastening to retire any form of music, whether it's "street" music, which finally made its way out of the clubs and onto top 40 with Madonna and Shannon's crossovers (no, the Clash doesn't count, and neither does Duran Duran, although the Thompson Twins would have); rap, which has been vilified from the start; techno-pop, which can no longer fairly be called "cold" after "Blue Monday" and "Let The Music Play"

As ever, then, dance music is at a critical juncture. There is much history behind it, and a vigorous future waiting to be created. As a term, "dance music" is so incredibly stilted we're glad it's the standard tag because it could never become the dangerously fashionable one "disco" was. We hope that all the varied musical possibilities that dance music has presented over the years will remain fresh in people's minds, even as they get into their senile phase of being gobbled up, commercialized and retreated to death, since they will continue to be important tools in bringing dance music into the future.

Promoter's Concert Club Draws 'Cream' Customers

BY JOHN SIPPEL

LOS ANGELES—Promoter Randy McElrath has a Concert Club membership of 700. Members pay $25 annually to receive advance mailed notice of his Wisconsin/Michigan concert bookings and a 50% discount on ticket handling charges.

"They're the cream of my customers," says McElrath. "They're regular. On big events, I sometimes have to limit each club member to four tickets. They are trendsetters in their communities. Some of them are from towns like Fond du Lac, Racine, Kenosha and Madison, well out of the range of Milwaukee."

McElrath, a Dartmouth graduate, joined Daydream Productions, a concert house in Milwaukee, in 1974, remaining two years. After he'd been in his own promotion effort, Starday Productions, about two years, he sensed he had to market research his customers. He enlisted young women to canvass his concert audiences inquiring as to favorite attractions, best venues, ticket prices and complaints.

Out of this piecemeal canvass came the Concert Club. Customers beefed about not receiving advance information of concerts at their homes, saying they were often out of town or didn't see issues of the local papers that carried ads on Starday concerts.

Shelly Swanson, who manages the Concert Club, now annually mails about 24 postcards and 10 8-by-10 self-mailers five days in advance to the 700. McElrath estimates that the club grows about 10% in size yearly. Everyone who joins the club receives seating plans for each venue Starday promotes.

McElrath is currently promoting concerts in Milwaukee, Madison, La-Crosse, Marquette, Mich. and Green Bay. He often mentions Chicago concerts, not promoted by him, if the act in question does not have any dates booked in his area.

The new member also receives a T-shirt, on the front of which is printed: "I am a member of the Concert Club," while on the back, "That is why you are sitting behind me" goads concertgoer interest.

The club member establishes credit so that he can mail in his check together with his ticket request. McElrath says talks with his members indicate they also like the half-off savings from his 75 cents to $1 handling charge per ticket.

Each of the 10 days will feature music from a different area of the world. The use of historical areas to accommodate the various concerts will stress the city's German and Moravian cultural and musical heritage. In particular, the Musikfest association is hoping a corporate sponsor will pay for the cost of bringing a band from Germany to Bethlehem for the festival. The association would like to invite the Stadtkapelle Berching, the band that performed in Bethlehem during its German Heritage Day during the 1976 Bicentennial.

An association spokesman says negotiations are under way with other bands and musical groups that will perform at the festival. The names will be announced as they are booked.

"Musikfest '84," which is hoped, will become an annual event here, will be centered in six areas in downtown Bethlehem.

Peggy Lee's Life Story Becomes B'way Vehicle

By RADCLIFFE JOE

NEW YORK—Peggy Lee, a major name in music for close to 50 years, made her Broadway debut this month in "Peg," a musical entertainment based on her life.

For the musical, a one-woman show, Lee is accompanied by a 30-piece orchestra and six backup singers. Featured among the musicians are Grady Tate, Bucky Pizzarelli, Jay Leonhart and Mike Renzi.

Lee wrote the book and lyrics for the show. Music is by Paul Horner. Additional music is culled from songs closely associated with Lee's career, including "Fever," "Why Don't You Do Right," and "Mañana."

According to Lee, the show started life in book form, but became long and cumbersome. She later decided to rework it into a Broadway musical "because I'd always dreamed of writing for Broadway." She stresses that everything in the show is based on facts "because I wrote in response to a very strong desire to be candid and open about my life and my work."

Peggy Lee began life as Norma DeLores Egstrom 63 years ago in Jamestown, N.D. She began singing professionally at the age of 14 at radio station WDAY-AM in Fargo, N.D., and, at the suggestion of Ken Kennedy, then program director of the station, changed her name to Peggy Lee. She attributes her first big break on the national scene to Benny Goodman, who heard her at the Ambassador Hotel in Chicago and asked her to sing with his band.

Over the years, Lee has recorded more than 630 songs and released 59 albums. Her unique approach to delivering a tune has helped make hits of such songs as "Lover," by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart; "I Don't Know Enough About You," by her late husband and collaborator Dave Barbour; "Big Spender," by Cy Coleman, and "Is That All There Is," by Jerry Lieber and Mike Stoller. More recently, Lee has recorded the songs of such pop composers as Paul McCartney, James Taylor, Leon Russell, Billy Joel, Carly Simon, Marvin Hamlisch and Melissa Manchester.

Lee has also appeared in numerous films, including "The Jazz Singer," with Danny Thomas, "Mr. Music," with Bing Crosby, and "Pete Kelly's Blues," for which she earned an Academy Award nomination for her portrayal of an alcoholic singer.

Ray Charles has done the vocal arrangements for "Peg," with Cy Coleman serving as creative consultant. The musical direction for the show is by Larry Fallon.

POLYGRAM'S NEW URBAN MUSIC VP

Harold Childs Changes Positions

NEW YORK—After 15 years at A&M Records, many of them spent as field vice president of sales and promotion, working primarily in the pop market, Harold Childs recently moved to PolyGram as senior vice president of urban/black music, with responsibility for signing and promoting black artists.

This radical change in job description has some involved with the producing and marketing of black music wondering if Childs is right for the job. But Childs, who began his career working black records, responds, "If you're a professional record person, you're a professional record person. Sure, there are differences in marketing black and white records, but the basics are the same." Unlike his position at A&M, Childs' PolyGram role will involve him "with each project from the cradle to the grave," he says.

Looking at the black market, Childs notes, "It is no secret to anybody that sales are down. With 25% of the black workforce out of work, it isn't surprising. The responsibility of manufacturers to their black departments and black acts is to get them an equal opportunity to reach top 40 stations and white listeners. For too long, manufacturers have allowed the pop promotion departments not to work potential crossover black records until it was too late. There is no reason for black acts to reach sales of 200,000 and then suddenly see the record die."

Childs suggests that "manufacturers set up barriers within their own company that have no relation to what the public feels. To buyers a good record is a good record. Too often the pop and black marketing departments have been in two different worlds, not communicating, and, as a result, not selling as many records as they could."

A graphic example of the communication Childs hopes to foster at PolyGram is Kool & the Gang's "Janna." "I was very afraid that we'd have trouble with that record on black radio. We had a meeting of pop and black promotion people. We told the pop people, 'We need your help with this record. We need pop radio adds at the same time we're getting urban and black radio on it.' As a result, we were able to get that record off the ground."

Mills Going Back Over The Rainbow

By NELSON GEORGE

Why would a singer with a new album on the street decide, instead of doing a concert tour to support the album, to go on a national tour in a play she did nine years before? Hadn't she done all she could with the role the first time? Wasn't she afraid that this would hurt her record sales?

Well, to Stephanie Mills, again playing Dorothy in "The Wiz," the role that brought her to prominence when she was a teenager, was a challenge she couldn't pass up. "Nine years ago I was young, very naive, very much intimidated by situations, very much like the character Dorothy. I wanted to come back now and use the experience I have now," she says.

Pragmatically, Mills also notes that "the concert market for black acts is very soft right now." "The Wiz" provided her with an opportunity to remain visible around the country and "show people that my real roots lie in the theatre." The six-month national tour will hit 15 cities before reaching Broadway next spring. When she returns to Manhattan for an additional two to three months of performances, Mills will be the youngest star ever to return to Broadway in a revival of his or her hit show.

How long will she continue playing the little girl searching for home. "As long as I can really fit the role of Dorothy and not disrupt the structure of the play," she says. "When I'm too old, I'll stop."

This new version of "The Wiz" has been revamped to have "a contemporary 'Flashdance' feeling," according to Mills. Dance numbers have been updated, songs rearranged, and new songs added, including a ballad, "I Wonder, I Wonder Why," which Mills is thinking of recording.

By the time Mills' "Wiz" involvement ends, she'll be ready to record a followup to her "Merciless" album.

While this album has a definite new wave flavor, Mills wants her next project "to project more real emotion and show the kind of singing I'm really capable of. I don't want to be boxed into any particular style; I just want to cut good songs that I can

Firms Join Forces For Telecast Of Midnight Star

NEW YORK—The making and national broadcast of an hour-long Midnight Star concert were made possible when a major video production company, radio syndicator and cable tv channel joined forces to prove the viability of long-form black music videos.

CCR Video Corp. of New York and the Washington-based Black Entertainment Television (BET) cable network cooperated in the national telecast on Dec. 4. The program was also simulcast on 20 urban/black radio stations with the input of Starfleet Blair.

The entire project was the idea of Gary Delfiner, a producer/program developer at CCR. Before entering the video field, Delfiner had promoted black concerts in Philadelphia. Later, as an independent producer, he had worked on the filming of a Grover Washington Jr. special in Philadelphia, currently being marketed on laserdisk by MGM/UA.

"I saw that there was very little outlet for black music videos and that relatively few long-form black videos were being produced," says Delfiner.

Having worked with Elektra Records on the Washington project, he approached the label about taping one of its acts.

With the cooperation of Midnight Star's manager Pablo Davis, Solar Records president Dick Griffey and Elektra, the self-contained band from Dayton was taped in concert at a venue in Los Angeles called the Country Club. "CCR put up the lion's share of the money, approximately $100,000, for the production as well as giving them a free video taken from the concert footage," says Delfiner.

Starfleet Blair brought its financial and technical expertise to the project, co-producing the simulcast with CCR, enabling the concert to reach cities that don't receive BET. For its part, BET shifted its programming schedule around to accommodate the broadcast, making it the major feature of the Dec. 4 edition of its "Video Soul" program. The broadcast had a potential audience of 5.3 million cable viewers and 12 million radio listeners.

Over the last month, MTV has added seven videos by black acts, including Ashford & Simpson's "It's Much Deeper," Andre Cymone's "What Are We Doing Here?," Earth, Wind & Fire's "Magnetic," Irene Cara's "Why Me?," Herbie Hancock's "Autodrive," Michael Jackson's "Thriller" (of course) and the world premiere (can you believe it?) of Lionel Richie's "Running With The Night." MTV programming vice president Les Garland told USA Today that more black acts are fitting "the MTV sound."

