Jerry Garcia

Jerry Garcia, 53, died of an apparent heart attack August 9th at a Northern California alcohol and drug treatment center. Garcia's body was discovered at 4:23 a.m. at Serenity Knolls rehabilitation center, 20 miles north of San Francisco in Marin County. Garcia reportedly had entered the Betty Ford Center in Palm Springs to again face his long-time heroin addiction shortly after the last date of the band's summer tour, August 9th at Soldier Field in Chicago. The revered musician's fourth wife, Deborah Koons Garcia, and Dead road manager, Steve Parrish, reportedly joined him briefly at the residential treatment center. But Garcia apparently left the center abruptly after two weeks. He was reportedly persuaded by friends and family to enter Serenity Knolls which was located closer to his Bay Area home. Grateful Dead spokesperson Dennis McNally, however, said Garcia had checked into the rehab center one or two days prior to his death without telling anybody. Jerome John Garcia was born in San Francisco. He and his fellow musicians formed a rock group called the Warlocks in 1965. According to Dead legend, the Warlocks moniker was already being used by another band so Garcia threw open a dictionary and his eyes fell on the words

"grateful dead." The definition said a grateful dead is a type of traditional British folk ballad in which a human helps a ghost of someone who had died recently find peace. Though the Grateful Dead only recorded one hit song ("Touch of Grey" in '87), the band is probably the most successful touring act in concert industry history. The band performed at the historic Monterey Pop Festival in '67, Woodstock in '69 and in front of the largest crowd in pop music history at Watkins Glen in '70. Since 1985, the band has generated more than $329 million in ticket sales. The Dead has placed among the Top 5 tours consistently since '87 and was the No. 1 touring act in '91 and '93. As of its last tour stop, the Grateful Dead ranked No. 2 among the top grossing tours of '95. As word of Garcia's death spread across the country, fans came together to mourn the passing of the man they considered the guru of the Deadhead culture. San Francisco Mayor Frank Jordan ordered city flags to fly at half-staff in honor of Garcia and a tribute of a single red rose was tied to a tree at 710 Ashbury, the old Victorian house in San Francisco's Haight district where the Dead began their rock'n'roll odyssey three decades ago. Fans gathered in parks and on street corners across the country to sing songs while sharing prayers and hugs. Entertainers and politicians alike, from Vermont to Lithuania, expressed their sadness at the loss of an icon for the counterculture. In fact, many considered following the Dead more of a lifestyle choice rather than simply an exercise in being entertained. Garcia once said of that phenomenon, "You need music. I don't know why. It's probably one of those Joe Campbell questions, why we need ritual. We need magic, and bliss, and power, myth, and celebration and religion in our lives. And music is a good way to encapsulate a lot of it." One self-proclaimed Deadhead said the band is the closest thing to a religion that she has. Other Deadheads were asking what happens to the community now that its messiah is gone. The band was set to begin its fall tour on September 13th in Boston but no decision has yet been made as to the future of those dates or the band itself. The surviving group members have been meeting and an announcement about what happens next is expected early this week.

Time Warner Faces Lewinter Of Its Discontent

As expected, former Warner Music U.S. president and COO Mel Lewinter has sued Time Warner over his termination. News of the $15 million breach-of-contract suit came August 9th, a week after Lewinter, a 25-year veteran of the company, was fired by Warner Music chairman Michael Fuchs. Warner Bros. maintains that Lewinter was fired "for cause" but his lawyer says otherwise. "Mel is outraged," attorney Edward Spiro told the Los Angeles Times. "It is shameful for a respected executive to be treated so shabbily after 25 years of loyal service. Insiders speculate Time Warner will try to make Lewinter and his former boss, Doug Morris, culpable for the improper CD sales practices unearthed at Atlantic and use that as the "for cause" reason of termination that would void their employment agreements. Last winter's internal investigation at Atlantic didn't generate much heat until executive heads started rolling. One of the first to be fired in the Atlantic inquiry was sales chief Nick Maria, who was let go last December without a severance package. Maria has since reached an out-of-court settlement with Time Warner and was reportedly contacted by TW attorneys who interviewed him about the CD scandal several times. He reportedly will receive about $200,000 and long-term health coverage, as well as assurance that TW will not press charges against him. It is not known if Maria gave them any information regarding Lewinter or Morris, who has his own $50 million wrongful termination suit pending against TW.

