16 SYD BARRETT AND PINK FLOYD

The mysterious story of the demise of Pink Floyd's founder takes many twists and turns. A difficult person to figure out, even for his friends and musical collaborators, Barrett none-theless scores points for starting Britain's psychedelic movement of the mid-60s. ...by Dave Thompson

122 DISCOGRAPHY ... by Dave Thompson

26 CLYDE McPhatter

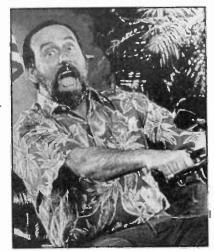

With a voice sweeter than wine, McPhatter had a hold on R&B singers and fans alike — until his untimely death. ...by Bruce Sylvester

Call him zany, nuts, whatever, but Stevens' history is about more than just novelty records. ...by Chuck Miller

The Pretty Things and other things

I recently picked up The Pretty Things reissues (Pretty Things and Emotions) based on a review in Goldmine (Nov. 6, 1998). First, the review was right on. The music is first rate. Why can't Capitol Records do the same for The Beatles? Or, London/ABKCO for The Rolling Stones? Has anyone heard about an update to The Beatles and Rolling Stones catalogues? For God's sake, even The Monkees' albums have been remastered! I thought I'd just ask. Anyways, keep up the great work. The magazine is still a joy to read

Michael Collantes
 via Goldmine Online

Dave Thompson, our Goldmine Pretty Things guru, who actually was a member of the band in a different lifetime or a parallel universe or something like that, adds: "The Pretty Things' new album, as yet untitled but absolutely amazing - is scheduled for release by Snapper in early spring, at which point the band plans to head out on a full U.S. tour. And look out for Dave Thompson's careerspanning interview with the band, as soon as the Goldmine editor schedules it! (It's almost finished, Greg, honest!)" Yeah, right, Dave. Anyway, as for your questions on The Beatles and Stones, it all boils down to money and politics. But we'll keep you posted as we find out any news. - Ed.]

When is Mint not Mint?

I know it's been said before, but just a reminder: If you're a vendor selling vinyl it is only good for business to rate your vinyl properly using the guidelines set forth in every issue of Goldmine. I have bid and purchased from from a handful of vendors and the most common mis-rating I have seen is claiming a record is M (mint) or M- (mint minus) when it is clearly VG (very good). I recently paid $10 for an $8 record. I expected to get the mint record I paid for, but the B-side was grilled. Sorry, bub, but you lost my business!

Also, just to add to the Bob Mould discography: There was a 45 rpm release of "Helpless"/"Changes" by Sugar on Mould's Singles-Only label (SOL 230) August 1992.

— Craig Shumaker Bremen, OH

(Thanks for the reminder, Craig. Dealers beware: Don't trade a one-time gain for long-term customers. Grade accurately. – Ed.)

Acrosmith live recordings

While I agreed with Michael Gallucci's synopsis of the new live Aerosmith album, A Little South Of Sanity ("entertaining but not essential"), I did want to correct a rather blatant factual error. Live Bootleg was not their last live recording, and in fact two other "official" live albums were released in the mid 1980s: Classics Live (1986), and Classics Live II (1987). These contained all previously unreleased recordings, including many featuring the Joe Perry/Brad Whitford-less version of the band with Jimmy Crespo and Rick Dufay on guitars. I have read various

Classic Floyd and classical music

The strange, sad story of Syd Barrett in this issue was a fascinatingly disturbing one for the staff to work on, especially coming on the heels of another equally strange story — that of Fleetwood Mac's Peter Green (Feb. 12, 1999). (We won't comment on author Dave Thompson's choice of artists to profile... oops, just did.)

But the history of the world tells us that many creative geniuses also have a "mad" side that prevents them from maintaining their creativity - or even maintaining their ability to function day-to-day at a basic level. One wonders what shape Mr. Barrett's creativity would have taken had he not been engulfed in his psychedelic world or at least not to the extent that he lived in it. Would the eventual mid-70s megasuccess of Syd-less Pink Floyd have taken place? Two of the biggest-selling albums of all time, The Dark Side Of The Moon and The Wall were recorded without his help (or maybe, in a sad sort of way, he helped by not helping).

In any event, the story struck a raw nerve here. But on a positive note, all who have been immersed and enthralled in the post-Syd Pink Floyd will take a closer look at Syd's musical legacy, both with the band and his solo efforts.

Speaking of English bands, it is interesting to note that over the years British artists seem to have embraced classical music (which we cover in this issue with our new Classical Notes column by Peter Gutman) far more readily than their American counterparts. Just name a '60s artist: The Beatles, Procol Harem, The Moody Blues, Keith Emerson's Nice - even The Rolling Stones - all incorporated classical music in their songs to a much greater extent than American artists. Several new releases coming out show that classical music continues to play a role in popular music: Sarah Brightman's Eden bridges pop and classical; the Sydney Symphony Orchestra plays on a track on silverchair's new Neon Ballroom; and Vivaldi: The Meeting (Thirsty Ear) includes drummer Dave Lombardo (Grip, Slayer).

Actually, the first records I ever listened to (besides children's records) were my grandmother's classical 78s. Musically, what comes around, goes around. Cool.

- Greg Loescher

statements from the band saying they preferred these recordings to the sonically inferior Bootleg. These albums were also part of the bands 1993 remastered series, and have recently been re-released again in the U.K. as Complete Classics Live.

Memories of Del Shannon

Del Shannon's overdue induction into the Rock And Roll Hall Of Fame this year made me recall a personal Del Shannon story that I would like to share with you.

In the late '50s and early '60s, there used to be this yearly event in my home town called the Helmetta Carnival. It was run by my church, Holy Trinity. Basically it was a bunch of rides and amusement stands in the church parking lot. Helmetta is one of the smallest towns in New Jersey (one square mile) and the population held at less than a thousand until very recently, when the evil condominiums came.

The pastor of Holy Trinity was a priest by the name of Father Midura. The story went that he had these "connections" with booking agents in New York City, so every year he would feature a couple of the latest teen musical groups at the carnival. On Saturday night (the last night of the carnival), these groups would appear on a makeshift stage that was attached to the bingo hall. One year The Belmonts performed; other years saw Jack And The Beanstalks (remember them?), The Crew Cuts, Brian Hyland, and Del Shannon.

l was very young at the time — born in '56, and this [event] was probably '62. But I clearly remember standing to the side of the wooden stage and watching Del perform "Runaway." Thankfully I had a teenaged sister who always made sure I knew exactly what was going on at all times (thanks Connie!).

Fast forward to 1982... I had tickets to see Shannon at the Club Bene in Sayreville, NJ. He was out promoting the Tom Petty-produced Drop Down And Get Me LP, and this show was scheduled just a couple of days after his triumphant appearance at the Bottom Line in NYC. I heard that show on the radio and simply could not miss this one. It was like going to see an old friend.

When I arrived, to my utter horror, there was hardly anyone in the place. Literally, there were maybe 15 people in attendance. Maybe because it was a Sunday night, I don't know, but it was kind of embarrassing. I felt really bad for Del. And the funny thing is, I reserved these tickets a few weeks earlier!

Needless to say, it still was a tremendous concert. Del and his crack band played as if they were performing at a sold-out Wembley Stadium and not some rinky-dink "dinner theater" in the middle of nowhere. The Club Bene has always been a very old-fashioned, informal sort of club. They let you wander backstage after the show to meet the performers (if the performers want you to, that is). Of course, Del was such a nice guy that he spent a bit of time with everyone. I got in line to meet him and maybe get an autograph.

There was this family in front of me in line: A middle-aged mother and father with their 20-something son. They approached him and, much to my amazement, pulled out a photo of Del taken in 1962 at the Helmetta Fair! They told him they saw him there, how much they enjoyed that show, and they wanted to introduce him to their son. I'll never forget the sight of Del eyeing the picture, then squinting his eyes, smiling and almost in a whisper, saying, "I remember that carnival."

It was just one of those neat moments.

Afterward, I shook Del's hand, got his autograph, told him that I was at that damn carnival too, and we laughed about it. Meanwhile, the family with the picture disappeared into the foggy Jersey night before I could try to get a copy of it from them. That's my little Del Shannon story. I got a bit of a chill while I was typing this story for you. I was so shocked and saddened when I learned of his passing in 1990. Del Shannon was such an original, innovative artist, and proof positive that rock 'n' roll was indeed alive and thriving during those years between Buddy (Holly) and The Beatles. Congratulations to Del Shannon on his much deserved induction into the Rock And Roll Hall Of Fame.

Dark Side Of The Moon DVD mystery

In Please Mr. Postman (Goldmine #482) Emily Jackson remarked that she bought her Wizard Of Oz DVD for The Dark Side Of The Moon connection, but she could never get the CD and the DVD to play in sync. Am I missing something? I'm a big Floyd fan, but I've never heard this story. Did the band do this on purpose? What is it I'm supposed to see and hear if I play the music with the movie? Who discovered this? Does anyone care? Is this another "play it backwards and it says "Paul is dead" put on?

— David Zelcer Gander, Newfoundland, Canada

[According to several staffers, the music does seem to match the movie. Start the CD when the MGM lion finishes roaring for the third time at the start of the movie. Does anyone care? Well, the record company cares, as it spurred sales of the album. — Ed.]

Rubinoos missing from list

Of course, everyone has their favorites, but The Rubinoos from Berkeley, Calif., were missing from your list. "I Wanna Be Your Boyfriend" from their second LP, Back To The Drawing Board, is one of the all time greats. The LP is not on CD, but you can find the song on Rhino's Poptopia Volume 1. The Rubinoos also have a new CD entitled Paleoophonic that is pure pop!

R&B Foundation's Lifetime Achievement Award given to John Lee Hooker

R&B royalty converged en masse on Los Angeles Feb. 25 for the presentation of The Rhythm And Blues Foundation's 10th Anniversary Pioneer Awards at Sony Studios in Culver City. Under a huge, chandelier-festooned tent, the movers and shakers of vintage R&B gathered in elegant fashion to bestow some $260,000 in honorariums on an array of legendary artists who helped shape R&B and soul during the 1950s and 1960s.

"This is the highlight of my career. It means everything in the world to me," said honoree Barbara Lewis, whose alluring hits for Atlantic Records included "Hello Stranger" in 1963 and "Baby I'm Yours" two years later.

"They're gonna have to call me Chocorella, because I feel like a chocolate Cinderella," gushed ex-Motown mainstay Brenda Holloway, whose sultry "Every Little Bit Hurts" in 1964 and her original "You've Made Me So Very Happy" in '67 were just reissued by Motown on her own Very Best Of CD. "It's like a culmination of all of my works, all of my writings, all of my trying, all of my suffering, all of my good times, bad times and everything."

"It actually means a lot to me," agreed fellow honoree Garnet Mimms, who topped the 1963 R&B charts with his majestic "Cry Baby." "I left the scene for quite a while. I've been doing other things, but I haven't stopped singing. I'm still singing gospel, and I've been preaching for the last 16 years."

Under executive director Janis Hazel's supervision, the Washington, D.C.-based Foundation provides veteran artists with assistance while preserving and honoring the seminal music they created but often received little monetary compensation for.

"These awards mean that a lot of artists who have made contributions from the early days of their careers (but have) never been awarded, never been honored, are saying, 'Hey, they didn't forget about me! My contribution was indeed a contribution that's worthwhile,'" said Foundation chairman Jerry "Iceman" Butler, a certified soul legend himself.

Some honorees require more assistance than others. Feted alongside fellow Drifters Bill Pinkney and the late Johnny Moore, Charles Thomas is legally barred from performing as a Drifter (despite having fronted the group on several of their early '60s hits) due to a dispute over ownership of the group's name.

"They won't even let me sing under the name of The Drifters," Thomas lamented. "So that's what I'm saying: The Rhythm And Blues Foundation will open up a lot of doors for me."

Emcee Smokey Robinson conducted the show at a leisurely pace — a far cry from the night before's tightly regimented Grammy telecast. Presenters included Grammy winner Lauryn Hill (who assured honorees Patti LaBelle & The Blue Belles that they rated among her idols), the country trio of Marty Stuart, Travis Tritt, and Ray Benson (an odd choice to hand '50s New York session guitar ace Mickey Baker his award), and Dionne Warwick, who gave sister Dee Dee Warwick her prize. New Orleans great Lloyd Price presented L.C. Cooke with a Legacy Tribute Award in honor of his late brother, the magnificent Sam Cooke.

John Lee Hooker

Judy Adams, widow of Crescent City crooner Johnny Adams, accepted the evening's first award in his behalf, urging his peers to seek legal representation to fight for lost royalties. Mimms and Joe Simon did not perform their secular hits for religious reasons, but Rev. Simon provided a witty sermon on the evils of the record business as his acceptance speech. Other honorees did offer glorious musical testimony, backed by Maceo Parker's all-star band.

Southpaw guitarist Barbara Lynn ignited the stage with a sizzling rendition of her 1962 smash "You'll Lose A Good Thing." The Manhattans segued from the bouncy "I Wanna Be (Your Everything)" to an intense "Kiss And Say Goodbye," and dazzling Dee Dee Warwick roared with "I'm Gonna Make You Love Me."

Instead of singing his trademark "Theme From Shaft," Isaac Hayes (co-honored with longtime songwriting partner David Porter) took a seat behind the keys as Sam Moore belted the electrifying Hayes/Porter classic "Soul Man." Nickolas Ashford and Valerie Simpson delivered a slick medley of their timeless compositions.

The grand finale starred Lifetime Achievement Award winner John Lee Hooker, who was joined by Bonnie Raitt and Eric Clapton for an unpredictable "I'm In The Mood." The three and a half hour show closed with a thundering dose of Hooker's patented endless boogie, augmented by blues guitarists Robert Jr. Lockwood, Hubert Sumlin, and Keb' Mo'.

Somehow Hooker's segment seemed anticlimactic after so much sweet soul.

GRAPELEAVES

Upcoming new releases: The first studio album in 20 years by Matthew Kelly's Kingfish is due out April 20. Sundown On The Forest (Phoenix Rising) will include cuts featuring Bob Weir and Jerry Garcia of The Grateful Dead... Oasis is in the studio recording their as-yet-untitled fourth album... According to Modern Records, The Jacksons brothers are back together and planning to record. However, there is no mention as to how many of the Jacksons, or which ones, will be on the album. Last year's Jackson news was that the family singing sensation was slated to record on Michael Jackson's record label, MJJ Music... Australia's silverchair has just released Neon Ballroom (Epic)... on April 20 Sarah Brightman is releasing Eden (Angel Records), which includes a cover of the Kansas hit, "Dust In The Wind." With a June air date, PBS is filming the first show in her worldwide tour... UB40 is releasing Labour Of Love III, a cover collection of a dozen reggae and soul songs, including a cover of Neil Diamond's "Holly Holy" which is featured in the new ED TV movie... A single CD will be released April 13 from Bruce Springsteen's new box set, 18 Tracks. The CD includes three songs not in the box set: "Trouble River," "The Fever" and a new acoustic version of "The Promise"... Blues singer Toni Price just released her fourth Antone's Records album on March 16. Lowdown And Up features Dr. John, Johnny Gimble, and Ian McLagan... Due to a potential record company switch, Echo & The Bunnymen's new release, What Are You Going To Do With Your Life, scheduled for an April release in the U.K., will be delayed for a U.S. release. A single, "Rust," is already available in the U.K... On April 20, Schanachie is releasing Duke Robillard's New Blues For The Modern Man. His 13th solo album features all but two originals. He covers Bob Dylan's "Love Sick" and Charlie Patton's "Pony Blues"...

Upcoming reissues: Sonic Youth drummer Steve Shelley's Smell Like Records label is reissuing a number of Lee Hazlewood's albums from the 1960s and 1970s, beginning in April with the release of the 1970 album, Cowboy In Sweden, and an untitled "Standards" album with the Al Casey Trio. In June comes Hazlewood's 1946 debut, Trouble Is A Lonesome Town, and Requiem For An Almost Lady, followed by September releases of the rare 13 and The Not So Very Important People albums, and in November a singles compilation and The Cowboy And The Lady (with Ann Margaret). Shelley is a big fan of the legendary writer, producer and singer, who wrote or produced for artists ranging from Duane Eddy and Nancy Sinatra to Waylon Jennings and Dean Martin... Rhino Records, which has become the king of box sets of late, is releasing on May 18 Loud, Fast & Out Of Control: The Wild Sounds Of '50s Rock, a four-CD set. The liner notes include essays by author Michael Venture and Billy Vera as well as track-by-track notes from rock journalist Colin Escott, whose articles have appeared in Goldmine. Included on the discs are cuts from Elvis Presley, Little Richard, Chuck Berry, Buddy Holly, and Jerry Lee Lewis, as well as lesserknown '50s artists... It had to happen sooner or later - Columbia Legacy just released a Greatest Hits package for Mitch Miller, which includes a number of tracks previously unavailable on CD. Miller had 20 charted singles between 1950 and 1961. Now everyone can sing along with Mitch... Sequel Records is reissuing two remastered Curtis Mayfield two-CD sets: Curtis/Live! with Curtis In Chicago and There's No Place Like America Today with Give, Get, Take & Have. In addition, three Mayfield albums are being reissued on vinyl: Curtis (with gatefold sleeve), Roots (with tri-fold "calendar" sleeve) and Super Fly (with "flap" gatefold sleeve) ... Lenny Bruce Live At The Curran Theater, out of print since 1991 and originally released in 1971 as a three-LP set, is being reissued on two CDs on Fantasy this summer... Capricorn Records is reissuing Elvin Bishop's 1975 Juke Joint Jump; Wet Willie's The Wetter The Better from 1976; Livingston Taylor's third album, Over The Rainbow, which features nine original songs and two covers (George Harrison's "If I Needed Someone" and the Judy Garland Wizard Of Oz classic, "Somewhere Over The Rainbow"); Hydra's Land Of Money from 1975; Alex Taylor's Dinnertime; and White Witch's self-titled 1972 debut .... Razor & Tie is releasing The Mistaken Identity Collection, spotlighting raspy-voiced Kim Carnes. The set includes 15 charttopping hits such as the #1 "Bette Davis Eyes" as well as six bonus cuts no longer in print... Avenue Records is releasing a collection of live performances from Yellowjackets founder and guitarist Robben Ford. Sunrise includes blues standards such as Willie Dixon's "Little Red Rooster" and Little Walter's "Blue And Lonesome" as well as a unique rendition of Miles Davis' "Eighty One."

On the road again: Phil Lesh of The Grateful Dead is planning a three-night run starting April 20 at the legendary Warfield Theatre in San Francisco... The Afghan Whigs will be the opening act for Aerosmith beginning April 11 in Columbus, Ohio, and ending May 23 at Tinley Park, Ill.

Something for the kids: Kid Rhino is releasing a new album from The Sugarhill Gang, the pioneers of rap music. Jump On It conveys a positive message to kids. The 10-song disc features the Gang teaching the "ABC's," "The Vowels (A E I O U)" and how to "Kick A Rhyme With Dr. Seuss" — all done hip-hop style.

For couch potatoes: Austin City Limits has announced its April schedule: Fastball and Mary Cutrufello (April 3); Dave Alvin and Loudon Wainwright (April 10); Bruce Hornsby and Monte Montgomery (April 17); Hootie & The Blowfish with guests Nanci Griffith and Peter Holsapple plus blues stars Bobby "Blue" Bland and Susan Tedeschi

On the bookshelf: Recent Grammy winner Lauryn Hill is the feature of a new paperback, Lauryn Hill: She's Got That Thing, by Chris Nickson (St. Martin's Press).

Just when you thought it was safe to go to Las Vegas: Start practicing: May 15 is this year's date for the seventh annual Liberace "Play-A-Like" contest, held at the Liberace Museum in Las Vegas on what would have been his 80th birthday.

Dusty Springfield, pop singer

The March 2 death of Dusty Springfield cast an unimaginable pall over this year's Rock And Roll Hall Of Fame ceremony. Even though illness had already made it highly doubtful that Springfield would actually attend the event, her induction was intended as a celebration of one of the most remarkable lives in pop history. Now it can only mourn one of the most tragic deaths. Born in 1939, she would have been 60 on April 16.

With her trademark panda eye makeup and distinctive peroxide-blonde hairstyle, Springfield was the undisputed queen of Britain's soul divas, a sense-shattering combination of towering class and brassy kitsch, the girl who spent the '60s putting the wings into "England Swings."

"Hers was the first fan club I belonged to," Elton John told a Peoria, Ill., audience when he heard of her death. "I had pictures of Dusty all over my walls." He then performed a version of her 1964 U.K. hit, "I Only Want To Be With You." John was to have performed Springfield's Hall Of Fame induction

Other tributes followed from throughout the world of show business — and beyond. The Queen spoke publicly of her sadness, while Sandy Shaw reminisced, "In the '60s we were both rivals and friends, sharing a really unique experience. We were... the first emergence of Girl Power. I feel privileged to have been a contemporary of this feisty and talented woman."

Cher added, "She was definitely a singer's singer. She was someone that you listened to and aspired to — that was one thing I remember, listening to her. She definitely had the goods. She wasn't just a pop singer."

Born Mary Isabel Catherine Bernadette O'Brien on April 16, 1939, in north London, Springfield began her musical career with the Lana Sisters in the 1950s before launching The Springfields with brother Tom, and Tim Field. There she first tasted success — their version of the evergreen "Silver Threads And Golden Needles" made #20 here in 1962. The group broke up the following year, after seeing the Beatles perform at The Cavern, and Springfield immediately launched the solo career that would keep her on the British and American charts throughout the 1960s.

Amid a total of 18 Top 100 hits that decade, her debut hit, "I Only Want To Be With You" (a U.S. #12 in 1963), was followed by "Stay Awhile," "Wishin' And Hopin'" (#6, 1964) and "You Don't Have To Say You Love Me" (#4, 1966), while her U.K. career included such highlights as "I Just Don't Know What To Do With Myself" (#3, 1964), "Goin' Back" (#10, 1966) and "I Close My Eyes And Count To Ten" (#4, 1968). "You Don't Have To Say You Love Me" knocked The Spencer Davis Group off the top of the chart in 1966.

In 1967, anxious to escape the pop girl mould of her earlier material, Springfield signed to Atlantic Records and headed to Memphis with producer Jerry Wexler and arranger Arif Mardin. There they crafted the Dusty In Memphis album, the ultimate MOR R&B hybrid and a record that almost singlehandedly pointed the direction for a whole new generation of white soul singers through the 1970s.

Springfield, however, was moved away from the hitmaking arena. Relocating to America, she continued recording, but drink and drugs consumed more of her attention than the frankly lightweight records she was making.

Into the 1980s, she remained low-key, although she did continue making sporadic comebacks in tandem with sundry admirers. The White Heat album from 1982 featured contributions from Sting and Elvis Costello — who himself was wont to perform "I Just Don't Know What To Do With Myself" in concert during the late 1970s.

Then, in 1987, she returned to the headlines when the Pet Shop Boys joined her for "What Have I Done To Deserve This?," a classic '80s pop song but quintessential classic Dusty as well. The single made #2 on both sides of the Atlantic, and the duo was quick to pay their own tribute following Springfield's death. "We are proud to have been a small part of her fabulous career."

Another Pet Shop Boys composition, "Nothing Has Been Proved," gave her the theme song to the acclaimed Scandal movie, although it wasn't until 1968's "Son Of A Preacher Man" was included on the Pulp Fiction soundtrack that Springfield received her first platinum disc.

Springfield released a new album in 1994, A Very Fine Love. It would not be released for another 12 months, however; shortly after she completed work, Springfield was diagnosed with breast cancer. She underwent extensive chemotherapy until 1995, when she was declared clear of the disease. However, the following year the cancer returned. Over the last five years, Springfield has been content to allow a string of fine retrospectives to introduce her to the generation of younger fans who now mourn her passing.

Goin' Back: The Very Best Of collection from 1994, and 1997's three-CD Anthology were both justly acclaimed collections of her greatest work. Remastered versions of her 1960s albums have either just been reissued, or are scheduled for release this month; and shortly before her death, she set the wheels in motion for a new four-CD box set.

This year also saw her elected to The Rock And Roll Hall Of Fame. On Jan. 1, Springfield received her greatest honor yet, when she was awarded the OBE (Order of the British Empire) in Queen Elizabeth II's New Year's Honors List.

Sadly, she would not live to collect either award. Her deteiorating health had already forced her to cancel her trip to Buckingham Palace, to collect her OBE — ironically, the ceremony was originally scheduled for the day of her death. Her funeral, on March 12, fell just three days before the Hall Of Fame induction.

Bobby Troup, writer of "Route 66," actor

Bobby Troup, an actor and musician who composed such rock 'n' roll classics as "Route 66" and "The Girl Can't Help It," died of congestive heart failure on Feb. 7. He was 80. Troup grew up in Harrisburg, Penn., where his family operated the J.A. Troup Music House. After graduating from the Pennsylvania Wharton Business School, he moved to New York, where he landed a job writing songs for Tommy Dorsey. Following a stint in the Marines during World War II, Troup headed for Los Angeles with the idea of forging a career in songwriting. During the trip, he sketched a rough draft of "Route 66," which subsequently became a hit for the Nat King Cole Trio.

In the ensuing years, "Route 66" was recorded by countless rock artists, including The Rolling Stones, The Cramps, and The Replacements. Other memorable songs written by Troup include "Daddy," "Lemon Twist," "The Meaning Of The Blues," and the aforementioned "The Girl Can't Help It," which was initially recorded by Little Richard and later given a rousing treatment by Mick Ronson on his 1974 album, Play Don't Worry. In addition to achieving success as a recording artist, Troup appeared in a number of films, including The Gene Krupa Story (1959) and M*A*S*H (1970). His most famous acting role, however, was that of neurosurgeon Dr. Joe Early in the television drama, Emergency, which ran from 1972 to 1977, Troup is survived by his wife, actress/singer Julie London, and their three children, as well as by two children from a previous marriage.

William E. Albaugh, drummer

William E. Albaugh, drummer for The Lemon Pipers, the rock band that topped the pop charts in 1967 with the psychedelic "Green Tambourine," died Jan. 20 in Batesville, Ind. He was 53.

Albaugh joined the Oxford, Ohio-based quintet when he was attending high school there and the band was playing college bars as Tony And The Bandits. They were also billed for a time as Ivan & The Sabres, according to Wayne Jancik's The Billboard Book Of One-Hit Wonders, which also states that Albaugh originally hailed from Great Britain.

Along with Albaugh on drums, the band consisted of lead singer Ivan Browne, lead guitarist Bill Bartlett, Reg Nave on keys and Steve Walmsley on bass. The band soon changed its name to The Lemon Pipers. Signing with Neil Bogart's Buddah Records, their first single, "Turn Around, Take A Look," wasn't a success.

Faced with the prospect of being dropped by Buddah, they reluctantly agreed to record "Green Tambourine," written by Shelley Pinz and Paul Leka.

They were amply rewarded with a mammoth hit as 1967 closed, when the trippy theme — a commercially potent cross of bubblegum and psychedelia — vaulted to the top of the pop lists and went gold. A resulting Lemon Pipers album for Buddah, also titled Green Tambourine, showed up on the charts as well.

The Lemon Pipers encored in early '68 with "Rice Is Nice," which only managed a mid-level chart showing, and closed out their brief hitmaking run for Buddah a couple of months later with "Jelly Jungle (Of Orange Marmalade)." Bartlett went on to lead Ram Jam, which scored a smash in 1977 with its raucous hard rock treatment of Lead Belly's "Black Betty."

The cause of Albaugh's death was undisclosed.

David McComb, Triffids' singer

David McComb, who fronted the acclaimed Australian band The Triffids, died Feb. 1 from complications following an automobile accident. He was 37. Formed in 1983 in their native town of Perth, The Triffids often drew favorable comparisons to such influential artists as Velvet Underground and Television. Although the group achieved considerable success in Europe - legendary British DJ John Peel was one of their most vociferous champions --- the band was consigned to the "alternative" fringes in the U.S. Between 1983 and 1989, The Triffids released eight fulllength albums, including the underground classic Trecless Plain, and one major label stateside release, Calenture. Despite continual adoration from critics, the group broke up in 1989, and McComb went on to work with several other Australian bands, most notably The Black Eyed Susans. He also recorded a solo album, Love Of Will, in 1994. In recent years, McComb had settled in Melbourne, Australia, where was living with his wife and family and working toward a degree in modern art. He had undergone a heart transplant two and a half years ago and had been suffering from poor health in recent months.

Gwen Guthrie, R&B singer

Gwen Guthrie, a jazz and R&B singer who contributed background vocals to albums by Luther Vandross, Roberta Flack, and Peter Tosh, among others, died Feb. 3 of uterine cancer. She was 42. Guthrie's first big break came in 1972, when she was featured on the Billy Preston album, Music Is My Life. Two years later, Aretha Franklin hired her as a background vocalist, and subsequently Guthrie found herself in great demand as a session singer. By the late '70s, she was writing and arranging songs for other artists. In fact she penned seven compositions for Sister Sledge's debut album, Circle Of Love. She also enjoyed solo success in the mid-80s, which included the release of two full-length albums and a number of hit R&B and dance singles. The lyrics to her most successful song, "Ain't Nothin' Goin' On But The Rent," gave rise to the popular catch phrase, "No romance without finance." Guthrie was also active in charitable work and was one of the first recording artists to raise money for the fight

THE CARDIGANS: A COOL BITE OF A MELANCHOLY DAIQUIRI

by Russell Hall

If there's any band that has a chance to dethrone Abba as the most successful musical export in Sweden's history, it's The Cardigans. Over the course of four albums, the group has evolved from mere pop savants into an adventurous unit for whom musical growth is more important than adhering to tried-and-true formulas. Couching subtle detachment and irony inside arrangements that veer between shadow and light, the band's songs strike a perfect balance between accessibility and mystery. Even at its most infectious, as on the smash single, "Lovefool" (the fourth most-played song of 1997), The Cardigans' music hits with the cool bite of a frozen daiquiri.

The Cardigans' beginnings can be traced to the fall of 1992, when guitarist Peter Svensson and bassist Magnus Sveningsson decided to abort their effort to become the new Black Sabbath in favor of pursuing a more pop-oriented direction. Fleshed out with drummer Bengt Lagerberg, keyboardist Lars-Olof Johansson, and art school student/fledgling singer Nina Persson, the newly formed quintet leased an apartment together in Jonkpoping, Sweden, and began working on songs. After hearing a demo tape compiled by the band in 1993, producer Tore Johansson offered the group his services at his studio in Malmo. The resulting album, titled Emmerdale, was released in May 1994, and its first single, "Rise & Shine," became a hit on Swedish radio.

After spending the remainder of that year touring Europe, The Cardigans set about recording a follow-up. Released in the spring of 1996 on the U.S. indie label Minty Fresh (the album had been issued several months earlier in Sweden), Life became an international success, with sales ultimately surpassing 1.5 million copies worldwide. Not surprisingly, courtships from several major labels ensued, and in the summer of 1996 The Cardigans signed with Mercury Records.

Released in September 1996, the band's major label debut, First Band On The Moon, found Persson assuming a larger role as lyricist for the group. (Prior to that album, Svensson had composed all the band's music, with Sveningsson penning most of the words.) In the following weeks, the album's most pop-oriented song, "Lovefool," was selected for inclusion on the soundtrack for the film, Romeo & Juliet. Coupled with heavy MTV airplay, the song's exposure in the blockbuster movie helped propel First Band On The Moon into the upper reaches of the Billboard charts. Eventually the album achieved gold status in America.

Featuring their most sophisticated work to date, the newly released Gran Turismo finds The Cardigans embellishing their popflavored compositions with arrangements that recall the work of electronica-oriented bands such as Depeche Mode and Kraftwerk. The album marks the first instance in which Persson is credited as lyricist on every song, while, once again, Svensson composed nearly all the music. As if to herald their growing self-confidence, the group spent approximately $850,000 on an ambitious video for the album's first single, "My Favourite Game." (Unfortunately, the powers-that-be at MTV deemed the video too violent and edited it severely.) On a stop during a minitour undertaken by the band in preparation for a full-scale tour this spring, Persson and Svensson spoke with Goldmine about such matters as fame, songwriting, and the melancholy nature of the group's music.

Goldmine: Gran Turismo has a heavier, more techno-oriented flavor than things you've done in the past. At what point did you decide to go in that direction?

Peter Svensson: That's something that's been developing for a while. The last album was written and recorded about three years ago, so it's been a long time between this one and First Band On The Moon. We'd also been touring a lot and had done a couple of soundtracks between the last album and this one. This time, we fooled around with looping the drums and with using heavier beats underneath the actual songs. We had been talking for a while about making this album a bit more heavy and a bit more beat-[oriented]. We weren't thinking too much about trip-hop, because I don't think anyone in the band is really into that. You seldom hear really good songs based in that type of music. It usually just sounds ambient. I would describe the songs on Gran Turismo as more of a modern type of pop. For me, the influences came more from bands like Depeche Mode and Kraftwerk - stuff like

Were the songs fully composed before you applied the drum loops and other electronic textures to them?

Peter: Yes. I write songs on guitar, and, especially for this album, the songs were really quite simple. They had a singer/song-writer feeling to them when I was presenting them to the band. We were playing them on acoustic guitars and so forth.

As far as the electronica aspects of this album — the tape loops and so forth — were you much involved in that, Nina?

Nina Persson: Yes, although Peter had the biggest involvement. I've never really been into that type of music, but Peter had been listening to Depeche Mode a lot. For me, it wasn't as if I was inspired by something else; I just thought it was a really exciting turn for us to take and exciting to have all this equipment. We were all like children being let into a computer game store.

Once you were in the studio, did the songs change very much or did they turn out the way you originally anticipated?

Peter: Well, we really didn't have a big master plan when we made this album. We did know we wanted it to be just the band playing, more or less, with no additional instruments. And we wanted it to be minimalistic. I had the arrangements, but I didn't have the actual sounds in my mind. But I must say, I'm really happy with the way it came out

Over the course of the last two albums, Nina, you've begun to write nearly all the band's lyrics. How did that transpire?

Nina: Well, it wasn't some huge decision we made. We'd had a break before we started to record this album, and I had been working a lot on other stuff and was in a productive frame of mind. I just started to do it, and suddenly I had done it all, more or less. And since I'm the one who's gonna deliver [the lyrics] and talk about them and so forth, it's good to know what lies behind them.

Does Peter come to you with a complete song, before you start writing lyrics — or do you generally have lyrics already written?

Nina: It varies. Mostly, I write the lyrics to an already existing song. If you don't do that, you usually end up having to change stuff, anyway, to make it fit the tune. But then sometimes I might hand over some lines to Peter, or just a thought I have for a song, and he might work from that.

For this album, they were kind of in the shape of campfire songs, where maybe they would have just a brief vocal melody. This time we worked a bit more loosely. Peter and I began collaborating at an earlier stage, where we would run through ideas together. Sometimes the words I came up with would lead us to change the vocal track Peter originally had in mind, a little bit. But the whole band is very important to that process. Whenever I'm writing lyrics, I always try to have one of the members read what I've done so far and have them comment on it and help me out. And the same is true for Peter, with his songwriting. We're extremely dependent on the input from the other guys.

It what ways have you tried to develop your singing over the years?

Nina: It took me a lot of years to admit that I am a singer. I thought it was kind of pretentious for me to say that, since I never really had the urge to be one. But two years ago I made up my mind that I wanted to be a singer, and I wanted to do it well. During the break between albums, I did some side projects that I think helped me to develop a lot. I did some country music — or some singer/songwriter stuff — with a friend, that we recorded. We'll probably finish it up sometime after we're done with this tour.

On the band's two previous albums, the lyrics tended to be dark, but the melodies were upbeat. This time out, both the lyrics and the melodies have a melancholy flavor. Was that something you deliberately set out to do on this album?

Nina: Yes, I think so. There's always been a melancholy element to our music, but this time around we felt brave enough to do things more evenly and to be totally serious about it. We weren't afraid to make the music darker. It felt more natural to do that at this point. There's a quote by Neil Young, where he says something like, "An artist who doesn't hate his previous work, I can't trust." I don't hate my previous work, but we wouldn't want to do it again. That's not to say it wasn't wonderful for the time it was made.

Peter: The melancholy element has always been there. I think we just produced this album in a different way and tried to work in more contrasts. I mean, "Lovefool," to me is a really melancholy song. It was just made with a disco beat, and it's up-tempo. The "happy" part of that song is in the production. This time, we wanted to make the songs more like a unit, where all the elements were going in the same direction.

"Lovefool" was such a huge hit. Did you feel any pressure — from the record company or anyone else — to come up with something similar to that for Gran Turismo?

Peter: No, not at all. We've done four albums for our Swedish label, and from the start we've been really independent. We kind of made the first album without even having a record deal, and the label just liked it. I guess they just trust us. When it comes to making the albums, I don't hear anything from them. Regarding "Lovefool," I don't think anyone — including our fans — would like to hear the same kind of stuff over and over again. I think people enjoy the music more when you change it a bit and try to take it further.

Nina: Maybe the [record company] had hopes for that, but I don't think they would have dared to tell us, because they knew we would probably freak out and do the opposite. They know we work better without any interference. Our feeling was more like: We had a huge hit and that's wonderful, because that means we can do basically anything now.

You weren't concerned about alienating any fans?

Peter: You know, a lot of people ask that question: "You sold all those records, do you feel any pressure?" But I think it's the other way around. You kind of feel like you've had all this success — more than you could've ever hoped for — and therefore you can go on doing what you really want to do. And in saying that, I also mean you've kind of prepared for [the possibility of] no sales. You've got to be able to accept that.

Do you have any problem with "Lovefool" being the song that catapulted the band to fame in America?

