Foreword

Although the networks were pleased by statistics which showed a leveling off in viewership for cable television, there was competition to consider from different directions. Fox Television snatched away twelve affiliates while both Paramount and Warner Bros. announced plans to create two more networks to give ABC, CBS and NBC a run in the ratings race.

The Year in Review

When Fox Inc. announced that it was joining forces with New World Communications Group, thereby snapping up twelve affiliates from across the country, CBS was hit the hardest, losing eight stations. Later that year the network faced a possible merger with Barry Diller's QVC Network, a plan that fell through by mid-summer. As its reward for weathering a tense year CBS emerged victorious for the third season in a row as the rating's champ, a feat helped immeasurably by its broadcasting of the Winter Olympics. Otherwise it was dejavu at the top of the ratings' chart with the same three standbys contributing to the year's high audience figures: the 26-year old "60 Minutes" (at number 2), "Murder, She Wrote" in its tenth year (the number 9 spot) and "Murphy Brown" in its sixth season (just out of the top ten, at number 11).

The season's second place network, ABC, did capture the number one position with Tim Allen's sit-com "Home Improvement," still hot in its third year. The network also had two dependable winners in "Roseanne" (number 4 in its sixth season) and "Coach" (number 8, also in its sixth year). In fact ABC had more programs in the top ten than any network including the two highest rated new 1993-94 entries, "These Friends of Mine" (re-dubbed "Ellen," after its star, Ellen DeGeneres, for the 1994-95 season; at number 5) and "Grace Under Fire" (at number 6). Both followed in the successful footsteps of "Home Improvement" and "Roseanne" by featuring stand-up comics in the leading roles (Brett Butler being the star of "Grace"). "Monday Night Football" rounded out the top ten in its 24th year with the network. ABC's most talked-about offering, the racy police drama "NYPD Blue," defied public protests to gain wide critical acclaim and large audiences, tying for the number 21 position and earning a record 26 Emmy Award nominations.

Another popular comedian, Jerry Seinfeld, gave NBC its top program for the year with "Seinfeld" landing in third place. After losing its smash hit "Cheers" after eleven years, the network segued directly into the new season with a spin-off, "Frasier," winding up with its most successful new show and the Emmy Award for best comedy series.

Of course the networks were no more satisfied with the Nielsen Ratings this season than they had been in past years. The company's closest rival, Arbitron, decided to bail out of the rating-tracking field at the end of 1993. As a result ABC, CBS and NBC announced a multi-million dollar plan for Statistical Research Inc. to develop a new way of accurately assessing the number of people tuned in to which programs.

The networks were far happier with the fact that competition from cable TV seemed to be less of a worry than it had been in recent years. Basic cable growth showed a leveling off in 1993 while all three networks reported ratings increases of about 3%. Operators could not help but blame the price regulations and rate reductions imposed by the Congress and the Federal Communications Commission. A different form of competition, however, loomed in the announcement that both Warner Bros. and Paramount would be starting their own networks in January of 1995.

After the failed QVC merger CBS found itself being eyed for ownership by the Walt Disney Company, while there was a possibility of NBC being purchased by Time Warner. Many speculated that the 1995 expiration of a Federal rule monitoring the amount of programming the networks were able to produce for themselves was a factor in these companies expressing interest.

Due to the baseball strike in the summer-fall of 1994, television found itself at a loss for some of its most reliable programming, not to mention one of the major networks being deprived of showing the World Series for the first time in broadcast history.

Because of the aforementioned Fox Inc. purchase of twelve affiliates the other networks were scrambling to purchase stations to avoid confusion and loss of ratings among viewers, often resulting in the move to much weaker UHF bands. A total of 25 U.S. cities were to be affected by these changes within the course of the new TV season.

The NBC mini-series "World War II: When Lions Roared" was technologically significant, being the first major U.S. program shot in the high definition television format. Little mention was made of this due, of course, to the fact that there was no system for transmitting or receiving it in this country. Meanwhile, in Japan, sales of high definition sets continued to meet with little enthusiasm from consumers who were showing much greater interest in wide-screen televisions.

Corporate Histories of the Networks

Corporate Histories of the Networks

Capital Cities/ABC, Inc.

Like the other major U.S. television networks, ABC had its origins in radio. In the beginning Radio Corporation of America (RCA) owned two radio networks: the Blue and the Red. In 1941 the FCC decreed that the same company could not own two networks, so RCA incorporated the Blue under the name of American Broadcasting System and established it as an independent subsidiary with 116 stations. RCA then sold this network to Edward J. Noble, founder and chairman of the Life Savers Corporation, for $8 million. The name was changed to the American Broadcasting Company in 1944, at which time the network had 197 radio affiliates.

Television arrived for ABC in 1948 when, on April 19, ABC carried its first TV program: "On the Corner," with Henry Morgan, which was sponsored by the Admiral Radio Corp. Later in the year ABC scored two "firsts": the live broadcast of an opera (Verdi's "Otello") from the Metropolitan Opera House in New York and a TV documentary, "The Marshall Plan."

The next big step for ABC came in 1952 with its merger with United Paramount Theatres, the motion picture theatre circuit founded when Paramount Pictures was required under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act to separate its film production unit from its theatres. This merger was engineered by Leonard H. Golden-son, then the president of UPT. The new company was called American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, Inc.

During the 1950's ABC began operation at a profit although it had to struggle fiercely to acquire new affiliates. In 1954 ABC made a deal with Walt Disney to acquire a 35 per cent interest in Disneyland and all TV programs produced by Disney. The following year ABC signed an exclusive rights contract with Warner Bros. for TV programming.

The 1960's brought many changes to ABC beginning with the introduction of color programming for the fall season of 1962; this was expanded in 1966 to include full color broadcasting. In 1965 AB-PT's name was changed to American Broadcasting Companies, Inc. and the company's corporate headquarters were moved from West 66th Street in New York to 1330 Avenue of the Americas, where they remained until 1989.

High points in the decade of the '60s also included the introduction of the blockbuster theatrical movie to TV with spectacular rating results when "The Bridge on the River Kwai" was viewed (in 1966) by 60 million Americans.

In 1967 the ABC evening news was expanded from 15 minutes to a half hour, and Joey Bishop inaugurated ABC's late-night programming with his talk show.

An attempt to gain control of ABC by Howard Hughes was circumvented by Golden-son in 1968. Hughes said publicly that he abandoned his efforts to acquire the network because of the strong resistance of Golden-son; however, it was speculated elsewhere that he gave up because as new owner of ABC he would have had to attend a public hearing under the auspices of the FCC. The fanatically reclusive Hughes, it was assumed, would never have agreed to come out of seclusion for such an event.

The decade of the Seventies was an eventful one for ABC, too, not the least because in 1972 it was able to operate at a profit for the first time in ten years. Also in the 1976-77 season ABC moved for the first time into first place in the ratings race. It held the lead for the next two years and then dropped back into second place in 1979-80, a position it held until 1983-84 when it dropped to third position. It was unable to rise above that until 1987-88 when it displaced CBS in second place, primarily because of special sports programming, such as the World Series and the Superbowl. It remained second in 1988-89 and 1989-90. In the latter season ABC had the distinctions of having the most talked-about new series of the period—"Twin Peaks"—and the highest-rated new series—"America's Funniest Home Videos."

In 1976 Barbara Walters joined ABC, becoming the first anchorwoman in television history. Her almost $1 million a year salary caused lifted eyebrows among her fellow anchor persons, including Harry Reasoner and Howard K. Smith.

In 1977 the mini-series "Roots" appeared on ABC and became the all-time highest-rated program. This helped immensely in the ratings race, and credit must go in large part to Fred Silverman who two years before had joined the company as president of ABC international. He left in 1978 to go to NBC.

The decade of the Eighties was a turbulent one for the television industry as cable TV and home video began whittling away at their audiences. ABC was no exception. Halfway through the period—in 1985—ABC agreed to be purchased by Capital Cities Communications at a cost of $3.5 billion. 1986 saw formal completion of the takeover and the merged company's name was changed to Capital Cities/ABC, Inc.

With the departure of Golden-son, that year also brought other important changes in management. Daniel B. Burke replaced Frederick J. Pierce as president and chief operating officer. There were also sweeping reductions in personnel in the interests of economy and streamlining. (At least 1,000 employees were fired.)

Budget cuts notwithstanding Capital Cities/ABC chairman Thomas Murphy pledged ABC would not scrimp on programming. Instead the focus was to be on the network's non-programming expenses which accounted for about 30 per cent of the budget. One result was to cut out internally-generated research which was to be contracted for on an ad hoc basis as needed.

Profits at the end of 1990 rose about $70 million. Of the three networks ABC won the ratings battle in news coverage of the war in the Persian Gulf. For two seasons in a row the network could boast having the only new series in the top ten: "America's Funniest People" (1990-1) and "Home Improvement" (1991-2).

Capital Cities/ABC owns eight television stations and 21 radio stations and is a partner in ESPN, the highly successful cable TV sports channel and two other cable TV services—Arts & Entertainment and Lifetime. It also owns publishing operations which include nine daily newspapers, several weeklies and a variety of trade and consumer magazines.

ABC was the only network of the 1992-93 season to gain ground, moving into second place behind CBS, from its previous third place standing. During the season Robert A. Iger became the new network president.

The network became the first to sign a deal with a cable operator (in this case Continental Cablevision) allowing their stations to be carried on cable without paying a fee.

In 1994 the company signed an affiliation deal with E.W. Scripps Company to switch several of their stations over to ABC. At the close of the 1993-94 TV season the network scored with the number one show, the Tim Allen sit-com "Home Improvement."

Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc.

CBS first saw the light of day in 1927 as a radio network with 16 stations—United Independent Broadcasters, Inc.—founded by Arthur Judson, a concert tour manager. In need of money, Judson secured backing from Louis Sterling, president of the Columbia Phonograph Company, and changed the network name to Columbia Phonograph Broadcasting System. Later other investors were invited in, the most prominent of whom was William S. Paley, who, on September 26, 1928, at the age of 27, became president of the firm whose name was changed again. Now it was called the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Paley introduced many innovations to radio broadcasting, most significant of which was the signing of an agreement in 1931 with Paramount Pictures whereby film stars were heard on radio for the first time. This laid the groundwork for the CBS policy in television from the outset to feature shows built around stars (Ed Sullivan, Lucille Ball, Arthur Godfrey, Jack Benny, Burns & Allen, Garry Moore, etc.).

Actually CBS was in TV as early as 1931 when it began regularly scheduled TV programming over experimental station W2XAB in New York City. In 1941 CBS began weekly broadcast of black-and-white TV programming over WCBS-TV in New York. By 1948 it had 30 affiliated stations.

The decade of the 1950's brought many important advances. In 1951 CBS broadcast the first live coast-to-coast TV transmission between New York and San Francisco. In 1952 there came opening of Television City in Hollywood—the industry's first self-contained TV production facility. In 1956 "Playhouse 90" made its debut and set new high standards for drama originated on TV.

But the big event of the decade came along early—in 1951—with the debut of "I Love Lucy." The road to creating that phenomenal success was a rocky one. For one thing CBS did not want Desi Arnaz, and signed him only on the insistence of Lucille Ball. Second, the couple wanted to work before a live audience—a practice also anathema to the CBS powers-that-be. Ball and Arnaz persisted, and their efforts led to what is regarded as the invention of the situation-comedy format.

1951 was also the year that Bill Gordon designed the CBS Eye—destined to become one of the most famous logos in the world.

In the field of soap operas CBS was both leader and winner, virtually monopolizing that market from 1951 to 1956. In 1951 it introduced "Search for Tomorrow," which was to become the longest-running show ever in that genre. This was followed by "Love of Life" (1951) "The Guiding Light" (1952)—both overnight hits. "Guiding Light" was still on the air in 1988, as was the fourth soap CBS introduced, "As the World Turns" (1956).