Short Stuff: For the second straight year, Warner Bros. is pushing Al Jarreau's version of Mel Torme's "The Christmas Song." . . . Barry White's Unlimited Gold label, now independently distributed, has new single releases from the band

New World ("Don't Go") and singer Tara ("Fresh Flesh") . . . Michael Jackson was named one of seven winners of Ebony's black achievement awards for 1983 . . . Kurtis Blow's "Christmas Rappin'" was the first rap record on a major label when Mercury released it in time for Christmas, 1979. It was produced by ex-Billboard staffers J.B. Moore and Robert Ford Jr. Many in this organization thought that it was a joke and that rap would quickly fade from sight. But a spokesman for Poly-

Gram says "Christmas Rappin'" the story of Santa Claus visiting Harlem, is only 80,000 units away from sales of 500,000 and appears certain to be Blow's (and Ford and Moore's) second gold record. The first was the "The Breaks" in 1980. The Moore-Ford team is currently represented on the pop charts with "Rappin' Rodney," a rap record featuring the voice and jokes of Rodney Dangerfield.

RIAA president Stan Gortikov and trumpeter Donald Byrd have both been added to the Black Music Assn. board of directors . . . Next year's BMA conference will be held in Washington in October . . . Victor Willis, ex-lead singer of the Village People, has signed with Sutra Records. His 12-incher is titled "Physical."

Word, Meadowgreen Offer Worship Print Promotion

NASHVILLE—Word Music and Meadowgreen Music have united for a major national print music campaign built on the title of one of Meadowgreen's top gospel hits, "Sing Your Praise To The Lord." Details of the project were announced by Jim Gibson, director of publications and marketing for Word, and Randy Cox, general manager of Meadowgreen Music, the gospel division of Tree International.

The "Sing Your Praise To The Lord" collection of print will consist of praise and worship songs and materials for both churches and individuals. The campaign slogan is derived from the song written by Richard Mullins and recorded on Amy Grant's gold-plus album, "Age To Age." "Sing Your Praise" was one of the top 10 gospel songs last year.

Product in the collection will include a Michael W. Smith piano book, a Ronn Huff Christmas work, a wedding project, a handbell series, octavos, orchestrations and a youth musical, among others. Word will be responsible for distribution, sales and marketing of the product, which will be directed to Christian bookstores nationally.

Point-of-purchase focus will be a modular display that holds the complete line of print merchandise in the series. The display is to be constructed so that a new section can be added each quarter to hold the latest product. Banners, posters and headers that carry the "Sing Your Praise" logo are now being designed.

The first volume of this material is scheduled to be available during the second quarter of next year. Most of the songs in the collection are by Meadowgreen and Word writers.

Heartland Pacts With Benson Co.

NASHVILLE—Heartland Records, a young gospel label based in Altamonte Springs, Fla., has signed a distribution deal with the Benson Co. here following its aborted distribution alliance with the recently defunct Priority Records. A division of CBS Records, Priority folded its operations in July.

Current Heartland product includes the albums "Prodigal," by the group Prodigal; "Say A Prayer," by Lenny LeBlanc; and "Yes, I Believe," by John Blake. A new album by Prodigal, "Electric Eye," is scheduled to ship in mid-February.

Benson and Heartland will share marketing and promotion responsibilities for the albums released under the new agreement. Heartland will continue to manufacture the products.

Baptists Line Up Cable Coverage

NASHVILLE—The Southern Baptists Radio & Television Commission says that 10 of the top 25 cable tv corporations in the country have agreed to carry its American Christian Television System (ACTS) when it debuts next May. The 10 companies give the new network the potential of reaching eight million homes through cable.

In addition to cable transmission, ACTS will also rely on low-power and full-power tv stations to deliver 16 hours of Christian entertainment daily.

ACTS has presented its case to national cable tv corporations that hold cable franchises in numerous cities. Multiple system operators that have agreed to carry ACTS include American Television & Communications, Cox Cable, Group W and Storer, each of which has more than a million subscribers. Others are Daniel & Associates, MetroVision, Heritage Communications, TCA Cable, TeleCable and Vision Cable. The combined reported total of subscribers of all these companies is 8,045,332 in 669 franchises around the country.

ACTS is training consultants in each state to contact the local systems owned by the above companies to ensure that ACTS is carried on each local franchise. The consultants also will help form ACTS boards, which will promote the network, provide local programming and supply the cable franchises with the necessary equipment to receive ACTS via satellite. ACTS unveiled its strategy during the Western Cable Show in Anaheim, Dec. 13-15.

Program Honors Lucie Campbell

WASHINGTON—The songs of composer Lucie E. Campbell, the first black woman to become a major figure in gospel music, were the focus of a special program at the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History Saturday (17).

The day-long event, presented by the Program In Black American Culture, a part of the Smithsonian's office of public and academic programs, covered Campbell's role in developing gospel songs as an American art form. The event featured lectures and concerts by J. Robert Bradley, the Boyer Brothers and the Year Of Jubilee.

Campbell composed and published more than 80 songs, including such classics as "In The Upper Room With Jesus," made famous by Mahalia Jackson; "Jesus Gave Me Water," recorded by the Soul Stirrers and the Davis Sisters; and such standards as "He Understands, He'll Say 'Well Done'" and "Something Within."

FIRMS MULL MAJOR INVESTMENTS

Nashville Publishers Computerizing

By KIP KIRBY

NASHVILLE—Bits and bytes may soon become standard terminology in country music publishing. Computerization is making inroads—albeit slowly—into this community, and a number of local companies say they are planning to invest in computer hardware and software in 1984. Usage ranges from simple accounting to detailed catalog marketing/management functions.

Most branch publishing offices with home offices headquartered outside Nashville do not utilize computers. But a number of smaller independent publishers are looking hard at various systems to facilitate their catalog and licensing procedures.

One exception in the area of majors is Warner Bros. Music, which is now on-line with one computer and has a second on order. Primary functions are accounting and royalty-related, but office manager Robert Frye is working closely with WB Music's Los Angeles office to develop professional software programming to handle such diversified areas as song casting, chart data and histories, writers' earnings, catalog retrieval and lyric/title tracking.

In January, Warner Bros. will implement synchronous telephone transmission of song data among its New York, Los Angeles and Nashville offices. Its long-term goal, Frye explains, will be digital song encoding with satellite transmission via computer and first-generation reproduction as demos.

Tree International went computerized late this year with a customized program created by Bob Katovsky, who designed a similar system for Rondor in London. Tree's IBM 3600 computer is now being programmed with active titles and top money-earning catalog songs; eventually, it will handle Tree's 50,000 or so titles in areas ranging from accounting and licensing through specific song casting. Tree vice president Donna Hilley estimates that the software alone cost the firm slightly more than $30,000.

There are four area firms now manufacturing computer software programs specifically for the music industry: MetroGnome, CM Systems (a division of Copyright Management) and Spectrum Logic, all based in Nashville and the Music Publishers Administration System, created by Wishbone Studios/I've Got The Music in Muscle Shoals.

MetroGnome's various microcomputer packages are compatible with IBM, Apple and CPM formats in both hard and floppy disk. The top integrated business package, priced at $1,395, offers licensing, royalty, accounting, song tracking, history memory, pitching and casting programs. Says MetroGnome's Mark Augelli, "I can feed the computer producer or artist data, for example, and it will give me every title in my catalog that meets the criteria, including how many times it's been pitched, when and to whom, and the response it got."

In addition to its business packages designed for publishers and recording studios, MetroGnome also offers less expensive home-use programs priced at $150-$200. These include "Writers Plus," created for individual songwriters' catalog, and "Pickers Plus," to help musicians keep track of residuals, session scheduling, equipment costs and serial numbers.

Copyright Management was formed by Terry Smith and Rick Francisco to administer publishing businesses through computerization. Six months ago, the two formed a subsidiary consultancy division, CM Systems. Prices for a CM Systems in-

ICM Opens Nashville Arm With McFadden At Helm

NASHVILLE—ICM, the internationally-based booking agency headquartered in New York, has opened a Nashville division headed by Jack McFadden, vice president and general manager.

Ralph Mann, chairman of ICM, says that the decision to open a Nashville office "has long been on the planning boards." Principal agents for ICM's new branch are George Mallard and Reggie Mac. Mallard joins ICM from the Halsey Co. in Tulsa. Mac has most recently served as general manager of the United Talent Agency in Nashville, representing such artists as Loretta Lynn, Conway Twitty and Sonny James. In his new association with ICM, Mac has been named vice president.

McFadden's 20-year association with country music spans a number of years in Bakersfield, Calif. working with Buck Owens, Freddie Hart and Ray Price. He supervised talent coordination for "Hee Haw" at one time, and owned radio station KQKK in Modesto.

With offices worldwide in New York, Los Angeles, Paris, London and Rome, ICM currently represents a roster that includes Hall & Oates, Dolly Parton, Loverboy, Bob Seger, Linda Ronstadt, Rick Springfield, Mac Davis, Tom Jones and Kris Kristofferson, among others. Sonny James is the first act signed by ICM Nashville, although McFadden says he expects to be signing more artists shortly and anticipates an eventual roster representation in Nashville of 10 acts or more.

ICM's offices are located at 1717 West End Ave., Suite 301, Nashville, Tenn. 37203. Phone: (615) 327-1700.

Churchill Records & Video In Worldwide MCA Pact

NASHVILLE—MCA and Churchill Records & Video Ltd. have entered into a joint venture agreement whereby MCA will provide funding, manufacturing, promotion, advertising and marketing services for all Churchill releases, as well as worldwide distribution for label product.

Under the new pact, Jim Halsey will serve as president and chief executive officer for Churchill, with Sherman Halsey and Tommy Martin as vice presidents. The first two artists signed to the restructured label are Ronnie Dunn and Roy Clark, who earned Churchill a Grammy last year for his "Live From Austin City Limits" album, which was also Clark's first Grammy.

There will be a Ronnie Dunn single, supported by a video, in January. Clark's second Churchill LP will ship in February to coincide with his appearance at the national Wal-Mart convention Feb. 20 in Little Rock. Also in the works is a Roy Clark/Woody Herman recording to be released in LP, videodisk and videocassette form later in the year.

In addition to its label and video ventures, Churchill will also be "heavily involved in publishing within the next six months," according to Halsey, who adds that he is currently looking at several possible catalog acquisitions.

Through his booking and management division, the Jim Halsey Co., Halsey books approximately 25 acts, ranging from Woody Herman, Al Hamm's "Music Of Your Life" and the Glenn Miller Band to a number of MCA artists, including Don Williams, the Oak Ridge Boys, Terri Gibbs, Lee Greenwood, Mel Tillis and Con Hunley.

Halsey hopes to develop a Broadway musical to be entitled "Moonlight Serenade," based on the life of the late Glenn Miller, in association with Glenn Miller Productions.

CMF Commended For History Exhibit

NASHVILLE—The Country Music Foundation has been awarded a certificate of commendation from the American Assn. for State & Local History for preserving the history of recording in Nashville via its multimedia exhibit at the former RCA Studio B.

Presented by AASLH at its meeting in Victoria, British Columbia, the award was one of 55 certificates issued. CMF director Bill Ivey says the foundation used a $40,000 contribution from RCA Records to construct the exhibit.

NEW AGREEMENTS ANNOUNCED

Tree Honors Its Own At Brunch

NASHVILLE—Songwriters, division managers, song pluggers and singers were awarded and praised at Tree International's eighth annual Christmas brunch here, Dec. 10. The giant publishing company also announced a series of agreements with other publishers that will broaden the use of its copyrights.

Donna Hilley, vice president of Tree, said that Meadowgreen Music, the company's gospel division, had racked up 250 cuts during 1983, five of which were top 10 songs and three of which rose to No. 1 on the gospel charts. Hilley said that since the company was founded under Randy Cox's leadership in 1981 it had amassed a catalog of 500 songs. Three writers, she added, were signed to Meadowgreen in the past year.

