DISPLAY AND BUSINESS CARD ADS - DETAILS AND RATES

The deadline is the first of the month for display and business card ad artwork, payment and repeat requests.

Advertising is accepted only for early items related to radio, communication, electricity, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be so identified. Advertisers agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, and to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisfied.

All advertising must be prepaid; see "Payment" paragraph above. Late ads will be run only if space and time permit. Since artwork is reduced to 63% in the printing process, originals should be the artwork size listed below. Do not send in artwork on art board or send negatives. Ads should be typeset or typed neatly with a carbon ribbon. If you want us to prepare your ad, include the one-time cost listed below for A.R.C. to make up the ad.

Photos should be at an 85 line screen; otherwise, add $8.00 per photo for screening. (Do not glue photos to artwork; submit separately.)

If you are confused by these requirements and terms, please contact A.R.C. before beginning to prepare your ad.

EDITOR'S COMMENTS

How many of us can spread our old radio collection throughout nearly every room of our house? Mike Adams who collects "out-of-sight radios" tells in this issue how he has been successful in doing just that. Mike Adams' wife and their Zenith chairside are on this month's cover and a number of their "hidden" radios are shown in his article. In a related article, Richard Arnold describes several 1927 Zenith armchair radios.

For the collector of early sets, Henry Rogers writes about an early, well constructed loose coupler/audion receiver. He also put this early set through performance tests and received AM stations from about one-hundred miles distant.

Christopher Cuff offers some basics for restoring early electrostatic television sets. We suggest that before beginning any repair, you proceed carefully and make sure to heed the high voltage power supply and transformerless power supply precautions included with the article.

Radio Ramblings... has dual offerings this month. Craig Ball describes the alternating excitement and frustration that many of us have experienced during our collecting career. It is often difficult to keep from participating in driving up the prices of the particular HOT collectible sets of the day!

Our second Radio Ramblings... is from Tammy Smith whose husband collects old radios! Tammy actually helped get her husband interested in collecting old radios and now has had to accept her fate as a "radio widow."

Do you have an accumulation of old radio tubes? Darrell Combs offers hints on constructing egg crate type storage containers for your tube collection. Also, a variety of sets are pictured in the Photo Review including an unusual Kadette "Topper" plastic radio with the speaker opening in a dome on top of the set. A Kentucky auction of over 180 radio and phonograph items is reported by Ron Ramirez.

New Books. Two reviews appear this month on books about the Vibroplex Company and its semi-automatic telegraph keys. Tom French's Vibroplex Collector's Guide, published earlier this year, is reviewed by Ludwell Sibley. William Holly's The Vibroplex Co., Inc. 1890 to 1990 is reviewed by Gil Schlehman. Vibroplex, the publisher, expects to be shipping Holly's book by the time you receive this issue of A.R.C.

Maury Sievers is writing a book on crystal sets, which will be published by The Vestal Press in early 1991. Maury writes about the process of creating his book in this issue.

More new books: Marty and Sue Bunis' The Collector's Guide to Antique Radios is out, and early comments indicate that they have done a creditable job in estimating current prices for over 5,000 radios. Other books on the horizon include a companion price guide to Radios - A Blast from the Past. The Vestal Press reports that Volume 3 of Alan Douglas' Radio Manufacturers of the 1920's is due in mid-1991.

Printed Without Comment. With the reappearance of "Printed Without Comment" last month, some new subscribers, as well as some older ones, may wonder about trusting collectors? Considering the very few number of complaints that we receive here at A.R.C. each month, we collectors are a pretty honest group.

Most sellers ask for payment before they ship an item, which is reasonable. Buyers, don't feel bad about asking a seller for references in your area; I do this myself. Another way to insure receipt of your set is to arrange for pickup at a meet or midpoint. And finally, don't forget to insist on adequate packaging and to volunteer to pay extra for it.

WANTED: 1950s Television Shows. Michael Lawrence Films is producing a documentary on the quiz show scandal of the 1950s and is seeking old kinescopes. In particular they are looking for The $64,000 Question and Challenge, The Big Surprise, Tic Tac Dough, and Dotto. Also sought are The Today Show with Dave Garroway for August 29, 1958, and Charles Van Doren on The Steve Allen Show for November 4, 1959. Can anyone out there help with this project? Refer to his ad on page 35 for more information.

Happy collecting in 1991!

John V. Terrey

PRINTED WITHOUT COMMENT

During 1989, A.R.C. received complaints from over 36 individuals who never received items that had been ordered from Mike Kirby of Panama City, Fla. Kirby had offered these buyers items which they had advertised for in "wanted" ads.

We have recently received documentation from two individuals who this year sent Mr. Kirby payment for items he said he had. They have not received any ordered items although one has received a refund.

ON THE COVER

Introducing her husband Mike's article on "Out-of-Sight Radios" is Barbara Adams tuning a 1940 Zenith Model 7S681 chairside radio. Barbara and Mike have a number of these "hidden" radios spread throughout their house. It is easy to see how these radios could blend into the decor of Mike's and Barbara's home.

The Model 7S681 covers both the broadcast and shortwave bands and has a built-in 78 rpm record changer.

Out-of-Sight Radios

BY MIKE ADAMS

I always like to be near my radios. Sure, like you, I've designed and purchased shelves for static displays of sets in a special room, the usual miniature museum. But, what about your everyday family living space? How can you integrate the radio into almost every room in your home?

