ABC-FM DISC JOCKEYS

SPOTLIGHT: WABC-FM

The prospect of FM broadcasting totaling half of all radio listening, once predicted for 1975, is now being anticipated for 1972. Underground radio is seen by many experts as the most rapidly expanding area in all broadcasting.

Turn on and tune in to the "Alternative Media." It is, as the kids used to put it: "Where the action is." The battle lines are drawn between the Radio Nation and the TV Nation, and the two are "as far apart as Abbie Hoffman's Woodstock Nation and Judge Hoffman's Chicago Nation," as one trade paper recently summed it up.

At first there was AM radio with popular music, news, advertising commercials, interview shows, soaps, and serials. Then along came FM, on a small-scale basis and generally limited to classical music and an occasional low-keyed commercial, but gradually infiltrated by the booming phenomenon of rock music. Today it's estimated that about 400 FM stations around the country use a rock format.

The American Broadcasting Companies, Inc., created a separate division this summer to develop frequency-modulation radio as a medium stressing progressive rock music and offering talk-in shows for those interested in today's modern lifestyle. Allen B. Shaw, Jr. was named vice-president of the new FM division, which has stations in New York, Chicago, Detroit, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Houston, and Pittsburgh. ABC-FM stations have been broadcasting rock for many months, but Harold L. Neal, Jr., president of all the company's radio stations, said the time seemed ripe to take full advantage of the market. Martin H. Percival, a vice president, has been given the full-time job of soliciting advertising for the new division.

Progressive rock spread throughout the country on FM and many broadcasters believe that in quantity there soon will be more rock than classical music on the band.

Meantime, FM has spawned what became known as the "underground" station, but what is increasingly referred to as the "alternative medium," offering alternatives to commercial radio for those generally young segments of the population lumped under the "counter culture" label. The stations began offering record album cuts seldom heard on commercial outlets, along with commentary and news with an anti-establishment bias plus uninhibited talk shows on controversial subjects felt to be inadequately covered, ignored or suppressed in the general media.

If this sounds subversive, or perhaps too controversial, to the stalwart citizen, he is underestimating the flexibility of the free enterprise system. For what is happening is that the Establishment recognized that there was a large and growing audience of sophistication, and began stretching its tentacles underground. Or else the converse is true: the underground is deciding to use the Establishment for wider and more efficient distribution of its message.

At ABC-Owned Radio Stations, the reality is probably somewhere in the middle and about that point can be found Mr. Shaw and George Yahraes. Both men came to the New York offices of ABC in the fall of 1968 from a Chicago station using the popular, well-proven format—geared largely to a teenage market—of "Top 40" singles records and rapid-fire, hard-sell commercials. But they believed that there was a distinct new subculture in American life, and they have devised a new programming concept for FM that would be aimed directly at that group.

Harold Neal was willing to take the chance, and in March 1969, the new programming went on the air over ABC's seven radio markets. The programming is automated, recorded on tapes, allowing each of the markets to present essentially the same programs, adjusted for local commercials and newscasts, and, in most cases, using a "live" local segment for the evening hours. Non-ABC outlets were gradually added in other cities.

If the technical set-up seems complicated, it is nothing compared with pinpointing exactly who is the "average listener" of FM radio. The term "subculture" implies a series of shared characteristics: anti-Vietnam war, at least a tolerance of pot smoking, a college background, an interest in "causes" ranging from the Black Panthers and the Young Lords to Women's Liberation and rent strikes, a contempt for most television fare, and, of course, an avid interest in rock music, films, and the personalities involved. The problem, of course, is to find the thin line that will appeal to such widely contrasting groups as mildly alienated college students, and the radical Weathermen and their ilk.

Shaw and Yahraes strongly emphasize their lack of sympathy with any individual or philosophy that is out to "destroy society." On the other hand, they believe that capitalism is not above criticism, and that there is much that can and should be corrected. The basic concern of their audience (which has shifted from the 17-25 age group to the 22-34 category), is the feeling that the evils of the system stem from neglect, from years of giving material gains precedence over the quality of life. Although there are no hard figures on membership totals, the two executives note that the subculture probably exerts an overall cultural influence far out of proportion to its size. (ABC-FM estimates its total weekly audience at over 1.5 million.)

