INSPIRE
THE PEN

DOESN'T DIG R 'N R — AND VICE-VERSA
... Peter Potter

C.J.M., Burbank

The other night Peter Potter made it perfectly clear where he and rock and roll stand. He is, according to his unenlightening speech, anti-rock and roll! Well let me make it clear where me and about 150 other guys stand. We're, by the contents of this letter, anti-Potter.

Mrs. B.M.M., Santa Barbara

We are western fans. And there is such a crop this year.
To put it mildly.

Mrs. F.C., Los Angeles

Traffic Court on Channel 7 is both amusing and instructive. A driver can learn a great deal by watching this program.

Mrs. A.A.T., San Diego

It seems to me that The Verdict Is Yours is good enough for an evening time slot. So few working people, including myself, can see it regularly. With good suspense and drama, it's a program that deserves a better time.

O.Y., Covina

I think Country America is the best musical show on TV, especially their wonderful featured singer, Lefty Frizzell.

Also enjoy The Real McCoys. Wish we had more down-to-earth entertainment like this.

J.B., Los Angeles

We like westerns because many of the incidents are less than one hundred years old. Most of the westerns have given us new young stars, good scripts, scenery, and acting.

As for variety shows: same old songs, same old guests making the rounds — all snapping their fingers and acting scared that they won't get enough applause.

NIGHT FANS LOVE HER

... Ottola Nesmith

D.S., Leucadia, Calif.

For goodness sakes don't let anyone discourage Ottola Nesmith, *he hostess bit on Nightmare. I enjoy her more than some of the pictures. Her part is never too long.

Mrs. G.W.D., Riverside

I only watch the horror movies on KTLA to see Ottola Nesmith act in those old clothes.

But that man who plays a railroad detective on Stories of the Century needs to change his shirt more often. Program after program he parades around in a dirty black shirt and it gets dirtier every program. I'd be glad to give it a washing in my automatic — if he'd just drop it in the mail!

These TV stars—they get everything. Even free laundry now!

Mr. and Mrs. T.C.S., La Mesa

When are the men announcers going to wake up to the fact that they are visiting people's homes and not in the back 40 calling the hogs! No wonder so many sponsors are getting women to advertise their products. They, at least, don't yell so loud that people have to turn the sound off.

COULD DINAH HAVE BEEN FINAH TO O'BRIAN?

... Dinah Shore and Hugh O'Brian

P.A., Pasadena

The horrible way Dinah Shore acted toward Hugh O'Brian when he honored her show by appearing on it would cause anyone to buy a Ford. She even jumped up and started yelling like a banshee when she saw that he was singing better than she was; she succeeded in drowning him out. How she got a show of her own is a mystery. But since she loves her own performances so much as to not let the guest get a word in except edgewise or do an act without her hogging in, why does she have them on?

Her rating was very high the night Hugh O'Brian was on as there were loads of high school students who are his friends watching. And believe me her rating sure went kerplop when they saw how she did him. We waited to pass judgment because we felt we might be prejudiced in favor of Hugh ever: tho we did know he had been treated as a star of his ability should never be treated. We have seen her try and outstage every star from Ethel Merman to Frank Sinatra and Peter Lawford.

K.N., Inglewood

I've never seen anything that equals Dinah Shore and Ethel Merman. They, Loretta Young, Raymond Burr, and "Dick and the Duchess" are the tops on TV.

K.N., Torrance

I think that Gunsmoke is about the best western on the air. Jim Arness doesn't seem to act like a hero all of the time and that pleases me very much. I guess that's one reason why I don't care for Have Gun, Will Travel. Richard Boone, as Paladin, seems to always end up the hero.

