of the value of studio audiences. It was on the occasion of Richard Himber's first program for the "Hit Parade." Mr. Himber's orchestra had performed engagingly; his vocalists had sung admirably; and even an opera singer guest star had sung and confessed her favorite brand of cigarettes. And still a full minute of time remained unused.

What to do? Once Radio Guide's own radio program performed the same shabby trick, with the result that the willing Mr. Shep Fields played his theme song over and over—eleven times altogether—to the certain annoyance of Mr. Fields and the probable disgust of thousands of listeners. So here—on the "Hit Parade"—was the same situation—with a more rousing and familiar theme song available.

The resourceful Mr. Ben Grauer saved the day by scribbling a sign on a sheet of paper and parading it before the studio audience. We couldn't see what it said but we know what happened.

The audience, led by a Mr. Grauer, who

Stage-and-radio veteran Frank Crumit takes charge of "Universal Rhythm" on its first Sunday airing, June 20 had suddenly turned cheerleader and exhorter, started applauding and continued to applaud throughout the full minute of what would otherwise have been only silence or perhaps a lagging theme song.

Studio applause saved the day! And let there be no argument about that!

Have you noticed the change of address of Radio Guide's editorial offices? Soon you will discover (this is a promise) that this shift of editorial headquarters is going to enable your favorite radio publication to print more news of broadcasting and its personalities and programs.

New York City is the country's No. 1 broadcasting center; Hollywood has moved into an important position; and Chicago will always be a vital center. So Radio Guide—in re-arranging its forces to provide the latest and most complete news of radio programs and people—is now set up with important offices in all three principal broadcasting centers.

We aren't given to breast-beating, but we do want to call attention to a story told for the first time in this week's issue of Radio Guide. It is the story of a typical unknown—a radio chorus-girl. She dreamed of stardom, came to New York, and now look what has happened: For one thing, she gets forty dollars a week—and a lot of invitations to go out There are several hundred like her around the studios. Told in pictures, this is a most interesting feature.

The gracious Lily Pons is preparing a grand farewell program for her next week's broadcast for Chesterfield—which recalls to mind that she and Andre Kostelanetz were recently called Mr. and Mrs by so great an authority as Walter Winchell—without official denials reaching these ears. Whose wife she is becomes of scant concern beside the fact that her art belongs to the whole world. And that world will have one more opportunity to hear her before she retires for the summer. Listen in June 23.

One of radio's most popular personalities will be presented to listeners, June 20, when Frank Crumit steps to the microphone as master of ceremonies of the "Universal Rhythm" program. For many months past radio's unseen millions have enjoyed the Sunday Evening Hour. During the coming summer months, we predict that Sunday listeners will derive as much pleasure from hearing "Universal Rhythm," the program which replaces it, with Frank Crumit at the helm.

WHEN IT COMES TO THE TOPIC OF ROMANCE, RADIO STARS ARE GAY DECEIVERS. YOU CAN'T BELIEVE WHAT THEY SAY — ABOUT LOVE!

T'S THE darndest thing about radio stars. On the whole they're a pretty swell bunch to interview. They'll put the Welcome doormat out, give you two hours and have Meadows serve canapes and the best sherry. Or they'll take you to the Waldor' and ply you with the ritziest delicacies. They'll answer a thousand questions and swear it's a pleasure, although you know they're bored to death the whole time. They'll tell the truth about their ages, how much money they make, what they eat for breakfast, how they dye their hair—sometimes they'll even confess their pasts, their debts and their worst enemies. But they won't tell the truth about love.

This, alas, is just one of the first things any interviewer learns about the radio great. Time was when movie folk went in heavy for secret marriages and secret love affairs, only they never did so well at it because it's pretty hard to hide anything in a town the size of Hollywood, with neighbors right and left and a keyhole-peeper at every door to boot. But in New York it's possible to hide most anything in an East River penthouse—from a couple divorces to three or four kids—and no one'll ever know the difference.

Not long ago, you'll remember, the Lily Pons-Andre Kostelanetz romance story was hot. Around the studios fluttery little Lily and her bald-pated maestro were practically inseparable, and when la Pons went to Hollywood to make "That Girl from Paris" Kosty flew six thousand miles, no less, every week-end just to spend his Sundays with her. Such goings-on are what is known as "good copy." The newspapers were full of it and naturally radio fans wanted to know the inside. So an interviewer went out to Silvermine, Connecticut, where Lily has a country home that's ultra Frenchy and whitewashed in the best Provenzal manner, to try to get her to talk.

Lily talked. She gave out the whole story of how all that romance tripe was merely a lot of cooked-up rumor that had embarrassed her sorely. She insisted that she and Kostelanetz were close but very casual friends, and that he flew to the Coast every week-end only to direct the music in her picture—although how anybody directs music for pictures on Sundays is one to figure out. No indeed, she went on, she was entirely content to live in single solitude among the Connecticut hills.

HOW could I be engaged to heem," Lily inquired piquantly, "if I nevaire meet heem more than wance a week maybe? Why, I haf not even seen heem now for ten days since my last rehearsal . . ."

Not two minutes later some heavy masculine footsteps came clomping up on the back porch and a man wearing an old sweat-shirt and pants muddy from gardening stuck his head through the door. "Oh—excuse me," he said apologetically, "dearest, what did you do with the puppy's leash?"

It was Andre Kostelanetz.

The interview broke up with blushes and stammers on all sides.

It also happened that a spring or so (Continued on Page 19)

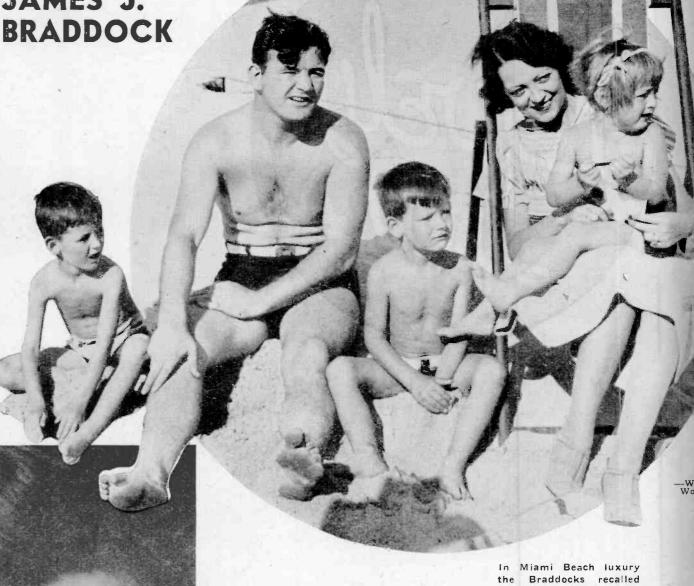

On the night of June 13, 1935, radio listeners heard James J. Braddock enter a prize-ring as a sacrifice to the glory of Max Baer to emerge, later, the winner and new champion! Now, on June 22, more millions will hear his fight to retain his title. Because the editors believe it is the greatest possible contribution to listeners' enjoyment of the fight of the year, the big broadcast of the week, RADIO GUIDE publishes the story that tells more about him than any other-the real story of Champion Jim Braddock—revealed here by his own wife!—The Editors.

INE is not what you might call a normal existence. When you're the wife of The Champ you learn to expect that anything might happen. And usually, it does.

I have seen Jim fight only once, and that once was enough. It was in 1929, before we were married; Maxie Rosen-bloom was his opponent. It's a pretty sickening sight to watch your man in the thick of a fray, especially when he's getting the worst of it. When the bell rang, I sat tense in my chair, almost afraid to look. Jimmy wasn't so good that night. I saw a spurt of blood rush from my darling's eye. I thought I was going to faint. People all around me were up on their feet, yelling, hooting, jeering.

"Come on, Maxie, come on! Knock that big stiff right back to Jersey."

, Braddock, you lunkhead!" I contan't stand it any longer. No woman likes to see her sweetheart torn to shreds before her eyes, verbally and physically. Mumbling a silent prayer, I fled from Madison Square Garden, but not before I had ground my sharp, spike heel into the toe of the man who dared call my hero a "lunkhead"! That's another thing a prizefighter's wife must learn. Her husband may be something dear and precious to her, but to the crowds he's either a good fighter or a "punk." If one hair on my hero's head is hurt, I'm as panic-stricken about it as is any other normal, loving wife. But I'm not allowed to show my foor. to show my fear. That might get him nervous, hinder his career. Jim, for all his massive size and strength, is like a great big affectionate

St. Bernard, trusting and easily bulldozed by men half his size. His shyness almost drove me crazy during our courtship. But that was before I learned that his excessive bashfulness covered the best-natured Irish heart God ever put in a man.

