DISPLAY AND BUSINESS CARD ADS - DETAILS AND RATES

Advertising is accepted only for items related to antique radios, communication, electricity, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be so identified. Advertisers agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, and to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisfied.

The deadline for display and business card ad artwork, payment and repeat requests is the first of the month. All advertising must be prepaid; see "Payment" paragraph above. Late ads will be run only if space and time permits. As artwork is reduced to 63% in the printing process, originals should be the artwork size listed below. Do not send in artwork on art board or send negatives. Ads should be typeset or typed neatly with a carbon ribbon. If you want us to prepare your ad, include the one-time cost listed below for A.R.C. to make up the ad.

"Tear sheets" will be sent only for 1/2 and full page ads, if requested when ad is submitted.

Business card ads are limited to one per advertiser.

Photos should be at an 85 line screen; otherwise, add

EDITOR'S COMMENTS

"Anything Crosley" was the theme at the Antique Radio Club of America (ARCA) '90 Convention in June. Collectors brought a number of rarely-seen Crosley items to this annual event, held in Cincinnati, Ohio, this year. Among the most unusual were the Xervac hair-growth restorer device, Crosley advertising signs, Bonzo – the dog used to advertise the one-tube Crosley Pup set, and Crosley cars. A number of photos taken at the meet are in this issue; see the cover and the ARCA meet/auction article.

Norm Braithwaite's article on an interesting three-tube crystal/reflex receiver begins this August issue. Although the name on the panel is Edison, the set does not appear to be manufactured by the Thomas A. Edison Co.

Part II of the Atlantic Radio Company pictorial series features more photographs of the 1920's Boston, Massachusetts, store.

Another identification challenge article, contributed by John Nagle, discusses a set that looks "factory" but has no manufacturer markings of identification. We are sorry to report that John passed away on June 20.

Rejuvenation of filaments in vintage tubes is a topic popular with our readers. This month Paul Bourbin covers tuning eye tubes. Of course, with most early tube types no longer manufactured, rejuvenation will extend the useful life of those tubes still marginally operative. Eventually, when rejuvenation fails, tube rebuilding will become a necessary restoration activity.

In addition to the auction results and contest photos from ARCA '90, Ray Chase has contributed radio listings from a general auction in Pennsylvania. Photo Review presents photos sent in by readers of several interesting sets and radio-related items.

Finally, this month we include the next chapter in the continuing saga of The Antique Radio Boys, a bit of vintage, present day fiction. Chapter 1 appeared in June A.R.C.; Dave Crocker illustrates the series. Please send your comments about this story to Mr. Dyer at A.R.C.'s address.

New Products. The long-awaited book by John Sideli – Classic Plastic Radios of the 1930s and 1940s – appears very close at hand. As reported last month, our advance copy of the book met our expectations. As of the tenth of July, the publisher reported that he had received his shipment and planned to begin shipping to suppliers within a few days. If the publisher's schedule holds, this means that back orders for this long-awaited book could possibly have been filled by the time you receive this issue.

A new videotape is available on radio collecting. Well, not entirely new, but the Perham Foundation (the organization which founded the Foothill Electronics Museum, Los Altos Hills, Calif., in 1965) has obtained permission to release the PBS series "Radio Collector" on a single 130-minute videotape. The five-part series produced a few years ago by Mike Adams, a contributor to A.R.C., received an Emmy nomination. Through the videotape you will meet dozens of collectors, see hundreds of radios at swap meets and in collections, and learn about antique radio restoration. Profits by the Perham Foundation from the sale of the videotape will benefit the Foothill Electronics Museum. The cost of the "Radio Collector" videotape is $29.95 plus $3.00 packing & shipping from the Perham Foundation, 101 1st St., Suite 394, Los Altos, CA 94022. A.R.C. and other distributors will also offer the tape.

A.R.C. Index. A few months ago I mentioned that a new comprehensive index was imminent. White's Index to A.R.C. 1984-1989 1/2 is available for $8.00 postpaid from A.R.C.

New Rates. As announced a couple of months ago, A.R.C. has had to increase its subscription rates and, for the first time, classified advertising rates. Please review the new rates on the coupon in the center of this issue and on the inside back cover. The increased revenues will help insure A.R.C.'s quality and its premier place among antique radio publications.

