July 15¢

6

6

SEE

Marilyn Enskiye

an

www.americanradiohistory.com

Just One Cake of Camay Brings Softer, Smoother Skin!

Like a dream come true, your complexion is clearer, fresher-with your very first cake of Camay! Yes, new loveliness can be yours when you change from careless cleansing to the Camay Mild-Soap Diet. Doctors tested Camay's daring beauty promise under exact clinical conditions-on scores of complexions. And these doctors reported that woman after woman-using just one cake of Camayhad softer, smoother, younger-looking skin!

NOTES ON THE ROMANCE OF THE GREERS

Shell-hunting on the golden Florida sands, Russ wooed and won lovely, blueeyed Gloria. Her complexion is fair as the skies that smiled down on their romance! "Camay is my standby for skin care," Gloria discloses, "since my very first cake of Camay brought out a real sparkle in my complexion!"

MRS, RUSSELL FLAGG GREER the former Gloria Harpe of Coral Gables, Fla. Briddl portrait painted by MANIERS

Gay goings - on at the Greers'! And the fresh beauty of this charming hostess rates applause. "Russ often compliments my complexion-thanks to mild Camay care!" So Gloria promises, "to keep my skin winning praises, I'll stay on the Camay Mild-Soap Diet." You can make your skin lovelier, too! Every Camay wrapper tells you how.

GIRL: Gal can dream, can't she? Look at engagement rings, can't she? CUPID: Sure. But what's the good when she looks like you? GIRL: Why you little-! Listen, I may be a plain girl-CUPID: But, Baby, you wouldn't look it if you'd just sparkle at people once in a while. Smile at 'em. Gleam! GIRL: With my dull teeth, I should gleam? I brush 'em but all I get is no gleam. And lately, "pink tooth brush."

"What're you looking at, Sis?"

CUPID: And your dentist ...? GIRL: What dentist? CUPID: What dentist? Don't you know that "pink" is a warning to see your dentist? He may find today's soft foods are robbing your gums of exercise and suggest "the helpful stimulation of Ipana and massage."

or the Smile of Beauty IPANA and MASSAGE

GIRL: Pygmy, are you talking about my dentist, my smile, or what?

CUPID: The works, Sis. Because a sparkling smile depends largely on healthy gums. And Ipana is specially designed, with massage, to help your gums. Massage a little extra Ipana on your gums when you brush your teeth and you're on the way to a sparkling smile ... one that'll put a gleam in the eye of every lad who sees you!

NBC's Barry Cameron comes alive for our readers in the August Living Portraits, with pages of vivid pictures of Barry's friends you'll see the way they look, the places they live in, the things they do.

What happens on a Honeymoon In New York? Well—NBC's show, Honeymoon In New York, has a lot of answers to that, and one of the most moving is told in Radio Mirror next month by the woman who lived it. It's a story that will leave you smiling a little — or weeping, just a little.

All your regular departments, as usual: Papa David chooses his favorite Life Can Be Beautiful letter, Ted Malone his favorite poem from among those you have sent in; Kate Smith cooks up some midsummer specialties. And on the cover, Betty Jane Rhodes in a hat no woman could resist.

CONTENTS FOR JULY

1946

4 8 What's New From Coast to Coast by Dale Banks 10 What About Television? Worthington C. Miner, CBS 19 A Day To Remember-A Woman of America Story 20 Once We're Married-Part Two of an Aunt Jenny Real Life Story 24 Between The Bookends by Ted Malone 28 Just Plain Bill-In Living Portraits 31 Murder For Two-A Mr. and Mrs. North Story..... 36 So Far Away!.....by Margaret Whiting 38 Take Your Partner!—A National Barn Dance Story..... 40 Don't You Know I Love You?--- A My True Story..... 44 Life Can Be Beautifulby Papa David 48 50

VOL. 26, NO, 2

ON THE COVER—Marilyn Erskine, radio actress; story on Page 3, Miss Erskine's gown designed by Marie of Pandora Frocks. New York

FRED R. SAMMIS		DORIS MCFERRAN		JACK ZASORIN
Editorial Director	EVELYN L. FIORE	Editor	FRANCES MALY	Art Director
	Assistant Editor		Associate Art Director

"How to have more fun on dates"

Candy Coated GIDINI PEPPERMINT

DIANA LYNN

starring in "OUR HEARTS WERE GROWING UP"

A Paramount Picture

The dates I like to remember are the ones where everybody had a good time. Where nobody told any jokes that reflected on any race or religion. Where nobody acted snooty because he or she had more money, nicer clothes, or a fancier education. It's silly to be a snob or snide-guy...when real people have so much more fun! Fleer knows how much little things can mean...guess that's why they make such good gum.

> FLEER'S is that delicious chewing gum with the super peppermint flavor. Twelve flawless fleerlets, in a handy green-andwhite package, for only five cents. Fleer's is fresh, flavorful, refreshing. Enjoy Fleer's today!

Candy Coated - Chewing gum in its nicest form !

COVER GIRL

Blonde Marilyn Erskine stars in half dozen network dramas.

By ELEANOR HARRIS

W HEN Marilyn Erskine was six years old, she disrupted her life (and her parents' lives) forever— by coming to New York City to visit her grandmother. While the little golden-haired girl was lunching calmly with relatives she met an agent. Feverishly relatives she met an agent. Feverishly he offered her parts in movie shorts and in radio—and Marilyn promptly made New York her home. What could her parents do but string along with her? By the ripe age of twenty, Marilyn's been in eleven plays including "Our Town" and "Primrose Path," in endless movie shorts and in countless radio where Brown is her life work. She's been on it nine years now! Once in New York City, she sand-wiched the Professional Children's School in between her radio shows-where her schoolmates were Frankie Thomas, Johnny Downs, and January's Radio Mirror Cover Girl Eileen Barton.

Around the house she wears slacks or lounging pajamas—the most over-used lounging pajamas—the most over-used pair being purple slacks with a fuchsia-and-green blouse. Her hair is ash blonde, her eyes blue, her height five feet two; and she collects gold jewelry avidly, and shoes—her latest shoe-triumph being almost invisible, since it consists only of a couple of tiny straps. Bags too attract her like a magnet. "My pet is a transparent plas-tic one," she says. "It keeps me neat since everyone can see into it—and also since everyone can see into it—and also I can put a gardenia on top of it and make it look lovely."

enlor Vice President: S. O. Shapi Dworkin, Secretary and Offessurg Boworkin, Secretary and Offessurg PL Lethen, Jr., Mgr., Pacific Coast FL Lethen, Jr., Mgr., Pacific Coast Coast New York, N. T. under use holland: 2 years, S3 60; 3 years S5. Dominican Republic, Spain and and South American countries, 88.40. All other countries, 2 ye Price per copy: 15c in, the While Manuscruts, Photograp While Manuscruts, Photograp in those and explicit name and specially advised to be sure to retain copies of their ons; otherwise they are taking unnecessary risk, ents of this magazine may not be reprinted either in Part, without permission. (Member of Macfadden Women's Group) 1946 by Macfadden Publications, Inc. Copyright aneda. Registered at Stationers Hall, Great Pritain, 1965 by Cart Cours Fouring Card, Ducle

No one overlooks underarm odorso look to Mum for protection

T'S A GIFT-the way you wear jewels for smart effect.

But, honey, can't you see? Even the loveliest of trinkets fails to be effective when charm itself fades away.

So don't stop at washing away past perspiration. But do guard against risk of future underarm odor. Let Mum give un-derarms the special care they need.

Mum smooths on in half a minute. Keeps you bath-fresh and sweet-safe from offending underarm odor all day or evening long.

Mum is harmless to skin and clothing. Creamy, snow-white Mum is so quick and easy to use-before or after dressing. Won't dry out in the jar or form irritating crystals. Why take chances with your charm when you can trust Mum? Get a jar of Mum today.

For Sanitary Napkins - Mum is gentle, safe, dependable ... ideal for this use, too.

sowww.americanradiohistory.com

ACING ihe MUSIC By KEN ALDEN

Ex-Major Lanny Ross combines his romantic tenor voice with the smartly-styled singing of Evelyn Knight (right) on the Lanny Ross Show, which is heard Monday through Friday at 7:00 P.M. EDT, over the CBS network.

ERRY COMO, whose single re-cording of "Till The End of Time" sold more copies than any other disc of the year, and who has clicked in recent 20th Century-Fox films, will probably have a new sponsorship deal out. Perry is now on NBC but the rival web, CBS, is promised the baritone.

Don't be surprised if Dinah Shore and her husband George Montgomery form a daytime radio partnership, a la Kate Smith and Ted Collins. The idea might be experimented with next season on a regional west coast hookup and if successful, go national.

Count Basie is writing a history of jazz and boogie woogie and MGM is interested in seeing the script for possible screen use.

R M

Look for Tommy Riggs and Betty Lou, one of radio's better ventriloquists, to be back on the air this Fall co-

Perry Como's Monday-through-Friday Supper Club show, 7:00 P.M. EDT on NBC, piles up the fan mail to such a point that the singer's whole family has to pitch in to help him read his way through it.

starring with Ginny Simms on CBS. Riggs was in the service.

Don't be surprised if Frank Sinatra shifts his broadcasting time to an earlier hour to satisfy his kid fans.

Jean Tennyson, soprano star of CBS's Great Moments in Music, is planning to set up a musical scholarship, only Broadway show and chorus girls to be eligible.

Jean Sablon, the French Crosby, has returned to Paris. American networks couldn't work out a satisfactory deal to keep the baritone over here.

Music lost another great composer when Vincent Youmans passed away at the age of 47, a victim of t.b. His beautiful songs like "Tea for Two," "I Want to Be Happy," carry on forever.

STAN UP AND CHEER It takes more than talent to become a MMM amorica successful bandleader. It takes guts, too. Slim, sincere Stan Kenton, whose fine young orchestra rates the highest popularity potential of 1946, is the cur-rent case in point. "I never had trouble playing piano in bands," Stan told me as we brunched in Lindy's, "it wasn't until I decided to have my own band that things got tough." tough.'

Stan is a master of understatement. Things weren't tough. They were des-perate. Stan organized his band on a shoe string.

"What made things worse was that my wife, Violet, was expecting a baby." When the band didn't work Stan stuffed his pride in his bare pocket and stuffed his pride in his bare pocket and collected unemployment insurance. The Kentons moved in with Violet's folks. One night, Stan, anxious for his wife's health, was all for giving up his ambi-tious plans and throwing in the baton. "Don't do it, honey," his wife pleaded. "This is what you want. Soon the pub-lic will appreciate the kind of music you want to give them." The baby was born without mishap

The baby was born without mishap. Stan was sure this was a lucky omen. He persuaded the local radio station to put a line into the Balboa ballroom. Pearl Harbor day came and the net-works stayed on the air continuously. They needed remote dance band music

They needed remote dance band music to fill in between breathless bulletins. "What they got was Stan Kenton," Stan recalled, "whether they liked it or not. We went on, from coast to coast, three times a night." By the time Stan's loyal crew left Balboa, he owed the radio station $1,200 for line charges but it was w worth it. People had listened to a strong, swing-minded band. A on night engagement in a Long Bes auditorium attracted 2,000 paying 1 trons. A Los Angeles disc jockey, Jarvis, scouted the turnout, put in a hurry call to Maury Cohen, manager of that vast ballroom, the Palladium. Cohen, needing a fill-in band for five

"There she was waiting at the church!"

THERE she was waiting at the church...because the cutest boy of the neighborhood playing "groom" to her "bride" walked out on her ... and told her why.

Lucky little Edna—to learn so young what some people never realize at all—that halitosis (unpleasant breath) is a fault not easy to pardon. It was a lesson she never forgot. Later in life, attractive and sought-after, Listerine Antiseptic was a "must" before every date.

How is Your Breath?

Can you be sure that at this very moment your breath is sweet and agreeable? You can't always tell!

Why take chances . . . why risk offending others needlessly when Listerine Antiseptic so often offers such an easy, delightful precaution?

Simply rinse your mouth with it morning and night and especially before any appointment where you want to be at your best. Almost at once your breath is fresher, sweeter...less likely to offend.

While sometimes systemic, most cases of unpleasant breath, say some authorities, are due to the bacterial

www.ame

fermentation of tiny food particles on teeth, gum and mouth surfaces.

Lucky for you, Listerine Antiseptic quickly halts this fermentation, then overcomes the odors it causes.

Never, never omit Listerine Antiseptic; it's part of your passport to popularity. Lambert Pharmacal Co.

ot Kenton at bargain prices. would think that was the end coubles but it wasn't," Stan con-"Too cocky, we headed east and "Too cocky, we headed east and K until we got into Roseland in YYork. Booked for six weeks, we ed three. Our style just didn't fit." ck on the coast, Bob Hope hired band to replace Army-bound Skin-/ Ennis. Stan thought this was the g opportunity, but the gag-filled Hope tow had little room to show off the lusical wares of Kenton. The band got lost between irium and Jerry Colonna. But their Capitol records clicked. But their Capitol records clicked.

In two years the plucky pioneer saved $25,000, owned two cars, and a luxurious Hollywoodland home. Eager to keep improving his band, he poured money back into it for better musicians and singers.

Stan is 34 now. He was born in Wichita, Kansas, the son of an auto mechanic and a piano teacher. The family moved to the coast shortly after Stan was born. Their son went to school in Long Beach, started studying music under the watchful eye of his mother when he was 14.

The depression prevented Stan from going to college. He joined a local dance band, drifted from one to another, playing a polished piano. But he soon became bored with routine music and routine arrangements. The band-leading bug bit him early. He met his pretty wife while playing in one of these clap-trap outfits. "If it wasn't for her we'd have given

"If it wasn't for her we'd have given up long ago. When we signed contracts which called for a girl vocalist, Vi would make believe she was the girl vocalist even though she had never sung professionally in her life." Now that the sweat and tears days are over, Violet Kenton concentrates on being a wife and mother being a wife and mother.

"Now that we're moderately successful Vi doesn't bother too much about it. But I'm sure if anything went wrong again she'd be in there pitching.

It's taken Kenton about six years to believe he did it the hard way, insist-ing on playing challenging and complicated arrangements difficult for the average danceband fan to absorb. But, on the evidence, they learned!

Life was easy as a musician, hard as a bandleader-but Stan Kenton wanted to lead a band.

Vivacious Nanette Fabray is the vocalist on NBC's Saturday night Jimmy Edmondson Show, at 8.

NEW RECORDS

(Each month Ken Alden picks the most popular platters)

JO STAFFORD: The languorous Californian offers an album (Cap-itol) filled with memorable hits of yesteryear.

DINAH SHORE: Dinah is herself again with this effortless version of "The Gypsy" and "Laughing on the Outside." (Columbia)

JACK SMITH: The Prudential Family hour favorite turns in a pleasant coupling of "I'll Be Yours" and "Let's Put Out the Lights." (Majestic)

NORO MORALES: Majestic thinks mighty highly of this rum-ba disciple. "Maria" and "Tam-bo" are the tunes and an easy-tolearn rumba lesson written by Arthur Murray is on the jacket.

PHIL MOORE FOUR: Another Slick Musicraft mixture by this quartet featuring "September Song" and "Danny Boy."

JOHNNY GUARNIERI: "Body and Soul" and "Nobody's Sweet-heart" show off an honest piano style and he gets understanding help from drummer Cole and string bassist Haggart. (Majestic)

GEORGE AULD: Here's a band due to climb. Listen to them as they play "You Haven't Changed At All," a lovely tune, and "Daily Double." (Musicraft)

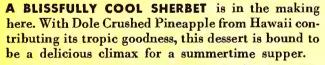

FRANK SINATRA: The Voice rejoices with two fine songs from "Centennial Summer" — "All Through the Day" and "Two Hearts Are Better Than One."

FREDDY MARTIN: Our favorite music smoothies play two tunes from Danny Kaye's new picture "Kid From Brooklyn" and both are good.

Baritone Dick Haymes steals as many hours as he can from movies and his CBS show (Saturdays at 8:00 P.M. EDT) to ride and train the horses on his Encino Valley ranch-Thunderbolt is one.

... "NOW, MUMMY, IT SAYS - 'ONE AND A HALF CUPS OF DOLE CRUSHED PINEAPPLE'"

THE REAL

Try this recipe for Dole Pineapple Sherbet, also the other recipes shown here. Dole Pineapple Upside-Down Salad with deviled eggs is a meal in itself, and the Catsup-glazed Pineapple Chunks are an appetizing accompaniment for broiled meats. For refreshment anytime, drink chilled Dole Pineapple Juice.

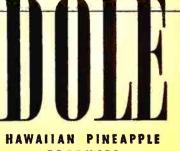

DOLE PINEAPPLE SHERBET Stir together until sugar is dissolved: 1/2 cup light corn syrup, 1/3 cup sugar, 2 cups top milk, dash salt, 1½ cups Dole Crushed Pineapple, 2 teaspoons grated lemon peel, 1/4 cup lemon juice. Freeze in ice cube trays until firm. Put contents in chilled bowl and beat until fluffy; fold in 2 stiffly beaten egg whites; finish freezing. Makes about 1 quart.

Add 2 tbsps. plain gelatin ta 1/2 cup cald water; let stand 5 minutes. Stir in 11/4 cups bailing water, 1/2 cup sugar, 1 tsp. salt. Drain 1/2 cup syrup from Date Pineapple Slices and add, with 1/2 cup vinegar and 1/4 cup leman juice; coal. Pour thin layer in bottom of laaf pan, chill till almast firm; arrange 2 slices pineapple an gelatin, with pimiento in centers, chill till firm. Dice 1 or 2 slices pineapple, mix with 3 cups shredded cabbage, I cup diced radishes ar cucumbers or celery, 1/4 cup each diced pimienta and green peppers; fold inta remaining gelatin, paur aver pineapple in pan; chill. When firm, turn out and serve with moyonnaise. Serves 6 to 8.

CATSUP-GLAZED DOLE PINEAPPLE CHUNKS

Drain Dale Pineapple Chunks. Melt o little butter or margarine in o skillet; odd drained pineapple. Dash generausly with catsup, then sprinkle lightly with brown sugar, and heat, gently stirring occasionally, about five minutes, until chunks are glazed ond hat. Use as a gornish for brailed chops or hamburgers.

PRODUCTS

START YOUNG, STAY YOUNG

VICTOR H. LINDLAHR

Victor Lindlahr, author of "You Are What You Eat," outlines in this Radio Mirror feature minimum requirements for a beauty diet. For more about food as a health and beauty foundation, hear Victor Lindlahr daily, 11:45 A.M., MBS.

THESE are the pleasant days when, the poets tell us, a man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love ... providing he has something lovely to look at.

Whether or not he is going to look at you a second time depends, to a large extent, on your complexion—your "skin." So take a look in the mirror to get an idea how you'll make out in the "June is bustin' out all over" sweepstakes. Make an honest appraisal, too. Try to see yourself as others see you.

Do you look older than your years ... or younger? Has your skin the soft, velvety appearance of youth? Does it have that smooth, creamy-like feel? Or does it appear to be a bit "tough," leather-like, or have some other of the unmistakable signs of aging?

Take a good look and remember that you are "young," "middle-aged," or "old" in the eyes of others according to the texture and appearance of the skin of your face.

You can fib about your birthdays or keep them a well-guarded secret, but the skin of your face is there for all to see.

Fortunately though, you are literally never too old to improve the tone, texture and tint of your skin through the use of certain selected foods. Here's how it's done:

Your skin is made up of layers and layers of tiny cells. The outer ones are continually shedding, and being replaced by new ones formed in the layers

8 M which are functioning underneath.

Whenever you eat, you feed these cells from within. In other words, the skin of your face is constantly in the making.

You can begin today to make sure that your skin will have a better texture a few weeks from now, because the skin cells are formed from certain factors you get in certain foods.

For example, you have all heard of Vitamin A. It does a lot of good things for you. For one thing, it determines the texture of certain cells in your skin, the kind physiologists call "Epithelial cells." They will be soft and velvety or hard and leathery according to the amount of Vitamin A they get.

This food factor actually forms the epithelial cells, and if you run short of it, your skin may show it in a number of ugly ways.

In other words, you are not only "what you eat," you "look what you eat," too.

Take the classic bugaboo of old-age skin . . . wrinkles. They crop up very readily in the skin that has been deprived of Vitamin A, and while we associate a mighty high score of birthdays with wrinkles, they might start to form as early as your thirtieth year, if you don't eat the right foods.

Consider deep-green lettuce, for example. It's a grand source of the carotene which your body forms into Vitamin A. The fine ladies of Ancient Rome paid fancy prices for deep-green lettuce. They ate it to "aid the complexion," and it really helped. However, the wily herb-sellers claimed that the lettuce had to be picked when the stars were in certain array. Of course that isn't true, but it justified special prices which the patricians gladly paid.

AUIO MIRROR'S BOMBAND BAUTY

You can get a grand supply of Vitamin A from a crisp lettuce salad made with a touch of French dressing. A few strips of pimento spread over it would be double-extra good. Pimento is one of the richest food sources of Vitamin A.

Cleopatra once gave a herb seller three large pearls for a secret formula which was reputed to have magical qualities for "preserving the youth of the skin." In the light of modern nutrition science, it was probably worth the price, at least to Cleopatra. Here is the formula:

- 1 part parsley
- 1 part deep green watercress
- 1 part the outer leaves of broccoli

The whole to simmer for a few minutes in any water which might stick to the leaves, to be macerated, (finely chopped), and to be taken in the amount of a small wineglassful (about two ounces), fresh-prepared each day.

At least that's the essence of the prescription stripped of all the mumbo jumbo the herb seller recommended.

One Roman historian records that Cleopatra used this concoction every day. It certainly calls for three of the top-ranking (Continued on page 58) Of all leading brands we tested . . .

STOPS PERSPIRATION AND ODOR SO EFFECTIVELY, YET SO SAFELY

You who value your precious clothes, will adore the wonderful new, improved Postwar Arrid! It gives you maximum protection against perspiration and odor with safety for your clothes and skin. This new smooth, creamy Arrid is the improved deodorant you've been waiting for!

FOR FORMAL EVENINGS, this stunning white linen dress... with transparent midriff and drop shoulder of organdy! To guard your precious clothes against perspiration, use Arrid daily. Arrid gives maximum protection against perspiration with safety to clothes and skin!

Only safe, gentle Arrid gives you this thorough 5-way protection:

- 1. No other deodorant tested stops perspiration and odor so effectively, yet so safely.
- 2. More effective in stopping perspiration than any other leading deodorant cream, according to our tests.
- 3. Does not rot clothes. Does not irritate the skin.
- 4. Soft, smooth, creamy . . . easy to apply. Greaseless and stainless, too. Antiseptic.
- 5. Awarded the Seal of Approval of the American Institute of Laundering for being harmless to fabric. 39¢ plus tax Also 10¢ and 59¢

Some of the many stars who use Arrid: Georgia Gibbs • Grace Moore • Ilka Chase Carol Bruce • Beatrice Lillie • Diana Barrymore Barbara Bel Geddes • Eleanor Holm

www.americanradiohistory.com

rart Hadwork

To snag for your very own the nicest, strongest guy around!

It's smart head-work, too, when you choose DeLong Bob Pins to keep your page-boy or chignon under control because they've got the Stronger Grip that's called for ... They simply refuse to slip and slide around in a weak-kneed fashion, letting your carefully concocted hair-do down to there...

Once you use DeLong Bob Pins you'll wonder how you ever lived and breathed without them. Their Stronger Grip solves your headwork problems now and forever more. Remember...

Quality Manufacturers for Over 50 Years BOB PINS HAIR PINS SAFETY PINS SNAP FASTENERS STRAIGHT PINS HOOKS & EYES HOOK & EYE TAPES SANITARY BELTS

10

By DALE BANKS

Jackie Coogan stars in CBS's Forever Ernest, with Lurene Tuttle and Arthur Q. Bryan, Mondays, 8 P.M. And Janet Waldo remains CBS's Corliss Archer, Sunday nights at 9.

WHAT'S NEW from Coast to Coast

O UR hat's off to the new Superman! Now that the stratospherecleaving hero has taken to bashing away at real menaces instead of mythical ones, we're one hundred percent for the show. The new story line, designed to teach millions of kids the dangers of racial and religious intolerance and to deal with the many real problems that face the kids of todayand tomorrow—is a vast improvement. The script is more exciting now than it ever was, and that's basically becauseit deals with familiar things rather than Jules Verneish imaginings.

The script is more exciting now than it ever was, and that's basically becauseit deals with familiar things rather than Jules Verneish imaginings. Superman has grown up and even adults need no longer admit with a snicker that they listen to it—they can say they do openly and without embarrassment.

Had a talk and a very interesting one with Valerie Bayan, lovely young actress currently in True Detective Mysteries. Valerie'd just got back from Honolulu, where she'd gone to be near her husband, Lieutenant Stubblefield. The war kept her husband pretty busy and Valerie filled in the empty hours by teaching dramatics in a local high school. Valerie found it lots of fun, but she also found it very educational in terms of democracy. Her classes were made up Chinese, Japanese and Hawaiian children. Department of higher mathematics of a sort. E. Power Biggs, organist at CBS, set himself a project at the beginning of the year. The project called for devoting all or part of every one of his Sunday morning broadcasts to performing Bach's compositions for the organ—until he had presented the entire Bach organ literature. He finished the project early in March and then did a little adding up and figuring. Here's the report. He performed 228 Bach works and he estimates that it would take an entire day and night to play them all one after the other. He also says that his practice on the Bach works has consumed about 10,000 hours over the past twenty years. That's a lot of hours—but in this case well worth it.

Neat trick! Nannette Sargent, who has played the part of the baby, Paulette, in Ma Perkins for five years from the first baby cry to the present five-year-old child—was recently switched to the role of Fay, Paulette's mother! Mother and baby doing fine.

We like stories about Harry Elders, because Harry Elders is a very nice guy. This one comes to us via grapevine from Chicago, where Harry's being the leading man on the Curtain Time program—as well as the leading man in a number of activities that tie says Mrs. Gary Cooper,

"And that's why GAY-RED is a sell-out in Hollywood."

aptivating."

Wherever the elite of Hollywood gathers...you'll see alluring Tangee lips capturing admiring glances. Usually the cause of all the excitement is the thrilling new hit-color—Tangee Gay-Red. So let your lips go gay with Gay-Red, the light-hearted, carefree lipstick color that gives you a lift! And don't forget-Gay-Red comes in Tangee's exclusive Satin-Finish-long-lasting and lovely-to-use.

Cake Make-Up that Thrives on Hot Weather!

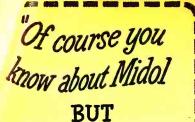

Look cool and inviting all summer long...by using the new Tangee Petal-Finish Cake Make-Up. This Tangee triumph does not get "streaky" from perspiration-lasts for extra hours no matter what the weather man says.

Presented in six fascinating shades.

MRS. GARY COOPERbeautiful wife of one of Hollywood's most distinguished stars.