Jim was—and still is—a very close friend of my brother, Howard, and he used to be at our home more than he was at his own. He would tease me a lot at the dinner table, but when he was left clone with me in the same room for one minute, he'd blush the color of a salmon. There was no getting past the "nice day" stage of conversation with that big, helpless Irishman. I never knew that he liked me until that momentous evening about eight years ago when my mother called out to me from the living-room: "Come on out, Mae. Jim's here and he's got something for you."

I was in my room getting ready to go out on a date; my hair was in curlers and my face was shining with cold-cream. But since it was only Jim. I didn't care how I looked. I pulled my wrapper around me and walked out, to be met by my whole family of six brothers, two sisters, Mom and Pop and a beet-faced, perspiring Jim Brad-

'Go on. Jim. Show her what you have," my father coaxed, and shoved him toward me. Good old Pop!

By this time Jim was gulping furiously.

'It's—it's this, Mae."

"This" turned out to be a diamond ring. I was so amazed at this unexpected proposal that I became as red and tongue-tied as Jim. After a long moment of silence and confusion, my mother snorted, "Well, Mae, at least you could give him a kiss for that!"

Cold-cream and all, I planted a greasy kiss on the lips of my embarrassed husband-to-be, and then I retired to get dressed for my date. After all, a girl can't give another man a stand-up just because she suddenly becomes engaged!

A^T THE time Jim and I were married, he had amassed a young fortune of $30,000. He had about $10,000 in the bank and some $20,000 invested in stocks, bonds and a taxicab company. We paid three months' advance rent on a nice little apartment in New Jersey, I bought some cute red-andwhite organdy curtains and we set up house

James Junior was born, the brightest Irish sunbeam you ever saw, and we reached the peak of our happiness. Money, love, a baby boy, a thriving business and a promising pugilistic career—who could ask for anything more?

But the Christmas of 1933 is one that we will never forget. All the tough breaks came at once. First there was Jim's broken right hand, which kept him from further fighting. Then Jim's stocks and bonds became worthless due to the crash; his taxicab business went to pieces. There were two more babies, Howard and Rosemarie, and each came down with a winter cold.

The fight business wasn't what it had been, for people were too con-cerned about digging up enough for food and shelter to spend their money for such luxuries as prizefights. In a desperate effort to keep a roof over our heads, Jim sought work on the docks at Weehawken—but work was scarce. Some weeks he labored two days; some weeks it was three days. One week we were lucky—he made $14. We spent it immediately on the babies. Jim and I lived on tea and little more.

For weeks I had been urging Jim to go on relief, but his fine Irish pride rebelled at the idea. One day the gas and electricity were turned off; the milkman regretfully told me that he could no longer supply us with milk. Jim came home that night, after trudging the snow-laden streets looking for work as a longshoreman, to find the house in utter darkness.

"What's happened, honey?" he asked. His voice was tired. I told him. As long as I live I shall never forget the expression that came over his face. There was something fierce about it that almost frightened me. The next morning, without telling me where he was going, he left the house even bethe babies were up. I saw my husband leave that morning, a big, fine, proud, upstanding young Irishman. I saw him shuffle home an hour later, Relief Case No. 2796.

But the Braddock kids got their milk that day.

Jim never forgot that debt to society.

win, what with betting running at ten to one in favor of the dashing Maxie. No contender ever entered the ring conceded so little chance as Jim. He was regarded by many as a pugilistic sacrifice to the glory of Eaer. I began to have the tremors.

But what hurt most of all was the swaggering threat made by Ancil Hoff-man, Baer's manager, that "Braddock had better have an ambulance waiting to cart him away after the fight.

DIDN'T want to listen to the account of the fight over the radio. I let out the news that I was going to be at my mother's home that evening, to stay with my family during that trying time. I was jittery, weepy and blue, and I didn't want to see anyone As soon as I opened the door I was met by a horde of newspapermen and photographers.

They made me listen to the radio, lips, broken nose, puffed-up black eyes. The cars screeched to a standstill outside the New York hotel where Jim was stopping and I tore through the lobby like an insane woman. When I finally spotted Jimmy, the center of an admiring, noisy mob, I flung myself into his arms. "Darling, are you hurt?"

"Hold it please, Mrs. Braddock!" Those photographers again. I couldn't even kiss my hero in private! Since that evening, my feet haven't touched the ground. Every phase of my life needs readjustment.

The one thing I never will get used to, though, is being a celebrity's wife. On those rare occasions when we go out, a group of people follow us, point at Jim and whisper, "That's the Champ!" Jim is a celebrity to everyone but himself. For he is still the same shy, gawky, self-conscious boy whom my whole family practically had to bulldoze into proposing to me.

Training for Louis, Braddock met radio's "Poetic Melodeers"-Jack Fulton (center), Franklyn MacCormack

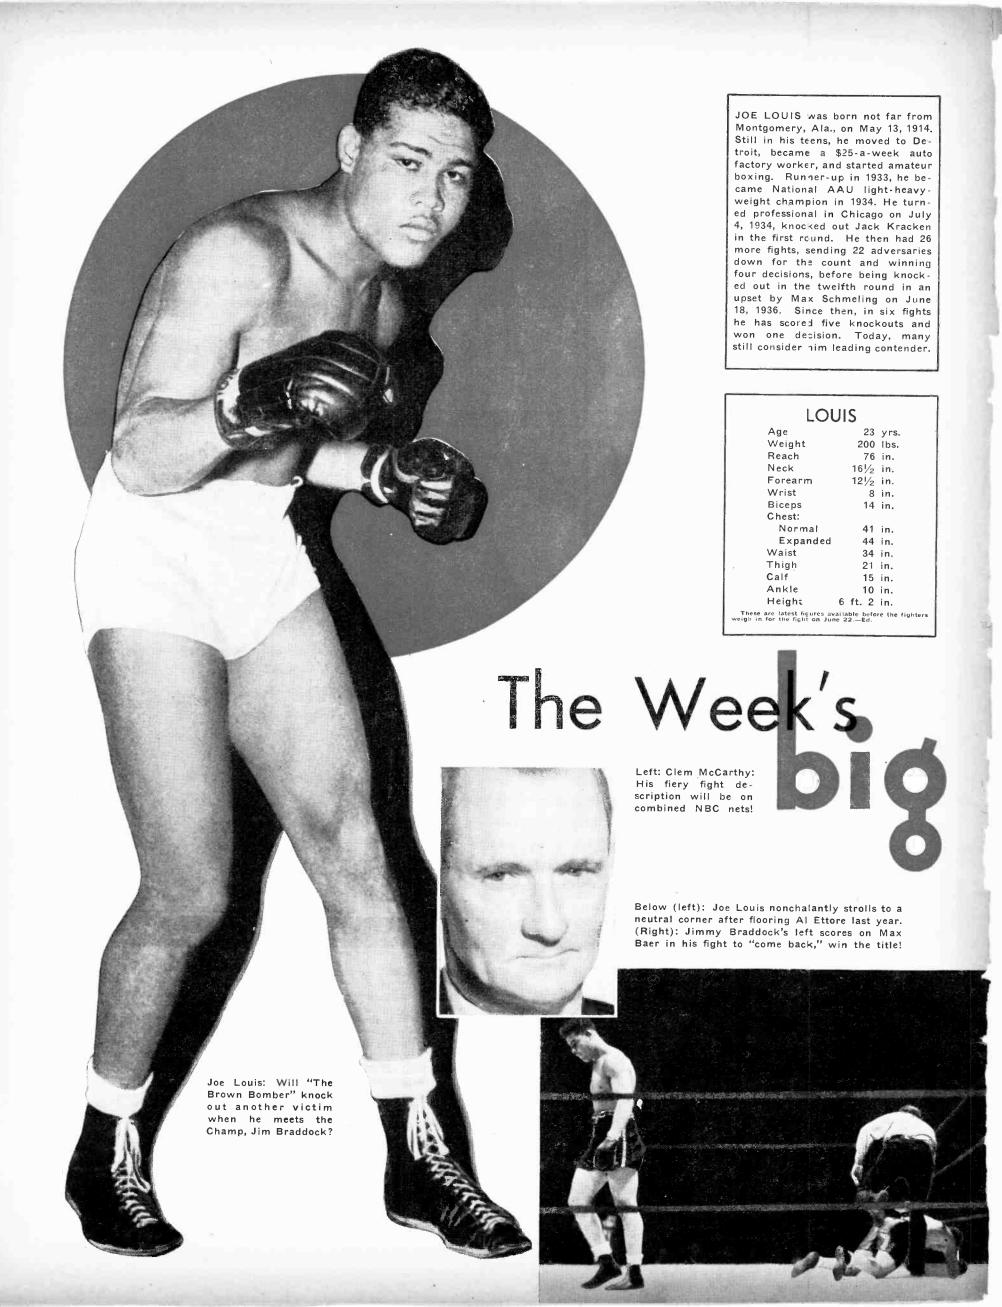

A year or so later he got an engagement to fight with Art Lasky. borrowed some money so he could build himself up on nourishing steak and vegetables, and not the same old tea-and-hash diet we had been having all this time. But it was worth it. Jim won, and his purse was something like $700. After the expenses of training, paying for his sparring partners, his managers' cut and so on, there wasn't much left. But the first thing he did with the money that was left was to mail a check to the relief authorities closing his "case."

