LIKE THE BIBLE'S PARABLES, STEPHEN CARTRIGHT'S BRAVE SAGA IS BUILT ON INFINITE COURAGE, SOUL-FILLING FAITH—AND A MIRACLE!

BY MARGE KERR

THE day of the miracle is not done! The blind still see, the deaf still hear, and wonders exist today almost as they existed nearly two thousand years ago, when Christ raised Lazarus from the dead and made the stricken whole again.

This is the story of a modern miracle—a miracle that concerns a man whose name may be comparatively unknown to you, but whose accomplishments make it imperative that you hear his tale.

Before I tell it, however, I want to remind you that there is no story in all radio history like Stephen Cartright's—in fact, no story like it in all the world, unless you count Helen Keller's. And hers is not quite the same, for Helen Keller was blind and deaf at birth, while Stephen Cartright was once a normal man, with sight and hearing like yours and mine.

He works his miracle every afternoon of the week in a certain bustling radio station out in Nebraska. There, in a small room, the sun slants through studio windows and patterns little step-ladders of light on the back of a man who faces a microphone.

Outside these same windows, automobile horns honk raucously, street cars grind stolidly down well-oiled tracks, and the clop-clop of horses' hoofs beat staccato time on Omaha cobblestones.

BUT the man broadcasting cannot see the sun. He does not hear the city noises which reassure the rest of us that twentieth century life moves comfortably on. He is blind and deaf.

Yet he sees and hears even as you and I!

"How do you do, everyone," he says into the microphone. "This is Steve Cartright speaking."

And when his clear, resonant voice cuts through the skyways, fifty thousand radio listeners in Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and the Dakotas draw up their chairs and listen!

Truly it's a miracle, when you stop to think about it! Here is a man who has not heard a human voice or read a line of type in more than a decade—yet he's telling thousands the news of the day. The broadcasting studio, like the outside world, is no more than a black hole of silence to him. An announcer must tap him on the shoulder to tell him when to begin his program. When he talks, he cannot hear the sound of his own voice in the microphone. As he turns from one aspect of the news to another, he fingers Braille notes before he speaks. From time to time, his fingers touch the hands of an open-faced watch to judge the time.

Now he is telling his listeners about today's fierce bombardment in Madrid . . . now he is analyzing the latest political strategy of President Roosevelt . . . now he is speaking of Hitler or Il Duce, of new European entanglements.

If he can neither see to read nor hear words spoken to him, by what means does he come to know so much about today's world? By what miracle has a man totally deaf and blind secured the most improbable job in the world one might expect him to get? How has he become a radio news commentator and a radio personality?

Stephen Cartright answered these questions for me himself! Yes, a man who cannot see answered questions he could not hear! It sounds incredible, but it happened!

When I first called Station KFAB, I had no idea I would get Cartright's story from his own lips. If he couldn't hear, how could I ask questions? "He'll read your lips," I was told.

"But if he can't see, how can he read my lips?" I protested.

"He reads your lips with his index finger. He won't miss a single word."

And sure enough, he didn't, for he "heard" me with the delicate fingers which serve as his ears. From the minute he placed his fingers on my lips and throat, there was not a word I said or a question I asked that he did not understand perfectly. The vibration of my lips and throat muscles formed words—his sensitive finger-tips felt the shape of these words and he "heard" as plainly as you or I.

ABOUT forty-four years old, short, but trim and erect with slightly thinning hair and dark glasses, he cheerfully told me his life story—a story almost unparalleled in a world where courage and determination count for more than brawn.

Steve's story really begins, perhaps, on the evening of August 18, 1925, more than eleven years ago. That night he was listening to his radio, and as he sat near the loudspeaker, Jessica Dragonette filled the room with "Alice Blue Gown." As she finished, the song and the melody slowly died and her listener snapped the switch on the radio and turned to other things.

It was the last song he was ever to hear, for the next afternoon an accident took his sight and hearing away. On that fateful day, Stephen Decatur Cartright, aged 33, graduate of the Carnegie Institute of Technology and a successful engineer in the laboratories of the American Wire and Steel Company of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, was having the time of his life vacationing near Long Beach, California . . .

Like most vacationers, he was spending his time in the perturbed Pacific, matching his strength with the gray-capped surf which roared and tossed him through the sea. "It was a bright, sharp day," he told me, "and I decided to take one more plunge before joining my friends on the Rubinoff and his violin! You heard him play his Stradivarius on 487 stations—and that's an all-time record!

RUBINOFF, with his violin, as you read this, is the most widely heard artist on the air today. Three hundred and ninety-four stations broadcast his transcribed programs; and on Sundays, over the CBS chain, he goes out over ninety-three more as solo artist on his famous Stradivarius and as a conductor.

His violin wasn't always a Stradivarius. Once, not long ago, he had just a middling-good violin, purchased painfully on the installment plan. Before that, there was a squeaky little fiddle that cost a dollar and a half in Russian rubles . . . But always it has been a violin; Rubinoff's violin. And always that violin has been his best friend, his companion, his adviser, his interpreter—the key that has opened locked and double-locked doors to him. At home it is near his bed when he sleeps. At his office it lies on his desk, on top of the green blotter and the stacked papers, always before him.

"You may have heard people say I never talk, that I let my fiddle do my talking for me," Rubinoff says. "Why not? It has made me every friend I own. It has made me the four friends who are responsible for everything I have today."

The four friends who have lifted Rubinoff into the big-time, where he is today, are, respectively, Louis K. Sidney, John Phillip Sousa, Rudy Vallee and Eddie Cantor. He met every one of the four, thanks to his fiddle.

A dozen years ago, a young Russian fellow who had come to America to make his fortune was making it, in a small way, playing in movie theaters in Minneapolis and St. Paul. His mother and father, whom he had brought over from the old country on his first earnings, were comfortably settled in Pittsburgh. He often had to go on tour, but once a year, without fail, he visited the old folks. On one of these two-week visits his mother said: "David, I'm sorry you're so far away from us. I've never heard you play on the stage."

"I'll tell you what I'll do, Mamma," Rubinoff said. "I'll see if I can get an engagement while I'm here, and you can come down and hear me play."

The next day, downtown, he passed the Aldine Theater. He knocked and was shown into a tiny office, where there sat a very stout gentleman with rosy cheeks and stern eyes.

"I'd like to speak to the manager."

"I'm the manager," this man said.

"What can I do for you?"

"I'd like to appear here, at the Aldine," Rubinoff answered.

"I've got all the soloists I want in my symphony orchestra." (The symphony orchestra had seven musicians in it.) "Do you dance? Can you whistle?" the manager went on sarcastically.

Rubinoff had hardly expected that echoes of his fame—and he did have a certain amount of fame, in Minneapolis—had traveled as far as Pittsburgh. But at least he hadn't expected to be treated with sarcasm. His cheeks flamed. "I'm pretty good," he said pugnaciously.

"Do you mean to tell me you're good?" he asked curiously.

"Let me have an audition," he said.

The manager agreed. Rubinoff suspected that he would call in his friends and tell them, "Drop into the theater tomorrow morning if you want a laugh," so he hired the best pianist in Pittsburgh as an accompanist and practised all day. The next morning he showed up at the Aldine for his audition. Sure enough, the gruff manager with the tongue-in-cheek manner had brought his friends along. "All right," he snapped, "get up there and do your stuff. What will you play?"

"What'll you have?" asked Rubinoff grimly, climbing up on the stage.

"Anything you can play well, I'll have," said the manager, viciously chewing his cigar.

DELIBERATELY staring around the theater with a dumb look, acting like a yokel, Rubinoff tuned his violin clumsily, as if he had never had the instrument in his hands before. Then—he played one of his own compositions. The cigar went out, in the manager's mouth, and the seven musicians, count them, of the great symphony orchestra, who had come in for the morning rehearsal and were standing around talking and smoking, fell silent. When it was over, the manager—Louis K. Sidney, now a big movie mogul in Hollywood—said:

"My schedule is full, but if you'll work for a hundred and fifty dollars a week I'll make a place for you."

Rubinoff's mother had her wish: Dave played on the stage, and he gave her the hundred and fifty dollars. The second week his salary was doubled. Then, after he went back to Minneapolis and finished out his contract there, he returned to Pittsburgh. Louis Sidney and he, from that day on, were a team—inseparable. Mr. Sidney was rapidly rising to the top in the show business. Soon he was chief of production for all of the Loew theaters. Each time a new theater was bought by the chain he took charge, and Rubinoff went with him.

The big name which Rubinoff built for himself in the theaters helped him to win his position on the air today, and that name he owes primarily to Louis Sidney . . . And, because it introduced them to each other and established their friendship, to his violin.

Next, John Phillip Sousa. When he was conducting the orchestra at the Midland Theater in Kansas City eight years ago, the fiddle introduced Rubinoff to the greatest American composer of marches who has ever lived, John Phillip Sousa. Sousa, even at that time, was an old man, leading his band across the country for a farewell tour. They appeared at the Midland, and the old bandleader's quick ear caught the quality of the young bandleader in the pit at once.

"What I liked about you," he told Rubinoff later, "was your tone."

That was a curious thing to bring two men together, unless they happened to be musicians, but bring them together it did, and the old man and the young became fast friends. They sat in Sousa's hotel room by the hour and discussed the subject of which neither of them could ever tire: Music. And it was while they were discussing music that Sousa handed on to David

His VIOLIN

BY JACK JAMISON

Rubinoff the sacred trust which, today, means more to him than anything else in his life. He told him of the thousands of people in the country who, starved for music, cannot have it.

Since that day, not a month passes but that Rubinoff takes his violin to an orphan asylum, a hospital for disabled veterans, an old folks' home, or a prison. He has even played at asylums for the insane. He does not often speak of it. Neither did Sousa speak of it when he was doing it. But he does it, to share his music with the unfortunates of the world who otherwise might not have any of it.

"The strange thing is," he says, "that I get the benefit out of it—real, practical benefit of two kinds. First I learn how to adapt my music to the public. For old people I've learned to play Traumerei and When You and I Were Young, Maggie, to make them sad, and things like the Blue Danube Waltz and Turkey in the Straw to make them laugh and dance. Insane patients have taught me that there are some people who like to watch a musician rather than listen to him; they like lots of motion, lots of technique, the most sensational compositions. I have learned that youngsters, whether they're crippled children in hospitals or healthy ones in school, know when a piece is becoming popular before I do. Second, I've received another practical benefit. The thousands of school boys and girls to whom I've played in the past eight years are growing up, now, and many of them have become my fans on the air. That's something I never expected."

HE CANNOT speak of Sousa without emotion. "There'll never be another great man like him," he says. "His marches are so stirring that just thinking of them always gets me excited."

The violin led Rubinoff to Louis Sidney, Louis Sidney led him to Sousa, and Sousa—and, again, the violin—led him to Rudy Vallee. This time the meeting occurred at a theater in Brooklyn, New York. Again, as with Sousa, Vallee was on the stage with his band and Rubinoff was in the pit conducting the theater orchestra. Rudy used to watch him.

They were introduced, and Rudy said: "You don't know it, but I've been an admirer of yours for years. You played at a theater in New Haven when I was in school there, and I used to come and listen to your violin."

"You liked the violin?" Rubinoff asked. "What did you like about it?"

And Rudy, another musician, singled out precisely what Sousa had singled out. "Your tone," he said, and went on: "And, after that, I liked you because you played from the heart."

Introduced by the violin, Rudy and Rubinoff became good friends, and soon a day came when Rudy was saying, while Rubinoff could hardly believe his ears: "Dave, there is a coffee concern which wants an orchestra for its radio program. The concern asked me to take the job, but I'd rather stay where I am. I'm going to suggest you for the job. I know you're the man for it." And it was Rudy personally who not only arranged for the audition but went along to it to make a speech of introduction.

I'M EXTREMELY happy and joyous this evening, which marks the debut of my dear friend Rubinoff," he began. "I consider it a privilege to be able to introduce and tell you something about Rubinoff. . . . The European continent knew him as an infant prodigy with a most unusual command of the violin; and now we find a young man in whom we recognize a genius for the mixing of orchestral colors, and who has perfected to an even greater degree his command of the violin."

Rubinoff winning the audition hands down, Rudy made the same little speech when they went on the air for the first time. Nor would he hear a word of thanks for what he had done. He wouldn't even accept the $350 to which, if he chose to think of himself as the agent who had closed the deal, he was legitimately entitled—ten per cent of the $3,500 agreed upon as the price for the hour program. Nor would Rudy let Rubinoff, who was green about such matters, pay a cent to any of the numerous would-be agents who immediately popped up from nowhere and claimed a right to all sorts of percentages. "That's when I learned what a white man Rudy Vallee is," Rubinoff says. "Four years, that program lasted—and I owe it all to Rudy."

Five years from the date of that first broadcast—five years to the day, on January 11, 1936—Rudy was again to appear on the anniversary program. That night he said: "This, his anniversary of five solid years of pleasing American radio audiences, and the fact that it finds him going stronger than ever, makes me extremely happy in knowing that my prediction and my faith in him were more than justified. Congratulations, Dave Rubinoff!"

The fourth fateful friend to whom Rubinoff's fiddle led him was Cantor.

Eddie came on the program, although few remember this, when it had already been going for the better part of a year. He was new to radio, whereas Rubinoff, by that time, was an old hand at the game, able to give good advice about it. Eddie, with his terrific emotional "projection," as they call it in the studios, behaved as though he were on the musical comedy stage, Rubinoff in rehearsal. He really works.

The maestro takes time to explain a passage.

"Like this!" Rubinoff explains it once more.

