Medal of Merit

A Weekly Award for Excellence in Broadcasting

AWARDED TO JIMMIE FIDLER

JIMMIE Fidler is a Hollywood phenomenon. He is the man who goes out of his way to keep his friends. Today, those friends go out of their way to help Jimmie Fidler.

How this came to be is interesting to those who have never met the man Hollywood respects and fears.

Jimmie Fidler is of medium height, with cheeks that are gaunt in the way of newspapermen who live nervously, energetically. One sees level eyes and feels a straight, forthright gaze under brows that straggle. Together, hair and skin give an impression of sand, both the color and the quality. The coloring of his personality is tawny; the quality of his nerve (some call it gall) is pure grit.

Take the Fidler of today and put him in Hollywood ten years ago and you have an ambitious, energetic young man with a tremendous capacity for thoroughness. Ten years ago, he was a magazine writer and a publicity man. Hollywood was full of his tribe. You could buy them for a dime a dozen. Or so it seemed, at a glance. But go into Iowa and Ohio and Tennessee and Vermont and start talking Hollywood with the village postmaster. Likely as not, he has seen a Jimmie Fidler envelope addressed to one of his customers. Duplicate that in thousands of towns and you've got something that is really quite remarkable.

It came about because it was in Fidler's mind that any one who took the trouble to write to him should have an answer. With his stories appearing in magazines, many men and women wrote, asking questions, expressing opinions. To each of these correspondents, Jimmie Fidler replied. No form letter, mind you; but an honest, sincere reply to a new-found friend.

So it came about that people who had never met the man would drive miles to purchase a magazine which published an article by Jimmie Fidler. So it came about that the news of Jimmie's first radio program was of importance to a great many.

Today, he is Hollywood's head man as far as his type of program is concerned. Others battle him for scoops, a host of competitors attempt to steal his audience. With this result: He is still Hollywood's head man.

Radio listeners need a commentator to interpret to them the things that happen in the movie city. Hollywood needs a commentator to explain to the world the meaning of the life it leads. For that responsible role, the radio audience has chosen former Magazine Man Jimmie Fidler.

Because of his achievement, because he has proved that he can say "And I do mean you" to men and women he has never seen, and mean it, and because his program provides interesting information about our most exciting people, we award to Hollywood Gossiper Jimmie Fidler and his Drene program the Radio Guide Medal of Merit.

HAPPY LISTENING

Wally's Problem Child

MAYBE we were born with a silver horseshoe in our mouth. It must have been something, else how can one account for our incredibly good luck. We refer to the story called "Wally's Problem Child," which stares so innocently at you from page 4. Our luck begins with knowing Jack Denny, who was practically the court jester back in nineteen something or other when David, the Duke of Windsor, was the Prince of Wales on vacation in Canada. Our luck continued when we suggested to him that he give Radio Guide readers his personal slant on the royal pair. Our luck blossomed into a bouquet of shamrocks when he turned in an appraisal of the Duke's personality and mentality, all based on his personal observations, which sheds more light on the what-will-happen-to-Wally situation than anything ever published. Now, turn quickly to page 4.

Peace Masterpiece

TALKING Peace Pipe" is another James Street masterpiece. Honestly, we don't see how the man does it. We thought he had reached his peak when he delivered to us "No More Night," the story of radio and the blind. We were just as sure he had hit a new high with last week's "The Glory Road." Now comes "Talking Peace Pipe," with its tragedy, bloodshed, pathos. Honestly, we feel it is the best yet. We hope you agree.

Next Week's News

WHICH brings us again to our crystal ball and what it reveals for next week. Well . . .

Nov. 27, the Army plays the Navy in a game called football.

Nov. 27, Notre Dame plays the University of Southern California.

Nov. 21, Grace Moore will guest for General Motors.

Nov. 26, Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray will bill and coo in a Hollywood Hotel preview of "True Confessions."

So sayeth our crystal ball's story, and we're stuck with it.

A TALKING PEACE PIPE

BY JAMES H. STREET

INTO THE BLUE HAZE OF THE GREAT
SMOKIES GOES RADIO, TO REPAY A DEBT WHITE MEN OWE THE CHEROKEE

THE JET-BLACK eyes of little John Littlejohn were wide with bewilderment as he stared at the portable radio that sat unsteadily on the rickety porch of his grandfather's wilderness cabin.

Little John is only five, but he knows where the trout lurk in the wilderness of the Great Smokies. He can knock a bird off the wing with a blowgun and can tell the moods of nature by her dress. He knows the seasons by the moon, and the sun, and the wind—the Great Spirit is his Trinity.

He has nothing except a heritage of independence, but he is so proud and his American blood is so pure that his is the right to snub the 400, laugh at the F. F. V.'s and sneer at the Mayflower. In fact, little John Littlejohn never has heard of the Mayflower, and never before in his life had he seen a radio.

Little John is a mountain Cherokee.

RADIO GUIDE gave to his family the first radio that ever was lugged up the craggy side of the mountain where he and his clan live and laugh and love, combing their daily bread from the good earth, unaware that the unctuous white man sees fit to consider them as his burden.

Little John watched me unwind the aerial and string it across a tree.

He spoke quickly, puzzlingly in Cherokee. He knows no English. "Little John says box has tail," interpreted his grandfather, John Bradley.

I twisted the dial and the set growled and grunted.

Little John took just one fleeting look and fled like a partridge through the grass. His playmates were at his heels, and they disappeared into the forest like squirrels.

John Bradley grinned.

"They scared. I'm not scared. I saw radio in Cherokee—our village. Hospital there has radios. They given by Will Rogers. He was a big radio man. Ever hear of him?"

I assured him I had.

"He was a Cherokee, too—like me," said John Bradley, whose boots were ripped, whose eyes were sad.

HE shouted—a guttural, sharp shout—and one by one the children emerged timidly and warily from the forest. John Henry Bradley—he's six—walked bravely to the radio, touched it, and faced his comrades, having proved he was a lad of courage.

The radio kept blabbing. Reception was terrible because of local conditions. Finally John Henry spoke in a low, sing-song tone—a chant—that sounded very much like the soft echo of muffled tom-toms.

"John Henry says box like white man—talks too much," explained John Bradley, who had been to the village and understood English.

Thereafter, the radio was known as the "box that talks too much."

Often, I had heard of the Cherokees of the Great Smoky Mountains—that some never had seen automobiles or radios. I didn't believe it! I knew something of their tragedy, that the blackest chapter in American history should be headed "The Story of the Cherokee." But I couldn't believe that within the ultra-progressive state of North Carolina was an independent nation of Indians for whom time virtually had stood still. So RADIO GUIDE loaded me and a radio in an automobile and sent me out exploring.

A BLUISH haze hangs over the Great Smokies and gives them their name. At Cherokee Village, I explained the purpose of my mission to an Indian trader who operates a concession in the reservation.

"Many Indians back in these hills have never seen a radio," he explained. "But you can't give them one. They learned long ago not to trust white strangers. I'll go with you."

Back up a gorge we went as far as the trail was safe, then we abandoned the car and walked up the mountain. John Bradley's cabin perches on the side, seeming to hang there only by the grace of gravity. There were butternut trees near by. Gourd vines looped over the branches.

John Bradley—his Cherokee name cannot be translated literally into English—was sitting in a hide-bottom chair back of his shack, shooting at a tin-can top at fifty paces. He had missed one out of twenty-five.

"My eyes are getting weak," he apologized. "Getting ready to go get me a bear. One's been using in the mast up the mountain." Which means that a bear had been feeding on the seed from balsam trees.

John Bradley is the father of nine children—grandfather of two. He wore a homespun shirt, dyed butternut. Sometimes he smiled, but his eyes always were serious.

THE trader explained my visit and pointed to the radio. John Bradley's eyes seemed to burn right through me. Then he measured his meager English words carefully.

"White men do not give Indians gifts unless they want something. What do you want to trade for this radio?"

"I want your story," I said quite truthfully. "I've read many histories of your people."

"Your people write histories. Mine tell history by the council fires. I will take this gift. Many Cherokees have never seen a radio. They will come to my house and hear. I will be great—the Cherokee who owns 'box that talks too much.' These children—" he nodded toward John Henry and Little John—"can learn much from radio. More than I can tell them. They can hear white men talk—even in Oklahoma where our brothers live. Now, they will have to learn English."

Little John never had heard of a radio. He thought at first that the static in the radio was the thunderbird screaming. And when he was shocked when I contacted the batteries, he thought they were "little lightnings." John Henry had heard of a radio, but never had seen one. He had seen a picture of one, however. John Bradley's wife had seen two, but one didn't work. She speaks no English. She seldom speaks Cherokee. All day, she sits by an open fire in the tiny cabin and weaves baskets. The traders go up from the village and barter for goods to sell tourists. John Bradley gathers the cane for the baskets. His wife soaks it, works it until it is as pliable as cotton and weaves. She makes her own dyes—red from bloodroot and black from butternut. Her housework never troubles her. She stirs the family food as it simmers on an open hearth. It looks like a corn mush. It is the daily ration, except when John Bradley brings home trout or fresh game. Thirteen live in the one-room cabin. There are two beds and a cot.

"This is my cabin," said John Bradley. It was not a boast, for Cherokees have learned little from white men, not even the art of idle boasting.

"We live well. I have a red ox. I plough with him. And when the snows come, I work him to a sled and haul down wood and game from the mountains. I made the sled. This is my land. It is good land. White men like my land. I plant corn along my creek. Not every year—that ruins land. Indians never waste land. I treat my land good and my land treats me good."

I AM a member of the Council. Our Council is like your Congress. We make our laws. We sit around a fire when we talk. We are an independent nation. This is our land. These are our mountains. We once owned slaves. We owned slaves long after white men gave up their slaves. We freed our slaves. White man didn't make us. We didn't fight any war over slaves. We sat at our Council and a wise man said slavery is bad. So we freed them. We told them to go away from our land.

And the Negroes did. They never have been back. No Negroes live in the mountains. Cherokees simply will not tolerate it. Their blood is pure.

The mountains were their land and they paid homage to the Great Smokies long before the Pharaohs built those wretched hulks of stone in tribute to their own greatness. All the mountains were theirs until American pioneers, loaded with the most lethal weapons of progress—whisky and gun-power—pushed into the mountains, pillaging and plundering with a pledge of brotherly love on their lips and their hands itching for gold. First of the invaders was the explorer, De Soto.

"Sit down," said John Bradley. "I will tell you of my people. You will understand why I take this gift. For radio, the 'box that talks too much,' will help my people understand your people, and some day there will be no bitterness between us. If your God who works miracles had sent white men with radios instead of guns, there would be no bloodroots in the mountains, for the roots grew red with blood of Cherokees."

Without malice, without haste, he talked—sitting there in the skimpy shade of a butternut tree. John Henry and Little John stood around us in awe, gaping at the radio. John Bradley's two hounds rubbed his legs and watched us, cocking their long ears upright when the radio let out a particularly sharp screech. Inside the cabin, John Bradley's wife worked the warp and woof of her baskets, weaving as her mother had done, never looking up—scraping and twisting—as silent as the hills and seemingly as eternal. Every word John Bradley spoke was sheer poetry. A poetry that bespoke the generations of strong, sturdy, peace-loving men behind him.

His tribe once owned the hilly, wooded sections of what are now known as North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia.

THE Cherokees were allies of England during the Revolution. It was not that they liked England any better than America. But during the French and Indian wars, they had been allies of the colonists—aiding the English. And they didn't understand that colonists were fighting the English in the Revolution. They had been loyal to the king and they stayed loyal. They couldn't understand that brothers were fighting brothers. Cherokees didn't do that. But when England surrendered, the Cherokees didn't. They were not all dead, so why should they quit? They kept on fighting America until 1785, when this country entered into a solemn treaty with the Cherokee Nation, guaranteeing their rights and pledging America's honor that no white man would settle on their lands.

"White man's pledge no good," said John Bradley.

Every treaty our forefathers made became a mere scrap of paper when there were profits to be made. A bounty of $75 for each Cherokee scalp had been offered during the Revolution, and many pious pioneers thought the bounty held good years after the war. Cherokees were actually shot for the fun of slaughter!

Gradually, the Indians were pushed back. They never declared war on America, because they had agreed to preserve the peace.

"Cherokees' pledge good," said John Bradley.

They realized they could not fight white men with blowguns and arrows, so they decided to fight them with words. Missionaries had settled among them and told them their cause was just. They told them the white man's Great Spirit would protect them, and that courts would see that they got justice. But they had no written language through which they could appeal their case to Americans.

And then came Sequayah. Cherokees will tell you the Great Spirit sent Sequayah, but history shows he came from the marriage of a good-for-nothing pedler named Gist and an Indian girl. Gist ran away and left his wife helpless with a bawling half-caste, who became so great that the greatest trees in the world were named in his honor.

Sequayah invented the Cherokee alphabet. It took him many, many years, and the task seemed impossible for the language is not made of words but of syllables. The genius, himself unschooled, finally solved the riddle by using symbols for syllables and the only Indian alphabet was created.

Then began the golden age of the nation. The Great Smokies were theirs. America made another treaty. Villages sprung up. There was a Cherokee newspaper, a Cherokee civilization.