Jennifer Trynin

It had been a do-it-yourself kind of project. Jennifer Trynin just wanted to release a CD on her own little label and play around the country five or six nights a week. She'd do her own booking from her home in Boston, handle the business stuff and make up her music career as she went along. She was going to do this for about a year — you know — while the CD got around. She'd travel the States, make contacts, talk to some label people, work out the kinks in the live show. Then she'd be ready for the next level; the kinda big time. She had a plan, she had the drive, she had the songs. And then... "My life was completely interrupted." Trynin retold her tale for the umpteenth time from her Minneapolis hotel room. "What happened was, I put this record out and all hell broke loose. I'm sure I'll never experience anything like that again. It was extremely weird."

All Trynin had done was mail out about 300 7-inch singles containing a couple of songs from her upcoming CD. She sent them to radio stations that still played vinyl and enclosed a card asking if they'd like a CD when it came out and were there any cool places to play in the area.

"All of a sudden, I got deluged with phone calls from record labels, managers, lawyers, booking agents, publicity people; everything you could think of. I would come home at night and my answering machine would be filled up, day after day." So she started calling people back and asking a lot of questions. "I wrote down my impressions of everyone I talked to. When I talked to a record company person, I'd ask them if they had ever met this lawyer, what they thought of this manager, what they thought of this booking agent. I asked everybody about everything."

It didn't take long for certain patterns to emerge. She kept hearing Monterey Peninsula Artists mentioned with respect and admiration. She kept hearing about this guy; Frank Riley, and another guy; Will Botwin of Side One Management. Then she talked to Warner Bros. and they wanted to release her record just as it was, without changing one thing. None of this had been in her plan, but hey, Trynin wasn't complaining. Her debut CD, Cockamamie, has already yielded a hit single, "Better Than Nothing," and her first national tour is happening her way.

Trynin wanted to do the tour the way she would have done it herself, which was to headline small venues wherever possible. "I love small clubs and I imagine that will always be my favorite thing. I just adore that you can go out on Monday night and play a show and it's really good and you're psyched and then you play Tuesday night and it's really good and you're psyched, and then you play Wednesday night and it sucks. And then it's like, 'Oh no, my whole life is crashing in on me. But wait! I get to play again tomorrow night and redeem myself.' That's the best part of it."

She also loves having the opportunity to play in front of new faces every night. Trynin and a changing cast of bass players and drummers had been gigging around Boston a bit excessively. They were playing up to 14 times a month in just about every situation imaginable and she still wanted more. "It wasn't enough. There wasn't enough continuity to it. There was too much time between shows. That's why I'm so psyched about doing this," she said. "I think it's saving my life." Now that they are an actual band — Trynin wielding a Les Paul and handling lead vocals, Mark County on bass, and Chris Foley, drums — the live show is coming together on the road. They're still getting used to each other and sometimes that's not the easiest position to be in when you know there are critics in the audience, but Trynin said she has high hopes for the trio. "Our live thing is more gruff; it's louder than you think it would be from listening to the record. It's just the three of us, but we make a lot of noise."

Her lyrics are smart and her songs are chock full o' hooks, but Trynin is here to rock. She just hopes promoters figure that out before they put her on a bill with girl folksingers, sensitive girl singer songwriters, girl goth bands, or any other stereotypical girl-with-guitar acts. "I just want people to listen to the music and use their brains and put together an appropriate show," she said.

Before going out on this tour, Trynin decided to ask for what she wanted. "What I did, with the best intentions, was say no girl-lead anything for an opener." It seemed like a good way to get her point across, but it backfired on her. When she got to Minneapolis, women in the local music community were on to this "no chicks" thing and wanted a word with this just-who-does-she-think-she-is Jennifer Trynin.

"Actually, it turned out to be a very good thing," she said. "I found out I had been going about this the wrong way. I met with the woman who confronted me with it and it turned out that we were absolutely on the same level. A local paper wound up doing an article on talent buyers being more sensitive to the issue."

Female faux pas aside, Trynin has been enjoying her first national tour. In fact, she said she's much more relaxed on the road because she doesn't have to make so many decisions and people know better than to mess with her. She over-thinks everything and worries too much, but on the bus, things tend to fall into perspective.