"No, no!" The fiery Rubinoff loses his patience!

and tried to sing and talk straight into the mike. For days, Rubinoff checked him from the control room and coached him in the new technique which he had to learn.

They soon became acquaintances in the professional sense, Eddie and Dave but not, for a time, close friends. Their friendship came about in quite another fashion. Again, it was the violin that was responsible. One night on the air, as the orchestra was making ready to play, Eddie wise-racked ad-lib into the microphone:

"Listen to Rubinoff! He's been on the air a year and he's just beginning to tune up!"

That, if you're historically inclined, was the first anti-Rubinoff crack Eddie ever made over the air.

The audience howled, and the next week, when Eddie pulled another gag in the same vein, the laugh was as great. Mail began to pour in literally by the sack. About half of the correspondents were indignant because Eddie was making fun of a fine artist. The others thought it was good fun and begged them to keep it up. Eddie asked Rubinoff if he minded.

"As long as you spell my name right," Dave quoted, "I don't care what you say."

AND it was that wise-cracking, begun by virtue of the violin, that really set up their friendship. When they went out on a theatrical tour together, Eddie always introduced Rubinoff as "my public enemy," and that was exactly what he was—his public enemy, but his private friend. They like each other, personally, so much that last year Dave took his orchestra all the way to San Francisco to play a week at the Fox Theater there with Eddie. They go out to dinner together and spend hours hunting for restaurants where each of them can get his pet dish—noodle soup for Eddie, chopped liver for Rubinoff. "Eddie swings a nasty noodle," Rubinoff says.

And a month or so ago, when Rubinoff opened his new musical variety show, Eddie Cantor was the first listener-in to send him a wire. "Dear David," he telegraphed. "Was thrilled with your program. It was truly great. Love and kisses. Eddie Cantor."

394 stations! 93 more on CBS! The most widely heard artist on the air today!

All because Louis K. Sidney led to John Phillip Sousa, who led to Rudy Vallee, who led to Eddie Cantor.

And all because of—a violin.

Rubinoff and his violin may be heard every Sunday over a CBS network at 6:30 p.m. EST (5:30 CST; 4:30 MST; 3:30 PST).

THE darkest hour in Minetta Ellen's life came at a time when it was hardest to take.

Twenty years had slipped away since her marriage. She had been so busy working for other people, making them laugh when they wanted to cry, giving herself unstintingly to this or that need, that she had forgotten about herself.

One morning she looked into the mirror and suddenly saw a middle-aged woman there. The radiant young girl who had stepped so blithely out of the Cataract House into marriage and motherhood was gone. The woman in the mirror was still slim and straight, but Minetta gasped to see how the brightness had gone from her hair and skin. There was a network of fine lines now that made a thin veil over the clear, fine features; even her hands, the hands that had worked so hard for so many babies, showed the marks of time.

Minetta had meant to do so many things before this would happen to her! Secretly and unceasingly she had dreamed that some day, when Donna was grown, when her husband was more sympathetic toward her life's desire, a chance to act would come her way. But what chance would a middle-aged woman without youth, without professional training have now, no matter how many times a day she schooled herself to read lines aloud, making the syllables clear and musical, the words live and vibrant? It was too late. The knowledge rushed over her like a sudden torrent of cold water.

That very night, Minetta's marriage came suddenly, tragically, to its end.

She took her biggest blow as she has always taken everything: standing up. She had no reproaches, no apologies, no blame for anybody and she never has voiced any.

Several years previously, business had brought Minetta's husband to the Pacific Coast and he and his family had made their home in Berkeley, that pleasant university city across the bay from San Francisco. Now Minetta decided to stay in Berkeley. Where else could she and Donna go? Besides, there were the Berkeley hills: they were healing; and the blue San Francisco bay: it was friendly. The town lay sheltered between bay and hills, and Minetta wanted shelter.

DURING the day she kept so deeply occupied with the hundreds of things there always were for her to do that she didn't mind the loneliness of her new life. There was always a friendly tramp to feed and question; one day her old, old friend of the Lorain, Ohio, days, Don Levy of the scarred face, came timidly to her door and she welcomed him with the biggest meal he had eaten for many a day.

But evenings were bad. Donna was going to college now and, loyal and loving as the youngster was, her mother wanted the girl to have all the fun and companionship with people her own age that was part of college life. Night after night Minetta waved a cheery good-by to the girl and her friends.

Then she walked out of the empty house, into the hills that were so green in Spring, so brown in Midsummer, but so friendly and comforting at all times. Each night she walked as far as she could, then, when she seemed to have reached exhaustion, she would turn and the journey home would be sufficient to send her to bed, reeling with weariness . . . and she would get through another night.

On one of these excursions she encountered one of those trifles that may change a lifetime. It was a flower, just a wild rose, which quite evidently was having a stiff battle to fight its way out of the yellow dust of the bank where it grew. The bush had been almost completely covered with the thick yellow dust which heaps California roads in the Summer, but out of the heap of loose yellow particles one stubborn blossom was pushing its way. Some of the yellow dust clung to the small pink face it was pushing up to the sky; leaves were forcing their way to the surface like small green arms trying to free themselves from bonds.

MINETTA had reached her nightly zero point—in mind and body. And as she was about to acknowledge it to herself, she stopped in the California dusk, with a sunset flaming over the shoulder of one hill and the moon rising, opposite, and she saw the rose. She looked at the small flower-thing fighting its way through the dirt, and she brushed some of the dust from its face. And she laughed.

"I looked at that rose," she says, "pushing its nose up through six inches of yellow dirt, just for the privilege of blooming a few days and I suddenly felt like an awful fool.

"I went home and looked myself square in the eye, in the mirror—first time I'd been able to do that since the blow had fallen. And I said, 'Sure, you're middle-aged; sure, you're not as good-looking as you used to be. But you've got a lot of years ahead of you yet, and you might as well make the best of them.'"

The very next day she went over to the University of California and enrolled for dramatic studies. She was the only one in the class beyond her twenties. But there were things she knew she could learn there, things to improve in her voice and her posture and she set her teeth and pretended she was young and just beginning, like the other members of the class.

SHE opened her house again to all who needed cheer, mothering, scolding or advice. And she acted, enthusiastically and whole-heartedly, in every role she could persuade some director to give her.

First came parts in Little Theater productions, character parts, mother roles. To Minetta, who from childhood had played parts like that in real life, they were easy. But she worked hard on each of them, asked for criticism and took it.

Then Donna married. Not until she had kissed the blue-eyed, fair-haired girl, so like herself at the same age, and waved her out of sight to the train that would carry her to Boston, did Minetta know what it meant to be really alone.

That night she lay awake, hour after hour. In her ears, strangely enough, rang a sound that she had forgotten for many years, a sound forever linked with her childhood—the echo of a cowbell tinkling, lonely, in the green hills of Pennsylvania. The years dropped away; again Minetta was the child of long ago, the little blond girl in the funny old-fashioned gingham dress climbing a hill, longing for a play-mate.

MINETTA wept, for the first time in years. She was free to do what she wanted, plan her life as she willed. She would go to New York, she could go to China, she had no responsibility, no claims on her time. And being a mother she wept at the very thought.

Of course she didn't go away. She remained in Berkeley, because she had so many friends there, so many people who needed her. And about this time, young actors and actresses in companies in which Minetta was playing discovered what a unique personality was the small woman with the gray hair and the bright eyes who played all the mother roles. Presently they joined the crowds of Sunday night supper guests in her home.

For years Minetta held an unusual position among the aspiring student actors at the University of California. She was the official "mother" in most of their plays, and long before she ever dreamed of becoming famous she was "mothering" Michael Raffetto, Bernice Berwin and other members of the One Man's Family cast in their campus shows.

And her first big role was opposite J. Anthony Smythe, in a play at the Fulton Theater in Oakland, California. Tony, now Mr. Barbour of One Man's Family, was one of the West's handsomest and best-loved stock-company leading men, and Minetta was thrilled beyond words when she was awarded the part of his wife. Bachelor Tony and she often joke together about their long "married life," for they played husband and wife for several years on the stage!

THEN came the depression.

Stocks which had provided Minetta and her mother with a comfortable income fell and fell and fell. The young people who still gathered inordes in her house never knew what an effort it was sometimes for Minetta to feed them, smile with them, advise them. She needed more money than irregular theater engagements in California could supply and she needed it soon.

Radio was just beginning to be recognized as not only the coming medium for entertainment, but one which would pay well, too. For months, Minetta haunted broadcasting stations and radio men in the Bay region, applying for auditions, hoping, fighting, for a chance. She had never actually talked into a microphone when Michael Raffetto telephoned her one day and told, "Come up to NBC—right away!"

It seemed that a new serial was to be put on the air; Mike was going to play one of its characters, a war veteran named Paul, and he had spoken to Carlton E. Morse, the playwright, about Minetta for the part of the mother. Of course, it wouldn't pay much—but it would be every week and it would be microphone experience for Minetta.

Wouldn't pay much! Not until long afterward did Raffetto know how welcome his telephone call had been, how much Minetta needed any job, even if it didn't pay much. Gaily, she stepped out of the elevator into the NBC headquarters, and there Mike introduced her to a big, scholarly looking young man whose gentle, slow-spoken words hid one of the keenest, fastest minds in radio.

When Minetta and he met, Morse was just beginning to be known as one of the pace-makers in his chosen field. He had been writing historical dramas and mystery serials and he was very, very tired of them. He had a new idea for a program, the story of a real, every-day family, not too much idealized. He wanted to enlarge the technique he had been developing of having the microphone appear to follow his characters from scene to scene like a picture camera, and he wanted to try out another idea.

He wanted every actor and actress in his new serial to fulfill as far as possible in appearance and temperament the kind of person he or she would play. He wanted to place these real persons in the situations he would design for them on the air, and watch their reactions to the plot as it advanced. He wanted to adapt the story to their own characters, the dialog to their own language. For years the stage had been doing this, writing a play around a star; Morse wanted to write a serial around a whole cast.

For days he had been watching middle-aged women, in the studios and out of the studios. And he hadn't found Fanny Barbour. So he looked at Minetta and he didn't speak.

IF YOU'RE a woman you know how she felt.

"Sick!" she chuckles. "I thought, 'Oh, dear, if I were only younger and just a little bit good looking . . . Here I am, a faded old woman . . . and a man, a young man, is looking me over appraisingly!'"

"It was a terrifying moment but I couldn't let this serious young man know it. I decided that since the sex appeal had long departed from Minetta she'd have to fall back on her sense of humor. I thought I saw a twinkle in one of his blue eyes, so I looked up at him impudently and then went into one of my very best burlesques of a stage mother."

Of course she got the job. Nobody has ever been able to resist Minetta

Ellen when she wants to make you laugh. But the youthful writer of One Man's Family didn't select her because of that. He doesn't even remember now how he laughed at that first meeting. Because before Minetta had plucked up courage to clown, he had looked into her face and seen Fanny Barbour there.

Minetta never did have that microphone audition she had been begging for! She still scarcely knew what the inside of a studio was like when the day arrived for rehearsal of One Man's Family. But up she stepped to the microphone, and with Fanny Barbour's first lines Minetta virtually turned into the kind of person she would have been if she had been able to live her life as she chose. And she has lived that beloved character's life ever since.

MINETTA'S pretty apartment atop San Francisco's Russian Hill, filled with fine old furniture, old books and warm friendliness, is always open to her radio "family."

When Minetta's mother, a gay little lady of ninety-one, died not long ago, Fanny Barbour's usual mail—always heavy—went up several degrees. Mrs. Spencer had gloried in Minetta's success up to the time of her last illness, and despite her advanced years had an active social life. She always called herself "the grandmother of One Man's Family," and shortly before she died she whispered, "I'm so proud—why, I feel like Sarah Bernhardt's mother!"

Minetta thought back long years to the bitter night of her birth in that wintry Iowa farmhouse, and suddenly realized what a long way she and her mother had come together.

"All I could think of was how glad I was that, thanks to One Man's Family, I had been able to make the last part of our lives together happier than the earlier part had been," says Fanny Barbour's portrayer. "My mother and I had met in the midst of a storm; we parted in sunshine. How grateful I am to Fanny Barbour!"

Minetta Ellen may be heard as "Fanny Barbour" on "One Man's Family" over an NBC network on Wednesdays at 8 p.m. EST (7 CST; 6 MST; 5 PST) and on Sundays for the West Coast at 9:30 p.m. PST (10:30 MST).

INDOMITABLE AND UNSWERVING IN HER HIGH COURAGE, MINETTA ELLEN FOUGHT THROUGH TO THE HAPPINESS SHE HAD KNOWN WOULD COME!

THE TRUTH ABOUT NELSON EDDY'S OPERATION

WHAT ARE THE FACTS? WILL HE HAVE FOUR MORE NOTES—TWICE THE VOLUME? IS HIS VOICE IN DANGER? HERE'S THE YEAR'S NEWS-SCOOP!

BY KEN W. PURDY

THE Scene: Chicago. The Time: One night two weeks ago. The Place: A newspaper city room. The Characters: Two reporters. As the curtain rises, a telephone jangles nervously.

1ST REPORTER: Yeah?

FEMININE VOICE: Oh, I hate to bother you at this hour of the night, I know just how frightfully busy all you newspaper people must be at this time of night, with a paper to print in the morning, and all that news to be thought up tonight, and I could hardly bear to call you up, but Mrs. Zitheritt—she lives next door, and she's a very good friend of mine—Mrs. Zitheritt just told me that Nelson Eddy is sick and in a hospital here with something terrible the matter with his throat and so I rushed right to the telephone to ask you if it could possibly be true, is it true?