THE LIVING ROOM

Believe it or not, a lot of radios were designed to be heard but not seen. Everyone is familiar with the chairside, not really a "hidden radio" but nevertheless manufactured to be used as normal furniture. One of my favorites is a 1940 Zenith Model 7S681, shown in Figures 1 and 2, complete with shortwave and a pop-up 78 rpm record changer. The attractive cabinet contains a unique chassis with three octal and four loktal tubes. It features push-pull audio, using one Type 6F6 tube and the beam power half of the hard-to-find Type 6AD7G.

"When I think back to where I acquired my radios-disguised-as-furniture, I realize that they were all bought at used furniture stores, not at radio collector meets."

A more conventional chairside, a late 1930's Farnsworth BK73, shown in Figure 3, also has a 78 rpm changer. The nice thing about this Farnsworth cabinet, pictured in Figure 4, is that it has plenty of storage space for all those large collections of classical music on 78 rpm records in albums. Both of these chairside models have a console-like, seven-tube chassis and both have large speakers for good audio quality.

Now for the truly "hidden radios," those sets actually designed to look like something else. I like the mid-1930's Silver-tone 6491-A in the shape of a round table. Seen in Figures 5 and 6, it is a six-tube, AM only set with a downward facing speaker, just like the earlier, better-known Atwater Kent built into the Kiel Table.

THE DINING ROOM

What about the evening meal, you say? Ever see a dining room radio that matches the rest of the dining room furniture, as in Figure 7? You have now! In Figure 8, the front of this "chest" opens up to reveal an odd mid-to-late 1930's Gilfillan Tempotone 1036 which seems to have everything: shortwave, electric eye, push buttons, and record changer.

But wait - where is the speaker? Good question. There is a five-prong socket on the back made for a speaker with an output transformer and a field coil needed to complete the "B" supply. Someday, push-pull 6F6 tubes will drive the speaker I have never seen.

THE BEDROOM

Bedtime at last and you would expect a radio collector to have a bedside radio, right? Even at the end of the day, you never want to be too far from your radios.

Shown in Figures 9 and 10 is a truly ugly number that has been next to my bed for ten years. It's an early 50's Philco 53-1750-121 with a 3-speed changer, AM, and a low frequency band for aircraft and ships at sea. This strange drop-leaf table radio uses Ioktal tubes in series, which take up to three minutes to warm up before they finally allow the dial light to glow.

When I think back to where I acquired my radios-disguised-as-furniture, I realize that they were all bought at used furniture stores, none at radio collector meets. Today it is possible to find "hidden radios" at old radio flea markets.

So, if you've wanted to exhibit radios beyond the walls of your personal museum and gain display space, consider some of these partially or totally "hidden radios" as part of your decor. In my home, these sturdy wood radios have withstood parties and young children for years, and they wear just as well as "real furniture."

Zenith Armchair Radios

The World at Your Elbow

BY RICHARD ARNOLD

In the last three months of 1937, Zenith was advertising in Life magazine a new concept in radio design – the armchair radio. Other companies, such as Arvin and Stromberg-Carlson, had also come out with one or two models of their own, but it was Zenith that had really made the big commitment to the new idea. Zenith was only twenty-two years old in 1937, but its advertisements tell that it was a year ahead of the radio industry again.

The Zenith 1938 line of armchair radios, with some examples shown in this article, had the only wide selection among these new and most convenient "lazy tuning radios." There were twenty-nine new models to choose from, ranging in price from $29.95 to $185. In addition, there were sixty-two other table and console models, making a total lineup of some ninety-one different sets for 1938. Surely, something for everyone.

The new armchair radios came with either regular broadcast or multiwave bands. Some had two bands, while others had three or four. Sets with three or more bands were sold with a special antenna to ensure perfect reception. This antenna cost an additional $5.

The new radios came in five, six, seven, eight, nine, twelve, and fifteen-tube models. A typical tube lineup used a 6A8G as a detector and oscillator, a 6K7G in the IF stage, a 6H6G as a second detector and automatic volume control, a 6F5G as first audio, a 6F6G as a power tube, and a 5Y4G as a rectifier.

These attractive sets came in various styles, but only in colors of walnut, bone-white, and ebony. One of the styles, Model 6-S-203, a radio/phono combination, is shown to the left in the illustrations below. This six-tube, three-band model sold for $99.95.

These radios were designed as radios of repose, with fingertip-near tuning as evident in Zenith's "half-round" model designs. You would no longer have to leave the comfort of your chair and walk across the room to change stations. We had entered the "Armchair Radio Age."

All information and illustrations for this article are from Life magazine, October and November 1937 issues.

Safe and Easy Tube Storage

BY DARRELL COMBS

Have you ever had the feeling your supply of old radio tubes was beginning to take over with its bulk and storage problems? The following may help you as it did me.

I had been storing my good tubes in an oak file cabinet and in boxes in the garage. All were loose and lying against each other, with the constant threat of damage or breakage.

Several solutions crossed my mind, but the simplest seemed using a box with egg crating to separate the tubes. Since no egg crate could be found in the desired two-inch tube size, I constructed my own, to be inserted in an appropriately sized storage container.

[Similar, or "store-bought," egg crates in various sizes for tube storage, as well as storage cartons, are available from Antique Electronic Supply, 6221 S. Maple Ave., Tempe, AZ 85283.]

For the storage box, I decided to use the "underbed" storage boxes sold at dollar-day sales for one to two dollars. They have about the right depth of six inches and come in even sizes - i.e., 14 to 16 inches wide and 28 to 30 inches long, thus making layout of the egg crate simple. The size I used was 16 inches wide, 30 inches long, and 6 inches deep. See Figure 1.