RALPH EDWARDS

Means Business

By Evelyn Bigsby

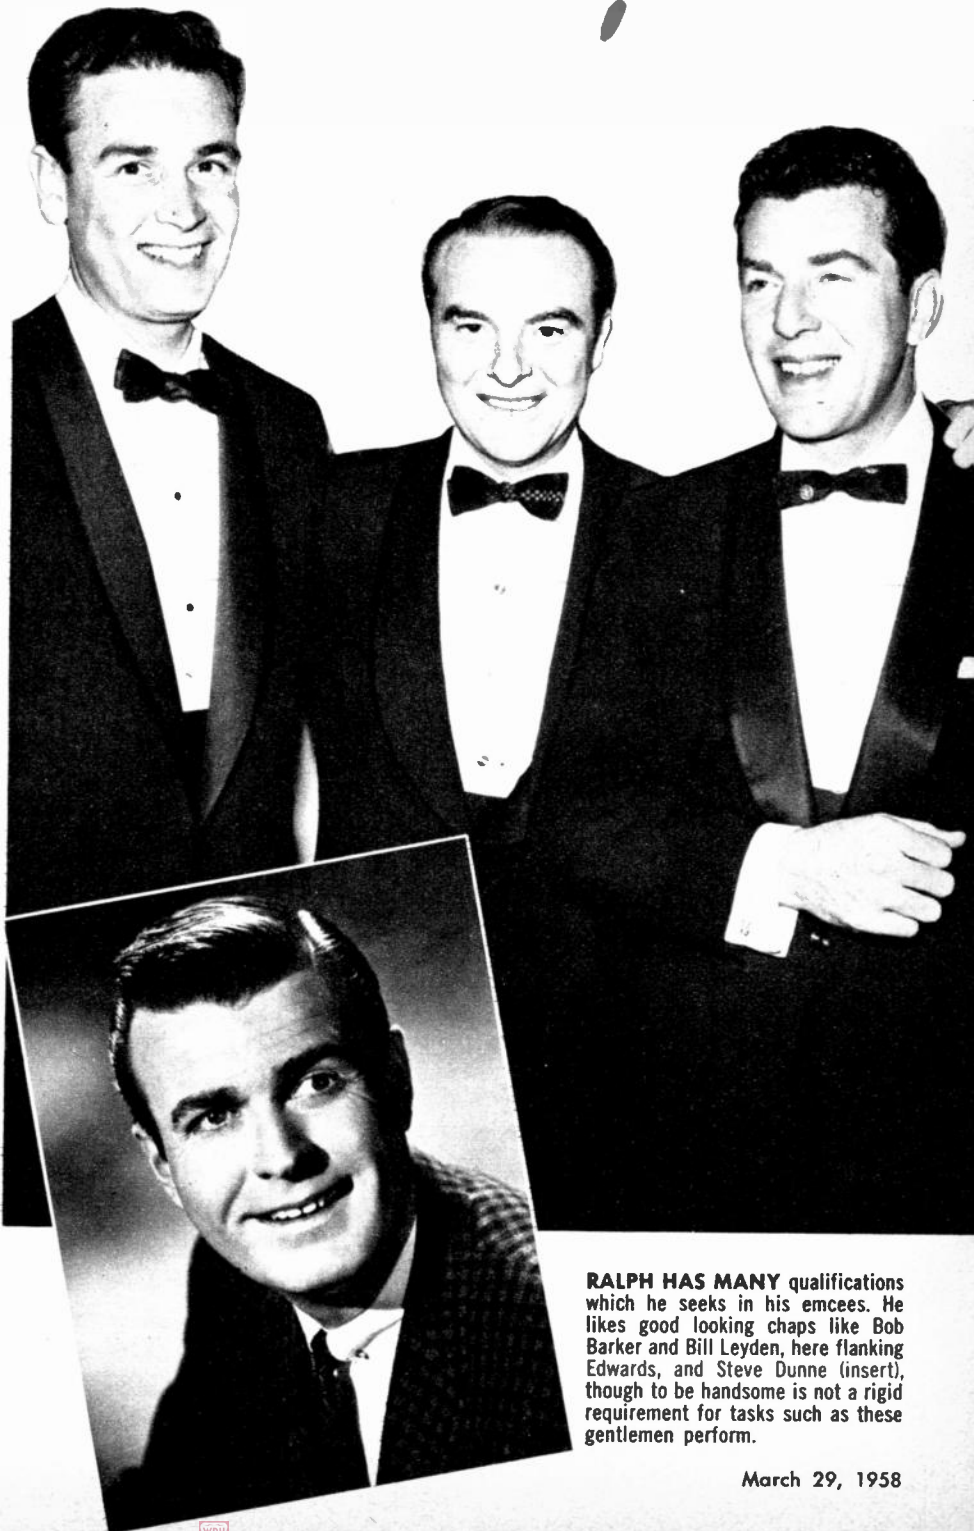

RALPH EDWARDS, one of Hollywood TV's five top money makers, claims his ambition is to retire and tan at his Trancas Beach home. "But how can you when the wheel is going for you?" he asks. Currently spinning for him are 6 weekly hours of network (NBC) video involving four shows each of which is grossing at least $1,000,000 a year. Working with and for him are 44 men and 25 women, exclusive of the three emcees appearing on Edwards properties — Bill Leyden of It Could Be You; Bob Barker of the daily Truth or Consequences; and Steve Dunne, T. or C. nighttime emcee.

"The business is growing in spite of myself," Ralph matter-of-factly observes. But it was not always this way. A little more than five years ago after Edwards had gotten and spent a million to roll Truth or Consequences on television, he went to New York to try his luck at peddling This Is Your Life.

"For twelve weeks I couldn't sell it," he recalls. "It was actually worse than the first time I went to New York and slept in the church. Only this time I moved out of a suite at the St. Regis and took a room. I could have given up and retired — I had it made — but it was a matter of pride and belief in the show, and besides there was a staff back in Hollywood. They needed to eat."

To the layman, an annual gross of a cool million sounds immense. He does not know that the telephone bill for This Is Your Life averages about $1000 a week, other programs commensurately; and that transportation costs of the four Edwards properties sum up to nearly $8,000 weekly. Then there are hotel and food bills, line charges and that payroll for nearly 75 persons. Not to mention a Christmas gift list which last December numbered 1600.

Nor does the ordinary layman realize how much of himself Ralph Edwards puts into his ever-expanding organization. In contrast to teams like Goodson and Todman, Linkletter and Guedel, Murrow and Friendly, Edwards stands RALPH HAS MANY qualifications which he seeks in his emcees. He likes good looking chaps like Bob Barker and Bill Leyden, here flanking Edwards, and Steve Dunne (insert), though to be handsome is not a rigid requirement for tasks such as these gentlemen perform.

And mighty BIG business, at that! Four network shows grossing each
$1,000,000 annually.
Where does the money go? Here are some ideas.

THIS GROUP PICTURE gives some idea of the size of the Edwards' organization when one knows that only half of those working on Ralph's staff are shown here. Not counting emcees there are 44 men and 25 women in all. (Photo by NBC. Color cover by NBC-Holloway.)

TYPICAL OF SOME of the other Edwards' shows is the staff on It Could Be You. Edwards employs a total of 5 producers, 5 directors, 5 production assistants, 7 associate producers and three researchers among the many others on his staff.

uniquely alone as producer, creator, and in the case of This Is Your Life as star of his own show. On the last-named program he has the final say on the subject to be starred. He double-checks the continuity and devotes approximately four hours at the studio for rehearsal with those flown to Hollywood as surprise guests, meanwhile putting them at their ease and making them feel a part of the upcoming evening's presentation. "This is one of the least known but most important activities which Ralph carries on," a co-worker pointed out. "He makes friends each week with ten or a dozen persons he has never seen before and who've come from all over the world." Each Wednesday evening after the program signs off, Edwards puts in at least a one-hour appearance at the gala affair given for the honoree and visiting friends and relatives.

It Could Be You requires very little attention now that it is so well established—perhaps an hour a day of Ralph's time—and the same is true of Truth or Consequences' daytime strip. However if something goes awry, fellow workers know Edwards will rush into the breach and stay up all night if he has to—he is their "fountain of ideas" and "source of originality," as they well put it. The nighttime Truth or Consequences launched again with new emcee requires about 20 hours a week of Edwards. According to Ralph, it takes about three months to get the kinks ironed out of any new program. Telephone conversations with the East mounting to practically two hours solid are nothing unusual during a shake-down period.

Roughly, Edwards' devotion to business consumes about 15-17 hours daily—he spends about 15 hours a week on correspondence and picture posing alone. A large amount of work is accomplished at home where he telephones from bed and prepares memos for his staff.

Last person in the world to kid himself that he's done all he has by himself is Edwards. "You have to have two great things working for you," he points out. "A staff that believes in the show they're doing and putting into it all the things that should be and then a guy who can emcee."