My most awful moment came the night of June 13, 1935, when Jim was scheduled to fight the world's heavyweight champion, Max Baer. "Livermore Lothario" versus versus the "Starving Stevedore"! There didn't seem to be much question who would too, but I don't believe I heard a word the announcer said. All I got were his excited tones, and I visioned my Jimmy being pounded to a pulp.

Suddenly everyone in the room let out a whoop and my mother kissed me. "Jimmy's the new heavyweight champ!" I leaped out of my chair, got my hat and purse and ran. One reporter directed me into his car and a half-dozen others rushed in after me. A parade of cars followed and we went honking our noisy way to New York. The reporters plied me with questions on the way, but I was too lost in worry to make sense of what they were saying. Jimmy had wonbut how badly was he hurt? The worries of a prizefighter's wife begin after the fight, even if her husband has won. Only she knows how her glamor boy looks the morning after—his swollen

And now Jim is undertaking the defense of his championship. Joe Louis has fought many fine men. The reputation he has built up doesn't help me to get to sleep these evenings when I lie tossing on my bed trying not to remember that my man is going to fight again. It isn't that this fight is for a championship, or that the experts are saying Joe Louis is a killer, or that I'm worried for Jim. It's just that I know what I've lived through before and that I know what I'll live through again. It isn't fun knowing all that and being unable to do anything about it. But what is fun is getting to him after the fight, no matter what the outcome, and seeing that he looks at me in the same old way that doesn't change no matter how many knocks life or men give himand doing something about that.

JAMES J. BRADDOCK was born on June 7, 1906, at North Bergen, Early fighting, from 1926 through 1928, was spectacular, effective-but against small-fry competition. In three years he scored 18 knockouts, won 14 decisions, fought two draws, lost a ten-round decision. Then KO's became less frequent, defeats more routine. During 1929-1934, he won 8 knockouts, 8 decisions, lost 19 battles. In 1933 his taxi business went bankrupt, securities became worthless, fighting income dropped: he went on government relief. His come-back from that time is sporting history: In a momentous upset on June 13, 1935, he scored a decision over Max Saer to win the heavyweight title!

Jim Braddock: He "came back"—but is he too old to hold the heavyweight title against competition such as young Joe Louis?

HEN he was seventeen the career of Jack Benny was progressing by leaps and bounds. Leaps and bounds of a turtle frozen solid in an iceberg! Kicked out of high school, a glorious failure in business college, the fiddle player in the non-existent orchestra of a closed theater; that was Mr. Benny.

The theater in Waukegan where he had fiddled away the days of his youth, however, had had something rather unusual: a woman orchestra leader. Her name was Cora Salisbury. At one time Cora Salisbury had done a very successful "single" act in vaudeville herself, playing the piano and reciting along with her music, but her mother was old and ill and she had settled down in Waukegan, giving up her career, to make the old lady comfortable in her declining days. But with the theater gone bankrupt, Cora was in a spot as bad as Jack's. Worse, because she had her mother to support, where he could always go back to selling garters if he wanted to. She was forced to return to the stage.

She asked Jack to go along with her as the violinist in a double violin-andpiano act.

They were lucky. People still remembered Cora's name in the theatrical business, and the act began to get bookings. They were "Salisbury and Benny, from Grand Opera to Ragtime. They could never travel very far away, because Cora wanted to stay as close to her mother as she could, but they played the small-time houses in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Ohio. There's where Jack served his apprenticeship.

And what dumps those little theaters were! Musty old buildings with a few worn pieces of scenery, a two-piece orchestra in the pit, a few dirty, cramped dressing-rooms down in the cellar, with bare light bulbs, and rats that came out of their holes and ate the greasepaint sticks right off the make-up tables—those theaters wouldn't spell glamor for many. But for Jack they did. He was in heaven. All his life he had wanted to be there, and now here he was—a real live actor at last. He read Variety and Billboard every week as if they were the Old and New Testaments.

HE AND Cora lived in cheap hotels, ate bad food in greasy restaurants, sat up in stuffy day coaches and never knew where their next meal was coming from. They never knew from one day to the next when they'd run into a theater manager who would fire them without notice or gyp them out of their salary. There were no unions in those days to protect actors, any more than there were unions to protect auto workers. They were always broke. They were playing Cleveland at the time of the big Dayton flood, Jack recalls, for example, and they got stuck there. Nobody wanted to see a show when he thought he might go home and find a river curled up in his bed. They were stuck, they were broke -the act got $70 a week, of which Jack's cut was $15-and they couldn't get out of town. When the flood went down they had to borrow money from the theater manager to get home.

People often ask Jack nowadays what barnstorming used to be like. "It used to be like Storm Lake, Iowa," he says. He will never forget Storm Lake if he lives to be a hundred and eighty.

was booked into the town for the opening of a new theater, the World. Jack and Cora got off the train in a snowstorm and asked the station agent where it was.

"Waal," he drawled, spraying tobacco juice over the snow, "there's one goin' up up the street a piece. Guess that's it."

Going up was right! It still had the scaffolding around it, and workmen were pushing wheelbarrows in and out of the doors. "Do you mean to say this place is going to open tomorrow night?" Jack asked. The manager was all snarls and glares, with a kind word for nobody, including himself. "Come in tomorrow morning for your re-hearsal," he snapped. Afterward Jack was to wonder where he ever picked up that professional word, "rehearsal." You'll see why in a moment. They rehearsed with a freckle-faced little girl in pigtails pounding the piano in the The next thing they discovered was that the theater had forgotten to build any dressing-rooms. They hung some sheets on the stage for a dressingroom and the manager reluctantly sent out for an oil-stove to keep it warm. The temperature was ten below zero.

The first show was in the afternoon. They half expected to look out and see wheelbarrows and sacks of cement in the aisles. After the evening show the manager came back to see them, sore as a boil.

"Say, you folks give the same show tonight you give this afternoon!" he shouted at them. "You done the same act and played the same durn tunes!"

"What do you expect us to do?" they asked-"put on a lion-and-tiger act?"

"You're going to be here for three shows a day for three days," he said. "I want you to give nine different

He thought acts changed their performances at every show, so that the audience could come back and see a different bill. They tried to explain that vaudeville performers weren't three-ring circuses. It turned out that the manager didn't know the first thing about the show business. The new theater was his first venture. But he thought they were a couple of city slickers trying to out-smart him-just a couple of big city slickers from Waukegan!-and he was so mad that he stamped up and down the aisle all the time they were playing the second show of the evening, trying to throw them off their stride and get them sore enough to quit. After the matinee the next day he took away their oil-stove. Then he tried to fire them, but the telegram they had from him was as good as a contract and he couldn't do it. So he took a dollar out of their salary for "baggage expenses."

By that time they were so mad that they walked all the way out to his house in a blizzard and told him if he have him arrested. He gave them back the dollar.

That sort of adventure or misadventure happened every other week. When it wasn't a flood or a half-built theater with a green manager it was something worse. But Jack lovec it as much as ever. Those were happy, happy times for him. Cora Salisbury he teamed together for four years and hardly had a quarrel.

At the end of four years they had managed to get as far away from home, for once, as Houston, Texas, and there Cora received word that her mother was very low. They borrowed money from the theater manager again and dashed back to Waukegan. Cora's mother lingered, and she had to give up the stage and stay with her. Jack's adventurous first four years were over. There was nothing for him to co but store.

But it was too tame. After traveling around and seeing the country he couldn't settle down. He was an actor, by gosh. He'd been in a musical act, but he thought of himself as an actor just the same. He began to look around for a new partner.

A pal of Jack's in town, Stubb Wil-

go back to work clerking in his dad's bur, told him he knew of a great piano player in Chicago. "Why don't you get hold of him?" he asked. "His name is Lyman Woods." He introduced them to one another. Lyman Woods turned out to be a likable chap from a conservative family-his father was a minister-and a really excellent popular pianist. Jack saw that all once. They framed an act called "Benny and

New York was tops. No act was booked into it without having been seen, or auditioned, as we would say nowadays in radio. Arthur Klein, the agent, booked Jack and his partner straight into the Palace for their first New York engagement.

"Benny and Woods, 10 Minutes of Syncopation," was New York's dullest

Jack couldn't understand it. Neither could the agent. He was the most astonished, most horrified agent in New York. All reports on the act had been fine. What was wrong?

