DISPLAY AND BUSINESS CARD ADS - DETAILS AND RATES

The deadline is the first of the month for display and business card ad artwork, payment and repeat requests.

Advertising is accepted only for early items related to radio, communication, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be so identified. Advertising must be prepaid, except as noted below; see "Payment" paragraph above for details. Late ads will be run only if space and time permit. Since artwork is reduced to 63% in the printing process, originals must be the artwork size listed below. Do not send in artwork on art board or send negatives. Ads should be typeset or typed neatly with a carbon ribbon, black ink (not pencil) on white. If used, reverse type must be limited to 25% of the ad. If you want us to prepare your ad, include the one-time cost below for A.R.C. to make up the ad.

Photos should be at an 85-line screen; otherwise, add $12.00 per photo for screening. Do not cut or trim photos or glue photos to artwork; submit separately.

EDITOR'S COMMENTS

Whatever the reason — April Fool's Day, a touch of spring between snowstorms — somehow the April issue lends itself to a touch of lighter fare. We begin with radio entertainment, which is one of the reasons old radios are still around to collect.

As our mysterious cover suggests, "The Shadow" and other characters like him revolutionized home entertainment in the 1930s and 1940s. Radio created a magical "theater of the mind." Geoffrey Brittingham's illustrations and Fred Geer's story remind us of those exciting times when we sat rapt in front of the radio listening to Terry and the Pirates, Amos and Andy, Fibber McGee and Molly, or any of hundreds of other radio shows.

Fred and Geoffrey's presentation may inspire both young and old collectors to make radio show recordings an integral part of their displays. Listening to an old show could be a new form of entertainment for your guests.

Another of Ron Boucher's Gridley's Radio Shop cartoons fits well into the lighter tone of an April issue.

Did you know that Harman Kardon, the high fidelity manufacturer, had roots back in the "3-dialer" days of radio? After Mike Parker found a Kardon TRF battery set at a radio meet in 1989, he wondered about a possible connection. His curiosity led him on a 4-year adventure resulting in a well researched, significant article on Kardon history.

Hum in A.C. sets is sometimes very difficult to correct, and Chester Gehman tells a story of one of his most difficult hum challenges. A good technical article like this one reminds repairers that persistence pays in the search for an elusive solution.

In Radio Ramblings..., Gerald Schneider contributes his thoughts on dealers and the "feeding frenzies" at meets. We hope that his comments will trigger more feedback on these topics from our readers.

Once again the Estes auctioneers report on a remarkable auction, this one grossing $32,000. Several not-often-seen sets were included: the RCA Radiola RS (a Radiola Sr. with a 1-tube amplifier), a Radiola Grand (a 4-tube set in a lift-top phonograph-style cabinet), and a Federal Jr. crystal set.

Photo Review this month includes sets from the 1920s to the 1950s. A 1-tube Tri-City set is shown as well as a 20-tube portable television set from 1949. And a late 1930s Wurlitzer radio, built into a table, is "out-of-sight." (See our January 1991 issue for other "out-of-sight" sets.)

issue of A.R.C. Apparently, the set also was sold by Howard Radio. Hints and a question on restoration, as well as comments and suggestions about A.R.C., appear on our Radio Miscellanea page. The hundreds of comments that we receive each month give us the opportunity to print a representative selection from time to time.

The Eliminator. To continue the "lighter fare," once again the publishers of The Eliminator have chosen Antique Radio Classified to print their annual parody on the radio collecting scene. In addition to Dr. Radio's regular column of restoration hints, The Eliminator research staff has included an exciting find — an advertisement for the National Radio Collecting Institute. Both old and new collectors might find this correspondence course helpful.

Charles Muller's interesting article on the Phule Lamp Co.'s duo-tube seemed to be an appropriate addition to The Eliminator section.

The Eliminator staff is accepting contributions for next year's edition, so send your contributions to either A.R.C. or the A.C. Radio Renegades, 3426 Coldstream Ct., Lexington, KY 40517.

Our Tenth Year. Founded in 1984, Antique Radio Classified is about to celebrate ten years of growth and achievement. A special 10th anniversary issue is planned for June, and readers are invited to contribute comments, letters and articles for possible inclusion in this issue. The deadline is April 20, so get out your pencil and tell us how A.R.C. has affected your collecting and radio life in the last ten years.

Radio Events. Nearly three dozen old radio collecting events tempt the collector this month; two are 3-day events, both occurring from April 29 to May 1. The first is the 15th annual show in Houston, Texas, which includes auctions, a contest, a banquet and a flea market. The second, the Dayton, Ohio, Hamvention, is the largest of the hundreds of amateur radio events each year in the U. S. With nearly 300 indoor exhibitors and 2,600 outdoor flea market spaces, this meet draws over 35,000 attendees, and yes, old radios are to be found there. A.R.C. and a number of other A.R.C. advertisers will be at Dayton. We, along with New Wireless Pioneers, will be at inside booths #206 and #207. Stop by and say, "Hi!"

Happy collecting.

ON THE COVER

Geoffrey Brittingham's illustrations, inspired by the early days of radio, appear both on our cover and on page 5. Although not a collector, Geoffrey likes to portray old radios in his work — a definite plus for A.R.C. We gratefully acknowledge Geoffrey's contribution to this issue.

VINTAGE BROADCASTING

The Golden Age of Radio Entertainment The Pre-Video Days of Theater of the Mind

BY FRED GEER

ILLUSTRATIONS BY GEOFFREY BRITTINGHAM

In August 1993, A.R.C. was surprised and delighted to receive in the mail Geoffrey Brittingham's radio-related illustrations. They came with the explanation that, although Geoffrey is not a collector, he loves the way old radios look and often uses them in his work as an illustrator. In an inspired moment, we remembered Fred Geer's vast collection of old radio shows. Fred, a regular contributor to A.R.C., was happy to write on one of his favorite topics. And thus, we have a good example of the fun we have putting A.R.C. articles together. [Editor]

As I lay on the floor, the wondrous Theater of the Mind came to life in the dim orange glow of my radio's dial. Words flowed from its loudspeaker, painting pictures in my mind. I heard the words, "Who knows what evil lurks in the hearts of men?" A darkly shrouded, misty figure, who in the Orient had learned invisibility by clouding men's minds, flashed across the stage of my theater. "The Shadow" was on the air! I saw him with my imagination.