CONSTANCE LUFT HUHN, Head of the House of Tangee and creator of the world famous Tangee Gay-Red Lipstick and Petal-Finish Cake

Use Jangee... and see how beautiful you can be

HAVE YOU TRIED IT?

No.

di

and a second

1.000

100

100

Contraction of the local distribution of the

Be fair with yourself! And this very month prove to yourself that the natural pain of the menstrual process can be relieved simply by taking Midol.

You see, Midol tablets are offered specifically to relieve functional periodic pain, and their action is both prompt and sure. Prompt because relief is generally obtained in a few minutes. Sure because three fast-acting ingredients work in these ways to bring welcome relief: Ease Cramps-Soothe Headache-Stimulate mildly when you're "Blue".

Let Midol keep you brighter. Take it confidently and see how comfortably you can go through those trying days. Ask for Midol at your drugstore.

actors into their functioning as citizens. actors into their functioning as citizens. Not so long ago, Harry asked his four-and-a-half year old son whether he'd like to see one of his father's broadcasts. The tike is very blase, however, and didn't get very enthu-siastic. This is one of Harry's light "burdens"—his son's lack of apprecia-tion for his talents. So Harry took a neighbor's child along to the show in-stead stead. The

The next morning greeted very coldly morning, Harry was coldly by his son at breakfast. "I hear you kissed another woman last night," his son said accusingly. "Joe," that was the boy Harry had taken to the studio, "Joe saw you. He told me all about it. Joe doesn't think you're very nice to do that when you have a wife and two children."

It took a couple of minutes for Harry to realize that Joe had seen him go through his regular mike routine at the end of the show, which consists of standing by the mike with his arm around his leading lady, Jane Elliott. Harry laughed and explained, but he's not quite sure his son is convinced yet of his complete fidelity. Small boys have a tendency to be very literal-minded. They believe what they see and hear.

Clint Johnson, CBS director, is back after a three year stint in the Army Air Forces. Lots of things happened to Clint, but the one he got the biggest kick out of was this. While he was still on Private Johnson and doing K.P., up to his ears in greasy pots, a messenger arrived with a special delivery letter for him. He opened it and read it aloud to his fellow pot scourers. "We have the honor to inform you that you have been included in the 1943 Who's Who," the letter read.

Eloise Kummer has twin nieces, six years old. They are ardent devotees of their aunt's Guiding Light program, and as a result a very puzzled couple of little girls. They've heard her go through a marriage and a divorce and they've become very fond of her son in the script, Ricky Lawrence. The thing that bothers them terribly is that they have never been allowed to meet their cousin Ricky, who, they think, sounds awfully nice. Eloise has had a hard time trying to tell them that when she's on the air she isn't their aunt, but a character in a play. That only makes them more confused.

If you'd like to have for reading some of the fine shows that were done on the Army Hour during the war, they're available in book form, now. Ex-Ser-geant Millard Lampell's "The Long Way Home" is in the book stores and in buying a copy you'll be helping a good cause. Millard, who's an up and coming and hard fighting guy, even out of the Army, has directed that all the royalties from "The Long Way Home" are to be contributed to the Committee for Air Forces Convalescent Welfare.

Speaking of books, there's another one you might like to have, just for the fun of it. It's called "Radio Alphabet" and is intended to make English speaking people acquainted with the peculiar form of English that's flung around in radio studios. For instance, the book would help you translate the following:

The studio contained a live mike and a pedal pusher looking at a wood pile. No god box in the studio. Not even an eighty eight. You feel sure the pedal pusher couldn't possibly work on the wood pile, even if he had long under-wear. What should you do. The answer is simple. Kill the mike. Dead air is better than a turkey. Translated this goes: A room espe-cially constructed for the production of radio programs contained a microphone that was connected to the com-plete electrical system used for the transmission of radio. Also present in the studio were an organ player and a xylophone. But there was no organ in the studio. Not even a piano. Knowing that the organ player couldn't play

CBS family gathering: Bill Bendix, star of Life With Riley; Barry Fitzgerald, Judge Fitz of His Honor the Barber; Louise Erick-son, star of Date With Judy; and Archie, of Duffy's Tavern.

M. C. Win Elliot of County Fair (CBS Saturdays, 1:30) and Allen La Fever fit a new hat on Phoebe.

a xylophone, even if he had sheet music, what should you do? You should disconnect the microphone circuit. Complete silence is better than complete failure of a program.

* * *

Not too many years ago, a young song writer planned and hoped to make his two daughters stars in the entertainment world. While he became famous with such musical hits as "Louise," "Sleepy Time Gal," "Till We Meet Again," and "One Hour With You," the daughters grew up without showing the slightest interest in his plans for them. They showed no signs of a desire for a career in the theater. In fact, their father rather hopelessly confided in a close friend that they didn't seem to have any talent, at all.

in a close friend that they didn't seem to have any talent, at all. But Dick Whiting was very wrong. One daughter, Margaret Whiting, is the singing star of Celebrity Club and the other, Barbara, is a film star whose most recent success was "Junior Miss." Maybe it's sometimes best to leave the kids alone—they'll come around in their own good time. One of the qualities that help get topnotchers to the top and keep them there

One of the qualities that help get topnotchers to the top and keep them there is a persistent aiming at perfection. Eddie Cantor is a fine example. Take his theme song, "One Hour With You," which has been sung hundreds of times on his radio show. Eddie never lets anyone, including himself get sloppy about the least detail. He still insists on having the theme rehearsed every week.

* *

If you've ever known any band leaders, you know that one of their biggest headaches is dodging the song pluggers. Every band leader's life is made terrible by song pluggers haunting his nights trying to put over the latest publication of the music houses. Believe it or not, most songs are not sung into popularity, they're plugged into it.

sung into popularity, they re plugged into it. We like the way Fred Waring has solved this whole deal. Fred does a little music publishing of his own, but he also uses the products of his business rivals. After all, he makes with the music in a big way. Fred's pretty busy and he doesn't like people under foot and in his hair—so he holds a weekly

A summer of freedom, Of comfort and ease, For every wise woman Requesting "Meds, please!"

Every day is a "free" day when you use Meds internal protection! You're free from pads, belts and pins; from odor and chafing; from embarrassing bulges and wrinkles. Free, too, from nagging worry — for Meds' "Safety-Well" gives you security plus!

- Meds have the famous "SAFETY-WELL" designed for your extra protection.
- Meds are made of real COTTON—soft and super absorbent for extra comfort.
- Meds expand quickly and adapt themselves easily to individual needs.

FOR 10 IN APPLICATORS

Note special design of Meds applicators. Firm, smooth, easy to use, completely disposable.

Vis your skin that dates you!

SO HERE'S a worthwhile tip—make every effort to keep your skin at its lovely best by guarding against loss of natural skin moisture. For many beauty experts tell us that the longer your skin retains its natural moisture, the longer it will remain smooth and supple and beautiful. Avoid, as far as possible, the things which Chine cellum — A wonderful make-up base that vanishes smoothly into the skin, leaving complexion satiny and daintily scented. Let it act as you sleep! This fine, lightly-textured skin cream contains "cholesterol." Helps keep skin soft and supple, neutralizes any excess acid accumulations in outer pore openings, guards vital skin moisture. 60t, plus tax.

PHILLIPS

DRESS BY CHAPMAN

dry out your skin: Neglect of proper skin care...too much exposure to winter's harsh winds and summer's hot, drying sun.

Choose Your Creams Carefully. Use creams that will do something for your skin. They needn't be the most expensive...try the two fine creams that bear the proud name of Chas. H. Phillips.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Skin Cream. Contains "cholesterol"...a special ingredient that protects against loss of natural skin moisture. Also soothing, softening oils that assist in keeping skin smooth and supple.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Cleansing Cream. Especially prepared to remove make-up, surface dirt and accumulations from outer pore openings.

Both creams contain genuine Phillips' MILK OF MAGNESIA.

MILK OF MAGNESIA CREAMS

Cleansing cream - A light, daintilyscented cleansing cream that tissues off easily. Liquefies as you smooth it on your skin. Leaves your complexion looking dewy-fresh and sparklingly clean. 60t, plus tax.

www.americanradiohistory.com

luncheon to which all the song pluggers are invited. There they are given the time and attention necessary for them to put over their latest musical wares and Fred is free of them for another week. There's nothing like using your head a bit and getting things organized.

Did you know that Guy Lombardo has gone into yet another business venture? Guy and his brother, Carmen, are now the operators of the Long Island Airlines, a commutation service running between Montauk Point, Long Island, and New York City—some 120 miles. The line is the first of its kind to be operated in and around New York. Guy opened the line in May and the infant venture is doing very well, thank you.

Now you'll know the difference between "conductor" and "Bandleader" and never again use them as though they were synonymous. Lloyd Shaffer, maestro of the Supper Club show, explained it all to us. Shaffer says that the boy who fronts a dance band is a "leader," because he merely beats time, which is only one phase of conducting and which, Shaffer says, can usually be accomplished more satisfactorily by the drummer. The conductor, on the other hand, not only beats time, but changes the tempo as well as directs every movement of the orchestra. Lloyd is a conductor.

Incidentally, Lloyd will be busy while he's in Hollywood. He's talking to Fred Astaire, hoping to interest the dancing star in playing the leading role in "Atom and Eve," a musical comedy written by Shaffer and scheduled for a Broadway premiere this fall.

Maybe this proves something—Sherman Drier, producer-director of Exploring the Unknown science dramas could have got to the same goal, probably, without finishing school. In fact, he was well on the way to the same career at the age of sixteen, when he had his own radio production office in Minneapolis, Minn. That venture was a financial success, too, but Drier decided that a complete education never hurt even a radio producer, so he went to the University of Minnesota. He was graduated in three years, winning a Phi Beta Kappa key, and was immediately offered the job of director of radio for the University of Chicago.

CBS's Big Sister, Mercedes McCambridge (daily, 12:15 P.M.), divides time between stage, radio

Summer sauce: Penny Singleton, star of CBS's Blondie, shows off a new star of her big hat collection.

Only in radio can this happen. Announcer Charles Lyon and commentator John W. Vandercook have been working on the same program, News of the World (NBC), for five years—but until a short while ago, they had never met one another. Lyon delivers his commercials from Chicago and Vandercook does his commentating from New York. They saw each other in person for the first time after five years awhile back when Vandercook went to Chicago on business.

Licia Albanese, singing star of Mutual's Treasure Hour of Song and the Metropolitan Opera's leading soprano, has earned herself the title of the "Bernhardt of Opera," because her acting is every bit as fine as her singing. In her career, this is not the greatest honor that's been accorded her. She's been decorated by a Pope—Pope Pius XI—and she had the distinction of singing at the coronation of King George VI.

Lanny Ross was in Milwaukee during that city's recent Centennial celebration. The Mayor asked Lanny to take par, in the program featuring stars of radio, stage and screen who were born in Milwaukee. Lanny protested that he was a native of Seattle, whereupon Mayor Vohn made him an honorary citizen of Milwaukee right there and then. Lanny sang and emceed the big program.

You can't always tell from what they say. . . For instance, after listening to Kenny Delmar and Deems Taylor on the RCA Victor Show, you'd think Kenny couldn't stand the sound of anything less than a hot combo beating out the latest and best in jazz and that Deems would be impervious to anything but the classic. 'Tain't so, though. We actually spotted Delmar at the Vladimir Horowitz piano recital at Carnegie Hall awhile back—and later the same evening ran into Taylor bouncing his feet to the "One O'Clock Jump" at a 52nd Street bistro.

Stops Perspiration Troubles Faster

THAN YOU SLIP INTO YOUR SWIM SUIT

Get in the swim! Get next to this new post-war, super-fast deodorant. Ask for new ODORONO Cream Deodorant... stops perspiration faster than you slip into your swim suit. Because it contains science's most effective perspiration stopper.

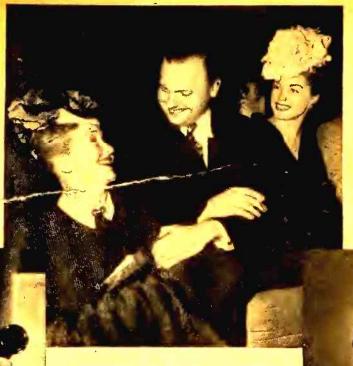

Works wonders when you work or play hardest. Really protects up to 3 days. Will not irritate your skin ... or harm fine fabrics ... or turn gritty in the jar.

Change to new super-fast ODORONO Cream Deodorantsuper-modern, super-efficient, super-safe.

Phone Again, Finnegan, they keep telling worried Stuart Erwin in his NBC comedy-drama program.

Threesome-ing at a party of the Academy Award Theater (Saturdays at 7, CBS) director Dee Engelbach, radio's Hedda Hopper, and Esther Williams of the movies.

WHAT'S NEW FROM COAST TO COAST

(Continued from page 15)

This is something we'll have to see. We hear that Alan Reed, better known to you as Falstaff Oppenshaw—"Precisely why I am here!"—plays a dramatic part in the new film "The Postman Always Rings Twice." Reed is called on for some heavy dramatics in the picture, we're told, and he also gets, according to the script, one of the worst maulings that's ever been recorded on film, in a scrape with the film's star, John Garfield. The thing that delights us is that we can remember Alan in his early days, when he was a physical training teacher and his specialty was wrestling. He's a tremendous fellow and a tremendously strong fellow and we get a kick out of figuring how John Garfield really puts it over.Enthusiasm and determination, probably. At that, Garfield's succession of tough roles will turn out to have been good preparation for his battle with Reed.

Did you know that "Kate Smith" was used often as a password during the war? It was and we heard tell of one particular instance. A number of Americans had to contact the Dutch underground and they needed a password that would definitely identify them as Americans. It had to be something only Americans would use—and the password? "Kate Smith." Simple and a natural.

Lynn Murray has a new feather in his cap. He's been added to the faculty of the Juilliard School of Music.

R

(Continuou J.ont pugo 10)

Jon Gart, conductor on the Carrington Playhouse and The Harry Savoy Show, always has trouble getting people to leave the "h" out of his first name. His name is spelled like that—J O N because he is the son of the famous European baritone, James Jongart.

+ c

Having had somewhat similar trouble ourselves on occasion, we're deeply sympathetic with Johnny Coons, actor on the Captain Midnight show. He just got a new phone—but an old number, said number having belonged to a laundry before. Practically every morning he's awakened by angry housewives wanting to know where their shirts, socks, sheets and towels are. Our old number used to belong to a cleaner and tailor. People were always calling us to come and pick up their pants for pressing.

Maurice Copeland was born and raised in Alabama. Before tackling radio, Maurice spent lots of dough and lots of tongue-tiring hours to get rid of his soft Southern drawl. So comes the pay-off. At a Human Adventure rehearsal, Copeland had to stand there like a nice quiet boy, while director Morrison Wood explained to him why his version of a Southern gentleman wasn't authentic.

Curley Bradley—Tom Mix on the air—is really going all out for the kids. He hopes he'll soon have a real westernstyle ranch where he'll be able to entertain city children—all for free.

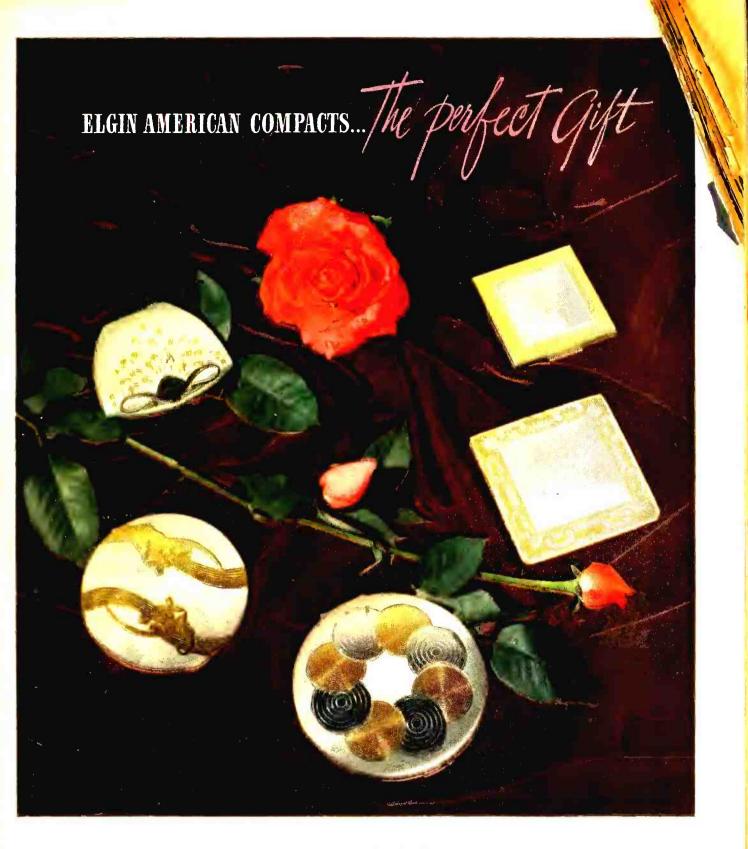

www.americanradiohistory.com

GOSSIP FROM AROUND AND ABOUT.... Alfred Drake, singing star of the stage success "Oklahoma," will emcee the new Ford Sunday Hour for the summer. . . Benay Venuta has chosen the West Coast as a permanent home. Benay will star in a new radio show, coming from California, in the fall. . . . Carmen Lombardo is now in the music publishing business, too..... Walt Disney is writing a radio show based on his screen characters, the show slated for airing in the fall. A com-plete drama will be presented each week. ... Johnny Desmond, singing star of the Philip Morris Follies of 1946 and day now.... Rumor has it that Warner Brothers are angling to get Jackie Kelk of the cracked voice comedy for a picture. So far, Jackie's tied down to New York by his radio commitments. . The newish radio show Honeymoon in New York has been sold to the movies for filming.... Ditto One Man's Fam-ily, filming to start in three or four months.... Bill Stern, noted sports months. . . Bill Stern, noted sports commentator and announcer has turned author. His book is called "My Favor-ite Sports Stories" and is on the book stands. . . Paul Lavalle will conduct some of the New York Philharmonic concerts at the Lewisohn Stadium in New York this summer. . . We hear that Judy Canova is writing a book about her life in the theater, titled, "There's a Punch in Judy." . . . Every-one's writing—maybe we'd better stop for now. Nice listening and nice vacationing. . . .

Modeling to movies to radio is the way Kay Campbell arrived on NBC's daily Ma Perkins.

Made to be admired—the exciting new Elgin American compacts. Each one, a show piece of Elgin American's exquisite designing, enduring jewelry finish, and precision craftsmanship. Each one, a credit to your fine taste in accessories. The perfect gift.

ElGIN, ILLINOIS

Compacts.

Ligarette Cases • Dresser Sets

COPYRIGHT 1946, ELGIN AMERICAN

Ma other shampor leaves your hair so lustrous, yet

T'S SHINING BRIGHT! It's beautifully behaved! It's Drene-lovely hair! Yes, you bring out all the natural beauty of your hair, all its alluring highlights... when you use Drene with Hair Conditioning action.

"I always use Drene," says glamorous fashion model and Cover Girl Lisa Fonssagrives, "because it reveals far more sheen than any soap or soap shampoo." As much as 33 percent more lustre! Drene is not a soap shampoo. It never leaves any dulling film on your hair as all soaps do. And the very first time you use Drene, you completely remove unsightly dandruff.

Here you see Lisa at the shore with her gleaming hair in a practical, fetching topknot. Below she shows you another favorite hair-do you can try at home or ask your beauty shop to do.

Your hair is far silkier, smoother and easier to manage when you use the wonderful improved Drene with Hair Conditioning action. No other shampoo leaves your hair so lustrous, yet so easy to manage.

AT THE SUMMER PLAYHOUSE, you're the evening's star with lovely, lustrous hair. "This dramatic hair-do is so easy to fix," Lisa says, "right after shampooing with Drene with Hair Conditioning action." Just comb all hair hack to point below crown, tie firmly and form three large buns. Don't forget the rosebuds!

Shampoo with Hair Conditioning Action

I-CBS: THE CASE FOR COLOR

By WORTHINGTON C. MINER DIRECTOR, CBS TELEVISION

The controversy over television is this: shall we have it now, in black and white, or shall we wait until color is ready? The Columbia Broadcasting System is championing the cause of color television. Only through color, CBS believes, can the wonderful new medium of television give most people what they want and expect from it. It is argued, on the other hand, that getting the sending apparatus and the receiving sets for color under way will take too long—that the public wants television now even if it has to take only black and white. Mr. Miner, Director of Television for Columbia, presents the CBS side of the question, contending that the wait for color will be very short and well worth while. Mr. Miner writes-

Here are some facts:

The president of a large radio manufacturing company, on the day after he had seen one of Columbia's recent demonstrations of ultra-high frequency color television, publicly stated that the pictures were "just out of this world when compared with black-and-white." From now on, he said, his company would produce color receivers exclusively.

Some ninety television set owners, after having seen a CBS color broadcast, were given a check-list of twenty-two words to be applied either to color or black-andwhite television. The predominant reactions to each are seen in the following words: For color, "beautiful," "brilliant," "exciting," "magnificent," "easy to see." For black-and-white, "acceptable," "passable," "tame," "drab," "dull."

Later, another and somewhat larger group of non-set owners was asked, "What is the longest time you will wait for color after black-and-white sets are on the market?" The answers of seven out of ten ranged from "one year" to "indefinitely."

Since Columbia first began its daily demonstrations of ultra-high frequency color late last January, forty-three broadcasters have withdrawn their applications for licenses to operate black-and-white television stations in the lower frequencies. Many of these have definitely committed themselves to the development of ultra-high frequency color television.

The Federal Communications Commission—final arbiter in the matter of high vs. low-frequency television—stated as long ago as January, 1945, that it was "fully convinced" that better black-andwhite pictures as well as high-definition color pictures could be achieved in the ultra-high frequencies. Columbia fulfilled that prediction ten months later with experimental laboratory equipment, and even more convincingly last January with new equipment of commercial design and construction. sign and construction. The F.C.C. has also warned the industry that there is not enough room in the frequencies now alloted to television for "a truly nation-wide competitive television system." This means that, in order for people in all our cities to have an abundant choice of television entertainment—and in some cities, any choice at all—television must move into the higher frequencies where Columbia is now broadcasting its color pictures.

I have asked you to read these halfdozen scattered paragraphs because I believe they indicate fairly and clearly the direction in which television is moving. In four separate, (Continued on page 70)

Gramps, who has promised Linda and Tommy (played by Coletta McMahon and Richard Leone) to help put the new cannon together, keeps his word as Prudence (Florence Freeman) watches.

DAY

www.americanradiohistory.com

 \star

In 1866, A Woman Of America celebrated Independence Day. Now, in 1946, her great-granddaughter Prudence Barker learns a new lesson of hope and faith

T WAS still very early. The light from the bedroom windows was faintly pink with dawn; the moist, sweet air smelled of trees still wet with dew, of grass freshcut on the neighboring lawns. Prudence lay drowsing, thinking that this was for some reason a special day, unable to think why. At the moment she didn't care why; at the moment she didn't want to wake up. She had been dreaming, and the dream had been beautiful. In it there were no complications, no painful reality-just Walter Carlin and Prudence, walking hand in hand through some lovely field, talking. She couldn't remember their words, or what they had talked about, but it had been about happy things; they had been happy. The sound of their voices had run like background music through the dream.

A door banged down the street; there was a scraping sound on the sidewalk, a boy's laugh, a sharp, protracted sputtering. Prudence raised herself on her elbow, blinking. She remembered now what was special about the day. It was the Fourth of July.

The sound came again—the scrape, the sput-sput. "Son-of-a-guns," she thought. She remembered them from her own childhood-the little flat discs, wrapped in red tissue, that were set off when you ground them under your heel. She fell back on the pillow, thinking sleepily, "Goodness, I hope he hasn't torpedoes or anything really loud—not this early." And she closed her eyes, trying to recapture her dream and all its sweetness. Walter had been saying-she could hear his voice, the deep warm tones of it, as clearly as if he were in the room . . . he had been saying. . . It was no use. Another door slammed down the street;

there was a loud report---a firecracker this time. Prudence sat up, the dream gone for good. There would be little rest this morning for those who slept lightly.

Her own household was quiet. Gramps Barker, her father-in-law, and Sylvia, her daughter-in-law, and the children, Tommy and Linda, were still sleeping, but the stillness had a more profound quality than that of slumber. It was the stillness that had settled in the house when John and Val had enlisted, had deepened with Ginger's marriage. Three children gone out of a household of five--it made a difference; you noticed it especially in the quiet moments, early in the morning, late at night; you didn't quite get used to it after months, after years.

She drew on a dressing gown that matched the deep pansy-blue of her eyes, sat down before the mirror to brush her heavy dark hair. The face that looked back at her was fresh and lovely, her figure as slender as a girl's. Strange, thought Prudence, how little your appearance changed, for all the changes that came to you. So little was revealed of your inner life: your longing to see your sons again, the constant pressure of the necessity of earning a living for yourself and your children, and now this new and wonderful second love as intense, as bitter-sweet, as all-consuming as first love. Walter

Her brush moved briskly. It was no good thinking of Walter. Dreaming about him was different; in dreams there was no Madeleine, nothing to stand between them. It was better to think of practical things, such as using these extra morning hours to make one of the upsidedown coffee cakes the family so loved for breakfast.

There were footsteps in the hall, the sound of a door closing, a soft, stifled moan. Prudence put down her brush and rose. Sylvia was up, and Sylvia must be ill-

She went noiselessly down the hall, knocked lightly at Sylvia's door. "Come in," called a pinched voice. Sylvia was huddled under layers of blankets; her face was white and drawn, her eyes enormous. Prudence knew a prick of fear at the sight of her. Swollen and misshapen as her body was, Sylvia still looked too slight, too frail to be carrying twins. Prudence sat down beside her, placed her palm against the cold, damp forehead. "Can't I get you something?" she asked. "Some hot broth-

Sylvia's head moved in negation. "Nothing, thank you. I felt dreadful for a bit, but I'm better now.'

Prudence rubbed the slim hands, felt rewarded when color began to show in Sylvia's face. But she could not drive the shadow from Sylvia's eyes. "I'm all right," Sylvia insisted. "The firecrackers woke me, and then I got to thinking, and it's just—oh, that everything seems so hopeless sometimes. Here it is July—nearly a year since the war ended, and it's still going on for people like me. It won't be over for me until John comes home. If he ever does come home," she added bitterly. "Of course he's coming home, soon. He said himself in his last letter---"

"Oh, yes—" She moved restlessly. "But what does he What does anyone know about what's know about it? going to happen? No one feels that there's any real peace or any security-and after all the terrible fighting! What was the war for, anyway, if it wasn't to give us peace and security and a better future? I can't help feeling sometimes that Johnny will never see his babies-

Prudence's heart ached for her. It wasn't easy to be young these days. It wasn't easy to be facing your first childbirth, with your husband several thousand miles away, with no one to whom you could confide all the precious hopes and wonderings and fears. Oh, Sylvia had Prudence and Gramps and the rest of the family, but it wasn't like having John. It wasn't anything like having John with her. "You're tired," said Prudence gently.