Club Events. Radiofest 1990 in Elgin, Illinois, is our next radio-meet trip, but that is only one of the baker's dozen of get-togethers in August. See you at Radiofest and the Antique Wireless Association conference in September.

Happy collecting.

John V. Terrey

ON THE COVER

The stylized puppy on this month's cover was photographed in the contest area at the ARCA '90 Convention in Cincinnati, Ohio, held from June 14-16 of this year. The pup named "Bonzo" was used as an advertising display to help promote the 1925 introduction of the Crosley Pup radio. Because of its popularity with customers' children, dealers sold Bonzo for $1.00.

The name and idea originated from an early 1900's comic strip character. Constructed of hollow papier-maché, Bonzo is approximately eight inches tall. The supplier was the King Cole Co. of Chicago. Of the few existing today, many show signs of being chewed by a household pest, papier-maché being high on the mouse's menu.

The Edison Model R-3 OR When is an Edison Not an Edison?

BY NORMAN BRAITHWAITE

On a recent search for another antique radio to add to my collection, I was attracted to an Edison Model R-3, shown in Figure 1. It had all the appearances of other simple, three-dial battery sets manufactured in the mid-1920s. Like many other collectors before me, I had passed up the set several times.

The name Edison Mfg. Co. engraved on the front panel intrigued me, and I decided to take a closer look. I could vaguely recall that Thomas A. Edison, Inc. manufactured some sets with similar model numbers, and that there was some association between Thomas A. Edison, Inc. and Splitdorf. Although I could remember seeing Splitdorf battery radios, I could not recall ever seeing an Edison battery radio.

Upon closer inspection, I found that the set was a three-tube reflex. The crystal detector is located on the back side of the lower panel and can be seen in Figure 2. It is operated by the panel's lower center control knob which can be rotated to locate a sensitive spot on the crystal.

The set was complete and original except for one replaced audio transformer. My search was over for the day. I purchased the set and brought it home to research and restore.

THE EDISON CONNECTION?

Once back home, I consulted Rider's Perpetual Troubleshooter's Manuals, Gernsback's Official Radio Service Manuals, and several knowledgeable collectors to determine if there was any relationship between the Edison R-3 and Thomas A. Edison, Inc. Although, according to Rider and Gernsback, Thomas A. Edison, Inc. manufactured sets with model numbers R-1, R-2, and R-4 through R-7, these sets were all manufactured during the late 1920s. It is interesting that no Model R-3 is listed. Splitdorf, the radio manufacturing company which Thomas A. Edison had acquired, produced no reflex receivers or sets with model numbers such as R-3.

Based on these findings and on conversations with other collectors, I concluded that Edison Mfg. Co. had no relation to Thomas A. Edison, Inc. It is quite likely that Edison Mfg. Co. selected its name to capitalize on Thomas A. Edison's visibility. The model number may have been derived from the circuit — reflex 3-tube.

FEATURES

Aside from this less than spectacular history, the set is quite collectible because of its unusual circuit. It's not often that a crystal-reflex receiver turns up. [The June 1990 issue of A.R.C. reported on another unusual crystal-reflex receiver, the Nyaccolflex Model R2. — Editor]

For improved selectivity, the set was manufactured using three tuned circuits rather than the two tuned circuits and one untuned circuit of other similar radios of the time (such as the ERLA reflex featured in Radio Manufacturers of the 1920s, Volume 1, pages 188 and 190, by Alan Douglas, The Vestal Press, 1988).

One other unusual feature, the purpose of which still remains a mystery to me, is the fact that the crystal circuit is connected across only one half of the last tuned circuit. Figure 3 shows a schematic diagram of the set.

The set is well made of good quality components, but of unknown manufacture. See Figure 4. The only custom-manufactured part on the set is the engraved front panel. Wiring is accomplished by using a neatly placed, square, tinned bus bar. Nearly all the electrical connections are made using machine screws and knurled nuts.

Unlike the rest of the set, the cabinet is very simple and inexpensive. For the manufacturer to have put this very decent set in such a cheap cabinet seems inappropriate.