Andrew Jackson was president of the United States. Junaluska, a Cherokee, once had saved Jackson's life in a battle when the Cherokees were allies of the United States against the Creeks. The Indians trusted and had faith in Jackson.

Peace fires blazed in the Smokies. "All was good," said John Bradley.

Then a little Indian boy one day brought his mother a "pretty pebble." She tossed it away. It was useless, she said. It was gold. That "pebble" sealed the doom of a nation. Soon white men were clamoring for lands in the mountains. Gold was discovered in quantities. At last, the dream of De Soto—the first white ever to see a Cherokee—had come true.

THE Cherokees, having beaten their spears into plowshares, became so powerful that Georgia, really greedy for the gold, said the separate government was violating states' rights. Jackson agreed, and the extermination of the Cherokees was begun. They were forbidden to hold Council. Their law-making power was taken away. No Indian could be a witness against a white man. A white man could steal, kill and rape as he pleased and no court would hear a Cherokee's plea.

The Supreme Court of the United States eventually got a test case of the Cherokees' status, and under the chief justiceship of John Marshall handed down a decision for the red man. The high court held the Indians were entitled to protection of the President. It was then that Jackson thundered his famous challenge that has been echoing and re-echoing through American history ever since—"John Marshall has rendered his decision; now let him enforce it."

Daniel Webster, Davy Crockett, Henry Clay and others fought for the Cherokees' rights in Congress. It was to no avail. The powers at Washington decreed that the Cherokees must be driven from their homes, transplanted in the West and the mountains given to "civilized" white men.

The Cherokees last appeal was this message to Congress in 1838:

"We acknowledge the power of the United States; we acknowledge our own weakness. Our only fortress is in the justice of our cause. To you then, we look. We have not forfeited our rights. If we fail to transmit to our sons the freedom we have derived from our fathers—it must be—not by an act of suicide; it must be—not with our own accord. Will you shield us from the horrors of the threatened storm?"

Washington shook its head. Soldiers were ordered to move out the Cherokees. Many soldiers refused. One Tennessee general said he would not "dishonor the arms of Tennessee" by carrying out such a mission.

BUT in May, 1838, Gen. Winfield Scott went into the nation with 7,000 soldiers and executed one of the most brutal orders in the history of American arms. The Indians were not allowed to take anything with them except what they could carry. They were dragged from their homes at night, and before they were out of sight of their lands, white pioneers were moving in. They were locked in barracoons like slaves and finally, when winter came, the pitiful caravan, prodded by bayonets, began the trek to Oklahoma. More than 4,000 died

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor. Have they a chance for happiness?

WALLY'S PROBLEM CHILD

WILL THE WINDSOR ROMANCE END
ON MATRIMONIAL ROCKS? JACK
DENNY SAYS IT MAY, TELLS WHY

BY JACK DENNY

As we go to press, plans are indefinite for the visit to this country of Edward, Duke of Windsor, and his American bride, the former Wallis Warfield. However, American interest in the royal couple has never been greater than at the present time. In light of the possibility that Edward and "Wally" may come to the United States in the near future and make an appearance on this country's radio networks, it is well that we know more about the Duke's personal characteristics and the domestic problem with which his bride is faced. Just what sort of a person is Edward—what are his traits, habits, and peculiarities? Has the Duchess of Windsor a chance to make their romance develop into a successful, permanent marriage? Here-with we present the personal observations of Jack Denny, well-known American orchestra leader, who was an intimate friend of the Duke when the latter, as the Prince of Wales, visited Canada in 1929.

CALL Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David, Duke of Windsor, a cherished personal friend. He is a charming companion, a clear thinker, a robust individualist. As ruler of the British Empire he had great potentialities and if he'd been left on the throne I would have had more respect and more hope for the British Empire.

As a husband, I dare say, Dave Windsor may be a distressing flop.

I am no matrimonial savant, of course. Neither am I a spoil-sport; and if a romantic world enjoys visioning the Duke and Duchess as the ideally mated couple, more power to it. Personally, I'm hoping for the best.

I violate no guarded secrets of state, however, when I arise to remark that there's a fly or two in the ointment of love. The Windsor qualities which I shall point out and which form a cloud on the royal horizon are generally recognized by his intimates.

I HAVE reason to like Dave Windsor.

When my band scored a smash hit with His Royal Highness in Montreal back in 1929 and played for him, by imperial command during four weeks of gala Arabian Nights throughout Canada, that was the biggest break that ever came to a Hoosier horn-tooter trying to get along in the entertainment world.

He is through as King of England, temporarily at least, but to me he's still a king of good fellows. Alas, any experienced woman will tell you that good-fellowship is not a requisite, nor even a recommendation for good-husbandship.

I will not forget my first meeting with royalty. It was as pleasant and unexpected as money from home. We had been having a tough time getting established in Montreal—not professionally, but socially. In this country we have cafe society, bankers' society, and the real thoroughbreds. In Canada the thoroughbreds are society. There is no other.

You're born into the 400 or you're forever beyond the pale. Even when the bluebloods gave us a tumble they let us understand we didn't really belong, although they let us know we played right nice music.

THEN the Prince of Wales barged into Montreal in the heat of midsummer with his stripling brother, Prince George. They went directly to the estate of General Mehan, the great Canadian warrior, whose position in society is known to be impregnable.

We had heard the royal guests were in playful mood but had no hope they would visit the Mont Royal, where we held forth. A popular Canadian orchestra was playing the Ritz-Carlton and that's where the big party was expected to be held.

Instead, General Mehan called our hotel and announced the Prince and his friends would spend the evening there. It was unbearably warm and we had done no business to speak of. But the news got around and in a half-hour the place was packed.

I never learned what influenced the Prince to choose the Mont Royal, but I learned plenty that night about throwing a party for His Royal Highness. Windsor's slightest wish was everybody's command.

My musicians huddled on the stand and twiddled their thumbs. There was no music until the Prince and entourage were seated. The Prince designated the starting-time, even selected the first set of tunes. His selections were then brought to me by courier.

Windsor danced once around with Mrs. Mehan, his hostess. Prince George chose a too, too thrilled partner and made his round. Not until then were lesser guests privileged to join. Just a hint of the kotowing to which Windsor has been inured since birth.

Something about our performance struck Windsor's fancy. He sent for me during the evening. When I was presented he said a lot of gracious things. The upshot was that we were to accompany him through the West.

During those four solid weeks we played nightly, hobnobbed with Windsor, got to know him like a fraternity brother.

Windsor is a singular, enigmatic fellow. Likable of personality. Gay by nature, though somehow subtly melancholy, even in those days. Polished, affable, ever boyish, talented in many ways.

He is a poor dancer but loves the pastime, preferring a slow fox-trot to anything else. Wild about American tunes, but abhors jazz. Luckily we never had gone in for the strident swing style and our aristocratic technique pleased him.

THE stage hit, "Good News," was current and one of its songs, "Side by Side," was his favorite. Presentimental, would you call that, in view of his later abdication to be side by side with the woman he loved?

He was cautious to the point of caginess, perforce, in his relations with women. In all that trip he danced almost exclusively with Mrs. Mehan, a lovely dancer who taught him many new steps. Windsor was positively afraid to favor younger girls. Invariably his dancing partners were listed in the papers and romantic rumors were born. Yet frankly, in our parlance the future king of England was known as a sucker for a pretty face.

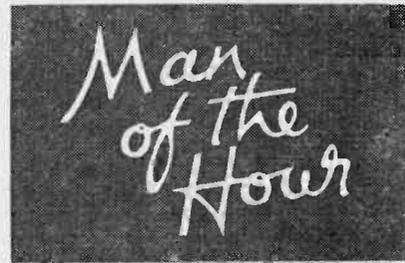

Throughout that trip, Windsor simply had to be the great I Am, even in lighter moments. Here's just one instance:

On his last night in Montreal, he decided, with typical impulsive generosity, to be host at a party for those who had honored and regaled him for weeks. His private train waited in Montreal, his boat tarried at Quebec. He gave them no thought at all, which was his prerogative.

The party was in the ultra-exclusive Hunt Club. During the gala evening we halted a dance number at the usual signal from the Prince. Long ago we had learned never to stop without that signal. Sometimes we played a single number half an hour, which meant the Prince was intrigued by the tune or was momentarily balmy about his dancing partner.

Lord Willington, then governor-general and as such personal representative of King George, the Prince's father, happened to be in front of the stand and requested the Merry Widow

RICH MAN, POOR MAN—ANYONE
MAY BE THE ONE "COURT OF MISS-ING HEIRS" HOPES TO FIND MONDAY

BY WADE NICHOLS

THE gavel falls hard—three times. "Hear ye, hear ye!" calls the clerk, "the Court of Missing Heirs is now in session!"

When that call to order resounds on the air, America listens—and well! For the deliberations of this court that convenes every Monday night on a million dials are calculated to loose the flood-gates of a fortune unmatched since Midas.

The Court of Missing Heirs was conceived by Al Shebel and James Waters, its authors, as a means of helping release uncounted millions of dollars to heirs who don't know they're heirs—to people who don't know their own wealth. Every year, the relatives of many who die never hear of the fortunes which have been left to them by default because there are no closer relatives. The "long-lost rich uncle" is no myth; nor is the son who wandered from home and gathered wealth; nor is the sister who "married money" and forgot the folks around the family fireside. Their estates languish in banks, guarded by probate courts until heirs appear to make claim for their inheritances.

This new CBS program attempts to tell the heirs to these estates of their fortunes. In terse sequences the program dramatizes each week the lives of two persons who have left unclaimed estates—giving specific names, places and dates which might help listeners recognize stories of relatives they might not have heard of since they were children. All facts on the broadcasts are authenticated by court records. In addition, six more estates are described in weekly bulletins distributed by Skelly Oil dealers. And if sometimes the stories the Court tells—or "hears"—seem incredible, its authors remark gently that everything they write is available to anyone who wants to examine probate-court books.

The stories are all true—and in a larger sense, they are all real—for the broadcasts re-live tragedies which ravaged hopes, prosperity which vaulted the hurdles of society, loves which sent lives and hearts careening. They bring life to the air! The dramas make tense listening—and would even if they were fiction.

On Monday night of this week, the program will describe two estates valued at more than $353,000.00. Over a third of a million dollars, unclaimed—which probate courts are trying to get rid of! The names involved in the larger of the two estates are among America's most common—Clark and Smith. Relatives and friends of Clarks and Smiths the country over will cock their ears toward radios Monday night when fortune is dangled before them. Their number will attest the success of the program.

BUT that success has not come easily. Hard knocks came first. Disappointments. Rejections. Advertising agency experts told the writers that their nebulous program had no "draw." Sponsors could not see themselves as benefactors of a handful of rumored heirs whose whereabouts nobody knew anyway. All agreed that if the probate courts had not located the legitimate heirs to the estates, a radio program had a small chance of doing the job. For two years this was the story of the Court of Missing Heirs program idea.

Then a sponsor was found. To that sponsor radio's newest passion was sold; serve the public, and serve it wherever there is a need—of any sort. The first broadcast was scheduled for last October 11. Fritz Blocki, Chicago newspaperman and producer, became the show's director, and began to rehearse his cast. But before that program went on the air, there came a parcel of good news—and bad. A member of the cast remembered that he had known two girls whose name was the same as that of the person whose life was being dramatized. He called, urged them to investigate. They did—and found that they were the sole surviving heirs to over $40,000.00!

William F. Zielsdorf—a missing heir? He claims a $16,000 estate!

The Court had "cracked" its first case!

That was good news for the Court. It proved that heirs could be found, that courts of law were not infallible in their investigations. But it was bad, too. A case that might have made news, had the discovery come after the program was broadcast, was lost for broadcasting. The Court had served its purpose, and there was no point in putting that story on the air. The Court's backers found their cheer in the proof that it could be done—and hoped it wouldn't be done again before the program got on the air.

It wasn't. The first broadcast went out on schedule. Writers and critics, present for the premiere program, said it was good drama but far-fetched humanitarianism. After the broadcast, as the evening of October 11 wore on, the bar in the Wrigley Building, where the CBS studios in Chicago are located, resounded to funnier and louder quips at the expense of the program's ideal.

MEANTIME, half a million listeners went to distributors, asked for copies of the bulletin which they had heard described, with its six supplementary cases. Shortly there came replies. One of the cases listed in the bulletin described the estate of Michael Cusick, who died in Chicago leaving an estate of $6,000.00. From LaSalle, Illinois, M. J. Cusick presented evidence to show that he was Michael Cusick's nephew. So did C. H. Cusick, of Moline, Illinois. In Los Angeles, California, Mrs. Catherine Cusick wrote that she was Michael's sister! Three possible heirs—all for one estate!

Left-handed luck had patted the air-court on the shoulder again. The program's sponsors were overjoyed to find possible direct heirs—but they had not done it with the radio program itself. Its worth was yet to be demonstrated.

WHILE the excitement of these developments was still agitating the sponsors, the second program was broadcast. Edward Lusein's life was one of those dramatized. Born in 1866 in Alsace-Lorraine, which was then German territory, he came to America in 1880 with the LaFarres, a team of tight-rope artists. They joined the Ringling Brothers circus. His life was thrilling, but one thrill it lacked—

Collette LaFarre. Her father refused to listen to Lusein's entreaties for her hand. The broken-hearted young man left the circus, in which he had become a clown. He was no Pagliacci! He became a horse-trainer for stables which bred sulky racers in Rochester and Buffalo. Always he dreamed of Collette, and his heart-sickness made him restless. He drifted to Chicago and worked as a horse-trader at the Union Stock Yards. That was in 1910—and that was when he saw Collette again. But when he saw her, she was dancing with Paul Vento, one of the acrobats in her father's troupe.