"You awoke too early. Everything always looks bad when your vitality is low. I'll go out and tell the children to play farther down the street so that you can sleep--'

"Don't, please. They don't really bother me. It was just that I got to thinking in circles, and I got so depressed

A WOMAN OF AMERICA

A Woman Of America is Prudence Dane Barker's story, and the story of every woman who has learned to use, as a guide to happiness, her own bravery and intelligence, refreshed by the heritage of the past. Listen to it each Mon-ou shouldn't." Prudence ed over and kissed her ckly on the forehead. "Rember, John is happy, and s you and the babies who re making him happy. You have so much to be glad about— Now, lift up a little—" She was working as she talked, plumping the pillow behind Sylvia, smoothing the bedcovers. When she had finished, Sylvia stretched out with a tired sigh. "Thank you, Moms; that feels so much bet-You're wonderful; you ter. never let down the way I do; you never lose courage." And then, while her lips curved in a little smile, a tender, proud little smile— "You're right about John, too. He is happy, and I'm a dodo to fuss. . .

The words followed Pru-dence back to her own room like so many mocking little street urchins: You never let down; you never lose courage.... She felt let down now, lost suddenly, almost panicky. And it was the girl's smile that had done it, because John, who was on the other side of the world, was actually much closer to Sylvia than Walter Carlin was to Prudenceand Walter was right here in Danesville.

Sylvia who feels "the bitter because war is still going on. (Frances Carlon)

SYLVIA and John belonged to each other, for all the world to know; no matter how far apart they were, no matter how long they were separated, they belonged. But Walter and Prudence-they could work together, see each other every day, be as close as was possible for two people who did not share the same house, and yet they must remain individual, separate. They could plan no common future.

She put her palms to her eyes, wishing for the relief of tears, knowing that she couldn't cry. What good was love if you could be happy in it only when you refused to think, refused to face reality, when you dreamed as children dream of a wondrous, impossible Someday when everything would magically come right and be exactly as you wanted it to be? What good was loving if it did not bring happiness to the one you loved? Walter must have moments like this, when the unsatisfied longings seemed too great to be borne, when love was more a burden than the joyous thing it was meant to be.

She moved to the window, stared unseeingly down at the street. I should have stopped it, she thought—and then she wondered ruefully how, and when. Perhaps when he had first come to Danesville, to take over the mortgaged Courier, the newspaper that had been founded by Prudence's great-grandmother, the first Prudence Dane. Perhaps she shouldn't have agreed to go on working for him as editor of the paper; perhaps she should have let him tell her about Madeleine, his wife, when he had first wanted to tell her. But she knew in her heart that none of it would have made any difference.

They had known from the very beginning, both of them, and Madeleine-knowing about Madeleine only made Prudence ache to make up to Walter for all he had missed. Madeleine had never been a real wife to him; he had never known the happiness Prudence had had in her own marriage.

BUT I can't do anything for him the way things are, she thought. We'll only make each other miserable. I ought to go away—and then she smiled at the very extravagance of the thought. She could no more leave Danesville than she could stop loving Walter. Danesville was more than a place to live, more than home; it was an extension of her own house; its people were a second family to her. Generations of Danes had helped to build the town, had put their lives and their ideals and their labor into it; her sons had taken something of it with them when they'd gone off to war; they wanted now only to return to live in the town and for the town as their ancestors had. It was their own particular corner of America; it was still home to young Ginger, after months of following her new husband through the northern wilderness. As for Prudence herself-the town had never been so dear as in the past war-racked years; it was unthink-able that she should leave it, leave the Courier, now in these days of uneasy peace.

OHNNY who desperately wants to arrive before his babies. (Ogden Miles)

She looked down at the street, fresh-washed in morning sunshine, at the gracious, spreading trees, the comfortable houses. Except for the knot of small boys gathered on the walk a few doors down, the neighborhood was quiet, holiday-neat. There were no lawn-mowers out this morning, no coasterwagons and bicycles and toys left over from yesterday's play. Oh, yes, Prudence thought, John and Val and Ginger would be thinking about home today; they would be remembering other Fourths-

"Moms."

She turned. Tommy stood in the doorway, bare-footed, pyjama-clad. Behind him was Linda. Linda was upright, but hardly awake. Her face, still babyishly round, was puckered with sleep; she was blinking hard in an effort to open her eyes. Tommy's eyes were wide with distress; if he hadn't been a boy, and all of eight years old, he would have been in tears. "Moms," he said, "Gramps won't get out of bed. I tried and tried to wake him, and all he does is turn over and say he's sleepy-"

"But Tommy, darling, it's so early-"

"But he promised!" Tommy protested. "He said he'd help put my cannon together—'first thing in the morning' he said. And all the other kids are out with their firecrackers and stuff-"

Prudence flinched as a burst of artillery from the street testified to the truth of this statement. She wanted to hug Tommy, but she knew that it wouldn't do. He had come for assistance, not babying and sympathy. Instead, she scooped Linda into her arms. "I don't think he meant to get up at the crack of dawn," she observed. "Gramps will be up in a little while to help you. And, Tom, you shouldn't have wakened Linda. She's still asleep-

"She wanted to go along—" Linda sighed drowsily. "I wanted to," she agreed plaintively, "but it isn't morning yet."

"I think Gramps is sick," Tommy announced. "He looks funny, and he won't get up. He must be sick."

Gramps sick-Prudence's heart buckled at the thought. "I'll go see him," she promised. "You can get dressed, Tom, and I'll help you with your cannon if Gramps can't.

Working together is hard for Prudence and Walter Carlin, for it emphasizes the unhappiness of the time they must spend apart. (Walter played by Bartlett Robinson).

And Linda, baby, you go back to bed-"

Tommy paused in the doorway, looked back at her critically. "You look funny, too, Moms. What's the matter with you?" "Eight," thought Prudence, "and I can't hide anything "Eight," thought Prudence, "and I can't hide anything from him. What will it be like when he's older?" Aloud she said, "I've got the vapors."

"What's vapors?"

"Just what it sounds like. A kind of misty, blurred feeling, except that it's all in your mind."

"Oh." He looked uncertain for a moment; then he grinned at her. "I guess it doesn't hurt very much, or you wouldn't be smiling."

Prudence tapped on Gramps' door, and, when there was no answer, she turned the knob softly and looked inside. Gramps raised his head irritably. "What the—Oh, it's you, Prue. Is anything the matter?"

"That's what I came to ask you. Tommy said you weren't feeling well." As she looked at him, she was almost sure that Tommy was right. She was used to seeing him spruce and clean-shaven; in the morning light, his face looked furrowed and shrunken. He snorted. "Nothing wrong with me that an hour of shut-eye won't cure. You're the one who looks peaked, Prudence Dane Barker. What's bothering you? You look as if everything's getting on top of you."

"Nothing, Father Barker." She didn't want to discuss Walter with him, not now. But the old man's eyes were bright upon her, shrewd, waiting. He was awake now, wanting to talk, she realized. She hedged truthfully, "I was thinking of the children. Ginger—I did so much want to see her settled, and when one stops to think of it, one could hardly say that she's very much settled, off in Alaska on the trail of a gold mine with Wade. She's so young to have to adjust not only to marriage, but to an entirely new kind of life—"

Gramps looked skeptical. "Her letters sound happy, don't they? You don't have to worry about Ginger, Prue. She's got spunk—your kind of spunk. Whatever happens, she'll come out on top, someway.".

"And the boys," Prudence went on. "Not just John and Val, but all the boys who have been away for so long. You should see some of the letters that come to the Courier from people asking when the (Continued on page 54)

Sally. Their happiness was in their own hands-hands made unsteady by youth and priv ITTLETON'S young folks have a way of dropping in on their Aunt Jenny fairly often, so I wasn't surprised, just before Christmas, when Phil Ruskin, who was just out of the Army, began coming over fairly frequently in the evenings. But it wasn't long before I realized that he always seemed to pick those nights when Sally Burnett was there, too. And, having seen that far, it wasn't hard to see beyond, too-to realize that those two youngsters were in love.

I guess practically anyone would have said they were worlds apart, those two. Phil was Berg and Helen Ruskin's son: Berg owns the Littleton Bank, and Helen is very much a leader in town Sally, on social life. the other hand, was from what might be called "the other side of the tracks." I don't suppose her Dad had ever earned more than fifteen dollars the best week of his life, and her mother was one of those easy-going housekeepers. It was easy for Littleton folks to sniff at the whole Burnett family.

Maybe it wouldn't have been so bad, if Phil hadn't been quite so much under his parents' thumb. But he was, and that was that. Helen still considered him her baby boy, and Berg had his whole life mapped out, down to the last detail. So you can understand how impossible it seemed to Phil to tell his mother and father that he wanted to marry Sally Burnett—one of those Burnetts!

But at last, with much persuasion, he made up his mind to do just that.

You see, Sally-and she was wiser than her years, that girl-absolutely refused to elope with him. She said that if they couldn't be married in church, right in front of everyone in Littleton, then their marriage didn't have a chance. Phil had to tell his parents-and he finally agreed that she was right.

He would have told them, too-but the night before he planned to break the news, Oliver, Sally's twin brother, was arrested! He'd driven a car used by two fellows who held up a diner in Littleton. Oliver said he was innocent -and Sally and I, at least, believed him. He simply didn't know why those men were going into that diner. But be that as it may, Phil, when he came to my house that next night to meet Sally, flatly refused to tell his parents about wanting to marry Sally. It was bad timing, he said. It would have been hard enough at any time, but now, with Oliver in jail-well, it was simply impossible! And then there was the inevitable quarrel. Sally asked Phil to prove that he wasn't ashamed of her by taking her to see his

And Phil refused. And Sally simply walked out. Phil looked down blankly at the dish he had been wiping when Sally entered, and which he still held in his hands. Very carefully, he laid it and the towel on the table, and then he stood there, his head bowed, his fingers nervously tapping the oilcloth. "I'm sorry you had to hear all this, Aunt Jenny," he said in a faraway voice. "I'm sorry anyone had to hear it . . . Because Sally's right. I'm a coward, where my family's concerned." "Maybe," I said. "But I don't know, Phil. Sally's never had to argue with her dad and mom. They've always treated her like one of themselves--they love her, but they let her go her own way. She can't understand how it's been with you, all your life. It's hard to go against your own flesh and blood. Sometimes, though," I added,

"it has to be done." "Yes," he said softly. "Sometimes it does. I've known that all along. I knew it when I first realized I was falling in love with Sally." He picked up the dish and put it away. "Do you mind if I run along now, Aunt Jenny?"

"Of course not, Phil." I didn't ask him where he was going or what he was going to do. I hoped I knew.

He went out, and walked slowly down the street, then turned to the right at the intersection. He could see his own home, his family's house, from here. Naturally, it was the biggest house in town-square, tall, covered with jig-saw gingerbread but still managing to look gaunt and bare. Lights shone in the livingroom windows. Still not hurrying, Phil went as far as the wide front porch. There he stopped and squared his shoulders before he opened the front door.

His father and mother were in the livingroom-his father beside the radio, the newspaper he had been reading dropped to his knees while he chuckled at a comedy program, his mother's knitting needles catching the light in turn as they shuttled in and out of the sweater she was making. A sweater for him, of course, he thought. His mother would do anything for him, give him anything she possessed except the one thing he wanted. "Hello," he said. "Dad, could you turn the radio off?

There's something I want to tell you." It would have been better to wait until the program was over, but he had to get it done now-right away.

His mother dropped her knitting into her lap, and his father stared at him before he reached over and clicked the radio into silence. He felt apprehension spring up in

AKKI

AN

ද්ද

AUNT JENNY

REAL LIFE STORY

so very much to them, there was nothing he did or thought or planned that wasn't of more importance to them than their own actions, thoughts, plans. It had been that way, all his life. He could see the change in them that had come about while he was away in the Army. It had been only two years, but they had each aged at least ten—because they had been afraid every minute of the time. And now he was back, safe, but changed as much as they were, resenting their well-meant kindness, oppressed by their love.

"All right, son," his father said. "What is it?"

"I'm in love," he told them. "I want to get married."

They took it in ways that were natural to them. His father sat still, waiting for him to go on. His mother put her hands on the arms of her chair, leaning forward, saying in a shaky voice, "Married? Phil, who . . .?"

"Sally Burnett," he said.

Berg Ruskin frowned, his heavy brows coming down over his eyes. "Sally Burnett?" he said sharply. "Are you crazy?"

"No sir." Phil was watching his mother. She had gone quite white, and she was staring at him in horror.

"Jim Burnett's daughter—Oliver's sister?"

"Yes sir. Though I don't see what difference that makes."

"I'll ask you to be civil to me, Philip!" Berg Ruskin's implacable temper was beginning to show itself now. His eyes narrowed, and he drew himself upright in his chair. But to his own amazement, Phil was not impressed. He felt a surge of relief. Sally had told him that he could stand up to his parents if he would only try; he hadn't believed her, but it was true. "Sorry. I don't mean to be rude. I really don't see what difference it makes."

"Phil—you're joking." His mother tried to smile, to smooth things out between her two men. "You—you are joking, aren't you?"

"No, Mother, I'm not."

"But—Sally Burnett!" she burst out. "I didn't think you even knew her! How could this have happened—where have you been seeing her? I simply," she said pitifully, "don't understand!"

"I met her at Aunt Jenny Wheeler's house, about a week after my discharge. I've been seeing her there ever since." "Aunt Jenny! And she permitted it!" "There was nothing she could do about it, Mother. It just—it just happened."

"Just happened!" his father said scornfully. "I can see what happened, plain enough. A young fellow just out of the Army—hasn't seen a girl for months—falls for the first pretty face he comes across!"

"It wasn't that. I've seen other girls since I've been back."

"I'll tell you the truth about her and her family, if you aren't smart enough to see it for yourself!"

"Phil—Berg!" Helen pressed the palms of her hands against her face, against cheeks that were wet with tears. "Wait—don't quarrel, please! Phil, don't you see—we only want you to be happy, we want you to marry a girl you can be proud of. You're so young, and you're at loose ends since you got out of the Army—how can you tell, how can you be so sure? If you'd only wait—go back to college, or to the university if you'd rather—and in two or three years, if you feel as you do now—"

"No," he said. "I want to marry Sally now-right away."

For an hour, that was his answer to Helen's tears and to Berg's outraged anger. It was still his answer when, at the end, Berg stood up, saying, "All right. I've done my best. If you won't listen to reason, I can't stop you. You can break your mother's heart and ruin your own life—but you'll do it by yourself! Not one cent of help will you get out of me. Make your choice."

Phil went upstairs to his own roomknowing that he had won, but feeling defeated. He had been afraid of his parents, afraid of their love and their disappointment, and he'd conquered his fear, but in its place was a depression so terrible that he threw himself down on his bed without turning on the light and lay there with his eyes open in the darkness. The prospect of having to make his own way in the world didn't bother him particularly; he and Sally could move to Metropole, and he could get some sort of a job. They'd get along. But there was a regret in his heart he hadn't (Continued on page 71)

Littleton is a very small town; Phil couldn't help knowing when Sally began to have so many dates. A page of pleasant discoveries and happy memories t

BETWEEN the Radio Mirror will pay, each month, fifty dollars for the poem selected by Ted Malone as the best of those submitted. This month's choice is "Wild Strawberries" by Eunice Mildred LonCoske.

WILD STRAWBERRIES

Today I sit and watch two youthful lovers Run through the cloud of daisies in a field. The laughter-bells ring out as she discovers Where the wild strawberries are concealed. The scarlet juice has stained her fingertips; And when he runs to kiss her and to take A berry like her own red laughing lips, I turn away. My stoic calm may break. We live again in their glad flesh, as yet Untouched by anything but love and mirth.

In their frail happiness I can forget That Junes have turned your merry mouth to earth.

The quails are singing to them, sweet and clear,

As once they sang to us . . . my dear . . . my dear!

-Eunice Mildred LonCoske

Here is a handful of poems Ted Malone has chosen, old ones that are favorites—new ones that will be favorites.

1 LOVE TO THINK OF DEAR OLD LADIES

I love to think of dear old ladies, When every chick and child has flown, Puttering 'round in plant-filled windows, Hugging the privilege of living alone.

l love to think of string-saving ladies, With lots of room for their souvenirs, Drinking fat cups of strong black coffee, Pouring weird tales into other old ears.

l love to think of spry old ladies. Free as the wind to come and go. Speaking their minds with wild abandon, To those they do and do not know, l love to think of happy old ladies, Doing nothing they ever are told, Going about in layers of clothing, As 1 will do when 1 am old.

Halen

Dahle

SONG FROM "PIPPA PASSES"

The year's at the spring And the day's at the morn; Morning's at seven; The hillside's dew-pearled; The lark's on the wing; The snail's on the thorn: God's in his heaven-All's right with the world! -Robert Browning

IT WAS ENOUGH

it was enough that I should think of you, And, thinking, hear old voices in my heart; And thot o tender tune our gladness knew Should from its long oblivion stir and start. These were enough to woke forgotten tears. Why did there also come, like drifting musk, A finoi mogic to restore lost yeors-The scent of ripening oppies through the dusk? -Silence Buck Bellows

NOCTURNE

Moonlight is the touchstone Thot brings you bock to me. i remember moonlight Through a lone and leofless tree. You were there beside me in the silence that was sound, And the snow wos sequined veivet On the winter-sieeping ground. i remember moonlight In the perfumed month of June When the summer wind on water Ployed o liquid crystol tune. Giadiy i forgot you, Readily and soon, But often i see moonlight When the sun teils me it's noon. -John D. McKee

ON HIS SEVENTY-FIFTH BIRTHDAY

- I strove with none, for none was worth my strife.
- Nature I loved and, next to Nature, Art; I warmed both hands before the fire of life; It sinks, and I am ready to depart. Walter ut you into a pleasantly reflective warm-weather mood

Savage

BOOKENDS BY TED MALONE

CONQUEST

- Wolking through a jungle lush ond green, quite
- I looked before me ond I saw a—tiger standing there.
- The monstrous head, the heated breath, the large ond amber eyes
- Poked from the leafy curtain; and I stood there in surprise.
- It wasn't that I know no fear—I simply couldn't speak,
- For I had looked for tigers every morning of the week;
- But you'll find there is a difference (and I know it to be true)
- Between when you look for tigers and when tigers
- So I stood there, freezing slowly and considering with dread
- The simply awful deeds performed by cots of which t'd read.
- While those dreadful eyes blazed ot me like two yellow plates of glass,
- I could see myself reclining very dead upon the grass.
- The tiger stood and I stood, too; and it was rather
- To chonge my mind, so calmly I resigned myself to Fote,
- For I said, "From such o'erwhelming things one surely can't get far,
- And—who knows? He moy be different from whot other tigers ore!" —Morgaret McAndrew

SUCH STUFF AS DREAMS ARE MADE ON

Leave not a rack behind. We are such stuff As dreams are made on, and our little life Is rounded with a sleep.

-William Shakespeare: The Tempest

AMERICA THE BEAUTIFUL

O beoutiful for spocious skies, For omber woves of grain, for purple mountoin mojestles Above the fruited plain! America! America!

God shed His groce on thee And crown thy good with brotherhood From sea to shining seo! — Kathorine Lee Botes

Be sure to listen to Ted Malone's morning program, Monday through Friday, 11:45 A.M., EDT, on ABC.

FOR, LO, THE WINTER IS PAST

My beloved spake, and said unto me, "Rise up, my love, my fair one, and come away. For, lo, the winter is past, The rain is over and gone; The flowers appear on the earth; The time of the singing of birds is come, And the voice of the turtle is heard in our land; The fig tree putteth forth her green figs, And the vines with the tender grape give a good smell. Arise, my love, my fair one, and come away." Holy Bible, Song of Solomon 2:10-13

I HEAR AMERICA SINGING

- I hear America singing, the varied carols I hear,
- Those of mechanics, each one singing his as it should be blithe and strong,
- The carpenter singing his as he measures his plank or beam,
- The mason singing his as he makes ready for work, or leaves off work,
- The boatman singing what belongs to him in his boat, the deckhand singing on the steamboat deck,
- The shoemaker singing as he sits on his bench, the hatter singing as he stands,
- The wood-cutter's song, the ploughboy's on his way in the morning, or at noon intermission or at sundown,
- The delicious singing of the mother, or of the young wife at work, or of the girl, sewing or washing,
- Each singing what belongs to him or her and to none else,
- The day what belongs to the day—at night the party of young fellows, robust, friendly,

Singing with open mouths their strong melodious songs.

-Walt Whitman

Have you written a poem, long or short, sad or gay? Would you like to read it in print? Turn the page, then, and find out how Ted Malone makes his selections each month. A page of pleasant discoveries and happy memories that you into a pleasantly reflective warm-weather mood

Rudio Mirror will puy, each month, fifty dollars for the parm selected by Ted Moione as the best of those submitted. This munth's choice is "Wild Strawherries" by Eunico Mildred LonCoske.

WILD STRAWBERRIES

Today I sit and watch two youthful lovers Run through the cloud of deisies in e field. The laughter-balls ring out as she discovers Where the wild strawberries are concealed. The scarlet julce has stained her fingertips; And when he runs to kiss her and to take A berry like hor own red laughing lips, I turn nway. My stoic calm may breek. We live numb in their glod flosh, as yet Untouched hy anything but fove and mirth, In their frail happiness I can forcet That lunes have turned your merry mouth to ourth.

The quails are singing to them, sweet end clear.

As muco they sung to us . . . my deer . . . my deart

-Emica Mildted LonCaske

Here is a handful of poens Ted Maloue has chosen. old ones that are favorites-uew ones that will be favorites.

I LOVE TO THINK OF DEAR OLD LADIES.

I love to think of deer old lodies. When overy chick and child hos flown, Puttoring 'round in plont tilled windows, Hugging the privilege of living olone.

I love to think of string-soving lodies, With lots of room for their souveairs. Drinking int cups of strong block coffee, Peuring woird toles into other old cors.

I love to think of spry old ladies, Free os the wind to come and go, Speaking their minds with wild obondon, To those they do oed do not know.

I love to think of hoppy old lodies. Doing nothing they ever ore told, Going about in layers of clothing. As I will do when I om eld, -Holon Dahle

SONG FROM "PIPPA PASSES"

The year's at the spring And the day's at the morn; Morning's or seven; The hillside's dew-pearled; The lark's on the wing: The snail's on the thorn: God's in his heaven-All's right with the world! -Robert Browning

IT WAS ENOUGH

If was enough that I should think of you, And, thinking, hear aid vaices in my heart; And that a tender tune our glodness knew Should from its long obilvion stir and start. These were enough to wake largotten tears. Why did there also come, like drifting musk, A fine) maple to restore last years-The scent of ripening apples through the dusk? —Silence Buck Bellows

NOCTURNE

Moonlight is the touchstone That brings you back to ma. I remember moonlight Through a lone and leafless tree. You were there beside me In the slience that was sound, And the snow was sequined valves On the winter-sleeping ground. I remember moonlight in the perfumed month of June When the summer wind an water Played a liquid crystol tune. Gladly I forgot you, Readily and soon, But aften I see mogniight When the sun tolls me it's noon--John D. McKee

ON HIS SEVENTY-FIFTH BIRTHDAY

I strove with none, for none wes worth my strife.

Noture I loved end, next to Nature, Art; I wermed both hends before the fire of life; It sinks, end I em ready to depart.

-Walter Savery Vender Canradiohistory.com

BETWEEN the DOKENDS BY TED MALONE

CONOLISET

Wolking through a jungle jush and green, quite Unowerd

I looked before me and I sow a-tiger standing thars

The monstrous head, the heated breath, the large and amber eves surprise.

It wasn't that I know no fear-1 simply couldn't

For I had looked for tigers every morning of the week:

But you'll find there is a difference (and I know it to be true)

Belween when you look for figers and when tigers

So I stood there, freezing slowly and considering which I'd read.

yellow plotes of gloss,

OFFICE

lote

For I sold, "From such o'erwheiming things one surely con'l get far,

And-who knows? He may be different from what other tigers ore?" -Margoret McAndrew

SUCH STUFF AS DREAMS ARE MADE ON

Leave not a rack hebind. We are such stuff As dreams are made on, and our little life Is rounded with a sleep, -William Shakespeare: The Tempest

AMERICA THE BEAUTIFUL

O beautiful for specious skies, For omber waves al grain, For purple mountain malesties Above the trutted plaini Americal Americal Gad shed His groce on thee And crown thy good with brotherhood From sea to shining seal -Katharine Lee Bates

Poked from the leafy curtain; and I stood there in speak,

look for you.

with dread

The simply awful deeds performed by cots of

While those dreadful eyes blazed at me like two

I could see myself rectining very dead upon the

The tiger stead and I stead, tao; and it was rather

To change my mind, so colmly I resigned myself to Fate,

1 HEAR AMERICA SINGING

I hear America singing, the varied caroly I bear.

Those of mechanics, each one singing his as it should be blithe and strong,

The carpenter singing his as he measures his plack or beam.

The mason singing his as he makes ready for work, or leaves off work.

The beatman singing what helongs to him in his boat, the deckhand singing on the steamboat deck.

The shoemaker singing as he sils on his bench, the hatter singing as he stands,

The wood-cutter's song, the ploughboy's on his way in the morning, or at noon intermission or at sundown.

The delicions singing of the mother, or of the young wife at work, or of the girl, sewing or washing.

Each singing what helongs to him or her and to none clas.

The day what belongs to the day-at night the party of young fellows, robust, friendly, Singing with open mouths their strong mefodious songs.

-Walt Whinnan

Have you written a poem, long or short, and or gay? Would you like to read It in print? Turn the page, then, and find out how Ted Malone makes his selections each month.

Be sure to listen to Ted Malane's marning program, Mandey through Friday, 11:45 A.M., EDT, on AllC.

FOR, LO, THE WINTER IS PAST

My beloved spake, and said unto me. "Rise up. my love, my foir one, and came oway, For, lo, the winter is post. The rain is ever and pane; The flowers opped a the earth; The time of the singing of birds is come, And the voice of the turtle is heard in our land; The fig tree putteth forth her green figs. And the vines with the tender grape give a good smell.

Arise, my love, my fair one, and came away." Holy Bible, Song of Salamon 2:10-13

BETWEEN the BOOKENDS

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF A HIGH SCHOOL JUNIOR

I saw the paper lying idly there, Open for all to see, not put away, And so I picked it up and read your life, The years so uneventful till today. Experiences of work and play and school, Mention of father, mother, younger sister And then within the closing paragraph You uttered this pronouncement, mister: "When I grow up I'll be a bachelor."