1ST REPORTER: (Wearily) Yes, madam, Nelson Eddy is in Chicago, at the Presbyterian Hospital, suffering from a slight case of indisposition and laryngitis. According to the best medical opinion, however, Mr. Eddy's voice is not in danger. He is resting comfortably and will probably be able to sing again very soon.

FEMININE VOICE: Oh, thank you so much. My, that's a relief! (Shyly) Do you think I could, uh, get to see Mr. Eddy?

1ST REPORTER: Madam, Mr. Eddy is in Room 527, on the fifth floor of the private pavilion of the Presbyterian Hospital, located at 1753 West Jackson Boulevard, and if you can get in to see him you are better than the best reporter in Chicago, and I wish you luck.

FEMININE VOICE: Oh, thank you. (Hangs up.)

2ND REPORTER: Well, how many is that?

1ST REPORTER: She was the fiftieth woman to call up and ask about Nelson Eddy since 8 o'clock. Twenty-five more and I win the bet. (The phone rings.)

1ST REPORTER: Yes, madam, Nelson Eddy is in Chicago, at the Presbyterian Hospital, suffering from a slight case of indisposition and laryngitis. According to the best medical opinion, however—(There is a confused roaring and bellowing in the receiver, and a male voice is heard shouting loudly. Stricken suddenly pale, the reporter hangs up, very quietly.)

2ND REPORTER: Who was that?

1ST REPORTER: The boss! He said he didn't want to know about Nelson Eddy!

(CURTAIN)

YOU could have duplicated that scene (well, almost!) in any Chicago newspaper office any day recently. For Nelson Eddy was sick, and his fans wanted to know about it! They were worried. Day and night they bombarded newspaper offices, radio stations, hospitals, seeking information about their idol.

There can no longer be any doubt in anybody's mind: Nelson Eddy, at least as far as American women are concerned, is tops among male singers!

All day long, and far into the night, they kept the phones ringing in every center of information. How sick is Nelson Eddy? Will his voice be damaged? Is it true that Nelson Eddy has had an operation to make his voice higher? Is it true that he is going to be a tenor instead of a baritone? When will he be well? When can he sing again?

They wanted to know! And they wouldn't be denied!

Sometimes, so great was their concern, they wouldn't even believe the information that was given them! On Sunday night, February 21, for instance, when Joseph Bentonelli, substituting for Eddy on his regular program, sang from a Chicago studio, a group of fifty of the thousand or more women who stormed the station refused to leave, even after the broadcast was over. They weren't convinced that the handsome radio and screen star wasn't in the studio! They were sure that if they stayed long enough, they would see him!

This in spite of the fact that they were given every assurance by studio employes that Eddy would not appear.

But even more remarkable than the Nelson Eddy's voice is well known to radio listeners and movie-goers who have seen him in gay operettas. But that voice has been in serious danger!

week-long demonstration of the Eddy fans' devotion itself, was the fact that there was any such demonstration. For Nelson Eddy's visit to Chicago was supposed to be a secret! He arrived without fanfare or publicity. He entered the swank Presbyterian Hospital under a shroud of secrecy. There were denials and counter-denials. But the fans found out—and then came the deluge!

As a matter of fact, Eddy was not seriously ill, and his voice was in no great danger. The trouble originated after a minor operation which was performed on the singer in Kansas City a few days before his arrival in Chicago for a scheduled appearance. Specialists had advised Eddy that there was a slight growth of extraneous tissue about his tonsils, that it ought to be removed, that an operation might enhance his already brilliant voice.

DECIDING that the value of the operation would justify cancellation of one of the concerts he was touring the country to make, as well as cancellation of a broadcast, Eddy went under the knife in Kansas City. Performed under a local anesthetic on February 8, the operation was simple and brief, and Eddy was described as being highly pleased with the results.

"I'll have four notes more range," he was reported to have exclaimed, "and twice as much volume!"

Whether or not the operation on his throat was a contributing factor in the attack of laryngitis that forced him into a hospital bed on his arrival in Chicago, Nelson Eddy fans may take comfort from this fact—neither the operation nor the laryngitis that followed will have any detrimental effect on his voice.

Eminent Chicago medical men, however, expressed doubt regarding the singer's reported belief that the Kansas City operation would add four notes to his range. Although ready to believe that the operation might boost his powerful voice a tone or two, they were mystified at the means Eddy used to arrive at the exact estimate of four notes, were inclined to attribute the remark to the exuberance we all feel in that happy moment when the doctor says: "Well, I guess that's all!" Eddy's quoted claim of "twice as much volume" they dismissed in the same manner.

HAPPY as a school-boy with the result of his operation, Nelson Eddy was a depressed young man a few days later when a sudden attack of laryngitis forced him to enter the hospital in Chicago.

Despite his doctor's assurance that the ailment was of no consequence, Eddy was worried about its possible effect on his voice, and was troubled over the necessity of canceling yet another concert and broadcast. Because of the repeated cancellations, Eddy's concert schedule, originally intended to end March 21, will now be extended to a future date as yet undecided.

Two concerts and two broadcasts—those scheduled for February 14 and 21—had to be cancelled.

But hospital rules are stringent, and hospital nurses are not easily impressed, even by the temperament of a great radio star—so Nelson Eddy went to bed and he stayed there for ten long days!

And there in the quiet of a hospital room, Nelson Eddy did what he hadn't been able to do for months—he listened to the radio! He listened from early morning until late at night—and for the most part, he didn't like the programs that came to him over the air!

First in preference on the Eddy listening list were the news broadcasts; then came symphonic music; then superlatively hot, superlatively good "swing"—Eddy will sit up in bed any day to listen to the Dorsey Brothers or Benny Goodman!—and last in preference — but really last — Eddy ranks the daytime dramatic serials. "That's terrible stuff," he said one time, tuning out a popular serial. "I don't see how the radio audience stands it!"

Of everything on the air during his stay in the hospital, Eddy most enjoyed a concert by the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Eugene Ormandy. Ormandy held the podium as musical director the night Nelson Eddy went on the air with his first sponsored program, nearly ten years ago, and the two musicians have been close friends since. When Eddy appeared as guest artist with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra a year ago, Ormandy directed.

AND so, while near-frantic women battered the doors of broadcasting studios and harried helpless telephone operators, while reporters wondered if they could get into his room disguised as mouthwash, Nelson Eddy listened to the radio, the miracle that has made him famous, and nursed his sore throat.

And after his secretary and his doctor had taken the precaution of suggesting to reporters that Mr. Eddy might be available for interviews on Wednesday, the singer quietly left the hospital on Monday afternoon to go into even more secluded seclusion. His stay in the hospital had left him well on the road to recovery, ready to resume his arduous concert tour.

But Nelson Eddy would probably be in the hospital yet if he had taken advantage of some of the well-intentioned offers of assistance that came from his distraught, worried Chicago fans!

Scores of home remedies, and formulae for additional scores, were sent to the hospital, to newspapers, and to radio stations. They ranged from flaxseed poultices to gypsy incantations; from willow-bark tea to plain, ordinary, every-day aspirin!

But the all-time high was reached by a girl who called a doctor's office to say that Eddy's throat could certainly be cured by massaging his forehead!

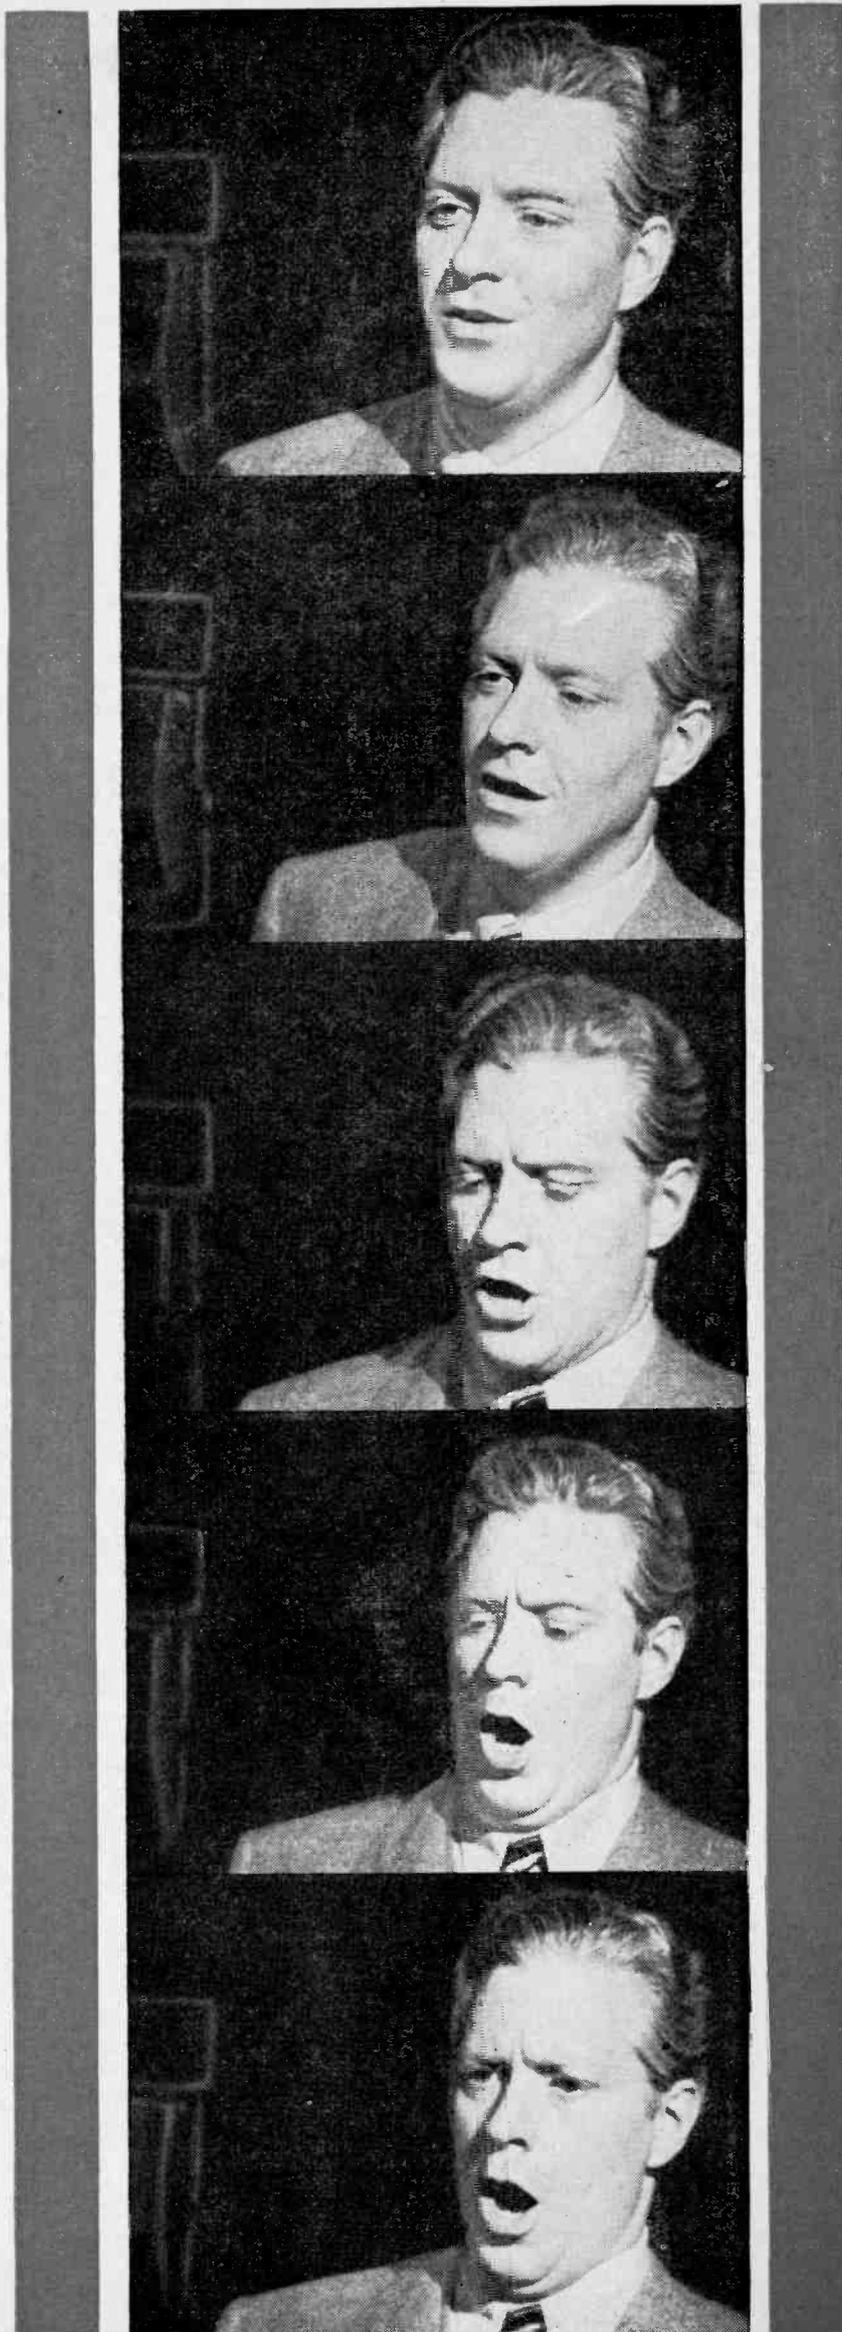

"I'm just sure of it," she said. "It always works!"

"That's interesting, I'm sure," said the sympathetic doctor. "How is it done?"