In a jealous rage, Lusein stormed at Collette, argued, stomped out of the place. He was alone much after that.

NBC SYMPHONY UNDER BATON OF M. MONTEUX OFFERS MUSIC TREAT OF WEEK SATURDAY

SATURDAY night when you tune in the new NBC Symphony series, picture a short, fat Frenchman making his way slowly and with difficulty through the musicians' stands to the podium of Radio City's largest studio. The man's large, Gallic head is legendary; it boasts a high, waxlike forehead—topped with a curly mane, black as a crow's—large, sensitive ears, eyes that are deep and passionate and a long, straggling mustache of a size which could be seen only on a Frenchman. Before he lifts his baton his face will break into a round smile that a critic in Rome has described as that of "a rural postman."

The name is Pierre Monteux, and the physiognomy is known to most of the symphony orchestras of the world. Since he started his own orchestra in Paris thirty years ago, he has conducted music groups in nearly every important city in the world.

He is one of the best orchestra drill-masters. He insists on wholehearted attention from every musician. They must sit up and pay attention whether they play or not. Usually, he is the essence of kindness, but if necessary he can be sarcastic. At rehearsals, he never shouts or rants. Nor is he tough. He seldom raises his voice above a whisper. Yet for some reason, musicians become easily scared of him.

Perhaps it is because his eyes are so intense and seem to be searching their very souls. Moreover, he says very little but simply looks. "Why anyone gets scared, I don't know," he confesses, "because usually I am thinking of something else, and often, if the truth must be known, of nothing at all."

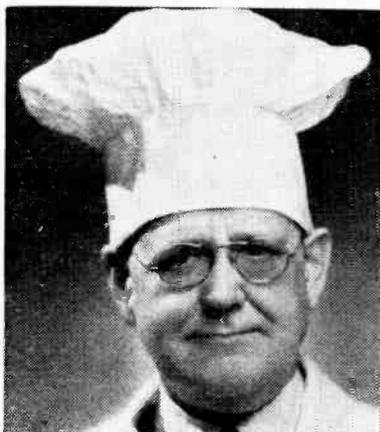

Wherever he is, Pierre Monteux always has a group of musicians around him. His relaxation is playing chamber music. He usually takes the viola part, but he can, if necessary, play any instrument in the orchestra—a feat which has astonished more than one recalcitrant player. Most people have forgotten that he began life as a violinist and won a first prize at the Paris Conservatoire the same year as did Jacques Thibault. Before he began his long career as a conductor, he played in the string section of the famous Colonne Orchestra. He coaches opera singers, teaches conducting, harmony, counterpoints.

M. Monteux first attracted international attention as the conductor of Stravinsky's greatest scores. He directed the orchestra for Diaghileff's ballets and thus gave the first performance of "Petrouchka" and the now celebrated "Sacre du Printemps." Older music-lovers remember that he was once in charge of the French repertoire at the Metropolitan Opera House. He was also for five years the conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, was one season in Philadelphia, and shared with Willem Mengelberg the direction of the Concertgebouw Orchestra in Amsterdam. In 1928 when the Orchestre Symphonique de Paris was founded, he became its principal conductor and still has charge of a number of its concerts each fall. In 1936, he came to San Francisco, where he conducts the San Francisco Symphony from December to May, playing for 14,000 spectators and thousands of radio listeners weekly.

He has an eclectic taste that enjoys music of every period and every nation. In particular, he has done a service by performing the music of contemporary composers and, especially, of Americans. During his November broadcasts, he has programmed two American works: Griffes' Kubla Khan and Freed's Adagio.

After he finishes his season in San Francisco next May, M. Monteux will return again to conduct the NBC Symphony before he sails for his summer teaching in France. According to present plans, Artur Rodzinski will conduct in December, Arturo Toscanini for ten weeks, but M. Monteux will end the series when it goes off the air for the summer.

GOLD AND A ROARIN' NEVADA CAMP PROVIDE "OLD RANGER" WITH A THRILLING DRAMA FRI.

HIGH-GRADIN' had nothing to do with scholarship. Some called it stealin'—others said it was only a workin' man's privilege.

In the gold fields of the Old West it was the term used to describe the systematic thievery by which dishonest miners fattened their wages.

The Old Ranger defined it thus: "It means smugglin' high-grade ore out of a mine. In plain English: stealin'."

The story of high-gradin' and how one worried mine superintendent set about breaking it up will be told Friday night (Nov. 19) by Harry Humphrey (the Old Ranger) and a veteran cast, broadcasting, via NBC, an episode of "Death Valley Days," historical drama cycle of the West.

"High-gradin'" celebrates the belief that honesty is the best policy and that beneath their rough exteriors gold miners really had hearts of gold.

The scene of the story is the famous old mining town of Goldfield, Nevada, back in the rip-roaring years of bonanzas, booms, and banditry.

"High-gradin'," the Old Ranger says, by way of preface, "has always existed to some extent. But I don't suppose that anywhere in the world, before or since, has it ever reached the startlin', wholesale proportions that it reached in Goldfield durin' the early years of that roarin' Nevada camp."

HONEST Tim Connolly, superintendent of the Francis Mohawk, and J. D. Carter, mine operator, discover their four-dollar-a-day miners frequenting Goldfield's most expensive cafe, the Palm Grill, and there spending lavishly for oysters and champagne—freighted across the desert at an especially high cost.

Both realize suddenly why production at the mine has dropped a hundred thousand dollars a month below its predicted level. There's nothing wrong with the mine. The trouble is with the miners. Their men are stealing from them.

Workmen are coming out of the slopes at shift-end, carrying bits of high-grade ore in their boots, in lunch pails, in salt-shakers and in their shirts. Watchmen stop some of the smuggling, but not enough.

Connolly decides to try a new method. With Carter's reluctant approval he installs honor among the thieves—or, rather, the honor system. He fires his watchmen, sending them into the diggings. "Be your own watchmen," he tells the incredulous miners.

High-gradin' stops at the Francis Mohawk—with one significant exception, which you'll hear about and chuckle over when it's revealed.

"Death Valley Days" has been on the air for seven years. It originated in the East, on a network reaching as far west as Cincinnati. On May 13, 1934, it became a nation-wide program when a second cast aired it in San Francisco over a Pacific Coast chain. It is still broadcast in this fashion.

A FAMOUS COMPOSER,
A FEARLESS COP, BE-COME RIPLEY BELIEVE-IT-OR-NOTS SATURDAY

OUT of the fascinating hodge-podge of Robert L. Ripley's Believe-It-Or-Not program this week come the stories of such oddly assorted characters as a great composer and a policeman who once saved his own life by firing a pistol bullet straight down the barrel of a desperate robber's gun.

The composer is Franz Lehar, who wrote the Merry Widow Waltz, said to be the most popular piece of music in the world. (It's been played an estimated 3,000,000 times, and nobody's neighbors are tired of it yet.) The policeman is Sergeant Fred Tapscott, an Irish cop from Chicago, once a bodyguard for Jack Dempsey, and winner of thousands of dollars in awards for heroism.

Next Saturday evening (Nov. 20), Ripley and his cast of assistants will dramatize the story of the mishap that started Lehar toward fame and fortune and the curious feat of marksmanship that saved Sergeant Tapscott from death. Tapscott himself will appear on the program to be interviewed briefly by Ripley.

IN 1902, in the small town of Raab, in Hungary, the colonel of the local garrison summoned his regimental bandmaster to headquarters to tell him that an opera company from Vienna would arrive that night to stage a performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado." Custom required that the regimental band supply the instrumental music.

Into the hands of his bandmaster the colonel delivered the score for the operetta, and the musician trudged away toward home, pausing en route at a delicatessen to buy some cheese. As he bent over the counter he laid down the score of "The Mikado." A busy clerk wrapped the cheese in several pages of the music.

Home at last, the bandmaster found part of the music missing. Desperately and hurriedly he composed three songs, inserted them in the score, and hoped for the best.

The substitutions were smash hits, the operetta was enthusiastically received, and the colonel called the bandmaster over to his box to congratulate him. "I'm happy," said he, "to know that we have such talent in our midst."

It was then that the bandmaster—Franz Lehar, if you haven't guessed—decided to leave the regiment. He did so. His rise to fame was swift. He soon became one of the twentieth century's most popular composers.

Quirks like these are the stock-in-trade of Ripley, creator of the Believe-It-Or-Not cartoons and assiduous collector of oddities from the ends of the world. He has been on the air since 1933 and under his present sponsorship since July of this year.

His programs are built on one or two dramatizations and the recital of miscellaneous Believe-It-Or-Nots. B. A. Rolfe's orchestra and the Men About Town trio furnish the music.

THE "MAGNIFICENT MAYANS," THEIR VICTORIES, LOSSES, BRING STIRRING STORY MONDAY

WHEN you tune in on CBS' presentation, "The Magnificent Mayans," on Monday evening (Nov. 15), you'll be part of an audience scattered across two continents, for this drama (as well as the others in the Latin-American historical series, "Brave New World") is being carried to South American listeners by short wave.

"The Magnificent Mayans" is the third in a series of 26 educational and historical plays sponsored by the Office of Education of the United States Department of the Interior and produced and broadcast by CBS. Announced purpose of the enterprise is to promote friendly relations and understanding between this country and the republics of South America.

The Department of the Interior pictures the series as a dramatization of "the entire sweep of the history of Latin America, developed around the lives of its great leaders, statesmen, educators, poets and artists." Production of the "Brave New World" cycle is in the hands of Irving Reis, able young playwright and originator of Columbia's Workshop drama series. Seasoned actors from WPA's Radio Project take some of the parts, but others from radio circles are frequently cast in important leading roles.

Monday night's drama, "The Magnificent Mayans," is typical of the series. Through the lips of a man about to die, it tells the story of the Mayans, once rich and proud, now in peonage. Felipe Carillo, erstwhile governor of Yucatan, lies in prison awaiting a firing squad. He is to be shot because, in his efforts to lighten the suffering of peasants and workers, he has incurred the hatred of powerful landlords and important military officials.

Carillo is of Mayan descent, and as he talks with his guard during the slow hours before dawn and death he tells the story of his people. Flashbacks give pictures of their early life as nomads, wanderers in search of fertile soil. They build a civilization on the broad plains of Guatemala, only to see it swept away successively by an earthquake, famine and, finally, pestilence.

They move on to Yucatan and rebuild. Then come the Spanish, sacking their cities, desecrating their temples, burning their treasures, and binding the Mayans themselves in slavery. There remains only the prophecy of a priest, made as the pillaging Spaniards ravage their country: "Mayans will not always be slaves. They will rise again. But not until mankind has learned what we have known—that all men live as brethren in this world. Not until the greed for gold is strangled by compassion, kindness and a love of fellow man."

Carillo, a 20th-century Mayan who has tried to fulfill the ancient prophecy, dies for his efforts. As the play ends, a voice cries:

"God of our fathers, must we spend the rest of our days in toil and hunger?"

"Brave New World" is the eighth Coast-to-Coast radio series sponsored by the Office of Education of the Department of the Interior. Broadcasting activities of this governmental branch began in 1933, with the production of "Education in the News," notably successful and still on the airwaves. Already in its second year is the "World Is Yours," a dramatization of the findings of the Smithsonian Institution. Other programs sponsored by the same unit have dealt with safety, science, literature, history and the Bill of Rights. Educators have praised all these.

And now in the face of European and Asiatic conflicts, recurring war scares, and constant threats to world peace come the diplomats to hail "Brave New World" as a means of binding together the friendly neighbors of the western hemisphere.

For your station, please turn to program page for Monday, 10:30 p.m. EST, 9:30 CST, 8:30 MST, 7:30 PST.

HOLLYWOOD SHOWDOWN

BY EVANS PLUMMER

HOLLYWOOD is forever being gold-plated by the columnists who tell what terrific salaries and fees are being paid for radio and picture work . . . but the writers fail to tell the other, the pathetic side, to the story—how little is earned by some of the underlings. You've heard about the hard lot of the movie extra, so let's talk about the man or woman other than the announcer who has a few words to say during the commercial credit, or plug, of a broadcast. These credit-readers are generally actors and actresses who are struggling along, waiting for their bigger chance. They're lucky if they have more than one reading a week—and for that they get $15! That's all—just fifteen dollars, providing they work on the Welch drama, Lux Theater or Kraft Music Hall programs.

The cheapest furnished apartment in Hollywood rents for $50 a month. A telephone (necessary if you are to be called for work) is $3.40. Food for two costs at least $12. Clothing, laundry, cleaning, carfare, barber or beauty shop—all these are extra expenses to be added to the $33 monthly it will cost two men or girls to share an apartment and try to exist . . . And sponsors have the nerve to pay but $15.00 for a commercial credit reading!