I smiled, although of course, it might come true;

And yet I think somewhere a schoolgirl writes

"Some day I'll marry" and she'll marry you! -Louise Darcy

LETTER TO ONE ESTRANGED

My Dear,

Estrangement cannot make us strangers; The fronds of memory unfold and thrive In spite of enmity and arid dangers-We two have stood beneath a rainbow's rafter And watched a bluebird write his signature,

And supped on lines of Keats and so hereafter

The bond we forged in beauty will endure. Irene Wilde

From DELIA

If this be love, to clothe me with dark thoughts, Haunting untrodden paths to wait apart; My pleasures horror, music tragic notes, Tears in mine eyes and sorrow at my heart. If this be love, to live a living death, Then do I love and draw this weary breath. -Samuel Daniel for the original poem, sent in by a reader, se-lected by Ted Malone as the best of that month's poems submitted by readers. Five dollars will be paid for each other poem so submitted, which is printed on the Between the Bookends page in Radio Mirror. Address your poetry to Ted Malone, Radio Mirror, 205 East 42nd Street, New York 17, N. Y. Poetry submitted should be limited to thirty lines. None will be returned. This is not a contest, but an offer to purchase poetry for Radio Mirror's Between the Bookends feature.

RADIO MIRROR will pay FIFTY DOLLARS each month

LISTEN TO TED MALONE, MONDAY THROUGH FRIDAY OVER ABC, AT 11:45 A.M., EDT.

FORGIVE ME, POETS ...

Forgive me, poets, for my breach of trust, My easy handling of the fluid ward.

- No verse of mine was from an inner "must--" l leave my written page unchanged, unblurred.
- I know the anger of a desperate heart, And passions, lewd and lovely, have been mine.
- But never can I tear the wards apart
- And march them, weaponed warriars, in a line.

And yet I write, because it gives me pleasure. Fargive my inch against yaur yardstick measure. -Dorothy Babcock

QUESTIONNAIRE

Do you ever wish on stars And loads of hay? Do you thrive on candy bars? Three times a day? Did you ever hunt and fish Long, long ago? Do you prefer a satin swish To calico? Are you fond of candlelight? Are you witty? Do you like a rainy night Am I pretty? Will your image always haunt me? By the by, Do you think you'll ever want me? Will you try?

-Emily Crandall

LARK'S WAY, WIND'S WAY

Take a hearth and a house and a quiet man, Darling, when you choose,

Not a slim man for laughter nor moons nor stars

Nor a quicksilver gown nor the dancing shoes.

For there's little to dance to when years come down.

And laughter is much, but there's much to be said

For the apron and bungalow kind of a life,

And sleeping at night in the same sweet bed.

And it is not very far to fall,

If you never climb with dreams at all.

Lark's way, wind's way, days hurry you on, Out of heart's reaching. Daughter, daughter, And the sound of wisdom no more to you Than the running and singing of water. -Bianca Bradbury

PRESENTING IN LIVING PORTRAITS

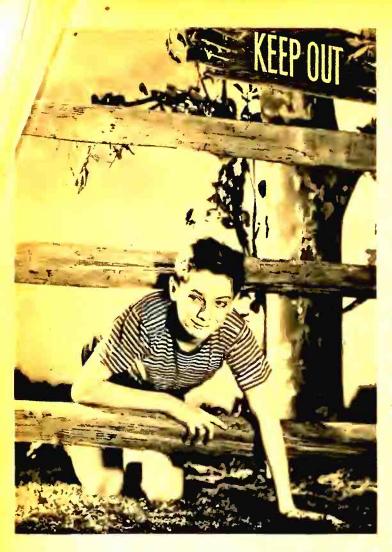

Just Plain Bill

-through whose barbershop pass the hopes, fears, the life of all of Hartville

Anna Kar

·Ю

www.americanradiohistory.com

WIKI is Bill's grandson, a lively youngster who has been brought up by Nancy and Kerry Donovan in the true American traditions of family life. Between Wiki and his grandfather there is an almost conspiratorial accord, and yet Bill's authority over the boy, whenever he feels any need to exercise it, is unquestioningly obeyed. (Played by Michael Artist)

KERRY DONOVAN, Nancy's husband, is a lawyer whose judgments are sound and logical. He and Bill like and respect one another, though they don't always agree. (Kerry is played by James Meighan) www.americanracionistory.com ELMER EEPS, owner of the general store across from Bill's barbershop, knows everyone in town. His store is an active clearing-house for all current gossip. On the second-hand bicycle which he bought recently to speed up his delivery system, Elmer has become the terror of Hartville's usually quiet traffic. (Played by Joe Latham)

NANCY, Bill's beloved daughter, has learned from her father many of the traits of character and facets of personality that have made him such a vital factor in Hartville life. Warmly generous, sympathetic, Nancy's eager interest in people sometimes carries her into real involvement in the lives of others, but her independent mind and ready sense of humor balance a tendency toward impulsiveness. As a mother, Nancy functions intelligently and affectionately, and her relationship with Kerry is rich and happy because there is always room for a vigorous, friendly exchange of opinion. (Nancy is played by Ruth Russell)

REBA BRITTON, feeling that her sister Katherine stole the man she loved, married John's brother, though she never gave up her dream of some day winning John's love for herself. When Katherine died, Reba attempted to set her plans into motion, but Bill' knows that Reba's desires are built on resentment and jealousy, and will not bring her a fraction of the happiness she might still have with her husband. (Played by Charlotte Lawrence)

JOHN BRITTON is a young writer whose wife, Katherine, died with tragic suddenness in Bill's barbershop. Griefstricken, friendless among strangers, John and his little girl have found more than mere temporary sympathy in Bill's quick assistance. With characteristic warmth and sanity, Bill and the Donovans are helping John to straighten out his affairs so that he can once again begin to find some happiness in his work. (Played by William Woodson)

www.americanradiohistorv.com

BILL DAVIDSON, the kindly harber of Hartville, holds to a philosophy of life that is as direct, as unfaltering, as allembracing as the Bible itself would counsel us all to strive for: no man shall call another man a stranger. With Bill this has been more than a creed to which he gives verbal allegiance. Every man—particularly every man with a problem—hecomes at once Bill's personal concern, to be helped, advised, sheltered with the same fervent sympathy with which he would turn to the problems of his own family: his daughter Nancy, her son Wiki, his son-in-law Kerry. Bill is never anything hut a simple, kindly man, but his gift for sympathy has given to his simplicity and patient wisdom the stature of true dignity. (Bill Davidson is played by Arthur Hughes) "JUST don't understand what we're doing here," Pamela North said plaintively to her husband Jerry. She waved vaguely at the smart foyer in which they stood. It went with a regally-appointed Park Avenue apartment house.

a New Adventure of Mr. and Mrs. North

URDER

"We're doing what everyone else in New York City is doing right now—hunting for an apartment," Jerry said patiently. He waved a classified advertisement in her face, clipped from the Herald-Tribune.

"But I'm still baffled," Pam persisted. "When there isn't a foot of space in the whole city for rent—what makes you think a fancy Park Avenue job is going begging? Particularly when it's been on public view for two whole days before the atomic Norths get there?"

But before Jerry could answer her, a big and beaming man had swung open the ornate grilled door. Bowing them in graciously but hurriedly, he burst into endless talk. "I'm Mr. Bower, the superintendent of the building. I presume you're anxious to see the advertised apartment? I'm anxious to show it to you! You'll love it! Step right this way to the elevator!"

Pam's mouth hung open in astonishment. "What year is this—1932?" she whispered to Jerry as they followed Mr. Bower into the highly polished elevator.

"—Three sun-flooded rooms, beautifully furnished down to the sheets, towels, ash-trays. . . ." Mr. Bower was saying enthusiastically.

"The catch? What's the catch?" Pam mumbled to Jerry.

"Shut up," he didn't mumble back.

"But he's stuffing it down our throats!" Pam muttered undaunted.

"Well, my throat's all set for the stuffing! It's mighty tasty!" Jerry said in amazed pleasure as they walked into the livingroom. It was indeed. Mr. Bower, almost fawning on them by this time, swept them hastily through the gracious, brocade-draped livingroom, the smart rose-colored bedroom, the sparkling kitchen and bathroom. His hasty tour brought the bemused Norths and himself back to a stop in front of the charming little bar in the livingroom. Jerry wandered behind it and said, "Scotch!" It was too much for Pam. But she thought she t was too much for rank. But she thought sh

Mr. and Mrs. North are heard each Wednesday night at 8:00 P.M., EDT, over The NBC Network. Pam is Alice Frost; Jerry is Joe Curtin.

www.americanradionistory.com

Things were bad, Pam and Jerry thought-they couldn't find an apartment.

Then they found one, and things

were even worse, because they had rented themselves a homicide case too!

saw the light, at last. She whirled on Mr. Bower. "Aha, my fine man," she said. "I have the answer to the puzzle-the rent. It must be Rockefeller-type. What is it?"

But again she was wrong. "Oh, that!" scoffed Mr. Bower. "Why-er-anything you care to offer." Then he added, "Within reason," but only as if it were a belated afterthought.

"Well," Pam said, thinking out loud, "in these times it must be stupendous. But before the war, probably $100 a month-"

Mr. Bower cut in rapidly. "Splendid! It's done! $100 a month—year's lease—sign here!" The blinking Norths saw a swirl of leases, Mr. Bower's fountain pen, and Mr. Bower's insistent, eager smile. They signed in a daze. Jerry was still signing his name to the first month's rental check when Mr. Bower whipped it from his hand. Rapidly he began backing to the door, waving the check cheerily. "Well, so long!" he roared genially. "Wait!" Pam shouted after him. "When do we move in?"

"You've moved in!" Mr. Bower shouted back. Then he did a strange thing. He gave a sudden hysterical yelp of laughter. Just as suddenly he sobered. "I beg your pardon, Mr. and Mrs. North," he said gently. The door closed on him.

Pam and Jerry stared at each other in the sudden quiet of their new home. Then Pam spoke. "The whole thing mystifies me. There just must be a reason for getting this glamorous apartment so easily in these times." She drifted aimlessly into the bedroom.

"Now, now!" Jerry said reassuringly. "Don't look a gift horse in the mouth-especially when it's an Arabian steed.'

They were interrupted by the sharp ringing of the doorbell. They moved practically in lock-step to open the door.

Outside in the hall stood a charming-looking older woman, whose white hair was in perfect contrast to her all-black clothes. She wore no hat, coat, or gloves. She came slowly into their livingroom, and her voice, when she spoke, was oddly sad.

"I'm Mrs. Stone, from the apartment right under you," she said. "Mr. Bower told me that he had finally rented this apartment, and I came right up to call.'

The Norths mumbled their names, gestured to-ward a chair. But like a deep and quiet brook—or Mr. Bower-she went on. (Continued on page 77)

JUS' don't understand what we're doing here," Painela North said plaintively to her husband Jerry. She waved vaguely at the smart foyer in which they stood. It went with a regally-appointed Park Avenue apartment house.

"We're doing what everyone else in New York City is doing right now-hunting for an apartment," Jerry said patiently. He waved a classified advertisement in her face, clipped from the Herald-Pribune.

"But I'm still balled," Pam persisted. "When there isn't a foot of space in the whole city for rent-what makes you think a fancy Park Avenue job is going begging? Particularly when it's been on public view for two whole days before the atomic Norths get there?"

But before Jerry could answer her, a big and beaming man had swung open the ornate grilled door. Bowing them in graciously but hurriedly, he burst into endless talk. "I'm Mr. Bower, the superintendent of the building. I presume you're anxious to see the advertised apartment? I'm anxious to show it to youl You'll love it! Step right this way to the whowntor!"

Pam's mouth hung open in astonishment. "What year is this-1932?" she whispered to Jerry as they followed Mr. Bower into the highly polished elevator. "-Three sun-flooded rooms, beautifully furnished down to the sheets, towels, ash-trays, . . ." Mr. Bower was saying enthusiastically.

"The catch? What's the catch?" Pam mumbled to Jerry.

"Shut up," he didn't mumble back.

"But he's stutting it down our throats!" Pam muttered undanuted.

"Well, my throat's all set for the stuffing! It's mighty tustyl" Jerry said in amazed pleasure as they walked into the livingroom. It was indeed. Mr Bower, almost fawning on them by this time, swept them hastily through the gracious, brocade-draped livingroom, the smart rose-colored bedroom, the sparkling kuchen and bathroom. His hasty tour brought the bemused Norths and himself back to a stop in front of the charming little bar in the livingroom. Jerry wandered behind it and said, "Scotch!" It was too much for Pam. But she thought she

Mr. and Mrs. North are heard each Wednesday night at 8:00 P.M., EDT, over The NBC Network, Pam is Alice Frost; Jerry is Joe Curtin,

the saw the reason for her fear-the shad-ow of man on the wall. And that's where the trouble begins in this liv, and Mrs. North slory written for Radio Mirror by Eleanor Harris.

thought-they couldn't find an apartment.

Then they found one, and things

were even worse, because they had rented

themselves a homicide case tool

saw the light, at last. She whirled on Mr. Bower. "Aha, my fine man," she said. "I have the answer to the puzzle-the rent. It must be Rockefellertype. What is it?"

But again she was wrong. "Oh, that!" scoffed Mr. Bower. "Why-er-anything you care to offer." Then he added. "Within reason," but only as if it were a belated afterthought.

"Well," Pam said, thinking out loud, "in these times it must be stupendous. But before the war, probably $100 a month---

Mr. Bower cut in rapidly. "Splendid! It's done! $100 a month-year's lease-sign here!" The blinking Norths saw a swirl of leases, Mr. Bower's fountain pen, and Mr. Bower's insistent, eager smile. They signed in a daze. Jerry was still signing his name to the first month's rental check when Mr. Bower whipped it from his hand, Rapidly he began backing to the door, waving the check cheerily. "Well, so long!" he roared genially.

"Wait!" Pam shouted after him. "When do we move in?"

"You've moved in!" Mr. Bower shouled back. Then he did a strange thing. He gave a sudden hysterical yclp of laughter. Just as suddenly he sobered. "I beg your pardon, Mr. and Mrs. North," he said gently. The door closed on him.

Pam and Jerry stared at each other in the sudden quiet of their new home, Then Pam spoke. "The whole thing mystifies me. There just must be a reason for getting this glamorous apartment so easily in these times." She drifted aimlessly into the bedroom

"Now, now!" Jerry said reassuringly. "Don't look a gift horse in the mouth-especially when it's an Arabian steed."

They were interrupted by the sharp ringing of the doorbell. They moved practically in lock-stcp to open the door.

Outside in the hall stood a charming-looking older woman, whose white hair was in perfect contrast to her all-black clothes. She wore no hat, coat, or gloves. She came slowly into their livingroom, and her voice, when she spoke, was oddly sail.

"I'm Mrs. Stone, from the apartment right under you," she said. "Mr. Bower told me that he had finally rented this apartment, and I came right up to call."

The Norths mumbled their names, gestured toward a chair. But like a deep and quiet brook-or Mr. Bower-she went on. (Continued on page 77)

By MARGARET WHITING

Engaged to Hollywood's William Eythe, Margaret, in New York, can only sing to him. And this she does, Tuesday nights at 8, on NBC. OF COURSE I've dreamed of romance—who hasn't? And I have included in those dreams, as any girl does, rosy pictures of "our" first meeting. The unknown man and I often met at dances or splashed into each other while we were swimming in my dreams.

But it didn't happen that way—does it ever? One fine Hollywood day I walked into a record shop on Vine Street. I have a big record collection and wanted to make some additions. I made an addition that day—but not to my record collection.

A very handsome young man was talking intently to the girl behind the counter. "Yes, I'm sure that's a good record too, but it's not what I came in for. The only thing I want today is that wonderful, marvelous recording of "My Ideal" with Margaret Whiting doing the vocals."

I was thrilled of course, but also a little embarrassed. My impulse was to turn around and leave the record shop. But my plans didn't have a chance to jell. The salesgirl sang out, "Why, that's Miss Whiting right now."

The tall young man with the wonderful smile and wavy dark hair turned around swiftly. Looking straight at me he said to the salesgirl, "Now that is strange. I've wanted to meet Margaret Whiting for a long time."

I suppose the girl record-seller did perform a formal introduction but I can't remember it distinctly. I was in such a daze because I knew that Bill Eythe was IT. I hadn't met him at a dance as I had dreamed, but here he was. We chatted for a while in the record shop and then I asked Bill to come out to my house. I promised to play him some more of my records. And the romance was on. It hadn't happened quite the way I had daydreamed it but it had happened.

Temporarily there's a bit of sadness in the romance. My voice, which brought us together, is at present keeping us apart. I have three East Coast commitments—the Frolics broadcast on Tuesdays, the transcribed Barry Wood show and the CBS Celebrity Club Saturdays. And Bill's career is thriving on the West Coast. You will all remember him as the thrilling lead in "The House on 92nd Street". He was such a success in that picture that his career in the movies is now assured. He has just finished "Centennial Summer" and will start soon on "Methinks the Lady".

r away

But I am sure that the little god who arranged our meeting in the record shop will create a set of fortuitous circumstances that will permit our marriage fairly soon—and a long happy life together.

I wish my father could have lived to see Bill. He really brought us together, you know. I'll tell you about that in a little while. Dad would adore Bill as much as I do. My father was Richard Whiting. You will remember him as the composer of "Louise", "Sleepy Time Gal", "One Hour With You", "Ain't We Got Fun", "Crazy Over Horses", "Japanese Sandman", "Till We Meet Again" and many other wonderful songs. He also wrote "My Ideal" which was my first recording, and the song that brought Bill and me together.

Mother is a non-professional but her sister Margaret Young, who lives with her now, was a sort of Sophie Tucker back in the days of the first World War —and a big seller on records. The other member of the family is a younger sister who is riding fast towards fame and an Oscar. Her name is Barbara but she will always be known as Fuffy —her big part in "Junior Miss".

Of course Dad, who made his living "in the business", didn't want either one of us involved in it. But you can't wish away anything like my sister's obvious acting talent.

And it was impossible for me to stay away from singing. As a matter of fact Dad and Eleanor (that's what There's three thousand miles between Margaret and Bill, right now. But the way Margaret sings love songs, all those miles just disappear I call my mother) started the whole thing. When I could barely talk they used to play records for me and watch my reactions. Even then I knew pitch and could sing out the names of different notes.

It was Johnny. Mercer who egged me on. He and Dad had been writing songs together and Johnny encouraged me to sing them. Finally he suggested me as the singer on a radio musical show —Our Half-Hour. It was a sustaining program on the coast and for two years I got my radio experience the hard way and the right way.

Then I got an agent—and the agent got busy. He played some of my records for possible sponsors and bingo! I got three top spots. I sang on the Hit Parade, the Jack Carson show and the Frank Sinatra show.

Along about this time Johnny Mercer signed me for Capitol Records. For luck—and for deeply sentimental reasons—I decided that I would sing one of my father's songs for my first recording job. That song was "My Ideal".

ing job. That song was "My Ideal". And "My Ideal" is the song that paved the way to our engagement— Bill's and mine. As 'I said before, it was Dad who brought us together. It's a funny thing—we were together for two whole years. We dated steadily all that time and in November 1945 we became engaged. Since then we have been consistently three thousand miles apart—through no wish or design on our parts.

Once in February Bill got as far as Chicago. He was doing a benefit and the troupe had every expectation of getting to New York or fairly close to it. But Bill was definite about it. He was coming to New York even if he could only see me for an hour or so. In Chicago the tragedy happened. Bill got a phone call from the studio to fly back to the coast for re-takes. Now our current hope is a picture that will take me back to him. Johnny Desmond, one of my co-workers on the Frolics show, is about to sign for a picture with Warner Brothers and that means the whole group may go along. Johnny says I nag him about it to the point of desperation. Of course I do —if he takes the show to the coast then Bill and I can be together.

Even though we aren't together right now—and how we agonize over it!—our private double talk goes on via letters and telegrams. To Bill I am Thrush. To me he is Hambone. I'm crazy about him because I never know what he's going to do next.

Like the time at a dance when Bill said suddenly, "Let's go find a roller coaster." We did. Our friends say we act like ten-year-olds at an amusement park. Fortunately Bill is the only one who doesn't worry when I stand up like a mad (Continued on page 66)

It was Scotty who realized what had really happened to Tex. He is quiet, Scotty is, but awfully wise. He understood right away that Tex was badly confused about what he wanted, as many soldiers are when they first get home. Tex did want to play a guitar and sing, but not in the way he thought he did.

The National Barn Dance means an evening

U

WISE philosopher said one time that a man always is looking for a woman to boast to and a woman always is looking for a shoulder to put her head on. I think that's trueespecially the part about the man's wanting to seem important to the woman he loves. When a man is proud of himself, he looks into a woman's eyes and uses them for tiny mirrors to reflect his courage, and talent, and power. And when he is ashamed-when he feels defeated and small and unsure of himself-he cannot look at the woman he admires for fear that he will see his defeat written in her eyes.

I know that, because that's what happened to Tex and me. He was miserable, and in his defeat he turned away from me and left me confused and frightened. It was then that Lulu Belle and Scotty stepped in to tell me what was happening to us. But I'm getting ahead of my story---my strange story that began one Saturday night at the WLS National Barn Dance at the Eighth Street Theater in Chicago.

Take

I don't believe in love at first sight —not real love, anyway. I know that true love has to be founded on mutual respect, and happiness in little things, and memories. But, still, love does have to begin some place, doesn't it? And many times, that starting point is just a glance, a meeting of eyes which seems to say, "Hello, there. Who are you? I like you very much, you know. You're my kind of person." That's what our first glance said—Tex's and mine.

www.americanradiohistorv.com

OUP

I saw him before he saw me the night he came to the theater. It was at the end of the National Barn Dance broadcast and I was standing in the foyer when I noticed the tall, rangy man looking thoughtfully at the people who were leaving the lighted auditorium. I haven't known a lot of them, but you do get to know people when you work as an usherette in a Chicago theater, and I knew that this man was nice. I knew that before he looked at me, and Anyone could tell, just from the way Lulu Belle smiled over at Scotty as he told about their farm, that although the Wisemans have been married for years, they're still sweethearts. They could remember all the careless barriers that young couples like Tex and Janie sometimes build up to wreck a shy new love.

Partner

fun to most people, but to Tex and Janie it meant the beginning of love

then when our eyes met, I was sure. His eyes were deep, and blue, and kind, and they looked into me without seeming curious or forward, as if he saw in me just what I saw in him.

I was glad that he was seeing me for the first time at the theater instead of at our crammed grocery store where I worked during the week. I knew I looked all right in my best black dress with the touch of white at the throat, and I knew that my legs looked pretty in my only pair of nylons. I was glad, too, that my part of my job was making visitors feel at home. That gave me an excuse to talk with him.

Are you looking for someone?" I asked him. "Maybe I can help you." He smiled, and now there was gratitude in his eyes.

"I couldn't get a ticket for the show tonight," he explained. I nodded sympathetically. "We were sold out a half hour ahead of time."

"And I had a special reason for wanting to get in there," he went on. Then he seemed to want to confide in someone, because he began to tell me the reason for his coming. "You see, I saw the Hoosier Hot Shots when they were over in Italy last year, and I played for them and sang a little. They asked me to look them up when I got back.'

I knew that he'd just been released from the Army even before he told me. I could tell that from looking at his wild tie and the green sweater he was wearing under his coat. Here was a fellow who had been starved for color in a world of khaki. Here was a person who was going to make up for lost time, who was going to begin to live.

I found myself wanting to help him. I felt maternal and responsible for him, as if I were appointed to answer his most bothersome questions. I realized that I wanted to help him find his dreams. I did what all women do when they feel their hearts going out to men they admire. I mothered him.

It was Soutty who realized what had really happened to Tes. It is quirt, Southy is, but awfully wise. It is understand right away that Tes was hally could veel alount what ho waitrd, as many soldiers are when they first get house. Tes did want to play a guint and sing, but not he the way be thought be did.

Take Your Partner!

The National Barn Dance means an evening un to most people, but to Tex and Janie it meant the beginning of love

WISE philosophet and one time that a man always is looking for a woman to heast to and a woman always is looking for a shoulder to put her head on. I think that's trueespecially the part about the man's wanting to seem important to the waman he laves. When a man is proud of himself, he looks into a woman's eyes and uses them for tiny mirrors to reflect his conrage, and talent, and power. And when he is asliamed- when he feets defeated and small and unsure of himself be cannot look at the woman he admires for fear that he will see his defeat written in her eves. I know that, because that's what happened to Tex and me. He was nuscrable, and in his detect he turned away from me and left me contured and frightened. It was then that Lubu Belle and Senty stepped in to tell me what was happening to use But Trat setting ahead of my slory-my strange story that began one Sturday night at the WLS National Barn Dance at the Eighth Street Theorem in Chicago.

I don't believe in love at first sight not real love, snyway. I know that true leve has to be founded on nutual respect, and happiness in little things, and memories. But, still, here does have to begin some place, doesn't if? And, naw times, that starting point is just a glance, a meeting of eyes which seems to say, "Hello, there. Who are you? I like you very much, you know. You're my kind of person," That's what our first glance said-Tex's and mine. I saw hun before he saw me the night he came to the theater. It was at the end of the National Barn Dance broadcast and I was standing in the foyer when I noticed the tall, rangy man, looking thoughtfully at the people who were leaving the lighted auditorium. haven't known a lot of them, but you! do get to know people when you work as an usherette in a Chicago theafer, and I knew that this man was nice. I knew that before he looked at mc. and then when our eyes met. I was sure. His eyes were deep, and blue, and kind, and they looked into me without seeming curtous or forward, as if he saw in me just what I saw in him.

I was glad that he was seeing me for the first time at the theater instead of at our crammed grocery store 'where I worked during the week. I knew I looked all right in my best black dress with the touch of white at the throat, and I knew that my legs looked pretty in my only pair of nylons. I was glad, loo, that my pair of my job was making visitors feel at home. That gave me an accuse to talk with hum. "Arg, you looking for someone" I asked him. "Maybe I can help you." He smiled, and now there was gratitude in his eyes.

anradionistory.com

"I couldn't get a ticket for the show tonight," he explained. I nodded sympathetically. "We were sold out a half hour ahead of time."

And in the appendix to confide in someone, because he began to tell me the reason for his coming. "You see, I saw the Hoosier Hot Sholts when they were over in Italy last year, and I played for them and stang a little. They asked me to look them up when I got back." 1 knew that he'd just been released from the Army even he'droe he told me l could tell that from looking at his wild tie and the green aweater he was tellow who had been starved for color in a world of khakt. Here was a person who was going to make up for lost time, who was going to make up for lost time, who was going to make the for lost time, who was going to hegit to live.

I found myself wanting to help him. I feit maternal and responsible for him, as if I were appointed in answer his most bothesome questions. I realized that I wanted to help him find his decams. I did what all women do when they feel their hearts going out to men they admire. Limothered him.

