Hey! You with the new release! I know...it's the hottest thing since sliced-bread and the stations will play it a hundred times a day once they get it. But you're not sure which stations will accept your not-quite-rock-and-or-country-or-alternative-hard-core-singing-ballad-in-Swahili. Why try? Call us one week before the demos get into your hands and we'll have the labels of the stations who are probably just Dyin' to hear your demo. Labels and telemarketing reports made your way...(800) 248-4242.

Accurate. Dependable.

The M Street Directory, as well as the M Street Journal and the M Street databases, are edited by broadcasters, for broadcasters. The staff at M Street has done it all...from engineering to station ownership, small markets to networks. We understand the data we provide. We carefully and meticulously analyze every piece of information. In short, we care.

Because of this dedication, hundreds of broadcast companies, government agencies, networks, and stations across the country count on us every day for the most accurate, up-to-date radio station information available.

Call us anytime.

If you're looking at FM stations in this book, you might be surprised at what their coverage might be. For as little as $250, plus a small charge for local terrain information, you can either calculate FCC predicted contours in any direction, or actually view a 3D map of predicted or REAL coverage, instantly on your computer!

For information or a demo disk, write Radiosoft Division, Mountain Tower Ltd., 120 North Riverside Drive, Edgewater, FL 32132 or call anytime: (904) 426-2521.

Accurate. Dependable.

The M Street Directory, as well as the M Street Journal and the M Street databases, are edited by broadcasters, for broadcasters. The staff at M Street has done it all...from engineering to station ownership, small markets to networks. We understand the data we provide. We carefully and meticulously analyze every piece of information. In short, we care.

Because of this dedication, hundreds of broadcast companies, government agencies, networks, and stations across the country count on us every day for the most accurate, up-to-date radio station information available.

Now! 116 ways to grow radio sales, increase revenue and pitch new business.

Media Targeting 2000 is a landmark study of consumers and media that confirms the selling power of radio.

Three jam-packed pages per category

Because the study contains so many categories (116), it's likely your radio station or ad agency will find one or more of your client's — or potential client's — products or services among them.

For instance, is your client a car dealer? Or, maybe you're prospecting for one? How about a furniture store, a fast-food restaurant, a pet store? There are three full pages of data allotted to each of those categories, as well as to all the others, each under the headings "Consumer Profile" and "Media Habits."

Confirms radio's power to reach consumers

The study allows you to let your clients see their customers as they are, including occupation, income and lifestyles. And most important, how they use radio. Like: During the day, people spend more time with radio than with any other medium; and, it's the number one medium they're exposed to prior to a major purchase.

An Arbitron donation

Jointly produced by Arbitron and the Radio Advertising Bureau (RAB), the study is Arbitron's gift to the radio and ad agency industries. One copy has been sent free to Arbitron subscribers and RAB members. Additional copies are available at $25 each. To get one, write to:

This section lists the M Street RADIO MARKETS in the United States. In general, a station is included in a market if it is licensed to a city in that market or if the market is a primary focus of its marketing activities.

For each listing, the market name is followed by all states served, Metro and Total Survey Area populations (TSA), the M Street 1996 market rank (MST), the Arbitron 1996 market rank (ARB), the Willhight survey dates (if any), followed by AM and FM stations, in dial order.

Metro and Total Survey Area population figures are based on the 12+ population estimates of Arbitron, if an Arbitron-rated market; Willhight, if the market is rated by Willhight but not Arbitron; or M Street, if the market is not rated. M Street rank is based on population estimates for the M Street-defined market area, which is defined by postal zip codes, rather than counties. The market definitions of Arbitron and Willhight are influenced by stations purchasing each company's ratings services, and do not necessarily coincide with each other or with M Street.

Audience estimates are for persons 12+ Monday-Sunday, 6 a.m. to midnight, average quarter hour shares and persons from the Metro Survey Area. Ratings for each Arbitron market are from the most recent ratings period for that market. Willhight survey dates are given separately for each market.

This year's directory includes Arbitron trend information. The column headers indicate the rating period, or "book," from which the numbers came. Here are our abbreviations, as well as the survey dates for each book:

IS YOUR RADIO RATINGS COMPANY ADDING MORE TO THEIR BOTTOM LINE THAN YOURS?

If you just answered yes to this question, now is the time to do something about it. Why not buy from a radio ratings company that does radio ratings right?

Willhight Research features our own in-depth "8 point Station Identification Probe". This means that your station is credited correctly. Willhights' qualitative data is respondent based and market specific, so you have the information you need to sell smart. Change the way you buy radio ratings. Call Willhight Research now.

Key to markets section:

For each listing, the market name is followed by Metro and Total Survey Area (TSA) populations, the M Street 1996 market rank (MST), the Arbitron 1996 market rank (ARB), the Willhight survey dates (if any), followed by AM and FM stations in dial order. All current Arbitron ratings are from the most recent ratings period for that market, which are shown in the first column.

Estimates are for persons 12+ Monday-Sunday, 6 am to midnight, average quarter hour shares from the Metro Survey area. For more information on ratings and copyright information, see the ABOUT RATINGS section at the front of the book. Estimates are copyrighted and may not be quoted or reproduced without prior written permission of the copyright owner. Trend data may not be available for all stations. Arbitron does not release ratings information for non-commercial stations. For more information on the format descriptions for each station, see the FORMAT CLASSIFICATIONS section at the front of the book.

M Street Same Day Map Service

(using RadioSoft's AMR and FMR mapping software)

Now you can have a map of your actual contours faxed or shipped the same day you order it! M Street can deliver full-color or black and white coverage maps with up to 9 FM or 4 AM contours on one map (subject to geographic limitations). They're great for sales kits, brokers packets, and facilities upgrade analysis. And, they're a lot less expensive than what you're used to.