In the late '50s and through the '60s and '70s CBS reigned as king of prime time ratings as tallied by the Nielsen Company. It had tied with NBC in 1969–70 and 1970–71 and ABC led in three seasons; but the rest of the time CBS was Number One. Thus it was quite a jolt to the company when in 1985–86 it slipped to second place and stayed there through the following season. Then came the worst blow of all: in 1987–88 CBS came in third for the first time in TV history.

CBS maintained its long-running lead with such successes as "Gunsmoke" (1957), "The Defenders" (1961), "The Beverly Hillbillies" (1962), "All in the Family" (1972) and "Dallas" (1978). Also helping was "60 Minutes," the news-oriented show, which in 1988 had remained in the Top Ten prime time shows for 11 consecutive seasons.

CBS began the turbulent Eighties with a new president, Thomas Wyman (replacing John D. Backe). Worst year for the company so far in that decade was surely 1985 when the company was sent reeling under three major assaults.

First, Gen. William C. Westmoreland filed a $120 million lawsuit, charging he had been libeled during a 1982 "CBS Reports" documentary. The subsequent trial ended 18 weeks after it began in New York Federal Court after the general heard some of his closest advisers during the Vietnam War testify they supported the CBS documentary contention in that he had deliberately underestimated the enemy troop strength on the field. Fearing he would lose, Westmoreland dropped the action before it could go to a jury.

Second, Senator Jesse Helms (Rep., N.C.) and his Fairness in Media committee launched an unfriendly takeover bid to "become Dan Rather's boss." (Rather had replaced Walter Cronkite as chief news anchor in 1981.)

Third, Atlanta broadcast entrepreneur Ted Turner made an unfriendly junk-bond bid for CBS. In a clever move the network bought up 21 per cent of its own stock for $956 million and thwarted the takeover. Turner went after MGM/UA instead.

Meanwhile Laurence A. Tisch, a former theatre chain executive, had become the major stockholder in CBS and in 1986 he instigated some sweeping changes in the interests of cost-cutting and efficiency. Some 700 jobs were eliminated at the CBS Broadcast Group. Tisch also removed Wyman as president, named himself chief executive officer and induced founder William Paley to return to active duty as acting chairman of the board.

In 1988, stung by CBS' worst prime time rating performance ever, Tisch shuffled executive ranks again, naming Howard Stringer, previously president of CBS News, as president of the Broadcasting Group. He replaced Gene F. Jankowski, who was named to the newly created position of chairman of the Broadcast Group. He also brought in Jay L. Kriegel, a lawyer, one-time political aide and former executive for the Tisch family's Loews Corporation. Kriegel, who had no background in television, was named CBS senior vice president and became part of a triumvirate with Tisch and Stringer to devise strategy to pull the network out of its decline in the prime-time ratings competition which had begun with its drop to second place in 1986–87 and to third in 1987–88, 1988–89 and 1989–90. Their plans are essentially twofold: 1) to improve programming and 2) to streamline operations so they can concentrate on broadcasting. (Tisch has sold parts of the company, including records and publishing divisions.)

Kriegel was instrumental in bringing to CBS in 1990 Jeff Sagansky, former head of Tri-Star Pictures, as president of the entertainment division. Sagansky has said his goals are to be different; to attract star performers; and to broaden the base of CBS viewers, which has grown older and less desirable to advertisers.

Starting in 1991–2 CBS became the number one network for three years in a row based on the success of such shows as "60 Minutes" (the number one show for both '91–'92 and '92–'93), "Murphy Brown," "Murder She Wrote," and "Northern Exposure."

CBS was hit hardest by Fox Inc.'s 1994 purchase of twelve stations from New World Communications, losing eight affiliates. An announced merger with QVC Network came to naught.

National Broadcasting Company

Television began for NBC in 1928, when on April 4, it acquired from the Federal Communications Commission a permit to operate an experimental station, W2XBS. Actual transmission from the Empire State Building did not begin, however, until October 30, 1931. Some eight years later the network began broadcasting on a regular basis, beginning with the opening of the New York World's Fair on April 30, 1939.

NBC, like the other networks, was an outgrowth of radio operations. Radio Corp. of America, General Electric and Westinghouse jointly launched a network in 1926 which had 31 stations: 25 in a network called Red and 6 in one called Blue. A year later it was forced to sell the Blue network to ABC (see history of that network), keeping for itself the one known as Red.

In 1930 RCA bought out its partners, GE and Westinghouse, and NBC became its wholly owned subsidiary.

NBC became a TV network on January 12, 1940, when two stations, WNBC-TV, New York, and WRGB-TV, Schenectady, New York, carried the first network programming. In June, 1941, the FCC granted NBC the first commercial TV license and a month later it had four advertisers signed up: Procter & Gamble, Lever Brothers, Sun Oil and Bulova.

After World War II NBC scored two big "firsts." On June 19, 1946, Gillette became the first advertiser to sponsor a TV network show, the Joe Louis-Billy Conn boxing match. That same year Bristol-Myers became the first sponsor of a network TV series, "Geographically Speaking."

NBC can also claim to be the first to introduce coast-to-coast network TV coverage. On September 4, 1951, when the U.S.-Japanese peace treaty was signed in San Francisco, its cameras were on hand.

In 1952 NBC pioneered early morning programming when it introduced "The Today Show."

NBC can also claim the first regularly scheduled network color series: "The Marriage," launched in 1954. That same year it achieved the first west-to-east TV transmission with the television of the Tournament of Roses Parade in color. At the start of the 1965-66 season it could declare it was the "only all-color network."²¹

In 1968 NBC introduced new forms of TV programming with "The Name of the Game," a series that incorporated feature-film elements into a 90-minute show. This then spawned the "NBC Mystery Movie"—a series of programs composed of "Columbo," "Hec Ramsey," "McMillan and Wife," "McCloud," "Amy Prentiss," "McCoy," and "Quincy, M.E."

In 1972 NBC broke new ground again when it introduced "The Tomorrow Show" shown from 1:00 a.m. to 2:00 a.m. This was a talk program and it demonstrated that in the wee small hours of the morning something more than re-runs and old movies could be shown. In 1974 another late-night show called "Weekend" was begun.

In 1976 NBC's telecast of "Gone with the Wind" drew the largest audience to that date for an entertainment program. In 1978 its "Holocaust" mini-series attracted 107 million viewers and won 21 major awards.

Such programs helped NBC in the ratings, but in 1976-77 it fell to third place, where it stayed until 1983-84. (Ironically 1976 was the year in which NBC celebrated its 50th anniversary in broadcasting with a four-hour, star-filled special.) In 1984-85 it edged up to second place, and the following year it was ranked Number One in prime-time viewing for the first time in the three decades of such tallying by Nielsen. (For the record NBC did tie for first place with CBS in 1969-70 and 1970-71.)

NBC held on to its first place standing for the following five seasons, through 1990-1. Long-time hit series in the five-year period included "The Golden Girls," "Cheers," and "The Cosby Show." Despite the network's number one standing figures showed a steady decline in viewers, even for the tried and true successes. In May of 1991 Brandon Tartikoff, credited for pulling the network up from third place 11 years earlier, departed from NBC to become head of Paramount Pictures. When "The Cosby Show" ran its final first run episode on April 30, 1992 it became NBC's highest-rated series finale episode ever with a 28.0 rating/45 share. The 1992 Summer Olympics also gave the network its widest ratings margin of all time, 12 points over 2nd place CBS. The May 1993 season finale of the long running "Cheers" gave NBC a smashing 15.1 average rating, a figure usually reserved for major sports events.

Along with the other networks NBC moved into a period of turmoil during the decade of the Eighties, fighting off rising costs and competition from cable TV and home video. In 1986 General Electric Corporation purchased RCA (NBC's parent) for $6.28 billion; GE, it will be remembered, helped launch the radio network in 1926 which led to the development of NBC-TV. This brought personnel changes led by the replacement of Grant A. Tinker as NBC chief executive officer by Robert Wright, although Wright was not given Tinker's chairman title, that being taken by John F. Welch of GE. Instead Wright was named president as well as chief executive officer. Along with its competition NBC started cutting staff and budgets in 1986.

NBC owns television stations located in Chicago, Cleveland, Los Angeles, New York City and Washington, D.C. GE, the parent company, also owns TV station subsidiaries in Denver and Miami, which are operated under the aegis of NBC, which also has eight radio stations in various cities.

STATISTICS

HISTORICAL DATES

FIRST OVER-THE-AIR TOLL-TV EXPERIMENTS: 1950, Skiatron system tested over WOR-TV in New York City. 1951, Telemeter system tested over KTLA-TV, Los Angeles; Zenith tested its system over its own experimental station in Chicago.

FEBRUARY 10, 1955: Federal Communications Commission started proceedings to determine whether it should authorize TV stations to transmit programs paid for on a subscription basis. Study involved 92 docket volumes reflecting the views of over 25,000 persons on legal, technical and policy questions.

MAY 23, 1957: FCC concluded it had authority to authorize use of TV broadcast frequencies for subscription operations if it found it were in the public interest to do so. Did not define whether this service should be classified as "broadcasting" or some other.

OCTOBER 17, 1957: FCC adopted its first report on the proceedings and declared it would consider applications to conduct trial pay-TV operations over TV stations provided certain conditions were met.

MARCH 24, 1959: FCC issued third report saying it was ready to consider any pay-TV application by a commercial TV station conforming with requirements, among which were limitation of three-year trial authorizations to markets where there were at least four commercial TV stations (including the pay-TV one), and one trial system allowed per market.

JUNE 22, 1960: Hartford Phonevision Co. (later RKO General Phonevision Co.), a licensee of WHCT (Channel 18), Hartford, CT, applied for authority to conduct a three-year trial subscription-TV operation. Application granted February 23, 1961. Operations began June 29, 1962, and concluded in January, 1969.

JULY 3, 1967: FCC's subscription TV committee submitted a fourth report proposing an over-the-air subscription TV service. Rules were designed to integrate subscription TV into the total TV system so good programming would continue to be available over regular TV stations.

DECEMBER 12, 1968: FCC formally established over-the-air subscription TV as a regular broadcast service.

1975: Home Box Office became the first in the television industry to use a satellite for regular transmission of programming.

1984: The FCC officially deregulated the cable industry, permitting pricing flexibility and enabling operators to raise charges for basic cable services by adding new channels while reducing service charges for premium channels.

1985: The Court of Appeals struck down the "must carry" rules which required cable operators to carry all local broadcast stations.

Statistics for 1992

According to A. C. Nielsen Company there were 57,524,490 basic cable households as of February 1993. This accounted for 61.8% of the 93,053,430 tv households in the country. Figures from Paul Kagan Associates, Inc. (Apr. 31, 1993) showed fewer basic cable households with a total of 55,700,000, or 60% of 93,363,000 tv households in the U.S.

Estimated number of cable systems in 1993: 11,385 (Warren Publishing).

Average monthly rates as of 1992: $18.85 (basic cable rate average), $10.17 (average pay rate) (Paul Kagan Assocs.).

DIRECTOR, OFFICE FOR FILM & BROADCASTING
Henry Herx

The Department of Communication of the U.S. Catholic Conference (the public policy agency of the Catholic Bishops of America) addresses the Church's apostolate in and through the print and electronic media. It provides advice and technical assistance on more than 40 radio and network television programs a year.

The Department also publishes a weekly guide to current films and television programs that appear in 100 plus papers of the Catholic Press in the United States. In this activity the Department reviews all current nationally-released theatrical films, and provides information about resources for film utilization and education (16mm films, books, magazines, festivals). The critical reviews are addressed to the moral, as well as the aesthetic, dimensions of motion pictures, and are the result of a consensus based on the reactions of the Department's professional staff and Board of Consultants. All films reviewed are also classified according to the Department's rating system. In addition, this weekly service carries information and evaluative studies on trends and issues pertinent to television, with an emphasis on educational material.