Deanna Durbin didn't sing on the Eddie Cantor program November 3. She was reported to be ill with laryngitis. But Bobby Breen was signed for a one-time appearance on that show five days before Deanna's throat ailment developed—and people are wondering if maybe her manager didn't want her to appear against Breen, or perhaps Texaco wished to give Breen undivided singing honors so that his fan mail response could be checked without the distraction of the little miracle lady. For Hollywood Showdown does know that the Breen appearance was in the nature of a jest. If his mail from that appearance piles high enough, he will be back on the program regularly—with Deanna.

Open letter to Tyrone Power: Did you miss any ash-trays, buttons or souvenirs from your apartment Sunday morning, October 31? If you did, check up on that little Ginger Rogers double from Kansas City, who, on her prize Hollywood tour, was escorted to your apartment by a well-meaning publicity man. You know the girl—very pretty, almost as pretty as Sonja Henie, yes?

Speaking of Ginger Rogers, or rather her double, Hollywood Showdown would like to nominate the recent performance of "A Free Soul," starring Ginger, as the most plumpful Lux Theater production of this season. Perhaps the quality of the acting was better because of the all-radio supporting cast (Don Ameche, Charles Winninger and Jack Arnold) and their expert knowledge of air technique, but certainly Ginger turned in a perfect performance too. Carried away by her part, genuine tears flowed down Ginger's face during the more emotional scenes! . . . This also was Radio Vet Jack Arnold's first air performance since his new RKO screen contract lifted the mike ban . . . And, at the end of the program when Cecil B. DeMille was talking about the next week's attraction, those feminine squeals of delight you heard were occasioned by his announcement that the next star guest would be Bing Crosby!

Another basket of plums is on the way to Joe Penner—for two reasons: First, for his bright and funny show of October 31. He hit the old Penner stride, methinks, and wise was the addition of Suzabella (Gay Seabrook) and her funny little voice. Second citation of plums: Because last Monday, November 8, Joe threw a dinner and party for all Hollywood's newspaper cameramen, who, to quote Joe, "kept me in the news even when I wasn't!"

Anniversaries have been thick during the past few weeks. Rudy Vallee's was his eighth on the air, and he celebrated by walking from the studio arm in arm with Gloria ("just a friend") Youngblood, the German-

Bergen also to use it. The little dummy has another reason to be thrilled. Little Peggy's in town. She's a new Bergen dummy from the East, and already studio attaches are hinting at a likely romance.

The Hal Kemp band shortly will be screened from all angles. The orchestra itself is set for RKO's picture, "Radio City Revels," and Skinnay Ennis has been grabbed off, even without a adopted Kenny and accompanied him to the Jack Benny broadcast—where the owner, a musician in Phil Harris' orchestra, was discovered! The pup, without his master knowing, had followed him from home . . . Phil Harris, incidentally, has become—or is about to—a gold-mine owner. It seems that not long ago he bought a tract of land in Hermosillo, Mexico, as a hunting and fishing preserve. But he learned later that there was a worked-out gold mine on the place, and, in addition, that he had also purchased sight unseen an old prospector who "smelled gold in them thar hills." So Phil took a run down to inspect the workings after his October 31 broadcast. If he brings in a new claim, it will be called, of course, "Jell-O No. 7."

It's a date: At the Tyrone Power show, Supporting Star Anne Shirley leaving the broadcast arm in arm with John Howard Payne . . . and by the way, if plans didn't go amiss, Tyrone's music-maker, Harry Sosnik, will have wed, on November 8 or 9, Betty Bryant, pretty burnet ex-model from New York City. Harry's already ensconced in the honeymoon cote.

Lulu Belle, of the Saturday night National Barn Dance, may be the cinema capital's next steal from the air. Sol Siegel, production manager of Republic Studios, visited Lulu Belle in Chicago recently and was much impressed; told her "I don't know what it is that you have, Lulu Belle, but whatever it is, it must be good, and it may be just what we need in Hollywood." To this writer, who has long known her, the "strange quality" Mr. Siegel observed in the queen of the barn dance is merely natural, unassuming modesty. That may be a new one for Hollywood! . . . Incidentally, Lulu Belle hails from WLS, the same station that gave Republic its cowboy star, Gene Autry.

Slips That Pass into the Mike: Madge Evans, when she guested for Feg Murray October 31, had the words "talent scout" in her script, but at each rehearsal she spoonerized them into "scalent tout." Fearing she would repeat the error on the broadcast, she carefully underlined the stickers, and—when she went on the air, she said "scalent tout!"

Very funny, that story about the missing sound-effects door! When Olsen and Johnson readied to broadcast their West Coast program from a one-night stop at Phoenix, Ariz., they discovered that the little station there whose studios they were using possessed no sound-effects door. Ted Scherdeman, the producer, wired to Hollywood for one. Just before the program went on the air, the door-effect arrived—but it was locked and no key accompanied! A locksmith was called and asked to hurry. He arrived after the program, removed the lock, and hasn't returned it yet! . . . Speaking of door effects, Sound Technician Virgil Reimer had a unique complaint letter the other day. It came from a man in Providence, R. I., "knocking" about the loud door-knock effects on many NBC programs from Hollywood. It seems that the continent-spanning door-banging has the listener in a tight spot. When he tunes in a flock of door-knocks, his downstairs neighbors call up to him and ask why he is pounding on the floor.

Funnymen Groucho and Chico Marx don't think it's very laughable about the $1,000 fines each of them was assessed in a Los Angeles court the other day following conviction on charges of infringing a year ago on a copyrighted radio script. The pair have posted bonds and have appealed the case.

Cherokee Goldwyn starlet . . . Someone should have thought and, in token of Rudy's air birthday, beknighted him as the air's first Barnum. Then all the crooner would need to do to clinch the title would be to present a web-footed snake, a two-headed calf, and a wooden Cherokee cigar-store Indian . . . Rudy's quit the Warner Brothers "Gold Diggers" cast. He and his lawyer didn't like the part. In one scene (engineered by his ex-columning, ex-enemy, Jerry Wald) Vallee would have had to appear as a ballet dancer! Maybe Rudy doesn't dance.

Charlie McCarthy is big-time now. He has a brand-new wooden office in the Hollywood business sector, and Charlie's graciously permitting Ed

AIRIALTO LOWDOWN

BY MARTIN LEWIS

THIS column is being written while flying eight thousand feet above terra firma, enjoying a delightful trip in a TWA skysleeper, en route to New York from California. I spent a week on the West Coast making the rounds of the radio studios, attended the dinner given to Eddie Cantor in honor of his twenty-fifth anniversary in show business. If you listened to the Cantor broadcast of October 27, you heard this reporter present RADIO GUIDE's Medal of Merit to him. The trip was purposely planned so that our plane would land in California on Sunday morning so I could be present at the Jack Benny broadcast that afternoon. The program, which is one of my favorites, was good. However, I think he made a grave mistake in using the word "lousy" over the air, as he did on this particular broadcast. I'm not a prude, but it doesn't sound right. Three women and a young boy sat directly in front of me, and when the word was used they looked at each other and shook their heads in disapproval, then looked at the boy to watch his expression.

After the first broadcast, Benny assembles his cast and writers to go over the script. They delete any words that had been tough to pronounce and try to improve the gags that may not have gone over so well. Thus, the listeners on the West Coast, who hear the second broadcast, get a better break than the eastern and midwestern listeners. After each broadcast Mary Livingstone's hands shake like leaves, she gets so nervous. When I mentioned this to Eddie Cantor several days later, he remarked, "Mary is the only one in radio with a Sunday broadcast who starts getting nervous the previous Wednesday." Phil Harris, immaculately dressed, is a good example of what the well-dressed man will wear. Don Wilson certainly looks chubbier and healthier than he ever did.

Half-hour after the Benny show was over, I was seated in the studio next door all set to watch the popular Chase and Sanborn Hour. When I was in Hollywood, six weeks ago, I had attended this program and in writing about it mentioned that I thought Dorothy Lamour was a bit overdressed for the occasion. I don't know if Dorothy read the item, but this time she looked stunning in a red outfit. I wish I could describe it, but I'm not quite up on women's apparel. I can give you a swell recipe for doughnuts, though!

It was funny to watch Edgar Bergen drinking coffee from a thermos bottle backstage during the program. After the show, I asked him what brand it was. Whereupon, he looked at me smilingly as if to say, "I never thought of inquiring." I asked Bergen a question which had me puzzled for some time. That is, why he never made a mistake and used Charlie McCarthy's voice when Bergen was supposed to be speaking, and vice versa. He showed me his script, which answered my question. Charlie's lines are typed in red, and Edgar's lines are typed in black, making it almost impossible for him to forget to change his voice.

Nelson Eddy has a lot of fun on the broadcasts, but he told me he bemoans the fact that he has to work on Sunday. They rehearse for the broadcast all day, which leaves him no time for sports and recreation. At his salary, I don't think I'd mind very much giving up sports on Sunday!

The more I see and hear Don Ameche, the better I like him. He's a very talented fellow, as you all know, and when you see him emcee, act and sing in the show, you appreciate him all the more. He has a grand personality and to my mind is the "tops."

Monday night found me back at the NBC studios to watch Cantor do his stuff in place of Burns and Allen, who were vacationing. Before broadcast time Eddie talked to the audience and told them to applaud as long and as loudly as they wanted to. "As a matter of fact," he added, "pull up the seats, tear down the building if you like. This is NBC and I work for CBS. But don't forget, you came in here for nothing—so, go ahead and applaud!"

dentally, Evans and I tossed a coin to see who would write about it. I won, but he cheated and told you last week about Phil's swimming-pool. Anyway, when we arrived, Sir Philip was in overalls and looked very different from the neatly dressed fellow we saw leading the orchestra on the Jack Benny program. Harris was hard at work painting. All his spare time is devoted to odd jobs around his new palatial home, which is located on a was not given to me by Cantor. During the rehearsals and broadcasts, I noticed a man who seemed quite occupied in serving the comedian and taking care of all details. I asked who he was, and was told this story. Twenty-five years ago, when Eddie was seeking a job in show business, he visited the offices of Bedini and Arthur, prominent vaudeville bookers. Bedini didn't like the act, but Arthur did, and the latter argued with his partner to give the boy a chance. The boy Cantor was given the chance, and you all know the rest—that is, all but the fact that since that time Roy Arthur, who argued with his partner to give Cantor a break, lost all his wealth. He is the busy man backstage who looks after Cantor like a father does his child.

Celebrities just walked all over one another at the Eddie Cantor dinner. (There I go again with more Cantor.) It was a great turnout and a lovely affair. Jack Benny and Cantor offered the best laughs and shrewd Mr. Benny put one over on CBS, which was broadcasting the dinner, by ending his speech with, "Thanks to Jello for its six delicious flavors." This is considered sacrilegious, inasmuch as Benny's broadcasts are aired over NBC.

Edgar Bergen put Charlie McCarthy to bed early that night but portrayed the character of an old maid. Here's what one of this department's readers had to say about it, which seems to voice my sentiments: "Was sorry Mr. Bergen didn't have Charlie there. We didn't care much for the old maid stuff. If he kept this up, we fear he would soon lose his career on the air."

Even though he was not on the air when he told his story at the dinner, Bob Burns' rating with this reporter has gone down considerably. It was a little off-color and out of place, inasmuch as young Deanna Durbin and Judy Garland were among those present. He more or less apologized for telling it, but that doesn't excuse him.

Met quite a few old friends in Hollywood. In the dining-room on the Paramount Pictures lot, I spied Tito Guizar a few tables away. I thought flying across the continent was a long distance, but Tito went me one better. He flew all the way from Argentina to Hollywood to appear in "The Big Broadcast of 1938." His wife and young daughter were to come by train.

One of the boys, while showing me around the different movie sets, told me about a scene in the "Big Broadcast" in which Martha Raye does an adagio dance. Ordinarily, when there is danger of a star getting hurt, the stand-in does the actual work in front of the camera. However, in this instance, Martha, who is a great sport, insisted on doing the dance herself. She did—and got a nice, big bump on her head, which she felt for quite a few days afterwards.

Met an old friend on Hollywood Boulevard—Leon Belasco. The orchestra leader has deserted the baton and told me confidentially that he arrived in Hollywood that day with a well-known movie producer who is going to put him in pictures.

Friends of Betty Barthell, the former CBS songstress who deserted radio in America to become Mrs. Charles A. Vaughn and settle in Shanghai, China, will be happy to learn that she and her husband are safe and sound in Manila. They had been separated for the entire summer—she was in Tsing-Tao, and he was in war-torn Shanghai when the hostilities started. They got together again a few days before their second anniversary.

Top: Sunday "Jell-O" Merrymakers Jack Benny and his wife, Mary Livingstone. They've just bought a new site for a home in Beverly Hills. Left: Sunday night star of "Hollywood Playhouse," Tyrone Power, rushed from New York to Hollywood recently. It was all because of a last-minute decision to add more scenes to the film—"In Old Chicago." Right: Jack Benny's maestro, Phil Harris. He recently discovered he owns half interest in a Mexican gold mine

Jacques Renard, the regular baton-waver, made a brief appearance on this broadcast, and therein lies an amusing tale. When Renard heard that Eddie was to be a guest on this show, he asked the comic if he would write a few lines in the script for him to read. He didn't want to get paid for it; all he wanted was an opportunity to exchange words with Ray Noble, who, incidentally, in my opinion, is the perfect stooge. The opportunity was granted, and Renard was as happy as a kid with a new toy.