"It's pretty crazy. I didn't know it was going to be like this. I'm very appreciative because I have this whole team now. I have a tour manager who I can't believe I ever lived without, (Chris Griffin) and a booking agent (Riley) who is one of the sweetest guys in the world." Which is good, she said, because she's not always so even tempered. "All the guys I'm working with are known for having a good sense of self, and integrity, and they stick to their guns. There's probably something to learn there." ★

The All Or Nothing Concept

Slow sales prompted Nebraska State Fair officials to reverse a decision to sell only 10-show season tickets for concerts at the Bob Devaney Sports Center during the fair's August 25th to September 4th run. The ticket books, costing from $80 to $150, were criticized by people who only wanted to see one show or who lived far from the fair's site in Lincoln. The fair's ticket manager, Connie Decker, told POLLSTAR that a little more than 4,000 books were sold which left a lot of potentially empty seats in the 13,768-capacity arena. She said most of the ticket books were sold through the fair's office. Ticketmaster sold only 73 books of tickets and a discount promotion at an Omaha radio station managed to sell only 52 books. The talent buyers from the Don Romeo Agency took over ticket sales from the fair after sales lagged. The company defended the all-or-nothing ticket package as one heck of a value, but acknowledged that consumers had spoken with their wallets so they would now make single show tickets available. Mary Chapin Carpenter, Clint Black, and Brooks & Dunn are among the shows involved.

Time Warner Ready To Exit Interscope Deal?

Time Warner is reportedly on the verge of selling its 50 percent interest in Interscope Records. Persistent rumors began to get even hotter last week and indications are that a deal to sell back the company to Interscope honchos Jimmy Iovine and Ted Field may be only a few days away. It is expected that TW will sell its half of the label — which has been a lightning rod for .....

controversy — back to the two co-founders. PolyGram is reportedly ready to come in as Interscope's deep-pocket partner to help make such a deal. Time Warner has invested $120 million for its half of Interscope and will probably sell it back at a loss rather than purchase another 30 percent as had been originally planned. But that was before Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole and other conservative activists began to put public pressure on the Time Warner board and Interscope supporter Doug Morris was abruptly fired.

Happily Everly After

Farewell To The Fillmore East

The demolition of Manhattan's Fillmore East began August 8th but not without great effort to save it. Fillmore aficionado Bob Herman has been working for nearly two years to save the famous rock palace created by Bill Graham in 1968. Herman said he's been turned down by industry figures ranging from David Geffen to MTV. Apparently the $12- to $15-million Herman estimates it would cost to buy and renovate the theatre is too much. A Brooklyn real estate firm, Hudson Cos., bought the building last September assuming it would appeal to production firms dealing in music, video, film or radio. But nobody was interested. Now Hudson plans to construct a $13 million, seven-story apartment building on the property called the Fillmore Apartments. The building has been dark for many years and was last used as the site of the gay dance club The Saint.

Short Items Of Note

With only two songs completed for his next album, Garth Brooks seems to be beating himself up over a Christmas deadline he set for completion of the record. But the songs just aren't flowing off his pen. "It's all in there, I just can't find it," he said. Brooks said a shakeup at his record label and the rift between his managers, Bob Doyle and Pam Lewis, has affected him. Publicly, he's kept a neutral position regarding the matters, though his new in-house GB Management company is housed in the same building as Doyle's company.... David Geffen announced last week that his foundation will donate $4 million to two New York-based AIDS organizations. The gift is the largest single donation to AIDS services in history. The Gay Men's Health Crisis will receive $2.5 million for a new facility to be named The David Geffen Center for HIV Prevention and Health Education, which will couple HIV testing with education and support. Geffen will give $1.5 million to God's Love We Deliver which prepares and delivers meals to homebound people with AIDS. GLWD's new industrial sized kitchen will be named the David Geffen Building.... The fate of one of America's oldest operating amusement parks lies in the hands of a bankruptcy court. A hearing August 24th will decide whether the owners of Rocky Point Park in Warwick, R.I., may reorganize its debt under Chapter 11 laws. If not, the owners may be forced to sell the 148-year-old park, long coveted by developers for its 124 acres on Narragansett Bay. While the park still owes the city $500,000 in back taxes, the mayor's chief of staff, Burke Sarno, said the city would prefer that the park remain. "But when owners buy a park 20 years ago for $2 million then leverage it to the point they are almost $40 million in debt today, we have reason to question the wisdom of current management," he said.