The reply came quickly.

"Oh, I couldn't tell anybody else how to do it! . . . I'd have to do it myself!"

Nelson Eddy may be heard Sundays on Open House over a CBS network at 8 p.m. EST (7 CST; 6 MST; 5 PST).

HIS piggy face glowering, Frenchy Benoit said:

"We're taking the car. You know what that means."

The used-car salesman, Fred Williams, knew all right. When two tough customers out for a demonstration jam a gat into your ribs you get the idea in a hurry.

Frenchy Benoit spoke over his shoulder to Mike Delberto, alias John Smith.

"Tie his hands, Mike!" And Mike bound Williams' wrists with wire.

That all took place in Detroit's Lincoln Park. With the helpless salesman between them they drove out of Detroit to a spot near Toledo. It was lonely and cold—just a little while before dark on a bitter January evening. Frenchy Benoit, driving, pulled off the highway and stopped.

"Get out!"

"What are you going to do?" the salesman asked. "Are you—"

"Shut up," drawled Delberto, "and you won't get hurt. Gimme the wire, Frenchy. And you—up against that tree!"

Williams obeyed. Maybe they weren't going to kill him. Wire biting his flesh, the salesman was trussed up to the tree. They emptied his pockets. Then the two thugs drove back towards Detroit, leaving him alone in the woods.

It was fifteen minutes before Williams worked loose. Then, towards the lights of a store he trudged. A drug store.

He telephoned . . .

And brief seconds later, radio swung into action one of the world's greatest police organizations as, in 122 cars, Michigan's famed state troopers heard:

" . . . watch for two men who held up and robbed a car salesman on U. S. 25 near Toledo. The number and description of the stolen car are as follows: Michigan license number . . ."

NEAR the north end of Monroe, Michigan, State Troopers Richard F. Hammond and Sam Sineni were cruising in their radio car.

"Up ahead there," said Sineni. "That car answers the description of the machine those two fellows took away from the salesman."

"Ohio license," Hammond pointed out. "Car we want has Michigan plates. Still—we better stop 'em."

The swift police cruiser spurted, swerved.

"Pull over!" shouted Hammond as they swung abreast. In the suspect machine were two men. Both cars stopped. Hammond got out.

A piggy face glowered at him.

"Let me see your operator's license, please," said Hammond.

"I left it in my other pants," said scowling Frenchy Benoit.

"Sorry," Hammond was crisp but polite. "I'll have to take you in. You two, get out of the car."

Frenchy and Mike got out, tense, watchful. Hammond and Sineni frisked them. Then Hammond and Frenchy got into the police cruiser and Sineni and Mike into the "hot" car. With Sineni and his captive in the lead, they set out for the Monroe County sheriff's office.

Frenchy Benoit slumped down in the seat. The lights of the town glided past. Once the radio crackled a command. Hammond said nothing.

Frenchy shoved his right hand far down into his overcoat pocket. There was a hole in the lining. Down—down reached that thrusting hand.

MICHIGAN BLOCKADE

The wire biting into his flesh, the salesman was trussed up to the tree

CRUEL, MERCILESS, FRENCHY BENOIT TOOK A LIFE—FOR A THRILL! BUT HE FORGOT RADIO—AND THE MICHIGAN STATE POLICE!

Down to a heavy object that sagged the lining of his coat. Down where a cop's frisking hand wouldn't discover

"All right, copper!" Frenchy's hand came up with a gun. "Turn this damn car around—quick!"

"You can't—" Hammond began. A savage rib-thrust with the gun muzzle silenced him.

"Next time—a slug!" snarled Benoit. "Turn, copper—and drive!"

And Hammond turned and drove, his muscles tense for a break which didn't come. Frenchy, gat to his victim's stomach, took the trooper's gun from him.

In the car ahead, Sineni saw through the rear-vision mirror the turning of the cruiser. He, too, turned and clamped down the accelerator.

"It's no use," whined Mike Delberto, alias Smith. "Frenchy's got a rod."

Things happened fast. Sineni reached his gun-hand into the rushing darkness, fired and fired again.

Up ahead in the police car, they heard the "plunk" of two slugs boring the back of the machine. They left the main road for the mud of a lane. Hammond swerved the wheel. But his game attempt to wreck the car ended when Frenchy wrenched the car back to its course, slugged the trooper with his gun.

And then Sineni cursed as the "hot" car mired itself in muddy ruts. He cursed again as he saw the cruiser's tail light growing ever smaller and smaller.

LOST from the sight of men, in the night which blanketed the lonely countryside, Frenchy Benoit jerked the car to a stop. He took his handcuffs from the dazed Hammond. He fastened one cuff around the trooper's wrist. He jerked him savagely out of the car.

Swaying on his feet, the dead-game Hammond leaped on Benoit, knocking his gun aside. They rolled in the mud. Frenchy swung the gat, smashed it into Hammond's face. The trooper sagged.

Spitting curses, the gunman dragged the trooper off the road to where a country mail-box stood. Around the post of this, Frenchy shackled the policeman with his own cuffs. He stood back and looked at him. Hammond was sagging down.

Welling up inside of Frenchy Benoit, then, came a terrible lust to—kill. Face twisting with a mania of cruelty he raised the gun—pointed it tensely at Hammond's head—and fired.

And there in the lonely night, a brave man died.

But even while Frenchy Benoit got back into the police cruiser, a voice spoke to him, in the silence. The car's loudspeaker said:

"Calling all cars . . . all cars . . . A prisoner has just kidnaped Trooper Hammond in police car . . ."

Benoit gasped. But the voice of doom went on.

" . . . one of the two men who earlier this evening kidnaped and robbed . . ."

LIKE a hunted beast, Frenchy Benoit drove. And wherever he drove, the voice of radio followed him, forced him to hear the commands of that rising army of Michigan police as they clicked machine-like into the formation of the famous "Michigan Blockade."

"Monroe police cover Pleasant Road and Bolles Harbor . . ."

"Car 38, block U. S. Highway 24 at Ohio border . . ."

" . . . all cars, all cars . . . Trooper Hammond found dead . . ."

And then the cooperating radio police cars of Ohio, of municipalities, swung in: Ohio radio cars, blocking the roads. Ypsilanti cars, Lenawee County cars, Jackson, Brighton cars, all blocking the roads.

And Frenchy Benoit had to listen!

Then the stolen police car skidded, slid into a ditch—as if it were a living thing, hating the creature that drove it.

AFTER daylight, there was a pounding on Farmer Paul Balog's door, in the little village of Federation, Michigan.

"Up your hands!" snarled crazed Frenchy Benoit, when Balog opened the door. "I'm the guy that shot the trooper. Get out a car and drive me—or I plug you, too!"

In a light pick-up, Farmer Balog and his sixteen-year-old son Steve drove the killer. Their lights were out. Zigzagging over back roads, they reached the outskirts of Monroe.

"Drive up that lane!" snarled Benoit. "It's a police car behind us!"

It was a police car. They drove up the lane—and were trapped. A rifle bullet ground through the back seat and out through the windshield. Benoit jumped from the car, ran back down the lane and . . .

Four troopers faced him. A rifle, two pistols and a machine-gun pointed at him. Frenchy wilted.

"Don't shoot!" he whined. And for a wonder, they didn't.

Reverently they took the poor, manacled body of a brave man from its sagging posture, manacled to the post of a mail-box. But—because Michigan has no capital punishment—the living body of Frenchy Benoit, coward, will rot till it dies in a Michigan prison.

Thanks to police radio.

PLUMS AND PRUNES

BY EVANS
PLUMMER

CHICAGO.—According to a dispatch from Hollywood which was given wide publicity recently, Jack Benny and Mary Livingstone have signed an exclusive three-year contract, which will keep them busy until the Summer of 1940, for their present sponsor. By that time, Jack expects to have played "The Bee." (I hope.) Jack confirmed the news of their having signed the contract this week between trains here. He was on his way to New York where he will join Mary and from where he will present his next three programs—the broadcasts of March 7, 14 and 21. The contract gives Jack and Mary Summer vacations and an income that outshines that of President Roosevelt.

And I remember a forlorn, discouraged vaudeville m.c. who, in the Winter of 1931, was ready to throw in the sponge. He wanted a certain famous orchestra booker to build a dance band around him. Yes, the m.c.'s name was Jack Benny!

Hollywood sidelight: "Ben Bernie and all the lads" will be no more after they complete their present assignment at the Coconut Grove. He's going to disband his band! The Ol' Maestro will continue his radio and screen work, picking up an orchestra in much the same fashion as Johnny Green, Buddy Rogers and Victor Young now are doing. Bernie's decision is based on the fact that he wishes to stay in Hollywood for motion-picture and radio work, and it is less expensive to "pick up" an orchestra when he needs it, than to maintain his own group of horn tooters. Right now, he's hard at work placing his "lads" with other name bands—no small job, and a grand gesture!

One of the most extraordinary programs on record is being broadcast from the Pittsburgh home of Thomas Atterbury McGinley, wealthy industrialist, these Friday evenings. The show, entitled "The House that Jacks Built," features the playing by Lois Miller of a huge pipe organ in the McGinley home, and the appearance of a guest star. The peculiar angle about the program is that Mr. McGinley's company has nothing to sell to the public directly—and that the show is promoting the railroad industry, one of the sponsor's best customers!

Ghost-tamer Arch Oboler, the "Lights Out" writer-experimenter, will get the husband angle into his next scripts, inasmuch as last week he secretly wed Eleanor Helfand, University of Chicago co-ed. The newlyweds are planning a New England motor trip with visits to all haunted houses along the route. They'll live in New York City—or maybe in Hollywood. Oboler is being considered for a new network series for an electric refrigerator manufacturer.

Preferred diet selected from hundreds submitted to the reducing "Smilin' Ed" McConnell is this: Breakfast—a hard-boiled egg, cup of black coffee (no sugar), a slice of dry toast and a can of tomatoes, hot or cold, with salt. Lunch—a head of lettuce, hard-boiled egg, cup of tea (clear) and can of tomatoes. Dinner—half head of cabbage (raw) with salt and vinegar, cup of orange juice, slice of dry toast and—can of tomatoes!

Romancing: Ex-confirmed bachelor radactor Raymond Johnson and Mercedes McCambridge, of the "Guiding Light" cast . . . Born: Son Bruce Miller, six pounds, nine ounces, to Mrs. William Miller, wife of the top tenor of "Contented Quartet."

I like this story. It's about Tom Casey, who used to be one of the neatest and most polite page boys at NBC's Chi Merchandise Mart studios. He thought one certain quarter-hour program—that of Christine, singing pianist—was pretty swell. He became Christine's most rabid fan. Not long ago Casey was promoted to an announcership. And Christine immediately drafted him for her show!

Correction: Jackie Heller has decided to stay abroad a bit longer to work in France. But he'll be back late in March, because his sis, Shirley, is marrying Richard Mills.

Movie Scoutings: Jack (Poetic Melodies) Fulton may fly to Hollywood this week-end for screen tests as a result of an invasion of the Windy City last week by three talent scouts. Also seriously under consideration are Virginia (Helen Trent) Clark and Louise (Mortimer Gooch) Fitch.

Ted Peckham, the inventor and proprietor of New York's Escort Bureau, stopped off in Chicago last week, while he was en route to Hollywood to start a branch here. In the Cinema City he'll appear on a Bing Crosby program and make a picture for Paramount.

Henry Youngman, who has been getting a build-up via the Kate Smith airings (he's also managed by Ted Collins, Kate's director), steps out in a program of his own with an orchestra. My suggestion to Mr. Youngman is that he try to avoid the dead silence after each gag he tells. As it is now, he gets off his quip—you hear the audience chuckle, but he waits too long to get into his next line.

As usual, the Metropolitan Opera will go on tour this Spring. But this year only two cities are on the list—Boston and Cleveland. On April 3 and 10, the Opera broadcasts will come from the former city and on April 17, from the latter.

Paramount Pictures are setting the pace by launching a new and informal series of radio presentations featuring the movie stars at work behind the scenes in Hollywood, direct from the Paramount lot. The program will be heard starting Sunday, March 14, over the NBC-Red network.

Other program notes: The Jack Pearl show moves out of its Monday night spot and into a Friday night period . . . Starting March 29, the "Mary Marlin" show will be heard twice a day. The early broadcast will be heard over 31 stations of the NBC-Blue net and the afternoon airing will go over seven stations of the Red network . . . A motor-car company starts a series of transcriptions over 300 stations, featuring Frank Morgan and the Victor Young orchestra along with prominent guest stars during each airing . . . The "Hit Parade" is another show to start featuring guest stars. Prominent names will be heard on both the CBS and NBC shows . . . Ralph Kirbery's sponsor has asked NBC to try to clear some additional stations for the Dream Singer's popular broadcasts.

Bill Bacher, the able producer of the "Hollywood Hotel" shows, has been signed to doctor the Al Jolson-Sid Silvers-Martha Raye programs. The sponsor is doing everything in his power to add interest to the show, which seemingly has not been a success.

A cigarette concern is likely to bring Dick Powell back to the airlines in a variety broadcast which will originate at the Hollywood movie studios. Other big studios are also taking steps to break into the radio broadcasting business. Rumors have it that M-G-M film studios have instructed all their players to stop making radio appearances except players like Nelson Eddy and others who have contracts for a regular series. The idea is to keep the players exclusively for themselves just in case they need them for some contemplated airings of their own.

The merry madcaps, Chico and Groucho Marx, who need no introduction to the audiences of the stage, screen and radio, are also doing a bit of auditioning for a famed cigarette sponsor. So you may expect very soon an announcement of the star of a new series featuring these comics.