Hilley also reported that Meadowgreen has made an agreement with Light Records to create six Christian musicals for that label to manufacture and distribute, and that it has cemented a print agreement with Word Music to create a series of gospel songs and allied print material on the theme of "Sing Your Praise To The Lord," a top gospel tune written by Richard Mullins (separate story, page 78).

According to Hilley, Amy Grant's "Age To Age" album, which contains seven Meadowgreen cuts, has sold 600,000 copies. Grant records for Myrrh, a division of Word Records. "The Michael W. Smith Project" album, Hilley added, has sold more than 80,000 copies. Smith is a Meadowgreen writer, as well as an artist.

Buddy Killen, Tree owner and president, noted that his company had purchased the Jensing/Jensong, OAS, Onhisown and Jim Reeves catalogs in 1983.

Tree songs cited for rising to the top 10 in gospel and country charts were "Leave Them Boys Alone," "All I Must Do," "Your Love Shines Through," "And You Know It's Right," "My First Taste Of Texas," "Could He Be The Messiah," "Personally," "In A Little While," "Velvet Chains," "Friends" and "Don't Count The Rainy Days."

Eight Tree songs were cited for reaching No. 1: "Fakin' Love," "Ageless Medley" (with Tree copyright "Sing Your Praise To The Lord"), "You're Gonna Ruin My Bad Reputation," "Fool For Your Love," "Stubborn Love," "New Looks From An Old Lover" and "Somebody's Gonna Love You."

Hilley told the audience that Jeff Silbar, formerly a writer for House Of Gold Music in Nashville, will spend six months in Nashville as a song pluggger and then go to the West Coast to represent Tree there.

MITCH MATCH—MCA recording artist John Conlee, center, visits with host Ralph Emery and guest Mitch Miller after performing his latest single, "In My Eyes," on The Nashville Network's nightly live talk show, "Nashville Now."

Gosdin 'Turns' To McGuinn

By KIP KIRBY

In last week's Scene, we mentioned that Dolly Parton has cut a new version of the Byrds classic, "Turn! Turn! Turn!," for her upcoming Val Garay-produced album. But she's not the only one with the idea of re-viving the song, it seems: Vern Gosdin is also recording an updated version of "Turn! Turn! Turn!" Only he's going one better: He's imported original Byrd Roger McGuinn into Nashville to play electric 12-string on the cut.

The idea for using McGuinn originated with Gosdin's management team, who contacted McGuinn's agent in New York and approached him with the project. McGuinn liked the idea, and agreed to fly to Nashville for the session. Besides playing 12-string electric—which was, of course, an integral part of the Byrds' original version—McGuinn will also be singing with Gosdin on the album.

This Nashville visit isn't McGuinn's first. In 1968, the band arrived here to record what was to become a monumental landmark in the evolution of country/rock: the Byrds' "Sweetheart Of The Rodeo," which featured not only McGuinn but the late Gram Parsons as well.

McGuinn, shy and soft-spoken, has changed some in the intervening years. The trademark wire-rimmed glasses of the Byrds' halcyon era have given way to contacts. But his musical interests remain the same.

McGuinn is fascinated with the expansion of country music into previously uncharted realms. Neither "Turn! Turn! Turn!" nor "Mr. Tambourine Man," the Byrds' biggest hits, ever made the country charts. Today, they probably would. McGuinn would like to record again commercially (he has been unsigned since his final album with Chris Hillman on Capitol) and speculates that his sound would fit well with what's being played these days on country stations.

McGuinn lives with his wife Camilla in Morro Bay, Calif., about 200 miles up the coast from Los Angeles. He tours three or four months a year, playing colleges and small clubs. Despite having no records on the charts, his name is still a draw, both to older audiences who grew up with his magic and with younger fans who know his music and the influence he had on the '60s country/rock scene.

McGuinn auditioned for the Broadway cast of "Pump Boys And Dinettes," and says he would have liked to do the show; however, the revue closed its New York run before he joined. (His part would have been Jim, the character now being played in the road company by singer Jonathan Edwards.)

Despite well-intentioned offers to reunite the Byrds, McGuinn says he isn't interested in trying to recreate what already was. Instead, he says, he would like an opportunity to show what he is—and does—musically now.

Can 100 of Nashville's music industry keep a secret? You wouldn't think so. In fact, Frances Preston probably didn't think so, either, when she decided to surprise Jo Walker-Meador last Monday with a luncheon commemorating her 25th anniversary with the Country Music Assn. But the BMI vice president got her own surprise, because from the look on Walker-Meador's face when she dashed into BMI's Music Row offices and was suddenly confronted with a huge gathering of her friends for the occasion, it was clear that the CMA executive director knew nothing in advance!

It was a beautiful affair. BMI was decorated in glittering Christmas trimmings, and the luncheon was elegantly catered. Walker-Meador (who joined CMA almost at its inception and shares its silver anniversary this year) was toasted by congratulatory speeches and telegrams. Even Irving Waugh was lured to the podium for a few well-chosen words; and of course, Minnie Pearl stole the show with her delightful sense of humor. But the crowning touch was a proclamation from Mayor Richard Fulton, who designated Dec. 12 as "Jo Walker-Meador Day" in Nashville.

Del Shannon is another "blast from the past" who was in Nashville recording recently. Shannon was a teen star in the '60s who kept the charts busy with hits like "Run-away," "Keep Searchin'," "Little Town Flirt" and "Handy Man." Shannon has come full circle musically, in fact. In the midst of his pop success, the singer shocked a number of people by issuing "Del Shannon Sings Hank Williams," a tribute to the country legend. Although Shannon got good reviews for his 1981 "Drop Down & Get Me" album, produced by rocker Tom Petty, his interest in country hasn't faded.

He came into Nashville quietly to try some demos at Combine's dubiously-named Rat Hole Studios with local group John Scott Sherrill & the Wolves In Cheap Clothing. (Sherrill's songwriting credits include "Wild And Blue" for John Anderson.) The sessions apparently came off spectacularly, and Shannon will be returning to Nashville for more shortly. He admits he's interested in recording for a label here: "I tried to 'go Nashville' back in 1973. Then I decided seriously to move into country five years ago, but Tom Petty talked me into doing a rock record again." This time around, it seems, Shannon may 'go Nashville' all the way.

Kelly Foxtan came up with an interesting way to promote herself and her Compleat Records single, and at the same time warm up the U.S. Marine encampment in Beirut. Actually, it isn't a new idea: it was used successfully during World War II by Betty Grable. Foxtan had herself photographed in a fetching salute (and a minimum of wardrobe) with an M-14 propped against her bare leg. Then she personally autographed 3,000 copies of the black and white photo with "Keep up the good work; I love you for it! Kelly Foxtan," and mailed them to our troops in Beirut. Could this signify the return of the pin-up queen? Is Kelly Foxtan about to become country music's first military pin-up?

tegrated software program, custom designed for each client firm, range between $2,000 and $5,000 depending on the complexity and applications. One client is Dick James Music, which handles all its U.S. licensing, accounting, royalty statements and collections from Nashville.

Spectrum Logic is making its debut into music-designed software programming. The company deals in both hardware and software; the full software system is 24 megabyte multi-user (hard disk) that is compatible with CPM hardware. Prices for the publishing software program (which does foreign conversions, commissions, licensing and royalty distribution) is around $8,500 for the package.

The MPAS software music program developed by I've Got The Music's Muscle Shoals team was originally intended as an in-house-only catalog package. It was conceived after the firm was approached for possible acquisition by the Welk Music Group and questions were asked about the catalog for which no answers were readily available. The MPAS software, according to Kevin Lamb, is compatible with Radio Shack hardware and priced at $4,995.

U.K. Cable Franchises Awarded

By NICK ROBERTSHAW

LONDON — The British government has at last awarded 11 franchises, one fewer than expected, for this country's first multi-channel cable operations, subject to further study by the Home Office. Among the 26 companies and consortia whose applications were rejected are major operators of existing cable projects, including Visionhire and Rediffusion.

Thorn EMI's Radio Rentals is involved in three successful groupings: Coventry Cable, Swindon Cable Services and Ulster Cablevision. But significant U.K. record company participation in this first round of franchise allocations is confined to Merseyside Cablevision, in which Virgin has a substantial stake.

In the Cable & Broadcasting Bill, published Dec. 1, the government provides for a Cable Author, which, according to Home Secretary Leon Brittan, will "exercise a light touch once licenses have been granted but have real teeth to prevent undesirable material appearing on cable." third quarter was bad for singles, though they are still a valuable revenue source." Sales of LPs were up from 10.9 million units to 11.2 million (up 3%), and value up 7% at $39.37 million, compared with the same three months of 1982, taking the exchange rate for the pound sterling as $1.45. Total sales value was up by over 10% and is heading for a year-end figure in the region of $420.5 million.

For the April-September period, in the singles sector, the 1982 figure was 36.5 million units delivered to the trade, compared with 33 million for 1983 (down 9.6%). The monetary value was $41.47 million last year, compared to $42.34 million this year (up 2.1%).

Advertising here must not exceed broadcast television levels, but the Authority is left with discretion to regulate the role of advertising sponsorship in program output. No specific quota restricting imports of foreign programming will be imposed at the outset, a decision which has dismayed local producers and those who fear a flood of "low-grade" American material.

With cable's viability still very much in question in the U.K. (a recent Consumers' Assn. survey suggested that only 15% of viewers would pay for cable channels), choice of programming will be a crucial ele-

More LaserVision Vidisk Titles

TOKYO—Pioneer now has 649 LaserVision videodisk titles on the Japanese market, 538 for in-home use and 111 for "karaoke" sibs. Taking the 660 LaserVision 540-odd titles marketed through Europe, the worldwide title total for the format is million units for April-September this year, up 1.4% on the 21.4 million of the same period last year, and a monetary value of $76.41 million against 1982's tally for the same period of $72.79 million (up 5%). Cassette figures for 1983 are 15.3 million units (monetary value $48.72 million) against 12.6 million units (money value $38.86 million) last year, up 21.4% and 25.4% respectively.

Combined LP/cassette sales for April-September this year totalled 37 million units, up 12.1% on the 34 million of last year. The monetary value of the combined formats was $125.13 million, compared to the 1982 bottom line of $111.65 million.

Total value of all trade deliveries for the half-year was up 9.4% to a total of $167.47 million ment. The government has said cable should be entertainment-led, and feature film channels are seen as perhaps the only surefire winner, though even here home video will provide stiff competition.

Music is also seen as a key area, and three potential suppliers are now in the field: Thorn EMI's Music Box, the Virgin-backed Cable Music and Tony Hemmings' MusicVision.

Recent news stories reported the amalgamation of the last two to form a new company, The Music Channel. But Hemmings says the negotiations were conducted without his knowledge by backer Yorkshire TV.

Motoharu Perada, Pioneer promotions chief here, says the company's LaserVision production capacity is now around 400,000 units a month. The five million unit production mark was passed at the end of September. Roughly 40% of the titles available in Japan are movies.

Perada says that with sales of both hardware and software running at a very high level here, Pioneer aims to increase its overall LaserVision business in the fiscal year ending September, 1984, by 270% to around $230 million from the $85.5 million registered in the year to September, 1983.

