IT'S TIME TO REINVENT RADIO BY REY MENA

Unfortunately, the radio business has not kept pace with the digital revolution."

In 1998, Arbitron and Edison Media Research released their first Internet study, "Radio in the New Media World." Since then, the rise of the Internet, the spread of broadband connectivity and other digital technologies have created a revolution in how we conduct business and how we live our lives.

Unfortunately, the radio business has not kept step with these changes.

Companies in other sectors have used emerging technologies to reinvent how they manage their business and how consumers experience their brands.

This wave of change has forever transformed consumer expectations. The Internet, TiVo and the iPod have created a culture of consumer control where programming is on-demand and every form of media is now portable. There is far less tolerance for media brands that do not meet this expectation, and as radio broadcasters well know, there are a growing number of competitors waiting to step in and serve their needs.

Advertisers have adapted to this on-demand shift. Traditional advertising models based on a mass-media approach are being supplanted with highly targeted one-to-one marketing models. Google's skyrocketing revenue growth is a prime example of this phenomenon and its online focus.

How many more years of flat to 1% revenue growth must we endure to see the reality of a changing land-scape? Despite major changes in the media landscape, we view our current market revenue condition as purely a "down cycle" and not as a trend. Therefore, there is no sense of urgency; we chose not to participate in the shift toward a more engaging measurable business.

Consider radio's approach to the Internet. I would argue that not much has changed since that first Arbitron/Edison study. Many broadcasters view their Web sites as ancillary to their business and don't allocate the necessary resources, both human and capital, to turn this platform into a thriving revenue source.

I believe that a major reason for this limitation lies in how we view ourselves. We cannot continue to define our business as simply broadcasting. This may have been fine in the past, but today the experience of a radio brand is not limited to the aural experience. It can also be visual, interactive and personal.

Technology allows us to remove the barriers that have separated traditional media. If you question the value to this approach, all you have to do is look at Major League Baseball's MLB.com, one of the best examples of new-media thinking.

The league no longer limits itself to season tickets, TV broadcasts and trading cards. As a baseball fan, you can get everything you ever wanted and more on their Web site: news, standings, on-demand videos, memorabilia, fantasy leagues and a slew of other baseball-centric content.

By looking at ourselves in a new way, we can begin to redefine the value proposition we offer an advertiser. We don't have to be solely defined in terms of spots, cost-per-point and value-added promotions. Now, we can be visual, measurable and highly targeted.

If we are to experience the same transformative change that has occurred in other industries, we must define ourselves by the real business we are in—the relationship business. Right now our transmitters and FCC licenses are a major financial asset; tomorrow it is likely to be the community of consumers we attract and the different ways we are able to reach them.

To achieve this, broadcasters must allocate the necessary resources to turn their online efforts into a true business instead of just a hobby. We have to start looking at this space as a vehicle to engage our listeners in a meaningful way and not as a dumping ground for bad radio promotions we won't put on air. We also have to staff it like any other major position at the station. The role of managing online efforts cannot be relegated to a part-time jock or promo person. Believe me, your listeners can easily pick up on whether you are serious about your online product.

The media world is changing, and radio broadcasters ignore this at their peril. Innovation in our industry can no longer be defined as a new format, the next great syndicated talent or streaming a terrestrial signal.

Much has been written about radio's demise. However, if a final chapter is ever written on radio, it is more likely to come by our own hands. If we do not see the obvious signs and take the necessary measures to reinvent radio, we are likely to suffer the same fate as the railroad industry, which in the age of flight, forgot it was in the transportation business.

Right now our relationships with audiences are ours to lose, and I am hopeful we will learn from history.

POINT/COUNTERPOINT

IT'S THE 'DELIVERY,' STUPID! BY DOM THEODORE

'Radio is embracing this opportunity with HD multicasting and online initiatives,'

In many ways, the choice radio faces today closely resembles the crossroads that TV confronted in the early '80s. As cable TV lines were strung across the country, trade publications predicted the demise of the Big Three TV networks.

I remember how excited I was in 1982 when cable TV finally arrived in our neighborhood, and my family suddenly had access to a whopping 36 new channels. We could turn the dial and have instant access to MTV, HBO, CNN and that weather radar channel that looked more like the "blip" videogame than actual weather data.

Twenty-four years later, the Big Three still command large audiences, but we also have a thriving fourth network, Fox, that didn't even exist back then. Instead of 36 channels there are now 360. And yet terrestrial TV still thrives.

Why

It's the delivery, stupid!

Sure, there are many cable exclusive shows like "The Sopranos" that do well. But "American Idol," "Deal or No Deal," "Desperate Housewives" and others command huge audiences and generate multimillions in revenue. In fact, network programs are so popular there are now cable channels exclusively dedicated to showing reruns of network shows.

What does this have to do with radio?

As recently as 10 years ago, analog radio was the only mass-delivery system for audio entertainment. Today, technological advances have brought the Internet, the iPod, wireless broadband, cell phones, HD radio and hundreds of other audio-delivery systems.

All these advances have one thing in common: They rely on data—zeros and ones—to move audio from one place to another. As our ability to move data faster and without wires improves, we will see even more new technology that will bring almost everything to almost everybody almost instantly.

But the mere existence of these technologies doesn't guarantee that people will use them. People will simply choose the delivery system that provides the best ... delivery. This means that the entire radio industry must focus on building difficult-to-duplicate content that can be distributed on multiple digital platforms so that radio can compete in the future.

The good news is that progressive audio content developers are embracing this opportunity with HID multicasting, offering new and innovative formats as well as online initiatives with everything from music on demand to podcasts of their favorite morning shows.

If radio continues to focus on creating and developing the very best "audio deliveries" while becoming more agnostic about the delivery system, our future will outshine our past.

RETAIL FROM THE RADIO

Listeners to hip-hop bastions WQHT (Hot 97) New York and KPWR (Power 106) Los Angeles have a new way to enjoy music—at 99 cents a pop.

The two Emmis Communications stations recently introduced the first radio-branded iTunes music stores on their Web sites. By July, Emmis plans to open customized online stores for the rest of its 23-station chain.

The goal is "to curate in a manner that is relevant to our audience, while giving the user all the case of use and flexibility of iTunes," Emmis Interactive VP Rey Mena says. For example, iTunes peddles repertoire from 540 hip-hop artists. The WQHT and KPWR stores offer artist catalog from only the roughly 200 artists they play.

In-studio and station festival performances are on the drawing board, along with exclusive artist remixes of tracks.

While Emmis is the first broadcaster to strike an affiliate deal with Apple, scores of stations owned by Greater Media, Citadel Communications, Bonneville International, ABC Radio, Clear Channel Radio, Beasley Broadcasting and others have been selling Windows Media downloads from individually branded online stores developed by New York-based Music to Go.

The Windows Mediabased radio stores sell 100-1,000 songs per week, according to Music to Go president/CEO Jeff Specter. About 10%-15% of store visitors make a purchase, he says, with adult-targeted rock, country and AC outlets generating more sales than younger-targeted stations, where visitors browse more and spend less. Specter says the average purchase is seven or eight songs.

