A large, black and white photograph of a crowd of people, likely at a concert or event, filling the right side of the page. The people are mostly seen from the back, with their arms raised, suggesting they are cheering or dancing. The image is slightly out of focus, creating a sense of a large, energetic gathering.

Thanks,
George,

WHERE'S DONALD?: One of these men is a U.S. congressman, Donald M. Payne from New Jersey. The others are members of XCLAN. The first reader to pick out the politician wins a New Year's turkey.

THE QUEEN: It was a sight that hasn't been seen in New York in so long that greying music industry pundits were blinking their eyes in amazement. There was Little Richard playing rock and roll in a nightclub. Not gospel music, not children's music, rock and roll. In a nightclub, Tramps.

Dressed in a fuschia jacket covered with rhinestone geegaws, his hair piled atop his enormous pancaked/eyelined face, Richard Penniman sat down at the piano during the first of four shows and pumped some astonishing licks into the room. It was a spectacle: Little Richard Penniman, the man whose 1950s Specialty Records can be called as close as anything to the one place where rock and roll was born, playing his hits. Well, kind of.

Listen, it was so thrilling to see Little Richard, who turned 60 three days before the gig ("Aren't I still pretty?" he asked about seven or eight times), that it was easy to overlook the truth: It was a pretty mediocre performance. Why? For one, crummy band (including two bassists and a clunky drummer; he needed the kind of kick-ass, house-rocking band that Fats Domino still leads). For two, he teased the audience by, at times, playing only bits of his hits (he just did the chorus of "Tutti Frutti," ignoring the gals named Daisy and Sue), instead spending time doing a long and lame country number and endless singalongs on "It's Only Rock and Roll" and "Blueberry Hill" (you figure it out). He even brought out a couple of dancers.

BUT, when Little Richard cut the crap and cut loose, he was wailing. His voice was as raw and wild as in his heyday and his piano playing—real rock and roll piano playing, full of trills and splashes and thumping New Orleans rhythms—was as hot as a fever. If he would get serious and pile more of his great old records into his set and get himself a band—hey, if he's going to do "Blueberry Hill" let him use Fats' band—Little Richard could give some lessons in real deal rock and roll. But, instead, he'll probably buy himself a synagogue (he's Jewish these days, you know) and go back into the religion business. Ah, rootie.

THE KING: Here's a reason to look forward to 1993: Elvis, USA. Are you curious about the Elvis Potato, sitting in a general store in Connecticut? Or the 5,000-pound Elvis sculpture in Seneca, Illinois (no jokes about that being a real-sized statue, now)? Or the Black Elvis or Mexican Elvis or the woman who curates the Traveling Panoramic Encyclopedia of Everything Elvis? Good. On Jan. 8 at 8:05 p.m. (ET), TBS will air a Paul Provenza-hosted tour of the United States of Elvis. Like the recession, Elvis Presley just won't go away. Welcome him into your home this January—grill up a pile of peanut butter and banana sandwiches and settle down in front of that TV. Trust me, you'll be glad you did.

By Randy Clark

LEGENDARY DRUMMER JEFF PORCARO was honored last week in a 3 1/2 hour, star-studded tribute held at the Universal Amphitheatre with proceeds from the event to benefit surviving family members and help set up an education fund for his three young sons, Christopher, Miles and Nico. Porcaro died unexpectedly of a heart attack on August 5, 1992 at his home in Southern California.

The audience was filled with musicians and admirers of Porcaro's vast work as one of the industry's most in-demand studio musicians as well as a founding member of the multi-award-winning, rock/fusion group Toto.

I couldn't help but think as the show went on, this was one gig Porcaro would have given anything to play himself, not only to back up his group (who fronted the entire show) one last time, but to jam alongside the stars who showed up to pay their respects.

First of the guest stars to appear was Michael McDonald (who has lent his voice to a Toto project or two) singing his hits "I Keep Forgettin'" and "Takin' It To The Streets" with David Crosby singing backup. Next out was Donald Fagen of Steely Dan (with whom Porcaro played) making a rare appearance to an appreciative crowd.

Boz Scaggs was also on hand to perform "Lowdown" and "Lido Shuffle" from his 1976 smash Silk Degrees album. Don Henley offered up his "Dirty Laundry" and a brow-furrowing rendition of "Come Rain Or Come Shine." (Don't ask, I don't know why he chose that one either.) Joining Toto frontman and lead guitarist Steve Lukather for a dueling ax version of Jimi Hendrix's "Let Me Stand Next To Your Fire" was the always happy Eddie Van Halen who managed to raise the stage volume to near ear-splitting levels, and stayed on stage to accompany Toto on their first hit, "Hold The Line."

Other Toto hits performed naturally included "Roseanna," "Africa," and "I'll Be Over You." Considering Porcaro's death came after a commitment to tour the Far East, this tribute was sadly, but befittingly rumored to be the last official Toto concert. Filling in for Jeff on drums was Simon Phillips who had to feel almost as strange sitting in that seat as I did watching this show, seated right behind Porcaro's wife and kids.

The show was capped off with special guest George Harrison joining in on guitar for a line-swapping, Joe Cocker arrangement of "A Little Help From My Friends" between Lukather, Scaggs, Henley, McDonald and Crosby, with the entire crowd on their feet.

Yeah, it was a bang-up show that ol' Jeff must have looked down on with a face filled with smiles and tears. Being a great talent and dying at a young age is sad enough, but much worse is how it affects those left behind who loved him personally. Even though for most, this was to be a celebration of his outstanding career, for me, seeing his widowed wife Susan and young sons watch the show during this holiday season gave a more serious perspective to the evening's tribute, that really only scratched the surface of just how tragic his passing truly was. May God bless the Porcaro family.

As for the rest of us... well, take care of you and yours... enjoy your holidays, and I'll be back, right here... next year...

MUSIC REVIEWS

By Randy Clark

SINGLES

ANNIE LENNOX: "Little Bird" (Arista ASCD-2508)

Annie's solo platinum-plus Divas album is surely setting her apart from the success she achieved as the better half of the Eurythmics. Pumping the effort for yet another hit single, Lennox has enlisted the orchestral stylings of Michael Kamen for the single remix of this latest beat-laden, pop/rock ditty penned by Annie herself. Although slightly less artsy musically than the first two singles, "Little Bird" has wings of its own. Stephen Lipson produces.

NEIL YOUNG: "Harvest Moon" (Reprise PRO-CD-5811)

The title track from Neil's latest release is a laid-back, campfire-inspired acoustic love ballad more in line with the Young of old and a comfortable stretching departure from the angrier Neil of late. Young's familiar nasal twang is backed by an almost island/folksy feel with a harmonica interlude on the long edit and album version included along with the shorter radio edit on the CD single. Neil writes and produces along with Ben Keith.

JOURNEY: "Lights" (Columbia CSK 4920)

There are two versions of this re-issued, re-packaged single taken from Journey's upcoming Time 3 boxed set. There's a live version (produced by Kevin Elson) from the Captured album and the studio version (produced by Roy Thomas Baker) from the Infinity lp. Although it's nice to hear Steve Perry's ample chops again having not heard them for some time, but still, no one will ever be able to tell me he wasn't trying to sound like Sam Cooke all along.

MITCH MALLOY: "Our Love Will Never Die" (RCA RDJ 62373-2)

Well you can't say RCA isn't giving its best shot with this guy. It's too bad there just isn't anything distinguishable about ol' Mitch. This is the fourth single off his self-titled album, and even though he's scared up some chart action in the past, the songs don't get very high or stay very long. "Our Love Will Never Die" will probably fare equally, if that. The maudlin rock ballad has precious little to offer we haven't already heard. Sir Arthur Payton produces.

GODDESS: "Sexual" (Big Beat/Atlantic PRCD 4877)

Jumping onto the Top 100 last week, this singer from Amsterdam, Holland made her U.S. singles debut at #94 and continues her climb upward this week to #75. The dance-oriented Goddess combines a little romantic history rap with her hard-drivin' dance grooves and heavy breathing. The single is the first release off The Sexual Album her introductory lp. The five mixes on the CD single should keep club DJs busy and happy. Rob Bolland & Ferdi Bolland produce.

WILDSIDE: "Just Another Night" (Capitol DPRO-79562)

Even though this is the third single from Wildside's debut album Under The Influence, this track probably represents the best breakout potential for the young hard-rock band. "Just Another Night" is a power ballad of anthemic proportions and should fit right into most AOR playlists. And why not?... Singer Benny Rhyndance bears more than a slight vocal resemblance to Axl Rose. Wildside is produced by legendary British knob-god, Andy Johns (Led Zeppelin, Rolling Stones).

ALBUMS

JOHN WESLEY HARDING: Why We Fight (Sire/Reprise 9 45032-2)

Poet and truth seeker, Harding's (whose real name is Wes Stace) fifth release is amply dubbed "folk noir." His 12-cut lp is a collection of clever observations and acoustic storytelling sung with an Elvis Costello-esque voice. There are entire songs based on irony and some solely on farce but all ring of truth and inspire thought, or at least an acknowledgement of the mind who created these songs. Steve Berlin (Los Lobos, Dave Alvin, Test Crash Dummies) produces.

MICHAEL NESMITH: Tropical Campfire's (Pacific Arts PAAD-5000)

Yes, you're reading the facts. The Grammy-winning, former Monkee Mike's latest album has an island feel to it. The home video pioneer has written nine of the 12-cuts on the album, which he also produces on his own label. Interestingly enough he's chosen to include tropical versions of two Cole Porter classics, "In The Still Of The Night," and "Begin The Beguine." Surrounding himself with top-notch musicians helps, but we're still talking Mike Nesmith's voice here.