The Department also plays a liaison role for the USCC with the film and broadcasting industries, national media, and religious agencies and organizations. It is a member of OCIC and UNDA, the international Catholic organizations for film and broadcasting, respectively. Consultation and information services are also provided for the Pontifical Commission for Social Communications and the communication offices of national episcopal offices throughout the world.

With staff assistance, the episcopal members of the Communication Committee administer funds raised through the Catholic Communication Campaign, an annual collection. These funds are used to support a variety of media programs, projects, and studies in this country and the Third World.

Multimedia, Interactive and New Technologies

Multimedia, Interactive and New Technologies

The name of the game in multimedia is SYNERGY. Major entertainment companies, like Disney and Time Warner, communications systems such as the Baby Bells and A.T.&T., and software giants like Microsoft and Sega all made plans in 1994 to offer home interactive and video services. Clearly, participants in these deals were looking toward future developments in the distribution of entertainment product.

Late 1993 and early 1994 marked the ascension of CD-ROM as the dominant commercial force in the multimedia marketplace, supported on multiple computer platforms (Apple McIntosh, IBM compatible), within proprietary game systems (Sega CD and Sega add-ons, planned Nintendo systems, Atari Jaguar, and the 3DO Multiplayer) and on the Philips CD-I platform. It is estimated that over 4.5 million CD-ROM drives will be in consumer hands by the end of 1994. Blockbuster Video began carrying CD-ROM product for sale and rental in selected markets, and traditional software retailers expanded their selections. Retail prices for CD-ROM titles have fallen dramatically. The MPEG has approved a video compression system that allows movies on CD-ROM to be shown on standard computers, with add-on computer videoboard available at reasonable prices.

In August of 1993, an unusual copyright decision granted rights to Compton's NewMedia on the various CD-ROM data retrieval formats (text, sound and video), forcing software developers to pay licensing fees on any product sold. This ruling has been disputed, and is being appealed. Public outcry over the graphically violent and adult content of some video games forced manufacturers to consider a rating system not unlike the MPAA's CARA system. Technologically, video games became increasingly sophisticated, with some CD games utilizing digitalized live action (and real actors), prompting many in the entertainment industry to envision future cooperative ventures between Hollywood and software developers, although much of the action in that area has been in the licensing of established characters. However, martial arts stars Chuck Norris and Steven Seagal have licensed their names and likenesses for use in interactive software. Music videos, most notably by rock musicians such as David Bowie, Peter Dinklage, and The Who, began appearing in interactive CD-ROM packages.

Plans for America's "electronic superhighway" continued with Vice President Al Gore acting for the Clinton administration with the National Information Infrastructure: Agenda for Action, 9/15/93, proposing a federal advisory panel, the Information Infrastructure Task Force. Legislation has been introduced in the House, most notably the National Communications Competition and Information Act of 1993 (H.R. 3636), allowing telephone companies to deliver video services, opening local telephone markets to free market competition, providing an open platform for future developments (since removed from the bill's provisions), and ensuring universal service, the Antitrust Reform Act of 1993 (HR 3626) freeing up the "Baby Bells" to offer expanded interstate services, and the Communications Competitiveness and Infrastructure Modernization Act (HR 1504). In late 1994, the government plans to transfer the fiber optic lines supporting the Internet to private corporations.

Some critics have pointed out the flaws in turning over public information infrastructures to private interests. The lack of access in poorer communities to cable television is often pointed to as a negative paradigm, with the fear that America may become a society of information "haves and have-nots". Smaller companies fear that they will be unable to compete with giants like the regional Bell systems, national cable companies, and media conglomerates such as Viacom/Paramount and Time-Warner.

In reality, hardware and software limitations have slowed the actual implementation of an entertainment-oriented lane on the information superhighway. Although the major telephone carriers have replaced their main trunk lines with fiber optic cables, most households in the United States are served by standard twisted pair copper wiring which, although perfect for voice and data transmission, is inadequate for the faster and larger requirements of more advanced (video and interactive) transmissions. The cost of wiring every single household for fiber optic transmission would be astronomical. Although pay-per-view options have allowed cable companies to offer limited interactive services, traditional coaxial cable provided by cable systems is designed only for one-way transmission. No user-friendly, inexpensive consumer interface has become widely available, although many tests are being conducted on proprietary devices in limited markets. Some industry insiders seem to feel that the personal computer is simply too complex and too expensive a device to serve as a home interactive platform.

Note: Most major studios now have divisions dealing exclusively with multimedia and interactive technologies. Listings for these corporate offices can be found in the television companies section earlier in this book, or in the corporation section in the Motion Picture Almanac. Cable carriers and programmers are listed in the cable section of this book.

British Year in Review

THE BRITISH TV scene in 1994 was dominated by the government's decision to renew the charter of the BBC (British Broadcasting Corporation) for ten more years, thus maintaining the Corporation and its services while, at the same time, not threatening the status quo by insisting on such measures as the introduction of some form of advertising or other revenue-earning system. The main points of the Broadcasting White Paper were as follow:

- The BBC should remain a public services broadcaster and its programmes should reflect the culture of all the UK, with audiences consulted on proposed changes.

- The licence fee (currently £84.50 ($126.75) per annum) should be the main source of finance for the public service until at least the year 2001.

- Commercial activities at home and abroad should be expanded and a new Royal Charter should provide the framework from 1997.

- The BBC should publish a promise to its audiences to ensure that standards of decency and taste are upheld.

Other proposals were that the BBC must pay more attention to the views of the audience with respect to what is acceptable; cut down on sex and violence; avoid inciting crime or public disorder; avoid insulting or making fun of religious groups and ban subliminal messages on screen.

Most importantly, however, the BBC will be allowed to develop commercial TV and radio services—abroad and in Britain. This could lead to a 24-hour news service on cable and a bid for the new channel 5. Already a 20 per cent stake has been taken in a new TV rights acquisition company, Delta.

In its last year of operation, following a reorganisation of commercial and international strategy, BBC Enterprises—the commercial arm of the Corporation—recorded increased profitability across all of its operating divisions. Turnover was £239 million ($358m), up £7 million ($10.5m) on last year. Direct investment into BBC programmes was up at £36 million ($54m). It is claimed BBC International Television will now have a substantial base on which to develop its new commercial strategy and become a major world player. For instance, last year, 10,778 hours of programmes were sold—3,500 within the USA/Canada and 7,278 to the rest of the world. The top five best-sellers by revenue were: "Life in the Freezer", "Between the Lines", "The House of Eliott", "Nomads of the Wind", and "A Year in Provence". The BBC is the UK's largest exporter of programmes, with 43 per cent of the market, co-producing 118 programmes with 13 different countries, producing such successes as "Middlemarch" and "Dancing in the Street".

1993/4 was also an historic period for commercial television in the UK. Four new companies joined a different ITV system. Established under The Broadcasting Act 1990, the Independent Television Commission (ITC) licenses all television services in the UK (except for BBC services and S4C, the Welsh Channel) whether delivered terrestrially or by cable or satellite, public teletext and certain other text and data services. This embraces the 15 regional Channel 3 licensees, the national Channel 3 breakfast-time licensee and Channel 4.

Following a limited relaxation of the ownership rules, Channel 3 regional companies are now allowed to own two "large" regional licenses, except the two London licenses. This resulted in Carlton merging with Central, MAI (holders of the Meridian license) with Anglia and Granada with LWT. Earlier, Yorkshire Television merged with Tyne Tees Television. A major feature of the year was the continued growth in satellite and cable services licensed by the ITC, and the increasing public take-up of these services. The statutory 25 per cent quota requirement for independent productions, broadcast by licensees, was comfortably exceeded on Channel 3 (43 per cent of qualifying programmes) and Channel 4 (70 per cent). Against this background, Channel 3 maintained its positions as the most watched channel in the UK. Whilst television audiences generally declined, its share of the total TV audience, including cable and satellite, held up at 43 per cent, with a comfortable lead of 10 per cent over its nearest rival, BBC1. Expenditure on network programmes (excluding Independent Television News) declined by 12 per cent, but at £476 million ($714m) it remained a substantial programmed investment, and many high-cost programmes were made.

Among the increasing number of cable and satellite channels, the dominant player is still Sky, which has made substantial progress in establishing the UK's first major television subscription business using its popular movie channels. It has undoubtedly become part of the established British TV scene. The cable networks will cover 70 per cent of the country's population within ten years. Over £1.5 billion ($2.25bn) has been invested—mostly American finance—to build the networks, now passing some 3 million homes.

Home video sales and rentals have pushed the video market over the £1 billion ($1.5bn) mark, and a recent survey showed that watching a video ranked the third best activity in terms of value for money after "having friends around" and "listening to music" respectively.

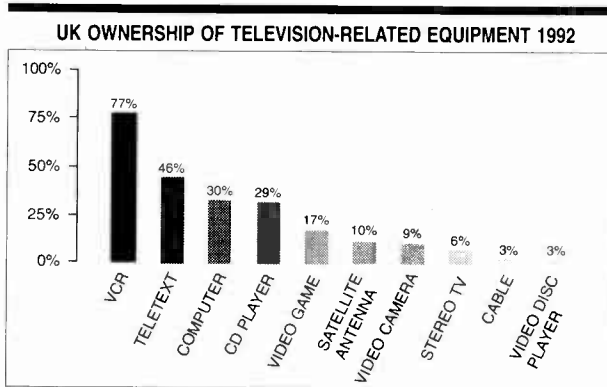

Cinema attendances are still on the increase, but there are signs that TV viewing and the quality of programmes have declined. Industry observers should be aware that many viewers complain of dull programmes and say that they would prefer to be doing something other than watching Television . . .

UK OWNERSHIP OF TELEVISION-RELATED EQUIPMENT

The nation's households are continuing to acquire the means of entertaining themselves at home, despite the depth of the current recession. The majority of respondents (67%) in this year's annual survey of public opinion about television carried out by the ITC claimed ownership of at least two television sets, compared with 57% in 1991, and 83% said that they had at least one other item of home entertainment equipment.

Households with children under 16 living at home (around a third of all television homes) claim a significantly higher ownership of television-related equipment. VCR penetration reaches 91% with home computers at 51%, video games at 33% and satellite reception at 14%. As with all households, ownership of video cameras in family homes showed the greatest year on year rise, doubling from 7% to 14%.

OWNERSHIP UK CABLE FRANCHISES

Changes in ownership have dominated activity in the cable industry over the last few months. Following the trend towards regional consolidation, General Cable, a subsidiary of French utilities group Compagnie Generale des Eaux, and Nynex, the New York and New England telephone company, have substantially increased their potential cable territory by taking over further franchises in Yorkshire and the North-West respectively.

There are now 58 broadband cable franchises in operation in the UK, seven of which have been launched during the last year. Of these, the majority are owned by one of a few multiple-system operators, or MSOs. The current top ten are as follows:

AUSTRALIA

Population: 17,400,000.

Number of Television Sets: 7,910,000; most homes have two sets.

Number of VCRs: 403,000.

TV Networks: Seven, Nine, and Ten—commercial; ABC and SBS—publicly-funded; 35 regional, independent stations.

Satellite Service: SKY Channel DBS sports service (subscriptions at bars and clubs).

U.S. cable company, Continental Cablevision and the Australian telecommunications company, Optus Communications joined forces to enhance Australia's cable TV industry. Continental which has 3 million subscribers in the U.S. also has an agreement with Multicom Australia in which they own 20% of the stock.