Nina: Not really, but there are some things that are a bit sad about it. "Lovefool" was written long before the rest of the songs on that album were, and by the time it became a hit it didn't seem representative of our material. And also, I think any artist would agree that it can be frustrating to have a lot of people knowing you and liking you for one specific song. People sometimes come up to me in the street and say, "Hey, Nina, I love your song!" and I want to say, "Oh, which one of the 67 songs that we've written do you like?" But that's fine. I can never say I regret what happened, because it gave us a name. I'm just happy that wasn't the first thing that happened to us in our career. We had already made three albums, and we'd been working for five years, so we already knew we were You've said in that past, Nina, that if you were completely happy, you probably wouldn't be making music at all. Does that mean that writing is a catharsis for you, or that it's something that helps get you out of a dark place?

Nina: That's one way to express it. When everything in your life is perfectly fine, then you don't need to change anything. You don't need to make any statement when things are smooth and you're just enjoying a situation. It's the hang-ups you have that make things happen and make you want to point out what's not yet perfectly fine.

MTV refused to air the video for "My Favourite Thing" until it was drastically edited. Is the complete version going to be released commercially?

Nina: I hear that it's going to be released so that people will be able to buy it. I think it's on the Net, too, so people can find it there. In England, the situation has caused a lot of debate. The whole issue was taken as an example of the weird kind of censorship that's applied to videos. Hopefully, things will change, because it seems censorship is applied more stringently to music videos than to, for instance, daytime TV shows or movies that children will see. I think [censoring our video] underestimates the viewer. I don't think people are so stupid that they will take off their seat belt just because I don't have one on. We put a lot of time and money and affection into this video, and it's sad people are going to get such a boring version of it. Basically, everything that's important for the story is cut away.

This short tour is a sort of minimalist version of what will come later. Are you using additional digital equipment and so forth to closely duplicate the sound of the album?

Nina: Yes. We're trying that now, pretty much. We're going to have backup drums and other stuff to make the sound as heavy as it is on the album. And it sounds great, actually. This album was the first one where we had playing live in mind when we wrote the songs. With the previous albums, we were

THE CARDIGANS Gran Turismo Mercury (314 559 081-2)

Though The Cardigans' music often gets slapped with the '60s retro-pop tag, there was, perhaps, more to the group's early predilection for covering Black Sabbath songs than met the eye. The ridiculously catchy "Lovefool" notwithstanding (featured on the band's 1996 album, First Band On The Moon, the song became one of the most-played singles of 1997 after it appeared on the Romeo & Juliet soundtrack), the Swedish quartet almost never fires its melodies straight from the hip. They prefer instead to imbue them with a subtle irony born of Peter Svensson's brooding arrangements and Nina Persson's slightly detached vocals. Moreover, although the group's nonchalant pop can seem formulaic at times, beneath their music's shimmery vencer lies a sophistication that elevates it above standard hit-of-the-month fare.

With Gran Turismo, the group's longstanding flirtation with the bleaker aspects of life moves into sharper focus. Shrouded in languid vocals and robotic beats, the opening song, "Paralyzed," sets the tone for all that follows. Even on those songs that otherwise cast an upbeat vibe - the dance-club ready "Erase/Rewind;" the galloping "My Favourite Game" — the band tends to cut the proceedings with heavy doses of lyrical foreboding. Typical moments include "Do You Believe," in which Persson asks (and answers) the question: "Do you really think love is gonna save your soul? I don't think so," and "Marvel Hill," a skeletal contemplation of insatiable desire delivered amidst a heavy interplay of bass drum and bass guitar.

Though it's mostly an overcast affair, Gran Turismo does offer occasional rays of light. "Explode" is a beautiful electronica ballad that exudes a welcome warmth amidst the chilly motifs, and the ethereal piano composition, "Nil," caps the album with a subtle, Eno-esque coda. Moreover, Persson's and Svensson's seemingly effortless feel for hook and melody remains intact. Evidencing steady growth with each album, The Cardigans might yet displace Abba's reign over Sweden's musical exports.

puzzled when we were in a situation of trying to make it sound good live, because we had brought in so many extra musicians to play instruments we couldn't play ourselves. This time, however, it's basically just the five of us playing on the album.

The creative genius – yet sad tale - of Pink Floyd's Syd Barrett

by Dave Thompson

The band members were clustered around the console, readying another playback of the track they were working on. They looked up as the door opened, noticed the newcomer, then got back to their business. Through the mid-1970s, with the British charts overflowing with odd-looking novelty acts, Abbey Road was playing host to any number of semi-musical weirdos, and this guy was probably just another of them maybe a Wurzel taking the wrong turn out of the bathroom. Maybe a Womble looking for a litter bin. Or maybe... Andrew King, one of the Floyd's longest-serving associates, was about to ask the visitor if he could help him, when suddenly the stranger didn't seem quite so strange. As King's brain struggled to strip four years of flab from the cueball face, his mouth phrased a name he'd not spoken to in ages.

Maybe he said, "Roger," the apparition's given name. Or maybe he said, "Syd," the nickname with which the visitor had been saddled two decades before, by his infant schoolfriends. Whichever it was, the very sound of the word and the tone in which he said it had a galvanizing effect on the musicians he was standing with. For they, too, suddenly realized that they were once again in the presence of an old friend, an old bandmate, and the nearest any of them would ever come to true genius. They were awestruck. For it is not true simply to say that without Syd Barrett there would never have been a Pink Floyd. Without Syd Barrett half of what we take for granted in the history of rock might never have come to

He's been immortalized as the Crazy Diamond, and in concert, Pink Floyd still bid him to "shine on." He's been touted as a principle influence by everyone from Julian Cope to Robyn Hitchcock; his songs have been covered by everyone from Love And Rockets to the Electric Hellfire Club; and according to the legend to which he ascended 30 years ago, he's as nutty as a fruitcake and grows mushrooms in his base-

Welcome to the world of Syd Barrett, a world that has been painted as one of the most tragic in modern entertainment history - a tragedy that was compounded by the grisly coda published in Britain's Mojo magazine in September 1996. There, Barrett was depicted as a near-blind diabetic, barely able to care for himself and totally reliant on the goodwill of neighbors and family for his continued well-being. In an age when even the wildest English eccentrics are supposed to still be sitting around sipping tea and watching the herons that live in their gazebo, Barrett's decline into medical catastrophe is too horrifying for words.

But there is also the reassuring portrait painted by one of Barrett's nephews, Ian Barrett, published on one of the many web sites devoted to the musician less than a year before the Mojo story. There, "Uncle Roger" is a quiet man who devotes a large proportion of his time to painting (Barrett trained as an artist long before Pink Floyd got going), who strums his acoustic guitar when he fancies and buys fascinating electronic gizmos for his nephew.

"[He] doesn't care one little bit about the past," Ian Barrett said. "I'm sure it confuses him that anyone else would care so much that he sang a few songs and played a bit of guitar in the Sixties."

And maybe that really is what Barrett, whatever his general state of health and mind, believes — that he simply sang a few songs and played a bit of guitar and did it all so long ago that half his modern day acolytes were barely even born at the time. It is, after all, 32 years since The Piper At The Gates Of Dawn was released, 30 since The Madcap Laughs and a quarter of a century since New Musical Express journalist Nick Kent published the magazine article that finally confirmed the rumors that had been circulating for years, that Barrett really had left us. One can only imagine what time means to Barrett himself, a man, one friend insisted. who "always had a big phobia about his age." Pete Barnes told Kent, "When we thirds of the way through his first solo album, 1969's The Madcap Laughs, three songs are included that have long been described as illustrative of Barrett's mental decline. He forgets the words to "Long Cool Look," forgets his guitar on "Feel," and forgets everything on "If It's In You."

"The madness and mayhem of the Barrett mind unleashed," pronounced the review of the album in Melody Maker, clearly impressed by such an honest snapshot of the proceedings. "Very unnecessary and very unkind," countered one of Barrett's producers, Malcolm Jones, whose own memories of the session were considerably less dishevelled. "I fail to see how the sound of pages being turned can do anything for Syd."

There are a lot of pages being turned on both Opel and Crazy Diamond - and to what purpose? So that the trainee psychologists who've spent the past 30 years analyzing successive Pink Floyd albums can hear the singer's disintegration from the comfort of their own leather couches? Or so that EMI (whose Columbia and Harvest subsidiaries handled Barrett's entire output, with and without Pink Floyd) could prove that they really were telling the truth when they said, as far back as the mid-1970s, that there was band's latest single, hit the stands in February 1967, even The Beatles' peers feared that the Fabs had gone too far this time, "It's just too way out for the record buying public," John's Children bassist John Hewlett complained in an interview with one of the weekly music papers. Maybe he was right.

For the first time since their debut, a new Beatles single did not hit #1 in Britain, where it was effortlessly held at bay by the Hump, crooner Englebert Humperdinck. But had The Beatles learned their lesson? Of course not. Even as the media mourned their sudden decline - for what else could Englebert's triumph portend? — The Beatles were busying themselves in and out of all three of the studios at Abbey Road, recording what Paul McCartney insisted was not even going to be a new Beatles album. It was to be Sergeant Peppers' instead.

Sharing the premises, and as it turned out, aiming toward the same musical premise as their illustrious neighbors, The Pretty Things were embarking upon the year-plus of recording which would result in S.F. Sorrow - like Sgt. Pepper, a conceptual album - unlike any other, a concept album would try to get him back into the studio, he would get very defensive and say, 'I'm only 24. I'm still young, I've got time.'" Barrett passed his 53rd birthday on Jan. 6. One hopes that, if asked, he still feels the same

And in and out of Abbey Road at exactly

In recorded terms, Barrett's legacy is impressive. He recorded one full album, the aforementioned Piper, with Pink Floyd and contributed enough to the sessions for another that, alongside a handful of singles and outtakes, there is sufficient material for a second. A third can be created from Floyd's radio and TV appearances, while the uneasy solo career that he undertook following his departure from the band spawned two further official albums and another pair's worth of outtakes and run-throughs. The case for a comprehensive Barrett boxed set is unimpeachable, only to be scuppered by Pink Floyd's continued refusal to completely open their vaults for inspection.

At the same time, however, maybe some things should remain tantalizingly out of reach. While there is no denying the historic worth of the few Floyd throwaways that have leaked out in the past (the legendary "Scream Thy Last Scream"/"Vegetable Man" coupling and the instrumental snatch of "Sunshine"), one only has to play through Opel, a 1988 collection of discarded solo outtakes and rehearsals, and the similarly themed bonus tracks appended to Barrett's Crazy Diamond solo anthology to appreciate that some sleeping dogs should never be

What is most offensive about such moments, of course, is not the exploitation of either Barrett's mind or his reputation (that's been going on for years, after all). It's the sheer disregard for his right to privacy, personal and creative. Such loose sketches. rehearsals and chaotic disarray would never have appeared if Barrett hadn't gone crazy, or if he'd simply died, retired, or become an

But he did go crazy (or thereabouts), so the sound of Barrett getting to grips with a song is presented as him coming to grips with reality. A blundered intro becomes a blundering mind, and heaven forbid he should forget the words and reach for the lyric sheet. He'll be off to the nuthouse before you can recite "Effervescing Elephant." And then you pick up a sub-Anthology Beatles bootleg and hear what they sounded like when they were caught unawares on tape - suddenly Barrett's conundrums don't sound so damaged after all. Either that, or The Beatles were just as

As 1966 turned into 1967, that wasn't such an absurd notion. Less than a year had elapsed since The Beatles gave up touring, and that, in itself, was unheard of. How could any band survive without constant concert-hall contact with their fan base? Unheard of, too, was the increasing amount of time they were spending in the studio, turning out ever wierder, wackier records. When "Strawberry Fields Forever," the the same time, four Cambridge art students were making history of their own by recording a debut album that has been credited with so many innovations that it's a wonder there was even time for the music. It was called The Piper At The Gates Of Dawn. It remains as revelatory today as it ever was back then, not only because of the behemoth oak it would eventually nurture, but also because of the insignificant acorns from whence it came

The first time Pink Floyd played London's Marquee Club, in February 1966, they were essentially still making exactly the same kind of noise they'd been unleashing since the various members first started playing together a couple of years before, in little clubs and student get-togethers in their hometown of Cambridge.

They were called The Ad-Dabs for a while back then, occasionally The T-Set, sporadically Sigma 6, and sometimes, The Meggadeaths. Almost from the beginning, the lineup was stable: a core of Roger "Syd" Barrett (vocals, guitar), Roger Waters (bass), Richard Wright (keyboards) and Nick Mason (drums), plus a jazz guitarist named Bob Klose, and briefly, a vocalist named Chris

The latter pair departed in late 1965, around the same time as Barrett's burgeoning interest in American bluesmen prompted him to rename the band after two of them -Floyd Council and Pink Anderson. Around this same time, the group began distorting and distressing their R&B repertoire into something else entirely, stretching "Louie

Louie" out as long as it would go, riding "Road Runner" around to the peyote plantation and chasing "Cops 'n' Robbers" 'til their legs begged for mercy.

Immediately upon their arrival, Pink Floyd caught the capital's attention. A Canadian radio interview from December 1966, shortly after the band appeared at an Oxfam benefit at the Royal Albert Hall, captured the intensity of their performance. As the female interviewer warned her audience, "Some call it free sound; others prefer to include it in the psychedelic wave of isms already circulating around the Western Hemisphere.

"But this music, here and now, is that of the Pink Floyd, a group of four young musicians, a light man and an array of equipment sadistically designed to shatter the strongest nerves. The Pink Floyd are new on the London scene. They've stupefied audiences at all-night taves, in church halls, at the Albert Hall and on various tours throughout Britain." And nowhere can that stupefacation be better gauged than by listening to the music that Barrett was suddenly, feverishly composing.

According to legend, Barrett had written just two songs before the Floyd's newly recruited management team, Andrew King and Peter Jenner, suggested the band try developing some original material. One was "Effervescing Elephant," a poem Barrett had written at 16 and had vaguely set to music sometime since then; the other was a melody intended to accompany a favored fragment of James Joyce's Ulysses, "Golden Hair."

But all of a sudden, the floodgates opened, and as if the songs themselves were not spectacular enough, the brilliant blaze of inspiration that consumed Barrett as he created them dazzled everybody. It was, in hindsight, as though he knew his time in rock 'n' roll would be limited and he was getting everything in while he could. At the time, it was simply a staggering achievement. "Syd was really amazing," Jenner later reflected. "His inventiveness was quite astounding. All those songs from that whole Pink Floyd phase were written in no more than six months. He just started and took it from there."

It was very early on in this process that Pink Floyd made their first attempts to land a record deal; indeed, the two Barrett compositions that made it onto the band's first demo tape might well have been the first he actually finished. But "I Get Stoned" and "Let's Roll Another One," though typical of the drug-induced whimsy that was slowly sweeping England's capital were hardly the marks of any talent greater than could be found propping up the bill at any club, any night. The tape was quickly forgotten. Even Joe Boyd, the producer who would eventually take the band back into the studio, had nothing more encouraging to offer than a suggestion that they make another tape -"and this time, try spending some money on

In December 1966, Pink Floyd headlined the opening of a new club in London's Tottenham Court Road, the basement beneath The Blarney Club that would, seven days later, be renamed UFO and become a legend within its own lifetime, immortal after its death. Like The Cavern in Liverpool five years before, or The Covent Garden Roxy 10 years later, UFO was not simply the focal point of the latest musical movement, it was its heart and soul.

The songs flooding out of Barrett's imagination echoed the preoccupations of the UFO crowd: "Astronomy Domine," perhaps the premier piece of period space rock; "Chapter 24," based upon one particular segment of the I Ching; "The Gnome," oozing the imagery of Tolkien's Lord Of The Rings. "Percy The Ratcatcher" touched upon T.S. Eliot's Practical Cats saga (the song would later be retitled "Lucifer Sam"); The Piper At The Gates Of Dawn itself was borrowed from C.S. Lewis.

There was "Arnold Layne," which would become Pink Floyd's debut single (backed by a re-recorded "Let's Roll Another One," judiciously retitled "Candy And The Currant Bun"), daringly immortalizing the pervert who stole underwear from Barrett's art college friends' washing lines. There was the childlike wonder of "Matilda's Mother" (later "Matilda Mother" and also known as "Wondering And Dreaming"); there was "Sunshine" and "She Was A Millionaire," "Flaming" and "The Scarecrow," "The Gnome" and "[The] Bike [Song]." There was "Interstellar Overdrive," composed by Barrett around a guitar riff borrowed from Love's "Little Red Book," built up by his bandmates into a full-blown sonic extravaganza and emerging as a veritable talisman for the early, Barrett-era Pink Floyd.

When performed live, "Interstellar Overdrive" would become the signal, in the parlance of the day, for the band to "freak out." When they performed it on the opening night of a new London venue, The Roundhouse, it blew up the P.A. system. In the studio, however, it went even further, even louder, even wilder. If the producer and engineer could sit through that song, the band knew they could survive practically anything. Over the next few months, Pink Floyd would take the track into the studio with them, every opportunity they got.

On Feb. 27, 1967, little more than three weeks after they turned professional and just days after they signed to EMI's Columbia subsidiary, Pink Floyd recorded an astonishing 17 minutes worth of "Interstellar Overdrive" at Sound Techniques Studio in Chelsea under the stunned, but now satisfied, guidance of Joe Boyd. (The performance later surfaced piecemeal within the soundtrack of Cambridge friend Peter Whitehead's Swinging London documentary Tonite, Let's All Make Love in London. The complete version subsequently appeared on that soundtrack's 1990 repackaging, alongside another instrumental from the same session, Mason's "Nick's Boogie.")

Two weeks after the Boyd session, Abbey Road engineer Pete Bown became "Interstellar Overdrive"'s next victim, when he answered the studio manager's summons to try his hand with the group. Bown told journalist Cliff Jones, "I got to the studio and the Floyd were rehearsing 'Interstellar Overdrive.' I opened the door, and I nearly shit myself. By Christ, it was loud!"

"Interstellar Overdrive" would resurface on several occasions during the recording of The Piper At The Gates Of Dawn. The first couple of times, Pink Floyd laid down short but sonically shattering takes that remain in the vault to this day. As the sessions progressed, however, so did the performance, and by April 18, the band and producer Norman Smith knew what to do with it. In the end, two different takes were doubletracked together, one on top of the other. The result was quite unlike anything Abbey Road had ever heard before. Now they had to figure out how they wanted to present the song on the soon-to-becompleted album.

One notion, abandoned for what now seems good sonic sense, was to cross fade it into "Percy The Ratcatcher"/"Lucifer Sam," which in turn would link into the nursery claustrophobia of the closing "Bike." This same sequencing placed "Take Up Thy Stethoscope And Walk" as the opening track on side two and envisioned a finished album of only 10 tracks. An 11th was eventually added, and "Interstellar Overdrive" itself would supplant "Stethoscope" in that key position on the vinyl, segueing into "The Gnome" and creating a devilish contrast.

Despite this apparent productivity, Smith remembered the sessions as little less than a nightmare. "When I look back, I wonder how we ever managed to get anything done. It was sheer hell. There are no pleasant memories. I always left with a headache."

Barrett, he said, was the problem. "Trying to talk to him was like talking to a brick wall, because the face was expressionless." Even worse, he was "undisciplined and would simply never sing the same thing twice."

Mason is more forgiving of Barrett's attitude. "We were given Norman Smith by EMI, no arguments. Joe Boyd, our original producer, got written out of the thing, but I think Joe would have given Syd his head, let him run in a freer way." He also admitted, however, that Smith did the trick. "Norman was more interested in making us sound like a classical rock band. It was a bit like the George Martin thing, a useful influence to have." Mason knew, and Jenner confirmed, that if Pink Floyd had simply done what they wanted to, which was make an album that sounded like their live shows, "It wouldn't have sold fuck at all. Norman was... the perfect A&R man. He realized Syd could write great pop songs..." and he drew them out of him.

The Piper At The Gates Of Dawn was scheduled for release on Aug. 5, 1967. In the meantime, two events marked Pink Floyd's emergence from the underground and into the cold light of day. The first was a suitably alarmist story in the tabloid, News Of The World, in which the band was numbered among the sinister ringleaders of the drugdemented "Psychedelic Experience"; the second was the Games For May concert staged on May 12, 1967, at London's Queen Elizabeth Hall, for which Barrett penned what would become his last true classic pop song.

The sun was creeping in through the huge windows as Pink Floyd started to play, pitting its own increasing might against the manmade lights that still swirled around the cavernous hall, reflecting off Syd's mirrored guitar. "Syd's eyes blazed as his notes soared up into the strengthening light," wrote Miles.

"Arnold Layne" had already given Pink Floyd their first hit single, squeezing into the Top 20 at the very lowest rung despite an establishment that found the song's fetishist subject matter just a touch too unsavory for regular radio play. Indeed, even the so-called free spirits at pirate Radio London banned the track outright. Others, the BBC included, were a little less squeamish, but still there was a general sigh of relief when "Arnold Layne" had finally run its sordid course and Barrett announced the group's next single, "See Emily Play."

He explained, "I was sleeping in the woods one night, after a gig somewhere, when I saw this girl appear before me. That girl is Emily."

Indeed she was — according to Floydian apocryphia, the 16-year-old Honorable Emily Kennet was a familiar sight around the UFO circuit, where regulars had nicknamed her "The Psychedelic Schoolgirl." Unfortunately, it is equally likely that this charming tale is as fanciful as so many of the others surrounding Barrett's time with the Floyd. Mick Farren, vocalist with those other UFO regulars, The Deviants, explained, "When not playing, I used to oversee the door and run the security at UFO, and I never heard of the Hon. Emily, who I would absolutely have noticed since she would have been a bust waiting to happen. The cops would have liked nothing better than to nail the organizers for contributing to the delinquency, etc., etc. She could have been a Syd schoolgirl groupie, but she never hung out at the club."

In truth, of course, it doesn't matter whether Emily really did play or not. The show for which she was invoked, Games For May, was arguably the single most important show Pink Floyd had played, the moment that blew them out of the last lingering confines of their underground cult and into the mainstream at large. "See Emily Play" only narrowly missed out on a Top 5 placing; the band had been "discovered" by the serious newspaper critics; they even received the blessing of The Beatles, as the two bands dropped in on each others' sessions to see how things were progressing.

Of course, not everybody was impressed. Hans Keller, the aging host of the BBC's Look Of The Week TV program, gleefully demolished the band in his broadcast introduction of their performance, "I don't want to prejudice you, but there are four quick points I want to make before you hear them... to my mind, there is continuous repetition, and proportionately, they are a bit boring. My second point is that they are terribly loud; my third point is that perhaps I'm a little bit too much of a musician to appreciate them; and the reason why I say that is, four, they have an audience, and people who have an audience deserve to be heard. So perhaps it's my fault that I don't appreciate them." But of course, you knew that he didn't really believe that.

Such controversy, of course, was grist for the rock 'n' roll mill. At a time when British pop and rock were deliberately widening the generation gap through the usage (or the general public's perception of the usage) of drugs, free love and musical anarchy, Pink Floyd's public alienation of a figurehead of BBC broadcasting could not have been better staged.

But in terms of both Pink Floyd's subsequent history and that of the entire British underground, the crucial event in the band's development was the Fourteen Hour Technicolour Dream, hosted by the stately Alexandra Palace on April 29, 1967.

Some days before, the police busted the London basement offices of IT, the counterculture newspaper that both dominated and influenced what the mainstream media was now dubbing "countercultural" thought processes. IT swore to fight back, however, and the underground rallied to its side. Alexandra Palace, a gorgeous slab of Victoriana dominating a hill over north London's Wood Green, was procured at very short notice, and with it, the services of every freak in town. Artists and poets offered their services - Suzy Creemcheese was there, Yoko Ono, Ron Geesin and more. Fairground amusements sprang up in every corner, slideshows flickered on every surface, fireworks lit up the night sky. And then there were the bands, 41 of them, all playing for free on two separate stages.

Some were known quantities, with nothing to prove — John's Children, The Soft Machine, The Move, The Syn. Others were total unknowns, still searching for a lucky break — a full year before "Fire" gave them a #1 hit, The Crazy World Of Arthur Brown fell into that category. Others still were one-off, ad hoc conglomerates drawn together for the thrill of the evening and nothing more.

Floyd, of course, were the headline event, set to take the stage as dawn broke over London, and they were hot off the ferry from some shows in the Netherlands. Of course they joined in with the spirit of the event, but, according to The Move's manager, Tony Secunda, as show time drew closer, it was impossible not to notice that something was going seriously awry for Barrett.

Barrett was no stranger to LSD. He had long since passed beyond the "experimental" stage and now resorted to the drug as both a recreation and an escape. Today, you can even buy a grainy home movie of Barrett's first acid trip! But even at his wildest — and his friends talk freely of the violent moods that the drug was capable of inducing in the normally mild-mannered singer — Barrett always maintained some sort of control. He knew how much he was taking and generally, he knew what it would do.

The dose that was slipped into his drink at Alexandra Palace, unbeknownst to Barrett (but witnessed by several other people), then, represented unknown territory, and the guitarist reacted badly — so badly that those same witnesses distinctly recall one of Floyd's own entourage forcibly pushing a very reluctant Barrett onto the stage.

The sun was creeping in through the huge windows as Pink Floyd started to play, pitting its own increasing might against the man-made lights that still swirled around the cavernous hall, reflecting off Barrett's mirrored guitar. "Syd's eyes blazed as his notes soared up into the strengthening light," wrote Miles. Packed tightly around the stage, 10,000 people bathed in the music, holding hands with whomever was alongside them. It was a magical moment.

And then the strobe lights started.

Barrett didn't falter, but something had changed. If he'd looked uncertain when he first took the stage, now his expression was one of pure panic. Something was happening in his mind, something that went far, far, beyond the natural effects of the acid spike and whose effects would linger long after the drug had worn off. After just four songs, his bandmates nudged him off the stage and continued their set without him. And*historically, the Crazy Syd stories started right there. Water's own domination of Pink Floyd followed automatically.

Barrett's disintegration was slow, but marked. "We were supposed to do a session for the BBC one Friday, and Syd didn't turn up," Wright recalled. "Nobody could find him. He went missing for a whole weekend, and when he reappeared again on the next Monday, he was a totally different person."

Barrett's creative powers appeared to have broken down completely. The vast majority of the songs for which he remains famed, within Pink Floyd's canon at least, were already written by now. The only significant new material in which he had even an inspirational role was itself largely uninspired.

Based around an instrumental piece that the band had hitherto used to open their live set, "Reaction In G" was an essentially freeform piece that the band themselves described as a protest against being expected to play their hits in concert. Waters' "Set The Controls For The Heart Of The Sun" was a slow, repetitive mantra, springing from the same fascinations as "Astronomy Domine" (both songs would receive their radio debut when pirate radio broadcast one of Floyd's live shows in Carlisle in July 1967). And "Vegetable Man" was a nonsensical inventory of the clothes Barrett was wearing at the moment he wrote the song.

Even in these dog days of his writing career, however, Barrett was still capable of pulling out all the stops when he needed to, and in the late summer of 1967, he came up with the two songs that, perhaps more than any, testify to his disintegration: "Scream Thy Last Scream" and "Jugband Blues."

"Scream," described by journalist Kent as "a masterful splurge of bloodcurdling pre-Beefheartian lunacy," was totally unlike anything Pink Floyd had ever recorded before — or ever would again. It remains unreleased.

"Jugband Blues," on the other hand, was the ideal choice of a follow-up to the hit "See Emily Play" — or so the band reckoned. On Oct. 24, they headed down to De Lane Lea studio to record "Jugband Blues" and Wright's "Remember A Day," specifically for their next single.

"Jugband Blues" is a remarkable song, a nonsensical sing-along that only gradually sags — first into melancholy and then into the free-form madness that John Lennon had in mind when he (allegedly) invited Barrett to join George Harrison, Mal Evans and himself at Abbey Road the following August to record "What's The New Mary Jane." Midway through "Jugband Blues," a Salvation Army band appears out of one speaker, marches cacophonously across the studio floor and then vanishes out the other side, leaving Barrett alone with his acoustic guitar to mourn the song's final verse. "At that point, Syd actually knew what was happening to him," Jenner told Kent. "'Jugband Blues' is the ultimate self-diagnosis on a state of schizophrenia."

Columbia was not impressed. The label refused to have anything to do with "Jugband Blues" and turned down "Scream Thy Last Scream" (recorded alongside "Set The Controls" on Aug. 7) as well. Then, when Barrett did come up with something the label deemed release-worthy, "Apples And Oranges" (inspired by a girl Barrett saw shopping one day), the single bombed out completely. For the first time in what had hitherto been a mercurial career, Barrett experienced rejection. Though he tried to put on a brave face, his words — "all we can do is make records we like" — could not disguise his dismay.

Less than a year earlier, Barrett had been writing songs in his sleep, lyrics and melodies flooding out of a faucet he barely remembered turning on. Now something had turned it off, and with it, the desire to carry on had vanished as well.

In October 1967, Pink Floyd visited the United States for the first time, an outing that has spawned more than its fair share of legends. Recording an appearance on The Pat Boone Show, Barrett simply stared down every question his host tried to ask him. On stage in Venice, Calif., he spent the entire show detuning his guitar and rattling the slack strings at the audience. And on American Bandstand, he refused to even pretend to play (or pretend to pretend to play — the show was mimed) "It was ghastly," Jenner's partner, King, remembered. "Syd wasn't into moving his lips that day, so we had to pretend that Roger sang."

Barrett's public disintegration continued, and finally, the band gave up in despair. Shows in Chicago and New York were canceled, and the party flew home with Barrett's future in Pink Floyd very much up in the air. Clearly, things could not continue as they were; clearly, too, Barrett needed either to get help or get out. But the luxury of doing either would have to be postponed for at least another couple of months, as the Pink Floyd road show hit the tour circuit once again, taking part in the last great package tour of the '60s.

Top of the bill was The Jimi Hendrix

Country Junction

If you believe, as many do, that Garth Brooks is little more than a charismatic pop singer in a cowboy hat, there's only one choice for Biggest Man in Country: Vince Gill.

The stats are impressive, but they don't reveal much about Gill: He has garnered 17 Country Music Association (CMA) awards, more than anybody else, and 12 Grammys, a half dozen platinum albums, and 19 Top 20 singles — including five that went to #1.

Gill has hosted the CMA show for seven consecutive years, and his tours are usually across-the-board sellouts.

What makes Gill special is his total lack of pretense: He doesn't wear shiny clothes, he doesn't have big hair, and — you can bet your grandad's Stetson on this one — he wouldn't be caught dead swinging over the audience on a rope.

Gill is that old-fashioned, time-tested music business animal: A real musician. He is a creative and substantive songwriter, a hell of a guitar player and, as Guy Clark says, "He sings like a bird."

Oklahoma-born, Gill began his career in bands such as Byron Berline and Sundance, Bluegrass Alliance, and (briefly) Boone Creek. In 1979 he joined the then-fading Pure Prairie League and scored his first hit record, "Let Me Love You Tonight." After that he occupied the revolving guitar chair in The Cherry Bombs, the band that backed both Rodney Crowell and Rosanne Cash, playing with former members of Emmylou Harris' revered Hot Band. The other guitarists, both of whom had second jobs at the time, were Albert Lee and Richard Bennett.

He started a solo career in the early '80s on RCA. But nothing of significance happened until a 1990 move to MCA, where Tony Brown — The Cherry Bombs' piano player — took up his production chores. Together they churned out hit after hit, including "I Still Believe In You," "When I Call Your Name" and "Pocket Full Of Gold." Brown remains his producer and trusted good buddy.

Gill's newest album, The Key, is dedicated to his late father, federal appellate court judge Stan Gill, who played country music on weekends and, according to Gill, taught his son to love the music.

For The Key — which was recently certified platinum — Gill wrote songs in a variety of classic country music styles, joyously emulating everything from George Jones' Starday weepers to Buck Owens' Bakersfield shuffles. As always with Gill, there's not a bad 'un in the bunch.

Goldmine: When you were making The Key, did you ever stop and think, "Hey, this might not be the best idea, commercially speaking."

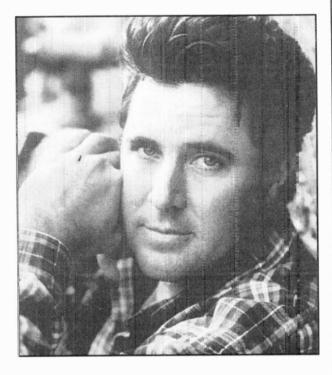

Vince Gill: I might have understood that it would be a little bit more work than maybe everybody wanted to put out. But at the same time, it was such a labor of love and such a joy hearing those kinds of things coming through the speakers, it was important to me. This record felt like my whole life, as opposed to just a period of it, in that I remember what Ray Charles' records sounded like from when I was growing up. But there were still a whole lot of things that I've learned, musically, since I've been listening. I'll always believe that this'll be a tremendously important record in my entire career. I kind of knew what I wanted the record to sound like, and in my simple way to say, "This is something I missed; this is something I love." Regardless of whether it's as commercially successful as I Still Believe In You, it's not a failure. Huge success to me is just to make the music — music's always about that to me. The success is in making it, not in where it winds up and how many it sells. So in my heart, it was what I intended it to do.

It's a great record to play spot-the-influence. Was a lot of that just natural, or did you have to coach the musicians on how to play this stuff?

Well, I think the players had a blast. That's not bragging, but everybody just kind of went "Oh, wow! This is fun to play again. This is inspiring to play again." I mean, Pig Robbins played on all those records. He knows what they sounded like. He was the guy. John Hughey played on all the Conway Twitty records and on down the line. It was a really fun record to make. I don't think people understand how great those players are, that do what they do. You can go to them and say, "This has got kind of a Buck feel right here," and they know exactly what you're talking about. They are so great, and so chameleon-like, that wherever you want to point them, they take it. They understand it. It's really impressive to see musicians with enough talent to be anything. I felt very, very focused with this record, even in the writing of the songs. With some songs, you kind of expect them to be able to take on, no telling what kind of life. But with "If You Ever Have Forever In Mind," I knew what that record had to sound like. "I'll Take Texas" had to sound like Bob Wills.

How did you choose your harmony singers?

There are a lot of different people singing different styles. Sara Evans was a great choice.

I think it's very much like someone making a movie, saying, "This part makes me see this person." Or certain kinds of music make me hear certain people. I heard Sara sing on the CMAs the year before last. She was singin' "I've Got A Tiger By The Tail," with Travis Tritt or something. I was sitting there thinking "Man! She's a great Don Rich."

How much of your career has been the result of meticulous planning, and how much has been because of day-to-day happenstance?

I think the latter much more so. I'm not too much of a planner and a connect-the-dots kind of guy. I've always been "I'm just gonna go where this takes me." It's more fun to react, not only to music and to making it. rather than planning it. If you know the answer to the question, what point's the question?

Your dad was a lawyer and a judge I'm thinking that might have had something to do with a reasonably normal, guitar-carrying high school kid taking up golf.

Well, there wasn't much else to do in Oklahoma. It's true! When I was a little kid I didn't want to play football... I wasn't big enough. That's hard to believe now, because I'm 6' 3" and weigh a million. My dad played a little — he didn't play a lot. I saw his golf clubs in the garage and said, "Hey, this'll be cool," and he took me out to play. I liked sports, anything I could play reasonably well. I was a pretty decent basketball player, a good pitcher in baseball, and I really loved golf. I could play forever.

What was The Cherry Bombs like?

That was, to me, the pinnacle of playing music because I revered all those people that were in the band as well. I'll never forget the first time they asked me to come play guitar in that band. Larry Londin kicked off the song, they started playing and I just was completely undone. I just went, "Wow! Music can be like this?" It was boy, howdy, just go! Get on your toes, pay attention and just play. It was so much fun the nights that we got to play music.

People always refer to you as a nice guy, as if that's such an anomaly in Nashville. What are they talking about?

I don't think that I'm any different than I've ever been. It maybe shocks people that having success and a lot of those things hasn't really had an effect on me. It's not something that I consciously say: "You're going to be the nicest guy in town." I just respond to people and treat 'em decently. I'm certainly not gonna run from playing music. I just like playing music and singing songs. I think a whole lot of it is the musician factor. Being a musician — I think that mentality is pretty steeply ingrained in me. Not all musicians are nice guys. I just am what I am.

On the Racks

GEORGE STRAIT Always Never The Same MCA Records (MCAD-70050)

However much territory it cedes to pop music, country music will always be able to point to the popularity of George Strait as proof that there is a place in its ranks for genre purity. This quiet Texas rancher has single-handedly guaranteed his "classic-style" a place on the charts with at least one platinum-selling album in each of the last 15 years, all without a hint of crossover appeal. His adherence to tradition is unchanged, so his amazing streak should remain a safe bet with his new release, Always Never The Same.

Strait's no-frills approach shows in the fact that his new album's 10 songs barely exceed 30 minutes, yet he remains a reliable source of steady, sturdy tunes. His lack of pretentious bravado serves him as well on the plaintive down-home waltz, "Meanwhile," as it does on the bouncy farewell number "Write This Down." His themes inevitably involve love, whether the agonizing of "4 Minus 3 Equals Zero" or the sweet promise of "That's Where I Wanna Take Our Love." The near-throwback arrangements offer little flash, but they illustrate just how appealing simplicity can be in the sure hands of a true country gentleman.

MARK CHESNUTT I Don't Want To Miss A Thing Decca (DRND-70035)

The title track and opening number on Mark Chesnutt's latest offering is a cover of that recent schlocky Aerosmith hit. It's a blatantly obvious bid for mass airplay from a man who hardly needs to resort to such desperate measures in order to get a proper hearing. Fortunately, this hit is not representative of the music that follows. Except for the bit of falsetto he employs on the otherwise fine mid-tempo number, "This Heartache Never Sleeps," the rest is recognizably Chesnutt — and that's a very good thing.