Start by assembling the box and cover of your choice. Then, measure the inside dimensions and decide how many equally spaced rows and how many spaces per row will fit in the box. I wanted approximately two-inch square spaces, so my box used eight rows of fifteen each for a total of 120 spaces.

For the egg crate, I used double-weight chipboard, as it is strong, comparatively cheap, and easy to work with. Start by cutting the chipboard sheets (mine were 40 x 32 inches) into 5 3/4-inch strips, whichever depth best suits your box for maximum usage and tube height. Cut to length the number required for both length and width of the inside dimensions of the box. Mine turned out to be 29 1/2 inches long and 15 1/2 inches wide. Each compartment actually is a little less than two inches square, but globe tubes fit just fine. I needed seven long and fourteen short pieces.

I clamped all the pieces of each length together, overhanging the edge of a workbench, and made cuts 2 7/8-inches deep at previously determined spacing, using a portable jigsaw with a thick blade. Slide the alternating lengths together at right angles (Figure 2). When they are fully assembled, insert them into the storage box. Figure 3 shows how this worthwhile project makes tube storage problems a thing of the past!

Notes:

Chipboard (the material used for tablet backs) is double-weight and better for this purpose.

Small, self-adhesive labels listing tube numbers work nicely for identifying tubes in their compartments without removal.

If tube removal is difficult, a piece of round brass welding rod bent into an approximate two-inch "U" shape with pieces of thin rubber tubing on the ends makes an effective removal tong.

Audion Receiver Home Brew or Commercial?

BY HENRY ROGERS

Unfortunately, the manufacturer of the audion receiver shown in Figure 1 has remained a mystery. A deduction from the redwood base used for construction is that the set was originally built somewhere on the West Coast. From the design techniques, a good guess for a year of manufacture would be 1915. Whether it was constructed by a talented amateur or was the product of an unsuccessful commercial venture will probably never be known.

The circuit utilizes a loose coupler and an audion tube as a nonregenerative, grid-leak detector. The crystal detector, mounted on the lower right of the panel, was added at a later date, probably due to the expense or difficulty in obtaining replacement audions. The antenna condenser, as seen in the rear view, Figure 2, is a massive unit weighing in at seven pounds. Its weight distorts the shape of the front panel slightly.

RECEIVER CONSTRUCTION

Construction might be considered crude in view of the following:

1. The loose coupler windings are on high-loss forms with wax used to keep the coils stationary.
2. The inductance switches do not remove "dead turns" when their positions are changed.
3. Antenna and ground posts are mounted directly into the wooden cabinet, another high-loss material, especially if used in a humid environment.
4. Both condensers are poorly designed with the rotor shafts mounted in insulated bearings, which wear quickly, causing misalignment of the rotor to the stator.

Some innovative points of the audion receiver are the following:

1. To allow a wider range of tuning for the antenna circuit, it is possible to remove the antenna condenser from that circuit. The stop pins are connected to the ground side of the condenser (stator), while the pointer on the tuning knob is directly connected to the condenser rotor. By tuning the knob until the pointer touches either stop pin, the condenser becomes shorted and the antenna inductance is connected directly to ground.

2. The coupling control and secondary inductance are also dual-function controls. Use of a bell crank to operate the coupling of the secondary of the loose coupler is rather clever.

The Audion receiver is built using a 3/4-inch thick plank of redwood and a 1/2-inch thick hard rubber panel. Both condensers, the tube socket, the filament potentiometer and the inductance switches are mounted on the panel while the loose coupler and the secondary coupling bell crank are mounted on the redwood base.

The solid mahogany cabinet and the solid mahogany base molding are both glued and screwed to the redwood base. The panel is mounted to the front of the assembled cabinet. The mahogany back cover can be lowered, as it is hinged at the bottom. The cabinet is finished a dark red while the exterior metal hardware is nickel plated.

RECEIVER PERFORMANCE

For operation, a Cunningham Audiotron tube was used as a detector. The original detector was undoubtedly a DeForest spherical audion. However, due to the expense of the latter and the similarity and availability of the former, the tubular Audiotron was utilized for testing.

The filament voltage was adjusted until signals were detected. This occurred at about three volts with the plate voltage adjusted to about twenty volts. An increase to four volts on the filament did not seem to increase sensitivity, so out of consideration for the audion's age and value, any further increase was thought too risky. Baldwin super-sensitive Type-E earphones were used for audio output.

It is difficult to analyze the performance of a receiver of this vintage. The receiver was not designed for AM broadcast reception; in fact, the signals it was intended to receive have not been in use since the late 1920's. The spark transmitters of that day were not particularly efficient; consequently, received signals were usually weak. Greatest DX was normally less than one hundred miles.

If we bear the above facts in mind, using modern signals for testing had the following results. With a 150-foot long wire antenna, the Audiotron will detect AM broadcast stations up to one hundred miles away with ease. Remember, of course, that these stations are much more powerful than the average spark transmitter was.

Near 400kHz are airport beacons which transmit by using modulated CW. These are a bit more difficult, with about fifty miles being the greatest DX. SPK, an airport weather station on 250kHz, was very weak with a location of fifty miles distance.

For comparison of various other detectors, an adaptor was made and a Type UV-200 soft detector tube tried. This tube was noticeably more sensitive than the Audiotron, resulting in louder signals. However, the DX remained essentially the same. A Moorhead ER tube performed equally well. When using the original crystal detector, the sensitivity was slightly below the Audiotron. When using a modern germanium diode (1N283), signal strength was equal to the Audiotron but well below the UV-200 or the ER.