Radio entertainment exercises that imagination with word pictures. It does not rely on the twisted interpretations of others, as does television. Radio plays are no more gory than your own past experience.

Radio shows sold radios! There are many explanations about why radio show recordings were made. Sponsors wanted a copy for their files, or a radio station wanted to broadcast a show at a later time. Beginning in the late 1920s, many network broadcasts were saved on 33 1/3 rpm, 16" disks or on 78 rpm, 12" disks. Had it not been for disk recording, all the shows would be lost in space.

With the advent of television, great libraries of radio shows went to various places like U.C.L.A. and the Library of Congress. Station members or engineers saved discarded disks also.

My interest in old radio shows began seventeen years ago when I first heard Bill Sabis' weekly two-hour Theater of the Mind on a Gainesville, Florida, FM station. I soon built a special "cut to frequency" antenna that brought the station in like a local. Now reception was so good that I could make first class recorded copies of the old shows.

THE GOLDEN AGE

Newspapers of the 1920s illustrate that radio's first ten years were experimental. Nevertheless, it was still exciting to tune in to voices miles away delivering a dry talk or to hear the local "canary" warbling a hit song. Then in 1926, NBC's red and blue networks expanded their programming. More professional talent was affordable, thus giving the nation access to the best in music and drama.

At the dawn of radio's "Golden Age," live music made up 95 percent of network broadcasting. That is why Amos and Andy, a comedy series, took the nation by storm. In 1931, people tuned to NBC at 7 and 11 P.M. EST just to hear their antics. Movie theater owners began to equip theaters with radios, fearing people would stay home just to hear Amos and Andy. CBS produced Flying Stories, True Detective Mysteries, and True Story House to break up the all-music format.

Radio's "Golden Age" began when radio plays, drama, soap operas, and news took precedence over music. By the mid-1930s, networks were producing all kinds of programs. Can you imagine a half hour of Fred Astaire tap dancing? Most enduring radio shows were daytime soap operas, comedy and variety shows — all produced with word pictures. No, we did not all sit mesmerized, staring at the radio, as we do at TV.

HOOKED ON RADIO AT AN EARLY AGE

An older boy down the street showed me how to tune in to Terry and the Pirates. He wanted me to listen so we could playact like the characters on the radio. We even constructed a periscope with a cardboard tube and two compact mirrors. Now we could spy on imagined enemies. I don't know how Mom put up with all the distorted sound effects used on our kiddie show. Little did she realize her five year old son was hooked on radio for life.

Radio covered every aspect of entertainment. But as a child, my favorite programs were 15-minute serials. Living across the street from school had some advantages. Recess and a full hour for lunch let me hear daytime soap operas.

From 10 A.M. to 6 P.M., the four networks deluged the airwaves with 15-minute programs marketing a better life to the housewife — entertaining her as she went about her self-imposed tasks, selling her new ideas and products! Aunt Jenny gave recipes. Kate Smith sang and told the news. Helen Trent searched for love even though she was over 35. Our Gal Sunday was looking for happiness. Ma Perkins, with her trials and tribulations, passed on her philosophy in the little lumbering town of Rushville Center.

One program dominates any discussion of old radio shows — Orson Wells' Mercury Theater Production of War of the Worlds, broadcast on Halloween, October 31, 1938. Its opening music format was interrupted for a fake newscast that informed listeners that a New Jersey town had been invaded by Martians. Many who tuned in late thought they were listening to dance band music and believed the fake newscast. All hell broke loose in listeners' minds across America. Today, this classic is a rather long, drab experience.

A 15-minute program had about seven to nine minutes of story, and the rest was the sponsor's time, less the opening and closing signatures. Selling the sponsor's product took five to six minutes. Ovaltine, Little Orphan Annie's sponsor and still sold today, cashed in with this unique sales approach.

In 1931, Little Orphan Annie's writers incorporated into the story line an image of Annie using a "Sebring" pottery mug to make her Ovaltine. Now, wouldn't you know, when the sponsor got his hands on the mike, he told you how you could get a mug? A mere twenty-five cents in coin brought you a three-day supply of Ovaltine and one of Annie's mugs.

A BOX TOP AND A DIME

After-school programs were The Lone Ranger, Superman, Captain Midnight, Terry and the Pirates, Jack Armstrong the All-American Boy, Tom Mix and Space Patrol. A box top and ten cents in coin could get a Saturn ring that glowed in the dark or a Tom Mix siren ring whose brass construction turned your finger green. Superman fans got a model war plane in every box of Kellogg's Pep. Secret message decoders were a big seller because at the end of each thrilling episode a secret message would be sent. Only those with the decoder would know what would happen next. (A perfect example is a scene from the 1983 movie "A Christmas Story.")

The few radio premiums that I ordered took an eternity arriving. Seems like the word picture painted by the sponsor was always more dramatic than the actual object held in my little hand. Strange how imagined word pictures could get out of control in the dim orange glow cast by my radio's dial light.

TEN "MUST-HEAR" SHOWS

A list of "must-hear" old radio shows includes the following: the serial Lights Out!, with the episodes "Drop Dead!" or "The Worms"; any James Stewart show such as The Six Shooter, Sam Spade Detective with Howard Duff; Quiet Please — Thing on the Fourble Board, Dimension X — There Will Come Soft Rain; Escape — Leinungen vs. the Ants, a word picture of biting ants. Other must-hear shows are any Fibber McGee and Molly show; Suspense — On A Country Road, November 16, 1950; X Minus One — Starbright, April 10, 1956; and CBS Workshop — Fourteen Hundred Eighty-Nine Words.

Fred Geer's radio collecting began in 1953 with a Shure microphone and a 1929 console, the RCA R-32. Several years ago, he noted a missing link in his 300+ collection — the radio shows that made radio. He now owns around 2,000 old-time programs, which he can broadcast to any radio in the house. Through his articles, he enjoys sharing various aspects of collecting and radio history.

"Antique Radio Classified" invites its readers to contribute letters and information for inclusion in "Radio Miscellanea" and elsewhere in the magazine. The topic should be of general interest and sent to A.R.C., P.O. Box 2, Carlisle, MA 01741. Restoration Tip

Dear Editor:

Here's a restoration tip for weathered-looking Zenith Trans-Oceanics: Get them nice, black, and satin shiny again with black shoe polish and polish the leatherette finish just a little, as you would your shoes. My H500 came out great! Hope you find this tip worth printing.