Because he wants the subject rather than the emcee to be the star of each of his shows, Edwards has picked his men with great care. He prefers announcers or emcees rather than stand-up comics or personalities from the night club field. In short, he wants his emcees to be straight men... men who can go to a joke, men who can also find ways to get out of situations all the time keeping the subject in mind. Since all the Edwards programs have a "good gesture" theme, selection of the right emcee is sometimes difficult. "The toughest thing to do," Edwards admits, "is sincere schmaltz." Then adds, "An emcee should never cry."

Edwards also likes emcees who pay attention to what their subjects are saying—whose minds are not racing ahead as to what bright remark they'll make when the participant stops talking.

It isn't exactly accidental that Leyden, Dunne and Barker are all good looking chaps. Edwards wants his men to be handsome if possible, but on the other hand, he would not, were a potential emcee to have all the other requisites, bar him from emceeing were he not an Adonis.

The big deal with Edwards and his emcees is mutual trust. "You've got to have confidence in the fellas," Ralph expounds. "Let them run with the ball."

As for other members of his staff, Edwards more or less reflects the same feeling. There isn't a secretary in his offices. Every one is labeled "assistant." For example, the girl working with fan mail is a "supervisor" and her helpers are "assistants to the supervisor."

The man behind this tremendous organization, now only 44 years old, surveys the TV empire which is still building and asks himself, "Can I give up?"

Ralph Edwards has worked ever since he was a small boy on the farm back in Colorado. "I can't remember the time I didn't work," he confesses. "Even when I was small I had to gather the eggs, milk cows, and draw water from the pump."

EUGENIA PAUL
TV ACTRESS

Slender, Sexy and Sensible

ACTRESS Eugenia Paul is a slender and lovely thing to look at, especially with those pensive and penetrating gypsy eyes and that big gleaming smile. But she didn't always have a 35-22-34 figure to fill in her 118-pound, 5' 6" very feminine frame. Once she hit the scales at 160 solid pounds.

"I was a baby hippo," she smiles today. "It wasn't very long ago, either. When I was 17, I came to Hollywood with my mother. We were visiting. At that time in my life, even though I was a little on the chubby side, I wanted to be a ballet dancer more than anything else in the world. I even landed a small part in Die Fledermaus which was playing at the Hollywood Bowl.

"I guess I always have been destined to come to Hollywood, because I only went across stage once that night. But a man from Warner Bros. saw me, and I was signed by the studio. Later I went to MGM and Fox—but always as a dancer, never as an actress."

About four years ago, the brown-eyed beauty from Detroit decided to devote full time to an acting career. Currently, she's been seen the most on ABC-TV, costarring in several Zorro and Jim Bowie (starring Scott Forbes) films. She's been on two Bowie programs so far—first she met the famous western hero—then she got engaged—and by the next time we see her on the Channel 7 series—she'll have poor Jim hitched. How's that for being a fast worker?

In private life, the sharp-minded actress hasn't been in such a hurry in the matrimonial department.

"I've been going steady with one fellow for about three years. And we may get married next year—but we're not certain yet. He doesn't want me to continue my career. I'm not certain what I will do yet."

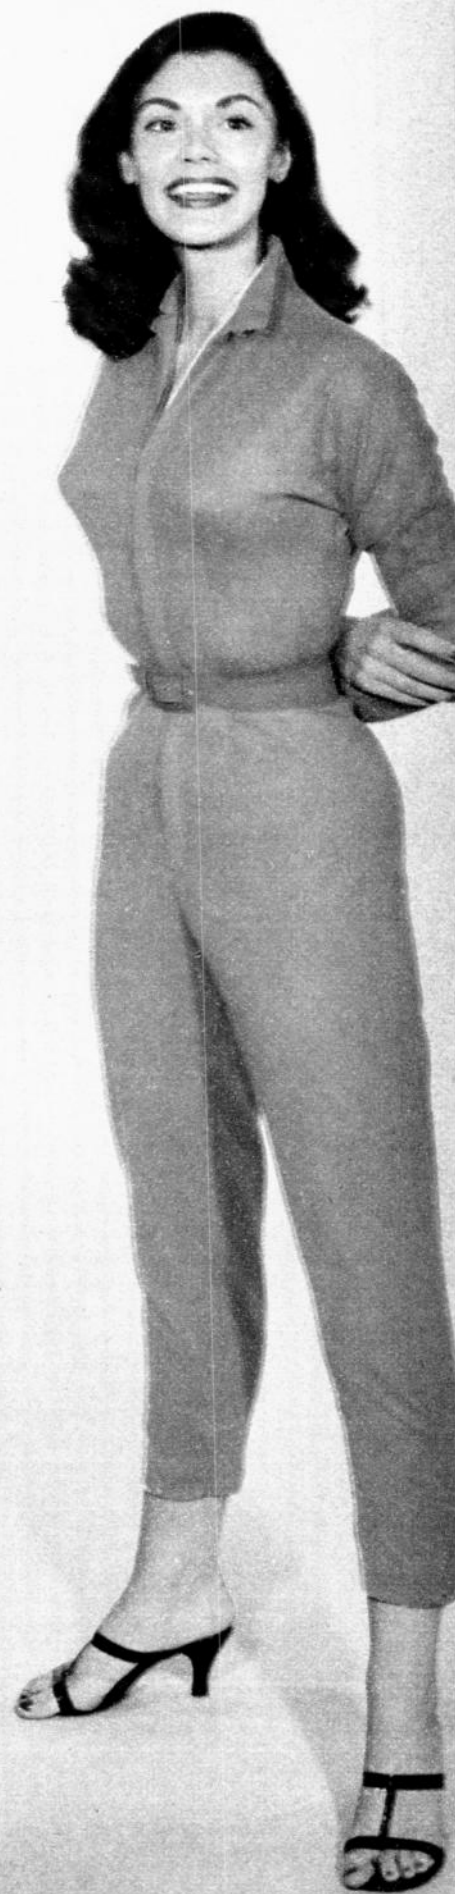

Because she has experience in both dancing and acting, Eugenia has some sound advice for girls who are considering these fields. "I would rather dance in the ballet than do anything else. But it's like entering a nunnery. And there just isn't enough money in it. Why, the very top dancers only make as much as a good supporting actress."

What about advice for gals who want to lose weight? (Remember that Eugenia dropped 42 pounds within a period of six months.)

"There's only two ways I know how to do it," she declares. "First, stop eating. And second, also stop eating 15 candy bars a day. Because that's how many I used to consume. Today, I eat as much as I want—but I keep my weight down by running 3/5ths of a mile every day.