Kilocycle Chatter: Sixteen-year-old Opera Singer Betty Jaynes will appear on Bing Crosby's program March 25 . . . Jackie Coogan always telephones his mother and his girl friend, Betty Grable, in Hollywood after every broadcast . . . A new program, talent of which has not yet been announced, debuts on the Mutual web on April 1.

If Gladys Swarthout ever misses a broadcast, her sponsors—the ice-makers of the country—will get $50,000. Gladys has never missed a program in her long radio career, and just to make sure that record continues, her sponsor has insured her for the above amount with Lloyds of London.

Sayao Returns To 'Met' For 'Traviata'

Greta Garbo is not alone among American artists to star in "Camille" this year.

For when Bidu Sayao sings the leading role in Verdi's "La Traviata" for the Metropolitan Opera broadcast on Saturday, March 6, she'll be playing the operatic version of the great love story.

"La Traviata" is based on the famous play by Alexander Dumas, fils, "La Dame aux Camelias," better known to American audiences simply as "Camille."

Miss Sayao, brilliant young Brazilian soprano whose Metropolitan debut was made over the air on February 13, will sing the role of Violetta Valery when the opera is broadcast in its entirety Saturday.

Miss Sayao, whose operatic experience includes engagements at all the important French, Italian and South American operas, was engaged for the Metropolitan after her three successful appearances with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony last year under the direction of Arturo Toscanini.

Charles Kullmann, who will support Miss Sayao, is a graduate of Yale University who intended to study medicine, was diverted into a musical career by a scholarship from the well-known Juilliard School in New York.

Ettore Panizza will conduct the performance, with Marcia Davenport, NBC opera commentator, at the microphone as usual.

'Fireside Chat' Planned For Tuesday

What may turn out to be the most important of all of President's Roosevelt's famous "fireside chats" will be broadcast to the nation over the three major networks Tuesday night.

Although announced merely as a report "on the state of the union," there is little doubt in well-informed circles that the President's address will be largely centered on his plan for reform of the United States Supreme Court.

Because of the fact that it has taken nearly a decade to obtain approval by only 28 states of the child labor amendment to the constitution, President Roosevelt, it is believed, has rejected this method of attaining judicial reform, and is determined to push the matter through Congress, without resorting to the slow constitutional amendment method.

Concentrated and extremely vocal opposition to the plan has decided the President to take his case to the people themselves, via the radio. He is also said to be considering a speaking tour of the country.

In the opinion of many observers, Roosevelt will not be forced to that extreme. Claims of the opposition to the contrary, White House sources believe the President's bill could even now be passed by Congress, and they are confident that a radio address will insure success of the measure. They argue that the tremendously effective persuasiveness of America's No. 1 radio personality has been amply proven and that this one speech may bring enough pressure to bear on members of Congress to issue passage of the court bill, despite the formidable array of opposition to it.

U. S. Children Will Hear Czech Program

At the conclusion of the concert the children will send greetings to students in the United States.

The series, planned as a means of cementing international relations, has proved highly popular. The next broadcast will originate in Germany.

Martha Raye And Menjou Bernie's Guest Stars

In one of the last broadcasts you'll hear before Ben Bernie disbands his orchestra (see "Plums and Prunes" on page 11 of this issue) the Ol' Maestro will entertain Martha Raye and Adolph Menjou on the evening of Tuesday, March 9.

Miss Raye, held by many people who should know to be the torchiest torch singer on the air, will demonstrate various new techniques in swing for Bernie's benefit.

The nature of the suave Adolph Menjou's contribution to the evening's hilarity isn't known as yet. The rumor that he will tell Bernie what the well-dressed man isn't wearing this season has been denied in practically every quarter.

'Pretty Kitty Kelly' To Debut on CBS Monday

"Pretty Kitty Kelly," a new dramatic serial replacing "Renfrew of the Mounted," comes to the air for the first time Monday, March 8.

The story of Kitty Kelly, an attractive Irish lass whose past is a mystery, opens as Kitty arrives in New York from her native land. Alone in a strange world, she pits herself against the metropolis and sets about earning a living.

Arlene Blackburn, young dramatic actress, has been chosen to play the title role. Born in New York, Miss Blackburn began her stage career at the age of three, appearing with no less a personage than Lionel Barrymore, then one of the first idols of the stage. Later she played in "The Bride of the Lamb" starring Alice Brady.

Frank Dahm, who has been engaged in radio work for the past twelve years, is writing the scripts. Until recently, Dahm was affiliated with a Chicago station as continuity writer, and he was formerly program director of KPO in San Francisco.

Judy Garland To Sing Torch Songs For Oakie, Goodman, on College Show

Judy Garland, 13-year-old blues singer who scored a personal triumph in the motion picture "Pigskin Parade," will bring her music to Jack Oakie's College for a little extra-curricular musical endeavor Tuesday night.

Judy recently guested for Bernie. The torrid swing of Benny Goodman, in New York, will as usual alternate with Oakie's gags and music in Hollywood. Goodman's "quartet"—piano, drums, vibraphone and clarinet—brings to the Oakie show every week probably the most authentic "jazz" on the air. Hot-music fans the country over glue their ears to the loudspeaker when the quartet begins to improvise.

Goodman, one of the best clarinetists playing today, has three acknowledged masters of hot music to follow him in the "quartet." They are Teddy Wilson, colored pianist who is ranked among the all-time greats, Gene Krupa, often spoken of as the best drummer in the country, and Lionel Hampton, who does things with the vibraphone that have compelled the wonder of the great Stokowski himself!

Frederick Jagel Will Guest On Wynn Show

Frederick Jagel, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who really deserves a better fate, will make a guest appearance with Ed Wynn during his broadcast with Graham McNamee and Don Voorhees, March 6.

Jagel will sing the lead in another of the lispng comedian's mad opera stories in addition to offering an orthodox operatic aria.

Wynn himself has threatened to sidle up to the microphone and sing a duet with Jagel, and there is an excellent chance of his actually doing it. No matter what the talents of his musical guests, Wynn doesn't fear comparison. The only reason he hasn't aired a conductors' duet with Arturo Toscanini is said to be that Toscanini isn't in America!

In addition to the musical extravaganza, Wynn will tell a joke or two, and Voorhees' orchestra will play.
Saturday, March 6
8 p.m. EST (7 CST) NBC

Pianist Myra Hess Will Broadcast On Sunday

Myra Hess, English woman pianist who stands pre-eminent among instrumental artists of her sex, will appear as guest star on the Ford Sunday Evening Hour March 7.

Miss Hess, who began her active musical career five years after her birth in London in 1890, first appeared in the United States January 17, 1922, and has been a favorite here ever since that time.

Alert to a changing world, she is notable for her championship of modern music. No faddist, her choice is always sound, her execution faultless. Her repertory is unusually wide in scope, virtually all-inclusive. Alert to the contributions of modern English composers, she excels in the sonatas of Scarlatti, the "48" of J. S. Bach, and the concertos of Mozart and Schumann. Beethoven and Brahms are also well represented in her active library.

"It is we musicians who train the public," Miss Hess declares. "And since the public puts its trust in us, we should respect our obligation. Nothing but the finest music should be considered for presentation."

Musical appreciation, in America as elsewhere, Miss Hess insists, is what musicians make it.

The English pianist's current American tour will include some thirty-odd appearances and will end the last week in April. Miss Hess will then sail for England, where she will participate in the Royal Academy's coronation concert.

beach. I came up sputtering from water snuffed up my nose. Then, back on the beach, I asked to borrow a cigarette."

And with that request, the sun went dim, the world went black, the roar of the ocean diminished and the voices of people were blotted out. For more than three weeks, he lay unconscious with a cerebral hemorrhage, kept ignorant of his pain and misfortune by injections of morphine. For twenty-one days during this period, death and life were twin watches at his side, until the stronger of the two conquered and brought Stephen Cartright back to earth again. When he awakened, he found it was dark. He listened. But there was no sound. He looked. But there was nothing to be seen. "It must be midnight," he said.

It was actually high noon on a bright September day.

"I used to review my life during those endless silent hours," he said of that time. "My boyhood in Pennsylvania, for instance . . . the death of my parents, my sister and I as orphans. Then later, going to Carnegie Tech with only $5 in my pocket. Getting up at 2 o'clock every morning to peddle papers before classes, and working in a drug store when classes were done. All for what? A dividend of deafness and blindness paid to a shareholder more dead than alive!"

BUT the years were not wasted after all—and though Steve Cartright had no way of knowing it then, the double handicap that would have finished the career of an ordinary man was the handicap that was to lead him straight into a brand-new calling!

For one day, not long after his accident, a woman called at the hospital, and like Anne Sullivan, who led Helen Keller into the light, she opened Stephen's shutters wide to the sky! "She took my hand," he told me, "and printed letters with her finger on the back of it: 'M-Y N-A-M-E I-S P-L-A-N-T-N-E-R,' she slowly spelled and she must have done it a dozen times before I understood."

From that day on, Stephen Cartright's story became the story of Mary Louise Plantner, graduate of Vassar college, brilliant social worker and an heiress in her own right. Cartright's plight had challenged her generosity and compassion. If time and money could help him, she decided, she would contribute both to bring this man out of his silence and darkness.

And she did. In fact, she devoted eleven years of her life to doing it, and in the end was repaid by a student who graduated into one of radio's most interesting personalities.

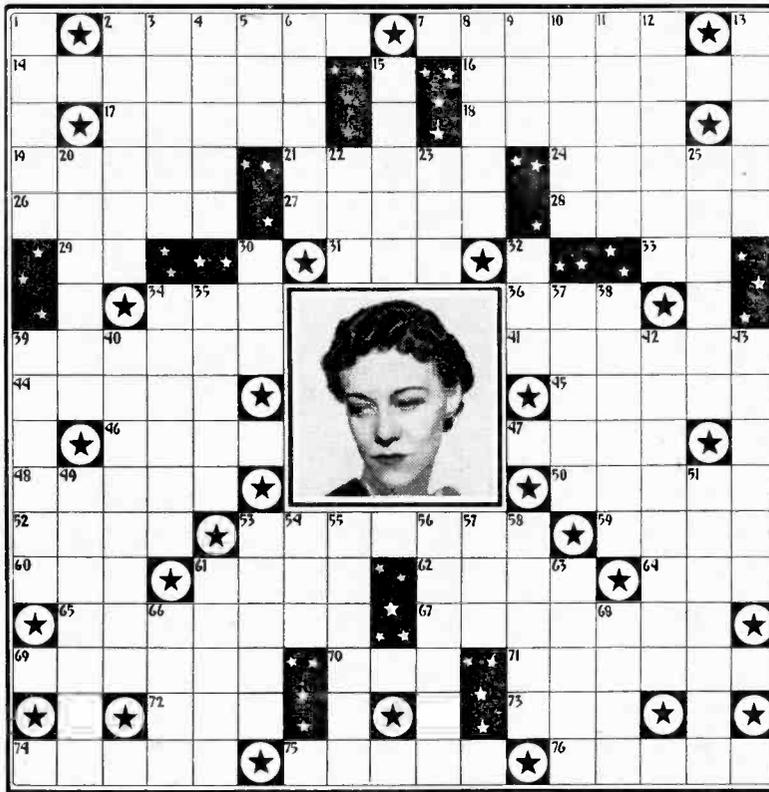

Slowly, patiently, she taught him the Morse code . . . by marking the letter of the alphabet on the back of his hand and interpreting it in telegraphic dots and dashes. Hour after hour, day after day, the two of them sat together—dot, dash, dot, dash, dot—until finally, Cartright learned the whole alphabet in Morse. From then on, the task was easier. They talked together, rapidly tapping what they had to say.

Next, she taught him to read the raised letters in Braille. But remember, she could not tell him, "This is A. This is B," as his fingers moved over the raised letters. She had to telegraph each letter by tapping his hand, and he, in turn, had to remember how each raised letter felt. Another painful year passed before Cartright mastered Braille.

Then suddenly he could read. But it still wasn't enough. This man who had already triumphed over lack of sight, wanted to win a victory over sound. It was a staggering ambition, but Miss Plantner only smiled. When there is will to fight, the victory is as good as won!

So they went to the Perkins Speech

Solution to Puzzle Given Last Week

Institute at Watertown, Massachusetts, and there the teacher became a student too. She learned the shape of letters and words and taught them to her pupil, like this: "Put your index finger on my lips," she signaled him, "and the thumb and forefinger of your other hand on my throat. . . I'm going to repeat the letter 'T' over and over again. I want you to remember how my throat vibrates and my lips move." And he would try to remember. Soon, on his sharp mind, that vocal vibration registered as plainly as sight registers on your eye or sound on your ear.

THOSE were hard days, months, years, but finally the sun came slowly into Stephen Cartright's mind and stayed there. The day finally arrived when he could "hear" what anybody said by listening with his fingers instead of his ears.

After this decisive battle was won, he and Miss Plantner went to London for a much-needed vacation. There one of the editors of the London Times heard about him and asked if he might see him for an interview.

Just an ordinary interview, or so it seemed to Stephen. They talked of this and that in the every-day conversational tones that one ordinarily uses in discussing the weather or the casual topics of the day. But when it was all over—when the last pleasantries had been exchanged, the editor rose triumphantly and guided Stephen's hand to a strange metallic object that hung above his head.

It was a microphone, the first that Cartright had ever touched . . . and surprisingly enough, the casual conversation he had just concluded was his initial radio program on the air! He was stupefied with the knowledge . . . he had actually broadcast!

"In London," he told me, picking up the thread of his story, "Miss Plantner hit upon the idea of making a lecture tour through Europe. Together, we appeared on speakers' platforms in England, France, Germany, Russia."