The frisky "My Way Back Home," about a fellow who returns from a weekend of hunting and fishing only to find his woman has left him and taken their mobile home, mines the traditional country sound that is Chesnutt. The humorous "That's The Way You Make An Ex" is a lively shot of Texas swing. The record's second half finds Chesnutt zipping through a series of fast steppin' tunes, beginning with the irresistible Cajun number "Jolie" and ending three songs later with the breathless pace of "Let's Talk About Our Love." By then you've long since forgiven him for the lapse in good taste on the leadoff track.

- Tierney Smith

TRACY BYRD Keepers (Greatest Hits) MCA (MCAD-70048)

The warm baritone of Tracy Byrd has been a frequent — if not consistent — visitor to the upper echelons of the country charts in the '90s. This hits collection captures many of his best moments, from rowdy romps such "Heaven In My Woman's Eyes" and "I'm From The Country" to slower, more tender fare such "Keeper Of The Stars."

Omitted Top Ten hits "The First Step" and "I Wanna Feel That Way Again" should have also made the lineup — particularly the latter, as ballads are in short supply on this collection. At 10 hits plus one new selection, Keepers also seems a bit skimpy (most country collections of late have been offering at least 12 tracks — usually more — with two or three new recordings).

The new track "When Mama Ain't Happy" is an up-tempo ditty about pleasing the Mrs. Its lack of success on the charts is a big surprise, since lightweight romps of this sort usually do quite well on radio. Maybe its failure will encourage Byrd to go for more substance on his next studio effort.

Overall, Keepers is a pleasant collection. Yet with a little more effort from the folks at MCA, it could have been great.

— Jim Bagley

I frequently see you on the Grand Ole Opry Saturday night TV show, and I think, he doesn't need to do this.

That's just it, I do need to do that. I think it's selfish not to go there if you're a member, if you've been successful in your career and they think enough of you to say, "We'd like to make you a member of this great tradition.' And you go "OK, thanks, I'll take that, but I'm never coming back." Then what good has any of it done? I like investing in people. I love the fact that I knew Roy Acuff. I knew Minnie Pearl. And I know Jimmy Dickens and I know Brother Oswald, and those people know I care about 'em. Honestly care about them and appreciate what they've done. And that's the easiest way to tell them thank you, and to tell them that I do, to go and be there. I love it there, because it feels like you get to go there and see 75 years of music. It's not "What's the chart this week, where's my bullet, what's the top five ..." I think everybody gets caught up in the things that are very temporary, and that's the success of themselves and their popularity. You get very self-absorbed: "I'm concerned about me and me only." I don't fault people for being the way they are... I just like it. It's that simple. I wouldn't have the opportunities that I have, and have had for the last 15, 16 years in this country music world, if it hadn't have been for Roy Acuff out there at the Opry every Saturday night, promoting it, supporting it, loving it. And all those people love it. Think what the Opry'd be like if none of those people went.

You do arena tours and sell them out, yet you still play state fairs, too.

It's nice to have a balance in your life. It's not always about who's got the most... what is it they say, "The guy who dies with the most toys still dies."

I've heard you call yourself a guitar player first, a singer second. Why?

That was how it evolved. I started playing the guitar first, and didn't sing. Am I a better singer than guitar player? Yeah, hands down. But I haven't forgotten the way it evolved. I would think you'd say the same thing about, say, Willie Nelson — is he a better singer than guitar player? Probably. But he loves to play the guitar. He's famous for his songs and his singing, and the same thing for me. I don't think I'm famous for being a good guitar player. But I love to play, and I'm gonna play.

Clyde McPhatter
Doo-wop's most thrilling voice

by Bruce Sylvester

Clyde McPhatter whooped in Clyde McPhatter whooped in ecstasy. His melismatic doowop was rooted in the rich loam of the black church, but his excitement was sensual, not spiritual. First going pro with Billy Ward and His Dominoes, he then founded The Drifters to back him before setting out as a solo, drinking himself to a bitter death at only 39 in 1972. "Money Honey," "Treasure Of Love" and "A Lover's Question" are his legacy. Only der Bingel's "White Christmas" has outsold The Drifters' solidly black version with McPhatter's fanciful falsetto flights.

Jackie Wilson (his successor in the Dominoes), Smokey Robinson, Aaron Neville and especially Dee Clark ("Hey Little Girl") all mirror McPhatter's influence.

"Anything Clyde sings is a prayer, you know," Neville reminisced. "When I was growing up, I don't care what else was going on in the world — Jim Crow, all the other stuff — you could put on Clyde McPhatter and it all would disappear. It would take me to another place. The way it affected me as a teenager, it affects me the same way now. I can put a Clyde CD on and remember where I was and feel the same feelings. It's a thrill, you know."

With Grammy-winning producer Joel Dorn, Neville recently compiled the budget-priced two-CD McPhatter set The Forgotten Angel for Dorn's own label, 32 Records.

"Facts" of McPhatter's early life vary with the source. Born Nov. 15, 1932 (occasionally given as 1931 or 1933), in Durham, N.C., he was one of seven (or 10) children of George Sr. and Beulah (or Eva) McPhatter. A strict father, George was pastor at Mount Calvary Baptist Church, where his wife played organ and led the choir. Here little Clyde sang at age five. When he was about 13, the family migrated north to Harlem (or Teaneck, N.J.). George preached at Mount Lebanon Church on Harlem's 132nd Street. Though his heart wasn't in the church, chunky young Clyde McPhatter sang in the Mount Lebanon Singers with Charlie White, William Anderson, and author James Baldwin's brothers, David

"It was never explained to me what religion was all about. It was nothing but another word for discipline," McPhatter later stated. As a teenager, his songs turned from ecstasy of the soul to ecstasy of the flesh.

After graduating from James Fenimore Cooper High School (or Chelsior), he became a clerk. Over his devout parents' objections, he braved Amateur Night at Harlem's legendary Apollo Theater, winning honors for a rendition of bluesman Lonnie Johnson's tender "Tomorrow Night" — a perfect choice given his precise diction and sincere-sounding delivery. The white pop song in old bluesman Lonnie's hands reflected McPhatter's dream to musically move from the ghetto to Middle America — a dream he was to realize.

In the Apollo audience sat Billy Ward, a Julliard alumnus seeking to create a black singing group to bear his name, even though he wouldn't sing with them. Deciding to make young McPhatter its lead vocalist, Ward also hired the Mount Lebanon Singers' Charlie White as second tenor, plus William Joseph Lamont and Bill Brown. A Golden Gloves champ and commissioned officer during World War II, Ward ran his Dominoes like a drill sergeant, fining them for unshined shoes or missing a note.

The act inaugurated Federal Records (a subsidiary of Sid Nathan's King Records), reaching #6 on the R&B charts with its Nov. 14, 1950, debut, the unremarkable ballad "Do Something For Me." Ward and the quartet's manager Rose Marks penned most of the group's material, except for pop standards such as "Harbor Lights" and "When The Swallows Come Back To Capistrano." "Dictator" Ward's notion was for McPhatter to sound like The Ink Spots' Bill Kenny, but McPhatter — with his knee drops and back flips on stage — was simply too young and exuberant for such restraint, saying he'd "take liberties with the melody. I felt more relaxed if I wasn't confined to it."

The group's fourth single, sexually swaggering "Sixty Minute Man" with bass Brown on lead, topped the R&B charts in spring 1951, even cracking the pop Top 20, despite barriers of race and content. The next spring McPhatter cut loose on "That's What You're Doing To Me," hitting #1 with the smoking follow-up, "Have Mercy Baby," boasting a hot sax break plus handclaps straight from a fervent black church service.

"It was the first record I heard by them," Smokey Robinson later recalled. "I thought it was a woman singing. Then I went to the Broadway Capital Theater in Detroit where they were playing. And I saw it was Clyde McPhatter singing, man. And that was really inspirational to me because I had a real high voice when I used to sing, and the girls were going crazy over him. So Clyde was probably like my first male idol as a singer."

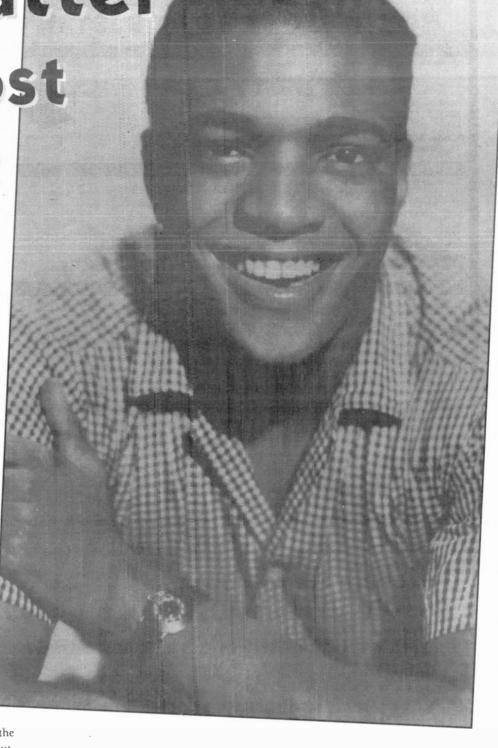

Next came "The Bells," part spoken, part sobbed, ending in McPhatter's melodramatic tears. Still — like Ferlin Husky on country's contemporary "Forgive Me John" — McPhatter's finale sounded like he just might be subtly laughing at his own hit tearjerker, which jibes with R&B historian Charlie Gillett's notion that McPhatter later felt his Drifters hit "Such A Night" was lyrically overblown.

Unhappy with Ward's domination and a paltry $100 weekly salary that had to cover hotel bills and other touring expenses, McPhatter later complained, "Whenever I'd go back on the block where everybody'd heard my records, half the time I couldn't even afford a Coca-Cola." On top of this, his parents wanted him to come home. The Sept. 17, 1952, "Bells" session was McPhatter's last with The Dominoes. That month in Cincinnati, Ward met 18-year-old Jackie Wilson. Recognizing him as McPhatter's replacement, Ward hired Wilson to tour with the act and assigned McPhatter to train him.

Back in New York the next April, Atlantic's Ahmet Ertegun went to Birdland to catch The Dominoes and found no McPhatter. "I fired his ass," Ward explained, though McPhatter later insisted that he'd quit. Sensing an opportunity, Ahmet immediately scoured Harlem, found McPhatter in a rented room, and tried to sign him with the lure of forming a group to back him. Wary after his King Records experience, McPhatter asked, "You're not going to play drums on my sessions like Mr. Nathan, are you?" Ahmet would deliver on his promise of top sidemen: Mickey Baker on guitar, Panama Francis on drums, Sam "the Man" Taylor, Ben Webster, and King Curtis on tenor sax.

Though still young, McPhatter could be firm. He balked at changing his name when Atlantic fretted that people would expect a McPhatter to be a Scottish singer. When he dubbed his future group The Drifters, Atlantic objected that it sounded like a country act — think of Hank Williams' Drifting Cowboys. McPhatter wouldn't budge. According to one account, having learned his lesson from Ward, he formed Drifters Inc. with trumpeter/manager George Treadwell, one of Sarah Vaughan's husbands. McPhatter's longtime friend (and briefly lover) Ruth Brown revealed in her autobiography Miss Rhythm that Treadwell was called "a black Dorian Gray."

The quintet McPhatter rehearsed for The Drifters' first session on June 28, 1953, included David Baughan, James Johnson, and his Mount Lebanon teammates, William Anderson and David Baldwin. Atlantic rejected three of their four tracks. The label later released the fluttery "Lucille" - as a B-side and demanded a new group, which McPhatter delivered in top shape on August 9. Besides Will Ferbee, McPhatter kept with his transplanted southern gospel roots with brothers Gerhart "Gay" and Andrew "Bubba" Thrasher, whose family act. The Thrasher Wanderers, had been recorded by Folkways Records head Moe Asch in their Wetumpka, Al., origins. Bassist Bill Pinkney had sung with Gerhart and young Brook Benton in The Jerusalem

As opposed to his days of anonymity in The Dominoes (except when he was called "Clyde Ward"), McPhatter got his name included on Drifters singles. While other early R&B labels rushed acts in and out of the studio, Atlantic took pains to rehearse people — even if its studio was merely its office with the desks shoved aside. This care hit paydirt with The Drifters' very first release, the unabashedly materialistic "Money Honey," followed by "Such A Night," laced with McPhatter's androgynous squeals of pleasure.

Atlantic's Jerry Wexler said the intro to the act's third release, "Honey Love," is derived from one of The Weavers' African songs. The Memphis police chief banned it from the city's juke boxes, but with its trendy mambo rhythm, it became the only Drifters single to crack the pop Top 40 until 1959's post-McPhatter "There Goes My Baby."

With McPhatter handling vocal arrangements, a typical session aimed for four tracks in three hours. Planning ahead for Yuletide, on Feb. 4, 1954, The Drifters laid down (besides "Honey Love" and the orgasmic "Whatcha Gonna Do") "Bells Of Saint Mary's" and a sublime "White Christmas" with Pinkney and McPhatter passing the lead back and forth in true gospel quartet style.

Yet McPhatter's Drifters days were numbered. The next month his final session with them yielded "Try Try Baby," a feeble attempt to clone "Have Mercy Baby." That October with an anonymous vocal group he laid down "Three Thirty Three," reportedly about a Washington, D.C., after-hours club

"Anything Clyde sings is a prayer, you know. When I was growing up, I don't care what else was going on in the world — Jim Crow, all the other stuff — you could put on Clyde McPhatter and it all would disappear...."

— Aaron Neville

with the street number 333. Even by Drifters standards it was so risqué that it remained in the can until the 1971 Drifters' LP, Their Greatest Recordings: The Early Years.

By fall 1954, Army draftee McPhatter had sold The Drifters name to Treadwell, who on one occasion fired the entire act and brought in a new group (The Crowns with Benjamin Nelson, who became Ben E. King) to fulfill his contractual obligations for a group called The Drifters.

Army Cpl. McPhatter occasionally got leave to record. Easing his way out of The Drifters in the public's eye, his first disc apart from them, "I Gotta Have You"/"Love Has Joined Us Together," was a duet with Ruth Brown. This was a mediocre effort despite friendship so deep that when Ruth became pregnant with the son of Drew Brown (husband to a different Mrs. Brown) and her own "husband" (whom she now reveals she never really married) knew it wasn't his, McPhatter gallantly offered to stand in as the father.

Atlantic studio wizard Tom Dowd says McPhatter never sweated. Other Atlantic staffers recall him as quiet, undemonstrative and smart. Wexler has described McPhatter as professional and easy to work with but admits he got to know him less than any other major Atlantic act.

McPhatter's transition from group to solo parallels his transition from doo-wop to pop. Recorded on Aug. 25, 1955, his first solo, the ballad "Seven Days," hit #2 on the R&B charts and #44 on the pop charts. (Mercury Records promptly had its white Crew Cuts sing it, but with no success, despite the group's smash covers of "Sh Boom" and "Earth Angel.") His next session yielded the romantic "Treasure Of Love."

"You hear triplets against the shuffle. It's not supposed to work, but it does," said Wexler

The song topped the R&B charts and hit #16 on Billboard's pop chart, which was increasingly open to black acts. Early on, Atlantic had no notion of catching white listeners but soon realized how to style acts such as McPhatter, La Verne Baker and The Coasters to grab white teenagers' allowances. Besides, McPhatter's dream was to join the ranks of crooners such as Perry Como and Nat "King" Cole.

As the lust of his Drifters and Dominoes tracks gave way to a more commercial dreamy innocence, 1957's "Without Love" summoned forth his dramatic skills with none of "The Bells" exaggerated histrionics. Its light follow-up, "Just To Hold My Hand," had recently flopped for Paul Perryman (its coauthor with the infamous Don Robey) on Robey's Duke label as well as for Big Boy Myles and The Shaw-Wees on Specialty. But McPhatter took it to #6 (R&B) and #26 (pop). Summer 1958's "Come What May" was pleasant teen fare backed with slinky-rhythmed "Thirty Days," whose insistent beat harkened back to Drifters' sensuality.

Besides covers of The Clovers' "Lovey Dovey" and white gospel singer Martha Carson's "I Can't Stand Up Alone," his Aug. 7, 1958, session unexpectedly yielded "A Lover's Question," his biggest solo hit and final R&B #1. Its publisher sent coauthor Brook Benton to the studio, freshly penned song in hand. Wexler and McPhatter saw its potential and cut it pronto. Half a year later, Brook finally came into his own when his very first Top 40 disc, "It's Just A Matter Of Time," climbed to the #3 spot.

With his Atlantic contract expiring in 1959, McPhatter sought to delve further into pop with MGM Records by teaming with the label's pop singles chief, arranger Ray Ellis, with whom he'd occasionally worked at Atlantic. Billboard initially reported that Atlantic couldn't equal MGM's impressive $50,000-plus per year offer, later retracting the statement to say that Atlantic merely wouldn't equal it. But after a hitless year with MGM, he moved to Mercury to work with Clyde Otis (one of the first black A&rR execs at a major label) and former Nashville producer Shelby Singleton (who now co-owns Sun Records). Whereas Atlantic hadn't perceived of McPhatter as an album artist, Singleton had him turn out Golden Blues Hits (covering Fats Domino and the white country blues Delmore Brothers, among others) and Songs Of The Big City. Recorded in the summer of 1964, Live At The Apollo reprised his hits - minus his youthful high notes — with arrangements bounding from R&B to Big Band. As the crowd cheered his restrained finale of "Without Love," McPhatter responded with a comic Porky Pig imitation: "T-T-T-That's all, folks!

Three Mercury singles broke the pop Top 40. In 1960 "Ta Ta" verged on kiddie fluff. With a jumping King Curtis sax break, 1962's innocently urgent "Lover Please" had been written by Billy Swan at age 16 while sitting in homeroom. Atlantic's Wexler rejected it, so he sent the composition to Singleton. After it hit #7, an LP, Lover Please, inevitably followed, including a rousing yet frankly imitative cover of Thurston Harris's 1957 Aladdin smash "Little Bitty Pretty One." McPhatter's final Top 40 entry.

Reflecting the era's social concern, 1964's "Deep In The Heart Of Harlem" viewed inequality in economic rather than racial terms. Even before John E. Kennedy took office, McPhatter had been bravely journeying south to march for freedom.

Meanwhile, life was turning unkind to him. Angry at an unruly Apollo audience when introducing his 1965 single "Crying Won't Help You Now," he remarked, "Crying won't help you niggers in the third balcony," whereupon an African-American gentleman hurled a wine bottle at the stage, conking McPhatter on the noggin and knocking off his rug. McPhatter rushed to his dressing room, locked the door and refused to come out.

Brown's Miss Rhythm recounts another night from hell at the Apollo. Flash back to Feb. 28, 1968. When comeback-seeking Frankie Lymon failed to appear, stagehands went to his grandmother's apartment, where Lymon — a has-been at 25 — lay on the bathroom floor, dead from a heroin overdose.

"Clyde arrived at the theater the worse for wear and continued drinking until the minute before he took the stage," Brown wrote. "His act dragged on and on, his announcements becoming more and more slurred and maudlin. Finally Mr. Schiffman [Apollo owner Frank Schiffman] begged me to get him off. I did, by strolling on and asking him if he'd like to sing 'our' song, 'Love Has Joined Us Together,' as a final encore. First he flung his arms around me. 'This gal, this Ruth Brown, she always been my special friend. Don't nobody but she and I know what there is between us.' He turned to me, swaying ever so slightly. 'Ain't that right?' I laughed it off like a trouper. 'Hey, maybe one day you'll tell me, Clyde,' I jived Musician/archivist Billy Vera recalled backing McPhatter ("a hopeless lush") on two dates. According to Vera, prior to one show, McPhatter got so plastered that he didn't do a single song he'd rehearsed with the band that afternoon.

After his Mercury contract expired in 1965, McPhatter put out five single flops on Amy. He moved to England, where he was arrested for "loitering with intent." The charge was dropped, but McPhatter was still devastated. Today George Michael can brazenly grab a similar situation by the short hairs and base a video on the event, but the '60s were far less tolerant.

Back in the states, McPhatter reunited with producer Otis for Welcome Home (Decca) using a Philly soul team to little avail. Atlantic then refused to take him back. His second marriage was on the rocks. Bitter and despondent, he told one writer who introduced herself as a fan. "I don't have any fans."

Brown wrote, "Like everyone else I had heard rumors of his bisexuality, and I believe towards the end he was ashamed and terrified of the outside world having his gay tendencies confirmed. He began drinking to drown the guilt and shame he felt, sinking his career into the doldrums.... He literally drank himself to death." An alcohol-induced heart attack felled him in his sleep on June 13, 1972. He was only 39.

Two years later when country's Mickey Newbury sang, "They say Clyde's back but he ain't a Drifter" in nostalgic "Dizzy Lizzy." few knew he didn't just mean some rootless nomad. Though over the years Elvis covered "Money Honey," "Such A Night" and "Without Love," Otis Redding sang "A Lover's Question" and Aaron Neville did "Bells Of St. Mary's" and "Warm Your Heart" (none of which were among McPhatter's compositions), not a lot of money reached his estate until stalwart Brown and her attorney Howell Begle (who by then also represented The Clovers, The Coasters, The Drifters and the estates of McPhatter, Chuck Willis, and Ivory Joe Hunter) {an interview with Begle appeared in the Feb. 12, 1999 Goldmine. — Ed.) doggedly pressed the landmark royalties case other lawyers told her she'd never win - eventually gaining payments to McPhatter's widow, Lena, among others.

A 29-cent stamp and posthumous Rock And Roll Hall Of Fame induction have lately marked the memory of his high, erotic tenor. Fortunately, a wealth of his sides are in print. Take the 19-track Deep Sea Ball: The Best Of Clyde McPhatter (Atlantic) and Rhino's wonderfully illustrated and annotated three-CD Rockin' And Driftin': The Drifters Box. McPhatter's entire Federal/King output appears on Billy Ward And The Dominoes and The Dominoes Featuring Clyde McPhatter. (A 1977 LP of the latter accidentally has an extra 'That's What You're Doing To Me," calling it "Do Something For Me" a mistake the CD release corrects.) Rhino's Sixty Minute Men: The Best Of Billy Ward & His Dominoes features McPhatter on most of its 20 tracks. To complement The Mercury Sessions (basically the Apollo LP plus a few MGM studio tracks), last year Collectables generously combined four Atlantic LPs onto two CDs: Love Ballads/Clyde and the far superior Clyde MrPhatter & The Drifters/ Rockin' And Driftin' (the second LP being all post-Clyde).

And of course there's Dorn and Neville's labor of love, The Forgotten Angel. Besides 30 Atlantic tracks, it offers Mercury's "Lover Please," three tracks from Live At The Apollo plus two live recordings — complete with screaming fans — from an Alan Freed show that had long only been available as a bootleg.

"We didn't call the box The Forgotten Angel by mistake," said Dorn. "Think of all the classic rock or R&B singers from the '50s and '60s. Certain names you always hear, but you don't hear Clyde McPhatter's name. He never got his due. Many more people know about Sam Cooke or Jackie Wilson. Somehow Clyde McPhatter got lost someplace.

"Because I have my own record company, I can do certain projects I could never get sold at a big label. I ve always wanted to do a Clyde thing, but it wasn't something I could sell when I was creating box sets or compilations for any of the majors. I just waited until I could do it."

Added Neville, "If something'd gone wrong in my life or someone had wronged me, back then you could put him on the turntable with all the crackle, and it would take me away from the bad stuff. Clyde McPhatter was like medicine to me."

The 1992 USPS tribute to Rock&Roll/Rhythm&Blues featured stamps of Clyde McPhatter, Elvis Presley, Bill Haley, Ritchie Valens, Buddy Holly, Otis Redding, and Dinah Washington.

25 heavy-duty metal albums

by Bryan Reesman

etal fans are among the most passionate of music listeners, easily arguing the virtues and detriments of their favorite bands. Long after the mainstream music media abandoned their cause, metalheads worldwide still seek out exciting new bands and still pledge allegiance to the faithful flag bearers from the '70s and '80s. The following list is not meant as the ultimate HM album guide but rather as a listing of highly recommended and often overlooked releases, many of which did not receive the appropriate aecolades the first time around.

- 1. Accept Metal Heart (Portrait/CBS). This German steamroller was always a standout because of its Wagnerian style, Udo Dirkschneider's appropriately ugly growls, and incensed lyrics that railed against social injustice and Cold War tension, although on this record they lightened up a bit. Metal Heart is a standout in the band's career because of its multifaceted approach to metal, the swinging "Teach Us To Survive" is a good illustration of that.
- 2. Baron Rojo En Un Lugar De La Marcha (Serdisco). Spain had a burgeoning metal scene in the mid-80s, and heavy hitters Baron Rojo led the way, immortalized with their hit "Vamos Muy Bien" (it's not on this album, though). Lugar De La Marcha shows why they were so successful in their homeland: Their diversity, as evident in the Beethovenesque aspects of "Breakthoven" and the offbeat country slant of "Tras De Ti"
- 3. Black Sabbath Paranoid (Castle). I've never thought Ozzy Osbourne was a great vocalist, but he's always managed to surround himself with good musicians. This early slab of Sabbath features some classic psychedelic rockers, many of which could be termed early Goth rock. Rumor has it that the short 'n' sweet title track was a spontaneous jam written in a few minutes.
- 4. Celtic Frost To Mega Therion (Noise). When Tom Warrior and company released this album on the world, Kerrang! magazine deemed them "art metal" (heaven forbid!). Expanding upon their thrash roots with slower tempos and orchestral interludes, Celtic Frost crafted a strange, surreal record that is sophisticated in compositional ideas and rough in its sound.
- 5. Crimson Glory Transcendence (Roadracer/MCA). Long before prog metal became popular in underground circles in the '90s, Florida's Crimson Glory were practicing their Queensrychian brand of epic metal. Iranscendence features possibly the first metal song surreptitiously referencing AIDS ('Masque Of The Red Death'') and one of the most mesmerizing power ballads ever written ("Burning Bridges")

- 6. Dokken Tooth & Nail (Elektra). I was never a huge hair metal fan, but Dokken had better chops than most and managed to write some catchy numbers, including the now-famous ballad "Alone Again" and the wonderfully atmospheric prelude "Without Warning." Just listen to "Just Got Lucky" and tell me it doesn't have one of the coolest pop metal melody lines ever written.
- 7. Doro Force Majeure (Polygram). This debut solo album from the ex-Warlock singer showcased her powerful lungs and some catchy hooks. And the romantic angst of "Mission Of Mercy" and "Save My Soul" (which incidentally were not delicate ballads) balanced out faster fare such as "Hard Times" and "Angels With Dirty Faces." Her German accent does provide for a few awkward pronunciations, but who cares? This album rocks.
- 8. Fight Mutations (Epic). The follow-up to Fight's debut offers four live cuts as well as five industrial remixes that were ahead of their time, foreshadowing the metal-techno crossovers of the late-90s. While Rob Halford's first post-Priest project may not have been to everyone's liking, this mini-album proved that he was trying to stretch the envelope a bit.
- 9. Icon Night Of The Crime (EMI, vinyl; Beart, CD). On their sophomore effort, this Arizona quintet veered into popmetal territory. In fact, this semi-concept album is relatively mellow, utilizing metal aesthetics as an undercurrent to provide tension to melancholic, guitar synth-heavy songs about the death of a relationship. While very '80s in its sound, much of Crime was very inspired and a great crossover attempt.
- 10. Iron Maiden Number Of The Beast (Castle). I've never been a huge Maiden fan, but this early opus has some great numbers on it, particularly the classic "Run To The Hills" and the title track. Beast preceded the more epic Maiden works to follow, and its energy still resonates today. Check out the excellent 1998 reissue, which includes extensive photos and a multimedia CD-ROM with two videos.
- 11. Judas Priest Stained Class (Columbia). All of Priest's '70s catalog is considered to be classic, groundbreaking material but no album more so than this one. The early speed metal assault of "Exciter," the controversial, morbid power ballad "Beyond The Realms Of Death," and the tribal uprising of "Savage" this was unlike anything before (or even since) in the metal world Rob Halford's eerie falsetto shireks and grim lyrical topics help make this a unique, brilliant rock landmark
  - 12. Kickaxe Vices (Pasha). Pop metal with five band members who all sing? Yes, sparkling vocal harmonies dominate the choruses on this record. What was also cool about these goofy Canadians was that they had some good grooves on sing-along numbers such as "On The Road To Rock" and "Alive And Kickin."

- 13. King Kobra Ready To Strike (Capitol, vinyl; Beart, CD). Drummer Carmine Appice lead this group of bleach-blonde rockers through the standard fare "Shake Up," "Breakin' Out," and "Shadow Rider" but by sheer virtue of their passion and Appice's subtle drumming techniques, the record is a classic of '80s pop metal. Check out the stirring electric power ballad "Tough Guys" and the Kickaxe-penned anthem "Piece Of The Rock."
- 14. Loudness Soldier Of Fortune (Atlantic). By 1989, this Japanese quartet had lost much of its Stateside momentum, yet they were getting better as a band. With American screamer Mike Vescera on board, the band churned out an album of songs with predictable titles such as "Danger Of Love" and "Long After Midnight," yet they transcended those lyrical cliches with a ferocious attack best exemplified by the adrenaline-laced fury of Faces In The Fire."
- 15. Manowar Sign Of The Hammer (10 Records, vinyl; MSI/EMD, CD). This Brooklyn quartet was always more than a bit ridiculous with their Conan-inspired lyrics and stage antics, but they did produce some inspired tunes. Hammer showcases them at their barbaric best. From the supermacho bravado of "All Men Play On 10" to the solemn, semi-improvisational ballad "Mountains," the band provides a thunderous soundtrack to your next conquest.

- 16. Mercyful Fate Don't Break The Oath (Roadrunner). Satanic metal at its best, Mercyful Fate always drew their share of criticism for being a musically sophisticated band with a strange singer, the inimitable King Diamond. Regardless of his odd falsetto, this band recorded some intense, complex works in their early days, and Oath is a testament to their creativity. "Desecration Of Souls" and "Gypsy" possess some truly evil-sounding riffs.
- 17. Motorhead Another Perfect Day (Essential Records). Lemmy and company have been slogging away for more than two decades. While the general direction of their music has been the same, they often throw in a surprising monkey wrench to keep fans on their toes. One such musical curveball is Another Perfect Day, which possesses the requisite Motorhead velocity while offering some slower tempos and tranquil interludes.

18. Ozzy Osbourne - Diary Of A Madman (Epic). I must confess to not having heard tons of Ozzy, but a friend demanded I include this album because of Randy Rhoads' stellar guitar work. Indeed Rhoads' striking neoclassical work strongly helps prove my case that the two genres share a strong link.

19. Queensryche - Rage For Order (EMI). While the subsequent concept album Operation: Mindcrime broke them through to the big time, Rage is a better record for those who want smaller but equally potent doses of one of the earliest progressive metal bands. The atmospheric, futuristic, technologically inspired songs of this record are truly original.

20. Running Wild — Death Or Glory (Noise). This long-running German metal institution inaugurated "pirate metal" with such discs as Under Jolly Roger, Ready For Boarding, and Port Royal. While it doesn't deviate much from their established style, Death Or Glory is a good effort from Rockin' Rolf and his metal buccaneers, with lots of larger-than-life riffs and choruses and some propulsive percussion.

21. Slayer - Hell Awaits (Metal Blade). While their early, pseudo-Satanic excesses were cartoonish, Slayer were quite influential among the speed and thrash metal sets, particularly during the mid-80s. Considered an early example of black metal, this thrashing quartet maintained a sinister atmosphere throughout this breakneck album, even slowing down at points to balance things out, as on the vampire epic "At Dawn They

22. Uriah Heep - Head First (Castle).

Recently reissued with three bonus tracks, this was the second album in a row that revitalized Heep's career in the early '80s. Peter Goalby's impassioned singing, Mick Box's snarling wah-wah guitar, John Sinclair's classically based keyboards and the sterling rhythm section of bassist Bob Daisley and drummer Lee Kerslake all combined for a sophisticated yet radio-friendly sound.

23. Virgin Steele - Noble Savage (T&T/Noise). Although they're an American band, Virgin Steele are far more appreciated in Europe for their grandiose, romantic metal. This landmark 1985 release, their first with shredder Edward Pursino, showcases frontman David DeFeis' superior composing talents. The band's trademark barbaric romanticism is in full force on "Angel Of Light" and the title track. The 1997 reissue features six cool bonus tracks.

24. Warlord - The Best Of Warlord (Metal Blade). Their three or four releases repackaged their work with two different singers, so this "best of" actually encompasses their whole catalog! Despite a small oeuvre, Warlord's highly melodic, symphonic metal works shined with memorable melodies, guitar solos and keyboard work. The Rennaissance-flavored "Deliver Us" is a highlight. Drummer Mark Zonder (a.k.a. Thunder Child) went on to play with American progsters Fates Warning, who are still alive and kicking.

25. Warrior - Fighting For The Earth (MCA). This initially short-lived but recently revived L.A. quintet had (and have) a penchant for performing majestic metal tunes with a genuinely engaging sci-fi and fantasy slant. By combining some meaty riffs, epic arrangements, and a thoughtful use of dynamics, Warrior produced a superior debut, the pinnacle of which is the somber, existential ballad, "Cold Fire."

Possible oldest-ever Elvis signature unearthed

It's the thrill of the hunt that keeps collectors searching through attics, boxes, garage sales, flea markets and classified ads. For some, it's a dabble here or there. For others, though, it's private detective—caliber.

During the last week in January, two longtime Elvis memoribilia collectors unearthed the find of their lives — Elvis' signature on a check-out card from his school library from when he was in seventh grade.

"I think this tops everything," collector Bud Glass said. He and friend Russ Howe were led to the card through a person who knew a former librarian at Elvis' old junior high in Tupelo, Miss. "It's always a friend of a friend of a friend," Glass said of the search process.

Their searches for Elvis memoribilia often begin in Memphis, Tenn., through conversations with longtime friends who come to the city from around the globe every August during the annual commemoration of Elvis' death. One friend hears of an item that someone else might be interested, and the process starts from there. A man in Texas led the cohorts to the librarian in Tupelo, who they were told had some old Elvis autographs. "It didn't really spark anything at first, until I realized how old they were talking," Howe said. "When it arrived through the mail and I looked at it, my insides started shaking."

They knew they had something unique. Through more research, they found out just how unique later.

"We were just kicking around stuff like, 'Wouldn't it be neat if it was the oldest one?' You just don't find stuff like this every day." Glass contacted Graceland and inquired as to what the oldest-known Elvis signature was. A letter from Exhibitions and Collections Manager Greg Howell states, "The earliest signature by Elvis Presley in the Graceland archive is on Elvis' first grade crayon box. Elvis 'scrawled' only his first name. Otherwise, the next earliest signature we have in our archives is dated in the early 1950's when Elvis was in high school."

However, Howell said that he has not seen the card itself and that it would take a very involved process to authenticate the signature.

Glass said that he has letters of authenticity from the former librarian, as well as having located three people so far who also checked that book out of the school library. "They're just tickled pink that we found the card," he said.

Actually, there are two cards. The librarian who had found the first card obtained permission from the school to do a search of the library. "She was amazed that this card was in this book for nine years," Glass said. "(Elvis) was huge in '56, but not as big as he was going to be."

She uncovered another card and both made it into her scrapbook, where they stayed for more than 43 years. "She said she's a pack rat, and thank God," Howe said, laughing.

Adding to the cards' rarity is the fact that the wing of the Milam school in Tupelo (then a junior high) that contained the library burned down in February 1979. "If she hadn't gotten it when she did, it would have been gone forever,"

Howe said that he doesn't usually buy items with the intention to sell them, but the researchers said that they have made initial contact with Sotheby's to auction off the card. "We figured what the heck, we'll give it a shot and see what we can do," Glass said.

"The earliest known signature (of Elvis) from when he was a child before he was anybody would be much more valuable than a baseball hit out of the park a few months ago," he said of Mark McGuire's 70th home run baseball, auctioned off for about $3 million.

As of press time, Sotheby's had not signed a contract with Glass and Howe to consign the card's sale. An authentication process has to be undertaken first and how long that process would take is unknown.

Even more than a month since finding the card, the two collectors can scarcely believe what they have. "It was hard to put into words," Howe said. "I keep looking at it and looking at it. It's incredible, it really is."

Mick Fleetwood appears in Mr. Music on Showtime

The crossover between actors who sing and singers who act is astounding. Flyis Presley, The Beatles, Little Richard, and Roger Dality are among the many musical talents who have starred in movies, and the list keeps expanding. David Bowic, Will Smith, Madonna, Michael DesBarres, just to name a few, have made a successful career with their acting. But the trend goes both ways. Actors such as David Hasselhoff, Keneau Reeves (Dogstar), Bruce Willis, and Kevin Costner have all put out albums. Hasselhoff has been the most successful of the many actors to have taken the leap into the music business.

Mr. Music, directed by Fred Gerber (The X-Files, ER, Law and Order) is an upcoming Showtime movie that showcases another great musical talent — Mick Fleetwood of Fleetwood Mac. When I first heard Fleetwood was going to be in the starring role in this movie I was skeptical. Could he pull it off? Fleetwood did a wonderful job when he appeared on the television show Wiseguy, starring Ken Wahl, but that was a guest-starring role, as were his roles in Zero Tolerance and The Running Man (with Arnold Schwarzenegger).