He jerked them out of the Palace, called off the rest of their New York bookings and sent them to Pittsburgh as a test. They were a big success there. He tried them on Philadelphia. They were a hit there. Klein heaved a sigh of relief. Something had just gone wrong with the first appearance in New York. "Come back, boys. All is forgiven," he wired them, or words to that effect, and back from Philadelphia they came.

They flopped again . They flopped again . . . This time there could be no doubt. Some acts never become big-time. Some per-This time formers are doomed forever to be second-raters, unable to reach the top. One of those performers was Mr. Jack Benny. He would never succeed.
On top of this, the most crushing blow he had ever been dealt, Jack heard from home that his mother was gravely ill. He dropped everything and rushed home. His mother died ten days later.

By this time the World War was on. The Great Lakes Training Station was not far from Waukegan, so Jack chose the Navy. He was assigned at once— not to a battleship but to a show put on by the Naval Relief Society-a sort of revue which traveled around the country earning money for the Navy. His service experience is unimportant in his life except for two things. One of them was that in the Navy revue he worked with Zez Confrey, composer of "Kitten on the Keys," and other figures from the top rank of vaudeville which had been beyond his reach. He learned much from them. The other thing was that he began to depend less on his fiddle and more on comedy lines. It was in the Navy, of all places, that Jack discovered himself to be a comedian. There was nothing mysterious about the discovery. They gave him a couple of lines to speak and people laughed at him, that was all.

He decided to go into vaudeville with Zez Confrey when the War ended, but when the Armistice finally came there was a red-tape delay and Confrey had to stay in the service a while longer. Jack went back to vaudeville but he went back alone-doing a single for the first time, and emphasizing comedy, using the violin just to fill out the act.

"And not long after that," he says, "I fell in love."

The simple fashion in which Jack Benny fell in love, leading to his marriage later, is so amazing that if you read it as a fiction story you wouldn't believe a word of it! Don't miss the tender love story of Jack Benny-in next week's issue of RADIO GUIDE!

Jack Benny may be heard Sundays on his own program over an NBC network at:

They rehearsed, and an agent soon got them some bookings at $125 a week for the two. They had to pay all their expenses cut of that, of course, including train fares, but Jack Benny was going up in the world. They weren't big-time but they got work, mostly around Chicago Jack had still never been to New York.

THEY played all over the Middle West for a while and then got their first big-time offer. They were booked into the Orpheum Theater in St. Paul, and from there they hopped out to San Francisco and Los Angeles, playing all the way, and swung back around the circle to Chicago. Next seasor, they did it again. They still hadn't seen hide nor hair of New York. By their third season, though, the act was going over so well that Jack had high hopes of an offer, and at last it came. One of the biggest agents in New York wrote that he would like to handle them in the East. He had been reading their reviews in Variety and the reports were good. They were flattered out of their hats. Boy, were they great!

The Story

ROUND the home, family and friends of Mother Moran revolve the plots and problems of today, of "Today's Children." Mostly grown-ups like their listeners, "Today's Children in the control of the meet situations from real life, seem real to listeners who eavesdrop in their homes, their lives. These are "Today's Children": Mother Moran; Kay, her adopted daughter; Terry, her son; Dorothy, his wife, and Lucy and Bobby, their children; Frances Moran Mathews, another daughter, and her husband, Henry Mathews.

Into this family's lives, for various reasons, have come: Gloria Marsh, a night-club singer who rented their upstairs apartment, introduced Ralph Santo, owner of the club. Later, when the parents of her late husband learned from jealous Santo that she had a child, they brought suit for its custody. Richard Coles, a juryman, swung the case in her favor, fell in love with her. Now they are engaged. Through adopted daughter Kay, Bob Crane, Donald Carter and Bob Brewer have entered Moran lives. Through a series of coincidences, she was reunited at their home with Carter, her real father. Then she married Crane, but unhappily. He left her. Brewer met and fell in love with her while she was trying to forget Crane—

This week (June 18) the cast celebrates on the air its fifth year of portraying the complex lives of normal Americans. Five of the six original cast members remain: Irna Phillips (who writes the show and plays the part of Kay), Bess Johnson (Frances), Fred Von Ammon (Terry), Lucy Gillman (Lucy) and Jean MacGregor Miller (Dorothy). Only Walter Wicker (Bob Crane) has left the show—he, because he could not be in Chicago for the show's broadcasts.

Supporting these old-timers are Frank Pacelli (Bobby), Raymond Johnson (Mathews), Mike Romano (Santo), Bob Griffin (Brewer), Gale Page (Gloria Marsh), Frances Carlon (Eileen), Sidney Ellstrom (Carter) and Bob Bailey (Coles). In the show, Bess and Raymond Johnson are husband and wife—in real life, unrelated. Authoress Irna Phillips has written 5,000,000 words of "Today's Children' script duirng five years on the air! The story has also appeared as radio's first show re-written as a novel.

Want to get on the radio? Get your self a job as the villain or heroine at some summer theater. NBC's Artists Service plans to comb the summer theater circuits this year in search of new talent for broadcasting shows.

Fish Story: Bess Johnson, announcer and actress heard in "Today's Children," tells this one on herself. She was doing a bit of angling last week on the Johnson summer home in Wilson Lake Mighigan Attachments on the Johnson summer home in Wilson, Ind., on Lake Michigan. After catching a score of pan fish and tossing them into the live-box off the end of the pier, she put away her tackle and was about to take her catch into the kitchen when, to her surprise, she discovered that the bottom of the livebox had fallen out. So she started all over again . . . Incidentally, one of Bess' guests snooped into the shed at the back of her property and in it discovered over a dozen up-to-date radio sets of assorted sizes and makes. Wondering why the superabundance of receivers in storage, he checked with the actress and learned that a number of past guests at Miss Johnson's summer cottage had observed that she had no radio set. Each of them, just to be nice, sent her one. She, also to be nice, accepted. But Bess doesn't want a set accepted. But Bess doesn't want a set at her vacation spot, where she tries to get away from radio. Hence, of course, the full storage shed!

Romance Corner: Marjorie Gibson, WLS gossip reporter, became the bride of John N. Thornburn, Chicago lawyer, this week in Flora, Ill. Dr. John W. Holland, minister of the WLS Little Brown Church of the Air, read the marriage service for them.

The First Nighter script called for Barbara Luddy to yawn broadly and murmur "Never wake me at 6:30 a.m." murmur "Never wake me at 6:30 a.m." She read the line, but the producer wasn't quite satisfied with her yawn so he asked her to repeat it. Still not satisfied, he asked her to do it again. At the tenth reading and yawn, the rest of the cast was seized with such spasms of yawning that the rehearsal had to be halted for a recess!

Vivian Della Chiesa, soprano star, and Reinhold Schmidt, bass-baritone, of the Monday night Contented Hour, both have been signed for the Chicago Civic Opera Company next season. Schmidt will sing Wagnerian roles, but the assignments of Miss Della Chiesa have not been announced. However, they will be new roles for the radio songstress. . . I might add that members of the Contented Hour cast have a habit of bringing peanuts to tide them over the lunchless Monday rehearsals, and last week Mr. Schmidt fell victim to the peanut diet. He accepted a handful just before he was due to rehearse a solo spiritual, "Gwine to Hebb'n." Bolting the peanuts, he attempted to go through the song, but its quick phrasing stumped him. However, musical director Frank Black was equal to the occasion. "Perhaps," said Dr. Black, "I'd better change your number to "The Peanut Vendor'." Oftentimes there is spontaneous humor behind the mikes. Sometimes directors become incensed—but more often they merely smile.

It is expected a lighter show will be put on.

Talk about Walter Winchell changing sponsors is nothing but talk. Your New York-and-Hollywood correspondent just signed a new contract with his present boss which calls for his services until the last Sunday night in 1938, with an increase in the already large pay-check he receives.

Not so lucky are "Myrt and Marge," whose program will exit from the airlanes sometime next month. A new dramatic show will step into the spot now occupied by the famous team. Insidentally, they tell may Marge returned cidentally, they tell me Marge returned to the air against doctor's orders, after she was home from the hospital with her new baby only a few days.

Between now and that time, "Cheerio" will be on his Vermont farm. Russ Gilbert and his frau, Lovina, both of whom sing on "Cheerio's" show, will also join the back-to-the-farm movement, for the summer months.

There must be something in the Hol-There must be something in the Hollywood air from the way husbands and wives agree to disagree. The last two marital split-ups reported are Charles "Andy" Correll and "Oh yeah" Oswald, of the Ken Murray show. Which prompts me to suggest that in Hollywood the words to that popular song should be changed to "The divorce bug will bite you, if you don't watch out."

They had already received the title of "Embajadores Extraordinarios" from the Governor, with the stipulation that hereafter. Miss. Incidentally, Helen Broderick and Victor Moore also had this same honor extended to them by Governor Allred a short time ago.

