DENTIST QUARREL ABOUT Sensible!

A RIB OF Pavage! DEBUTANTE

HUW un

(But the civilized way to combat "PINK TOOTH BRUSH" is IPANA and MASSAGE)

N THIS PICTURE, you see a girl chewing vigorously on a rib of beef. Viewed from the angle of good manners, it's pretty bad ... And the debutante is right when she says, "It's simply savage!"

But the dentist is right, too. And it needn't surprise you to hear any dentist say: "That's a good, common-sense demonstration of the healthy way to use teeth and gums."

In modern dental circles, it is freely admitted that the lack of coarse foods and vigorous chewing is largely responsible for a host of gum disorders. Naturally, gums grow sensitive on a soft food diet. Naturally, they grow flabby, weak and tender. And, naturally, that warning "tinge of pink" eventually appears upon your tooth brush.

"Pink Tooth Brush" Tells the Truth

And the truth is—your teeth and gums need better care. You should change to Ipana plus massage ... You should begin, today, the double duty you must practice for complete oral health. So start now to massage your gums with Ipana every time you brush your teeth. Rub a little extra Ipana into your gums, or brush or fingertip—and do it regularly.

For Ipana plus massage helps stimulate circulation. It helps your gums win back their firmness. It helps them recover their strength and their resistance. They feel livelier, better, healthier. And healthy gums have little to fear from the really serious gum troubles—gingivitis, pyorrhea and Vincent's disease.

So be reasonable. For your smile's sake, for the sake of your good looks and your good health-begin today with Ipana plus massage.

IPANA plus massage is your dentist's ablest assistant in the home care of your teeth and gums.

From all parts of the country, from all sorts of people, letters pour in. Like the one

Lifebuoy cleanses deeply, gently. "Patch" tests on the skins of hundreds of women show it is more than 20% milder than many so-called "beauty soaps." Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau

GREASELESS DISHWASHING?

USE RINSO. ITS RICH SUDS ABSORD THE GREASE ... MAKE IT VANISH. DISHES COME CLEAN WITHOUT A TRACE OF GREASE . AND RINSO IS MARVELOUS FOR THE WEEK'S WASH, TOO. IT'S ALL I USE BECAUSE —

Rinso alone, without the aid of bar soaps, chips or powders, gives a tubful of rich suds that soak clothes whiter without scrubbing or boiling. Even grimy edges come clean with a little gentle rubbing between the fingers. And the dirt doesn't "settle back" because Rinso suds have "lifting power." The dirt is held in suspension. Of course this safe "soakand-rinse" method is not only easy on me -it's easy on the clothes; that means Rinso saves me lots of money. Rinso is all I ever use for the dishes, woodwork, basins and floors. It saves time and work all through the house. Rinso is recommended by the makers of 33 famous washers for safety and for whiter, brighter clothes. It is tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute.

RECORDS MAY SOON

VANISH FROM THE

AIR-HERE'S WHY

REFLECTIONS IN THE RADIO MIRROR

OW many times a day do you tune in your radio and hear records being played? Would you feel deprived if the station you listened to no longer played these records of your favorites?

That is the situation you may soon be facing. It's important enough for several of the networks' biggest stars to have joined hands in a concerted action to ban the records they have made from the air.

In January a decision was handed down in a Philadelphia court of law which forbade a radio station in the city to play two of Fred Waring's most popular recordings. It was the first time in the history of this country that a decision on this point had been made. Fred has been fighting for over a year for such a decision. His point was this:

The last time he made a record, quite a long time ago, he made it for a recording company that agreed to put a "For Home Use Only" label on each record. That is, you could buy it and play it on your phonograph, but radio stations weren't supposed to buy it and play it over the air. The Philadelphia station played it anyway, feeling that since no copyright precedent had ever been established, it had a perfect right to do with it as it pleased.

Now a court has decided in Fred Waring's favor. The case probably will be appealed in a higher court. It may take a year before a final judgment is handed down, perhaps by the Supreme Court itself.

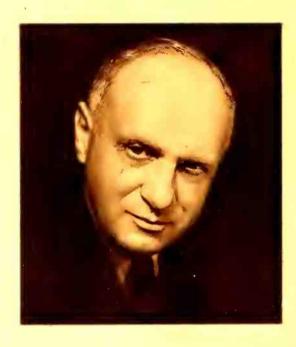

Stars who have commercial programs feel strongly on this point. They claim that when a sponsor is paying them handsomely each week for a program on a large network of stations, local stations should not have unqualified liberty to play their records.

I asked Guy Lombardo for his viewpoint and he wrote me, in part:

"Imagine my astonishment to learn that during a recent broadcast for our present sponsor, whose network included a certain radio station in a Southern city, a smaller station in that same city, at the same hour, broadcast a 'SPON-SORED' program using old Lombardo phonograph records, putting me in direct competition with myself! It is quite evident that the smaller station had sold its sponsor on the idea of capitalizing on the name and the fact that his Radio owes no man a greater debt than to the late Samuel Lionel Rothafel. It was Roxy who first lent broadcasting the warming quality of humanness—the basis of its popularity.

program and our live program would be on the air simultaneously!"

That incident is not an ordinary one but it shows what can happen and it is a perfect example of why artists like Abe Lyman and Bing Crosby say it is unfair for their records to be put on the air while they're broadcasting. I wonder if you who tune in during the day to records of those bands and singers you like best, hear enough of their music to discourage you from tuning in their regular network programs. If you do, isn't it logical for these stars to want their records banned?

I've made fairly certain that Ed Wynn will be broadcasting some time in February, though not for his former sponsor. And Jack Pearl, too, should be on a national program in a short time. Strange that these two comedians, whose rankings while they were heard were in the top flight, should be plotting comebacks at the same time. It is even rumored that Wynn will change his comedy style, a suggestion 1 find it hard to believe. As Eddie Cantor pointed out to me, it takes years for a comedian to develop and perfect his style to the point where it is paying good dividends. And Eddie claims that it is suicide for him to change suddenly. So I think that when you hear Ed Wynn again, it will be the same Wynn of the past two years.

I want to quote from a pamphlet called Radio Review, edited by the Women's National Radio Committee, which represents a large part of all the women's clubs in America. What this pamphlet has to say seems to me significant:

"Just now we find that Phil Baker has caught up with and surpassed Jack Benny." Also, it says, the readers like the Southernaires Quartet, Hollywood Hotel, and Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick. Which ought to give you more about which to argue.

Don't let Adolescent Pimples give YOU a job problem

ROM the beginning of adolescence—at about 13, until 25, or even longer—young people are frequently worried by pimples.

Important glands develop and final growth takes place during this time. This causes disturbances throughout the body. The skin becomes oversensitive. Waste poisons in the blood irritate this sensitive skin. Pimples pop out!

But you can overcome these adolescent pimples. Fleischmann's fresh Yeast clears the skin irritants out of your blood. Unsightly pimples disappear.

Eat Fleischmann's Yeast 3 times a day, before meals—plain, or in a little water—until your skin is entirely clear. Start today.

THE news, like the music in the goofy song, goes 'round and around and comes out like this:

Certain big business interests, rallying to the Republican banner to wage war on Roosevelt and his New Deal policies, appropriate the biggest sum ever spent in a political campaign to reach the voters via the radio. But the Democrats have a man who doesn't have to worry about the cost of radio time... He, of course, is Franklin D. Roosevelt... As President of the United States he picks his own spots on the air and doesn't have to pay a penny for the privilege! The night he addressed Congress he chose the period from 9 to 10 p. m., thus preventing the coast to coast broadcasts of four commercials on the networks at an estimated loss—to them—

Television prepares to round that corner with a suddenness that will startle the country... An established success in the laboratory, the problem remaining is to decide upon the type of transmission and receiver to employ... Several different systems are being experimented with and to bring television successfully into the homes it is necessary to standardize the equipment... Realizing that sound-and-sight projection involves radical changes in style of entertainment, broadcasting companies, advertising agencies, engineers, artists and others concerned are experimenting, more or less secretly, with the "new art forms" deemed necessary.

Fred Allen, steadily climbing in public esteem to the exalted position as the ace comedian of the air, signs a new contract guaranteeing his performances on the kilocycles for three more years. Phil Baker, likewise in high favor with funloving listeners, renews his contract for another thirteen-week period and his continuance in the studios until June is assured. George Burns and Gracie Allen, returning to Hollywood for more movies, play three weeks of vaudeville en route to the Coast and collect $10,000 per week. Four years ago their stage salary was $1,250 weekly. Popularity on the air is the explanation for their big boost in

Meanwhile, Harry Einstein, the ex-advertising writer and Eddie Cantor's "Parkyakarkus," finds the Greek dialect pays him handsome dividends and betrays no hankering for Hamlet or any other ham role.

BECAUSE he persisted in taking potshots at Mussolini and Hitler, Alexander Woollcott is no longer calling attention on the air to the nutritious properties of Cream of Wheat. established himself as a story teller par excellence on the ether, became arrogant in his attitude toward his benefactors and labored under the mis-apprehension he was the Omnipotent of the Air. This delusion was created in of the Air. This delusion was created in his own mind, more or less, by the success which attended his ballyhoo of books. His "While Rome Burns" of last year and his current "Woollcott Reader" became best sellers; he boosted James Hilton's "Good-Bye, Mr. Chips" to similar glory, and the tradition was built up that all Mr. Woollcott had to do was to spout a few words of honeyed praise and Presto! any book so honored was a commercial success.

However, the record indicates the literateur is not infallible as a press agent. He went into ecstasies extolling the virtues of Evelyn Waugh's "A Handful of Dust," but, perversely enough, Mr. Woollcott's public refused to respond to his enticements and the volume gathered the dust of its publisher's extendence rather than of its publisher's storehouse rather than the golden dust of the book-stalls.

A DVERTISERS spent $86,000,000 to exploit their products on the air in 1935, thus giving to commercial broadcasting its best year by $13,000,000. Naturally an industry which is so manifestly growing is attractive to investors and all over the country stock in radio stations is booming. Promoters are by with projects for more networks and all sorts of jects for more networks and all sorts of schemes are under way to stake out claims in the ether Eldorado.

For Lavender and Old Lace, sponsored by Bayer Aspirin, see page 53 — 8 o'clock.

She first won fame in Victor Herbert's operettas as the "Kiss Me Again Girl." But she's famous as a cook too.

COOKING for LENT

By MRS. MARGARET SIMPSON

ERE it is Lent again, and that means, for a lot of you, a revamping of the family cuisine to allow for meatless days. But you don't want to lose the energy provided by meat, so you turn to other foods which provide it—milk, cheese and eggs. Use them in combination for main dishes, to give added richness to vegetables, for thick creamy soups and rich desserts.

I asked Fritzi Scheff for suggestions for Lenten cookery. Fritzi, you know, is Viennese, and as famous among her friends as a cook as she is to the rest of the world as the "Kiss Me Again Girl" and as the star of the Lavender and Old Lace program over CBS.

"Milk and cream dishes of all sorts," she told me. "Noodles"—the Viennese influence — "with white sauce and theese, eggs florentine, baked potatoes with poached eggs, rice pudding with chestnuts, scalloped oysters, zwefschken knoedel—

"Zwefschken knoedel," she explained, "is a dessert made of fresh black plums, cooked in potato dough. Boil four large potatoes in their jackets, remove from the water and cool. When cold, peel and roll them until you have a soft, lumpless flour. Add a lightly beaten egg and enough milk to make a soft dough, and roll thin on a floured board. Cut the dough into squares and into each square fold a pitted black plum, pinching the dough together to make a little pillow. Cook in boiling water as you cook dumplings, until the dough is cooked through. Next, drain the dumplings and place them in a buttered casserole. Cover with buttered crumbs, sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon and cook in a moderate oven for half an hour."

Although this recipe calls for black plums it sounded so delicious that I couldn't wait for plums, but substituted canned apricots instead, and I don't see how it could be improved upon.

Since white sauce is an essential ingredient in eggs florentine and in the noodle dish which Miss Scheff suggested, it will be helpful to include here a basic white sauce recipe: melt one tablespoon of butter over low heat; stir in one tablespoonful of flour and mix to a smooth paste, add one-fourth tablespoon salt and pepper to taste. To one-half cup of canned evaporated milk add one-half cup of water, and add to the mixture, stirring constantly to avoid lumping. (If you have difficulty in making a smooth sauce, try using a double boiler).

You will notice that canned evaporated milk is specified in this recipe. This is because it is easier to get sauce of the desired consistency by varying the proportions of canned milk and water, than by using fresh milk and varying the amount of flour. A thick sauce, of course, requires more milk than water in the mixture, and a thinner sauce requires a leaner mixture of milk and water. For cooking in general, in fact, many people prefer canned milk, for it is easy to keep a supply on hand, and if only part of a can is used at one time the remainder will keep sweet and fresh in your ice box until you are ready to use it. And now for the eggs florentine.

Drain cooked spinach and chop fine, then add one cup of white sauce for each cup of spinach. Fill individual buttered ramekins with the creamed spinach, making nests with hollowed centers. In each nest place a poached egg, cover with white sauce, sprinkle with grated cheese and salt and paprika to taste, and bake in a moderate oven until brown. If you prefer more cheese flavoring, add grated cheese to your white sauce just before removing it from the fire. The grated American cheese, which comes in sifter top con-

The same cheese-flavored white sauce is used for baked noodles. Place a layer of cooked noodles in a buttered casserole, cover with the sauce, add another layer of noodles and repeat until the dish is filled. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs, grated cheese and paprika and brown in a moderate oven. If desired, alternate the layers of noodles with layers of sliced hard cooked eggs before putting in the white sauce. This same method can be used for preparing left-over vegetables so that the occasional difficult individual who "can't eat left-overs" will cry for more. "What about your baked potato and poached egg dish?" I asked Miss Scheff. "That is one of my favorites." she answered. "Cut the top off a large, baked potato and scoop out the inside, being careful not to break the skin. Now break up the potato center with a fork, add salt and pepper to taste, mix with milk until the consistency is about the same as mashed potato, and return the mixture to the potato shell, hollowing it out on top. In the hollow, place a poached egg, cover with buttered crumbs or grated cheese, brown in the oven and serve piping hot.'

HESE cold winter nights, radio has done more than its share to provide entertainment for the snowbound. What's more, listeners have had time to pay attention to programs. We've received an abundance of complaints and compliments, but the contest still goes on—$20.00 for the best letter, $10.00 for the second best and $1.00 each for the next five selected. Why not write your letter today? Address it to the Editor, Radio Mirror, 122 East 42nd Street, New York City, and mail it not later than March 26.

$20.00 PRIZE

Pardon My Southern Accent The other day I turned on the radio just in time to hear a play. Its subject was the rivalry of a Northern spy and a Southern soldier for the love of a charming Southern girl. The play was well written, interesting and had plenty of action. I settled down to enjoy it but presently was aware that something was not just right. Soon I detected that the part of the Southern girl was played by a young lady from "Way Back East." Though the girl was painstakingly omitting all r's, talking slowly and filling her accents with personal charm, she was not convincingly Southern. I expect that all her listeners in the East or North thought her very Southern, but she didn't fool one of us South of the Ohio.

"Plenty of Southern girls sitting around waiting for an audition in that very studio," I said to myself. "It's too much to expect a youngster to throw overboard her mother tongue at each change of a script. The child is so intent on her r's that she forgets and clips each o short in the best Boston manner."

I place the highest value on sincerity, clearness, reality and wholesomeness and believe, with all my heart, that the programs with these qualities will remain popular and make radio listening a more important part of life.

She Now Understands Boake Carfer Since reading an interesting account of Boake Carter, most of my antipathy to his too-English accent and my difficulty in understanding him have disappeared. He is a very fine news commentator, but his ability was almost lost on me because of my exasperation at his peculiarities of speech. Then, just because I seemed to become a little acquainted with him, understood his background somewhat, I have been better able to understand him. I wonder if that isn't the reason we find fault with so many performers and performances?

ETHEL B. SAGE, Eaton Rapids, Mich.

$1.00 PRIZE A Boost for Recordings

I didn't like May Crowley's attitude about stations consuming their spare time with phonograph records. I will admit that the real thing is much better, but when certain favorite orchestras and singers can be heard, records are very enjoyable.

May, you've probably heard Kay Kayser and his music from the Blackhawk in Chicago, haven't. you? Well, he hasn't been broadcasting since May 17 (not that I know of, anyway), but during the summer and fall I have heard him on records over seventy times. He is one of my favorite artists, and the records, naturally, entertained me. Hal Kemp and Jan Garber were on tour this summer and records were the only means of hearing them. One of my friends, since she saw Ozzie Nelson and Harriet Hilliard, is simply crazy about them, so she enjoys hearing them even on records.

You, yourself, probably like Bing

Crosby since you mentioned him in your letter the way you did. Honestly, wasn't it better to hear him on a record than not at all?

MARY SUE SIMMONS, Charleston, Ill.

$1.00 PRIZE
There's Only One Mary Lou

I was a constant listener to Show Boat and Mary Lou. It was well written and one of the most interesting romances on the air. But why must we listeners accept substitutes for characters we have learned to love and admire? Such as Lanny and Mary Lou. They did beautiful work together and endeared themselves to us. I do not think it is fair to make us accept others in their place. What would Maxwell House think if people were to tire of their coffee and substitute some other brand of coffee? There is but one Mary Lou, namely, Muriel Wilson. She has the most restful voice one could listen to. If Show Boat wants to continue to live in the hearts of the people, bring our own Muriel Wilson back in the place that only she can fill.

LUCILLE HAWTHORNE, Columbus, Ohio.

$1.00 PRIZE Who's Next?

As you already know, there is an annual custom in this country of selecting all-star baseball teams and all-American football teams. Therefore why shouldn't some of us radio fans select an all-star dance orchestra composed of famous orchestra leaders and musicians? It would certainly be something new and inviting to have these same musicians get together and provide entertainment for a charity ball, and arrange for a special broadcast over one of the networks. This would be my idea of an ideal radio broadcast.

Here is what, in my opinion, would be a real all-star band: Piano, Eddy Duchin or Ray Noble; saxes, Wayne King, Ozzie Nelson, Jimmy Dorsey and Rudy Vallee; cornets, Clyde McCoy, Red Nichols and Louis Armstrong; trombones, Tommy Dorsey and Sammy Kaye; drums, Chick Webb; guitar, Nick Lucas; bass violin, Neil Buckley; male soloist, Bing Crosby; male quartet, Mills Brothers; female soloist, Loretta Lee; female trio, Boswell Sisters; maestro, George Hall or Paul Whiteman; master of ceremonies, Ray Perkins.

Unless Camels thoroughly please you—they cost you nothing!

Camels are mild in the best sense of the word—mild in flavor and, even more important, so mild you can smoke all you want.

To emphasize our confidence that you will recognize the superiority of Camel's costlier tobaccos...we want you to try them at our risk.

See if you don't agree with Mrs. Allston Boyer, Miss Dorothy Paine, Mrs. William Wetmore, and the other discerning women throughout the country who have learned that in cigarettes the cost of the tobaccos and the skill with which they are blended are all-important.

MRS. ALLSTON BOYER (Above): "I notice that if I'm tired a Camel freshens me up. Lots of people have told me the same thing. I can smoke all I want, too, and they never upset my nerves."

MISS DOROTHY PAINE (Above right): "Of course I smoke Camels. They have such a grand, smooth flavor. And they never make my nerves jumpy. When I'm all tired out, a Camel sets me right again."

MRS. WILLIAM T. WETMORE (Right): "Everywhere you go they're smoking Camels. Their smoother, richer flavor seems to fit in with the gayer life we are leading again. They are made from more expensive tobaccos."

AXWELL HOUSE Show Boat's new singing leading lady still can't understand how she ever got the job!

"If my bosses had known who I was they'd never have let me sing for them," she told me emphatically as we sat in her New York apartment, its walls lined from floor to ceiling with books.

"They didn't know, when they hired me for Show Boat," she went on, "that I was the same girl they'd fired once before from another of their programs. But they were quite right to fire me, that first time, because I was terrible!"

It's a real Cinderella story, this story of the tall, dark. statuesque young woman you hear every Thursday night singing with Lanny Ross and Conrad Thibault on Show Boat. It's the kind of story one thinks can't happen. in these days when amateurs crop up by the dozens one day, only to fall back into obscurity the next. But sometimes it does happen, suddenly, amazingly, and yet casually, as it did with Winifred Cecil. whose first appearance on Show Boat last fall was under the fictitious name of Virginia. When you hear the whole story, you'll agree with me that Winifred is the sort of person to whom such fairy-story things do happen, in just that way.

