No. 13

The Wireless World,

(professional and amateur)

is daily demanding better insulation

- and finding it daily in Westinghouse — Micarta —

Good insulation is conducive to the clearness and sensitivity of the transmission and reception of wireless messages.

Micarta is a substance developed by the research engineers of Westinghouse for insulation purposes.

Micarta has high dielectric and mechanical strength. It is a hard, compact material which will not warp, expand, nor shrink with age or exposure. Its sleek, black, smooth surface will take a high polish and it can be readily drilled and worked, without cracking.

Micarta is insoluble in practically all the ordinary solvents, such as alcohol, benzine turpentine, weak solutions of acid or alkali, hot water and oils. It is unaffected by ozone, which makes it exceptionally suitable for electrical purposes. It is almost as hard as brass, thus, drilled holes will not lose their shape.

Micarta, then, is the ideal insulating material for radio use.

Radio Broadcasting News To Give Greater Service

RADIO Broadcasting has achieved phenomenal popularity because it is fundamentally a universal service, and because from its first establishment at station KDKA Public Service has been uppermost in the minds of those intimately connected with this great development.

Some of the keenest engineers and ablest executives in this country have been devoting their energies to the solution of this problem of making this newest scientific marvel of greatest service to the American public.

The same spirit prompted the establishment of RADIO BROADCASTING NEWS, published that it might help radio listeners to get the most value from the programs broadcasted each day.

The first issues of this publication contained only four pages. To keep pace with the progress of radio broadcasting, this number was soon increased to sixteen and the programs of additional stations listed.

The mechanical limitations of producing RADIO BROADCASTING NEWS in its present form, and the attendant difficulty of getting programs from some of the stations in time for publication were explained in a recent editorial.

As a solution to this difficulty, an arrangement has been effected which promises to give a service of much greater value to our readers.

Beginning with the next issue, RADIO BROADCASTING NEWS will be published as a supplement to the Pittsburgh Post, and distributed each Wednesday, containing the programs of the leading broadcasting stations for the following week (Sunday to Sunday as at present).

Thus by slightly changing the form of our magazine and by taking advantage of the printing facilities offered by one of the most modern newspaper plants in the country, we shall be able to give a much greater service to our readers by listing the programs of many more stations than heretofore, and by adding other features in which they will be interested.

At the same time we shall be giving this service to more than 100,000 additional readers each week.

No effort will be spared to make RADIO BROADCASTING NEWS the most comprehensive and accurate program information published anywhere.

A Correction In Time

IN the last issue of RADIO BROADCASTING NEWS a new schedule was listed on page 16. In using this schedule instead of adding for other times than Eastern Standard, deductions should be made of one hour for Central, two hours for Mountain, and three hours for Pacific Time. Thus if you are located in the Central Time Division and your watch shows 6:00 P. M. you can expect to hear the programs listed on the schedule for 7:00 P. M., as the time indicated there is Eastern Standard Time. If you wish to hear the program of a station listed for 10:00 P. M. on the schedule you should tune in at 9:00 P. M., if you are in the Central Division, 8:00 P. M., if you are in the Mountain Time Division, and 7:00 P. M. if you are in the Pacific Time Division. We regret the error in our last issue and hope this explanation will enable anyone to use the schedule satisfactorily.

Brandes

Some of our customers have told us that the value of owning radio equipment made by permanent manufacturer can be figured out in dollars and cents. Fifteen years ago the name Brandes, was known to radio fans. Today it is still outstanding. One reason is because the two receivers in a single headset are perfectly matched in tone.