Anyone could tell, just from the way take Belle soulded over at Senty as he told about their farm, that although the Wisemann have been married for years, they're still wethearts. They could remember all the acceless harries that young couples like Tex and Jam's sometimes build up to areke a by mey have

It was no disgrace for Tex to fail. There aren't many people as good at making their kind of music as Frank Kettering, Ken and Hezzie Trietsch, and Gabe Ward—the Hoosier Hot Shots.

"You wait right here," I said. "I'll find the Hoosier Hot Shots for you—one of them, anyway. I know they'll want to see you," I said with encouragement. "They told me to come," the tall boy

"They told me to come," the tall boy repeated, "over in Italy last year."

"Aren't they swell?" I said enthusiastically. "They helped me get my job, too."

"Do you work with them?" my new friend asked with awed approval in his eyes. "Why, I'd rather have a job like yours—I'd rather be on this radio show —than anything else in the world."

I didn't mean to deceive Tex—I didn't want him to think things about me that weren't true. But I just didn't have time to correct his mistaken impression. Because right that minute Hezzie and Ken and Gil and Gabe came trooping past us out the door. I had to attract their attention or let them get away.

"There they are now. Just a minute, I'll be right back."

I grabbed Ken's arm just as he was going out the door.

"Ken," I said quickly, "there's a man here tonight you met in Italy. He wants a job. He wants to talk to you."

All of the boys in that quartet are married and like to get home right after the show, but Ken turned back and said with a smile, "Where is he? I want to talk to him!"

I guess nobody ever was as thrilled as Tex was when Ken came back and shook hands with him. He couldn't remain shy with Ken, although he was for just a minute, because Ken is the kind of a person who can make you feel at home in the middle of Wabash Avenue.

SUDDENLY, Tex was talking and laughing all at the same time, and he was saying as he pumped Ken's arm, "Gee, it was swell of you to write my mother a card after you got back to Chicago from overseas. She listens down in Texas every Saturday night, and when you wrote and told her you'd seen me over in Italy and I was all right—why, she just couldn't get over it."

Ken was embarrassed. "That wasn't

www.americanradiohistory.c

anything," he said quickly. "We wrote to all the guys' mothers." Then, he changed the subject. "Tell me about yourself. What are you doing in Chicago?"

⁴Well," Tex began hesitantly, "I'm here—well, you told me to look you up in the United States—and—"

"And you did it," Ken finished, but he looked a little worried.

"I played my guitar for you over there," Tex said. "Remember—you said to drop in for an audition some time."

"How long are you going to be here?" Ken asked, and he was business-like now.

"I thought I'd go see my mother and then come back. I'd kind of like to hear the show from out front before I play for you."

Ken frowned. "That's a pretty long trip just for an audition," he said.

"Oh, I'm not coming just for that," Tex said quickly. "I mean to live in Chicago, anyway."

Ken smiled. "That's a good idea," he said, and then he turned to me, "Fix him up with a ticket for next Saturday night, will you, Janie?" He winked at me.

"If you get here a little early next Saturday night, I'll have a ticket for you," I said quickly, and I was rewarded with a swift look of gratitude from Tex, before he nodded goodbye and went out of the theater.

I don't live a very glamorous life during the week. My father owns a little grocery store in one of Chicago's most crowded districts, and I clerk there for him. The people who trade there are tired and cross and overworked, and they're quick to criticize. I don't know what I would have done in those years after high school if I hadn't had my Saturday night job. That was the one bright thing in my life. And the week after I met Tex Saturday night began to seem more attractive than ever, my life away from the theater more drab. The days seemed endless, as I counted the hours until I would see him again.

I had no thought of continuing to deceive Tex—of making him believe that I was part of the show instead of just an usherette. But I had no choice, because on this night of all nights, I was late.

I believe in Fate, now. I know that something outside of ourselves makes almost unbelievable things happen. Because never before in my year and one half at the theater had I been late. And never before in my life had I been in such a storm.

THE storm broke with a terrific clap of thunder when I was on the street car riding toward the loop. The water fell in great sheets, and the power line broke, and we sat in the middle of a world gone mad with thunder and lightning and rain. When finally we did get started, we crawled to the loop, and I had to run through the rain to the theater.

I was wet and bedraggled and nervous. I hated being late. My job was important to me, and I knew that the cast up there on the stage depended on me to help seat our visitors who came to see the show. But there was something more than my job troubling me this night. I was afraid that Tex wouldn't be here—that the storm had prevented his coming.

One of the girls who worked with me came to talk with me. "I got here just before it broke," she said, "or I would have been in the same boat you were in."

"I wish I had been in a boat." I said ruefully.

"A lot of people didn't show up tonight," Betty said, making conversation.

"I wonder if a big, tall fellow came," I said, trying to act unconcerned. "Ken wanted me to save a ticket for him." "He's in there," Betty told me. "I got him a ticket—there were a lot of extra ones tonight."

I guess I didn't realize right that minute what the memory of a pair of blue eyes could do to me. I was more glad that Tex was in the theater than I ever had been about anything before. But I was embarrassed, too.

If you've ever liked anyone very much but you weren't quite sure whether or not he liked you, you'll understand how I felt as I stood in the darkened rear of that theater. I was glad that he was tall-that gave me a chance to find him almost at once. I stood staring at his straight back and broad shoulders as he gazed with rapt attention at the stage. Usually I watched the show with enthusiasm, loving every minute of it, never getting tired of a shred of it from the time Joe Kelly said, "Hello, everybody, everywhere," down to the very last note of the finale. But tonight I didn't hear a word of that show. I just stood there watching Tex and wondering what I would say to him later.

COULD tell from the way he never moved his head that he was drinking in this program the way a thirsty man swallows water on a desert. He'd been waiting for this night, thinking about it, building air castles. I guess it was then in the darkened theater that I made up my mind to go on letting him think that I was part of the show. I wanted this new man, who was more attractive to me than anyone I'd ever known, to find me attractive, too. And I knew that he would admire me if he believed that I was part of the National Barn Dance. I'm not good at thinking up lies, and I never would have deliberately told Tex an untruth. But now that he believed that I was part of the show, I didn't feel too wicked in letting him go on in that belief.

If you've ever been in love, you can understand my reasoning. You'll know why I stood back in the shadows of the theater watching Tex until the crowd thinned. You'll understand how I followed with my eyes when he rose reluctantly at last and started slowly up the aisle. You'll know why I hurried out at that same time, pretending to be rushing home.

Most people who listen to National Barn Dance -and that means most people-feel about it just as Janie and Tex do in our Radio Mirror story, that it's a friendly, home-town kind of show full of people you get to know very well. Pat Buttram, Joe Kelly, the Hoosier Hot Shots, and Lulu Belle and Scotty bring you the National Barn Dance every Saturday night at 9:00 EDT, over NBC.

It would be so easy to be a man! If Tex had wanted to see me, he could have asked one of the girls where I was and who I was and if I had a telephone. But girls can't act that way. They have to pretend—they have to wait. That's the reason I had to pretend to be rushing out of the theater, pretend to run into him accidentally. But he was glad to see me. His face lighted up and he smiled at me.

We left the theater together in a world which was quiet after a storm. Our walking out of there together seemed the most natural thing in the world. We matched our steps the way you always do when you're walking with someone you like, and we didn't see the soggy strewn paper and we didn't feel the rain water which dripped from sagging awnings. We just knew that we were together and that we were walking toward a drugstore down the street, just the way boys and girls do in Iowa and Kansas and Missouri and Idaho—just the way young people do everywhere when they're falling in love.

We did begin to fall in love for sure that night—I know we did. This wasn't just a pick-up—it wasn't like a pick-up at all. Instead it was one of those wonderful things that happens to every girl, if she's blessed with a certain amount of luck and recognizes the real thing when it comes along. And I knew that this was the real thing. I realized it completely as I sat beside Tex in a Chicago drugstore on a Saturday night, which is the busiest night in the world. As I chewed at the end of my straw and played with my chocolate soda, I leaned a little toward Tex the way you do when you're attracted to someone.

Sitting at that stool at the fountain, Tex told me about the long months he had spent overseas, about how lonely he'd been for his home, and about how in the evening he and the fellows had sat around and sung the songs that reminded them of America.

"That's how I got to playing the guitar in the first place," Tex explained. "There were a lot of us stuck in Rome for a long time, and I picked up this old guitar in a little shop, and I—well, I got to be pretty good." He was embarrassed about this burst of confidence, but I smiled at him, and he went on.

"Pretty soon the fellows got to calling for me at all the camp shows and that's when I started really practicing so I could give them what they wanted to hear."

"That was wonderful of you, Tex," I said softly. "You made them happy that way."

He smiled into my eyes and went on talking.

"It was after I'd been playing quite a while that the Hoosier Hot Shots came over to a theater in Rome." He was thoughtful. "I'd been playing a long time by the time they came."

"I'll bet you were glad to see those fellows."

"Glad! I'll say we were. We all felt we knew them already just from listening to them back home, and then at the theater they asked us to come up and see 'em after- (Continued on page 60) DON'T YOU KNOW

Merry had waited a long time, with hope in her heart. Now hope was gone, but somehow she found she was still waiting, as women will, for her beloved's return

SOME LOVE STORIES shine softly through tears. Like singing melodies from great composers, lost for a breathless moment in the crash of great harmonies, they always return. And they bring with them the whisper, fragile and lovely, that spring will return, in season.

Because I love music, I suppose, I build even my thinking around musical themes. It was music that brought me Dick, my husband. And it was music that finally widened the breach between us until it became impassable, before he went away to the Pacific. Music kept me from despair during those long, desolate months when I didn't know where he was, or what he was doing.

And now as I stood at the entrance to Gate 4, my face pressed against the wiring that shut me away from the incoming train, my heart was a symphonic battle-ground of confused emotions, through which the melody of my love for Dick ran clear and pure. I watched the train come slowly to a stop. Suppose—suppose after all Dick wasn't on it! Suppose he'd meant it when he wrote it might be better if we didn't meet again! That it would be easier for us both that way!

I searched the faces of the crowds pressing through the gate breathlessly, lest I miss that one face. Dick wouldn't be expecting me, he'd written me not to meet him, that he'd come right out to the house. But that was my surprise for him. I wouldn't be at mother's where he expected to find me, but at the little cottage where he'd taken me as a bride. The couple to whom I'd leased it had gone back to their home in the West, and I'd snatched at the opportunity to get it back before Dick got back. This way, I planned eagerly, we'd get a new start. And it would be right this time. I wouldn't try to keep Dick all to myself. I wouldn't nag if he wanted to be alone, or with the Pads. Pads-I smiled, that was the absurd name for Dick's reporter friends. They took great pride in the name, and the group. They were quite chesty about it, in fact.

Everything would be quite different now, I planned. This time the Pads were with me; they had become friends, close friends, during Dick's absence. They didn't hold it against me any longer that I'd tried to shut them out of Dick's life, and they wanted us to be happy together again. Particularly, Darling wanted it, Darling whom I had hated most, and feared. Three years can make a great difference in a person, and it was longer than that since I'd seen Dick. During that time my heart had been almost torn out of me with fear for him. Three years! They'd seemed like a lifetime to me. They'd been a lifetime-a lifetime of readjustment, of heartache, of learning!

I pressed forward, watching eagerly. And then, miraculously, he was there.

"Hello, Merry," he said, half frowning. "Thought you weren't coming. Isn't that what we said?"

"Yes," I admitted, unable to check the nervous tears that were spilling down my cheeks. "But I had to come. I couldn't wait. Aren't—aren't you glad to see me, Dick?" Without waiting for an answer, my arms were about him, straining him close to me. All the years of longing, of pain, and hunger were in that clasp.

For a moment, Dick's arms held me close, then he began to gently free himself. "Here, here," he said, "this won't do. There's certainly nothing to cry about now. This time I'm home."

A "MY TRUE STORY"

My True Story, real-life dramas of real people, is heard every Monday through Friday, 10 A.M., ET; 9 A.M., CT; 11:30 A.M., MT and 10:30 A.M., PT, over ABC.

www.americanradiohistory.com

"I know it. That's why I'm crying because you are home. I'm just so glad, so happy, Dick."

He laughed lightly, and encircled me with his arm. "Well, we can't talk here. That's certain! Let's get going."

He signaled a cab, and we got in. I leaned forward and softly gave the address to the driver. Dick didn't seem to notice. He was leaning back. "Gee, it's good being on your own again! Makes you feel like a real human being. Right now all I want to do is sit still, and relax. Sort of take it all in. Mind? We can talk later."

I nodded, and watched him light his cigarette. It was good to have him with me again. Maybe we could start all over! Maybe he wanted it as much as I did! I let my eyes feast on him. The crisp brown hair that lay so close to his head; the lean sunburned face; the eager, engaging smile I loved; the dark eyes that were searching, and yet could soften to such tenderness.

Abruptly the cab jerked to a stop. "Welcome home, darling," I said eagerly, and held my breath. Would he be glad I had moved back? Would he remember how happy we'd been when he first brought me here—or would he remember the unhappiness?

I couldn't tell what he was thinking. He was smiling as he paid the taxi driver and helped me out, but there was a closed look about his face, as if he were hiding his real self away.

"So you've moved back, Merry," he said quietly. "Was it wise? Is your mother with you? You haven't been staying alone, have you?"

"No-just the last few days. I wanted to be alone then. It gave me more time to think about us—to sort of plan. You've been gone so long, Dick—I just wanted to get used to the idea that you'd soon be here. To look forward to it!"

Dick didn't answer. He took the key I handed him, and fitted it into the lock. Then he stood back for me to enter. We had come home, together.

The house was all lighted up. I'd purposely left it like that so Dick wouldn't have to see it first all dark, but bright and cheerful, and welcoming.

ing. "Come on in, darling," I urged, holding out both hands. "You're homehome-" the words seemed to swell like music in my heart.

All around us the fragrance of lilacs and daffodils filled the house. It was just as it had been that day in early April when Dick had brought me here a bride. Would he remember? I'd another?

-but I couldn't plan it now. And I couldn't face Dick yet, I decided. I opened the door and stepped out into the cool stillness of the backyard. It was here we had stood on the first

I couldn't think now-didn't have to, I reminded myself bitterly. I could think when he was gone. And the Pads, whom I'd invited over to surprise taken such pains to have everything as it was then. Even the dinner, waiting, almost ready to be served, was the

"Dinner's almost ready to go on the table," I said unsteadily. "I thought it would be fun to dress up for it, as if we were having a party—just you and me. Oh-" for the first time, I realized we hadn't brought any of Dick's luggage with us. I had been so absorbed in Dick, himself, I hadn't even noticed

it. Now I looked at him in dismay.

"Dick, we've left your luggage. We'll have to go back for it, or can you manage tonight without it? All your things are here just as you left them when you went away. I believe you'll be

"It'll be all right," he said quietly. "I left it on purpose. After dinner I want us to talk things over-then I thought I might go on to Mother's for the night. I'm afraid she isn't very well." "She's all right, Dick. I've seen her. I've gone and stayed with her often

"Well, I thought I'd go, anyhow. I

My hand, resting timidly on his arm, dropped to my side. I had been hoping his would reach up to cover it, but I felt now that it wouldn't. First night home-first night home ran through my mind like a foreboding chant. Dick's first night home he wanted to spend at his mother's. He didn't care, then; he'd come back unchanged, still certain our marriage had been wrong.

"All right," I said. "Change as quickly as you can, then, and I'll have dinner on the table when you come down. Oh, by the way-" he was already halfway up the stairs, and he turned to look down at me almost impatiently-"I've put your things in our old room-my room-instead of the spare room where you left them when you went. I thought perhaps you'd want . . ." I stopped and shrugged, and forced a smile. "Anyway, they're in there. Anything you want, just yell." 'Merry," Dick began, and cut himself off. "No, we'll talk later." He went on up, and I went into the kitchen to finish preparing dinner. It took just a few minutes to finish everything. I lighted the oven, waiting until the last minute to put the biscuits in. Dick always liked them piping hot. Then I stood undecided. Dick would still be in the bedroom. I could hear him whistling as he dressed, and the cheerful sound tore at my heart more than anything else had. How could he be so unconscious of my pain? Didn't he care about what was happening? Had those years away made him hard, insensitive to pain in able to manage-"

while you were away."

want to see her.

I looked up at him, adoring him.

same.

night of our marriage. We hadn't wanted to go away. We'd just wanted to get into our own little house, and shut ourselves away from the world. Together! Just the two of us! We had stood just here, screened from prying eyes by the big lilac bush. All around us the cool, yet intoxicating fragrance of lilacs drifted, as piercingly sweet, as unforgettable, as the moment itself.

Could the rapture, the wonder of that night ever be forgotten? Actually forgotten? Wouldn't it always remain in our minds and hearts, whether we wanted it to or not—in Dick's, as well as mine? Wasn't it worth fighting for -fighting hard for? It might be too late, and it would take courage. Did I have enough? Could I endure Dick's indifference, and still fight on? It would be harder than even the pain of his absence. I lifted my face to the night, and set my lips in a straight line of determination. I would win this fight if it could be won. I would save my happiness, and Dick's. It was little enough for me to do. I turned and walked quickly back into the house. Dick had finished dressing, and was standing in front of the mirror in our room, enjoying the look of himself in civilian clothes.

"Merry, Merry, it's unbelievable," he said, catching me in his arms. I caught my breath in sheer joy at the naturalness of his action. An aching impulse to laughter rose in my throat—and died, leaving only the pain and a chill stirring of bitterness. In his pleasure, he had wanted to share the moment with me, whether he realized it or not. But I mustn't let him guess its significance. Not yet. It was something to build on only if I were wise enough to use it. (Continued on page 84)

I saw Dick glance at me and then look away, puzzled. He didn't know that I had learned to enjoy myself.

www.americanradiohistory.com

A story of friendship is told in the letter which Papa David liked best this month friendship that saved a troubled life from tragedy

Life Can be Beautiful, written by Don Becke, and Carl Bixby, is heard Monday through Friday at 1 P.M. EST, CBS.

2

RADIO MIRROR OFFERS ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS Each Month For Your

LIFE CAN BE BEAUTIFUL Letters

What experience in your lifetime has taught you that Life Can Be Beautiful? Do you recall a time when the helping hand of a friend, a kindly word of advice, changed your whole outlook? When some chance of circumstance showed you the way to happiness? Papa David would like to hear about these experiences of yours, and for the letter sent in each month which in his opinion best expresses the thought, "Life Can Be Beautiful," RADIO MIRROR Magazine will pay one hundred dollars. For each of the other letters received that month which space permits us to print, RADIO MIRROR will pay fifteen dollars. Letters received before the first of each month will be considered for the following month's payments. The opinion of the editors is final; no letters can be returned. Address your letters to Papa David, care of RADIO MIRROR Magazine, 205 East 42nd Street, New York 17, N. Y. LISTEN TO LIFE CAN BE BEAUTIFUL DAILY ON YOUR LOCAL CBS STATION-1:00 P.M., EDT; 12 Noon, CDT; 11:00 A.M., MDT; 10:00 A.M., PDT.

BOTH Chichi and I believe and try to guide our lives by this philosophy: for those who choose to find it that way—for those who choose to make it that way, Life Can Be Beautiful. It has afforded us more than a little pleasure to know of the many people who agree with us that beauty can rise from ugliness.

ife ean

The many hundreds of letters sent to Chichi and me by our listeners and Rapio Muroa readers, pointing out the truth of the Life Can Be Beautiful credo, have not only exceeded all our anticipations, but given us a great deal of gladness. Chichi joins me in thanking you for these letters and in urging you to continue to send them. We are anxious to hear how more of you learned that love and faith and kindliness are basic to happy living.

Only the other day I came across a little old lady who had learned this lesson well. We were both in a florist shop when a small, shabbily-clothed boy came in, showed the sales-girl a fistful of pennies and asked for a glass-enclosed tropical garden. The salesgirl told him he didn't have enough money.

girl told him he didn't have enough money. "But it's thirty cents," he said earnestly. "I saved it weeks and weeks for my mother's birthday."

His lips began to quiver when she shook her head again. The little old lady whispered something to the clerk, who immediately turned to the boy and said she had made a mistake; there was one tropical garden which cost just thirty cents. The boy went out, happily clutching his mother's twodollar birthday gift, and the little old lady paid the salesgirl the difference. Just one small incident—but an incident

Just one small incident—but an incident that supplies heart-warming evidence that goodness is close to beauty!

And now Chichi and I would like you to read a letter that we think will be an inspiration to our readers—the letter, chosen from hundreds of others, as the most tangible proof that Life Can Be Beautiful. RADDO Monton is mailing a check for one hundred dolvers to the writer of this letter:

Dear Papa David:

I am a Japanese American. At the outbreak of war I was among the thousands sent to camps. We went through bitter experiences which we'd like to forget and I do not care to relate them here. But I also had two of the best friends anyone could ever have. One of them had two sons fighting in the Pacific.

After selling our furniture, cars, farm, etc., we left our winter clothing and small valuables with these two ladies. Many people in camp had their homes burned and belongings stolen, but I am proud to say we had no worry whatsoever. They wrote us letters to keep our broken spirits up, sent us little things, such as preserves, see and remember the beautiful things of life.

He was irritable and hard to get along with and our little eighteen-month-old son seemed to make him more nervous and we were all so unhappy. Then I just happened to pick up a little pamphlet with some pictures of the Redwood trees here in California, and they seemed so giant-like that it was almost unbelievable (we're from the Middlewest and not used to many trees) so I asked my husband if we couldn't take a trip to see the Redwoods as it isn't too far from here. He grouched and argued but finally agreed to go. So we left early on Friday morning.

To start with we saw a beautiful sunrise, then we had to cross the big bridge from Oakland to San Francisco which is really a beautiful sight, then we were finally out candy, and nuts and pressed flowers from their farms. Many of our "friends" were no longer so and some even fought against our return, as you've read in the papers. And I know of some who thought we were O.K. but were afraid to voice their opinions. But these two ladies and their families taught me that "Life Can Be Beautiful" by the kind, straight-fromthe-heart friendship they extended us.

About a year and a half ago I became seriously ill and developed a bad case of asthma. Doctors all told me my only hope is to go to the Coast. I was afraid to after reading all the things that happened to returnees but I took the chance. We, my husband and three small children and I, came here jobless, homeless and with a dwindled bank roll. After weeks or months of trying we found a government project house and my husband a janitor job in a restaurant. And after getting settled we went to see our two dear friends. It was just wonderful! They just welcomed us with open arms—I was so happy I had to cry. We visit each other often and they still call my folks mama and papa just as before. As time goes on people become more friendly and are good to us. I just had to tell you how these two ladies showed me that in this all mixed up world Life Still Can Be Beautiful! I shall always believe in it. Sincerely,

A. O.

And here are other Life Can Be Beautiful letters we would like to share with readers. Checks for fifteen dollars go to the writers of each of these.

Dear Papa David:

My husband has just received his discharge from the Navy after serving overseas for quite a while, and after seeing the horrors of war I guess it's a little hard to on the highway, with lovely farms rolling by and green pastures with sheep and cows grazing and cranes, so proud looking, standing in little ponds and marshes, apple and peach trees were in bloom. Finally we started to climb into the mountains so green and rocky and there was a little stream that ran beside the highway with happy looking people trout fishing all along. We passed through sleepy little towns where everyone seemed so happy and friendly until we started to feel ashamed of our disagreements and misunderstandings.

Then finally we reached the Redwoods, small ones at first, then the farther we went the larger they seemed to get. We came to one tree that was so large you could drive your car through it (there was a driveway cut through) then we saw the "World Famous Tree House" which is in a tree that is 4,000 years old and is 101 feet in circumference at the base and 250 feet high. The diameter of the room inside the tree is 27 feet and there is a cavity that goes 50 feet up inside the tree, believed to be burned out by the Indians. Not far away was the tallest known tree in the world which is 364 feet high, and there was the largest known tree which is 33 feet in diameter 12 feet up the trunk and the "Avenue of Giants"-just tree after tree so big that you feel like you're in a fairyland and seeing something unbelievable.

We began to feel thankful that God has given us so many things to enjoy. We have good health and each other (so many lost their loved ones, I was sure lucky) and yet, we had failed to say or do the little things for each other that count so much in making life beautiful.

After seeing the big trees, we see the little things right around us like flowers in bloom in the yard, the glow of our lamps in our little living room, the smell and taste of good food, the breeze blowing through the windows, our faile on the breeze blowing through

www.americanradiohistorv.com

many things to mention, but it took that trip to the big trees to make us see the little things in life.

We're much happier now and there's more understanding and love in our house. We're thankful because we see so many things around us now that we never seemed to notice before.

Mrs. A. F. K.

Dear Papa David:

I am a girl 22 years old; but I have only lived six months of that 22 years. For something happened to me that changed my whole outlook on life six months back.

I was the child of a feeble-minded woman, and even though I didn't inherit feeble mindedness I had adopted her ways of acting. I was an outcast in school and in everything. I am sure I was the most unhappy, child that ever lived. I often wished that I could die, but of course I couldn't. There didn't seem to be anything in the world I could do. When I was seventeen I married a nice

When I was seventeen I married a nice boy. He loved me very much at first. Then he became unhappy; I could tell by his behavior. I thought it was because he didn't love me and accused him of it. He denied this saying that he did love me, but that I was a poor homemaker and had awful habits, and that we would always live poorly if I didn't improve. Of course I didn't see it his way then and blamed him entirely. Things got worse and worse and I knew I had lost my husband's respect. Crying became a habit. I cried almost night and day. I knew my husband was staying with me only out of a sense of duty for I was going to have a baby. I didn't want my baby and cried and raved all during my pregnancy. I made life awful for myself and my husband.

And then my baby was born. And I found that I loved my baby better than anything in the world.

My little boy cried night and day, because he wasn't getting the proper attention. I tried so hard, but I wasn't efficient enough to care for my baby properly. This went on for two months. And then a wonderful thing happened for it changed my whole life. In the mail one morning there was a book on Infant Care sent by our Congressman. It was Children's Bureau Publication No. 8 of the United States Department of Labor. I sat up night and day reading this book, grasping slowly the facts of life.

I learned that the health, happiness, and efficiency of the older child and of the adult depend largely on the habits formed in early childhood.

I have followed the things I learned from the book. And now my baby is a healthy normal youngster. And I am a happy normal woman. I am also very efficient thanks again to the book. My husband praises my home making. And he says he couldn't possibly be happier.

Mrs. J. G.

Dear Papa David:

Many years ago we were a happy family in our little farm home. Then came a day when the doctor said we must go to a different climate in search of health for our dear husband and father.

So, hoping and praying we left one day to travel—six of us going to "live in a trunk" for goodness only knew how long. The three boys were fourteen, ten and five and little sister was eight years old. We could so ill afford such expense but papa would not go without his family.

Christmas had meant so very much in our home always, and to be away from home on mailing a check for one hundred notars to the writer of this letter:

Dear Papa David:

I am a Japanese American. At the outbreak of war I was among the thousands sent to camps. We went through bitter experiences which we'd like to forget and I do not care to relate them bere. But I also had two of the best friends anyone could ever bave. One of them had two sons fighting in the Pacific.