It's the story, too, of a modern romance between two people who were wise enough to choose the course which would be, ultimately, best for both. Some people will say that romance had an unhappy ending, but I'm not so sure. Certainly, if it had ended differently, Winifred Cecil would not be singing for Show Boat today.

To start with, there's the way in which she started to sing. She had just graduated from boarding school, and although she'd studied piano and violin since childhood, she'd never sung a note. Hadn't, in fact, ever even thought of singing.

She was at loose ends, living with her parents at their home in White Plains, New York. "White Plains was all right," she said, "but it wasn't New York. I was just at the age when I wanted some (Continued on page 57)

FRANK PARKER WANTS

Parker. The platinum-voiced tenor is for the first time in his life contemplating marriage, although as yet he hasn't the remotest idea who the girl is whose life is destined to be haunted by that famous voice—not for an hour a week, but every day . . . over the breakfast table . . . on the telephone . . . in her boudoir. . . .

Frank is reasonably certain that his future wife is a girl unknown to him at the present time, though perhaps she has listened and thrilled to his love songs over the air, without dreaming that fate will bring them together.

Last year the tenor had an entirely different attitude toward the bonds of matrimony. Not once did he admit, even to himself, that there was time or a place in his life for a 24-carat heart interest.

True, he's fallen in and out of love a hundred times, but in every case his fingers were crossed—not burned. Other radio magazines have made much of some of these "romances" which were in reality no more than dates, explainable by studio publicity needs or by the simple fact that Parker likes a good time as well as the next fellow.

Writers have tried hard to scent a romance in his friend-ship with Dorothy Martin, a former show-girl he has known for twelve years, but the very fact that their acquaintance is of such long standing is proof that he considers himself "safe" in her company. For whenever he has found an association getting a bit out of control, going beyond the companionship stage, Frank has slammed on the four-wheel brakes. Because he was afraid a serious romantic entanglement would take his mind off his work, and to Frank Parker, his work has been everything up to now.

I've known all along that while Frank was considered one of the best catches along Broadway, he simply wasn't in the marriage market, and society debs and shopgirls alike were throwing themselves at his feet in vain. He's been the despair of gossip columnists—by the time they could get the name of one alleged fiancée into print, he was being seen with someone else.

He gave one girl a terrific rush last year—a round of gay niteries and a sweet barrage of petty attentions such as would sweep any damsel off her feet. It was such a well-calculated campaign that it must, it seemed, inevitably end at the altar. And indeed it did—about a month later. The girl had met Frank while asking for his autograph after a broadcast, they had chatted, and before she knew it she had confided to the singer that the boy she loved kept forgetting to ask her the important question. Frank suggested that they enlist the god of jealousy in her cause—and it worked!

When Frank told me the other day, while waiting for his voice lesson in the Metropolitan Opera building, that he was going to get married, I thought it was a gag. I laughed. Frank is always kidding about something. You who think Jack Benny made a comedian out of Parker should hear him off the air, any day, any hour of the day. He's a born clown. During rehearsals, he continually cuts up—doing jigs, mugging at the mike, and ad libbing nonsense. He told me once that he does it to keep the cast feeling good, so they'll give a gay, carefree performance. Which isn't a bad idea, but my opinion is that Frank just wants an excuse for bubbling over with high spirits.

"Your new press agent should be best man, if he thought up this wedding bells stunt," I insinuated.

"You're the first one I've told," Frank insisted seriously. "King doesn't even know about it. He probably wouldn't let me discuss it if he did—you know, the old idea of a romantic singer's appeal being damaged when he goes out of circulation."

I do know the publicity man's phobia on that subject—
I nearly came to blows once with a press agent who didn't want me to mention in a RADIO MIRROR story that Joe Penner was married, on the theory that his sex-appeal was keeping him on the air. But it took me several minutes to get used to the idea of Frank Parker suddenly tossing away the freedom he has cherished above everything else. Why should he get married? Well, why shouldn't he? But if that's what he wanted, why did he wait until now? Why didn't he marry five years ago—or ten?

He has been in the money for several years, so it wasn't a case of waiting for economic independence. It certainly wasn't lack of opportunity or unrequited affection, for Parker is in a position to meet the most dazzling society heiresses, the cleverest and most glamorous women of the professional world. And he could rely on his devastating voice and personality to win the heart of any girl he might choose. Yet he is old enough to be paying alimony to several women, had he been matrimonially inclined.

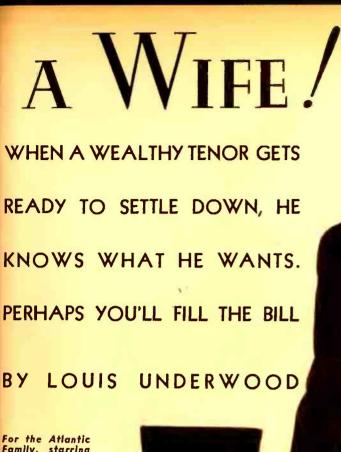

I supposed of course that some stupendous new romance had entered his life to make him so far forget his scorn of the domestic urge. But I was in for another surprise when I asked, "Who's the lucky girl?"

"Without quibbling over positive or negative aspects of her fortune," Parker said, "I haven't the slightest idea who she is. She might be a waitress in a beanery, or she might be a countess. I am quite sure she (Continued on page 100)

Charlie MacArthur is one of the legendary figures of our time. His madcap pranks, epics of wild fantasy and humor, have provided much welcome grist for Broadway columnists. Even Mrs. Charlie MacArthur has contributed. Interviewers have left her with their heads full of incredible tales she has told, could tell because she knows of that other side to her husband, the successful side. Yet not one has given him the credit that has been due since the night of that preview. The stories are still the same and the authors never can understand how Helen Hayes puts up with such a man.

responsible. To every married woman, no matter how great her own success, happiness comes with the success of the man she loves. For six years, almost to the day, Helen had been waging, in private life, with characteristic patience, a struggle to bring Charles MacArthur to the complete fulfillment of his abilities.

Charlie was a newspaperman of the old, carefree type which he and Ben Hecht immortalized in their comedy of life above the roaring presses, "The Front Page." At the time Helen married him he had just tucked that success under his belt.

Her own career of one fresh triumph after another on both screen and stage—the plaudits that came so bountifully with her performances in "The Sin of Madelon Claudet," "A Farewell to Arms," and "Mary of Scotland" -were only overtones in a life consecrated to her husband's

But his sudden rise to fame had not matured him. He was still the same youth at heart who used to sleep on the floor of the Chicago police reporters' room. Those who met him in his first days as a playwright fell instant victims to his high spirits and charm. But as a husband? No one who knew his caprices, his whirlwind changes of mind and heart, gave marriage to him a second, or even a first, thought.

Six years she worked unceasingly for the day when he would realize his almost limitless potentialities. With faith and determination she helped Charlie MacArthur, playboy of newspaper row, become Charles MacArthur, producer, important figure in the motion picture world, without sacrificing any of his native charm or flavor, those priceless qualities that had won her love in the beginning.

Yet Helen Hayes had the courage to marry him because she loved him, though all their philosophies clashed—his, that life was made for fun and frolic; hers, schooled as she was from childhood in the strict discipline of the stage, that only hard work could bring lasting happiness.

A short time before the preview of that film she had been nearly ready to give up the struggle, had envisioned a future in which none of her further successes, if there were any, would taste of anything but the ashes of defeat.

The task she held in view —the task of leading him forward in his work before he tired of the gay round of pleasure only to find that success had passed him bywould have appalled one of less sturdy spirit. Charlie MacArthur was like a skittish colt who shied at the (Continued on page 60)

Below, Charlie MacArthur, Helen's husband and one of the legendary figures of our time. Her daughter, Mary (right), is now five years old.

HE theater is dim, ghost-like. The seats that will be filled later in the evening with alive, pleased faces stretch emptily to the right and left through the shadows.

On the stage are thirty-one young men and four young women. The light gleams on their instruments and on the golden head of Rosemary Lane, who stands motionless near the wings. They are looking silently, and a little uncomfortably, at a slim, dark-haired man slumped in a chair before them. They have been looking at him like that—without a sound—for a full minute. For sixty emotionally-charged seconds.

Finally he raises his hand. "All right," he says in a voice bitter with weariness, "if you children are ready to act like grown-ups, we'll do this once again—and right!"

He lifts his hand and lets it fall. The light winks on the burnished brass and Rosemary moves quickly to a microphone. The incomparable rhythms of Waring's Pennsylvanians pulse and glow.

That slim, tired young man is Fred Waring—a Fred you have never met. One with his smile wiped off and his sleeves rolled up.

At work, he's a stern taskmaster who shows none of that gaiety you hear over the air. He learned, some twelve years ago, that an iron discipline and an adamant insistence upon perfection are required equipment on the road to the top. He acquired them.

He then learned that, though a person may practice that discipline on himself and have it show only in the degree of his success, he must expect the fur to fly when he practices it on others.

So ever since the time, years ago, when Poley Mc-Clintock walked out and started to drum for another orchestra, the fur has flown in the Waring rehearsals. Poley has been the only one to walk out. He returned within a month. There haven't been any more attempts, for the Pennsylvanians now take their bawling-outs like little men. They know they're good for them.

Aside from those brought on by technical errors, the most recurrent concerns the Glee Club. It is not generally known but a great deal of the Waring success lies in Fred's ability to mould untrained voices into a smooth, expressive unit. Listen to the Glee Club sing, and you'll hear they sound as though they mean what they croon.

On occasion, one of the musicians who make up the Glee Club will become a little proud of the quality Fred has discovered in his voice. He will take secret lessons from an expensive teacher, and the expensive teacher will impress him with the value of volume. Three weeks flit by, and the young man is ready to impress the Pennsylvanians. In the very first chorus, his voice rises high and clear above the others, until Fred frowns and raises his hand. It has happened a number of times and Fred always tells that person to cut out the vocal lessons. He doesn't like it.

Frankly, because of Fred's driving interest in the job at hand, there is none of the horseplay in his rehearsals that mark those of almost every other radio show. The thirty-one boys and four girls laugh rarely. Once, not many weeks ago, I sat for two hours in the theater while Fred whipped three songs into their final shape, and only once was there the sound of merriment. It was over something Johnny Davis, the scat singer, said—and everyone howled. Fred smiled. He said, "I've been trying to get sore all day, and now you've spoiled it."

And one of the members of the show, standing near me, said, "This is one of Fred's easy days."

THE Pennsylvanians are really a little proud of the criticisms that would curl the hair on a mohair couch. Fred has had Rosemary Lane almost in tears as he made her try again and again to catch a single voice inflection in a love song. But Rosemary calls him the grandest guy she has ever known—and means it. They all call him that. And all mean it.

For one thing, he is generous. At Christmas, his gifts to the members of his organization cost him a great deal more than three thousand dollars. More than that, the expenses of the troupe are paid every time it goes on the road. Birthdays are remembered, as are anniversaries.

He is friendly, too, though you'd never know it if you only watched his rehearsals. When there is no music in front of him, he loves to play. He prefers that he and the Pennsylvanians play en masse. One characterized him as a country judge watching sternly, yet wisely and fairly, over the lives of those in his little community.

Only twenty-one, Betty gets our vote as Chicago's best bet for the Miss America contest. She's cast as Patricia Rogers in the Girl Alone serial and takes a role in Lights Out, both NBC shows. She's been on the stage since she was old enough and tall enough to walk on and bow by herself.

There's no better key to the character of Fred Allen's charming wife than the clothes she invariably wears. This tailored sports suit is typical of Portland's wardrobe. the famous radio tenor, to be his young double, and be sang like him, but that didn't alter the fact that he was only a filing clerk in the music department of the greatest radio nework in the world, receiving a salary too small to get married on. And Madge Summers, who worked in the network's stenography room, said they must wait until they could afford to marry. That's the reason why, acting on a tip from the building's Italian bootblack, Jimmy walked uninvited into the Vice President's office one afternoon. There he found a queer group of persons with the Vice President—Hal McCabe, middle-aged and looking ill; a man named Loeb who said he was McCabe's manager, and another man who said nothing and looked dangerous. Jimmy burst into the imitation of McCabe's singing he had given at parties, but before he could finish, the Vice President said sternly, "What's your name?" That meant, Jimmy knew, that he'd be fired for his impertinence, and he turned to leave the room. "Wait a minute," the man named Loeb said, turning to Jimmy, "how'd you like to make a grand a week for two weeks?" Meanwhile, Madge waited for Jimmy to meet her after work. Learning that he had gone to the Vice President's office, she followed him there—only to be met in the outer office by a man who said Jimmy White was not around. But as the man turned away, Madge caught a glimpse of a gun hanging under his coat!

IMMY told Jake Loeb: "Two grand looks like heaven from where I sit. What do I do for it?"

Jake Loeb patted his fat paunch and grinned. "Nothing. Nothing, kid. It's like this. McCabe here has got a little sore throat. Nothing serious, y'understand, but he has a new sponsor. Audition in a couple of days, and then thirteen weeks. We can cover up on the audience, say that McCabe won't work in a big studio. And we can fool the sponsor, he's never seen anything but pictures of Hal. All you gotta do is stand in front of a mike and open and shut your mouth, and we'll pipe the sound in through a phonograph. In two weeks, Hal'll be singing again. Maybe it takes practice, but what's practice when you're getting two grand? Huh?"

"Nothing," Jimmy said. "Nothing. Only I can sing. Not like Mr. McCabe of course—" this, hurriedly, as the famous Hal half rose in his chair—"but if I'm made up to look like him, and they see me, they'll think it's him."

The big shot got up. "I won't be a party to this," he said firmly. "Come on, Tulin." They swung out of the office firmly, gravely.

"When do I report for work?" Jimmy asked Loeb.

McCabe's manager looked at the man who sat next to the glowering radio singer. "He's reported, Jake. Starting right now. Get him over to the hotel, and keep him there."

Jake shrugged. "O. K., Maxey. You heard Mr. Corvallis, kid. What's your name?"

"Jimmy White. Look, I'll go get my hat, and—"

"A hat he should be thinking of when two grand hangs." in the balance," Jake Loeb complained. "A hat, yet. You stay with us, White. A dozen hats you can buy when this is all over.'

Jimmy grinned. This was screwy, but it was a chance, a chance to get enough money to get married on, to solve all his troubles. "O. K.," he said good-naturedly. "So I'll be with you in a minute. I gotta leave a message for my boss. No? I suppose Mr. Tulin'll look after me not getting fired."

There was a rap on the door. Jake Loeb looked at it as though he had never seen a door before in his life; McCabe looked at it; Jimmy looked at it; Maxey Corvallis slipped his hand inside his coat, and then smiled; not pleasantly; he got up and went through the door, without giving them a chance to see what was on the other side. McCabe said, huskily: "Utsy, maybe." He didn't sound

Corvallis came back after a couple of minutes, frowning. "Where you from, kid?" he asked Jimmy. "Not New York, huh? How many people you know well in this town?"

Jimmy said: "Just one, a girl. She-"

Maxey chuckled. "She was looking for you." He sat down, smiling greasily.

Voices began to come through the loudspeaker. "You would not kill this kid for a little . . .?" Jimmy wondered if Madge would ever know what had become of him.

Jimmy said: "But I have to talk to her. have to tell her where I am. Do you hear me? She'll be worried-" He grabbed for the door-knob.

Corvallis was wearing a heavy ring. He cracked Jimmy's wrist with it, hard enough to make the boy pull his hand back. "Tell her about it two weeks from now, boy. Hear me? For the next two weeks you're what the coppers call incommunicado? Get me, fella?"

Jimmy said: "Keep your job. I don't need the money bad enough to keep Madge worried about me for two weeks. I don't, I tell you. Take your job and-Corvallis, for all his bulk, was fast. The ring hand hit Jimmy flush on the jaw, sent him sprawling into a chair. Act your age, baby. Come on, Hal. Jake, you stay with the kid, and see he stays with you. No phone calls, you hear? Here's Utsy now. Utsy, come in."

The man who came in was tall and husky, dumb looking as an ox. "Utsy," Corvallis said, "you stay with Jake and the kid. They're not to talk to anybody."

"O. K." Utsy sat down and lost interest in the proceedings. McCabe put on his hat, pulled it low over his face. wrapped a muffler around his neck, and followed Corvallis

Jake Loeb sat down heavily, facing Jimmy. "For five years I have been working for that Corvallis, and I do not ever get used to him. I will make it as easy for you as I can, boy, and when it is all over, we will get you a haircut so you will not look so much like Hal, and maybe I can make a singer out of you."

Ordinarily this would have delighted Jimmy. But he was thinking about Madge, poor Madge, worrying about him, waiting for a phone call from him.

"Do not think about your girl," Jake Loeb said. "Two weeks passes quickly, and I am telling you, boy, when you come back with the two thousand dollars, she will forget all about this. If she is a good girl, she will think how much you can do with two grand, and if she is not such a good girl, she will think how much she can do with it.

I am telling you, boy, and I am pretty old."

Jimmy said: "Who's Corvallis?"

"Maxey the Greek. He had a half interest in a night club one time, and he hired me to handle his singers. Mc-Cabe was a success, only it ain't much to McCabe, because he is under contract to Maxey. Now Maxey is on the legitimate, he runs a hotel, he makes money off of Hal McCabe's radio contracts, only some of his old ways he still has, like Utsy here and that ring. Well, boy, now we go to the hotel, and we practice. I can tell you this; you had better behave, just like I behave, because this Utsy he cannot be argued with. He is too dumb to get more than one idea in his head at a time, and all his ideas he gets from Maxey Corvallis. And that Maxey, he is a bad thinker. Come on. Jimmy White."

Madge Summers erased and typed, typed and erased. There were blue circles under her (Continued on page 74)

WHEN YOU'RE IN LOVE AND WHEN YOU NEED MONEY TO GET MARRIED YOU'RE SOMETIMES TOO WILLING TO MAKE BARGAINS WITH DEATH!

ILLUSTRATION BY COLE BRADLEY

F the learned gentlemen of the American Academy of Arts and Letters supplemented their annual diction trophy with a medal to radio's most unique personality, the chances are that Ted Husing would get the first award.

He's the only announcer who is able to demand and receive the right to preside over the microphone in his own way, with the minimum of supervision from network officials; who selects what football games he will report, and invites guest speakers of his own choice to talk between halves; who appears on any station he likes, whether it belongs to the Columbia chain or not—and does it all with the full approval of the Columbia network.

He's one of the few announcers who's also a star in his own right. His own new program, sponsored by Wildroot, on which he tells the vivid backstage stories of a long radio career, is proof of that.

And also he's the fellow who said to me, not long ago, "I'm getting ahead with less talent than any guy in radio!"

He has more freedom in his work than any other announcer on either network, for two reasons. One is that Columbia officials realize Ted is a man made up of frankness, stubbornness and initiative—the sort of man who works best without a check-rein. If they tried to hold him to the straight and narrow path of orthodox announcing, they know good and well that his frankness would boil over in unexpected places and very likely do some damage.

The other reason he has this freedom is that he just known him to mince words on an opinion. When he believes something is true, he says so, no matter what the opposition, no matter who holds a differing opinion, and no matter what trouble he is storing up for himself by speaking out in meeting.

His tall, lanky frame is filled with a nervous energy which shows itself in his quickness at reporting fast-moving sports events. Sometimes, in fact, he's even a bit ahead of the next move in a game he is describing to you over the air—listening in, you sense a touchdown before you hear the cheer which accompanies it.

I've even heard him announce a golf tournament and make it breathlessly exciting, a little trick that takes some doing.

But he says he has no talent. Well, it depends on what you mean by talent. Here is how Ted himself explains his success in radio.

"I love the business," he told me once, "just for its doggedness. There isn't any glamour to it. None at all. Just good hard work. I've been through a lot of it—and mostly it was digging ditches—but I've never got tired of it and I don't think I ever will. That's the only reason I've got ahead in radio—just because I like it so well."

That didn't entirely convince me that there wasn't at least one phase of his radio work which has always seemed glamourous to Ted. He loves football reporting with a love that comes pretty close to being idolatrous. If he looks unhappy around Thanksgiving Day, it's because there will be a wait of nearly a whole year before the next gridiron season begins. All of which is only natural, because it was his close association with football which brought him fame.