SUPREME LOVE GODS: Supreme Love Gods (Def American 9 45073-2)

Here's a debut album from four guys who should have called themselves the Supreme Groove Gods. This is post-modern, alternative pop with roots in late '60s psychedelia mixed with modern hallucinogenic, English-flavored dance grooves that will make you want to go dig up your old bong and lava lamp. The 10 tracks each contain a life of their own, yet somehow manage to stay consistent in style and identifiability. The group produces themselves along with some cat named Stoker.

INSPIRAL CARPETS: Revenge Of The Goldfish (Mute/Elektra 9 61397-2)

Although definitely Manchester in sound and style, (Smiths, Morrissey, et al.) there is a more aggressive/punkish energy coming off this latest effort from these British wavers. Revenge Of The Goldfish's 12 tracks, although perhaps inspired performances, are less than inspirational. The album follows last year's The Beast Inside lp, which failed to stir up more than cultish sales figures here in the States. Pascal Gabriel (S'Express, EMF) produces.

YOUNG TURK: N.E. 2nd Ave. (Virgin America V2-86350)

While listening to this debut album from the Miami-based, Cuban-American band, you'd think they spend most of their time listening to old Rolling Stones records... and it's very clear that's who they would most like to sound like. But upon closer scrutiny of the songs and lyrics, there is an individual identity there, they just choose to cover it up by imitating the Stones (or Black Crowes, if you must) musically. The 14-cut lp is produced by Carl Canedy and Young Turk.

JULIAN COPE: Jehovahkill (Island 314-514 052-2)

Julian Cope has never been afraid to reveal himself through his music. His career has spanned over a dozen albums in as many years, most of which are mirrors of his inner art, anger, sociological frustration, or whatever else he's going through at the moment. This 16-track CD encourages self-discovery (a period of which he currently must be deeply immersed) by challenging tradition and surface beliefs. Eclectic? Yes. Commercial? Not in this lifetime. Donald Ross Skinner and Julian Cope produce.

PICK OF THE WEEK:

KING MISSILE: Happy Hour (Atlantic 7 82459-2)

It would be impossible to listen to the latest album from King Missile and not have an opinion about it. Frontman/lyricist, John S. Hall has outdone himself on this 18-track effort, launching himself onto what has to be the throne of alternative music/storytelling. Already soaring to the top of alternative and college radio playlists is first single, "Detachable Penis" and it would be anybody's guess what could be next. It won't be "Martin Scorsese" which is one of several selections which contain explicit lyrics (so what's the big surprise?). All in all Happy Hour is an interesting and entertaining listening experience... one you might have to read along with. Kramer, Steve Watson and King Missile produce.

An Unfinished Song

By Robert Adels

Bailey (l) and Mellon

TIFFANY THEATER, WEST HOLLYWOOD, CA—There's no big dance number. The central character dies before the action starts. And both of the leads are gay. An Unfinished Song is a different kind of musical. And "viva la difference!"

Instead of another boy-meets-girl musical with cookie-cutter conflicts, this boy-leaves-boy tragedy provides riveting, against-all-odds realism. This is a love story that works regardless of your own sexual orientation—and one that achieves its ends with a minimum of politically correct preaching.

Despite the fact that its playwright is also its director, star, composer (and the real-life partner of his character's on-stage love interest), An Unfinished Song avoids the look of a vanity piece. It rises above its potentially self-involved self as quickly and successfully as Holly Near's recent autobiographical musical Fire In The Rain.

As playwright, James J. Mellon draws upon his own life experiences as a creative hyphenate (singer-songwriter-actor-director) to create characters who come from both the male and female, gay and heterosexual, coupled and single, show-biz and 9-to-5 communities. And it only takes him five characters to portray them all.

Mellon presents this cross-cultural quintet as a group of friends whose relationships are charged with jealousies, both professional and sexual. Separately and together, they are forced to deal with the death of Michael (played by Mellon), the struggling musician (and for some, ex-loser). A seamless web of flashback and real-time scenes ties Michael's life and death together with the hopes and dreams of the four he's left behind.

As director, Mellon assembles and guides a cast that quickly makes you care about all five characters. As composer, he gives some of his best songs away to fellow cast members.

Liz McCartney (Beth) becomes a female Danny Kaye in the tongue-twisting, rapid-fire "Frying Pan"—but also shows her romantic side in the show-stopping "New Hampshire Nights." Robin Taylor (Debbie) simultaneously sends up Laurie Anderson and empty-headed bimbo everywhere with her hilarious "Blond Haired Babies." Ron La Rosa (Brad) adds to the intricate ensemble work of "Balance The Plate," a Mellon song whose originality recalls some of Sondheim's best.

When Mellon's character Michael sings his own love ballad ("Crossing Boundaries") to Worth (Kevin Bailey), most of the audience is too wrapped up in emotion to break the mood with applause. Just enough of the honesty from Mellon & Bailey's off-stage relationship comes through to quell any "oh my God!" gut-level reactions from conservative factions in the audience.

Can a show in which two men kiss passionately possibly play in Peoria? The answer is probably yes, since prior to its L.A. opening, An Unfinished Song enjoyed a successful run in the heart of George Bush country (Portland, Maine).

The only true shock value in this musical is the shock of recognition that La Cage and even Falsettos are not the last word in gay-themed musicals. There's already talk of an Unfinished Song cast album, multi-market tour, and film. Even if Mellon fails to capture that triple crown this time around, his new work has already brought the American musical out of the closet and into a new era of honesty.

KROQ Acoustic Xmas

By Hilarie Grey

Michael Penn

THE UNIVERSAL AMPHITHEATRE, UNIVERSAL CITY, CA—The second night of popular L.A. alternative radio station KROQ's 3rd annual Acoustic Xmas had all of the excitement of a holiday morning, with an enthused audience of revelers showing up early to eagerly unwrap unexpected stocking-stuffer treasures, in breathless anticipation of The Big Gift (in this case, an "unplugged" set by alternative rock pioneers Duran Duran).

What the crowd encountered along the way was a well-paced and balanced collection of short sets from nine other artists, from English band The Farm (Sire), whose "All Together Now" set the happy and cozy tone, to Santa Barbara's Toad the Wet Sprocket (Columbia). Flanked by a pair of huge lighted Christmas trees and backed by a woodsy, snowdrifts-and-pine stage set, all of the performers were served well by the loose acoustic atmosphere which allowed both melody and personality to shine through.

The seven-hour show's many treats included an engaging set by I.R.S. recording artists Dada, who showcased their darkly witty hit "Dizz Knee Land" alongside a cute tale about a girlfriend falling for Santa Claus, and a cynical look at city life—"Here Today, Gone Tomorrow"—set in a jazzy shuffle with two-part vocal harmony. Blending voices was also the key to the multi-cultural folk lilt of The Rembrandts (Atco). Their gently swaying Everly Brothers-meets-The Chieftans presentation of "an ancient Irish Christmas song," "I'll Come Calling" was beautiful and fun.

Stripped of their psychedelic dance trappings, Scotland's Soup Dragons (Mercury) played terrific, soulful and spare, open versions of hits "Sweet Divine Thing" (which also benefitted from extra-shimmery light percussion) and "I'm Free," which turned into a fireside-style sing-a-long. Seal (Sire), in a stately suit and top hat, also gained immediacy in the acoustic guitar and piano frame. A sparse accompaniment drove a haunting version of "Crazy," but a beautiful reading of David Bowie's "Space Oddity," stunning everyone in the house, was his set's highlight.

Another surprise was last-minute add The Cult (Sire) in an uncharacteristically laid-back attitude. It was a pleasure to watch the normally metal-edged group turn into a rollicking bar band, complete with honky tonk piano, to cover the Doors' "Roadhouse Blues."

Substantial liberties were taken with the "acoustic evening" label by The Cult, as well as Adam Ant, who, in his first concert appearance in five years (though we've seen him lately on TV's Northern Exposure and Tales From The Crypt) was the true star of the show. The former punk-pop king rallied the crowd with sexy, provocative vocals and moves, offering guitar-driven readings of the now classic "Desperate But Not Serious" and "Goody Two Shoes," and promising a full-scale tour in the spring.

The Acoustic Xmas, with proceeds benefitting the L.A. Coalition to End Homelessness and Heal the Bay, was capped by sets from singer/songwriter Michael Penn (RCA), and the much-anticipated Duran Duran. Straight off a plane from San Francisco, Penn offered great versions of the dark "Long Way Down (Look What The Cat Dragged In)" and the breezy "Brave New World," among others.

Duran Duran, augmented by a three-piece string section, treated the audience to unusual reworkings of "Hungry Like The Wolf" and "Save A Prayer," which featured gorgeous and eerie solo work by guitarist Andy Taylor. The band previewed a pair of songs from their upcoming Capitol release, but received the biggest response for a hard-hitting, multi-textured version of "Rio," proving that there's no equal to a classic, time-tested gift for the holidays.

INDIE

Into The Void

By John Carmen

ALONG WITH THE CLUBS— and fanzines, college and public radio are the main source of exposure for the indies.

Beginning in the middle of the '70s, in San Francisco at KUSF and Boston at WTBS (who later lost their call letters to Ted Turner, and became WMBR-FM), the college stations were the first to play the groundbreakers in punk and other out-there musical genres.

Now taken as a vital step in busting outta the obscurity of one's hometown, the entire national network of these stations is a crucial crucible, worked by the majors at the grass-roots level (as commercial radio play and MTV play is more tightly formatted than it has ever been), as well the indies whose music may never see a commercial playlist.