After experimenting with all these different detectors in the audion receiver, it becomes readily apparent that regeneration would have been the greatest improvement. However, the commercial regenerative sets were still a couple of years away when this receiver was built.

What is amazing is that these types of wireless sets were used successfully for commercial and amateur communications for several years. One can just imagine a 1915 radio operator with his earphones on straining to hear that weak, rasping signal of the spark transmitter located perhaps fifty miles away. He probably considered himself quite lucky that he wasn't using a coherer detector anymore!

What Is It?

BY RON BOUCHER

This item may or may not be radio-related. There's an electrical binding post in the back which connects to the whole cast iron block. The block itself is roughly a two-inch cube and is cast iron. The whole thing is painted black and was made by the Knott Company of Boston.

The wheel in front is a vernier adjustment with gradations on a vertical post and on the wheel (like a micrometer). This adjustment is to regulate the distance of the point at the end of the threaded brass piece. The markings are in centimeters.

PHOTO REVIEW

This column presents in pictorial form many of the more unusual radios, speakers, tubes, advertising, and other radio-related items (covering the years 1900-1950's) from our readers' collections. The photos are meant to help increase awareness of what's available in the radio collecting hobby. Send in any size photos from your collection. Photos must be sharp in detail, contain a single item, and preferably have a light-colored background. A short description must be included with each submitted item. Please note that receipt of photos is not acknowledged, publishing is not guaranteed, and photos are not returned.

Restoring Electrostatic Television Sets

BY CHRISTOPHER CUFF

After restoring nearly seventy-five early seven-inch electrostatic deflection televisions in the past twenty years, I have found that over ninety percent of these neat old TVs can be brought back from the dead with minimal cost and a little effort. Be sure to follow these guidelines exactly, and you will be amazed at how good these sets can be. Figures 1 through 5 show a number of electrostatic deflection sets that I have restored and that are in my collection.

Most of these sets used basically the same method for developing the picture, so whether or not your set is a Motorola, Admiral, Tele-Tone, Hallicrafters, etc., these basic guidelines should get you up and running again. (Obviously, it is assumed that all tubes are in place and good.)

Begin by pulling the chassis, and after looking for any obvious problems such as missing, burned, or broken parts, locate the horizontal and vertical centering controls. You will find five or six very large, wax tubular capacitors, normally .005@6kV and .001@6kV. These capacitors must be all replaced before you go any further. They are available from Antique Electronic Supply, 6221 S. Maple Ave., Tempe, AZ 85283. I know these caps are expensive, but they will have to be replaced. They cannot be checked by conventional means, due to the high voltage that is applied to them during operation.

At this point, you can apply power to the set and see what happens. Be ready to pull the plug

ELECTROSTATIC VS. MAGNETIC DEFLECTION

Early television sets used electrostatic deflection to provide the means for moving the electron beam in horizontal and vertical directions. Today's TV sets use magnetic deflection.

Electrostatic deflection is accomplished by the use of deflecting plates mounted internally at the neck of the picture tube just before it begins to flare out, as in Figure 1.

immediately if you smell anything burning. You will hear a crackling sound from the ballast as it warms up, and you may see a few wisps of smoke come from the ballast as the dust inside burns off. Don't be concerned about this.

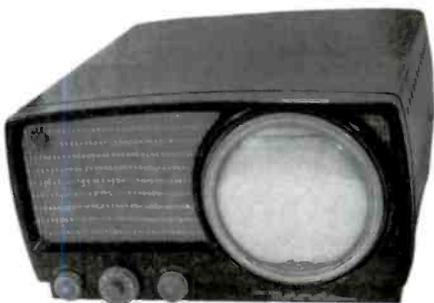

If all goes well, you should have some sort of a picture by now. Let the set play for about five minutes or so, then unplug it and feel all of the electrolytic capacitors. If any of them are getting hot, they must be replaced.

Seven-inch Motorola Television Set.

Now we can go on to the sync. (synchronizing pulse) circuits to try to obtain a stable picture. If you have a schematic of your set, it will be easy to find the circuitry associated with the vertical and horizontal oscillators. However, if no schematic is available, you can follow the wires from the hold controls to the general area of the sync. circuits.

Usually, the tube types associated with the sync. circuits will be 12SN7, 6SN7, 6SL7. Replace all of the wax capacitors in these areas, as they will most assuredly be leaky. Now check and replace any resistors that have changed in value, and you should be home free! Good luck!!

POWER SUPPLY HAZARDS - SAFETY PRECAUTIONS

A television receiver generally has two power supplies. A conventional B supply provides 300 to 400 volts at about 200 to 300 mA for the plate and screen circuits of the tubes. The high-voltage supply produces about 9,000 to 18,000 volts (9 to 18 kV) anode potential for the picture tube.

High Voltage Safety Precautions. Television receivers usually have a safety interlock that automatically disconnects the 117-volt AC power when the back cover of the set or the high-voltage-supply dust cover is removed. Since the safety interlock must be disabled temporarily in order to test a set, it is a good idea to use only one hand when any part of the receiver must be touched.

The rectifier tube plate cap in the high voltage supply is dangerous because the amount of current possible here is limited only by the resistance of the input circuit supplying the AC high voltage.

The highest DC voltage is at the rectifier filament. The high voltage can easily be removed if desired though by disabling the RF oscillator or horizontal deflection oscillator.