While he was connected with WHN he announced a whole season of Columbia University games, and created, while he was at it, a good-sized flurry among radio-football enthusiasts within range of the small station. He was introducing a new style of announcing—breezy and informal, accurate, and yet with a touch of emotionalism in it which took it out of the field of straight reporting. It scandalized some people, who thought Ted was too partisan in some of his remarks, but it pleased a great many more.

By SAMUEL KAUFMAN

By the time the football season ended, Ted had made such a name for himself that he was in demand for other types of stunt broadcasts. The freakiest of these was his plan of giving a running account of a motion picture as it was being flashed on the screen. The picture was "Love"—the silent version of "Anna Karenina"—and Ted, without seeing it in advance, was to describe it at a special midnight showing. Just nutty enough, and difficult enough, to be the sort of thing he loved doing. But he never carried the scheme out. He resigned from WHN just before the date for the stunt broadcast was definitely set, and Nils T. Granlund (N. T. G.), then director of WHN, did the job instead.

After his resignation, Ted was out of a job for a while. By that time, radio was in his blood, and he didn't even try to find a different sort of work. He spent his time, instead, in visiting radio editors. He had frequent quarrels with them all, over differences of opinion, but somehow the quarrels never lasted long. Ted has the knack of regaining friendships, and in addition there was the fact that Ted was in those days a valuable news source. The industry was still in a chaotic state, stations changing hands with dizzying rapidity, new personalities being developed, and Ted always had the information on a news story before anyone else. That may have been one reason the writers swallowed his gibes at their criticisms of programs with which he disagreed.

He'd made too good a name for himself in his Columbia University broadcasts over WHN to be out of a job long, and eventually he was appointed assistant to Major J. Andrew White, veteran CBS sports announcer. At first Ted was second-string announcer, and was never used on any but sustaining programs.

It was partly through his outspoken criticism of something most of us would have been tactfully silent about that he started the climb in the Columbia network organization which was finally to make him one of the highest-paid announcers in the business. (Continued on page 66)

By DOROTHY ANN BLANK

WENTY years ago he was the idol of America's movie-going public. Eighteen secretaries were kept busy full time, in the elaborate white and gold reception room of his Hollywood mansion. It was their duty to answer his fan mail and to mail out prints of the photograph which adorns the opposite page to girls and women who couldn't see enough of him on the screen.

He received more adulation than Clark Gable does today, because in that still slightly mauve decade, adulation—like swooning—was in fashion.

Ten years ago they said he was through. Talkies came in, and it was assumed that the flicker stars' voices would not suit this new medium. Also a new type of screen hero emerged, and a sensitive face was no longer considered a valuable attribute for a male star to possess.

So-Hollywood said he was through. And when Hollywood says you're through, it's apt to mean you're finished —in pictures. Many stars of the silents were forgotten almost over-night; today their names evade recollection and even their faces stir the memory but slightly, as a curtain is ruffled by an errant breeze on a sultry evening.

But you haven't forgotten Francis X. Bushman.

Arthur Brisbane once said of him, "His name and face are probably better known than those of any living American."... And this is still true—in spite of the fact that it is all of ten years since Bushman was starred in a picture.

His almost-too-perfect profile stamped on the head of a coin would be more recognizable to most of us, even today, than the heads of many past presidents of the United States. Hear his name, and try to keep from seeing his image on the screen of your consciousness. . . . No, you haven't forgotten him. Nor will you have forgotten him ten years from now.

Yet today Francis X. Bushman works in comparative obscurity, making his living by the very quality which the movies scorned—his voice.

You can no longer see that leonine profile or watch those suave gestures on the screen. Bushman could be doing character bits in pictures, but he never has. For he has found a new world to take the place of the tinselled backdrop against which he once emoted.

'It's a strange world, radio," he booms, and his bright blue eyes shine like an eager boy's. "You act into a little black mouthpiece, and try to make a million people see what you're doing.

"Your face doesn't matter. We used to think that was the all important thing—looks. But I know now that we were wrong. An actor's true personality shows only in his voice."

Bushman believes this. That's why he doesn't mind starting all over again financially. The quality, whatever it was, which made him so popular in silent films, is still his. Only now he has but one way to transmit it: his voice as it comes to you over the air.

He has no bitterness in him against the industry which took his youth and energies and, finally, his fortune. For it was the lavishness with which Hollywood forces its darlings to live and give which impoverished the actor. He has gone through three immense fortunes, and would do it again if he had the chance. He believes in doing things in the grand manner.

Even now he cannot help surrounding himself with the quality of mystery. He is always difficult to reach in person. You phone him... There is no Mr Bushman at this number. You explain your mission... We might be able to get a message to Mr Bushman.

In the end he calls you back. He has been out exercising his dogs in the park, probably. He is sorry he has been so difficult to reach.

He loves to talk, and his story, which covers a great deal of the history of the picture industry, reads like fantasy.

Francis X. Bushman has been thirty-six years in the theater, twenty of them in the movies. Counting the ten years which have passed since Hollywood elected him the Forgotten Man to be beaten down by a terrific majority, this takes us back thirty years in screen lore.

When Bushman was sixteen years old he left a Jesuit college because he hated to study. He worked at thirty-seven jobs in the next two years, but still had not found his niche. He could find no job in which he could successfully avoid work. And he frankly admits he is very lazy. That's one reason he likes radio; he doesn't have to learn a line.

He figured that the stage would give him an easy existence, so he joined a stock company in Baltimore, which was owned by George Fawcett. You may remember Fawcett in the silent pictures.

Bushman left the stock company as soon as movies loomed on the horizon. He quickly became the most popular male star of silent pictures. He was a non-professional "strong man" around New York at the time, and his muscles soon became known from Coast to Coast. He was, as you remember, gorgeous looking.

In those days Hollywood was nothing but a scrap heap. In fact there was no Hollywood, if you can imagine that. Bushman made dozens of pictures in New York and dozens more in the old Essanay Studios on Argyle Street in Chicago. His contemporary stars were William Faversham, Ethel Barrymore and her brother Lionel, the Drews—Sidney and wife—Emmy Whalen, May Allison and Elsie Ferguson. Not bad names for a baby industry.

Bushman was producer, actor and promotion man rolled into one. As the latter he was full of "stunts." He conducted a story contest in Ladies' World Magazine and then made an eight reel picture from the winning manuscript, acting in it himself. But he had difficulty in selling it, for it was too long. He cut it to four reels and it went over in a big way. It was one of the first feature length pictures.

Bushman holds the world's record in that he has played in more pictures than any other film star, living or dead. Four hundred and eighteen, to be exact. Three hundred and fifty of these were made in the East, B. H.—before Hollywood, that is.

He was making $25,000 a year with Essanay when they started a company called Metro. He joined with them in the venture. It was his suggestion that California might be a good place to shoot some scenes. (Continued on page 69)

The JAZZ TREE of radio

OBODY knows exactly what little acorn this mighty oak grew from. Some say it was the primitive rhythms of savage people. Others that jazz developed out of the unwritten tunes men and women sang as they worked. And a few insist that it's simply the melodies composed by great musicians years ago for opera and symphony, dressed up with syncopated dance tempo.

Anyway, there it is, the Tree of Jazz, poking its branches into every corner of the world where men can go. They listen to jazz over the radio in Little America, and they listen to it on the phonograph in Tahiti.

The old tree has grown a good deal since the days when a cowbell and a tin pan were the most important features of a dance band. It has history and tradition now. Some leaders, by their talent and originality, have added new branches to it, and trained other men to add new branches in their turn. They're the big names in dance-music history.

Above, Radio Mirror presents the result of a tough spell of research into the genealogy of jazz. It meant a lot of hanging around places where musicians congregate, but we found out who the men were who pioneered in jazz, nursed it along, improved it, and passed their knowledge along to their pupils.

Of course, we may be getting ourselves into trouble. Somebody's likely to insist that this musician or that belongs on another branch entirely—and jazz enthusiasts can get pretty violent over a question like that. But our investigations tell us we're right, and that every branch is in the correct place.

Condensed into a couple of glances, the history of jazz is here for your information and interest. Perhaps you'll want to add a couple of branches of your own.

F it hadn't been for a hold-up, in which Stella Friend's brother-in-law, Fred Ridge, was permanently crippled while protecting Stella, you wouldn't be hearing Stella and the Fellas on the air today, with Fred Waring. You wouldn't be hearing them anywhere. There wouldn't be any such group. For Stella Friend would not be a singer, but a restaurant owner.

She'd be operating a Mexican restaurant out in Laguna, California—one just like her sister's, La Concinita (Little Kitchen).

Four years ago, when this hold-up took place, Stella had definitely retired from the stage, determined to spend the rest of her life peacefully and quietly at home in California. Appearing in vaudeville had brought her nothing but disaster: a nervous breakdown so severe that for six months she lay on her back, a helpless invalid. Vaudeville and the stage, with their hustle and bustle, their tension and excitement, five shows a day, six days a week, were not for the delicate Stella.

This is the story of why she went back to singing, a story she has never divulged before. "I couldn't," she told me, her voice trembling. "It brings up too many vivid, horrible memories."

But let me tell you just how it happened. Now lying around and doing nothing but resting for six months is enough of a good thing for any normal girl. As soon as Stella was on her feet again she found something to keep her busy. She'd go to her sister's Mexican kitchen in Wilmington, and help out. She loved watching the Mexican women prepare the steaming native dishes at the open hearth; she loved setting the crude wooden tables, shaped like tree stumps; she loved arranging and rearranging the colorful Mexican pottery against the brushed white, rough walls; she loved painting the chairs with brilliant designs. And most of all, she enjoyed meeting the tourists who dropped in, the famous Hollywood folk who stopped on their way to the San Pedro Harbor, where their yachts were moored.

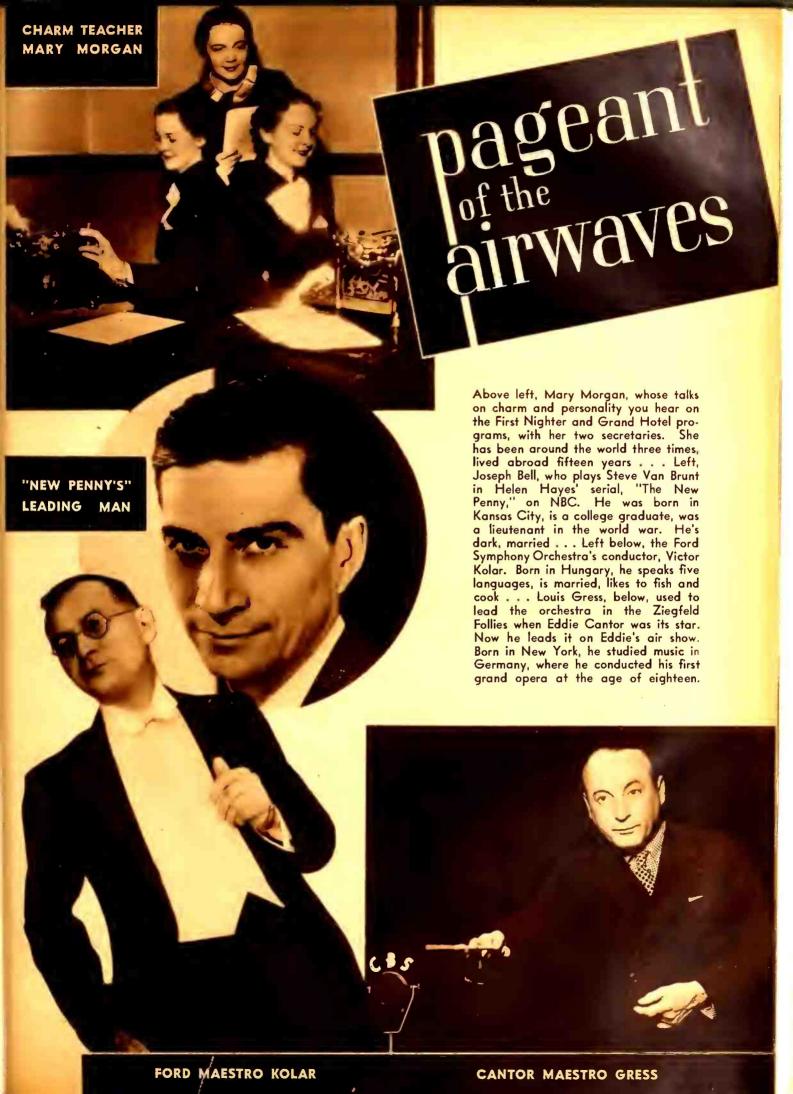

lt didn't take Stella very long to make up her mind. She, too, would go into the restaurant business. Since her long illness had eaten up her savings, her brother-in-law, glad that she had found something to be interested in, offered to finance her.

"All I needed to get started," she told me, "was $300. I found just the place—an old shack at Laguna Beach, in the heart of the art colony. The rent was only $20 a month, and since I've always been handy, fixing the place up was easy. I went around picking up bargains. In one place I got two dozen chairs with leather strips for $1 apiece; rude tables which I painted with bright, huge flowers. My floor was to be red tile, my curtains red and white checked. Everything was all set."

Then came that awful Saturday night, at her sister's place, La Concinita. "Mother, my sister, Fred, and I were sitting talking about my plans, enjoying a midnight snack before closing up. All the help and customers had gone. It was deathly quiet. The nearest house was a mile away from the restaurant, and Wilmington Boulevard, at this spot, is very dimly-lit. The lights in the store were dim, in keeping with the Mexican atmosphere.

"A young Philippine, wearing smoked glasses, came in and asked for two hot tamales. I got up and gave them to him. He handed me twenty cents and walked out. I rejoined my folks and thought (Continued on page 91)

LET'S PRETEND STAR

Here are a few of the brand new crop of entertainers radio's producing for the future. Pat Ryan, above, twelve years old, was Columbia's first child actress when she made her debut six years ago. She writes and directs plays for the Let's Pretend programs besides acting in them . . . Above left, is Joyce Walsh, six, who's on the True Story, News of Youth, and Lux shows as well as Madge Tucker's NBC children's programs. Sings duets with her sister Jean, too . . . Walter Tetley, below left, started six years ago with Madge Tucker, doing Harry Lauder imitations. Now he works on Show Boat, Helen Hayes, Buck Rogers, and Fred Allen shows. He's sixteen, a constant cut-up in the studio, enthusiastic over his latest hobby, taking amateur movies . . . Eight-year-old Patricia Peardon, below, takes leading parts in Columbia's Let's Pretend series, and is also heard on the March of Time, World Peaceways, and Cavalcade of America. Besides acting, she also sings; came to radio when she was five.

LESTER JAY AND JERRY MACY

Lester Jay and Jerry Macy, above, play Terry and Chico in Columbia's Terry and Ted series. Lester made his debut in the movies when he was six, playing with such stars as Barbara La Marr and Ben Lyon. His hobbies are football and making model airplanes. . . Lynn Mary Oldham, right, came to New York from Louisville, Kentucky. You hear her in several of Madge Tucker's NBC shows. . . Below right, Estelle Levy, talented as both actress and musician. She takes old-lady parts in Let's Pretend, plays saxophone and piano, and sings. Eleven years old now, she entered radio when she was six. Like most of radio's child stars, she goes to the New York Professional Children's School . . . Twins Billy and Bobby Mauch are as alike as twins can be, but Warner Brothers picked Billy to play Anthony Adverse as a boy in the movie of that name. Bobby, to his disgust, is working as Billy's stand-in during the filming of the picture in Hollywood. They were born in Illinois ten years ago, have taken juvenile parts in many programs on both networks during the last three years.

WHAT AL PEARCE HAS DONE FOR HIS GANG

By RUTH GERI

men in the gang and Al himself received his regular pay check! Then came their present tooth-paste sponsor, and a commercial program for $10,000 a week. Broadway wise-acres smirked and said, "Sure, he's a smart guy. But anyone could have done the same if he had a gang that would stick by him."

It's true Al's gang stuck by him, but they stuck because they could afford to. Loyalty isn't such a rarity in show business; the rare thing is to find anyone in show business who can afford the luxury of loyalty. Hope won't pay the landlord. Promises won't feed the wife and kids. But Al's gang didn't have to rely on hope or promises, they relied on their weekly pay checks—and every week the checks were waiting for them. That's how the gang stuck.

The weekly payroll during that long period during which Al's gang worked without sponsorial recompense was about two thousand dollars. Approximately $40,000 Al and his gang gambled on their ultimate success. A wonderful thing to have such faith? Yes, but more wonderful still to have the $40,000 with which to gamble.

In case you have scented a rich uncle who chose a timely moment to bequeath Al Pearce a fortune, you are wrong. Nor was he born with the traditional silver spoon in his mouth. The answer to the riddle is far stranger. Al Pearce is that rarest of rare combinations—an entertainer with business acumen. To understand, you must go back ten years, to the very beginning, in San Jose, California.

A few years ago people said that opera was a thing of the past. Music lovers sadly shook their heads and waited for the fateful day when the Metropolitan would close its doors forever. Then suddenly, new blood and new hope were injected. Edward Johnson, newly elected and genial manager of the Metropolitan Association, himself a singer, has progressive ideas. When he took office last year, he put some of these ideas into work.

The old house was rejuvenated. New wiring for lighting and broadcasting was installed and, for a final touch, fresh paint was applied. Before all this. the old house had fallen into such bad condition that it was said that if someone slammed the stage door, the old stage sets would topple down on the singers.

So we are off to the opera, the old house with the new spirit. Filing through the doors onto red carpets, grandchildren stream in, tracing the footsteps of their parents' parents. Today, however, they step from taxis and subways. (Continued on page 85)

OF HOW A CRAZY SONG
HAS SWEPT THE NATION
IN A FEW SHORT WEEKS

HIS is the stark, austere Alice in Wonderland fable of two Irish lads, the sensations of swing music, Eddie Farley and Mike Riley and how they came to write "The Music Goes 'Round and Around," that elfin tune which sneaks up and twists your tongue and brain about insanely. It's being told because it gives an inside picture of America in the grip of a new craze. Somehow it seems significant.

So many tales have gotten about as to how it all started, you should read the story as we got it from Eddie Farley himself. After that we won't say another word about it.

"We push our pencil down. The words go down and around, Whoa-ho-ho-ho-ho, and they come up here."

If Eddie and Mike hadn't been on tour in Pittsburgh and hadn't gone into that shop there—well, anyhow, they came out with a musical instrument strongly resembling a combined trumpet, uncomfortable octopus and the scrawlings on a telephone pad. Now one night as they were playing with the other members of Riley's jam band in New York's Onyx Club, haunt of radio musicians and assorted celebrities, a girl dancer swept to a halt as Mike was wildly tootling this creation of some mad genius.

"What," she demanded with reasonable curiosity, "is that business?"

Riley bravely blatted out seven or eight bars of an unfamiliar strain, then started to sing, tracing the intricate curlicues of the horn with his index finger:

"I blow through here; THE MUSIC GOES 'ROUND AND AROUND. Whoa-ho-ho-ho-ho and it comes up

The band swung into the music, as jam bands will, and some thirty bars later, the tune was composed. Ah, but for some lyrics. Red Hodgson, another jam bander, leapt forward with pencil and paper. Ten minutes later the lyrics were scribbled down. One minute later the new song was being rendered—or rent, as you will—by the orchestra while Mike blew, blared, and took the horn apart and put it together again as he played. Two weeks later, a bewildered, delirious country was singing, dancing, playing the mad tune—and still is.

Every morning as we pass the doorman at one of the NBC Studio entrances in Radio City, he's humming the mad song. He keeps staring at the revolving doors as he does so.

Eddie and Mike call their silly trumpet a three-valve saxophone. You figure that out.

were scribing render Mike blew Mike Bove, the two Irishmen, Riley and Farley, who wrote "The Music Goes 'Round and Around." Left, Carl Hoff, the new maestro of The Hit Parade on Saturday evenings.

Sophisticated studioites were convulsed recently when David Ross recited the words to the crazy creation in his best Keats and Shelley manner. Perhaps you heard it.

Every new guest who comes to the Rainbow Room, the beautiful night club on the sixty-fifth floor of Radio City's RCA Building, points to the revolving dance floor. Poor things, they think they're saying something new when they titter:

"The music goes 'round and around. . . ."

Farley and Riley are now playing in New York theaters to capacity audiences. And it looks as though they'll be whirling 'round and around the stage circuits for some weeks. Perhaps they'll spin your way.

If you've seen that little spiral gadget which people are attaching to their lapels, you should know that it's really a paper clip. A representative of the firm which manufactures them saw the possibilities of a wide distribution early in the first wave of popularity of the song. Some ten thousand are said to have been distributed within a month.