PERFORMANCE

After cleaning, checking the wiring, and testing, I finally turned the set on to determine the operating characteristics and performance. The first obstacle I encountered was failure to get a signal from the antenna to the speaker. In addition to having all three dials correctly tuned to the same frequency, the crystal had to be adjusted to a sensitive spot. The problem was that in order to tune in a station, the crystal had to be set; and in order to set the crystal, a station had to be tuned. To overcome this problem, I substituted the crystal with my efficient 1N82 glass UHF mixer crystal diode. After I logged the dial settings for a few local stations, I removed the diode and used the crystal. [Early wireless receivers had a similar problem — often there was no station on the air to use to adjust the crystal detector. These early sets had a built-in, push-button-operated buzzer which generated a broad-band RF signal for input to the crystal detector. — Editor]

I was initially puzzled by the existence of a basketweave coil placed in series between the two antenna posts, which can be seen in Figure 2. After operating the set for a while, I found that by connecting the antenna to the set so that the signal passed through this coil, the first tuned circuit would track with the others (all dial settings would be similar). This hookup was at the expense of some sensitivity, however.

Performance of the set is admirable. In a couple of hours one evening, I logged over a dozen stations within a range of approximately 800 miles. I was using a relatively short antenna and a good ground. I was able to log two distant stations which were 20 kilocycles apart, but sensitivity on local stations left a little to be desired. Output from the set is capable of driving a horn speaker. However, for the best audibility, I use a pair of headphones.

The mysterious Edison R-3 now sits patiently on a shelf in my display room. It probably will always be the most overlooked set in my collection, yet its story continues to be a most interesting one. Perhaps someday we may be able to learn more about the Edison R-3 and its manufacturer.

(Norman Braithwaite, P.O. Box 2443, Redding, CA 96099)

The Atlantic Radio Company – Part II

CONTRIBUTED BY RON BOUCHER

"The Atlantic Radio Company – Part I" appeared in the May 1990 issue of Antique Radio Classified. The article consisted mainly of old photographs dealing with the Atlantic Radio Company, a radio dealership located on Boylston Street in Boston in the early 1920s. These photos examined the exterior and interior views of the Boston store and the Portland, Maine, branch, showing rare radio equipment on display at the time.

In this segment (Part II) we show more interior and exterior views of the Boylston Street headquarters in Boston. Future issues will feature photos of Atlantic's displays at Boston radio shows as well as individual products they sold and how they were used in advertising. We hope you will enjoy this step back in time.

The photos were contributed by Ron Boucher of Goffstown, New Hampshire, who found them, along with other radio-related items, at a yard sale near his home. Ron has submitted them for publication in A.R.C., and they will be continued in a series of articles in upcoming issues.

Collecting – The Identification Challenge

BY JOHN J. NAGLE, K4KJ

Several months ago, John Nagle, K4KJ, sent in the following description of a radio he had found. Unfortunately, in calling for more information about his article, we learned that John joined the ranks of "Silent Keys" on Wednesday, June 20, 1990.

John was well known in antique radio and ham circles, and many of his articles have been published in the AWA "Old Timer's Bulletin" and other radio-related publications.

John was asking whether anyone recognized this set and what its approximate value might be. If anyone has further information, please forward to A.R.C., so we can continue John's interests in his memory. (Editor)

The challenges are what make collecting antique radios such an interesting and fascinating hobby. First is the challenge of finding an item that appeals to you. Next comes the challenge of restoring the item, if necessary. The third challenge is that of identifying and dating your find. The last one – the identification challenge – is the subject of this article.

A few years ago, I was offered an older radio for a very reasonable price – at least compared to some of the prices I had seen at the AWA flea markets in Canandaigua for similar equipment. The radio had no identification whatsoever, but it had been very nicely restored and was complete. So, even though the type of receiver was not my specialty, amateur radio equipment, I bought it. I'm not at all sorry I bought it, but I have yet to identify it.

The front panel and the chassis are shown in Figures 1 and 2. The tube lineup consists of a Type 22 RF amplifier followed by three Type 12 detector amplifiers, one used as a regenerative detector and two used as stages of audio amplification.