Upon each occasion, her dreams of a traditional ceremony with bridesmaids, page boys and an eye-filling bridal gown were not to be realized. Fifful activities of the theater like rehearsals and road not to be realized. Fitful activities of the theater, like rehearsals and road trips, necessitated hasty marriages. Last week, however, Miss Menken was married again, and this time she underwent the ceremony in a gorgeously appointed wedding dress. It was all part of her regular radio program, 'however, and Miss Menken's "husband" was just a microphone actor. But she feels happier—a dream of long-standing has been realized.

Not only was Charles Winninger the Not only was Charles Winninger the original choice of the late great Ziegfeld for the role of the immortal captain in his Broadway production of "Show Boat," but he was the screen's "Show Boat" captain—and he performed with spectacular success in each instance. Interesting in this connection is the fact that Winninger was the one time a genuing river showat one time a genuine river show-boatman. It was in the year 1900 that Charlie first became an actor on a real river steamer, Captain Adams' "Cotton Blossom," but bad storms on the Mississippi caused him to leave, to return to vaudeville with his family troupe, then known as the "Winninger Family Novelties." Music...

of the MASTERS

BY

SMITH

ORLD premieres are exciting occasions. There is an aura of mystery about them: the occasion might be a memorable one; the new work might prove to be a landmark remembered for all time. Every listener is agog.

The excitement increases further when it becomes apparent that it is not possible to gauge the importance of the infant brainchild either during the performance or for Take, for example, Bach's masterpieces. The members of the congregation at St. Thomas' Church, Leipzig, had no notion of the intrinsic value of his music when they were hearing it for the first time.

music when they were hearing it for the first time. For them, it was only another interlude in a church service . . and, as it sounded complicated and they couldn't always find the tune, they hoped their cantor would stick to old hymns and not introduce any more of his own music. The reverse sometimes happens: a few composers have written their best music early in their careers. As a consequence of their fame, audiences gather from far and near to witness the first performance of one of their later works and make a gala evening. The production may then turn out to be a fiasco. This happened with the last operas of Richard Strauss, which had their first hearing in Dresden.

Of course, it may happen that later generations will rate these operas as master works. A single hearing is not enough to judge finally any work . . and sometimes not even ten hearings are sufficient. Only the passing of time and the judgment of successive generations sifts the wheat from the chaff, ignores what is ephemereal and seizes upon that which deserves to live.

TOLERANCE and deep sympathy

TOLERANCE and deep sympathy should characterize every listener's approach to a new work of art. One must try to understand it, attempt to find out what its creator is about, and persist until his medium and his message are assimilated. That requires full attention and the utmost concentra-tion. It is not easy. In fact, it is the hardest job a listener can set for

To find out what authorities have himself.

To find out what authorities have said is great in music, or any other art, and to say, "I like that," requires neither effort nor taste. Deaf people do that daily. But to penetrate to the core of an unfamiliar and untried composition, to use your intuitive powers to select its good points and its weak ones, this is a real test for a listener. It matters little whether you are right or wrong. Posterity or the critics may reverse your decision. In fact, the evaluations of the critics themselves have more often been wrong than right. Expert opinion usually errs. But it matters little whether you agree with your neighbor, be he expert or amateur. What does matter is that you listen for yourself . . . that honestly and intelligently you establish a contact with the work in hand. It may be provocative to compare your opinion with that of another person. But first be certain that you have an opinion of your own. of your own.

Because we are not in the habit of listening analytically, many of us are stumped when confronted with a new composition. Our reaction a minute or two after the beginning of a new piece: "I don't like that. It doesn't sound pretty."

Such a remark is usually an admission that its owner does not understand the composition. Its language may be strange . . and it may not seem agreeable even after a dozen hearings. That does not necessarily imply it is bad music.

In Europe I often see American tourists, guidebook in hand, racing through an ancient cathedral, and shouting after a through an ancient cathedral, and shouting after a hurried glance in four directions: "Such a dark place! Terrible, isn't it? I don't like it!" Do not make their mistake and judge hurriedly and without reflection something you know very little about.

This brief sermon is not intended to scare you off or to make you think you scare you off or to make you think you cannot understand new music. Fact is, you can understand it readily if you want . . . and are willing to put forth the effort. The process of hearing and certino for Piano and Orchestra will be given its first performance. The composer will conduct and the piano soloist will be Jesus Maria Sanroma. It is one of the compositions commissioned by the Columbia Broadcasting System especially for radio performance.

Mr. Piston was born in 1894 in Maine. He is now chairman of the Division of Music at Harvard, and has conducted his own works with the Boston Symphony.

"It is extremely important for a composer to learn to write for the radio. It is not as simple as I first thought it to be," Mr. Piston says. "All winter I have been studying scores while they were being broadcast, and visiting studios to make observations.

"As a result, I am now acutely interested in the matter of what will and will not sound over a microphone. Not terested in the matter of what will and will not sound over a microphone. Not everything does, you know. So that when you write for the radio, all the delicate matters of balance in dynamics and timbre have to be rethought in terms of the medium. I have come to the conclusion that a small orchestra is, in general, preferable for broadcasting. My work consequently is scored for piccolo, flute, two oboes, two clarinets, two bassoons, two horns, and strings."

The Concertino takes only fourteen minutes and Mr. Piston believes that, unlike many concert scores, every note of it will sound just as he had intended when it is broadcast.

tended when it is broadcast.

Incidentally, Brahm's Variations on a Theme by Haydn was one of the compositions Mr. Piston observed broadcast. Brahms is still thought by some authorities to be a muddy orchestrator, but his music sounded clear as crystal on this occasion. The Harvard professor was delighted with the effectiveness of the Variations over the microphone. The most difficult piece to broadcast, an expert tells me, is Ravel's "Alborado del Gracioso." "It always sounds lousy on the air," he says.

Here's a perfectly good game for your vacation. Get a few scores and try deciding which numbers in the standard repertoire come in best over vour radio.

The Columbia Broadcasting System announces that it will carry the concerts from the Lewisohn Stadium this

The orchestra is made up of members of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony. The conductor is Fritz Reiner, and the performances will specific be phony. The conductor is Fritz Reiner, and the performances will surely be superlative and very enjoyable.

judging music is open to anyone who has ears and will use them. Naturally, the more one listens the easier it becomes. To know any piece of music requires familiarity with it and a knowledge of what you are seeking in life as well as in art.

The great storehouses of the spirit

The great storehouses of the spirit are created to give pleasure and solace to all. As with everything worth having, it requires preparation and sacrifice to find the key to them. You may say it isn't worth the effort. If you think so, that is your privilege. But there are many who won't agree.

Should you perchance decide to test out your analytical and receptive powers, tune in "Everybody's Music" Sunday afternoon. Walter Piston's Con-

WEALTH BROUGHT HIM TROUBLE, LONE-LINESS - BEFORE HE ENTERED RADIO!

F I COULD do just one other thing for everybody besides contributing my share in bringing them "Hymns of All Churches" over the air, I would give every man and woman one million dollars for one year.

What would you do with a million dollars?

Think for a moment what you could buy with that much money. Can't you see all your dreams coming true?

It's difficult to imagine how huge a sum a million dollars is. It would take you a year and eleven months to count it at the rate of a dollar every second, and if you began earning $25 a week every week from the day you were born, you would be 768 years old before you acquired that much, providing not a penny of it were spent in the interim.

I know all this. I know it not only by hearsay, but by virtue of the fact that in 1928 I had a million dollars. My million was made in the speculative days of the Florida real estate boom. I owned a $65,000 mansion in Miami Shores-automobiles, two businesses, mortgages, valuable property and scores of 99-year leases.

One of my partners was the late Tex Rickard, fight promoter whose genius staged the first boxing event in the history of the ring grossing over a million dollars — the Dempsey-Tunney fight in Philadelphia in 1926. Together we held the $100,000 Miami agency of a well-known make of automobile. I also had the Joe Emerson Real Estate Company.

When I had a million I paid $5 a pair for hose, $40 for shirts, $60 for pajamas, $25 for one pair of shoes and 250 for a suit from the highest-priced tailors in New York. My wife and daughter owned $3,500 wrist watches, silver fox neckpieces, shoes galore and gowns by the dozens. I played bridge for five cents a point, golf at $10 a hole. And yet I can tell you honestly that I am glad I lost my million!

There are too many blessings I have as Joe Emerson, soloist on the "Hymns of All Churches," that I couldn't have as that other Joe Emerson. I couldn't have, for instance, the inspiration that comes from receiving 11,500 letters in a single week from appreciative listeners. I am certain just one of those letters was worth a million to me. It told me that over 200 country schools use "Hymns of All Churches" for their morning devotion—the greatest praise I think I ever received for my work.

EVERY evening in our modest little apartment in Chicago, my wife, my daughter and myself assemble around a much-used spinet model piano. There my daughter plays as I sing and Mrs. Emerson listens. That scene could never have taken place in our home in Miami Shores when I was a millionaire. I was too busy. We were strangers, then, living in the same house.