After selling our furnitore, care, farm, cte., we left our winter clothing and small valuables with these two ladies. Many people in camp had their homes burned and belongings stolen, but I am proud to say we had no worry whatsoever. They wrote us letters to keep our broken spicits up, sent us little things, such as preserves, see and remember the beautiful things of life He was irritable and hard to get along with and our little eighteen-month-old son scemed to make him more aervous and we were all so unhappy. Then I just happened to pick up a little pamphlet with some pictures of the Redwood trees here in California, and they seemed so glant-like that it was almost unbelievable (we're from the Middlewest and not used to many trees)

so I asked my husband if we couldn't take a trip to see the Redwoods as it isn't too far from here. He grouched and argued but finally agreed to go. So we left ently on

To start with we saw a beautiful sunrise, then we had to cross the big bridge from Oakland to San Francisco which is really a heantiful sight, then we were finally out

Friday morning.

many things to mention, but it took that trip to the big trees to make as see the little things in life.

We're much happier now and there's more understanding and love in our house. We're thankful because we see so many things around us now that we never second to nutice before.

Mrs. A. F. K.

Dear Papa David:

I am a girl 22 years olds but I have only lived six months of that 22 years, For something happened to me that changed my whole outlook on life six months back.

I was the child of a feeble-minded waman, and even though I dhlo't inherit feeble mindedness I had adopted her ways of acting. I was an unicast lu school and in evceything. I am sure I was the most unhappy child that ever lived. I aften wished that I could die, but of course I couldn't. There didn't arem to be anything in the world I could do.

When I was seventeen I married a ulce buy. He loved me very much at first. Then he became unhappy, I could tell by his behaving. I thought it was because he didn't luve me and accused him of it. He denied this saying that he did love me, but that I was a poor homentaker and had awful hubits, and that we would and nu awihi namis, and that we world always live poorly if i Ildu't hupprove. Of course I didn't see it his way then and blaned him entirely. Things got worse and worse and I knew I had hot my hup-hand's respect. Grying became a balit. cried almost night and day. I knew my husband was staying with me only out of a sense of duty for I was going to have a baby. I didu't want my baby and cried and raved all during my pregnancy. I made life nwful fur myself and my hushand.

And then my baby was burn. And I found that I laved my haby better than anything in the world.

My little buy cried alght and day, hecause he wasn't getting the proper allemcient enough in care for my beby arouse. ly. This went on for two months. And then a wonderful thing happened for it changed my whole life. In the mail one morning there was a book on Infant Care sent by our Congressman. It was Children's Boreau Publication No. 8 of the United States Department of Labor. 1 sat up night and day reading this book, grasping slowly the facts of life.

I learned that the health, happiness, and efficiency of the older child and of the adult depend largely nu the balilie formed to carly childhoad.

I have followed the things I learned from the book. And now my haby is a healthy normal youngster. And I am a happy normal woman. I am also very efficient thanks again to the book. My husband praises my hume making. And he says he couldn't pussibly he happier.

Mrs. J. G.

Dear Papa David:

Many years ago we wrre a happy family In our little farm home. Then come a day when the sloctor said we must go to a different elimate in search of health for our dear hushand and father.

So, hoping and proying we left one day to travel-als of us going to "live in a trunk" for goodness only knew how long The three boys were fourteen, ten and five and little slater was cight years old. We could so lll afford such expense but papa would not go without his family.

Christmas had meant so very much in our home always, and to be away from home on Christman was (Continued on none 67)

Life Can lleantIful, written by Don Beck, and Carl Birly, is loard Manday through Franz at 1 P.M. EST, CBS,

5 -

RADIO MIRROR OFFERS ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS Each Month For Your

LIFE CAN BE BEAUTIFUL Letters

What experience in your lifethue has taught you that Life Can He Beantiful? Do you recali o time when the helping hand of a friend, a kindly word of advice, changed your whole outlook? When some chance of circumstatore showed you die way to happiness? Page David would like in hear about these experiences of yours, and for the letter scot in each month which in his opinion host expresses the thought, "Life Can He Beautiful," RADIO MIIIROR Magazhie will pay ane loundred dollars, For each of the other letters received that month which space permits us to print, RADIO MIRROR. will pay fifteen dollars. Letters received before the first of each month will be considered for the following month's payments. The opinion of the editors is final; on letters can be returned. Address your letters to Papa David, care of RADIO MIRROR Magazine, 205 East 42nd Street, New York 17, N. Y. LISTEN TO LIFE CAN BE REALTIFUL DAILY ON YOUR LOCAL CBS STATION-1:00 P.M., EDT; 12 Noon, CDT; 11:00 A.M., MDT; 10:00 A.M., PDT, TOTH Chichi and I believe and try to guide our lives by this philosophy: for those who choose to find it that way-for those who choose to make it that way, Life Can Be Beautiful. It has afforded us more than a little pleasure to know of the many people who agree with us that beauty can rise from ugliness.

A story of friendship is told in the letter which Papa David liked best this month-frieudship that saved a troubled life from tragedy

The many hundreds of letters sent to Chichi and me by our listeners and Rano MIRROR readers, pointing out the truth of the Life Can Be Brautiful credo, have not only exceeded all our anticipations, but given us a great deal of gladness. Chichi joins me in thunking you for these letters and in urging you to cuntinue to send them. We are any jout to hear how more of you learned that love and faith and kindliness are basic to happy living.

Only the other day I came across a little old hdy who had learned this lesson well We were both in a florist shop when a small shabbily clothed boy came in, showed the sales-girl a fistful of pennies and asked for n glass-cuclosed trupical garden. The sales girl toid him he didn't have enough money "But it's thirty cents," he said earnestly "I saved it weeks and weeks for my mother birthday."

His lips began to quiver when she should her head again. The little old lady whis pered something to the clerk, who interest diately turned to the boy and said she had made a mistake; there was one tropical gat den which cost just thirty cents. The ba went out, happily clutching his mother's two dollar birthday gift, and the little old lady paid the salesgirl the difference. Just one small incident-but an incident that supplies heart-warming evidence that the writers of each of these. goodness is cluse to beauty!

And now Chichi and I would like you to read a letter that we think will be an inspiread a letter that we hink will be an inspi-ration to user coulers—the letter, closes from the Navy after serving over-handreds of others, as the most tangible merces of war l guess it's a little hard to proof the Lift Couler. The the most tangible merces of war I guess it's a little hard to www.amterCHCARTAGOONSTOL Service of the little hard to ugainst our return, as you've read in the papers. And I know of some who thought we were O.K. but were afraid to voice their opinions. But these two ladies and their families taught me that "Life Can Be Beautiful" by the kind, straight from the heart friendship they extended us.

Abuut a year and a half ago I became seriously ill and developed a bad case of ashma. Doctors all told me my only hope is to go to the Coast. I was afraid to after reading all the things that happened to returnees but I took the chauce. We, my husband and three small children and I, came here jobless, homeless and with a dwindled bank roll. After weeks or months of trying we found a government project house and my husband a janitor job in a restaurant. And after setting settled we went to see our two dear friends. It was just wonderful! They just welcomed us with open arms-l was so happy I had to ery. We visit each other often and they still call my folks mama and papa just as before. As time goes on people become more friendly and are good to us. I just had to tell you how these two ladies showed me that in this all mixed up world Life Still Can Be Beautiful! I shall always believe in it. Sincerely,

And bere are other Life Can Be Beantifn] letters we would like to share with readers. Checks for fifteen dollars go to

Dear Papa David;

My husband has just received his dis-

on the highway, with lovely farms rolling by and green pastures with sheep and cows grazing and cranes, so proud looking, standing in little ponds and marshes, apple and peach trees were in bloom. Finally we started to clinb into the mountains so green and rocky and there was a little stream that ran beside the highway with happy looking people trout fishing all along. We passed through sleepy little towns where everyone seemed so happy and friendly until we started to feel ashamed of our disagreements and misunderstandings.

Then finally we reached the Redwoods, small ones at first, then the farther we went the larger they seemed to get. We came to one tree that was so large you could drive your car through it (there was a driveway cut through) then we saw the "World Famous Tree House" which is in a tree that is 4,000 years old and is tot feet in circumference at the base and 250 feet high. The diameter of the room inside the tree is 27 feet and there is a cavity that goes 50 fert up inside the tree, believed to be burned out by the Indians. Not far away was the tallest known tree in the world which is 364 feet high, and there was the largest known trre which is 33 feet in diameter 12 feet up the trunk and the "Avenue of Giants"-just tree after tree so hig that you feel like you're in a fairyland and seeing something unbellevable. We began to feel thankful that God has given us so many things to enjoy. We have good health and each other (so many lost their loved ones, I was sure lucky) and yet, we had failed to say or do the little things fur each other that count so much in making life beautiful.

After seeing the hig trees, we see the little things right around os like flowers in bloom in the yard, the glow of nur lamps in our little living room, the smell and taste of good food, the breeze blowing through the windows, our radio, oh, there's lust_too

Life can be beautiful candy, and nuts and pressed flowers from their farms. Many of our "friends" were no longer so and some even fought

GLORIOUS FOURTH

Maybe you'll have guests at home, or perhaps a picnic is your way of having fun, but how-ever you plan it, a celebration is American tradition for Independence Day, and here are the makings!

Here comes our first peacetime Fourth of July since 1941 and what a day it is going to be! Flags will fly and bands will play as they have never done before and everyone of us will join in the fun. We won't all be celebrating in the same way of course— some will march in parades while others look on, some of us make speeches for the rest to listen to—but no matter how we spend this most truly American of our holidays we shall all look forward to the feast that shall all look forward to the feast that is such an important part of it. Maybe you will eat it at home and maybe the Fourth just isn't the Fourth to you un-less you go on a picnic. Whichever you prefer, these recipes will turn the trick and if cold salmon isn't your first choice for a main dish the fixings will go along just as happily with fried chicken, hamburgers or that other American tradition the hot dog.

Boiled Salmon with Mustard Cream Sauce

- ⅔ lbs. salmon
- 1 tsp. mixed pickle spices
- 1 tbl. vinegar
- Boiling salted water

Tie fish in cheese cloth, tie spices in small cheese cloth bag. Place fish in pot, add sufficient salted boiling water to reach about halfway up sides of fish. Add spices and vinegar. Simmer gen-tly until fish is tender, turning once and allowing about 7 minutes per pound. Remove from water, cool and chill until serving time.

Mustard Cream Sauce

1/4 cup vinegar

- 2 tbls. prepared mustard
 - stuffed olives.
 - chopped

Combine sugar, flour and salt. Add

1 tsp. sugar

I tbl. flour

1 tsp. salt

3/4 cup milk

l egg

FOOD COUNSELOR

Listen to Kate Smith's daily talks at noon and her Friday night Variety Show, heard on CBS, 8:30 EDT.

egg and mix well. Blend in milk. Stir over hot water or very low heat until creamy. Add vinegar, and continue stirring and cooking until rich and creamy. Cool and chill. Stir in mus-tard and olives and spread over top and sides of fish.

Fluffy Potato Salad

- 2 lbs. white potatoes
- 4 tbls. butter or margarine
- ½ cup minced celery leaves
- 1 small cucumber, minced
- 1 small onion, grated 2 tbls. prepared mustard Salt and pepper to taste Milk

Scrub potatoes well, cook in boiling salted water until tender. Drain, re-move skins and run potatoes through ricer while still hot. Add remaining ingredients, including just enough milk to make mixture light and fluffy. Shape into loaf on platter and chill.

Dill Cottage Cheese

- 2 cups cottage cheese 2 tbls. minced fresh dill (leaves and ten-
- der portion of stalk) Sour cream
 - Combine (Continued on page 65)

INSIDE RADIO — Telling You About Programs and People You Want to Hear

Sunday

E I		Easte	rn Day	light Time
T.0.4	0.0	8:30	CBS: ABC:	Country Journal Earl Wilde, pianist
		9:00	MBS:	Young People's Church White Rabbit Line
	8:00 8:15		ABC: CBS:	White Rabbit Line Renfrew Valley Folks
6:15 6:30	8:15	9:15	NBC:	Rentrew Valley Folks Story to Order
0.50	8:30		NBC: MBS:	NBC String Trio Voice of Prophecy
7-00	8:45	9:45 10:00	CBS:	Choir Practice Church of the Air
7:00 7:00 7:00	9:00	10:00	ABC: NBC:	Message of Israel Highlights of the Bible
		10:00	MBS:	Radio Bible Class
7:30 7:30	9:30 9:30	10:30 10:30 10:30	CBS: ABC: NBC:	Church of the Air Southernalres
7:30 8:30	3:30	10:30	MBS:	Circle Arrow Show Chaplain Jim
8:00	10:00	11:00 11:00	NBC: MBS:	Eternal Light Pro Arte Quartet
		11:05	CBS:	Wings Over Jordan
8:30	10:30 10:30	11:30 11:30	ABC: CBS:	Hour of Faith Salt Lake City Tabernacle
	•	11:30	MBS:	Choir Reviewing Stand
	10:45	11:45	NBC:	Solitalre Time, Warde Done- van
	11.00	12:00	MBS: CBS:	Pligrim Hour
	11:00 11:30	12:00	NBC:	Invitation to Learning NBC Concert Orchestra
9:30		12:30 12:30	NBC: MBS: ABC:	NBC Concert Orchestra Lutheran Hour Stradivari Orchestra
10:00	12.00	1:00	ABC:	Cliff Edwards
10:00	12:00	1:00	ABC: CBS: NBC:	Cliff Edwards People's Platform Voice of the Dairy Farmer American Radio Warblers
			MBS: NBC:	America United
10:15	12:15	1:15	NBC: ABC: MBS:	America United Orson Welles lika Chase
10:15 10:30	12:30	1:30	CBS:
10:30	12:30	1:30	ABC: NBC:	Time for Reason Sammy Kaye's Orchestra Chicago Round Table Sweetheart Time
11 :00			MBS: NBC:	Harvest of Stars
11:00	1:00	2:00	NBC: MBS: ABC: CBS:	Harvest of Stars Songs Along the Trail Hollywood Star Time
		2:00		Reader's Digest
11:30	1:30		ABC: NBC: ABC:	Dorothy Claire, songs John Charles Thomas
11:30		2:30 2:30	ABC: ABC:	National Vespers Bill Cunningham, news
		2:45		The World Tomorrow
12:00	2:05	3:00 3:00	MBS: CBS:	Open House Columbia Broadcasting Sym-
12:00	2:00	3:00	NBC:	phony Carmen Cavallaro
12:15		3:15		Galen Drake
12:30	2:30	3:30	ABC: NBC: MBS:	A Present From Hollywood One Man's Family
		3:45		Vera Holly, songs Johnny Thompson and Ilena
		4:00		Woods Columbia Workshop
1:00	3:00	1 4:00	INRC+	The National Hour
1:30		4:00	MBS: CBS:	Murder Is My Hobby The Electric Hour Deems Taylor-Raymond
1:30	3:30 3:30	4:30	NBC:	Deems Taylor-Raymond Palge Orchestra
		4:30	ABC: MBS:	Palge Orchestra Right Down Your Alley True Detective Mysteries
2:00	4:00	4:30 5:00 5:00	CRS-	True Detective Mysteries NBC Symphony The Family Hour
		5:00	ABC: MBS:	Court of Missing Heirs
2:30	4:30	5.30	MBS: MBS: CBS:	Quick as a Flash
2:30	4:45	5:30	ABC: CBS: CBS:	Gene Autry David Harding, Counterspy William L. Shirer Ozzie and Harriet Radio Hall of Fame Those Websters Catholic Hour
3:00	5:00	6:00	IA BC +	Ozzie and Harriet Radio Hall of Fame
3:00	5:00	6:00	MBS:
3:00	5:30	6.30	NBC: NBC: ABC: MBS:	The Great Gildersleeve Phil Davis
4:00	6:00	7:00		Operatic Review Frank Morgan The Thin Man Charlle Spivak's Orchestra
9:00		1 7:30	MRS	The Thin Man Charlle Spivak's Orchestra
8:30	6:30	7:30	ABC:	Fitch Bandwagon
8:30 h	8:30	8:00	CBS: CBS:	Blondle The Amazing Mr. Jonathan 1
5:00	7:00	F	NBC:	Danberry Charile McCarthy and Edgar
	1	8:00	MBS:	Bergen Mediation Board
5:00	7.00			Mediation Board Ford Hour Don't Be a Sucker
8:00 5:30 5:55 6:00	7:00	8:30	NBC:	Crime Doctor Fred Allen
6:00	7:55	9:00	MBS: CBS: CBS: CBS: CBS: MBS: ABC: NBC: ABC: CBS:	Ned Calmer Meet Corliss Archer Exploring the Unknown
6:00	8:00	9:00	ABC:	Waiter Winchell Manhattan Merry-Go-Round Louella Parsons' Show
6:00 6:15 6:30	8:00 8:15 8:30	9:15	ABC: CBS:	Louella Parsons' Show Texaco Star Theater, James
6:30		1	1000.	Malton
6:30		9:30	ABC: MBS: NBC:	Former Mayor LaGuardia Double or Nothing American Album of Familiar
6:45	8:30	9:45	ABC	Music Il marie Eldier
7:00	9.01	9:45	ICDC.	Dorothy Thompson
7:00	9:0		ABC: NBC: MBS: NBC: CBS: MBS: CBS:	Theater Gulld Series Hour of Charm
7:3	9:3	10:00	MBS	Hour of Charm Freedom of Opportunity Meet Me at Parky's
	9:3	10:30	MBS	We the People Serenade for Strings
	10:3	11-04	CBS.	Bill Costallo

ONE WOMAN'S OPINION... All women should take a bow to Lisa Sergio, top notch feminine commentator, heard on ABC, Mondays at 10:45 A.M., EDT, on One Woman's Opinion. Miss Sergio is a living refutation of the centuries-old charge that a pretty head is generally an empty one. You'd think it wouldn't be necessary to mention a thing like that. But it is. Just listen to a full day's broadcasting sometime and see how often you hear women portrayed as gossipy nitwits, helpless dolls, strictly homebodies and most often and worst of all, as completely befogged about current issues.

Lisa Sergio takes a crack at all this nonsense. Her program is based on the recognition of the importance of women in the affairs of the world today. Her opinions are worth listening to, because they are backed by rich experience in international journalism, lecturing and radio.

Miss Sergio was born in Florence, Italy, in 1905. Her father, Baron Agestino Sergio, came of a Naples family that had long supported the cause of Italian independence. Her mother, the former Margaret Fitzgerald, was a member of a Baltimore family that had its roots firmly entrenched in the United States. Early in life, Miss Sergio learned Italian, French and English as an integral part of her education. Later, she acquired a working knowledge of Spanish and German, all of which stood her in good stead when, at seventeen, she became associate editor of the "Italian Mail," a weekly publication supported largely by American residents in Italy.

This first job led to several others and, almost as a matter of course, into radio work. For a long time, Miss Sergio was an official broadcaster for the Italian government. But when the Fascist party got strongly enough entrenched, she was dismissed from her post because she insisted on presenting her news broadcasts in an unbiased and uncolored fashion.

In 1937, with the help of Count Guglielmo Marconi, radio pioneer, Miss Sergio obtained a passport to the United States. As a kind of warning to us now, we should remember that she didn't have such a soft job of it here in the beginning. She was a critic of Fascism and she made no bones about it and that made her none too happily welcome in many of the higher places. Americans, it is sad to relate, were being coddled and protected from the harsh realities of the world in those days. Miss Sergio finally got a news commentator's spot on a small, local, liberal radio station in New York, WQXR. Her broadcasts were always forceful and clear-and localized. It took Miss Sergio until almost the last quarter of 1944 to work herself into a major network

Monday
P.D.T.	D.T.			light Time
4 8:00	0.8	9-00	ABC	Breakfast Club
0.00	8:00 8:15	9:15	ABC: NBC: CBS:	Honeymoon In New York Arthur Godfrey Shady Valley Folks
8:15 10:30	9:00	10:00	MBS: CBS:	Shady Valley Folks Valiant Lady My True Story
		10:00 10:00 10:00	MBS:	Lone Journey Once Over Lightly
8:30	9:15	10:15 10:15 10:15	NBC: CBS: MBS:	Lora Lawton Light of the World Faith in Our Time
1:30 1:45 7:30	9:30	10:30 10:30 10:30	CBS: ABC: NBC:	Evelyn Winters Hymns of All Churches Road of Life
12:45	9:45	10:30 10:45 10:45	MBS:	Married For Life Bachelor's Children
7:45 9:30 8:00	10:10	11:00 11:00	NBC: ABC: NBC:	Joyce Jordan Tom Breneman's Breakfast Fred Waring Show Arthur Godfrey
		11:00 11:15 11:30	CBS: MBS: CBS:	Time to Remember
10:00	10:30	$11:30 \\ 11:30$	ABC: NBC: MBS:	Glibert Martyn Barry Cameron Take It Easy Time Aunt Jenny's Stories Ted Malone
8:45 10:15	10:45 10:45	11:45 11:45 11:45	CBS: ABC: MBS:
8:45 9:00	10:45 11:00	11:45	NBC: ABC: CBS: CBS:	Victor H, Lindlahr David Harum Glamour Manor Kate Smith Speaks
9:15	11:15	12:15		Romance of Helen Trent
	11:30	12:30	CBS: ABC: MBS: CBS:	Club Matinee
9:45			NBC: MBS:	Richard Maxwell, Hymns Our Gal Sunday Maggl's Private Wire Naval Academy Band Life Can Be Beautiful
10:00	12:00 11:15	1:00 1:15 1:15	CBS: MBS: CBS:	Ma Perkins
10:30	12:45	1:40	CBS: CBS: ABC: MBS:	Young Dr. Malone Our Singing Land John J. Anthony Road of Life The Guiding Light The Second Mrs. Burton Ethel & Albert
10:45 11:00 11:00	12:45 1:00 1:00	2:00	CBS: NBC: CBS:	The Guiding Light The Second Mrs. Burton
11:15 11:15 11:15	1:15 1:15 1:15	2:15	ABC: NBC: CBS:	Ethel & Albert Today's Children Perry Mason Smile Time
11:30 11:30	1:30 1:30	2:30	MBS: NBC: CBS:	Rosemary
3:00	1:30	2:30	MBS:	Bride and Groom Queen for a Day Tena & Tim
11:45 12:00	2:00	2:45 3:00 3:00 3:00	NBC: ABC: CBS:	Masquerade Al Pearce Show You're in the Act
12:00	2:00	3:00	MBS:	Woman of America True Confessions
12:30	2:30	2.15	MDC.	Judy Lang, Songs Ladies Be Seated Cinderella, Inc. Pepper Young's Family
12:30	2:30	3:30 3:30 3:45	ABC: CBS: NBC: MBS: NBC:	Remember? Right to Happiness
1:00	3:00	4:00	CBS:	Jack Berch House Party
1:00	3:00	4:00	MBS: NBC: ABC: NBC: MBS:	Erskine Johnson's Hollywoo Backstage Wife Allen Prescott Stella Dallas
1:30		4:15	MBS: CBS:	Johnson Family Sing Along
4:45		4:30	MBS: ABC:	Lorenzo Jones Mutual's Melody Hour Hop Harrigan
2:00	3:45 4:00 4:00	5:00	CBS: ABC:	Young Widder Brown American School of the Air Terry and the Pirates
2:00 2:15 5:15	4:00	5:00 5:00 5:15	NBC: MBS: NBC:	When a Girl Marries Here's How with Peter Hoy Portia Faces Life Dick Tracy
2:15	4:15	5:15 5:15 5:30	ABC: MBS: MBS:	Cantain Midnight
5:30 2:30	4:30	5:30 5:30 5:30	CBS: NBC: NBS: ABC: CBS: ABC: ABC: ABC: ABC: NBS: MBS: ABC: ABC: CBS: NBC: ABC: CBS: NBC: CBS: NBC: CBS: CBS: ABC: CBS: ABC: CBS: ABC: ABC: CBS: ABC: ABC: ABC: ABC: ABC: ABC: ABC: ABC	Jack Armstrong Just Plain Bill Cimarron Tavern
2:45 5:45 5:45	4:45	5:45 5:45 5:45	NBC: ABC: CBS:	Tennessee Jed Sparrow and the Hawk
3:15 3:30	5:15	5:45 6:15 6:15	CBS: MBS: CBS: CBS: CBS: CBS: CBS: CBS: CBS: C	Sketches in Melodies
10:00 8:00 8:00	6.00	6:30 6:45 7:00	CBS: ABC: NBC:	Skyline Roof Cal Tinney Chesterfield Club
8:00 7:30 6:00 8:30	8:00 9:30 6:30 7:00 7:00	7:00 7:30 7:30	CBS: CBS: ABC:	Lanny Ross Bob Hawk Show The Lone Ranger Cavalcade of America
8:30 9:30 8:00	7:00 7:00 7:00	8:00 8:00 8:00	NBC: CBS: ABC:	Cavalcade of America Forever Ernest Lum & Abner Buildog Drummond
8:15 8:30		8:00 8:15 8:30	NBC: CBS: ABC: ABC: CBS: NBC: MBS: ABC: CBS: NBC: NBC: NBC:	Fat Mart Detective Series
8:30 5:30 5:30	7:30	8:30 8:30 8:30	CBS: NBC: MBS	Joan Davis Voice of Firestone Sherlock Holmes I Deal In Crime
6:00 9:00	8:00	9:00	ABC: CBS: NBC	I Deal In Crime Lux Radio Theater The Telephone Hour Real Stories
6:30		9:15 9:30 9:30	MBS: NBC: MBS:	Information Please
6:30 7:00 7:00	9.00	9:30	NBC: MBS: ABC: CBS: NBC: MBS: CBS: NBC: ABC:	Spotlight Bands Paul Whiteman's Orchestra Bill Thompson Show Screen Guild Players
7:00	9:00	10:00	NBC: MBS:	Your Land and Mine
7:30	9:30 9:30	10:30	CBS: NBC:	Lefty Dr. I. Q.
7:30	-	10:30	ABC	Question for America