Rockefeller Mouse Musings

In the wake of the Walt Disney Co.'s $19 billion acquisition of Capital Cities/ABC, it was widely reported Disney is considering buying a controlling interest in New York's Rockefeller Center. The merged company, which has been approved by the boards of Disney and Cap Cities but is pending shareholder approval and government antitrust review, has reportedly teamed up with Chicago real estate investor Sam Zell to enter a confidentiality [negotiation] agreement with the property's owner, Rockefeller Group Inc., and with its mortgage lender, Rockefeller Center Properties. Rockefeller Center Properties holds the $1.3 billion mortgage on the property which is said to now be valued at only $1 billion. General Electric, whose NBC-TV network is housed in the NYC complex, is also reported to be among those seriously interested in the property.

DA Calls MJ A Liar

An article in the September issue of Vanity Fair claims Michael Jackson repeatedly lied to Diane Sawyer when he and Lisa-Marie appeared on ABC's "PrimeTime Live" June 14th. Vanity Fair investigative reporter Maureen Orth interviewed Santa Barbara district attorney Tom Sneddon as well as some unidentified sources for the piece. Sneddon told Orth MJ had not been "cleared" of sexual molestation accusations as Sawyer indicated during the interview. Sneddon said charges still could be filed until the six-year statute of limitations runs out. Sneddon also told the magazine that MJ's statement that there was "not one iota of information that was found that could connect me to these charges," is also a lie. The DA said MJ's statement is "not consistent with the evidence in the case." Sources told Orth the boy who accused MJ of molestation was able to draw identifying markings on MJ's genitalia that ultimately matched markings revealed in the photos the singer was forced to submit to during the heat of the investigation. Unidentified sources also told the magazine that in MJ's home investigators found a lewd book of nude boys "at play." The book "is often found in the home of pedophiles," a source said. But in the ABC interview, MJ denied he had photos of nude children in his home, "unless people sent me things I haven't opened." Sneddon told the magazine MJ's comment was "poppycock." MJ said in the interview that no other accusations of child molestation were pending but Vanity Fair quotes sources who say another boy who claims to have had a relationship with MJ has hired a lawyer and is negotiating a settlement. MJ earlier settled with the teen who originally complained the entertainer molested him in 1993 during a five-month relationship. The teen and his family were reportedly paid between $15- and $25-million to settle the suit.

Big Dreams On The Table

MCA is rumored to be interested in purchasing the music division of Thorn-EMI, a deal which would make the Seagram-owned company a contender as the biggest music conglomerate in the world. MCA has also made a deal to distribute the new DreamWorks SKG labels. That company is expected to win the coveted executive team of Mo Ostin and Lenny Waronker to oversee DreamWorks Records, which will specialize in soundtracks, and SKG Records, a pop and alternative label. Ostin's son Michael, senior VP/A&R at Warner Bros., is expected to join his dad and Waronker at DreamWorks once the deal is finalized. Ostin, who felt forced to resign from the top post at Warner Bros. last summer following a power struggle with former Warner Music Group chairman Robert Morgado, had a consulting agreement with Time Warner that recently expired. Sources report Ostin was offered a lucrative deal to return to Time Warner and is also being courted by many others including Disney's Michael Eisner, News Corp.'s Rupert Murdoch, Viacom's Sumner Redstone and New World Communications' Ronald Perelman. Offers from Sony and PolyGram are also said to be on Ostin's plate. But the former Warner Bros. chief is said to be leaning towards the DreamWorks offer. In the meantime, DreamWorks, which is fractionally owned by Capital Cities/ABC, patched up its differences with Disney last week. DreamWorks principal Jeffrey Katzenberg abruptly left Disney last year when it became clear Disney chief Eisner had no intentions of naming his comrade of 19-years to the No. 2 spot at the company. Since leaving Disney, Katzenberg and his partners, specifically David Geffen, have made no secret of their bad feelings toward Eisner. In fact, Geffen recently called Eisner "Captain Queeg" and accused him of "erratic removed-from-reality decision making." Katzenberg reportedly had been threatening to take legal action against Eisner over $100 million in profits he said he was owed from his time in Disney's employ. And Eisner was rumored to "have it out" for the DreamWorks project. But after Disney acquired Cap Cities, both Katzenberg and Geffen started praising Disney's acumen in pursuing and finalizing the deal. Then Eisner reportedly decided to mend fences and separately called the DreamWorks partners, Geffen, Katzenberg and Steven Spielberg, August 3rd. Katzenberg reportedly told Eisner, "Michael, we've had 19 fabulous years and 10 terrible months. Let's not make it 11." Eisner reportedly responded that "nothing could make me happier." Katzenberg's attorneys haven't yet contacted Disney to settle the profits issue but the door for negotiations seems to have opened. And Eisner reportedly said he wants DreamWorks and ABC to continue working together. DreamWorks' first TV series, a comedy named "Champs," is slated as an ABC midseason replacement.