And if all this gets your brain reeling go out and buy a record of "The Music Goes 'Round and Around" and play it backward. That ought to clear everything up.

ADD TO UNKNOWN FACTS

Her real name is Sarah Elizabeth Schermerhorn, and she's featured over the WEAF-NBC network as one of the singing stars of the Philip Morris Cigarette broadcasts.

Sarah was born in Glens Falls, N. Y., where the Schermerhorn family trace their lineage back to Hendrik Schermerhorn, one of the earliest Dutch colonists in America and an aide of Peter Stuyvesant.

Only three years ago she received her first opportunity to sing before a theater audience. As Sally Singer, she won a radio audition contest in Albany and a professional engagement of one week at the Palace theater in that city. An audition at WGY followed and she began her radio career.

Her voice won the attention of several nationally-known band leaders and in short order she was singing with such orchestras as Johnny Johnson's, Kay Keyser's and Teddy Black's.

In the summer of 1933, while attending a private party on a showboat on Lake George, Sally was invited to sing by Leo Reisman, famous bandleader, whose orchestra was engaged for the occasion. It proved a great opportunity. Reisman invited her to go to New York. Sally accepted and was soon auditioning for the Philip Morris Cigarette program. She got the job.

Although she has very little time to play, Sally can be found every morning, before breakfast, riding in Central Park. At the family estate in Glens Falls, she has a stable with two riding horses and several pedigreed dogs.

casts she can't make her feet behave when the orchestra plays. Her greatest ambition is to become an actress. She plays a crackerjack game of polo. She's an early riser. She is not superstitious. She never gets mike fright. She is 5 feet, 4 inches tall, weighs 120 and has gray eyes and light brown hair.

YOU CANT WIN BY

ON'T try too hard!" is Goodman Ace's motto and advice to others. "Don't aim too high, or better still, don't aim at all, and don't give any task all you've got."

An heretical formula for success, and you glance at the author of Easy Aces expecting to see a twinkle in his blue eyes. But he is serious. He believes an over-zealous person is much more apt to bungle his work than one who takes it calmly, refuses to worry about anything, is even a bit flippant and devil-may-care about his job.

"The fellow who spends sixteen hours a day on his job and the other eight hours worrying about it isn't heading for success," Ace contends. "He's heading for a nervous breakdown.

"When comedy programs on the air fall flat, it isn't because they haven't had enough preparation. In most cases, it's because they've had too much. The comics are all punching too hard, trying to outdo each other. They have long conferences with a staff of writers and work themselves into a dither over whether it would be better to substitute the word the for a on page eight.

"Say, we couldn't work up a respectable dither if we lost page eight. Easy Aces isn't that important—to us or anyone else. We broadcast on the assumption that nobody is listening. The minute we're through, everything we've said belongs to the sparrows!"

It is no pseudo-modesty that makes Goodman Ace thus deprecate what many intelligent people believe to be the funniest script show radio has ever offered. He is perfectly honest in his don't-care attitude. The show is slapped together and broadcast with less ceremony than a weather report.

Goody spends about an hour banging out a script, if he is in the right mood and there are no interruptions. He never reads over what he has written until broadcast night, and he has never rewritten a script. He does Tuesday's and Wednesday's scripts the preceding Sunday night and Thursday's on Monday night, often sitting down to the typewriter without an idea in his head.

Many times he can't remember where he left off, and has to phone his advertising agency to find out. He can't be bothered to make a carbon copy, so if he forgets how much Jane paid for the desk in the last script—as he is very likely to—he has to call the agency again and have it looked up in the only copy he has written.

A script has never been lost on the way to the agency, but if one ever is, Goodman Ace won't even explode. He'll remark, "Isn't that awful?" and sit down and bat out another one. It will be an entirely different episode, because he won't be able to remember much about the other one, but he may remember then to buy some carbon paper.

The Aces arrive at the studio less than an hour before broadcast time, read the script through once with the other actors, who have never seen it before, time it, and then broadcast. They don't bother to take off their hats. They don't bother to stand up to a microphone—Goody had a mike built into a bridge table so they could sit down and relax. He is always smoking a cigar and chewing gum at the same time.

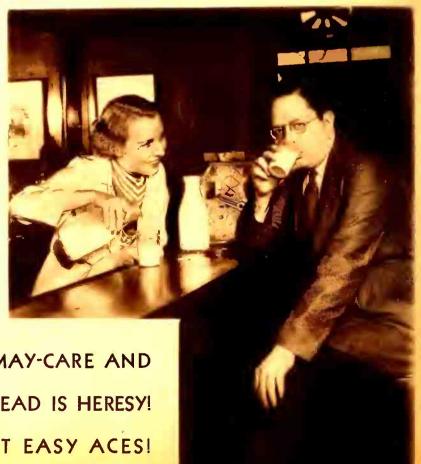

"I used to fret about these scripts quite a bit," Ace told me. "It took me five hours to write an episode and I would slave over every line to get the proper turn of each phrase. But I soon discovered that I was overshooting my mark. I worked my head to the bone to think of wrong words for Jane to use, and had the script so full of wise-cracks that the public got sick of them. Luckily we ran short of malapropisms before I had worried myself into an early grave or at least off the air.

"We settled into an even stride, going in more for character and situation humor than gags, and got along just as well without so much strain. The show has become a sort of marathon, but with the new system, instead of working my way through a lunatic asylum, I now have good prospects of outlasting the listeners.

"Some days our show is pretty good, and some days we tiptoe out of the studio after the broadcast and try to pretend we weren't there. Last week we had good scripts, this week they turned out terrible. But why worry? You're shooting in the dark, anyway. Peoples' tastes differ so much that, no matter what you write, someone may like it. There's no such thing as an 'unpopular' script show. It's impossible to write one so bad that no one will like it.

"Effort is a much over-rated virtue," Ace says. "By itself, it doesn't mean a thing. 'He tried hard' is in essence

THEIR ATTITUDE IS DEVIL-MAY-CARE AND THEIR WAY OF GETTING AHEAD IS HERESY!

BUT THAT'S THOSE TAKE IT EASY ACES!

TRYING SAYS GOODMAN ACE

a condemnation for failure. I 'tried hard' the other night to think of something clever for a columnist who asked me point blank for a bon mot. I couldn't think of a thing. There was nothing praiseworthy about that effort, because it was barren. Had I tried a little harder, the effort would have been actually harmful, because I would have thought of a very bad pun, the columnist would have used it, and people would have said disgustedly. 'Does he think that's funny?' Instead, I changed the subject and forgot his request.

"Later, while we were discussing income taxes, I remarked that Jane and I had figured out that it would be cheaper to go to prison and pay the line charges for our programs from Atlanta for a year than to pay our income tax. The columnist laughed and used that in his column. You see, I wasn't trying to create a masterpiece. I was just talking.

"When you try too hard, you always spoil something. Remember the Kaiser? There's a guy who overshot his mark. Too much ambition is always worse than not enough. We have friend who was doing well with a garment concern until his wife nagged him into quitting his job and going into business for himself. He lost his shirt and all his other garments.

"I don't mean you should lie down on the job. Keep punching, but pull your punches. Save your strength if you want to stay on your feet. If you rush the game, you may get your big opportunity before you're ready for it, and make a colossal fizzle.

"We don't punch hard even on the air. When we do have a good line, we never point it. I write 'throw away' in the script, so it will sound ad libbed, spontaneous. The effect is better than if we made a big fuss over every joke.'

I wanted to know how this delightful small-town sketch got to the air, if its originator didn't struggle to achieve success and thought the conventional tremendous struggle was a lot of wasted energy.

BEAUTY FOR REDHEADS

10 you're a redhead! Lucky girl, to be blessed with that unusual crowning glory which carries its own marks of beauty and distinction with it. True, you do have your troubles when it comes to choosing your wardrobe, because color combinations becoming to coppery tresses are so limited. But, if you watch your costume and cosmetic color harmonies which is just what we're going to help you with this month—you have a head start (no pun intended!) on the rest of femininity in the race for outstanding loveliness.

Of course, there are redheads and redheads. There's the strawberry blonde with red gold hair and blue eyes, like Deane Janis. There's the darker auburn beauty with mahogany colored hair and green eyes, like Carol Deis. And, in between, thousands of variations. Dark or light, you'll find your color harmonies bound by much the same rules, and this month we persuaded Carol Deis and Deane Janis to tell you about those rules.

First and foremost, avoid all reds. Carol and Deane say they couldn't impress this too strongly. That goes for pink, too. Ice cream pinks and baby pinks are absolutely out. The nearest to this shade which you can wear is flesh color, and both Carol and Deane are fond of this. The darker-haired Carol also wears peach shades, but Deane draws the line at any form of yellow as well as pink. However, Deane wears henna tones which complement the much lighter color of her hair, though these shades are not becoming to auburn heads. So it all evens up eventually! "Actually, the color of your skin is most important in choosing the colors you should wear with auburn hair," says Carol. "For instance, the ruddy-complexioned redhead doesn't have the color range of the redhead with white skin. Blues and blacks, ordinarily the best of colors for this type of hair, might be very trying to pink or ruddy skins. I wear a great deal of black myself, usually relieved with white for daytime, and designed with very sophisticated lines for evening. And I wear a lot of blue, particularly light and electric tints, and aquamarine. I like golden and canary yellows, but I'm very careful to avoid any yellow with green in it, just as I avoid green with yellow in it. Green, though, is probably my favorite color—any shade except the yellowish ones like chartreuse or olive."

Deane, too, is very fond of black and green. "I feel very much at ease in black," she says, "and probably wear more of it than anything else. It's an excellent contrast to light red hair, of course, and because my hair is light (Deane is quite blonde in coloring, but with a definite coppery tinge to her hair), I concentrate mainly on dark shades. Green is excellent, too, but I choose the vivid or dark greens, never pastel tints. The same is true of blue. 1 wear white occasionally, but not much except in summer. And I nearly always have touches of white or color on my black costumes."

The only pastel shades which Deane has in her wardrobe at present are evening gowns in flesh and gray. She is very fond of steel gray, since bluish grays provide a becoming contrast to reddish blonde hair. She achieves this bluish effect in her present gray costume with accessories of navy blue. On the other hand, though Carol likes blue with gray, she wears oxblood accessories with her gray suit, an effective color combination which she discovered quite by accident.

As for brown, Deane wears a great deal of both tan and brown, which are apt to be a bit trying for auburn hair with its own hard-to-match brown tints. Carol likes brown, but she limits herself to golden and ginger shades. Generally speaking, the (Continued on page 80)

The Girl who Married your Husband

Have gnawing fears and worries withered the bloom of her romance? Or did she discover "Lysol" in time?

LIKE every woman, you started out with certainty that your marriage would be different. No misunderstandings. All harmony.

Some marriages do succeed in preserving those ideals. You might be surprised to know how often they owe much of their success to "Lysol".

Doctors know that back of most marriage failures is the old, old story of a woman's fear—bred of misinformation and half-truths about marriage hygiene. Fortunately, more and more women today are learning the facts...that much of their fear is needless. "Lysol" has earned the confidence of the millions of women who have used it.

Two special qualities of "Lysol" make it exceptionally valuable in antiseptic marriage hygiene. First, it has the property of spreading, of reaching germs in folds of tissue where ordinary methods do not reach. And second, "Lysol" remains effective in the presence of organic matter (such as mucus, serum, pus, etc.)—when some other antiseptics lose their germ-killing power partly or even totally. Yet the dependability and gentleness of "Lysol"—in the solutions recommended—are such that leading doctors commonly use it in the delicate operation of childbirth.

You will find that the use of "Lysol" brings you a reassuring sense of antiseptic cleanliness. But more important—it relieves your mind of that constantly recurring worry, fear and suspense, which no husband ever really understands.

A booklet of valuable information on this important subject, is yours for the asking...just mail the coupon below.

The 6 Special Features of "Lysol"

- 1. SAFETY..."Lysol" is gentle and reliable. It contains no harmful free caustic alkali.
- 2. Effectiveness..."Lysol" is a true germicide, which means that it kills germs counter.

for hands, complexion, bath. A fine, firm, white soap, with the added deodorant property of "Lysol". Protects longer against body odors, without leaving strong after-odor. Washes away germs and perspiration odors. Get a cake at your favorite drug

- under practical conditions...even in the presence of organic matter (such as dirt, mucus, serum, pus, etc.). Some other antiseptics don't work when they meet with these conditions.
- 3. Penetration... "Lysol" solutions, because of their low surface tension, spread into hidden folds of the skin, and thus virtually search out germs.
- 4. Economy..."Lysol", because it is concentrated, costs less than one cent an application in the proper solution for feminine hygiene.
- 5. Odor...The cleanly odor of "Lysol" disappears immediately after use.
- 6. STABILITY . . . "Lysol" keeps its full strength, no matter how long it is kept, no matter how often it is uncorked.

Show Boat Has a New Sweetheart

excitement. So when fall came, I decided I ought to go to Barnard College. I came in to New York, with a hundred dollars in my purse for the registration fee, and was on my way from the subway station to Barnard when I passed the Institute of Musical Art.

"I saw the sign, and right then I knew one thing—I didn't want to go to Barnard. I walked right into the institute and asked them what you had to do to study singing there.

"'Oh,' they said, 'you have to know a lot about it, and have a good voice to be-

"Well, I didn't know a thing about it, and I hadn't any idea whether I had a good voice or not because I'd never tried tt, but I bluffed them into letting me have an audition. The audition was for Dr. Damrosch—Walter Damrosch—and as soon as I started to sing he cried, 'Open de door!'

"I didn't know what he wanted me to open the door for, unless I was making so much noise the room couldn't hold it so much noise the room couldn't hold it all, but I stopped and opened it for him. Then he began to laugh, and finally explained that he meant for me to open my mouth and sing out, not keep the sound bottled up in my throat.

l couldn't very well go on pretending that l knew anything about singing after that, but Dr. Damrosch said my voice was good enough to warrant lessons so I gave them my hundred dollars and enrolled in the institute.

T was at the Institute of Musical Art that Winifred met Mrs. Theodore Toedt, who has taught and helped her ever since—except for a year or two which I'll tell you about later.

At first, she didn't really have any intention of studying music seriously, as preparation for a career. She didn't think her voice was that good, for one thing. Studying at the institute was just an excuse to come in to New York twice a

But as she went on, and learned more, she became more and more interested, and finally her father cast the deciding vote by declaring that all this music business was nonsense, and he wasn't going to go on paying for it.

No restless modern girl, just beginning to find something which interested her, could be expected to stand for that.

"I told him he didn't have to pay for it, but I was going to go right on studying. I got the institute and Mrs. Toedt to help me find a few odd jobs of singing-churches and an appearance on a local station now and then-and the money I got from them was enough to cover my fees, if I was careful."

Then came her first big break. It was just luck, she herself admits; one of those Cinderella-like bits of luck I mentioned Someone suggested that she write to Mme. Marcella Sembrich, who had been a famous opera star before her retirement, saking for permission to sing for her. Winifred didn't expect anything to come of it, but one day when she had nothing else to do, she wrote. For two months there was no answer. Then came a note asking her to come to tea.

"I walked in, expecting to see a big, imposing woman with a grand manner. Of "Dolly . . . you've started a lot of gossip!"

1. "Look at these panties, Mother. They've got everybody on the block talking about dolly and you.'

"Why, what's the matter? I wash dolly's clothes right in with my regular wash.'

3. "Deer me! Is that all the new neighbor said?"

"Nope! She said you ought to change to Fels-Naptha Soap same as she did-'cause its wonderful golden soap and heaps of naptha chase out every teeny speck of dirt-and clothes look a million times whiter.'

2. "I told 'em you do-and that nice new lady up the street said that's the trouble. She's afraid your washes have tattle-tale gray like hers used to. Even though you work hard, your soap leaves dirt behind and the clothes show it.

FEW WEEKS LATER . . .

4. At the new neighbor's house. "So Mother tried Fels-Naptha Soap just like you told me. And now her clothes look so swell she baked you this apple pie.'

'Well! Well! Tell your mother that Fels-Naptha is a wonder for silk things, too-and maybe she'll bake me a big chocolate cake!"

Banish "Tattle-Tale Gray" with FELS-NAPTHA SOAP!

• "Listen-you're my twin and best pal-but it'll be a cold day when I go traveling with you again! Crab-whine -boo-hoo . . . all the way home! I know what you need though-watch me unpack our suitcase and get it!"

"Now stop your whimpering! I know you're chafed and hot and cranky-I don't feel any too comfortable myself. I am hurrying, aren't I? I'll find it if I have to dig clear through to China!"

• "There you are! Now will you take back what you said about me? Sprinkle yourself with that soft downy Johnson's Baby Powder and smile for a change. And then give some to Sister!"

• "I'm Johnson's Baby Powder-I'll defend your baby's skin from chafes and rashes . . . I'll keep it soft and satin-smooth-I'm that way myself! No gritty particles in me as in some powders—and no orris-root. I'm made of the purest, finest Italian talc. (Your baby will like Johnson's Baby Soap, Baby Cream, and Baby Oil, too!)" course I was scared to death," Winifred confessed. "Instead, here was this little. confessed. "Instead, here was this little, sweet old lady, inches shorter than I, and tremendously gentle and kind. She didn't say a word about music. We sat and had tea and talked about different things, and then finally she said, 'Now you can sing for me, you are not nervous any more.'

"She smiled and nodded her head while I was singing. Then we talked some more, and she asked me a few questions about and she asked me a few questions about myself. And then, without any warning, just as I was leaving, she asked, 'Would you like to come and live here, in my home, and let me teach you?'

"So for nearly two years I lived with Mme. Sembrich. She was the loveliest woman I've ever known."

It was while she was with Sembrich that Winifred fell in love. Even today, years after it ended, it hurts her to speak of this chapter in her life.

He was a musician too, you see—like Winifred, faced with the problem of creating his career. Deeply in love as they were, there was still room in each of their hearts for the egoism no artist can be without and still succeed. There were clashes of temperament, periods in which each took a savage pleasure in making the other unhappy.

"I learned then," Winifred said, "that musicians must never marry. It was a continual fight for supremacy between the two of us. We never knew when there would be an explosion. It was hurting our work, too, and in the long run we both knew that it was the most important thing in the world to each of us.

THEY knew, too, that it would be years before they could marry; and that even marriage might bring them small happiness. In all likelihood it would mean nothing more than a repetition of the quarrels which were marring their love for each other even then.

One day, realizing that it was the only way out of their difficulty, they brought their romance to an end.

New York was unbearable to Winifred after that. She couldn't go out or meet her musical friends, for fear she might meet him too. The streets where they had walked together, bars of music they had walked together, bars of music they had listened to together, everything seemed to conspire to remind her of him. There was only one thing to be done: leave New York; and only one place, for a singer to go: Europe.

"The way Mme. Sembrich acted when I told her I was going to Europe shows how big and generous she was. She knew that if she hadn't taken care of me and paid all my expenses I couldn't have saved enough money to go. I felt as if I were deserting her, but I was overwrought and hysterical. I had to go. The day before I left, we had a long talk.

"'You'll never see me again, Winny, she said. 'I know that. I just want you to remember one thing. Whatever happens to you, don't ever stop singing.'

"I never did see her again, either. When I returned, she was in a coma, and soon after that she died."

By the time Winifred had bought her ticket and some necessary clothes, she had just thirty dollars, but she sailed nevertheless. Her father, still insisting that a musical career was nonsense and a trip to Europe even worse, had refused to help her, but while she was on the Atlantic he relented and cabled an additional $300.

She stayed in Europe for two years, singing in England and other countries, and studying all the time. If it hadn't been for a mixup with British immigration officials, she might today be a star of the British Broadcasting Company.

She had obtained a British labor permit. She had obtained a British labor permit necessary for an alien before he can work in England, but in leaving England for the continent she allowed it to lapse, and didn't apply for a new one on her return. John Bull's laws are stern. One night when she was about to enter the BBC studios to go on the air, she was stopped by a policeman. Not only was she forbidden to work that night, but it turned out that she couldn't have a new turned out that she couldn't have a new labor permit. A contract to sing in a large suburban vaudeville theater had to be cancelled as well. Her career in England, which had been just about to bear fruit after a good many lean months, was definitely finished.

"And anyway," Winifred said, "I suddenly discovered I was homesick for New York."