Nor did I discover my friends until I had lost that million. Let me tell you an instance. One of the acquaintances I had made as a wealthy man was the president of a large public utilities corporation in Florida. When I lost all my money, and had decided I would try radio, I went to him as a friend, for advice.

And he did more than shake hands with me. He wired one of his friends in New York who happened to be the president of a large broadcasting chain, and that wire was directly responsible for my going to New York, getting my first network audition. When I was a millionaire, money meant nothing.

For no good reason whatever, my real estate partner and I vied with each other to see who could buy the most expensive automobile.

There were other times, though, when I did not spend money foolishly.

I shall never regret the time I chartered an airplane to bring Dr. Frank Mayo, world famous surgeon, back from Cuba to Miami with me in a plane.

Tex Rickard had suddenly been seized with appendicitis. At the hospital where he was taken, he lay on his bed running a high fever, and growing hourly weaker. As soon as I could, I hurried to his bedside. "If I could only have Dr. Mayo," he told me, "I'd pull through this." I knew that Dr. Mayo was down in Havana; it was late at night and there would be difficulties, but I told him I would leave at once with a plane. As I was going out, the attending physician told me that Dr. Mayo would have to hurry if even he were to do any good for suffering Tex Ricard.

So I flew to Havana. Finally I found Dr. Mayo and brought him back with me. But too late. Tex had died a few hours after I had left him.

So often I am asked the question:

Why do you so enjoy singing hymns?

My acquaintance with hymns goes back a long way-to a Grand Rapids, Michigan, church where I was singing as a boy soprano at the age of eight. I made five cents for each Sunday's work. But here's how I happened to sing them on the air:

I sang for a year in New York after I lost my money; then hearing of an opening at WLW in Cincinnati, I went there, getting an audition, and later a program place as "The Bachelor of Song." I often sang hymns on my programs. At WLW I met Ralph Corbett, my present manager, and together we saw materialize the plans for a new program composed entirely of hymns. He suggested that we call it "Hymns of All Churches."

In a year it was on a twelve-station network, and last June it began to go out on a Coast-to-Coast net.

When friends can't understand why I'm glad I lost my million, now I just ask them to tune in "Hymns of all Churches." They invariably appreciate why hymns mean so much more than money!

Voice of the Listener: In our present-day fight against crime, it seems that instead of killing off the ugly monster more is actually being done to keep it alive. There are many places where reproductions of famous paintings may be obtained for only a few cents each. HUMORIST?

Dear VOL: I can see no reason for going soft and sentimental over an old-time low comedy actor just because he had the misfortune to be ill and has had the misfortune to be ill and has now recovered. Yet this is exactly what is happening the case of W. C. Fields, now featured on one of the most elaborate programs in radio. Certainly nothing I have heard him say has merited the uproarious mirth which stops the show every other moment. In fact, I have not heard him say one really humorous or witty thing. Yulgar, yes indeed, but not funny. Fields should be relegated to some spot where people who enjoy his bombastic vulpeople who enjoy his bombastic vul-garities can listen to them without interruption.—Anne Howard Church, Harrisburg, Penna.

RETORT

Voice of the Listener: Well, of all the nerve! So Clarence L. Stonaker would like to import a few English announcers!

It was commented upon generally last year after the Olympics in Germany that our own Ted Husing was head and shoulders over any announcer present. And inimitable Bob Trout did most of the announcing from England for the Coronation.-Howard D. Cooksey, Greensboro, N. C.

Voice of the Listener: Mr. Stona-Voice of the Listener: Mr. Stonaker's letter which appears in Radio Guide for week ending June 12, seems without foundation. HEAD MAN

BY W. W. WOODFRED

BILL BROWN, WHO sportscaster, is head of his department now. Dutch Reagan, with whom he shared honors for three weeks, left for Hollywood the other day with a contract under his arm and determination to crack the movie town, so Bill is in full control. Information from headquarters indicates that the situation is well in hand. in hand.

Bill is the young buckaroo who moved in, bag, baggage and bride, from Cedar Rapids to Des Moines in the first week of the merry, merry month of May in this year of Our Lord nineteen hundred and thirtyseven.

bown in Keokuk, Iowa, Bill's mother and father started him in life as William H., but that didn't stick. One good look at him and you know he is just naturally the kind of a guy that everyone calls Bill the first time they meet him. He even signs his checks "Bill Brown"—and that makes the checks and Brown—and that makes it practically legal, or something.

Bill isn't very hefty, physically. He weighs 122 pounds dripping wet, but he has a medal that he won as a flyweight boxer while he was in college; and he knows sports of all kinds, inside out, upside down, from top to bottom and back again.

Bill Brown attended the State University of Iowa, majored in speech. He took some supplementary work at Drake University in Des Moines. He was sports announcer at WSUI, Iowa City, for two years, covering football, baseball and track. During the past year and a half, as sports announcer at WMT, Cedar Rapids and Waterloo, he has covered virtually every type of sports even on the middle-west calsports even on the middle-west cal-

He's been around—has Bill. You'd never suspect it to look at him—and you might talk to him for hours about his favorite subject—sports—without finding out, but Bill Brown of WHO has covered an almighty lot of territory during his 26 years on this stormy planet.

B^{ORN} on a stormy day in January, Bill must have been inoculated with some of the characteristics of his natal day. He could hardly wait for graduation from the home-town high school to start rambling 'round and about the country. No asker of odds, this fellow. With a pal, Jimmy Eyman, he thumbed his way more than 18,000 miles through five southern states. Sometimes they slept in YMCA's, sometimes in good hotels—but more often in rice barns or the open fields. They kept going, though—and that's some of the characteristics of his natal

They kept going, though—and that's the main thing. They kept going and found enough work along the way to pay expenses. Sometimes they had to cut the expenses pretty thin, but—they paid 'em to cut the expenses pretty thin, but— they paid 'em.

Finally Bill landed a job as advance man for an itinerant photographer.

He stayed with that one for a year and a half; and saved enough money to enter the State University of Iowa. There he lived with a group of foot-ball players; and there his deep in-terest in sports awakened and devel-oped into a rich understanding.

Between times he had several interesting jobs. Remember the fellow who esting jobs. Remember the fellow who stands in front of the carnival attractions and paints alluring word pictures of the beauties within? The barker? Bill spent a season with the Rubin & Cherry shows ballyhooing for one of their major midway attractions. He was a broadcasting station all by himself in those days, and his coverage self in those days, and his coverage was limited only by the capacity of an overdeveloped set of vocal cords, supported by a mighty chest expansion.

At another time, Bill waited on tables at Rosalind's, well-known Chicago night club of the pre-repeal era.
Bill went back to school then, after that stretch in Chicago. There his luck was good, bad, and indifferent. He was in the hospital for a time, out again, back to his studies, working at odd jobs in between, earning a position on the staff of the university-owned radio station. Finally, he became sports announcer at WSUI—and he had the sum total of all those miles traveled, places and people seen, experiences undergone, all stored away in his mind to make a rich and colorful background for today's events, a never-failing source of vivid illustrations

Now a full-fledged member of the big family at WHO, the 50,000-watt Voice of the Middle West, Bill Brown prepares his own broadcasts, and delivers the goods, too. If a game is played in Chicago on a week-day afternoon, Bill gives a play-by-play resume over WHO, starting at 4:15 p.m. All the thrills and drama and comedy of big-league baseball are recreated by this versatile young man with the vibrantly pleasing voice. Bill paints a 45-minute word picture of a game that required two to three hours playing time, without losing an essential feature. Deftly, swiftly, he draws in all the absorbing details, all the highlights and shadows, as only a master can. master can.

Players scatter to their places, the first batter steps to the plate, umps looks 'em over and cries, "Play ball!" The pitcher winds up and lets her go. From then until the final out, the listener might well believe he was hearing a play-by-play account while the game was in progress, so graphically does Bill tell the tale.

Each evening at 9:15, except Sunday, Bill offers WHO listeners a nation-wide sports summary: "Today's Winners," compiled from a day-long accumulation of ticker that accumulation of ticker tape that brings results of all important sports events in the world directly to WHO's Already Brown is much in demand as an authority on sports. In one week he addressed the Rotary Club in Newton, Iowa, and a large group of high-school students in Des Moines; and he has more requests for personal appearances than a busy young broadcaster can fill.

Oh, he's an interesting chap, is Bill Brown of Keokuk and points north, south, east and west. His engaging yet unassuming personality is attracting much favorable attention among sports fans. WHO's listeners find him easy to know and easier to like

Phil Baker: "Louis—all the way."