I was pleasantly surprised that Fleetwood brought so much life and humor to his character of Simon Eckstal, owner of Tone Records, a company on the verge of bankruptcy. Because of Fleetwood's career in the music industry, he brought an insider perspective to the role. Eckstal had started the company with the money that he had made from being a top guitarist on albums with the likes of Eric Clapton, Jeff Beck, Jimi Hendrix, and Paul McCartney. This element of the movie made me laugh, since in Fleetwood's own career he must have crossed paths many times with these great artists and probably even jammed a few times. The walls of Tone Records are lined with gold and platinum records as surely Fleetwood's own house is. But as tough as times are, he still rides in his white limousine, the status symbol of a successful career.

Eckstal hires a 15-year-old Rob Tennant (Jonathan Tucker, Sleepers) to be the vice president of Talent. After all, who could be more knowledgeable about teenagers and their musical tastes than a teenager?

I thoroughly enjoyed the music in *Mr. Music. In the movie, two bands play themselves, Caramel and Treble Charger. They are also featured on the soundtrack, available on Some Images. The soundtrack also includes songs by Graham Nash (who recently worked on the music for the NBC miniseries The Sixties), Pat Benetar, Reel Big Fish, and Blue Flannel, besides Eva Cassidy who performs the Fleetwood Mac classic "Songbird." The title song, "At The Top Of The World," was written by Spencer Proffer, Steve Plunkett, and Caramels' Andy Curran.

Mr. Music is definitely a movie to sit down and enjoy whether watching it alone or with your family. It has a little bit for everyone. It airs on Showtime on March 27. Check your local cable listing for the time.

— Sue Schneider

The songs were almost total opposites, both in content and delivery. One track was a heartfelt, uplifting ballad about peace, love and understanding, punctuated by two little children singing an old gospel ballad. The other track told the story of a naked man who startled crowds as he ran through gas stations and convenience stores and basketball games and was punctuated by words such as "boogity-boogity" and "Don't look, Eth-ull!!!!"

Yet both these songs — "Everything Is Beautiful" and "The Streak" - hit #1 on Billboard's Pop Singles charts, and both songs are guidelines to the breadth and depth of Ray Stevens' musical catalog. For more than 40 years. Stevens has entertained audiences from Georgia to California, and never stayed in one genre long enough to be pigeonholed. Sure he did novelty songs, but he also wrote socially conscious pieces such as "America, Communicate With Me" and "Mr. Businessman." He sang tender ballads but was not above employing four or more different voices for "Gitarzan" or "Bridget The Midget (The Queen Of The Blues) " And when he wasn't singing or composing, Stevens was also a producer and arranger for up-andcoming country artists, working in some of Nashville's most legendary studios

The person we know today as Ray Stevens was born Harold Ray Ragsdale in Clarkdale, Ga., a small cotton mill town.

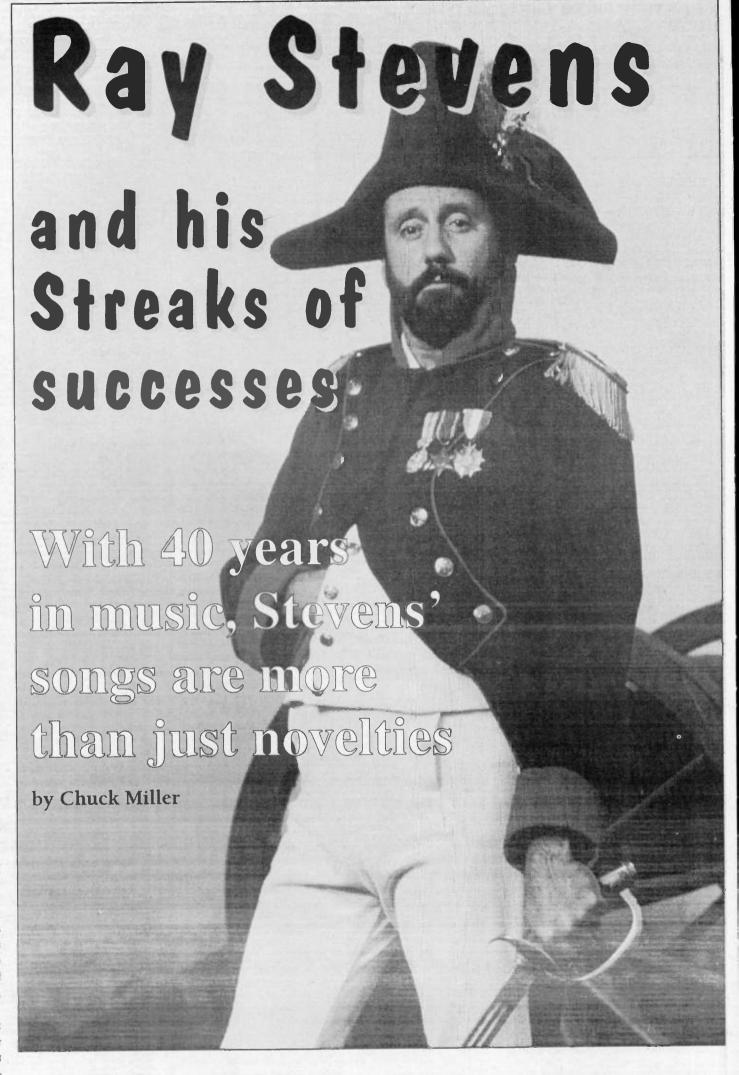

Clarkdale was 20 miles north of Atlanta Atlanta just merges into it at this point. And back in those days — I was born in 39 - there was no television. The radio stations in Atlanta beamed into Clarkdale big time. So we had all kinds of music. There was a swimming pool in the village, and the kids all loved it. I lived in it every summer. And they had a jukebox, and there were a lot of country records on the jukebox. But there were all kinds of records on that jukebox. There was Tommy Dorsey and TD's "Boogie Woogie." Every time I hear TD's "Boogie Woogie," I think of the jukebox at the swimming pool in Clarkdale, Ga. There were all kinds of music, and my influences were very eclectic. I liked it all. Back in those days, we weren't so hung up on demographics, and radio stations played a playlist of all styles of music. If a record was 10° across and spun on a phonograph, they played it because there weren't that many radio stations and everybody was a little more loose. And I loved it all.

"Having taken piano lessons since his sixth birthday. Stevens fronted his own high school band at 15. His family had moved to Albany, Ga., and Stevens and his band played all over the area — for the American Legion, the Elks, private parties, anywhere.

"We didn't have any gigs where you sat down and played every night, because we were schoolboys. Later on, when we got out of school, I played everywhere and everything."

By the mid-1950s, radio stations played more R&rB artists and this new sound called "rock 'n' roll," and Stevens absorbed it like a sponge.

"My hero records were Ray Charles, Big Joe Turner, Ruth Brown, The Clovers, The Drifters, Hank Ballard and the Midnighters, all those R&B records. I loved the Sun records too, when they came later — Jerry Lee Lewis and Carl Perkins and Johnny Cash. I used to love Roy Orbison's songs, including 'Up Town,' 'Penthouse Number Three.'"

At age 17, Stevens moved back to Atlanta, where he met up with radio personality and Georgia Tech football broadcaster Bill Lowery.

"He played all kinds of shows. He was on several different radio stations around town, and he started a music publishing company. He was looking for talent to write songs. I went out to his house, and I said, 'My name is Ray Ragsdale, and I'm going to learn to write songs for you.' And he said, 'Okay, lad, go to it.' I brought him some songs. I borrowed a little tape recorder from a friend. And I got the key from the high school principal to the lunch room, the cafeteria, which had a high ceiling. They had a piano up on a little stage in the cafeteria. Not only did the cafeteria serve food, but it also served double-duty as an assembly hall. I went out there one Sunday by myself with my friend's tape recorder and made a demo of a song that I had written, 'Silver Bracelet.' I took it to Bill, and he flipped out. He called Ken Nelson at Capitol, who was coming to Nashville a lot during those days to produce records — he produced Sonny James and Tommy Sands and Gene Vincent. Bill was friends with Ken, and Ken liked the song and signed me to a contract with Prep."

Stevens went to Nashville and recorded his first record in 1957, at the old RCA "B" studio.

"I remember meeting Chet Atkins my first trip up. Chet wasn't as big back then as he is now - but he was very big, don't get me wrong. In 1957, he was in charge of A&R for RCA. But be that as it may, he was so nice and so easy to get along with, I think we both just spoke and shook hands. But it was such a thrill to be in a studio - I had never seen a speaker that big. Everything was in mono back then, and they had a speaker sitting on the floor, and it sounded so glorious I couldn't believe it. I thought well, I've got the smash of the world coming out of that speaker - but I didn't realize everybody's record sounded that great on that speaker. But it was an experience. 'Silver Bracelet' was a hit in Atlanta but nowhere

When Stevens left Prep, he went to its parent label, Capitol, and recorded some tracks. Meanwhile, Lowery formed the National Recording Corporation (NRC) with some partners in 1959 and sold stock.

"The guy that was in charge of the business, I heard that he either didn't know what he was doing or it was a scam to start with. I don't know. Meanwhile, I just recorded for them. They had a little studio down there — it wasn't state of the art, but it was something to play with. We just lived in it. Me and Jerry Reed and Joe South and all the guys down there, we'd show up every day and bug the engineer and get him to do stuff."

And after years of trying for a big hit, Stevens finally recorded a song, "Sergeant Preston Of The Yukon" (NRC 057) that picked up some national airplay — until someone at King Features Syndicate, the copyright holder of the Sgt. Preston character, took notice.

"We got sued. We had to pull the record off the market because we didn't get permission from King Features Syndicate, who owned the character Sgt. Preston, to use him in a song. Their lawyers sent us a cease and desist letter, 'or we'll send you to prison and sue you seven million dollars' and all that. We trembled in our boots and pulled the record off the market. And they were perfectly within their rights to do so. If I had been King Features, I would have done the same thing. But it never occurred to me that you can't use a known character in a song unless you get permission."

After NRC folded, Stevens continued to write songs and perform and eventually ended up on a radio program, "The Georgia Jubilee," from WTJH in East Point, just outside of Atlanta.

"They would book in one big act out of Nashville every week and then have local acts come in and pad the show for time. And I played the show a lot — I think it was on Saturdays. I'd go out and do two or three songs, and somebody else would go out and "I would start a song, crumple up the paper and throw it away. I had crumpled up paper all over the place. And I finally hit on 'Everything Is Beautiful' (Barnaby 2011), and I wrote it in about 45 minutes. I knew that it was a hit. I don't know why, I don't know how, but I just knew it was a hit."

do two or three songs, and that would be the first half. And then Faron Young or Ferlin Husky would come on and do the last half. Shelby Singleton was from Shreveport, La., and he was promotion for Mercury in the southeast. Being aggressive in promotion in the southeast, he came by the Georgia Jubilee and saw me. When he became head of A&R at Mercury in Nashville, he moved to Nashville, moved Jerry Kennedy to Nashville, who he had known forever in Shreveport, and he called me and said. 'Would you like to move to Nashville and assist Jerry and I in making records?'

"And I said, 'Whoo-eee!! How much do I make?' 'Fifty dollars a week.' I said, 'That's great, I'll be right up.'"

From the first day he walked into the Mercury studios, Stevens earned every penny of that $50 a week. He screened material when it came in, performed session work, even rehearsed the artists.

"We had some artists back in those days that couldn't find 'one' in a count off. They thought a meter was something you put a quarter in to park. Most of them weren't like that, don't get me wrong, but there were several that you really had to work with to get them to learn the material and be ready for the session. We cut four sides every session, and a session only lasted three hours. You could cut an album in three sessions. And we're talking mixed, ready to go. But I also got to play on a lot of the sessions — I did 300 sessions that first year, 62 in Nashville. Of course, the $50 a week was nothing compared to what I made doing recording sessions. I think the union scale was $51.25, and I thought I was very wealthy. I was very thankful for that opportunity, because I had so much fun. I met so many musicians and singers. I used to sing with the Jordanaires when one of their guys got sick and stuff like that.

One day, Stevens even performed with Elvis Presley on sessions for the movie Fun In Acapulco.

"The only Elvis session I was on, I played trumpet on it with Charlie McCoy. He was a great harmonica player, and he led the band on Hee Haw for years and years. He had a trumpet, and I had a trumpet. I'm a terrible trumpet player, and so is Charlie. But we were on this Elvis session. I played keyboards, of course, and they didn't need me to play on this particular song, nor did they need a harmonica. It was a sort of a Mexican song, so they asked us to get our trumpets and play a little Mexican lick on it, and we did. I'll never forget that. The only Elvis session I ever played on, I played an instrument that I could barely hold. Later on, I published a song that Elvis recorded, his last hit before he died, 'Way Down."

Meanwhile, Stevens' own songs were rising up the charts. In September 1961 he had his first Top 40 pop hit with the tonguetwisting title of "Jeremiah Peabody's Polyunsaturated Quick Dissolving Fast Acting Pleasant Tasting Green And Purple Pills" (Mercury 71843). With "Jeremiah Peabody's Pills" rising up the charts, Stevens joined a rock 'n' roll package tour.

"GAC was an agency back in those days, and I went on a 30-day bus tour — it was me, Tony Orlando and Ral Donner. The bandleader was Bobby Vinton — Bobby Vinton and the Bachelors. Four scroungy looking guys from Pennsylvania. We went all over. We spent 30 days on the damn bus, and when I got home, I was just worn slap out. But I had saved enough money that I made to buy me a new car."

In 1961, Stevens and his new car moved to Nashville, where he began cutting and producing more records.

"One of the first sessions we did I recorded 'Ahab, the Arab' in the morning with Shelby Singleton, Jerry Kennedy and myself. It was a magic day. At two o'clock that afternoon we cut Leroy Van Dyke's 'Walk On By,' and that night we cut Joe Dowell's 'Wooden Heart.' So we cut three big records there, boom boom boom, all in one day. The stars were lined up just right."

Mercury held "Ahab, the Arab" until the spring of 1962, then released it (Mercury 71966). Within weeks, every radio station was playing the novelty song about an adventurous Bedouin, his faster-than-lightning camel, Clyde, and a junk-food devouring sultan's daughter. The song became Stevens' first Top 10 pop hit. "That song ended my career as the assistant A&R person."

With "Ahab" still rising up the charts, Stevens cut a similar record, "Harry, the Hairy Ape." The song received some marginal airplay, but didn't do as well as "Ahab.". Stevens brought back Clyde for another song, the holiday-themed "Santa Claus Is Watching You" (Clyde takes over Rudolph's spot in Santa's reindeer team. It seems Rudolph injured one of his hooves at a twist concert or something).

"Then my records kinda tapered off. It's my fault, because I didn't pay enough attention to being a star. I was still enamored with life in the studio and producing."

So Stevens left Mercury and joined Monument Records. He became a head producer for Monument, overseeing new artists such as a young Dolly Parton.

"I signed with Fred Foster as a singer and as a producer. I produced a session for Dolly Parton, 'Happy Happy Birthday Baby.' It wasn't a big hit, but I thought it was a good record. I also did some free-lance work -B.J. Thomas' first session. I arranged it and played organ on it, called 'Billie and Sue.' It was a hit for him. I arranged a lot of the Ronnie Dove hits. I was good friends with Bill Justis. He was arranging Ronnie Dove, and he got so busy he couldn't do it. He called me and said, 'I can't do Ronnie Dove, you wanna arrange him?' I said sure. But Bill got him started. But I used to sing background on a lot of sessions. I played keyboards on a lot of sessions. It was one big family at that time. And the studios - there were three major recording studios in Nashville - RCA, Bradley's and Sam Phillips. Fred Foster bought Sam Phillips and called it Foster Studios. We cut on the top floor of the Cumberland Lodge Building, four or five blocks from the Ryman Auditorium."

During his stay at Monument, Stevens added new styles to his musical repertoire. His new singles included tracks about the stress of city living ("Unwind") and an attack on hypocritical middle America ("Mr. Businessman").

"I didn't know anything about marketing. I didn't know that you had to stick with one style of music or you would confuse the public. Now you've got to have continuity. As far as marketing your records is concerned, you have to stick with one bag, or the radio stations don't know what to do. They say, 'Oh my gosh, can you play this?' I give people a lot more credit for being diversified than a lot of people in this business do. If all you have on your plate is blackeyed peas, I like black-eyed peas, but damn, I'd like a little corn on that too every now and then. I think I'm a little different from a lot of people inasmuch as I am first and foremost a musician. I love music, but I do have a sense of humor and I love to do a funny song. But by the same token, I want it to be good musically as well as funny, and not only the lyric but in the production and the sounds that tell the story."

By 1968, Stevens was ready for another novelty hit, and he received some inspiration from his good friend Justis.

"Bill Justis had a big hit with 'Raunchy,' and he was a great arranger, a great musician. God, I learned a lot from him. We were in L.A. one day, and he said, 'Hey man, I got a great idea for a song, man, you ought to write it'

"I said, 'What is it?'

"He said, 'Git-tarr-zan, man."

Using a poetry book to squeeze every possible rhyme out of the lyrics, Stevens cowrote "Gitarzan," a song about a rock 'n' roll-tree-swinger and his Tina Turner-sounding wife Jane. It became a huge hit and garnered Stevens his first gold 45. Some music scholars claim the monologue in "Gitarzan" was influenced by musician Roger Miller's soliloquies, but Stevens disputes this.

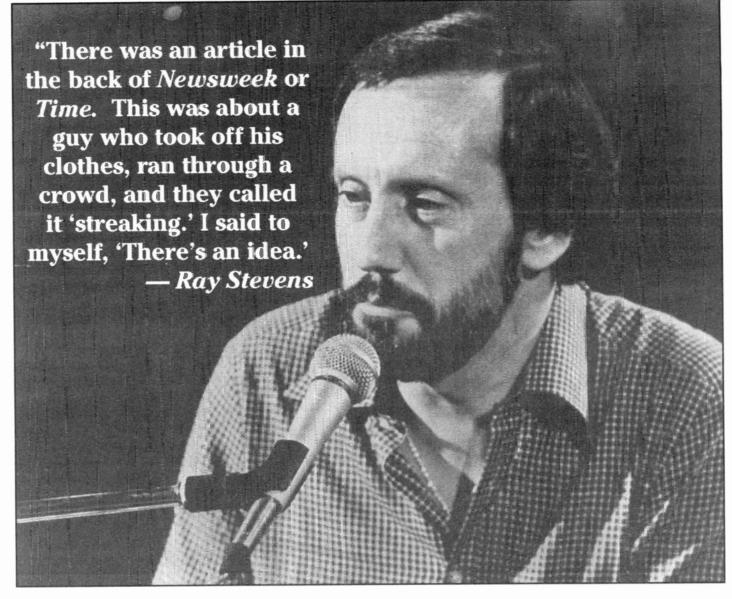

"I gave Bill Justis part of the song for the idea. I loved Roger Miller, but I don't associate that song with him at all. I wish I could get into some Roger Miller influence. He's a totally different animal from me. When it came to switching voices from Gitarzan to Jane to the monkey, well I was a big fan of Brother Dave Gardner — he wasn't a singer. Well, he tried to sing and he did a fair job, but he was mainly a comedian. But he would do the high falsetto and his normal voice. Flip Wilson — he was influenced by Dave Gardner too — and I later on did get permission from Edgar Rice Burroughs Corporation to use Tarzan in a song called 'Gitarzan.'"

In 1969, up-and-coming songwriter Kris Kristofferson offered Stevens his choice of three new ballads — "Help Me Make It Through The Night," "Sunday Morning Coming Down" and "Me And Bobby McGee." Stevens eventually selected "Sunday Morning Coming Down" and went into the studio to record it.

"God, I spent more time in the studio on that song than I had ever spent on anything in my life, but I was real proud of the record."

Just as he finished the song, Stevens got a call from songwriter Hal David. David and his partner, Burt Bacharach, had written a song for an upcoming Paul Newman-Robert Redford film, Butch Cassidy And The Sundance Kid and offered Stevens the opportunity to record the new song.

"Hal David said to me, 'Fly here to Los Angeles. We're going to play this song, and we want you to sing it in the movie.' So I flew out there and they played me "Raindrops Keep Falling On My Head." And I was at Burt Bacharach's house, and he was playing it on the piano — he can't sing worth a damn — but I thought it was a pretty good song, these guys are not lightweights here, and it is going to be in a Paul Newman-Robert Redford movie. But I was so stupid. I had spent so much time in the studio on 'Sunday Morning Coming Down,' and I didn't want anybody to beat me to the record stores with it. So I passed on 'Raindrops Keep Falling On My Head.'"

The end result — "Sunday Morning Coming Down" barely scraped the bottom of the charts, while B.J. Thomas, Janis Joplin and Sammi Smith had monster hits with the songs Stevens passed up. To top it all off, Johnny Cash later recorded "Sunday Morning Coming Down" and it became a top country hit. But despite this misstep, Stevens' biggest hits were still in his future.

In 1970, Stevens joined a new label, Barnaby Records, owned and operated by singer Andy Williams Barnaby was originally created as a reissue label for the 1950s Cadence recordings (which Williams, as a former Cadence singer, purchased from Archie Bleyer). After Stevens performed on Williams' televised variety show, Stevens became Barnaby's first contemporary signee.

"I had just signed with Barnaby, and I had also just been told I was going to host Andy Williams' show over the summer. I wanted my first record on Barnaby to be a hit, and I wanted a song that could possibly be used for the theme of the summer show. My piano was in the basement of the house we were living in. I went down there and I lived down there for three days. I would start a song, crumple up the paper and throw it away. I had crumpled up paper all over the place. And I finally hit on 'Everything Is Beautiful' (Barnaby 2011), and I wrote it in about 45 minutes. I knew that it was a hit. I don't know why, I don't know how, but I just knew it was a hit. Went into the studio with a bass player and a drummer, and I played piano. We cut it three times before I was happy with it. And then we called in all the other stuff and overdubbed everything else."

As a final hook, Stevens added a few bars of the Sunday school hymn, "Jesus Loves The Little Children," as sung by his two daughters.

"One of my daughters was in second grade, the other was in kindergarten, but they were both in the same school. We took a little tape recorder to school and got them out of class, took them into the lunch room, and had them sing 'Jesus Loves The Little Children.' And their teacher was a piano player of sorts. She knew the song, so she played it and they sang it. Then we took that little snippet back to the studio and spliced it on the front of the record that we had already made and overdubbed a string chord over the splice, and it sounded pretty good. So we left it in."

Within weeks, "Everything Is Beautiful" became Stevens' first #1 pop hit, and became along with the Youngbloods' "Get Together," an anthem of unity and homogeneity.

"I won a Grammy for Male Vocalist of the Year for "Everything Is Beautiful," but I was on tour in Australia that year. Glen Campbell picked up my award for me. Thanks a lot for booking me in Australia, management."

Stevens later followed up "Everything Is Beautiful" with "America, Communicate With Me," a track that hoped to find common ground among both sides of the political fence.

"I was disturbed by what I thought to be at the time unnecessary protest. I didn't get it. I didn't think a lot of it was necessary. I'm not political one way or the other. I think I lean more towards conservatism than liberalism — I'm more Republican than Democrat — but I'm still kinda on the fence. I just didn't think that a lot of the values being promoted by all the political unrest and the social unrest were justified and warranted. And of course, I come from small-town America. My experience had not been in the inner cities, other than from looking at it from my own perspective. I just thought this is a song that I think is appropriate for — I thought it spoke for a lot of people."

For the next few years, Stevens continued to release music in a wide range of genres — everything from the gospel track, "Turn Your Radio On" ("There's a lot of very appealing musical nuances in gospel records, and I wanted to elaborate on them. I had a period in there where I did a lot of that.") and the novelty dance record "Bridget The Midget (The Queen Of The Blues)" t"Bridget the Midget' didn't get played in the U.S. very much, but it went gold in England. I did all the voices on that one, using the old Chipmunks' trick for Bridget's voice — record the tape at half-speed, play it back at full-speed").

In 1974, while on an airplane en route to Los Angeles, Stevens thumbed through a magazine and read about a new fad among college students — running stark naked through public places.

There was an article in the back of Newsweek or Time. You know how in the back they'll just do little two-inch blurbs? This was about a guy who took off his clothes, ran through a crowd, and they called it

'streaking.' I said to myself, 'There's an idea.' So I wrote out a few notes, and when I got back to Nashville, I stuck my notes in my piano bench were I kept all my unfinished songs.

"First thing you know, streaking is bigger and bigger and bigger. I ran in there and finished my song, got in the studio and recorded it. By the time I got my record out there, there were 15 or 16 other streaking records already on the market. I though to myself, 'Boy, how did they get these out so fast?' Because I was really on top of this."

After "Everything Is Beautiful" hit the top of the charts, Stevens had built a new state-of-the-art recording studio on Nashville's Music Row. Although he had a few country and gospel hits that were recorded in that studio, none of those tracks ever crossed over to the pop charts. Stevens needed a fresh place for his new idea, even if it meant going back to basics.

"I bought an old house across the street, which was run-down, dilapidated, fixed it up, put in a little bailing wire board in there, and the first record I cut in there was 'The Streak' (Barnaby 600). Back in those days, you could cut acetates one at a time and take them to a radio station and they would play it. The #1 pop station here in Nashville was WMAK or WKDA, one of those. We took it down there one afternoon, and they played it and the phones lit up like they've never lit up before or since. So we knew we had a smash. We put the record out, and sure enough — it was selling so fast that the pressing plants couldn't fill the orders. What a great dilemma."

It also didn't hurt that five days before "The Streak" was released nationally a man sneaked into the Academy Awards broadcast, stripped to his suntan, and "streaked" across the Oscar stage. The incident made frontpage news, and the release of "The Streak" was perfect timing. Stevens beat out all the other "streaking" records to notch his second #1 pop hit.

Stevens would be in the audience the next time he received a Grammy, this time as Best Arranger for a remake of the Erroll Gardner Trio classic "Misty" — an up-tempo version with steel guitars, fiddles and banjos (Barnaby 614).

"That was an accident. We were in my studio. It's my studio, I don't rent it out, so when I'm not recording, it's just sitting there. So I was rehearsing my road band for a TV show we were going to do the next day that was shooting in Nashville. And during one of the breaks in rehearsal, we started clowning around with 'Misty' with a banjo and a fiddle and steel guitar. We weren't making fun of the song, we were just having fun. And it sounded so good, I said, 'Hey, let's call the engineer and cut this,' because the engineer was home — he worked by the hour. So I called him up and said, 'Can you come down here and record this?' He did, and we cut it in about an hour. And it won a Grammy for best arrangement. I got on the podium for that one. Of course, they didn't make the presentation on air, that was one of the lesser Grammys, and of course they don't give them all out on the air."

"Misty" was also one of the last hits Stevens had for Barnaby Records. Barnaby had bounced from distributor to distributor for years (from CBS to MGM, finally joining GRT in 1975), and Williams wanted to shut down the label. Stevens later signed a new contract, this time with Warner Bros. Records.

"Andy Williams decided he was not going to be active with Barnaby any more. So he said to me, 'Why don't you go record for somebody else?' I said 'OK,' and I went to Warner Bros. Warner Bros. at the time didn't have their act together as far as Nashville is concerned. Not taking anything away from Warner Bros., but their Nashville branch was really the farm club, and they didn't pay much attention at the home office to the Nashville folks. Maybe I was going through a period where I wasn't cutting records that were that good anyway, so I'm not pointing

Of course every time they kicked the Coke machine, it sounded like a gun went off outside my door. They had motorcycles in the halls and all this kind of stuff. I thought to myself, 'These guys - I'm going to get them. I'm going to write a song about them.' I called them up when I finished the song and said, 'I'm going to put this record out, and I don't want you to be offended, as a matter of fact, I'll donate a portion of the artists' royalties to your charities, and if you'll support the record, I think it'll help your visibility and increase the success of your charities.' And they went for it. Everybody always asks me, 'Were the Shriners mad at you for putting out that record?' And I always have to say 'Heck no, they loved it, and they still do to this day.' I'm not a Shriner, I'm not a big joiner or anything. I wouldn't be in the Musician's Union if I didn't have to. I don't know if I ever played

"... I always felt the song was very clever, and I kept it in my desk drawer... But God, it just took off like a rocket. I can't go on stage to this day without several people yelling, 'It's Me Again Margaret!' It's quite a song."

- Ray Stevens

any fingers.

Although Stevens still had a successful publishing company (including publishing "Way Down," Presley's last charting Top 40 single before passing away), his stint with Warner Bros. was not as successful. He was, however, able to sneak two songs onto pop radio in the mid-to-late 1970s: a rendition of "In The Mood" where the instruments and vocalists were replaced by the sound of clucking chickens (which might explain the record credits going to the "Henhouse Five Plus Two") and an ode to the sultan of schmaltz, "I Need Your Help, Barry Manilow."

"That song was riding high one day and then shot down the next. It happened overnight. It's just like somebody at Warner Bros. decided to call up the radio and say, 'Stop playing this record' or something, I don't know."

Between 1979 and 1984, Stevens recorded for RCA. He had one major novelty hit during those years, "Shriner's Convention," a song about an exasperated Shriner trying to keep a lid on his overzealous party animal lodgemate. Stevens had finished a concert in Altanta, and he and his band had rooms already booked at a local hotel. Unbeknownst to them, the hotel had also booked every other room with Shriners.

"We had booked our rooms at the Holiday Inn months in advance, and I didn't know that the Shriners were headquartering there for their Southeastern convention. The rest of the rooms in the entire hotel, and it was a big hotel, were about 99 percent Shriners, and so it was me and my band and the Shriners at this hotel. And the Shriners kept us up all night, just rocking 'n' rolling. There was a Coke machine outside my room that was broken, and they would put in coins and nothing would come out, so they would kick the Coke machine. This went on all night.

in a Shriner hall before 1980, but after the 'Shriner's Convention' record came out, I played a lot of Shriner halls."

By 1984, Stevens found a new home at MCA, and his songs now featured a blend of gospel and novelty, a mixture of country and pop that found new audiences and spawned two new hits — "Mississippi Squirrel Revival," a parable about how the Lord works in extremely mysterious ways, and "It's Me Again, Margaret," a song about the funniest obscene phone caller ever.

"That's a song Paul Craft wrote. He's been a writer around here for a long time. Paul wrote 'Drop Kick Me Jesus Through The Goalposts Of Life.' Anyway, Paul was a little off-the-wall and he recorded this song years ago on Hickory. Hickory was a làbel owned by Acuff-Rose. And his record didn't make it. I kept the record, because I always felt the song was very clever, and I kept it in my desk drawer. When I did this album on MCA, He Thinks He's Ray Stevens, I got it out and I added the laugh - 'it's me again Margaret, hee hee hee hee.' That's what I think gave it the little spark. Of course the song was there, the nucleus was there. But God, it just took off like a rocket. I can't go on stage to this day without several people yelling, 'It's Me Again Margaret!' It's quite a song.'

Even to this day, it seems Stevens has a new "Greatest Hits" album in stores. Most of those releases aren't under his control — former labels like Monument and Barnaby have licensed and relicensed and re-relicensed hits like "Everything Is Beautiful" and "The Streak" to all kinds of labels for compilations.

"It used to bother me that records would come out saying 'Ray Stevens' Greatest Hits' that didn't have the records I thought were my best work. It used to bother me, but I can't do anything about it. They're out there, and hey - there you go."

But Stevens did something about it. In the mid-1980s, he made some music videos for some of his greatest hits and released the tape through a successful mail order/television advertising campaign. That venture led to a new custom label for Stevens' music — Clyde Records, named after the world's fastest camel.

"We shot videos, put them together in a long-form package, and sold them over the television with an 800 number, and it worked out great. The record sales were promoted very well by this video success, and everybody rereleased all kinds of packages. Clyde is a direct marketing label. I did a 20-song album with Boots Randolph, and we sold it direct. Of course, all the videos are on Clyde. Clyde doesn't have any retail distribution at this point. I've been trying to get some retail distribution, but so far it's a pretty hard nut to crack. But with direct sales is where Clyde is involved."

In the early 1990s, Stevens spent some years in a new mecca for music superstars — Branson. Mo.

"I was one of the first celebrity entertainers to go into Branson. Branson, for the most part, was people who were only known in that area. Roy Clark had a theater there, and he'd bring in name celebrity talent. I worked his theater for several years, and I got a call from somebody saying, 'Why don't you build a theater in Branson?' I got into it and did it. I did three seasons there, 1991, 1992 and 1993, at the Ray Stevens Theater in Branson. It was a big 2,000 seat theater -- I say big, it was big then. It was the first big theater in Branson. We had a ball doing it - it was a lot of fun. A lot of work too. But after three years, I decided I'd better get out or I'd kill myself. You have to do two shows a day, six days a week for six months at a time — plus you have to spend two months gearing up for the next season, and a month or so winding down. So you've only got three months to take a breather in between seasons, and I decided I'd better get out of here or I'd be dead. You don't have time to eat - all you've got time to do is eat on the run and go home and sleep and get up and take a shower and come back and do it again. It's a killer. I sold the theater to a company called Country Tonight. They have a revue there. They're doing well. I understand it's a great show."

Today, Stevens still records and releases albums, some of them new material, some carefully selected greatest hits packages. He purchased a houseboat at the end of last summer, and when he has the time, he takes it out to the lake and just floats around.

"Houseboats are a lot of fun. They're sorta like a home away from home. I wouldn't mind having an ocean-going boat and keep it down in South Florida somewhere. That might be fun. I don't know if I would get out of sight of land, but you can have a lot of fun in the dock."

"I feel very lucky to have had the success that I've had. But I see where I've screwed up big time — I see things that I could have done differently and had a lot more successful ride here. But of course, hindsight is 20/20."

TOTALLY SELF CONTAINED, NO ADDITIONAL HARDWARE IS REQUIRED EXTERNAL SCSI-II PORT WORKS LIKE A STANDARD CD WRITER FOR CREATING CUSTOM DISCS.

INTERNAL A/V HARD DRIVE STORES DISK IMAGES FOR MULTIPLE COPIES, AND CUSTOM AUDIO DISCS.

COPY ANY CD NOW. NO PC REQUIRED.

DUPE-IT!

Instantly copy music and CD-ROM compact discs. Make backup copies of your favorite music and software on rugged, permanent CDs. Produce compact discs quickly and economically. No mastering or multimedia experience is required.

Insert your original CD and press "start." The multimedia processor quickly copies any disc to the internal A/V hard drive. Insert blank CDs and make as many copies as you like. You'll produce perfect duplicates. The system is totally self contained — no additional hardware is required.

BUY DIRECT: FROM $795! 100 BLANK CDs $169! 408 330-5566

Just plug in the power cord and press "start"—it's that easy.

You can even make your own custom music CD without a PC! Insert your original CD's, select the tracks you want, and Dupe-It will copy them to the internal hard drive. Then insert a blank CD, and you'll have a custom music CD with just the songs you want.

With the included CD mastering software, Dupe-It will work overtime as your personal CD design system. Just attach a SCSI cable to your PC or Mac, and you're ready to design and create your own original CD's. Similar systems used in duplication houses cost over $5,000. Now you can easily copy CDs yourself for a fraction of the price.

Classical Notes

AN INTRODUCTION TO CHEAP THRILLS

by Peter Gutmann -----

In a recent poll, a significant portion of Goldmine readers expressed interest in classical music. In response, we're expanding our coverage in this area with Classical Notes, a new column to appear in even-numbered issues. I've written occasional features and reviews for Goldmine, but with a more regular presence it seems appropriate to mention my background and outlook — full disclosure, as we say in my trade.

I'm a partner in the Washington, D.C., communications law firm of Pepper and Corazzini, LLP, where I specialize in broadcasting. I have no formal credentials or professional ties to music. I'm proud to be a pure amateur and consider my lack of insider status to be a boon, as it enables me to write without preconceptions or constraints.

To further my independence, I don't accept free review copies. I don't mean to disparage nearly all other music writers who do, but I know my own nature. Both in my business and private life, I tend to treat others the way they treat me. I don't want to feel that I owe anyone any favors. Every record I mention will have been bought at retail with my own hardearned money. I won't recommend a record unless I truly consider it a good value. If I feel ripped off, I'll tell you that, too. I'm a fierce consumer; my mother raised me that way.

I write about music for only one reason: Because I want to. In my profession I'm an advocate and an advisor, and I'll be so here as well. I intend to wave the classical banner to convey the wonder and glory of this genre and, at the same time, of all music.

I also want to demystify classical music, which too many people shun for fear of the unknown. Whether consciously or not, you do like classical — it's everywhere, and not just "Eleanor Rigby" types of arrangements. Its tonality, melody, harmony and form permeate all the music we routinely hear. (And please don't think of classical as all retro; in a few months I plan to write about John Cage, whose classical music was far more "modern" than anything you'll ever hear on the radio.)

Needless to say, I love classical music, but not exclusively so. I have more than 6,000 oldie 45s and my current passion is doo-wop and R&B 78s. I also like world music, jazz, folk, blues, rock and old pop. An article in the first Goldmine issue I ever bought turned me on to Bob Wills; I'd never heard of him, but I've loved his music ever since. I want to be part of that process. I respect Goldmine because it doesn't draw judgmental lines between types of music. Excellence knows no artificial distinctions.

So what's so great about classical music? Well, for one thing it has stood the test of time. Trends come and go, but this stuff endures. Monteverdi madrigals, Bach cantatas, Mozart piano concertos, Beethoven symphonies, Verdi operas, Stravinsky ballets — the core repertoire has held the fascination not only of its own generation but of every one since. No one has fully explained this phenomenon, but one thing is clear: There's something here of lasting value. Pick a recent Grammy winner and ask yourself: Will anyone still emote over it in 100 years (or even 10)? I guarantee you, though, that generations yet unborn will still respond to Bach.