Also on the cable scene is Cable Television Services (CTS), which operates 10 channels and the Australian Broadcasting Corporation. Even though these are Australia's first satellite-fed pay channels, they are equipping themselves to deliver a wide spectrum of programming that includes CNN Int'l., Discovery Channel and a host of other entertainment shows. To take it one step further, CTS chairman has passed the word among distributors that he is ready to spend a great deal of money for serial programming.

Wanting to stay in the pay-TV race are stations Australis Nedra/Lenfest and UCOM. However, they still need to raise $A250 million ($167 million) each to get on the air. Australis has formed a co-venture with Telecommunications Inc. Together they plan to produce and acquire feature film as well as buy products from U.S. majors and independents.

Meanwhile, the commercial market is doing well as ad revenues on the whole increased 8-10%. Revenues totaling $50.2 million were reported for channel Seven.

Channel Nine's profits are up by 25% totaling $35 million for the first six month period of the year. They have purchased an interest in Village Roadshow, Regency Enterprises and Optus Telecommunications. This was deemed a very worthwhile investment as Optus is the country's second-largest phone company and owns the satellite system. This will enable Nine to carry the country's pay TV operational signals. This is a strategic move that will increase Nine's annual gross by $350 million by the year 2000.

Channel Ten also has good news to report with profits up 17% of revenues $34.7 million, up $8 million from the previous year. Stock analysts are predicting the network will be easily worth $575 million when it goes public.

Australis entered into a co-venture with Continental in an effort to raise $350 million in order to get operations started. Telecommunications has committed $511 million to establishing fiber-optic cables throughout the major cities. This attempt is not only in preparation for pay-TV but to offer an option other than satellite dishes.

Channel Seven fully funds most of their dramatic and series, and share the remaining profits 50/50 with the producers. Yet, even with keeping expenses to the bare minimum, expenditures cost more or less $A200,000 ($140,000) for an hour series.

Looking to be the biggest supplier of Australian product to the international market is Southern Star as they restructure the organization. Holders of the Hanna-Barbera catalog, they recently sold the listings to Ted Turner at an undisclosed price. The deal also eliminated old debts, bought out unwanted partners and invested more than $A2 million ($1.4 million) in state-of-the-art audio/video equipment. Southern Star is very pleased to say that sales revenues rose by 25% to equal $A42 million ($30 million) for the fiscal year ending March 31. In Melbourne, after a five year delay, the much anticipated Broadcasting Services Act went into effect, opening the door for pay TV. Over 150 bids were put in for the two satellite licenses ending at $82 million and $68 million, respectively. The three commercial networks who formed the consortium, Australian Pay Television (APT), were not successful in the bidding.

TV Sets: 32 million as of 1991.

System Used: PAL-M, an adaptation of the German system PAL (phase alternate line) to American system NTSC.

Globo television network which holds 65% of the market, has become the producer of some of the most popular soap opera's worldwide, and has added a new twist to the end of each dramatic series. "Voice Decide," translated to: "You Decide," allows viewers to call in and cast their votes on the areas of controversy, presented during the show. This has been a phenomenal success as over 80,000 viewers participate each week. The network claims the rate would be even higher if they had additional phone lines.

Success didn't stop there as sales for Globo's foreign department rang in at $25 million with 40% attributed to two new private networks set up in Portugal. That alone accounted for $700 million. Picking up speed is the cable TV industry as the country expects to have 3 million subscribers by 1998. Currently there are about 215,000 pay TV subscribers of which 70,000 are cable. The government has awarded 102 franchises around the country and the race is on.

The basic rate for cable is approximately $32 for a package of 24 channels and raises accordingly for each additional premium station. This, of course varies according to which company is supplying the service, with Globo, TVA and Multicanal taking the reigns. The cost of the cable franchises are ranging from $500,000 to $5 million.

STATISTICS:
TV revenues: The total revenue of the broadcasting industry for the year ended August 31, 1993, including the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, was $C2,537.7 million. Expenses were $C3,595.2 million, which left the industry with a net operating loss of $C1,057.5 million. Revenues for privately-owned television stations increased 0.3% to $C1,464.5 million. Operational expenses representing 94.6% of total revenue compared to 96.3% in 1992. The net operating income revenue ratio of privately-owned television operations before income taxes and other adjustments increased to 5.3% compared to 3.6% in 1992.

Total revenue of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation (CBC) in 1993 (including Newsworld) decreased to $C332.2 million from $C346.3 million in 1992. The net cost of CBC operations increased from $C1,004.1 million to $C1,069.1 million.

Number of TV sets: While colour televisions are in virtually every home, almost one-half (46.1%) of households in 1993 had two or more, an increase from 32.6% five years ago, and 15.7% ten years ago. In 1993 the province of Ontario led with estimates of 1,952 million households owning one television and 1,735 million with two or more, followed by the province of Québec with estimates of 1,342 million owning one television and 1,283 million with two or more.

Television viewing: In 1992 an average of 23.0 hours weekly was spent watching TV, continuing a slight downward trend from 24.2 hours in 1986. This drop is due in part to a decline in viewing by teenagers (12-17) and young children (2-11). Since 1986 the average weekly viewing of these two groups dropped by more than three hours each. Young adults (18-24) also showed some decline, but viewing by the remainder of the population has been much more stable. Teenagers watched less TV (17.0 hours) than any other group. In the young adult group females watched 19.7 hours compared to 17.1 hours reported by male counterparts. Pay TV and specialty channels receive over 10% of total viewing.

Cable TV revenues/subscribers: In 1993 the cable television industry, including discretionary and other services, reported revenues of $C2.2 billion, a 10.6% increase over 1992. Total revenue from basic cable television operations increased by 5.8% to $C1,681.0 million from $C1,588.1 million. Total revenue from discretionary and other services increased by 31.6% to $C470.9 million from $C357.9 million. Net operating income, before other adjustments and income tax, for the cable television industry decreased 26.8% to $C253.0 million from $245.4 million in the previous year, and the total number of subscribers (direct and indirect) increased by 2.6% to 7.7 million from 7.5 million. The number of pay-TV subscribers in relation to the total number of subscribers increased to 69.1% in 1993 from 60.7% in 1992 due to an increase in the number of extended basic subscribers. Cable Companies: At the start of 1994 there were 1,997 cable systems across all the provinces licensed by the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC), and 1,854 operational.

CHILE

The spectacular increase in TV advertising budgets over the last ten years has stimulated the process of internationalization of Chilean TV. Up until 1990, there were no privately-owned channels—only the state-owned Televisión Nacional de Chile; the network of the Universidad Católica; the Universidad de Chile, and a local channel operated by the U. Católica de Valparaíso. In 1983, total advertising in all media was only US$127 million.

However, by 1993, total advertising in all media reached US$345 million, of which 45.6%—US$157 million—was invested in TV (News-papers: 35.2%; Radio: 10.7%; Magazines: 4.6%; Billboards: 3.7%; Cinema: 0.2%). TV's share of total advertising is increasing year-by-year. Advertising now accounts for 1.1% of the GNP, as opposed to only 0.93% in 1987.

Foreign investors have been quick to respond. Megavisión, founded in 1990, is half-owned by Televisa of Mexico; Chilevisión (formerly U. de Chile TV) is now half-owned by Venesvisión of Venezuela, and La Red is now controlled by Global-Can-West Canada.

Nevertheless, the Universidad Católica Television is still far and away the ratings leader, followed by TVN. The new channels have still not been able to develop enough depth in their daily programming. However in 1994, Megavisión outbid TVN for the rights to telecast the Festival Viña del Mar, the annual six-night music festival which had always been transmitted by TVN since the network's inception. This event boosted Megavisión's February revenue by 89.5% over Feb. 93.

But since both U. Cat. and TVN produce two "telenovelas" per year, plus big-budget variety shows, and solid cultural, journalistic and educational programs, there is very little room left in the market for the new channels.

The typical weeknight programming is as follows: 8 p.m.—9 p.m.: Telenovela. 9 p.m.—10 p.m.: News. After 10 p.m.: Variety shows, movies, or journalistic programs. A successful telenovela always provides a dependable lead-in for the rest of the nightly programming. Liquor and cigarette advertising cannot be shown until after 10 p.m. All programming is classified as being either "Family" entertainment, or "Parental Guidance" recommended. All imported programming & movies are dubbed into Spanish.

CHINA (People's Republic)

Population: 1,130,000,000.

Number of TV Sets: 185,000,000.

System used: PAL.

Cable penetration: 7 million TV sets linked to nearly 9,000 cable systems.

Government broadcaster: China Central Television (CCTV), 11 Fuxing Road, Beijing. Telephone: 86 1 801 1149; Cable: CGTV Beijing.

The "Southeast Asian Television Study," a research paper conducted by KMPG Peat Marwick consultants and commissioned by the Australian Film Commission has reported, out of 1.2 billion people there are 185.5 TV homes. It continues to quote the Zenith Media projection that TV ad revenues are well on their way to topping the $1 billion dollar mark for 1994, up 45% from 1993 with forecast projections for ad revenues reaching $6 billion by 1996. This is especially so, with the advent of TV deregulation.

The TV industry is being spurred on by the government who approved of commercializing the networks, while private and cable stations continue to flourish. Currently there are 500 cable TV stations reaching 30 million households.

China Central Television (CCTV) is about to compensate for the lag in the film industry as they launch their own film channel, with the support of the State Film Bureau. The only hold up has been waiting for the East Is Red-III satellite to be orbited which will then relay programming to cable and closed-circuit TV networks across the country. This one system will be replacing the three satellites currently in space.

COLOMBIA

Number of TV Sets: 18 million in 1992.

After four decades of government control, commercial TV is finally coming to the fore. Intravision, the federal Radio & TV Institute grants concession to two dozen private firms. They in turn provide programming by way of two national networks, contracted on a six-year basis. All together, 7,732.5 commercial hours are made available which are worth $75 million in ad revenues. Basically the only stipulations are, programmers are limited to 16 hours of weekly programming and are responsible for their own timeslots. Programming material must also be 50% national product.

Number of TV households: Over 3 million in 1993

Number of VCRs: 2,000,000.

Private TV Broadcaster: Nova TV.

Publisher: Ceska Televize (2 channels).

Nova, Eastern Europe's first private, legally licensed TV channel, began broadcasting on February 4th, relying heavily by U.S. programming. Due primarily to financial reasons, the station has been unable to meet the terms stating that 40% of the channel's programming be provided by local producers. The Czech Intelligentsia has been monitoring the commercial station as a means of preserving the national culture from a foreign invasion. IP Prague estimates advertising of close to $70 million in 1993. Start up costs have totaled $45 million and the station is expected to break even in five years. The joint venture is comprised of American entrepreneurs, a consortium of Czech and Slovak businessmen from CET 21 and the bank, Ceska Sportelna. U.S. cable network HBO is also interested in providing programming. Nova has gained a large ratings percentage with the American hit series, "MASH," along with acquiring rights to air feature films nationwide. Owning up to 73% of the market share is Czech TV with "Beverly Hills, 90210."

With two votes short of a license, Slovak post-production studio Espe Studio was unable to complete attempts to join forces with the broader based, Reuters news agency. This has been just a part of the Slovakia's effort to privatize its two state channels.

Creative Television (CTV) along with Espe and the Redstone production studio have plans to start a private channel that would reach 955 viewers across the Slovakian terrain. Broadcast fee's, set by the parliament are just under $2 million. However, a major bone of contention is getting approval to combine Slov originated programming in conjunction with foreign groups such as CNN and CET-21, the Czech Nova private TV board of directors.

Unlike American commercial TV, Danish rule only grants advertisers a few very precious minutes of air time at the end of a program, much to the dismay of station producers. Industry majors are hoping to work out a comparable solution although the head execs at public station DR/TV believe the future of Danish TV lies in foreign co-production. They are working on expanding coverage of local media and cultural events.