On Plastic Repair and Pot Metal

Dear Editor:

Dwight Baker (A.R.C. March 1994) mentions plastic parts which appear to have "melted." This and other similar effects are well known to collectors of telephones and toys, which tend to have a lot of plastic parts in them. While some plastic materials remain dimensionally stable (e.g. Bakelite), others, such as cellulose acetate, can start to bend like a banana or even dissolve in the atmosphere. The cradle forks of some British telephones were moulded in a form of black celluloid at one period and these were very prone to dribbling away. Sadly, there is very little collectors can do except look for similar parts which have not deteriorated. I don't think there is anything you can do to reverse the process.

Recently, you also had some correspondence on pot metal (A.R.C. Feb. 1994). We call it mazak or zamak over here in England. The mazak disease is well known among collectors of diecast cars and HO-gauge trains and can be heartbreaking. Sometimes it causes diecast parts to crack or contort, other times to become so brittle that they self-destruct to small pieces and grey dust in your fingers. I remember taking a rare item in mint condition out of its box, and it just crumbled in my hands — and the store owner forced me to pay for it! Mazak was even used to make gears and pinions in models, and, of course, there is no way you can straighten these once they have distorted.

The root cause was definitely impurities in the original mix of zinc and other metals. The story one oldtimer told me was that the workers tossed the silver paper from their packets of cigarettes into the melt, thinking that every bit of metal helped.

Bakelite Repair Info Sought

Dear Editor:

I recently acquired a 1920s battery set which has a hole drilled in the front Bakelite panel. Does anyone know how to repair it? Any information would be greatly appreciated.

Readers Comment about A.R.C.

A selection of letters received:

Dear Editor:

I have been reading with interest the complaints about the rate hikes. My thoughts are that considering the specialized nature of the publication, the amount of work that goes into compiling all of the ads every month, and the costs of publishing, the magazine is a bargain. On top of all that, the ads that I have submitted have been run on time and without error. Keep up the good work.

Jon D. Andreasen, Newton, NJ

Dear Editor:

Although I really enjoy your publication, and have for years, when my subscription runs out next year, I will not renew due to the high cost. I hope you are able to find a way to reduce the cost before then.

Steve Pazar, Santa Rosa, CA

Dear Editor:

Thank you very much! I enjoy the magazine just the way it is. Don't let comments about nit-picky things get you down. Page for page, A.R.C. is hands down the best source of information about our hobby, at a price that is fair when compared to other specialty magazines. I especially like the recent evolution of the "Radio Miscellanea" column as a forum for the exchange of ideas which, even if controversial, touch on issues which need to be addressed if our hobby is to mature.

Michael Datzell, Bensalem, PA

Dear Editor:

I share some of the remarks by those complaining of the ever increasing cost of your publication, since I am on Social Security. However, in relation to almost every other cost, the increase doesn't seem unjustified.

At age eighty, I have moved out most of my precious antiques, but the articles and the ads in the magazine bring me much pleasure, as I relive the early days of my radio experiences.

Again, congratulations on the apparent success and growth of A.R.C., and thanks for bringing this service to so many needy collectors.

Wes Chatellier, Baton Rouge, LA

A few more comments from readers:

... Enclosed find 2-year renewal. Your articles make the "high" price worthwhile! Dick Parks, Arlington, VA

... I am enclosing my check for what I hope is the correct amount. If it is more than enough, keep it. I enjoy A.R.C. and am in awe of what a good job you do. (Mrs.) Billie McBride, Redwood City, CA

... Many thanks. Fine magazine. I'm only sorry I didn't discover it earlier. Stanley Siegel, New York, NY

... Just a word of praise — each time I've run an advertisement in A.R.C. I have been able to find what I was searching for. Thanks! Chris Russo, Sea Bright, NJ

WITH THE COLLECTORS

The Kardon Radio Story

BY MIKE PARKER

One of the more fascinating aspects of radio collecting, is researching the history of each set acquired. Questions arise such as "Who made this radio?...Where and when was it made?...Why do I like it?..."etc. The many recent books by various authors within our hobby have been a great help. Knowledge is also gained through a strong monthly publication like A.R.C.

One of my pastimes is collecting and restoring to operation seldom-seen brands of factory-made radios of the 1920s and 1930s. In my research, when I have asked the "experts" for advice, I have gotten many dead-end answers. This kind of response just adds to the mystery, and can be as exciting as making the radios play again. Of course the "experts" cannot be blamed. Information about many odd brand radios may never be discovered. The field is wide open for research!

I was never a serious radio collector until attending a Northwest Vintage Radio Society (NWVRS) swap meet, in November of 1989. Among the items for sale was the somewhat ordinary looking 3-dial 1920s battery set shown in Figure 1. The lift top was up, and the green spiderweb coils, the tuning condensers, and the silver balloon-shaped tubes caught my eye. The shiny black front panel was simply engraved with the word "Carnival" in the lower right corner. Closer inspection of the cabinet revealed excellent craftsmanship inside, where the legend "Kardon Trade Mark, New York" was etched.

Kardon was a familiar name associated with many fine audio products. I began to ask myself a couple of those "questions": "Did the Harman Kardon Company evolve from radios that the Kardon

Company made in the 1920s?...and..."Was this really a company with a lineage traceable to the early days of radio production?"

I could think of nothing else but that radio set for the rest of the swap meet. The radio did not sell at the meet, and I was undecided about buying it. However, I ended up chasing the owner home after the meet and buying the set!

ON THE KARDON TRAIL

Curiosity finally got the best of me, and I wrote a letter to Sidney Harman of Harman International, describing the radio and posing my questions about the company's history. After a while, I received a letter thanking me for my interest, and saying that he would forward my letter to his old ex-partner, Bernard Kardon.

About a month went by, and in the meantime, I found another Kardon battery set in a local antique store. This was also a 5-tube, 3-dial TRF called a "Kardonstrip," shown in Figure 2, which utilizes brass strip and rivet construction. I marveled at how more than one of these obscure New York radios could have ended up out here in Portland, Oregon! So I bought it and have not found another Kardon since, although I am always looking.

Not long after that, I received a letter from Bernard Kardon, a registered Professional Engineer from New Rochelle, New York. Yes, he was the Kardon of Harman Kardon fame and was very curious about the fact that I possessed and was interested in radios made in the 1920s by his father, Peter Kardon.