The bottom line is this: Music is music, even though each of us comes to focus on particular types. So check us out. Even if you don't convert, I hope you'll find that some of the ideas we explore will resonate in whatever music you happen to enjoy the most. Now on to the column.

Some people think I'm cheap, but I'm really just frugal. There's a difference, you know. Cheap people hate spending money at all, while frugal folks demand value for whatever they do spend. Cheap, frugal, whatever; the cost of CDs has always bugged me. But I've finally managed to do something about it. So can you!

Over the past year I've made an amazing discovery that I'd like to share. Shhh — it's the record industry's dirty little secret: You don't have to spend a fortune to buy a nice collection of classical music!

I was spurred into action last year by an all-too familiar sight: The guy with the price gun hiking up top-line CDs yet another dollar. So I decided to try a modest consumer experiment to see just how far the then-$17 cost of a new full-priced CD could be stretched. My ground rules were simple: Only new discs, no cutouts, and no bland crossover compilations. I wanted the real stuff, but as cheaply as possible. And I meant cheap (oops — frugal).

The prospects at local record stores were discouraging. Their $10 mid-price discs were pretty pricey, and their so-called $8 budget labels were still well beyond the budget I had in mind. Even their super-bargain $6 Naxos and $4 Seraphim labels weren't quite the super bargain I sought.

So what's so great about classical music? Well, for one thing it has stood the test of time. Trends come and go, but this stuff endures... the core repertoire has held the fascination not only of its own generation but of every one since... Pick a recent Grammy winner and ask yourself: Will anyone still emote over it in 100 years (or even 10)? I guarantee you, though, that generations yet unborn will still respond to Bach.

Of course, there were also those bins of impossibly inexpensive CDs at bookshops, supermarkets and drug stores. For years, I'd passed them by with only a furtive, disparaging glance. Their garish covers, no-name artists and hackneyed repertoire screamed cheap in the worst way of having no appeal beyond their price tags.

And then my salvation appeared. Buried in the back of a Sunday newspaper stuffer for an electronics chain was an ad for genuine classical CDs on the Pilz Vienna Masters label. The price: An incredible 99 cents! And so it was that I went to Circuit City ("Where the Streets Are Paved With Bargains") to grab my 17 CDs.

My expectations were low. This is the murkiest depth of the classical retailing ocean, where the sunlight of reviews never penetrates and for whose strange creatures no respectable collector would ever trawl. At this price, the package costs more than the contents and the performers' names, when given, are not only unfamiliar but often barely pronounceable. (Try this one three times fast: "Anton Grear and the Ljubljana Radio Symphony Orchestra").

Those same expectations, though, were buoyed by nostalgia. Decades ago, when I started collecting records, full-priced LPs were well beyond my allowance, and all I could afford were the Columbia Harmony, London Richmond and RCA Camden labels. Times have changed: Back then the majors had a stranglehold on record retailing and included in their "paperback" lines older items by top artists, whereas nowadays independents fill the budget bins with unknowns. Yet, one fundamental thing hasn't changed a bit: As I browsed, the only other customer was a kid with a backpack who, in a certain karmic sense, I had once known quite well.

The store manager insisted that he breaks even on 99-cent CDs, but that seems impossible. Clearly, these items are intended as loss leaders to lure customers. It sure worked for me. but since the browsers were right by the cashier I wasn't tempted to toss a $500 TV into my shopping cart. Some retailers could learn a few things from the guys who design those Las Vegas casinos where you have to pass through miles of slots to find the all-you-can-eat buffet.

Anyway, while reveling in my budget wonderland I was able to assemble a far-flung collection of solos, duo sonatas, quartets, concertos, symphonies, songs and even Masses from the 12th through 20th centuries. All turned out to be at least decent, and many were amazingly fine. I was so pleased that I've since bought dozens more. I even went on to splurge for the comparative extravagance of $1.99 for the Eclipse Point Classics label — and all of this for what I often drop in a week on "normal" CDs.

So how come these frugal treasures don't smother their pricier competition? Marketing prowess and aesthetic snobbery aside, there's a very good reason.

Why do concert artists collect huge fees playing pieces their audience already knows by heart? And why do collectors amass dozens of versions of their favorite works? Because each says something unique and compelling. Many of these performances, though, tend to lack the supreme insight that marks a genuinely great interpretation. The notes are all there but often without consummate inspiration.

Our greatest musicians further distinguish themselves through exquisite attention to detail, a professional sheen honed through a lifetime of devoted study and practice. The magic of editing has spoiled us even more, making us intolerant of technical errors in the unforgiving permanence of modern records. Many of these discs suffer from lapses of concentration that suggest inadequate preparation or an aversion to retakes.

As a result, few of these performances dominate their field. The most successful present older music where a secure sense of style is more crucial than the special touches of interpretive masters. The more complex sensibilities of romantic and modern repertoire can prove more elusive. Even so, nearly every one of these discs is at least competent to convey the overall sense of the music, and they often do quite well.

I've revised this next paragraph a dozen times, and each one seems as condescending as the last. But here goes. While some may appreciate a tangible difference in style, inspiration and finesse between these discs and their pricier peers, chances are you won't. Please don't be insulted; it's just a fact of life. Most people don't savor each word of a book they read; they don't study each brushstroke of a painting they see; and they don't relish each note of the music they hear. To the vast majority of casual listeners, such distinctions are far too subtle to warrant a huge price differential.

$17 is real money: A nice meal out, a movie date, a new shirt. But what's 99 cents? Just pocket change after you've bought something else. Which would you rather have: A candy bar or an hour of great music to enjoy for the rest of your life (or, if you believe the manufacturers, for the lives of your descendants unto the 10th generation)?

Hearing so many nice performances by utter unknowns made me appreciate how much unsung talent must be out there in the vast world beyond the major artists' publicity machines. But why should I have been so surprised? Just last year my quiet, unassuming secretary blew me away with a lovely gospel tape she had made.

So what's good here? Some of these super-bargains rank right up there with the very best regardless of price. These include superb collections of baroque concerti by the Solisti de Zagreb (Pilz 105 and 229), sparkling Vivaldi on original instruments by the Musici di San Marco (Point 267037), lush Bach violin concerti by the Camarata Romana (Pilz 101), dramatic Bach toccatas by Christiane Jaccollet (Pilz 178), stylish Mozart flute concertos by the Salzburg Mozart Soloists (Point 265050), elegant Scarlatti sonatas by Dubravka Tomsic (Point 265028), vigorous Haydn quartets by the Caspar da Salo (Pilz 116 and 404), virtuostic Haydn cello concertos by Arto Noras (Point 267179), spirited Mozart symphonies by the Mozart Festival Orchestra (Pilz 113 and 114), gleaming early Beethoven by the Bamberg Quartet (Point 267101), ravishing Debussy and Ravel by the Travnicek Quartet (Point 267172) and delightful modern works for strings by the Slovak Chamber Orchestra (Point 267189). All of these merit a permanent place on my shelves.

Others go well beyond the expected war-horses to present CD firsts, including Gluck trio sonatas, Fasch and Krebs guitar concertos, a Suchon serenade and the only recordings of anything at all by Godar and Lickl, who are not even listed in the Schwann catalogue. Would I have ever risked $17 for such obscurities? Not a chance. For 99 cents, though, I've made lots of new musical friends.

But seasoned collectors are not the target audience for these discs, and if you're just starting out, there's plenty here for every taste and purpose.

For meditation, try Gregorian chant or music by Monteverdi, Palestrina, and Josquin Desprez. Although specifically composed centuries ago for the Church, this mysterious, reverential music evokes the primal feelings of all religion.

For classy background music, go for baroque with its steady pulse, intertwining lines and constant invention. You'll enjoy anything by Bach or Vivaldi, including harpsichord and organ solos and a wide diversity of concertos.

For intellectual stimulation, it's hard to beat the structural logic that underpins the music of the late 18th century. Nearly any disc of Mozart and Haydn symphonies, concertos and quartets is worth exploring.

If you just want to relax, try soothing piano collections of Mozart, Chopin, Schubert, Schumann, and Debussy, solo harp and guitar programs, and tons of Strauss waltzes.

You can also find weightier stuff — Beethoven, Brahms, Verdi, Wagner, Bruckner and even Mahler. As an introduction to romantic operas, symphonies and concertos, they're all certainly worth their tiny price, but the competition from established artists here is much tougher. (Or, in the immortal words of Sly Stone: "The higher the price, the nicer the nice.") Even so, you can still do quite well by sticking to lighter fare: Mendelssohn piano concertos, Beethoven violin sonatas, Schubert songs and Dvorak quartets, serenades and dances. Speaking of Dvorak, the best buy in the entire series just may be his gorgeous Stabat Mater on a single 80-minute 99-cent CD (Pilz 104); most competing versions are sprawled over two full-priced discs. That's a savings of more than 97 percent!

At these prices, you can get a yard-long shell bulging with days of great music for the cost of a mere handful of regular CDs. It's hard to go far wrong (and even if you do, you can always use a nice new replacement jewelbox). Every one of these discs makes a fine introduction to music you've always wanted to explore. They'll calm you after a rough day. They're nice background for reading. They'll add a touch of class to dinner. They'll impress that special date.

Speaking of which, these CDs may not improve your sex life (that's clearly beyond the scope of this column), but they just might improve your mind. My son's science fair project found that classical outranked all other types of music (and even silence) as an aid to memory and recall. So just think about that (while listening to classical music, of course)!

Well, after my experiment ended, the guy with the price gun struck yet again. $18! So scan your local ads and don't hesitate. At 99 cents (or even $1.99) you can afford to grab anything that looks even mildly interesting. Go ahead and nudge the CD marketplace just a little closer to a semblance of value.

And always, always be proud to be a frugal music buyer!

THE RAREST PINK FLOYD RECORDS

----by Tim Neely-----by Tim Neely-----

o be honest, I've never been much of a Pink Floyd fan. Some of their stuff is OK, but when I hear the first few clangs of "Time," the cash-register sounds of "Money" or the intro to any of the interminable songs from The Wall, it's usually a signal for me to change the station.

But there's one big exception to this rule: "See Emily Play." On those rare times this comes on the radio, I crank it. I stay in the car until it's over. I just love this record!

Years ago, I found a copy of the U.K. Columbia 45 at a yard sale, if I recall correctly. I had not heard it before I bought it. I knew it was an older record because the label referred to the group as "The" Pink Floyd. But when I put it on for the first time, I knew this was not the same Pink Floyd I'd heard before. This was when the band was still on the bright side of the moon, when Syd Barrett was the guiding light.

"See Emily Play" still ranks as one of my favorite records of the psychedelic era. And I guess I'm not the only one. The earliest Pink Floyd records are by far the most collectible because, at least in the United States, they didn't sell. In some ways, they're still the most interesting records in the band's catalog, aided in large part by the lack of saturation airplay on classic rock radio.

In some ways, the Pink Floyd 45s on the U.S. Tower label are like Elvis Presley's 45s on Sun: highly influential, still interesting today, and very expensive, as the demand far outstrips the supply.

The Pink Floyd See Emily Play

Any of the U.S. 45s on Tower fetch $150 or more in near mint condition for stock copies. Many collectors have never even seen stock copies of some of them, yet they do exist.

Even more sought-after are three special promotional picture sleeves that are so rare that some collectors have doubted their existence. We were able to get two of them photographed for the upcoming second edition of the Goldmine Price Guide To 45 RPM Records, which is now at the printers.

"Arnold Layne," Pink Floyd's American debut, featured a sleeve calling the group "The Light Kings of England -Roger, Nick, Syd, Rick." Yes, they were better known for their light show than for their music at the time! The stock 45 (Tower 333) can fetch $200 in near mint condition; the picture sleeve can get $700. The follow-up, the hit that should have been; "See Emily Play" (Tower 356), had two different picture sleeves. One of them is a title sleeve similar to the one for "Arnold Layne" and it can go for $700. The second sleeve is a wonderful period piece, complete with psychedelic photo of the foursome, and it can get $800. A stock copy of only the 45 on Tower is another $200.

The other Tower 45s also go for three-figure sums:

- Tower 378, "The Gnome"/"Flaming," $150.
- Tower 426, "It Would Be So Nice"/"Julia Dream," $250.
- Tower 440, "Let There Be More Light"/"Remember A Day," $300.

Those are for stock copies; white label promos go for about half of those prices.

Even the British pressings of early Pink Floyd singles are rising in value, though they are still easier to dig up than the American counterparts. (Witness my "See Emily Play" find.) Both "Arnold Layne" and "See Emily Play" were hits in England, with the latter making the top 10 on at least one chart. Nonetheless, either one of them on the original Columbia U.K. pressing (DB 8156 and DB 8214, respectively) is a $50 item in near mint condition. A third single, "Apples And Oranges"/"Paintbox" (U.K. Columbia DB 8310), which was not released at the time in the U.S., goes for about $60. All three of these singles were pressed as promos with rare promo-only picture sleeves, just as in America. These promos are rarely seen and can approach $1,000 in near mint condition for the promo record with the sleeve.

Another highly sought-after early Floyd issue is the debut album.

The front cover and the Tower label call it Pink Floyd, while the back cover calls it The Piper At The Gates of Dawn. Whatever, the original pressing in mono is highly sought after. Similar to the Beatles' Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band which was being recorded at the same time at Abbey Road Studios, the mono mix is quite different from the more familiar stereo mix. A near mint copy of the American mono pressing can fetch $200. The stereo version was released twice, once with the original orange Tower label ($60 near mint) and again with a multicolor Tower label ($40 near mint).

Many Floyd fans don't realize that the American version of Piper is different from the British version. "See Emily Play" was added, and "Astronomy Domine," "Flaming" and "Bike" were deleted. This was no longer true when A Nice Pair, the 1973 compilation of the Floyd's first two albums, was released in America, although the album contained the live Ummagumma version of "Astronomy Domine" instead of the original studio version. But I digress.

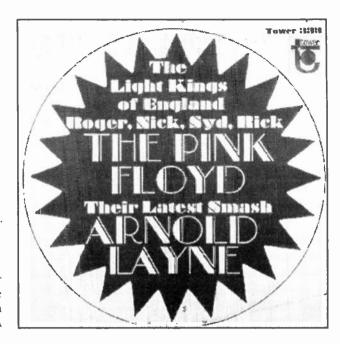

Original U.K. mono pressings of The Piper At The Gates Of Dawn are somewhat less pricey than the American pressings at about $100-$150. At $60 for the stereo, the British version is about the same as the U.S.

There is one other footnote regarding Pink Floyd records on Tower in the U.S. In 1967, Tower 376, "Midnight Sun," vocal and instrumental versions, was released. For years this appeared on discographies as a Pink Floyd record, and is often had prices to match. But it is actually by a totally unrelated group called The Pink Cloud! Accordingly, the near mint value has plunged to about $20.

Beatles turntable fetches more than $5,000

I don't write often about non-record auctions in my column. But one of my compatriots from a sister publication, Today's Collector, passed this information along, so I thought I'd share it with our readers.

A company called Real Time Antiques Market had what it called a 'Tiques Auction, mostly of popular culture memorabilia. Some of the items it sold in its auction that ended Feb. 5 were Beatles and Elvis related, and some fetched rather high

For example, a Beatles record player went for $5,500. An Elvis Presley sneaker box (just the box, no sneakers) went for $1,056. A gorgeous set of four Beatles Yellow Submarine banks sold for $2,739. An Elvis Presley zippered binder with "Love Me Tender" across the front fetched $1,495. Did you take your lunch to school in a Yellow Submarine lunchbox? Well, you could have had a new one for a cool $478.

For more information on future 'Tiques Auctions, call 732-721-0221 or visit the web site: www.tiques.com.

What's new?

Tracks is coming out on vinyl! Well, part of it is, anyway.

Scheduled for an April 13 release is a two-LP collection called 18 Tracks, a compilation of 15 songs from Bruce Springsteen's Tracks box set, plus three songs that did not appear on the collection — the long-sought-after, nearly eight-minute-long "The Fever," a Human Touch-era outtake called "Trouble River" and a brand-new recording of another legendary Springsteen unreleased song, "The Promise." 18 Tracks is also coming out on other formats. And even though Springsteen has said that he doesn't really like the song, "The Fever" may be released as a single. We'll keep you informed of any further developments.

Add the girl-group TLC to the list of artists making their long-playing vinyl debut. Their newest release, Fanmail, spent its first two weeks at #1 on the Billboard album charts — and it's their first American vinyl LP. Neither of their first two albums (Oooooooo....On The TLC Tip and CrazySexyCool) made a vinyl appearance in the States.

I'm not sure how long it's been out — probably for months, for all I know — but I was just able to come upon a U.S. vinyl pressing of The Dirty Boogie by the Brian Setzer Orchestra.

Yes, it is going to happen: Bob Dylan's The Bootleg Series Vol. 4: The "Royal Albert Hall" Concert is indeed coming out on vinyl in April through Classic Records.

Also coming in April is Tom Petty's new album, Echo. Petty has done his part to keep vinyl alive, as all his new releases come out on wax. (Only two MCA compilations, his greatest hits and his box set, were not released in the U.S. on vinyl.)

On the 45 front, "I Still Believe" by Mariah Carey is out with a picture sleeve, which has become the norm for her singles. Recent Top 10 hits "Every Morning" by Sugar Ray and "(God Must Have Spent) A Little More Time on You" by N Sync also are coming on 45.

Who would have thought that Cher ever would have hit #1 on the pop charts again? Her new song, "Believe" -which actually sounds more like Erasure than Cher, especially on the verses — became her first chart-topper in 25 years. And yes, it is available on an American 45. I've been told that, until recently, many of the single sales were exports to the U.K., where the song was a massive hit around Christmas and still is quite popular.

THE ATMOSPHERIC RANCOR OF DOCTORS OF MADNESS

by Jo-Ann Greene .....

Then is the long-awaited reissue of a debut album not the long-awaited reissue of a debut album? When it's the long-awaited reissue of only half a debut album, of course, and the only good thing is, it's a happenstance that American fans of the Doctors Of Madness have been expecting all along.

Back in 1975-76, before punk rock finally came along to breathe its fiery halitosis over a fast-decaying U.K. music scene, the Doctors Of Madness were one of the few bright new beacons in sight. Visually, they were cut straight from the same decadent glam cloth as Roxy Music and Cockney Rebel; musically, they were a violin-fired funeral, all delicate dirges and moping instrumentals raised to sonic immortality by a bass that thought it was Godzilla and vocalist "Kid" Strange's almost Dylanish way with words.

Of course, little of this meant anything in America, where the band's only real exposure came with a NBC documentary on how to hype a band in Britain. An inordinate amount of time and money was spent grooming the Doctors for stardom. Yet you only needed to spend a few minutes alone with their music with the lights down low and the gas turned up, to realize that bands like that had "cult" stamped all over them.

Where there was life, there was hope, however, and in 1976, United Artists decided it would be fun to take the Doctors' first two British albums, 1975's Late Night Movies, All Night Brainstorms and the recently issued Figments Of Emancipation, and pair them as one.

It was, of course, a preposterous notion. Music this intense is difficult to get through one song at a time. Presented with four sides of the stuff, it's no wonder that American youth stayed away in droves. It's also no wonder that when Polydor (Japan) decided to reissue the band's entire catalog on CD in the early 1990s, they went with the individual U.K. pressings. The American extravagance was forgotten even before UA deleted it.

Those releases disappeared quickly; Now Late Night Movies alone has resurfaced (Ozit, P.O. Box 116, Northwich, Cheshire CW9 5UG, U.K.), and again we ask - when is the long-awaited reissue of a debut album not the long-awaited reissue of a debut album? And, more importantly, should we care? Probably not. This is Late Night Movies as it was intended to be heard. Indeed, the slight rearrangement of tracks on what was side one of the vinyl even adheres to a long-forgotten "original" vision of the album, offering lifelong fans of the band a new take on a familiar suite, and if there's any complaint at all, it's that a generous half dozen bonus tracks detract from the grandeur of the original creation.

Late Night Movies itself shudders to a close with "Mainlines," 15 minutes of atmospheric rancor and a fitting conclusion to all the horrors of the past 40-odd minutes. But the disc wanders on through a demo for one cut from the band's second album, two tracks from their last-ever gig, and three recent "Kid" Strange unplugged renditions of songs from elsewhere on the album. It's all good stuff, and it's great value for money. But... oh well, that's what the "stop" button's for, isn't it?

The world that the Doctors invaded, of course, was not to be around for long. Within a year of Late Night Movies, The Sex Pistols had taken their first steps into the light; within two years, their Never Mind The Bollocks debut had rewritten the rules for raw rock 'n' roll. And within a decade, the compact disc had come along to drain every last ounce of danger and energy out of grooves that once sounded seismic. If the creator had intended the Pistols to go digital, he'd have Certainly it's been difficult to wring any kind of kicks out of the various CD transfers of Bollocks released in the last decade or so, even with the much-touted Kiss This upgrade paling alongside a clean copy of the original vintage vinyl.

Now, however, a 21st Anniversary Edition (Virgin U.K.) arrives, claiming to have been taken from the original analogue master, and the difference is astonishing. From the moment when "Holidays In The Sun," the jackboot pounding opener, tears out of the speakers, listening to Bollocks is like reliving the first time you ever heard it, churning, booming, echoing, roaring. Turn it up loud, and it sounds even better - louder still, and it will literally frighten the neighbors. If you missed punk rock the first time around, and simply can't hear what the fuss was about from your remastered "original punk hits" compilations, this is your chance to start your education. And this time, you may get it right.

... listening to (the CD reissue of) Bollocks is like reliving the first time you ever heard it, churning, booming, echoing, roaring. Turn it up loud, and it sounds even better — louder still, and it will literally frighten the neighbors.

Of course, listening to that album spoils you for any other punk disc in sight, which means that even a welcome, bonus track-stacked reissue for the Boys' Alternative Chartbusters (Captain Oi! U.K.) is going to leave your ears wondering if there's something missing here as well. Maybe there is, maybe there isn't. Either way, it's a great album.

At the time, the Boys were never much more than a second-tier punk band; with hindsight, however, their pivotal role in developing the power pop explosion of the late 1970s shines through all of their finest recordings — and Alternative Chartbusters features most of them. "I Don't Care" and "First Time," the band's first two singles, remain scorching anthems (and eight bonus tracks include alternate versions of both), while the band's easy grasp of quick chords and simple choruses ensures that the album never lost sight of its ambi-

They were alternative chartbusters, indeed.

The drive to completely empty the BBC's vaults continues apace with one of the most exciting "new" releases of the past few years - the return of Carter The Unstoppable Sex

Actually, "return" may be putting it a little strongly - the band broke up last year, and founding members Jim Bob and Fruitbat are both off preparing their next, separate ventures. Sessions (Cooking Vinyl, U.K.), however, reminds the modern-day Carter-deprivation zone of just what a sensation group this was during its early 1990s heyday and throughout its late-decade dogdays as well. Sessions from 1991, 1994 and 1997 highlight the band's development in delirious fashion, peaking with definitive versions of "Sheriff Fatman" and 'Granny Farming In The U.K.," and giving us a taste of how great Carter sounded with a full band behind them... the 1997 session was recorded live with Carter's sorely overlooked six-man lineup, and it sounds like a Concorde flying

Of course, it's not all punk and disorderly on the import shelves this month, as another entry into the acclaimed Decca Originals series of compilations will prove. The Freakbeat Scene (Deram, U.K.) rounds up no less than 25 classic, if obscure, sides from the early to mid-1960s British beat explosion. The comp initially intrigues because there never was an actual Freakbeat Scene in the first place. Rather, it's one of those modern terms that have risen up to pigeonhole that fleeting generation of British bands caught between the basics of R&B and the wider fancies of psychedelia, adventuring far beyond the confines of one but never quite grasping the rudiments of the other.

A few of the names will be familiar from other discs in the Decca Originals series. In addition, bands such as The Birds, The Outer Limits, The Poets, Timebox, The Attack, Marc Bolan and The Small Faces all graduated to far more convincing psych sounds as time went by. Here, however, they remain tentative outsiders, hanging out with a host of other would-be weirdos - The Score, The Majority, The Syn, The Flies, and the truly phenomenal Fire, whose "Father's Name Is Dad" could quite justifiably claim to be one of the greatest '60s singles you've never heard in your life.

Of course, within a year of most of these records, even the most unrepentant blues boomer was psych-ing away like there was no tomorrow - and Tomorrow, whose members had already done time in bands such as The Fairies, The In Crowd, and Four Plus One, were one of the hottest of the lot.

Tomorrow, the band's first and only album, was re-released on CD by See For Miles a few years ago, and has been amply appended across a clutch of compilations by RPM. Now EMI (U.K.) has drawn almost all of these disparate threads together, added further bonus material by the Aquarian Age (featuring Tomorrow's rhythm section) and vocalist Keith West (with guitarist Steve Howe) and served up what has to be the very last word on this most brilliantly innovative of Excellent remastering turns the opening "My White Bicycle" into a trip all of its own, while "Revolution" (both the LP version and a really freaky phased mono take) and the band's assault on "Strawberry Fields Forever" say more for the true state of the British underground circa 1967 than almost any other record you could name. Catch their version of Roger McGuinn's "Why," as well. We all know the impact that The Byrds had on Bob Dylan when they jangled up "Mr. Tambourine Man." "Why" could have had the same effect upon them.

The Best of the Rest

Caravan: The Show Of Our Lives (Mooncrest, U.K.). The legendary Canterbury prog rockers' 30th anniversary live celebration, unearthing a host of classic oldies.

Emerson, Lake and Palmer: Then And Now (Eagle, U.K.). Two-CD live set pairing 1974's California Jam performance with a 1997-98 vintage live best of.

The Partisans: The Best Of (Captain Oi!, U.K.). A 20 track collection by one of Oil's most searing contenders.

The Strawbs: Antiques And Curios, From The Witchwood, Grave New World, Bursting At The Seams, Hero And Heroine, Ghosts (A&M, U.K.). While the U.S. has to make do with a simple remastered best of, British fans get all six of the Strawbs' "classic" albums, complete with bonus tracks.

UFO: Live (Repertoire, Germany) Phil Mogg and Co. caught live in London in 1972.

Various: Ffrr Classic Various Artists (ffrr/London, U.K.) An amazing three-CD history of the last decade or so of British dance, ranging from Lil Louise and DSK, through to Underworld and Orbital.

MUDHONEY Tomorrow Hit Today Reprise (2-47054-AB)

"May you live in interesting time" is an infamous Chinese curse worth pondering as Mudhoney reach their 10-year mark. The truest scions of Black Sabbath and The Stooges have tolerated the scarlet letter of grunge, and they didn't get much more than recognition when the subgenre thrived. They've waited a couple of years for the worst of the backlash to subside, and they've returned with Tomorrow Hit Today.

Only Lucifer can say for sure, but the moment appears opportune, if not opportunist. Bands like Nashville Pussy, the former REO Speeddealer, and The Quadrajets obviously want to be as thoroughly depraved and sick as Mudhoney, but 20 seconds into "A Thousand Forms of Mind," the opening track of Tomorrow Hit Today, the originators are once again kings of the slag heap. Mark Arm doesn't even have to dive to the depths of throat-scraping yowls to prove dominance, and the song itself lumbers from the tar pit, bent on revenge against the universe that allows it to exist.

Yes, this music is a beast, and producer Jim Dickinson deserves credit as its uneasy keeper. He convinced Mudhoney to visit him in Memphis, where he worked his greasy hands over The Replacements and Big Star, to name but two (other) legendary bands. Besides various contributions of organ-grinding, he focuses the Mudhoney sound without killing the essential, slovenly recklessness that makes their particular kind of rock 'n' roll so righteously ugly.

Mudhoney achieve what they do because they find or stumble upon a proper balance between sloppiness and precision. In "I Have To Laugh," an intense ritual of nihilistic hilarity, Arm talks to the devil and to God and concludes, "Those guys are funny" with such dry confidence that the boast solidifies into fact. And when he assesses his chances in "Night Of The Hunted" with a growl of "we're screwed," he merely celebrates the wind-tunnel rush of oncoming oblivion.

All around Arm, Mudhoney slash away with fuzzboxes and rhythms that resound within the pit of the stomach. Steve Turner reconfigures the guitar solo as an expressive vehicle; he turns notes toward the edge of coherence and fires them back into desultory space. On bass and drums, Matt Lukin and Dan Peters blow apart the structures yet hold together the pieces, setting pace and keeping time.

Altogether, this band still gives ponderousness a good name. By the end of the album, crawling and sliding "Beneath The Valley Of The Underdog," Mudhoney have renewed their, and our, belief that the line between life and death is a fine ride, possibly the best. A decade ago, "Touch Me I'm Sick" defined such an edge. Tomorrow Hit Today sharpens it; Mudhoney epitomize it.

CHUCK E. WEISS Extremely Cool Rykodisc (SRRCD 41)

Consider the case of Chuck E. Weiss — barfly, beatnik and unabashed eccentric. Best known as the muse behind the Ricki Lee Jones standard, "Chuck E's In Love," Weiss has been struggling to keep from sinking into obscurity ever since. His bid to capitalize on his claim to fame resulted in a solo album that sank faster than a lead weight in quick-sand, and it's been nearly 20 years since he got his long-sought opportunity to follow it up. It hasn't been due to inertia on Chuck's part either; his inability to shop a sophomore effort has been met by record c o m p a n y apathy and apprehension, reasons that become apparent on listening to Extremely Cool.

Despite the fact that he loaned his named to a certifiable chart contender, Chuck E. as a singer (a term which only loosely applies here) and performer (ditto) is too cool for commercial concerns.

Eschewing a penchant for manic blues and trippy jazz, Weiss stumbles through sonic soundscapes that recall the acidravaged imagery of Captain Beefheart, the otherworldly sound of Dr. John in his Night Tripper days and the seedy, sordid tales told by Tom Waits (who, not surprisingly, produced these sessions and cowrote many of the songs). Don't let those comparisons spook you though. Weird, wacky and brazenly bizarre, Extremely Cool is also eminently entertaining, from the wailing, hell-bound blues of the opening track, "Devil With Blue Suede Shoes" and the slow, tortured title track to the irresistible resolve of "Rocking In The Kibitz Now" and "Jimmy

What's more, Weiss takes frequent outside excursions along the way, getting down with some blistering barrelhouse blues ("Deeply Sorry"), catchy cajun ("Oh Marcy"), and some lounge-style posturing

Mudhoney

("Horseface"). He also borrows a riff from "Born On The Bayou" to set up "Just Don't Care," goes batty and ballistic on "Pygmy Fund," wallows in self-pity on "It Always Rains," and sets up some wicked rhythms and cool grooves via the repetitious spokenword refrain of "Do You Know What I Did Amin."

It's Weiss' way with words combined with Waits' startling and unsettling arrangements that gives this album it's unexpected edge. More a manipulator than a musician in the conventional sense, Weiss shows that despite two decades in exile, he remains cocky, confident and defiantly outrageous.

Challenging and intriguing, Extremely Cool proves an unexpected diversion. And in that sense, it completely lives up to its title.

PINK FLOYD: IN THE FLESH By Glenn Povey and Ian Russell St. Martin's Griffin ($19.95, 256 pages)

Leave it to the fans. In Pink Floyd: In The Flesh (the complete performance history) two fans actually attempt to chronicle every performance by Pink Floyd since 1962, when individual members started making public appearances in their first bands around Cambridge. Glenn Povey founded Brain Damage, a Pink Floyd collector's magazine, and organized the first International Pink Floyd Fan Convention. Ian Russell is a Brain Damage contributor and Floyd collector.

Together they researched magazines, periodicals, books, radio and TV programs in libraries across Europe, sent letters to every known venue that hosted Pink Floyd and conducted their own interviews with people near the band or attending the shows.

As detailed and daunting a task as this book may seem, Povey and Russell ably put together what may seem like a string of tedious facts in an entertaining way. The authors divided the book into 10 sections chronicling the band at the expected milestone phases. For instance, there's the Syd Barrett years (1966-1967), The Dark Side Of The Moon era

(1972-1973), and the post-Roger Waters phase (1986-1993). Each section is introduced with an exposition of what the band was going through at that particular time — dealing with Barrett's erratic behavior, creating The Dark Side Of The Moon, coping with Waters split from the band. It's in these sections when we get intimate with the band, such as the account by keyboardist and Barrett flatmate Rick Wright about the band's deceptive existence during those final months when they were shunning Barrett out of the group: "I had to say things like, 'Syd, I'm going out to get some cigarettes,' and go off and do a gig and come back the next day."

At the end of each expository section we get a list of performance dates, which include as much confirmed information as possible (although there are a few dates that are marked "unconfirmed"). Starting with the dates of the gigs, information of place and venue are given. Sometimes, there's the scheduled start time and a set list, if not, at least the name of a song the band played. Support acts are also listed. Of course, the earlier years have less information, but at least many of these dates are also accompanied by eyewitness accounts (the reader is told very matter-of-factly which gig included the first use of quadrophonic sound).

Some dates include excerpts of news stories or live reviews, prompted by that particular show. There's no face saved in the selection of the reviews that accompany the shows. One hilarious review was printed in a University of Reading magazine about Pink Floyd's appearance at the University's Great Hall on Jan. 14, 1967. "The Pink Floyd were so cacophonous that the most cunningly randomnoise-making machine could hardly have been more oppressive," stated the student writer. "We very much regret that certain members of the University degraded themselves by applauding such a performance, and we congratulate the element among the few remaining at the end who gave vent to their indignation by boo-ing."

Throughout In The Flesh are many beautiful photos, some never before published. It's creatively laid out, using concert posters and flyers as accompanying artwork that never gets in the way of the readability. Sometimes the redundant information such as date and venue can get tiresome for a straight read, but just skip that and read the anecdotes and reports of what happened. You'll find yourself not wanting to put this book down for the pure drama of what the band, audience members, and press people went through during the life of Pink Floyd.

VARIOUS ARTISTS
Teenage Crush — Volume 2
Ace (CDCHD 701) (British import)

Ace again celebrates the softer side of rock's early era on this 28-song extravaganza. Teen idols of the late-50s and early-60s aplenty grace the compilation, contributing one immortal hit apiece: Jimmy Clanton ("Venus In Blue Jeans"), Ritchie Valens ("Donna"), Ricky Nelson (his '57 Verve debut "A Teenager's Romance"), Eddie Cochran ("Sittin' In The Balcony"), Johnny Burnette ("You're Sixteen"), Frankie Avalon ("Venus"), Bobby Darin ("Dream Lover"), and Jimmie Rodgers ("Honeycomb").

But just so the set doesn't resemble your basic run-of-the-mill teen hits collection, Ace throws in dreamy pop-styled R&B classics by The Flamingos, Ed Townsend, Brook Benton (a majestic "Endlessly"), even Ivory Joe Hunter's '56 Atlantic smash "Since I Met You Baby" (along with George Hamilton IV's mild "A Rose And A Baby Ruth," chronologically the set's oldest inclusion).

There is also a passel of songs one seldom encounters on such an anthology: Bobby Curtola's "Fortune Teller," Tony Bellus' "Robbin' The Cradle," Larry Finnegan's "Dear One," The Castells' "So This Is Love," Skeeter Davis' "The End Of The World," Jimmy Elledge's "Funny How Time Slips Away," and "I've Come Of Age" by Billy Storm, who sounds like an unholy alliance of Johnny Mathis, Clyde McPhatter, and Gene Pitney on his lone '59 hit.

Except for Percy Faith's middle-of-the-road pop instrumental "Theme For A Summer Place," which sounds out of place amidst all these youthful crooners, Ace's programming works to squeaky-clean perfection. (42-50 Steele Rd., London NW10 7AS, England)

LENNY BREAU Boy Wonder Guitarchives TNSD 0172

Simply amazing. There are no other words to describe this collection of 27 tracks by guitar virtuoso Lenny Breau.

When Randy Bachman launched his Guitarchives label, its explicit mandate was to preserve the legacy of Breau's music. Virtually all of Breau's LPs have become collector's items. Bachman let it be known that he was looking for prime and/or unissued Breau to release. The suitors came calling. First was a double-CD set of Breau live at Bourbon Street in Toronto. Then came a totally idiosyncratic collection (Cabin Fever) recorded in a log cabin outside of Ottawa when Breau was trying to kick his heroin habit.

But these efforts pale in comparison to what appears on this disc. The title says it all and it is quite a coup for Bachman. It is a totally unexpected collection of recordings by a youthful Breau who, at the ripe old age of 15, was well on his way to becoming a guitar master.

The first seven tracks (all unaccompanied) show the clear country influence of Chet Atkins and Merle Travis in both style and repertoire. The next tracks show the roots of Breau's interest in jazz.

The influence of country jazz master Jimmy Bryant is undeniable. Considering what we know of Breau's adult mastery of jazz idioms, this early work is historically invaluable. It is also damn fine listening! On "The Blues Doubled" Breau shows that he was also listening to Les Paul. This may be the only recorded example of Breau overdubbing guitar lines at double speed.

The material is cleanly recorded and reproduced (surprisingly so, considering the age of these tapes) and pleasantly minimalist. On most tracks, Breau is accompanied only by a second guitar and/or bass. A steel guitar is also heard on two tracks. Perhaps the least surprising selections are the gorgeously bluesy reading of "The Waltz You Saved For Me," "Blue Heartache," "Blues In Extension" and "September Song." There is perhaps least distance between these selections and the style perfected by the adult musician known by his fans.

Two non-musical highlights of this disc should also be noted. Bachman's notes recount how he met and was befriended by the young Breau, whom he already idolized: Two 16-year-old kids in Winnipeg, Manitoba, finding common ground for a friendship that was obviously important to both. Who would have guess that more than 30 years later, Bachman, a former rock star (Guess Who, Bachman-Turner Overdrive), would be compiling and reissuing this music by his childhood friend?