The next night, Phil Harris sent his car and chauffeur for my colleague, Evans Plummer, and me, and we drove out to the bandleader's house in Encino, where Al Jolson is mayor. Inci-seven-acre piece of property. His living-room and dining-room are in one, and no motion-picture set was ever more beautiful. All the furnishings and color schemes were selected by Mascotte Harris, Phil's beautiful wife, who, if, you ask me, could make a lot of money if she wanted to be an interior decorator. Incidentally, the band rehearses each week in one corner of the garage. Believe it or not, Harris is raising strawberries, raspberries, cherries, oranges, lemons and limes. Is that loyalty, I ask you?

It seems I just can't get off the subject of Eddie Cantor. As a matter of fact, I really could devote at least two full columns to him. Nevertheless, I do want to tell you this one story that

The March of Music

by Leonard Liebling

"... An ampler Ether, a diviner Air..."—Wordsworth

ERNA SACK, frequent fixture this season on the Sunday evening General Motors programs, is anxious to have it known that her much-publicized high tones are merely a gratuitous addition to her regular vocal art. The "high C above high C," she says, represents a freak in singing, and she voices it occasionally only because she is told that there is demand for the sensational exhibition.

Of course, no composer ever wrote any such notes in his operas or concert songs. Mozart came nearest with an A above high C, and he included it in several concert arias, solely to provide exclusive feats for his wife and sister-in-law, both of whom were able to reach that altitudinous note. As he died in 1791, he hardly surmised that a Californian soprano, Sybil Sanderson, for whom Massenet wrote "Thais," would startle Paris in the 1880's with a fine and powerful G above high C, holding it as strongly and as long as she pleased. However, such sopranos as Patti, Jenny Lind, Tetrazzini, Sembrich, Melba, Eames and Galli-Curci were unable to achieve such a range, even approximately, and never attempted to ascend over the F above high C. That is high enough for all purposes. (Convince yourself by trying it on your piano.) I think that Lily Pons could sing that F, but ordinarily she stops at E flat.

A few days ago, a radio representative asked me whether Jenny Lind did not sing as high as Miss Sack, and I assured him to the contrary... even though I was not present when she made her famous New York debut in 1850!

Before Miss Sack climbed to such vocal heights, her only authentic rival with a C above high C had been Lucrezia Agujari (1743-1783), an Italian, who dazzled listeners with that same top tone.

New York produced one sky-rocketing soprano, Ellen Beach Yaw (still living and giving singing lessons), who soared three tones beyond Miss Sack; in other words, to the F above high F. However, what actually came from her vocal cords was a thin peep, of which only expert ears could fix the actual pitch. Miss Yaw was vaudeville by a shrewd manager, whose bill-posting of the young woman carried the five lines of the musical staff, a huge treble clef, and the dizzy-looking F.

Ultimately Miss Yaw debuted at the Metropolitan Opera (1904) in the title role of "Lucia," but without the notorious tone. One anecdote of that evening remains in my mind. Miss Yaw was about the world's slimmest prima donna, and looked even more attenuated in the white gown she wore as Lucia. That heroine falls in a faint after finishing the celebrated "Mad Scene." When the late critic, William J. Henderson, described the occasion to me, he remarked: "As she lay prone on the stage, she looked for all the world like a pool of spilled milk."

To get back to Miss Sack. She is as blondly attractive as she is free from all pretentiousness, and has no inhibitions regarding her "prima donna" dignity. Miss Sack tells that she earned her living as a typist to pay for her early singing-lessons. Admirable, too, is her confession that the other day she saw Mme. Elisabeth Rethberg in a New York department store, and although she had no personal acquaintance with the Metropolitan Opera Star, Miss Sack recognized her from her published pictures, greeted her, and expressed homage for the Rethberg art and achievements. Such a human touch in the operatic world deserves a tablet in the Hall of Fame.

Olga Samaroff Stokowski, former wife of the luminous Leopold, has been too long absent from the pianistic concert platform, owing to her onerous duties as teacher and lecturer. Elsewhere on these pages you will note that her keyboard art is to sound publicly again this week. In spite of her foreign name, Mme. Samaroff is a native Texan, and until joining the faculty of the Juilliard School in New York she had gained concert triumphs throughout the music world. Mme. Samaroff Stokowski is not only a virtuoso of vivid talents, but also an exceptionally cultured musician. She has organized an evening course for laymen which introduces them entertainingly to everything worth knowing about the tonal subject.

ONE of our regrettably few native conductors is Alfred Wallenstein. His success with the stick shows that not all the symphonic knowledge and imagination are confined to the leaders from Europe. His Firestone programs (Monday nights at 8:30 EST on NBC), effectively executed, are not too serious in nature—as probably intended by the sponsor. Wallenstein's personal preference doubtless would be of a more elevated kind, as he proves in the repertoire of his concerts over MBS on Tuesdays at 10 p.m. EST and Thursdays at 9:30 p.m. EST.

Tenor Crooks (abiding favorite at the Metropolitan Opera House) offers some contrasting numbers. From the dignity of Handel to the lightsome airs of Lehar is a wide scope attesting the versatile talents of the singer.

ROCHESTER has three symphony orchestras — Philharmonic, Civic, and Eastman School of Music—which, during 1937-38 will give seventy-two concerts (twenty-one more than last season) on NBC networks. The conductors are Jose Iturbi, Guy Fraser Harrison, and Dr. Howard Hanson.

Today's Civic concert continues the regular Monday matinee series. Mr. Harrison bows to the current wide Wagnerian vogue, with his program of works by that composer. They are thoroughly in the ken of most music listeners, with the "Tannhauser" overture a fixture in almost every household. "Meistersinger," known as Wagner's only comic opera (chiefly because of its satire of music critics), also presents some of his most tenderly poetical strains, especially in the prelude to the third act. The "Ride," with its amazons galloping through the clouds, has never been surpassed in realistic orchestral description and splendor.

I can never listen to the "Siegfried

Leopold Stokowski . . . vital

You surely remember "No More Night," the deeply affecting article by James H. Street in Radio Guide, October 2 (now available in pamphlet form), dealing with the blessings which radio brings to the blind. It is interesting to learn, too, that the boys and girls in schools for the blind are able to procure in Braille the four student note-books used in conjunction with the weekly NBC broadcasts of the Music Appreciation Hour, directed by Dr. Walter Damrosch every Friday from 2 to 3 p.m. EST. His invaluable course is now in its tenth year.

It is not for these two pages to go into detail about all the bright tonal prospects each week. Let attention be called, however, to the Music Hall of the Air this Sunday, which offers Erno Rapee's leading of Sibelius' erudite Fourth Symphony and the first movement of Schumann's lovable Piano Concerto, played by Major John A. Warner (son-in-law of the Hon. Al Smith); and Metropolitan Auditions of the Air (also Sunday), presenting as one of its soloists Kathleen Kersting, opera and concert soprano, widely experienced in Europe and former member of the Chicago Civic Opera Company. She returned from abroad a month ago, sang for Edward Johnson, and immediately won a place on his radio program. Miss Kersting's first studies abroad were made possible through the generosity of the Wichita, Kan., Rotary Club. Metropolitan Auditions of the Air now eliminate all "commercials" except brief opening and closing announcements. Is it a breach of tact to say that radio music holds more fascination for most of us than radio merchandising?

Lend an ear, too, to the special NBC Music Guild spots Thursday afternoons at 2 p.m. EST, and to Jascha Heifetz' violin solos starred by Chesterfield on this Wednesday.

In his recent Boston speech, former President Hoover told of the manifold American activities, among which he listed "orchestras, bands, radios and other noises." A severe name for things that give upliftment and entertainment to millions of Mr. Hoover's fellow citizens.

Dating from the later romantic days in music, Rachmaninoff's piano concertos are still among the finest flowerings of the period. The concerto No. 2 in C Minor will be interpreted by Walter Gieseking with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra Sunday afternoon. The music is a combination of soul and brilliance. Gieseking's pianism, with its warm tone and technical radiance, lends itself ideally to such a composition. The German pianist is a modest and reticent person, but when his baldness was referred to in a critical review, Gieseking stepped out with this public answer: "The absence of hair on my head is equaled only by the absence of your tact in mentioning a personal matter that has nothing to do with art."

Dial-turners receive tribute from John Barbirolli, conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra on Sunday afternoons. He declares that the letters he gets from his air listeners are highest in praise when he performs the most serious programs. Many of the communications, Barbirolli adds, ask for program news far in advance so that the writers may prepare themselves for the music they are to hear. (That, by the way, is the service this department aims to provide.)

Idyll" (themed on the melodies from the opera "Siegfried") without recalling the touching story of its first performance. Wagner wrote those pages as a present for his wife, Cosima, when they were living in Switzerland, on the banks of Lake Lucerne. She was convalescing after the birth of their son Siegfried, and one morning Wagner and a tiny recruited orchestra surprised her by appearing at the foot of the cottage staircase and playing the "Idyll" with the composer conducting. Frail Cosima appeared on the balcony, and was moved to tears at the most immortal compliment ever paid to a wife by a genius husband.

Particularly the beginning and end of the "Idyll" float in loveliness, with tune and chords of sensuous beauty.

Associated Banks
Present

The Philadelphia Orchestra

Leopold Stokowski, conductor

Polovtsian Dances from "Prince Igor"
(Borodin)

Symphony No. 1 (Shostakovich)

CHARACTERISTIC of his program-making, Leopold Stokowski places side by side the two leading symphonic styles of Russia—based relatively on conservatism and modernity.

Alexander Borodin (1834-1887) was one of the first of his country's tonal creators to draft for large expression tunes and rhythms of the Russian folk. Primarily a practitioner in medicine and chemistry, Borodin, although passionately devoted to music, never became a prolific composer. His opera "Prince Igor," left unfinished when he died, saw completion from the pen of his friend, the renowned Rimsky-Korsakoff, who supplied the missing orchestration.

Leading moments of "Prince Igor" are the songs and dances of the Polovtsian people, culminating in the wild revel of the second act. Borodin faithfully reflects the Eastern hues and atmosphere, and Rimsky-Korsakoff frames them in orchestration of exotic coloring and glow. One hears the sinister beat of drums, the savage blare of brasses, the change to soft Oriental voluptuousness, and the gradual climaxing to orchestral voice of irresistible might and splendor.

Dmitri Shostakovich, youngest present-day noted Russian composer, writes in the contemporary spirit of his country and with disregard of the methods of his predecessors. While they sought purely for abstract beauty in expression, Shostakovich's sterner motive is to be true to life, even if the result is dissonance and downright ugliness. There one notes today's manifestation of the eternal cleavage in art—the war between the old and new.

Stokowski was the first to produce the symphony in America nine years ago, and he gives it a vital, exciting interpretation with adept support from the Philadelphia orchestra. Its brass section has extra opportunity to shine opulently in the Shostakovich measures. Also listen for snatches of piano-playing, that instrument being part of the complement in the symphony.

Listeners are sure to take pleasure in knowing that Stokowski will conduct again on this program November 29 and December 6—the latter occasion to bring the entire Fifth Symphony by Tchaikowsky.

The programs on these pages, based on advance information, are subject to change at the time of performance.

it down on paper! Pouring all your thoughts on the subject into words will take all the time you can give contesting on the second day.

Then forget about it. That night, get contests out of your mind, and don't talk to others about your entry.

On the third day, come back and review your thousand words and pick out your twenty-five. The new day will give you a chance to review your work and criticize it. Read the rules of the contest again, then copy your entry neatly, being sure you are following all the rules, and get rid of it. Don't let it sit around too long, for at this stage of the game, discouragement comes easily. Send it away, and don't worry about it again! Let the announcement that you are a winner be your next reminder of this contest!

This routine may be expanded to five days by giving two days to each of the first two steps. An important contest is worth this much time. It may be cut to two by telescoping the activities of the second and third days as described here—if there is need of hurrying. But this should work out about right for most contests—and most contestants.

This Contest World

Nearly everybody likes to see an entry that won. Sometimes such a sight brings only grief: "I could have done it better"; more often it brings a fresh resolve: "I'll do it that way next time." Here are some recent winners:

"Electricity lights and delights the family circle" was selected by Electricity on the Farm publication as the cleverest entry in its contest announced in a recent issue.

"It's all taste and no waste—saves time when in haste" won $25 in groceries a short time ago in the Chicken of the Sea tunafish contest.

The winner of the 1938 Chevrolet in the October 16 weekly "Life of Mary Sothern" contest was Mrs. R. D. Brown, Route 1, Anchorage, Kentucky. The second prize Pilot radio went to Mrs. E. F. Moore, 851 Nela View Road, Cleveland Heights, Ohio, and Mrs. Pat McCormick, of Aberdeen, Washington, won the third prize Tussy Beauty case.

Didjever?

There seems to be a revival of the old-time "Didjever" contests. Several years ago this was one of America's most popular contest forms—and parlor games. Such contests have appeared in several publications recently—suggesting that there might soon be a general revival of them.

"Didjever" is a contraction of "did you ever." The idea of the thing is to form a sentence of not more than ten words, which, while grammatically correct, conveys two meanings. One should be humorous, the other perfectly sensible. Here are some "didjevvers" that have won contests in years past.