However, disabling the high-voltage rectifier removes just the high-voltage DC output; the AC high voltage is still present. Note that after the set is turned off, high voltage may still be present at the high-voltage filter condensers and the anode of the kinescope; these should not be touched until they have been discharged to ground.

Transformerless Power Supply Precautions. Just as with an AC/DC radio, a television set with a transformerless B supply, has the B- line, and often the chassis, connected to one side of the AC line. If you touch the chassis, you are actually touching one side of the AC line.

Our precaution for AC/DC radios (A.R.C., October 1987) applies here: "In their original wiring configurations, there is no way that the early AC/DC radios can be plugged into a utility outlet and still be totally safe. ... operational safety can be maintained [only] by using an isolation transformer."

RADIO RAMBLINGS...

A Little Common Sense

BY CRAIG BALL

I'd like to relate my personal experience as a radio collector. My motivation here is to prevent some of you from heading down the path I took — not that the path was wrong, since I did find a few nice sets; I simply got caught up with what was hot at the time and paid too much.

The year is 1976, and I am at a very cold January auction held outside in a small town in central Iowa. I ignore a few cathedrals on the ground, but in the snow is this oblong box with three big knobs on the front and five "light bulbs" inside. I don't know for sure what it is, but I've just got to have it. So just before permanent frostbite, I buy it for $50! That's a lot of money for me.

It turns out to be a Splitdorf R500 three-dial TRF. Since I'm an electronics technician, its simplicity intrigues me, and I begin to wonder if this could be the beginnings of electronics. Thus, I go out looking for more. I then discover Morgan McMahon's Vintage Radio book. This book becomes my wish book as the Wards or Sears catalogs were in my childhood.

I meet another collector who gets me to join AWA (Antique Wireless Association) and ARCA (Antique Radio Club of America). That's when I discover there are more nuts like me in the world. I go to my first radio meet. I'm in heaven! Goose bumps continually run up and down my spine. I'm on a continual high for two solid days at this meet while I'm buying until the money runs out, not really paying attention to what I'm paying for things... In the meantime, everyone else is buying, too, so the prices must be right. I want only what I see in Vintage Radio and ignore the rest. Vintage Radio becomes my Bible. Girls don't seem as important as they once were.

BATTERY SETS ARE HOT!

The next year, I go to another meet and find myself paying, like everyone else, $75 for three-dial battery sets. I hear about a radio meet held every September. I've got to go, so it's off to Canandaigua. [The AWA meet is now held in Rochester, N.Y.] I'm floored by the size of it. I pinch myself — is this real?

I soon find out that you have to be the first one at the back of the trunk when it pops open if you expect to get the good deals. It's a feeding frenzy! The most obnoxious and discourteous get the Federal or Paragon. You have to push and shove to get what you want. What animals!

The times I'm first as the trunk lid pops open are almost as bad. I pick up that Amrad. How much? . . . Wow! But, there are three other guys behind me asking to see it next. I figure if I don't buy it, one of them will. So I dig out the cash. Checks? Forget it.

Later that winter when the AWA and ARCA bulletins come out, I start calling about the numerous battery sets listed. "Sorry, just sold it a half hour ago," I hear all too often. Busy — the line has been busy for two hours... How am I ever going to get him so I can buy that Kennedy?

"Before I buy anything, I ask myself if I can turn around and sell it for what I just paid for it. If the answer is no, I walk away."

Battery sets are hot. Prices are steep. I slowly build my collection; my bank account rapidly falls.

CATHEDRALS ARE HOT!

Five years go by. Now, cathedrals are hot. The three-dialers I spent $75 apiece for don't look as interesting anymore. I now have radios stacked on radios. There are radios I can't see because they are behind other radios. I decide to sell some of the three-dialers to gain space for more. I feel lucky to get 50¢ on the dollar. Most are worth $35 instead of $75. Where did I go wrong? Even the Amrad I paid $500 for — could I get $300? — I don't know. But, thank God, I like it.

TELEVISIONS ARE HOT!

A couple of more years go by. Now cathedrals are soft; TV sets are in. I go to the meets wondering why the battery sets sit begging. I also notice the lack of good Grebes, Federals, Paragons, DeForests, Clapp-Easthams. Have they all gone to that great ether in the sky? That's where my girlfriend went (girls and old radios don't mix).

Time marches on. I have to move. Ever seen the expression on the face of the mover when a small two-bedroom 900-square-foot house fills up a semi-trailer truck? I wised up after that move. You don't need every variation of every model. Select the good sets from the major manufacturers and leave the rest. I sold slowly.

WIRELESS AND CATALINS ARE HOT!

It's 1988. I go to "Radiofest" in Elgin, Illinois, again. Been there every year since 1978. I don't believe it; there's a Marconi 106 . . . wow! How much is it? . . . six times the cost of my Amrad. Would I get six times the enjoyment out of the Marconi that I get out of the Amrad? — No. Could I sell it to someone else at that price? — No. I walk away.

I happen to go by a trunk that just pops open. There's a green marbled Emerson which I recently saw a picture of in a glossy-covered book on Catalin and mirrored radios (possibly someone else's new Bible?). I pick up the Emerson — how much? I put it down before I drop it. The guy behind me snatches it up. Three people behind him stare with glassy eyes. He digs out his money. I walk away slowly, thinking about that set I held in my hands at Canandaigua — an Amrad.

Now it's 1989. Just moved again. The move was easier this time. I still have too many radios though. You get this feeling every time you move, believe me. Should I reduce my collection to one set per major manufacturer? Yes. Will I? Do collectors ever do anything logical?