Call today to see what we can design for you!

INSIDE RADIO®

Every day by 7 a.m. Edited by Tom Taylor/609-424-6800

On your desk before the distractions begin. Over your morning coffee. Before the meetings and the phone calls. Every day — the most current updates. INSIDE RADIO Daily FAX service began on the eve of duopoly. Now, many executives tell us they couldn't have kept track of the flurry of station trading without it. But there's more: executive moves, new format trends, new services.

Next day Arbitron ratings. Quarterlies and Arbitrends. Today's releases on your desk tomorrow morning. When the ratings are being delivered, it's the most-stolen page of INSIDE RADIO.

Radio stocks and business news. Each morning we publish the quotes from publicly-traded radio companies. And information on those stocks that goes beyond how they performed on the exchanges.

Employment and Marketplace listings. A daily diet of executive opportunities. For those looking, the curious-but-employed and stations or companies looking to hire. We're told by owners that it delivers quality leads when they're looking for their next GM, Sales Manager or Programmer. There's also INSIDE RADIO'S Marketplace section. New products and services on display every day.

Be careful — it's addictive. The INSIDE RADIO daily FAX turns five years old in '96. Our loyal readers tell us it's part of their routine. That's why advertisers know their messages will be seen. On your desk by 7 a.m. — starting tomorrow if you call now.

M Street Same Day Map Service

(using RadioSoft's AMR and FMR mapping software)

Now you can have a map of your actual contours faxed or shipped the same day you order it! M Street can deliver full-color or black and white coverage maps with up to 9 FM or 4 AM contours on one map (subject to geographic limitations). They're great for sales kits, brokers packets, and facilities upgrade analysis. And, they're a lot less expensive than what you're used to.

Call today to see what we can design for you!

Tracking radio stations in Canada is more difficult than in the United States. Two regulatory agencies, the Canadian Radio Television Commission (CRTC) and the Department of Communication (DOC), rather than one (the FCC) make it hard to follow technical and legal changes. There are multiple stations with the same call letters and low power chains of stations licensed to communities in the remote territories. All of this makes Canada a challenge for us. We do our best, but be patient with us. Errors and omissions are unavoidable.

Unlike our listings for the U.S., we don't try to list every Canadian station. We list all major commercial and CBC as well as campus and significant community stations. In addition, we list larger rebroadcasting facilities, which are always noted with an "r:" in the format field (e.g. Country r:CKAA-570). If the rebroadcaster has an office of its own, we list its contact information. If it does not have an office of its own, only the owner and the originating station's phone number are listed.

New to the Canadian listings this year are personnel listings for primary commercial stations and as many CBC stations as would cooperate. We have also added format descriptions for all stations, as we did in our U.S. listings last year.

For more information on the format descriptions for each station, see the FORMAT CLASSIFICATIONS section in the front of the book.

If you have an update, additions, or corrections to our data, we would love to hear from you. You can fax us at (615) 865-2598 or phone us at (615) 865-1525.

FCC Procedures and Overview

by Gregg P. Skall

Gregg Skall is a communications lawyer with the firm of Pepper & Corazzini, L.L.P., in Washington, DC. He frequently represents parties before the Commission and the Congress to obtain desired policy objectives. In 1984, the National Journal recognized him as one of the leading radio spectrum lobbyists in Washington. He writes and speaks on topics of Federal Communications Commission administrative process, electronic mass media, and telecommunications. He may be reached at (202) 296-0600.

APPLICATIONS AND LICENSING PROCEDURES

The Communications Act of 1934 requires that a radio station be licensed by the FCC before it commences broadcasting. There are two ways to obtain such a license, both of which require submitting an application to the FCC. The first method is to apply for a construction permit to build a new station. Often, there is significant competition for the initial grant of such a permit,[1] but once it has been issued and construction properly completed, the issuance of a license is usually automatic. The second method of obtaining a license is to purchase an existing station and seek authority from the FCC to assign the license to the purchaser. FCC authorization of the ownership change is required, and approval must be obtained before the purchase is consummated.

The Communications Act requires the FCC to observe certain procedures in these licensing activities. First, an application for authorization to build or buy a station must be filed. Then, the FCC must issue a public notice announcing the filing. The FCC cannot grant an application until 30 days have passed from the date this notice is published. The Act also requires that the party filing the application give local notice in the community where a station is proposed or, in the case of an existing station, where it is currently operating.

Before an application can be granted, the FCC must find that the grant will serve the public interest, convenience, and necessity. One of the matters it considers is formal petitions to deny, or informal objections challenging the grant of the application. These petitions and objections must be filed within the 30 day period following the FCC's public notice of the application's filing. If such petitions or objections are filed, the FCC must determine whether they raise a substantial and material question of fact or whether granting the application would serve the public interest. If such questions are raised, they must be resolved before an application can be granted.

If questions raised cannot be readily resolved, an evidentiary hearing, similar to a trial in a civil suit, is the procedure used to explore and finally resolve such questions. At such a hearing, evidence is collected and the burden is placed on the applicant to prove that the public interest would be served by grant of its application. If an applicant fails to produce sufficient evidence to meet this burden, its application will either be dismissed or denied.

In contrast, if no petitions or objections are filed, and the Commission finds no other problems, an application can be granted as soon as the 30-day public comment period has passed.

Similar procedures are also used when the FCC is asked to grant various other applications. Since a radio license is only granted for a limited seven year period, a licensee must apply for renewal of its license. Renewal applications, like initial licensing applications, are subject to public petitions and informal objections — but for a period of several months rather than 30 days.