"Didjever see a baby monkey with an elephant's tail?"

"Didjever see the Woolworth Building coming down Broadway?"

"Didjever see anybody wrapped in a newspaper in the subway?"

"Didjever see a large bank-roll in the street?"

"Didjevvers" make good contest fun, and they're of hard. Get ready to win these contests!

DANCE WITH JIMMY DORSEY

FROM Chicago's Congress Hotel each Sunday, Tuesday and Wednesday night over NBC comes the smooth, rhythmic swing of Jimmy Dorsey and his band. Jimmy began his career when only a mere lad, with the Scranton Pa. Sirens, followed by recording work with Red Nichols, Jean Goldkette, Vincent Lopez, others. Then, in 1934, he and his brother Tommy organized the Dorsey Brothers orchestra. But two bosses were too much for one band. There was a split. Tommy stayed in the East to form his own unit, and Jimmy, with the band, went west, where he played with Bing Crosby on the Kraft Music Hall. Trekking eastward this past July, Jimmy met Tommy in New York, and immediately there was a huge reconciliation party at New York's Onyx Club.

WALLY'S PROBLEM CHILD

Waltz. Lord Willington being who he was, we promptly swung it.

The Prince was directly behind the elderly governor-general and he could not have failed to hear the old gentleman's request. Nevertheless, we had played exactly eight bars when Windsor touched my arm, halted the music, eyed me coldly and observed in stony hauteur:

"I do not care for a waltz at the moment."

What I really cared for at the moment was to crown the future king with my baton. I thought better of it, naturally, and ordered up the favorite Windsor fox-trot. The Prince promptly forgot his peeve. At evening's-end he perched on my music-trunk and chattered blithely for thirty minutes while sundry dignitaries shifted from one aching hoof to another, unable to depart while royalty remained.

OH, WINDSOR made a great display of his democracy. Night after night he sat for long periods beside me while I swung the baton. We talked of everything American from party politics to crap-shooting. He loved our slang.

So far, so good; but I haven't told it all. That spirit of democracy, I felt in my bones, was painfully forced. Just a show, as I saw it; part of the campaign to sell himself—and the Empire. There is something built right into Windsor that sets him apart. He is of royal blood, you are a commoner. Try as he may, he can never forget it.

What's infinitely sadder, he won't let you forget it. Not for an instant. King or duke, prince or private citizen, Edward David Windsor has to be the boss.

He was seldom crossed; the sycophants on every hand saw well to that. But when trivial things went wrong, as they inevitably did, he was like a spoiled youngster who won't play unless he can be captain.

Had he been king in fact as well as name—no abdication. That was the real issue, of course, and I for one could have told them back in 1929 that they'd never mold Windsor to their own design. Not this Windsor. I like a man who insists on being himself.

No, the flaws I found in His Royal Highness are minor ones, perhaps. Yet they are the very characteristics which today make him the Duchess' problem child.

I've read a lot about Wally, and it occurs to me that she herself is—shall we say—strong-willed? I am under the impression that she is what we call a go-getter (a term, by the way, which is utterly repulsive to the average Englishman).

Unquestionably she has boundless ambition, as reflected in every step of her well-planned career. One goal of this ambition—marriage to David Windsor—has been attained.

IT IS not inconceivable that another goal was the throne of England. In that event the Duchess may prove the vital spur to her husband in what I'm convinced will be the greatest comeback in history.

I haven't emphasized it, but Windsor himself has burning ambition plus dogged determination. Stanley Baldwin and the Church of England may have dampened the old ardor around the edges, but the fire will flare again.

Within a decade the Duke of Windsor will be back to guide his country's ship of state—if in the meantime he can safely guide his personal ship of matrimony.

As to that, let's summarize: The Duke, as I have pointed out, has traits which marriage won't alter. My reminiscences have shown his profound egotism, which a shrewd woman might readily feed. They have indicated that he is an autocrat at heart, despite his delusion of democracy.

One autocrat in a family is tolerable; two are not.

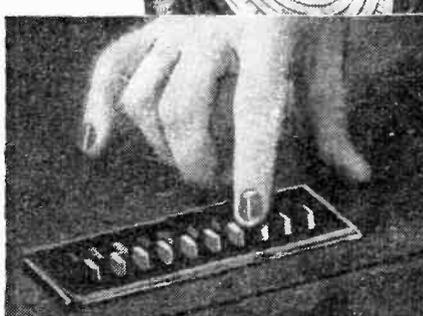

WITH a wealth of virtues, my regal friend is by nature and training self-centered, demanding. At times he is petulant, moody, supersensitive. His whims have always been gratified (until the Wally showdown). He is impatient of delay, intolerant of any criticism.

The woman he loves cannot change these characteristics; she must abide them. If she has strength of will to remodel herself—submerging her personality, stifling any remaining self-ambition, accepting with aplomb the "superiority" of royal Windsor blood over common Warfield blood—time may record a much-to-be-desired happy ending.

If she essays the role of an irresistible force, she will find in her handsome, cultured husband quite an immovable body. In which eventuality heaven help the royal romance—and God save the Duchess!

VOICE OF THE LISTENER

The "Voice of the Listener" letterforum is a regular feature in Radio Guide each week, offered to the readers as a means for expressing and exchanging opinions about radio.

Each week Radio Guide will publish letters deserving our readers' attention.

TWIST MORE

Dear VOL: Every time I read your page I think of Old Man Aesop's fable of the man, the boy, and the donkey. The general impression your correspondents give is that the majority of listeners have sets that will only receive from one station. If this impression is a false one, then it is an admission on their part that they are too lazy to tune in another station, and too indifferent to look up the programs they do like.

There is a cure for commercial injections that so many object to. Pay a federal tax of say five to ten dollars a year, for your radio, and then let Uncle Sam dictate your programs, the same as most Europeans do. Until such an obnoxious situation is forced on us, let's give thanks to the commercial sponsor who makes such grand programs possible, and not forget that a twist of the dial will bring in most any kind of a program you wish to hear.—Eric Hawthornthwaite, Philadelphia, Pa.

WHO IS?

Voice of the Listener: I have a complaint to make, and one that is raised by many. Tell me, is the feature personality on the Chase and Sanborn program Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, Nelson Eddy, Dorothy Lamour, or Don Ameche? I thought Don was great the first few broadcasts—then Miss Lamour stepped to the microphone a little too often—and when Edgar and Charlie were so widely spaced on the program I began to wonder, because of their publicity everywhere. And, by the time Eddy took over the mike, I was all upset and still don't know whose program it really is. Surely one of them is the star of the program, but your guess is as good as mine!

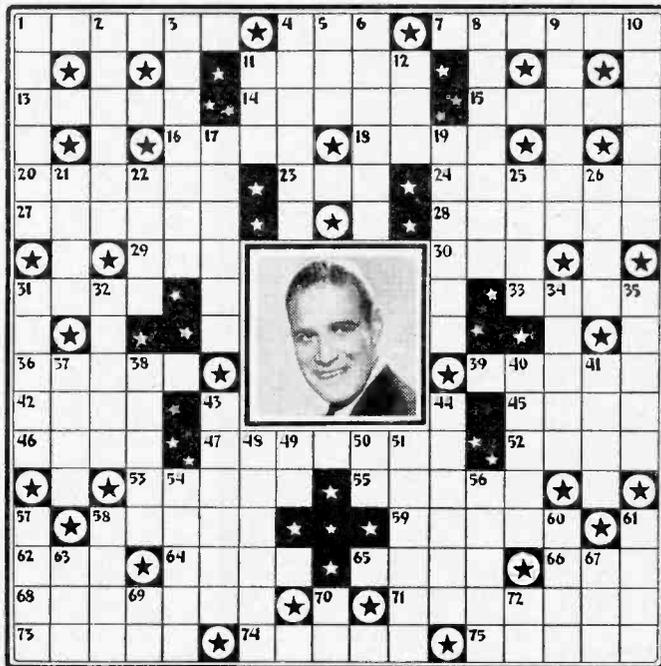

Lately I've noticed Eddy has a monopoly on the mike, and I've also noticed many of my neighbors' radio sets turned down while the glamorous Eddy is singing! We can all stand a steady diet for a short time, but it soon loses its appeal when taken in overdoses. That's what Mr. Eddy is giving his admirers—and they aren't going to like it for long. I admit he can sing, but he is not so good we can't take a little less Eddy and more Ameche, Bergen, and McCarthy! Perhaps with a few more expressions from listeners on this matter, a good program will stay that way—Eddy is smothering it to a near end, now!—Mrs. Betty Meehan, Indianapolis, Ind.

CURB RECORDINGS

VOL: I think the greatest drawback to any station is the use of recordings. Why do stations with a power of 50,000 watts have whole programs recorded when good talent can be had for such a little cost? Why can't this nuisance be investigated by the musicians' union and the Federal Communications Commission and limit such recordings to stations with power under 250 watts?—F. W. B., Willsboro, N. Y.

Some rather interesting experiments have been conducted in which listeners have been unable to tell whether a particular program or selection was recorded or "live" talent. Many of the completely recorded programs are provided in that form by the sponsors, and with the quality of those recordings of such a high standard, few stations will refuse to use them when it means turning down a lucrative advertising account.—Ed.

Solution to Puzzle Given Last Week

A TALKING PEACE PIPE

on that history-besmirching march. But all the Cherokees had not left the mountains. Many hid in the fastnesses of the hills and are there today because a chief and his sons were martyrs and because America broke precedent and actually kept its word with the Cherokees.

WHEN Scott's soldiers began herding the Indians to barracoons, one trooper manhandled the wife of Tsali, a Cherokee chief. Tsali and his sons killed him, and fled to a secret hiding place. After the migration, Scott returned to the mountains to punish Tsali. But he couldn't find him. Finally, he got word to the Cherokee through a scout that if the chief and his sons would surrender and die, all Cherokees left in the hills would be permitted to stay there forever.

Tsali and his sons surrendered. To make their tribulations complete and to impress upon them their helplessness and the might of America, four Cherokees of their own tribe were forced to shoot them. As he faced the firing squad, Tsali said:

"My day has come to the night. I go to sleep with my fathers. My people build their villages again. They smoke the peace pipe. It is well."

John Bradley looked at the mountains as he talked.

"We are still here. About 3,000 of us. Our brothers are in Oklahoma. The United States has given us hospitals and schools. My grandchildren can learn all about the United States from that radio. And books—when they learn English. Maybe radio will tell white man about Cherokees."

And there we have the soul-stirring indictment of the white man, written indelibly on the pages of American history a hundred years ago.

Perhaps radio will prove to be the means for finally clearing the blot that remains on early American history.

Maybe so, John Bradley and John Littlejohn. After all radio owes you Cherokees a debt, for you gave us Will Rogers.

COME AND GET IT

His temper turned his mind in on himself. On January 18 of this year, he died in Chicago.

In McLouth, Kansas, William Zielsdorf listened to Lusein's tragic story. As he listened, he felt a tenseness growing on him. Chills ran through his body as he heard fact pile on fact to build a story he had heard before. He sat transfixed when the broadcast ended. Then he wrote to the program's sponsors, proving himself a nephew of the dead man—to the satisfaction of the Court of Missing Heirs, at least—by filling in gaps which the authors had intentionally omitted from the story. Born twenty-one miles from Berlin in 1886, he traced his relationship to Lusein through his mother, who was Wilhelmina Lusein, a sister of the boy who left his own country to find a new life in America—and found instead a great unhappiness. Now Zielsdorf plans to claim the inheritance—$16,000.00—from the probate court of Chicago.

This week Authors Shebel and Waters plan to set new records—or they hope to. The first estate to be described is the largest yet mentioned on the air. The $350,000.00 estate is the residue of a life that saw such poverty that a family was shattered; such prosperity that money lost meaning.

Pittsburgh was a sultry city on a night in the summer of 1883 when a happy crowd trooped down to the old show boat for an evening of thrills and hisses. The Consolidated Canning Company had rented the boat and hired the cast to give a special performance for its employees. Girls sat with their beaux, hearts aflutter, hissing the villain; mothers whose daughters were at their sides cheered as Dick Darling came to the rescue.

THE last curtain fell. The wizened old show-boat captain stepped out. made his curtain speech.

"... And if you enjoyed our little show," he concluded, "be sure to tell all your friends. But now before you go, I've got a special announcement to make. Listen: two of your friends have gone and done it! Yessir! Ladies and gentlemen, I want to announce the engagement of Miss Sadie Fredericka Smith and Mr. Herman Schmidt!"

Mrs. Mary Smith's heart thumped heavily and her hand tightened over Sadie's as the girl whispered, "We wanted to surprise you, Mother!"

On the next day, Sadie and Herman were married. Sadie's marriage certificate showed that she had been born on April 18, 1866.

Work in the canning factories was irregular. Herman Schmidt had to move from city to city as the seasons dictated the flow of work. In 1885, he took his wife to Detroit. Two years had mellowed their love, but it had not dimmed it. Sadie followed her wandering husband willingly.

Then a daughter, Mary—named after Sadie's mother—was born to them. Their lives were cemented more closely than ever by the little girl's presence, but Mary brought trouble, too. Sadie began to object to the constant moving from one city to another. In 1890, they were living in Chicago. The city of stone that had risen from a waste of charred wood twenty years before was good to Sadie. She made friends among her neighbors, and was planning to send little Mary to school the next year.