Out of the thousands of li'l fish in this mega-pond, the strangest may be the Cocktail Hour, a one-hour show produced by Bob Blackburn and Tequila Mockingbird out of Valencia, California. As part of the Becker Satellite network located in Houston, Kansas, the Cocktail Hour can be heard by anyone with a satellite dish anywhere on the planet, and likely has been. "I have no idea where we get heard," says Blackburn. A full-time engineer for Becker, and a son of a former Seattle Supersonics broadcaster, this is, like virtually every other music addict, a labor of love. "Becker provides, sends to all kinds of stations, from Adult Contemporary to Jazz to Oldies, to whatever. What we do, is tape our shows, and then send them out via transponder."

Naturally, Blackburn would like to syndicate. "We've gotten feedback from Europe," he says, "as well as the most obscure little towns in the U.S., from Idaho to Maine. It's really intense!"

The fare on The Cocktail Hour is, for the most part, L.A. underground bands. "We've had the Creamers up here, and the Muffs, too," says Blackburn. "I try to stick to the people I really like, maybe throwing in a little humor, some Dean Martin, whatever." Despite the focus of the program being entirely L.A.-based underground acts, efforts to find the show a local home in L.A. have been particularly difficult. "We've approached KXLU and KCRW to no avail," says the engineer. "We've even thought about buying time on KIEV-AM, which is what everyone else does. Hopefully, it will catch on, on its own."

(The Cocktail Hour is on four times a week, twice on Saturdays, Sundays at eight, and replayed Wednesdays on the Becker Satellite Network.)

Les Miserables

By Fred L. Goodman

Dave Clemmons (l) as Valjean; Chuck Wagner as Javert

PANTAGES THEATRE, HOLLYWOOD, CA—It's been nearly six years since the pop opera Les Miserables debuted on Broadway and garnered eight Tonys including Best Musical (besting Phantom of the Opera). Since then, the Cameron Mackintosh presentation has been seen all over the world and has become a modern classic, just like the Victor Hugo novel upon which it is based.

This particular production is the third one to be mounted in the Los Angeles area, and it proves equal to the task. The elaborate sets, including the monstrous barricade, are as overpowering as those on the Broadway stage—and this national touring stop is only for four weeks!

The actors are all highly polished, with some performances surpassing those of the original cast. Dave Clemmons does a terrific job in the demanding role of hero Jean Valjean; ditto Chuck Wagner as antagonist Inspector Javert. Angela Pupello is an engaging Eponine, especially on the heart-wrenching solo, "On My Own." Jill Geddes as Fantine nearly steals the show with a knockout reading of "I Dreamed A Dream."

The entire score of Les Miserables (by Alain Boubil, Claude-Michel Schonberg and Herbert Kretzmer) is one of the strongest in decades. For nearly three hours of continuous music, a whirlwind of melody and lyric sweeps the narrative along through themes of redemption, romance and revolution in entertaining and highly emotional directions. A truly marvelous masterpiece.

VIDEO REVIEWS

By Milt Petty

MUSIC VIDEO PRODUCT just keeps on coming. There doesn't seem to be any down-time for this relatively new industry market. By contrast, feature films are typically released by Christmas so they can get Academy Award consideration, and if not, held back until the Christmastime films play out their welcome in early February. Similarly, the release of new audio product slows to a crawl in early December, and doesn't pick up until the third week of January, or so.

But any time seems to be the right time for the long-form music vid biz. The best release date seems to be whenever the product is ready. And, as often as not, the product is not quite ready when originally hoped for.

With that in mind, let's clear the decks of 1992 by passing on an opinion or three about several important and recently released long forms we have not previously commented upon, so we can move on to the brand new stuff that will come our way before Elvis' birthday.

N.W.A. takes first prize in the most outrageous category. In fact, most of EFILAZAGGIN on Priority Video ($19.95) might otherwise be seen only on the Playboy Channel's Hot Rocks show or similarly uncensored outlets. The hour-long video revels in its explicitness and features extended versions of previous videos made for "Appetite For Destruction," "Always Into Somethin'" and "Approach To Danger," additional live concert footage, nasty pajama and lingerie parties, bare bikini competitions and around-the-pool tomfoolery. This is apparently a group that can't decide if it wants to make meaningful street poetry about important societal issues or just celebrate sex, drugs and rap 'n' roll.

Versatile rock guitarist Joe Satriani is profiled on Satch Tapes. This 50-minute ($19.95) Relativity Video release includes performance footage (both acoustic and electric), conversations with Joe about music and life, behind-the-scenes stuff shot at recording sessions with producer Andy Johns for his new Extremist album and short vids released in conjunction with earlier records Surfing With The Alien and Flying In A Blue Dream. A good job was done by all, but vid is for those who attend the Guitarists-are-Gods seminary.

Hot on the music vid charts and following on the heels of his recent NBC-TV special October 28 is Michael Bolton's

This Is Michael Bolton on Sony Music Video ($19.98), which, alas, is just a re-edit and fleshed-out version of the TV show. Just as CDs frequently arrive with a sales pitch that a song or two is included that isn't on a corresponding cassette release (not so common now, of course, with CD sales such a large percentage of total audio sales), video long forms are often slightly padded versions of material that was originally conceived for another medium and that you might very well have taped. Thus, This Is Michael Bolton includes 40 minutes of stuff not seen on TV, including three songs and more candid interview footage. If you like Bolton, and millions apparently do, you couldn't ask for more.

Also on Sony Music Video is Bruce Springsteen In Concert: MTV

FILM/VIDEO/TV

Unplugged ($24.98). As everyone who cares knows by now, Springsteen's performance for Unplugged (which has become every major music home video company's favorite show) was quite plugged, indeed. Vid finds Springsteen and current band in road-tested form on 18 songs, equally divided between the old and the new. "Red Headed Woman" and "Light Of Day" haven't previously appeared in audio release. A must for all Springsteen fans who aren't carrying a torch for Clarence Clemons and the other E Streeters. Laserdisc owners might want to wait for the January release in that vastly superior format.

Garth Brooks' This Is Garth Brooks on Liberty Video ($24.98), comfortably ensconced on long form charts in the same manner as his audio product, is exactly what his fans might order, a straightforward concert presentation that goes a long way toward explaining the Brooks phenomena. At 85-minutes this one costs a little more, but for even the casual fan is worth the price. Ten years from now, you can watch this to remember what all the fuss was about in country music circa '92, in the same way Urban Cowboy had its finger on the pulse of an earlier, less permanent country spurt.

Warner Home Video has recently-released vids for two of its longtime roster acts. Chicago's And The Band Played On ($19.98), was recorded live at Pine Knob in suburban Detroit, MI. Hour-long vid includes generous amount of its best known material along with band interviews. Chicago certainly deserves a vid profile. In fact, a longer vid, chronicling its entire history would make interesting viewing.

Because they are a product of the music vid age, the now defunct Smiths' Complete Video Collection ($19.98) is a collection of its short forms and Derek Jarman's film The Queen Is Dead, which includes the title song as well as "There Is A Light" and "Panic." This long form conveys the alienated angst of Morrissey's vocals and commercial guitar sound of Johnny Marr for what should have been a superstar act and maybe the best of its general category in the '80s.

Time To Pick The Best Of The Best

By Milt Petty

BEFORE YOU READERS GROW TOO TERRIBLY TIRED of what will soon be the ubiquitous Best Of 1992 lists of every media outlet in the country, Cash Box wishes to indulge itself in same. Keep in mind that the opinions expressed below imply no endorsement on behalf of the staff, nor a slight to numerous other terrific films and performances, just the mid-to-late December whimsy of one writer who makes no pretense at being another James Agee.

Don't you distrust those critics who include on their "best of the year" lists a bunch of movies that very few people have seen and which were released by the smaller studios. Agreed, art is where you find it, but we're sticking to the popular entertainments for this particular summary.

That said, there are a couple of possible contenders we haven't seen, which may require some slight adjustments after the holidays—some Monday morning quarterbacking as it were—but for now, please see Cash Box's year-end, best-of picks for 1992 in several categories. Choices are in no particular order of preference.

Best Picture: 1. Malcolm X 2. A Few Good Men 3. Unforgiven 4. Damage 5. Hoffa.

Best Actor: 1. Denzel Washington, (Malcolm X) 2. Clint Eastwood, (Unforgiven) 3. Jack Nicholson, (Hoffa) 4. Tim Robbins, (The Player / Bob

RHYTHM & BLUES

TOP 75 R&B ALBUMS

By M.R. Martinez

THE RHYTHM

Atlantic recording artist Chuckii Booker (l) got Nice 'N Wild (the title of his current album) recently when he stopped in at MTV studios to guest on the Fade To Black program where he was interviewed by guest host Bobby Brown. He discussed his high-charting single "Games" and the next track from the collection, "I Should Have Loved You."

SEASON OF KINDNESS: As we were preparing to go to press for the finale of 1992, with Christmas a blink of an eye on the horizon, a New Year of hope dawning, and a new president to be inaugurated in January, it was good to see that some artists give more than lip service to the idea of "giving back to the community." Hammer, through his nearly year-long performance tour, asked his fans to donate food to be distributed to the needy in the cities where he performed. It was a large success. And more recently, in this season of giving, Antonio "L.A." Reid and Kenneth "Babyface" Edmonds—through their LaFace Records—scheduled a special concert in Atlanta as part of a drive to raise $35,000 for needy families in the city's Red Oak and Boatrock housing projects. The aid will be serviced through the Hands on Atlanta.

Held at the College Park Auditorium, the concert featured LaFace artists TLC and Toni Braxton and special guests, the Atlanta-natives Kris Kross, ABC, II Close, and the maestros themselves, L.A. and Babyface. Others in the entertainment business who also donated money to the cause included Eddie Murphy, Whitney Houston, producer Dallas Austin, After 7, Arista Records, Rowdy Records, Sony Music and Tabu Records.