ADF, the German state-controlled channel, and France Television, the French public network, have jointly agreed to co-produce and develop TV fare. Ambitions are running high as plans for a 300-hour long anthology that will air until the year 2000 are underway, featuring biographies of writers and philosophers of the 20th century.

Meanwhile, Ellipse, a subsidiary of Canal Plus, the pay TV channel, has rescued the financially troubled Le Sabre from Chapter 11. At 2.5 million francs ($438,500), Le Sabre is considered a sound creative venue capable of producing fiction, films and series suitable for the television public. Though the company posted losses totaling 54 million francs ($9.4 million) on operating revenue of 71 million francs ($12.4 million), the sale did not include Long Courier Video, its post-production video facility and Video Day, the 3-D production and editing company. They are, however still looking for buyers.

Advertising revenues for the medium have been steadily increasing over the past two years leveling off at DM 4.83 billion ($2.9 billion). Private broadcasters are enjoying the largest returns as station RTL grossed DM 1.8 billion ($1.09 billion). The network has invested DM 320 million on in-house production while placing orders with 30 independent production companies during the 1993 season. Production facilities have the ability to reach 90% of the 32 million German household giving RTL a market share of 18.9%. Second in revenues is SAT at DM 1.3 billion ($788 million), followed by Surging Pro 7, on the air since 1989, with DM 700 million ($424 million). RTL 2 which came on the air in February 1993 expects revenues totaling DM 200 million ($120 million), a rise from DM 40 million during its first year.

Though the public networks haven't been profiting as well, with ARD grossing only DM 445 million ($270 million) and ZDF posting DM 370 million ($224 million), overall the industry showed an increase of advertising as a total of 830,000 spots were aired on all channels, for 1993.

There are basically 372,000 to 13.9 million cable subscribers across Germany serviced by Telekom, the world's largest cable operator. The company predicts by the end of 1995 there will be at least 16.2 million homes connected to cable.

The cable industry in Hungary is 10 to 12 years behind the U.S., yet the country has six cable stations and HBO supports around 225,000 subscribers. In competition with the cable stations, whose programming fare ranges from movies and documentaries to foreign sitcoms, is the state-owned satellite station Duna TV. Though Duna has only a 2% market share, they have the potential to reach 1.8 million homes.

Meanwhile, commercial television producers are awaiting passage of the Television, Radio and Telecommunications Bill. Though public broadcaster, Magyar Televizio (MTV) is a favorite nationally with shows such as "Dallas," only 20% of its programs are produced from abroad, leaving its programming schedule with very little advertising appeal.

The Hungarian-German media company, MTM Communications will be the country's first commercial broadcaster. With a lineup that includes "Wheel of Fortune" and "Jeopardy" they will be ready as soon as a frequency becomes available. Also waiting for a frequency is TV Channel 3, the Budapest regional station. With a market of 3.8 million TV homes the potential for commercial advertising can go as high as $200 million.

INDIA

Population: 850 million.

Radio and television in India are state controlled. Indian television or Doordarshan, as it is commonly known, has been in business for more than three decades and India has had a national TV hook-up for over ten years. Until 1983 television covered a mere 19% of the population. Within a year, with the setting up of 180 transmitters and networking them to Indian satellite INSAT-1B and microwave terrestrial links, the coverage leaped to 70%. INSAT-1B, launched in June 1990, and INSAT-2A put into orbit on July 10, 1992, provided the bulk of the satellite links for the country. India's second multi-purpose satellite INSAT-2B was launched in July last year.

Doordarshan with its present network of 31 program production centers and as many as 558 TV transmitters of varying powers covering 84.5% of the population, is among the premiere TV organizations in the world. With well over 40 million sets in the country (according to the electronic industry over 10 million sets are sold every year), it has outpaced the print media as disseminator of information and mass communication. Regional stations transmit programs of local interest. Doordarshan at present telecasts 530 hours of programming per week—110 hours on the primary channel, 107 hours on the Metro channel and 313 hours on the four other channels. Metro channel seen terrestrially in eight cities—Delhi, Bombay, Madras, Calcutta, Lucknow, Hyderabad, Cuttack and Ahmedabad—reaches 9.4 million households, covering 115 million of the population.

Viewership surveys have shown that feature films, film-based programs (composed of song sequences culled from popular films) and sponsored serials are popular all over the country, cutting across regional linguistic barriers. This brings in a sizeable revenue to Doordarshan by way of TV commercials. During the year 1993–94, its gross revenue totalled Rs.3700 million.

Doordarshan's phenomenal expansion and substantial revenue notwithstanding, of late there has been increasing criticism of its monopoly and the monotony of its programs. Doordarshan has now opened up some channels to private enterprise and has also planned a tie-up with CNN, BBC and Pearson. CNN has asked for the use of a transponder on INSAT-2B for a 24 hour service. In return, it has agreed to increase coverage of India. BBC is also to run a news and current affairs channel in India Doordarshan (Indian TV)—Doordarshan Bhavan, Copernicus Marg, New Delhi 110001.

Several European countries, including France, Germany and Greece have offered financial support as the Palestinian Broadcasting Authority (PBA) took to the airwaves this past July, with four hours of daily scheduled programming.

Shows featuring readings from the Koran, cultural programs, half-hour news broadcasts and cartoons are all part of the lineup. The station headed by PLO member, Radwan Abu Ayash, former head of the Arab Journalists' Association intends to keep the programming content consistent with Islamic and Arab customs and traditions.

Meanwhile, Tevel, the country's first pay TV channel has invested $500,000 in the latest cable technology only to have operations come to a screeching halt as the Israel Film Producers Association and other interested parties cry foul. They have submitted a petition to the Israeli Supreme court claiming, with monthly cable subscriber fees at $35 a month, Tevel is creating a monopoly.

Also filing an injunction is the company, Telecinema who was to supply films to Israel's cable TV networks but so far has been unable to obtain a license.

ITALY

Population: 57,746,000.

Number of TV Homes: 20 million.

Television Stations: One large public network (RAI) with three channels; one large private network, with three channels; 6 national commercial webs (Canale 5, Italia 1, Italia 7, Odeon TV, Rete 4, TeleMonte Carlo); 3 available satellite channels (Sky, CNN Intl., MTV Europe).

Italy accounts for nearly one-third of the world's broadcasters, with 600 local channels, all of whom have been awarded licenses and operate according to the 1990 broadcasting law. With a minimum of three employees, a daily newscast and a minimum amount of capitalization as part of the agreement, all are vying for a share of the $300 million advertising market. Each station could acquire $500,000 worth of ad revenues, even though, according to the Telecommunications Ministry, there are only 110 channels that annually gross over $800,000 and only 94 stations which employ more than 10 people. Yet, the other 500 survive by providing programming that includes home shopping and reruns.

The ever-popular RAI, on the other hand, has been trying to clear a $1 billion debt. With 13,500 employees, severe budget cuts have been imposed on the station as the government has posted a $440 million cash allowance to keep the station from going under. It has also been suggested that RAI renegotiate deals with Italian banks to obtain lower interest rates on outstanding payments.

Two of the latest private broadcasters to enter the arena are Rome's Cinecittà Studios, owned by the state-run film group, Ente Cinema and Sacis, the sales and distribution department of RAI. Though Cinecittà has been slow to develop programming, Sacis, whose 1993 revenues were around $43 million, is offering 70% shares in the network. They are open to both Italian and international partners, though their preference is leaning towards American investors.

Number of TV Sets: 12.5 million, in 1991.
Commercial TV broadcasting began in 1956, but the station burned three years later and it was not until 1961 when the government established the Korea Broadcasting Service (KBS-TV) network. The commercial network of Tongyang Broadcasting Co. (TBC) began in 1964 and was followed by the commercial Munhwa Broadcasting Co. (MBC) in 1969. The American Forces Korea Network (AFKN-TV) was also established to serve American troops, and now comprises 6 stations.
KBS, which is entirely government-owned and collects a monthly fee from each household with a TV set, is somewhat unique since it takes commercial advertising, unlike most governmental networks. Political opponents of the regime are rarely mentioned on broadcasts; this one-sided coverage had led to a boycott by some of the public who refuse to pay fees. KBS also holds a controlling 70% interest in the only other commercial broadcaster, Munhwa Broadcasting Corp. which exists on advertising alone. Under the present regime, other stations were compelled by the government to merge with KBS, except for the Christian Broadcasting System which has been restricted since 1980 to broadcasting only religious programs. The government uses KBS profits from advertising revenues for education scholarships and expenses of newsmen traveling abroad.
KBS-TV has its key station in Seoul and 21 local stations, with other local stations making a total of 33 TV stations, including those operated by MBC and the former TBC. Color broadcasting started in 1980. Almost 10 million sets are in operation, covering almost every household. If armed forces of USA are counted, the total stations number 33.
Korean broadcasts are limited to 6.5 hours of evening time and 4 hours mornings on weekdays, 11 hours on Saturday and 17 on Sunday. Monthly fees of about $1.00 are collected and advertisements are accepted.
On Saturdays and Sundays between 8 and 9 p.m. it is estimated that 60% or more of the population gathers before their sets to view commercial stations' soap operas, far beyond the average 30% viewing for most shows.
Both KBS and MBC carry some popular U.S. programming, but that field is dominated by the American Forces Korea Network, which primarily serves the large American military population stationed in the country since the Korean War. AFKN does not carry paid advertising.
In 1981 the Republic of Korea "consolidated" all news media and took over the private stations, so daily listings read: KBS-1TV (7 cities), KBS-2 TV (2), KBS-3 TV-UHF (6), MBC-TV (6). Korean Broadcasting Advertising Corporation handles all TV and radio advertising.

South Pacific Television won the country's film and television awards for producing the best dramatic series and forming some very lucrative international co-productions. While receiving funds from the U.K.'s HIT International and New Zealand on Air, SPT has produced 260 30-minute programs for one series, while producing 13 commercial hours for another. The New Zealand Film Commission (NZF) and NZ On Air (NZOA) will produce seven hours of primetime drama for station Television One. Television One is currently the country's number one network and the combined budgets totaling NZ$2.8 million ($1.5 million) should make sure it remains that way. This innovative step is being met with much anticipation as previously, scheduling has been dominated by foreign programming.

Also doing very well is the television production group, Communicado which has also gained funding from New Zealand on Air (NZOA). Producing hit series for the station, TVNZ has earned them nearly NZ$1 million ($500,000) for the continued production of 15, 30-minute docudramas for the station. Isambard Productions, producing for TV3, is seeing 80% of their work made for international markets, which include the U.S. Family Channel. Television New Zealand is managing the recently installed Asia Business News. TVNZ has branched into the telecommunications market, building the required satellites needed to service Asia. Asian Business News has been so well received that other partners have taken a keen interest in this vital programming. Two such companies are Telecommunications Inc. and Dow Jones. Altogether, the consortium has been able to provide a broad-based, expanded view of the news from other international sources. TVNZ, TCI and Dow Jones each hold 29.5% while SIM Ventures, the Singapore governments investment department has a 10% share and Business News Network of Hong Kong holds 1.5%.

Station NRK is hoping to expand with another channel, now that it has obtained parliament's vote of approval. However, they still have to contend with the ire of private broadcasters who are fighting for frequencies.

Meanwhile, TV2 Norway the country's only commercial station is going airborne as it sets up its satellite and cable station TV + Norge, for which the Schibsted Group owns a share of 33%. Its financing strategy has been to contract all the advertisers that couldn't be accommodated by station, TV2.

This could not have come along at a better time for Schibsted as it recently won its court suit against Nordisk Films which owns 29% of TV2 Norway. The suit revolved around previous agreements when the two conglomerates had to save the financially troubled, TV2 Norway from drowning.

PAKISTAN

Population: 122.37 million plus 3 million Afghan refugees.

Number of TV Sets: There are approximately over 2.3 million licensed TV sets in the country out of which only 860,391 are licensed.