Ralph Dumke: "I'll string along with the champion. Experience is the greatest teacher, and Louis is trying to learn the champion. Experience is the greatest teacher, and Louis is trying to learn by listening to the advice of handlers rather than by getting actual experience. Braddock has come up the hard way. RADIO GUIDE'S X-WORD PUZZLE | birds. They glowingly told about their romance and how they'd make their marriage a success despite the cockeyed hours in radio that kept them apart most of the time.

And before the writer could even get the story to his editor the rumor got around that the Greens were separating for keeps. It was true. Johnny took off for Hollywood and has stayed there for the part eighteen months. there for the past eighteen months, courting Betty Furness and some of the other picture pretties.

Take Ozzie Nelson and Harriet Hil-

Take Ozzie Nelson and Harriet Hilliard, for instance. For years and years they were engaged to each other, but denying it vigorously.

One night while they were playing a dance engagement in Washington, D. C., a reporter tried to get a scoop on their rumored betrothal.

"Boo — shoo — g'way," said Ozzie.

"We're just pals."

"Honest," said Harriet, without batting an eyelash.

But it just so happened that after the dance was over and the crowd had cleared out, the reporter chanced to cleared out, the reporter chanced to step into the darkened coat-room to look for his muffler. The muffler wasn't there but two people were. Harriet Hilliard, very fluffy in white mousseline de soie, had her bright blond line de soie, had her bright blond head tilted up to Ozzie's dark one, and Ozzie was kissing her.

Harriet blushed to her toes, but Ozzie simply froze up like somebody had opened the ice-house door in his face. "I give you my word," he said very formally, "we were rehearsing for a screen test."

The incident had all Radio Row giggling for weeks, but Ozzie stuck to his story until he and Harriet were wed some four years later.

"We didn't know what it might do to the band's success for us to get to the band's success for us to get married," Harriet stated not long ago. "But our marriage and our baby have both seemed to help business instead of hindering it."

B^{UT} not many stars are willing to take a chance on their public's reactake a chance on their public's reaction. When Lanny Ross was single and fancy-free it fell to an interviewer's lot one day to do a yarn on Lanny's ideal girl, since it seemed that a couple million of his feminine admirers were sizzling with hope that they could qualify for his affections.

Lanny, as usual, wouldn't give. But the interviewer was a gal who would never say die, so she phoned would never say die, so she phoned Olive White, Lanny's manager. "Olive," said she, "you know Lanny better than he knows himself—how about telling me his requisites for a dream telling me his requisites for a dream girl?"

"Meet me in the Gateway at five o'clock," Olive replied brightly, "and I'll tell you all you want to know."

So at five o'clock there was Olive with all the information. Lanny, it seemed, had a special weakness for tall, statuesque blondes. They must be blond and they must be statuesque. In Hollywood, while he was making pictures, he'd had a dandy time because Hollywood was full of statuesque blondes. Olive continued with all the necessary details and it made a swell story. a swell story.

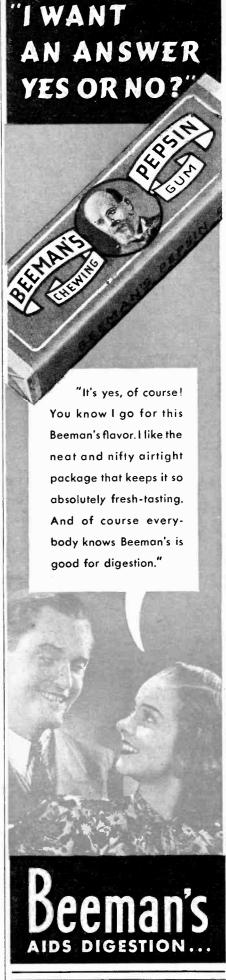

Of course it only vaguely interested

Of course it only vaguety interested the interviewer to learn, a few months later, that the whole time Olive was talking that afternoon in the Gateway there was tucked away in her purse a very exquisite diamond that Lanny had given her for her third finger. The story was about six weeks off the newsetands when Lanny married his

The story was about six weeks off the newstands when Lanny married his manager — and incidentally, Olive White Ross is a tiny brunet.

Well, after a while you sort of get the hang of it. If radio stars say they're in love, they're not; if they say they're not, they are. If they're divinely happily married they're usually getting a divorce, if they're looking for their dream girls they've already found their dream girls they've already found a dozen of 'em, if they're single careerwomen they've probably got a hus-band and four children on Central Park West.

It's simple. Whatever they say, you just write the opposite—and then you get the truth about love.

NEXT WEEK!

The final winners of this year's Star of Stars Election will be announced in the forthcoming issue of RADIO Guide! Watch for them! -The Editors.

LOVELY LIARS

ago the Ted Husing-Anne St. George romance was news. The mighty man of the microphone had steadfastly night-clubbed his blond showgirl lovely seven nights a week for two years; and the talk got out around Broadway that he'd even journeyed all the way to Miami to propose to her again—to Miami to propose to her again—and gotten another refusal.

"Sure she turned me down," Ted told me frankly. "Oh well, Angel's like that. I don't think she knows what she wants. I'll tell you this, though: I'll keep on asking her till she comes across. She's a great kid. I'm in love with the dame." Then he launched into the life history of Anne St George and how she was really of St. George, and how she was really of noble Italian birth and how smart she was and what a swell gal she was and some more about how crazy he was about her. It was nearly

It was nearly six when he banged the cover over his typewriter and we walked out of CBS together to part at the corner. Ted allowed he was going down to Billy LaHiff's and eat a steak, and I was going home with what I thought was the champion story of a great unrequited adoration.

The next morning the newspapers had it smeared all over the second page with pictures: at midnight the night before—exactly six hours after I'd left Husing at Madison and Fifty-second—he'd eloped to Harrison, New York, with Showgirl Celia Ryland.

DEAR, dear, the way these radio stars do carry on. All you have to do is write a story about how divinely happy so-and-so is with so-and-so, with statements from both parties to prove it, and before the magazine gets on the newsstands they'll be filing suit for divorce. Like the time a reporter went up to see Johnny Green, who's the maestro now on the Fred Astaire show, to get the facts about his idyllic home life with his pretty society-girl wife, Carol Falk.

Johnny and his missus spent half an afternoon in their penthouse drawing-room reminiscing like a pair of love-

HE following are typical snatches THE following are typical snatches of conversation such as you might hear almost any day during the "forest fire season" in the radio head-quarters of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, at Gatlinburg, Tenn., immediately following the appearance of a blaze in any part of the nearly 400,000 acres of this picturesque area, my vacation scene:

"WSEF, Gatlinburg! Cove Mountain calling. I have sighted a fire—azimuth reading 171° 55'—vertical angle reading 4° 30'. Appears to be on Little River and increasing very rapidly—5 p.m. Go ahead."

Then, thirty minutes later: "WSEF! Portable No. 7 calling. Ranger Edwards speaking. About 500 square yards burning on north side of road near Long Arm bridge. Fire under control. Accompanied by Philip Allen, in charge of radio in the park, your columnist went puffing and panting up the steep mountain the ill that leads to the lookout station on Greenbriar Pinnacle (elevation 4,585 feet), then took another climb to the glass-enclosed shack mounted on a sixty-foot steel tower which is perched right on the pinnacle of the ridge. Here during the fire season, which normally is from October 15 to December 15, and from February 15 to May 15, keen-eyed operators and forest rangers keep a dayand-night vigil for the first telltale wisp of smoke.

behind, enjoy a buggyride. The Lums have another daughter — Shirley May

The boys love dogs. The great Dane and Dachshund belong to Abner (left) and the St. Bernard and spaniel to Lum. They have hobbies, too—fishing for Lum, boats for Abner, golf for both

"And it's so much fun to drive a big, luxurious car, so modernly styled and so tastefully appointed."

"I USED to think my old, small car gave marvelous gasoline mileage," continues Miss Smith. "But honestly, it simply can't be compared with my new Dodge. I'm averaging close to 22 miles to the gallon and I know my savings this year will more than equal the few extra dollars my Dodge cost. It handles like a dream, and has so many new riding and comfort features that I never get tired driving."