They are probably right, as a look at the other elements affected would show: the influence is startling. Rock records now account for about 60% of the recording industry's total sales and rock musicians have saturated the concert field, on and off campus. The success of movies like "Woodstock," "Easy Rider," "Joe," and "Five Easy Pieces" certainly caused a reshaping of the scheduling in the old-line movie industry. Best seller lists are more frequently including such writers as Eldridge Cleaver and Jerry Rubin, who are now being published by prestige publishing houses. Fashion designers note their inspirations in off-beat haunts of the young, and now even the American Indians, prominent heroes of the subculture, are featured in department store windows.

At ABC-FM, the disc jockeys are given an unusual measure of freedom in their soft-sell advertising spiels, in putting together more imaginative mixes of music, establishing connections between styles dissimilar on the surface, and in cool, understated readings of commercials, the announcers are given great leeway. National news reports are likely to be liberally sprinkled with items on pot busts, campus arrests, tenant strikes and draft resistance. Their approach to the news is considerably different from that of, say, David Brinkley. And there are many spontaneous "raps" which reflect their individual feelings toward what is going on. If the use of marijuana is casually accepted, the use of most other drugs, particularly of the "hard" variety, is the target of frequent and strong warnings, generally in the form of imaginative public service ads. "Speed" is given a sarcastic recommendation to anyone seeking certain death within five years; experimentation for kicks is emphatically discouraged.

The personnel is first-rate—Dave Herman, Tony Pigg, Mike Cuscuna, Murray Roman, Howard Smith, et al—and the new basic format seems to be working successfully for ABC-FM. The owned stations have garnered high ratings during prime listening hours, coming in first, according to one independent survey, among FM stations in Los Angeles and Pittsburgh. Mr. Shaw, now 27-years-old was recently promoted to vice president of ABC-Owned FM Stations, and Mr. Yahraes, 25, was named director of programming and promotion. They are the tight-rope walkers between a network management that might just be nervous about how far they intend to go, and an audience who probably would like to see them go as far as they can.

Mr. Shaw stresses that so far his top bosses have been informed in advance of any format changes, and that they have been willing, almost eager, to experiment. However, given the availability of material to children via transistor radios and car radios, he is acutely aware of his responsibility for program content—questions of obscenity, taste, and censorship. Shaw believes in the “fairness doctrine,” giving wide coverage to both the establishment news and to the “poets of today.”

As they do a balancing act between the various opposing sides, ABC recently announced that “today we are committing ourselves to a greater FM capability and service in programming community and audience involvement, personnel, and equipment . . . At its foundation is a commitment to provide even more relevant programming and public service . . . to young people with today’s lifestyle.”

Perhaps, Mr. Shaw speculates, what is going on now in FM will have some significance for the future of television where producers, instead of aiming material at the average 18-year-old (who exactly is the average 18-year-old?) will direct programs to “where people’s heads are at.” He notes two of his most articulate critics are a Midwestern housewife in her late 20s and a 55-year-old professor of law at Columbia University.

As far as radio is concerned, the changes are being made, and they appear to be working. It is encouraging to all to know that there is still an escape valve open to our young people, for, as Dick Gregory says about repression, “when you seal up a whistling teapot, you end up with an explosion that scalds everybody.”

Shaw believes that personality and music are the basic goals of FM. “People want to hear music the most, and not just rock, but all related forms.” Because of this, his musical director, Joe DeSabato, must screen every album that is sent to the station and make his suggestions to the air personalities, who pick their music for individual shows. A framework is maintained through dialogue between them, and, although there are no orders given, there are questions when the air personalities do not play certain cuts, or are playing cuts that DeSabato terms “garbage.” “They can play what they wish in the maintenance of the free form sound for which ABC-FM strives,” DeSabato says, “as long as they have a reason.” He defined his job as maintaining a proper balance in the music programming and making sure the personalities do not drift too far in one particular direction of music.

Regarding censorship of records, Shaw says: “We play many songs that seem borderline to the listener and management. But we always have a reason. The FM listener today is more sophisticated and aware enough to handle the problems in our society. There is no reason that they cannot hear what some people feel are trash songs on the air. For, in fact, most of these songs are not trash. They reflect, instead, the opinion of the artist about society, and non-society. The management at ABC is with us on this, I think. They know that we cannot be subject to the same rules and regulations as the AM stations because we have a different audience.” He speculates about getting out on the streets and programming for the people. He suggests it might be possible in the future to invite the community to “the studios and have representatives program music on some of the shows. “One example might be to invite someone to come in and host a three-hour show on Eastern thought, complete with music, of course, because music is what we are here for. The difficulty we have with going into the street is that we must have an engineer with us at all times. This sort of limits our ability.”