And while Pioneer is increasing its production of LaserVision players to 20,000 units a month (Billboard, Nov. 12), it is moving up its date for increasing production to a monthly 30,000 units from next November to March at the earliest, May at the latest. This, says Terada, is because a massive backlog of hardware orders has built up, especially for the new semi-conductor laser-equipped LD-7000 player, a front-loader priced at roughly $850, introduced on the market here in mid-November.

Beatles Meet With Ono; Apple Dissolution Near?

LONDON—Three years after the shooting death of John Lennon, the three surviving Beatles have met here with his widow, Yoko Ono, for talks believed to be aimed at the final dissolution of the group's company, Apple.

After an eight-hour meeting at London's Dorchester Hotel, all four left without revealing the precise substance of their discussions. Ringo Starr, present with his wife, actress Barbara Bach, said only: "I was just having dinner and a chat with a few note the combined PolyGram/WEA chunk of 33.6% of singles and 30.3% of albums.

The 1982 trend toward more domestic product in the sales chart was reversed this year. German music's share of the singles slipped from a massive 48% to 27.7%. Among albums, the domestic slice narrowed from 37.5% to 24.6%.

For new talent, it was harder than ever to get released by a major German label during the past 12 months. The number of albums issued by the 11 major record distributors plummeted by 36% compared with the 1982 tally, with 15% fewer singles reaching the marketplace. Ariola and

And Yoko Ono, accompanied by Lennon's eight-year-old son Sean, said: "I have decided I don't need all my possessions and I'm giving much of them away. Four of my houses will be sold and the proceeds will benefit various children's charities worldwide."

No one here seems to know the precise scale of the assets held by Apple, managed by Neil Aspinall, which has continued to harvest royalties since the Beatles split 13 years ago. But some observers say they could Teldec slashed their LP schedules roughly in half, and Metronome, WEA, Bellaphon and Phonogram cut theirs by a third or more.

The sensational performance of CBS Songs highlighted the Musikmarkt breakdown of singles publishers. April Music, the major's publishing arm, bolstered by UA/Phoenix and an especially good year for Virgin Music, upped its share from 10% to over 16%. Gerig, strong in domestic copyrights, slipped from first place to fifth, behind Melodie der Welt, Intersong and Warner Bros., all of which had virtually identical 7% shares. Significant improvement was noted for Global Music and Peer.

amount to more than $1 billion, so that negotiations to divide them up may well be protracted, even bitter.

All four principals are themselves multimillionaires. Ono's estimated $150,000 a week earnings from Lennon's royalties will be further swelled next year by the posthumous release of his final album, "Milk And Honey." Paul McCartney earns up to $45 million a year, according to financial experts here.

It would seem that Ringo Starr and George Harrison, comparative paupers, get by on incomes of up to $50,000 a week each. Neither has been able to match McCartney's remarkably consistent solo success. Starr is reportedly unable to find a deal for his newest LP, "Old Waves," and Harrison's 1982 release "Gone Troppo" did not sell well.

The Lennon product that PolyGram is releasing worldwide in January will certainly fare better. In addition to LP, cassette and Compact Disc versions of "Milk And Honey," featuring six tracks by Lennon and six by Ono, the company is also marketing a 42-minute conversational album, "Heartplay, Unfinished Dialog," edited from one of the last interviews given by the couple. Both releases will receive heavy promotional support, says Guenther Hensler, PolyGram president and chief executive.

IDOL PASTIMES—While in Toronto, Chrysalis recording artist Billy Idol spent some time at A&A's Younge Street scribbling on women's pants. Later that day Idol was presented with gold and platinum records for Canadian sales of, respectively, his first album, "Billy Idol," and his latest album, "Rebel Yell."

Government Proposes New Arts Legislation

By KIRK LaPOINTE

OTTAWA—The federal government has outlined its program for legislation affecting the arts, including amendments to the outdated Copyright Act. But initial reaction has been skeptical among arts groups who suspect little will be done of any significance.

In its throne speech Dec. 7, the Liberal government opened a new session of Parliament with promises for more incentives for the recording and film industries, plus some amendments to the 1924 act. However, political observers here expect any such legislation to be given low priority and doubt many programs will be implemented before a federal election is expected to be called by the summer.

Governor General Edward Schreyer, in presenting the speech in the House Of Commons, made no specific mention of a new copyright act. It is expected that regulations under the existing act will merely be tightened or revised. But even those amendments are expected to meet strong political opposition among Conservative MPs, thus making them difficult to pass before the election.

Communications Minister Francis Fox is expected to present the new policies for private production of films and recordings early next year. After that, legislation will be presented or incentives will be implemented. The throne speech also mentioned introduction of a broadcasting bill stemming from recent policy announcements in that field.

The Copyright Act has come under fire from the film and recording industries because of antiquated provisions that fail to dissuade illegal duplication of recorded material. The maximum fine is only $200 for any such offense, making Canada an international haven for copyright infringement.

'Synchronicity' Sets A&M Sales Mark

TORONTO—"Synchronicity" by The Police has become the fastest selling album in the history of A&M Records of Canada. It's moved past the 725,000 mark in Canadian sales and is threatening Michael Jackson's "Thriller" as the next likely diamond-selling disk.

Momentum for the band is likely to continue strong through the end of the year and into January, following the national pay-tv showing on New Year's Eve of the group's concert last August at the 500-seat Le Spectrum.

Company figures show that the album's first single, "Every Breath You Take," has moved well past the 150,000 mark and the second single,

"King Of Pain," has registered gold-plus sales of more than 50,000. Overall Canadian sales account for nearly 7% of world sales, triple the usual proportion.

"We have always had two steps on every other country," says A&M senior vice president Joe Summers. "There was a time and a place for the group's music very early on."

The group in recent years has consistently used Le Studio near Morin Heights, Quebec, to record at least part of its album. "And they have always been willing to meet people and work hard whenever they're here," Summers adds.

BOND REQUIREMENT LISTED

Acts Get Customs Break

OTTAWA—Following intense pressure by such managers as Loverboy and Bryan Adams' Bruce Allen, the federal Communications Dept. has helped secure a break for major domestic touring acts with customs and excise officials in the Revenue Department. Under the ruling, Canadian bands no longer have to post bonds on U.S. stage and other equipment every time they leave Canada and re-enter.

The Communications Dept.'s arts and culture branch interceded in the dispute, which Canadian artists argued worked to their great disadvantage. The bond was somehow seen by federal officials as a tradeoff when Canadian groups did not use Canadian equipment. But the level of sophistication in stage shows during recent years has increasingly sent Canadian acts south of the border to equip for major tours. Corporate tie-ins have also precipitated links to U.S. equipment suppliers.

'Sound Of Christmas' From CBS Austria

VIENNA—CBS Austria has released an album, "The Sound Of Christmas," featuring leading opera singers, including Luciano Pavarotti, Peter Hofmann, Placido Domingo and Jose Carreras, all singing popular German and American carols.

The music is also the backbone of a one-hour English-language television show produced in Austrian, set for showing here on Christmas. The program will also be seen in 11 foreign territories, including Japan, Italy and West Germany, and the U.S., where it is slated for Christmas tv in 1984.

MICKEY GILLEY—You've Really Got A Hold On Me (2:59); producer: Jim Ed Norman; writer: W.S. Robinson; publisher: Jobete, BMI; Epic 34-04269. Gilley continues his winning use of covers on this old Miracles hit; his smooth, sincere vocals outshine the minimal instrumentation.

PICKS—new releases with the greatest chart potential in the corresponding format. RECOMMENDED—records with potential for significant chart action in the corresponding format. ALSO RECEIVED—other records with potential for chart entry in the corresponding format, and other new releases. Records equally appropriate for more than one format are given the higher review. Pop (Hot 100) is listed first, as that chart surveys the broadest audience. Adult Contemporary and Dance/Disco are last, as those charts measure airplay only. NEW & NOTEWORTHY—highlights new and developing acts worthy of attention. All singles commercially available in the U.S. are eligible for review. Reviews are coordinated by Nancy Erlich at Billboard, 1515 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10036 (telephone: 212-764-7311). EARL THOMAS CONLEY—Don't Make It Easy For Me (3:32); producers: Nelson Larkin, Earl Thomas Conley; writers: Earl Thomas Conley, Randy Scruggs; publishers: Blue Moon/April, ASCAP/Full Arm; BMI; RCA PB-13702. Lyrics take a backseat here to the insistent, strident tempo and wailing instrumentals; Thomas' weary, wounded voice rises intermittently above the production.

OSMOND BROTHERS—Where Does An Angel Go When She Cries (2:45); producer: Jim Ed Norman; writers: Tommy Rocco, Kerry Chater; publishers: Biba, ASCAP/Vogue, BMI; Warner/Curb 7-29387. The Osmonds turn in a slow, soulful rendering of this story of opportunity lost. STEVE EARLE—Squeeze Me In (2:35); producers: Roy Dea, Pat Carter; writer: S. Earle; publisher: High Chaparral, ASCAP; Epic 34-04307. One of Nashville's newest and brightest artists, Earle's got a clean, crisp sound on this uptempo winner.

CHANTILLY—Baby's Walkin' (2:26); producers: Larry Morton, Dennis Morgan; writers: Kye Fleming, Dennis Morgan, Charles Quillen; publishers: Tom Collins, BMI/Collins Court, ASCAP; F&L 534. Light-hearted and energetic effort by this all-girl country group. Contact: (615) 329-2278.

IAN TYSON—Alberta's Child (3:45); producer: Ian Tyson; writer: Ian Tyson; publisher: Morning Music, ASCAP; Columbia 38-04234. Tyson contrasts Northern cowboys with their Southern counterparts in this mandolin-tinged ode.

STEPHANIE WINSLOW—Dancin' With The Devil (2:34); producer: Ray Ruff; writer: Stephanie Winslow; publisher: Checkmate, BMI; MCA/Curb MCA-52327. Winslow lectures on the dangers of flirtation to an uptempo beat.

ROBIN LEE—Angel In Your Arms (3:04); producer: Johnny Morris; writers: C. Ivey, T. Woodruff, T. Brasfield; publishers: Song Tailors, BMI/I've Got The Music, ASCAP; Evergreen 1016. Smooth and silky vocal by this talented female on a remake of Hot's pop hit from 1977. Contact: (615) 327-3213.

Disco Dance picks

LAI D BACK—White Horse (5:50); producers: Laid Back, The Seven Dwarfs; writers: Tim Stahl, John Guldberg; publisher: Sina A; Sire 0-20178 (12-inch single).

Stark, forbidding technodance caveat; actually the B-side of the pop-oriented "Sunshine Reggae," it debuts on the Dance chart at 50 this week.

EBONY—We All Need Love (6:40); producer: Dominic Troiano; writer: D. Troiano; publisher: Zingaro, BMI; Quality QUS 048 (12-inch single). Strong r&b styling from singer Wayne St. John adds passion to this remake of the Dominic Troiano disco tune.

KRAFTWERK—Tour De France (6:45); producer: Kraftwerk; writers: Hutter, Schneider, Bartos, Schmitt; publisher: No Hassle, ASCAP; Warner Bros. 0-20146 (12-inch single). Domestic release of an eerie electronic production that's been getting club play for months as an import.