The Type 22 is a pentode; pentodes were developed in 1927 and appeared in production radios in 1928. If we assume that the tubes are the original types, this puts an "earliest possible" date on the set. The rest of the receiver appears to be of construction earlier than 1928, possibly as far back as 1920 or maybe even the teens. The construction seems to be similar to some of the I-P "wireless" sets I have seen.

BY PAUL JOSEPH BOURBIN, 25 GREENVIEW CT., SAN FRANCISCO, CA 94131

Rejuvenating Tuning Eye Tubes

In his July 1989 A.R.C. article, page 8 to 9, "The Solar Model CC-1-60 Capacitor Analyzer," Paul Bourbin stated, "If the 6E5 (tuning eye tube) is dim, it can be brought back to original brilliance by hooking up to a television picture tube rejuvenator and zapping it. You will have to rig up an adapter, but the results are worth the trouble." Paul reports this method has generated much response, with many people asking for more specific information. (Editor)

To bring new life to your 6E5, you will need a TV picture tube rejuvenator, a tube manual with tube base diagrams for receiving tubes and for picture tubes, and some jumper wire sockets.

The most difficult part is making the adapter. One way is to break off the neck of an old picture tube for the part that attaches to the rejuvenator. I do not recommend this as it is dangerous! A safer way is to attach jumper wires to tip jack pins or pins taken from regular tube bases. The other end of the jumpers should be soldered to a female six-pin tube socket (You can get one from a junker set or from Antique Electronic Supply, 688 W. First St., Tempe, Arizona 85281).

Using your book, choose an old black and white picture tube as a model, and look at the pin layout diagram for that tube. Match up the components (filament, cathode, grid, etc.) of the picture tube with the same component locations on the eye tube. Attach jumpers from the picture tube adapter socket hole to the corresponding pin on the six-pin socket for the eye tube. The idea is to configure the rejuvenator so that the eye tube is wired as a picture tube. There are many different picture tube rejuvenators, but this will work for any of them. Once the adapter is made, you can zap any number of tubes.

After you have attached your adapter to the rejuvenator, all that is left to do is to insert an eye tube into the six-pin socket, set the filament voltage to 6.3 volts, and follow the instructions for rejuvenation of a picture tube. See Figure 1. You may have to repeat the process a few times; after all, you have nothing to lose by doing so. It does basically the same thing that rejuvenating 01-A's does - it increases the emission of the filament or cathode.

I cannot give specific instructions because each rejuvenator has its own set of instructions. If you do not have a TV picture tube rejuvenator, try your local TV repair shop. Every shop should have one.

As with 01-A's, the results vary with the tube. Most tubes are improved to a reasonable extent. Some stay bright for only a few hours' service, while others stay bright for a long time. One that I have rejuvenated has been in daily service for over six months and still is quite bright. Since many of us use our sets very few hours per year, this procedure will suffice for most purposes.

Hope that you are successful "zapping" your eye tubes.

Note: The 6U5/6G5 electron ray tube has very similar characteristics to the 6E5 and should be "zappable" in the same manner. The 2E5 has electrical characteristics identical with Type 6E5, except for its heater rating (2.5 volts AC/DC; 0.8 ampere). Be sure you make the proper filament setting to 2.5 volts, if you are rejuvenating a 2E5.

(Paul Joseph Bourbin, 25 Greenview Ct., San Francisco, CA 94131)

PHOTO REVIEW

This column presents in pictorial form many of the more unusual radios, speakers, tubes, advertising, and other radio-related items (covering the years 1900-1950's) from our readers' collections. The photos are meant to help increase awareness of what's available in the radio collecting hobby. Send in any size photos from your collection. Photos must be sharp in detail, contain a single item, and preferably have a light-colored background. A short description must be included with each submitted item. Please note that receipt of photos is not acknowledged, publishing is not guaranteed, and photos are not returned.