Between The Dates

On the same day Jerry Garcia died, BOB WEIR was scheduled to play a gig with his sideband, Bob Weir, Rob Wasserman & Ratdog, at New Hampshire's HAMPTON BEACH CASINO. It took a few hours after the news of Garcia's death broke to determine that Weir wanted the show to go on. When club booker Marc Gentilella reached the venue, he found 25 satellite trucks, each representing a major network or entertainment show, parked outside. At 6:30 p.m., Weir came out and issued a brief statement to the press. "Well, I guess some sad news has come our way this morning. Jerry Garcia, our friend, my brother passed away, and I guess not much can be said about that except that perhaps it is a big loss to the world and to anyone who loves music. We also have to remember that his life was blessing for all of us and I think perhaps if we're going to dwell on anything, we should dwell on that. Thank you." The morning of the show there were 1000 tickets sold, but within hours the rest of the tickets were snapped up. "We must have turned away four to five thousand ticket requests," said Gentilella. When Weir walked on stage he was greeted with a ten minute standing ovation. "Towards the end of the set he ended up playing "Throwing Stones" and the crowd went crazy," said Gentilella. "We have a back parking lot ... sometimes people come out and hear shows they can't pay to get in. Usually about 30 to 40 stragglers per show. We had five to six thousand people in the parking lot. ... Bob came out for the encore and did "Knockin' On Heaven's Door." At the end of the song, the people outside, along with the 2,000 people inside were singing the verse for fifteen minutes. It was unbelievable." After the show the fans started singing "Not Fade Away" and the crowd picked up on it outside and "for the next half hour 7,000 people, in the building, leaving the building, outside in the parking lot, were all singing and chanting, beating drums on cars. The response was overwhelming."..... A 10,000 MANIACS performance July 30th in Bellvue, Colo., ended abruptly when a lighting tree fell onto the stage injuring singer Mary Ramsey. Band manager Peter Leak told POLLSTAR the group was on its third song at the Mishawaka Amphitheatre when a freak wind whipped up from nowhere blowing the lighting tree onto the stage. "I guess it just wasn't anchored well enough to allow for something like that," he said. Ramsey, who suffered a blow to the head, was hospitalized briefly for a concussion but is doing fine, according to Leak. He said the band had a break scheduled for the week after the incident so no shows had to be cancelled. As for the three song disaster at Mishawaka, Leak said, "The venue has been refunding to anyone who wants one but they're also honoring the tickets for any of their other shows that they have coming up. And we've also said that anyone left with a stub that they haven't used for another show, we would honor when we come back because it's a venue we'd like to come play again."..... "It was a learning lesson," said Kristen Thompson, owner and manager of The Brick Works in Chico, California. What was a learning lesson? Kristen's first, and probably last punk show at her club. The July 13th date starred X-COPS along with support band BRUTAL JUICE. Management put up signs saying no moshing would be allowed during the performance. Thompson told POLLSTAR, "I have a big room, but the dance floor is surrounded by poles and standing table wings. I did not deem it as a very safe place to have slam dancing." The end result was the club's security removed anyone who tried to start up a mosh pit. After Brutal Juice's performance, the band's manager, Adam Katz, along with the road manager and Juice's lead guitarist, Ted Wood, were approached by security. What happened next depends on who you talk to. Katz told POLLSTAR that security accused the road manager of spitting on him, and then lifted the road manager off the ground, pressed him against a wall, and started screaming obscenities at him. Katz believes that security mistook them for some of the club's patrons. "When they saw our laminates they realized that this was out of line," said Katz. Thompson said that, although one of the club's doormen admitted to yelling obscenities at the road manager, at no time did he touch him. All in all, no one was hurt, but Brutal Juice did send out a press release stating that the band will be "making prior arrangements with venues at which they are to perform regarding security practices."..... Pearl Harbor, JFK, and Neil Armstrong's famous first steps on the moon are a few of the events that people tend to ask, "What were you doing when...?" and Estella Marie Thompson, the hooker who was arrested, along with HUGH GRANT, remembers what radio station was on Grant's rented BMW when her 15 minutes of fame began. In ads for L.A. station, KXEZ-FM, Brown says, "Easy 100.3 is the perfect radio station to listen to while you work."