NINA HAGEN—New York New York (5:06); producers: Giorgio Moroder, Keith Forsey; writers: N. Hagen, S. Schiff, K. Rucker; publishers: Spacealien/QXBL VI, ASCAP/Property Situation, BMI; Columbia 44-04265 (12-inch single). Extremely zany dance tour through some of New York's night life, provided by one of Germany's most flamboyant and least definable artists; producers Moroder and Forsey keep it nearly under control.

ROCKERS REVENGE featuring DONNIE CALVIN—There Goes My Heart (7:57); producers: Donnie "Rockers" Calvin, Dwight "Revenge" Hawkes; writers: Dwight Hawkes, Donnie Calvin, Fred Zarr; publishers: Motor-mouth/Z Man, ASCAP; Streetwise SWRL 2218 (12-inch single). Fierce electric rhythms and fiery vocals show a new side of a group whose earlier hits leaned more toward reggae.

PUPPETS—The Way Of Life (5:52); producers: Richie Herby, RPI; writers: Shaun Brighton, John Cannon; publishers: RPI/Brighton, ASCAP; Quality QUS 055 (12-inch single). An excellent representation of the British techno-dance idiom, though the band actually comes from New York.

PUMPKIN—King Of The Beat (6:10); producer: Pumpkin; writer: E. Bedward; publisher: Protoons, ASCAP; Profile PRO-7038 (12-inch single). Spare electronic scratch-dub; almost no vocals, but lots of momentum.

JANET DAILEY AND SENSES—If You Can Count (7:56); producer: Roland O'Garrow; writers: M. Serpan, C. Gravel, D. Gopin, D. Robinson; publishers: Sugar Biscuit/Jungle Jam, ASCAP; West End WES-22166 (12-inch single). Pleasing, tongue-in-cheek teen pop.

RHYTHM MAKERS LTD.—Party Rap (5:25); producer: Jimmy Dockett; writer: Rhythm Makers Ltd.; publisher: Botanical, BMI/Makers of Sound, ASCAP; StarVision International SVI 1109 (12-inch single). Percussive approach to rap makes voices into a rhythm section. Label based in New York.

- RANDY FREDRIX—The Hunter (3:38); producer: Randy Fredrix; writer: R. Fredrix; publisher: Lucky Three/Manx, BMI; Salsoul SG 413 (12-inch version of previously-released 7-inch).

New & Noteworthy

CELESTIUM—Sanctuary (3:32); producer: Gary Usher; writers: G. Usher, T. Kelly; publishers: Fire Mist, BMI/Denise Barry, ASCAP; Epic 34-04303. Delicate electronic filigree, hauntingly presented by producer Gary Usher.

ONGO BOINGO—Wake Up (It's 1984) (3:00); producer: Robert Margouloff; writer: Danny Elfman; publisher: Little Maestro, BMI; A&M AM-2610. Jerky rhythms, quirky lyrics, and a timely tone of paranoia could bring this offbeat West Coast group to the dancing masses.

IRS Launches Big Push For English Beat Catalog

LOS ANGELES—IRS Records is launching an extensive marketing, merchandising and advertising push for its newly acquired catalog of early albums by the English Beat, signed to Sire Records prior to their first IRS release last year.

Making the push somewhat of a departure from usual label campaigns is both the multiple release format and the band's existing sales base. Although the group's best-seller to date, its IRS debut, reportedly sold just in excess of 250,000 units, IRS plans simultaneous reissues for both of the group's prior Sire albums, in tandem with a new IRS anthology, "What Is Beat?"

Label is offering a 5% discount and 30 days' additional dating on orders for all three, with other program tools including a promotional 12-inch single on two of the anthology tracks, "Best Friend" and "Too Nice To Talk To," video clips on those two selections, posters, album flats and both national and regional print ads.

notes that IRS was able to pick up the Beat's first two albums, "I Just Can't Stop It" and "Wha'ppen," when Sire apparently failed to pick up its options on them, licensed originally from Arista in the U.K. IRS then negotiated with the band for the titles, along with unreleased material used in the anthology.

Bolan claims the band's catalog profile has been strong throughout, and adds that she "spent part of the summer researching WEA and selected wholesalers to see what had happened with" the earlier albums' sales patterns. Release was then timed to allow a "drying out" of stock in the marketplace, estimated by Bolan as representing a six- to eight-week gap in availability for the titles.

Another twist in the Nov. 15 release will be the use of special ad mats, supplied to one-stops for inclusion in their own mailers to accounts and expected to "blitz" the small stores serviced through those firms during the same two-week period, Nov. 14-28.

Black

GEORGE CLINTON—You Shouldn't Nuf Bit Fish, Capitol ST-12308. Producers: George Clinton, Junie Morrison, Gary Shider. Parliament and Funkadelic may be out of action, but their creative chief keeps the funk faith on this sequel to "Computer Games," last year's successful solo bid. While there's no grand concept (as in Parliament days), tracks like "Nubian Nut," "Quickie" and the title song carry Clinton's askew humor and taut sense of funk dynamics.

P-FUNK ALL STARS—Urban Dancefloor Guerillas, CBS Associated/Uncle Jam RFZ 39168. Producers: Various. This virtual alumni meeting for George Clinton's past band members (see above) may suggest the Funkadelic to Clinton's solo approximation of Parliament, but these performances are stylistically interchangeable with that work. As a result, simultaneous release (which worked with the two former Clinton bands) may backfire here.

Gospel

DeGARMO & KEY—Mission Of Mercy, Power PWR01071. Producers: Ed DeGarmo, Dana Key. This is a high-powered album from the premier rock duo of Christian music, with the music leaning toward the hard stuff and the lyrics that are no-punches-pulled Christianity.

VARIOUS ARTISTS—Gospel, Savoy SL 14753. Producers: Miles Goodman, Joel W. Moss. This collection of songs by such artists as the Clark Sisters, the Hawkins Family and James Cleveland serves as the soundtrack for the movie as well as a hot disk in its own right.

THE O'NEAL TWINS—Don't Give Up, Savoy SL 14727. Producer: Milton Biggum. Recorded live with the North Jersey Community Choir, this album captures the duo's vibrancy and excitement.

EVIE—Hymns, Word 7-01-891910-X. Producer: Pelle Karlsson. This collection of such standards as "The Old Rugged Cross," "How Great Thou Art" and "In The Garden" addresses the market's penchant for contemporary artists doing old reliables.

SPOTLIGHT—Predicted to hit top 10 on Billboard's Top LPs & Tape chart or to earn platinum certification. POP/BLACK/COUNTRY/JAZZ-FUSION/GOSPEL/JAZZ CLASSICAL—Picks in these respective categories predicted to hit the top half of the chart in the format listed. RECOMMENDED—Other releases predicted to chart in the respective format; also, other albums of superior quality. All albums commercially available in the U.S. are eligible for review. Reviews are coordinated by Sam Sutherland at Billboard, 9107 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90210 (telephone: 213-273-7040) and Roman Kozak at Billboard, 1515 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10036 (telephone: 212-764-7346). pop

CHAMELEON, Balance, Platinum Records 310011X, Producer: Yanni. (EP) Chameleon adds a distinct new wave edge to their "Midwest suburban rock" on six tunes sporting some pleasing Steve Nieve-ish keyboards. Contact: P.O. Box 8784, Minneapolis, Minn. 55408.

KRANK, Extended Play, EP Ruff Productions 308082B, Producer: Ruffin Waller. The four pulsating arrangements here weld funk, rock and jazz into innovative and complex structures. R&B vocals from four of the 7-piece Virginia band are the icing on the cake. Contact P.O. Box 24371, Richmond, VA. 23224.

NORMAN ALLAN—Critical Seconds, World Records WRS-1001. No producer listed. Clever, hard-edged power pop from lively Santa Barbara quartet; more energy than originality. Contact: P.O. Box 864, Claremont, Calif. 91711.

BUTTHOLE SURFERS, Alternative Tentacles, VIRUS 32 (Subterranean). Producer: None listed. (EP). Bad taste music and humor from Texas. "The Shah Lies In Lee Harvey Oswald's Grave" is one of the better tunes.

VANDENBERG—Heading For A Storm, Atco 90121. Producers: Stuart Epps, Adrian Vandenberg. The hard-rocking Dutch quartet makes its second label outing a feverish guitar-dominated set recalling stateside peers.

THE LONG RYDERS—10-5-60, PVC 5906 (Jem). Producers: Earle Mankey, The Long Ryders (EP). Five-song debut for West Coast quartet with strong roots in '60s folk-rock and psychedelia. Smartly executed.

NINA HAGEN—Fearless, Columbia BFC 39214. Producer: Giorgio Moroder, Keith Forsley. Producer Moroder makes this album a bit more pop oriented and accessible, but there are some natural forces that just cannot be tamed.

THE ACCELERATORS—Leave My Heart, Dolphin Records DLP 1006. Producer: Don Dixon. Four-man Carolina group have their hearts and chops in rockabilly and rock 'n' roll. Contact: P.O. Box 8744, Durham, N.C. 27707.

country

KAREN TAYLOR-GOOD—Karen, Mesa Mill. Producer: Taylor Sparks. An endearing combination of sensitive vocals and wide-ranging lyrics.

RONALD SHANNON JACKSON & THE DECODING SOCIETY—Barbeque Dog, Antilles AN 1015 (Island). Producers: David Breskin, Ronald Shannon Jackson. Sizzling avant-funk by one of the few truly fresh fusion ensembles; powerful drumming by Jackson.

CHARLES McPHERSON SEXTET—The Prophet, Discovery DS882. Producer: Albert L. Marx. "Prelude To A Kiss" and "Dearly Beloved" spark this seven-track recital by the San Diego saxophonist. Mike Wofford's piano lends a major assist.

PRESERVATION HALL JAZZ BAND—When The Saints Go Marching In, CBS FM-38650. Producer: Allen Jaffe. Traditional New Orleans jazz at its most authentic; no surprises but many delights.

BELSON, DUVIVIER, PARRISH, SCOTT—Loose Walk, Chonto Lope-1. Producer: Joe Chonto. Unknown alto saxophonist (Jack Scott) and pianist (Warren Parrish) join well-known bassist (George Duvivier) and drummer (Louis Bellson) for pleasant if undistinguished versions of six jazz standards. Contact: (319) 323-8397.

BILL MAYS QUINTET—Tha's Delights, Trend TR532. Producer: Mays. Two of the six tracks are evergreens, the others are Mays compositions. Shelly Manne is the drummer. The leader's piano is deservedly featured. He moved from L.A. to New York this month, permanently.

NICK BRIGNOLA QUARTET—Signals, Discovery DS893. Producer: Brignola. Bill Dobbins, John Lockwood and David Calarco accompany the leader's big baritone sax on eight titles, only one ("Tadd's Delight") a standard. Tasty jazz.

DUKE ELLINGTON'S ORCHESTRA—All Star Road Band, Doctor Jazz W2X39137. Producer: Bob Thiele. Fifteen cuts by Duke's superb 1957 outfit, taped live at Carrolltown, Pa. Essential, foolproof, delightful Ellington.

classical

CHOPIN: PIANO CONCERTO NO. 2; KRAKOWIAK—Bella Davidovich, London Symp., Marriner, Philips 6514 259. An artist whose relaxed style and poetic gifts tend to mask an abundant technique. A profoundly satisfying album that adds measurably to Miss Davidovich's stature.