The big win for the stations is not a payday from tracks sold—the amount they earn per digital download is 5%, according to sources—but rather, as Specter says, "the real payoff for the radio stations is the [Web site] traffic they're getting."

Building a stronger bond with listeners, imaging stations as techsavvy and incorporating free music download cards into ad packages are other benefits, programmers say. Mena expects the Emmis iTunes stores to produce four times as many sales as their Windows Media equivalents, since Apple controls 80% of the digital music market.

"The growth is going to be in middle America," Specter says, "the consumer who has heard about it but doesn't know how to do it. Then, boom, radio, their trusted source for music, takes them by the hand and shows them how to do it."

Mena says, "As an industry, we're great at promoting music, which ultimately leads to sales. But there's a big difference between being a point-of-promotion and a point-of-purchase. This will allow us to bridge that gap."

ome of the most innovative radios on the market are Sirius Satellite Radio's S50 and XM Satellite Radio's Inno and Helix devices. All three allow subscribers to record or "time shift" up to 50 hours of programming. The XM units also enable users to "bookmark" songs for later purchase online via the satcaster's deal with Napster.

There are, however, licensing issues related to these devices, which center on the fact that these radios can receive—and automatically compile, store and play—hours of music. They are part of a "platform convergence" that copyright owners say is turning radio and satellite broadcasts into download services—without fairly compensating the music creators and copyright holders. While XM and Sirius pay royalties for performances of recorded music, they do not pay royalties for what some call a distribution, similar to a temporary download, to these devices.

A recently introduced Senate bill, the Perform Act, would distinguish between the right to perform and the right to distribute under copyright law. The bill would not affect over-the-air broadcasting or prohibit a consumer from making a personal copy of music, the so-called and aforementioned time shifting. It would only prohibit the disaggregation and creation of music libraries unless royalties are paid for that distribution.

Once these digital rights management issues are worked out, expect recordable options to be introduced into HD radios with music purchasing opportunities added later, iBiquity president/CEO Bob Struble predicts.

"The store/replay/electronic program guide options are very compelling value applications for the consumer, and we're working on them and believe they will find their way into HID radios," he says.

Apart from technical obstacles, Struble says the bigger issue to resolve for adding a "buy" button is a satisfactory business model.

"There's no better place to make an impulse buy than when you're in traffic," he says. "It will become so natural to just push a button and buy the song you just heard or tickets to the concert you just heard about."

PODCASTING, NPR-STYLE

NO BROADCASTER HAS BEEN MORE aggressive about podcasting than National Public Radio. It launched its foray into this growing technology Aug. 31, 2005, and nine months later claims 25 million downloads.

During April, according to NPR spokeswoman Andi Sporkin, 6 million files had been downloaded, "but that's an escalating number that has been growing each month." In May, NPR added another 11 podcasts to the growing menu of programs NPR contributed itself. That contribution now stands at 52 separate programs. As new audio alternatives burgeon at head-spinning pace, of precious space continues to take on new import for radio.

While analog terrestrial is as commonplace as a steer-

In the meantime, the pressure is on iBiquity Digital to convince automakers to offer and install HD radios in the near future. So far, BMW and eight other as-yet-unnamed automotive companies have committed to offering HD receivers in some 40 models during the next several years. It has been a slow and steady, but mindful, process, and will result in free radio with better sound and additional programming choices,

SALES & MARKETING

WFNX: ALL SNAPPLE ALL THE TIME

While the concept has roots in publishing, Phoenix Media Communications modern rock WFNX Boston's decision to sell all its airtime from Memorial Day weekend through July + to Cadbury Schweppes' Snapple products stands tall as an innovative way to go beyond way beyond—the typical 60-second spot.

> For a price tag estimated to be around $2 million, Snapple bought every minute of WFNX's advertising time for the six-week period, with nontraditional recorded-audio collages, live DJ reads, bumpers and sweepers all in support of "brandcasting" Snapple beverages. It's important to note that the amount the beverage company is fronting also takes into consideration the cost of street teams, a retail presence, text-message campaigns and the staffing that is allocated for free events and concerts that will happen in conjunction with the buy. Those include a June I Dashboard Confessional show, a June 23 Hawthorne Heights concert, plus, for simply bringing three Snapple bottle caps, listeners will get in to see Yellowcard June 28.

"We jumped at this commercial-free opportunity from Snapple, and crafted it into a bold and innovative radio-brandcasting experiment," WFNX GM Andy Kingston said when the "Summer Free for All" was announced last month.

The evolution of this single-sponsor idea was born from a conversation between Jay Coleman, founder/CEO of entertainment and marketing company EMCI, and Beau Phillips, president of radio marketing company Rainmaker Maker.

Phillips says, "Jay came to me and said, 'What do you think of doing commercial-free radio for the entire summer bought out by one sponsor?' "

Coleman and Phillips began investigating how to make a meaningful presence without commercials or mere announcements like, "The next hour of music is brought to you by ..." In other words, how to connect to the listener.

Phillips recalls that he and Coleman approached at least a dozen owners whose stations weren't setting the world on fire with ratings. "We told them, 'In our opinion there's only two ways for you to grow: You either spend a ton of money to market it—assuming you have a marketable product—or you do something that's newsworthy and creates talk in the market. And we have an idea to do that."

Most passed. But Phillips says that after the WFNX deal he began getting calls from stations and clients wanting to do similar brandcasting initiatives, even from some owners who initially nixed the idea.

Karen Agresti, of Boston-based ad agency Hill-Holiday, calls it a "brilliant" marketing move for Snapple because it received so much press from the announcement. "It was also a smart move for 'FNX," she adds, "because ad buyers initially were saying, 'WFNX who?" Now they've had national exposure and look like they're the cool station in this market to the buying community."

Phoenix Media isn't the only company thinking about alternate ways to attract advertisers and better serve their listeners.

"We know ceilings on ad-supported capacities will continue," Clear Channel Radio president/CEO John Hogan recently told Billboard Radio Monitor. "Making commercials part of a station's fabric will be much more important. We'll employ lots of new, different, more strategies.

"For example, a digital [HD side] channel aimed at a 20- to 30-year-old male could be branded as WBUD and have only one sponsor," Hogan said. "We're betting on 60s becoming less important because advertisers will demand it."

—MIKE BOYLE

LESS IS MORE

That's how Clear Channel Radio president/CEO John Hogan describes 2005, the year the company put its Less Is More initiative into effect, and when it took a financial hit because of it. "2005 was not fun," he says. "We were challenged many, many times."

But roughly 18 months after LIM's debut, Hogan says the outcome justifies the pain. "Having been through it, I wouldn't want to do it again, but it was worth the effort. [Now] we're excited about the future of radio," he says. "I look at 2006 as the first of many financially successful years that we're going to have.