The final track is an interview with Betty Cody — Breau's mother, who talks about her son's earliest years and emerging musical gifts. No fan of this magnificent guitarist should even consider being without this disc.

— Hank Davis

VARIOUS ARTISTS lowa Blues 5 Hot Fudge (HF 118)

BOB DORR/MOLLY NOVA & THE BLUE BAND

Just a Dream Hot Fudge (HF 073)

BOB DORR/MOLLY NOVA & THE BLUE BAND Deal Again Hot Fudge (HF 070)

Unbeknownst to most of us, the state of lowa seems to be developing a blues scene of its own. Bob Dorr's Cedar Falls-based Hot Fudge Music appears to be the best place to get acquainted with the Hawkeye State's contributions to contemporary blues.

Four of the label's latest releases exhibit an able aversion to recycling the hoary genre standards that too many regional bands specialize in. On the other hand, a generic quality permeates quite a bit of the action. There's no denying that the contents of each disc are competently performed, but little reaches out to grab your heart and soul. That's hardly a unique situation — the same could be said about the great majority of today's blues releases — but it's not altogether encouraging.

One supposes Iowa Blues 5 is as reasonable a place as any to begin an in-depth examination of the area's sound and the Hot Fudge catalog. Most of the 17 bands featured on the anthology maintain similar blues-rock stances that make it difficult to discern one from the next. A couple of exceptions: local mainstay Patrick Hazell's raucous "Ain't Been The First Time," a live cut with an extra dash of emotion; and a jazzy duet instrumental, "The Daddy-O Stomp," by fleet-fingered guitarist Dennis McMurrin and bassist Dan Johnson. Effie Burt's vocal on "Let The Blues Walk On By" makes more of an impression than those on the rest of the set — they range from adequate to considerably less.

The Des Moines-based J.C. Anderson Band's Long Time Waiting is easily the most consistent release of the lot. He's a talented singer and songwriter, and his combo offers solid support on the all-original program (major points in his favor). The impassioned ballad "Cry No More" is as far as the polished rock-tinged album veers from the blues tradition, the leader strumming an acoustic axe on its intro and pianist Doug Johnson making his presence known throughout; it's also likely the most distinctive track on the CD (the title item throws a few sparks too).

Dorr and his musical partner, violinist Molly Nova, have played together for a couple of decades. Their Blue Band exploits dominate the burgeoning Hot Fudge catalog. But neither possesses a particularly pleasant voice — Dorr's gravelly pipes are grating; Nova's underwhelm, and a little of her squawking electric five-string fiddle goes a long way (other band members offer improvement behind the mike when called upon)

Other than Nova's tepid cover of Ricky Allen's "Cut You Loose," originals dominate the newly recorded Just A Dream, led by a witty "You're No Good."

Deal Again is a compendium of highlights from past Blue Band releases dating from 1988 to 1997. "She's Got The Mojo And The Say So," written by guitarist Jeff Petersen, rocks harder than anything on the band's new release. Dorr's guttural growl suits a revival of Gary U.S. Bonds' "Not Me." but he remains annoying on the ska-styled Arc Welded and a lame funk workout, "Get Your Shit Together (What Da Funkamatachoo?)," that sounds more like Zappa-esque parody. Big Joe Williams' standby "Baby Please Don't Go" is disastrously recast, the vocalist has no feel whatsoever for the task, and Nova's violin is pumped through a nasty distortion device that's pure aural torture.

If the Blue Band or their Iowan cohorts are ever going to arrive at their often-stated destination of Biggsville (their term for the national big time), they'll have to craft something a bit more exciting than these respectable but ultimately unexceptional efforts. (PO Box 14, Cedar Falls, IA 50613)

THE FOUNDATIONS
Baby Now That I've Found You
Sequel (NEECD 300) (British import)

The Foundations were a little too bubble-gum-oriented to be taken seriously as a soul entity at the time (hailing from England didn't help on that score either). Nevertheless The Foundations made some wonderfully infectious recordings during the late 1960s that deftly mirrored the pumping Motown grooves so prevalent on both sides of the Atlantic, and they scored big on the American charts in the process.

Never have The Foundations enjoyed such a comprehensive CD treatment as on this

FACE IN THE CROWD IN STORES NOW

Billboard, "Face In The Crowd" shows a veteran in good form. Highlights include the horn-driven "So Hard To Say Goodbye" and "Betty Ann," the scorching opener "Love Is A Battlefield," and the chugging "Mean And Evil."

Hits, "A decadent, necessary addition to your New Orleans library."

San Francisco Examiner and Chronicle, ★★★★ "This bluesy release reveals that Russell hasn't lost his funky R&B edge. His velvet-and-sandpaper vocals, inimitable guitar and gospel piano rollick... Molten ballads and Creoleaccented mess-arounds like "Mean And Evil" also dazzle.

SLEATER-KINNEY The Hot Rock Kill Rock Stars (KRS 321)

"Get Up" (CD single) Kill Rock Stars (KRS 337)

One of the pleasures in following Pacific Northwest powerhouse trio Sleater-Kinney has been their musical progression from album to album, which clearly illustrates their growth as a band. Their self-titled debut album, released in 1995, was 24 minutes of cathartic rage. On Call The Doctor (1996), their first album to capture serious critical acclaim and attention, the song structures became more complex, the energy and anger more focused. Dig Me Out (1997), another critics' fave, brought drummer Janet Weiss on board (the grounding wire that singer/guitarists Carrie Brownstein and Corin Tucker bounce off of), and swung the band into an unabashedly poppier territory (just check out the chorus of "Little Babies").

Now comes the long-awaited The Hot Rock. Much has been made of Sleater-Kinney's choice to remain on an indie label, Kill Rock Stars, after fielding numerous offers from the majors. The answer's a simple one: the band thinks it's more important to be able to control every aspect of their career than to receive a big chunk of cash for letting other folks make your career decisions for you

(such as when you'll be touring — and with whom). The payoff for the band's fans is an album made exactly the way Sleater-Kinney wanted. And they won't be disappointed; The Hot Rock is a perfect synthesis of the all the band's work they've done before.

Anyone who saw any of Sleater-Kinney's shows in 1998 won't be surprised by The Hot Rock's musical direction. The album draws on the melancholy darkness of Call The Doctor with power-pop drive of Dig Me Out, creating something familiar, but new. The songs may sound like simple, straight-forward alt-rock, but a careful listen reveals a surprising undercurrent of complexities both musical and lyrical.

One of the group's signature sounds (and strongest points) is the back-and-forth interplay between Brownstein and Tucker's voices: Tucker's needlepoint sharp, penetrating wail matched by Brownstein's cooler delivery, which is often closer to spoken-word than singing. On "Banned From The End Of The World," the two alternate lines, giving the song a point-counterpoint effect. "Burn, Don't Freeze!" is even more exciting, with Tucker and Brownstein each singing a different melodic line at the same time, creating a lively, enervating sound.

The tempos are slower this time out too. If the band was running as fast as they could in the beginning, barrelling through a song in barely 60 seconds, their confidence now allows them to step back and stretch out. "God Is A Number," a particularly strong number in performance, goes through enough changes in musical direction from its stark opening to a full-bodied wash of sound that it practically qualifies as a mini-suite. All the disparate sounds are held together by Weiss' concise drumming (proving yet again that Weiss, who also plays in the duo Quasi, is one of the best drummers in rock today).

The Hot Rock is accompanied by two Sleater-Kinney firsts; a single release, "Get Up," which is also the chosen track for the band's first video. Happily, the single also contains two non-album tracks, the excellent "By The Time You're Twenty-Five" and "Tapping." You can fully expect to see The Hot Rock on a plethora of year-end "best of" lists, but don't let that be your reason for listening to this album. The Hot Rock is strong and original, the sound of musicians who are unafraid to call all the shots themselves, and talented enough to make all the right choices.

- Gillian G. Gaar

LIDA HUSIK Faith In Space Alias A132

Trip-hop may already be dead. The possibilities inherent in the combination with conflict of a chanteuse and trance-like computerized music have been exhausted by a wave of self-absorbed pixies, mistresses of gloom, and caterwauling harridans. Lida Husik and Faith In Space may be a kind of answer, or at least a last gasp: a substantial, almost profound voice floating in the technological ether.

Husik is not exclusively devoted to electronica; she's more a pop musician seeking the forms that best suit her. Her vocals would rest comfortably in the seat of any style; airy but earthy, grounded but hallucinogenic, Husik has presence. Long ago (a few years ago, anyway), Beaumont Hannant, one of the most prominent electronic mavens in the U.K., spotted this rare gift and asked to work with her. The initial results, encapsulated first on Sculptured and Evening At The Grange (both 1994) and best on Green Blue Fire (1996) under the moniker of Husikesque, did indeed burn several degrees above techno's usual temperature.

Although Hannant and Husik have ditched the "esque" for Faith In Space, they again summon something elemental in the first track, "Build A Fire." Here as throughout the album, it's clear the two intend not to send dance floors into a tizzy, but rather to construct distinct moods from beats and fragments. The attitudes tend to darkness, self-aware contemplation and wry observation — qualities enhanced by Husik's thoughtful lyrics and sometimes breezy, Back By Popular Goldmine S 45 RPM Unit Advertising Section!

This separate section will be devoted to 45 rpm records. All listings in an ad must be 45's.

45 RPM ISSUE May 7,1999

ADVERTISING April 8, 1999

ISSUE MAIL April 15,1999

Special 45 section will appear in the May 7, 1999 issue of GOLDMINE.

Special rate for the 45 rpm unit section is $38 per unit.

Your ad will be seen by over 60,000 people - more than THREE times more than any other music-collecting publication.

*One unit space equals one 8-1/2" x 11" typed sheet. Type your copy legibly onto 8-1/2" x 11" white sheets. A regular unit space is one-ninth of a page. Remember to include your ordering information, postage rates, grades, deadlines, name & address, etc. on your first unit. Do not send any partial units. There is a $10.00 charge per photo for unit ads which contain photographs.

WHAT ARE UNIT SPACE ADS?

Unit space ads are an affordable option for the small dealer or for the private collector who has a few items to sell. They are based on 8-1/2 x 11 sheets that you create. They are "camera ready," in other words, the ad will look in print exactly how it looks when you send it in, only smaller. We will reduce the sheets to fit the ad space. Optionally, at no extra charge we can create a heading for your ad. We will typeset your name, business name (if any), address and phone/fax numbers on your ad if you so request.

The two types of ads are:

- 1. Set Sale Items are sold at the price listed.
- 2. Auction Items are sold to the highest bidder.

FOR A BETTER UNIT SPACE AD . . .

- 1. Use white paper.
- 2. Have a new ribbon on your typewriter or printer; avoid low toner on a laser printer.
- Make sure the paper is vertically oriented. We cannot publish a horizontal unit space ad unless you want the reader to turn the magazine sideways to look at it. Most readers won't bother to do that.
- 4. Mail it to us; don't fax it. Faxes can leave unwanted markings that make your ad hard to read.
- Clearly identify whether your ad is a set sale or auction.
   Avoid mixing the two in the same ad; if you must, have separate sections for set-sale and auction items.
- Include your name, address, and telephone/fax number (and when you will be available to take calls on the ad) and all ordering information, including postage and shipping tees.
- 7. Put your listings in a logical order. If you have several formats in the same ad (LP, CD, 45, etc.), group your items by format. You also may wish to group items by type of music. As for the listings themselves, alphabetically by artist usually works best.
- 8. If you have any questions on how to set up your ad, contact anyone from the GOLDMINE advertising staff.

SET SALE GUIDELINES FOR BUYERS

- 1. First, make sure you are replying to a set sale and not an auction. If an ad mentions minimum bids and deadlines, it's not a set sale.
- 2. Follow the advertiser's directions on how to reply. If the ad says to write first to reserve an item, do it. If the ad says that money orders only are accepted, don't write a personal check. And never send cash through the mail!
- 3. If you write or call to reserve an item and the advertiser still has it in stock, send your payment for the item promptly.
- Set sale ads are "first-come, first-served," so the sooner you reply, the more likely you are to receive what you order.
- 5. If you receive the item and it is not as advertised, don't hesitate to complain. Reputable advertisers take complaints seriously and try to do right by the customer. But don't take advantage of this, either; complain only when you have a legitimate reason for doing so.

SET SALE GUIDELINES FOR SELLERS

- 1. Only advertise items you have. Because of ad deadlines, some dealers will assume they will have new material based on release dates given by record companies. In the long run, it's better to wait until you actually have an item to put it in your ad.
- State all your policies in the ad. Examples include method of payment, whether (and at what times) you will accept telephone calls, and whether to reserve items or send money immediately.
- Send the items promptly after they've been paid for. Federal Trade Commission regulations state that you must ship your items within 30 days.
- 4. Charge only what you pay to send the package. Or charge everyone the same amount, knowing you will lose money on large packages, but will make up for it on smaller ones. If your stated postage rates are unusually high, state why! (Insurance, special handling or packaging, etc.)
- Take complaints seriously. An unresolved problem is usually a lost customer.

Auction Guidelines For Buyers

- 1. First, make sure you are replying to an auction and not a set sale.
- Note the minimum bid, and don't bid less than that. Also, don't say "I will top all bids" unless the auction allows it and, of course, you really mean it.
- 3. Mail in all bids unless the ad says phone-in bids are acceptable.
- 4. Remember the deadline. If none is stated, then the auction closes one month from the date on the cover. For example, if the auction is in the GOLDMINE dated October 15, the sale closes November 15.
- 5. If mailing bids, allow 1-2 weeks for your bids to arrive. And after an auction ends, allow 1-2 weeks for notification. If you haven't heard 14 days after the end of an auction, assume you won nothing unless the ad says that all bidders, win or lose, would be notified.
- 6. Honor all winning bids! If you are notified that your bid has won the item, send the money for your items within a week. Bidders reneging on their winning bids is the No. 1 complaint from those who run auction ads. If you can't honor your bid, at least have the couriesy to notify the advertiser.
- 7. Allow 2-4 weeks for your winnings to arrive.

AUCTION GUIDELINES FOR SELLERS

- 1. Set minimum bids on any item you won't sell for less. You also can set an auction-wide minimum; different minimums on different parts of the auction; or no minimums at all. Avoid "Ridiculous bids will be rejected" or similar phrases; you can't assume that everyone knows what a "ridiculous bid" is. Instead, take the time to set minimums.
- 2. Run an honest auction. Don't advertise items you don't have; don't artificially force bidders to bid more by claiming there's a counterbidder when there isn't one; don't overgrade your items; and sell all items that meet your published minimum and are the high bid, even if the bid is far below "book" value.
- 3. Notify winners within the first week after your deadline passes.
- 4. Send the winners their items promptly upon payment. (It's OK to wait for checks from unfamiliar customers to clear, which takes no more than a week. If it takes longer, get a new bank.) Federal Trade Commission regulations state that you must ship your items within 30 days.
- 5. Don't use your auction as a way to compile a mailing list unless you state that in your ad.
- 6. In sum: Treat your customers as you would want to be treated if you were the one bidding.

UNIT SPACE AD RATES

GOLDMINE has two sizes of unit space ads:

- 1. Regular your ad is reduced to one-ninth of one of our pages
- 2. Super your ad is reduced to one-fourth of one of our pages.

Dear Bidder,

We have been experiencing many problems with our auctions in the Because of this, we must make some changes in the way we run things  $\frac{1}{2}$

1. We are canonling our 800 number as of  $M_{\rm Qrch2,1999}$ .

We will take phone bids on our regular number (412) 421-4533 or fax bids on (412) 421-2728, in addition to mail bids. However, we cannot reveal high bids or allow any "last minute" topping. Doing this has led to too much consternation, bad feelings, and duress as there is no fair way to make it work. We have no desire to "gouge" or have people bidding against each other personally and overpaying for auction records. auction records.

We encourage bidders to use the "sliding-bid" method. For example $10-$20. Ten dollars is what you would like to pay but you will go as high as $20.00. We have tried this recently with good results. Many records sold for the low end- a few for the high ends - and a lot in the middle, too. We think this system makes sense and you can depend on our integrity to administer it fairly.

We hope that you our valued customers can adapt to these changes and can see the necessity and fairness of them. We are in the vinyl business for the long run(25 years already) and plan to offer many wonderful records in the next few years.

Please bear with us and help make these changes work and we thank you for your

PAUL DUNMALL OCTET "Bebop Starburst" [Cuneiform Rune 112] This acclaimed saxophonist leads his ensemble through a mixture of spired charts and spirited improvisations. Featuring some of the best ayers in contemporary British jazz, including all members of Mujician. HAPPY THE MAN "Death's Crown" HAPPY THE MAN "Death's Crown" [Cuneiform 55015] Death's Crown was written & performed in late 1974 as a collaborative work with dancers, actors, lighting & coordinated slide shows - a multimedia event staged at a local dinner theatre. Previously unreleased recordings by the band considered by many to be the best US symphonic rock band. MOTHER MALLARD'S PORTABLE MASTERPIECE CO. "1970-73" [Cuneiform Rune 109] The rare lirst album & previously unreleased recordings from the world's first [Cuneiform Rune 109] The rare first album & previously unreleased recordings from the world's first all-synthesizer ensemble. This material predates or is contemporary with the first work of Kraftwerk and Tangerine Dream. A uniquely American slant on synthesizer music by a band whose pioneering contributions to the genre had been forgotten until now. With David Borden, Sleve Drews & Linda Fisher. MOTOR TOTEMIST GUILD "City Of Mirrors" [Cuneiform Rune 116] by composer James Grigsby, this is the MTG's first release in over a ade. Originally formed in 1980, MTG has long been known for their que "electric chamber music" style. Now reborn as a 14 piece "little p band", this exciting CD crosses and fuses many musical styles ■CUNEIFORM ◀R E C O R D S P.O. sometimes melancholy phrasing. There are hints of ambient, but Husik and Hannant's movements are less laid-back, more nervy.

They don't actively avoid fun, which flounces in on the disco auras of "Angels On The Floor" and "The New Miss NYC." Nevertheless, perspective tinges these giddy tracks with knowing. A few planned remixes will no doubt subvert the intelligence, but here the intelligence does all the subverting.

Faith In Space is ultimately a curious album, a collaborative effort at odds with the mindless fun of the rave crowd. By the standards Husik and Hannant refuse — beats per minute, shout-outs, and so on — they fail. On any other level, though, and by any other musical standards, they've crafted an enticing, hypnotic, meditative journey through the flashing lights and bottled-water sweat of dance music.

LAZY LESTER All Over You Antone's (ANT 10042)

In the music business, remaking old hits is a futile exercise: they're seldom if ever as good as the originals.

But producer Derek O'Brien comes so close to re-creating the swampy ambience of Louisiana blues harmonica ace Lazy Lester's late 1950s/early 1960s waxings for bayou kingpin J.D. Miller. On this set he's crafted the next best thing to the stripped-down brilliance of Lester's original versions for Excello.

Despite cutting this album (Lester's third since returning to the music business in 1987) in Dallas instead of the steamy swamps of south Louisiana, O'Brien and his cohorts achieve the twangy, laconic combo sound characterizing Lester's early output not an easy assignment. And it's a good thing they were so painstaking, since half the dozen selections are literal remakes of Lester's revered Excello catalog: "I'm A Lover, Not A Fighter," "If You Think I've Lost You," "Strange Things Happen."

Nearly everything else is indelibly associated with his ex-labelmates. Lester breaks out his guitar for lowdown readings of "Nothing But The Devil" and "My Home Is A Prison"; everywhere else he blows typically pungent harp and sings in the laidback manner he employed four decades ago. The only non-Miller copyright, "The Sun Is Shining," was introduced by Chicago's Jimmy Reed, a prime influence on the swamp blues movement.

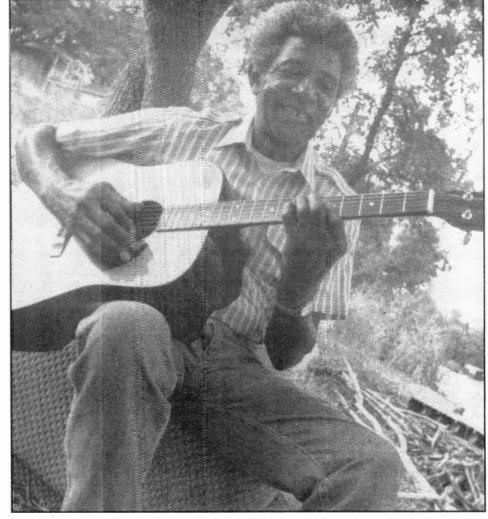

Flawlessly re-creating Lazy Lester's Excello swamp blues triumphs is impossible, but this album comes amazingly close. (507 West Ave., Austin, TX 78701)

FRANK BLACK AND THE CATHOLICS Pistolero SpinArt (spart70)

Frank Black is an innovator to be sure. As Black Francis, the man took this country to task with The Pixies, one of the most beautifully raw and raggedly stunning bands to fill the void between punk and grunge. It was that energy that helped his transformation into Frank Black, and the successful solo career which followed.

Black and his Catholics once again spell-bind with Pistolero. Turning tarnished antiquity into technological wizardry, Black recorded the album live to two tracks. No overdubbing, no vocal echoes, no knob twiddling. Just the songs, played through, live,

> But that is precisely what makes Pistolero such a triumph! Impassioned, proud, raucous rock 'n' roll rules here. Black's vocals were made for this kind of performance. And that's exactly what this is - a live performance, complete with an urgent energy that only exists in the real world. From the first guitar slice on "Bad Harmony" through the ballad of "Billy Radcliffe," to the garage ethics of "I Want Rock & Roll," Black and Co. play as if their lives depended on it.

onto two little tracks - and it sounds like it.

And because of that wrenching honesty. we're left with a remarkable record - a record that's all good old-fashioned rock, and the scathing anger of punk wrapped around super-smart lyrics. We can't ever forget that Frank Black stands in the middle of this cacophony, the thinking man's rock 'n' roller teetering just on this side of utter madness. And for that state of mind, and for this album, we can say "thank you" for helping us let it all out!

CITIZEN KING Mobile Estates Warner Brothers (2-47023-AB)

Before Mobile Estates was even officially on the release schedule, Spin heralded the greatness of Citizen King. While scarcely at the level the New Musical Express attained by putting Brett Anderson of Suede on its cover before that group had even released a single, that's definitely a hype any band would have trouble fulfilling. Especially when said band hails from a city the music press ordinarily pays no attention to (Milwaukee, Wisc.) and works within an area of music that's now common coin (hip-hop).

As if anyone in the band cares. The Midwest is not exactly the sort of region to get caught up in the ridiculous dance of trends and their disposability. Take Minneapolis: The Replacements and Hüsker Dü kept exploring punk long after both coasts had declared it dead. How unhip! So it is with Citizen King, albeit to a less mindblowing degree.

Anyway, with Beck and Puff Daddy tacitly agreeing to respect each other's dominion one makes the hipsters stagger, the other staggers the hits - there's enough room for a crew or two of Beer City regulars to explore the terrain or at least to scoop up the cultural dregs lying around.

On Mobile Estates, goodies prevail over garbage, but Citizen King spend a portion of the album upending musical trash cans. That material, such as "Better Days (And The Bottom Drops Out)," falls into the Caucasoid alterna-funk bargain bin inhabited by Sugar Ray and Everything. Only G. Love & Special Sauce can pull that semi-fly business off with any credibility, and even they get befuddled sometimes.

Fortunately, Citizen King deserve and mostly accomplish better. The primary justification for comparing these guys to Beck is that both come at an insider's music from distinct perspectives of outsiders, and both frequently pass through the permeable membrane between forms. In both cases, too, artful humor rules out pedantry or posing.

This allows intriguing combinations. 'Safety Pin" throws hard-ass beats against a wheedling garage-rock guitar riff and Matt Sims' coded, punk-edged vocal; the mixture is surreal, sublime bubblegum. "Under The Influence" (already in a commercial for some young-adult sitcom, but that shouldn't be across as an ultra-hip shout-out for besotted Friday nights. "Checkout Line" perks itself up with Muzak horn samples (Herb Alpert, where are you?) for a lazy wait in a supermarket express lane, temporarily changed into a painfully bright lounge.

The supreme goof on Mobile Estates, however, may be when spinner Malcolm Michiles says hello to the hometown with "Milky Way," featuring a slowed-down "Milwaukee Polka," as vocalized by former "Singing Mayor" Henry Maier. During that short interlude, Citizen King take a perverse pride in where they're from and how far they've managed to get. The hype should be damned, but the dancing pleasures of this album shouldn't go down with it.

VARIOUS ARTISTS

The Prince Of Egypt: Music From The Original Motion Picture Soundtrack
DreamWorks Records (DRMD-50041)

The Prince Of Egypt: Nashville DreamWorks Records (DRMD-50045)

The Prince Of Egypt: Inspirational DreamWorks Records (DRMD-50050)

Soundtracks for films can serve as enticements to potential viewers or keepsakes for those who want something to remember their favorites by, and in some cases they manage to do both. Proper placement of a successful song in the packaging of a film can contribute to its success in both markets. For that reason musicians have had occasion of late to be as much a part of a film's image as any of its stars (a fact to which Celine Dion could certainly attest).

While attempts to bolster film fortunes by marrying them to popular songs has long been a practice in Hollywood, never has it been seen on the scale with which it has been employed in conjunction with the release of the new DreamWorks animated spectacular The Prince Of Egypt, which has no less than three full CDs worth of material attached to its name in the marketplace. It is an unparalleled display of commercialism, especially when it is considered that much of the music offered forth on the sets is tied to the film by only the loosest of threads. While the quality of the artists throughout is indisputable, the whole offers nothing more evocative than smooth salesmanship.

The formal Music From The Motion Picture Soundtrack is very much in the mold of a traditional film soundtrack, as it mixes the flavors of the film and its stars with a few big pop numbers to create a companion to the film with some crossover appeal. The first hit from any of the three sets, the Whitney Houston and Mariah Carey duet "When You Believe," is included alongside the in-story version of the tune as rendered by Michelle Pfeiffer and Sally Dworsky. The two-diva version of the tune certainly has the edge over the cast recording, but only the latter carries an appeal that might be traced to the movie itself.

The grand trappings of the film's telling of the Moses story are neatly captured in the majestic orchestral numbers of Ofrah Haza on the collection, among which are "Goodbye Brother" and "Cry." Other cast numbers have the mark of the show tune about them, as Amick Byram's blares through "All I Ever

Boyz II Men

Wanted" and "The Plagues," the latter of which brings Ralph Fiennes along for the ride. "Playing With The Big Boys" casts Steve Martin and Martin Short in the unfamiliar roles of serious villains. Given that its lack of lyrical character makes it seem gratuitous, they might have done just as well with a number that let them ham things up.

The inclusion of big name singers on the set ensures that it will not go unnoticed no matter the film's performance. Boyz II Men and Amy Grant both contribute songs, and "Humanity" is an all-star number built from the mold of "We Are The World," with one singer handing off to another after each line of the lyric. All of the songs fit the character of the film itself, and as a result add up to a nice extension of the film's experience for those who enjoyed it.

It is difficult to say the same thing about the Nashville album in conjunction with the film, which offers some of the biggest and finest names in country music but does so in a way that connects to the film in only the loosest of fashions.

Some of the songs on the collection, such the gentle and lovely Alison Krauss contribution "I Give You To His Heart," recall the film and its themes specifically, while the Wynonna inclusion "Freedom" is sufficiently generic that it could have been culled from the sessions for her next album. That contrast colors much of the album. For every number like Pam Tillis' "Milk And Honey" that hews to the plot of the story, there is a tune like Vince Gill's "Once In Awhile" that has a tenuous link at best to the source material. "Somewhere Down The Road" is a pretty song, but Faith Hill's reading of it has no more to do with the path to the Red Sea than did the better version of it that Amy Grant included on her last solo album.

The quality of the Nashville roster is unquestionably top-notch, but it is all in service of extending the Prince Of Egypt brand. Its full spectrum of country luminaries ranges from Reba and Clint Black to Mac McNally and the southern-fried sound of Charlie Daniels, and as such it hedges its bets to reach country fans of all preferences. Its breadth also happens to be its downfall, however. In attempting to offer something for everyone, it comes across as a sales pitch without a focus, a contrivance that does little more for the film than marry prominent names to its promotion.

To some degree the case is much the same for the film's Inspirational collection, although its format seems at least somewhat more appropriate given that its gospel roots give it a natural tie to the biblical subject matter of the film.

While Boyz II Men (whose tune "I Will Get There" from the primary soundtrack is included on the collection with spare instrumentation tacked onto it) are not generally considered a gospel act, for the most part the collection follows the lead of the Nashville set and serves up the biggest names in its genre. Take Six leads off the set with the ineffably smooth harmonies of "Destiny," after which the album gives way to gospel stars from all walks, including BeBe and CeCe Winans (each on a separate song), Kirk Franklin, and the incomparable Shirley Caesar.

Strange juxtapositions take place in the name of broad appeal. The urban-laced gospel of Trin-I-Tee 5:7 is a strange bedfellow for the rock style of the Jars Of Clay tune "Everything In Between." As a result the whole recording seems out of joint over the course of a single listen. The neo-revival style of Carman matches the soulful pop of Brian McKnight only in terms of the faith it proffers. Though that makes for a built-in constant of substance, it does not hang together all that well in terms of style.

Caesar's "Moses The Deliverer" is the album's sole diva turn, and as such it is a fitting choice to close out the collection. On the other hand, the fact that nothing that precedes it can match its emotion or its style points up a basic flaw in the album's format, a flaw common to both of the Prince ancillary sets. Because what they offer is a selling of the film by attaching names to it that are individually worthy but collectively poor in terms of continuity, the albums go to every length to build the film's name but never quite succeed in conveying anything approaching its spirit.

— Thomas Kintner

THE ANDERSONS! Separated At Birth Lime Vinyl (003)

After blowing out most of the no-talent, big-haired, poop-for-brains metal bands that inexplicably ruled the club scene in the '80s and early-90s, Los Angeles is now, thankfully, better known as a haven for many straightforward, no-frills pop-rock acts armed with guitars and three-minute songs.

Which is where The Andersons! (their exclamation point, not mine) come in.

A trio of faux brothers (kinda like L.A.'s version of The Ramones, 'cept they're pop not punk and don't wear leather jackets), Derrick, Bill, and Bob's debut disc is melodically bright 'n' shiny and lyrically humorous 'n' entertaining in one fell swoop. In short, fun, fun, fun.

For an easy reference point, think of these guys as a peppier version of The Smithereens, especially on the tunes where Derrick Anderson takes the mic. "Retro Girl" is where he reaches his apex ("I want a girl whose hair curls up on the ends like Emma Peel's hair used to do"), a classic, classy pop song for the ages. In place and show, respectively, are "My Life Still Sucks In A Bad Way" (a '90s feel-bad anthem that begs the question: Is it possible for one's life to suck in a good way?) and the garage-rock stomper "The Truth is Out."

The silken-voiced Bill Anderson takes on lead vocal chores for two of the disc's finest moments, the sing-songy "Hey Coelacanth" (love that bass line that provides the hook) and the harmony-laced confessional "(I'm in Love With A) T.V. Girl." Bob Anderson — apparently "The Quiet Anderson" — steps out in front only once, on "Defensive," a short, snappy number with a distinct "I Don't Want To Spoil The Party" Beatles' vibe.

Overall, this is pretty sunny stuff, with the exception of the positively nasty "You'll Get Yours Yet," which makes Johnny Rotten sound like Lobo. Anyhoo, Separated To Birth is very cool indeed, with just the right mix of humor, guitars and angst. And no big hair, either. (P.O. Box 26036, Los Angeles, CA 90036)

Experience, playing a 40-minute set that highlighted virtually everything the band had recorded to date. Next up were the Move, still riding high in the chart with the anthemic "Flowers In The Rain." They played half an hour. Barrett and the Floyd came third, with a 17-minute show that seldom got beyond a savage "Interstellar Overdrive." Amen Corner got a quarter of an hour, The Nice had 12 minutes while Outer Limits and Eire Apparent got eight minutes

From its opening at London's Royal Albert Hall on Nov. 14, 1967, the tour stretched for a little more than two weeks, two shows a day in towns and cities that are little more than afterthoughts on a modern British tour - Bournemouth, Blackpool, Chatham, Newcastle, Portsmouth and Coventry. While its effect on the public awareness of the individual bands was inestimable, the outing had its sad side as well: Syd Barrett.

Most nights, the guitarist would reach the venue hours after his bandmates and minutes before he was due on stage. Once there, he'd play out the next act in the drama, real or imagined, that has fueled his legend ever since.

There was the night he couldn't get his hair to hang right, so he crushed downers into his hair cream then poured the whole jar over his head. Beneath the hot lights, it looked as though his entire head was melting.

There was the time he surrounded himself with so many echo boxes that the rest of the band couldn't even make out when he was playing, let alone what. There was the show when he didn't touch his guitar all night, and another when he played a completely different set than the band.

And there was the night he didn't show up.

Davy O'List was 17, the youngest member of the Nice, the youngest musician on the tour bus. But he was a brilliant guitarist, a genuine prodigy, rock 'n' roll's first true child star. He'd been about to join John Mayall's band, successor to the recently errant Peter Green, when the Nice's call came. When his new band taped their debut album, O'List didn't just compete with virtuoso organist Keith Emerson, he all but wiped him out

But he was willing to learn all the same, and every gig of the tour, he revealed, "I used to stand by the side of the stage to watch the Floyd. They only used to play that one number in their set, and because it was a fairly straightforward guitar thing, I was able to pick it up quite quickly. So when Syd didn't turn up one night (no one remembers where he was), Floyd asked me to go on instead."

O'List agreed. He'd already changed out of the clothes he'd worn onstage with The Nice, so he slipped on a new jacket and went out there. At first, the crowd was fooled. O'List kept his back to the crowd, and it seemed like the whole hall was shouting messages to Barrett. "Then I turned around and they all shut up immediately," he said.

On Dec. 22, Pink Floyd returned to London to play the Christmas On Earth, Revisited festival at London's Olympia exhibition hall. Hendrix, The Move and The Soft Machine were also playing; Barrett, however, wasn't. He spent the entire gig standing with his arms limp at his sides while Waters tried to keep the show alive by thumping out a repetitive bass line.

A little more than two months later, Barrett played his last gig as a member of Pink Floyd.

Dave Gilmour, a Floyd friend from their Cambridge hometown, was drafted into the band, ostensibly as a fifth member, but more accurately as Barrett's replacement. (O'List was also considered.) The band played five shows in this form, and then one day on the way to a gig, the band's Bentley paused. The rest of the group were already inside, and someone asked, "Shall we pick Syd up?" Someone else replied, "No, let's not bother." According to Gilmour, "We never went to pick him up again. It's as simple as that."

Despite all the difficulties exploding around him (and them). Barrett's last months with Pink Floyd were not completely unproductive. On Dec. 20, two days before the abortive Christmas On Earth, Revisited festival, the band recorded another Top Gear session for broadcast on New Year's Eve, taking the opportunity to introduce the best of three most recent compositions -"Scream Your Last Scream," "Jugband Blues" and "Vegetable Man," serving up just one track from Piper, the group composition "Pow R Toc H."

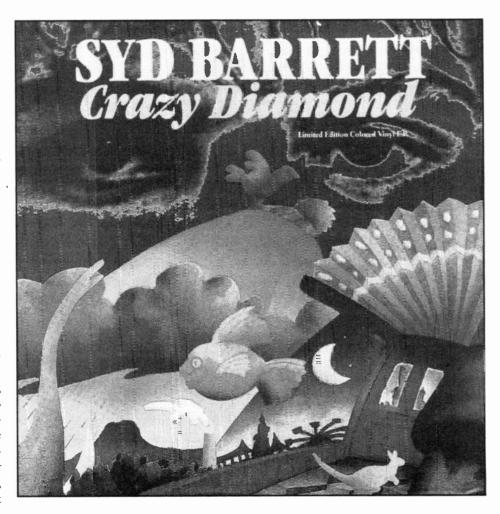

The band was also in and out of the recording studio with some regularity, although just one "new" Barrett song would be attempted, a quirky call and response song titled, "Have You Got It Yet?" It looked simple on paper. Barrett would call out the title, and his bandmates would reply, "No no no." It would be some time into the session before the others realized why the song just wasn't working - and why Barrett had given it that particular title in the first place. They hadn't "got it yet" because he was changing it slightly every time they tried, making certain there was no way that they ever

For a time, Pink Floyd had considered keeping Barrett on in an advisory capacity, the songwriter taking the same sort of role in their band as Brian Wilson had lately adopted in The Beach Boys. The original plan for Pink Floyd's second album, after all, had been to compile together an audio diary of the band's musical history so far, through outtakes, oddments and old songs they just hadn't gotten around to recording.

With Barrett's writer's block showing no sign of lifting, that particular scheme continued apace, even as the other one fell apart. Suddenly, the band members themselves found it easier to come to terms with Barrett's incapacitation than they had ever expected. With that realization, a whole new vista of creative possibilities raised its head.

"It was really stressful waiting for Syd to come up with the songs for the second album," Jenner reflected. "Everybody was looking at him, and he couldn't do it." So the others got on with the job themselves.