Another kind of application is one by which a licensee of an existing station seeks a construction permit to make a major change to its station. Among other things, the Commission considers the change in an AM station's community of license or frequency to be a major change. For AM stations, major changes can also include increases in power. For non-commercial FM stations, they include significant (over 50%) changes in the area covered by the station's signal. Whenever such a change is proposed, the same public notice procedures and 30-day public comment period required for initial applications must be observed.

Some applications are considered minor in nature and are therefore not subject to a 30 day public comment period before they can be granted. These include applications for insignificant modifications to existing facilities, primarily those that cannot affect the station's frequency or its community of license. Another example is pro forma ownership changes, such as partnerships becoming corporations, or involuntary transfers of control in bankruptcy or situations involving the appointment of a receiver. Although an FCC public notice of the filing of such applications is still required, and informal objections from the public may still be filed, there is no required waiting period before these applications can be granted.

REGULATORY FEES

Pursuant to statutory authority, the Commission collects from broadcasters annual regulatory fees.

Amount of Fees

The Commission's schedule of fees was initially proposed by Congress, but may be modified each year. The amount of radio station fees are based upon the class of the station. Fees must be filed with the FCC's Form 159, on the date announced by FCC Public Notice.

Application Fees

The Commission also charges fees for the filing and processing of applications. A schedule of fees is available from the Commission or from the author of this article.

OWNERSHIP RULES

Radio Ownership -- The Communications Act of 1996 eliminates the limit upon the number of stations that can be under common ownership or control nationally. Local ownership rules have been substantially relaxed according to market size (which continue to be measured by commercial contour overlap) to permit the following:

- in markets of 14 or fewer stations: up to 5 total (but no more than half of the stations in the market) and no more than 3 in the same service (AM or FM);
- 15 to 29 stations: up to 6 total, 4 in the same service;
- 30 to 44 stations: up to 7 total, 4 in the same service;
- over 45 stations: up to 8 total, 5 in the same service.

The Act authorizes the Commission to override these limits if it determines that the result would be an increase in the number of stations in operation.

National Radio and TV Ownership - The 1996 Act eliminated all limitations upon the number of broadcast stations that a person or entity may directly or indirectly own, operate or control on a national basis. The only remaining restriction limits the national audience reach for commonly-owned, -operated or -controlled television stations to 35 percent. The Commission has eliminated Section 73.3555(e)(1) of its rules and has revised Section 73.3555(e)(2) accordingly.

Alien Control -- The act also modified the old standard of alien ownership found at Section 310(b) of the Commission's Act by removing the restrictions on licensee or parent corporations having foreign officers or directors.

Joint Ventures and Simulcasting

A "time brokerage arrangement" for more than 15% of the brokered stations' broadcast hours per week is an attributable ownership interest. Further, stations in the same service whose overlap area constitutes more than 50% of either station's principal community contour may not simulcast for more than 25% of either stations' broadcast time.

The FCC defines time brokerage as the sale of discreet blocks of time to a party who both supplies the programming to fill that time and sells the commercial spot announcements in it. It has suggested that time brokerage agreements may provide for liquidated damages upon termination, but that excessive liquidated damages or an unreasonably lengthy term could raise questions concerning a licensee's meaningful control over its station. By its "main studio rule", brokered stations are required to maintain the presence of at least one full-time managerial and one staff person at the brokered station's main studio during regular business hours. (See following section on Main Studio Staffing.)

All time brokerage agreements, sometimes also called Local Marketing Agreements (LMAs), must be reduced to writing and included in the public inspection files of both the brokering and brokered stations for the term of the contract, although confidential or proprietary information may be redacted. Time brokerage agreements which qualify as an attributable interest must both be filed with the FCC within 30 days of execution and be included by the brokering station in its annual ownership report. The FCC filing must include a certification that the arrangement complies with the Commission's ownership rules. Should a brokering station purchase the brokered station, the 25% audience share limit will be tested at the time of acquisition, not when the time brokerage agreement began.

MAIN STUDIO STAFFING

In 1991, the Commission held in Jones Eastern of the Outer Banks, Inc. that, where a station located its primary studio outside the 3.16 mV/m contour, it must nevertheless maintain a main studio within that contour staffed by two full-time employees, one of whom must be supervisory (or managerial).

The FCC considers positions that will constitute a "meaningful managerial presence" at the main studio to include: president or other corporate officer; general manager; station manager; program director; sales manager; chief engineer with managerial duties; news director; personnel manager; facilities manager; operations manager; production manager; promotion manager; research director; controller and chief accountant. It is job duties rather than titles that are considered.

The FCC does not require these management persons to be "chained to their desks" during all business hours. However, they must report to work at the main studio on a daily basis and spend a substantial amount of time there, using the main studio as a "home base."

Non-managerial main studio staff may take on responsibilities for another business outside the studio so long as the main studio is attended by some station employee during all normal business hours. Caution: While this is a possibility, such an arrangement should be reserved for situations where the parties agree to maintain EXTENSIVE records regarding the actual time and duties devoted to each employer by the employee.

EEO ENFORCEMENT POLICIES

On February 1, 1994, the Commission announced and implemented a new equal employment opportunity enforcement procedure. The new policy statement refocused FCC EEO enforcement upon recruitment and the relative presence of minorities in interview and applicant pools.