Number of TV Stations: There are eight TV stations—5 of Pakistan Television Corporation Ltd. at Karachi, Lahore, Islamabad, Quetta and Peshawar, and three of Shalimar Television Network at Karachi, Lahore and Islamabad. PTV is operated by the government, while Shalimar (STN) is leased out to a private concern.

Television came to Pakistan in 1964. In May, 1967, a public limited company was formed, all the shares of which are held by the Government of Pakistan. All the PTV centers produce and transmit color programs, including foreign films for six to eight hours daily. There is, in addition to evening transmission, a regular morning telecast every day except Friday from 7 A.M. to 8:15 A.M.

Shalimar Recording Co., a semi-government company operates a 24-hour transmission by the name of Shalimar Television Network (STN). Its first station was opened at Islamabad in July 1990; the second went on air in November 1990 in Karachi, and the third in June 1991 at Lahore. All three stations transmit 24 hours from 00.01 to 19.00 CNN live, via satellite and from 19.00 to 12.00 midnight Pakistani programs and foreign films. This channel has been run by a private concern Network Television Marketing (NTM) for about three years. They buy programs and record their own at other studios due to their lack of recording facilities. Two more stations—one each at Quetta and Peshawar—are likely to begin their transmission soon. Their main source of income is commercials.

Besides five full-fledged production centers, PTV owns 35 transmitters (Boosters) which cater to the needs of over 100 million, or 90% of the population. Transmission, which commenced via satellite in 1972, is now a regular feature and covers international events.

Color came to Pakistan in 1976 and now all programs are in color. The PTV exports a good number of its programs to other countries, particularly to those where Pakistanis and Indian national live in large quantity.

Training Institute: The PTV Academy is situated in Islamabad. It has regular courses in a variety of related fields of broadcasting and telecasting for domestic officials and engineers of foreign TV networks. PTV's trained staff are often loaned out to various foreign TV networks.

The PTV Academy has offered its services to the national film industry for training artists and technicians in modern technology.

The PTV telecasts a number of imported programs. Some are shown to viewers duly dubbed in Urdu and other regional languages. Foreign feature films are shown twice a week. The second highest share, after news and current affairs programs, was given to foreign feature films, plays, serials and sport events. Pakistani feature films are also shown every week.

The main sources of income for PTV are commercials and license fees of Rs.250 per year for domestic and Rs.500 per year for commercial sets. Pakistan manufactures black and white and color TV sets. Due to parallel transmission by STN, PTV-2, latest video films, cable, and above all, the craze for dish antenna, the income of PTV has been reduced and they had to depend on subsidies from the government. The second channel project went on the air in November 1992. It is being used mostly for educational purposes and as such it is being described as ETC or PTV-2. Old plays and serials of PTV are also shown on this channel, which starts at 5 p.m. and continues to 11 p.m. Commercials are also shown.

At present, the ETC/PTV-2 has two studios at Islamabad for recording purposes. With the help of Japanese Government, some rebroadcasting centers have already been set up and over a dozen are likely to be installed in the near future.

Population: 38.5 million.

Number of Television Homes: 10 million.

Pubcaster: Telewizja Polska (2 channels).

Private TV Broadcaster: Polsat.

Pay-TV: Canal Plus Polska (Cable/satellite).

Politics has had to play a role in Polish TV as the airwaves continue to find its niche. After a series of misunderstandings, Polsat, the countries first nationwide private station, has been able to retain its broadcast license. Polsat and its major competitor Poltel expect to split close to $150,000,000 in earnings.

Public broadcaster Telewizja Polska (TVP) is expected to close out the season with more than $125 million in revenues from advertising sales as Canal Plus Polska received a license to begin cable pay-TV.

The country's 13 active regional TV stations were shut down by Polish police during August of 1994 as it was reported they were operating on a frequency that had been reserved for the military and did not hold the proper broadcaster's licenses. Twelve of the stations were controlled by Italian media entrepreneurs operating under the station name of Polonia 1. The confrontation at the network's station headquarters became somewhat brutal between the staff and police when the personnel refused to turn off equipment.

RUSSIA

With a budget of $50 million, the country's first and only privately financed network, NTV (Independent Television channel) officially aired on October 10, 1993 with 250 hours of film programming, news and current affairs shows.

A transfer of broadcasting from the state-owned company Ostankino, on Channel 4, NTV secured its funding from a consortium of Russian banks. Managing director Igor Malashenko predicts the commercial station will do quite well as 70% of future programming will include western films, with the remaining 30% to include local independent production companies as well as material from the BBC.

This venture is very timely as the state-owned stations, Channel 1 and Channel 2 are cutting back on air time from 19 to 10 hours a day. Between the two channels, expenditures have totaled $2 billion annually with 77% being paid to the Ministry of Communications for transmission rights.

Once it is privatized it will become exclusively part of the latter. The programming on this 24 hour service includes CNN Intl. NewsVision, Mandarin movies (18 to 24 hours via VarietyVision), cartoons, and HBO. Expected are about 300,000 subscribers for the first year, at a cost of $549.95 (or U.S. $30.00) a month.

SOUTH AFRICA

M-Net, the South African pay channel which currently boast some 850,000 subscribers is busy preparing for competition as Rainbow Television is emerging on the horizon.

Though Rainbow is targeting its programming for the general public, they will operate as a commercial station using satellite technology to beam country by country throughout the continent.

Matthews Malefane, one of the prime movers and shakers behind the project is a 36-year-old filmmaker who studied at UCLA. In 1991 he formed the black-backed Broadcast Interest Group which was responsible for the deregulation of broadcasting.

Consisting of a group of black South African entrepreneurs, the consortium has gained support internationally, from other members of the industry. Kinnevik, the Swedish TV group has a 20% investment and France has offered free French-made programming while U.S. firms such as Time Warner Inc. and Quincy Jones Entertainment continue to negotiate.

The newly formed Independent Broadcasting Authority, comprised of journalist, media lawyers, actors, advertising executives and human rights activists, has cast a favorable eye towards the station. However, they are still in the process of revamping the entire television industry and have yet to issue a license to Rainbow or any other station.

ACT, an organization comprised of TV viewers concerned with offensive programming, has been making its voice heard throughout the Senate. Backed by a membership of 80,000, organization representatives are asking for programming restrictions and have cited U.S. programs "Melrose Place" and "NYPD Blue" as two prime examples of unacceptable TV fare. Due to the pressure from the group, advertisers have been pulling their ads from various shows which have been deemed violent and licentious.

Preparing to enter the 21st century, RTVE is readying its new satellite station, Hispanvision. Based in the city of Valencia, the Valencian government has allotted 900 million pesetas ($6.4 million) of its budget for all aspects of the project that will be necessary for operations. Most programming will come from station TVE, though fare from public and private broadcasters is welcome.

Fall of 1994 was the turning point for Swedish TV as the parliament has been debating whether or not to continue funding TV2, public broadcaster SVT's second channel or privatize it. At paces 25% behind station TV4 which has obtained 27% of the market share, its very likely TV2's contract will be up for grabs.

Channel TV5-Nordic has undergone a name change and is now known as "Femman" which is Swedish for, "the five." Though plans include more in-house production, obtaining more U.S. products is still high on the list.

Population: 6,908,000.

Number of TV Sets: As of April 1994, the Federal Post Office registered some 2,570,566 licenses for households in which at least one TV set (mostly color) is operating. Some 400,000 households own more than one set; therefore, the estimated number of TV sets in operation is about 2.8 million, or nearly 94% of all Swiss households.

Number of TV Stations: 4 (German, French, Italian). On September 1993, a fourth national station, TV S PLUS, started broadcasting programs mainly in German. Gradual development if the channel within the next 2-3 years.

Television was established in Switzerland in 1953, 1969 came the first color broadcast. There is a public broadcaster (Swiss Broadcasting Corp.) which provides broadcasting in the languages German, French, and Italian, as well as regular programs in Romansch, maintaining three independent broadcasters in the respective regions. As of January 1, 1994, there are 2 local stations; 29 cable TV producers have a license for transmission of televised texts.

Cable TV: is the second highest in Europe. As of January 1994 there were about 2,235,000 subscribers.

TV Advertising: In Switzerland, TV-ads were introduced on a limited basis on February 1, 1965. After a first amendment of the television and radio law in 1989, a new law came into effect on April 1, 1992. Consequently, the advertising time available was incremented by 8 percent and extended to a maximum of 12 minutes during any one hour. New ad breaks have been introduced: tv-spots are now allowed on Sundays; programs of 90 minutes and over can now be interrupted by one ad break; non-prescription medicines can now be advertised; teleshopping is permitted during one hour a day and sponsorship messages are allowed at the start and end of sponsored programs and may contain the name of the sponsor, corporate logos, trade marks and the aims of a company. An amendment to this law is underway, which should introduce a more elastic interpretation of its terms. Since 1993, there is underway an amendment of the law into effect since April 1, 1992 which should introduce a more elastic interpretation of its terms.

In 1994, national channels (in German, French and Italian language) were tuned in only 40 minutes (38 in 1992) a day by Swiss Germans, who prefer foreign channels for the remaining 85 minutes (80 in 1993). French lingo watchers tune in a national channel for an average 52 (50) minutes a day and select foreign channels for 92 (89) minutes. Swiss Italians watch national channels for 48 (48) minutes a day (mainly the news) and switch to foreign channels for some 105 (94) minutes of the daily TV-session.

TURKEY

Turkish Radio & Television Corp., TRT-TV Dept., Nevzat Tandoğan Caddesi 2, Kavaklıdere, Ankara serves 10,530,000 TV sets via 37 stations. Tel: (4) 128 04 66.

Feeling the economic crunch more than most, is the country's TV industry. Private channel, Show TV has had to tighten its belt as advertiser's and distributors have tightened theirs. Still, three new channels went on the air and local production companies are creating hundreds of commercial programming shows.

Show TV's affiliate, Cine 5 made its debut as Turkey's first pay-TV channel, six months ahead of Eko, another pay channel backed by HBO, Canal Plus and a local conglomerate operating under the name of Koc Group. With a monthly fee of $14, Cine 5 has 5-7,000 subscribers. However, with the launch of Sat 2, a new satellite system that will carry the signal, the station projects 1.5 million of the country's 13.5 million homes will carry its broadcast by the end of the year.

Running a close second with 19.2% of the market share behind Show TV with 21.6%, is ATV a commercial station recently launched along with DTV. Though DTV has only a 3.6% of the market share, its rise is slow but steady due to its interesting mix of programming. Not to be left out of the running is private station, TRT which thanks to the government's ease on regulations has been allowed to set up its facilities in Turkey as opposed to beaming their signal in by satellite.

All in all, advertising executives are somewhat encouraged, though they've calculated, in order for each station to remain active, they'll need $60-80 million annually. Under current economic conditions, only three channels can be sustained and even then, they will only be able to break even.

Keeping an eye on who's in and who's out is the AGB rating service with meters in approximately 1000 TV homes. With the country's private channel footing 85% of the cost and ad agencies picking up the rest of the tab, the battle between rating companies has been brutal as the Nielsen rating service ran a close second, in obtaining the contract. Commercial station, InterStar did select Nielsen for representation and concurrently is being sued by AGB for unfair practices.

Eight national channels exist, with five of them located in the capital, Caracas, and three regionally located. The Caracas channels are Channels 2, 4, 5, 8 and 10. The government controls two channels, 5 and 8, broadcasting on one station. One cable station was established, Channel 12.

The government channels are re-orienting their extensive programming of U.S. production to favor domestic product following radical economic policy changes. The economic changes now make imported product much more expensive at the free-market pricing system.