"But I'm really the weaker sex," she elaborates. "Why I can hardly open a car door."

Eugenia's only current regret about her acting career is the lack of good parts. "I've gotten quite a few Indian, Mexican and gypsy roles," she declares. "But how dramatic can you get when you point to the hills and say: 'Cochise comes.'"

THIS WEEK'S TV-RADIO NEWS IN PICTURES

ABE SCHILLER OF THE FLAMINGO HOTEL (left) and Bill Burrud (right) help Howard Black of Santa Ana count the $200 of buried treasure he discovered in the desert near Las Vegas. Bill first heard about it on Burrud's Treasure program on KCOP. Then he drove to the nearest market; bought a copy of TV-Radio Life; checked the map and clues which we published; and headed for Las Vegas. Mr. Black works at the Bank of America at Disneyland.

TV ACTRESS GLORIA S. MARSHALL reminds us that Easter is just around the corner. Miss Marshall, who recently completed a pilot for a new TV series, would make a welcomed bunny in anyone's basket.

GARRY MOORE BROUGHT A SPONSOR'S SLOGAN TO LIFE on KNXT's I've Got A Secret by presenting persons whose names came closest to "Winston Tastes Good Like A Cigarette Should." Garry and staff could not turn up anyone named "Should," so they compromised with "Schultz."

THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY has constantly screamed because TV is using its talent. Here's a switch—as Stan Chambers and the KTLA remote unit were used during Griffith Park sequence of "The Revenge of the Colossal Man."

For the most part, radio stations have always had news brought to them. But now, through the use of mobile units, such as KMPC uses,

RADIO GOES AFTER THE NEWS

BRUNDAGE CALLS IN as he rushes to the scene of a news story. KMPC News Mobile Fleet Units cover the busy news picture of Los Angeles on an around the clock basis seven days a week bringing to radio listeners of Southern California extensive news coverage of the area.

THE MAN RESPONSIBLE for the direction of the hard hitting KMPC News activities is vet radio personality Hugh Brundage. As director of news for KMPC Brundage directs the activities of a top notch staff of news reporters in the studios of Los Angeles' most powerful independent station.

Palm Drive, stop and chat with Chet Casselman as the units of KMPC Mobile Fleet return to home base after covering an accident in the hills of San Bernardino Mountains. The girls were en route to a camping trip when they reported an overturned vehicle to KMPC News who in turn reported it to the Sheriff's Department and then rushed to the scene to cover the accident for KMPC listeners. A typical example of how radio is making its own news these days.

BY THE TIME THIS IS IN PRINT, Cheyenne's Clint Walker and Warner Bros. may have come to an amicable agreement about Clint's future activities, but right now their conferences are stalemated. Crux of the situation is: Clint wants to give up the TV series. He feels that in justice to it and to himself he should move on to other parts.

CONTRARY TO REPORTS that he was throwing his weight around and being difficult, Clint said, "I'm not a guy that's getting the big head. I'm just a guy that wants to graduate from one class to the next. While the average person might say he would be tickled to be in my shoes, he probably would enjoy it for awhile, but there would be something wrong with him if he didn't want to do better. Cheyenne has been very good for me and I've enjoyed making the series. I'm grateful to Warners, but in order to grow, as an actor I have to do things that are a challenge to my ability and that will make a better actor of me.

"AN ACTOR CAN'T JUST STAY in the TV medium and become a better actor. It is too confining a medium, especially when you have become identified with a series. Budgets are confining and you can't do the things you want to."

APPARENTLY CLINT HAS COME to a fork in the road and has to decide which way to go. Or rather, he has made up his mind and hopes Warner Bros. will go along.

I believe the fact that Cheyenne is a western type show does not bear too much weight on Clint's feelings, though with all the speculation going around as to whether the gun-guys are on the decline has some fellows jumpy. There are predictions that next season may see a cut-back in this kind of program and a resurgence of the comedy and audience shows which accent entertainment rather than huge amounts of money.

ANOTHER ABC STAR WAS HUDDLING last week to determine his TV future. Frank Sinatra, for whom hopes were high last fall, had some disappointments and sponsors are debating what to do. They should see his May 9 show on which Ella Fitzgerald co-stars! It is great! This film should bear heavy weight in favor of Frank's being on TV next year. It is the perfect blend of two magnificent talents, each sparking to the other's artistry. Ella happened to be in the projection room to see the show when Lifeliner did and afterward she admitted that she had realized an ambition in finally working with Sinatra in TV. "I've always been a Sinatra idolizer," she grinned. "Back when he was at the Paramount in New York, I went to hear him every day. I hate to admit it, but the boys in the band got so used to seeing me that they'd say 'Is she here again?'"

UNTIL THIS TV SHOW Miss Fitzgerald had worked with Sinatra only once on a movie short. She was very nervous about television, but Frank clowning around to put her at ease. Her "April in Paris" number is a high. Also their smile medley with small combo. The band is seen during some of the show and other camera work is interesting. I agreed with Frank's closing line to Ella: "Now we'll have to come out of our orbit and back to earth!"

HOLLAND'S

Tunnel

DUG BY JACK HOLLAND

THERE'S a bit of mystery in town — and no one seems to want to come up with the answer. It's about Bob Crosby and Jack Webb and Jack's new TV series, Pete Kelly's Blues. For a long time Jack has insisted that Bob was the only one to play Pete Kelly. For months he tried to pry Bob loose from his CBS contract so he could take on the assignment but this was supposedly not possible. Now that Bob is free of his CBS deal this September and is available for the role, suddenly all discussion about his playing Pete Kelly has been dropped and William Reynolds looks set. Rumor has it that Jack figured it was impossible to get Bob and gave up his fight. There is also rumor that Bob's agents helped nix the deal by saying he could not fit the series in his schedule. These are only rumors which merely add to the confusion. And the most confused person of all is Bob. He wanted that part — badly. This tunnel would be happy to gather together all the facts from all the parties and present the whole story here. Certainly Bob Crosby would like to know what's up — and so would we. In the meantime Bob opens the 25th of this month at the Sahara in Las Vegas where he debuts a new night club act inspired by Meredith Wilson's brilliant hit, "The Music Man." The act will tell the story of a modern day music man — Bob Crosby. We hope he finds nothing but real great success ahead, for he is one guy who deserves it.