THE VIRTUOSO VIOLIN—Elmar Oliveira, Vox Cum Laude D-VCL 9057. Superior violin playing with a tonal lustre rarely matched in an attractive program of mostly familiar short pieces by Brahms, Debussy, Ravel, Sarasate, etc.

HANDEL'S TOP TUNES, VOL. 1—Philharmonia Virtuosi of New York, CBS RM 38910. An even dozen tunes taken from the Baroque master's operas and oratorios, in light transcription, with vocal parts assigned to solo winds or strings. Well-recorded but played without regard to period authenticity.

BOLCOM: SECOND SONATA; DUO FANTASY; GRACEFUL GHOST—Sergiu Luca, William Bolcom, Nonesuch 79508. A protagonist of turn-of-the-century Americana, Bolcom's works combine elements of jazz, rag and more condite material in enjoyable mixture.

SERENATA: MUSIC OF THE GRAND SALON—I Salonisti, Pro Arte PAD 133. Nostalgic recall of a period when small ensembles played lighter classics (and heavier pops) in hotel lobbies and plush eateries. Expertly performed pieces by Enesco, Debussy, Godard, et al.

gospel

CANDI STATON—Make Me An Instrument, Beracah BRI-1001. Produced by John Sussewell, Candi Staton. Another soul singer goes gospel, with feeling and conviction. Contact: P.O. Box 66543, Birmingham, Ala. 35210.

TAMI GUNDEN—Celebration, Light LS 5830. Producer: Joe Huffman. A nice pop sound from the former Tami Chere that should appeal to a broad cross section of buyers.

1984 To Be Welcomed By Satellite Event

By LAURA FOTI

NEW YORK—George Orwell's "1984" portrayed television as Big Brother, a sinister force observing a hapless populus. But at the dawn of that fateful year, the media are instead used in increasingly creative ways, to open doors and improve communications.

The dichotomy between what is and what might have been will be dramatically emphasized during "Good Morning, Mr. Orwell," a live satellite event joining New York and Paris in an interactive artistic endeavor by more than 20 musicians, writers and other "new age" artists. The event, which was conceived and is being executed by video artist Nam June Paik, will be seen live in the U.S. on PBS Sunday, Jan. 1 beginning at noon EST.

Musical artists participating in the event include Laurie Anderson, Peter Gabriel, The Thompson Twins, John Cage, Sapho and an 80-member French group called urban Sax.

"George Orwell was the first media prophet," says Nam June Paik. "But he emphasized only the negative parts of the media, and we wanted to give a more balanced view to show that tv can be fun. It can contribute to an understanding between people.

"Orwell said television will be used by dictators, and that's been proved true. We've also seen more and more Hollywood-type programming, neglecting important social issues. But cultural and ethnic differences can also be the focus of programming," Paik adds.

Two "dream" events Paik would like to organize would be a show from Easter Island and a five-city interactive satellite event that would, in effect, be a "worldwide disco," he says.

Among the scheduled segments in "Good Morning, Mr. Orwell" are Laurie Anderson and Peter Gabriel singing "This Is The Picture," which they composed and recorded especially for the broadcast; choreographer/dancer Merce Cunningham and composer/performer John Cage performing live to video images being transmitted from Paris; a performance of Paik's "TV Cello" by Charlotte Moorman; and the world tv premiere of "Act III," a video work by Dean Winkler and John Sanborn with music by Philip Glass.

Appearing from the Centre Georges Pompidou in Paris will be Joseph Beuys performing on piano in the midst of Calder sculptures and 2,000 spectators and a piece by performance artist Ben Vauthier. Salvador Dali is one of three participants being presented on videotape from Germany.

Proceeds from a limited-edition silkscreened print by Paik, Cage, Cunningham and Allen Ginsberg paid half of all expenses generated by the event. Additional funding came from grants, and Bright Star Communications donated satellite time. Artists participating in "Good Morning, Mr. Orwell" receive AFTRA minimum.

Director of the program is Emile Ardolino. Executive producer is Carol Brandenburg, who is also co-director of WNET New York's Television Laboratory. Producer is Sam Paul, associate producer Vicki Lynn.

Grove School Adds Engineering Major

LOS ANGELES—A recording engineer major has been added to the Dick Grove School of Music in Studio City as part of its General Musician's program. Beginning in January, the six-month course is an accelerated "hands-on" study aided by a newly built studio.

The major consists of 14 courses, encompassing acoustics and music physics, studio maintenance, mastering techniques, video workshops and studio management.

Scholarships are available for the major, and financial aid is available to all full-time students. The school is located at 12754 Ventura Blvd., Studio City, Calif. 91604: (213) 985-0905.

For The Record

The contact telephone number for Backburner Records was incorrectly listed in the Fat Shadows LP review in the Nov. 5 Billboard. The correct number is (613) 744-1040.

HIGH ADVENTURE—Lani Hall chats with Sean Connery during the European premiere of "Never Say Never Again" in Monte Carlo. The party was hosted by Prince Rainer, and Hall was able to stop over on her way from Spain, where she recently completed her forthcoming A&M album, "Collected," with her husband Herb Alpert.

PolyGram Maps CD Campaign

ing the laser-read disks early this year.

Final touches are being put on a "CD Expo" here in connection with Sam Goody, says John Harper, PolyGram Classics marketing executive. Slated to run most of January, it will share with Technics a full window fronting Sixth Avenue in Goody's flagship Rockefeller Center store. The hardware firm will also display and demonstrate three of its CD player models in a "CD environment" created in the store's basement classical department.

Spots on local classical station WNCN and AC station WYNY will call attention to the "expo" and seek to draw consumers to the store to witness a demonstration. Harper views the broadcast phase of the company's campaigns as essential to sharpen consumer interest in the new technology.

In still another promotion, PolyGram is joining with Sony in four major markets in a drive that will involve broadcast of a half-hour radio show featuring an interview by Harper of Luciano Pavarotti on the tenor's experiences and attitude toward CD. Spots in advance of the show will identify local retailers where CD demonstrations will be held and where door prizes of CD players and disks will be given away.

The joint promotion with Sony will be held in February, says Harper. Brought into the campaign in the various markets are radio stations KFAC Los Angeles, KKHI San Francisco, WFMT Chicago and WQXR New York.

Problems With Adam Computer System

 ers are erasing digital data packs by either placing them on a turned-on television set or leaving them in the disk drive while turning the machine on and off.

The spokeswoman admits that Coleco is partly to blame. The firm "had not properly warned consumers about the negative effects of the magnetic fields emulating from tvs as well as the significance of removing data packs from disk drives," she laments.

Ironically, the Adam computer system, introduced in June, was slated to be an easy-to-use, user-friendly product. The company touted Adam as a fast entry into the world of computing. A June press release said the system would "change forever the relationship that currently exists between humans and computers."

Upon the system's introduction, the company's stock surged, and by the end of the summer, Coleco boasted of pre-orders for the computer at nearing half million. By September, 30 days after the machine was scheduled to ship, Coleco was plagued with production problems and hampered by the FCC, which would not approve the machine because Coleco had not sent it a complete system. Sixty days after the original shipping date, Coleco received approval and commenced distribution.

Currently, the spokeswoman estimates, some 125,000 systems have reached retailers. Another 75,000 will be shipped by year's end, the company hopes. The Adam, which sells for about $600, is still considered the lowest priced computer system on the market.

COMMENTARY

MTV is an assist toward diversity. But for how long will its format be that diverse? MTV is still losing money. It lacks sufficient advertisers. NBC, Turner Broadcasting, "Night Flight" and others are entering the music-television scene and seeking the same advertisers.

Record companies may choose or be forced to charge for video clips now supplied free. This may cause MTV-type outlets to equate cost and audience and eventually restrict formats as in radio.

Ozzy Osbourne, Loverboy, Joan Jett, Soft Cell, Human League and the Go-Go's, among others, would not have a place in the American marketplace if the decision had been totally in the hands of corporate a&r departments. Producers, managers and the acts themselves had to establish their own uniqueness with the audience.

There is a vast and growing unsatisfied demand awaiting new music. Oligopoly is a fact and a need. Even greater is the need for oligopoly to know itself. It must learn that by its very nature it limits diversity and enforces sameness. The outside creator must also have an awareness of this oligopolistic flaw and aggressively exploit that knowledge to the mutual benefit of the oligopoly, the outside creator, and the unsatisfied record buyer.

courages sameness. For growth and profitability, it must structure itself to invite in the outside creator.

Polaroid Readies Entry Into U.S. Videocassette

NEW YORK—Polaroid Corp. will begin marketing blank videocassettes in the U.S. next year, following introduction in selected overseas markets earlier this fall. The Cambridge, Mass.-based company is reportedly also entering the floppy disk market.

Polaroid Supercolor videocassettes will be available in VHS and Beta formats in several lengths and quality grades. Pricing will be "competitive," according to the company. The official introduction of the products will take place next month at the Consumer Electronics Show in Las Vegas.

INDIE STORES TARGETED

Jem To Handle Sony Videos

By ROMAN KOZAK

NEW YORK—Jem Records, the independent nationwide record distributor and importer, is getting into video and is now taking orders for Sony video singles and albums.

"Until now we have stayed out of video because we did not feel that it was part of the music business," says Marty Scott, president of Jem. "We felt it was a different market. But the Sony 45s and LPs are as much a part of the record and tape business as are picture disks or Compact Discs. We just consider them another configuration. They are still tape wrapped in plastic, and they are music."

Scott says Jem is initially handling the 20 or so titles in the Sony music video catalog, as well as 10 more titles that Sony will release in January. He says he is focusing on independent record stores that may have been reluctant to get involved with video.

"Music video has failed because it was sold as video, and concerts were sold as movies. But they are not the same. You find yourself missing the sound and sweat and smoke. And you don't go to a Video Shack store to see what's the latest from Rick Derringer. What you find there are '48 Hours' and Jane Fonda exercise tapes. It's more of a rental business," says Scott.

"But a music video is more like an LP," he continues. "It's another artifact of an artist's career. And at about $15 it's fairly inexpensive. People are already paying $8 or $9 for an album, or $8 for a T-shirt, or $4 for a concert program."

"And the sound quality, especially on the Beta format, is better than records. So you should be able to buy them in a record store."

Bumper Crop Of Hits, Misses In Second Half Of '83

hits. This followup peaked at number 20 and produced no smash singles. Do you suppose there's any connection there?

9. "The Present," Moody Blues, Threshold. This album peaked at number 26 in October, tying 1977's "Caught Live + 5" as the lowest-charting album in Moodys' history. It's especially disappointing because the band's last album, 1981's "Long Distance Voyager," hit No. 1.

10. "Dirty Looks," Juice Newton,

Capitol. Between them, Newton's last two albums logged more than 100 weeks on the chart and yielded half a dozen hit singles. This album fell far short: It peaked at number 52 in October and fell off the chart after just 15 weeks.

There were other disappointments on the charts in the past six months. Natalie Cole's label switch to Epic and Dionne Warwick's collaboration with Luther Vandross failed to return those artists to chart glory. Cole's "I'm Ready" spent just three weeks on the chart, while Warwick's "How Many Times Can We Say Goodbye" peaked at a disappointing 64.

The Little River Band and former lead singer Glenn Shorrock each came up short in their first albums apart. LRB's "The Net" peaked at 61, while Shorrock's "Villain Of The Peace" failed to even crack the top 200.