FUNNY TUBE BY HECK - This UX-201A was produced by one of the many tube manufacturers of the time. The By Heck guarantee was for a good working tube or you would get a replacement. In Boston, these tubes were sold through the Raymond's department stores, which accounts for "Unkle Eph" (their trademark) on the carton. (Dave Crocker - Duxbury, MA 02332)

WAVERLY - Does anyone have any information about this radio? The design is somewhat similar to that of a Crosley cathedral. It looks better in black and white as the cabinet colors are yellow ocher and dirty orange. (Fred Geer - Jacksonville, FL 32210)

RADIOLA 18 - The Radio Corporation of America (RCA) manufactured this AC receiver in 1927. It is a seven-tube TRF that sold for $115. (Norm Landis - Kirkwood, MO)

STEWART WARNER - This tombstone is a Model R-3043-A with the following tube complement: 6A8G, 6K7G, 6K6G, 5Y4G and 6Q7G, all of which are Arcturus blues. The unusual feature about this set is that the chassis is mounted vertically, and the dial is designed so that the set can be operated upright or on its side! It measures only 12 inches high. (Donald P. Amshay - Durham, NC)

NOVELTY RADIO - The Guild Radio Company produced this Spice Chest radio, the Model 484. Other Guild classics include the Town Crier lantern radio and the wall telephone models. (Norm Landis - Kirkwood, MO 63122)

STREAMLINED SPARTON - This 1938 radio has a cabinet trimmed in black and chrome, with a machine polished aluminum finish. This effect reflects faint colors of the rainbow. (Fred Geer - Jacksonville, FL 32210)

BEAUTIFUL CONSOLE - This is the Philco Model 650 three-band console radio manufactured in 1933. A section of the top pops open by pushing a button at the top front, thereby revealing the dial and controls. Note the very short leg length, which was typical of "lowboy" models of the early 1930s. (Norm Landis - Kirkwood, MO 63122)

NATIONAL RADIO - This is a Type NC-100-ASD five-band, high frequency receiver. It was manufactured by the National Co. and built to Army Signal Corps standards in a series manufactured from 1938 to 1945. The metal cabinet is painted black. (Norm Landis - Kirkwood, MO 63122)

RADIO ADVENTURES

The Antique Radio Boys and the Garrulous Grebe – Chapter 2

BY STAN DRYER

The story so far: Terry Johnson and his two chums, Jimmy Carver and Gary Staunton, discover a fire at the Beaucart Mansion. Terry rescues lovely Lucinda Beaucart while Jimmy and Gary save the radio collection belonging to Frank Beaucart, the millionaire owner of the mansion. On his return, Beaucart says that he suspects Verton Gridleak of setting the fire. When a rare Grebe CR-4 is discovered missing, the three boys set off to find it. They enter the barn belonging to Barton Sneer, a local bully, and are climbing the stairs when they see hurtling down upon them a three hundred pound, disk-scanning television set.

Seeing a window to his right, Terry did not hesitate. "Follow me!" he shouted while he hurled himself out. The rotten frame gave way, and he tumbled through, followed by his two chums. The TV chassis crashed down the stairs, missing Gary's heels by fractions of an inch. Fortunately, a large pile of hay on the ground below the window broke their fall.

"Is everyone all right?" said Terry as the boys rose and brushed themselves off.

"Just fine," joked Gary. "When I jump through a window, it's usually without a pane."

They returned to the doorway of the barn and inspected the crushed remains of the TV chassis.

"Whoever pushed that down the stairs must be the scum of the earth," said Jimmy.

"A person who shows that kind of disrespect for a valuable historic relic should not be trusted," agreed Terry.

"What are you three doing prowling around my property?" demanded a belligerent voice behind them.

The boys turned to confront Barton Sneer. He was a heavy set youth of sallow complexion whose lips were always set in a supercilious grin.

"Someone just tried to kill us," said Terry, "and we suspect it was you."

Sneer laughed – an ugly, guttural sound. "Now how could I have pushed that TV down the stairs if I was here in the yard?" he asked.

"There is probably another stairway or ladder down from the second floor," said Jimmy. "Why not let us check?"

"You stay out of my barn and off my property," snarled Sneer. "And I'm expecting you to pay for that window."

"Let's go," said Terry. He turned to Sneer. "As we broke the window in escaping from a life-threatening situation, we have no intention of paying for it. And tell that friend of yours, Gridleak, that we're not through with him."

"Well," said Terry, as the three boys walked back to his house, "I think we struck out. If the Grebe we're looking for was in that barn, Sneer and Gridleak will be finding a new hiding place for it. I think we should talk to Dick Wood."