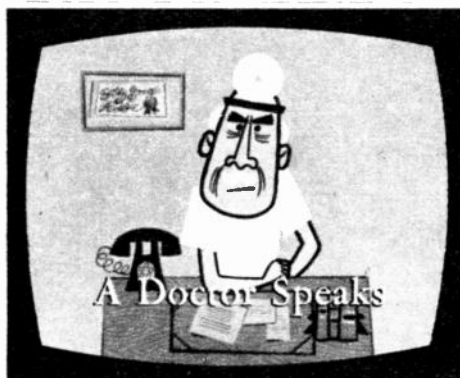

We're also happy to hear that, according to the very likable John Forsythe, Bachelor Father is all set for next year — or so the company has been assured. It's good to see a show given a chance to build and to catch on. Bachelor Father is going to make some big strides from here on in, especially if it gets a new time slot.

There's been a good deal of reaction from this column's comments about people getting into a rut by merely spending their hours watching TV. That was not meant to be an anti-TV comment — merely a word of caution about what misuse of TV can do. Well, just recently I saw a movie that should remind people of the world outside the 21 inch set and the excitement that is still to be found on a large screen. That picture is "South Pacific," and it's one of the most exciting, tuneful, magnificent hunks of pure entertainment I've seen in a long time. It has everything — the wonderful Rodgers and Hammerstein score, expert performances, and, of course, the same memorable story. The only drawbacks are the too frequent use of color to heighten or establish moods and the mist effect on the edges of the screen. These faults are minor and even though they are distracting they will not dent your enjoyment of the film. 20th Century-Fox has a fine answer here to the cry that TV is hurting the movies. This one is apt to bring people out of their homes in droves — and into the theatres again. Don't miss it!

Sophie Tucker, the one and only, drew a standing ovation at her opening at the Cocoanut Grove and deservedly so, for this 70 year old entertainer packs a wallop with her double entendre songs, her husky baritone, and her way with a wiggle. When she put on those gold capri pants for a calypso number, the room practically fell apart. Soph ladles out the sentiment and the nostalgia in heavy doses, she's out and out schmaltzy, but she's the kind of entertainer that is almost extinct these days. As such, she's a treat. Next at the Grove is Tony Bennett who has been doing all those Ford commercials ala song of late. He has arrived, however,

Pick OF THE Pix

BY AUBREY DAHL

George Wallace, of Huntington Park, writes, "... you tend to give the same kind of reviews the picture originally got when it came out. This is bad." Oh, come now, George... they weren't all bad. "Keep up the good work and don't pay any attention to those squares who write in and tell you how to run your column. Except me." No exceptions, George.

"The Citadel." (11) April 4, 8:00. 1938. Adapted from the moving novel by A. J. Cronin, this excellent film is an effective plea for integrity in the medical profession, phrased in a story that is absorbing and exciting. Robert Donat is a young medico who undergoes the rigors of practicing his craft in a small mining town and, with colleague Ralph Richardson, fights the authorities to establish sanitation facilities that will prevent the continuance of disease. These honest efforts are sidetracked, however, as Donat is caught up in a lucrative London practice that taxes his skills not at all, and becomes so imperfect that he fails friend Richardson in a time of crisis. The film is frankly sentimental, always entertaining and frequently truthful, and the principals, along with Rosalind Russell, do fine jobs under the direction of King Vidor.

"Night of the Hunter." (2) Mar. 29, 10:00. 1954. Paul Gregory produced it, Charles Laughton directed it, Davis Grubb wrote the novel from which it was adapted, Robert Mitchum and Shelley Winters star in it, and it achieved a considerable reputation when it was released a few years ago as an intelligent picture about greed and hypocrisy. I have learned, however, that this film received over twenty-five censor cuts for its TV showing, a procedure I regard as ridiculous and inexcusable. As originally conceived, this movie told the story of an itinerant preacher, Mitchum, who gets a line on some hidden money and flim flams farmer's widow Winters and her two children in an effort to get it. Violence is his recourse and an iron faith his opposition in the climax of a vigorous picture that is a bit arty at times but nevertheless possesses the real bite of art. Too bad.

"Walk a Crooked Mile." (5) Mar. 30, 7:30. 1948. This is a spy-FBI-Scotland Yard-Who's got the secret papers affair featuring Dennis O'Keefe (FBI) and Louis Hayward (SY) as a couple of operatives courting a great deal of personal danger in order to uncover a gang of Communists who steal atomic secrets. With Louise Albritton and Raymond Burr, as a vicious hood. This is one case Perry Mason doesn't win.

"Brimstone." (4) Mar. 29, 11:15. 1949. Rod Cameron, Walter Brennan and Forrest Tucker in a western with enough fights, bank and stage holdups, cattle rustles and fast draws to satisfy all devotees of the type.

"Affair in Monte Carlo." (9) Beginning Mar. 31, 9:00. 1952. I saw comedian Lennie Bruce on Hank Weaver's show the other night and in his very amusing commentary on the movies, he said he classed them in three categories: Excellent, good, and rotten. This picture is neither excellent nor good. It's about a wealthy widow, Merle Oberon, who meets a no good gambler, Richard Todd, falls for him and loses him, all in twenty-four hours. Leo Genn narrates the story and is rarely seen. Fortunate fellow.

"Picture of Dorian Gray." (11) April 30, 9:00. 1944. The Oscar Wilde tale about the debaucher whose dissipations are never evident on his person but appear, instead on a portrait of him, is told here in fine fashion. With Hurd Hatfield, George Sanders, Angela Lansbury and Donna Reed.

"April Fool." (18) April 1, 4:30 a.m. 1958. Secret showing of "Bridge Over the River Kwai," for pay TV (charge $10), to be titled for this showing, "Kwai Me a River," with Julie London Bridge.

March 29, 1958

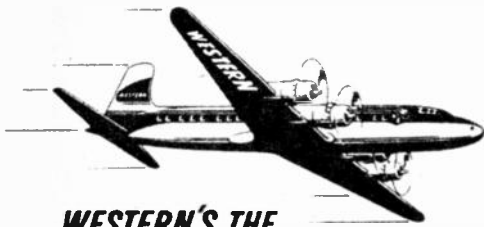

PETER LAWFORD, DONNA REED, GEORGE SANDERS in "PICTURE OF DORIAN GRAY." Sunday, Mar. 30, Channel 11, 9:00 P.M.

MERLE OBERON, RICHARD TODD in "AFFAIR IN MONTE CARLO." All-week starting Monday, Mar. 31, Channel 9.