Early one afternoon, Herman came home, dejected.

Frightened, Sadie demanded, "What brings you home so early, Herman?"

"I... Oh, Sadie, it's hard to say—" he stammered, and then blurted out. "We're moving!"

"Again?"

"Tonight! We're going to Portland."

"But Herman! You said when we came here this would be the last time!"

"I know, I know. But what can I do?"

From that unhearty wail there seemed no escape. But Sadie proposed one—and in it appeared to be their only chance for happiness. Less happiness than they had had, certainly, but escape from Sadie's new hatred for their nomadic life. They separated. There were no hard feelings, but soon there was a divorce. Sadie used her maiden name, Smith, again. She sent Mary to live with a sister of Herman's, and went to Omaha, Nebraska, to look for work.

SHE found it—a life-work, with Albert A. Clark, an Omaha mortgage broker, whom she married in 1892. His business boomed after they were married. Clark became one of the city's leading citizens. When "Teddy" Roosevelt visited Omaha and Council Bluffs, Iowa, Omaha's "twin city," Clark was on the reception committee. He was a sober man, living quietly, saving his money. He was happy.

But Sadie had one great longing Clark's growing wealth could not appease. The relatives with whom Sadie had left Mary would not let the girl return to her mother, nor even correspond with her. One letter Sadie received in 1903 from Mary was addressed to "Mrs. Sadie F. Moore." It was the only one anybody is sure she ever got. Clark died in 1921. Sadie continued to live in Council Bluffs on the fortune of almost half a million dollars he left her. She died in 1934, with the story behind that "Sadie F. Moore" letter still untold, although a neighbor reported she had been telling of it when death interrupted.

Somewhere in that letter lies a clew. Why did Sadie's daughter call her "Moore," when only the names Smith, Schmidt and Clark had entered her life? Perhaps the answer will come out of this Monday's broadcast.

THE other case to be broadcast this week concerns the $3,000.00 estate of "Lucky" John Gillis, who came to America from Poland in 1898, and his wife, Marie Webber. That story runs the gamut of adventure from a cave-in which trapped "Lucky John" in a Pennsylvania mine to the lumber wars of Wisconsin. Always fortune smiled on Gillis as he stalked boldly from one danger to another. In 1901, Gillis had the first adventure that earned him his "Lucky" nick-name when he was buried underground with a friend he was to have for most of his life. Bill Peterson. Eighteen men lost their lives when the Coleraine Mine shaft caved in. But Gillis and Peterson walked out unhurt, through another unused mine entrance! When they decided that mining was too hazardous and moved to Wisconsin, after Gillis had married Marie Webber, they walked into a lumber war in which the Weyerhaeuser interests were battling for power at Hayward, Wisconsin. His real-life story has a hectic chapter in his fight with John Dietz, who was finally imprisoned for shooting two deputies. Gillis' luck changed only when Marie died in 1912. He left Wisconsin. The story ends in Chicago, where Gillis died last year.

Investigators believe he had brothers and sisters living in Iowa—but there their trail ends. "Lucky" Gillis' story will close the sixth session of the Court of Missing Heirs.

Somewhere in America, someone who turned casually to the broadcast will know that he has been lucky, too—for listening.

Skelly Court of Missing Heirs may be heard on Monday over a CBS network at:

EST 7:00 p.m. — CST 6:00 p.m.
MST 5:00 p.m. — PST 4:00 p.m.

From NOTEBOOK to NETWORK

HOW IT WAS DONE
BY LUCILLE MANNERS,
CITIES SERVICE STAR

NEW JERSEY'S contribution to radio's sopranos, Marie Emily McClinchy, better known as Lucille Manners, was born in Newark, in May, 1912. A prima donna at heart since she was three, Lucille hummed nursery rhymes before she could talk. She clung to her dreams, studied every available minute, finally made her debut on a local station. She was heard by an official, who didn't wait to learn her name to sign her for the Cities Service Concert to succeed Jessica Dragonette!

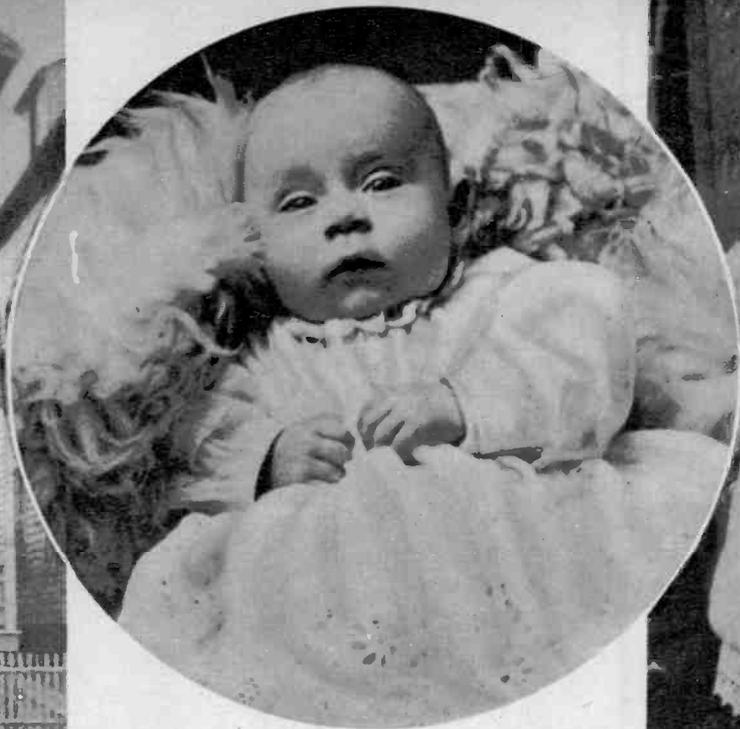

Miss Manners has been chosen No. 1 musical celebrity of New Jersey

TINY blond Lucille Manners' appearance is deceiving—she looks fragile, but she has an amazing tenacity in addition to her distinguished talent. Lucille admits that early training by her mother, who was also a singer, paved the way to a successful musical career. Her training began when she was three. When she was a stenographer, she practised mornings before work, and after office hours she studied with the best teachers she could afford. After singing in a choir for a year, she was convinced that some day she could turn her back on office routine and devote herself to singing. One of her self-taught lessons was to sing under any and all conditions—she thinks "artistic temperament" is just bad temper. She had disappointments which might have discouraged a less-determined person, but she finally got her reward—her contract as a star. She lives with her mother and Tabo (a pure-blood Samoyed dog), and her greatest interest—now and forever—is radio!

8 After high school, Lucille got a job as stenographer for a title concern in Newark. Picture above was when she vacationed in Belmar, N. J.

6 Above: At the age of 9, Lucille was in 4th grade at Colt Street School in Irvington, N. J. She finished there in '27

9 Before Lucille could qualify as a stenographer, she went to night school to learn shorthand, typing. Above: Close-up of note-book. She has forgotten shorthand, reads it with difficulty. As a steno, she earned $15 a week

12 As a sustaining artist on NBC, Lucille built up a small, loyal following, worked hard, and hoped!

MOST popular hobby of the stars is riding, the sport that knows no season. Name any ten radio favorites, and the chances are that eight of them are riding enthusiasts. Look them up during these late fall days, and the odds are even greater that they are spending their spare time in the open fields and on winding trails.

Typical of the many radio stars who ride are Maestro Leith Stevens and his wife, Songstress Mary McCoy. Accomplished riders, the Stevens own their horses, Bally Bay, who is 9 years old, and Melody, who is 11. They have had both for 6 years.

Grand sport that it is, however, riding is by no means limited to radio stars and others of considerable means. Although it is never cheap, and can be very expensive, of course, it also can be done at a surprisingly low cost. Horses are available almost everywhere for $1 an hour—or they can be bought over a wide price range. Good, serviceable equipment can be obtained at reasonable prices, and riding, though a sport requiring skill, can be learned well enough to be very enjoyable in fairly short order. Of course, the riding of Leith and Mary isn't accomplished in a day—but almost anyone can learn to jump the bars on a horse, once the fundamentals are mastered.

Above: After a short canter, Leith tightens the girth on the saddle. Below: Mary feeds Melody a lump of sugar. Boots cost from $5 to $100; breeches, $4 to $75; vests, $6 to $50; jackets, $8 to $75; shirts, $1 to $10 and ties, $1 to $5

Pretty shoes are one of Alice's greatest weaknesses. She has 15 pairs, paid from $12.95 to $24.95 for each (above). Below: Handbags cost Alice about $5. She has 12 of them

ALICE CORNETT, Dixie's contribution to the air-waves, lives alone in a four-room apartment in Jackson Heights, Long Island, N. Y. Pride and joy of petite Alice, rhythm-singer heard on Coca-Cola's "Song Shop" over CBS Friday nights, is her boudoir. Intimate glimpses tell secrets in clothing arrangement, reveal feminine fripperies, both expensive and inexpensive, prized by Milady Alice. Brought up in Florida, the vivacious young vocalist is the daughter of evangelical singers. When only six, she made her radio debut, singing on a taxicab-sponsored program, over a Tampa station. In 1935, she moved to New York, and lost no time in landing a job singing on the New England network. Alice has been active in radio ever since, but just reached the big-time on the Coca-Cola show last September

Right: Among Alice's costume jewelry is a $35 bracelet and brooch, a $15 pearl circled set, crystals. Her more expensive jewelry is in hiding

Right: Alice's dainty lingerie and hosiery occupy the second dresser drawer. She isn't extravagant about underthings, paying about what the average girl pays for hers. Alice pays from $1.79 to $5 a pair for triple-sheer hosiery. Above: A stocking from a $5 pair

Red-headed Dorothy Lowell is the 22-year-old actress who plays the part of 20-year-old "Sunday" in "Our Gal Sunday." A movie extra at 16, she entered radio at 19, is also heard as "Nancy" in "Trouble House"

Jay Jostyn's role is that of "Jackie." Jostyn came from the legitimate stage, played stock on the West Coast for several years. He entered radio in Los Angeles, then went to Cincinnati, Chicago, New York

OUR GAL SUNDAY

WHEN young love comes into the heart of a 20-year-old orphan who is grateful and loyal to the two old miners who brought her up, conflict arises—to provide the plot for "Our Gal Sunday." The miners are Jackie and Lively. Young Bill Jenkins is in love with Sunday.

One day a dissolute young Englishman, Arthur Brinthrope, came to Silver Creek, Colorado, flattered and excited Sunday with his attentions—but when Jackie learned he had no intention of marrying Sunday, he shot him. Arthur soon disappeared.

Later, Sir Henry, Arthur's brother, came to the village—he and Sunday fell in love. Sunday did not tell him what had happened to Arthur, because of her loyalty to Jackie. But recently, complications have set in. Scheming Violet Morehead threatens to tell—unless she's paid $10,000.

Robert Strauss (above), one of radio's busiest actors, is heard as "Lively." Strauss studied engineering at Lehigh University—but gave it up in his second year to go on the stage. He played with Fritz Lieber eleven years

Book That Caused Civil War Now Valuable Item

Of all the causes of the Civil War, the most important was a book—"Uncle Tom's Cabin"—which aroused public opinion against Slavery. The thousands of copies printed in the first edition are now in demand and valuable. Your parents or grandparents may have bought one when it first appeared, and you may have the edition of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" for which the American Book Mart, nationally known buyers of old books, will pay $100.00. They buy thousands of dollars worth of books annually—they want certain old school books, Bibles, story books, poetry, histories, travel, almanacs, letters, newspapers, magazines, etc. Many books even as recent as 1931 wanted. A single book hidden in your old trunks, attic, or basement, may bring you $25, $50, $100, $500 or even $5,000 each for certain books. Better investigate now! Send 10c today to American Book Mart, 140 S. Dearborn St., Dept. 4701, Chicago, and they will send you latest list of old books they want to buy and cash prices they will pay.

SHORT WAVES

BY CHAS. A. MORRISON, president, INTERNATIONAL DX-ER'S ALLIANCE

THE "Dutch Twins," Holland Stations PHI and PCJ, will celebrate their tenth anniversary on the air in an elaborate series of Jubilee all-star birthday parties, prepared exclusively for short-wave presentation. Popular, multi-lingual, Announcer Edward Startz, will act as master of ceremonies for these broadcasts which will feature such famous artists and musical acts as: Lee Sims and Ilomay Bailey, Florence Desmond, Danny Malone, Great Keller, Haver and Lee, the Three Canadian Bachelors and their Hillbilly Band, Afrique, Carrol Gibbons and his orchestra, Mantovani and his tipica orchestra, and the Kilima Hawaiians. The programs will be radiated over PCJ, on a frequency of 15.22 megs, Monday night, November 15, from 10 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. EST (9 to 11:30 p.m. CST), and Tuesday on a frequency of 9.59 megs, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. EST (6 to 8:30 p.m. CST); on Wednesday, November 17, from 8 to 10:30 p.m. EST (7 to 9:30 p.m. CST), and on Thursday, November 18, from 9 to 11:30 p.m. EST (8 to 10:30 p.m. CST). Since a huge contest is to be conducted in connection with the programs, listeners who send reception reports to Station PCJ, Hilversum, Holland, may stand a chance of winning a Philips Jubilee radio, or some other valuable prize.