Wright brought in a couple more plaintive little ditties, "Paintbox," and "See Saw," which his bandmates promptly retitled "The Most Boring Song I've Ever Heard Bar Two"

(its original title would be reinstated in time for inclusion on the new album): Waters introduced the pulsing "Let There Be More Light" and "Corporal Clegg," a daft but nevertheless potent presentiment of his future obsession with the hypocrisy of war and the men who wage it. Two other pieces, "The Boppin' Sound" and the tantalizingly mysterious "Untitled," were completed between Jan. 11 and mid-February, and on Feb. 12, 1968, work began on another Waters song, "Doreen's Dream." Retitled "Julia Dream," the song would mark Gilmour's first recorded appearance as a member of Pink Floyd. Barrett did not attend

The question of whether Barrett appeared on any of the other tracks has long vexed even the most exhaustive Floyd fans. Certainly he appears on his own compositions, while his presence on "Remember A Day" has never been questioned. Different sources, however, remain divided over his contributions elsewhere. Variously, Barrett has been discerned on "See Saw," "Corporal Clegg" and "Let There Be More Light," while Gilmour acknowledged he was also involved in the August 1967 sessions for "Set The Controls For The Heart Of The Sun" - but only "on a tiny bit of it."

But it is also true that many of the sessions were conducted with Barrett simply waiting in the Abbey Road reception, holding his guitar and waiting to be invited in to lay down his parts. Occasionally, he'd get bored waiting and go home. Other times, he would be called into the control room just in time to say good-bye to his bandmates.

Whatever the truth of the matter, the recording of "Julia Dream" marked the dawn of the "new" Pink Floyd, a four-piece convened without any regard for Barrett. A Saucerful Of Secrets, the band's second album, reflected this new hierarchy. Only one Barrett song was included on the LP, "Jugband Blues" serving up a soft, sad coda to the 35 minutes of spaced-out psychedelia that preceded it. The remainder of the record looked only into the future.

On April 6, 1968, Barrett's departure from the band was formally announced. Three years later. Barrett confronted his removal in the pages of Melody Maker: "I suppose it was really just a matter of being a little offhand about things," he said, smiling. His exasperated erstwhile bandmates' response to that has not been recorded, although neither Mason nor Waters have pulled any punches in revealing their side of the story.

"It seemed his whole bent was on frustrating us," Mason said. "We staggered on, thinking to ourselves that we couldn't manage without Syd, so we put up with what can only be described as a fucking maniac. We didn't choose to use those words, but I think he was." Waters, characteristically, was more circumspect. "Whether he was sick or not is not for us to say in these days of dispute about the nature of madness. All I know is, he was fucking murder to live and

He was also, it seemed, a lot more cunning than anyone had expected. On May 6, precisely one month after he was ejected from Pink Floyd - and some six months after he last offered the band a new song, Barrett returned to the studio with lenner in tow to begin working on his first solo album.

Like the rest of Pink Floyd, the King/Jenner management team had long doubted whether the band could even continue to exist without Barrett: unlike the rest of Pink Floyd, they concluded that the band couldn't. When Barrett left, King and Jenner followed him out, persuaded EMI to finance a return to Abbey Road and got to work on five new songs.

At least, they called them songs, and with a bit of work, they might even have become songs. At the time, however, neither "Lanky"

JANIS

In this 1980 concert Janis and her band play her biggest hits - "At Seventeen", "Jesse", and "Silly Habits". Includes 2 bonus songs from The Bottom Line's "In Their Own Words" series (taped 1991) in which noted NY DJ Vin Scelsa asks Janis to talk about, and then play, "At Seventeen" and "Society's Child." This is Janis' first live album release in the US

KENNY RANKIN

KENNY

This recording of Kenny's 1990 show at The Bottom Line is Kenny's first live concert album! Includes his hits "Pardon Me" and "In The Name Of Love." as well as his incomparable renditions of "With A Little Help From My Friends" and "While My Guitar Gently Weeps."

Also available. The Bottom Line Encore Collection: Harry Chapin This specially-priced double CD captures Harry and his band celebrating their 2.000th performance in front of a home-town growd at The Bottom Line in 1980, just a few months before his tragic passing. A portion of the proceeds benefit World Hunger Year, the anti-hunger organization Harry founded. In celebration of The Bottom Line's 25th year of presenting the best in live music, The Bottom Line Record Company is pleased to present some of the greatest performances from The Bottom Line. Coming in February, The Bottom Line Encore Collection presents Janis Ian, recorded in 1980, and Kenny Rankin, recorded in 1990. Complete with 20-bit mastering. and liner notes by noted New York DJ Pete Fornatale, these Bottom Line Encore Collection albums are a must for serious fans of live music.

(parts one and two) nor 20 minutes of the otherwise promisingly titled "Rhamadan" offered up anything more than a sketch of improvisatory free-fall.

On the other hand, Barrett certainly had some quality material at his disposal: The cowboys and indians-themed "Swan Lee" (a.k.a. "Silas Lang") possessed many of the lyrical and melodic qualities of Barrett's Piper-era material, while backing tracks taped for "Late Night" and "Golden Hair" possessed a fragile guile that earmarked both for future reference. Barrett's guitar playing on the latter, in particular, is simply beautiful; indeed, no matter how easy it is to condemn the last decade's worth of assaults on Barrett's outtakes, moments like these make so much of it seem worthwhile.

Work continued on this same crop of songs across some half a dozen sessions spread through the remainder of May and June, and though it would be another month before Barrett and Jenner returned to Abbey Road, it was a month well spent, as Barrett presented another new song - one which, had he only written it six months earlier, might have changed the course of history.

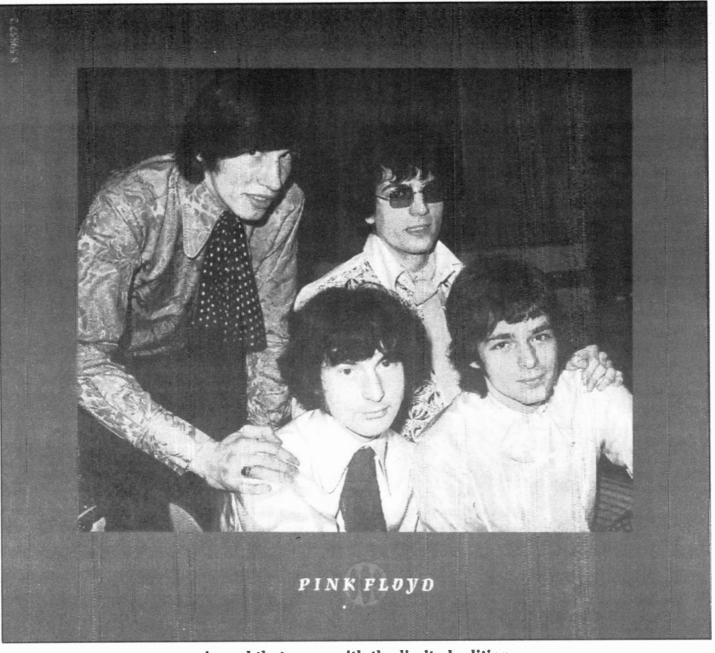

'Clowns And Jugglers" was the best song Barrett had written (or at least, admitted to having written) since "See Emily Play." It was the best, the most commercial, and in the still-burgeoning climate of mystic psychedelia, the most likely to have wiped away all thoughts of failure, dissolution and disgrace from even the most resolutely pessimistic Floyd follower.

"Clowns And Jugglers" was lyrically beguiling and musically intriguing. Barrett later revealed that "I carried that [song] in my head for about six months before I actually wrote it, so maybe that's why it came out so well. The idea was like those number songs, like 'Green Grow The Rushes, Oh.' where you have, say, 12 lines each related to the next and an overall theme. It's like a foolproof combination of lyrics really, and then the chorus comes in and changes the tempo but keeps the whole thing together."

Barrett's first attempt at recording "Clowns And Jugglers" was underpinned by sinister echo, driven at a funereal pace and dominated by a vocal that strained for some of the notes and missed some of the timing. His second was even clumsier. But still the song's quality screamed out for recognition, and if Jenner had only been able to keep Barrett in the studio... if only, if only, if only.

It would be another nine months before Barrett was coaxed back to work, nine months during which Barrett broke up with his long-time - and long-suffering - girlfriend and drove around Great Britain in his little Mini Minor car, catching Pink Floyd shows in the most out-of-the-way places, then just standing, staring, at his hapless replacement. He and Gilmour had been friends long before Pink Floyd; now, it sometimes seemed, they were to become mortal enemies. Gilmour, for his part, just kept his head down and played. What else could he users of LSD). And finally, he moved back to London to launch his public comeback.

Artist Duggie Fields, Barrett's flatmate during this latter period, later mused, "He did have identity problems, having been a pop star and now maybe not being one," and it was most likely this that fueled Barrett's latest flurry of activity.

He became a regular sight backstage at Top Of The Pops, a show he had graced three times with "Emily" and still seemed to view with affection. "It's alright," he told Melody Maker journalist Chris Welch. "There are always people around I know." He hit the London clubs as well, again apparently reveling in his celebrity and only occasionally slipping out of sight, while still ostensibly seated at his table. But such lapses whether in concentration or consciousness - were scarcely unheard of on that particular circuit. If the uninitiated passers-by thought Barrett was maybe a little bit strange, that was only because they hadn't vet been introduced to Keith Moon... or The Pretty Things... or the Deviants... or Steve Peregrin Took.

Most of all, though, Barrett made musical plans in readiness for his return to the studio on April 10, 1969, with producer Malcolm Jones stepping in to replace Jenner.

Jones himself was one of the underground's biggest champions, an EMI staffer who had already helped bring Love Sculpture, Deep Purple, and Barclay James Harvest to the company. Conscious, however, that EMI's "stuffy" image left the label foundering some way behind the thrusting young blades at indie trailblazers such as Island and Chrysalis, Jones convinced his employers that they needed to launch an imprint dedicated to the newly emerging "progressive" rock scene. His wishes were granted. Harvest Records would be launched in June 1969, and the emerging Barrett solo album was swiftly penciled in as one of the new label's flagship releases.

Barrett already had a clear notion of how he wanted the finished album to sound, "a whole thing that people would listen to all the way through, with everything related and balanced, the tempos and moods offsetting each other." Jones, too, was convinced that Barrett had everything in hand. "Syd explained that he had lots [of] material for a new album, and there was no reason to doubt him. He was also keen to try to salvage some of Peter Jenner's sessions, and in all, he seemed very together - in contrast to all the rumors circulating at the time. It all sounded too good for words."

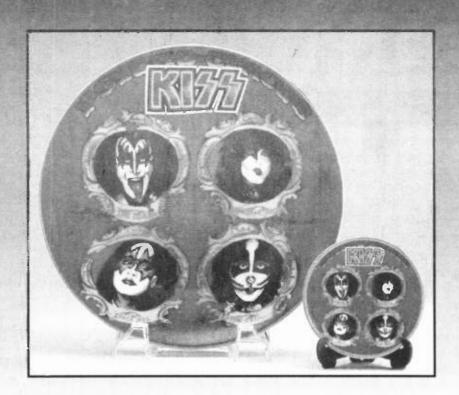

Jones himself did not originally envision becoming Barrett's producer; it was only after Smith (then embroiled in Floyd's Ummagumma project) and Jenner both declined that Barrett told him, "Well, you do it, then." Jones agreed.

The sessions would see Barrett recording both solo and with sundry passing musician friends: bassist John Wilson and Humble Pie drummer Jerry Shirley took part in "Here I Go"; the three-piece Soft Machine added overdubs to earlier recordings of "Love You," "It's No Good Trying" and the still unsettled "Clowns And Jugglers."

"Most of the tracks... were just with Syd and his guitar," Jones remembered. "I felt that, with his guitar alone, we could put down some songs and overdub backing later, as necessary."

Barrett responded to Jones' methods. One night, early on in the sessions, they completed vocals and guitar tracks for a total of six songs in little more than five hours. "Syd was in a great mood and in fine form," Jones said, "a stark contrast to the rumors and stories I'd been fed with."

Things remained buoyant. On April 25, with the album's end now clearly in view, Barrett oversaw the transfer of 10 songs from four-track to eight-track, in preparation of overdubbing: "No Good Trying," "Terrapin," "Love You," "No Man's Land," "Here I Go" and "Golden Hair," which he'd recorded with Jones, as well as the Jenner version of "Late Night" - all of which would make the final album. "Clowns And Jugglers" would be retitled "Octopus" before it too took its place on the LP, and just two tracks that would not see the light of day for years to come: "Opel" and "Swan Lee."

Of course, news of the progress Barrett was making was not slow to filter back to his old bandmates. At least Gilmour was taking what Jones call "a casual interest" in the sessions. Barrett had evidently forgiven the guitarist for taking his place, had forgiven Waters, too, for taking his band. When the pair offered to produce a few songs for him, Barrett agreed.

It would prove a frustrating experience in many ways. Gilmour and Waters were still hard at work on Ummagumma, while Floyd themselves had a Dutch tour scheduled through July. Just three sessions were scheduled, then, two in June, and one other, more than a month later. Still, Barrett repaid the duo's interest by simply turning out even more of the wondrous songs that they had once waited so long, and fruitlessly, for him

"Dark Globe," "Long Gone," "She Took A Long, Cold Look," "Feel" and "If It's In You" would all be shoehorned onto the album; "Golden Hair" was re-recorded, and a fresh attempt at "Clowns And Jugglers"/"Octopus" saw that song finally take on its finished sheen. Finally, on July 26, 1969, a full 14 months after the first session, the recording was completed, and Gilmour and Waters settled down to try and make sense of it.

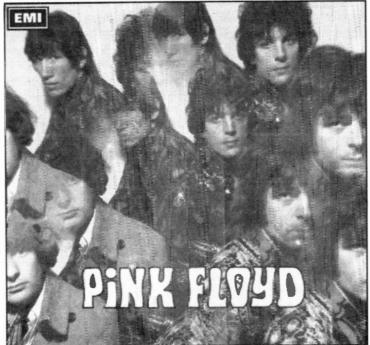

"At the time, I thought we had nothing [usable] at all," engineer Brown said. Jones conceded that "as much [material] ended up on the cutting room floor as on the issued album." But still the sessions revealed a gold mine of possibilities - so much so that mixing was completed in just two days, and on Oct. 6, Gilmour and Barrett alone sequenced the finished product.

The Madcap Laughs, titled from an ironic line in "Octopus," was released in January 1970, to a slew of encouraging reviews. Disc And Music Echo even called it "an excellent album to start 1970." Though airplay was minimal (a single of "Octopus" disappeared without a trace), by late February, the album had sold more than 6,000 copies.

Emboldened by such a response, Barrett launched onto the promotional circuit with renewed enthusiasm. He agreed to a handful of press interviews and talked about returning to live work. On Feb. 24, he arrived at the BBC studios to record a five-track session for John Peel's Top Gear radio show.

Since released in the acclaimed Peel Sessions EP series, Barrett's performance was incredible, a stark contradiction of the reports from elsewhere that he was barely able to string his guitar, let alone play it for long. Backed by Gilmour, Jerry Shirley, and possibly guitarist Alan Styles, Barrett performed just one song from The Madcap Laughs, the album's opening "Terrapin." The remainder of the session debuted four songs that were in contention for inclusion on his next album - work on which would begin just two days later: "Two Of A Kind," "Gigolo Aunt," "Baby Lemonade" and that scrap of youthful nonsense, "Effervescing Elephant."

If the Peel session proved that once again Barrett had a surprising quantity of new songs at his disposal, the album sessions only reinforced the belief. By the end of February 1970, workable versions of "Baby Lemonade," "Gigolo Aunt," "Maisie," "Waving My Arms In The Air" and "I Never Lied To You," were already in the can, together with two songs that possibly only Gilmour has copies of - "Living Alone" and the intriguingly titled "Dylan's Blues."

Barrett went home to Cambridge, moving in with his mother and seemingly preparing to batten down the hatches forever.

Barrett also gave a radio interview during this period where he talked excitedly about the gestating album: "There'll be all kinds of things [on it]. It just depends what I feel like doing at the time. The important thing is that it will be better than the last. There's four tracks in the can already, [and] there are no set musicians, just people helping out, like on Madcap, which gives me far more freedom in what I want to do. I feel as if I've got lots of things, much better things to do still. I just want to get it done."

That's precisely what he did. When the sessions resumed in April 1970, such undisputed gems as "Milky Way," "Birdie Song," "Rats," and "Wolfpack" were added to the arsenal. There was also an attempt to rework the old Floyd outtake, "She's A Millionaire," and though it would soon be discarded again, Barrett nevertheless confessed that he still had "lots of stuff lying around from then" and that he wasn't averse to using it. Indeed, "Here I Go," from Madcap, dated back to the Piper era, when Barrett wrote it (under the title "Boom Tune") as a possible single for the Purple Gang.

With the album still rolling along, much of Barrett's time now was spent preparing for what would become his live solo debut, performing at the Olympia Extravaganza Music and Fashion Festival on June 6, 1970. He agreed to appear without consulting anybody, then found himself having to beg Gilmour and Shirley to accompany him. They finally agreed, and the boot promptly slipped onto the other foot, as Barrett proceeded to completely change his mind about the whole affair.

Finally, however, he was convinced to play. Though he spent much of the pre-gig period peeping through the curtains behind the stage, terrified at the thought of facing a live audience again, the gig itself went spectacularly well... at least for the first four numbers. Then Barrett simply announced, "Oh great, thanks very much," and walked off stage. The show was over.

The following month, he was back at Abbey Road for a last burst of activity spread over two sessions on July 14 and 17. In less than two days, the team both recorded and overdubbed "Love Song," "Word Song," "Dominoes," "It Is Obvious," "Wined And Dined," "Dolly Rocker," "Effervescing Elephant" and, perhaps portentously, "Let's Split." For Gilmour at least, it was a rewarding end to a very long and very fraught

The sessions, he acknowledged later, were hell. Barrett spent so long deep inside his own world that Gilmour later admitted, "We had hasically three alternatives at that point. One, we could actually work with him in the studio, playing along as he put down his tracks - which was almost impossible, though we succeeded on 'Gigolo Aunt.' The second was laying down some kind of track before and then having him play over it. The third was him putting his basic ideas down with just guitar and vocals, and then we'd try and make something out of it all. It was mostly a case of me saying, 'Well, what have you got then, Syd?' and he'd search around and eventually work something out."

One of Gilmour's most ingenious ideas. according to drummer Shirley, occurred during those final sessions in July Barrett had consistently failed to come up with a usable lead guitar line for "Dominoes," until finally, Gilmour played the tape backward and had Barrett play along with that. "It sounded great, the best lead he ever played. The first time out, and he didn't put a note

The mood of the album reflects Gilmour's frustration; Barrett, released in November 1970, is an essay on claustrophobia, brightening occasionally with the false dawns of its best songs but swiftly settling back into the gloom again. Lovable, but scarcely likeable, its modern-day status as a cult classic was certainly not apparent when the record came out. Reviews were weak, and Barrett himself was diffident. By Christmas, it was as though the record had never happened.

Barrett went home to Cambridge, moving in with his mother and seemingly preparing to batten down the hatches forever. Yet talk of an immediate return to obscurity was still premature, as he continued to maintain at least the pretense of a career in the music industry

On Feb. 16, 1971, Barrett returned to the BBC studios, this time to record a session for DJ Bob Harris. Unaccompanied, he ran through three songs, "Baby Lemonade," "Dominoes" and "Love Song." Though the actual performance is rough, Barrett himself sounds good.

The following month, Melody Maker published a lengthy interview with Barrett, conducted by journalist Michael Watts. The singer's hair was cropped almost skinhead short, and his conversation, Watts wrote, was "often obscure; it doesn't always progress in linear fashion." He answered the questions he wanted to answer, and though he hinted at a time when he might abandon music altogether for a life of painting, he also spoke enthusiastically of a third solo

"I've got some songs in the studio still. And I've got a couple of tapes. I think I shall be able to produce this one myself. I think it was always easier to do that." Better than an album, though, would be 12" singles. And jolly good singles." He admitted that even at the height of Pink Floyd's hit-making success, it was he alone who actually wanted to release 45s. "Obviously, being a pop group, one wanted to have singles." Left to their own devices, his bandmates would have gone in the opposite direction entirely. "Their choice of material was always very much to do with what they were thinking as architecture students. Rather unexciting people, I would have thought."

Barrett was in equally good spirits when Rolling Stone caught up with him later in the VISUAL OR PLAY GRADING? In an ideal world, every record would be played before it is graded. But the time involved makes it impractical for most dealers, and anyway, it's rare that you get a chance to hear a record before you buy through the mail. Some advertisers playgrade everything and say so. But unless otherwise noted, records are visually graded.

HOW TO GRADE

Look at everything about a record - its playing surface, its label, its edges -- under a strong light. Then based on your overall impression give it a grade based on the following

Mint (M): Absolutely perfect in every way - certainly never played, possibly even still sealed. (More on still sealed under "Other considerations"). Should be used sparingly as a grade, if Near Mint (NM or M-): A nearly perfect record. Many dealers won't give a grade higher than this implying (perhaps correctly) that no record is ever truly perfect.

The record should show no obvious signs of wear. A 45 RPM or EP sleeve should have no more than the most minor defects, such as almost invisible ring wear or other signs of slight handling.

An LP jacket should have no creases, folds, seam splits or any other noticeable similar defect. No cut-out holes, either And of course, the same should be true of any other inserts, such as posters, lyric sleeves and the like.

Basically, an LP in Near Mint condition looks as if you just got it home from a new record store and removed the shrink

Near Mint is the highest price listed in all GOLDMINE price guides. Anything that exceeds this grade, in the opinion of both buyer and seller, is worth significantly more than the highest GOLDMINE book value.

Very Good Plus (VG+): Generally worth 50 percent of the Near Mint value.

A Very Good Plus record will show some signs that it was played and otherwise handled by a previous owner who took good care of it.

GOLDMINE GRADING GUIDE

Record surfaces may show some slight signs of wear and may have slight scuffs or very light scratches that don't affect one's listening experience. Slight warps that do not affect the sound are OK sound are OK

The label may have some ring wear or discoloration, but it should be barely noticeable. The center hole will not have been misshapen by repeated play.

Picture sleeves and LP inner sleeves will have some slight wear, lightly turned-up corners, or a slight seam-split. An LP jacket may have slight signs of wear also and may be marred by a cut-out hole, indentation or corner indicating it was taken by a cut-out hole, indentation or corner indicating it was taken out of print and sold at a discount.

In general, if not for a couple of minor things wrong with it, this would be Near Mint. All but the most mint-crazy collectors will find a Very Good Plus record highly acceptable.

Very Good (VG): Generally worth 25 percent of the Near Mint value. Many of the defects found in a VG+ record will be more pronounced in a VG disc. Surface noise will be evident upon playing, especially in soft passages and during a song's intro and fade, but will not overpower the music otherwise. Groove wear will start to be noticeable, as will light scratches (deep enough to feel with a fingernail) that will affect the sound.

Labels may be marred by writing, or have tape or stickers (or their residue) attached. The same will be true of picture sleeves or LP covers. However, it will not have all of these problems at the same time, only two or three of them.

the same time, only two or three of them.

GOLDMINE price guides with more than one price will list Very Good as the lowest price. This, not the Near Mint price, should be your guide when determining how much a record is worth, as that is the price a dealer will normally pay you for a Near

Good (G), Good Plus (G+): Generally worth 10-15 percent of the Near Mint value. Good does not mean Bad! A record in Good or Good Plus condition can be put onto a turntable and will play through without skipping. But it will have significant surface noise and scratches and visible groove wear (on a styrene record, the groove will be starting to turn white).

A jacket or sleeve will have seam splits, especially at the bottom or on the spine. Tape, writing, ring wear or other defects will start to overwhelm the object.

If it's a common item, you'll probably find another copy in better shape eventually. Pass it up. But, it it's something you have been seeking for years, and the price is right, get it ... but keep looking to upgrade.

Poor (P), Fair (F): Generally worth 0-5 percent of the Near Mint price. The record is cracked, badly warped, and won't play through without skipping or repeating. The picture sleeve is water damaged, split on all three seams and heavily marred by wear and writing. The LP jacket barely keeps the LP inside it. Inner sleeves are fully seam split, crinkled, and written upon.

Except for impossibly rare records otherwise unattainable, records in this condition should be bought or sold for no more than a few cents each.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

Most dealers give a separate grade to the record and its sleeve or cover. In an ad, a record's grade is listed first, followed by that of the sleeve or jacket.

With Still Sealed (SS) records, let the buyer beware, unless it's a U.S. pressing from the last 10-15 years or so. It's too easy to reseal one. Yes, some legitimately never-opened LPs from the 1960s sill exist. But it you're looking for a specific pressing, the only way you can know for sure is to open the record. Also, European imports are not factory-sealed, so if you see them advertised as sealed, someone other than the manufacturer advertised as sealed, someone other than the manufacturer

A FEW NOTES ON COMPACT DISCS

In theory, a compact disc should always play-grade in at least Near Mint condition. And even the condition of generic jewel boxes and trays aren't important, as they can be replaced easily.

Unless the CD came in a special package (fold-open, fold-over, colored plastic, etc.), the two areas to check for grading are its label and its insert (booklet).

Most collector interest currently is with promotional CD's. Again, audible condition of the disc is less of a concern than the condition of its packaging and art-work and the collectibility of the artist.

Used full-length, commercial CD's generally sell for 50-75 percent of the new price. Dealers in used CD's will usually pay no more than 50 percent of that price, and often much less.

year. By Christmas, he was on the cusp of another re-emergence, party now to a dream hatched by a musician he'd first met at Abbey Road in 1967.

John "Twink" Alder was the drummer through the sessions for The Pretty Things' S.F. Sorrow. He'd long since moved on to form the Pink Fairies, but now he was enjoying a retirement of his own, running a nightclub, The 10p Boogie, with Delivery bassist Jack Monck — the husband, incidentally, of one of Barrett's ex-girlfriends.

Inevitably, Alder and Barrett's paths crossed again, and over tea and cakes one evening, Alder suggested they put a band together with Monck. "Syd never actually said, 'Yeah, this is a good idea," Monck later reflected. But Barrett went along with it anyway.

Stars' rehearsal repertoire was comprised of a couple of early Floyd numbers, highlights from Barrett's solo sets and a lot of 12-bar blues. The band itself debuted in an East Road, Cambridge, cafe, moved on to a free show in Market Square, guested at King's College, Cambridge, where they backed the visiting American bluesman Eddie "Guitar" Burns, and were officially unveiled at the Cambridge Corn Exchange on Feb. 24, 1972, sharing the bill with the MC5.

It was a disaster.

"The chords are out of tune," wrote Melody Maker reviewer Roy Hollingworth, "and [Syd] keeps looking to his right and sort of scowling.... he played a demented solo that ran ragged lines up to 10 minutes... he messes chords together. There is no pattern, but if you think hard you can see a faint one."

Stars struggled on through their guitarist's intransigence. Barrett's right index finger was bleeding; Monck and Alder were exchanging frantic looks. They played a shaky "Lucifer Sam," a mournful "Octopus," a disheveled "Gigolo Aunt" and a claustrophobic "Dark Globe." The last thing anyone remembers from the show was Barrett winding up a meandering blues jam then announcing, "I don't know what that one was called" just as Monck's bass amp gave out. The trio left the stage, canceled their next scheduled show opening for Kevin Ayers, and Nektar at the Essex University and for all intents and purposes, the Madcap stopped laughing there and then.

Alder was shocked, not only by the rapid death of such a promising project, but also by the sheer depth of Barrett's condition—all the more so since he truly believed that his bandmate wasn't as far gone as people were now whispering.

Talking to Trouser Press magazine in 1978, the drummer said, "I didn't know him closely for that long, [but] I thought he was very together, you know? As a friend, it was a very warm relationship, no bad vibes at all. We didn't have any crazy scenes. I was really amazed working with him, at his actual ability as a guitar player." It remains a source of considerable dismay that Alder, having seemingly saved (and subsequently released) aural scraps of just about every band he has ever played in, does not appear to have taped a note of Stars' music. Or if he did, he's keeping it under serious lock and key.

It is a measure of the speed of life today, compared to even a couple of decades back, that talk of Barrett's "disappearance" began to circulate almost immediately following Stars' demise. No more than 18 months elapsed, for example, between the final Stars concert and David Bowie's invocation of Barrett on his Pin Ups album. Yet what seems a mere blink of the eye today was an eternity back then. As Emily played for a whole new generation of pop fans, courtesy of Ziggy's genuinely inspired re-creation, Barret's specter seemed so removed from modern preoccupations that he really was a lost cause.

Bowie, however, refused to accept that, adding his name to the growing litany of awestruck artists who claimed they would do anything and drop everything for the chance to take Barrett into the studio with

One or two might even have succeeded. Although the aural evidence is slim, there is a pervasive rumor that Ayers recruited Barrett to play guitar first on a projected but ultimately abandoned single called "Religious Experience" and later, on an early, acetate-only, version of 1971's "Singing A Song In The Morning" 45. Another Ayers gem, 1972's "O! Wot A Dream," recounts an afternoon the pair spent boating on the river in Cambridge.

The following year- (and again the evidence is slim), Barrett apparently dropped by the basement flat where former Tyrannosaurus Rex star Steve Peregrin Took was half-heartedly recording his own solo album - released in 1995 as The Missing Link To Tyrannosaurus Rex. Interviewed for the accompanying booklet, Took's manager of the time, Tony Secunda, simply recalled the nonstop procession of friends and well-wishers who trooped in and out of the Charles Street apartment: Mick Farren, Alder, Larry Wallis, sundry members of Hawkwind and The Pink Fairies - and Barrett, As for whether Barrett recorded anything while he was there, though, that's another matter entirely. Even the album only hints coyly around that possibility, crediting one "Crazy Diamond" with "guitar and various noises."

According to other evidence, however, "guitar and various noises" was pretty much all Barrett was interested in doing as the 1970s wore on — a fact that was brought painfully home in November 1974, when what history records as "a mysterious benefactor" booked him into Abbey Road to see if there was any way of shaking a third solo album out of the star.

Both Bowie and Brian Eno have been credited with this act of great, but supremely misguided, kindness. So have all of Pink Floyd; so have Ayers and Bryan Ferry, and so has Jack Bruce, with whom an unrecognized Barrett shared an informal jam at a small hall in Cambridge, sometime during the summer of 1973. Brown, Bruce's lyricist, remembers seeing "this odd-looking guitarist playing acoustic jazz stuff" during a break in the soundcheck that afternoon; it was only later that evening, during the actual gig, that Brown realized who it was. "I dedicated [a poem], 'Goodnight Eliza Doolittle: The Death Of Flower Power,' to Syd Barrett, saying he was the guy who started that all up in England. To my surprise, this strange guitarist stood up in the audience and said, 'No I didn't.' It turned out to be him."

Whoever was behind Barrett's latest studio sojourn, he was swiftly disavowed of his dream. For starters, Barrett apparently turned up for only two days of the four-day session, during which he debuted a few loose chord sequences, a few blues riffs and just one song title, "If You Go."

"It was an abortion," one onlooker, Peter Barnes, swore. "He just kept overdubbing guitar part on guitar part until it was just a chaotic mess." Jenner agreed. "Glimpses of tunes would come out, and we'd think, 'Record that!' But it would disappear into incoherence again. It was horribly frustrating, because there were sporadic glimpses of the old Syd coming through, and then it would all get horribly distorted again."

No vocals were attempted, and the fragments of guitar playing that have appeared on bootlegs in recent years are simply that fragments of guitar playing that could have been played by anyone. It was Barrett's lastever attempt at recording.

The band he left behind, of course, never forgot him. As late as 1970-71, "Interstellar Overdrive" and "Astronomy Domine" were still turning up in Pink Floyd's live set, with the latter proving one of the highlights of both the band's first (partial) live album, 1969's Ummagumma, and their most recent, 1995's Pulse. In 1996, Gilmour alone performed Barrett's "Terrapin" (from The Madcap Laughs) at the Tibet Festival at Alex-

In vinyl terms, too, Floyd have kept Barrett's name alive. The year 1971 saw the band release the Relics compilation, rounding up several of their Barrett-era 45s and associated rarities. While the interest aroused by Bowie's version of "See Emily Play" was certainly instrumental in two further archive releases, in 1974: the A Nice Pair double album that brought Piper and A Saucerful Of Secrets together in one package, and Syd Barrett, a similar pairing for The Madcap Laughs and Barrett.

While Pink Floyd themselves can, and indeed have, been accused of a certain meanspiritedness for omitting Piper from 1992's career-spanning seven-CD Works boxed set, amends were more than made with 1997's 30th Anniversary commemorative edition of the album, which remastered the long-indemand mono mix and added a bonus disc of period singles.

It is creatively, however, that Barrett has maintained his greatest influence over Waters, Gilmour, Mason and Wright. "I'm very sad about Svd," Waters later confessed. "I wasn't, for years, For years, Esuppose [1] viewed him as] a threat, because of all that bollocks written about him and us."

Every time a new Floyd album was released at least one infle was guaranteed to later. But "Shine On You Crazy Diamond," from 1975's Wish You Were Here, is clearly Pink Floyd's own tribute to their founding father. With a synchronicity that the best fiction in the world could never hope to get away with, that was the song the band was working on that June afternoon in 1975 when their past popped 'round to see them

Having been the first to recognize the big, bald vision, King was also the first to speak. He wanted to know how Barrett got so fat. "Well," the visitor replied, "I've got a very large fridge at home, and I've been eating a lot of pork chops."

Apparently, Barrett spent much of his time in the studio brushing his teeth. "He kept standing up," Wright remembered, "brushing his teeth, putting his toothbrush away and sitting down." Wright himself had been the last to arrive in the studio, some time after his bandmates had accustomed themselves to Barrett's presence, and he still recalls how nobody bothered to introduce

"I walked into the studio, Roger was sitting, mixing at the desk, and I saw this big bald guy sitting on the couch, about 16 stone (224 pounds). And I didn't think anything of it. In those days, it was quite normal for strangers to wander into our sessions. Anyway, it took me a long time, and then suddenly... after maybe 45 minutes... I realized. It was a huge shock, because I hadn't seen him for about six years."

Conversation was stinted, even as the afternoon wore on. Storm Thorgerson, the band's art director, recalled one or two people crying softly as Barrett sat before them. Waters, too, later admitted, "To see this great, fat, mad, bald person... I was in fucking tears." But Barrett himself seemed remarkably nonplussed by his effect on his old bandmates and by their music. Listening to one playback, Waters asked Barrett his opinion of the song. Barrett shrugged. "I dunno. Sounds a bit old." Later, somebody suggested they hear the track through again. "Why bother?" Barrett asked. "You've already heard it once."

Then he seemed to remember where he was, and maybe even why he had come. "Right," he said. "When do I put the guitar

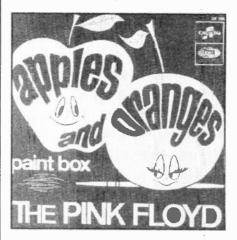

The band members looked at one another, then at him, "Sorry Syd, the guitar's

And the saddest part of that entire story is that it was Svd Barrett would never play deluxe British two-disc collection. Its 41 tracks encompass the entirety of their Pye albums From The Foundations and Digging The Foundations, bolstered by another clutch of gems from the same time-frame that completes the story.

Producer Tony Macaulay, only 23 when he discovered the integrated aggregation (ages ranging from 19 to 38, they hailed from Trinidad, Jamaica and London), cowrote the relentless "Baby Now That I've Found You." With Clem Curtis contributing a mighty lead effort, it proved a debut smash at the end of 1967 (released in the states on Uni to an equal amount of commercial acclaim).

After finishing up their first album—alternating insistent originals such as "Back On My Feet Again" and "Come On Back To Me" with American R&B staples first done by James Phelps and Joe Tex— Curtis split (but not before waxing the powerhouse soul ballad "Tomorrow"). He was replaced by Barbados native Colin Young, who stepped in on their bubbly 1969 million-seller "Build Me Up Buttercup" and the follow-ups "In The Bad, Bad Old Days (Before You Loved Me)" and "My Little Chickadee."

U.S. soul remained The Foundations' foundation: Their 1968-69 output included covers of J.J. Jackson's "But It's Alright," Freddie Scott's "Am I Groovin' You" and a percolating treatment of Bob & Earl's "Harlem Shuffle." But after producer Macauley's exit, the group couldn't sustain its momentum and crumbled by mid-1970. The anthology winds down with a dreary discoslanted Young-led 1976 single that Pye released under The New Foundations moniker that's surely aboard only for the sake of completeness.

Sporting comprehensive liner notes and fine sound quality, this compilation should force a re-examination of The Foundations in the great scheme of pop music history: They harbored plenty of genuine soul, displaying it throughout their regretfully truncated stint as hitmakers. THE SEX PISTOLS
The Sex Pistols Live: Pistol Whipped
Big Ear Music (EAZ-4006)

First, about the misnomer: The Sex Pistols Live: Pistol Whipped actually only includes six live tunes out of its 15 songs. That's not even half, hardly cause for tossing "live" in its title. In reality, Pistol Whipped is the umpteenth repackaging of the public domain Dave Goodman tapes plus a few well-known live tracks thrown in for balance (or to justify that title — whatever).

Goodman was the Pistols' soundman in the early days, and the nine songs here recorded in 1976 are demos of the band's familiar tunes that would end up on its debut album, Never Mind the Bollocks Here's The Sex Pistols. And considering that it is the Pistols' sole official studio release (and that their mythological status in the punk movement and standing in music history is primarily based on this album), a lot of other trivial flotsam has been mined since then, quite a bit of it originating from Goodman's pre-hype rehearsal documents.

But little of the band's fury is displayed on these songs. The playing is, at times, lazy — not sloppy, which the Pistols mastered into greatness, but slack and lackluster. On the demos, particularly, they sound more like an amateur garage band with a characteristically bad singer and about three distorted chords rather than the punk godfathers they became. "I Wanna Be Me" and a supercharged "Anarchy in the UK" stand out among the demos, while in-concert takes of "I'm A Lazy Sod" (i.e., "Seventeen," as in the same song that appears six tracks later in demo form with the correct title) and "New York" highlight the slim live portion (and come closer to the Pistols as we know them).