The point to all this is that radio prices go up and down just like the stock market. Whatever is hot commands the highest price. Six months later it may not be worth anything. Think about that the next time you want to spend $600 on a green Emerson or $3,000 on a Marconi.

Before I buy anything, I ask myself if I can turn around and sell it for what I just paid for it. If the answer is no, I walk away.

A better question is — can I sell it six months or three years from now for what I just paid for it. This question needs a crystal ball to answer. But a little common sense is all that's required. Still — we're all radio collectors, right? And whoever heard of common sense?

Radio Widows – A New Breed

BY TAMMY SMITH

My name is Tammy Smith... I thought I would write a short story for all the wives out there who are married to radio collectors.

I'm sure this story would hit close to home for anyone habitating with a radio buff and his collection of radios. I felt I had to share my husband's addiction with someone out there in the same boat I'm in. Some days it's the only topic of conversation in my home. Can you imagine?

Actually, I don't mind it too much, but sometimes it literally drives me CRAZY . . . Radios, radios, radios — isn't there more to life? Maybe A.R.C. can tell me; I know somewhere out there in radio land, someone has an answer.

On what seemed like a perfectly ordinary day my girlfriend came over and exclaimed, "You should see the cute little antique radio I bought my husband at a yard sale!" If we knew then what we know now, that "cute little antique radio" would still be at that yard sale.

When my husband, Randy, saw that radio, he was hooked. He started going to yard sales, flea markets, auctions, etc. It was like a fever . . . He bought home his first radio the summer of 1987; it was an Arvin. What joy!

In the beginning I didn't see any harm in the hobby. I thought to myself, "This is great; now he'll want to go with me to flea markets," since I collect antiques.

As time went by, he started bringing home a radio everytime he came home. "Hey, I found this great radio!" he would say. "It's a Crosley!!"

"What's a Crosley? What's a Catalin? What's a Sentinel? What am I doing married to this man!?" Pretty soon I had a radio in every room of my house, not just one radio, more like five or six. Our attic is packed full of "great radios." It consumes our lives. Randy has a Zenith belt buckle, a dog named Crosley and a fish named Arvin. Boy, do I get funny looks when I tell friends our puppy is named after a radio.

The thing that prompted me to tell this story, besides getting it off my chest, was the trip Randy and my girlfriend's husband took to Rochester, N. Y., for the Antique Wireless Association Conference. They left on a Thursday and returned home early Sunday morning around 3:00 AM. Randy woke me up to tell me about the three "great radios" he had found. Of course, my first thought was "Where am I gonna put them?" I personally feel he could have waited till morning to tell me this exciting news. Do you detect sarcasm in my story? Really, what's three more radios when you already have seventy-five or more piled in your house.

I am sure there are other wives out there who share the same dilemma as I, like my famous line, "If you think you're putting that radio in my living room, you're wrong!!"

But, as all you radio collectors know, "This radio is a lot better than the last one you got."

There are golf widows, football widows and hunting widows. Well ladies, it looks like we're a new breed — radio widows.

(Tammy Smith, 822 W. 7th Ave. Lancaster, OH 43130)

"This is one of Randy's radios, I don't know what it is. It's a Crosley, but that's all I know."

AUCTION REPORT

Auction of Antique Radios and Phonographs Olney, Illinois – November 4, 1990

REPORTED BY RON RAMIREZ

One hundred and eighty-four radio, TV, phonograph and telephone items were sold at an auction at Eric's Auction Service in Olney, Illinois, on November 4, 1990. According to auctioneer Eric Bruner, many of the items came from an old radio-TV repair shop in St. Louis, Missouri, which closed about twenty five to thirty years ago. Most likely, this auction was the first exclusively antique radio auction held in this area. Many collectors attended from Oklahoma, Ohio, Missouri, Kentucky, Indiana, and of course, Illinois, after seeing an advertisement in the November 1990 issue of A.R.C. a few days before.

Highlights of the sale included an Atwater Kent Model 10 breadboard in excellent condition which sold for $800, and two Edison cylinder phonographs which sold for $360 and $350.

BOOK REVIEW

The Vibroplex Co., Inc. 1890 to 1990

By William R. Holly, K1BH

REVIEWED BY GIL SCHLEHMAN

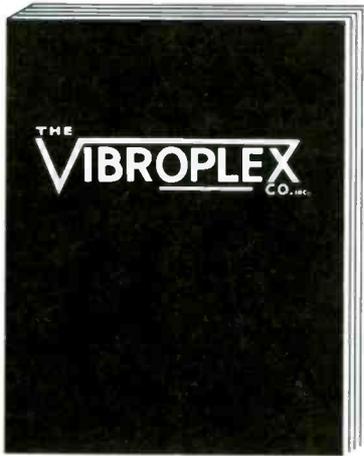

At long last, a book on Vibroplex and its keys has been published. The Vibroplex Co. 1890-1990 by Bill Holly, K1BH, has finally put it all together under one cover. Bill's in-depth research has produced what is sure to become the bible of Vibroplex collecting. It is complete with pictures of every model and label ever made or known to exist today.

In addition, many advertisements from various journals have been reproduced and documented chronologically with the proper references noted. Many pages of patent material and sketches have also been included.

Pictures of many other instruments show how the bug — a semi-automatic telegraph key — and Vibroplex evolved. There are even pictures of the present day crew at Vibroplex and of one of the machine shops. Vibroplex also produced several radios, and a picture of one of them, as well as some advertising literature, is included.