Upon placing an ad for Kardon info in A.R.C., I soon heard from Alan Douglas, creator of the excellent series, Radio Manufacturers of the 1920's. Alan didn't have much Kardon info, but very generously sent me copies of Kardon's radio activities from 1924 to 1926, outlined in the trade publication, Radio Retailing and Jobber. He also sent me copies of a 1923 Kardon booklet written by R.P. Clarkson advertising radio kit parts and audio transformers with recommended "hook-ups." See Figure 3.

I then forwarded copies of this information to Bernard Kardon, along with photos of my Kardon sets, and waited for his reply. He soon wrote back flabbergasted that a young [?] collector on the West Coast was interested in the Kardon family history. This prompted Kardon to do a complete biography on his father, a project that took several months. His recollections and those of other family members surfaced. Many early family photos, including the one shown in Figure 4, as well as anecdotes about Peter Kardon's manufacturing endeavors, were discovered. Bernard Kardon and his wife Anna were declared family heroes for making this effort, and I was declared an honorary family hero for providing the impetus to this research!

In November 1992, I received a call from Mr. Kardon saying that he and his wife were flying to Seattle, renting an auto, and driving through Portland, Oregon, en route to California to visit relatives. He said that they would like to stop and visit, look over the Kardon radios, and take my wife, Candice, and me out to dinner. Of course, we obliged and had a delightful time.

Later, as we looked at the under-chassis side of "Pop's Freshman Masterpiece Clone," Mr. Kardon remarked that he remembered at age 9 assembling the Kardon audio transformers, shown in Figure 5. He and his brother Nate were paid a penny a transformer! The total earned was $9, paid by check and given to Mom for "safekeeping"! Often, the whole family would sit around the kitchen table and assemble radio parts.

Much to my sorrow, Bernard Kardon died on April 14, 1993. I am proud to have known him. He perpetuated the independent, inventive qualities of his father. I have learned from this experience that much knowledge can be gathered by contacting the right people and being persistent but patient. Asking the right questions stimulates interest and leads to a deeper understanding.

PETER KARDON 1886-1948

Born Piotr Kardonsky, May 13, 1886, in Odessa, Russia, Peter Kardon, pictured in Figure 6, attended a machinist trade school in Odessa and became a toolmaker. In 1905, at age 19, he emigrated to America.

Figure 5. The Kardon audio transformer, Unit No. 604, the kind Bernard Kardon assembled at age 9 for a penny each.

He settled in Elizabeth, New Jersey, and worked as a special machinist for the Singer Sewing Machine Company. In 1909, he met and married his wife Sarah, and they had five children in the next seven years — Frances, Nathan, Bernard, Bessie and Leonard.

Peter finally left Singer and worked in the linotype business. Later, he joined the Underwood Typewriter Company where he was credited for many improvements in the product line.

By 1915, Peter had opened his own business, Premier Special Machine and Tool Co., located on Canal Street in New York City. During World War I, he landed a large contract making rifle chamber gauges. After the war, Peter and some partners went into the business of manufacturing typewriters, only to lose all in the 1921 financial crash.

At that time, radio broadcasting was booming, and Peter became very interested in the new technology. He joined the Bronx Radio Club, read everything available, and began building his own radios, earning a reputation to be reckoned with.

He experimented with auto radio installation, fitting the works into the car complete with rotating loop on the roof. However, he was stymied by the ignition noise and soon gave the idea up.

By 1923, he had set up his own radio company, Kardon Products Inc., which built subassemblies and audio transformers and sold radio kits. He rented a loft at 101 Varick Street, New York City, but the family worked at home also. He soon found fierce competition in this business and forged ahead technically by designing his own superheterodyne receiver.

In 1924, he began manufacturing complete radio sets and moved to larger quarters at 451 Greenwich St., New York City. There, he started building "Kompentrol" 8-tube superhets, in addition to TRF sets. He later switched to the 3-dial "Carnival" TRF model. The reasons for this switch were twofold: first, to cash in on the recent success of the new Freshman Masterpiece 3-dial, and second, to settle a lawsuit.

As an article in Radio Retailing and Jobber of August 1925 states, "Kardon sold one superhet and got sued!" The story was that Kardon had abandoned the manufacture of superheterodyne receivers sometime before a Westinghouse "spy" dropped into the factory to purchase one of the surplus superhets. At the time, both Westinghouse and RCA were well known for initiating legal proceedings against any company manufacturing superhet receivers. Peter Kardon suddenly found himself being sued for alleged patent infringement. In turn, Peter filed a counterclaim for $25,000 in losses he had suffered in the development of his discontinued version of their carefully guarded radio circuit. In the end, Westinghouse dropped the suit.

By September 1925, Kardon Products was in bankruptcy, but Peter, undaunted, had designed the new "Kardonstrip" TRF set using riveted brass or bronze strips, which eliminated some wiring and soldering. The $35 set was manufactured for $7 and jobbed for $12. Peter also designed unusual lever-operated rheostats that moved in horizontal front panel slots.

Although Peter had applied for patents on the strip construction, this method was soon imitated by others, and infringement suits were discussed but never initiated.

Early in 1926, Peter joined with James L. Dixon of Tobacco Products Corp. Initially called the Kardon Radio Corp., the company started production in a new factory at 294 E. 137th Street, The Bronx, New York. Soon, the Dixon Syndicate took full control and changed the name to Diva Radio Corp. Figure 7 shows a Diva De Luxe No. 999 as featured in a typical Diva ad claiming that this set is the "World's Largest Medium Priced Radio." Later, Kardon bowed out of the company after a financial dispute with Dixon.

Diva continued into 1927 making the Kardon-strip model with a new front panel. Two other TRF models were also made, one of which was designed by Peter with unique plug-in components. It was clearly ahead of its time. The Diva line of radios used Peter's strip construction, shown in Figure 8. None sold well, and Diva was out of business by the 1927-28 season.

Peter, soured by the radio business, was still not discouraged with the technology. He went on to build amplifiers and sound installations for the new talking movie industry. He became a Loftin-White licensee and did well until Western Electric dominated this field.

During the early years of the Depression, Peter and some friends had gone into the distressed merchandise business, with a store located, once again, on Canal Street, New York City. He stayed in this business until the late 1930s and became famous for moving many types of goods. The rumor was that Peter had known A. Atwater Kent from the earlier radio days, and that, around 1936, Kent sold much of his factory test equipment to Kardon for liquidation.