"We know quantitatively that more people are listening, and they're listening longer," Hogan says. "We've had the financial success in 2006 to [back up] that anecdotal success." During a period where many companies were flat or posting down results, Clear Channel radio revenue was up 5% for the first quarter of 2006, growing from $773.6 million last year to $808.9 million.

And LIM has affected more than just Clear Channel stations.

Programming and sales efforts at other companies have also been affected.

"There's a whole wave of spot management issues," a programmer from a competing company says. "The Less Is More initiative has had an impact—first from a financial standpoint and then from a programming standpoint. How are you going to construct the hour? We've had to rethink whether we're going to sell :30s or :15s."

Hearst-Argyle/Baltimore national sales manager Stephen Hartmann recently told Radio Monitor that the initiative has had an effect on national spot buys in his market with an enormous surge in requests for :10 avails.

Greater Media senior VP Rick Feinblatt says LIM has not changed how his company does business—"We've always been a low-inventory provider, and we will continue to be"—but he does think it was a good move for the business in general. "There was a need for the radio industry to reduce the amount of inventory we were running," he says, noting that LIM brought the issue to the forefront.

But Maribeth Papuga, senior VP/director of local broadcast for MediaVest, says that even though other companies say that they are cutting inventory, "I don't think any have done it to the extent that Clear Channel managed."

Hogan says that while other broadcasters "were very comfortable to see the financial pain that we need[ed] to work through last year," they'll eventually have to follow the same path.

"It's not surprising that essentially the rest of the industry is struggling," he continues. "It's where we saw ourselves going if we didn't change. It's what we really worried about. If we continued to do the same things, we'd be irrelevant."

Papuga says that only time will tell if others follow Clear Channel's lead or "simply take a historical approach and hope things go back to the way they've always been."

FUNKY MONKEY ON FILM

USED TO BE YOU GOT "15 minutes of fame." Now, at Clear Channel modern rock KFNK (the Funky Monkey) Seattle, it's down to 15 seconds.

For three weeks in March, the signal-challenged station dangled a $5,000 reward in front of listeners to grab their quarter-minute in the spotlight by creating a 15-second commercial. The assignment: film something about afternoon drive personality/MD Raizin and incorporate the Funky Monkey logo. KFNK promoted the contest on-air, on its Web site and at MySpace.

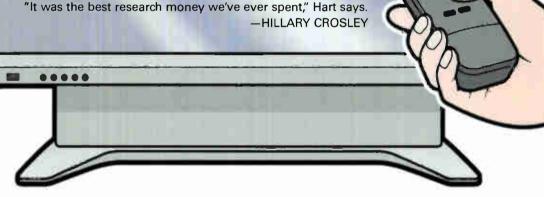

"We thought it would be great if we got 20 people," says Shellie Hart, OM of Clear Channel's four Seattle FMs.

Instead, fans uploaded shorts from cell phones, digital video cameras, still cameras and pagers by the hundreds. The viral marketing campaign spread from KFNK's Seattle-Tacoma region to elicit numerous submissions from across Washington state.

"We said we'd get the participants started with $50 for whatever you needed to buy," Hart says. "And then we'd air the winning commercial for six weeks, April through the second week of May. We had it on MTV, MTV2, ESPN and Comedy Central." The promotion drew 50,982 extra Funky whittled down by the programming staff; listeners chose finalists via the station Web site. And votes flew in by the thousands. "It was the best research money we've ever spent," Hart says.

ELECTRONIC DATA INTERCHANGE

Radio sales may appear to be in a rut, but in reality the market is waiting for new innovations to gain traction—innovations designed to give advertizers more confidence in using radio and to simplify the buying process. The changes taking place on multiple fronts could be as pivotal as when radio began to sell airtime as a domand product—just like airline seats or hotel rooms—an innovation nothing short of revolutionary.

Less is Hore has begun to unclutter the advertising environment. Electronic audience measurement will give advertisers a guaranteed accounting of audience size and demographics—something they already got from the TV industry. And electronic data interchange will give radio advertisers a seamless method to place ad schedules and broadcasters an effective way to demonstrate to clients when and where their spots ran.

ith most talk radio targeting men, FM talk tailored to women is a largely empty lane in most markets. Its fate hinges completely on the strength of the programming. "It is a daily choice among listeners in any given city as to who is serving them best," FM talk pioneer Walt Sabo says, "and that can change in a day." CHUM Group CFUN Vancouver uses the slogan, "Life happens . . . We talk about it." Program manager Stu Ferguson describes his AM's format, which debuted in fall 2001, as "relationship talk."

Hubbard Broadcasting has blazed the trail of "conversation radio" for the last three years with WFMP (FM107) Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Lincoln Financial Media WLNK (the Link) Charlotte, N.C., evolved from a music-intensive AC into a full-tilt talker. Female talk "is still very risky," WLNK GM Rick Jackson says. "And this is an industry that likes tried and true."

Anchored by the group's syndicated duo Bob & Sheri in mornings, the Link has developed a wider lineup of local personalities during the last four years.

Bonneville KUTR Salt Lake City turned on the mics last year as a fullfledged conversation station. Its May 9, 2005, debut became the country's fourth entrant in the format backed by a major group.

Most of KUTR's personality lineup is built from local-market professionals who are not broadcasters but have expertise in a wide variety of other fields. Syndication fills the rest of the clock, including ABC Radio's "Satellite Sisters" from 3 p.m to 6 p.m. weekdays and Saturdays.

The latest station to join the revolution is independently owned WVIE-AM Baltimore, which debuted June 5. The station uses a healthy batch of syndicated female talk in its lineup, including Premiere's Dr. Laura Schlessinger, plus TRN's Laura Ingraham and Tammy Bruce. Other syndicated talkers, including "Satellite Sisters," are expected to be added to the schedule soon.

FORMATS/CONTENT

JACK + COUNTRY = HANK

First there was Bob, then there was lack, then it was everyone else into the adult hits pool. But when it comes to the country version of the format, one station stands out: Emmis Communications WLHK (Hank FM) Indianapolis. Sporting the slogan, "He plays anything country," the station signed on March 25, 2005.

The argument could be made that Cumulus-owned WSM-FM Nashville started swimming in the adult hits waters six months earlier, under then-PD John Sebastian, when it morphed into "the Wolf" and put the Eagles, Bob Seger and other rock-country acts into the mix. But Hank gets the nod as an innovator because it was the first to adopt the "playing what we want" theme and to cite the influence of a mythical greater power.

WLHK focuses musically on the new (2001-present), the known ('89-'00) and the legends (pre-'89), according to OM David Edgar. "We probably play more currents than a typical Jack station," he says, citing the 20 songs in that category. At roughly 1,200 titles, Hank's library "is much bigger than most country stations," Edgar says.

Though Hank has not knocked off perennial leader Cumulus-cum-Susquehanna country WFMS, 25-54 shares for the format have grown. In the winter 2005 Arbitron survey WFMS scored a 10 share as the only game in town. Two books later, WFMS and WLHK combined for a 15.1 share. That figure stood at 12.9 after the winter report.