And everywhere the lecturer went, he got as much information as he gave. He asked questions. He studied the international situation. He became an authority on world politics. Eventually, he and Miss Plantner returned home. Here, the fifty-five-year-old teacher decided that her pupil had progressed beyond her. The ground-work was done now—all it needed was cultivation. Besides, she wanted to return to England and be married. She had found romance late in life, but there was Cartright felt, no reward on earth that she did not deserve. So after a long and useful association, the two of them parted. Miss Plantner to marry . . . Stephen Cartright to—well, he wasn't sure what.

"Then suddenly," he told me happily, "I remembered that night in London when a microphone had been hidden before me. Radio—that was my answer. If I could broadcast in Great Britain I could do it in America. Or at least, I could give it a try."

SO HE went to Chicago, where, high up in the gray shadows of the Merchandise Mart, he auditioned for NBC. And there, facing a microphone that often sends men who can see and hear down to ignominious defeat, the man who was both deaf and blind again was the unquestionable victor. Announcer Charlie Lyon worked with Cartright every day. When final arrangements were completed, Stephen was to broadcast his interpretation of the news over the NBC network daily, and was to appear on RCA's Magic Key program once a week.

But this isn't the story of a superhuman, for Steve Cartright, too, is occasionally prey to human frailty, even as you and I. Chicago, with its cutting gales sweeping in off the lake, its hustle and bustle of hurrying humanity, its hog-butcher-of-the-world atmosphere, frightened him. He could not see or hear the traffic or the people, but all day long he could feel the fearful pounding pulse of the city's charged vibration.

"I couldn't stand it," he said simply. "So I fled to Primghar, Iowa, where friends lived." There in Primghar, a sympathetic banker heard his story and wrote to John Henry, general manager of the Central States Broadcasting System in Nebraska. They asked Cartright to go to KFAB in Omaha for an audition, and not more than a week later, he began broadcasting over KFAB and KOIL of the Central States network.

He's been broadcasting ever since. To prepare for his programs, he first receives news flashes from the KFAB-KOIL newsroom. These are read to him by his secretary. In the interim between flashes, the secretary reads to him continuously—from books, magazines, newspapers, international periodicals, political pamphlets, everything, in short, that comes in printed form, while he sits opposite, holding his fingers to his secretary's lips. Then the blind man dictates brief notes to be stamped out in Braille. When he is on the air, these one- and two-word notes remind him what his topics are to be—yet the body of his speeches is printed nowhere except in his own miraculous mind.

ELEVEN years ago Stephen Cartright was helpless, a lump of humanity hardly more important than a furry, blind mole living in the rays of the sun he could not even see. Today, he's a capable, well-organized, highly personalized individual filling an efficient place in a world where efficiency is almost a god.

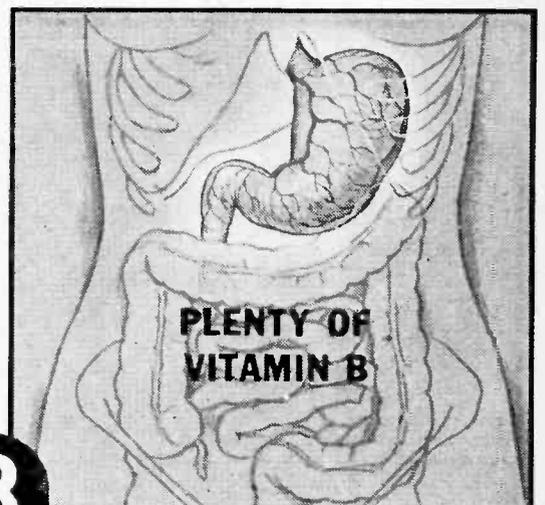

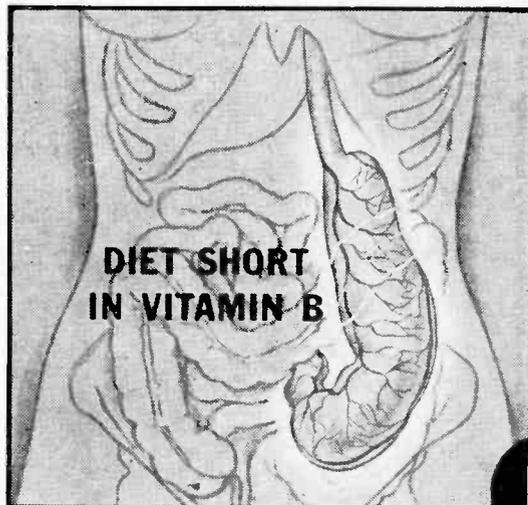

Yesterday, few people had ever heard of him. Today, his opinions on world affairs make important differences in the opinions of thousands who hear him on the air. He's like Edwin C. Hill or Boake Carter or H. V. Kaltenborn, yet there's one big difference that separates him from these . . .

For, when a man who can hear and see talks to an audience of thousands, it's wonderful. Yet it's only radio's magic, and we hail it with an indifferent shrug . . .

But when a blind and deaf man talks to that same audience—and talks to them about world events which he can neither see nor hear—it's more than radio. It's a miracle!

Many Diets Short In Vitamins

Few People Realize Whether Their Meals Are Undersupplied with Vitamins—Until Ill Health Shows It. But—by Adding ONE FOOD to Your Regular Diet, You Can Be Sure of a Regular Supply of these 4 Vitamins Every Day

B

SAGGING STOMACH (see above picture), poor digestion, sluggish intestines and many obscure nervous troubles can result from too little Vitamin B—the NERVE VITAMIN.

A STRONG, healthy stomach (as shown above)—the normal functioning of nerves, intestines and bowels—all require ample Vitamin B—the NERVE VITAMIN—each day. Add Fleischmann's Yeast to your regular diet to increase your supply of Vitamin B. It is one of the richest natural food sources of this NERVE VITAMIN.

G

means poor growth

ABUNDANT VITAMIN G

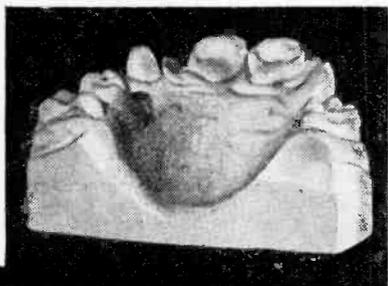

UNDERNOURISHED, thin, poorly developed children often fail to get enough Vitamin G—the GROWTH VITAMIN—in their diet. Rapidly growing boys and girls should have a generous supply of this essential vitamin to help in building up a sturdy, well-developed body and general good health. Fleischmann's Yeast is rich in Vitamin G. Children from 5 to 12 years can be given 1 to 2 cakes daily.

A

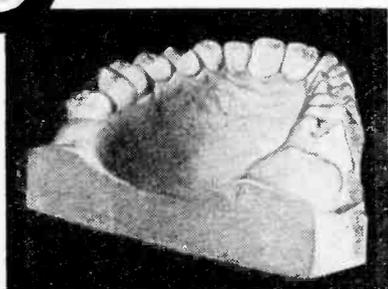

NOT ENOUGH VITAMIN A

INCREASED SUSCEPTIBILITY to frequent colds—weakened nose and throat linings—and lowered general resistance—may come from an undersupply of Vitamin A. Tests show large numbers of people in this country today do not get enough of this necessary vitamin. Let Fleischmann's fresh Yeast help to increase your daily supply of Vitamin A.

D

Undersupplied with Vitamin D

Well supplied with Vitamin D

BADLY FORMED teeth (as in top plaster cast) may result from lack of enough Vitamin D—the BONE VITAMIN. To help develop attractive, strong teeth, children need plenty of Vitamin D. 1 to 2 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast daily provide a rich supply of this BONE VITAMIN for children from 5 to 12.

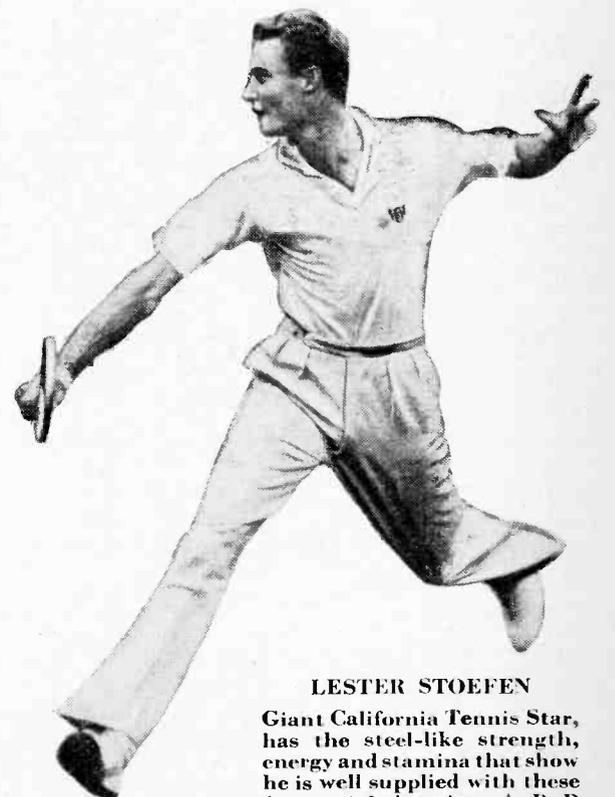

MANY PEOPLE today suffer from some degree of vitamin deficiency, because their meals do not provide enough of these health-building food elements.

A shortage of even one of these important food elements can undermine your vitality and lower your resistance to disease.

The addition of just one food—FLEISCHMANN'S fresh YEAST—helps to increase your supply of these vitamins. It assures you an EXTRA daily quota of 4 important vitamins—A, B, D and G—over and above what your ordinary meals provide.

No other one natural food gives you such a rich supply of these 4 combined vitamins.

Just eat 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast daily—one cake about 1/2 hour before each meal. Eat it plain, or dissolved in a little water. Start now to build up your vitamin health. Order 2 or 3 days' supply at a time from your grocer. Fleischmann's Yeast keeps perfectly in the icebox.

LESTER STOEFFEN

Giant California Tennis Star, has the steel-like strength, energy and stamina that show he is well supplied with these 4 essential vitamins—A, B, D and G.

MUSIC of the MASTERS

BY CARLETON SMITH

THE foremost woman pianist of our day makes her only radio appearance this season on the coming "Sunday Evening Hour." And she, as every connoisseur and lover of the piano knows, is Myra Hess. For where else can one turn to find as richly gifted an artist combining so admirable a taste, so discriminating a sense of style and period, and so warm and appealing a love of her work?

It is one of the platitudes of critical dictology in these nimble times that there is only one Myra Hess. What she does and how she does it is as personal to her as Paderewski's performances were to him. And that is saying much! Surely no other artist ever performed in our generation who held such a magnetic power over his hearers or radiated such light as Mr. Paderewski. Miss Hess is, in her way, like him. She radiates an ineffable charm. Perhaps she wouldn't like this comparison, for there are many ways in which they differ, and this analogy, like all others, has its limitations. But no matter! Miss Hess, along with Paderewski, knows full well that music is an art which has the power to make the eyes hear as well as the ears see.

Jose Iturbi revived the age-old argument the other day as to whether men or women are the greater artists. "Their efforts," he said, "while often praiseworthy and reaching real artistry, never achieve greatness. They are physically limited from attaining the standard of men, and are limited temperamentally, besides."

Naturally a storm of protests descended upon Mr. Iturbi from every side. There is much to be said on the subject, which we shall have occasion to say in a few weeks. We tried, in vain, to draw Miss Hess out on the subject. As a recognized leader of her sex, her views would be interesting. "I see no need for the distinction," she claimed. "Why should I be called a woman pianist? There are good or bad artists. Nothing more need be said. Plain 'pianist' is good enough for me, and I am happy if audiences think I am good."

YOU certainly would not describe Miss Hess as a feminist, and yet she is undeniably a woman. That, too, has an influence, perhaps impenetrable and mysterious and not capable of analysis, on her playing and her moods.

She did, however, express some hopeful dicta about American listeners. "As I have in the past fifteen years grown to know your audiences, I have learned that the better the music you play for them, the more response you have. Even in small cities, I have been surprised to see throngs of people coming to a recital that had not a single show-piece on it.

"I feel that it is, finally, the performing artists who educate the public. Why, let me ask, should we educate listeners to enjoy something superficial and sensational? We can as easily give them the best and the worthwhile and present it as it should be, in its proper setting. That, to my mind," concluded Miss Hess, "is a responsibility of all artists . . . and the bigger name the artist has, the bigger his responsibility."

No doubt long before this Deems Taylor has had a mis-statement called to his attention. Some time ago when he spoke of Jean Sibelius, Mr. Taylor mentioned that he had written six symphonies. As every music-lover knows, seven symphonies by the great Finnish master have been published, and there is an Eighth, a program symphony, still in manuscript, in the Helsinki University library. It bears the title, "Kullervo," and along with the two early Sibelius tone-poems that have been missing thirty years, should be played in this country.

The tone-poems, "Lemminkainen and the Maids of Saari" (a strangely sensuous and mystical love exaltation not unlike the "Tristan" Liebestod) and "Lemminkainen in Tuonela," are companion pieces to the familiar "Swam of Tuonela" and "Lemminkainen's Return," which all our leading orchestras play. So far, these newly re-discovered manuscripts have not been heard outside Scandinavia, where I was privileged to hear them last November. The composer, puzzle that he is, is not certain that they would be a success, and is reluctant to let them out of his hands. Our enterprising conductors should not rest easy until they have them in America, for no contemporary pieces that I know would make so rich and valuable an addition to the tone-poem literature.