In Los Angeles, the Highland Jazz Society and Gaspard, McFarland & Associates presented the "Sheryl Lee Ralph & Denzel Washington Children's Toy Drive," which featured Atlantic Records artist Bobby Lyle, Elektra recording artist Howard Hewitt, Atlantic recording artist The Real Seduction, and Epic Records act Denetria Champ during an extravaganza that also included a special reception, fashion show and dance. Founded in 1985, Ralph and Washington plan to purchase Christmas toys for less fortunate inner-city youth. The event was held in downtown L.A. at the Los Angeles Hilton & Towers.

While we're sure that there was a myriad of other such efforts waged throughout the holidays (and we don't intend to slight anyone), these featured functions represented a diverse effort meant to benefit a broad range of people. Which is in the spirit of the season and reflects hope.

SILVER IMAGE: As part of its Silver Anniversary celebration, the NAACP Image Awards will present superstar Michael Jackson with its "Silver Anniversary Entertainer of the Year Award" when the civil rights advocacy group presents other entertainers with awards January 16, 1993 at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium. In announcing that Jackson would receive the award, NAACP national board chairman Dr. William F. Gibson said, "We honor him for his great talent, and we heartily salute him for his generosity to others as well." Jackson's worldwide tour has generated donations to organizations that benefit children and has donated much money to a variety of charity groups. Impressed with his artistry and generosity, the youth of Romania—hundreds of fans in Bucharest—recently marched through the central district promoting Michael Jackson to receive the Nobel Peace Prize.

And on that note, I'll see ya' next year.

THE RHYME

By M.R. Martinez

MCA recording artists Brotherhood Creed recently congratulated Ronnie Devoe of Bell, Biv, Devoe on the release of the hit Gangsta. The Brotherhood Creed have been making noise with the single "Helluva" and are in studio working on their follow-up album. Pictured are (l-r): Shy Tai of Brotherhood Creed; Hosh Gurell, music director at KMEL/San Francisco; The Mack of Brotherhood Creed; and Ronnie Devoe.

SOUND NIBBLES: Hip-hop will be featured in a special being executive-produced for HBO Independent Productions by award-winning producer Suzanne de Passe with Maynell Thomas, who co-executive produced the Damon Wayans vehicle Mo' Money. On Dec. 14, HBO Indie held open auditions in Los Angeles where several hip-hop hopefuls performed. The special is to feature the whole spectrum of hip-hop culture, including music, dance, comedy and performance...The Cultural Initiative's Howard University Hip-Hop Conference will be held February 18-20 at the university...On a related Cultural Initiative note, Ceeon Quiet, who had served as the director of public relations for the Hip-Hop conference, has been hired by Black Entertainment Television (BET) as public relations coordinator for music & video...Lisa Lisa of Cult Jam fame recently inked a deal with Pendulum Records. The Elektra Records-affiliated label president and CEO Ruben Rodriguez said of the signing, "It's a great feeling and honor to be reunited with Lisa Lisa. Together, we shared multi-platinum success. She has always been on the cutting edge of music. I welcome her to the Pendulum family." Lisa's debut disc for the company is set for an August 1993 release...Arrested Development, whose fortunes soared throughout the year, is featured on the cover of Spin's January issue...Releases to Watch: Onyx has just released its debut single "Throw Your Gunz," the first track from its JMJ Records album Bacdafucup. The music is hardcore, not for tender ears or faint sensibilities. The album is due in late January...4th & B'way Records has just released a disc by L.A.-based underground rappers Freestyle Fellowship, titled, "Bullies On The Block." Already the toast of the Los Angeles press cogniscenti, Freestyle members consider themselves modern-day storytellers and messengers of the urban Good News. Thusly, the title of their forthcoming album is Inner City Griots.

Several music artists recently became sales clerks for a day at four record store chains in New York City as part of "CounterAID," one-day fund-raiser for LIFEbeat, an organization established last year by the music industry to support those living with HIV/AIDS. Atlantic Records had several artists manning the sales counters, including First Priority/Atlantic recording artist MC Lyte. Pictured at an HMV store on Manhattan's East Side are (l-r): Foreigner's Mick Jones, "Stuttering John" Melendez, MC Lyte, and Dave "The Snake" Sabo and Sebastian Bach of Skid Row.

CASH BOX R&B

50 Years of Black Music Changes in coverage of Black music reflect shift of African-American music to mainstream

By M.R. Martinez

CLUBS AND JUKE JOINTS, AT ONE TIME, were the most prolific outlets for Black music. Radio and television were not the factors they have become today. And at the core of charting the commercial popularity of Black music was the New York-based coin trade Cash Box, which stood out as the voice for coin operators whose routes covered everything from the latest pinball machines to state-of-the-art jukeboxes. What the coverage reflected was the popularity of music—first, and foremost—and also the divisionism between black and white artists. In 1942 through late 1944, the trade newsletter focused on the hardware of the coin industry. But, on November 7, 1944, Cash Box bowed its "Disc Hits Box Score," featuring the Top 45 records that caused Rock-Ola and Wurlitzer operators' coin boxes to go "cha-ching."

In those days, the top songs were listed, and underneath each were the names of the various artists that had covers of those tunes in the jukes. The number two song that week was "Is You Is, Or Is You Ain't," which was charted by three records. The white, or "mainstream" version, was recorded by Bing Crosby and The Andrews Sisters and two other popular versions were recorded by Black artists Louis Jordan and the Cootie Williams Orchestra. Such ironic inclusionism and separatism was a common practice through the various incarnations of Cash Box coverage.

THE CASH BOX Race Record Reviews

After the war, during the birth of the baby boom, Jim Crowism—meaning separate bathrooms, passenger train cars, nightclubs, radio and jukeboxes—continued to flourish. In the ensuing years, Cash Box opened a "Race Record O' The Week" category among its reviews. While the jukebox charts continued to reflect the top songs, also listing the various covers of that title which were popular, soon after there were separate charts for those discs that were favored by a survey of predominantly black coin-op routes. "Hot In Harlem," "Hot On Chicago's Southside," "Hot in New Orleans" and "Hot On Central Ave." were among the major black music regional charts offered by Cash Box.

The charts were dominated by the sounds of jazz and blues bands and jazz and rhythm & blues soloists. While many records—particularly those by Nat King Cole, Sarah Vaughn, Dinah Washington, Billy Eckstine and orchestras led by Duke Ellington, Count Basie and Lionel Hampton—crossed over, they were in most cases not the most popular tunes on the "Hot" charts.

On July 9, 1949, "Race Records" gave away to "Jazz 'N Blues Records of the Week." But the regional charts retained the "Hot" flavor until the mid-'50s when Cash Box delineated its surveys along the lines of popular, country, classical and jazz, but gave an entire, separate section to "Rhythm 'N Blues." In addition to a broader breakout of regional rankings, the top 15 R&B songs were listed. Sextets, quintets, quartets, trios, duos and soloists began to dominate the charts that were once ruled by big bands and orchestras, reflecting a fundamental shift in the notion of popular music. That rhythm & blues had its own section seemingly reflected a nation still divided along racial lines. Songs made popular by black artists were still covered for the pop audience by major white stars. But increasingly, records by Black artists began to appear on the popular charts, regardless of the kind of music they performed. Another significant development was a regional breakout on radio airplay that featured Black playlists and a network of mom and pop retail outlets as part of the Cash Box survey.

Jazz 'n Blues Review ★ AWARD O' THE WEEK

During the latter part of the decade, the publication integrated reviews of all product, reduced the R&B section to regional breakout lists, and included R&B and jazz on the same page with pop and classical reviews. It wasn't until after the late President Lyndon B. Johnson signed into law the 1964 Civil Rights Act and the nation subsequently erupted in a series of urban conflagrations that the magazine again began to list the top picks from radio, retail and coin locations that catered to Black listeners.

In the '70s, there was even more consolidation of chart information as Black music—or "R&B/Soul"—became more a mainstream item, something reflected in the charts. The rise of dance music and the disco boom gave rise to new charts chronicling the music's airplay and sales.

BLACK CONTEMPORARY

Black artists and white disco artists shared space on the same pages—the "Disco" beat. By late 1978, the Cash Box Rhythm and Blues pages and charts became the "Black Contemporary" charts and "Rhythm Section" and encompassed a wider range of Black music sounds. It also served as the research launching pad for crossover to the pop charts.

The focus and coverage of the magazine stayed relatively constant through the '80s, although with the growing sales might of rap music, the chart composition and coverage of Cash Box's Black Contemporary section began to shift. While Kurtis Blow, Run D.M.C. and others made strong chart showings on the Black Contemporary charts, traversing to the pop charts was slower going until the late '80s. Then things changed dramatically.

In late 1989, Cash Box bowed several sections that focused on specific areas of coverage—including a "Rap/Dance" column and charts and a "Rhythm & Blues" chart and column. Rap and dance artists frequently crossover to the R&B charts and records from all three frequently move to the Cash Box pop chart.

While the sectionalism that marked the early years at Cash Box may continue, greater movement of "Black" records to the pop lists is evident. Throughout the remainder of the decade, further evolution is bound to occur as Black music continues to evolve and the buying public's tastes continue to be whetted by this broad music.

Milestones: Country Music's Landmarks

By Cory Cheshire & Brad Hogue

AS CASH BOX OPENS THE DOOR on another half-century of music publication, we would also like to look back at the last 50 years. Tracing the foundations of country music, in particular, is as simple as dating the institutions which have graced the Nashville skyline and continue to bring millions of visitors to Music City each year. In their brick and mortar is the history of this venerable genre, significant not only because of its age, but because of its humble beginnings.