Tuesday

		Feeter		Baba Time
.D.T.	D.T	E, a ste	rn Uay	light Time
	· U	_
8:00 6:00	9:00 8:00	9:00	ABC: NBC:	Breakfast Club Honeymoon in New York
6:15	2:30	9:15 9:15	CBS: MBS:	Arthur Godfrey Shady Valley Folks
6:45			NBC:	Daytime Classics
8:15 10:30	9:00 9:00	10:00	CBS: ABC:	Valiant Lady
10.30	5:00	10:00	MBS: NBC:	Valiant Lady My True Story Alan Scott
				Lone Journey
8:30	9:15	10:15 10:15 10:15	NBC: CBS: MBS:	Lora Lawton Light of the World Faith in Our Time
2:00	9:30	10:30		Evelyn Winters
1:45		10:30 10:30	CBS: ABC: NBC:	Hymns of All Churches Road of Life
11:30	0.15	10:30	MBS:	Married For Life
7:45	9:45	10:45 10:45	ABC: NBC: MBS:	The Listening Post Joyce Jordan Fun With Music
8:00	10:00	10:45	MBS: NBC:
9:30	10:00 10:00	11:00 11:00 11:00	ABC:	Fred Waring Show Tom Breneman's Breakfast Arthur Godfrey
		11:15 11:30 11:30	MBS:
10:00	10:30	11:30 11:30	CBS:	Elsa Maxwell Gilbert Martyn Time to Remember
		11.30	MBS	Barry Cameron Take It Easy Time Aunt Jenny Stories
8:45 10:15	10:45 10:45 10:45	11:45	ABC	Aunt Jenny Stories Ted Malone
8:45	10:45	11:45 11:45	NBC: MBS ABC: CBS MBS:	Ted Malone David Harum Victor H. Lindlahr
9:00	11:00	12:00 12:00	ABC:	Victor H. Lindlahr Glamour Manor Kate Smith Speaks
			MBS.	Morton Downey Big Sister
9:30	11:15 11:30 11:30	12:30	CBS: CBS:	Romance of Helen Trent
		12:30	ABC: MBS: CBS:	Club Matinee Richard Maxwell, Hymns
9:45	11:45 11:45			Richard Maxwell, Hymns Our Gal Sunday Maggi's Private Wire
10:00	12:00	12:45	MBS: CBS: NBC: CBS:	Command Band Life Can Be Beautiful Sketches In Melody
10:00 10:00 10:15	12:00 12:15	1:00	NBC: CBS:	Sketches in Melody Ma Perkins
	12:30		CBS:	Lunchenn with Loner
	12:45	1:30	L BS:	Smile Time
				Road of Life John J. Anthony Our Singing Land
11:00 2:30	1:00	2:00	ABC: NBC: ABC: CBS: ABC:	Our Singing Land The Gulding Light
11:00	1:00	2:00 2:15 2:15	CBS:	John B. Kennedy, News The Second Mrs. Burton Ethel & Albert
11:15	1:15	2:15	MBS: NBC: CBS: NBC:	Luncheen with Lener
11:15 11:15	1:15	2:15	CBS:	Today's Children Perry Mason
11:30 11:30	1:30			Woman In White Rosemary
3:00	1:30	2:30 2:30 2:30 2:30 2:30	ABC: MBS: CBS: NBC: CBS:	Bride and Groom Queen for a Day Tena & Tim
11:45	1:45	2:45	NBC:	Tena & Tim Masquerade
12:00	2:00	3:00	ADC:	Masquerade You're in the Act Al Pearce Show A Woman of America True Confessions
12:00	2:00		MBS:	A Woman of America True Confessions
12:15 12:30	2:15 2:30	3:15	INDU:	Pepper Young's Family
		3:30 3:30	NBC MBS CBS: ABC NBC ABC CBS
12:30 12:45	2.45	3:30	ABC: NBC:	Cinderella, Inc. Ladies Be Seated Right to Happiness
1:00	2:45 2:45 3:00	4:00	A BC CBS	Jack Berch House Party Backstage Wife
1:00	3:00	4:00	NBC: MBS: NBC:	Backstage Wife Erskine Johnson's Hollywo
1:35	3:15	4:15	NBC:	Stella Dallas The Johnson Family
		4:15	MBC: ABC: NBC:	Allen Prescott
1:30	3:30	4.30	CBS	Sing Along
4:45		4:30	MBS: ABC:	Mutual Melody Hour Hop Harrigan
1:45	3:45	4:45	ABC: NBC: ABC:	Young Widder Brown Terry and the Pirates When a Girl Marries
2:00 2:15 2:15	4:00	5:00 5:00	ABC: NBC: MBS: NBC: ABC:	Here's How with Peter How
2:15	4:15	5:15 5:15	ABC:	Here's How with Peter How Portia Faces Life Dick Tracy
5:30	5:30 4:30	5:15 5:30 5:30	MBS: ABC: NBC: CBS:
2:30	4:30	5:30 5:30	CBS:	Jack Armstrong Just Plain Bill Cimarron Tavern
5:45	5:45	5:30 5:45	MBS: ABC:	Tennessee Jed
2:45	4:45	5:45	MBS: ABC: NBC: CBS: NBC: CBS: ABC: CBS: NBC: CBS: MBS:
3:15	5:15	5:45	MBS: NBC:	Sparrow and the Hawk Tom Mix Jose Bethencourt, Marimba Patti Clayton Cal Tinney
10:00		6:15	CBS:	Patti Clayton Cal Tinney
8:00	8:00 6:00	7:00	CBS:	Lanny Ross Show Chesterfield Supper Club
3:00	6:15	7:15	CBS:	Jack Smith Korn Kobblers
4:30	6:30	7:30	CBS:	American Melody Hour Songs by Warde Donovan
9:00		8:00	CBS:
8:00 8:30	7:00	8:00	CBS: MBS: CBS: NBC: CBS: ABC: NBC: MBS:	Lum 'n' Abner Johnny Desmond, Margai
		8:00 8:30	MBS:	Whiting, Herb Shriner Nick Carter Dark Venture
8:30 5:30 8:30	7:30	8:30	NBC:	A Date With Judy
			CBS:	Theater of Romance Adventures of the Falcon
5:55 8:15	7:30	8:55	CBS: ABC:	Ed Sullivan
6:00	8:00	9:00	CBS: ABC: CBS: NBC: ABC:	Inner Sanctum Amos & Andy Eugenie Baird
0.00				Deal Stories
6:30	8:30	9:30	CBS:	This Is My Best Doctor Talks It Over Fred Waring
10:45 6:30 6:30	8:30 8:30 8:30 8:30	9:30 9:30 9:30 9:30	ABC: NBC: MBS: ABC:	Fred Waring
1:00				Concert Time
7:00		10:00	NBC: CBS: CBS: MBS: NBC CBS: CBS:	Bob Hope Crime Photographer
10:30		10:30	MBS:	Open Hearing Better Half
7:30	9:30	10:30	CBS:	Sigmund Romberg Frontiers of Science Danny O'Nell & Guests
		111:30	CBS	Danny O'Nell & Guests

OPERATIC SINATRA

History's been made a number of times at New York's famous Metropolitan Opera House. But never such history as the night back in March of this year when that staid and stately hall of culture was stormed by thirty-five hundred screaming bobby soxers in pursuit of the Met's newest baritone sensation, Robert Merrill.

Merrill's story is a truly American story Probably it could only happen here. A few short years ago, Robert Merrill was a Brooklyn schoolboy with the dull prospect of joining his father's shoe business. Today at 27, he's been featured on one of radio's leading programs—the RCA Victor Show (Sundays at 4:30 p.m., EDT, NBC)—and made fourteen appearances in one year since his debut at the Met.

Robert's career is no accident. He planned with wisdom and care. An opera fan, he knew how much he suffered whenever a silken-voiced singer moved clumsily on the stage or behaved like a ham. Robert de-cided that learning how to act was almost as important as learning how to use his terrific baritone voice, if he wanted to make a dent in the Opera world. He couldn't afford a dramatic school, nor could he afford to haunt the Broadway producers in the hope of getting some experience on the stage. He did a very good thing-went to the summer resorts, hiring out as a singeractor and general handy man. Summer resorts are, as a rule, very understaffed. Merrill found himself learning not only how to act in dramatic plays, but how to stooge for several lively young men, who have since made a mark in the show world themselves. He played straight man for Danny Kaye one summer and another time for Red Skelton.

All this while, whether he was pitching the fast ones for the baseball team or struggling through a summer's work at the Catskills, Merrill was studying his music and training his voice. When he thought he was ready, he cast the die-he entered the competition for young singers spon-sored by the Metropolitan Opera House. Five hundred other singers had the same idea, but Bob won out. He made his debut in "La Traviata" in December of 1945. Since then, he's built up quite a record for a "freshman," with his fourteen appearances there at the Metropolitan.

Critics predict a fine future for the handsome full-voiced baritone, what with radio, the opera—and it's certain the movies will be making a play for him, soon. He's hit the front pages of many newspapers because of the riot the gal fans pulled at the Met. And they don't stop with such grandiose publicity-making antics, either. A few days ago, Merrill left the studios after a rehearsal, for instance, only to find that he couldn't get into his car without the help of a mechanic. The bobby soxers had removed the handle of his car doorfor a souvenir!

Kay Kyser Sports Review Endorsed by Dorsey David Rose Orchestra Bill McCune's Orchestra Fantasy in Melody

١	۸/۱۸/۱۸/	americanradiohistory con

	Wednesday
	4				light Time
	D.T.	D.T.
	8:00 6:00	8:00 8:00	9:00	ABC: NBC:	Breakfast Club Honeymoon in New York
	6:15	2:30		CBS:	Arthur Godfrey
	8:15	9:30	9:15 10:00	CBS:	Shady Valley Folks Valiant Lady
	6:45		10:00 9:30	NBC: NBC:	Lone Journey Daytime Classics
	10:30	9:00	10:00	ABC:	My True Story Once Over Lightly
			10:15	NBC:	Lora Lawton Faith in Our Time Light of the World
	8:30 2:00	9:15	10:15 10:15 10:30	CBS:
	7:30		10:30	CBS: NBC: MBS:	Evelyn Winters Road of Life Married For Life
	10:45 11:30	9:45 9:40	10:45 10:45	CBS: ABC:	Bachelor's Children The Listening Post
	7:45		10:45 11:00	NBC:	Joyce Jordan
2	8:00	10:00 10:00	11:00	ABC: NBC: CBS:	Tom Breneman's Breakfast Fred Waring Show Arthur Godfrey
•	10.00	10:30		MBS:	Elsa Maxwell
s a	10:00		11:30	ABC: NBC: MBS:	Gilbert Martyn Barry Cameron Take It Easy Time
t			11:20	CD3.	Victor H Lindlahr
d	8:45 10:15	10:45 10:45	11:45 11:45	MBS: CBS: ABC: NBC:	Aunt Jenny's Storles Ted Malone
у -	8:45	10:45	11:45 12:00	NBC: ABC:	Glamour Manor
e	9:00	11:00	12:00	ABC: CBS: MBS:	Kate Smith Speaks Morton Downey
	9:15 9:30	11:15 11:30		MBS: CBS: CBS:	Big Sister Romance of Helen Trent
v		11:30		CBS: ABC: CBS:	Club Matinee
a t	9:45	11:45 11:45 12:00		CBS: NBC: CBS:	Our Gal Sunday Maggi's Private Wire Life Can Be Beautiful
r,	10:15	12:15		CBS: MBS:	Ma Perkins
s v	10:30	12:30 12:45	1:15 1:30 1:45 1:45	CBS	Luncheon With Lopez Young Dr. Malone Road of Life
d	_	12:45	1:45	MBS: ABC: NBC:	John J. Anthony Our Singing Land The Guiding Light
r	11:00 11:00	1:00	2:00	NBC: CBS:	The Guiding Light The Second Mrs. Burton
d	11:15 11:15 11:15	1:15 1:15 1:15	2:15 2:15 2:15	CBS: ABC: NBC: CBS:	The Second Mrs. Burton Ethel & Albert Today's Children Perry Mason
e	11:30	1:30	2:15		Perry Mason Smile Time Rosemary
a e	3:00 11:30	1:30 1:30	2:30	CBS: ABC: NBC: MBS:	Bride and Groom Woman in White
-	11:45	1:45	2:30 2:45 2:45	NBC:	Queen for a Day Tena & Tim Masquerade
t -	12:00 12:00	2:00	3:00	A BC	Al Pearce Show A Woman of America
e		2.15	3:00	CBS:	True Confessions You're In the Act Ma Perkins
t d	12:15	2:15 2:30 2:30	3:15	CBS: NBC ABC	Cinderella, Inc. Pepper Young's Family
e	12:30 12:30		3:30 3:30 3:30 3:30	MBS:	Ladies Be Seated Remember?
e o	12:45 1:00 1:00	2:45 3:00 3:00	3:45 4:00 4:00	NBC: CBS:	Right to Happiness Backstage Wife House Party
-	1:00	3.00	4:00	MBS: ABC:	House Party Erskine Johnson in Hollywoo Jack Berch
- l.		2.45	4:15 4:15	CBS: MBS: ABC: ABC: MBS: NBC: CBS: NBC: MBS: ABC: NBC: ABC:	Beautiful Music The Johnson Family Stella Dallas
v	1:15		4:15	CBS:	Sing Along Club
e e	4:45		4:30	MBS: ABC:	Lorenzo Jones This Is Your Country Hop Harrigan
d	1:45	3:45	4:45	ABC: NBC: ABC: NBC: MBS: NBC: ABC: ABC:	Young Widder Brown Terry and the Pirates When a GIrl Marries
r e	2:00	4:00	5:00 5:00 5:15 5:15	MBS: NBC	Here's How with Peter Howe Portia Faces Life
-	5:15	4:15	5:15 5:15	ABC: MBS:	Dick Tracy Superman Cimarron Tavern
g	5:30	4:30	5:15 5:30 5:30 5:30	ABC	Cimarron Tavern Jack Armstrong Captain Midnight
r e	2:30 2:30 5:45	4:30 4:30 4:30 5:45	5:30 5:45	NBC ABC	Just Plain Bill Tennessee Jed
c t	2:45	4:45	5:45 5:45 5:45	IN BC:	Front Page Farrell The Sparrow and the Hawk Tom Mix
d d	2.20	5:10 5:15 5:15	5:45 6:10 6:15 6:15	CBS	Tom Mix Quincy Howe Waitin' For Clayton Jose Bethencourt, Marimba
-	3:30 3:15	5:15			Jose Bethencourt, Marimba Skyline Roof, Gordon MacRa
e.	10:00		6:45	ABC: ABC:	Skyline Roof, Gordon MacRa Cal Tinney Headline Edition
t	8:00 8:00		7:00 7:00 7:15	NBC:	Lanny Ross Show Chesterfield Supper Club Jack Smith
e a	9:30	6:30 6:30		CBS:	Jack Smith The Korn Kobblers Adventures of Ellery Queen The Lone Ranger
s	6:00 9:00	7:00	8:00	CBS:	The Lone Ranger Jack Carson Show
_	8:00		8:00	MBS:	Jack Carson Show Lum 'n' Abner What's the Name of That Song?
h	9:00 8:30	7:00 7:30 7:30	8:00 8:30	CBS:	Mr. and Mrs. North Dr. Christian Fresh Up Show
S S	8:30 8:30	7:30 7:30 7:30	8:30	ABC:	Fresh Up Show Fishing and Hunting Club Hildegarde
-	8:30 5:55 6:00	7:55	8:55		Rill Henry
t h	6:00	8:00	9:00	NBC:	Frank Sinatra Show Eddie Cantor Real Stories
r.	6:30 6:30		9:30	MBS: CBS ABC: MBS: NBC: ABC:	Bob Crosby Show So You Want to Lead a Band Spotlight Bands
s d	6:30 6:55 7:00	8:30 8:55	9:30	NBC: ABC:	Mr. District Attorney Coronet Front Page News
e	7:00 7:00	9:00	10:00	ABC: CBS. NBC:	Great Moments In Music Kay Kyser
S	7:30	9:30	10:00	ABC: MBS: CBS: MBS: ABC:	Sports Review Endorsed by Dorsey David Rose Orchestra Bill McCune's Orchestra
			10:30	MBS:	Bill McCune's Orchestra Fantasy in Melody

M

Thursday

Eastern Daylight Time 8:00 8:00 μ. 8:00 6:00 9:00 ABC: Breakfast Club 9:00 NBC: Honeymoon in New York 9:15 CBS: Arthur Godfrey 9:15 MBS: Shady Valley Folks 6:15 3:30 9:30 NBC: Daytime Classics 6:45 9:00 10:00 CBS: Vallant Lady 9:00 10:00 ABC: My True Story 10:00 NBC: Lone Journey 10:00 MBS: Once Over Lightly 8:15 10:30 9:15 10:15 NBC: Lora Lawton 9:15 10:15 CBS: Light of the World 10:15 MBS: Faith in Our Time 8:30 10:13 (MBS: Faith in Our Line 9:30 (0:30) NBC: Road of Life 10:30 (CBS: Evelyn Winters 10:30 (CBS: Evelyn Winters 10:45 (CBS: Bachelor's Children 9:45 10:45 (CBS: Bachelor's Children 9:45 10:45 (NBC: The Listening Post 10:45 (NBC: Joyce Jardan 10:45 (MBS: Fun With Music 7:30 12:45 11:30 7:45 10:43 MBS: Fun With Music 11:00 CBS: Arthur Godfrey 9:30 10:00 11:00 ABC: Tom Breneman's Breakfast 8:00 10:00 11:00 NBC: Fred Waring Show Normalian and the set of th 11:15 MBS: Elsa Maxwell's Party Line 11:15 MBS: Elsa Maxwell's Party 10:00 10:30 HS: C: Gilbert Martyn 11:30 NBC: Barry Cameron 11:30 MBS: Take It Easy Time 11:30 CBS: Time to Remember 10:15 10:45 11:45 CBS: Aunt Jenny's Storles 10:15 10:45 11:45 ABC: Tel Malone 8:45 10:45 11:45 NBC: David Harum 11:45 NBB: Victor H. Lindlahr

ALWAYS IN A HURRY.

10

9

10 10

10

11

11

11 12

12

12 12

1

1

Lovely Patti Clayton, of the delicate face and the gray eyes and the fresh, natural voice, is going places very fast these days. She's the star of Waitin' For Clayton (CBS, Monday through Friday, 6:15 P.M., EDT) and featured singer on the Arthur Godfrey show (CBS, Monday through Friday at 9:15 A.M, EDT).

Patti was never very strong as a child and so her interests tended toward the less athletic activities, mainly toward music. At one time her biggest ambition was to play the piano and led to her changing from one high school in Detroit to Cass Technical High, because of the good music courses there. She promptly joined the Harp and Vocal Group at Cass and with the Group she performed at hundreds of teas and social events in and around Detroit. Patti was given quite a few solos to sing with the group—a lucky thing, because it was through this that she won her first professional engagement. At one of the Harp and Vocal teas, when Patti was fifteen, she was invited to sing with a band which had grown out of Cass Tech trained musicians and was playing a date the next Saturday night. Patti was a huge success with the band—she knew all of three numbers by heart—and she earned three dollars for her night's work. But that three dollars made her a professional.

There were more of those dates and then Patti was invited to replace one of the Three Graces. She thought it was a gag and paid no attention, until she got a telegram asking her to fly to Chicago in time for an audition. This all happened in such a hurry that Patti didn't even have time to be frightened. Patti was with the Three Graces, broadcasting mostly from Chicago, for three years. She also did solo work and appeared on shows like the Alka Seltzer Barn Dance and the Carnation Show. Just to make her day nice and full, while all this was going on she sang at the Balinese Room for a year and a half.

That routine got a little heavy for Patti. She needed—and we'd say deserved—a va-cation and Percy Faith put a bee in her bonnet about coming to New York. With Percy's help, Patti auditioned for the singing feature spot in the summer replacement show for Kostelanetz. Patti got the joband a host of other spots on all the major networks. That was in 1944. In 1945, Arthur Godfrey'sat his way through hundreds of recordings made by hopeful singers-until he heard Patti's record. Getting the job with the Godfrey show was a break all around for Patti, because it was through this job that she met her producer-director husband, Ace Ochs. A little less than a year after her Godfrey "break," Patti was launched on her own program. Waitin' For Clayton started out as a twice-aweel or, but was quickly turned into a five--week show because of the big re-

www.americanradiohistory.com

	Friday
n	Daylight Time

			1	uning
÷	1.0	Easter	n Day	light Time
	o l
:00	8:00 8:00	9:00	ABC: NBC:	Breakfast Club Honeymoon in New York
		9:15	CBS: MBS:	Arthur Godfrey Shady Valley Folks
:45		9:30	NBC:	Daytime Classics
:15 :30	9:10 9:00	10:00 10:00 10:00 10:00	CBS: ABC:	Vallant Lady My True Story Lone Journey Once Over Lightly
		10:00	NBC: MBS:	Lone Journey Once Over Lightly
:30	9:15	10:15 10:15 10:15	NBC: CBS:	Lora Lawton Light of the World Faith in Our Time
:00		10:15	MBS:	Faith In Our Time
:55	3.30	10:30 10:30 10:30 10:30	ABC:	Evelyn Winters Betty Crocker Road of Life
:30	0.45	10:30	MBS:	Married for Life Bachelor's Children
:45 :30	9:45	10:45 10:45 10:45 10:45	CBS: NBC:	Joyce Jordan The Listening Post Fun With Music
	5145	10:45	MBS:
:30	10:00	11:00 11:00 11:00	CBS:	Tom Breneman's Breakfast Arthur Godfrey Fred Waring Show
:00	10:00	11:15	MBS:	Elsa Maxwell's Party Line
:00	10:30	11:30	ABC:	Gilbert Martyn Time to Remember
		11:30 11:30 11:30 11:30 11:30	NBC: MBS:	Time to Remember Barry Cameron Take It Easy Time
:45	10:45 10:45 10:45	44.45	CDC.	Aunt Jenny's Stories Ted Malone
:45	10:45	11:45 11:45 11:45 11:45	NBC:	David Harum Victor H. Lindlahr
:00		12:00 12:00	ABC:	Glamour Manor Kate Smith Speaks
	11:15			Blg Sister
:30	11:30	12:15 12:30	MBS: CBS:	Morton Downey Romance of Helen Trent
	11:30	12:30	CBS: ABC: MBS:	Club Matinee Richard Maxwell, Hymns
:45	11:45 11:45	12:45 12:45	MBS: NBC: CBS: MBS:	Maggi's Private Wire Our Gal Sunday
:00	12:00 12:15	12:45	MBS: CBS: CBS:	Romance of Helen Trent Club Matinee Richard Maxwell, Hymns Maggi's Private Wire Our Gal Sunday Judy Lang Life Can Be Beautiful Ma Becking
:15	12:15	12:15 12:30 12:30 12:30 12:45 12:45 12:45 1:45 1:30 1:15 1:30 1:45 1:45 2:00 2:00 2:00 2:15 2:15 2:15 2:15 2:15 2:15 2:30	MBS:	Ma Perkins Luncheon with Lopez Young Dr. Malone Our Singing Land Road of Life John J. Anthony The Guiding Light John B. Kennedy, news The Second Mrs. Burton Today's Children Ethel and Albert Perry Mason Smile Time Rosemary
.30	12:30 12:45	1:45	MBS: CBS: ABC: CBS:	Our Singing Land
:00	1:00	1:45	MBS: NBC:	John J. Anthony The Guiding Light
:00 :30 :00	1:00	2:00	ABC: CBS: NBC: ABC: ABC:	John B. Kennedy, news The Second Mrs. Burton
:15 :15	1:15	2:15	NBC: ABC: CBS:	Today's Children Ethel and Albert
:15	1:15	2:15	MBS:	Smile Time
:30 :00 :30	1:30	2:30	CBS: ABC: NBC	Bride and Groom
:45	1.45	2:30	ABC: NBC: MBS: CBS: NBC: ABC:	Tena & Tim
:45	1:45 2:00	2:45	NBC: ABC: NBC:
:00	2:00	3:00	MBC: MBS:	Al Pearce Show A Woman of America True Confessions Ma Perkins
::15 ::30	2:15 2:30	3:30	CBS:	Ladles, Be Seated Pepper Young's Family
:30	2:30	3:30	NBC: MBS:	Pepper Young's Family Remember?
:45	2:45	3:45	NBC: ABC:	Remember? Right to Happiness Jack Berch House Party
:00	3:00	4:00	MBS:	House Party Erskine Johnson Backstage Wife
.:00	3.00	4:15	ABC: NBC: NBC: CBS: ABC: MBS:	Allen Presentt
;15	3:15	4:15	NBC: CBS:	Stella Dallas Sing Along Club Lorenzo Jones Mutual Melody Hour
:00		4:30	NBC: MBS:	Lorenzo Jones Mutual Melody Hour
:45 :45	3:45	4:45	ABC: NBC:	Young Widdor Brown
i:00 ::00	4:00	5:00	NBC:	Terry and the Pirates When a Girl Marries Here's How with Peter How
:15	4:15	5:15	NBC:	Portia Faces Life Dick Tracy
	4:40	5:15	MBS: CBS:	Superman Cimarron Tavern Captain Midnight
:30		5:30 5:30	MBS: ABC:	Captain Midnight Jack Armstrong
2:30	5:30 4:30 4:45	5:45	NBC:	Jack Armstrong Just Plain Bill Front Page Farrell Sparrow and the Hawk
5:45		5:45	ABC:	Tennessee Jed
:30	5:15	6:00	INCNERSIC CONTRACTOR OF CONTRA	Kiernan's News Corner Waltin' For Clayton Skyline Roof, Gordon MacRa Clem McCarthy Cal Tinney
	5:30	6:30 6:40	CBS: NBC:	Skyline Roof, Gordon MacRa Clem McCarthy
):00 3:00	10:00	6:45	ABC: CBS:	Cal Tinney Lanny Ross Show Chesterfield Supper Club
3:00 3:15		7:15	CBS:	Jack Smith
8:30 5:00	6:30 6:30 7:00	7:30	CBS:	Ginny Simms Show
9:00	7:00	8:00 8:00	CBS: ABC: CBS: NBC:	Ginny Simms Show The Lone Ranger The Aldrich Family High ways in Melody Paul Lavalle
				Paul Lavalle Passport to Romance
8:00 8:30 8:30		8:00	MBS: ABC: ABC: NBC: CBS:	This is Your FBI
9:30	7:30	8:30	CBS: MBS:	Passport to Romance Woody Horman Show This is Your FBI Duffy's Tavern Kate Smith Sings So You Think You Know
5:55	7:55
9:00	8:00	9:00	CBS: ABC: NBC:	Alan Young Show People Are Funny
6:30			MBC: ABC: CBS:	The Sheriff
6:30 6:30	8:30	9:30	MBS:	Durante & Moore Spotlight Bands Waltz Time Coronet Front Page News
6:30			MBS: NBC: ABC: ABC:	Coronet Front Page News Boxing Bouts
7:00	9:00	10:00	MBS: NBC: CBS: MBS:	Boxing Bouts Your Land and Mine Mole Mystery Theater Danny Kaye Show Take These Notes
7:00	9:00	10:00	CBS: MBS:	Danny Kaye Show Take These Notes
		C. L. Finald	Aler International	THE REAL PROPERTY AND INCOMENTAL OFFICE