ONE listener, at least, will be grateful when our symphonic program makers give us frequent performances of the last four Sibelius symphonies. Now we hear only the Finn's lesser output, his first two essays in the symphonic form. Why neglect the greatest, the Fourth and Seventh? To be understood and appreciated, as they deserve to be, they require frequent hearing. Here is a pioneering task for Doctor Rodzinski who, this Sunday, gives the Wagnerites a treat and next week plans an all-Russian program including the Tchaikovsky violin concerto and the Miaskovsky Sixth Symphony. On March 21, the Philharmonic-Symphony presents a concert version of Richard Strauss' "Elektra," not exactly Palm Sunday music, but the Easter presentation of the last act of "Parsifal" will be redeeming.

The final CBS broadcasts of the Coolidge String Quartet from the Library of Congress occur this week, on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, and they are full of interest for every music-lover, bringing an almost unknown quartet in F minor of Pierre Vachon (1731-1802), two Beethoven and a Haydn opus and of contemporary output, quartets by Randall Thompson, Serge Taneiev, and Paul Hindemith.

FRANK CHAPMAN is too intelligent and experienced to allow himself any wishful thinking. And, certainly, that must be what he is doing. For, if my radio can be trusted, he should never attempt such dramatic and intense baritone arias as Tonio's prologue from "I Pagliacci," which he sang last week, and the Toreador Song from "Carmen," which he has programmed for this. Nature unfortunately did not endow him with a voice capable of putting over these arias on any first lyric stage and, by no stretch of the imagination, does the microphone supply his natural deficiencies. If anything, it exaggerates them.

Moreover, in singing these familiar arias, he invites comparison with the sonorous and colorful baritone voices of our greatest artists, Lawrence Tibbett, John Charles Thomas, Nelson Eddy, and Richard Bonelli, to mention the best-known. Comparisons are inevitable and the result is not flattering to Mr. Chapman. Would it not be satisfactory all around if he would confine himself to the simple and less taxing ballads which he can do superbly?

Bidu Sayao, the extraordinary South American coloratura who made her debut on February 13 in "Manon," returns to the Metropolitan broadcasts Saturday, March 6, as "Violetta Valery" in Verdi's "La Traviata." Although Miss Sayao by no means needs to furnish additional proof of her ability, her performance Saturday will be of great interest, since "La Traviata" is traditionally considered a "test" opera for coloratura sopranos. By the technical brilliance—or the lack of it—she displays in executing the soaring arias of this score, a coloratura is judged, and no soprano who fails here can expect to succeed elsewhere.

The touching, always-appealing story of love misinterpreted is recounted again in "La Traviata," perhaps as superbly and as tellingly as it has ever been set down.

As the opera opens—it is set in France at the time of Louis XIV—we find Violetta, a courtesan, holding forth in her salon, the meeting-place of the gayer element of Parisian society. Alfredo Germont, an ardent admirer, is introduced to her, and at her request, sings a drinking-song, in which everyone joins. This is the famous "Libiam nei lieti calici."

The song finished, the dance begins. But Violetta is attacked by a sudden faintness—a warning of what is to be her fatal illness. All the guests—except Alfredo—leave her. Violetta is touched by this display of devotion, and in the beautiful duet, "Un di felice," they express their love.

When all the guests—Alfredo, too—have left, Violetta dreams of the new life his love will bring her. She sings here the two great arias, "Ah fors e lui" and "Sempre libera."

As Act II opens, Violetta, yielding wholly to her new love, goes with Alfredo to a little home near Paris. But their blissful existence is interrupted by practical things; Alfredo learns that Violetta has sold all her jewels to maintain their little menage. He is deeply ashamed.

When Violetta returns from a visit to Paris to obtain more funds, she finds Alfredo absent. She is visited by Germont, his father, who is greatly distressed by what he conceives to be his son's foolish entanglement. Violetta, however, maintains such dignity that he soon changes his attitude and throws himself upon her mercy. Alfredo, he tells Violetta, has a younger sister, whose marriage to a nobleman will be jeopardized if Alfredo's mesalliance becomes known.

Violetta, against her every wish, agrees to go out of Alfredo's life. She writes a farewell note, and leaves for Paris.

Returning to be confronted by Violetta's inexplicable departure, Alfredo is inconsolable. Believing he has been deliberately jilted, he rushes to the city, intent on immediate distraction from his sorrow.

The opera rises to a climax in the second scene of Act II. This scene is laid in Paris, where Violetta has attached herself to another admirer, Baron Douphol. At a gambling-party given by her friend Flora, she encounters Alfredo, who challenges the Baron to play, and wins heavily from him. Violetta privately implores Alfredo to leave the house; he refuses, and denounces her before all the guests. At this moment, Germont enters, to sing the great "Alfredo, di questa core" (Alfredo, Thou Knows Not).

Act III brings the tragedy to its inevitable end. Violetta's illness, now intensified by sorrow, has brought her to her deathbed. As she lies mortally ill, a note from Germont informs her that the Baron and Alfredo fought a duel, that the Baron was wounded, and that Alfredo, now abroad, has been told the reason for her desertion of him, and is returning to seek her forgiveness. Violetta realizes that it is too late, and she sings her beautiful farewell, "Addio del passato."

Alfredo finally arrives, only in time to hold Violetta in his arms as she dies.

VOICE OF THE LISTENER

The "Voice of the Listener" letterforum is a regular feature in Radio Guide each week. These columns are offered to the readers as a means for expressing and exchanging opinions about radio.

Radio Guide will pay prizes for fine letters as follows: $10 for the best letter each week; $5 for the next best, and $1 for others.

Sit down right now and tell what you think of the program on your radio this minute. It'll be interesting to others—and perhaps profitable to you!

LECTURE FOR LISTENERS

($10 Prize Letter)

Voice of the Listener: I've often wished there were some school where radio listeners could learn to receive the most from their listening. I often compare listening to a program to taking a walk through the country. Some persons return refreshed and enthused, having seen the most wonderful sights—while others simply complain because the road was rough and the birds sang too loudly. Some listen to a program in a critical mood, ever ready to kick about the advertising, to find fault because their favorite waltz wasn't played—while others relax, forget their troubles, and meet the radio entertainers half-way, even taking the time to write in a word of praise now and then. Elizabeth Kaelo, Fort Hunt, New York.

AMATEUR POETS' PROGRAM

($5 Prize Letter)

Voice of the Listener: Here is an idea for a new kind of program—maybe it's a good one, maybe not. Anyhow, how about having a good reader of poetry read poems submitted by listeners everywhere?

The late Vachel Lindsay believed that nearly everyone has tried at some time to write a poem, and some of the poems might live if they had a chance. Mr. Lindsay, as a young man in Springfield, Ill., gathered around himself a group of young men who did study and write poetry, and the influence of those days has stayed with some of them all of their lives. — Mrs. Glen G. Render, Peoria, Ill.

"DON'T-LIKE" DIALING

Editor, RADIO GUIDE: My radio dialing would be much more enjoyable if I didn't have to listen to the following:

Mary Livingstone, who is very unfunny, and would have been off the air long ago if Jack Benny were not her husband.

Pick and Pat, the so-called comedians, who seem to think that jokes grow better with age.

The Al Jolson show, which would be very mediocre if it were not for Martha Raye. Sid Silvers as a comedian is terrible.

Portland Hoffa (Mrs. Fred Allen), who, like Mary Livingstone, is on the air only because her husband has a program.

Lastly, I think that the silliest thing I have ever heard on the air was the studio audience applauding the commercial announcements on Major Bowes' amateur hour.

Of course, I may be all wrong. —Janet Lowery, Chicago, Ill.

BENNY'S DIXIE

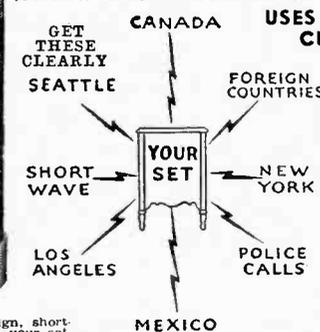

Voice of the Listener: I am a regular listener to Jack Benny's program and have always enjoyed it. Yet I can't say it is perfect, because of his impersonations of southerners. It makes my blood boil every time such stars give impersonations of southerners on their programs. If they would keep their popularity they had better "lay off!" —M. Helms, Charlotte, N. C.

REVERSE ENGLISH

BY BEN BYERS

MOST entertainers make good—and go to Hollywood. Here's the story of a lad who went to Hollywood—and then made good!

Sixteen years ago, a gawky, awkward kid sneaked out the back door of his home and attended an amateur night. He came home with first prize and was soundly scolded for participating in the affair.

Recently, that same boy went home to his wife in Hollywood and they both rejoiced. He had finally succeeded in going on the air from Coast-to-Coast in a program of his own.

That boy is Tommy Harris . . . the "Little King of Song."

Just turned twenty-five, Tommy has had a full and eventful life.

At the age of nine, Tommy began a stage career that finally was to lead him to success. His endeavors were directed mostly towards amateur nights, country store nights and parties—and he had to sneak out to go to all of them—because his family didn't want him to go on the stage!

Until he was sixteen years old, Tommy sang on the stage and in vaudeville. One of his first jobs was in the old Granada theater in San Francisco. Later he organized a band of his own.

The publicity agent for the Dollar Steamship Lines heard Tommy's orchestra and immediately signed them for a tour of the world during which they were to play aboard one of the ships.

IT SEEMS that the captain of the particular ship to which they had been assigned did not like Tommy. At that time Tommy couldn't play an instrument. His job was simply to lead the orchestra and to do the vocals. Well, the captain sensed this and demanded that Tommy tell him what instrument he could play. The young singer felt that the xylophone should be easy and named that. Many a night thereafter the passengers were forced to listen to a xylophone dubbed in with the orchestra!

At the termination of that trip, the orchestra disbanded and Tommy went back into vaudeville.

A booking agent for a chain of theaters in Canada heard Tommy and signed him for a tour of the circuit.

It was while he was playing in Port Arthur, Ontario, three thousand miles away from home, that the little "King of Song" was stricken with appendicitis. Tommy was just sixteen at that time and lied about his age in consenting to an operation. His health bad, he returned to San Francisco and went to work for his father.

It was during this time that Tommy missed his carefree days the most. Still coursing through his veins was the blood of the trouper, and Tommy couldn't resist the temptation to sing. He sang for parties and school events until he was nineteen years old.

It was during one of the school events that he met the girl he married. They were both kids . . . she sixteen and he nineteen. But age didn't stop them . . .

THE urge to sing was too great to resist after he became married and Tommy left his father's business to go to Radio Station KFRC in San Francisco. He started the hard way.

If you had been listening at that time you would have heard the voice of this youngster every morning at an early hour. The "dog watch" always listed Tommy among its artists. The worst hours in radio were his.

Then he went with Meredith Wilson. It was there that he became known as the "Little King of Song" and it was at that time that Tommy began a definite march to success.

At NBC he sang with Ted Fio-Rito, Meredith Wilson, and was a member of the original Al Pearce's Gang. He became so popular that NBC decided to send him to New York and build him. Tommy went, with joy in his heart and a song on his lips.

But joy, no matter how sweet, seldom lasts for long.

One of those bugs that cuts all men down, big and small, got into Tommy's lung one month after he arrived in New York—and it was back to the Coast for him.

It was while he was lying in a sanitarium that Tommy realized how many friends were his. They piled his room with flowers, and his fan mail numbered hundreds of letters.

After leaving the sanitarium, he went back to his best friend, Meredith Wilson. Tommy wasn't completely well, but the fire that burned within drove him on and on, as it always had in the past. Singing with Meredith wasn't enough . . . he M-C-ed and sang in one of San Francisco's most exclusive night clubs. He was wan and weary in those days, a ghost of the former Tommy Harris who had a smile and a joke for everybody.

They began to forget the voice that had once charmed five million people.

Meredith Wilson was a good friend. He watched over the lad who carried a jinx, taught him all that he possibly could, instructed him to improve the voice that was slowly coming back.

Tommy recovered! Not slowly over a period of weeks, not through a long-drawn-out process. His voice was terrible one day, and suddenly, without any warning, he had it back the next.

The jinx had left him for good. Once more the audience thrilled to the melodious tunes that floated through the air. Once more Tommy was the toast of the town—and Hollywood was inevitable.

With a program of his own on the Coast, Tommy packed his toothbrush and started for the city of glamor.

It was the same in the film city as it had been in San Francisco. Tommy was a hit! His program was sent Coast-to-Coast by a national concern!

The Little King of Song is still riding that crest. His health is restored, his voice is better than ever. He started out with a handicap and tried to make his way all over the world . . .

But it remained for him to go to Hollywood to make good—instead of making good and then going to Hollywood!

"Moon Glow Melodies" with Tommy Harris is heard in Chicago over WMAQ Thursdays at 6:45 p.m. CST.

Time given is CST; for MST subtract one hour. Short-wave programs of American stations are shown along with the regular listings beginning on page 29. These are indicated, for example, by (sw-11.87) in parentheses following a program listing. This means that on 11.87 megacycles the same program may also be heard over an American short-wave station. Please note that foreign stations do not always adhere precisely to their announced program schedules.

(Figures in Parentheses Are Megacycles)

ON MONDAY, March 1, DJB (15.2) of Zeesen, returned to the air with the evening program from Germany, beamed on North America, thus ushering in the Spring season for short-wave reception much earlier than usual. Further evidence of increased activity on the 19-meter band is found in the excellent signal-strength of GSF (15.14) of Daventry, England, which is now transmitting the last part of transmission IV, daily from 4 to 5:45 p.m. EST (3 to 4:45 CST). Evening reception from Europe on the 25-meter band is also far ahead of the usual seasonal activity, both GSD (11.75), Daventry, and DJD (11.77), Zeesen, providing enjoyable reception, at times reaching mid-Summer strength.