Around 1940, Peter went back to his first love, a machine shop. He again used the "Premier" name — this time, the Premier Instrument Corp. He soon landed several defense contracts and during World War II made gun cartridge dies. Later, unknowingly, he made classified radar parts contracted through Philco. Peter used a unique method of hardening precision steel parts by dropping them through a high frequency RF coil into a quenching bath.

Peter and his son Bernard worked on a contract for the U.S. Army Signal Corps manufacturing cold weather cameras; thus, the Kardon camera was born. Arriving late in the war years, many of these cameras bearing the Kardon name were sold outside the military. Peter's son-in-law, Irving Gross, refined the camera, which sold until 1954.

By 1947, Peter Kardon was in ill health and died at home on Christmas Day in 1948.

BERNARD KARDON — 1914-1993

Bernard Peterson Kardon, pictured in Figure 9, was born January 8, 1914, in New York City, where he was raised with two brothers and two sisters. He was an adventuresome child and showed an interest in science at an early age. By 1923, he looked forward to Saturdays when he and his brother Nathan would travel to their father's radio factory and assemble parts. Afterward they would complete the day by going to a restaurant for dinner. Thus began a working relationship with his father, Peter, which continued for all of their years together.

Bernard married Anna Jaffee on December 8,

1933. In time, they had a son, Joshua, and a daughter, Emily, both now living in California.

Bernard Kardon studied engineering at Cooper Union, but quit before getting a degree. He went to work for the David Bogen Co., well known makers of audio and intercom equipment, and soon became Chief Engineer and Production Manager. During this time, his father had formed the Premier Instrument Corp., and Bernie also served as Chief Engineer for this company.

During World War II while at Bogen, Bernie designed underwater sound equipment for the Armed Forces. While at Premier, he helped develop the Kardon cold weather camera for the Signal Corps. The camera was equipped for operation at 67 degrees below zero.

In 1945, the Kardons moved to New Rochelle, New York. Bernie formed the Kardon Mfg. Co. but continued as a consultant to his late father's company, then called Premier Microwave Inc.

HARMAN KARDON

While with the David Bogen Co., Bernie met Sidney Harman, also a Bogen employee. In 1951, when Harman left Bogen, he and Bernie formed a new company, Harman Kardon Inc. Sidney handled sales, merchandising, and advertising, while Bernard was Chief Engineer, Designer and Production Manager. They had an assembly plant in Plainview, New York.

Harman Kardon became known for quality audio electronics early in the hi-fi years of the 1950s and helped pioneer the individual component marketing concept. The company exists today, much expanded, as Harman International, a world corporation making compact disc and speaker systems. Sidney continues today as head of the concern. Bernard left the firm in 1959 to become an independent consultant.

When Bernard was in his late fifties, he returned to school. He received a bachelor's degree in engineering from City College of New York in 1973 and a master's degree in electrical engineering from Fairleigh Dickinson University in 1976.

Bernard Kardon remained a registered Professional Engineer. With his father's spirit of adventure, he worked as a consultant, traveling about the U. S. on various projects until his death in 1993.

Into the history of the electronics industry goes the name "Kardon," a company begun in 1923 by the simple efforts of a father and his son.

The photos are meant to help increase awareness of what's available in the radio collecting hobby. Send in any size photos from your collection. Photos must be sharp in detail, contain a single item, and preferably have a light-colored background. A short, descriptive paragraph MUST be included with each photo. PHILCO MODEL 42-KR3 – The chassis of this set is AC/DC and uses loktal type tubes, which are typical of Philcos of this era. At first glance, it would be easy to mistake this for a Bakelite set, but the cabinet is actually made of wood and painted ivory. Notice that the bottom of the base is curved slightly so that it could set on top of a refrigerator without rocking. Tops of refrigerators of 1942 vintage were slightly rounded. (Bill Harris – Roanoke, TX)

CBS-COLUMBIA MODEL TR-260 – Made of wood with brass trim, this 1959 portable radio has a suitcase design. (Alexandria Nelson – Albuquerque, NM)

CROSLY MODEL 9-425 – This 1949 portable television has a leatherette case, two chassis and 20 tubes. The antenna is attached to the front cover lid. (Tony and Lynn DeMara – Mt. Clemens, MI)

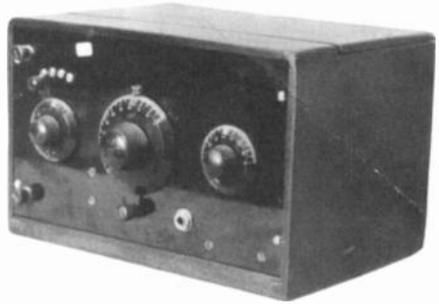

PHILCO MODEL 37-34 – A 5-tube farm set with a vibrator power supply designed to be powered from a 6-volt storage battery, this 1937 cathedral works well. (Bill Harris – Roanoke, TX)

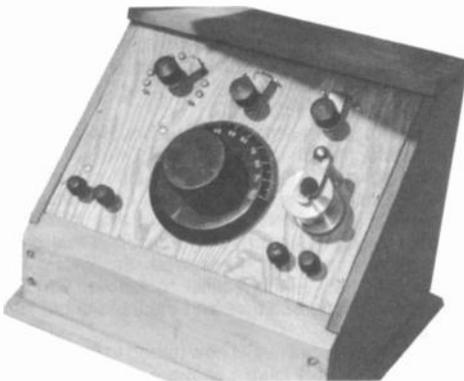

PHOTO REVIEW

WURLITZER MODEL 5U – The two drawers in this Duncan Phyfe table pull down to expose the front of the radio — a style popular for only a few years around 1938. The cabinet of solid mahogany is very well built. The completely enclosed chassis has 5 tubes. (Walter V. Worth – Wollaston, MA)

TRI-CITY MANUFACTURING COMPANY MODEL W-4 – This 1923, roughly built 1-tube regenerative set has unique features on the panel. The tap switch shaft is concentric, with the knob controlling the spiderweb regeneration control. Connected below the tuning knob is a vertical bar attached to a much smaller knob. When this small knob is pushed down and turned to the left or right, it acts as a fine tuning vernier control. (Walter V. Worth – Wollaston, MA)

HOME MADE CRYSTAL RADIO – This home-brew crystal set was made by Woody Wilson, WA6KVW. It uses a glass-enclosed crystal detector. (Paul Giganti – San Carlos, CA)

U.S. RADIO & TELEVISION CORP. "SCREEN GRID" MODEL 27 – Schematically similar to the more popular Gloritone model, this 5-tube 1930 model has an inverted chassis. Oil-filled filter capacitors are enclosed in copper cans. (Bob Lackey – Carlsbad, CA)

Another Hum Problem

BY CHESTER A. GEHMAN

I read Bob Gates' "AC Hum" article in September's A.R.C. with considerable interest. I too have encountered core problems with transformers and chokes, and the "vibrating screwdriver" test he described is extremely useful and usually infallible. On occasion, I have remedied the problem by firmly but gently tapping the laminations to reduce air gaps that are present. (I remove the tubes from their sockets prior to this.)