U.K. News Report

(London) DF Concerts orchestrated a brilliant T IN THE PARK festival in Scotland two weekends ago. A virtual sellout, around 57,000 people attended overall with the second day selling out completely by 4 p.m. Promoter Stuart Clumpas and his team put together a fantastic event, leaving punters, sponsors and artists alike visibly impressed. In addition, the Tennants lager-sponsored festival has not only broken even but it will probably see a wee profit as well. The Brit pop bias in the booking (there were no U.S. artists) proved a successful formula and the festival was a strong reflection of the strength of the current homegrown music scene, with Paul Weller, Elastica (who jetted over from Lollapalooza), Supergrass (who only a weeks ago hit No. 1 with their debut album) M-People, The Prodigy, Beautiful South, and The Shamen proving big draws. Clumpas even managed to book the right weather, as the U.K. heatwave stayed for the weekend. The "groove tent" was very successful addition to the festival layout and one of the highlights of the weekend was The Clash's Joe Strummer putting in a surprise appearance with Dreadzone. (Strummer also eschewed star hotel accommodation and was reportedly sampling the Festival campsite...). However, the ultimate success of T in the Park was that it had succeeded in establishing a strong identity as a well-run, friendly event, which bands, punters, and agents alike will want to return to. Clumpas said to POLLSTAR, "I am delighted with the way the festival went. In two years, I have got to where I thought it would take me five years to get to."..... Many of the bands travelled from the T in the Park to the FEILE FESTIVAL in Ireland — and vice versa. This year's Feile, promoted by Dennis Desmond at MCD, was in a new site in Cork. The bands reportedly enjoyed the new location and around 35,000 people attended. It seems that MCD managed to win over the local residents who had been opposed to the event taking place — the license for the festival was only granted about seven weeks ago. Also, a Cork-based AIDS-awareness group distributed 3,000 free condoms to concertgoers, which was a pretty controversial gesture in the staunchly Catholic republic..... TAKE THAT kicked off their 20 date tour as a foursome and so far, appear to have secured the loyalty of their fans, even without Robbie Williams (who spent his weekend hanging out backstage at T in the Park). The opening night was at the Nynex Arena Manchester, where band members tried to dampen the suing rumours and told a 15,000 capacity audience they would carry on as long as their fans wanted them to. The band came up with a few surprises, namely including Pink Floyd's "Another Brick in the Wall" and Nirvana's "Smells like Teen Spirit" in the set list. The tour continues at Earl's Court this week..... John Giddings at Solo-ITG says the ROLLING STONES played to 126,000 people at the Strahov Stadium in Prague — their biggest audience yet. But he still insists that the pinnacle of his career was booking the band at the Brixton Academy. Two additional Rotterdam Rolling Stones shows sold out in a matter of hours and Giddings did not confirm or deny the suggestion that the tour may continue into 1996, with more UK dates. Other tours being booked out of Solo-ITG include several more weeks of Simple Minds dates in South America and Europe later this year. The Ramones will continue their farewell tour after shows in Japan, and are tipped for a Christmas date at the Brixton Academy (which will be hosting a run of farewell shows before it closes its doors). Marianne Faithfull will be performing Kurt Weill material for a series of autumn club shows in Europe. Phil Collins will be going out again next year and we may see David Bowie in the UK for arena shows in the first quarter of '96. Giddings also confirmed that LABATTS (which owns 50 percent of ITG) will be withdrawing from music business commitments as of September, but no details are available yet..... Four British bands who were due to play the Radegast Beach Festival in CROATIA had to pull out when the sponsor withdrew funds at the last minute. Carter USM and the Pale Saints had no problems getting there. But when The Stranglers were due to join them a day later, they arrived at the airport only to find their flights had not been paid for as agreed. The show was cancelled which was sad news for promoter Admir Tiljak and the people of Croatia who need all the entertainment they can get. It is interesting to note that the sponsor turned out to be the government. Maybe funds were diverted at the last minute to the massive movement of troops which took place only weeks later? The Stranglers' agent, Paul Franklin at Primary Talent, says all the bands were disappointed as the promoter seemed to be trying his best to organise the event as efficiently as possible and all the deposits had come in on schedule..... PUBLIC ENEMY had to cancel their farewell gig after Flavor Flav broke both his arms in a motorcycle accident in Milan. The Hackney Empire show was to have been a Q&A session followed by a full-scale gig. Record company Chrysalis are working on rescheduling the date for later this year.... The ROYAL ALBERT HALL, which is known as "the nation's village hall," has now earned the title of "London's largest dining room." The venue was turned into a tabled buffet area which hosted some 1,200 guests. The RAH is open for your dinner bookings — if they can be fitted in between all those upcoming rock shows.... A spokesman for WEMBLEY categorically denies any suggestion that the Arena would be sold off if the Stadium won the bid to become the National Stadium. "The creation of an English National Stadium Trust would definitely not involve selling off the arena. Overall control of the site is an essential ingredient in managing events."