I have known Bill Holly for a number of years and have had extensive conversations with him about his research for this book. When he says that he has spent his summers prowling through various libraries and historical societies, you can believe him. Having contemplated writing my own book one day, I was surprised at the effort such an undertaking involved. The only words I can say for the book are "First Class!"

In the 1960's and 1970's, I was an avid CW operator who operated the ham bands chasing DX and other contest type events. I built up my code speed to unheard of levels. I found myself trying every new bug I could find at the flea markets and hamfests in order to get just one more word per minute out of my fist. Being from the old school, I wouldn't allow a newfangled electronic keyer in the house.

Eventually two things became apparent. First, there just wasn't a bug better than the Vibroplex, and second, I had amassed quite a collection of weird bugs. I hadn't started out collecting bugs, or speed keys as they are called, but woke up one day with a collection staring at me. Since I am curious by nature, I set out to see how many I could come up with.

Twenty-five years later, I have collected over 180 different bugs.

I have fielded countless questions from collectors as to the possible age of a bug, or how the Mecograph Co. worked its way into the Vibroplex history. A lot of guess work and speculation gave me an idea of the evolution of the Vibroplex, but no history was available in journal form. Furthermore, Vibroplex burned to the ground at least once in its history. The Norcross story and the Martin story have always baffled me, for lack of any good information. Bill Holly's book has cleared up a lifetime of questions.

The Vibroplex Co., Inc. 1890 to 1990 has 104 pages, 92 illustrations and 24 full-page patent drawings. It is priced at $29.95 (pre-publication price — $19.95) in soft cover and may be ordered from Vibroplex, 98 Elm St., Portland, ME 04101, or by calling 1-800-262-8387.

Vibroplex Collector's Guide

By Tom French, W2IMQ

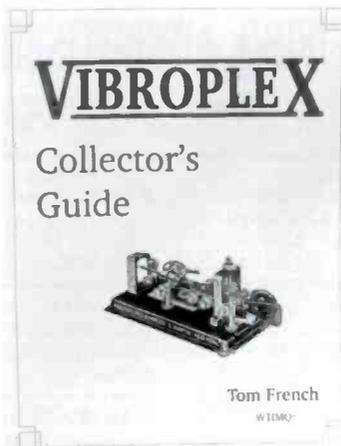

REVIEWED BY LUDWELL SIBLEY

This volume takes on three tasks: the history of the Vibroplex Company, which still exists after eighty-six years; the patents of Horace G. Martin, the company's main source of new designs; and the company's product line over the years. It does a creditable job at all three. The patent orientation is a unifying theme, since the company's competitive position was tied to protection of design innovations. Ten patents are reproduced in the book, with the considerable labor of recreating the text afresh rather than reproducing the usual smudgy copies from microfilm. The models are detailed, from Autoplex to Zephyr.

As for using the book to identify particular models: the descriptive text is straightforward, so it was no problem to pull a scruffy flea-market key out of the basement and identify it as an "original." The book stops short of giving a simple chart of features, which would have condensed the identification part considerably. However, it offers numerous old-time Vibroplex ads and present-day photos to supplement the written descriptions.

This is an informative, crisply printed study of interest to both amateur CW enthusiasts and landline equipment collectors.

Vibroplex Collector's Guide, 1990, has 88 pages and 45 illustrations, and is softbound in 8 1/2 x 11 format. It is priced at $14.95 and is available from Artifax Books, Box 88, Maynard, MA 01754, and from Antique Electronic Supply, 6221 South Maple Ave., Tempe, AZ 85283.

A Book is Conceived — Crystal Clear: Vintage American Crystal Sets, Crystal Detectors and Crystals

BY MAURICE (MAURY) SIEVERS

The first phase in writing a book, as with most procreation, is an encounter with a specific "object of affection" — a falling in love. It began for me when I became enamored of crystal sets about twenty years ago. Then, the courtship began.

Every Lothario has his "little black book" — a comprehensive listing of his expanding romantic interests. My equivalent equipment for recording the names and other important details about the objects of my infatuation — crystal sets — was a supply of 3" x 5" file cards and file cases.

In the early stages of wooing, I was a reluctant suitor. Did I really want to enter into a serious long-term relationship? Was I truly enchanted by the thought of writing a book on crystal sets?

Finally — oh, it slipped up on me gradually eight to ten or more years ago — I was "hooked." After an agonizing period of consideration as to whether I should enter into such a commitment, I "took the plunge," and I proposed. I proposed actually writing the book.

But still, even after that seemingly irreversible decision, I had strong waves of doubt — the malady of "cold feet." Gradually, however, I attained the serenity that comes from the conviction that this is a reasonable choice for the dedication of a large segment of my life. And then, I became firmly wedded.

Books, as you may know, have a long gestation period — not that the interval from conception to birth is the same for all books. Most expectant authors do all they reasonably can to assure that their gestating book will attain a healthy maturity before its birth. Premature delivery can be disastrous. For my book on crystal sets, the interval between fertilization and delivery is expected to be five or more years — more than twice the gestation period of an elephant.

Quite some time after conception, when it became evident that the development of my book would proceed, I realized that I would need professional help for the delivery. I was pleased that The Vestal Press agreed to provide the prenatal, "birthing," and postnatal care.

Any offspring, of course, should have an appropriate name. I've selected the title Crystal Clear: Vintage American Crystal Sets, Crystal Detectors and Crystals.

The considerable encouragement I've received during this gestation period from several collectors is greatly appreciated.