While most problems we encounter in electronics are due to failure of one or more components, there are occasions when human failure is the cause. This is true for the hum problem I will describe.

I am the proud owner of a 1935 RCA Model C11-1 console which I have carefully restored. I've hand-tweaked the alignment to what I think is perfection, and the overall response is excellent. Recently, I acquired an RCA D-11-2 (or possibly a T-11-B) chassis which is almost identical to the C11. The latter has tuning bands A, B and C, while the newcomer has bands A, C and X (the 200 to 400 kHz long wave) in place of the police band.

Since I am interested in long-wave DXing, I decided on restoration, if possible. I was somewhat dismayed to discover a previous "repair" job — electrolytics, a few capacitors and several resistors now dangling in disarray. Carefully sneaking up the line voltage via a Variac, I was glad not to see smoke, but I heard a not unexpected loud hum.

Noting the vintage and questionable manufacturer of the replaced filters, I quickly clipped them out and temporarily connected new tubular capacitors exactly where the old ones had been. I did take the time to check out the negative return of the input capacitor to assure myself that it connected to the high voltage (HV) center tap, not to the chassis. (Quite often "repairers" assume that the negative terminal of electrolytics must always return to the chassis!!!)

After some additional repairs and the replacement of a defective tube, the broadcast band functioned. There was, however, an annoying hum, especially noticeable with the speaker on a sounding board — a hum that persisted with the volume control fully off. Removing the 6C5 AF driver tube reduced the hum only slightly, and bridging filters with double capacity didn't help. To isolate the problem, I clipped both 6F6 control grids together with no noticeable effect, thereby eliminating the input transformer as the culprit.

Had I not owned the C-11, which is even quieter than a mouse, I probably would have thrown in the towel, but my dander was up and fighting. Why didn't this receiver behave like its half-brother? I strapped both 6F6 plates together, but the hum remained. Ouch! As I listened carefully to the speaker cone, I suddenly realized this was 60 Hz — not the 120 Hz one would expect from a full wave rectifier power supply. (Yes, Josephine, they do sound different.)

This discovery opened new doors. Heater-cathode short in one or more tubes? One half of HV winding open? One anode of rectifier inoperable? Once, many decades ago, I had encountered a Type 80 rectifier socket that had one plate prong so corroded and distorted that only half-wave rectification occurred. Such was not the case here — the rectifier socket was OK. So were the Type 5Z3 tube and the transformer HV secondary.

Would you believe? I now turned to my oscilloscope for help. Figure 1 shows what appeared at the rectifier end of the speaker field coil. Figure 2 shows the waveform that appeared when the sweep frequency was increased to 120 Hz. This shows about a 10-volt differential between successive half-cycles of the rectifier action.

Again, I suspected the HV winding, but the oscilloscope showed identical waveforms at both plates of the 5Z3. Somehow 60 Hz was getting into the filter system. I also looked directly across the input filter capacitor, expecting to see the same waveform. However, here both half cycles appeared equal.

Not being a drinking man (usually), I then moved to the kitchen for a cup of black coffee and sat down to think. That didn't help much, so I went back and looked. Figure 3 shows what I finally discovered — the former worker had chosen the closer 5Z3 filament terminal to tie in his replacement capacitor, and I, like a blind sheep, had followed right along. There were 5 volts root mean square (RMS), 60 Hz zipping right into the filter system. After I had corrected this wiring error, the D-11 was just as quiet as the CX-11.

How's that for a trouble??? I hope no one else encounters this problem; perhaps my experience will be of some help.

More on Triangle Electric/Silver-Marshall

COMPILED BY RAY BINTLIFF FROM INFORMATION PROVIDED BY RAY SCHMIDT

An article about the Triangle Electric/Silver-Marshall radio, Model 47-A, appeared in the October issue of A.R.C. The article sought additional information regarding the radio and Triangle Electric. [Editor]

Reader Ray Schmidt responded by furnishing a copy of the schematic diagram for a Howard Radio Company Model 47-A. That schematic is identical to the Triangle Electric schematic that appeared in the A.R.C. article, except for the company names.

Because the schematics differ only in this regard, it is reasonable to assume that the Model 47-A was manufactured by Howard Radio and sold under both the Howard Radio and Triangle Electric brand names. When this model was built, circa 1935, the Howard Radio Company was an active radio manufacturer located in Chicago at the McMurdo Silver plant that Silver had vacated in 1934.

The connection between Silver-Marshall Manufacturing Company and Triangle Electric is obscure. Since Bill Halligan had acquired the rights to the Silver-Marshall Manufacturing Company, he may have entered into an agreement with Howard Radio to merchandise the Model 47-A under the name of "Triangle Electric." By using the name "Silver-Marshall" as the manufacturer, Halligan may have been trying to conceal his connection with Howard Radio and prevent complaints from Howard Radio dealers. But, this is conjecture. While we have some additional clues to the heritage of the Triangle Electric Model 47-A, it remains something of a mystery.

PHULE DUO-TUBE LAMP

Two Tubes For The Price Of One
By Charles T. Muller, K2UHF

In April of 1922, the Phule Lamp Works ran the opposite ad introducing its DUO-TUBE, a double filament tube. With the fragile filaments and high prices of the day, a mistake when changing batteries meant POOF! for your tubes and a crying towel for your face.

As good as the DUO-TUBE may have been, it never took off because the Phule Lamp Works was sued for patent infringement by two large tube companies claiming that Phule used the same grid and plate structure as its own patented designs. (More than likely these companies just didn't want the competition of a tube that lasted twice as long for the same price.) Too small a company to carry on an expensive lawsuit, Phule stopped manufacturing after only 260 tubes had been made.