SHELLEY WINTERS, ROBERT MITCHUM in "THE NIGHT OF THE HUNTER," Saturday, Mar. 29, Channel 2, 10:00 P.M.

SKIPPER FRANK'S SCAM-O-GRAM

Hi!

Here are two puzzlers that will perk up the conversation and interest of any group. The next time the conversation turns to science and its modern achievements throw out this poser: What is it that is neither animal, vegetable or mineral? It is not solid, liquid or gas. It is a positive thing that we all see any day and it multiplies itself although it is not alive. It is never still and is extremely important to us all, for it would be impossible to live without it. It is not part of any person or any thing yet it could be part of everything. Can you name this elusive thing that is so extremely important to us and that we all see every day. Think it over and I'll give you the answer after the next puzzle.

Consider this. What is it that you can touch but cannot feel? That you cannot live without, though it is totally useless to you? It moves and is clearly visible under certain conditions. It changes color and can fall on anything without smashing. You were born with it and are continually losing it but you really don't care because you know that it is sure to return to you. The average person gets rid of his when he goes to bed although some have it in bed too. Can you name this thing that we all see and have almost every day?

Let your friends discuss these two mysterious "Whatsits" for some time before you reveal the answers. The first is Flame or Fire. It is neither solid, liquid or gas but only a process of combustion. The second is your shadow which would be impossible to live without since sunlight is vital to us all.

Have you entered our photo contest yet? Start by getting your free entry blank from any Los Angeles Camera Exchange Store or send a postcard to Photo Contest, Box 580, Monrovia, Calif. Kodak Pony II, Movie Cameras, Projector and Screen are the prizes so get going.

Phil Brizzola is the SCAM O GRAM prize winning letter writer of the week.

See you next week.

Bachelor Father Gives Old Stuff New Twist

—By BILL WEBER—

Bachelor Father

Alternate Sundays, 7:30 pm.

KNXT, Ch. 2

Bachelor Father is one of those things that hardened (or softened) television viewers are likely to by-pass due to a title which has that ring of having been around for years. And certainly the subject matter of a male being reduced to utter helplessness by the antics of a youngster is not startlingly new. The condemning title puts this series in the unhappy classification as being one of those things you turn to in either idle or desperate curiosity.

But for whatever reason you may turn to Bachelor Father, appearing as an alternate with the Jack Benny show, your experimentation will turn up quite a surprise. Bachelor Father lives down its damaging title, and moreover, turns up as very funny entertainment, a refreshingly gay romp that skitters along with a saucy bounce not too often seen in television's serials.

Bachelor Father's achievement in turning old stuff into something new and bright is hardly an accident. One has the feeling that perhaps the writers undertook some sort of a dare to see what they could do with old stuff. Whatever may have motivated them, they have proved some sort of a point that the writer is the key man in determining the success of a vehicle and that no matter what creative minds come into contact with a script all their creativity is merely surplus baggage when it comes to rescuing an ineffectual script. In short, Bachelor Father is a writer's triumph.

Casting plays an important part in Bachelor Father's success. John Forsythe, playing the title role, is one of the most delightful, deft, and charming actors to appear in a long time. And the same may be said of the youngster who plays his daughter. Both play their roles with such fresh and sprightly verve as to suggest they had never heard the characters had never before been portrayed.

Bachelor Father brings up the old saw that there is nothing new under the sun when it comes to story material ideas. More importantly it indicates that it is the fresh creative approach that spells the difference no matter how old the material, and that the creative mind establishes audience contact through his own highly individualized slant or whatever may be the level of his peculiar genius. The great tragedies of the Greek playwrights were a reworking of the old legends, and as every school boy knows, Shakespeare reworked old material with rather satisfactory results.

Bachelor Father is old stuff. Although Shakespeare had no hand in it, viewers will find it one of the most enjoyable in television lists of comedy series.

OCEANSIDE

TREASURE HUNT

Milas Hinshaw, executive producer of KCOP's Monday night Treasure show, announced this week that Oceanside civic leader James Sullivan has contributed 100 silver dollars as a treasure to be sought out by adventurous Southlanders on March 30.

The treasure hunt is being termed a "picnic basket treasure" by the Bill Burrud office. TV-Radio Life is co-operating in the venture by printing, in this issue, a map of the area in which the treasure is hidden. Oceanside is located about 85 miles south of Los Angeles. At the rendezvous point illustrated on the map, Mr. Hinshaw will be on hand to broadcast clues to the whereabouts of the $100 treasure.

NEXT WEEK, A FULL REPORT on TV-Radio Life's big star-laden 18th birthday party. This week, a quote from that wonderful Music Man, Meredith Willson, who emceed the Awards for us. We discussed the fascinating and often rapid-fire lyrics, the punch of "76 Trombones," and he suggested a listen to his purely instrumental "Music Man" album. Told him which songs I liked best, then asked him which one the audience left the theater humming.

"They don't go out humming," he confided. "They march out."

mainly as a result of his TV work and will probably live down those commercials in time.

Joe Bleeden, Ted Switzer, and Joe Morheim not only are setting up their own publicity business but they are also producing Here's Julie on KCOP. It debuted recently at midnight on Friday and certainly these very likable guys have set up a chore for themselves. With no budget to speak of and with only one camera, they have a herculean job. We wish them luck on both their show and their new business.

Odds and Ends: Lamont Johnson, who has directed so many Matinee shows, is set to direct all of the plays at La Jolla this summer. A nice break for a talented guy... Roddy McDowall goes into "First-born" on Broadway end of this month with Katharine Cornell... Constance Cameron is getting a reputation as the lady who is perfection in these fey roles. Her next is the 24th on Harbor Command... Andrew Fenady and Irvin Kershner, two men who worked for Paul Coates' Confidential File, have an impressive start in the movie business. They have just produced "Stakeout on Dope Street" for a Warner Bros. release and it's a solid job on all counts.

DURING HIS LONG football career, Elroy "Crazylegs" Hirsch always got prepared for the big game in the locker room. Now that he's the official host on KABC-TV's 76 Sports Club, Elroy finds himself getting ready in "the make-up room."

ELROY HAS PERMANENTLY RETIRED from the gridiron to devote full time to TV and teaching children how to participate in various sports. At the ABC-TV studios, Jack Smith, new emcee of You Asked For It, stopped by to wish Elroy luck on his new career.