Statistics & History

Freedom of choice—the control of one's own viewing habits—has been the major impact of home video on the leisure-time industry in America. Owners of videocassette recorders can view what they want when they want and are no longer subject to the programming schedules of the television networks and cable stations. The VCR owner is able to watch yesterday's motion pictures today (by renting or owning vintage Hollywood films, foreign features and television product, as well as films released theatrically as recently as six months ago) and today's television programming tomorrow—along with how-to tapes, music videos and home movies.

Time shifting, the ability of the viewer to tape a show for later viewing (as well as eliminating commercials—by editing them out or fast forwarding past them), is the most common usage of VCRs. One can watch one program while taping another, or tape with the tv set off and nobody home. One can select entertainment or instruction from the more than 50,000 prerecorded tapes now available from the more than 30,000 video specialty stores, supermarkets, hardware stores and libraries. There are more than 40 brands of VCRs with 150 models now available, offering electronic tuner-timers and such special effects as freeze-frame and forward-reverse picture scan as basic features and such extra options as wireless remote control, variable slow and fast motion, on-screen function display and full stereo sound. Home video has had a revolutionary effect on the entertainment habits of the nation.

Video History

1923: Though the patent for a video-camera-like device was filed in Germany one hundred years ago, the first practical product was devised by Vladimir Zworykin, a Russian/American immigrant in 1923.

1938: A primitive video disk was on sale at Selfridges of London.

Post World War II: With the development in the early 1930s of an electronic television signal and the audio tape recorder, and their coming into broadcast use in the mid-1940s, it was not long before experiments (by Ampex and RCA in the US, and BBC and Decca in Great Britain) in recording television shows and playing them back were made in earnest. Freeing directors to edit or re-shoot, and attempting to loosen the stranglehold live television broadcasting imposed on the medium, the first recorders were longitudinal machines that looked like audio recorders and used large reels of tape at high speeds.

Early 1955: BBC went on the air with its VERA (Vision Electronic Recording Apparatus) with a head gap of 20 microns and a tape speed of 200 inches per second. A reel about 5 feet in diameter was needed for taping a half-hour program.

April 1956: An American company, Ampex, produced the first working video recorders for broadcast use, using four (quad) recording heads on a rotating drum, and two-inch wide magnetic tape which was reusable. They were first used over the air at CBS's Hollywood studios in November, 1956. (A more portable system using narrower tape and a helical scan system had been patented in Germany in 1953, but the prototypes were far too expensive and difficult to use; a tape could be used only once, and each time it was used the machine had to be cleaned of tape particles.)

1967: A Japanese company, Sony, introduced the first transportable video system which used reel-to-reel tape and recorded in black and white only.

1970: Home video arrived when the first video cassette systems were produced, in the Philips Video Cassette Recorder or VCR. (Philips had also developed and licensed the compact audio cassette.) Sony introduced its ¾-inch U-Matic format intended for professional use in the film and television industries.

1972: Philips launched its N1500, the first video recorder with a tuner-timer, making domestic video recording a reality.

The simple video game, the first interactive use of the television, was introduced into viewing households, altering perception of the TV screen from one of passive reception of broadcast programs to participation.

Late 1975: Sony introduced the Betamax system, utilizing narrower 1½-inch tape (the narrower tape size resulted in lowered costs of recording and recorders). An optional timer was included to enable a viewer to tape even when he was not at home and offered the capability of recording one program while watching another. The cost was approximately $2,200 for a recorder with TV set. Blank tape cost $20.

1976: Cartrivision, V-Cord, and VHS (Video Home System) introduced systems incompatible with Betamax machines. The first two fell by the wayside while VHS (backed by Matsushita Electronics Corporation) emerged as the challenger to Sony's Betamax by making it possible to record up to 2 hours of broadcast material for the first time. Magnavox came out with a videodisc machine, strictly a playback system which used a disc similar in size and substance to a record album that is "read" by a laser beam. RCA manufactured a rival, incompatible videodisc system.

1977: The video software market was born when a small midwestern company called Magnetic Video Corporation licensed 50 feature-length films from 20th Century-Fox and released them for sale on Beta and VHS formats at retail prices of $49.95 to $79.95.

1983: Paramount Pictures paved the way for burgeoning cassette sales when it lowered the price of some of its strongest titles to $39.95 from $79.95. Other prerecorded cassette distributors soon followed suit.

Jan. 1984: United States Supreme Court, after lengthy consideration of a suit brought by MCA Inc. and Walt Disney Productions against Sony, ruled that home taping of broadcast programming is not a violation of copyright laws, in effect legitimizing what viewers were already doing.

1984: The FCC approved the start of Multi-Channel TV Sound Broadcasting, adding stereo sound to the home video experience.

May 1987: Super-VHS or S-VHS (with an expanded band width of up to 5.5 megahertz thus increasing the sharpness of picture image, and 400 lines of horizontal resolution as opposed to conventional VCR's 240) made its debut at the Consumer Electronics Show in Chicago.

Another innovation was the introduction of 5-inch CD Video singles at a $7–8 list price, that can hold up to 20 minutes of recorded music videos.

1988: The era of "personal video" was ushered in when Sony introduced the Video Walkman, a hand-held, ultra-compact combination of 8 millimeter VCR with a 3 inch flat-screen color television set. No larger than a VHS videocassette or paperback book, and weighing about 2½ lbs, the Video Walkman operates on AC, Battery or 12-volt. Matsushita Electronic Industrial Co. followed with its own 3-lb personal videocassette recorder-television which uses VHS-C tape instead of Sony's 8mm.

Sony also unveiled its Hi8, an 8mm camera-recorder and editing deck which produces an extra-high quality picture. It can play and record conventional 8mm tapes but recordings on Hi8 cannot be played on older 8mm equipment.

RCA/Columbia Pictures Home Video was the first home video manufacturer to release closed-captioned video cassettes for the hearing impaired.

Three feature films ("Julia and Julia," "Crack in the Mirror" and "Do It Up") as well as a made-for-television movie ("Innocent Victims") were shot using HDV, high definition video, then converted to 35mm using a tape-to-film transfer process which converts the tape's thirty pictures per second to twenty-four frames per second on film. Though unwieldy (HDV must be hooked up to a video tape recorder by means of cables) and with a lower ASA rating than film, this new technology is a step in breaking down the traditional barriers between film and video.

1989: According to figures released by the Electronics Industries Association, sales of prerecorded videos rose 39% in 1989, with some 200 million cassettes sold, against 135 million in 1988. In dollar value this was approximately $4.2 billion, up from 1988's figure of $2.97 billion. Estimated figures for 1990 were 260 million prerecorded cassettes sold, or $5.5 million in revenue.

1990: 1990 saw a decline in the video rental market, causing an increase in the price of many rental-priced tapes (customarily list priced at $89.95). While many tapes rose to $92.95, "The Hunt for Red October" was released at a suggested price of $99.95, the first major title at this price since "Platoon" was released in January of 1988.

- Video stores discovered that cheaper, sell-through titles are basically a gift idea as the post-holiday period showed a huge quantity of cassette copies unsold, such as "Batman." Retailers believe they can do better renting the titles than selling them. Warner Bros. had sent out 13 million copies of "Batman" to retailers, of which approximately 5 million went unsold. Nonetheless "Batman" was once of three huge Holiday '89 sellers along with Walt Disney's "Bambi" and "Who Framed Roger Rabbit."

Trends 1994:

- Although the sell-through business was at an all-time high, bringing in approximately $6.7 billion in 1993, many believed that that video cassette rentals may have peaked due to such options as pay-per-view and the vast selection of cable channels. According to a March 1994 study by Alexander & Associates rentals for 1993 were almost exactly the same as they were in 1992: $11.2 billion in sales, with some 4.5 billion tapes rented.
- Not surprisingly the October '93 release of the animated hit "Aladdin" resulted in another Disney record-breaker, selling over 24 million copies in a six month period. Following rapidly on its heels was the company's first direct-to-video animated feature, the "Aladdin" sequel "The Return of Jafar." Made quickly and cheaply compared to the equivalent theatrical fare, the tape nonetheless made at splash at stores, selling 8.5 million copies in less than three months.
- As part of its October 1994 video release of the blockbuster "Jurassic Park" MCA Home Video announced a tie-in with McDonald's Restaurants, including $5.99 prices on four earlier Universal/MCA movies: "An American Tail: Fievel Goes West," "Back to the Future," "Field of Dreams," and "The Land Before Time." As a result K-Mart yanked these films from its store in protest, threatening to return all copies to MCA while strongly considering a possible boycott of all the company's product if such promotions became the norm. Walt Disney's chairman, Jeffrey Katzenberg, shortly before his departure from the studio, was most vocal in protesting this and similar tie-ins, pointing to the cheapening of movies by selling them on inferior quality cassettes in fast food chains and the ultimate loss of revenue for the film companies.

VCRs: Latest figures from Statistics Canada (StatsCan) a federal government agency, show that in 1993 VCRs were standard fixtures in 77.3% of households, a great leap from 6.4% of households ten years ago. Multiple VCRs were found in 12.9% households in 1993 compared to 9.8% in 1992. Out of 10,247 million responding households sampled in 1993 an estimated 6,604 million owned one VCR, and 1,321 million owned two or more. The province of Ontario led with an estimated 2,467 million households owning one VCR and 532,000 households with two or more, out of 3,765 million responding. Québec followed with an estimated 1,665 million households owning one VCR and 287,000 households with two or more, out of 2,688 million responding.

Market: StatsCan's latest figures relating to the 1991-92 home entertainment distribution market show that it accounted for 68% of all distribution revenues, compared to 60% in 1987-88. For comparison, revenues from the wholesaling of videocassettes (in constant 1991 dollars) have advanced from $223.5 million in 1987-88 to $547.3 million in 1991-92. The Canadian content share of the home entertainment market in 1991-92 rose slightly to 15% compared with 13% the previous year.

CHILE

The rate of VCR ownership continues to surge upwards, since real wages have been rising by 6%-9% per year, and consumer credit has skyrocketed in recent years. Renting a video cassette is the cheapest form of entertainment. Therefore the middle and lower income groups prefer to watch a movie on video rather than go to see it in the cinema. According to a recent survey of heads-of-households in Santiago, 34.4% have rented a video cassette in the last month, whereas only 24.8% have gone to the cinema. Among the low income groups, 30.9% rented a video, but only 19.8% went to the cinema.

The duty rate on the importation of VCRs is a 20% surtax on top of the basic duty rate of 11% on all imported goods. Piracy is estimated at being 30% of legitimate sales. There is an Association of Video Distributors which controls 80% of the market, and it has been aggressive in helping expose piracy.

Future growth expectations are bullish. However, the Central Bank of Chile has recently applied the brakes on the expansion of consumer credit. These measures caused an immediate drop in retail sales, especially appliances, electronics and automobiles. Unemployment has gone up from 4.5% to 6.5%. The average middle-class family owns the equivalent of two months' salaries to department stores and lending institutions (apart from mortgages). Nevertheless, this tight money policy is expected to be only temporary, and the GNP growth-rates for 1994 and 1995 are projected at being about 5% per year.

GREAT BRITAIN

The Home Video Market in Britain—the largest in Europe—proved in 1993 that the industry is here to stay and that it is now one of the leaders in the leisure sector. A survey conducted by the BVA (British Video Association) showed that the total worth of the video market is now in excess of £1 ($1.5) billion mark for the first time. The growth of retail sales, which have overtaken the rental market, continues with a 25 per cent increase from 48 million units in 1992 to 60 million units in 1993.

Film is the largest genre with 31 per cent of the market. Strongest growth comes from children's videos, up 7 percent. They take 30 per cent of General Multiples sales (i.e., Woolworth, Smiths, Boots, Menzies, etc.). Tapes are sold at an average of £10 ($15) and an average night rental is £1.80 ($2.70).