Australian News Report

(Sydney) Frontier Touring Company has announced September dates for URGE OVERKILL.... I'm hearing word that at least two promoters are contemplating mounting an international COUNTRY MUSIC festival tour in February/March.... Michael Coppel, in conjunction with retailer Brashs, has announced a March '96 tour for CELINE DION.... The managing director and CEO of Sony Music Australia, Denis Handlin, announced late August 4 that JOHN WATSON, the company's Director of International Marketing/A&R will leave the company August 15th to become the full time manager of SILVERCHAIR. "This is really a logical progression for John given the many months of work which he has put into helping develop the international career of this amazingly talented band," said Handlin. "After more than four years at Sony Music this has been a very difficult decision to make," said Watson. "However, things have finally reached the point where Silverchair really do need full time management rather than part time career guidance which John O'Donnell and I have been trying to provide since the band signed to MUMUR last year." Watson's new contact details and his replacement at Sony Music will be announced shortly.... An inside tip tells me that there's dates on hold around the country for a February tour by DWIGHT YOAKAM. No info at this stage as to whether the tour's confirmed or whether it's just an organised promoter securing dates early for the busy touring season.... As always JOE COCKER is selling well. Promoter Michael Coppel has announced a fifth concert at the 1800 capacity Enmore Theatre in Sydney for October 12.... The newly refurbished Paddington Town Hall in Sydney was brought to life August 3rd when VILLAGE ROADSHOW launched Roadshow Music to the Australian music industry. The evening kicked off with an opening address from Milt Barlow, President and CEO, Roadshow Entertainment, followed by an audio-visual presentation that then led to showcase performances from Cyberia, The Shock Poets, Ghetto Rose and Adam Reily, and Dragon. Roadshow Music is a new Australian owned and managed independent record label operating through the Roadshow Entertainment division of radio giant Village Roadshow Limited. The label is based in Sydney, with a fully established operation in Auckland. It has been specifically created not only to sell and distribute music through the usual operating procedures, but also to "tap into the massive marketing synergies that a unique independent entertainment corporation such as Village Roadshow has at its disposal.".... Wayne 'SWAMPY' JARVIS who, along with wife Kerri is known as one of this country's best road and tour manager's, is recovering in Royal North Shore Hospital after triple bypass surgery. He's doing well and would like to thank his many friends in the industry for their support and flowers - he reckons his room looks like a greenhouse at present.... Funny story of the week concerns the party after the opening of MISS SAIGON in Sydney. Rock historian Glenn A. Baker's accosted by a figure who somewhat breathlessly tells him that Dave Clarke (he of Dave Clarke 5 fame) is also at the party. What's amusing is that the person excitedly telling GAB this was none other than Australian Prime Minister Paul Keating.... WARNER MUSIC Australia has been forced to withdraw from production the debut EP from iNsuRge, Political Prisoners, due to an objection from Sydney radio giant 2UE. A sample from a broadcast by 2UE announcer Stan Zemanek, suggesting how authorities should deal with 'dole bludging, unemployed protesters' was contained in the track Welfare State. iNsuRge manager, John Woodruff, negotiated with both Zemanek and 2UE to gain approval. At one stage Zemanek personally agreed, on the condition the iNsuRge EP had its debut on his radio program - a mind blowing proposition. Unfortunately the powers that be at 2UE did not see the matter in the same light, thus forcing Warner Music to pull the record from production and delete the sample from the track in question. The EP will now be released on August 21.