Those of you who have read The Antique Radio Boys at Canandaigua will remember Dick Wood as the Secret Service agent with whom the Antique Radio Boys helped track down the nefarious Silvertone Snatchers gang. While posing as a mild-mannered radio repairman, he was, in fact, a "crack" operative well versed in the ways of antique radio thieves and counterfeiters.

The boys found Agent Wood in the radio repair shop in his barn. He greeted them warmly and showed them an old spark transmitter he was restoring. "Of course," he said, "it's so broad band that I'll have to get a special permit before I can test it. In those early days, no one worried much about how much you slopped over into adjacent frequency bands."

"Explain it to Jimmy," said Gary. "He thinks broad band is an all-girl orchestra."

"I see your humor department is just as bad as always," said Wood after Gary ducked the playful punch Jimmy had thrown his way. Over cups of cocoa that the agent provided, the four had a nice chat about the old days of CW wireless before the vacuum tube made everything easy.

Finally Wood paused and smiled. "This has been a nice conversation," he said, "but if I know you three, you're not here just for chitchat."

"Right," said Terry. "We're trying to locate a Grebe CR-4 that was stolen from the Beaucart Mansion."

A look of shocked surprise came over Wood's features. "Did you say a Grebe CR-4?" he demanded.

"Yes," said Terry. He quickly outlined the events of the day.

The agent's face took on a serious expression. "This will take some looking into," he said. "Yours is the fifth Grebe CR-4 that has been reported missing in the last month."

"Do you suppose Gridleak has stolen them all?" asked Jimmy.

"I doubt it," said Wood. "Gridleak is a small-time sneak thief. I suspect a more sinister mind is behind all of this. It has every sign of being the work of Dr. Krull."

In shock, the three boys glanced at each other. Those of you who have read the previous books in this series will remember the evil Dr. Krull whose machinations were behind most of the malfeasance in the antique radio business. Krull was the brains behind a criminal ring that was chrome plating old Bogen amplifiers to make them into fake McIntoshes. You can discover how the three lads thwarted his scheme by reading The Antique Radio Boys' First Sale.

"But I thought Dr. Krull was in jail," said Terry.

Agent Wood shook his head. "It is a sad testimony to our criminal justice system that the counterfeiting of a radio set does not bring nearly as stiff a sentence as the counterfeiting of the coin of the realm. Krull was out after serving a sentence of less than a year."

"And where is he now?" demanded Jimmy.

"Back at Krull Castle. We've been keeping close tabs on him, but he is a slippery fish. I suspect he's trying to corner the Grebe CR-4s."

"You mean back them into a corner with a whip and a chair?" said Gary.

"No," said Terry patiently to his young sidekick.

"Corner in this sense means to get hold of all or most all of the CR-4s. Then Krull can charge any price he wishes to a Grebe collector. Am I right?"

"Exactly," said Dick Wood grimly. "If you've looked at the auction record in your latest Antique Radio Classified, you'll see that the price has already started to rise. Now, if we could only gain access to Krull Castle."

"That's easy," said Jimmy. "Terry has a simple way to get in there. Karmella Krull."

"Hey, that's right," said Gary. "Krull's daughter, Karmella, is in Terry's class and has a real crush on him. I mean she's always trying to get him to help her with the act she's doing for the Old Tyme Radio Contest. Not that she has much of a chance. The only thing she has going for her is that on radio no one will see her ugly face."

"Is this true?" demanded Wood.

Terry's red face was indication enough. "But," he protested, "I have never by sign or deed indicated to her that I had any interest in her. And I don't want to do anything to encourage her falsely."

"Come on, Terry," said Jimmy. "Just going over to her castle to help her with her act doesn't make her your girlfriend."

"It is our only chance to get into Krull Castle," said the agent.

It was with some trepidation that Terry rode his bicycle up the long drive to Krull Castle that evening. Dark clouds scurried across the sky, and only fitfully did the moon break through to reveal the rows of dark hemlocks standing like giant Remington All-Wave consoles on either side of the drive. Somewhere off in the distance an owl hooted with a sound like a badly tuned regenerative set. Two-hundred feet from the castle, Terry concealed his bicycle in the bushes. He approached a gate lit by a lantern that gave little more illumination than the pilot light on a 1938 Zenith.