The Institution of Country Music

OF ALL OF NASHVILLE'S TOURIST ATTRACTIONS, there is none more revered than the Ryman Auditorium. The red-brick structure commands the respect of all visitors, and it is the centerpiece of the current Grand Ole Opry on which all country music artists dream of performing. Perhaps it has garnered such reverence because of its holy origin. A riverboat captain by the name of Tom Ryman constructed the auditorium in 1891 for Reverend Sam Jones in commemoration of his religious conversion. Used also for events such as the Confederate Veterans reunion, the Ryman grew to seat more than 3,000 people.

In 1943 the Ryman became the home for what is called the "Mother Church of Country Music," the Grand Ole Opry. Even imposing a 25-cent entrance fee to the War Memorial Auditorium venue did not deter the beyond-capacity crowds. The Ryman was actually the fifth building attempted for the Grand Ole Opry since its inception in WSM's Studio C, an acoustically designed auditorium holding 500. Moves to the rented Hillsboro Theatre, a sawdust and splinter tabernacle, and the War Memorial Auditorium would precede the Ryman, which would house the WSM "barn dance" until 1974 when the Grand Ole Opry House was opened accommodating 4,400.

"Without the Opry, I don't believe we could have had a Music City USA." —E.W. Craig, vice president of National Life and Accident Insurance Company, who spear-headed the company's entrance into broadcasting WSM radio.

The Showcase of Country Music

IF THE GRAND OLE OPRY HOUSE IS COUNTRY MUSIC'S SHOWPLACE, then the Country Music Hall of Fame and Museum is the genre's showcase offering the most complete collection of country music artifacts, exhibits and education memorabilia. Since opening its doors April 1, 1967, the Country Music Hall Of Fame and Museum has been considered the cornerstone in one's mecca to Music City. Literally perched at the corner of Nashville's Music Row, the Hall of Fame and Museum has welcomed more than eight million visitors in its 25-year history.

In 1966, the Hall Of Fame broke ground with an investment of $750,000. At the grand opening celebration some attendees, namely Eddy Arnold, Lefty Frizzell, Webb Pierce, Red Foley, Carl Smith, Lester Flatt, Earl Scruggs, and a young Hank Williams, Jr. recognized a barn "motif" in the building's structure adding a true rural touch to the building. Its grand opening in 1967 was preceded in 1961 by the induction of its first members Jimmie Rodgers, Fred Rose and Hank Williams. Today there are 64 members.

"It's a wonderful conception to have the suggestion of rural America incorporated with the very modern design of the museum itself." —Minnie Pearl, attendee at the grand opening of the Country Music Hall Of Fame and Museum, 1967.

Annually more than 300,000 people visit the Hall of Fame and Museum, which is operated by the Country Music Foundation, credited as the most active popular culture research organization in the world.

This year's silver anniversary celebration at the Grand Ole Opry House brought together such notables as Chet Atkins, Clint Black, Mary-Chapin Carpenter, Emmylou Harris, Garrison Keillor, Kathy Mattea, Kenny Rogers and Randy Travis among others.

The Heartbeat Of Nashville

RCA'S STUDIO B HOLDS MORE THAN A PLACE IN COUNTRY MUSIC HISTORY; it's the lifeblood of a sound which has been referred to as the revival of a genre lost in the folds of rock-n-roll's birth in the 1950s.

This revival of sorts, which took place in the late fifties, was so strong and so successful that it produced a style of music called the Nashville Sound. Talented studio musicians, in growing numbers, developed this "home" remedy and gave life back to country music when some performers were attempting to befriend the more popular move toward rock-n-roll.

Defining the sound in terms of notes and measures is one thing. To say that strings, horns, and background vocals added to the recipe helps as well. The real personality of the Nashville Sound can be described by those who helped to perfect it.

Country music artists such as Eddy Arnold, Chet Atkins, Charley Pride, Jim Reeves, Dottie West, Porter Wagoner, Dolly Parton, and Jerry Reed are just a sampling of those who's recordings in RCA's Studio B drew national attention back to Nashville and gave rise to a commercially popular country sound.

Now open to the public, via the Country Music Hall Of Fame, RCA's Studio B was conceived out of the recording of the Elvis Presley single, "Heartbreak Hotel." Recently signed to the RCA label, recording artist Chet Atkins began helping RCA A&R man Steve Sholes organize recording sessions. Eventually their partnership cemented with their production work on Elvis Presley's first RCA recording, "Heartbreak Hotel." While RCA had only begun its Nashville operation in 1954, it was the success of this single which forged the label's commitment to country music and therefore the construction of Studio B in 1957. Atkins was made responsible for its operation.

*Jim Reeves' "He'll Have To Go,"
"Elvis Presley's "It's Now Or Never," the Everly Brothers'
"Wake Up Little Susie," and Don Gibson's "Sweet Dreams" are just a few of the songs recorded in

Standing behind the controls with Atkins was another Nashville institution by the name of Owen Bradley. Formerly a musical director at WSM radio, Bradley began in the late 1940s organizing recording sessions for Ernest Tubb and Red Foley among others. By 1955, Bradley, with his brother Harold, built a studio on Sixteenth Avenue, which alongside Studio B produced the biggest hits of country music, including Patsy Cline's "I Fall To Pieces" and Marty Robbins' "El Paso." While Bradley is certainly credited with perpetuating the Nashville Sound, he is also responsible for keeping intact the honky tonk sound through artists such as Ernest Tubb and Loretta Lynn. Even most recently, Bradley continues to show a penchant for originality as evidenced by his production of contemporary artist k.d. lang's Shadowland album.

*Perry Como, the Monkees,
Al Hirt, Shel Silverstein, and Ann-Margret are all pop singers who recorded in

WSM Radio's Grand Ole Opry

HAND IN HAND with The Ryman Auditorium and the Grand Ole Opry has been WSM Radio. With its humble beginnings dating back to 1925, WSM Radio continues to be renowned as a country music mainstay. The very reputation of the Grand Ole Opry is synonymous with WSM, as it became the longest-running radio show in the world. On November 15, the famous radio show was honored with an induction into the Radio Hall Of Fame founded in Chicago in 1988.

On November 28, 1925, a young announcer on Nashville radio station WSM introduced an 80-year-old fiddle player named Uncle Jimmy Thompson as the first performer on a new show called "The WSM Barn Dance." The announcer was George D. Hay, a former newspaperman. While Hay must have known he had started a good thing, he could have had no way of knowing just how good. More than 65 years later, the show Hay started is still going strong. En route, it became the foundation for the huge entertainment complex, Opryland USA, and led the way for Nashville to become Music City.

As Hay recalled it, his show followed an NBC network program on Saturday nights called "The Music Appreciation Hour." One night in 1927, Hay announced, "For the past hour, we have been listening to music taken largely from Grand Opera, but now we will present 'The Grand Ole Opry.'" The name stuck.

"The Grand Ole Opry is as simple as sunshine. It has a universal appeal because it is built upon good will, and with folk music it expresses the heartbeat of a large percentage of Americans who labor for a living." —George D. Hay

At the time, WSM was owned by the National Life and Accident Insurance Company, and the studio where Hay and Uncle Jimmy Thompson started everything was on the fifth floor of the insurance company's building in downtown Nashville. Crowds of people came to the studio and stood in the corridors just to be where the show originated. WSM decided to move the Opry to its own home, Studio C, so audience reaction could add to the program. Although Studio C held 500 fans, the crowds grew larger and the Opry moved to the Hillsboro Theatre in southeast Nashville and then to the Dixie Tabernacle in east Nashville. In July of 1939, it moved to the newly constructed War Memorial Auditorium in downtown Nashville, and then later to the Ryman Auditorium in 1943.

The music was mostly instrumental until 1938, when a young man from east Tennessee named Roy Acuff stepped on stage with his Smoky Mountain Boys and songs such as "The Wabash Cannonball" and "The Great Speckled Bird." Soon singers like Ernest Tubb, Cowboy Copas and Hank Williams were regulars. By 1939, NBC began carrying a portion of the Opry as a network show, and during the 1940s and 1950s, performers such as Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs, Hank Snow, Ray Price, Marty Robbins, Kitty Wells, Johnny Cash, George Morgan, Grandpa Jones, Bill Anderson and Porter Wagoner became Saturday night favorites across the country. In the 1960s, stars such as Loretta Lynn, Dottie West, Connie Smith, Jack Greene and Jim Ed Brown joined the entourage. Later we saw Dolly Parton, Barbara Mandrell, Tom T. Hall, Ricky Skaggs, Reba McEntire and others become members of the Opry family.

With the deterioration of the Ryman at hand, the Opry moved again in 1974. The final destination was the Grand Ole Opry House, a 4,400-seat auditorium that would become the centerpiece for not only the entertainment complex known as Opryland USA, but also for the growing institution known as country music. To keep a piece of tradition, an eight-foot circle of hardwood was taken from the old Ryman's floor and placed centerstage at the Opry House.

ARTISTS IN ACTION

RINGING IN THE NEW YEAR—Look out Dick Clark, Bogguss and Greenwood will be telecasting their own New Year's Eve party live from Orlando's Sea World. Joining one-time duet partners, Suzy Bogguss and Lee Greenwood, will be the hit '92 band, Diamond Rio. The 90-minute concert, to be held at the Atlantis Theater in Sea World, will also feature TNN mainstays Al Wyntor and Katie Haas of the daily series, VideoMorning.

SCHOOL SPIRIT—BNA's Lorrie Morgan helped out one of Nashville's private high schools last month with a benefit concert. Held at the Grand Ole Opry, the event raised over $15,000 for the Father Ryan Tuition Assistance program, the Endowment Fund, and the Immediate Need Fund. From the looks of things, this may be a new tradition for Morgan, herself a Nashville native.