Back in New York, she began the rounds of radio advertising agencies, giving auditions, trying to find work. There wasn't any. She caught a bad cold, and in her run-down condition, was really ill.
And right at the end of her illness came a call from Benton and Bowles, the advertising agency which handles the Show Boat program for Maxwell House, and at that time was also producing the Log Cabin Inn show with Conrad Thibault.

THEY offered me a chance to sing on the Log Cabin program, and sick though I still was, I just couldn't turn it down. I accepted. And I was terrible! So terrible that on my one and only appearance on the air they cut my song down to about two bars, and even then had to ask the orchestra to play especially loudly to drown me out. They didn't ask me to sing again.

"It taught me a lesson, though. That was last March. I rested up, got into good physical condition again, and gave more auditions, and last fall I tried out at Benton and Bowles once more, for the new Show Boat part. There were three auditions, and I got as far as being one of three girls who sang in the third. three girls who sang in the third.

"When it was over, I felt terribly depressed. I was sure one of the other girls had been chosen. All fall I'd been working toward a recital at Town Hall, in New York, but a recital costs about a thousand dollars and I didn't even have fifty. I couldn't see how Benton and Bowles would ever let me sing on their program, after the terrible failure I had made before.

"I went down to my manager's office. "Well, are you ready for that recital?" he asked. I told him I couldn't ever get enough money to pay for one. He laughed and said, 'That oughtn't to be hard. Benton and Bowles just called. They want you to come and sign a contract for the Show Boat."

The Town Hall concert was given, incidentally, last December, and immediately established Winifred Cecil as one of America's finest young sopranos. But she still insists that Benton and Bowles the still insists that Benton and Bowles then't realize she is the same girl who was don't realize she is the same girl who was such a dismal flop on the Log Cabin hour.

such a dismal flop on the Log Cabin hour.

The future? She has two definite plans. "I'm going to sing in grand opera some day," she said. "Not for a while, not until I'm ready for it. At least five years. To get ready I'm going to find a job in a musical comedy stock company somewhere and get some stage training."

And the other plan? "In three years I'm going to be married—that is," holding up crossed fingers. "if nothing happens. No, I won't tell you who he is. I'll just tell you one thing. He's not a musician!"

How Helen Hayes Made Her Marriage a Success

yoke of coercion. And Helen had a temper that was already famous. Only her unbelievable tact and level-headedness helped her see her dreams come true.

When Helen first met him he had one foot across the threshold of dramatic fame. He had helped Edward Sheldon write "Lulu Belle." But always he worked as a collaborator, one who leaned on others, one who wasted more than he produced, giving away priceless lines of dia-logue, epigrams, in his conversation which more canny writers learned to treasure.

HEY met at a party at the beginning of the 1926 stage season when she was a ranking comedienne and he was a movie critic on an evening paper who wrote plays in off moments. Their meeting of necessity was casual, inconsequential. But some spark must have struck between them even then, for Charlie began to call and ask her for dates.

Helen was prepared to be amused. She had heard of her future husband's eccentricities as who on Broadway had not received.

and when she went with him that first night she had been amply warned.

She knew for instance of his latest bit of whimsy. Maddened by interviewers of Hollywood stars, because they always begged for autographed portraits, it seemed that Charlie, at interviews for his paper, would ask the star if she would like bis picture. Trapped, the star would mumble a surprised yes. Therestar would mumble a surprised yes. There-upon Charlie would whip out a rubber stamp, a picture of himself, and endorse it whimsically, "I love you—Charles Mac-Arthur.

And, she recalled, back in Chicago they still said that he had been accustomed to taking early morning rides with Dion O'Bannion, last of the midwest's great gun killers, with Charlie at the wheel, singing, and Dion shooting out arc lights for practice.

Helen's first clear insight into his true when they discussed the possibility of her playing the lead in Sir James Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows."

Here was a curious circumstance. Charlie, who never considered himself worthy of a serious thought, gave Helen the advice which meant real, country-wide suc-

"Take my word for it," he counselled, "the time is ripe for you to break away from comedy. Get into drama, take the lead in this play of Barrie's."

And Helen finally accepted. The play began out of town. When it arrived in New York, she was hailed as the best young actress in America. She saw Charlie for the third time in her life on the opening night when he fought his the opening night when he fought his way backstage with his congratulations.

By now Helen realized that she was falling in love with this erratic genius. It was paradoxical, she knew, for a girl who had worked hard all her life to love a man who had never settled down for more than a month at a time. But there it was, and whatever forebodings she might secretly have had, she became en-gaged to him in the winter months of

She must have felt that some time, some way, Charlie would leave off his nomadic wandering, his sporadic plunges into work, set a goal for himself and strike out. And she would help.

Then he started his collaboration on "The Front Page." Helen herself was starring in "Coquette," a dark tragedy which was sending audiences home from the theater, their eyes still wet with tears at her moving performance.

It was then, August 17, 1928, that they were married. And it was the wedding ceremony, unplanned, unexpected, that showed Helen how much was left before she could see the man she loved secure at the top, his instability left far behind

One hot afternoon Charlie picked up Helen and they went out for a soda. Af-terwards, they strolled into an office building on 42nd Street to escape the stifling weather.

"I've got a friend on the eighteenth floor. It's always cool there. Let's go T was pleasant, refreshing in the office. Helen sat down with a sigh of relief. Suddenly Charlie jumped to his feet, rushed to the phone with a great air of excitement. In the next five minutes he had called Helen's mother, Alexander Woollcott and Ben Hecht, urging them all to come over at once.

"Well, I mean—" protested

"what's all this mystery?"

"Oh | forces

"Oh, I forgot to tell you," Charlie replied. "We're going to be married. Where's a minister?"

What follows sounds like the veriest kind of a fairy tale, but every witness in the room has vouchsafed for it. the next few minutes Helen's mother and the two witnesses assembled. And at that moment, a magistrate of New York city, a mutual friend, strolled in. Charlie grabbed him by the arm.

"You're going to marry us—right now,"

At first, Helen couldn't believe he was serious. "But Charlie," she objected, "married this way—without any announceserious. ments, any attendants, not even in a church? Besides, I'm not certain I want

"What!" Charlie exclaimed. "After making these people come all this way in such weather? You can't back out now." And then, riled by his mocking words, she made up her mind. She would bring Charlie MacArthur down to earth. So, knowing full well the task she was assuming, Helen was wedded to Charlie without further delay.

Although there were no money wor-

Although there were no money worries for this young couple, far more serious problems came to them short months after the wedding.

A contract was in the mail one day, offering Charlie a stupendous salary to come to Hollywood and adapt stories for the screen. Charlie was inclined to turn down the offer. Hollywood, from which his friends returned with caustic com-ments, didn't sound at all enticing. He had also heard there was hard work to be done out there.

Helen realized that he would be away from her most of the year, if he accepted. But the work he would do was more important than the pain of their separa-tion. Attendance, day in and day out, at a studio might bring him closer to a realization of his powers.

"I'm not even going to answer," he told her and got up to leave the room.

"Wait a minute," she pleaded and then, with infinite tact, careful to avoid any pressure, she persuaded him to sign the contract. She went to the depot with him, saw him off and trudged back to work. She was not to hear from Hollywood in regard to her own services until ter, blue eyed, flaxen haired, with her mother's frailty and her father's sense of humor. The child was born in Feb-ruary, 1930. Shortly after that, with Charlie already back on the West Coast, Helen was sent her first offer from the movies, a long term contract, with options for renewals.

She was reluctant to accept. Her first love was the stage, and she was not at all sure that she'd be anything but a flop in Hollywood. Still, she might be able to help her husband, being at his side more of the time.

So she sacrificed her own interest, risked her future on the stage, and went West. She was happy at first, because the picture she made was written by Charlie. It was "The Sin of Madelon Claudet." Not enough can be said about the effort Helen made to insure the film's success for the

For a while, working almost hand in hand with Charlie, Helen thought that he was straightening out on the road to permanent success. Then occurred the first of several incidents which shook her belief, nearly made her desert Hollywood.
An afternoon came when Charlie disconneared from his studio office. He was An afternoon came when Charlie disappeared from his studio office. He was not to be found anywhere.

For two weeks, no one heard from him, had the least idea where he could have gone. Suddenly, he reappeared, just as quickly as he had departed.

He explained to Helen, who was in tears with fear and worry:

"A decorator came into my office and wanted me to pick out some drapes. It wanted me to pick out some drapes. It sounded too darn much like permanence, so I got out."

Charlie and his closest friend, Ben Hecht, who was also on the Coast, shared a genuine dislike for Hollywood. Soon a genuine dislike for Hollywood. Soon they began to cast longing eyes towards the legitimate stage. Charlie became more and more restless.

Finally, roused to working pitch, the two of them left for New York, where they wrote the play, "Twentieth Century," at Hecht's home in Nyack.

After a successful run, Charlie sat back

After a successful run, Charlie sat back, content with a Broadway life of hand-shaking, shop talk, cocktail parties, and first nights, with an occasional flurry of work.

It was not, however, what Helen wanted for him.

ROM her work in Hollywood, she had a growing faith in the film industry. Its possibilities seemed limitless. Charlie should be on hand, ready for a chance when it came.

Then she heard that he and Hecht were wanted in Hollywood for the adaptation of "Twentieth Century" to the screen. Again Charlie balked at work in the movie capitol. Summoning up all her movie capitol. Summoning up all her faith in him, Helen quietly, unobstrusively, persuasively, once more led him to accept the job.

In the meantime, taking advantage of her contract which allowed her six months out of every year for stage appearances,

Helen went back to New York.

It was not until the next spring, in 1932, that she and Charlie took their first real vacation since they married.

They went abroad for five weeks, touring England and France at their leisure. During the past winter, Charlie had not only adapted his play with Hecht, but had produced other work. He had actually kept busy most of the time.

Now, in Europe, he and Helen were closer than ever. Gone, it seemed, was his restlessness, his inability to stick long at any one thing. He appeared almost

They talked over plans for a house,

No one would believe Helen when she came back to New York and said that Charlie MacArthur was spending money to buy a house. She had never been more happy. Her dream of furnishing a real home was coming true. In the midst of moving, Charlie was recalled to Hollywood. Hollywood.

standard for scripts."

Without another word, he tore the blank pages into tiny pieces, threw them temperamentally into a wastepaper basket, and strode out.

To Helen, when she heard this, it was almost the last straw. Would Charlie never do real work? She had waited five years. She wondered a bit shakily on just what she had based her faith and confidence.

It did not surprise her that he and Hecht, a few weeks later, dramatically canceled their contracts which called for approximately $1000 a day and left Hollywood the same afternoon.

"Something's coming up," he said, but Helen, discouraged, didn't encourage him to go on. She did not see him often in the next few days. He was gone all the time, mostly with Ben Hecht. Always he was gay, happy. He seemed not to have a worry in the world. She thought a lot those days. More and more her battle seemed lost. She was close to tears those days. tears those days.

Suddenly, one day, he came racing home, just after lunch, his face broken in a wide, triumphant grin. Breathlessly he told Helen the good news.

The night of the preview on Long Island, when the curtain was rung down and the audience applauded wildly, Helen stood proudly by, willing to wait until later to offer her private congratulations. It was enough just then to share the ovation.

As a happy sequel, Helen left shortly for Hollywood with the knowledge that her next picture would be "What Every Woman Knows," the play that marked the beginning of her love affair with Charlie.

When she left, Charlie was at the station to say goodbye. His plans had already been made for his next picture, a comedy starring Jimmy Savo. They parted with that perfect understanding and complete security which was Helen's six-year-old dream come true.

The late Morris Littmann, a New York retail merchant and one of Ted's closest friends, had set a precedent in radio by buying up all the time on WHN. His was the only commercial program the station carried for a long period of time. All day long, WHN's listeners would hear the repeated strains of the Littmann theme song, interspersed with announcements of bargain offers at the Littmann store.

That was too much for Ted. When Littmann asked him his opinion of his broadcasts, Ted gave it to him. "They're blatant and over-commercialized," he said. blatant and over-commercialized," he said. "You're taking advantage of the listeners by buying too much time. Besides, it isn't good business. You're antagonizing a lot of prospective customers by plugging at them too much."

Littmann rewarded Ted's bluntness by telling William S. Paley, president of CBS, that the chain wasn't fully realizing the announcer's value by keeping him on sustaining programs. The result was that Ted got a raise.

Ted got a raise.

He's similarly outspoken in his football broadcasts, and for a very good reason. He believes that good sports announcing demands frankness.

"I try to be honest with myself as well as with every listener," he says. "I've been criticized for being partial to one team in a game, but a radio announcer, like a newspaper reporter, can't be impartial and frank at the same time!

WHEN I enter a stadium l just un-leash myself, let go of all restrictions. Sports announcing is all emotional, and my emotions must be free. Impartiality would kill the flavor of a broadcast.

ity would kill the flavor of a broadcast. If a player looks good to me when he comes out on the field, I'll say so, and if I don't like the brand of football a team is playing, I'll say that, too."

Just once, you'll remember, this policy of Ted's got him into difficulties. In the 1931 Harvard-Dartmouth game he characterized two of Dartmouth's plays as "putrid." He was ruled off the Harvard field. Although he usually sticks to his opinions, Ted realizes now that the term was excessive, and is sincerely sorry he used it. used it.

Unpleasant as the incident was, it still had its good effects. It gave Ted what amounted to a publicity scoop. There was talk of a mechanical gadget to delay announcers words after they had entered the microphone long enough for a copy-desk of "editors" to delete objectionable phrases. Most of the editorial comment was in a similar jocular vein, and did Ted no real harm.

Today, gridiron fans look forward to Ted's prophecies, and respect them. He never makes predictions on hunches, but takes into consideration the physical condition of individual players, comparative ability, and, whenever possible, his own first-hand observation of competing teams.

You know his ability to prophesy foot-

You know his ability to prophesy football results, but he has another talent, equally valuable, known only to those intimately connected with the radio world. Behind the scenes, he's known as radio's best picker of future stars.

When Rudy Vallee was tooting the saxophone on a local jewelry store program over WMCA, New York, Ted told his friends, "This Vallee fellow has the best orchestra on the air. Watch that guy. He's going to be one of the biggest names in broadcasting."

It was the same with Amos 'n' Andy. When the two blackface comedians were signed by Pepsodent for their first net-work job after a long period of local Chi-cago broadcasting as Sam and Henry, it was Ted who called the attention of New York radio scribes to the new stellar show looming on the horizon. His persistent boosting in the early days was a large factor in both Rudy's and Amos 'n' Andy's success.

He's especially sharp at picking hit bands. Freddie Rich, Duke Ellington, Jack Denny and Red Nichols are some of the musical maestros he praised long before you or I had ever heard of them.

I asked him, the other day, who were

the coming stars now.

"There are loads of youngsters who are headed for stardom," he said. "For example, Irene Beasley, of the networks, and a kid named Larry Taylor, of WAAT, New Jersey. But the days when unknowns skyrocketed, as Vallee and Amos 'n' Andy did, are past. Radio's gone beyond creating its own stars now. Instead, we're headed for a period of big names from other fields—in it now, as a matter of fact to a large extent."

matter of fact, to a large extent."

Ted's independence in his relations with his bosses, the Columbia network, is responsible for the breaking of a number of radio taboos. He never draws network lines, in or out of working hours. He's likely to pop up anywhere in radio, whether or not there is a tie-up with his chain. When NBC opened its old Times Square studios Ted, who was present un-officially, drew as much attention from the premiere audience as any personality of the chain running the event.

He even broadcast, once, over both networks simultaneously. When Milton J. Cross, the NBC announcer, won the first radio diction medal in 1929, both CBS and NBC broadcast the proceedings from the Academy of Arts and Letters. presided over the CBS mike while Phillips Carlin handled the job for NBC. The two mikes were side by side in a small room, and it was obvious that "crossroom, and it was obvious that "cross-talk" couldn't be avoided. So Carlin stepped aside and Ted's words, aimed at the CBS mouthpiece, actually went out over both networks—and radio was treated to the unprecedented spectacle of an announcer reporting an honor being given to an announcer of a competing organization, over the competition's own stations as well as his own!

Ted often goes on local stations, whether they are CBS outlets or not, in the cities he visits on assignments for his own network. And when he had his own weekly sports commentary spot, he broke the rules by inviting sports announcers of competitive stations to his program.

For a long time Ted was in demand as a master of ceremonies at band openings in New York hotels. But there was likely to be rough going when Ted presided over a premiere. The last time he officiated in such a job was at the Taft Hotel. He had just given a complimentary introduction to some celebrity when somebody in the audience yelled derisively, "So what?" Ted told him what, and although his remarks were greeted with applause from the audience, he swore off master-of-ceremonying from that day on.

"I'll leave that job to someone with entertainment value," he says, top-of-the-stove rice pudding, which is quicker to make than the old-fashioned baked rice pudding.

"The proportions are one cup of rice, to five cups of milk," she told me. "Soak to five cups of milk," she told me. "Soak the rice in warm water for half an hour, then dry it in a towel, or in the oven with the flame turned low. When it is entirely dry, heat the milk and add the rice, rubbing it between your hands over the cooking milk. In this way the grains of rice will be separated. Add a pinch of salt and sugar to taste—I use two mixing spoonfuls of sugar but many people will spoonfuls of sugar, but many people will find this too sweet. Cook slowly until the rice is cooked through, when it should have absorbed all the milk. If the milk have absorbed an the mink. If the mink hasn't all been absorbed, pour off the excess, for you want the pudding to be firm, not liquid. Remove from the fire and add a teaspoonful of vanilla, then pour into a dish which has been rinsed with cold water and let the pudding cool. When it has cooled, set it in the ice-box until ready to serve. Before serving, sprinkle with cinnamon or grated chocolate, or cover with a puree of chestnuts which has been made by boiling chestnuts until tender and running them through a food chopper. Serve with whipped cream."

Lenten dishes or no, no interview with Fritzi Scheff would be complete without her recipe for Hungarian goulash—"Real Hungarian goulash," she insists, "not one of those stews done up with tomatoes and all sorts of other vegetables and spices"but there just isn't room for any more. So if you will write to me I'll be glad to send you her recipe, as well as those for the creamed soups and scalloped oysters mentioned in the article, and a delicious caramel custard I'm sure you will love. Fritzi is also famous for her candy recipes, and I'll send those, too, if you will mention them when you write me. Raising "Home Grown" vegetables is not enough. Harvested exactly when they offer the highest food value, they are rushed to our kitchens to prevent the loss of vitamins that occurs when vegetables are exposed to the delays of transportation and storage. And every one of our farms is less than an hour's trucking distance away!

Add to this care in growing, a process that protects the essential vitamins and minerals, and you have the reasons why Gerber's wins the praise of experts on baby feeding. Ask no appetite? nervous? losing weight? pale?

there is usually a definite reason for these

Don't try to get well in a day... this is asking too much of Nature. Remember, she has certain natural processes that just cannot be hurried.

But there is a certain scientific way you can assist by starting those digestive juices in the stomach to flowing more freely and at the same time supply a balanced mineral deficiency the body needs.

Therefore, if you are pale, tired and rundown . . . a frequent sign that your bloodcells are weak—then do try in the simple, easy way so many millions approve—by starting a course of S.S.S. Blood Tonic.

You may have the will-power to be "up and doing" but unless your blood is in top notch form you are not fully yourself and you may remark, "I wonder why I tire so easily."

Much more could be said—a trial will thoroughly convince you that this way, in the absence of any organic trouble, will start you on the road of feeling like yourself again. You should soon enjoy again the satisfaction of appetizing food ... sound sleep ... steady nerves ... a good complexion ... and renewed strength.

He Never Takes No For An Answer

way, one who played the brand of insane, pulse-wracking jazz that Red Nichols produced on his trumpet must be that way multiplied by two.

The life of a chorus girl isn't the gay, glamourous butterfly affair you may have been led to believe. It's hard work, hard, physical work. When she goes home at midnight, a chorus girl is likely to be a lot more tired than a typist when she goes home at five. That's one reason why chorus girls aren't any more anxious to fall in love with crazy, unstable playboys than typists are.

The months went on, and Willa went on not answering Red's fervent notes.

She didn't know Red. She didn't know, for instance, just how persistent he could be, nor that thus far in his life he'd always managed to get what he wanted. There were a lot of things she didn't know.