Hank is not alone in applying the variety concept to other formats. There are Saga Communications rock WHQG (the Hog) Milwaukee (see story, page 11), the Amaturo Group's female-targeted trimulcast KELT/ KMLT/KLIT (92.7 Jill FM) Los Angeles and Entravision's "Jose: Toca Lo Que Quiero" (He Plays What He Wants) in Sacramento and Modesto, Calif.; Albuquerque, N.M.; and Denver. Unknown at this juncture is how far the influence of Bob and Jack will spread and how successful it will be in other formats.

HOG WILD

ON AUG. 16, 2005, longtime active rock WLZR (Lazer) Milwaukee became "Everything That Rocks" WHQG (the Hog). In the 10 months since the evolution (notice we did not say "format flip"), the Saga Communications station has gone from a 4.3 12-plus in the spring 2005 Arbitron (its last full survey as Lazer) to a third place 7.5 in winter 2006 while also claiming the No. 1 position in 25-54 adults.

"We didn't set out to do a 'format'—we put together elements to build a radio station the best way we knew how and challenge ourselves to do different things," says PD Keith Hastings, who returned last summer for his second tour of duty at the station.

"I've had people ask me if this is a new format," he continues, "and my answer is: 'I don't care.' What I care about is that we put a radio station on the air that hits the target, that's No. 1 25-54 adults and doesn't damage the other stations in my cluster and helps maximize their efforts."

Hastings says the station took elements from classic rock, active rock, top 40 and Jack, too, but to him, "this is a rock station."

But how did this evolution occur? What was the need? "We were pushed with Clear Channel coming into the market with classic rock WQBW [the Brew]," Saga executive VP/group PD Steve Goldstein says. "It was a very narrow attack between our classic rock WKLH and Lazer. Over time Lazer had a disconnect between its morning audience, with [morning show] 'Bob & Brian' being the No. 1 show in the market and appealing more 35-44, and the music on Lazer remaining 18-34-focused."

Goldstein says there were two missions. The first was to take the Brew down. (Its 12plus ratings have tumbled from a 6.8 last spring to 3.7

in winter 2006.) The second was to make WHQG more demographically compatible with "Bob & Brian." "The innovation came out of necessity, as so many innovations do," he says.

To date, 27 stations have licensed Saga's "Everything That Rocks" slogan.

The station plays only a handful of currents because, as Hastings sees it, "the quality of available new music isn't there, and it's difficult to force a lot of new music on such a broad target as we have." But on the flip side, he adds, "There's a tremendous amount of music we all left on the shelf while we were playing the active rock game."

Keeping the station sounding fresh is not something that will be accomplished with the music. Instead, Hastings says the Hog is highlighting its almost 20-year heritage morning show and not positioning the station as the "music of your life." "This is not designed as a nostalgic radio station." Case in point: The station gave away Xboxes last Christmas. "I wouldn't call that a classic rock prize," Hastings says.

"The station has personality, real stationality, is playful and the production elements are fun," Goldstein says. "We took a page from the Jack playbook and decided we didn't have to be an angry rock station. The music is broader and wider, the library is durable and it's all well-managed by Keith."

BLACK TALK

One year and one failed morning show after Radio One KKBT (the Beat) Los Angeles lost Steve Harvey, the heritage station was recast as "Rhythm & Talk" in May. Targeting older listeners, the Beat's new anchors are two of syndication's hottest personalities: Tom Joyner in mornings (starting June 19) and Michael Baisden in afternoons.

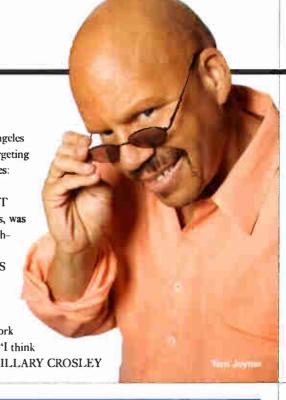

"When we were able to secure Baisden, the rest seemed a natural fit," KKBT PD Tom Calococci says. "The best option with the L.A. landscape the way it is, was to mature up the station and add Tom Joyner. We want to cover the whole southland with great music and content."

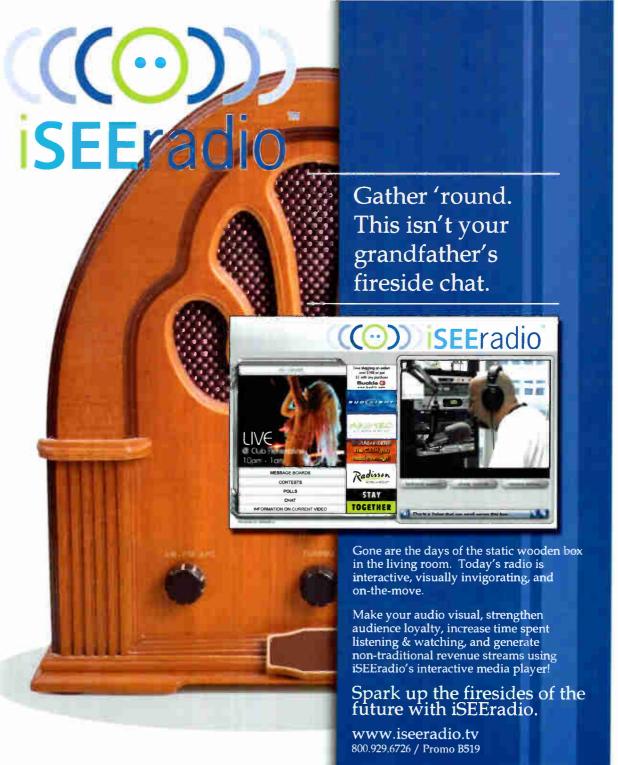

That combo is no stranger in New York, where Inner City adult R&B WBLS recently added Harvey to a lineup that includes "The Wendy Williams Experience" in afternoons. Both programs are more talk than music. Baisden airs opposite Williams on Emmis rival adult R&B WRKS (98.7 Kiss-FM).

"The talk element is a hole that's been there forever," Syndication One network

PD Lee Michaels says of Radio One, which has launched a black talk network. "I think it's going to be sensational. We'll have 60-80 stations by the year's end."

SIN CITY GROWS AT UNGODLY PACE

RANK:

Long before the gleaming glare of light bulbs, Las Vegas was humbly founded as a stopover along the pioneer trails to the Wild West before the turn of the 19th century.

The stakes were raised in the late 1920s when the territory experienced its first boom as a gateway for workers of the massive Hoover Dam, which took six years to build.

But that, of course, was all a mere firecracker to the megaton blast of growth that would ensue as Sin City became synonymous with gambling, showgirls and a tawdry glamour that the city trademarked as its own in the middle part of the last century.

By 1991, Las Vegas was a confident, midsize city with sustaining business that enlivened many an industry. With a metro population of 661,700, Arbitron ranked the radio market at No. 60.