SWITCH TO DODGE

Above: After arduous afternoon rehearsals, Sally is weary. She comes home to lounge, to read in the comfortable Vass library. Sally doesn't smoke, doesn't drink, doesn't stay up after midnight—except on Friday evenings, when her repeat broadcast keeps her at CBS until past her zero hour. The lovely lounging-robe she is wearing here is a two-piece powder-blue sharkskin, cost only $18.50—she got it wholesale, because all other members of the cigarette choir bought the same kind of robe at the same time

Above: It's the tub for Sally in the evening—the shower only in the morning. Drawing the water for her bath, Sally fills the tub to within inches of the rim. She likes to lean back, relax, while she takes her bath. Evening ablutions are part of Sally's daily routine

Above: Sally often has dates, but not wee-hour-in-the-morning ones. Early to bed is her motto—but that doesn't mean early in the morning! And here she is, all dressed up, in a hyacinth-blue organza evening gown, accented by dainty black lace gloves and an old-fashioned locket

Above: There's no home-cooked dinner for Sally on Friday night—because the afternoon is rehearsal time and in the evening there's a broadcast and rebroadcast. The girl rhythm singers go out together for dinner, pick out a quiet restaurant near the studio, eat a light dinner, pay about fifty cents each for the meal

Above: Sally in the dressing-room, just before the broadcast. There are five girls assigned to each dressing-room. Kay Thompson insists that all her girl singers dress alike, dress well, and Kay's girls are the best known, and the best looking of all radio choirs

For that well-groomed appearance, last-minute touches are an important thing. Here's 104-lb. Sally yanking on her hose—making sure the seam's straight

Above: Breathless, tense, Sally sits quietly backstage, looks over words to her songs for the last time, makes sure that she can sing them perfectly. The two men in the background are associated with the program, here talk over the script. Last-minute checking prevents mistakes, slip-ups on the air

Above: Between the first broadcast and the repeat broadcast on Friday evenings, Sally has "time on her hands." Often she goes to the movies during the interim, prefers houses which show only news reels (Broadway has several of these). Here's Sally buying a ticket—about to enjoy news presented in films!

Above: It's late in the evening, the cigarette-sponsored repeat broadcast is on the air—and Sally's at the mike, singing. She's also a member of NBC's famed "Vass Family," who entered radio just for the fun—made a big hit

Above: It's after midnight when Sally walks downstairs from the street into this subway on Friday nights, but here she's seen returning home after an afternoon rehearsal. Subway fares in New York are five cents—but Sally uses two, pays ten cents, finds it more convenient that way, gets off at the 116th Street Station

dramatizations will tell how the great Carlsbad Caverns

AMAZING SHAMPOO DISCOVERY

That's Sweeping the Country

• Drene, Procter & Gamble's amazing shampoo discovery, gives thrilling new beauty and brilliance to hair. Here's why. Drene is NOT soap, yet it makes oceans of active lather that rids the hair of dirt and dandruff flakes—with a single lather-ing. Drene is NOT oil, yet it leaves hair glistening as never before-without afterrinses. Get Drene from drug, department or 10c stores. Or send name, address to Drene, Dept.RG-4, Box 828, Cincinnati, for free bottle. (Enough for two shampoos.)

Barber Finds Old Book in Trunk Sells It for $4000

A small town barber discovered an old copy of "Pilgrims Progress" in a trunk that had been unopened for years. He hoped to sell it for a few dellows. dollars. Imagine his joy when he was offered more than $4,000.00 for that dollars. Imagine his joy when he was offered more than $4,000.00 for that one book! This is cited from rare book annals, as one of the many such cases. The American Book Mart, Nationally known buyers of old books, will pay $4,000.00 for each copy of the same edition. They buy thousands of dollars worth of books annually — they want certain old school books, Bibles, story books, poetry, histories, travel, almanacs, letters, newspapers, magazines, etc. Many books, even as recent as 1931, wanted. A single book hidden in your old trunks, attic or basement, may bring you $25, $50, $100, $500 or even $5,000 each for certain books. Better investigate now! Send 10c today to American Book Mart, 140 S. Dearborn St., Dept. 3801, Chicago, Ill., and they will send you latest list of old books they want to buy and cash prices they will pay!

ASK MR. FAIRFAX

It seems the broadcast of HAVEN McQUAR It seems the broadcast of HAVEN MCQUAR-RIE'S "Do You Want to Be An Actor" just didn't click. Perhaps the reason for his statement on the last program was to have listeners tune their dials in next week to hear the new set-up with W. C. Fields, Don Ameche, Edgar Bergen and others.—Mrs E L. R., Kansas City, Mo.

Warner Brothers, movie magnates for whom DICK POWELL works, are planning a huge air-show and intend to star Dick in this new set-up.—A. F., Newark, N. J

TED MALONE is no longer on the CBS net work. He has a new series in prospect, and in the meantime, he may air over local Kansas City stations.—Mrs. F. E. S., Battle Creek. Mich.

FIERY.. SMARTING EYES

THAT dull, temporary bloodshot condition and the tired, overworked, burning sensation yield in seconds to newscientificEYE-GENE—ornoneyback.Eyes eel gloriously refreshed...look whiter, more sparking! A great new advance... acts instantly... winning thousands from old-fashioned solutions. Ask for EYE-GENE at any drug or department store. Stainless, too.

HENRY KING has just left the Palmer House in Chicago and opens soon at a popular summer resort near Rye, New York, with an NBC wire. FRANK SINGISER, well-known announcer, has entered the ranks of free-lance announcers and has several shows over WOR in New York City—Mrs. E. M. D., St. Jsoeph, Mo.

WALTER WINCHELL is married. It is quite likely the character you hear in the sketch "Way Down East" does dramatic parts in other serials. -J. C., Peoria, Ill

According to my records, DORIS HARE, comedienne, has temporarily deserted NBC for a trip to England.—P. S. F., Doylestown, Pa.

As RICHARD MAXWELL is on a sustaining series, CBS pays him his salary. LOWELL PATTON, organist, and the choristers who appear on the "MORNING DEVOTIONS" series are not the "MORNING DEVOTIONS" series are not listed on any other radio program. All talent on broadcasts that are not sponsored (therefore susaining programs) are either paid by the network or the station (if local). The salary of JERRY BELCHER is footed by NBC.—G. The dramatic sketch JOSH HIGGINS OF FINCHVILLE is carried over a limited NBC network at 10 a.m. EDT five days weekly.—Mrs. J. F. Z., East Prospect, Pa.

The dramatic serial MOLLY OF THE MOVIES is temporarily off the air. The cast of HOPE ALDEN'S ROMANCE follows: Luise Barklie plays the leading role of Hope Alden; Phil Lord is cast as Peter Smith; Edith Davis as Molly Smith; Elizabeth Reller, Gloria Smith; Olan Soule, Reggie Smith; Verne Smith, Stanley Drew; Bob Bailey, Perry Sturgis; Hazel Dopheide, Aunt Prissy; John Goldsworthy, Jenks (the butler); Gil Faust, Hank Cody; Frank Dane, Don Waring; Ruth Bailey, Kay Kendrick. PERRY COMO, vocalist with TED WEEMS PERRY COMO, vocalist with TED WEEMS' band, is a native of Warren, Ohio. Ran a barber shop there for four years before entering the singing field professionally! Organized small dance unit, which grew very popular in the community. Was offered an audition with Paul Whiteman but accepted job with Ted Weems. Perry idolized "Bing" Crosby when younger and even started his singing career by imitating "Bing," but now has style of his own. Never received any vocal instruction until he arrived in Chicago and joined up with Weems.—D. B. M., Kansas City, Mo

HUGH STUDEBAKER was born in Ridgeville, Ind., May 31, 1900. His first radio job was in 1928 at a station in Council Bluffs, lowa, doing a song and piano act. He later was the organist for TED MALONE'S "Betweet the Book Ends" series. Hugh has been in the Chicago radio dramatic limelight for the last four years. Is presently best known for his role as Silly Watson in the FIBBER McGEE AND MOLL'A comedy episodes. Is five leet, ten inches tall, weighs 160 pounds and has dark-brown hair. Is an ardent baseball fan and enjoys playing golf.—S. P., Whiting, Ind.

The last commercial program on which Songstress MARGARET McCRAE appeared, to my knowledge, was SHOW BOAT. FRANCES HUNT, former soloist with BENNY GOODMAN'S orchestra, is now singing with LOU BRING'S orchestra over the NBC network. It is quite possible that MARK WARNOW, BUDDY CLARK and the BILUE FLAMES made a movie short titled "Blue Velvet," as they recently headed a radio show by that name.—P. S., Houston, Tex

EDDIE STONE, versatile singer with ISHAM JONES' band, is better known as "The Kid." He has pitch black hair, matching eyes and an unusual pleasing personality. When attending Purdue University and Wabash College he was a Purdue University and Wabash College he was a valued athlete and an outstanding musician. Joined Isham Jones in Milwaukee at the age of twenty. Used to call Isham "Sir" but now calls him "Pop." In addition to scat-singing and playing the fiddle. Eddhe leads the band during the absence of Isham and also selects the numbers to be played.—S. G., Washington, D. C.

LOG OF ALL AMERICAN STATIONS ARRANGED BY CALL LETTERS

XPLANATORY NOTE:
The small figure given in parentheses, as (1/4), following the location of a station is an indication of its power in kilowatts—which means thousands of watts. Where no figure is given, the station has less than 250 watts power. Thus the figure 1/4 means 250 watts; 1/2 is 500 watts; 10 would be 10.000 watts, etc. Parts I and II of this log, showing Canadian sta-tions and the start of the U. S. list, were given during the past two weeks. Back copies are available at ten cents each.