Red's father was professor of music at the University of Utah. He loved music so much that he had made it his profession. He taught Red to play the trumpet when he was three years old, and took him with him to play in the State Industrial School Band, which he directed.

determined that Red and his other children must not be professional musicians. It was his own experience that brought him to this determination. His income from his duties at the university, plus that from directing the Industrial School Band, amounted to exactly $18.50 a week. Eighteen-fifty on which to bring up a family of four children. As far as Professor Nichols could see, poverty was the only future in music.

As a sideline, music was a different matter. You could use it to give yourself and your friends pleasure, and to add, now and then, to your regular income.

Red made his first public appearance in the Civic Auditorium of his home town, Ogden, when he was five years old. He played "America" on his trumpet. After that he was in constant demand around Ogden, at local entertainments and now and then in vaudeville theaters. He still has the yellowed clipping from the Ogden Standard of February 8, 1916, telling of his appearance at an Elks' show:

"Master Loring Nichols, Ogden's preco-

"Master Loring Nichols, Ogden's precocious eleven-year-old cornetist, was required to play two numbers, instead of one. In fact, the audience did not wait for the conclusion of either of his numbers to express its appreciation, but applauded almost continuously while he was play-

Summers, Professor Nichols, Red, and his two sisters helped out the family pocketbook by traveling through Utah, appearing as a vaudeville act in various theaters. The professor could play almost any kind of instrument you'd care to mention; and Red sang and danced in addition to his trumpet solos.

One thing, though, was always taken for granted. Red's real business was going to school, not playing the trumpet. Whenever it was a question of missing a day of school to play somewhere, school always won out.

won out.

When he was fourteen, Red won a scholarship to Culver Military Academy, in Indiana. It was a musical scholarship, too, and at Culver he played in the band, which was the best thing about his two years there, to his way of thinking. He didn't care much for military training, maneuvers and tactics. He cared so little for them that it was a tragedy to him when he passed his examinations for West Point. He hadn't expected to pass them, hadn't wanted to, and had only taken them to please his father, who had settled on the army as practically a perfect career for his son.

Red graduated from Culver and went back to Ogden, ostensibly to wait until time to enter West Point. All the time, though, he knew he wasn't going to West Point. Neither was he going to follow the career his family had mapped out for him—West Point, army, and a progression to the rank of general by easy stages. And, by golly, he wasn't going to limit his musical activities to playing in a military hand!

They argued about it at first, Red and his father, and the arguments had a way of getting noisier and more bitter every time. Finally Red quit arguing. He borrowed a few dollars where he could, saved a few more, and succeeded in scraping fifty of them together. Then he quietly boarded a train for a small town in Ohio, where one of his former Culver schoolmates lived. He was seventeen years old.

During the year and a half that followed, Red and four ex-members of the Culver band, all of whom lived in neighboring Ohio towns, barnstormed through Ohio and Indiana, calling themselves the Syncopating Five and playing for dances. From the first they were popular, and sometimes after a night's engagement the profits would amount to as high as sixty dollars each.

All the time, though, Red was working toward an invasion of New York. He'd won his point with his father—a few weeks after he'd landed in Ohio a letter had come, with the key of the Nichols home enclosed. "You can use this whenever you like," Professor Nichols had written. "I still don't think music is any profession for you, but if you want to follow it so much, I guess you'll have to do it."

Red saved up enough money to keep him in New York for several months if he didn't work, and left the Syncopating Five—which, deprived of its guiding spirit, promptly disbanded.

E needn't have worried about finances, though. He'd been in New York only a few months when he got a job playing in Harry Susskind's orchestra at the Pelham Heath lnn, and from then on Red Nichols' progress was one of those things you dream about. He was nineteen when he organized an orchestra called The Redheads, with Jimmy Dorsey, Miff Mole, Arthur Schutt, Vic Burton, Joe Venuti, Eddie Lang and himself in its personnel, and made his first phonograph recording. Red Nichols and his Five Pennies burst upon a startled world in 1925. The Five Red Nichols and his Five Pennies burst upon a startled world in 1925. The Five Pennies were the same as The Redheads, minus Joe Venuti. In his Five Pennies records Red introduced the kind of hot jazz music which has become his trademark. Even today "to go Nichols" is a bit of musicians' slang meaning to play the Nichols type of music.

The Five Pennies recording of "Ida" is

The Five Pennies recording of "Ida" is a classic; it sold a million copies, and it's still selling. It illustrates Red's method of taking a tune which had been popular years before and rearranging it, making it virtually his own. When you think of "Ida," you think of Red Nichols.

And that brings us—and Red—up to 1926, the "Vanities" and Willa Stutsman.

And that brings us—and Red—up to 1926, the "Vanities" and Willa Stutsman. He hadn't got that far, you see, by being an erratic, crazy musician. He'd known all along just what he wanted, and how to get it.

Not knowing this, Willa paid no attention to his notes. For nine months, through one entire edition of the "Vanities," he went on sending them to her. Then a new edition of the show was prepared, in which Earl Carroll tried the new and revolutionary idea of using the chorus girls as ushers and program girls. They had to come down into the auditorium before the show and get their programs.

That was exactly the chance Red had been waiting for. One night he suddenly popped out at Willa as she came into the lobby.

"Say," he said, "is it possible for a fellow to have a date with you tonight after the show?"

Willa looked at him, hesitated, then re-lented. "All right," she said. "You've cer-lented. "All right, sne said. Touve certainly tried hard enough."

"And after that," says Red, "it. was strictly romance." They were married a few months later, with Paul Whiteman, whose orchestra Red had just joined, as best man. Today they have a lovely home in Forest Hills, which they took when their little daughter Dorothy was old enough to want to run around out of doors. Red. with his band, is star of Friday night's Kellogg College Prom. Professor Nichols admits that it's possible for a musician to be a financial success—and Willa admits that a musician can settle down to being a good husband. That is, except when it's a question of airplanes. They terrify her, but Red loves them. If he has to make a trip he'll agree to go by train, to please her, but somehow it always happens that he just misses the train and has to go by plane instead.

But then-all musicians are erratic.

The True Story of Radio's Francis X. Bushman

Shortly thereafter the whole outfit packed up and went out and founded Hollywood. Bushman made half a million dollars in that first year. This was during his Lavender Era. He drove around in a magnificent lavender limousine, attended by a chauffeur, and footbook partier that the state of the st chauffeur and footmen uniformed to match; he wore lavender suits and orchid fedoras and his great house was a symphony in shades of purple.

He was crowned "King of the Movies" during the World's Fair in 1915, and also at the San Diego Exposition. He traveled abroad a great deal, and enthusiastic crowds greeted him wherever he went. In those days American movies were the only movies there were, so the whole world was his audience—and his oyster.

He may be said to have started the custom of divorce in the movie colony. At least he was the first to indulge in that luxury. It was not known generally that he was married. With women all over the world kissing his picture good night, the studio felt that Bushman's wife and five children should be kept very much in the background.

But Bushman insisted on having them near him, so the family lived in a great house close to the studio. When Francis X. used to carry an infant around in the conventional happy fade-out of his films. more often than not it was one of his own children.

It finally got out that The Great Lover had been married for a number of years. His fan mail dropped perceptibly, and from that moment on his popularity from that moment on his popularity waned.

His last picture was "Ben Hur" and in

"It used to be a lot of fun," he remembers, "when none of us knew what it was all about. We had a great gang in those days. But now it's just a cold, grim business proposition.

He went East with a vaudeville act, the hardest work he had done in years; finally he was playing stock in outlying theatres. It was in one of these houses in Chicago that he was first tapped for radio ap-pearances. When they tried to reach him for an audition he was hard to find. But when they found him he liked the idea of more pay for less work than he was doing in vaudeville or stock. So he appeared on the Armour Hour for fourteen weeks, and has been on the air more or less steadily

ORCHESTRAL ANATOMY

For years listeners have been reading how Rubinoff rehearses his orchestra in sections before he tries it out as a whole. None of them, however, have ever been told exactly what it is that makes up the complete orchestra. We found out and we're going to tell you. Were you to stand in the studio during a rehearsal, you would be able to count:

Nine violins; four saxophones; three trumpets; three trombones; two pianos; two cellos; two violas; two drummers; and one each of harp, bass, guitar, flute, oboe and tuba.

Even before Rubinoss goes into rehearsal, his program of music has gone through the hands of his five special arrangers.

THEME SONG SECTION

Long as we're talking about the musician and His Violin, we should add that Rubinoff's theme song, "Give Me a Moment Please," is the one he has been using since Vallee brought him to the microphone five years ago.

If you had X-Ray Eyes

you'd never again take a harsh, quick-acting cathartic!

Be sure the laxative YOU take is correctly timed

You don't need to be a professor of physiology to figure this out. When you take a harsh, quick-acting cathartic that races through your alimentary tract in a couple of hours, you're shocking and jolting your system. No wonder its violent action leaves you weak and exhausted.

Unassimilated food is rushed through your intestines. Valuable fluids are drained away. The delicate membranes become irritated. And you have stomach pains. Drastic purgatives should be employed only upon the advice of a doctor.

What a correctly timed laxative means:

When we say that Ex-Lax is a correctly timed laxative, this is what we mean: Ex-Lax takes from 6 to 8 hours to act. You take one or two of the tablets when you go to bed. You sleep through the night . . . undisturbed! In the morning, Ex-Lax takes effect. And the effects are thorough and complete, yet so gentle and mild you hardly know you've taken a laxative.

No stomach pains. No "upset" feeling. No embarrassment during the day. And Ex-Lax is so easy to take—it tastes just like delicious chocolate.

Good for all ages

Ex-Lax is equally good for grown-ups and children . . . for every member of the family. It is used by more people than any other laxative in the whole world. The next time you need a laxative ask your druggist for a box of Ex-Lax. And refuse to accept a substitute. Ex-Lax costs only ten centsunless you want the big family size, and that's a quarter.

reddened eyes, from fatigue, and her hands shook so that she could hardly hit the keys of the typewriter. She typed a line, looked at it, and saw that it made no sense at all. She tore up the page and started all over again.

The phone rang, and the head stenographer answered. She put down the phone and called Madge. "They want you in the music library, Summers," she said. Madge gasped, and her hands went to her throat. Then, without a word, she turned throat. Then and ran out.

The head stenographer looked after her triously. "I wish someone would invent curiously. a stenographic machine," "Girls!" She made the way she sighed. She made the word an epithet. It was some years since it would have fitted her.

Madge's heels drummed on the composition flooring, irregularly. She felt terribly warm and icy cold at the same time, and this was silly, because she had gone to the library plenty of times to take dictation. But maybe they'd heard from Jimmy. Maybe he was back, with some simple explanation for what had happened. Maybe—

The girl receptionist in the library was waiting for her. "In the head arranger's office," she said. She looked a little shaky, MADGE nodded, her hopes dying. She made a fierce effort to compose herself, jerked her dress smooth with an automatically feminine gesture, pushed her hair into place, and fumbled for the door knob. The other girl got up and opened the door for her, and gave her arm a squeeze. Madge didn't notice.

This head arranger looked up from his desk as she came in. There was another man with him. Madge raised her notebook, the badge of her office. The chief arranger said: "Miss Summers? Sit down, please.

Madge sat down.
"I understand," the arranger said, "that you were—that you are a friend of Jimmy White's, one of our filing boys here."
Madge told herself: "I'm not going to faint, not going to faint." Out loud she said: "Yes."
"Engage 12" the said of the sa

"Engaged?" the chief asked. When Madge hesitated, he said with a little smile: "I see. Well, Miss Summers, did you see White last night?"

A voice that must have been hers whispered: "No,"

The other man cut in. "I'm Flaherty of the building police. When did you see Jimmy White last? Under what circumstances—anything you can tell us.

We have to know, miss."

Madge said: "If I could have a glass of water? Yesterday. We went to lunch together."

Flaherty barked: "What did you talk about? What sort of a mood was he in?"

The arranger said: "You're scaring the girl, Flaherty. Let me handle this. Don't be frightened, Miss Summers. We're trying to help you, trying to find Jim. He's disappeared. What Flaherty was trying to get at was: Did you and he have a fight?"

I'll tell the Missing Persons Bureau. What did he look like?"

"Like this," the arranger said. He went over to a filing cabinet and got out a sheet of popular music. It had a picture of Hal McCabe on the cover. He handed it to Flaherty.

Flaherty picked it up, swore. "This is Hal McCabe, the singer."
"That's right," the arranger said. "The That's right, the arranger said. The kid's almost a double for him with twenty years off."

Flaherty said: "Oh. That McCabe—Listen. Maybe I shouldn't say this. I was on night duty the other night. See? This McCabe came in the artists' entrance. He was with Maxey Corvallis, and a gorilla of Maxey's named Utsy Goldberg. A guy that would trail with muggs like that—hey, maybe some of the peo-ple that don't like Maxey started after his friend and got this kid instead. You get it-what we cops call mistaken identity.

He laughed, harshly. "A morning wasted for nothing," he said "The kid was fired last night. He walked out because he didn't want to talk to the boys about it. Look." He handed the slip to Flaherty. Madge read it over the detective's shoul-

"That's that," Flaherty said. He rose, dusted off his knees, and went out.

"But," Madge said, "why hasn't he gotten in touch with me? Why?"

The head arranger reached out and patted her hand. "He will, my dear. Think it over. At noon, you said you'd marry him if he got a raise. In the afternoon, he lost his job altogether. He's ashamed to see you. He'll get over it, he'll call you up. When he does, tell him to see me. I think I know where there's a job for him."

Madge nodded, and stumbled out. Maybe the arranger was right, maybe that's all there was to it. But she still felt sick and scared. The head stenographer took one look at her and sent her AKE Loeb said, sharply: "Utsy, don't you know no other expression? Isn't there any other way you can hold those features of yours? I tell you I am sick and tired of looking at that face of yours.

Utsy looked up from the match which Utsy looked up from the match which he was industriously whittling into little shavings. Then he looked down again, and said nothing. Utsy never said anything, except "Oke," and he only said that to Max Corvallis.

Jimmy White got up off the hotel bed, and said: "Do you want me to go through the song again, Mr. Loeb? I think I have it now."

Jake Loeb shook his head. "No, boy. Already you are better than IIal McCabe, and if you was to practice some more, you would be so much better the audience would know it. I am telling you this, me, Jake Loeb who never says nothing nice if he can help it; but do not get a swelled head, because even if you was twice as good as Hal McCabe, that would not mean you would get ahead very fast; he could not get a job in Minsky's singing strip songs the way he sings now. But once he was very good; do not forget it."

Jimmy felt a flush of pleasure. But then he happened to look at Utsy. The gorilla was grinning; and Jim did not like that grin. Jimmy said: "What's the idea of all this, anyway?"

"No," Jake Loeb said. "Boy, it is not that.

that. Now you go take a nap. Jimmy, because tonight you make your first appearance.

Jimmy nodded. He pushed open the connecting door into the other room. There was a loud speaker in there; for three nights, now, Jake had had him singing through a mike in the other room with the literard and corrected him. while Jake listened, and corrected him. Jimmy threw himself down on the bed. He groaned as he landed; he was still sore from the time the other night when he had tried to phone Madge and Utsy had caught him and knocked him down.

He shut his eyes and tried not to think about Madge. Maybe she was not worrying any more, maybe she believed that he had run away because he was tired of her. Jimmy hoped so, hoped so. He would rather she thought anything of him than be worrying about him, and as Jake said, when he showed up with the two thousand dollars and the explana-tion, she would forgive him; they would get married. Jake was going to get him a job singing, and surely that would pay more than being a file clerk had. Exhausted, he fell asleep.

E woke up later, with noises in the next room. The doors and walls were nearly soundproof; but in his sleep he had rolled over and his head was resting against the wall. He could not make out the words, but two men were talking.

He sat up. His eye lit on the loudspeaker; and he wanted to know what was going on. He went across the room, turned the loud speaker on as low as possible, and threw the switch. After a min-ute voices began to come through. Jake Loeb said: "I am telling you, Maxey Corvallis's voice came through "Yeah? When we can get rid of Hal. "Yeah? When we can get rid of Ilal, we're through. This business of having a famous guy mixed up in your affairs is not so hot. If there weren't too many people knew Hal, I'd have removed him a long time gone."

There was a pause, and then Maxey Corvallis said, slowly: "Utsy may be dumb, but he's got more brains than you, Jake. He knows we won't be able to keep that kid in this spot two weeks without him tumbling wise to what this is all about. And when he does, Jake you will not have any singer to build up."

Jimmy held his breath. Finally, Jake said: "You would not kill this kid for a little—"

"What do you think?" Maxey Corvallis asked. "What do you think, Jake? You're a wise guy."

Will the gangsters who hold him prisoner let Jimmy escape with his life—or does he know too much? Will he learn too late that a thousand dollars a week is never easy money? Don't miss the next installment of MICROPHONE MASQUERADE in the May RADIO MIRROR.

Fred Waring—Benevolent

but he has one more quality that soothes the small wounds his sarcasm leaves where gifts couldn't. Waring's intense loyalties to those he believes in have won a to those he believes in have won a greater admiration than even his exceptional generosity and artistry deserve.

For Fred is, above all else, a loyal friend. Two people, Kay Thompson and Hal Kemp, have reason to know. They have benefited by his faith to an extent that has never before been known.

I doubt that you ever heard of Kay Thompson before she came to the Pennsylvanians as conductor and star of her own girl choir. Three months before that night you first heard her (and sat up to say "Ah!"), she told Fred she wanted to organize a chorus of girl voices for his program. Fred liked the idea. He told her program. Fred liked the idea. He told her to go ahead.

Kay went ahead all through those three months, trying voices and blending them together. She tested high school students and college co-eds, ribbon clerks and stenographers, until she finally found fifteen who combined to make a fit companion for Fred's own make a fit companion for Fred's own make a fit. panion for Fred's own male chorus.

They fitted flawlessly, except for the fact that, on their first appearance, their dresses didn't blend as well as their voices. Fred gave them a dressing down for that. Then he ordered one of New York's better designers to dress them up. At his expense.

FOR several months, the light swing of their harmonies, together with Kay's tantalizing voice, wove an intricate and delightful pattern through the Waring broadcasts. Then Kay, who (like all of Waring's artists) was not under contract, signed as featured soloist on a new Saturday night series.

Fred was happy that his belief in her ability was being upheld. It was a little different several weeks later when Kay came to him and said her new sponsors would prefer it if Waring did not use her name in his broadcasts.

That explains pretty well the mysteriousness that cloaked Kay's sudden departure from the Waring hour. She didn't really depart until long after you thought she had; for Fred kept her on. Her voice meant more to him than her name. When sne nau; for Fred kept her on. Her voice meant more to him than her name. When she finally did leave, of her own volition, to devote her time to her new job, Fred did his best to replace her so that he could hold together the girl choir she had collected. It was impossible. So now a few of the ribbon clerks and stenographers and students have gone back to their ribbon counters and typewriters and pners and students nave gone back to their ribbon counters and typewriters and books. About eight are still trying hard to make the grade. You hear their high, sweet harmonies once in a while. To Hal Kemp, Fred is probably the very Prince of Loyalty. It was Fred's belief in Hal's capabilities that hurried the Southerner's arrival at the peak.

They met in 1925, when Fred was visiting Hal's home town, Charlotte, North Carolina. Fred took an immediate liking Carolina. Fred took an immediate liking to the tall, serious-minded young man. Kemp talked about what he hoped to do and dwelt for long minutes on his theories of dance music. Before Fred left Charlotte, he said, "It ever I can do anything for you, Ilal, I will."

It's a nice thing to promise help like that. But it's much nicer, because it's so much rarer, to come through with the

The manager came to him two nights before he was to close.

"Mr. Waring," he said, "I haven't anyone to take your place. Would you like to stay over?"

Fred Waring remembered. "Why don't you call I lal Kemp in?" he asked.

"Never heard of him," said the manager.

"I'll get him," offered Fred. "You'll like his stuff."

his stuff.

So Ilal Kemp, the drawling Southerner, moved into his first big engagement. And, though all the versatility and cleverness that marks his music now may have been present then, he failed to click.

"Don't be discouraged," Fred advised.
"You're new, I've arranged things so that you follow me into a theater in Toronto."
He did more than that. He left Fred Culley, who is still his assistant conductor. behind to help Hal polish up his presenta-tion. They worked hard for a week. Their second successive failure was even more bitter.

BUT if Fred, as I have said, had nothing else to offset his acid criticisms, there would still be his faith in his friends. He had a month's vacation coming. He used to take Hal Kemp and Hal's whole band back to his own home in Tyrone, Pennsylvania. There, he acted as host while Hal and the boys went to work. He advised them; then he secured local dance jobs for them so that they could test their ideas. Host, nothing! He acted as god-father in general.