Although the monetary forfeiture aspect of the policy has been suspended as a result of an action of the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, the standards are still being applied as informal policy by the Commission staff. A licensee's failure to demonstrate that it has recruited so as to attract an adequate pool of minorities or female candidates for at least two-thirds (66%) of its staff vacancies during the previous license term can lead to monetary forfeitures ranging into the tens of thousands of dollars and possible reporting conditions or short term renewals. In one case, a license renewal was designated for hearing on issues that could lead to the loss of the license. It is the licensee's burden to demonstrate that it has met this threshold. Penalties can be triggered by inadequate performance or by a failure to document activities with adequate records.

The Commission considers certain factors to be evidence of egregious misconduct. These include a failure to attract minority or female candidate for at least one-third (33%) of the license term vacancies, a large number of hiring opportunities relative to staff size, a large pool of minorities in the relevant labor force, a history of previous EEO shortfalls, and EEO lapses with respect to minorities and women.

Factors favoring the licensee that would result in either a lower fine or a full-time (rather than a short-term) renewal include hiring of minorities above half or full parity levels (compared to their presence in the local workforce) on a consistent basis, a low number of hiring opportunities, and a low percentage of minorities in the relevant population. The Commission also holds out financial inability to pay as a possible downward adjustment. Finally, the Commission will permit a downward adjustment for a stand-alone station in an Arbitron 200+ market.

It is important then to maintain extensive records of hiring activities for each broadcast station. Special records should be maintained regarding efforts to attract minorities and the sources used for this purpose. Records should also be maintained as to the number of minorities in job applicant and interview pools.

Pepper & Corazzini has developed an EEO primer responsive to the Commission's new EEO program. That pamphlet is available upon request to the author of this article.

LICENSING

Term -- The radio standard license terms is 8 years, subject to short-term renewal sanctions where appropriate. A license is to terminate automatically if a station is silent for one year.

Procedures -- The Act prescribes a renewal procedure that precludes competing applications. A renewal application must be granted if the FCC finds (a) that the station has served the public interest, (b) the licensee has not committed any serious violations of the Communications Act or FCC rules, and (c) other violations of the Act or rules, taken together, would not constitute a pattern of abuse. (Although it would seem that this procedure perpetuates the current strong presumption of renewal expectancy, the vagueness of the first standard may afford the Commission considerable flexibility.) If the standards are not met, a renewal application may be denied after hearing or granted subject to terms and conditions. Only after denying renewal may the Commission accept applications for the forfeited facilities. These new procedures apply retroactively to all renewal applications filed after May 1, 1995.

Applications -- The Act specifically bars the Commission from requiring renewal applicants to file information previously provided or which is not directly material to the renewal.

FCC COMPLAINT AND ENFORCEMENT PROCEDURES

There are several types of special procedures and rules which require broadcaster attention with respect to FCC enforcement procedures. They include procedures for FCC field inspections, for public complaints and objections, for station forfeitures or fines, for rule making, for ex parte contacts by members of the public with the FCC and for required misconduct reports.

Informal Complaints Anyone may file a complaint with the FCC concerning the operation of the station. If such complaints contain significant allegations, the FCC customarily forwards the complaint to the licensee for comment and explanation. Under this procedure, the licensee is given a specific amount of time to respond. The FCC then evaluates whether any action is necessary and issues a letter informing both the complainant and the licensee of its decision.

Formal Complaints The FCC also considers more formal complaints against the licensee. These complaints often take the form of a legal petition requesting that the FCC take specific action. Among the most common of these are petitions to deny an application pending before the FCC. Petitions may also be filed independently of the application process. Consequently, a licensee should be wary of such filings at all times.

Petitions often allege that the licensee has violated a federal law or policy. The FCC requires petitions to contain specific facts to support their allegations. Once a petition is filed, a licensee has a limited period of time to submit a response or "opposition" to the petition. This is important to remember since, unlike informal complaint procedures, the FCC does not inform a licensee when its opposition is due. Unless the licensee submits an opposition on its own initiative, it may be completely precluded from responding to the petition at all.

If a licensee submits an opposition to a petition, FCC procedures generally allow the party filing the petition to submit a reply to the opposition. Thereafter, no further pleadings are allowed. The FCC will then make a decision about whether further action is warranted. If it decides no action is necessary, it will either dismiss or deny the petition. If it believes further inquiry is required, it will usually designate the matter for a formal evidentiary hearing or initiate an investigation.

Field Inspections As a result of a complaint, a petition to deny, a licensee's failure to file some required information, or a random decision by FCC staff, a station can receive an unannounced field inspection by the agency. Such investigations or inspections may include anything from a review of the station's public inspection file to an evaluation of the performance of a station's transmitter. Such inspections are frequently held after a station has completed significant new construction, to determine whether it is operating as authorized.

Most inspections are simply a routine investigation by FCC staff to make sure a licensee is operating its station in conformance with FCC rules. Every licensee must eventually endure such an inspection, so they should not be viewed with alarm. Generally, an FCC field inspector has a right to inspect every aspect of a broadcast station's operation and can review all documents related to the operation. Remember, however, that FCC rules specify only certain documents must be made available to the field inspector.

While a member of the public has a right to see the station's public inspection file, only an FCC field inspector has a right to see anything more. Consequently, before providing documents or information not contained in the public inspection file, the licensee has a right to see positive identification indicating that the person requesting the information is an FCC official.

Forfeiture Proceedings If as a result of a field inspection or a complaint, a violation of FCC rules is found, the licensee involved may be subject to a forfeiture proceeding. A forfeiture is a monetary fine. A "forfeiture proceeding" determines how serious the violation is and how large a fine, if any, should be imposed. In a forfeiture proceeding, an official Notice of Violation (FCC Form 793) is mailed to the station. This notice indicates the particulars of the violation. The licensee has 10 days from the receipt of this notice to respond. Failure to respond may result in the FCC finding that a violation has occurred. After the licensee is given the chance to respond, the FCC considers how serious the violation is or whether one has occurred at all. If it decides further action is warranted, it can issue a Notice of Apparent Liability, which indicates what violations have been found and how much of a forfeiture is due.