Although parenthood, or authorship, can be very satisfying, I am under no delusion that being a parent is without problems. My "perfect" creation could have imperfections. But, I am optimistically and enthusiastically awaiting the birth of a book that I expect to be beautiful in appearance and substantive in content.

MESSAGE: Attention: Collectors of disc cutting equipment and disc cutting hobby/enthusiasts: We are gearing up for production of hobby grade home recording discs, metal and fiber base, in all of the popular sizes. We need your help in determining what will best suit the needs of the avid disc recording hobbyist. Please, send us a letter detailing your activities. How many discs do you use over a period of say, a month? What size discs do you prefer? How much would you reasonably expect to pay for new metal base discs with drive hole? What are your thoughts on fiber discs or other ideas? Those old disc recorders need not be static conversation pieces. We can revive this hobby, but it will require a collective effort. The time to act is now, while the technology is still available. Look forward to hearing from you. Tracy Sands, c/o Vintage Technology, PO Box 2425-119, Anaheim, CA 92814-2425

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING POLICY

ONE FREE 20-WORD AD for subscribers in each issue; additional words are 15¢ each. See details below. Classified ads must be received (not just postmarked!) by noon on the ad deadline. Late ads are held for the following issue. Please enclose correct payment with all ads. Stamps or cash are OK for small amounts. (Canadian and other foreign advertisers, please see "Payment" on page two for methods.) "Free words" cannot be accumulated from month to month; free words must be requested when ad is submitted.

Please write each ad on a separate sheet of paper, especially when included with other A.R.C. correspondence. Include SUB# with ad. Ads may be sent in advance; but, write each ad on a separate piece of paper and indicate the month (or successive two months) you want the ad to run.

Please write legibly and use both capital and small letters. Do not use dashes between words. Some numbers and letters can look alike, for example 1, l and I (the number one, the capital i and the small L.) Write the following characters clearly (especially in model numbers): 1, l and I; 0, O, o, Q and D; r and n; 6, b and G; V, U, u, v and Y; A and R; 5, S and s; 2, Z and z. We try to correct spelling errors, so when using an uncommon word or manufacturer which looks similar to a common word or manufacturer, note it so that we do not "correct" it. Editor's comments are in [brackets].

Advertising is accepted only for early items related to radio, communication, electricity, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be identified as such. Advertisers agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, and to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisfied.

Publisher reserves the right to edit ads without notification to the advertiser and to reject ads for any reason. Publisher is not responsible for errors due to illegibly written ads or for any other reason. Since club activities receive free advertising on the Coming Radio Events page, the free 20 words may not be used for club activity ads. See inside front cover for additional information.

CLASSIFIED AD DETAILS

Deadline: 10th of the month!

Classified ads must have a standard heading such as WANTED, FOR SALE, FOR TRADE, FOR SALE/TRADE, SERVICES, MESSAGE, HELP, AUCTION, MEET, etc. This heading is the only bold or all-capitalized words allowed in the ad. Capitalize only manufacturer names, model names, etc. Wanted and For Sale ads are mixed together to encourage the reading of all ads, including the Wanted ads. This standard ad format makes scanning the ads easier.

Before writing your ad, please look over the ads in a recent issue of A.R.C., and try to write your ad in the same style. Full name and address is required in all classified ads; we will add it if you forget.

To encourage varied content of the ads, the same classified ad may be run only once per issue and for only two consecutive months. (To run an ad longer, use a boxed classified or display ad.)

Classified Ad Rates per Month

Subscribers:

First 20 words: FREE

15¢ per word for extra words over 20 plus

10¢ per word for a shaded ad (count all words including free words).

* Subscribers may take 20 free words on only one ad each month.

Non-Subscribers:

30¢ per word plus

10¢ per word for shaded ad.

Please do not forget to send in the extra 15¢ per word when your classified ad runs over the free 20 words; your payment will be appreciated, and it will help to keep A.R.C. healthy.

BOXED CLASSIFIED AD DETAILS

Deadline: 5th of the month!

Boxed classified ads can run unchanged for three months or more. No words are free. Ads may be shaded and may include bold and all-capitalized words freely. The ad need not begin with For Sale, etc. Minimum run is 3 months, prepaid.

Boxed Classified Ad Rates per Month

Nonshaded ads:

25¢ per word for all words,* none free, plus

10¢ per word for each bold word plus

10¢ per word for each all-caps word.

Shaded Ads (All words are bold at no charge):

35¢ per word for all words* plus

10¢ per word for each all-caps word.

Non-Subscribers:

Add 20¢ per word to above costs.

*Three words can be bold-all-caps at no extra charge.

Deadline: 5th of the month for classified and boxed classified ads with drawings or photos!

Drawings and photos are encouraged as the response to your ad is much larger and the reader knows better what you want or are selling. Send in your drawing or photograph, and A.R.C. will reduce it or enlarge it as needed.

$8.00 per month for each photo or drawing

(If ad is canceled, this amount cannot always be refunded.)

CHANGES & CANCELSATIONS

Please check your ads carefully before sending them in. Once ads are received, it is not always possible to refund the amount sent, pull the ad or make changes.

IMPORTANT — COUNTING WORDS — IMPORTANT

The standard headings: WANTED, FOR SALE, etc., count as one word each time used in an ad. Name, address and (one) telephone number, count as 6 words, regardless of length. Ham call letters and business name can be included in the 6 words and do not count extra. Full name and address is required in all classified ads — it does not cost extra! Each additional word, abbreviation, model number or number group, extra telephone numbers, etc. count as one word. Hyphenated words count as two words.