Fred continued to build for Hal during the years that followed. He was instrumental in bringing Hal to New York and in securing his first radio account. When you had only a vague idea of the Kemp style, Fred announced songs this way: "Broadway Rhythm, as Hal Kemp would play it." He imitated Hal's band more than any other, and after a bit you began to want to hear Kemp in the original.

But that's the kind of guy he is: acidtongued when it counts; patient when it counts; loyal, whether it counts or not.

He is married. He has a year-old daughter named Dixie for whom he would cheerfully cut off his right arm. He met Evelyn Waring, his wife, in 1928 when she came to New York to appear in "Hello Yourself," the musical in which he was featured. They eloped to Chicago and were married there on September 24, 1933

And, incidentally, though five years elapsed before they married, it must have been love at first sight. For, she tells me, never once during all the time she appeared with the Pennsylvanians, did Fred give her a good, sound, Waring bawlingout.

"You Can't Win By Trying," Says Goodman Ace

He got famous to spite Jane, his wife. Tie that one if you can! He loves to prove she is wrong. She said he couldn't write a column. So he started a daily column in a Kansas City paper. She said it wouldn't last. It lasted twelve years. And only stopped then because she said he couldn't write a radio act. He wrote Easy Aces. She said that wouldn't last. It's in its sixth year and going strong. Proving Jane wrong is sometimes a laborious business. But a profitable one. And somehow I've a sneaking hunch she isn't as dumb as the character. Goody makes her in the script.

At first Easy Aces ran on a local station for a year. It added $30 a week to the columnist's income. When he got tired of doing it, he asked for a $50 a week raise. The station squashed his plans of retiring from radio by forking over the $80 a week without a murmur. Almost before he could recover from his surprise and raise the ante, he had a network offer to take it to Chicago for $500 a week.

He was beginning to agree with Jane now that it wouldn't—couldn't—last beyond the first option. He would take the offer, it would enable him to pay off all his debts in Kansas City. But he wasn't going to be left jobless after that first option. He obtained a leave of absence from the paper and sent his column back every day without salary, just to keep his job open.

every day without salary, just to keep his job open.

The first option was renewed in thirteen weeks, and he felt independent enough to wire his paper that he was going to send his column in only twice a week thereafter—still without pay, however. He didn't resign from the paper until the second radio option was taken up, and then he settled down in earnest to prove how wrong Jane was about Easy Aces not lasting.

T was in Chicago that Marge, the third permanent member of the cast, was acquired in a most peculiar way. They needed a girl with a distinctive laugh. The studio sent Ace a seasoned Thespian who fit the part like a glove—on your Ace's big struggle is just starting. It's not how to be a success, but how to avoid being a success—or rather, a celebrity. He has a horror of being a big shot in radio. being followed by autograph hounds and having to make personal appearances. He's proud of the fact that he and Jane aren't sufficiently in the public eye to be recognized in a crowd, and that they receive only about ten fan letters a week. They usually start "This is the first letter live ever written to a radio star" and are sent by doctors, lawyers and professors. Goody related with glee an incident that happened the evening before while he was talking to Fred Allen after the latter's broadcast. A boy approached

"Who shall I make it from," asked Ace.
"Just Herb," replied the youth.
"No, that's your name," Ace explained. "I mean whom do you want it from?"
"You've got me there, stranger," replied the kid and vanished in confusion.

Ace has turned down eight offers since last February to star in more pretentious programs at more money than he is making now-one of them at twice as much -because the change would throw them more into the limelight. He doesn't want the limelight, he doesn't want to be a celebrity and sit uncomfortably on a

AST year Goody took a half-page ad in Variety to advertise that fact that Easy Aces had never (up to that time) been among the twenty most popular programs in a national popularity poll.

An emphatic "No!" nearly shattered the receiver. The fellow didn't know Goodman Ace. Had he offered to shove him back to eighteenth, he might have done business.

Ace recently turned down an offer of $4000 a week for personal appearances because of his creed against punching too hard. He felt his other work would suffer if he accepted. Being Goodman Ace on the radio already pays better dividends than being President of the United States, and there is also a sizable income from a movie short every month. So he says to all tempting offers, "We're doing all right.'

light redhead can wear a greater variety of browns, including henna, but the dark redhead can wear more pastel tones, including yellow.

But, if the two agree on many points in choosing hues for their wardrobe (and they both like simple tailored lines for their clothes), they disagree most amicably but thoroughly on coiffure styles and cosmetic color harmonies—and quite rightly. "The simpler the coiffure, the better." says Carol. "The beauty of auburn hair depends upon the lights, and the value of these lights is lost by too much fluffiness. To bring out this rich, burnished quality, I believe in lots and lots of brushing. Loose, wide waves, smoothly brushed, are probably most becoming to this type." they both like simple tailored lines for

For red gold hair, Deane likes a halo type of hairdress, one which gives a fairly smooth effect on top but a fluffy arrangement at the nape and around the ears. It's all quite simple, really: to get the full value out of auburn hair, the light should shine on it. but red gold tones are more like blonde hair and look best with the light shiping through. Deane and with the light shining through. Deane and Carol choose their shampoos with these same principles in mind. Deane follows her plain shampoo each week with a lemon rinse to bring out all the sunny glints of light hair, and Carol uses a soapless oil shampoo to protect the deep richness of darker hair. "This shampoo," says Carol, 'is like nothing else in the world and I'm a very staunch supporter of it.

THEIR choice in cosmetics is entirely different. In keeping with her blonde coloring, Deane uses orange shades, not only in her rouges, but in her powder as well (but not pink, mind you!). Because her skin in so very fair, she says, "I use dark powder to take away that anemic -but l certainly wouldn't use suntan tones because they would give me a ruddy skin, which a redhead must avoid.

She has a lovely iridescent eyeshadow which is called mauve, but which is really more of a bronze gray; she also wears gray eyeshadow occasionally.

Carol prefers the bluish red tones in her make-up and is careful to avoid any tinge of orange. Her lipstick is dark with lots of blue in it, and she matches the coloring of her nail polish to this. Her eyeshadow is an exotic violet shade, though Both girls realize the value of a clear, fresh skin with this distinctive hair coloring and both take exceptionally good care of their complexions. Carol has discovered a lotion-like cologne for this purpose which any girl, no matter what her type, would love to use. Deane washes her face well with soap and water every night and follows this with another gentle scrubbing, for which she uses a complexion brush—a grand aid in keeping the skin healthy and clear, free from oiliness, sal-lowness and blemishes, because it stimulates the circulation.

Would you like to know more about the cosmetic aids these two lovely singers have discovered and used? I'll be glad to their cosmetics and creams, the sham-poo and special cologne which Carol is so enthusiastic about, and the iridescent eyeentinusiastic about, and the fridescent eyeshadow and dependable mascara which Deane finds so satisfactory. What Al Pearce Has Done weren't concerned with radio then. They liked to sing and play the guitar and cut comedy capers, to be sure, but that came under the head of amusement, and could not be let to interfere with the serious business of life, which was making money in real estate. At twenty-five, Al was nearly a millionaire. At twenty-eight, he was penniless, with a wife and little girl to support. It is not only in show business that you meet ups and downs. It's just that they come faster in show business. It cost Al nearly a million dollars, just to learn one lesson, but he had learned it well. He had learned that it isn't enough to make a lot of money; but that the important thing is to hang on to at least some of it. Then and there he took a vow that the next time, if there was to be a next time, he had any money, he would put a part, away.

Al and Clarence soon found that job hunting when there aren't any jobs is a pretty futile undertaking, so they decided to cash in on what hitherto had been merely a social asset. They tucked their guitars under their arms and set forth, singing and playing at banquets, social affairs, and small cafes. Finally they managed to land a spot on an obscure radio station, an achievement which, while significant now, wasn't very important at the moment. In those days, radio performers took out their pay in Auditorium wanted a variety show, he gathered together the odds and ends of poorly paid talent around the studio and offered them 825 each. Admission was fifty cents, and the show, to Al's amazement, grossed $3000, which left him with $1000 profit after the auditorium had taken its cut and the performers' salaries and other expenses had been paid.

That was the first thousand dollars Al had seen since the palmy real estate days.

had seen since the palmy real estate days, but it looked a lot bigger now than a thousand dollars had looked then. However, he had learned his lesson, and he kept his vow. He took $500 of the thousand and tucked it safely away in the bank.

Obviously, he reasoned, the public wanted and was willing to pay for shows put on by radio talent. Why not try the same thing on the air? And so what Al claims was the very first radio variety show was born. That was seven years ago. Week by week, month by month, Al Pearce's Happy-Go-Lucky Hour grew in popularity until it became the most famous air show on the West Coast.

In addition to their radio work, they

In addition to their radio work, they toured up and down the coast giving shows. and frequently obtained theatrical bookings. At one of the shows, Al met the present Mrs. Pearce, who came as a spectator and went away with a song inher heart. He had been divorced from his first wife, whom he had married when he was a mere boy, and had the custody of their little girl, whom he sent to school while away on tour.

The faster the money came in, the more of it Al tucked away against the rainy day he knew would one day come along. The term "rainy day" is used figuratively, for at this time, you will remember, Al was in California. Summer was coming, and with summer would come idleness in show business. break up. So, to insure its permanence, he signed each member to a contract. Summer, which to the average entertainer, means enforced lay off, would mean to Al's gang merely a summer vacation, with pay. Of course, as the fame of Al's gang increased, earnings increased proportionately, and so did salaries—but so, too, did that weekly accumulating surplus in the bank.

Three years ago the value of Al's system was brought home forcibly. Al and the gang had spent their summer vacationing, as usual, of course with pay. That fall, as they were about to open a series of vaudeville appearances that promised of vaudeville appearances that promised to be highly lucrative, an epidemic of infantile paralysis broke out. The bookings were cancelled. Vaudevillians were panic stricken, and broke. But Al and the gang merely returned to their vacations, and for sixteen more weeks, until the paralysis was checked, remained idle with their pay checks coming regularly from the surplus fund.

was forced to spend ten months in bed in an effort to stave off tuberculosis, his salary continued. Last spring, when the gang came East for the big opportunity, Bill Comstock had a tonsil operation. A hemorrhage developed, and for eight weeks while he convalesced, Bill had no financial worries, and knew that his job was waiting when he recovered.

THERE is much more to Al Pearce and his gang than you hear over the air. There is an extensive administrative office, moved here from California when the show came East. A staff cares for all the business affairs of the whole gang. Their insurance premiums are paid, the installments on their cars taken care of. If a member of the gang wants a portion of member of the gang wants a portion of his pay invested, the office sees to that. Their accounts are kept individually, and each member of the gang may draw money as he needs it or, if the need arises, may secure an advance to tide over a sudden emergency. Not only financially does Al act as mentor and, to some extent, Father Confessor, to the members of the gang. In several instances, he has drawn upon his own experience to steer them along the right course in their personal affairs. In more than one case has he saved a member of the gang from committing some youthful folly, and then watched the protege become a happily married and settled member of the little community.

Yet Al is far from a czar. Indeed, his jovial boyishness would seem to belie that his shoulders can carry the burden of responsibility he assumes, yet with it he remains "just one of the boys." All decisions affecting the group must be concurred in by all. For instance, I was in Al's office when the question arose of engaging a girl trio. A hunt had been in progress for a trio whose voices would helped with those of the group's male trio. blend with those of the group's male trio, the Three Cheers. Al was telephoning feverishly to the NBC studios, to nearby drug stores and restaurants, to apartments in an effort to round up the gang. He wanted to have them hear a record of a girl trio sent down from Canada, and to help decide whether or not the girls would fill the bill. Al himself was enthusiastic, but the gang must make the decision when it came to the question of admitting new members. In particular must the Three Cheers themselves place their final okay on the aspiring Canadian girls.

"You have to sing with them," Al reminded Ilale, Derry, and Hanna, who comprise his male trio.

The gang eventually was rounded.

It isn't enough merely to be a competent To qualify as a member in good standing of Al Pearce's gang it is necessary, first and foremost, to enter into the spirit of "all for one, one for all."

How does the system work? Well. Tony Romano, Monroe (Lard Bills) Upton, Bill (Zeb) Wright, and Johnny Johnson have been with the gang for seven years, since its inception; Morey Amsterdam, Mabel Todd, the Three Cheers, Harry Foster, and Bill (Tizzy Lish) Comstock for four years; and Ar-

Thousands have found in Yeast Foam Tablets an easy way to correct skin blemishes

Up the broad red stairs we wander and, having a few minutes before the performance, go into the cafe on the Grand Tier floor for coffee. The room has been redecorated in cheerful modern fittings, but ices are being served the ladies, while the men sip more sturdy substance from glasses, as in Victorian days. The atmosphere of the room is quiet and selate.

Being guests of NBC, we must be in our box a little early, so as not to disturb Milton J. Cross, veteran grand opera announcer, who is preparing to introduce the performance to radio listeners. Ilis booth, or vestibule to the box, and ours adjoining are glassed in to be soundproof. Installed in our vestibule is a second set of equipment for broadcasting ready to carry on in case of a breakdown,

From our box, the gold-painted horse shoe glistens in reflections of lights. We watch the house filling up, even to the standing room space. The "Met" has always drawn the poor but ardent opera goers, who annually and enthusiastically stand through the longest of the operas at minimum cost. Along the Grand Tier, the famous Diamond Horseshoe, society chatters quietly. Then the lights fade.

OWN in the pit, the conductor taps his baton for attention. The house is dark for a moment before the curtain rises. Only two small lights shine in the box next to us. One of these is over the control board at which sits Mr. Charles C. Grey, the engineer responsible for feeding the opera to the air waves. Beside him sits Herbert Liversedge, NBC ace production manager. Both men adjust the headphones strapped to their ears. As the curtain rises, almost unseen, buried in the curtain rises, almost unseen, buried in the footlights, two microphones can be detected. These pick up the singing of the stars upon the stage. Hidden about the orchestra are four more microphones. The conductor gives the signal. In the box. Mr. Grey likewise nods his head, and the opera is on the air.

As the action of the opera varies, Mr. Grey's hands play constantly over the myriad of electrical switches and pushbuttons, following Liversedge's signals. As the music swells, Liversedge, reading from a piano score of the opera, raises his hand to warn Mr. Grey of the full-volumed notes to come. Grey then se-lects and blends the mikes. This cutting in of mikes is one of the most important features of the opera broadcast. For instance, a soprano. too near the mike, could smash the whole set, literally blow it up. And this constant blending, accenting of soft notes and tuning down of loud choral effects. makes it possible for the man in Idaho to receive the opera clearly. The radio audience now hears a quality as pure, melodious and undis-torted as that which is heard by holders of the favorite boxes at the Metropoli-

On the stage the brightly costumed stars and chorus blend. Perhaps the opera calls for the exciting and famous Metropolitan ballet, or perhaps we shall be lucky and witness the debut of a newcomer, who will give an historic per-formance. Should that happen—as was the case with Lawrence Tibbett's debut, even though he couldn't make the High School Glee Club, back in Los Angeles— the staid Metropolitan audience will seem to go crazy and will stop the show for a quarter of an hour or more, while the new star is applauded and cheered alike

Mr. Liversedge, following the bars ahead of the performance, signals almost constantly to Grey with his fingers of the musical highs and lows to come of the musical highs and lows to come and Mr. Grey maneuvers the control board accordingly. When things get too complicated and finger signalling becomes inadequate, they resort to a remarkable system—a sort of "putt-putt" sound made with the lips, dot and dash fashion, of the Morse code. While they fashion, of the Morse code. While they have a telephone connected to each other's ear phones, and though they sit side by side, the slightest sound or whisper is picked up by the delicate instruments—hence the putt-putt.

"What would happen if both sets, the one in use and the one in reserve, went out of gear?" I asked.

"The standby of the NEC studie and they

"Not any more," laughed the opera exert. "Though there is the story of the time a sending set went wrong during a solemn requiem broadcast, and the unsuspecting standby who got the signal to go on, hurriedly went ahead with a lively go on, hurriedly went ahead with a lively South American tango. But such things belong to the old days," he added in a slightly superior tone.

While we wander about chatting during the intermission, people in far-off corners of the world listen to Mr. Cross telling the story of the next act.

Among the audience we many see many

Among the audience we may see many stars; for instance, the blonde soprano of NBC, who was the first woman ever to get an engagement with the Metropolitan as an engagement with the Metropolitan as a direct result of radio work. Many of our Metropolitan stars are old friends on the air—Lily Pons, Lawrence Tibbett, John Charles Thomas, Richard Crooks and Nino Martini. And because such voices are able now to grace the airwaves, opera or operatic songs are no longer the privilege of the rich, or the New Yorkers.

We pause to listen to Mr. Johnson animatedly talking to a man of the press. "Right now we are reaching for a new public," he says. "The older generations took the opera for granted, but the younger generation has looked upon us as stuffed shirts. We want them to know that opera, like the theater, is a real spectacle, that opera is the complete show under one top. Radio is the missionary that can teach them to stop and think That's modern thinking for you, and, judging from the thousands of letters of appreciation that come in from all over the world, opera is loved by busy business men, youngsters, career women and house-wives alike. After all, of all inspirations to love, dreams and high hopes, music is probably the most universal.

We stroll back to our box, while the house darkens for the final act. As we open the doors of the vestibule to our box a man jumps up, his finger to his lips.

"Shhishsh!" he gestures. "We're on the air!"

Pretty blonde Helen is a soloist in the Swift Studio Party—Sigmund Romberg heard her sing and radio bowed to her.

SINGER BY ACCIDENT

HELEN MARSHALL WANTED TO A VIOLINIST BUT A SUB-WAY CHANGED HER DESTINY!

THOSE New York subway doors! You come running down the platform, headed for the train-its doors are sliding shut-you make a last frantic leap-the door, still on its way to close, catches you in the middle—you wiggle and push, full of unpleasant thoughts about being cut in two—the guard takes pity on you and opens the door—and you're inside, but pretty uncomfortable.

But once the guard didn't open the door again, thereby changing a violinist into a

You hear Helen Marshall now on the Swift Studio Party, singing with Sigmund Romberg's orchestra, but if it hadn't been for that subway door you might know her as the greatest feminine violinist of the day. That's what she started out to be.

"I began to take violin lessons about the time I started grammar school," she told me. "I can remember playing for the Parent Teachers Association when I was eight. Everybody wanted to help the little Marshall girl keep up her courage. They all kept telling me not to be frightened and as a consequence before I even walked out on the stage, with a three-quarter size fiddle under my arm, I was scared to death. When I lifted the bow to scared to death. When I lifted the bow to play, though, the fright disappeared.

"All through my school days I had just one ambition, to be a famous woman fiddler. After I graduated from high school my violin teacher told me she had done all she could for me and suggested Paul Kochanski at the Juilliard School in New York as the next logical teacher.

Now, this taffy-haired soprano is a modest person, so I'll have to tell you what happened after that. She left Joplin. Missouri, her home town, and went to New York to take the examination for admission to the Juilliard School, playing for Kochanski. And when the great teacher delivered his verdict, it was not just for admission-it was a recommendation that she be given a three-year scholarship!

For two years I worked, thought and dreamed violin. One day I decided that I wasn't getting enough fun out of life. All work and no play was boring me to death.

So—"
So what did she do? A young musi-So what did she do? A young musician's idea of fun must be more work, because she went to Albert Stoessel, conductor of the New York Oratorio Society, and sang for him for a place in the society. What's more, she was accepted.

A few months later Stoessel had dinner with Kochanski, and in the course of the evening told the violin teacher that his with Kochanski, and in the course of the evening told the violin teacher that his pupil had a remarkable voice and that something ought to be done about it. Something was. The Juilliard School awarded Helen a second scholarship, this time for voice training. It was the first and only time in the history of the school one pupil has held scholarships for two different branches of musical training.

Helen continued both studies until the strain began to tell on her health and strength. Her teachers advised her to concentrate on one or the other. The only trouble was that half of her teachers were teaching singing and the other half violing, so naturally half voted one way and half voted the other.

Helen herself didn't know what to do. Since her teachers, to whom she looked for advice, couldn't agree, it looked as if the decision was entirely up to her. violin was her first love, and she had trained for it all her life. On the other hand, feminine violinists didn't seem to appeal to the public much, while a good singer could always get a job.

This is where the subway door comes into the story. It happened this wav.