Still, as shoddy (Sid Vicious is given credit on these cuts when, in fact, it's original bassist Glen Matlock torpidly pounding away here) and shameless as Pistol Whipped is, the sound is in pretty good quality. A more detailed package — rather than the tired history lesson included — would have been nice, too; there is no indication that these are indeed mostly demos (let alone source information). A secondary punk footnote — but only if you missed it the first few dozen times around.

BILL JUSTIS
The Very Best Of Bill Justis – Raunchy
Collectables (COL-CD-6018)

Bill Justis never entirely embraced the Sun Records credo during his late-50s tenure at the Memphis rockabilly powerhouse.

Despite being hired as Sun's musical director in 1957, the saxist snidely looked down his nose on the thrilling sounds emanating from Sam Phillips' tiny 706 Union facility, going so far as handing jazz-steeped piano hopeful Charlie Rich a stack of Sun discs and telling him to return when he "got that bad."

Nevertheless, later that year Justis cut one of the biggest hits Sun's Phillips International subsidiary ever had. "Raunchy" belied Justis' lack of respect for the genre; his slightly off-key sax and Sid Manker's guitar combined to strike an utterly irresistible groove living up to the instrumental's name. Like it or not, the balding Justis was suddenly a rock 'n' roll star.

Justis' varied PI instrumental output, comprehensively collected here, reflected his reluctant rocker status. For every encore in the same twangy vein — "College Man," "Rollin'," "Bop Train," "Scroungie," a cover of Floyd Cramer's "Flip Flop And Bop," "Flea Circus" (cowritten by a teenaged Steve Cropper), "Cattywampus" (soon retitled "Tuff" by co-composer Ace Cannon) — there was a middle-of-the-road piece of fluff that sounded more like Billy Vaughn than savage Sun fare. It's unlikely Jerry Lee Lewis, Carl-Perkins, or Elvis would find much to dig in a hopelessly schlocky "The Stranger" or "String Of Pearls – Cha Hot Cha."

Justis exited in March 1959, his status as one of Sun's great anomalies assured. (Box 35, Narberth, PA 19072)

VARIOUS ARTISTS The Big Hits Of Mid-America – The Soma Records Story 1963-1967 Plum (14132)

Make no mistake — Minnesota rocked during the mid-1960s.

Amos Heilicher was one of the state's prime behind-the-scenes movers and shakers in that department. Along with partner Vernon Bank, Heilicher operated Soma Records out of the Twin Cities from the late 1950s on, its initial output ranging from polka and country to an occasional rock venture. Early successes included Bobby Vee's "Suzie Baby," "Mule Skinner Blues" by the Fendermen, and Dave Dudley's truck jockey country classic "Six Days On The Road," the last on Soma's Golden Wing subsidiary.

But the logo's future artistic path was cast in granite the moment it acquired the uproarious "Surfin' Bird" by The Trashmen from independent producer George Garrett. When the insane thing improbably shot to the uppermost reaches of the pop charts in late '63 (on the Garrett logo), Soma built a reputation as a place where young Midwestern rockers might be able to cut a hit or two of their own (Heilicher and Bank also operated Kay Bank Studios). Suddenly Minneapolis boasted a one-stop rock recording outlet of its own, and the talent came marching in.

That's where this terrific two-disc package commences. From 1963 to 1967, a raft of garage rockers stormed Soma's portals. Some scored on a national level: The Castaways were no more than cherubic teens when they impudently chanted their organ-powered '65 smash "Liar, Liar," after "Run, Run, Run" by The Gestures had done enough business to land it on the pop charts the year before. Both are prominent here (as is "Bird Dance Beat," the reasonably successful Trashmen sequel to their classic), but it's the plethora of savage combos that never transcended regional status that makes this 48-track anthology so much fun.

There were apparently some hip record emporiums around the Gopher State, judging from the obscurity of some of these bands' cover choices. Gregory Dee & The Avanties rip through Paul Peek's nonsensical "Olds-Mo-William" with unhinged zeal, The Accents convincingly growl Howlin' Wolfs "Howlin' For My Baby," and The Underbeats grant rowdy treatments to The Soul Sisters' "I Can't Stand It" and The Flares' "Foot Stompin'."

Most of Soma's groups also created original material, their efforts sparked by insistent Farfisa organs, stinging guitar riffs, and snarling vocals full of attitude. Outfits like the Del Counts, Chancellors, Four Wheels (their daring '65 rocker "Cold 45" testifies to the knockout power of Colt .45 Malt Liquor when behind the wheel), High Spirits, Titans, and Messengers may have never risen to household name status outside their 'hoods, but their blistering garage rock hasn't aged a bit and upholds the same tradition celebrated on Rhino's recent Nuggets box.

This beautifully presented and annotated anthology makes it clear that rock 'n' roll owes Amos Heilicher quite a debt of gratitude for his vast contribution to the '60s rock cause. (5555 Pioneer Creek Drive, Maple Plain, MN 55359-9003)

Records for sustenance. In England, these priceless masters are treated with the respect they deserve; Ace actually offers them to the public for purchase.

Prime example: the early-50s RPM catalog of prolific Texas blues troubadour Lightnin' Hopkins. Despite his status as one of the most important postwar bluesmen of all time, Hopkins' RPM sides have never been collected for domestic CD reissue. Ace rectifies that sorry situation by presenting 31 of Lightnin's RPM classics, taking care to wipe off as much Bihari-induced reverb echo as possible before mastering them digitally.

The Biharis acquired their Hopkins stash in September 1951 from Houston producer Bill Quinn, who issued plenty of Hopkins product himself on his Gold Star logo (much of it found its way onto RPM prior to the deal that brought this batch in).

Most if not all of these sides were cut prior to 1950, invariably presenting Hopkins in a solo context and usually at his most mournful. Yet even then Lightnin' was quick to inject down-home wit, typified by the downbeat "Give Me Back That Wig" and "Lonesome Dog Blues," where his howling guitar mimics his pooch.

Ever an insightful commentator on current affairs, Hopkins weighed in with some "War News Blues" and unleashed his fast fingers on "Jake Head Boogie." But he wasn't averse to trying his hand at recent blues hits by others; here he adapts Big Maceo's "Worried Life Blues" as "Someday Baby" and Lowell Fulson's "Everyday I Have The Blues" to his own Texas-bred strengths.

On "Candy Kitchen" Hopkins switches to piano and gives good account of himself (there's also a recently unissued alternate take with a guitar overdub). His electric guitar work everywhere else is typically supple and unencumbered by strict 12-bar structures. Hopkins' only RPM gospel single, "Needed Time" b/w "One Kind Favor," is here, as is a series of assorted alternate takes recently unearthed by the Japanese P-Vine label (the most impressive is a previously undocumented cover of Charles Brown's "Drifting Blues").

If Hopkins' general outlook tended to be morose and solitary, ebullient Memphis pianist Rosco Gordon was precisely the opposite. Only in his teens during his early-50s stay at RPM (simultaneous with stints at Chess and Duke, prompting plenty of legal

RETAILER PROFILE

Finding vinyl nirvana at Joe's Record Paradise

by Irwin Soonachan

oe Lee long ago crossed the line from being a music fan to being a music fanatic. For him, owning a record store is more than just a business.

His fanaticism may have been most apparent at the birth of his son 23 years ago.

'My wife was lying there just after giving birth," Lee said, "and asked me what I wanted to name him. I said, 'Thelonious.' She looked at me and said, 'There's no way in hell we're naming our son Thelonious.'

If you happen to wander into Joe's Record Paradise and hear people asking how Robert Johnson is doing, they're not talking about the long-dead bluesman. Robert Johnson Lee is alive and well, the son of one of the Washington, D.C., area's best-known record store

"I got away with that one," he said, grinning.

Opened in 1975, Joe's Record Paradise is a favorite of vinyl collectors in Washington, D.C.'s Maryland suburbs, with vaunted jazz, blues and R&B collections but also housing substantial selections in rockabilly, country and rock 'n' roll. The only genre missing from the shelves in large quantity is classical. About half the vinyl sales, Lee said, are in African-American music.

Joe's also has a decently sized section of new and used CDs, which at the admission of the owner, accounts for about half the business but are not the focus of his attention. Like his vinyl clientele, who he said are mostly older, Lee finds the past more interesting than the present, at least musically.

"I started collecting in 1954. I was buying 78s," Lee said. "Yet there's no end to the stuff I've missed over the years. It's easy for us to go backwards instead of forwards. Besides, I'm not that interested in what I'm hearing on the radio now.

Lee, 51, was the only of four brothers not to attend Princeton University, but he fondly remembers the legendary Princeton Record Exchange, where he purchased his first Thelonious Monk album.

"Dummy here just listened to records, so I went to art school," he said. "I basically flaked off until I graduated, beat the draft, and it was record stores from then on.'

After graduating from the Maryland Institute College Of Art, Lee moved to California and quickly started working at record stores. He eventually became the manager of a Hollywood record store but moved back to his native Maryland when he decided to go into business for himself.

It did not take long for Joe's Record Paradise to become a clearinghouse for local musicians, with Joe offering free advice, help, or sometimes heavily discounted albums. He also became an amateur booking agent, finding performance spaces for acts he likes and, occasionally, sleeping quarters in his living room.

He has also helped revive the careers of bluesmen Bobby Parker and Vernon Taylor and was instrumental in the making of Washington-area legends Root Boy Slim and The Sex Change Band. The late Root Boy Slim, a career eccentric responsible for such classics as "Boogie Till You Puke," Root Boy Slim and The Sex Change Band were Warner Bros. recording artists in the late-70s but were a little left of the mainstream. Lee also helped get saxophonist Ron Holloway, then an employee, into The Sex Change Band

"Ron used to come in, and if it was slow

Rashaan Roland Kirk and Joe Lee.

he would practice his sax," Lee said. "There was an old folks high rise that was about 50 yards from the store. He was so loud that even from in the store, pointed in the opposite direction, they would still call the cops."

Today, Holloway is a jazz musician on the Milestone label. More recently, Lee helped bring the ancient (but still singing) Washington-based vocal group The Orioles into the CD era with a disc of new music.

"I think a record store should have a whole lot to do with a sense of discovery," Lee said. "Not only just being able to pop in a new record and being able to listen to a group you've never heard before... it may be stretching it a bit, but record stores have traditionally had something to do, at least until a few years back, with producing local artists and bringing them to labels. In a perfect world they (record stores) should have something to do with that, too."

While Lee stays active in his spare time, the store remains the first priority. Starting in a small space in Takoma Park, Joe's Record Paradise has always been located in Montgomery County, Md., but has had five different locations since its inception. In the beginning, Joe's Record Paradise was forced to share its space with a local indie record label, but each new location since has been bigger to accommodate the growing busi-

In May 1998, Joe's Record Paradise signed 10-year lease on a new location in Rockville, Md., centrally located 30 minutes north of Washington but also within range of the University of Maryland's main campus. With 3,400 sq. feet, the new store provides plenty of room to browse, and unlike many record stores, a visitor rarely feels cramped.

But regardless of location, perhaps the most striking thing about Joe's Record Paradise are the low prices. Most run significantly below price guide levels.

"The last thing I need to do is get constipated and have a big humongous stack of records that I haven't sold," Lee said.

Another record dealer, speaking on condition of anonymity, admitted: "I've bought records from Joe's and resold them at double the price.

The staff at Joe's have also built an Internet site where records are sold (see sidebar) and questions answered. They will also take orders via fax and over the phone and are willing to search for what they don't have in stock. They will even refer people to dealers who can fill orders they can't.

Word of Joe's Record Paradise has spread far enough that Joe's has hosted a variety of famous record collectors, including Rashaan Roland Kirk (see above photo), Archie Shepp, David Murray and several other (mostly jazz) luminaries, but apparently word has spread back to Hollywood as well.

While interviewing for this piece, the phone rang in Lee's office. He picked up the receiver and looked as though he had been called by a ghost. After chatting for a while, he told the caller he was sitting with a reporter from Goldmine, and asked if he would like to speak to him.

The stentorian voice on the other end of the phone was unmistakable. Even Gregory Peck has to buy his records somewhere.

Comprehensive and cutting-edge compact disc news for consumers and collectors.

ICE provides collectors and enthusiasts with a monthly dose of unrivaled CD coverage. Each issue is crammed with exhaustive release schedules and the first word on new albums, upcoming box sets, reissues and industry news. Add to that coverage of special collector's issues, promotional discs, imports, European live discs, and the CD Watchdog column — which allows readers a dialogue with record label executives, who scramble to explain mistakes and you have ICE covering CDs like no other publication.

- "ICE is probably the best source for CD news in the world .
- "When ICE arrives . . . every month, there's always a fight to see who reads it first, and there are few higher recommendations than - Billboard
- •"ICE isn't afraid to name names of poor-value discs, or single out the praiseworthy ones."
- "ICE digs up scoops and raises issues . . . and is passionate, opinionated, frisky and fun." - Los Angeles Times

THE MAKING OF PEPPER

"The most original and exciting Beatles collectible I've seen in years!" -Lou O'Neil, Jr., of CREEM Magazine

From the photographer's archives, the ORIGINAL unretouched, uncropped and unedited photograph used for the cover of "Sgt. Peppers Lonely Hearts Club Band". This large 18*x24* full color lithograph is extremely rare. It shows props, backdrops, lights, and even faces removed prior to album cover production, and it's more vivid and vibrant than the store bought album. It's a magnificient wall hanging! This piece is an absolute must for any Beatles fan or collector!

Order now and receive FREE "THE MAKING OF PEPPER." This original pamphlet tells the story of this all-time classic album cover. It details the conception and production of the cover and each song on the album with dates, orchestrations and the complete key to the photo.

Ouantities are limited — ORDER TODAY! Send $34.95 US plus $4.00 s+h in continental U.S.; $8.00 s+h outside continental U.S., to: YESTERDAY INK, Dept. B, PO Box 66686, Falmouth, ME 04105

"ISRAELI MADE RECORDS" MADE IN ISRAEL! YES INDEED

No matter in which millennium you are looking at this ad we still have many records, of all decades, that were made in the land of milk and vinyl. Many of them have different covers and are unique to this country only. There were also special Israeli only items by PRESLEY/BEATLES/WINGS/ QUEEN/DYLAN/ and many more by other artists. We at Black Hole Records, stock thousands of such items. Just let us know who your favorite artists are and we will send you free, up-to-date lists of your desired bands/singers threats), Gordon raved on about partying, booze and women, employing an offbeat rhythmic thrust later labeled "Rosco's Rhythm" that inspired Jamaica's blue beat

Both sides of Gordon's 11 1951-53 RPM singles are nestled on Bootin', along with a couple of sides unissued at the time; the previous unavailability of this material makes the CD a real treasure. Gordon could get maudlin at times ("1 Remember Your Kisses" and a melodically challenged cover of The Hilltoppers' "Trying" that's an alternate take are dreadful attempts at blues ballads), but his forte was rocking the house with wild, loose abandon. "Roscoe's Boogie," "Ouch! Pretty Baby," "A New Remedy For Love," "New Orleans Wimmen," "Just In From Texas," and "What You Got On Your Mind" all rock like crazy - Gordon's penchant for jumping time forcing his brave little hornpowered combo to hit their chord changes on the flv.

Though the RPM version of his charttopper "Booted" isn't the hit (that one came out on Chess around the same time, a source of contention between the two firms), it's a fine, raucous rendition. "No More Doggin'," his biggest seller for RPM (the delightfully quirky "Saddle The Cow" being the other), was cut in bassist Tuff Green's living room, but that didn't alter Gordon's rollicking approach in the slightest. "Lucille (Looking For My Baby)" copied the melody of "No More Doggin'" to solid effect, while "We're All Loaded" sounds as though it may well have been the case, its drive propelled by intermittent handclaps.

Until this essential material becomes available stateside (we can dream), Ace seems to enjoy a monopoly on the Modern market. It's hard to imagine anyone handling the honor any better. (42-50 Steele Road, London NW10 7AS, England)

JESSE BELVIN

Night Train (NTI CD 7097)

When it comes to the vast history of postwar black music, many great balladeers never quite receive their due. Velvety voices and sophisticated, pop-accessible arrangements never caught on with rock historians, who champion jumping R&B, doo-wop, and lowdown blues instead of mellow-toned crooners. Never mind that in many cases these singers' urbane output was as popular with African-American audiences as the rowdy music the short-sighted scribes so reverently

Take Al Hibbler. The one-time singer for the orchestras of Jay McShann and Duke Ellington enjoyed a mid-1950s hitmaking run on both the pop and R&B charts, yet his Decca catalog has eluded comprehensive digital reissue until now. Unchained Melody brings 16 of the blind crooner's majestic ballads together, including his 1955 R&B chart-topping rendition of the title track (Roy Hamilton's version for Epic also paced the R&B lists, though Hibbler bested him on the pop side) and the spiritually inclined He, another major seller to both markets.

Jack Pleis fashioned lush, butter-smooth arrangements for Hibbler, utilizing various combinations of swirling strings, Your Hit Parade-styled vocal choruses, and muted banks of horns to frame Hibbler's deep baritone on "11th Hour Melody," "Just A Kid Named Joe," and the Ellington classic "Do Nothin' 'Till You Hear From Me." A lightly swinging "After The Lights Go Down Low" (a Top Ten pop item in '56) sports a tinge of blues content, Hibbler displaying his unique penchant for pseudo-British phraseology.

"All Or Nothing At All" and Ellington's "Don't Get Around Much Anymore" come from a 1959 LP and appear in stereo. Joseph F. Laredo's excellent liner notes reveal Hibbler, now 83, is alive and well, if too often overlooked.

Earl Grant was Decca's eloquent answer to Capitol's Nat Cole. Possessing a refined vocal delivery uncannily similar to Cole's, the Oklahoma-born Grant was, like Cole, a keyboard wizard, though he preferred to spread his fingers over the expanse of a Hammond organ (he did sometimes sit down Despite his considerable popularity during the '50s and '60s, Singin' And Swingin' represents Grant's first digital career overview. Its 21 cuts, dating from 1956-1968, exhibit Grant's double-decker career; not only did he croon hit ballads, he scored on the charts with the jazzy organ instrumentals "Sweet

Sixteen Bars" and "Swingin' Gently" in 1962 Along with a 1956 cover of Jesse Belvin's "Goodnight My Love," the set boasts two versions of his '58 breakthrough "The End' (one in Italian) and a plethora of easy-on the-ears efforts (alas, one of his overtly R&B oriented efforts, a spirited cover of Junio Parker's "Next Time You See Me," is absent) Grant died in a car crash in 1970 at the age

Speaking of Belvin — a prime influence or a myriad of Los Angeles R&B greats - Nigh Train has unearthed a motherlode of unissued demo tapes on So Fine that capture the silky balladeer at his most intimate. Sitting solo at his piano in 1955, Belvin ran through six originals for Jack Lauderdale's fast-fading Swing Time label, including a fascinating demo of "So Fine" (The Fiestas' 1959 hi version retained Belvin's distinctive rumbling left-hand piano riff but neglected to credi him as writer) and two takes of a swinging blues-laced "Taboo Man."

He was at it again in 1958, laying down another couple dozen demos from his own pen and proving himself quite a capable ivories man on the amusing novelties "Rocl 'N' Roll Cowboy," "Tarzan," and "Blacl Stockings." There's plenty of spine-chilling Belvin balladeering too — "Confessing" and "Deep In My Heart" (both shorn of the overdubbed backing inflicted upon them by Class Records after Belvin's tragic death in an auto wreck), "What Have You Done To My Heart, "I Need Your Love," and "Wondering" underscore why ladies swooned in his presence.

Belvin doesn't hog the vocal duties, turning the mike over to his L.A. doo-wop pal Gaynel Hodge for six Belvin-penned numbers (the sprightly rhumba "Don't Worry About That Girl" and five ballads) while he sticks around to accompany Hodge on the 88s. A group of harmonizing Belvin protégés, the Chargers, contribute five more items from the same time frame, notably the hard-driving "Counterfeiter" and a comedic "Shotgun Wedding."

All three of these debonair gents deserve higher profiles in the annals of black music history. Perhaps these discs will do the trick. (Night Train: 200 W. 72nd St., Suite 56, New York, NY 10023)

VARIOUS ARTISTS So You Wanna Be A Rock 'n' Roll Star? Festival D89931 (Australian import) (3 CDs)

The rock series Nuggets chronicled the hits, near-hits and noble misses of American rock bands throughout the 1960s and 1970s. The Hard Up Heroes compilation series gave British bands the same compilation treatment. This compilation, originally released in the mid-1970s, features many of the forgotten stories of Australian pop and rock music, as told through the eyes of Festival Records and its Spin subsidiary label. The 81 songs on these three CDs not only show the embryonic growth of Australian pop music — all the teen idols with their girl-screaming fans, the ultraslick producers, the rich boys and the strugglers all looking for a piece of music stardom — but it also shows how the music industry developed Down Under, showing the influences of Liverpool and Los Angeles, of Memphis and Manchester.

The first disc focuses on 1964-1966, the scream years of Australian music. Producers in Sydney and Melbourne created homegrown pop stars almost overnight, and the girls bought their records with Pavlovian salivation. Artists such as Normie Rowe and The Playboys (whose song "Tell Him I'm Not Home" is on this compilation) caused legions of hysterical girls to carve Normie's name into their ankles with rusty razor blades, a teen idol tattoo. Whether it was the crew cutted harmony group The Delltones ("Hey Girl. Don't Bother Me") or the brooding Rolling Stones clones The Purple Hearts ("Early In The Morning"), you can hear how powerful the influence of artists such as The Beatles and The Beach Boys was on young Oz bands. Granted, Lieber and Stoller probably never heard a Merseybeat version of "Poison Ivy" unless they heard Billy Thorpe and The Aztecs' version, and The Rajahs' version of "Kiss Me Now" was a note-for-note and chord-for-chord imitation of The Beatles'

In fact, many of these groups either recorded a couple of hits and broke up or recorded a couple of hits and changed lineups (which apparently infuriated the Aussie music journalists to no end). The liner notes, written by Australian music historian Glenn A. Baker and replicated from the original 1975 back album covers, tell stories of how these bands were formed - had their hit or near hit — and then dissolved into other bands. Some groups had a helping hand in a sympathetic producer (Nat Kipner not only produced the first Bee Gees records, he also produced and wrote songs for his son Steve's band, Steve and The Board). Other groups benefitted from televised pop music showcases and Battle Of The Bands competitions (including The Showmen, who won the 1965 Battle Of The Bands when they leaped on stage and rocked the house - right in the middle of another band's set).

Disc 2 covers the psychedelic years of 1967-1970. The disc starts off with Love Machine, an amalgamation of various bands into a symphonic studio supergroup called The Pastoral Symphony. Even though the 2:40 orchestral sound collage was a huge hit, the Pastoral Symphony was never heard from again — except by a Melbourne band who copyrighted the name as their own and forced the original studio band into oblivion. A little studio wizardry also helped Erl Dalby and Pyramid have a major hit in "Can't Wait For September" — actually, it was originally recorded with Dalby's former group; when that group broke up and Dalby joined Pyramid, the producers saved Dalby's vocal track from the tape and re-recorded the instrumental portions.

Also on Disc 2 are some R&rB bands such as Running Jumping Standing Still and Mecca, groups who chose feedback over slick production techniques. It also encompassed music by an Tasmanian resident, Phil Manning, who bounced from the Bay City Union (and their cover of Paul Revere and The Raiders' "Mo'reen") to the many lineups of Chain (and their composition "Mr. Time"). Like Manning, other Australian pop stars from Disc 1 changed their sound with the times, and those who successfully mirrored the current sound continued to have productive careers. Jeff St. John, for example, changed from a Stax/Volt R&B singer ("Lindy Lou") to the rocking band Yama ("Nothing Comes Easy"), to Copperwine ("Cloud Nine").

The songs on Disc 3 are a mélánge of pop tracks, left-field hits and rare recordings that either made the pop charts — or became the basis for future bands such as AC/DC. Many of these songs were recorded on tiny independent recording labels — because of a dispute between the major record companies and radio stations, there was a recording ban in the late 1960s that took all the British and major-label Australian records off the market (American discs were unaffected). Some Aussie bands snuck through the embargo by recording on tiny labels, and many of these tracks are included on this compilation.

There are some curious originals and covers on this disc, including a stripped-down version of "Nights In White Satin" by Samael Lilith; a funky version of "The Lion Sleeps Tonight" by The Love Machine, and The Velvet Underground (no, not that one) recording "Somebody To Love" (yes, that one). At the end of Disc 3 is a personal message from Baker, who originally compiled these tracks into vinyl LPs in 1975 and who added new tracks (as well as a recorded personal observation) to this CD.

Baker also wrote the liner notes, but be aware these notes were not updated from their original publication in 1975, which probably explains why Bon Scott, a former member of Fraternity, is listed as playing in a new band called AC/DC. And some of the liner notes might seem confusing to non-Australians, what with all the bands and former bands and later-recorded-in-bands — but to understand where groups such as Skyhooks, INXS, and AC/DC and Midnight Oil came from and their influences, this disc holds all the answers.

THE SUGARHILL GANG VS. GRANDMASTER FLASH AND THE FURIOUS FIVE The Showdown Rhino (R2 75624)

Nineties rappers Ice-T and Chuck D play hosts to "The Showdown," staged as an audio boxing match between the true originators of the rap genre, The Sugarhill Gang and Grandmaster Flash and The Furious Five. This was even before Run DMC, y'all.

The obvious cuts lead off the bout, with Sugarhill's "Rapper's Delight," and Grandmaster's "The Message." The rappers rattle through 18 historic rap tracks dating back to the very beginnings of recorded rap in 1978.

"Scorpio," "Apache," "Livin' In The Fast Lane" bring to mind a time when all rap records were pretty much PG rated, like Will Smith is today. Long before the Notorious B.I.G., Tupac, and O.D.B., there were these street-smart artists who created the aural equivalent of break dancing, without the over abundant expletives. Grandmaster dishes up their anti-drug mix, "White Lines (Don't Do It)," with Motown horns and a groove James Brown could have fronted. The match ends with a smooth new rap that features The Sugarhill Gang with Grandmaster Melle Mel and The Furious Five.

The between-round banter by the hosts makes for a bit of East meets West coast history in and of itself, not to mention adding some tongue-in-cheek humor thrown into the mix. If you're looking for the most dance music for your buck, or if you enjoy waxing nostalgic over this 20-year-old jam, then The Showdown is for you. Word up.

VARIOUS ARTISTS SOUNDTRACK Little Voice Capitol (CDP 7243 4 98071)

At least the soundtrack to Little Voice the Jane Horrocks vehicle that features its waifish star going through her catalog of uncanny musical impersonations—doesn't rely too heavily upon Little Voice herself to tell its story. Horrocks gets only two of the 11 songs here (paying tribute to Marilyn Monroe and, more successfully, Judy Garland); the rest of this enjoyable, but flimsy, film samples is filled by Horrock's music idols camping it up to the extreme.

Garland herself gets the most time, three songs of undeniable charm and (intentional in its context) cheeky kitsch: "Come Rain Or Come Shine," "The Man That Got Away" and "That's Entertainment!" But the highlights here, working, of course, within Little Voice's setting, are two songs from Shirley Bassey (the sizzlingly sexy "Big Spender" and "Goldfinger") and Tom Jones' swingin' "It's Not Unusual."

Songs by Billie Holiday, Monroe, and Ethel Merman (capping things with the ironic twists of "There's No Business Like Show Business") round out Little Voice. The movie's Golden Globe-winning Michael Caine sneaks in at the very end with an overly melodramatic karaoke reading of Roy Orbison's "It's Over" that's so over the top and off-key that the high camp value of the package is reinforced with clarity.

— Michael Gallucci

SONS OF THE PIONEERS Songs Of The Prairie Bear Family (BCD 15710) (Five CDs)

This five-CD set is one of the most extraordinary finds in country and western music. The Sons Of The Pioneers were one of the most successful harmony vocal groups in the field, as well as the outlit whence Roy Rogers (then known as Len Slye) began his climb to fame. These 150 songs, transcriptions done for radio broadcasts, constitute a treasure trove of songs unheard for more than 60 years, representing the full range of the group's work.

The Sons Of The Pioneers — Bob Nolan, Tim Spencer, Len Slye, and Hugh Farr — began making recordings for Standard Radio of Los Angeles in August 1934. It was those performances, distributed to entertainment-hungry radio stations around the country, that helped give the group its greatest exposure. Moreover, the nature of transcription discs, which were done to fill time on the air, made them fully representative of a performer's stage repertoire. Transcriptions were also usually done in a hurried and freewheeling manner, in keeping with their budgets, and so they had more spontaneity and less rehearsal than commercial recordings.

A handful of the 151 songs here have been heard before in Pioneers commercial recordings, but these performances are different, usually more spirited. "Way Out There" is the acid test, a number that the group cut commercially several times over as line-ups changed but never sounding fresher than it does on this set. Even more restrained Pioneer numbers such as "Roundup In The Sky" get a sweeter, more free-flowing treatment here

The real keys to the value of this set, however, are the 120-plus songs that are otherwise unavailable. They run the gamut from delightful reworkings of numbers such "Oh Susanna" (with a Hugh Farr fiddle part based on "Turkey In The Straw") and "Jim Crack Corn" to spirituals ("Hear Dem Bells," as a soaring harmony number), to old topical numbers ("Just Before The Battle Mother") to Bob Nolan originals, some of which were never recorded by the group.

Another joy of this set is the spotlight given to Hugh Farr, the violinist, at home in country, jazz, or classical (and heralded by conductor Leopold Stokowski as one of the two greatest violinists he'd ever heard). His riviting ability is showcased in a series of rippling instrumentals, including "Cagen Stomp," "Milenburg Joys," "Fire In The Mountains" and "Whistlin' Rufus." There's also some superb yodeling by Slye, featured prominently on numbers such as "Cowboy's Night Herd Song."

This is all material that won't be found anywhere else. Although some tracks are in somewhat rough condition, this is understandable since the original 16-inch platters not only weren't intended to be preserved, but were supposed to be destroyed at the end of the license term. The fourth and fifth CDs are the diamonds of this collection, featuring the Pioneer lineup with guitar virtuoso Karl Farr added to the group. This was the ultimate virtuoso country music outfit, capable of adding dazzling new wrinkles in singing and playing to anything they turned their talents to — including "That Silver-Haired Daddy of Mine," "Dear Old Western Skies," "Buffalo Gal" and "Sing Cowboy Sing."

The annotation is thorough, and it's hard to find a flaw of any kind in this extraordinary box. The price may seem steep, but, as this reviewer (who buys his Bear Family stuff) calculated, it's far less than dollar a song, less than the cost of most new CDs and the quality is a given.

- Bruce Eder

JIMMY BUFFETT American Storyteller Laserlight 21240

Jimmy Buffett fans take note! You think you know your man? Let's be honest — most of us climbed on board around 1976 with the release of "Margaritaville." Ask most people and they'll tell you it all started at that point right? Guess again.

This CD contains 12 tracks from two LPs that were barely released in 1970 by the Barnaby label. Back then, Buffett was not a seafaring man based in Key West. He was just one more scuffling Nashville singer/song writer trying to make a living while keeping an eye on the charts. It's amazing to listen to this nearly 30-year-old music (with references to Nixon Vice President Spiro Agnew).

It's hard to imagine that Buffett, who has become a national institution, was even alive back then, much less writing and recording music. The truth is, he was actually a good songwriter. The album title is accurate. These are stories, vignettes and brief cameos about peoples' lives. Some of them are mighty touching. Some (e.g. "Traveling Clean") might well have become big hit records.

Buffett was also a decent singer 30 years ago, although his style bears little analogy to today's version. At times he sounds quite a bit like folk/country hero John Stewart (whose break-out hit "July You're A Woman" is still ringing in everyone's ears). At his zaniest, there are touches of Roger Miller's style here as well. If nothing else, Buffett knew what was selling.

This compilation issued by the budget Laserlight label should be required listening for Buffett's legion of fans. Along with a dozen interesting tracks, Eric Dilts' liner notes chronicle the events that led to and immediately followed the recording of these tunes. In retrospect, one can only wonder what might have happened to Buffett's career as we now know it had one of these worthwhile early recordings become a hit.

BILLIE HOLIDAY Greatest Hits Columbia/Legacy (CK 65757)

Designating the 13 selections comprising this slim disc as Lady Day's greatest hits may be stretching the concept a little, but there's no disputing their across-the-board classic status.

Holiday recorded for Columbia and its Vocalion and Brunswick subsidiaries at the start of her storied career (1933-1942). Under John Hammond's astute direction, her pipes sounded a great deal bubblier than in her later world-weary days. Already her gift for phrasing imparted artistic depth to even

The immortal 1941 waxing "God Bless The Child" (cowritten by Holiday herself) and the doom-laden "Gloomy Sunday" naturally rate high among the set's many highlights, along with the boisterous 1936 original "Billie's Blues (I Love My Man)." The latter features Artie Shaw in a sideman's role and drummer Cozy Cole dropping frolicsome rimshots.

Pianist Teddy Wilson's septet (boasting a mind-boggling horn section consisting of trumpeter Roy Eldridge, tenor saxist Ben Webster, and Benny Goodman on clarinet) counts off "What A Little Moonlight Will Do" at a torrid pace, Holiday skipping across the jumping rhythm gracefully. "The Very Thought Of You," "Body And Soul" and "I Cried For You" are all familiar Tin Pan Alley standards rendered countless times by hordes of singers. Yet Holiday brought something unique and deeply moving to each song.

Looking to amass a collection of this revered 20th Century pop music icon's masterworks? This set represents an excellent place to begin your quest.

UNIT SPACE ADVERTISING:

Units space adds are the easiest way for you to sell records, tapes, compact discs, books, memorabilia, and any other collectibles you have for sale. Units also work well for want lists, announcements, etc. The better your unit looks when you put it together, the better it will look in GOLDMINE.

You may use any bidding deadline you wish in your advertisement. If no deadline is noted, it will be understood that the deadline will be one month from the cover date of the issue in which your ad appears.

cover date of the issue in which your ad appears.

One unit space equals one 8½" x 11" typed sheet. This applies to both regular and super unit space ads.

Type your copy legibly onto 8½" x 11" white sheets. We'll reduce it as is to 38% of its original size for regular units and 59% of its original size for super units. A regular unit space is one ninth of a page; a super unit space is a quarter of a page. Remember to include your ordering information, postage rates, grades, deadlines, name & address, etc. on your first unit. Do not send any partial units. There is a $10.00 charge per photo for unit ads which contain hybrographs photographs

We will typeset your name, address and phone number at the bottom of your unit space ad for you, and a heading at the top, if you specify one. There is no extra charge for this. If you ask us not to typeset anything on your ad, we'll do nothing. Otherwise the typesetting will appear.

Do not reduce your copy before putting in on  $8^{1}/2^{n} \times 11^{n}$  format. Avoid all caps in your copy, except for headlines. Keep the copy clean. Dot matrix printers do not work well for unit ads, but if you must use one print it as dark as possible. Faxing unit space advertisement is not recommended.

Regular Unit Space Advertising Rates:

(Cost per unit, per issue; ads must run in consecutive issues. Contract required to earn consecutive issue discounts)

3 ISSUES 1 ISSUE 6 ISSUES 13 ISSUES 26 ISSUES $55.00 $52.50 $49.50 $47.00 Full page of 9 - $423.00 ● Each additional after 9 - $47.00

Super Unit Space Advertising Rates:

(Cost per super unit, per issue; ads must run in consecutive issues. Contract required to earn consecutive issue discounts)

6 ISSUES $103.50 1 ISSUE $115.00 3 ISSUES $109.50 Full page of 4 - $423.00 ● Each additional after 4 - $104.50

COLLECTOR'S SHOWCASE

The Collector's Showcase is a widely read advertising section in GOLDMINE. Each ad is in its own box, consisting of a space 31/4" wide and 111/16" high, or a multiple of that size. All typesetting is included in the price. We recommend no more than 14 to 15 typed or written lines per showcase box.

There are two Collector's Showcase sections available to advertisers - the Compact Disc Showcase, for those specializing in CDs; and the regular Collectors Showcase.

Showcase Advertising Rates:

ADVERTISING REQUIREMENTS

BOOTLEG POLICY

The advertiser is responsible for ensuring that advertised product conforms with national and international copyright laws. GOLDMINE magazine screens advertisements for bootleg merchandise. GOLDMINE magazine accepts no responsibility for transactions involving unauthorized product.

REFUNDS:

If delivery will take longer than 30 days from the date the seller received the order, the seller must inform the buyer and offer the buyer the option of a refund or delayed delivery.

Unless otherwise stated in the ad, the buyer has a 10-day return privilege from the time he/she receives an item from an advertiser. The buyer does no have to give a reason for a return and can demand a refund less postage costs. Advertisers must allow buyers to obtain authenticity judgements at the basis for retention provided they notify the advertiser of their inten within the applicable return privilege period.

All advertisers must provide a permanent address and telephone numbe before an advertisement will be run. If a post office box is used in an adver tisement the advertiser must still provide a permanent address for our confi

A completed reference form must be in our confidential files before any buy sell or trade ad can be placed. See below. Minors are required to furnish a certificate of responsibility from their parents or guardian before their advertising can be accepted.

Payment must accompany an advertisement and must be in the form of a personal check drawn on a U.S., Canadian or Mexican bank; money or ders; international money orders; cashier's checks; or with your VISA MasterCard or AccessCard credit card. Send your credit card number, expiration date, and the name on the card, along with permission to charge the card for your ad, with your advertising copy.