Then, boom—again. During the past 15 years, with its ideal climate, ready access to the rest of the world, low unemployment rate and comparatively low cost of living, the destination has become the fastest-growing city in the United States. Today, Vegas earns a gold star as a broadcast innovator: During the past 15 years, it has risen faster than any other radio market in the nation—almost doubling its market ranking to Arbitron's current No. 32, with a population of 1,438,600.

Among the 27 monitored signals in Las Vegas, CBS Radio commands six stations, Clear Channel four and Univision, Entravision and Beasley two each. The market also still holds its share of independent owners, including Lotus, Kemp, Riviera and Summit American.

Brandy Newman, VP/market manager for Clear Channel/Las Vegas, is a veteran of the city who has seen the region grow exponentially over the years: "I have seen so many changes in the last 14 years I've worked in radio. The number of people in our market and amazing changes in the ethnic population are obviously the most notable changes, and that's allowed us as broadcasters to offer many different formats to fit our listener's appetites.

"Coming up through sales I have seen drastic revenue growth in the market and the way radio is sold, from selling spots and dots to selling on-air, online and on-site opportunities to our advertisers," Newman adds.

Marty Basch, VP/GM/market manager of CBS Radio/Las Vegas, who has lived in the city for 42 years and worked in radio for 18, notes, "On top of a thriving local community, we have access to some of the best entertainment, fine dining and premiere shopping in the country on a daily basis, 24 hours a day, seven days a week. As a result, we have the ability to offer all this to our listeners. We have all the amenities of a top 10 market, and our economy still allows for a fabulous lifestyle."

With Celine Dion's four-year concert residency changing the face of entertainment in Las Vegas this decade—and seducing the likes of Elton John, Barry Manilow, Toni Braxton to similar long-term gigs—the city's radio has become as A-list-worthy as New York, Los Angeles and Miami. According to the Chamber of Commerce, Vegas is the most popular tourist destination in the world. Meanwhile, the surrounding county welcomes more than 5,000 new residents every month.

It also boasts a local profile that makes advertisers drool. More than 50% of its residents earn $50,000 or more annually, with 33% obringing in $75,000-plus. Ethnic diversity rivals its larger coastal brethren, with 12% black, 14% of Hispanic and 3% Asian, according to Scarborough Research.

Newman says, "Everyone says their market is unique, but I believe we truly are. There's a lot of neon and noise that Las Vegas radio has to cut through, but the key is balance. I used to hear people say all the time that locals don't go to the Strip, so don't take your listeners to the Strip. But with amazing shows, excellent restaurants and the hottest nightclubs, there's a big appeal to some of these Strip properties, and that doesn't exclude locals."

On a personal note, Newman says, "Las Vegas has been such a wonderful experience for me. I have moved from market 60 to 32—and still growing—without leaving the market. I started as a promotions assistant driving the station vehicle and hanging balloons and after a few moves, 12 years later, I'm VP for the same station I started with. The best part is there are many stories like mine in this market."

Basch adds, "Vegas radio will continue to thrive for many years. Besides, where else can you see Elvis daily? And did I tell you he lives across the street from me?"

JUNE 16, 2006

Necessity was the mother of invention for radio's most innovative deal to date in 2006.

CBS Radio needed a turnkey morning show in seven of its largest markets. David Lee Roth was misfiring horribly.

Inching closer to the cash flow-positive promised land, XM Satellite Radio wanted to monetize its investment and brand its 170-channel platform—without breaking the bank.

Banished since 2002, Opie & Anthony had unfinished business on terrestrial radio. They were pining for more listeners.

The groundbreaking deal that would deliver on all three counts came together in a whirlwind of meetings and phone calls this spring—but not without maneuvering around some major hurdles.

Conversations began in fall 2004, shortly after Howard Stern's bombshell announcement that he was jumping ship to Sirius Satellite Radio. That's when agent Bob Eatman rang Joel Hollander to pitch O&A as the "heir apparent" to Stern's entire Infinity Broadcasting throne. But the decisive chairman/CEO wanted to pursue a different direction, one that could open advertising doors shut by Stern, and the conversation bore no fruit.

Earlier that year, Eatman spent roughly four months negotiating a deal that put the radio exiles on XM while allowing him to syndicate them to terrestrial radio—but only with XM's blessing.

After it became painfully obvious that Roth Radio was not a viable long-term option, Hollander was more receptive. An initial meeting at CBS Radio's New York headquarters identified the obstacles.

For CBS, it was protecting FCC licenses and limiting the amount of on-air satellite radio shilling. Hollander wouldn't do a deal without having control over CBS content.

Conceding control and exclusivity were the XM roadblocks. How different would the show be? Would a terrestrial-friendly O&A satisfy subscribers who paid for unshackled radio? And would sharing the duo that fuels one of its best-performing channels cannibalize subscriptions?

For the hosts, the concerns were compromising the comfort and freedom they enjoyed at XM, extending their show from four hours to nearly six and doing a Jekyll-to-Hyde change-up midway through.

Ultimately, no one could pass on the upsides. For XM, the promotional muscle of CBS, extending its brand beyond its subscriber base—and the cash. For CBS, the return of a show many had pegged as Stern's ultimate successor—before that messy affair in St.

Patrick's Cathedral. For O&A, greater fame, fortune and the pursuit of a wider audience.

"The whole deal to get them on CBS stations went down very quickly," Eatman says. "But it seemed like it took forever to get it done. It was a 24-hour-a-day process."

Anthony Cumia and Greg "Opie" Hughes did not sign on the dotted line until a day or two before they came home to CBS.

The deal is a hybrid employment contract (Hughes and Cumia are XM employees) and syndication deal (CBS has a license to air their show).

CBS pays XM in cash and on-air promotions. "There is no other deal like this," Eatman says. The hosts and XM financially benefit with each new terrestrial affiliate. "This is XM's property," Eatman says. "They participate in the upside." O&A also earn ratings bonuses but do not receive a stipend from XM adding new subscribers.

Eatman is allowed to syndicate the show to non-CBS stations but only after giving CBS appropriate consideration. "If I had an offer to go up against Adam Carolla [on CBS talk KSLX] in L.A., we'd do that," Eatman says. "We'd absolutely put them anyplace that's appropriate, provided we [first] give CBS consideration."

The deal breaks ground in multiple ways. It is the first satellite-tocommercial terrestrial radio content deal ever. "This is a model for the future because it allows companies to share escalating costs of production and exhibit the programming simultaneously," Eatman says.

CBS Radio president of programming Rob Barnett says he knew the deal wouldn't be a cinch to accomplish. "Our first thought was that this could be an intensely complicated deal for our two companies to consider, let alone close," he says. "But we knew that if the powers that be could bring us to completion, this was the kind of noise we wanted to drop at this unique moment . . . in the life cycle of the Howard Stern saga. This was the best way to make the biggest impact for the CBS markets."