John DeMyer of Lansing, Mich., reports hearing on October 23, at 7:30 p.m. EST (6:30 p.m. CST), on a frequency of 10.6 megs, a station giving its location as Belize, British Honduras. The call of this broadcaster, which is of unusual interest since it is the first short-wave transmitter ever to be logged from that country, was understood to be ZIK2. The announcer stated that prior to the adoption of a regular schedule of broadcasts, the station would operate on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

R. B. Oxrieder of State College, Penn., gives me information concerning HID (9.505), another new station, located at Trujillo City, in the Dominican Republic. It usually leaves the air near 8:40 p.m. EST (7:40 p.m. CST), but is occasionally heard until 9:40 p.m. EST (8:40 p.m. CST). The following revised frequencies are reported: XEDQ, Guadalajara, Mexico, on approximately 9.545; COCQ, Havana, Cuba, on 9.78; HJ6ABA, Pereira, Colombia, on 6.05; YV1RD, Maracaibo, Venezuela, on 6.081; OAX5C, Ica, Peru, on 9.58, and TPA4, Pontoise, France, on 11.713 megs. Since Rome has shifted back to its winter frequency, the American Hour may now be heard on Mondays, Wednesdays and Friday from 6 to 7:30 p.m. EST (5 to 6:30 p.m. CST), over 2R03, on a frequency of 9.635 megs.

August Balbi of Los Angeles, Calif., informs me that the schedule of the new Guatemalan station TGWA, has been announced as follows: on a frequency of 11.76 megs, Mondays from 9 to 11 p.m. EST (8 to 10 p.m. CST); on a frequency of 9.68 megs, Wednesdays and Saturdays from 10 p.m. to 11 p.m. EST (9 p.m. to 10 p.m. CST); on a frequency of 9.68 megs, Thursdays from 9 to 11 p.m. EST (8 to 10 p.m. CST) and on Sundays from 9 to 10 p.m. EST (7 to 8 p.m. CST).

Joseph Miller of Brooklyn, N. Y., writes me that short-wave listeners will have an opportunity of hearing some rare Siamese music when HSI1BJ (14.07), operated by Sangiem Powngsonk, of Bangkok, transmits a special program for North America on Sunday, November 14, from 6:15 to 7 p.m. EST (5:15 to 6 a.m. CST). The broadcast should be received best in the eastern United States since the aerial is to be beamed on New York, over the North Pole. To insure a verification of reception, those reporting must give exact time each item was heard and enclose an international reply coupon for return postage.

"Polskie Radio," Stations SPW (13.635) and SPD (11.535), are now transmitting special programs for North America, week days from 6 to 7 p.m. EST (5 to 6 p.m. CST) and on Sundays from 6 to 8 p.m. EST (5 to 7 p.m. CST).

According to Israel Sinofsky of Passaic, N. Y., the new schedule of transmissions now in effect from "Radio-Nations" at Prangins, Switzerland, is as follows: on Fridays, over HBO (11.4), from 2 to 2:15 p.m. EST (1 to 1:15 p.m. CST), an English broadcast for the British Isles and South Africa; over HBL (9.34), from 2:30 to 2:45 p.m. EST (1:30 to 1:45 p.m. CST), a French broadcast; from 7:30 to 7:45 p.m. EST (6:30 to 6:45 p.m. CST), an English transmission beamed on the United States and Canada, and from 8 to 8:15 p.m. EST (7 to 7:15 p.m. CST), a Spanish program for Central and South America.

A new short-wave station, which will introduce Ireland to the rest of the world, is foreshadowed by experiments which are shortly to be undertaken at Athlone. The new experimental transmitter will have a power of 5,000 watts when completed.

The opening half of the Royal Command Variety Performance to be given at the London Palladium, the first to be honored by the presence of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, will be broadcast from Daventry, on Monday, November 15, at 3 p.m. EST (2 p.m. CST). As might be expected, this program will be replete with numerous celebrities and topnotch acts. Sir Hugh Walpole, noted British author, whose books are quite popular in this country, will be the contributor in the next "As I See It" series of talks, to be broadcast from Daventry, on Tuesday, November 16, at 4:20 p.m. EST (3:20 p.m. CST). H. W. (Bunny) Austin, perhaps the best known of British tennis aces will be the first speaker on a new series of talks, entitled "Sportsmen Talking," which will be inaugurated on the Daventry programs. Thursday, November 18, at 6:15 a.m. EST (5:15 a.m. CST). A repeat will be heard on Friday, November 19, at the slightly more convenient hour of 5:15 p.m. EST (4:15 p.m. CST).

WIXAL of Boston, Mass., is furnishing the only radio outlet for many of the feature football matches in the East. On Saturday, November 13, at 1:45 p.m. EST (12:45 p.m. CST), this station will transmit on a frequency of 11.79 megs, the important Yale vs. Princeton battle.

M. Wasserzug of Johannesburg, South Africa, writes that the new South African station, which is being heard in the United States with such amazingly loud signals, is situated at Kliphevel, near the commercial transmitters ZSR and ZSS, and replaces the former short-wave station ZTJ of Johannesburg, which was seldom heard in this country. This new 22,000-watt is providing almost local reception daily (except Saturdays) from 11:45 p.m. to 12:45 a.m. EST (10:45 to 11:45 p.m. CST), on a frequency of 9.61 megs. The station operates on the same frequency from 3:15 to 7:30 a.m. and from 9 to 11:40 a.m.

EST (2:15 to 6:30 a.m. and from 8 to 10:40 a.m. CST), and on a frequency of 6.097 megs from 12 noon to 4 p.m. EST (11 a.m. to 3 p.m. CST).

PJCE (5.947), a 150-watt station operated by the Curacaosche Radio Vereeniging, at Curacao, is the only broadcaster in the Netherland West Indies. The programs consist mainly of electrical transcriptions of United States and Latin-American dance bands.

General Electric Stations W2XAD (15.33) and W2XAF (9.53) at Schenectady, New York, are radiating several new programs, prepared especially for their international listening audience. A feature known as the American radio news tower, is being aired week days except Saturdays at 5 p.m. EST (4 p.m. CST). It is devoted exclusively to news pertaining to what is going on in the United States and not the rest of the world. A program entitled "Sports in America" is being broadcast Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 5:15 to 5:30 p.m. EST (4:15 to 4:30 p.m. CST), immediately following the American radio news tower. The reporter, Leo Bolley, comments upon every sport known in the United States. "The Chapel Organ," a weekly one-hour program of organ music from Memorial Chapel, Union College, Schenectady, featuring the well-known organist Dr. Elmer Tidmarsh at the console, is being heard on Sundays at 4 p.m. EST (3 p.m. CST). The new travelog series, each broadcast of which portrays some particular state, is radiated Mondays at 6:15 p.m. EST (5:15 p.m. CST).

ARE YOU ONLY A THREE-QUARTER WIFE?

THERE are certain things a woman has to put up with and be a good sport.

Men, because they are men, can never understand a three-quarter wife—a wife who is all love and kindness three weeks in a month and a hell cat the rest of the time.

No matter how your back aches—no matter how loudly your nerves scream—don't take it out on your husband.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

Says Noted Psychologist

"A new and revolutionary religious teaching based entirely on the misunderstood sayings of the Galilean Carpenter, and designed to show how we may find, understand and use the same identical power which Jesus used in performing His so-called Miracles," is attracting world-wide attention to its founder, Dr. Frank B. Robinson, noted Psychologist, author and lecturer.

"Psychiana," this new psychological religion, believes and teaches that it is today possible for every normal human being, understanding spiritual law as Christ understood it, "to duplicate every work that the Carpenter of Galilee ever did"—it believes and teaches that when He said, "the things that I do shall ye do also," He meant what He said and meant it literally to all mankind, through all the ages.

Dr. Robinson has prepared a 6000 word treatise on "Psychiana," in which he tells about his long search for the Truth, how he finally came to the full realization of an Unseen Power or force "so dynamic in itself that all other powers and forces fade into insignificance beside it"—how he learned to commune directly with the Living God, using this mighty, never-failing power to demonstrate health, happiness and financial success, and how any normal being may find and use it as Jesus did. He is now offering this treatise free to every reader of this magazine who writes him.

If you want to read this "highly interesting, revolutionary and fascinating story of the discovery of a great Truth," just send your name and address to Dr. Frank B. Robinson, 403-11th Street, Moscow, Idaho. It will be sent free and postpaid without cost or obligation. Write the Doctor today.—Copyright 1935. Dr. Frank B. Robinson.—Advertisement.

THE LITTLE GUY

BY CHESTER BROUWER

MAURY CROSS is a member of that very exclusive fraternity of musicians who play every instrument in the entire orchestra equally well, and sing as a sideline. Maury's music is a regular feature of Westinghouse WOWO and WGL in Fort Wayne, Ind. The most unusual part of the feat, however, is that Maury never took a lesson in his life, with the exception of his training on the violin!

Maury is only 23 years old, but has been in the business eleven years. His first job was at the ripe age of 12, when he joined George Maentz' orchestra for a dance job at Gobles, Mich. Maury must indeed have made a pretty sight on that job. Everyone in the orchestra wore evening clothes, but Maury stuck to the regulation knee pants common with children of his age.

Born in Battle Creek, Mich., Maury moved to a farm near Kalamazoo, Mich., when he was still a small child. He spent his childhood helping his father farm their land, but every evening would find him on the large front porch, practising his violin lesson. He studied with a violinist in Kalamazoo for 12 years.

Maury appeared with Maentz on dance jobs for three years. At the age of 15 he joined the Henderson Players, a Midwest stock company headlining such well-known players as Frances Hall and Arthur Kohl. Kohl, by the way, is now a featured member of NBC and Mutual dramatic corps in Chicago.

Due to his extreme youth and slight stature, Maury was invariably assigned to Japanese butler roles. After a year being a Japanese, Maury quit and joined Earl Gardner's orchestra, then touring the Midwest. Gardner had just quit Paul Whiteman's orchestra and was making a name for himself in the middle western states as a maestro.

Playing saxophone in the orchestra, which he had picked up in idle moments, Maury stayed with Gardner for two years. He then joined Ernie Palmquist's orchestra.

DON BESTOR was the next maestro to recognize Maury's talents. At the age of 18 Cross went with Bestor as saxophonist and featured vocalist. For the next three years he traveled with that band, making personal appearances and as a member of an NBC vaudeville unit featuring Graham McNamee, the Pickens Sisters, Jimmie Wallington, the Sisters of the Skillet and Ray Perkins.

During spare moments, Bestor's band, with Maury as the featured singer, made more than 200 records. Maury has a complete library of these recordings and plays them almost daily. Walter Winchell became interested in Maury's work, resulting in almost daily plugs in Winchell's column.

Tiring of traveling in busses, sleeping in hotels and eating restaurant food, Maury severed his connections with Bestor and came to Fort Wayne to form an orchestra of his own. He organized a band of local musicians in Fort Wayne and took a job at the Show Boat, a nitery just outside the city limits. The Show Boat had never been very popular with Fort Wayneites, mainly because it was on a by-road and was rather hard to find. But a few days after Maury started his engagement at that spot all of Fort Wayne became Show Boat conscious. People found their way out and packed houses greeted him nightly.

After spending several months at that spot, Maury moved his band to the Frolics, another dance palace near Fort Wayne. He repeated his success there and the following fall saw him on the bandstand at the Chatterbox, then Fort Wayne's most exclusive supper club. He held forth at the Chatterbox the entire winter season.

Band scouts heard him while he was at the Berghoff Gardens, another popular downtown supper club, and signed him for an engagement at the exclusive Mayfair in Cleveland. He fulfilled a successful engagement there, and was so well liked that a few weeks after he left he was called back to that club by popular demand.

But Fort Wayne wouldn't let Maury stay away, so last August he came back to his old haunts and started a return engagement at the Berghoff Gardens.

While Maury was away from Fort Wayne, Westinghouse took over the management of Fort Wayne's two radio stations, WOWO and WGL. Westinghouse officials looked high and wide for a studio conductor, and when Maury returned to the city he was immediately signed for the job.

Maury Cross studied violin—but now he plays everything in sight!

Radio gave him a chance to try out all of his unusual ideas in grouping of instruments and arrangements of popular tunes of the day. His regular "jam" sessions have become the most popular programs aired over the local stations.

RECENTLY an important Cincinnati sponsor came to Fort Wayne seeking a new show. Maury heard of the deal, and in one day arranged and produced a half-hour show for audition. The sponsor was so pleased that he immediately bought the revue intact, signed for two broadcasts weekly for 26 weeks instead of the 13 weekly programs he had originally planned. That show, "Polly Pretends," is now heard from Indianapolis as well as from Fort Wayne.

While playing at the Berghoff Gardens, Maury met a young dancer who later became his wife. The dancer was a member of the team of Patsy and Mickey. A few weeks after the meeting Maury persuaded her to give up her dancing career and marry him. They were married a year ago last February. A son, Lonnie Richard, was born last November.

Maury is small—five feet six inches in height. He has coal-black hair that is straight and persists in falling down over his eyes. He prefers very, very loud sports coats and slacks, and likes to wear sports shirts with ties. He drives an open roadster, and in the winter leaves the top down, keeping himself plenty warm with a huge bear-skin coat.
