SILHOUETTES

NORMAN BROKENSHIRE began life as a $25-a-year man. He fired the stove in the village school, was promoted to bell-ringer, chief blackboard-eraser and flower-potter. It was his first job and he has had many others—a man's chauffeur one day, his private secretary the next, and eventually master of ceremonies.

Today he amuses millions by saying "hello" into a black box as only Norman Brokenshire can—a job he got in the beginning by answering a newspaper want-ad.

Brokenshire is the bending and gracious gentleman, especially when getting into upper berths or helping old paper-hangers, who greets you nightly and sometimes twice nightly over the Columbia network with, "How do you do, ladies and gentlemen, how DO you DO!"

More than fifty thousand fans, writing in, have popped back at him, "How do you do, yourself!" But a Brokenshire never wears out his welcome, never gives ground, never leans backward. A man doesn't lean backward when he starts life by furnace-firing, bell-ringing and flower-potting.

So Brokenshire is eternally the Sir Walter Raleigh of radio, ready to bend forward, sweep the floor with the cloak of an elegant manner, and present you Ruth Etting, Welcome Lewis or the Boswell Sisters.

He is the answer to the question, "Can a janitor become a man-about town?" The answer is, "Yes." But Norman, a janitor back in the panic of 1907, is panicky himself in 1932. He can't completely make up his mind to remain entirely a master of ceremonies or turn inventor.

"Broke" has been inventive ever since he served as a gumshoe inspector in a Maine footwear factory, detecting nails that stuck up inside the shoes. The job gave him calloused fingers, so he quit to go to Boston and advance his schooling.

Today this inventive desire is expressed in his training of a pet canary. The creature parks on his shoulder while Norman dresses. It hovers in air as he adds each garment and then returns to his shoulder. It does this whether "Broke" is getting up to eat breakfast, answer the telephone or go to a fire. The Brokenshires start the day a-flutter.

Norman got the habit of going to fires when he walked three miles each day to fire that furnace in the Canadian schoolhouse. Prior to that, he had been born less active at Murcheson, Ont., on March 10, 1898. His father was a minister and school teacher.

Young Brokenshire's early ambitions wavered among the lives of fur trappers, mounted policemen and ski-jumpers. Unable to make up his mind, he became almost everything else. His father's calling took him as a youngster to Cambridge, Mass., and Hallowell, Maine, where Norman turned the parsonage woodshed into a print shop. He did a spanking good business, running two other printeries out of work.

The World War broke up the family. Norman became the shoe inspector, Boston high school boy, mechanic, under-age infantryman, YMCA hut secretary, campaigner for the Inter-Church World and organizer for the Near East Relief. Then he was graduated from Syracuse University.

He came to New York with an air reduction company, but craved expansion. So he read the want-ads every Sunday and answered a plea for an air announcer. It was at the old "Broadcast Central."

Four hundred others answered it, but Brokenshire was bowed in as one of "radio's original four horsemen."

His studio size-up: six feet, one inch, 190 pounds, blue-grey eyes, black hair, ruddy clipped mustache, irrepressible—and bending and gracious.

The OPEN CIRCUIT

This department is open to all. Send in your letters. Anonymous letters will not be published. Give full name and address.

Announcers—Wake Up

GENTLEMEN: May I presume to ask you to give the following space in the forthcoming issue of your valuable and interesting magazine?

This is a protest against the atrocious mispronunciation and abortive efforts of many announcers on both circuits to be funny or clever. There are notable exceptions, of course, and their announcements, being smooth and correctly phrased, do not rouse one to action, as do the efforts of the great majority of so-called announcers and masters of ceremonies.

Even our well-liked Graham McNamee, announcing the Sharkey-Schmeling fight this evening, was made to rate as a schoolboy by a comparatively unknown sports announcer, who alternated with the popular Scotchman throughout the fight. The smooth, rapid-fire work of the sportsman was in marked contrast to the labored efforts of Mr. McNamee.

A program of "correct English" has been put on the air by a clever lady who pronounced her "a" broadly continental whenever possible, and had other earmarks of the Eastern "finishing school."

One of the regular announcers on NBC used pro-gress and prog-ress one for the other with the most unerring certainty. Other atrocities, certainly! But why go into great detail?

Both the announcer and, later, the gentleman who introduced William G. Bonney of Oakland, when he recounted the dash of the cutter Bear into Arctic waters, a generation ago, to rescue whaling crews weather bound there, pronounced the word "Artic," but Captain Bonney, a rough old "salt" unused to the elegancies of the broadcasting studios, got it right all through his interesting and well-phrased story.

During another program this evening, a very prominent San Diegan, in a flight of oratory urging the manufacturer to manufacture, said it was "rationable" to do so., etc.

Lest my protest may savor too much of a knock, I want to register my appreciation and keen enjoyment of Dobbsie's Shell Happy-time. Whenever Dobbsie encounters a word he is not sure of he blandly comments, "Pronunciation almost guaranteed," etc. He is one of the cleverest showmen on the air. Am unable to get the program at all from this location, and miss it very much.

Winfield S., San Jacinto, Cal.

We All Have Our Favorites

AS LONG as the circuit is OPEN, I guess you won't mind me swinging right in and speaking my little piece, will you?

Our family goes in for DRAMA in a big way, and I wish in this letter to express our appreciation for every dramatic production that comes over the ether waves.

But, of course, we have our favorites. First—"One Man's Family." There seems to be no end to this fellow Morse's versatility, and the artists are perfect. Then, "The Witch of Endor"—OOoooo! the chills go racing down our spines when the clock strikes 10 on Monday evening. We hope that when this serial is finished that NBC will not discontinue them for the summer. There are so few interesting programs during the summer months. And PLEASE, Mr. Sponsor, don't take away "Memory Lane."

How we have missed "The Lost Legion." Thank goodness "First Nighter" and "Death Valley Days" are still with us. And I must not forget the splendid Radio Guild plays. They are well cast and although we do not always favor their play selection, still the production is flawless.

Lastly I must tell you how much we like Gypsy's Closeups. What a clever girl she is! Surprise us some time and have someone interview her, won't you? It would be a WOW.

BROADCAST WEEKLY is the compass that steers us through the troubled waters of program selection. What a great deal of energy is wasted switching the dial trying to find something you really want to hear. But with your magazine we know our course and we stick to it.