HOMEBOY LAWRENCE—Atlantic's Tracy Lawrence has just completed taping spots for the Arkansas Department of Tourism. Lawrence was flown to his home state to be spokesperson for the Christmas in Arkansas promotion on TNN, which will air on the network December 18 and 23 during Crook and Chase.

COLLIE & CASH AT THE RITZ—Mark Collie, who is currently charting with his MCA single "Even The Man In The Moon Is Cryin'," appeared recently with his musical hero, Johnny Cash at New York's Ritz. Collie regularly performs the Cash classic, "Ring Of Fire" in his shows.

WEST GOES EAST—The Sons of San Joaquin, of the newly established Warner Western division of Warner Bros. Records, will travel to Saudi Arabia next month to headline the United States Information Agency's Arts America Tour of the Middle East. This marks the trio's first overseas concert tour, with dates in 15 cities during a month-and-a-half-long stay. The Sons' current album for Warner Western, A Cowboy Has To Sing, released last May.

"ALWAYS...PATSY CLINE"—The two-woman musical, Always...Patsy Cline will be presented for a one-night show at the Grand Ole Opry House, Sunday, January 24. The musical, which portrays the special friendship between Cline and one of her loyal fans, Louise Seger, has already made successful engagements in Houston, Texas, and South Carolina. The play, based on a true story, features 17 Cline songs.

CURTAIN CALL—Larry Gatlin, who with his brothers, ended a 37-year touring history in 1991, will make his stage debut in February as the lead in the Tony award-winning musical The Will Rogers Follies. Gatlin, who will be taking over the lead role for friend Mac Davis, will join other cast members Nancy Ringham, Robert Fitch, and Marla Maples. Winner of six Tony Awards and one Grammy, The Will Rogers Follies opened May 1, 1991 at New York's Palace Theatre.

STANTON SCORES WITH EVENING SHADE—Michael Stanton recently returned from Los Angeles where he completed musical arrangements and performed the new opening theme for the hit CBS series, Evening Shade, starring Burt Reynolds, Mirlu Henner, Charles Durning and Hal Holbrook. Stanton, resident Audio Productions composer, recorded tracks in Nashville at Audio Productions. He then spent four weeks working with Bobby Goldsboro in L.A. to finish the score for the Emmy Award-winning television show.

LET FREEDOM RING—Nashville's Liberty Records has proudly announced that their international sales have increased 109.5 percent in the past seven months. Certainly, Garth Brooks is leading the musical crusade to the north, south, and abroad. Brooks made Canadian retail album history when his current album, The Chase made its chart debut to become the fifth album existing concurrently with four others in the pop chart. Garth also holds awards, platinum certifications to his name in the neighboring country, and his appearance at the Canadian National Exhibition sold out 23,000 seats in Toronto. Continuing overseas, Garth has aroused monetary attention in Spain and Germany with sales of The Chase now doubling those for Ropin' The Wind. Liberty is currently trying to break some other acts in the States, including Australia's James Blundell, who has released one album stateside, and Canada's award-winning Rankin Family.

THE INDELIBLE DUO—It's been a year since Naomi and Wynonna hosted their final farewell concert, and it is that momentous occasion which has been recognized by the National Academy of Cable Programming. The show, broadcast as a pay-per-view special by Viewer's Choice, is nominated for "Best Music Special" and director Louis Horvitz for "Directing a Music Special or Series." Also nominated for a Cable ACE award is TNN's weekly series, American Music Shop, which will be going head-to-head with MTV Unplugged, BET On Jazz With Ramsey Lewis, and Birdland on Bravo Cable Network, in the "Music Series" category. Winners will be announced in January.

STATLERS SCORE WITH THEIR SECOND SEASON—When The Statler Brothers Show debuted last year, it became basic cable's highest-rated original primetime adult series. On November 21, 1992, the weekly variety show started its second season with over a million-and-a-half homes tuned in, according to A.C. Nielsen. The rating for last month's show represents a 27 percent increase over last year's premiere telecast.

Carman Starts New Firm

Julie D. Jones

NASHVILLE, TN—Veteran Nashville producer and artist manager, Mark Carman, has announced the formation of a new entertainment consulting firm. The company, Music Consulting and Marketing has recently been retained by Scenic Ridge Records to represent its premiere artist, Trio. In addition to being recording artists, the members of the Trio ensemble are each long-time members of the Kenny Rogers Band. Trio released their first album on Scenic Ridge in October and the album is experiencing strong sales in both the Country and Adult Contemporary markets. The Trio album is now being distributed in the United States by Life Dance Distributors and Mill City Music, with Canadian distribution by Spinner Distributors.

Carman also announced that the company has signed an exclusive production agreement with new artist, Julie D. Jones. Ms. Jones, a native of Longview, Texas now residing in Nashville, is scheduled to begin recording in early January, 1993. Carman is still accepting material for the session and will be making the final selection of songs before January 1. Any information about Music Consulting and Marketing or its clients can be obtained by calling the Nashville office at 615-641-0693.

COUNTRY MUSIC

Just An Observation

By Brad Hogue

UNDENIABLY the biggest year ever for country music, 1992 has been sensational. Carrying the torch, of course, was Liberty Records' pop (yes pop) superstar Garth Brooks. Since he popped onto the Nashville scene in 1989, the mild-mannered Oklahoman has sold nearly 30 million units, redefining the marketability of country music in the '90s. Rope the wind, Garth—the chase is on.

Thanks to Mercury/Nashville, Don Von Tress, and "Achy Breaky Heart," the whole world has now heard of Flatwoods, Kentucky, and Travis Tritt's best friend, Billy Ray Cyrus. The young heartthrob's debut album, Some Gave All, has sold over 5 million copies, making him both rich and famous, basically from the strength of one single. Just think, he had to actually purchase a ticket for admission to the 1991 CMA Awards. Volatility redefined? Certainly. One-hit wonder? Probably not. Movies are already in the works. "All gave some, some gave all..."

Mutual Cyrus/Tritt buddy, Marty Stuart finally garnered the attention that's been long overdue him. His latest MCA album, This One's Gonna Hurt You, has been critically hailed as one of the most important releases of the year and is currently approaching Gold status. Tritt & Stuart also won a CMA award for "Vocal Event Of The Year."

The women of country had much to say this year. For MCA superstar Wynonna Judd "It's Never Easy To Say Goodbye," but going solo proved million-making, as her MCA debut went double platinum just months after release, while platinum blonde Trisha Yearwood proved that a debut female country artist could indeed garner a number one single, sell a million copies...and run the show. While Reba McEntire may be the first lady of the country music business, standing behind the controls helped other female artists as well. Suzy Bogguss, who co-produced her third Liberty album Voices In The Wind, and songwriter/producer Mary-Chapin Carpenter both won CMA honors, while more album releases came forth from Lorrie Morgan, Pam Tillis, and Tanya Tucker, among others. Yes, it turned out to be the year of the woman. But as Reba and others quip, where is the female Garth and the bootie-bumpin' Billy Ray counterpart? Maybe in '93.

The role of the fledgling record label was redefined this year by Ray Pennington's Step One Records, in fact, with nearly 200,000 copies of Clinton Gregory's Freeborn Man album sold, the next step for Step One is step two—major label status.

1992 also saw the resurrection of entertainment business mogul Phil Walden's Capricorn Records. Predominantly a rock label, Capricorn has also signed ex-Fleetwood Mac player and country artist Billy Burnette to a recording contract. More next year.

And with all the good comes the bad. Two of country music's most celebrated performers, Roger Miller and Roy Acuff will be sincerely missed.

"Passionate Kisses" (Columbia)

Producers: John Jennings/Mary-Chapin Carpenter

Writer: Lucinda Williams

Album: Come On Come On

Written by country/folk songwriter Lucinda Williams, "Passionate Kisses" is one of the few cover songs on Mary-Chapin's latest album. The single combines excellent instrumentation and production with Carpenter's interpretive vocal style. "Why shouldn't I have all this and passionate kisses from you?"

ALBUMS

■ Signatures III A Songwriter's Album (RCA)

An aristocracy of Nashville songwriters is included on this special release from RCA Records. The hitmakers are Hugh Prestwood, J. Fred Knobloch, Angela Kaset, Walt Aldridge, and Richard Leigh. Each performs two original selections. From the largely autobiographical ditty from Knobloch called "Three Verses," to Kaset's interpretive coming-of-age introspection titled "From Our House To Yours," Signatures III serves as a constant reminder that the magic of Nashville still begins with a song. Walt Aldridge's "A Little Of You" is characteristically R&B-tinged, and Prestwood's "Darlin' That's What Your Love Does" is pleasingly soulful. Richard Leigh's "Southern Pine" is heartfelt and detailed. Each of the tunes is artfully crafted to contain a short story within the confines of rhythm and meter. Always a pleasure to review a songwriter's album, the cuts included on Signatures III provided an added delight.

INDIE INSIGHT

Melissa Michaels

TWO WEEKS AT THE TOP—The top of the independent chart chasers that is. With her debut single, "I'm Sinking Like A Rock," on Interstate 40 Records, Melissa Michaels has captured the top indie spot two weeks in a row, last week at #55, this week at #52.

While a native of Houma, Louisiana, Michaels made the move to Nashville to learn more about songwriting. After coming in third place at the 1990 Wrangler Country Showdown in her home state, Michaels learned that what kept her from the #1 spot was her lack of original material. Michaels packed her bags for the tune town and hooked up with Interstate 40 Records and began learning the tricks of the songwriting trade.

Michaels admits that she is prepared to go the long haul, as her musical career takes shape. In the meantime, this home-grown girl, one of seven brothers and nine sisters, has a few skills to support her "habit." A skilled seamstress, some of Michaels' original designs can be found on country artists such as Clinton Gregory and Jack Robertson, among others.