My uncle, a tenant in the Phule Building, knew Mr. Phule personally and was given two of the tubes from an early production run to try out in his set. When I was in my teens, my uncle gave me the one surviving tube, which I still possess. Are there any readers out there

Dear Doctor Radio,

Dr. Radio answers those tough restoration problems sent in by our readers

Q: Dear Dr. Radio,

Is there an easy way to repair cracks in a Catalin radio? I now have several of them with cracks and I'm not sure what to do?

All-Cracked-Up in L.A.

A: Dear Cracked,

Until recently there wasn't much you could do about those cracks. Then, about 9 months ago, I brought together a team of experts to solve this problem. Our unique task force included the best in the business: Pierre LaFuchs (French chemist known for his research in cast resins and Catalin), William Baxter (munitions expert), Harry Stalks (inventor of microwave popcorn) and Willie "The Hot Man" Jenkins (renowned Cajun chef). Grouped together in a think tank I assembled in Terra Haute, Indiana, we came up with this procedure.

The first thing you do is remove the chassis, knobs, all trim pieces, dial glass and stickers. Thoroughly wash the cabinet with a mild detergent, using a soft toothbrush to remove the dirt and grime in the hard-to-reach spots. Then prepare a solution of 1 quart spring water, 1 quart vinegar, a 12 ounce box of baking soda and two bay leaves. Soak the cabinet in this solution for 72 hours; then rinse with spring water and let air dry. Now, here comes the tricky part; wrap the cabinet tightly with an ace bandage so that all cracks are pressed together (very important). Microwave the wrapped cabinet on a medium setting for 2 minutes, let sit for 5 minutes, and repeat 10 times (note: microwave settings may vary from oven to oven). After this sequence let sit for 2 hours; then finish with a 5-minute cycle on maximum power. Remove cabinet from oven, unwrap the ace bandage and, PRESTO, the cracks are gone! Caution: This procedure may cause cabinet deformation. Some Catalin radio cabinets contain various contaminants that may result in an explosion during the microwave portion of this procedure.

I recommend that you practice this on a friend's radio at his house before you try one yourself. Let me know how it works.

Q: Dear Dr. Radio,

I don't want to complain, but the Philco Model 89 that you recently restored for me has a terrible squeal on the upper end of the shortwave band. My friends tell me this is called "oscillating," and I should have you correct it.

Ears Hurting in Indiana.

A: Dear Ears,

I'm glad that you wrote to me so I can share this situation with the rest of our readers. Although I restore thousands of radios every year, I still remember the radio you are talking about. Your particular radio was one of a very few that was modified for use by the Greek underground during World War II. The upper shortwave band had been modified to receive secret radio transmissions from a handful of Allied troops on a remote island whose location is still unknown today. The ability to receive those secret radio transmissions required the radio to oscillate at the upper frequencies on the shortwave band. If I were to repair it, the historical value of your radio would be destroyed. So tune in and listen to the squealing as you enjoy your rare radio.

A tough restoration problem got you down? Don't get mad, ask Dr. Radio for his expert advice: Dr. Radio, c/o A.C.R.R., 3426 Coldstream Ct., Lexington, KY 40517

I WILL TRAIN YOU AT HOME

TO BE A Radio EXPERT

NATIONAL RADIO COLLECTING INSTITUTE

A bright future awaits enterprising men who get into the rapidly growing field of RADIO COLLECTING. My proven course will show you how to get ahead by training at home in your spare time.

Here's Proof

I have tripled the size of my collection thanks to your course. And I don't even care about the alimony payments anymore. D. Reinsma, Pensacola, FL.

Using your techniques I recently talked my boss's grandmother into giving me her Scott Philharmonic, by convincing her it was damaging her carpet. S. Baron, Lexington, KY.

Dealing With Dealers

My course will teach you proven methods of outwitting shyster antique dealers. No longer be intimidated by $400 price tags on Radiola 18's. Learn simple techniques such as loosening tubes before dealer tries to show you how well the radio works. Carefully timed use of smoke-bombs after the radio is plugged in also works wonders to reduce prices. My course tells it all!

Learn Auction Techniques

Increased competition means only the strong survive at the antique auctions of today. Learn how to distract other collectors when the radio you want comes up for bid. Learn how to drive prices up on your opponents without getting stuck yourself.

Secrets of Radio Meets Revealed!

No longer feel like a moron at radio meets. If you think a breadboard is something for the kitchen, or the mention of Micronic Rubies brings to mind a jewelry store instead of transistor radios, you need this course. Learn how to buy radios before the car carrying them even finds a place to park.

AUCTION REPORT

Estes Vintage Radio Auction Medina, Ohio — February 12, 1994

CONTRIBUTED BY RICHARD ESTES

Over a hundred radio collectors from nine states participated in the Vintage Radio Auction at the Seville Auction Barn, Medina, Ohio, on Saturday February 12, 1994. The auction netted $32,000. Some bids came by phone from as far away as Arizona and Canada. The good condition of the items for sale and the good attendance made for strong sale prices. An Atwater Kent 9 breadboard with tags went for $1,200, and a Federal Model 61 in very good condition went for $1,000. Just under 400 lots were sold, according to auctioneer Richard Estes.

The next Estes Vintage Radio Auction will be in May. Watch for a specific date in an A.R.C. ad.

RADIO RAMBLINGS...

In Praise of Dealers

BY GERALD SCHNEIDER

I like dealers, although I am not a dealer myself. This does not mean I care for all the dealers I meet, or that every dealer is honorable. It denotes my appreciation of the services dealers bring to collecting; they supply radios, parts, and related collectibles. Most collectors I know who dislike dealers feel that way because of envy or a misunderstanding of business practices.

Many radios I own or have owned came from dealers or dealers disguised as collectors. They and they alone were willing to trade my paper money for their radios. Other collectors who had radios I wanted either refused to sell them to me, or, worse yet, were in competition with me for radios I collected. Thank goodness there are people in this world (dealers) for whom making money outweighs collecting concerns!

Some collectors complain about the high prices dealers are asking for radios, or how such dealers have made the hobby so costly. Nonsense! Dealers cannot charge any more for radios than buyers are willing to pay. While some collectors cannot afford expensive radios, most are just too cheap to pay going prices. Or, more accurately, the persons who do not buy do not value the radios offered enough to purchase them at the dealer's asking price. No collector selling radios who grumbles about today's cost of collecting has ever offered me bargain prices on radios he bought inexpensively years ago. What hypocrisy!