Helen ran for a subway train, and caught it; but the door caught her finger, too, and dislocated it. It was on her left hand, the important hand for a violinist. After the doctor had bandaged the finger up in splints, he told Helen that it would be weeks before he could be sure whether or not the finger was permanently injured.

That's why Helen decided to be a singer. As it happened, the finger did not stiffen, and there was no obstacle to keep her from taking up the violin again, but once her mind had been made up, she found herself more and more happy over the decision.

"The Beggar's Opera" when Sigmund Romberg heard her. She didn't even know he was in the audience. But when, a few months later, she took an audition for his program, he remembered her and called her Polly and gave her the job.

her Polly and gave her the job.
Perhaps those hungry subway doors do a bit of good now and then after all!

But Laddy Seaman's interviews with kid champs in person aren't as real or as interesting as the faked stuff terviews with kid champs in person aren't as real or as interesting as the faked stuff which he introduces in his guise of boy editor. METROPOLITAN OPERA AUDITIONS OF THE AIR. Who would have thought of grafting grand opera onto an amateur hour? Well, there's nothing amateurish about the four new singers each time, and the informal introductions by manager Edward Johnson (a la Bowes) dispose of the chilly atmosphere which makes the average listener uncomfortable in the presence of opera. nothing more of it."

A few minutes later the door was flung open. The same man was back, with a friend, who carried a revolver. They didn't mince words. "Stick 'em up," they said. The gun was pointed at the horrified group!

Stella sat petrified. Her mother, hoping to be able to phone the police, ran through the swinging back door to the tiny office behind the restaurant. Whiz
... a shot rang out. Those holdup men meant business. Fortunately, they business. missed her.

There was no use resisting them. Immediately, Stella's sister opened the cash register and stood aside to let them get

Perhaps they were nervous, perhaps—anyway, instead of moving toward the register, the man with the glasses moved toward slim, dark-eyed, dark-haired Stella.

That was too much for Fred Ridge's self-control. He jumped on the bandit. Immediately the second holdup man joined the fray, and jumped on Fred. Back and forth they rolled in the eating house, throwing over pottery, chairs, leaving a trail of broken glasses, broken dishes and bric-a-brac. Stella stood still, too scared to move.

FINALLY Fred, a husky fighting Irishman, succeeded in landing a blow on the bespectacled bandit that knocked him out cold. The gun-wielding robber, now desperate, fired again and again at Fred. Five times he shot at him. One shot struck his shoulder, another his back. One hit his side with a sickening thud. Another went into his head.

"I just stood there, half-fainting, watching." Stella told me tensely. "My sister dragged herself to the phone. But she was so unnerved all she could do was sob into it."

In a moment, the bandits were gone. Realizing he had no more bullets, the Philippine dropped his smoking revolver, dragged his prostrate pal along, and disappeared.

Then Stella recovered her poise. She ran to the phone, grabbed it from her trembling sister, and called police head-quarters. Immediately, they sent an ambulance.

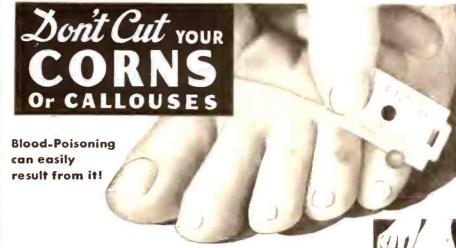

"The doctors didn't think Fred would live," she told me, twisting her hands nervously. "I used to go to see him at the hospital every day . . . it was horrible. But he refused to let go of life. Today, he's alive and well except that one leg is inches shorter than the other, and he limps."

Though Stella went to the Rogues Gallery to try to identify the bandits, and the police did all they could, they were never captured.

And as to Stella,—"I let my deposit on the Laguna shack drop. The restaurant business was not for me. I decided. After all, I had never been held up in the sing-ing game. Now, comparatively, that seemed a quiet field."

So, after a month or so, she went to the famous voice coach, Allen Ray Carpenter. for instruction. It was the first time in her life she had taken singing lessons.

And today, she's back on the air.

Fouthland's favorite Maestro By JACK HARRIS

HE chancellor of Vanderbilt University gave Francis Craig his choice of disbanding his dance orchestra or leaving school. Francis chose to leave school—and that decision was the first big break in the lives of four great radio stars of today.

In fact, it was something of a break for Francis, too. If he'd stayed in school there's no telling what might have become of him. As it is, he's the South's favorite dance maestro, heard on Nash-ville's WSM, and nationally on NBC's Magnolia Blossoms program which origi-nates in WSM every Monday night at 11:30.

The other four people whose careers were influenced by that decision are pretty well known too. They're James Melton, Phil Harris, Irene Beasley, and Kenny

The name of James Melton was known only to his classmates in the student body of the University of Georgia in 1923, when Francis Craig's orchestra came to Jimmy asked Francis for a job as saxophonist. Francis was sympathetic—he'd been out of school himself for only a few months—but he didn't need a saxophonist. He needed, he said, a singer. Whereupon Jimmy sang for him.

That's how James Melton happened to leave school and join the Craig band.

He stayed with Francis for five years, during the last two of which Francis encouraged and helped him to take voice lessons. And it was on the money he earned during those five years that he came to New York and got a job with Roxy and his gang.

Kenny Sargent was James Melton's successor as singer and saxophonist in the Craig orchestra. Francis heard him playing with an orchestra in Memphis a few weeks after Melton had left, and signed him up immediately. A good many people today think Kenny has a voice to be proud of, but in the summer of 1930, while the band was playing at the Craig Hotel in St. Louis, Kenny's singing almost got him fired.

After the third day of the engagement, the manager of the hotel said to Francis, "I like your orchestra. I want to keep it here all summer. But it will be impos-sible unless you muzzle that crooning saxophone player of yours. We can't have singing like that going on in this hotel."

For eight weeks Kenny Sargent played saxophone for Francis Craig, without singing—by request. And he was so grateful to Francis for keeping him on instead of firing him that later it took him five weeks to make up his mind to accept a job with Glen Gray and his Casa Loma orchestra, despite the offer of a much higher salary. Way back in 1925 Francis had a young girl singer named Irene Beasley. She was a school teacher in Memphis, and every week-end she would travel the two hundred and fifty miles to Nashville, appear on WSM radio programs on Saturday and Sunday, and be back in Memphis in time to call roll, correct papers and spank sassy pupils on Monday.

Most dance bands, in those days, steered clear of girl vocalists, but Francis Craig persistently used Irene with his orchestra on his radio engagements, and it was his patience and help which finally brought her to the point where she could give all her time to radio and leave the pupils to other hands.

A Nashville boy, Phil Harris by name, kept pestering Francis for a job as drummer in his orchestra. He was too much of a clown, though, and Francis wouldn't hire him. This went on steadily for two years, until one day Francis' regular drummer failed to show up for work, and finally Phil got the job.

"He was a wow, too," Francis admits now!

Phil kept the job he'd worked so long to get for just nine weeks. Then he heard about a band that was going to Honolulu and needed a drummer. Honolulu! At top speed, Phil went to Francis and asked to be relieved of his signed contract.
"I don't understand you," Francis said.

"but I won't hold you against your will." So Phil followed the well-known pre-scription and went West—with well-known results.

But if Francis helped these four stars on their way, they helped him, too. He's held the top-notch position among Southern bandsmen for some years—almost ever since he left school twelve years ago —mostly because he's been able to spot unusual talent and feature it in solo spots. Right now he has a fifty-four pound colored boy, "Pee-Wee," who has a personality which would steal the spotlight from almost any star.

I wonder whether that dignified chancellor of Vanderbilt University knows how many people he played good fairy to when he offered Francis Craig those two alternatives?

When there's a party at Pickfair all the stars go. Here is Leslie Howard dancing with the hostess, Mary Pickford, herself, at a dinner given in honor of Lady Mendl.

NO ALKALIES FOR ACID INDIGESTION

MILLIONS have found they do not need to drench their stomachs with strong, caustic alkalies. Physicians have said this habit often brings further acid indigestion. So much more safe and sensible to simply carry a roll of Tums in your pocket. Munch 3 or 4 after meals—or whenever troubled by heartburn, gas, sour stomach. Try them when you feel the effects of last night's party, or when you smoke too much. Tums contain a wonderful antacid which neutralizes acid in the stomach, but never overalkalizes stomach or blood. As pleasant to eat as candy and only 10c at any drug store.

A Valuable Prize For Everyone Who Enters Can you write a last line to this jingle? It's easy! It's fun! And your "last line" may win one of the 158 valuable prizes! Ist prize—$100.00; 2nd prize—$50.00; 3rd prize—$25.00; five prizes of $5.00 each; fifry prizes of $1.00 each; 50 Eversharp pencils; 50 hunting knives. Every entrant will receive a worth while gift besides. Get your information about TUMS from the advertisement at the left, then read the simple rules.

Write your "last line" in dotted line, tear out whole advertisement, and mail with your name and address to the address given below. If you submit more than one entry, simply write your additional "last line" on a plain sheet of paper. But EACH "last line" submitted must be accompanied by the wrapper from a 10e roll of TUMS which you can secure at any drug store.

Chicago

Columbia bachelors held a leap year party at College Inn recently, each swearing to remain single . . . Prominently featured in the amateur film a group of Chicago boys recently showed to local film critics were shots of the National Barn Dance as WLS presented that famous feature at the Century of Progress some time back . . . Recent visitors of Joe Sanders, the orchestra leader, were five Smith brothers, boys who traveled all the way from Watkins Glen, N. Y., just to meet him.

CONSCIENCE stricken husbands and stayer-outers, take notice. Here's the newest alibi on record. Louis Roen, NBC announcer, showed up one morning with a slightly black eye. Questioned severely and warned not to come up with the "I ran into a door" sort of excuse, he finally broke down and admitted that his eye collided with a polo ball during a workout on the turf. He has Harlow Wilcox to back him up, too. Seems that Louis took a terrific cut at the ball, with another player rushing towards him. He smacked the pellet hard, it bounced off the hoof of the onrushing nag, and bounced straight into Louis' eye.

HEY cried "Faker!" at Morgan Eastman fifteen years ago. Even then the conductor of the Edison symphony and Carnation Contented orchestra was sold on radio. He knew it was a coming thing. But it seemed the rest of the world didn't agree with him. Finally he arranged a demonstration of radio before the Chicago Chamber of Commerce, a special broadcast from an improvised studio. He hooked up all the wires and gadgets, but nothing came in save squeaks and squalls. And the business men of Chicago cried "Fake!" and "Faker!"

A few days later he tried it again, for a different group of Chicago business men. This time he did some of the music but not all. They'd hear a few strains and then it would fade away, only to return a few minutes later. And again, sure the music came from a hidden phonograph, they cried "Fake!" and "Faker!"

Finally radio did arrive and they began to realize Morgan wasn't crazy after all.

Morgan, an expert musician, began broadcasting concerts and his own talks about music and musicians. One day he tried to see if the microphone, so like a stethoscope, would pick up his heart beats. It would and did. So on his next music lecture he used it as a gag. The papers of the country picked it up widespread. They captioned their stories "His Heart Beat Was Heard Around the World."

Thousands of letters came in, mailbags full of them. All of them spoke of the heartbeat stunt—but no one of them mentioned the thing closest to his heart, the lecture on music!

WIILE he was broadcasting from Chicago, Enric Madriguera featured on certain of his dance programs better known classical compositions. The fans liked the idea, one even telephoned him from Texas to get the correct spelling of a Debussy number. One listener failed to understand the unusually long title of a classical tune. He wrote congratulating Enric on "your new tune. But I'm afraid you'll have to change the title. People won't understand it. Try something like 'Shanty Town' or 'Red Sails.'"

AN GARBER, once a concert violinist himself, likes nothing better than listening to the fiddling of Heifetz.... Dr. Frederick Stock was conducting the Chicago symphony in the Overture to "William Tell" in a young people's concert when certain of the kids recognized in it the theme song of The Lone Ranger who has made "Heigho, Silver!" so popular with our younger generation.... For reasons best known to himself a Chicago doctor took a shot at an announcer from WGES and hit an announcer from WSBC. Both are small Chicago radio stations....

RS. MURIEL TIERNAN, who said her husband became enamored of her voice on the radio and later married her after a whirlwind courtship, was divorced in Chicago recently. Because she's making money she asked no alimony. In radioland she is known as Muriel La France... Dixie Lee, Bing Crosby's wife, got her professional start by winning an amateur singing contest in Chicago for which Ruth Etting was a judge. Bing still likes Chicago. For of the ten thousand fan letters he gets a month about one-fifth come from Chicago. . . . Holland Engle, one-man song-and-piano of WBBM, recalls that two years ago he lost his voice and was warned by his doctor not to sing a note for two years. At that time, Holland was on the air with ninety-eight broadcasts a week. Now that he has his voice back, Engle will limit his singing programs to seven a week, although his dramatic activities already run far beyond this number.

ANY years ago the Chicago Theater started special Sunday afternoon concerts. First they offered a large symphony. Then they added Jesse Crawford, NBC's poet of the organ, and finally they added even more variety by occasional presentations of opera in English. Crawford still remembers one young lady whose voice even in those days was exceptional. The producer of the operas in English noted it and tried to give her a lift from the minor parts she played with that company. She's done quite well since then. Her name is Gladys Swarthout.

AVING looked over the American or-chestras of Chicago and heard those broadcasting on our networks Jack Hylton, London's pride and joy who was imported for a commercial radio series over the Columbia network on Sunday nights, frankly doesn't see any reason why America needs him. "Your American bands are plenty good. I wonder why they didn't give this job to one of you," is the way he puts it to local orchestra leaders. . . . Don McNeill, master of ceremonies of the NBC Breakfast Club, has been on the air for seven years, but it has been on the air for seven years, but it wasn't until the other day that he re-ceived his first real fan letter. It was written on a Japanese fan. . . There's only one character in the Lum and Abner Scripts which neither Norris Goff nor Chester Lauck will admit doing . . . that is Cedric Weelnut, whom the boys describe as "none too bright, you know." . . . Horace Heidt's first job was as a gasoline station attendant for 860 a month. . . . Early in a life of poverty Wayne King decided that to be happy you must have enough money to be comfortable; to be successful you must work hard, harder and better than the other fellow; you get from life is what you give life.... BILL DAVIDSON is doing well for himself up at KFRC in San Francisco these days. He traveled there via KTSP, St. Paul, and KMTR, Hollywood. Besides straight announcing, he is sand-wiched in for Swedish dialect on fun and frolic programs. A year or so ago. Bill was married in the historic San Juan Capistrano Mission not far from Diego, one of the most romantic settings for anybody's marriage.

CLIFF ARQUETTE, Thaddeus Cornfelder on the Myrt and Marge program, is celebrating the latest arrival in his family in Chicago. Lots of coast fans recall his antics on the oldtime KFWB hijinks. But he really started to town years before that on tiny KGFJ, Los Angeles, as Aunt Addie, the anemic evangelist. Cliff used a false nose and a few rolls of black muslin and, to and behold, he looked like somethin-but just what nobody ever seemed to know. Lots of folks used to think he was imitating Sister Aimce Semple McPherson. But. to tell the truth, he was funnier than Sister.

THOSE O'MALLEYS, spotted all over the country on a score or more of sta-tions, is recorded in Hollywood thrice a week. The Juvenile lead is fourteen-year-old Billy O'Brien, Los Angeles school boy. The slim, blond lad has been in the talkies. Maybe you heard him as George in "Dinky," as Perzinger in "Music in the Air" or the sheep boy in "The Last Days of Pompeii.'

NE of the newer coast network features is Drums on the Don Lee System, with William Farnum in the lead role. It was written by Vera Oldham. co-author (with Harry A. Earnshaw) of the far-famed Chandu serial.

Frank Parker Wants a Wife!

is someone I haven't met yet. However, I rather favor the little waitress. That is to say, I would be less surprised to find my dream girl in the working world than in the so-called upper social strata.

My wife must have a sympathetic understanding of my work, my problems, my aims," Frank continued with very little encouragement. "She must practically share my moods. A girl with a background similar to mine—poverty, hard work, cares and responsibilities—is more apt to have such an understanding nature than a girl who has learned nothing except how to spend money in large quantities. The girl cradled in luxury may be charming and highly intelligent, but she is selfish, and I want to be the selfish one in my family. I have built my life on an ideal which I cannot give up now, so I need a woman who is willing to devote herself to the same ideal, whatever musical attainment I am capable of. Our life must be one life, not two.

"As for the in-between class, career girls, they have brilliance and glamour too, and perhaps my wife is among them, but I doubt it. These girls are out for what they can get. I've met plenty of them and there's an ulterior motive in every one. They cultivate my acquaintance because I know people, because they like the limelight associated with the en-tertainment world, perhaps because they have radio ambitions themselves. all right, but they won't get to first base with me. I'm looking for a helpmate, not a parasite.

ON'T misunderstand me. I don't mean that my wife will wait on me hand and foot or lose her own identity. But I have to keep on with my career, so it's vital that she be interested in it enough to help me, if we are to get along. I will need her advice, her criticisms, and I want to have faith in her judgment.

"I don't care whether my wife is a musician or not. I don't care whether she is older than I am, though the chances are she won't be. I don't care if she isn't an outstanding beauty. But there is one thing she must not be: possessive. That single factor has broken up most of the marriages. I have seen go on the rocks. marriages I have seen go on the rocks. And it's preventable just by remembering that your partner is a human being.

"I may sound as if I want everything under the sun from my wife, and expect to give nothing in return. It's true I expect a great deal of marriage. If I didn't, I wouldn't leak forward to the openion. I wouldn't look forward to the experience with so much elation. But I hope to be able to contribute as much to my wife's happiness as she contributes to mine. The woman I want will be deserving of a lot of attention, and it will make me happy to do everything I can for her."

"No wonder you've taken ten years to 'cherchez la femme'," I remarked. "You could easily spend another ten years hunting for such a girl. I only hope I see her first!"

"Well, you're wrong about the pro-longed search," Parker grinned. "I've just begun to search for her. I've been running away from her, trying to avoid her for ten years, while I concentrated all my thoughts and energies on my music.

You see, every artist has to go through a period of struggle during which he isn't fit to live with. He isn't himself. He has to develop a supreme superiority complex, a colossal ego, to toughen his hide against the countless rebuffs that are in store for him, and to hypnotize others

"Later in the career, marriage has just the opposite effect. It acts as a goad to new achievement at a time when it would be easy to sit back and enjoy life, to live

"I have reached that point now. professional career is running along smoothly, my material wants are satisfied. and there are a million temptations to take things easy. I need a steadying in-fluence now that I didn't need five years ago, when my ambition kept my nose to the grindstone.

"I still study daily with my voice teacher, so perhaps I don't need to be locked in a room with my music for three hours every day (one famous singer has a wife who is that devoted to his interests) but I do need the sort of wife who will keep me home and take enough interest in work to make me want to keep on making progress for her sake.

"I have gone as far as I can through my own efforts. If I make any further progress as a singer, beyond the five or six years' favor I may hope to enjoy as a radio entertainer, it will be due entirely to the inspiration and the spiritual cooperation of the right woman.

A ND now, for the first time, I have potentialities as a passable husband, since I have sufficiently established myself in my profession to afford to throw off my profession to afford to throw off my protective armor—the egotistical 'front' protective armor—the egotistical 'front' I spoke of. Woe to a marriage if the artist forgets to discard that false front!

"I've mentioned practically all the specifications for the woman I can adore forever except the color of her eyes and hair, and the topography of her torso. Of course I am assuming a mutual physical attraction. That is necessary, but I'm not worrying about it. If she has the other attributes, I'm sure I won't have any difficulty falling in love. Falling in love is the easiest thing I do. But love doesn't have to be blind. You can control it at will, movie plots I to 962 to the contrary. And believe me, when I fall for keeps, it's going to be with my eyes open."

I was in the studio during one of Frank's broadcasts after he had given me the foregoing intimate and revealing glimpse of his inner self, his hopes and aspirations regarding the thing which he now believes more important than, and even vital to, his career-marriage.

He sang a hit song from his picture, "Sweet Surrender." There was a new, touching vibrancy in his voice as the words flowed out from a heart aching for a woman's altruistic affection, "Take this ring and make this ring a lovely dream come true, with this ring I bring my love to you."

I couldn't help wondering whether Columbia's powerful transmitters were prophetically pouring those tender words into some far-flung loud speaker at which listened the unknown girl who is destined. to bring Frank Parker all the ecstasy he has recently begun to dream of.