The FCC's forfeiture authority is limited by law to $25,000 for each violation for each day of a continuing violation, up to a maximum of $250,000. In 1991, the Commission adopted a new approach to assessing forfeitures. This new approach assigns a "base amount" for each category of infraction, expressed as a percentage of the maximum daily amount of $25,000, ranked according to the severity of each offense. The Commission also has established a range of upward and downward "adjustment criteria," which are to be used in increasing or decreasing the base amount according to the surrounding circumstances. In its policy statement, the Commission also warned broadcasters that it "remains free . . . to respond to violations with other or additional action, for example, admonishment, revocation or non-renewal." This new approach was challenged in the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia where it was determined to have been improperly adopted under the Administrative Procedures Act. Although it has, therefore, been suspended and the FCC is considering its future course of action, broadcasters may refer to it as a general rule of thumb as to what they might expect if a violation is found.

In cases involving more serious violations, the FCC may skip the issuance of a Notice of Violation and issue a Notice of Apparent Liability immediately. In fact, in many cases a field inspection will result in the immediate issuance of both kinds of notices, a Notice of Violation for minor infractions and a Notice of Apparent Liability for more serious violations. Field inspectors have now been granted delegated authority to assess a forfeiture on the spot when conducting an inspection.

If a Notice of Apparent Liability is issued, the licensee has 30 days to challenge either the amount of the fine or the FCC's findings of a violation. It can also pay the forfeiture, which ends the proceeding. If the Notice is appealed, the FCC then makes a final decision as to whether a forfeiture is necessary and, if so, the amount.

FCC Misconduct Reports

The FCC requires licensees to report "relevant non-FCC misconduct." Under this requirement, only adverse adjudications of relevant, non-FCC misconduct must be reported. Pending claims such as pending libel suits or employment discrimination complaints, which have not yet been adjudicated, do not have to be reported. Pending litigation is presumed by the FCC to be irrelevant to a broadcaster's character qualifications.

"Relevant non-FCC misconduct" is defined as including: (a) all felonies; (b) fraudulent representations to governmental units; (c) mass media-related violations of antitrust or other laws dealing with unfair competition; and (d) a pattern of adjudicated non-FCC related employment discrimination. Under this policy, an adverse adjudication of a libel claim would not have to be reported, but the same result in a discrimination case would. The libel suit does not fall into one of the above categories, but the employment discrimination case does. Thus, even a single adverse decision of discrimination must be reported, since it might indicate a possible pattern of conduct warranting FCC examination.

The Commission also interprets Section 1.65 of its rules to require report of adjudications of relevant non-FCC misconduct on an annual basis. The report should be filed on either the licensee's renewal application or, like ownership reports, on the anniversary of the date that the renewal application is required to be filed.

The FCC's policy on reportable misconduct also extends to non-licensee entities which share an officer, director or shareholder/partner with the broadcast licensee, if a principal of the licensee was in control of the other entity or was directly involved in its misconduct. The reporting policy also applies to non-FCC misconduct of a parent or subsidiary corporation if there are principals common to the licensee and the related company was involved in the misconduct. The policy extends only to misconduct of all persons with attributable interest in the relevant entity. It does not apply to employees.

CONTENT REGULATION

The FCC has adopted programming regulations which address policies affecting the selection of material that stations use to air, especially political material. They also address the promotion of contests or events in which the station or its employees hold private commercial interests. Political broadcasting is exceedingly complex and should not be addressed without extensive explanation and considerable study, not available in the space allowed here. A detailed political broadcasting manual by this author and firm, Pepper and Corazzini, is available upon request at (202) 296-0600.

POLITICAL AND PUBLIC AFFAIRS PROGRAMMING

There are two basic groups of rules and policies in the area of political and public affairs programming. The first is the largest, and includes the FCC's regulations affecting political campaigns. These regulations include political advertising rules, regulations requiring that political candidates receive equal air time, laws mandating reasonable access for federal candidates, and regulations requiring every licensee to maintain a political file. The second group of rules concerns the FCC's regulation of commercial practices, including contests and promotions, disclosure of commercial interests, and obscene and indecent programming.

Campaign Programming

A broadcast licensee must provide reasonable access to certain legally qualified political candidates. When a legally qualified candidate makes a use of the broadcast facility during a non-exempt program, then an opposing candidate is entitled to request equal opportunities. The four categories of exempt programs are: bona fide newscasts, bona fide news interviews, bona fide news documentaries, and on-the-spot coverage of bona fide news events. Independently produced bona fide news interview programs also qualify for the equal opportunities exemption. Thus, syndicated and bartered news interview programs qualify for exemption, provided that their carriage by the licensee is a reflection of "its bona fide news judgement and not for the political advantage of the candidate for public office." Certain uses may qualify for the station's Lowest Unit Charge. All uses must be free from censorship, and must bear proper sponsorship identification. Each request for use of the station's facilities, and the disposition of that use must be recorded in the station's political file.

The Communications Act imposes two limitations on the rates that may be charged for political advertisements. They are known as Lowest Unit Charge and the Comparable Use Rules. The Lowest Unit Charge applies for 45 days preceding primary elections and 60 days preceding a general election. It requires that a station determine the lowest advertising rate it is charging its advertisers, including all potential discounts. This rate then becomes the maximum rate that may be charged to bona fide candidates in an election for the same length spot during the same part of the day, even if they do not otherwise meet the criteria normally required to qualify for a preferred rate.