And James Ingram and Jennifer Holliday both fell below expectations with their first solo albums. Ingram's "It's Your Night" stalls at number 67 this week; Holliday's "Feel My Soul" peaked at 31 in November.

Enough bad news. Here are the 10 albums from the past six months that did significantly better than expected.

1. "What's New," Linda Ronstadt, Asylum. A year ago when Ronstadt's last album, "Get Closer," peaked at number 31, who would have thought that a set of old standards recorded with Nelson Riddle would put her back in the top three?

2. "Metal Health," Quite Riot, Pasha/Epic. Last month this became the first debut album by a heavy metal band to climb to No. 1. The band also took a 10-year-old Slade song, "Cum On Feel The Noize," to number five. That's precisely 93 notches higher than Slade took it.

3. "90125," Yes, Atco. You can go home again! Yes' first album in five years featuring Jon Anderson and its first in 12 years with Tony Kaye explodes this week, jumping six notches to number seven. It's likely to become the group's first No. 1 album—a mere 15 years after the group's formation.

4. "The Big Chill" soundtrack, Motown. The newest song on this album was cut in 1971. And yet there it sits at number 18, just above McCartney and Dylan. It's the most successful soundtrack comprised of old hits since "American Graffiti" cracked the top 10 in 1974.

5. "Greatest Hits," Air Supply, Arista, and "Faster Than The Speed Of Night," Bonnie Tyler, Columbia. A year ago Air Supply was in a moderate slump and Tyler was in a major one. But smash singles written and produced by Jim Steinman put both of these albums in the top 10.

6. "She Works Hard For The Money," Donna Summer, Mercury. When Quincy Jones was only able to bring Summer to number 20 on the album chart last year, many figured Summer's top 10 days were over. But she made it back to the top 10 on her next try, with this album produced by Michael Omartian.

7. "Eliminator," ZZ Top, Warner Bros. The group returned to the top 10 for the first time in more than eight years when this set climbed to number nine in November.

8. "Speaking In Tongues," Talking

Heads, Sire. The group cracked the top 15 for the first time with this album which also yielded its first top 10 single, "Burning Down The House."

9. "No Parking On The Dance Floor," Midnight Star, Solar. This album went gold and cracked the top 30 in October, becoming one of the year's biggest black music hits and proving that there are a lot of Freak-A-Zoids out there.

10. "The Ark," the Animals, IRS and "What Goes Around," the Hollies, Atlantic. The comebacks may have been modest as comebacks go, but did you think you'd ever see either of these groups in the top 100 again?

cluded initially are Japan and South Africa, where existing pacts run until 1985, as well as Scandinavia and Italy.

Lou Cook, president of MCA International, says the last territory to fall under the WEA deal will be the Philippines, where the present deal runs into the summer of '85.

MCA product is currently distributed by PolyGram in Australia and New Zealand, but that deal expires Dec. 31, according to Cook. MCA's deal with PolyGram is set to continue in Scandinavia and Portugal.

MCA chief Azoff noted at a press conference last week: "We think the past seven months have proved that we intend to be the most aggressive label in the business, and this is the start of our international commitment."

"We intend to greatly beef up our international structure in London and around the world. This will entail a lot of additional jobs. We'll be hiring marketing and local a&r and liaison people around the world."

Nesuhi Ertegun, president of WEA International, added that he pursued the deal mainly because of Azoff's ability to attract artists.

One interesting aspect of the pact is its consummation amid the Warner Communications/PolyGram merger machinations, especially since questions have been raised as to whether WEA International in its present form would continue if "PolyWarner" becomes a reality. Presumably Azoff raised those same questions, and was satisfied with the answers.

The Motown/RCA deal was formally signed in London last week by J.K. Davies, division vice president of RCA Europe, along with Peter Prince, Motown Records' international vice president. Alan Cornish, vice president of RCA's European regional office, said the major will be setting up a Motown office in each operating country, in addition to its current office in the U.K. Record manufacturing is to be carried out by Sonopress in Germany, in line with RCA's central manufacturing policy.

Previously, Motown was with Bel-laphon Records for Germany and Austria and, on a non-exclusive basis, Switzerland. In France, the company was with Vogue, as it was for the Benelux territories and, again on a non-exclusive basis, for Switzerland.

In Scandinavia, the Motown deal is with the AB Elektra company in Stockholm, part of the Scan group, which covers the Scandinavian territories. Elektra has, for 20 years, been RCA licensee in this region, so there is effectively no change here. And RCA previously held rights to Motown for Spain and Portugal.

Dealers, One-Stops Say Sales Maintain Hot Pace

cinnati one-stop. He doesn't offer accurate figures on his selloff on "Thriller" since the cable tv debut two weeks ago for the title clip, but intimates it was in five figures. Tom Choate of SeaPort, Portland, Ore., also points to a renewed economy and strong album product but does not offer a percentage of his increase over 1982.

This Christmas is separating the men from the boys, according to Pete McDermott of Peter's One-Stop, Norwood, Mass. Like his contemporaries, he's worried about Atlantic's album list price increase to $9.98 (separate stories, page 3). He's worried about more labels joining, noting that the new Van Halen album on Warner Bros. has a 9 prefix. Others canvassed talked about a hinted CBS increase in the Superstar series.

McDermott sees an "amazing" selloff in Christmas-oriented albums for the first time in several years. He calls this a valid indication of more money being available to buy such specialized, seasonal product.

The 10 Cat's stores and Music City One-Stop in Nashville are up 10% over last year, Bruce Carlock states. Much of his additional business and traffic is accounted for by a strong current advertising campaign on midline product, both $5.98 and $6.98. He's selling at $4.99 via local tv spots over Nashville, Knoxville and Chattanooga stations. In addition, MTV has started selling local spots in those three Tennessee cities, so he's down for a total of 100 spots there. Thus far, he's found MTV's pull excellent.

"Monday (12) was our biggest record day in two years," avers Stan Meyers of Sound Video Unlimited, Chicago. In addition, he says the Noel Gimbel firm has moved more than 90,000 pieces of "Raiders of The Lost Ark." He finds children's video titles moving out well, too.

Mike Mowers calls his retail and one-stop business at Radio Doctor's in Milwaukee "exceptional." He's pleased with the clientele at their neighboring all-classics store, where business is 30% over last year, according to manager Terry Zellmer. He also feels he's lost some customers among the mom and pops and head shops who deserted the business in the past two years, but says that overall his universe of dealers is stronger.

Rhody's of Warwick, R.I. expects to come in 10% to 15% over last year, according to Ruby Zeidman. "Video games have slowed way down. They're auctioning off another arcade in this area," he notes.

Only four-store Mother's Records out of Moorhead, Minn., dissents from the optimism. Dan Bredell says business is "only so-so." He adds that the last 10 days before the holiday usually tell the tale, so there is still hope. He was snowed in at his home when contacted.

America's Hottest Foreign Affairs.

BONNIE TYLER

Welsh-born Bonnie Tyler

quickly captured the hearts of a legion of U.S. admirers, sending her Columbia debut album to platinum "Faster Than The Speed Of Night." Her Jim Steinman-produced single, "Total Eclipse Of The Heart," is also nearing platinum after spending four weeks at the top of the charts and attracting the undivided attention of both Pop and Adult Contemporary formats. After "Total Eclipse," the future looks bright indeed.

JULIO IGLESIAS

After seducing most of the civilized world with his romantic melodies and Latin good looks, Julio Iglesias has finally added America to his list of conquests. His recent cross-country tour was S.R.O. (Swooning Room Only) and his first American release, "Julio," has gone gold: quite an achievement for an album of foreign language love songs. And beware, Julio is about to become fluent in his sixth language: English.

Question: Can an Ant make it as a sex symbol? Listen to Adam Ant's just-released album, "Strip," for the provocative answer. Here's a hint: Adam's last album, "Friend Or Foe," was his first U.S. gold—which proves he has a legion of loyal followers in the colonies as well as his homeland of England.

NENA

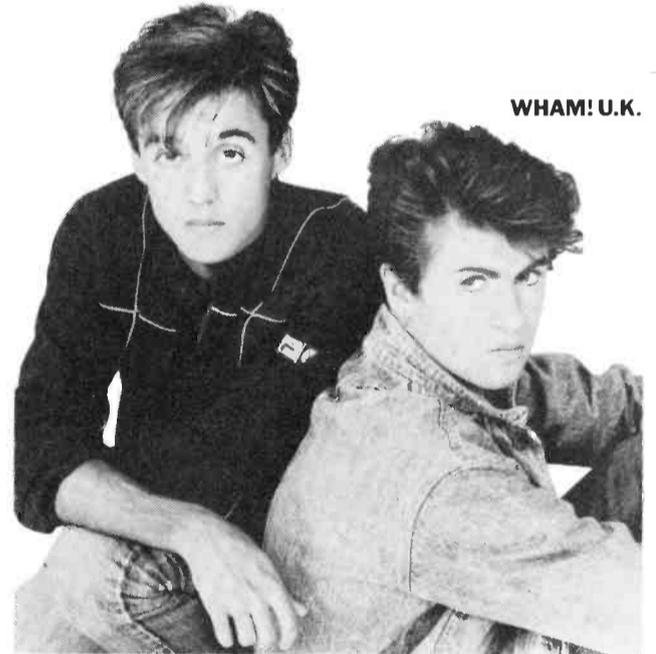

Also making their moves on America are England's Fastway and Germany's Nena. Thanks to relentless touring, Fastway's debut album—with sales of over 300,000 and still climbing—has traveled all the way into the hearts of America. And Nena is currently wooing U.S. listeners with "99 Luftballons"—her fast-rising debut single.

PAUL YOUNG

Other new faces to watch out for include Paul Young and WHAM! U.K.—both have already achieved #1 success in England and are making a play for similar status here. Australia's latest new face is Midnight Oil, making their American debut with "10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2, 1." Count on them to be the next 'down under' band to head straight for the top.

WHAM! U.K.

Naturally, bands like Men At Work and Loverboy—who've had phenomenal success since their debut albums—have continued their multi-platinum success stories.

And coming soon with strong first quarter releases are three big English bands following up on their biggest albums yet: The Clash, Psychedelic Furs and Judas Priest.

Add to the mix a new album of hot rockers from Britain's Shakin' Stevens, and you can be sure they'll all be affairs to remember.

Mobile Fidelity Enters Compact Disc Market

By SAM SUTHERLAND

LOS ANGELES—Mobile Fidelity Sound Lab, the Chatsworth, Calif. manufacturer best known for its audiophile LPs and cassettes, throws its hat into the Compact Disc ring during the upcoming Winter Consumer Electronics Show with the unveiling of its first four premium CD titles.

Although company executives originally indicated they'd stay with analog media despite the splashy global launch of the newer digital format, president Herb Belkin says the embryonic CD market appears to have a niche for high-end product. As was the case with Mobile Fidelity's Original Master half-speed LPs and real-time cassette duplications, its CD titles will be based on original analog masters.

Explains Belkin, "The digital-to-digital process for CDs is well within the domain of the majors. When they're transferring a digital master, they do very well. But there've been problems encountered, and documented, when transferring from analog masters."

Belkin asserts that Mobile Fidelity's established expertise in handling analog masters made the move a logical one. Moreover, he claims the company's involvement with CD technology is no last-minute venture dictated by the market.