AROUND THE
76 SPORTS CLUB
CIRCLE WITH ELROY
"CRAZYLEGS"
HIRSCH

EACH WEEK ELROY features a special guest on his 76 Sports Club. Typical example: Pete Newell, California's basketball coach, who gave youngsters pointers on how to handle themselves on the court.

ACTING AS ANNOUNCER, associate producer, and host of the local pickup on the 76 Sports Club is Fred Hessler—well-known to local sports fans for his baseball telecasts.

CHEER LEADERS from Victor Valley High School let loose with a loud one during the KABC-TV portion of the 76 Sports Club.

AFTER IT'S ALL OVER—the inevitable autographs—and the inevitable smile from one of the real great guys in the world of sports—Elroy "Crazylegs" Hirsch.

Controversy Comes Naturally

By Ted Hilgenstuhler

CAPITOL HILL to California is not the most sensational name for a TV show. It doesn't have quite the appeal of Panic, Climax! or even Have Gun, Will Travel.

However, it is not only an accurate and descriptive title, but it is extremely apropos and really quite dramatic and newsworthy—once the story-behind-the-story is known.

As Bill Whitley, director of public affairs for KNXT, explains the situation: "Capitol Hill to California is unique because to my knowledge it is the first telecast of its kind a local studio has ever attempted. I also believe it is the most important public affairs program that we do."

The story actually began when several Congressmen and Senators in Washington wanted to "keep in touch with the voters back home in their home state."

"Individual congressmen just don't get enough exposure in the local communities," Whitley continues. "I visit Washington several times a year and I have never met busier or more devoted men than our representatives. That was the original purpose of our program: to let the various communities in Southern California know exactly what their elected representatives were doing for them."

The Congressmen and Senators were so sold on the idea that they even offered to pay for their own programs.

"But we didn't want to do it that way," Whitley further explains. "For our sake, as well as the guests on our program, we wanted to maintain production control. They may know more about legislation but we felt we knew more about producing television shows."

As a result, beginning last year, Whitley made special arrangements for the 20-odd Congressmen and two Senators who represent Southern California communities to appear in person at the WTOP studios in Washington.

"The show is done 'live' during the week and transmitted to New York where it is kinescoped. Strange as it may seem, Washington has no kinescope equipment. From New York the program is flown to us at KNXT and we put it on the air on Sunday," Whitley states.

Now all this is an expensive operation—especially for one local station. However, this is not too unusual for the CBS network—and especially for KNXT, Channel 2 in Los Angeles. For several years now KNXT has garnered Emmy awards for being the "outstanding local station" offering the best public service programs.

Each year, according to Whitley, CBS-TV spends over 11 million dollars for public affairs programs. And KNXT alone runs up a tab of a half-million dollars.

These may seem like fantastic figures—especially on a local level. But that's what the man said—and he should know—because he's the head of the department.

No Current Problem

As for the contents of the program, moderator Wells Church has few problems making it lively and timely. Many shows—such as the type Mike Wallace and Paul Coates are noted for—try to stir up as much controversy as possible.

"We don't have to inspire controversy," Whitley declares. "When you have four politicians on hand—and we always divide the panel up equally with two Democrats and two Republicans—controversy comes naturally."

Unlike other TV shows, Capitol Hill to California doesn't have any problems either lining up "top personalities." During their first telecast of the current year, Senator Knowland agreed to appear. At the last-minute, Knowland said he couldn't make it.

Who served as his "replacement?" None other than the Vice President of the United States, Richard Nixon.

"I happened to be in Washington at the time," Whitley recalls. "And I wasn't even too sure that Mr. Nixon would appear—because after all, he does have a few other things on his mind."

"Before the show, I waited anxiously for the Vice President to appear. Finally, some policemen entered the studio. They proceeded to check every room, from top to bottom."

"Instead of being worried—as one would normally expect—I was quite relieved. Because the officers were from the Secret Service. Now that they were on the scene—taking every precaution for the Vice President's safety—I knew that Mr. Nixon would soon follow them."

She Dyed For Her Art

Kathleen Crowley is one of TV's most decorative figures. Here's an illuminating introduction to the young miss.

By Jon Bruce

KATHLEEN CROWLEY has been on TV in so many shows that she is beginning to be the medium's favorite leading lady. Her long stint as feminine lead on the popular Waterfront alone commands attention.

But the luscious young lady had one rule in her career — she would never dye her hair. It was a big thing to her. Then along came Mr. Walt Disney and a picture called "Westward Ho The Wagons," and Kathleen was told the lead could be hers — if she dyed her hair from its natural brunette to red. She dyed it fast. She is so anxious to do the right kinds of roles now that she would probably dye it any color if the part were good enough.

Here are some pertinent facts about this young lady who was once a beauty contest winner and who has also appeared in several movies.

"Television has taught me so much and given me such a great opportunity to work with fine actors," Kathleen says. "It finally gave me the chance to do something other than straight dramatic roles" ... she got her first off beat part in an On Trial episode when producer Collier Young saw her newly dyed red hair and gave her the role ... this opened the doors for her and she has played important roles in almost every TV show in town.

TV gave her her first acting opportunity when in 1951 in New York she auditioned for Robert Montgomery's production of "A Star Is Born" and got the role of Vicki Lester ... she followed this with "Jane Eyre." ...

Physically speaking, she weighs 100 pounds, is 5 feet 2½ inches in height ... born in Green Bank, New Jersey, a small town of about 200 people ... she always wanted to be an actress ... when she moved to Egg Harbor townspeople in the hamlet sponsored her as Miss Egg Harbor in a preliminary contest toward the 1949 Miss America Pageant finals ... she only hoped to win a scholarship ... she reached the finals as Miss New Jersey and was awarded two scholarships ...

She enrolled at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York ... two days later she was offered a job in Mike Todd's "As Girls Go" as a chorus girl but she turned it down ... "I wanted to be a dramatic actress," she said ...

Things were rough for her then ... she lived for days on nothing but bouillon ... she went 120 days without work and with no money ... but things changed when she was given a wonderful summer stock contract ... then she returned to N.Y. and TV.

20th Century-Fox signed her to a contract and then she left the studio for free-lancing.

She shuns night spots and parties and lives in seclusion in the Hollywood hills ... she reads constantly and loves to listen to music ... she likes to put on old clothes, curl up in a chair and listen to records ... her pet extravagance is food which she eats a lot of but curbs any over-indulgence ... she claims that since she doesn't smoke or drink eating is her antidote for nerves ... she is an expert water skier, enjoys sailing and tennis ...