INDIE FEATURE PICKS

■ SHUCKS "Trouble Free" (Bookshop)

Producer: Gilles Goddard

Writers: Jerry Salley/Carl Jackson

There are some excellent players on this cut. Hot guitar licks and piano chops court catchy lyrics and a nice vocal ability. Shucks, this is a good band.

BEHIND THE SCENES—Producer Wayne Hodge, Cash Box director Mark Wagner, and recording artist Kevin Charles discuss tracks for the new single, "The Tears In Mama's Eyes." With a release in mid-January, management looks for a strong showing with radio.

The Evolution of Gospel Music

By Tim A. Smith

THE IDIOM OF GOSPEL MUSIC has a rich and treasured heritage, dating back to the early 1920s on the south side of Chicago. It was there that a young man, after hearing a group of five people sing during a Sunday morning church service, came up with the term "gospel song."

That young man, Thomas Dorsey, is recognized today as the undisputed "Father of Gospel Music." Dorsey, a noted jazz musician, played for some of the best singers in the music field, most notably, the renowned Bessie Smith.

In 1929, Dorsey committed himself exclusively to gospel music. It was also during that same year that he composed his first gospel hit, "If You See My Savior, Tell Him That You Saw Me."

In 1932, after the death of his first wife and child, Dorsey penned the classic song, "Precious Lord," that recognizably put gospel music on the map. Although this "new gospel sound" wasn't readily accepted by the black church, (like much of today's contemporary music), the music grew in popularity. By attracting some of the top singers of the day, gospel easily became the most important black musical art form since early jazz.

The period of 1940 thru 1960 comprised gospel music's golden years, with the idiom gaining national attention. In 1939, Sister Rosetta Tharp, one of the music's early "contemporary artists," as well as one of its most controversial because of the "bluesy" sounds generated through her guitar playing, had a "crossover" hit with her recording of Thomas Dorsey's "Rock Me" with Luck Millinder's band. By 1940, the legendary groups, the Deep River Boys, the Charioteers, the Golden Gate Quartet and the popular Wings Over Jordan Choir, all had their own radio broadcast.

Around 1950, phonograph records began to make an impact in gospel music. It was nothing to hear, on a continuous basis, such hits as "Move On Up A Little Higher," by Mahalia Jackson; "Old Ship Of Zion," from the Roberta Martin Singers; "Surely God Is Able," by the Clara Ward Singers; "Our Father," by the Five Blind Boys; and "Touch Me Lord Jesus," from the Angelic Gospel Singers, along with a host of others.

James Cleveland

This period also produced some of gospel's legendary figures. R.H. Harris, Ira Tucker, Archie Brownlee, Julius Cheeks, Noralus McKissick, Alex Bradford, J. Robert Bradley, Robert Anderson, Joe May, and a young, gravel-voiced singer who would later become the "King of Gospel Music," James Cleveland, were soon to be recognized as some of the top male singers on the circuit.

Not to be outdone by their male counterparts, the ladies had their own group of "church-wreckers." Willie Mae Ford Smith, Rosetta Tharp, Roberta Martin, Mahalia Jackson, Mary Johnson Davis, Sallie Martin, Queen C. Anderson, Marion Williams, Albertina Walker, Bessie Griffin, Dorothy Love Coates, Inez Andrews, Ruth Davis, and Clara Ward were just a few.

THE TIMES THEY ARE A-CHANGIN'—The face of gospel music began to take on a new look during the late '60s and early '70s. In 1969, a new "contemporary gospel sound" began to make its presence felt via a fiery, rhythm-driven arrangement of "O Happy Day," by the Edwin Hawkins Singers. This new sound was further popularized through the emergence of two more young, innovative talents, Andrae Crouch and Rance Allen.

Many traditional gospel artists, seeing their popularity and record sales decrease, dabbled with this contemporary sound in an attempt to rekindle their musical flame.

Shirley Caesar

Shirley Caesar recorded two albums on the secular Roadshow label. The albums were produced by Michael Stokes, better known for his work with the popular '70s R&B group, Enchantment. The albums met with minimal success due to Caesar's audiences' lukewarm support of her performance of contemporary music.

The Mighty Clouds of Joy ended their long association with the Peacock label to sign with ABC Records. During this time, the Clouds moved from their traditional, quartet-based sound to one with a more urban contemporary flavor. Of all the traditional artists attempting this "crossover," the Clouds were the most successful. While at ABC, the group hit the R&B and dance charts (at the time of the disco craze), with such hits as "Time," "Mighty Clouds of Joy," "Mighty High," "Millionaire," and "Everything Is Love." Also of note, the Clouds were, if not the first, then one of the first gospel artists to appear on the popular dance/music show, Soul Train.

During the mid to late '70s, the flame of the black contemporary gospel sound began to dim itself. This was due partly to the growing popularity of the gospel choir, declining sales, the black church's reluctance to accept contemporary music as a true form of gospel, the reluctance of radio to include contemporary music on its playlist and format, and the lack of knowledge regarding this new musical sound, as well as a dearth of promotional support from record companies.

Fairfield Four

Today, gospel music in all shapes, forms, and sounds is enjoying tremendous commercial success. Gospel is now being incorporated in rap, jazz, pop, urban, classical, folk, blues, country, along with the more traditional configurations. Many industry followers feel that gospel will follow the lead of country music in being the next genre to gain mainstream acceptance.

Thanks should go to artists such as the Winans, BeBe & CeCe Winans, Take 6, and Sounds of Blackness, for giving gospel music visibility in the mainstream marketplace, and creating mass appeal for a music that was generally relegated to Sunday morning church services.

BeBe & CeCe Winans

Looking back, the past 50 years has seen gospel music evolve from a highly misunderstood, taken-for-granted musical style to a multi-million dollar business. It has been recognized through individual testimony and acknowledgement as the musical springboard for the careers of such secular artists as Aretha Franklin, Sam Cooke, Johnny Taylor, Lou Rawls, Brook Benton, Dinah Washington, Marvin Gaye, Cissy Houston, Dionne Warwick, Wilson Pickett, Patti LaBelle, David Ruffin, Billy Preston, Della Reese, Ray Charles, Bobby Blue Bland, and many, many more.

The interesting fact behind this entire musical evolution is that Cash Box has been there for it all.

Christmas Greetings

Compiled by Gregory S. Cooper & Cory Cheshire

DORIS AKERS, legendary composer: "The Holy Child that we write and sing about came to Earth 2,000 years ago and brought great joy to the world, peace on earth and goodwill to humankind. Jesus Christ the Lord came to bring individual peace. It would be wonderful if his peace could be felt both nationally and internationally. May the reason for the season bring love, joy, peace, and goodness to you all, and a happy and prosperous new year." A noted composer, Akers' credits include "Grow Closer," "Lead Me, Guide Me," "Sweet, Sweet Spirit," and "Lord Don't Move That Mountain," co-written with the late Mahalia Jackson.

DEMETRUS ALEXANDER, gospel promotions director, Warner Bros.: "Christmas is a wonderful time of the year. It softens hearts, makes us spend time with friends and family, and ushers in a spirit of love and generosity that I wish existed all year. I would like to challenge the world to maintain the spirit of Christmas every day. You will be surprised at the benefits. God Bless!" Ms. Alexander is responsible for promotions of gospel artists signed to the Nashville-based Warner Alliance label and the Burbank and Nashville offices of Warner Bros. Records.

DR. T.B. BOYD III, president, CEO, National Baptist Publishing Board: "Holiday greetings of good tidings and great cheer is my wish for you at this significant time of the year. As we celebrate this yuletide season, let us remember to keep Christ in our lives. After all, He is the reason for the season." Dr. Boyd is also responsible for compiling the most popular hymn book to date, The New National Baptist Hymnal. Since its inception in 1977, it has sold more than six million copies worldwide.

LIZZ LEE, Fixit recording artist:

"I pray that everyone will practice giving of themselves to others this Christmas and throughout the year, not just tangible gifts, but share their gifts of the Spirit and ministry." Lizz Lee, recently signed to Fixit Records, and Edwin Hawkins, along with the "Angels of Mercy" choir from the motion picture Leap Of Faith, made a recent appearance on the Arsenio Hall Show as a kick-off to their Angels of Mercy tour.

MIKE E: Cash Box caught up with the true interpreter of African-American culture, Mike E, who offered us this clever greeting: "Twas the night before Christmas, and all through the house/ Everybody was jammin' especially the mouse/ The speakers were hung from the chimney with care/ You could hear the base boomin' everywhere/ Have a funky merry Christmas and a happy new year. Peace out." Mike E is a Dove award-winning artist currently signed to Reunion Records.

SAM MOORE, CEO, Thomas Nelson Publishers:

"In our society the Christmas season has become the most stressful time of year—overloaded schedules, year-end pressures at work, long lines at cash registers, financial worries, and on and on. My prayer is that our record companies will continue to create recordings that communicate the true meaning of Christmas—the meaning of life, and my wish for all Cash Box readers is that they will know the joy, hope, and peace He brings to all who discover Him." In 1992, Thomas Nelson Publishers purchased Word, Inc., home of Christian artists such as Amy Grant, Wayne Watson, and Deniece Williams.

DR. CLEOPHUS ROBISON, Pastor and legendary gospel singer:

"At this most joyous season of the year, we celebrate the birth of our Savior. He was born at an inn. This intimates that He came into the world but to sojourn for awhile, as in an inn. An inn receives all comers, and so does Christ. He hangs out the banner of His love for His sign, and whoever comes to Him, He will in no way cast out; only unlike other inns, He welcomes those that come without money, without price. As we celebrate the birth of the Savior, remember what the significance of the birth of our Lord Jesus Christ is all about—Love. A very merry Christmas to you all and a prosperous New Year."