Dave Herman, whose “Self-Evident Truths,” (an hour-long musical documentary juxtaposing rock music and pro-dissent statements culled from America’s past with the voices of American leaders of the past 15 years juggling with the topic of Vietnam, their pronouncements punctuated with the hard-hat chant of “USA—All The Way,”) was such a shocking success, claims that it might be possible to organize a program which totally reflects the desires and needs of the people. “We must not lead but we must incorporate ourselves into the circle by which we follow and lead simultaneously. We must also separate the constructive elements from the destructive elements both in programming and community action. The old rules of radio do not apply. We must have a different set which reflects the rapid change of the times.”

With the music as a basis, programming also is varied, as witness the newest show scheduled. Howard Smith, assistant publisher of the Village Voice, the most widely circulated “alternative newspaper” in the country, is editor of the Voice’s popular column “Scenes,” and is friend and sometime confidant of political, social, and entertainment industry leaders. He has for the past 14 months been ABC-FM’s ubiquitous commentator, interviewer and man-on-the-scene reporter. He is now scheduled for Sunday nights for three live and spontaneous hours of talk, interviews, E.S.P. tests, arcane music that “nobody’s ever heard before on rock radio—a mixed bag of music, pop-goodies, and surprises”—as he says “elusively outrageous.” Smith continues his interviews on the web.

FM radio now goes a bit deeper in its impact than “stereo sound for pot heads,” as it has been called. There is a great move afoot today among young people to support their alternative media for the counter-culture and it is to these millions of young people whose lifestyle differs from their established elders that ABC-FM now addresses itself.

PIERRE BOULEZ INTERVIEW

Thanks for your interview with Pierre Boulez. It contained much of interest. Certainly the angry young man has mellowed considerably of late. How positively gracious of him to now say, "I bear no grudges, but I have lost confidence." Some of the musical opinions were surprising too. Who would have suspected that Robert Schumann's orchestral works would be especially close to Boulez; Berlioz is natural enough, and Haydn's wit charms every musician, but Robert Schumann, whose turgid orchestration has often been helped by keener-eared conductors. Particularly in the case of radio broadcasts, which are often unavoidably missed, transcriptions such as this have an immense service to perform. Thanks again.

ROCK SCENE

Wow! Randy Harris' column about Doug Kershaw gets right into Doug's life. With experiences like those, no wonder he writes so many out-of-sight songs. But why a degree in math?

Barbara Gold
Bronx, New York

I heard Pete Fornatale rapping about FM GUIDE the other day on WNEW-FM, so I thought I'd pick up a copy of the mag since he's my main man. And what did I find? A story on Doug Kershaw, who is just about my favorite all-time performer. He hasn't gotten the amount of publicity that other, lesser-talented artists have, and I'm happy that you people chose to let your readers in on his talent. Keep up the good work.

TOZZI ARTICLE

For the Giorgio Tozzi's article a well deserved bravo. How refreshing to find a musician who does not hesitate to say what he likes and to act upon it. Hurrah for double lives! But I would like to have had a word from him on the differing vocal problems of two careers. We have all heard too many dramatic sopranos try to sing Richard Rodgers and other show hits to know that there is not one style of vocalization that works for everything.

A GRIPE

I generally enjoy your magazine, but occasionally I find articles that seem to be unreconstructed press releases for "the industry." There is already one Billboard, and more boredom, we don't need. The Folio Dial serves both the station and the customers ideally, by spreading the word. Much of your editorial content is excellent. The regular columns seem to be written with integrity, and the interviews, and articles by guest artists all contribute to a magazine of high quality. But I haven't lost faith, renew my subscription.

WCBS/FM STEREO 101

ALISON STEELE — WNEW-FM

Alison was the star of New York's first physical fitness show, "You and Your Figure." In addition, she arranged and conducted celebrity interviews on the Ted Steele Show and worked as an associate producer at WPIX-TV, and WOR-TV's weather girl. She also has done countless commercials.

JOHN ZACHERLE — WNEW-FM

Born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, John Zacherle is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania. He began his broadcasting career with WCAU, the CBS radio and TV stations in Philadelphia. A WCAU-TV show called "Action In The Afternoon" featured him in a number of character roles. One character role eventually evolved into the merrily macabre "Zach," host for a series of horror films. His great success as "Zach," the gleefully ghoulish host of his Philadelphia TV series, led to his being tapped by the ABC Television Network to come to New York City. For two years in Manhattan he was host for "Shock Theater" on ABC-TV. Later he haunted studios in a similar capacity at WOR-TV and WPIX-TV. After happily chilling a major portion of the population of New York City, Zacherle moved on to Channel 47 in New Jersey. There he hosted a dance music show. Zacherle joined WNEW-FM in January 1968.