The following discussion, although not intended to be exhaustive or complete, highlights some of the most important features of the political rules.

Reasonable Access. The Communications Act itself mandates access only for federal candidates. The Commission has decided that since the statute mentions only federal access, reasonable access applies only to federal candidates and need not be extended to local elections. Thus, the station may, if it chooses, deny access to non-federal candidates. However, if a station chooses to afford access to non-federal candidates, it must also afford equal access to each of that candidate's legally qualified opponents.

Sales of Political Time Within News Programming. A station may adopt policies to exclude candidates from purchasing advertising within news broadcasts.

Sale of Time On the Weekend Before Election. A station must have staff available to sell, produce and/or program candidate spots on the weekend before the election, if it has provided such weekend services to any commercial advertiser at any time during the year preceding the election.

Definition of a "Use". The Commission defines a "use" as any recognizable appearance by a legally qualified candidate in a non-exempt program (exempt programs include bona fide newscasts, bona fide news interviews, news documentaries, and on the spot coverage of bona fide news events). Thus, an "oldies" radio station playing an old Sonny and Cher recording while Sonny Bono is running for political office, could find itself liable to give away massive amounts of time to Sonny's political opponents.

Disclosure. You must treat a candidate as if he or she does not know the first thing about advertising on your station. This is true even if a candidate works through an advertising agency, political consultant, or some other sophisticated and experienced intermediary. Every factor that could reasonably bear upon a candidate's advertising strategy must be disclosed. In other words, a station must treat a political advertiser as it would treat its most favored advertiser, but assume that they know nothing about advertising on radio or television. Although it cannot be required, it is strongly advised that a station obtain written confirmation from candidates that they have received a full disclosure of sales practices before any political spots are aired.

Classes of Time. The FCC permits a station to establish as many separate classes of time as it wishes, so long as there is a genuine, demonstrable difference between them, not based upon price or quantity.

Rebates. The FCC emphasizes that inadvertent overcharges to a candidate must be discovered and refunded promptly, generally in time to be used in connection with the political campaign.

Improper Sponsor Identification. It is the licensee's responsibility to assure that an adequate sponsorship identification is connected with the advertisement. If reasonable assurances cannot be obtained from the candidate, the station may insert the required sponsorship identification into a deficient spot without providing additional broadcast time, even if it means obliterating some of the candidate's message.

Personal Attack Rules. The Personal Attack Rules require that if, and only if, in the context of a program concerning a controversial issue of public importance, an attack occurs on the honesty, character, integrity or other personal qualities of an identified or easily identifiable person or group, then the station must take the following steps within one week of the attack: (1) notify the person or group attacked of the date and time, and identify the broadcast; (2) send a tape or transcript or, if none are available, as accurate a summary as possible to the attacked party; and (3) offer a reasonable opportunity for response.

Political Editorials. When a licensee airs an editorial, either for or against a legally qualified candidate, it is required to provide notification, a transcript, and an opportunity to reply. If an editorial endorses a candidate, then the notice and the offer to reply must be given to the other legally qualified candidates in the same race. If the editorial opposes the candidate, then that candidate must receive the notice and the reply offer. A station is not obligated to allow the candidate to personally appear in a reply, however, as long as there is an opportunity for someone to air a response. There are specific rules regarding the timing of the notice and reply offer.

Obscene and Indecent Programming

A major regulatory concern is the area of obscenity and indecency. While this area is also regulated by the states, the FCC relies upon a Congressional Act which states that "whoever utters any obscene, indecent, or profane language by means of radio communication shall be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned not more than 2 years or both."

In 1988, the Commission adopted the following benchmark to determine indecency: "language or material that depicts or describes, in terms patently offensive as measured by contemporary community standards for the broadcast medium, sexual or excretory activities or organs."

Although it qualifies as protected speech under the First Amendment, indecent programming may be required to be channeled to certain hours of the day. However, both a 24 hour ban on such programming was overturned and a midnight to 6 AM safe harbor period was stayed by the court of appeals. The Commission is now enforcing a ban from 6 AM to 8 PM pursuant to a court order. The matter of safe harbor periods remains under appeal at this writing. Obscenity, on the other hand, is not protected speech and may be entirely proscribed. The FCC has no authority to impose criminal sanctions for obscene or indecent broadcasts. Only the Justice Department may bring criminal actions under this statute. However, the FCC may bring administrative sanctions and monetary forfeitures. The Commission has attempted to bring actions to further define indecent programming and the "safe harbor" time period in which it may be presented, and many of those cases are still in litigation. Any broadcaster venturing into this area of speech is well advised to pay close attention to the Commission's litigation over such programming.

Disclosures of Commercial Interests

The Communications Act requires that any announcement or promotion aired by a broadcast station for which money or anything else of value is paid to the station must include an announcement that the matter being broadcast is a paid promotion or advertisement. Moreover, an employee of the licensee who accepts something of value for broadcasting any information or announcement must disclose that payment, in advance of the broadcast to the station's management. Failure to make such disclosures could result in the violation of the FCC's "payola" and "plugola" rules and federal statutes.

Payola is defined as the undisclosed payment of something of value to a station employee for the on-air promotion of goods, services, or events. Payment to a station employee for broadcast of a particular recording is a classic form of payola. Plugola is the promotion by a station of an item or event in which the licensee or one of its employees has an undisclosed financial interest. An example of this would be an on-air promotion or discussion of a concert in which a station employee has a commercial interest. Such a promotion is permissible if the management of the station is aware of the interest and when appropriate sponsorship information is announced. If disclosure is not made, federal law is violated, which can lead to the loss of a license.