On Tuesday evening, February 16, a new Mexican station, giving its frequency as 12 megacycles but actually logged on 11.895 megacycles (heterodyning the new Panama station, HP5I) announced its call letters as XEWR when signing off at 9:15 p.m. EST (8:15 CST).

In line with the general improvement in reception, the amateur bands are also becoming increasingly active. Australian amateurs are again being heard on the 20-meter band from day-break to as late as 7 or 8 a.m. EST (6 or 7 CST). On Wednesday, February 17, at 8:15 a.m. EST (7:15 CST), VK2OG on approximately 14.1 megacycles, provided the loudest signals ever heard from a VK amateur.

VUB (9.565) of Bombay, India, one of the hardest of all stations to log in the United States, is now operating on Fridays and Saturdays from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. EST (10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. CST).

Plans for Italy's new imperial short-wave center, recently approved by the Italian Council of Ministers, include increasing the power of 2R0's present two transmitters from 25,000 to 40,000 watts each and the building of two new 100,000-watt transmitters and a 50,000-watt reserve transmitter. Any one of the four principal new broadcasters will be able to work on either of two wave-lengths, each carrying a separate program. The antenna system, both directional and omni-directional, will include fourteen 240-foot, lattice-work towers.

PHI, Huizen, now on its Summer frequency of 17.775 megs, is operating on Sundays, Mondays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m. EST (6:30 to 8:30 CST) and on Sundays from 6:30 to 7:30 a.m. EST (5:30 to 6:30 CST).

New and interesting amateurs to try for: ON4CGW (14.033) in Tondo, Belgiano Congo, heard with loud signals, calling CQ America, at 6:15 p.m. EST (5:15 CST); CN8AA, Casablanca, Morocco, heard using three frequencies of 14.3, 14.085 and 14.115 megacycles, near 5 p.m. EST (4 CST). Dr. Earl Hall of Winchendon, Mass., says this amateur often works VE1DC of Canada. CN8MB, also in Casablanca, broadcasting on 14.3 megs, has been heard at the same time.

The new Canadian broadcaster, CFRX (6.07), that recently took the air, is owned by the Rogers Majestic Corp. Ltd. and relays the programs of broadcaster CFRB of Toronto. It transmits weekdays from 8 a.m. to 12 mid. EST (7 a.m. to 11 p.m. CST) and on Sundays from 10:30 a.m. to 12 mid. EST (9:30 a.m. to 11 p.m. CST), signing off with the familiar "God Save the King."

Try for the following African commercial stations being heard at present: ITK (16.38) of Mogadiscio, Italian Somaliland, on the air daily from 5 to 6 a.m. EST (4 to 5 CST); IDU (13.38) of Asmara, Eritrea, working IAC, Coltano, Italy, near 7:30 and 10:30 a.m. EST (6:30 and 9:30 CST); IUG (15.45) of Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, phoning from 9 to 10:30 a.m. EST (8 to 9:30 CST) and IUC (11.955) of the same city, operating from 12 mid. to 1:30 a.m. EST (11 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. CST).

Answering queries from two listeners of Norwegian birth, LKJ1 at Jeloy, Norway, heard poorly here, is the only station there broadcasting short-wave programs. It operates on 9.53 megs daily from 5 to 8 a.m. EST (4 to 7 CST), and on 6.13 megs from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. EST (10 a.m. to 4 p.m. CST).

9MI, aboard the S. S. Kanimbla, 11,000-ton luxury liner, which calls at all Australian ports, is being well heard at present on a frequency of 6.01 megs, notwithstanding its power of only 50 watts. Paul Dilg, Evanston, Ill., states that the station comes on the air near 6:45 a.m. EST (5:45 CST), on Mondays and Fridays and irregularly other mornings. A lady gives frequent station identifications. At 7 a.m. EST (6 CST) the ship's whistle is blown three times. An unidentified good-night song sung by a contralto, followed by "God Save the King," are the closing selections, after which the station leaves the air at 7:30 a.m. EST (6:30 CST). . . . The only other ship broadcaster, ZMBJ (8.84), aboard the S. S. Awatea, is still transmitting almost daily between 6 and 8 a.m. EST (5 and 7 CST).

The new daily schedule of W2XE of New York City, New York, follows: With a European antenna, on 21.52 megacycles, from 7:30 a.m. to 12 noon EST (6:30 to 11 a.m. CST); on 17.76 megacycles, from 12 noon to 1 p.m. EST (11 a.m. to 12 noon CST); on 15.27 megacycles, from 1 to 6 p.m. EST (12 noon to 5 p.m. CST); with a South American antenna, on 21.52 megacycles, from 6 to 7 p.m. EST (5 to 6 CST); on 11.83 megacycles from 7 to 10 p.m. EST (6 to 9 CST) and using a non-directional antenna, on 6.12 megs, from 10 to 11 p.m. EST (9 to 10 CST).

A new Latin station, HP5I (11.89), Aguadulce, Panama, is being heard irregularly from 8 to 11:30 p.m. EST (7 to 10:30 CST).

NEW Mexicans, thicker than mosquitoes in a swamp, are causing many an experienced listener to shake his head in bewilderment. The latest to be reported by Lyle Nelson, Yamhill, Ore., and E. H. Clark, Hollister, Calif., are XEXR, on 11.895 megs, until 8 p.m. EST (7 CST) and then 6.065 megs; XEXS (6.2), Mexico City, on nightly until 11:30 p.m. EST (10:30 CST), or later, frequently request reports; XEXF (6.05), Mexico City, signs off around 11 p.m. EST (10 CST); XEBQ (6.03), Mazatlan, heterodyned by COCO, signs off near 11 p.m. EST (10 CST); XEXA, Mexico City, has shifted to 6.133 megs and has added a new channel of 11.88 megs, where it is heard in the afternoon. Another new one with a call sounding like XERV is being heard on a frequency of 5.91 megs. Many fans are logging XERV.

Next time you buy coffee, ask yourself this: "Am I paying money for something I don't get? Am I getting all the flavor, freshness and full-bodied coffee goodness I'm paying for?" Then remember — Maxwell House is one coffee that always gives you full value for your money!

For Maxwell House is packed in the super-vacuum, Vita-Fresh can — the only way science knows to always bring you coffee without loss of flavor . . . coffee as fresh and delicious as the hour it left the roaster! So, be sure you get what you pay for. Get a can of Maxwell House Coffee — today!

"We just changed to Maxwell House recently," says Mrs. John Carver of Brooklyn, N. Y. "And I must say that we never knew before how wonderfully delicious coffee could be! It's always so deliciously fresh and full flavored, packed in the Vita-Fresh can!"

Radio Guide Presents GIANT-GRAVURE

Clara Bow made yesterday's movie history as the "It" girl, but today's movie-radio fans cheer MARTHA as the "Swing-It" girl. Critics diences call the vivacious comedienne and former night-club songstress ler and Clara, but loud-cheering au- the most sensational find of 1936!

a dialer's diary

BY THE DAY-DREAMER

Today I was taking my ease after a full Sunday dinner, when the good wife did dial the "Penthouse Serenade," a sprightly show indeed, and F. Martin played

Tonight—'tis on a Tuesday evening—came over my radio set the voice of a page-boy calling lustily, but in answer came music by Russ Morgan

Today, a Monday, and a blue one too, but did finally find a note of cheer in the gay music of Horace Heidt and His Brigadiers, as gay a group of minstrels as I have heard in this past six-month. And I'll hear them again

Of all the varied music on the air, there is nothing that doth so move me as the full-throated song of the symphony orchestra—and so today was I deeply thrilled to hear from Chicago a full concert orchestra playing with devotion and care, the great works of the masters, under the direction of one Henry Weber, a scholar and an artist

One Friday my aimless dialing brought me to the zany Victor Moore, a droll fellow, to be sure. With him was one Helen Broderick, a female jester of great talent whom I have often seen in vastly humorous moving-picture plays

Passing hard it is to tell, from the lilt of a lady's voice alone as it comes over the wireless, whether or not she be a comely lass. But today I heard such a one—Muriel Wilson—and I was sure she had other beauties than of voice

WLW's "Smoothies" are an important unit of the "Vocal Varieties." Here they are in an unusual portrait: Babs, Little Ryan, and Charlie Ryan

WHEN "VOCAL VARIETIES" GOES ON THE AIR FROM CINCINNATI'S WLW, THESE STARS ARE SINGING TO YOU!

"VOCAL VARIETIES"

DISCARD YOUR OLD AERIAL

It is Most Likely Corroded and Has Poor or Loose Noisy Connections
NO MORE BUZZES, CLICKS and shorts from summer rains and winter snow and sleet when using an F. & H. Capacity Aerial Eliminator. Equals an aerial 75 ft. long, strung 50 ft. high, yet occupies only 1 1/2 inch by 4 inch space behind your radio—guaranteed to give you nationwide reception or your money back.

BETTER TONE AND DISTANCE GUARANTEED
Sensitivity, selectivity, tone and volume improved. No lightning danger or unsightly lead-in and aerial wires. Makes your set complete in itself. Forget aerial wires and troubles—move your set anywhere.

NOT NEW—VALUE ALREADY PROVED
On the market five years—100,000 satisfied customers in U. S. and foreign countries. In use from the Arctic Region of Norway to the Tropics of Africa. Chosen by Government for use on Naval Hospital bedside radios. Each factory tested on actual long distance reception. Cannot harm set—Easily connected to any radio, including radios having no ground or radios for doublet aerial.

5 DAYS TRIAL Mail coupon as if new. Pay postman $1.00 plus a few pennies postage on delivery. If not entirely satisfied, return within five days and your dollar will be refunded without question.

JUST MAIL THIS COUPON

WHAT USERS SAY
San Antonio, Tex. It might interest you to know that with the Capacity Aerial Eliminator I get European stations easily and in the winter get Australia, Russia, Honolulu and many Jan Short Wave Stations. I get all Pacific Coast Stations on the broadcast band.
Davenport, Ia. Received your Radio Aerial Eliminator and it sure works fine. Also works swell on Short Wave band. Wish I had found it long ago. Signed:

MASSAGE REDUCES—sodoes Director. Its elastic action, with every movement of your body, causes a gentle, changing, vibrating pressure that easily, comfortably works away abdominal fat.

WORKS AWAY FAT
Director puts snap in your step, helps to relieve "short breath," restores vigor. You look and feel years younger as soon as you wear Director Belt.

Break Constipation Habit—Loose, fallen abdominal muscles go back where they belong. Massage-like action of Director increases elimination and regularity in a normal way without the use of harsh, irritating, harmful cathartics.

SENT ON TRIAL—Let us prove our claims. If you don't get results you owe nothing.

I WILL TRAIN YOU AT HOME IN SPARE TIME FOR A GOOD RADIO JOB!

FREE BOOK TELLS HOW MAIL COUPON

Do you want to make more money? Radio offers you many opportunities for well-paying spare time and full time jobs. And you don't have to give up your present job or leave home and spend a lot of money to become a Radio Expert.

Many Radio Experts Make $30, $50, $75 a Week

Radio Broadcasting stations employ engineers, operators, station managers and pay up to $5,000 a year. Spare time Radio set servicing pays as much as $200 to $500 a year—full time jobs with Radio jobs, manufacturers and dealers as much as $30, $50, $75 a week. Many Radio Experts operate their own full time or part time Radio sales and service businesses. Radio manufacturers and jobbers employ testers, inspectors, foremen, engineers, servicemen, paying up to $6,000 a year. Radio operators on ships get good pay and see the world besides. Automobile, police, aviation, commercial Radio and loud speaker systems are newer fields offering good opportunities now and for the future. Television promises to open many good jobs soon. Men I have trained are holding good jobs in these branches of Radio. Read their statements. Mail the coupon.

There's a Real Future in Radio for Well Trained Men

Radio already gives good jobs to more than 300,000 people. And in 1936, Radio enjoyed one of its most prosperous years. More than $500,000,000 worth of sets, tubes and parts were sold—an increase of more than 60% over 1935. Over a million Auto Radios were sold, a big increase over 1935. 24,000,000 homes now have one or more Radio sets, and more than 4,000,000 autos are Radio equipped. Every year millions of these sets go out of date and are replaced with newer models. More millions need servicing, new tubes, repairs, etc. A few hundred $30, $50, $75 a week jobs have grown to thousands in 20 years. And Radio is still a new industry—growing fast!

Many Make $5, $10, $15 a Week Extra in Spare Time While Learning

Practically every neighborhood needs a good spare time serviceman. The day you enroll I start sending you Extra Money Job Sheets. They show you how to do Radio repair jobs that you can cash in on quickly. Throughout your training I send you plus that made good spare time money—$200 to $500 a year—for hundreds of fellows. My training is famous as "the Course that pays for itself."

I Give You Practical Experience

My Course is not all book training. I send you special Radio equipment and show you how to conduct experiments and build circuits which illustrate important principles used in modern Radio receivers, broadcast stations and loud speaker installations. I show you how to build testing apparatus for use in spare time work from this equipment. Read about this 50-50 method of training—how it makes learning at home interesting, quick, fascinating, practical. Mail coupon.

Money Back Agreement Protects You

I am so sure that I can train you successfully that I agree in writing to refund every penny you pay me if you are not satisfied with my Lessons and Instruction Service when you finish. I'll send you a copy of this agreement with my Free Book.