Buena Vista emerged as 1993's overall market leader with "The Jungle Book," "Beauty and the Beast," "Peter Pan" and "The Muppet Christmas Carol." As with the theatrical market, most of the product screened on home video originates from America. "The Bodyguard" gave Warner their second consecutive annual chart topper, following the success of "Robin Hood—Prince of Thieves." The BVA estimates that the rental market grew by 3 per cent in 1993 when the chart toppers were: Total rentals: "Sister Act"; Drama/Thriller: "The Bodyguard"; Action/Adventure: "Under Siege"; Comedy: "Sister Act"; Children's: "Home Alone 2"; Sci-Fi: "Alien 3"; Horror: "Bram Stoker's Dracula."

BBC Video continued to challenge Disney for the No. 1 sales position. Sales were up 33 per cent at £37 ($55) million with UK sales of sell-through videos up by 30 per cent. This is the highest rate of growth since 1990. No. 1 selling title was "Mr. Blobby," with over 300,000 copies. Top five titles by income were: "Mr. Blobby," "Absolutely Fabulous," "Red Dwarf," "Dr. Who" and "The Animals of Farthing Wood."

Of all titles rented in 1993, Buena Vista lead with "Sister Act" clocking up nearly 4.9 million transactions. Fifteen films achieved more than 2 million rentals and another 25 were rented more than a million times. "Basic Instinct" from Guild remained in the charts from the previous year and passed the 5 million mark. CIC had the most titles (8) in the Top 30 rental charts. Top titles each week averaged 345,000 rental transactions, while the blockbusters achieved over 600,000 in their first weeks.

Four out of every ten videos rented had a '15' certificate. Another three out of ten had '18' certificates, indicating that the rental sector was much more of an adult market than retail.

Concern continues to be expressed about the increasing ease with which children can gain access to violent material on video. The British Board of Film Classification (BBFC) complained that children are frequently watching videos that are rated '18' and that greater care is needed to enforce the categories in shops, and for parents to enforce them in the home. This warning has been followed by a Government report which proposed that an effort should be made to reclassify some of the 25,000 films released so far for home viewing. The BBFC should collect specific complaints from the public to identify the 'small number of videos' that caused great anxiety, states the report.

The BVA, however, believes that retrospective classification would be unworkable but welcomes the recommendation for further research into the affects of viewing violence. It goes on to state that video is now not just a successful business. It is an integral part of the social fabric of Britain. Its success as a growing form of home entertainment reflects two things: the range of video product; and people's desire to control their own life rather than being dictated to.

British Board of Film Classification Certification Symbols for Video Packaging and Publicity:

Piracy: Video piracy in Greece is a big headache to the major motion picture and video companies. A protection organization established some years ago to prevent piracy and prosecute culprits under the existing "Forgery Law" proved insufficient. There are 180 TV stations operating in the provinces which never pay any TV rights on the video tapes they telecast. A new organization was set up this year to tackle this problem, depriving the companies of huge amounts of income. It operates under the name "Society for the Protection of Audiovisual Works" and is financed by the companies Audiovisual Enterprises, Home Video Hellas, Video-sonic Antenna and Mega Channels plus some American companies. Its budget amounts to drs. 150,000,000 ($400,000) and its main object is to prosecute video piracy.

Hardware and Software Dealers: There are many dealers selling hardware and software equipment acting as agents for Akai, Asa, Blaupunkt, Grundig, Hitachi, Lowe, Panasonic, Philips, Telefunken, Siemens, and others.

INDIA

With the expansion of TV networks throughout the country an increasing number of VCRs have appeared in Indian homes. Although no precise figures are available, a considerable number of sets continue to be smuggled into the country, a rough estimate putting the total number of VCR/VCPs at around 7 million. The growth rate is about 25 per cent per annum. There are well over 120,000 video libraries renting out cassettes, with an almost equal number of video parlors proliferating in small towns and slum colonies.

For the film industry, video is good business. Since the industry is protected by an anti-piracy law (any person infringing it is liable for a three year imprisonment and fine which may extend to Rs.100,000) home viewing rights (domestic) for an 'A' grade film can reach Rs.20 million, while grade 'B' films might bring in half of that amount. Competition for the home viewing rights is fierce among video distributors. A consortium of six companies—Gold, Bombino, Magnum, Time, Indus, and Shemaroo have established control over the market and between them hold the copyright to well over 2,000 feature films.

Recently a new company, Cinema International Corporation (CIC), a Paramount-Universal subsidiary has started to release high quality "originals". It aims not only to provide quality prints but also drive out pirated copies from the market. An anti-piracy club, INFACIT (Indian Federation against copyright theft) funded by MPEAA, NFDC and other organizations ensures this safeguard.

Cable TV operators have mushroomed in most metro cities and smaller towns linking up some 7.3 million homes and this number is increasing rapidly.

Satellite TV has also given a tremendous boost to the pre-recorded audio cassette market. India being the second largest in the world. Its volume is a staggering 220 million cassettes per year valued at $60 million. Film industry's share in this is nearly 60%.

Trade Organizations: The All India Cable TV Association and the All India Video Association, REDCAT-12 C Thakkar Industrial Estate, M.N. Joshi Marg, Lower Parel (East) Bombay 13.

Population: 57,600,000.

Number of TV Sets: 21 million in 1992.

Number of VCR Sets: 6.4 million in 1992.

The Federation Against Audiovisual Piracy (FAFAP) confiscated more than 1 million pirated videocassettes throughout the country in 1993. This was the result of over 2000 raids conducted by law enforcement groups.

$80 million in tax revenue is lost due to piracy with an estimated commercial value of $325 million. Of this sum, a $130 million loss is accrued by Italian production companies with the U.S. picking up the rest.

The government has shown strong support for putting an end to piracy, which by some sources accounts for 40% of the home video market in the first 9 months of 1993. 70 cases of piracy were tried and resulted in severe sentencing.

PAKISTAN

Number of VCRs: There are approximately 1.6 million VCRs and VCPs in the country, about a million of which are in households. A license fee of Rs.200 and Rs.400 for domestic and commercial tapes respectively is levied by the Government. The custom duty on the import is Rs.3,000 per piece.

The dish antenna has strongly affected the VCR/VCP business, as the price of both are almost equal—about Rs.10,000. A registration fee of Rs.2,000 and Rs.1,000 annually is imposed on dish antennas, which covers a much larger area.

Number of Video Distributors: It runs into thousands, but the biggest are about a dozen who "import" so-called "master prints" of banned films (mostly Indian) from Dubai, duplicate them by the thousands and sell them to smaller distributors and video shops throughout Pakistan. Some of these distributors have smuggled-in blue and X-rated video films as well, but handle them very carefully.

Number of Rental Video Shops: There are two kinds of shops—one dealing in sales, the other in rentals only. The number of these shops is about 125,000, half of which are in Karachi alone. Due to cable, 24-hour transmission by STN and dish antenna, business in rental shops has gone down considerably. In certain localities there is a monthly subscription system—between Rs.30 and Rs.50—by cable suppliers showing 2 Indian and Pakistani feature films daily. Libraries in posh localities like Clifton, Defence Society, PECH Society etc. have home delivery systems on subscription for Rs.100 to Rs.150 per month. Subscribers have only to dial and place their orders.

Average Price of Tape: This is flexible according to the currency value and international market. The present price of a blank video cassette is between Rs.110 and Rs.130. Pre-recorded (slightly lower grade) tapes are also available at the same rate. Sales of blank video tapes reaches over one million every month. They are mostly used for copying foreign (mainly Indian) films smuggled-in from various neighboring countries and re-released simultaneously throughout the country, which does great harm to the theater business.

Total Video Revenue for the Industry: As video is an illegal business in the country, the figures of its revenue are not available from any source. However, according to the Video Dealers' Association, it runs into billions of rupees every year. As there isn't any kind of tax, except illegal gratification to area police, the business is spreading a great deal. In spite of the Copyright Act Bill, passed by the National Assembly and imposing a strict penalty of three years imprisonment and a fine of Rs.100,000, the video business goes on unhindered.

Window: Almost simultaneously—in some cases video is released even before the theatrical release of Indian films. However, piracy of Pakistani films has come to an end after the passage of the Copyright Bill in June, 1992. The video houses and tea shops continue to show the latest pirated Indian and foreign feature films for Rs.3 and Rs.5 per person on huge color TV sets in their premises.

Trends: Like cinema goes, video viewers love to see films full of sex, violence and thrills on the small screen. However movie goes hardly see such films in cinemas because of strict censorship. Video viewers see them in full, as there is no censorship on video, as it is an illegal trade.

Top Videos: Besides Indian, foreign films are also getting popular among Pakistani viewers of video. However, films of Indian superstars like Shahrukh Khan, Sri Devi, Mamta Kulkarni, Anil Kapoor, Mahuri Dixit, Saif Ali Khan, Juhi Chawla, Salman Khan, Amir Khan, Pooja Bhatt, etc., are very popular with masses. The upper class prefers foreign movies. The following were the most popular with viewers during the year under review: Mohra, 1942—a love story, Aatish, Darr, Ye Dillagi, Bazigar, etc. (Indian).

SWITZERLAND

Population: 6,874,000.

Video Stores: In Switzerland in 1993, there were an estimated 350 videoshops, some 1300 video sell-thru stores and about 1500 rental and sell-thru stores.

Penetration: According to statistics of the Swiss Videogram Ass., by end of 1993 some 1,800,000 households were equipped with home videos. This corresponds to a penetration of 56% of all households. Curiously enough, in German speaking households (71% of the Swiss population) only 50% of the households are equipped with a home video, while the French part of Switzerland, or 24% of the country's population, shows a 61% penetration, followed by a 60% penetration in the Italian part of the country.

Trends: 1993 video tape sales increased steadily from a turnover of Sfr. 28,400,000 in 1992 to Sfr. 33,859,596. Rentals decreased from a turnover of Sfr. 13,800,000 in 1992 to 11,293,426 in 1993. As a new entry, CD-Videos grossed Sfr. 281,231.

The video cassettes distributed by members of the Swiss Videogram Association were 1,839,228; some 100,000 were rentals, over 1,600,000 sales and a good 65,000 belonged to the CD-Video category.

Bestsellers: Last year's sell-thru bestsellers were "Jungle Book," "Beethoven," "Beauty & The Beast," "Peter Pan," "Bodyguard" and "Sister Act."

Normally, the window between theatrical release and release on video is about 6 months. For sell-through the window is about 8 to 12 months. In some cases, however, theatrical release and video release occur contemporaneously.

Piracy: Some 10% of the video market is given over to piracy, which results in a loss of about 800,000 Swiss francs.

THAILAND

The Ministry of Commerce and Ministry of Interior, together with police, combined their forces to eradicate illegal sales of pirate videos. Risking the loss of export sales to the U.S. totaling roughly 200,000 million Baht ($8 billion) per annum, the government chose to enforce the eight existing laws under Section 301 of the trade agreement. As a result, pirate video manufacturers, who previously controlled 80% of the video market were hit hard as illegal duping centers were raided, and equipment and tapes seized. The pendulum has now swung in favor of legitimate videos as sales have increased by 30%. 1993 saw a surge in sales as 800,000 units were sold.

CVD Co. Ltd., is the local licensee for the Hollywood majors and also represents TVB coming out of Hong Kong. Approximately 250 titles are released annually by CVD. Each title can sell up to 20,000 copies. Making up about 30% of the market are rentals which are first dubbed into Thai followed by sell-through with Thai subtitles at 60%.

TVB, who releases up to 350 titles annually, rents master copies to regional copy centers, for a monthly fee. The centers, in turn, produce all the copies they can sell.

Helping to ensure product safety from the hands of video pirates, are engineers from Japan and Hong Kong have patented a new device going by the name of CopyGard. This is designed to prevent clear viewing quality by adding an extra signal to cause picture disruptions.