Contests and Lottery Rules

The Commission's rules restrict the broadcast of lottery information and impose forfeitures upon stations found to have done so. A determination that a lottery exists requires a finding that the elements of prize, consideration and chance all exist. The Commission will also fine or sanction a station for broadcasting lotteries that were provided to it in the context of syndicated programs that are carried on a barter or cash basis.

The question of whether there is "consideration" is tricky, and what a licensee and the contest promoter may perceive as a free, alternate means of entry could be viewed by the Commission as onerous enough to constitute "consideration," thus making the contest an illegal lottery. It is also important to bear in mind that recent revisions to the laws on lottery permit the broadcast of information about contests that have the element of a lottery so long as the lottery is either authorized or otherwise not prohibited by state law and conducted as a promotional activity by a commercial organization that is clearly "occasional and ancillary" to the main business of the sponsoring organization. Special rules apply to advertising pertaining to Indian gaming.

If the contest has the elements of a lottery, you must check with the appropriate official in your state to determine whether it is permissible under state law. If the state law prohibits the lottery, it is a violation of the Commission's Rules to broadcast information about it.

To provide protection against liability, a licensee should have in place procedures for systematic review of every program, and indemnification provisions in its syndication contracts.

Broadcast Hoaxes

The FCC prohibits the broadcast of hoaxes containing false information concerning a crime or catastrophe. It defines a "crime" as any act or omission subject to criminal punishment and a "catastrophe" as a disaster involving violent or sudden events affecting the public. Thus, the rule does not cover a broadcast that might upset some listeners but does not pose a substantial threat to public health or safety.

A violation of the hoax rule requires a finding of the following three elements:

Licensee knowledge of falsity. The licensee must have known that the broadcast concerning the crime or catastrophe was false. A licensee will be held accountable for the actions of its employees and, therefore, must monitor their actions.

Foreseeability of substantial public harm. The FCC deems public harm to have been foreseeable if the licensee could expect with a reasonable degree of certainty that substantial harm would occur.

Direct causation of substantial public harm. The FCC defines public harm as damage to the health or safety of the general public, diversion of law enforcement or other public health or safety authorities from their duties and damage to property. The public harm must begin immediately after the broadcast and result in actual damage, rather than a mere threat of harm.

PUBLIC INSPECTION FILES

All broadcasting stations are required to maintain a station file open to public inspection. The file must be kept in the station's community of license at an accessible location. If the main studio is in the community, then it must be kept there. If not, then it must be kept somewhere else in the community, and a toll free telephone number must be maintained to provide the public access to station management. The file must be available upon request, without further inquiry except for name and address, during normal business hours, and the inquiring party must be allowed to copy any portion of it.

The public file must contain a variety of station information. Two of the most important items are the station's annual "Issues/Program List," a list of community issues and the station's most significant programming responding to them, and the Political File.

The "Issues/Programs" List must be prepared every three months and placed in the public file on the tenth day of each calendar quarter. The Political File must include a complete record of all requests for broadcast time made by or on behalf of candidates for public office, along with information about disposition and charges. Requests for a specific class or length of time must be recorded even if time is not actually sold.

Records must be complete and self-explanatory. Numerical or shorthand codes are not allowed! Generally, material in the file must be retained for the longer of the license term, or until the FCC grants the first license renewal after the materials were put in the file.

Other items that must be kept in the public file include, with some exceptions, all FCC applications and all correspondence about them between the FCC and the applicant, FCC decisions about the station, and a statement about any petitions to deny which might have been filed against the station. The station must also keep the engineering portion of any application as long as it reflects the current technical operation of the station, and for three years after it becomes obsolete.

The file must also include every ownership report or supplemental ownership report filed after May 13, 1965 for the longer of the usual retention period, or as long as they reflect current ownership. All control, management or programming agreements associated with ownership reports must be filed. For example, network affiliation (television only), citizen group programming agreements, stock pledges, oppositions and proxy statements. While the file does not require agreements with the station personnel and professionals, copies of them must be kept available for inspection by authorized FCC officials.

The station must maintain in the file a copy of every Annual Employment Report with all associated documents and a copy of the station's EEO Program submitted with the last renewal.

The file must include sponsor identification materials for political or "controversial issues of public importance" programming, the FCC publication The Public and Broadcasting - A Procedure Manual, letters from the public that do not request anonymity, a certification of compliance with public notice of renewal applications and all other matters which have a "substantial bearing" on a claim or complaint against the licensee or permittee or which relate to a Commission investigation.

NRSC-2 STANDARD

All AM radio stations are required to comply with the NRSC-2 standards showing an absence of spurious emissions, and must take measurements annually to demonstrate compliance with the emission limits contained in Section 73.44 of the Commission's Rules. Measurements must be taken with no more than 14 months elapsing between measurements.

The measurement data must be accompanied by a description of the equipment and procedures used in taking the measurements, and must be signed and dated by the qualified person or persons taking the measurements. The measurements must be kept on file at the transmitter or remote control point of the station for a period of two years, and on request must be made available to representatives of the FCC.

The FCC does not require AM broadcasters to purchase all necessary equipment. Although the FCC suggests using a radio frequency spectrum analyzer calibrated in accordance with Section 73.44(a) of the Rules, a licensee may use "other specialized receivers or monitors with appropriate characteristics." However, any disputes about the accuracy of the measurements will be resolved in favor of measurements obtained by a properly calibrated spectrum analyzer.