Then there is the lament about overly aggressive dealers at meets. You know, the ones who, among other things, flock around vehicles as they pull into the trading area, grab for and make offers on radios before they are unloaded. Well, that kind of behavior seems all too common at meets and is not restricted to dealers. Those who label dealers as "mercenary" might expect dealers to act this way. But what excuse for such "piggish" conduct do ordinary collectors have?

Once I drove to a distant meet as the guest of another collector who planned to sell radios from his vehicle at the meet. During much of the drive he derided dealers for their "greed" and "pushiness." We arrived the night before the meet opened and were forced by circumstances to sleep miles away from the meeting site. His outrage against dealers notwithstanding, he woke me at 3:30 A.M. the following "morning" so that we could hurry and get a good selling spot at the meet. Talk about collectors living in glass houses throwing bricks at the homes of dealers!

In general, doing business with dealers is easier than with collectors because, well, dealers are business people. Dealers are more likely than collectors to bargain to make a sale. And dealers are less likely than collectors to be condescending if one makes low bids on sale radios.

Remember too that the line between dealer and collector is a slim one. I act like a dealer when I am trading or selling radios, even though such radios are only duplicates in my collection or radios I no longer want because of changed collecting tastes. The same is true for you if and when you engage in selling and trading activity.

The bottom line — a little humility goes a long way for collectors who contrast themselves to dealers! Dealers deserve respect for the valuable role they play in collecting.

How To Civilize Meets

BY GERALD SCHNEIDER

Some have complained about meets becoming "feeding frenzies" for lusting radio collectors that view radios almost as mere commodities. But none have suggested ways to "civilize" meets so that they accent collecting radios for the love and enjoyment, as well as preservation of radios.

I recently suggested to others working with me on planning a radio meet later this year that a kinder and gentler approach could be achieved by starting the meet at 8 A.M., just as the California Historical Radio Society is successfully doing. Just think: more time to sleep, to drive longer distances more safely (in daylight), to be more humane towards accompanying family members, and maybe to talk to other radio collectors at breakfast, instead of rushing out to the mart area at the crack of dawn.

The response of one fellow planner was that the idea was "insane!" He said, "Let's be realistic. If we adopt this suggestion, we will hurt the meet, get a black mark against our good name, and they may even throw a rope over a tree limb in the flea market looking for the guy who suggested this!"

Is the 8 A.M. starting idea really insane (most meets are over by midday anyway)? Or does the 8 A.M. starting time just depend on leaders of meets agreeing to start then? I would like to know what other A.R.C. readers think about this idea. Hopefully, they will respond to A.R.C., or to me personally. Thanks in advance.

Radio Restoration Parts

Vacuum Tube Repair Wafers

These tube repair wafers are solid-state devices for quick and easy repair of early vacuum tubes. The wafer is installed by simply sliding it over the tube pins and reinserting the tube into its socket. If the filament is intact, but there is little or no emission, the filament may be lit for best visual effect. However, the tube can be open filament.

No change in radio operating voltages is required. Any number of tubes may be repaired in a radio. If wafers are installed on all tubes, the B+ voltage may usually be reduced without sacrificing volume or sensitivity. Performance will vary between radio models.

American Radio Operating Companies

BY THORN L. MAYES, W6AX

Factual accounts of alternators, arcs and sparks, and of coherers, barretters and tikkers!

Unscrupulous stock promotions that by chance yielded technical breakthroughs.

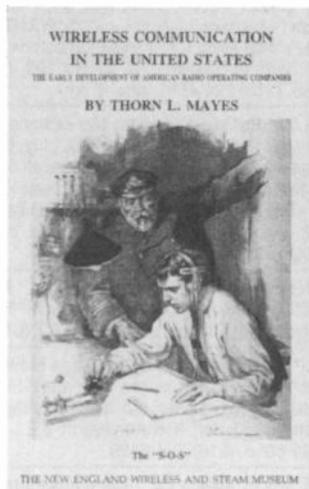

Unpublished letters...early drawings of spark transmitters.

"Coherent history of the brash early years of wireless...photos are rare gems...the Mayes book is it!" - Ludwell Sibley, AWA Old Timer's Bulletin.

"Superbly printed - the photos are clear and sharp. Some of the photos are truly unbelievable. Great book...buy it." - Barry Wiseman, The Electric Radio.

"On a scale of one to ten, Wireless Communication in the U.S. certainly rates a ten," Jim & Felicia Kreuzer, Antique Radio Classified.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING POLICY

ONE FREE 20-WORD AD for subscribers in each issue; additional words are 19¢ each. See details below. Classified ads sent by mail, fax or by any other method must be received (not just postmarked!) by Noon Eastern Time on the classified ad deadline date to guarantee inclusion in the current issue. Late ads are held for the following issue. Please enclose correct payment with all ads. Stamps or cash are OK for small amounts. (Canadian and other foreign advertisers, please see "Payment" on page 2 for methods.) "Free words" cannot be accumulated from month to month; free words must be requested when ad is submitted.

Faxed ads: Please see additional information on the inside front cover.

Please write each ad on a separate sheet of paper, especially when included with other A.R.C. correspondence. Include SUB# with ad. Ads may be sent in advance; but, write each ad on a separate piece of paper and indicate the month (or successive two months) you want the ad to run.

To minimize our typing errors: Please write legibly. Use both capital and small letters. Do not use a dash between words. Carefully write the following numbers and letters (especially in model numbers) since some can look alike; for example 1, I and l (the number one, the capital i and the small l.) Also: 0, O, o, Q and D; r and n; 6, b and G; V, U, u, v and Y; A and R; 5, S and s; 2, Z and z. We try to correct spelling errors, so when using an uncommon word or manufacturer which we might mistake as a more common word or manufacturer, note it so that we do not "correct" it. Editor's annotations are in [brackets].

Advertising is accepted only for early items related to radio, communication, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be so identified. Advertisers must agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisfied, and to comply with a buyer's refund request on unaltered returned items.

The publisher reserves the right to edit ads without notification to the advertiser and to reject ads for any reason. Names other than the advertiser will be edited out of ads. Ads with non-radio-related items will be returned or edited unless the non-radio-related items are for trade of radio-related items, or they are incidental to and appear at the end of an otherwise acceptable ad. The publisher is not responsible for errors due to illegibly written ads or for any other reason.

Clubs: Since club activities receive free coverage on the Coming Radio Events pages, the free 20 words may not be used for club activity ads. See inside front cover for additional information.