For XM, executive VP of programming Eric Logan says, "It was branding first and [then] raising the profile of O&A in markets where they had huge successes and reconnecting them with disenfranchised fans who may not be aware that they even went to satellite radio. We still have the ability to hold on to a significant portion of exclusive content. Our subscribers now are getting fresh O&A content from 6 a.m. 'til, some days, 11:45."

It came down to getting both companies "to think in a completely different and innovative way about how value was going to be returned in ways that we hadn't once contemplated," Logan says.

In the end, all three parties won. —PAUL HEINE

DEALS

TEAM-OWNED RADIO

THE TRADITIONAL RELATIONSHIP between a professional sports team and its flagship broadcaster is changing. But it is still too early to tell if team-owned radio will be the wave of the future.

Industry observers say the big deal to watch will be the baseball rights negotiations between CBS Radio's all-news WCBS New York and the Yankees. That pact is set to expire this year.

In the meantime, some team owners have decided to become station owners as well.

Washington Redskins football team owner Daniel Snyder has formed Red Zebra Broadcasting to buy stations and form his own O&O sports network. Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones is said to be pursuing a similar relationship for his football team.

The St. Louis Cardinals have ended their 60-plus-year relationship with CBS Radio news/talk KMOX St. Louis and entered into a 50% joint-ownership of CH Holdings' KTRS there.

And Los Angeles Angels owner Arte Moreno announced his intention to buy Spanish talk KMXE Los Angeles to have it serve as the flagship Spanish-language station for the team.

However, some of the traditional broadcast-rights deals are still getting done. And others are seeing the broadcasters walk away from the table.

GM-turned-consultant Jim Tazsarek says there is plenty of room left in the traditional rights deal for stations to make a profit: "It's really a matter of how you cost it out. You can't look at it as an accounting line item. If that were the way to look at it, then why do you pay lots of money to big morning teams?

"Sports is the finest cume-builder for morning drive ever invented," Tazsarek says, noting that fans tune in from virtually every format. "I get all those people to sample my station when they get up and listen in the morning. And there's no way to measure the value of that.

"So, is the deal a bad deal when I have to do revenue share? I don't know, but I sure know that when that team goes away, I'm just another talk station." —TONY SANDERS

n the online radio space, Clear Channel has been an innovator in the area of streaming, Web site development, video on demand, podcasting and such unique Web programs as "New!,"
"Stripped," "Sneak Peak" and "In Concert."

One of the key executives behind these efforts is Gerrit Meier, senior VP/GM of the company's Online Music & Radio division. He joined Clear Channel early last year after working in various digital strategy positions at EMI and BMG.

Among his first priorities was revamping and better standardizing the Web sites for the company's more than 1,200 radio stations. Until that time, he says, those sites had been "pretty much an afterthought."

That was indicative of the radio industry's overall feeling about the Internet at the time, Meier says. "Radio did not look at online as a natural extension of their brand."

Once the sites were relaunched, the next priority was to get the stations streaming. Today, nearly 550

Clear Channel stations are streaming their primary signals, and more than 100 HD-2 signals are also being repurposed online. The company also has more than 160 stations offering podcasts.

A big part of the process for the staff of the online unit was re-educating Clear Channel's radio programmers about the scope of their jobs.

"We started changing the way radio is being programmed and telling PDs, 'You're not just PD of a radio station over the airwaves, you're PD of a brand, independent of platform.'

Some PDs, he says, "took it and ran with it." Others were "a little more focused on their on-air audience [and wondered], 'What can online do for them?'"

But now, Meier says, with the help of his division, "our PDs are [utilizing] a lot of great, ondemand content, which is complementary to what they're putting on air."

That on-demand content includes several successful online shows and features. "Stripped" features exclusive, in-studio performances by top stars. "New!" is the company's developing artist program designed to give online exposure to selected signed and unsigned acts. "Sneak Peak" is an exclusive album listening feature available a few days before a CD hits stores. "In Concert" showcases video footage of various artists performing. The company also has close to 5,000 videos in its vault available for viewing on demand by its Web site visitors.

Clear Channel's Online Music & Radio division has developed good relationships with labels, which has helped it land quality content. "Record labels still want to develop artists, but they have less opportunity to do so," Meier says. He believes the Clear Channel online programming provides those additional opportunities. "This is all about positioning great content in front of fans."

Meier believes an enhanced Web product is crucial for keeping radio stations relevant. Today, he says, millions of people are going to other sites for news, weather and traffic information, things that were once radio's clear domain. "What we're showing our PDs is that [their] listeners have better opportunities [elsewhere] to get what they want when they want it, so the programming has to be there" on radio sites as well.

But, he emphasizes, "We're not building a onesize-fits-all approach. We believe the strength we have is the local brands, and our success is built on those brands."

Looking ahead, Meier says such things as an online music store, downloads, ringtones, concert tickets and non-music content could be the next step for his division.

"Across the board," he says, "we will not stop evolving."

LEE ABRAMS

It began with a Labor Day weekend 2000 bonfire in Lee Abrams' driveway. As Abrams and his newly hired XM Satellite Radio programmers tossed crusty old radio T-shirts and faded Burkhart/ Abrams memos into the flames, the troops were handed marching orders inscribed on dog tags: "Liberate radio."

Six years and 6.5 million subscribers later, XM pumps out a unique sound in radio. Channels are musically deeper and uncluttered. Imaging and production have more in common with the Firesign Theater comedy troupe than FM. The programming model is closer to cable TV than radio, with a lengthy menu of original specials used as prime-time listening magnets rather than ghettoized to low-listening dayparts. XM was first to offer six decades of era channels, and to slice format categories into the narrowest of shards.

Today, some HD

radio side channels sound eerily similar.

The mandate was to "rewrite the playbook for programming as listeners would be paying for the service, so it had to be significantly different," says Abrams, VP/chief creative officer. Today, Abrams says he works to "constantly reinforce the vision" and "inspire the staff to operate at an uncompromised high creative standard that creates fans, not simply listeners."

-PAUL HEINE

JEFF LITTLEJOHN

WHILE MUCH HAS BEEN MADE of Clear Channel's format lab, what has neglected to grab headlines is who will facilitate the distribution of this new content to the masses.

It's an old story, really—programming gets the glory, sales gets the money and engineers make it all happen.

Jeff Littlejohn is Clear Channel's executive VP for distribution development. He and his team find homes for what the company's programmers dream up. Generating content isn't his gig; getting it out there is.

And while those tall towers in big fields are still part of his purview—he previously served as the company's senior VP of engineering—Littlejohn is also charged with identifying and investigating new distribution methods for the massive amount of programming the company generates. His goal is to make radio available to listeners in every form that they want to consume it.

From Clear Channel's aggressive efforts in the high-definition arena to distribution deals with such cell-phone content companies as mSpot and Motorola's iRadio, Littlejohn is leading the charge. And he has the frequent flier miles to prove it.

leading the charge. And he has the frequent flier miles to prove it.