GEORGE W. STEWART,

director black gospel, Spectra: "Congratulations to Cash Box Magazine for an outstanding year. My prayer is for your continued growth as an instrument to expose gospel music for many years to come. I also wish for each of your readers a blessed Christmas and a prosperous new year. May you all find the peace of God that passes all understanding." As director of the black gospel division at Spectra, Mr. Stewart is responsible for the distribution of product from seven labels, which include Tyscot, Blackberry, Light, Aleho, Sweet Rain, New Haven, and Tribute.

COUNT STOVALL, actor, writer, lecturer: "Music is a walk in the rain through the park of my soul which brings sunshine into my world. May your holidays be filled with sunshine.

Peace to all."

VANESSA VAUGHN, Anderson Communications: "When a child is born he needs to feel the warmth of a loving parent. It is my prayer that we who are born in Him will feel the glow in this season, and with every blessing show our appreciation with enthusiasm to our Father who loved us enough to give us His very best." Ms. Vaughn is the producer of the syndicated radio program, Inspirations Across America. Hosted by Burke Johnson, the show reaches more than 200 marketplaces weekly. Inspirations Across America is only one of four programs produced through Anderson Communications.

PERSPECTIVE

An Ending - A Beginning

Mervyn E. Warren

IT'S NO SURPRISE that Mervyn Warren is co-executive producer on the stunning Handel's Messiah: A Soulful Celebration. Warren began playing the piano by ear at age five, and from there he has matured into a highly sought-after composer, arranger, and singer in the music field. He accompanied many artists including Stevie Wonder, Patti Austin, and Clifton Davis in live performances, as well as writing songs and arranging for Quincy Jones, Kenny Rogers, George Duke, Dianne Reeves, The Manhattan Transfer, Johnny Mathis, Joe Sample, Spike Lee, and others. In addition, Warren was an original member of the highly acclaimed a cappella sextet, Take 6, as well as being part of projects for BeBe and CeCe Winans, The Richard Smallwood Singers, Yolanda Adams, Thomas Whitfield, and others in the gospel marketplace. We welcome him as this week's guest writer for our Perspective column.

Thomas Whitfield

THE END OF THIS YEAR marks the end of an era—an era in gospel music, an era of innovation, an era of an enigma—the era of Minister Thomas Whitfield. Tommy experienced a fatal heart attack in June of this year. He was only 38. But prior to that, in my opinion, no other single person has so widely influenced such a broad range of gospel musicians. Artists old and young, professional and amateur, contemporary and traditional (and practically everyone in between) are familiar with, and identify with, the "Thomas Whitfield Sound." To simply say that Tommy's sound was unique would be an ignorant injustice to a man possessing such phenomenal gifts. A virtuoso pianist, organist, and keyboardist, a prolific composer, a skillful vocalist, a teacher, a leader, a mentor, and a man of God, he was revered by all who were blessed to have been touched by his music.

The Maestro, as he had come to be called, was—and still is—frequently imitated. I've seen many a keyboardist (yes, I'm guilty) incorporate some playing technique or some "lick" into his or her performance and proudly confess, "That's a Tommy move." And I've heard many singers emulate his distinctive phrasings. (Who me? Nah!) But even more frequently I hear new gospel songs whose writers or arrangers have unmistakably "borrowed," or arrived at derivations of Tommy's chord progressions. (Okay, so arrest me.)

Within the past decade or so, Tommy literally redefined gospel music. And although I didn't know him before then, I'm sure he made numerous meaningful contributions in his earlier life. His 1983 album, Hold Me, pleasantly shocked the gospel music community. I was living in Huntsville, Alabama at the time attending college where many students were musically gifted and where I was a medium fish in a small pond. I was known for writing jazz-gospel stuff, and one Saturday afternoon several of my friends charged into my dormitory and demanded that I hear this new record "immediately!" Little did I know that this was to be a life-changing occasion. I was dumbfounded. Here was a gospel project with a distinct jazz twist. I was in heaven. (Well, not really, but I'm sure we'll see Tommy there.)

He introduced an unprecedented amalgamation of jazz, classical, R&B, and both traditional and contemporary gospel styles, resulting in a special sound that just about anyone could appreciate. And his subsequent projects, whether solo, or with the Thomas Whitfield Company, whether introducing or producing other artists, all bear his manneristic mark. So while musicians have marvelled for years at the inner workings of his radical inventions, no doubt, many fans, unable to precisely describe such specific musical ingredients, just knew he was bad!

It's kinda funny that Tommy said to me once, "You know, Merv, it wasn't always popular to listen to Thomas Whitfield." He was referring to some of the resistance he encountered years ago as a result of his innovative style. But isn't that the nature of all art? Innovation and competition and controversy? Just think what music would be like if it had never changed in the last 200 years. In the last 100 years. In the last 50 years. In the last 10 years. Yes, there are always those who question the introduction of a new style or format into gospel music. But let me remind them that the gospel music that they consider "acceptable" today was almost without exception considered "unacceptable" or controversial when it was first written. But, in time, it gradually won acceptance. That's just how human nature works. And now, Tommy's music is so widely loved that one would doubt it was ever any other way.

And so I pay him tribute, with my proclamation that his era has ended, but only in the mortal sense, because his influence lives on in the artistry of those of us who loved him and his work. Thus, a new era begins—an era of a new appreciation for Tommy's work—an era of new opportunities for wider acceptance of new ideas and new music. So in the spirit of fellowship, togetherness, and cooperation, let us cross the threshold of this new year with a renewed commitment to God and to ministry and to art, striving to be more tolerant, where appropriate, of things new and different. Let's let God use whomever He chooses. After all, He's still using Tommy, and He wants to use you.

NSM-America Announces New Financing Program

CHICAGO—Zero interest is a key element of the new NSM-America financing program, which began in mid-December and will continue through January of 1993. This first-time move on the part of the company allows qualified operators to finance the purchase of any number of new NSM jukeboxes and pay no interest on a 12-month plan; under four percent on an 18-month plan and under six percent on a 24-month plan. The program was put together by NSM-America and Firestone Financing.

While low-cost financing programs are not new to the jukebox industry, this is a first-time effort for NSM machines. As explained by NSM-America's vice president John Margold the timing of the program was prompted by the fact that "NSM simply has not had enough product to satisfy the marketplace for the past three years," during the firm's rapid growth period. The German parent company and the recently established U.S. production facility in Illinois are just now reaching a point of volume production to meet market demand.

The costs of the program are being shared by NSM-America and participating distributors, which are 45 strong at this point in time.

Over the past three years the company has enjoyed unprecedented growth and sales volume. The year 1992 produced "near doubling in sales" as well as the addition of personnel and the renovation of the entire NSM-America facilities in Chicago.

Contributing to the NSM success story is the outstanding "HyperBeam" sound system, at the heart of which is the 100-CD changer which eliminates delay time between selections; and the dramatic changes in design and cosmetics that have enhanced the NSM jukebox line. The "Performer-Grand" led the way, followed by the "Performer-Classic" (economically priced); and soon to come is the new "Performer-Wall." These three machines make up what NSM calls "The Performer Series!"

Further information regarding the "zero interest" financing program may be obtained through NSM distributors or by contacting NSM-America, 5207 N. Rose St., Chicago, IL 60656.

Sega's Virtua Racing Twin

CHICAGO—The outstanding, new Virtua Racing Twin from Sega incorporates state-of-the-art mechanisms and the latest in CG technology to reproduce for players all of the thrills and excitement they would expect to experience in actual driving competition. This is realism at its utmost!

The game is housed in a two-player, sit-down cabinet and features three separate race courses. It can be played by from one to eight players (four cabinets can be linked for an eight-player total). The model has two 26" horizontal monitors for perfect viewing of the play action; along with such controls as motor-assisted steering wheels, butterfly shifters, four Virtua perspective buttons, accelerator and brake pedals and start buttons.

Once you slide behind the steering wheel you enter into a new dimension of simulated racing that begins the moment the pit crew waves you onto the race track. As you hook your race car into the turn you feel the force of the tires pulling at your steering wheel as you watch the scenery whizzing by. The Virtua buttons allow you to change your viewing perspective from behind the car to that of the driver.

The climax comes as you approach the finish line, nose to nose with your opponent. In one quick move, you bump his left tire causing him to spin out of control as you take the checkered flag!

Further information about Virtua Racing Twin may be obtained through factory distributors or by contacting Sega Enterprises, Inc., 2149 Paragon Drive, San Jose, CA 95131.

Quarter Mile and Clay Shoot From Bromley

CHICAGO—Bromley, Incorporated recently introduced two new redemption pieces to further embellish this fast-growing market. The models are Quarter Mile and Clay Shoot.

Quarter Mile, as the name implies, is a one-player, fast-action driving game, with skill as a key element. The player "drives" his own coin down the playfield while skillfully trying not to let it fall off the edge. If the coin is successfully steered to the bottom, an operator-setable jackpot is awarded.

Game play is very fast—anywhere from two seconds to 30 seconds, depending on player skill. Quarter Mile features a ticket dispenser, 100% solid-state electronics, easy access, low ticket indicator light and the BSMT 2000 advance stereo system. It is currently in full production and available for immediate delivery.

Clay Shoot is a one or two-player redemption game based on skeet shooting. What you do is shoot as many clays (pigeons) as are presented to you. Two clays occur in each round. A perfect score will offer an extended play and a double-extended play. Extended play, double-extended play and value for each successful shot are operator-adjustable.

Clay Shoot features two ticket dispensers, 100% solid-state electronics, easy access, low indicator light and the BSMT 2000 stereo system. It, too, is in full production and available for immediate delivery.

Further information may be obtained through factory distributors or by contacting either Joe Bundra at 708-438-3834 or Leprechaun at 206-869-6400.