DIGITAL AUDIO BROADCASTING

The Commission has established the satellite DAB service in the "S" band. It now has outstanding a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking on standards for licensing that service. To date, it has not established standards for terrestrial digital radio broadcasting and the broadcasting industry is conducting tests of various DAB systems, such as in-band, on-channel systems. The National Radio Systems Committee, a joint effort of the National Association of Broadcasters and the Electronic Industries Association, has convened a committee for exploring various options for in-band, on-channel systems. The committee is continuing to meet regularly in an effort to develop a standard satisfactory to all parties.

On a parallel track, the Commission has accepted six applications proposing satellite DAB service, with those applications proposing everything from all subscription radio to a full commercial service using 28 separate satellites spot beams to major metropolitan areas with each spot beam carrying 16 channels of service, in addition to 16 channels of service covering the entire continental United States. The proceeding remains open.

RADIO BROADCAST DATA SYSTEMS

The National Radio Systems Committee, the joint venture of the National Association of Broadcasters and the Electronic Industries Association, has adopted a Standard for Radio Broadcast Data Systems known as RBDS. The system incorporates the Radio Data Systems (RDS) Standard employed by the European Broadcasting Union and additional U.S. enhancements, such as the In-Receiver Database System (IRDS) and MBS/MMBS the system used by CUE Nationwide Network for FM subcarrier paging and other users of subcarrier data capability. The IRDS system is an in-receiver rom database that is updated by a subcarrier data stream. It will be used primarily to make some RBDS benefits available to AM broadcasters.

RBDS provides radio broadcasters with the opportunity to have a display on the face of the receiver which provides the information identifying the station, its location and the format in which it is broadcasting

at the time. The codes are broadcaster controlled and can be displayed on character screens located in the new RBDS radios. They are especially useful to allow the receiver to scan by format. In addition, RBDS can be employed to provide some of the following services: alternate frequencies to have a receiver retune itself to a broadcaster-designated alternate frequency when the one to which it is tuned becomes weak; emergency broadcasts which may replace the existing EBS system; paging services; navigational services for utilization in automobiles and other mobile vehicles and transparent data channels which can be used for any purpose.

PROPOSED RF RADIATION STANDARD

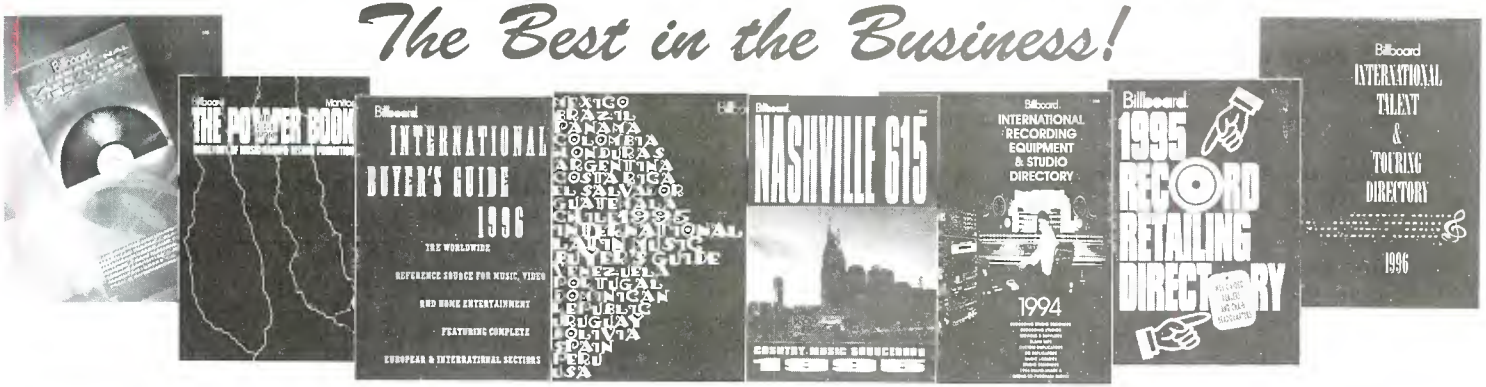
The Commission is seeking to implement more restrictive guidelines for the exposure of workers and the public to radio frequency (RF) radiation. This would conform the Commission's rules to the November, 1992, American National Standard Institute (ANSI) Standards which more severely restrict the amount of environmental RF exposure permitted, cover a broader range of frequencies, set different limits for workers and the general public, and narrow the range of accepted devices. Where there is any question of possible exposure of the general public (including non-technical employees) to RF radiation, the Commission proposes to apply a more conservative guideline.



[1] When more than one applicant seeks facilities which would interfere with one another, the applications are called "mutually exclusive". The Commission's criteria for choosing among mutually exclusive applicants was recently invalidated by the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. Until the Commission determines how to proceed, it has frozen mutually exclusive applications.

FINALLY... your Brand of Country!

In recent years, our small town in the Ozarks has become the hottest new word in country music. With over six million music fans visiting every year, the word Branson has, seemingly overnight, become synonymous with the magic that is country music. Located in the heart of Branson, you'll find the state-of-the-art studios of the Branson Music Network. Here, we produce "live" twenty-four (24) hours a day, a country music format that definitely has its finger on the pulse of the industry.

We feature not only the hottest new country, but the hot country classics as well; those that have helped shape country music into the nation's most dominant format.

We are always live, never pre-recorded and always fun. As Branson's first and only national radio network, we have a lot to live up to. We thus measure our success by only one standard—Your Success—and we stand committed to its achievement.

For more information regarding the one network that can separate your station from the masses of "cookie cutter" programming cluttering the airwaves today, please contact our marketing department in Branson, Missouri and bring a little country "magic" to your town.