He pulled on the bell rope that hung by the gate. The heavy tone of the bell reverberated through the still night air. Almost immediately the iron gate lifted to the creak of tired ropes, and the door beyond swung open to reveal Karmella in the lighted doorway. She wore a tight black dress. "I'm surprised to see you," she said, smiling up at him.

She led the way into the great hall where the dim light of a few fluorescent bulbs revealed shelf after shelf of antique radios. Terry saw models of sets that he could only dream of owning, but he was much less impressed when his well-trained eye told him that many of them were clever counterfeits.

"My father's collection," said Karmella.

"Very impressive," said Terry. He took a moment to inspect the radios on display and to ascertain that, as he suspected, there were no Grebe CR-4s in the lot.

"Why don't we go into the music room?" said Karmella. "It's more cozy than this drafty old hall."

Terry followed her down a corridor and into a room that contained a low couch and a grand piano. Karmella smiled at him, her black eyes glinting with what Terry hoped was not desire. "Why don't you sit right down beside me here," she said, indicating the couch, "and we'll talk over what I plan to do."

"Er, ah," said Terry, "I think it would be better if I actually heard you perform."

Karmella frowned. "Well, if you say so," she said. She seated herself at the piano and began her performance — a rendition, Terry suspected, of some obscure operatic aria. It was difficult to determine which was worse, her playing or her singing. But he forced himself to smile and offer little encouraging comments, praying all the while for the anticipated interruption. Halfway through the third stanza it came. A mean looking individual in butler's attire slid into the room from a side door. "Sorry to interrupt," he growled to Karmella, "but you're wanted on the phone."

"But I said I did not want to be interrupted," Karmella hissed at him.

"Says it's important, about the radio contest," snarled the ugly gentleman.

"You'll have to excuse me," she said to Terry. "Don't go away." She followed the butler out of the room.

The plan had worked. Gary, pretending to be a radio contest official, could probably keep Karmella on the phone for ten minutes or so. Just time enough to take a quick look around.

Terry picked the door at the end of the room. It led to a dimly lit corridor. He moved swiftly, trying the doors along the corridor, all of which were locked. The last door opened into an empty office with a black oak desk and cabinets lining the walls. Terry moved to the nearest cabinet and was opening the door, when a grinding sound caused him to turn. The entire back wall of the office was rising from the floor to reveal a large pool of black water. Beside the pool, flanked by two of his henchmen, stood the evil Dr. Krull.

"Well my young friend, we meet again," said Krull, his eyes glinting with pure malice.

Terry glanced toward the door, planning his escape, but one of Krull's sidekicks was already standing in his way.

"I'm so glad you've come along just now," said Krull, "just in time to watch the feeding frenzy." He picked a 1940's Bakelite radio from a pile at his feet and tossed it into the pool. As it hit the water, a giant alligator rose from the depths and crushed it in its jaws.

"They are so hungry, they'll snap at anything," said the evil doctor. "Let us not mess with preliminaries. Hans, see how Adolph likes a radio collector rather than a radio."

The second of the goons grabbed Terry, and forcing his arm behind his back, began pushing him towards the pool. Terry struggled against him, but the brute had such strength that Terry could do nothing. Inch by inch he was pressed forward until his feet were on the lip of the pool.

"Any last message for your chums?" snarled Dr. Krull.

LETTERS

Dear Mr. Dryer,

I am an avid collector of Radio Boys books. I enjoyed the single chapter of your book in A.R.C. Will you please tell me where I can purchase your books?

Nancy P. Sanders, Vienna, Virginia

Currently only through the pages of A.R.C. Editor.

Dear Editor,

Received the June 1990 issue of A.R.C. a few days ago. I hate to see your fine publication donate time and space to such a trivial fictional article as the Antique Radio Boys by Stan Dryer.

I feel sure that more technical and non-fiction material would be more appropriate.

J. L. Dixon, Marietta, Ohio

PEOPLE EVERYWHERE ARE READING FIXING UP NICE OLD RADIOS

If you learn radio repair, you can buy Scotts for $50, Zeniths for $25 and Hallicrafters for $15 or less as I have been doing for years. Fix them easily with the know how in this new book. Written by an old radio instructor, it has 185 pages, over 100,000 words and over 300 drawings and photos taken inside your favorite old radios. It is spiral bound-8½ x 11. Simple language. No higher math. It starts right at the beginning with Ohm's law and crystal sets. A challenge for the expert, too, it explains all-wave bandswitches, crystal filter alignment, the Wunderlich tube and it pictures and describes EVERY PART in the Scott AW-12.