"We've been working with that technology for nearly three years," he says, noting that Mobile Fidelity had undertaken early CD test projects for several hardware manufacturers at the beginning of 1982. Digital recordings on half-inch videotape media had already been part of the company's mix of high-end products.

The first four Mobile Fidelity CD titles were chosen to showcase the viability of well-recorded analog material for the newer, laser-read disk format. Included are Sonny Rollins' "Way Out West," a 1957 album that Belkin says is the most sonically impressive, "26 years old and as fresh on CD as anything recorded yesterday"; an early '70s Ravel program performed by the Minnesota Orchestra under Stanislaw Skrowaczewsky, originally released in the early '70s by Vox/Turnabout; Al Stewart's "Year Of The Cat," and "I, Robot" by the Alan Parsons Project, both late '70s albums from Arista.

As for price, Belkin says the CDs will appear at the upper end of "the existing CD price structure we're seeing," which now ranges from a low of about $18 to as high as $24 or more. Manufacturing for the initial run is being handled by Sanyo, and Belkin hopes to take orders in Las Vegas when he previews the disks during the Jan. 8-10 CES.

Island Moves, Readies New Dance Label

NEW YORK—Island Records will bow a new independently distributed dance label called 4th And Broadway when the company relocates next month to its new home at 14 E. 4th St., in the Tower Records building here.

At least one 12-inch title with a $4.98 list will ship each month, and a&r acquisitions will be handled "in house," says Island vice president Herb Corsack, noting that future releases marketed by Island will bear the "Island Trading Company" seal.

The company's new phone number is (212) 477-8000.

Atlantic Album Price Hike Provokes Retailers' Anger

declares Ben Bartel of the nine Big Daddy's stores in Chicago. "I didn't see anything in the letter that tells me how they are going to accept returns on these three albums. And while I am thinking about it, WEA hasn't told me anything about my January advertising budget."

"We are really discouraged by it," says Jim Bonk, executive vice president of Camelot Enterprises. "Why 10 days before Christmas? We will not pick our customers' pockets. Price through the holidays will be at the $8.98 level."

"Why do suppliers always have to go up $1 on list? There's a quarter and a half-dollar too. Do they really need the whole dollar? Hall & Oates came at $9.98, but RCA's been wheeling and dealing on it since its release so we get our markup. 'Yentl' appeals to an older demographic, so you don't fight the $1 more there."

Like most interviewed, John Torrell of Rainbow Records, San Francisco, acknowledges he'd bought in substantially recently on the 5% discount program. He wonders how soon it will be before suppliers take a page from the phone companies' book and "just pull a price out of the sky and charge it." Jerry Richman of Richman Bros., Pennsauken, N.J. one-stop, says he bought in heavily but as soon as that inventory is gone, he intends to increase from his current $5.20 to $6.25 to his accounts.

(The Stones and Yes albums sit in the top 10 on the Billboard album chart this week, while the Genesis record holds down the number 13 position.)

"Is $9.98 going to be the standard?" asks Billy Emerson of Big State, the Dallas one-stop/distributor. "Albums are no longer a bargain. We finally beat the video games and the arcades and along comes this unnecessary price increase."

"At least this will not affect our profit margins," Lieberman Enterprises president Harold Okinow comments. "We couldn't stand another raise on our wholesale price. It's bound to influence overall sales. Why can't we hear about a decrease to $7.98?"

"It destroys our credibility. What if a member of the family or a close friend buys the album at the lower price and then a few weeks after, the album costs $1 more? How do we look? And it comes from a company that had problems the first nine months of this year. What causes these overnight $9.98s?" queries Don Weiss of Arrow Distributing, Cleveland.

"Greed!" is the succinct comment of Michael Spector of MJS, Miami.

WEA/PolyGram Probe: Several industry executives have received invites from the Federal Trade Commission to air their views on the merger between the two firms. Investigation is slated for L.A. just before Dec. 25 . . . Radio Report: At presstime, WROR Boston GM Tom Baker was named vice president/general manager at San Diego's KPQK/KGB. Former general sales manager and acting GM Cliff Cox will assume a yet-to-be-determined post within the company when Baker's appointment becomes effective Jan. 4. No changes expected at the nostalgia and rock outlets.

A check of the rumor that the Vestron Video "Thriller" videocassettes would be a trial balloon for rackjobbers' entry into rental/sales disclosed that Handleman is testing the waters. Mario de Filippo said Handleman is stocking the Beta and VHS formats on this single item. He would not disclose any more, except to say that by mid-January Handleman should have a reading on the experiment. Several other racks said they had been offered the heavy-selling item, but passed . . . Expatriates Danny and Amos Heilicher continue to expand their diversification, acquiring Superfun Arcades in El Paso, Ft. Collins, Colo. and Las Vegas and Pizza Jamborees in Davenport, Colorado Springs and San Juan, P.R. . . . Word is that Time magazine wrapped up a piece on video music last week that could run as a cover story . . . Engineer-turned-producer Mark Berry is distributing his new label, MSB Records, through PolyGram. U.S. ad outlay for 1984 is projected at $85.4 billion, a 13.8% gain over 1983, according to Robert J. Coen of McCann-Erickson. Wonder how this will match industry expenditures during the next year? . . . PolyGram came up with a 3.8% discount deal on its six hottest album titles, effective through Tuesday (20). Minimum buy-in is 1,000 pieces.

Following the end of its administration deal with Chappell Music in October, Virgin Music has opened its first music publishing office in the U.S. in Gotham at 43 Perry St. David Steele is GM, Ron Shoup is copyright manager and Claudia Stanten is administrative assistant . . . No final decisions yet, but all signs point to Thorn EMI's moving its computer software division to the West Coast. That product line currently is handled out of New York by that even with the aid of advertising programs, they're only selling 10%-15% more units than they had before the price cut."

Droz, stating that "timing is never good from a customer's standpoint," says that the $6.98 catalog "continues to be successful and remains in effect." He would not comment on Mazza's characterization of the price move or his sales estimations.

Historically, a new price point precedes the creation of a new list price, according to Mazza: "You start with key product and take it from there."

Paul Smith, senior vice president and general manager of marketing for CBS Records, says that changing the price on a few titles "isn't quite the same" as dropping the list on 1,100. "Regardless of the company's stature in the industry and the chart position of the titles, if the world turns off to the three records, it won't change the way the industry does business," Smith notes.

Smith won't say whether CBS, which has no list price, is plotting a similar strategy. "We have no immediate plans, which is not to say that we won't do it, either, so my answer to that is 'no comment,'" he says. "We like to keep our marketing options open. However, we always view with interest what the competition does and how dealers and consumers react before we plan our future moves. We would never announce it in print, anyway, before our accounts heard about it first."

Expressing "surprise and shock," Vince Pellegrino, vice president of merchandising and sales for Chrysalis, speculates that the Atlantic/WEA move was implemented "for profit only."

mentations and acted upon it," he says, noting that WEA has exercised "pretty good price restraint" since 1980. "Our net increases over a three-year period have been two cents, when you calculate wholesale and list price increases and decreases," Droz states. "Yet the rise in our costs have far exceeded that. We feel the jump is justified, to both Atlantic and WEA."

"We're not making any statement," says Perry Cooper, vice president of artist relations and media development for Atlantic, also speaking for Dave Glew, the label's executive vice president and general manager. "There will be no comment."

The timing of the Atlantic move is questioned by many prominent industry executives. "They're the guinea pig for the business," states a major label marketing head who asked for anonymity, adding, "It's a sick thing to do in the middle of a holiday. It's not fair to the consumer or the dealer."

"Manufacturers keep insisting, 'A dollar more, a dollar more,'" he adds, "so there must be a lot of fat at Atlantic to justify the increase. I know that materials haven't risen that much. Maybe we shouldn't be signing acts at the prices we do."

Capitol Records president Jim Mazza, noting that WEA might have picked "a more opportune time" to make its announcement, sees a correlation between WEA's dip in the catalog price of 1,100 titles to $6.98 last year and the new round of price increases. "They lost tremendous amounts of money when they did it," he says. "It was foolish and dumb to devalue the consumer's perception of the music. There was no justification at the time, and our statistics show Expect both Sears and K-mart to create stronger images in home electronics during 1984 . . . Track erred! Nesuhi and Ahmet Ertegun, chairman and president, respectively, of the Cosmos pro soccer team, New York, resigned those posts several weeks ago and now both have the title of "honorary chairman" . . . For the last three years Somach/Nelson Productions has wrapped up the musical events of the year in a show called "The News That Rocked . . ." The 1983 version will differ in that the show, aired in past years on MTV, airs only via syndicated tv. Phil Collins replaces prior host Mark Goodman. Syndicators in the past griped about the overlap between MTV viewers and their own.

Alan Bernard, vice president of live entertainment and music for Mary Tyler Moore Enterprises, will neither confirm nor deny the rumors that his company is looking into buying Nashville's financially harried Monument Records and/or its profitable publishing affiliate, Combine Music. While pooh-poohing the gossip, Bernard says a company such as his "would be foolish not to be interested" in such properties. This is the second time MTM has been linked with a Nashville publisher. Earlier this year, it supposedly had out feelers to buy Cedarwood, which has since been sold to singer/songwriter Mel Tillis.

The name MTV has become synonymous with music video, as is apparent by interest from record companies in licensing clips for a "Best Of MTV" compilation. No deal yet worked out, and no label comments, but an MTV spokesman confirms, "We've been having discussions with various parties. It's still in the talking stage, however."

Activision and Atari have signed a joint agreement in which both companies will jointly introduce a device whereby video games can be transmitted into video game machines. A letter of intent has been signed by both parties. A money value has not yet been placed on the joint agreement.

Carol Miller says she turned down "a very nice offer" from WAPP New York to join WNEW-FM there, where she debuted last Saturday (17) afternoon. The former WPLJ personality will do weekends and fill-in work at the Metromedia outlet, as well as some music consulting.

pressures, but it's the only motive I can think of," he says. "You know the old philosophy—if the product is hot, the consumer will pay that extra dollar. I guess they felt that it was better to do now than before the records peaked."

As a CBS-distributed label, Chrysalis will keep "a close watch" on any price hike that company takes, according to Pellegrino, who sees the Atlantic move as "a truer test" of the viability of the $9.98 list than the similarly priced "Rock 'n' Soul Part I" album by Hall & Oates on RCA.

The subject of pricing is "a touchy matter" to Larry Gallagher, division vice president of sales for RCA. "I don't like to comment on what other labels do—I have pricing troubles of my own," he says, apparently referring to the Hall & Oates album. "Also, it's none of my business."

"Have you noticed how everything at retail is now selling close to list?" asks Sam Passamano Sr., executive vice president of MCA Distributing. "Camelot, Warehouse, Musicland, Record Bar, Music Plus—they're all merchandising $9.98s for just about that." Passamano, who says that he can't recall a December price increase in his 33 years in the record business, notes that MCA will hold the line at $8.98 for pop product and $9.98 for soundtracks. "I can't see the $9.98 surfacing at this point, not for at least six months. Predicting beyond that is ridiculous."

To Our Readers

This is a year-end double issue of Billboard, combining the weeks of Dec. 24 and Dec. 31 to accommodate holiday printing schedules. Our next regular issue will appear the week of Jan. 2; that issue will be dated Jan. 7.