She is one of the more attractive "figures" on whom TV producers have come to depend.

THE BIG giveaway shows are defeating their own purpose — the average viewer can't even understand the question, much less the answer.

George Sanders — no relation to the actor of the same name — is the amiable host of KHJ-TV's Play Signal show. He and Helen Barnhardt are the keepers of the fish bowl and the numbered ping pong balls and are the leaders of what George described as a 'family fun game that everybody can play.

When George defined giveaway shows as self-defeating he gave as reason for his remark the fact that "the original novelty of the tremendous sums involved has worn off and the viewer has been left in the position of an almost disinterested spectator. When the questions became more involved — and nine out of ten of the questions can only be answered by an authority in that particular field — then the viewer lost his ability to participate. In the old days of radio," George expanded, "the listener was often able to come up with the right answer before the contestant could. Only a few of the current TV quiz shows have maintained that quality. I think that Tic Tac Dough is a fair game and by 'fair' I mean that the at-home audience is capable of answering the questions. 'To Tell The Truth' is another game that the viewer is able to enjoy through guessing along with the panel. Our show," he concluded frankly, "is a variation of Bingo, which became popular during the depression. It's a game that everybody can play — and you don't have to be a Rhodes Scholar."

Play Signal stresses the fun element rather than the monetary reward and as a result "great gobs of people," according to emcee Sanders, watch and enjoy the game. "Of the half a million people who we estimate watch and play each week, we have never had a repeat winner — which, of course, illustrates our belief that anyone can play and anyone can win. The sponsors have been pleased enough with the response which has greeted the show that recently they renewed our contract for another 13 weeks. A pleased sponsor and a respectable rating are just about the best indication of a successful show there is."

George also commented on the reaction given the show by the independent Signal gasoline dealers. "One station operator," George said, "reported that his 'come back' business had really improved since the inauguration of the show — business which started with the request for a Play Signal card."

Shifting the conversation away from the mechanics of the show and onto the personalities involved, George sketched a brief biography of his cohort, Helen Barnhardt.

"She's a lot of fun to work with," he said. "Besides being a very successful model — she has appeared in almost every good national magazine and on such shows as 'Climax' and 'It Could Be You' — she is 'family folks.' I guess that's why we work well together — we both enjoy our respective home lives. We both have children — she has two and I have three." At this point George laughed and said, "I'd like to straighten out a little misunderstanding: some people think that Helen and I are married — we're not. The basis for the confusion is pretty understandable though — my wife's name is Helen, too."

A Woman and the Atom

By Jean Corlis

I JUST LOVE IT when you get off on that technical kick," a woman listener wrote to KNX's news commentator and reporter, Ruth Ashton. Ruth got a chuckle out of that, for "getting off on a technical kick" has been her hobby since 1946 when she was assigned to a CBS documentary unit which set out to explore the atom. "During World War II I worked with Bob Trout at CBS headquarters in New York and I was still on staff just after the war when Edward R. Murrow returned from Europe with a number of projects in mind," Ruth commented. "It was his idea that staff members be given assignments to do major research on the vital questions of the day. "It was a time when everyone was very fearful of the atomic age," Ruth continued. "The Atomic Energy Commission wanted to take the fear from the minds of the people by showing them there was a sunny side to the atom — that there were good effects as well as bad. I was one of the CBS team assigned to explore and write a script about the various facts of atomic science."

Ruth's assignment took her to Princeton to interview Dr. Einstein. Meeting the great man, about the only question she could summon up courage to ask was, "Is this the end of the world?" Dr. Einstein was not too hopeful but he did advise her where to go for the answers.

After being cleared by the F.B.I. Ruth went to Oak Ridge, Tennessee to do some research, and later she went to visit Dr. Robert Oppenheimer in California.

"This was a very great experience," Ruth remarked "I was tremendously impressed with this great scientist who was also a very humble man. His office, on the second or third floor of one of the college buildings, was a large room with a bare wooden floor and very little furniture. We discussed the U.N. control of the atom, which Dr. Oppenheimer felt was very necessary, and he was more optimistic than Dr. Einstein. With a broad view of all the possibilities to which atomic science could be put, he couldn't be altogether hopeless."

The result of Ruth's five months of research was the script for "The Sunny Side of the Atom," for which a Lux Radio Theatre was pre-empted in 1947. Through this broadcast millions of listeners were able to cast off their fears and look forward to beneficial effects of the atomic age.

"At that time," Ruth recalled, "the sunniest aspects of the atom were the prospects for its use in medical and scientific research, and predictions were made as to when atomic power would be used for industrial purposes. All these things have come to pass. Radio-active isotopes have become of incalculable value as 'tracers' in the fields of medicine, science and engineering. Where X-rays show nothing, a radio-active substance such as sodium or iodine can be traced through the body and its reaction enables the doctor to make an exact diagnosis. Radio-isotopes can heal, too, when placed in the body. In science, radio-isotopes are used to find out what nutrients are taken from the soil to feed the plants, and to trace those plants through the body of an animal to determine how the animal makes use of his food. Atomic science is used to probe the strata of the earth for oil, and industrially to test the wearing qualities of products such as piston rings, and for power to furnish electricity for a city."

Ruth stopped talking momentarily and her eyes twinkled as she remarked, "There I go on the 'technical kick' but I think it's important that women understand some of the wonderful things about this scientific age. All of these things affect the future of women and the future of their children — they can't afford to ignore science. However, I feel just as strongly that scientists cannot afford to ignore people."

"When I was in college I majored in math, which I loved, and I was constantly complaining that there was too much emphasis on the humanities in our school for girls. On the other hand I felt that the boys we dated from Cal-Tech were a little lop-sided because they had too much emphasis on science and not enough on the humanities. I think we should avoid lop-sided men and women."

Ruth Ashton is an outstanding example of a non-lop-sided woman. Besides being an objective news reporter, an earnest researcher in the field of science, and a humanitarian in her coverage of what is classified as "feature stories," Ruth is the devoted mother of two small girls and wife of newsman Ed Conklin.

Listeners who tune in to hear Ruth Ashton on KNX every afternoon Monday through Friday spend 25 minutes with one of radio's most unusual personalities, a woman who has covered the news from the landing of the Allied troops on the beaches of Normandy to the sound of North American's giant engines for rockets, and yet is completely and utterly feminine.