VIVIAN ROUNDTREE

Vivian Roundtree, WLIB radio jazz disc, jockey, is heard nightly between 10:30, and 11:30 p.m.

ED WILLIAMS

"MAIDEN VOYAGE" is the name of Ed Williams' daily radio show on WLIB-FM. From 12 noon until 4 o'clock, at 107.5 on the dial, Mon. thru Sat., "The Voyage" sets out to "see" and "hear" what is really happening in jazz and in the lives of many of the men who are its life force. "Skipper" Ed Williams was a frequent host at last year's festival and is scheduled to appear nearly half a dozen times this year.

SCOTT MUNI — WNEW-FM

Scott has been a top-rated New York City broadcasting personality since 1958. He began his broadcasting career in New Orleans; later he moved on to assignments in Akron and Cleveland before coming to New York City. His impressive list of credits include a wide variety of assignments as host or master of ceremonies for radio and television programs on ABC Radio and Television, WMCA Radio and WOR-FM. Untiring in his charity work, Scott was named C.Y.O. Man of the Year during a three year span. Born in Wichita, Kansas, Scott Muni spent most of his boyhood in New Orleans. He attended Louisiana State College but an auto accident cut short his studies. With the outbreak of the Korean War, Scott enlisted in the United States Marine Corps and spent four years in the combat zone.

JONATHAN SCHWARTZ — WNEW-FM

Jonathan was born in New York City in 1938, the son of stage actress Katherine Carrington and the famous Broadway and Hollywood composer Arthur Schwartz. After spending his first ten years in Beverly Hills, California, Jonathan returned to New York with his family, attended private schools and studied at Columbia University. In 1962 he was featured as a pianist and singer in night clubs in Paris and London. In March of 1964 Jonathan went to Boston as a performer with WNAC Radio. As a writer, he has written and continues to write for the New York Times and the Boston Globe. In November of 1967 Jonathan came to WNEW-FM, where he joined Bill "Rosko" Mercer in developing the exciting new radio programming format known as "progressive rock." He is interested in all types of music and insists upon playing a classical piece as his theme, the title of which he refuses to divulge to anyone.

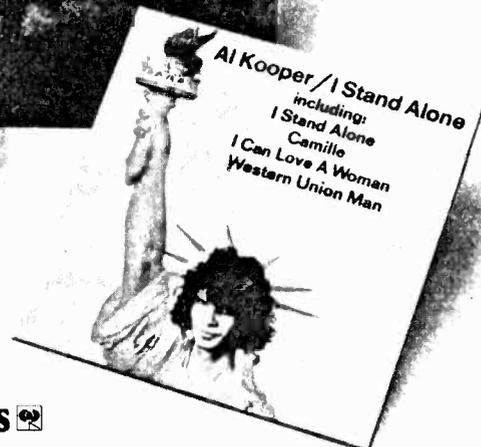

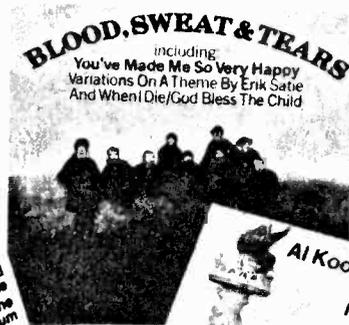

ROSKO — WNEW-FM

Born in New York City, Bill "Rosko" Mercer got his education in a number of boarding schools. At one of them, Saint Elizabeth's Convent School in Cornwell's Heights, Pennsylvania, he began a friendship with James Darin that has lasted from that time. It was Darin who first dubbed him with the nickname of "Rosko". Rosko joined WDAS Philadelphia as host of his own radio program. Later he joined WLIB and WOV in New York. It was at this time that he began to shape his highly individualistic, person-to-person broadcast style. He developed, too, the use of poetry during his broadcast, using both his own works as well as those of such authors as Gibran and Yevtushenko. He moved to Los Angeles to do programs for KGFJ and KHJ, and later joined KSAN in San Francisco. He then returned to New York City, where he spent one year with WOR-FM before joining WNEW-FM in October 1967. In addition to his Monday-through-Sunday WNEW-FM shows, he does "The Now Show With Rosko," a five-day-a-week five-minute program for the NBC Radio Network.