Price $19. Order today, Visa/MC OK. Phone orders accepted. Include $2.00 shipping. Satisfaction guaranteed. If you prefer, send a SASE and I'll mail you a few sample pages from the book...

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING POLICY

ONE FREE 20-WORD AD for subscribers in each issue; additional words are 10¢ each. See details below. Classified ads must be received (not just postmarked!) by noon on the ad deadline. Late ads are held for the following issue. Please enclose correct payment with all ads. Stamps or cash are OK for small amounts. (Canadian and other foreign advertisers, please see "Payment" on page two for methods.) "Free words" cannot be accumulated from month to month; free words must be requested when ad is submitted.

Please write each ad on a separate sheet of paper, especially when included with other A.R.C. correspondence. Include SUB# with ad. Ads may be sent in advance; but, write each ad on a separate piece of paper and indicate the month (or successive two months) you want the ad to run.

Please write legibly and use both capital and small letters. Do not use dashes between words. Some numbers and letters can look alike, for example 1, I and l (the number one, the capital i and the small L.) Write the following characters clearly (especially in model numbers): 1, I and l; 0, O, o, Q and D; r and n; 6, b and G; V, U, u, v and Y; A and R; 5, S and s; 2, Z and z. We try to correct spelling errors, so when using an uncommon word or manufacturer which looks similar to a common word or manufacturer, note it so that we do not "correct" it. Editor's comments are in [brackets].

Advertising is accepted only for items related to antique radios, communication, electricity, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be identified as such. Advertisers agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, and to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisfied.

Publisher reserves the right to edit ads without notification to the advertiser and to reject ads for any reason. Publisher is not responsible for errors due to illegibly written ads or for any other reason. Since club activities receive free advertising on the Coming Radio Events page, the free 20 words may not be used for club activity ads. See inside front cover for additional information.

CLASSIFIED AD DETAILS

Deadline: 10th of the month!

Classified ads must have a standard heading such as WANTED, FOR SALE, FOR TRADE, FOR SALE/TRADE, SERVICES, MESSAGE, HELP, etc. This heading is the only bold or all-capitalized words allowed in the ad. Capitalize only manufacturer names, model names, etc. Wanted and For Sale ads are mixed together to encourage the reading of all ads, including the Wanted ads. This standard ad format makes scanning the ads easier.

Before writing your ad, please look over the ads in a recent issue of A.R.C., and try to write your ad in the same style. Full name and address is required in all classified ads; we will add it if you forget.

To encourage varied content of the ads, multiple insertions of the same classified ad are limited to two successive months. (To run an ad longer, use a boxed classified or display ad.)

Classified Ad Rates per Month

Please do not forget to send in the extra 10¢ per word when your classified ad runs over the free 20 words; your payment will be appreciated, and it will help to keep A.R.C. healthy.

BOXED CLASSIFIED AD DETAILS

Deadline: 5th of the month!

Boxed classified ads can run unchanged for three months or more. No words are free. Ads may be shaded and may include bold and all-capitalized words freely. The ad need not begin with For Sale, etc.

PHOTO & DRAWING DETAILS

Deadline for classified and boxed classified ads with drawings or photos: 5th of the month.

Drawings and photos are encouraged as the response to your ad is much larger and the reader knows better what you want or are selling. Send in your drawing or photograph, and A.R.C. will reduce it or enlarge it as needed.

Photo and Drawing Rates per Month

$8.00 per month for each photo or drawing

IMPORTANT — COUNTING WORDS — IMPORTANT

The standard headings: WANTED, FOR SALE, etc., count as one word each time used in an ad. Name, address and (one) telephone number, count as 6 words, regardless of length. Ham call letters and business name can be included in the 6 words and do not count extra. Full name and address is required in all classified ads — it does not cost extra! Each additional word, abbreviation, model number or number group, extra telephone numbers, etc. count as one word. Hyphenated words count as two words.