Working from his home base in Cincinnati, Littlejohn travels the country and the world in pursuit of matching content with technology. One week he's in Tokyo to meet with equipment manufacturers, the next he's in Detroit to confer with automakers. After that, it's on to company headquarters in San Antonio to update his bosses and then to New York to check what's cooking in the format lab.

In short, Littlejohn has a one-of-a-kind job. Or does he? Asked whether there are people in similar positions at other broadcast companies, Littlejohn pauses, not wanting to sound boastful. "Clear Channel tends to be a leader in those areas," he says.

WALTER SABO

WALTER SABO'S INFLUENCE as a programming consultant is extensive, especially in emerging forms of talk radio now showing up on FM.

Most recently, Sabo was brought in to collaborate on the development of Bonneville's cooperative venture with The Washington Post for news WTWP Washington, D.C. But as early as 1990, Sabo was influential in the development of FM talk on Millennium Radio WKXW (New Jersey 101.5) Trenton/Atlantic City, N.J.

Programmers experimenting with "conversation radio" targeted to women cite Sabo as an inspiration.

But he says, "All I have done is taken what I know about successful music programming and applied it to talk.

WKXW "is not a talk station," he says. "It's a top 40 station that doesn't play songs. It has reverb. It has playlists of topics that are tight as a drum." As for WTWP (Washington Post Radio), Bonneville VP of news and programming Jim Farley says Sabo provided the "inspiration."

Sabo Media also consults Sirius Satellite Radio's music, news and talk channels.

"Here's the challenge," Sabo says. "If you want to start a new format, you've got 40 or 50 radio stations, a thousand cable channels and a hundred magazines to compete with, so you'd better do something out of the box to make it bigger than life."

DANIEL ANSTANDIG

When he addressed 18,000 attendees at the 1998 Audio Engineering Society Conference in San Francisco, Daniel Anstandig was already a pioneer in the burgeoning concept of Internet radio, as founder/GM of Cleveland's Radio DAER, which boasted a cume of 1.2 million and sold advertising in six markets.

All that—and he did his homework, too. At the time, Anstandig was 15.

Now, on the eve of his 23rd birthday, the VP of adult formats for McVay Media, whose viewpoint continues to cast an innovative eye on the way the business is done, is almost an old hand in the broadcast business.

puts a hand up to doomsday forecasts for the radio industry: "I don't believe that radio will die a miserable traumatic death at the hands of iPods and Internet radio," he says. "Many broadcasters are distracted and mystified by the complexity of new technology, and they forget that we're still in content competition. If the programming was boring on terrestrial radio, it's going to be just as boring on Internet radio. People will gravitate to entertainment that personally engages them.

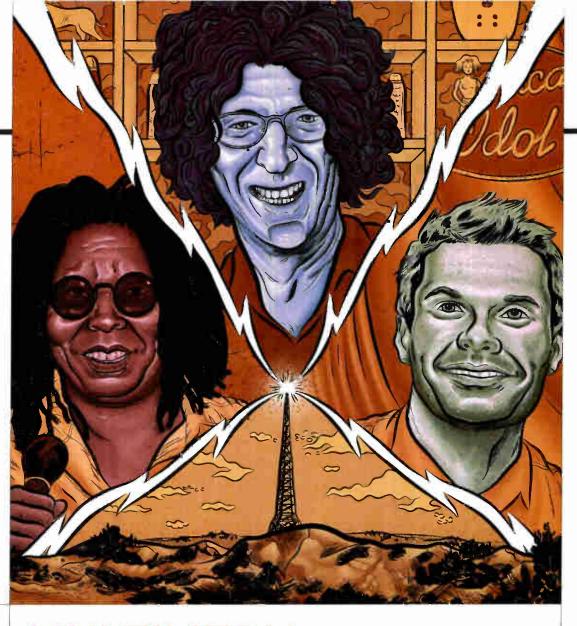

"The challenge for radio right now is not finding a way to recreate the same programming on a new device. The challenge is finding a way to create better programming and also making it accessible on a new device."

-TONY SANDERS

Anstandig spends about 30 weeks per year on the road consulting and ends up engaging some pretty unusual folks on his back-andforth flights.

"Recently, I found myself sitting next to the director of new business development for a toilet paper company," he says. "He shared with me that the brand usage for toilet paper is only 89% in America. The net takeaway for me was, 'Hmm, radio has 94% usage. If toilet paper has 89% usage, hey, we're doing pretty well.' " hile many prominent radio personalities have carved out secondary careers in other mediums, a recent flood of stars from films, TV, books and music have adopted radio as their next career frontier.

Industry observers say it is good for the medium to have well-known celebrities swelling radio's ranks, and just as good for radio personalities to branch out. But, they caution, celebrity will never be as much of a draw as real radio talent.

Explaining his company's recent hiring of actress Whoopi Goldberg to host a syndicated morning show, Clear Channel Radio president/CEO John Hogan says that in today's competitive environment, "star power isn't what you need. It's entertainment power . . . We didn't hire her for her name, we hired her because she can connect with an audience . . . Star power is a marketing gimmick. You've got to give [listeners] a reason to come back."

Among the pioneers in the multigenre game is the self-described "king of all media," Howard Stern, who has, over the years, expanded his radio franchise into film, TV and literary endeavors. "American Idol" host Ryan Seacrest is challenging Stern's "king" crown with his work in daily and syndicated radio, plus cable TV and even fashion.

His "AI" colleague, musician/producer Randy Jackson, hosts a syndicated radio show for Westwood One. Musician/TV personality/multiplatinum artist John Tesh has long hosted a syndicated radio show as well.

Actor/comedian Steve Harvey has a successful syndicated radio career. Glenn Beck and Jim Cramer are among the talk personalities who are stars of radio and TV. Air America's Al Franken has long made a living dividing time between TV and book projects.

More recent radio converts include Oprah Winfrey, who has a new deal with XM Satellite Radio and recently launched a radio division for her company, Harpo; and rock icon Bob Dylan, now hosting a weekly show on XM.

Even Opie & Anthony's unique deal to work in terrestrial and satellite radio via CBS and XM is further evidence that talented people need not be confined to one type of bullhorn (see story, page 13).

Edison Media Research VP of music and programming Sean Ross notes that hiring celebrity talent has "been a big part of the satellite radio game plan . . . And, as the Whoopi Goldberg hiring suggests, it's encouraging terrestrial broadcasters to raise the bar, too."

"Talented people are key," talk radio consultant Valerie Geller says, "but radio is just one medium that people use. Many talented communicators can adapt to many mediums."

Ross injects a cautionary note into Radio Monitor's trend spotting. "The danger . . . is that broadcasters view fame as a substitute for sounding good on the radio," he says. "The assumption has been that any celebrity is somehow more compelling than a mere DJ."

While Ross says celebrity personalities do "further develop radio into a national medium," they also "distract stations from developing new talent."

HELLO CLEVELAND; SO LONG, MODERN ROCK

CHART COMMENTARY BY JOE FLEISCHER

GOSH, I'M REALLY GOING TO MISS the modern rock format. Just thinking back to all the incredible music that started in this bold, groundbreaking community makes me kind of misty. But that was before MySpace, PureVolume, chat rooms, instant messaging, YouTube, you name it. Music discovery is clearly happening someplace else now. Tastemaking is not what modern rock does. Period. But it clearly could be playing what kids are downloading from the Internet and sharing with each other. And not to pick on Cleveland (because all the modern rock markets look pretty similar in terms of the disconnect between spins and downloads), but let's look at a couple of interesting numbers: 1) Eight of the top 15 most-downloaded songs received no spins last week in the market; and, 2) Only eight of the top 20 most-spun records are among the top 20 in downloading. I guess Modern Rock is going to cede ownership of the Emo Nation (Taking Back Sunday, Hawthorne Heights, etc.) to top 40 just like it did with Fall Out Boy and the All-American Rejects. And judging from the striking similarities of the top downloads and the top-spun records at top 40, it sure seems like top 40 is glad for the gesture. I guess if radio's No. 1 media market can do without modern rock, so can I.

AGUILERA RETURNS IN FINE FORM

Christina Aguilera makes a heady return to the Mainstream Top 40 chart as "Ain't No Other Man" (RMG) debuts at No. 21.

Aguilera's first solo appearance in more than two years is the highest debut by a female solo artist at the format since Alanis Morissette's "Thank U" entered at No. 19 in October 1998.

"Man" earns Most Airplay Adds honors for a second consecutive week and scores the Greatest Gainer title with an increase of 1,801 spins. That's the third-largest single-week gain for a female solo artist this decade, trailing Janet Jackson's 2,353-spin improvement with "All for You" in the March 2, 2001, issue and Madonna's 2,085-detection jump with "Die Another Day" in the Oct. 4, 2002, issue.

GNARLS BARKLEY FAST-TRACKED AT TRIPLE-A

Gnarls Barkley's "Crazy" (Lava) roars 7-1 at Triple-A, landing in the pole position in just three weeks. It's the fastest climb to the top since Coldplay's "Speed of Sound" also reached No. 1 in its third chart week in May 2005.

The six-position jump to No. 1 is the longest at Triple-A since U2's "Vertigo" leapt 8-1 in October 2004. "Crazy" is also making inroads at other formats, moving 25-18 at Adult Top 40 with Greatest Gainer, Most Airplay Adds and Airpower stripes. In addition, the track enters the Mainstream Top 40 chart at No. 40.

Elsewhere at Triple-A, Paul Simon hits the list for the first time in more than three years as "Outrageous" (Warner Bros.) debuts at No. 20. Simon last charted with "Father and Daughter," which peaked at No. 5 in February 2003.

Lil Jon Makes It In A 'Snap'

Lil Jon earns his second No. 1 as a lead artist at Rhythmic Top 40 as "Snap Yo Fingers" (TVT), featuring E-40 and Sean Paul of the Youngbloodz, jumps 2-1. The track's 14-week journey matches Lil Jon's previous trip to the top with "Lovers & Friends" in February 2005.

DEATH CAB RIDES AGAIN AT ADULT TOP 40

Death Cab for Cutie re-enters the Adult Top 40 chart at No. 34 with "Soul Meets Body" (Atlantic), besting its previous high of No. 36 that it established in February in a brief five-week chart run. "Soul" spent 10 weeks at No. 1 at Triple-A and hit No. 5 at Modern Rock this past winter. Its prior appearance on the Adult Top 40 chart was a byproduct of its success at those formats since Atlantic had yet to work it beyond the rock genre until recently.

Elsewhere, two bands earn their first chart hits at Adult Top 40 as Snow Patrol's "Chasing Cars" (Interscope) motors onto the list at No. 36 and Augustana's "Boston" (Epic) enters at No. 38.

Chesney's Chart-Toppers Are Mostly Multiweek

Up 2.4 million audience impressions in its 12th chart week, Kenny Chesney's "Summertime" (BNA) spends a second week atop the Country chart. The seasonal song is Chesney's 10th No. 1, and his eighth title to spend more than one week at the summit. So far, Chesney's longest No. 1 streak has been seven weeks, achieved by a pair of songs: "There Goes My Life" (2003) and "When the Sun Goes Down" (2004).

Also noteworthy on the Country list is Toby Keith's 32nd top 10 hit. "A Little Too Late" makes a timely move from 11-8 and takes the chart's biggest gain with an improvement of 2.8 million listener impressions. Another title moving along nicely is Brooks & Dunn's "Building Bridges" (Arista Nashville), which takes a second consecutive Most Airplay Adds crown. The song posted at least six first-time spins at 30 stations last issue, and nearly matches that total this week with an additional 28 monitored signals hitting the Airplay Adds threshold.

RICHIE TAKES 10 YEARS TO 'CALL' BACK

Lionel Richie takes a bow for the first time in almost 10 years at Adult R&B as "I Call It Love" (IDJMG) debuts at No. 29 with 233 spins. The song's detection count is the highest total for a debut since Stevie Wonder collected 418 plays with a No. 13 entry for "So What the Fuss" in the March 18, 2005, issue. Richie last spent time on the Adult R&B chart in September 1996, peaking at No. 29 with "Ordinary Girl."

BDS CERTIFICATIONS MAY 2006

The following are singles Nielsen Broadcast Data Systems recently recognized for certified airplay of 100,000 or more spins. The detection totals account for all spins on Nielsen Broadcast Data Systems' monitored panel of more than 1,200 radio stations in 128 markets across the United States and Canada, as well as airplay on monitored satellite stations and radio networks. The totals cover the period from a title's release through May 31.

BDS CERTIFICATIONS MAY 2006

The following are singles Nielsen Broadcast Data Systems recently recognized for certified airplay of 100,000 or more spins. The detection totals account for all spins on Nielsen Broadcast Data Sytems' monitored panel of more than 1,200 radio stations in 128 markets across the United States and Canada, as well as airplay on monitored satellite stations and radio networks. The totals cover the period from a title's release through May 31.

BDS CERTIFICATIONS MAY 2006

The following are singles Nielsen Broadcast Data Systems recently recognized for certified airplay of 100,000 or more spins. The detection totals account for all spins on Nielsen Broadcast Data Sytems' monitored panel of more than 1,200 radio stations in 128 markets across the United States and Canada, as well as airplay on monitored satellite stations and radio networks. The totals cover the period from a title's release through May 31.

Songs are tested online by PromoSquad using multiple listens and a nationwide sample of carefully profiled music consumers. Songs are rated on a 1-5 scale; final results are based on weighted positives. Songs with a score of 65 or more are judged to have Hit Potential, although that benchmark number can fluctuate per format based on the strength of available music, For a complete and updated list of current songs with Hit Potential, commentary, polls and more, please visit www.hitpredictor.com. © 2006.