Saturday

1		Easte	rn Day	light Time
		8:15	CBS: NBC:	Phil Cook Richard Leibert, Organist
P.D.T.	Ξ.		CBS: ABC:	Missus Goes A-Shopping Musical Novelty Group
9.1	C.D
8:30			CBS: ABC:	Margaret Arlen Wake Up and Smile
6:15	8:15 8:15	9:15 9:15	NBC: CBS:	Home is What You Make It The Garden Gate
6:15			CBS: NBC:	Carolina Calling Fashions In Melody
		9:45	NBC:	A Miss and a Male
9:00 11:30	11:30	10:00 10:00 10:00	ABC: CBS:	Galen Drake Give and Take
7:00	9:00	10:00 10:00	MBS: NBC:	Give and Take Albert Warner Elleen Barton Show
9:15		10:15 10:30	ABC:	Club Time
11:00	9:30	10:30	MBS: CBS: NBC:	Rainbow House Mary Lee Taylor Adventures of Archie Andrews
4:30			NBC: ABC: MBS:	Adventures of Archie Andrews Teen Town
	10:00		ABC: NBC:	Southern Harmonizers Harry Kogen's Orchestra
4:30 8:05			NBC: CBS:	Teentimers Club Let's Pretend
		11:15	ABC:	Bible Message
9:45		11:30 11:30	MBS: ABC: CBS:	Land of the Lost Betty Moore Billie Burke Show
		11:30	NBC:	Smiling Ed McConnell
9:30	11:00	11:45 12:00	ABC: CBS:	Note From a Diary Theater of Today
	11:15	12:00 12:15	MBS: NBC:	House of Mystery Consumer Time
	11:30	12:30	CBS	Stars Over Hollywood
9:30	11:30	12:30	ABC: NBC: MBS:	American Farmer Music for Saturday Snow Village Sketches
10.00		1:00	NBC:
10:00 10:00 10:00	12:00	1:00	CBS: ABC: MBS:	National Farm & Home Hour Grand Central Station To Live in Peace Opry House Matinee
			ABC: CBS: NBC:	Hank D'Anico's Orchestra County Fair The Veteran's Aid
10:30 10:00	12:30
			NBC: ABC:	Edward Tomlinson Chicago Seranade
11:15	1:00	2:00	ABC: NBC: CBS:	Your Host is Buffalo
		2:15	MBS:	Adventures in Science Don McGrove's Orchestra
		2:30	NBC: MBS: ABC:	The Baxters U. S. Marine Band Hill Toppers
			NBC: ABC:	Stories by Olmstead Melodies to Remember
	-			SInfonietta
		3:00	MBS: CBS: NBC: ABC:	Assignment Home Orchestras of the Nation Piano Playhouse
		3:30	ABC:	Roundup Time
			CBS: ABC:	Cross Section AFL Roundup Time
		4:15	MBS: MBS:	Duke Ellington Tex Fletcher's Orchestra
			MBS: MBS: NBC:	George Berry's Orchestra
2:15		4:30	NBC: ABC:	Doctors at Home Saturday Concert
		5:00 5:00	ABC: NBC: MBS:	Phone Again Finnegan Sports Parade
2:30	4:40	5:30 5:30	NBC: MBS:	John W. Vandercook Gray Gordon's Orchestra
3:30	4:45	5:45 5:45	ABC: NBC:	Charles Jordan Tin Pan Alley of the Air
3:15	5:15	6:15	CBS:	American Portrait
	5:30	6:30 6:30	ABC: MBS: CBS:	Harry Wismer, Sports Los Angeles Symphonic Band
3:45				American Portrait Labor, U. S. A. Rellgion in the News
3:45	5:45 6:00	7:00	NBC:	Our Foreign Policy
4:00		7:00	MBS: ABC: CBS:	Hawaii Calls Voice of Business
	1		CBS: ABC:	Academy Award Correspondents Abroad
9:30	6:30	7:30	ABC: NBC:	Green Hornet
4:30	4:30	7:30	CBS: MBS:	Jimmy Edmondson Tony Martin I Was a Convict
8:00	7:00		CBS:	The Dick Haymes Show
8:30 8:00	7:00	8:00	CBS: MBS: NBC: ABC:	20 Questions Life of Riley Dick Tracy
8:30 8:30	7:30	8:30	ABC:
8:30	7:30	8:30	ABC: CBS: MBS: NBC:	Famous Jury Trials Mayor of the Town Harry Savoy Show Truth or Consequences
5:55	7:55	8:55	CBS:	Ned Calmer
9:00	8:00	9:00	MBS: CBS: NBC: ABC:	Leave It to the Girls Your Hit Parade National Barn Dance
6:00 9:00	8:00			Gang Busters
6:30 6:30	8:30	9:30 9:30 9:30	NBC: MBS: ABC:	Can You Top This? Jonathan Trimble, Esq. Boston Pops Orchestra
6:30	8:45	9:45	CBS:	Saturday Night Serenade
7:00	9:00	10:00 10:00	MBS: NBC:	Theater of the Air Judy Canova
7:15	7:15	10:15	CBS:	Celebrity Club
7:30	9:30	10:30	NBC: BC	Grand Cle fipry Haxiali Heedowa

R M

A Day to Remember

(Continued from page 23)

boys are coming home, and what kind of country they'll find when they do get here. And you must admit they have grounds, Father Barker. With misery and starvation all over the world, and uncertainty and unrest even in this country—"

"There's always that after a war, "There's always that after a war, prue. There's always a period of adjustment, when people begin to fuss about things they didn't even notice when the fighting was on. You were pretty young at the time of the last war, but you remember something of what it was like, and you should have heard the talk after the Spanish-American— Why, you'd have thought the end of the world was at hand!" "You can't blame them sometimes,"

"You can't blame them sometimes," said Prudence, thinking of Sylvia. "There are times when everything presses in upon you, and there's no chance of things coming right—"

"NONSENSE! Hope does it, and faith. They're everything. I'm surprised, Prue—you've never been lacking in them yourself. Why, without faith and without hope, we wouldn't be here. The town wouldn't be here, the country wouldn't be here. Now I'm going to sleep. Tell Tommy I'll see him at breakfast."

Thoughtfully, Prudence went down the hall to her own room. What Gramps had said was true: she had never been lacking in faith—nor in hope, either, until recently. Until Walter... What was the phrase that had occurred so often in her greatgrandmother's diary—something about faith taking up where hope left off? It seemed suddenly important to find it. She took the diary from its place in

She took the diary from its place in the drawer of her desk, settled herself comfortably in the slipper chair beside the window—and rose again, conscience-stricken. She had forgotten Tommy; she had promised him— Almost immediately she was reassured by the slam of the kitchen door, and she looked out the window to see Tommy round the corner of the house, race down the street to join the other boys. She smiled, telling herself that she might have known that Tommy hadn't wanted her to help with his cannon. It wasn't the assembling of the cannon that was half so important as the fun of doing it with Gramps.

She sat down again, began to turn the crowded yellowed pages. History was written here, told in the simple terms of every-day living, by a woman who had been first of all a wife and a mother. Prudence doubted that her great-grandmother had thought of herself as a public figure, as a career woman. In bringing the Dane caravan westward to the site that was to become Danesville, in building her home and founding the Danesville Courier, she was simply carrying out the plans that her husband had made before he died.

Faith and hope—it was here somewhere . . And then a date leaped out at her. "July 4th, 1866." Why, that was another Fourth of July! Eighty years ago. . . Prudence began to read, idly at first,

Prudence began to read, idly at first, then with concentrated attention. July 4th, 1866

I am very tired tonight. Perhaps I should not try to write at all, but I feel that this day should be marked in some way, if only in these pages. It is

www.americanradiohistorv.com

ville—the first Independence Day we have spent in any sort of town since we left our home back East. Of course, Danesville can hardly be

Of course, Danesville can hardly be called a town, not while it is only a trading post and a few rough cabins, including my own, and a few stakes riven to mark the streets and the homesites that are to be. I wonder now, if we had known last fall, when we first stopped here, what our position would be this summer, would we have had the courage to stay? And I wonder, too, if we should have urged even insisted—that the other half of our caravan remain with us instead of going on to Oregon. Some of them could have been persuaded, I think, and because those of us who wanted to stay were in the majority, even though it was a very small majority, we would have been within our rights to refuse to give them supplies for their journey out of the common store. And yet, I still feel that God's will—and John's—was done when we let them go. If we had tried to force them to stay, we would have been denying one of the precepts upon which this country was founded—the belief in man's right to exercise his own free will. For lack of hands and supplies, our present situation is precarious in the extreme. We can get along nicely so long as fortune is with us, but it would take very little in the way of bad luck to ruin us. We have known it all along, but the fact was driven home to us today, when for a little while it looked as though Danesville's first Independence Day would also be its last.

We had planned a parade for the afternoon. The children were to march with the flag down the wagon track between the smithy and the trading post that we call Main Street, and the grown-ups were to line up on either side and cheer. Not much of a parade, with a fiddle and guitar subtituting for a fife-and-drum corps, but we wanted something to remind the children of the Fourth and all it means. We wanted it for ourselves, too, as a kind of link between the Independence Days we knew at home and the grander ones we will have here when Danesville is a real town.

E VERYONE stopped work at noon, and we had our midday meal. We were all outside, waiting for the parade to begin, when the sky darkened and the wind rose. We looked up, not altogether disappointed, because the last two weeks had been hot and dry, and we needed rain, and we laughed as the first scattered drops fell and someone drawled, "Well, now-didn't it always rain on the Fourth of July?"

Then there was something else—a spattering of little hard white pellets that froze the very hearts in our breasts. Hail. No one moved. No one thought to break for shelter—not even the children. The littlest of them knew the ruin hail meant.

the ruin hail meant. And then the hail stopped, as unexpectedly as it had begun. The rain began to fall gently, steadily, and the brief, freak hailstorm was over. We were safe. A woman—Mary Leavitt said shakily, "Shall—shall we pray?" We looked at her, and then grizzled, rough-spoken old Tom Hatfield exclaimed hoarsely, "I been prayin'. I'm prayed out."

Ve all know (Continued to more 56)

HOSPITAL STAFF ASSISTANT—Early in the war Joy volunteered as Hospital Staff Assistant. "It's desk work that is very, very human" she says. Hospitals still are in desperate need of volunteers. Go to your local hospital and help.

Enga

SHE USES POND'S!

Her ring, seven diamonds set in platinum

When she was just a little girl, Joy Thomas used to watch Jackie Dale play tennis, and ardently admired his skill.

Now, she's a tall, slim, golden girl happily wearing his beautiful ring. Another Pond's engaged girl with the soft-smooth witchery of an especially lovely complexion.

"I'm ever so keen about Pond's Cold Cream to keep my face looking nice and feeling soft and smooth to touch," Joy says. "Pond's is really a grand cream."

Joy uses Pond's Cold Cream like this: Smooths the silky, white cream

Her beauty is gold and rose-aristocratic as an exquisite Venetian painting.

A few of the many Pond's Society Beauties: Mrs. Anthony J. Dnexel, II

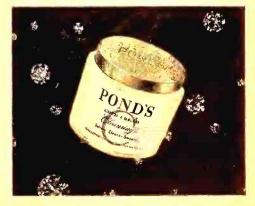

Joyanne Barrett Thomas to wed former Air Corps Pilot

DAUGHTER OF MR. AND MRS. DAVID THOMAS II, CHESTNUT HILL, PA., ENGAGED TO JOHN A. H. DALE

-and pats well to soften and release dirt and make-up. Tissues off.

Rinses with another Pond's creaming, circling cream-coated fingers around her face in little spirals. Tissues again, "It makes my face feel extra clean, extra soft," she says.

Pond's your face her twice-over way—in the morning when you get up, and again at bedtime. Use Pond's Cold Cream for daytime freshen-ups, too. It's no accident so many more women use Pond's than any other face cream at any price.

Ask for a big luxury size jar of Pond's today.

www.americanradiohistory.com

OF COURSE YOU CAN.

GO IN SWIMMING...

WITH TAMPAX:

WHY ENVY OTHERS at that certain time of the month? You can wear Tampax in the water on sanitary-protection days and no one will be the wiser! This summer at any popular beach, you are almost sure to find many women who go in swimming on "those days"-wearing Tampax without any hesitation whatever.... There is nothing about Tampax in the slightest degree embarrassing (or offending) under bathing suits wet or dry. WORN INTERNALLY, Tampax discards belts, pins, outside pads — everything that can possibly "show." Perfected by a doctor, Tampax is made of highly absorbent cotton compressed in modern applicators for dainty insertion. The hands need never touch the Tampax. No odor forms. There is no chafing with Tampax. Changing is quick and disposal easy.

COMES IN 3 SIZES (Regular, Super, Junior). Sold at drug stores and notion counters in every part of the countrybecause millions of women are now using this newer type of monthly sanitary protection. A whole month's supply will go into your purse. The Economy Box holds four months' supply (average). Tampax Incorporated, Palmer, Mass.

(Continued from page 54) what he meant, and we all felt exactly as he did. We'd been praying, too, with everything that was in us, and we were now so deeply thankful that no words could have expressed our gratitude. The rain stopped around six, but our parade was spoiled, and so was the dancing we'd planned for tonight—the ground was too soft and wet. We did ground was too soft and wet. We did barbecue the game the Piutes had brought us—our Indian neighbors have been more Christian than many a man who goes to church on Sundays-but it was a quiet celebration, with little of jokes and laughter. We had been brought close to the edge of things that afternoon, and we were thinking how little it would take to finish us. A poor crop, the failure of a wagon train to come through the one carryon that come through ... the one caravan that had come by this spring had brought so little of the supplies we needed. "The war," they'd explained. "Nothing's been like it used to be, since the war. Can't get anything nowadays, and everything is sky-high.

I am still shaky as I write this. Never has John's dream of a town seemed so far from being realized. All I can think to myself, over and over again, is that it must be realized, some way, in spite of everything, that we must survive, that our children must be safe and well-fed and sheltered. This is all. I am tired, and I will be up early in the morning. The yellow currants are ready for canning. . . .

CLOCK chimed deep in the silent A house. Prudence put the diary back in the desk and began to dress. She went downstairs, set about mixing the upside-down cake, preparing breakfast, with her mind less on the tasks at hand than on the yellowed pages she had just read.

Why hadn't she seen them before, she wondered—and if she had seen them, why hadn't she remembered them? It was one of the most troubled passages she had found in the diary an almost despairing passage; it was hard to believe that the high-hearted, indomitable woman who had been the first Prudence Dane had written it. And yet, having read it, she felt close to the other Prudence as never before. The first Prudence had lived in a country only recently unsettled by war; she had been faced with the same problems-the support of her children, the building of the life she wanted for her community and for herself. She had gone on—"canning her currants," Prudence recalled with a little smilewhen she had little but her own staunch spirit to carry her. And she had won out. The proof of it was all around, solidly expressed in the brick and mor-tar of the thriving city that was Danesville today. Gramps was right, Pru-dence thought, about hope and faith . . . when you had them, you had almost everything. "Oh, Walter," she whispered. And then, "I am ashamed—" Because that must be part of her faith, too—her love for Walter, his love for her. They had already gained so much by just know-ing each other, working tegether ing each other, working together . . . how could she have thought, even for a moment, that only misery would come of it? Perhaps they could never be to-gether as they were in her dreams, but they could hope for it, work toward it. And even if they could never be wholly each other's, they still shared something fine and strong and lasting that would make—had already made—their lives better and richer than ever be-fore. There was something to be said for being able to extract good out of a situation that didn't seem to offer any!

HER household was waking up. She heard Gramps whistling upstairs; Sylvia came into the kitchen just as Prudence was opening the oven door to look at the cake. She sniffed ap-preciatively, came over to kiss Pru-dence. "Good morning, Moms. My, that smells wonderfull" that smells wonderful! Prudence laughed.

"You must be

"I am." She began to count out oranges for juice. "I'm sorry I was such a dreary-puss. I don't know what got into me—" "Well, I guess we all sometimes-She stopped as Gramps appeared in the doorway, Linda at his side. Under one arm he carried the box that held Tom-my's cannon. "We're all set," he an-nounced. "Where's Tommy?" nounced.

They looked all set, the old man and the little girl. Their faces shone a little from soap and water, and they both wore the same expression—the bright, intent look of a child bent upon play. "Down the street," Prudence an-swered. "In front of the Sieverson's, I think. Linda, honey, don't you think a sweater would be a good idea? It's still so chilly out." Linda shook her shining head. "Oh, no More The sup is weare the no, Moms. The sun is warm. It's really morning now, isn't it?"

Prudence stooped to hug her. "It's really morning," she agreed happily.

Acce ted for Advertising

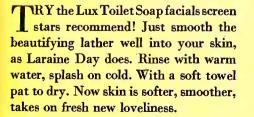

B

"Be Lovelier Tonight!"

"My Beauty Facials bring quick new Loveliness"

raineD

Lovely star of METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER PICTURES Soon to be seen in R.K.O.'s "What Nancy Wanted"

Don't let neglect cheat you of Romance. Be lovelier-tonight!

In recent tests of Lux Toilet Soap facials by skin specialists, actually 3 out of 4 complexions improved in a short time!

fresh new beauty that wins Romance !

FIGHT WASTE Lux Toilet Soap uses vital materials. Don't waste it!

9 out of 10 Screen Stars use Lux Toilet Soap

FOR YOUR HAIR

LOVELY BONITA GRANVILLE

Featured in Monogram's SUSPENSE," a King Brothers Production

> Of course, Kay Daumit's sensational new Lustre-Creme gives an amazing shampoo-makes hair fastidiously clean-rinses out so quickly. But ... this wonderful new product is more than a shampoo—it's truly a "hair cosmetic."

> You see, Lustre-Creme contains secret ingredients that bring out the true hidden radiance of your hairthat discipline your hair so it stays well-groomed throughout a busy day -or all evening long. Look charming, feel charming-with a chic new har-do that stays lovelier longer. Try this different cosmetic — Kay Daumit's Lustre-Creme; it's approved by Good Housekeeping Institute.

> The whole family prefers Lustre-Creme—once they try it. That's why we're offering this sensational new product in the big, economical, fam-ily-size one-pound jar at $3.50—as well as the regular 4-ounce size at $1.00. Ask for Lustre-Creme at department store cosmetic counters and at all good drug stores.

Here's proof! This coupon and 25c will bring you a triol-size of Lustre-Creme. Money back if it doesn't pleose you. Name

Address Post Office State

MAIL WITH 25c TO KAY DAUMIT

Lustre-Creme SHAMPOO Dept. MF-7, 540 No. Michigon Ave., Chicogo (11)

R

М

Start Young, Stay Young

(Continued from page 8)

food sources of Vitamin A, enough to account for the content of at least three vitamin pills.

But the important thing is this: pars-ley, watercress and broccoli also con-tain Vitamin C, as well as certain trace minerals which the skin needs to make use of Vitamin A.

There's an important story encom-passed in those last few words: for Vitamin A, alone all by itself, may not be of much use to the epithelial cells of your skin. Vitamins are of value to you only when certain enzymes (catalysts) act together with them. Certain minerals are essential to this process, too. That's why foods may work, when vitamin pills won't, and that's why the old-time herb sellers were held in great esteem for some two thousand years. Basically, many of their formulas had merit.

Even in the middle ages, we find the mistress of the castle versed in the art of herb growing. She personally super-intended the growing of parsley, wa-tercress, broccoli, and various other greens which were reputed to be beauty aids. Thus, these once treasured herbs became common vegetables, and human nature being what it is, familiarity bred contempt.

Well, that was the big mistake, for these foods are still rich in Vitamin A and the needed catalytic minerals. They will still help you to have a better-textured, lovelier skin. Use them as salads, side dishes, and make them part of your daily fare. They will help to make you fair, too.

And, by way of a guide, here are some tasty dishes that will help to give you the kind of a skin you "love to touch."

Broccoli with a touch of Hollandaise Escarole salad with French dressing Dandelion salad

Swiss chard with a touch of onion Kale ditto

Deep green lettuce Sprinkle parsley on any suitable foods. Green and red peppers any style Apricots for dessert

Deep-colored peaches

Carrots, especially when sprinkled with parsley

AND FOR SUMMER

There's nothing that puts good looks and good grooming to a severer test than does the heat of summer. For, wonderful though the summer sun is, botanically and otherwise, it wills your make-up, wilts your clothes, it whis your make-up, wilts your clothes, to say nothing of your spirit. To look cool, waterlily fresh when everyone else is sobbing about the temperature, wincing under sunburn, mopping his brow and looking beaten in gonoral is a very neat trick indeed in general, is a very neat trick indeed, but it can be done.

First of all you take to water like a duck, every chance you get. You revel in it and two baths a day. One can be the real cleansing job with lavish amounts of soap and the second just a refresher. And pat, don't rub yourself dry, for strong arm use of your towel will only stir up circulation. And towel will only stir up circulation. And lean over backwards to avoid all traces of underarm odor. Frequent use of a deodorant and anti-perspirant is a year round must but in summer lots of us need it daily. You might keep two types of deodorant on hand—one a times helps to switch around for extra effectiveness.

Between showers or baths during summer's too too sticky days, you can get a quick refresher from skin tonic stored in your refrigerator—or water cooler at the office. The cold storage treatment for lipsticks in summer is a fine idea too. Cold, your lipstick gives a firmer outline to your mouth and somehow or other seems to last longer without runny smearing. Summer calls for a lighter touch with make-up foundation. Many girls who like the creamier types of foundation in winter love the pancake or oil-free liquid type in summer.

For the outward illusion of coolness, short, well-brushed hair gives the right look. The simpler the hair style, the easier its care. For your scalp perspires too and twice weekly shampoos are usually in order during the summer. And have occasional oil treatments during the hot months to counteract the drying effect of too much sun and salt water swims.

For the sake of the cool look, it would be fun if some courageous woman brought about the return of parasols. With our clothes becoming less tailored in line, ruffly sunshades would be mighty cute. And wouldn't it be fun to carry a dainty fan—at least on special occasions?

To look cool to the eye and feel cool too, nothing is fresher than a cotton dress, carefully chosen. Of course no girl in her right mind would wear one to an office which was obviously meant for the beach, kitchen or garden. But today—Allah be praised, cottons are being styled as carefully as silk or dress-up rayon. They can go to an office, a tea party or cocktail date as smartly as you please.

Practical and smart as dark shades are for wear in town, you look and feel cooler in the lighter, sun-reflect-ing shades. But whatever your taste in clothes, be fanatical about their care. You look wilted if your dress needs pressing badly and if white touches aren't quite white. Actually summer clothes need refreshing as much as you do, so treat them to soap and water or a good dry-cleaning before it's absolutely necessary.

Daisy Bernier, who sings with Fred Waring, has the most foolproof answer to the problooking cool and lovely in the sun em of fondled—she went out and found 6 feet of man...

She goes Wolfie ... to show him the kind of Kissing he's Missing /

h, Man.

UNIVERSAL presents

George Lucille BRENT BALL Vera ZORINA

with CHARLES WINNINGER

A FESSIER-PAGANO PRODUCTION

CARL ESMOND RAYMOND WALBURN ELISABETH RISDON LOUISE BEAVERS WALLACE FORD FRANKLIN PANGBORN

> Original Screenplay Written and Produced by Michael Fessier and Ernest Pagano A SEITER Exemplity Producer: HUWARD RENEDUCT

> > www.americanradiohistory.com

Take Your Partner

(Continued from page 43)

ward if we wanted to talk about America."

"And you went up?" I prompted. "I went up and I told 'em about playing for the boys, and Hezzie, I guess it was, said if they weren't careful I'd be cheating them out of a job. I guess I kind of laughed at that—all the boys had been telling me I'd be on the radio when I got back home—but then I looked at those guys, and I didn't laugh any more. I knew they were fellows who'd started out just like me -and now they were in the big timeand I knew I could get there, too.

"Oh, I know you can, Tex," I breathed. "I know you can." His eyes were shining now, and the dreams were there, dancing right around in his eyes. "Do you think I can?"

can?" he asked. "Sure," I encouraged, "didn't they hear you over there?"

"W ELL," he explained, frowning a little, "one night after the show we all stood around and sang back-stage for awhile, and I played and the guys all chimed in, and Gil, I think, or maybe it was Gabe said I should be sure and drop in at the theater here when I got back."

"This is going to mean something, I know," I told him. "This string of events—why, it's just like a chain leading to something. Maybe you'll be famous, and—and—"

He didn't ever realize that my voice trailed off. He wasn't even listening, so it didn't matter that my dreams were fading, too. He didn't see that my happiness had dimmed when I thought of his reaching for the stars and going to the top alone. Because I wouldn't be with him—Not when he was a star —because I wasn't part of that group

-because I wasn't part of that group -not really. "Did they tell you you could have an audition?" I asked him softly. "Next Saturday afternoon, right after dress rehearsal! Ken left word at the box office tonight." "That's wonderful," I told him. "I think that's grand."

I began to think of the practical side of this problem. That was my early training cropping out, you see. You can't grow up in a family of six kids in a crowded apartment over a Chicago grocery store without having to think about money. And I suppose I felt maternal, too. I suppose I wanted to know that Tex was all right.

"Are you going to stay here another whole week just waiting for an audi-tion?" I asked.

"Don't you think I'm going to make " Tex asked quickly. "Don't you it?" Tex asked quickly. "Don't you thing I'm good enough?" "Oh, I know you are, Tex—it isn't that—it's just that I—well, hotels are expensive, and food, and—everything." "I'm not staying in an expensive room," he told me, "and I've got a job room," he told me, "and I've got a job waiting on table down the street here for my meals—and I want to see Chicago, anyway." "You're awfully smart, Tex," I told him. And I was telling him what I really thought. Tex was going about getting this job just the way I would have done. He was willing to stick around and wait, but he wasn't spend-ing any money foolishly while he did it ing any money foolishly while he did it. I sucked at my straw until there wasn't any a a little noise in the w americanradiohistor wasn't anything to do but go home. And I didn't want to go home-but finally, I had to say something.

"I have to take my street car across the street over there," I explained. "I guess maybe I'd better be going." "You care if I ride out on the car with you?" Tex asked me. "I haven't been any place except in the loop." We got on the south-bound car to

We got on the south-bound car together, and we couldn't find a seat, and we had to stand in a jostling crowd, so we couldn't even talk to each crowd, so we couldn't even talk to each other, but that didn't matter either. We just stood there, glad to be to-gether. Once we lurched around a corner and I swayed against Tex and our hands touched. I guess maybe I didn't take it away, not for a minute or so, anyway. We liked each other, and we both knew it and we were happy we both knew it, and we were happy in our knowledge.

Tex kissed me that night as we stood in the dark little hall which led up the stairs to the apartment where I lived. It was a very quick little kiss, a nice one and very sweet. It was just kind of a brush of a kiss, but it was something I could treasure—it was a foundation for my dreams. "Goodnight, Tex," I whispered.

"Till see you next Saturday after-noon," he said. A wistful note came into his voice as he added with a little laugh, "Will you keep your fingers crossed?"

"I'll even pray," I answered truthfully. "You know what," he said, touching my cheek very softly, "if I make the grade, maybe we can see a lot of each other—being in the same show and everything."

I felt conscience-stricken again and I blurted out suddenly, "There's some-thing I've got to tell you, Tex—you see, I'm no star—I'm nobody—I'm just an—" an

But he wouldn't listen. "That's what I like about you. That modesty," he said. "I think it's marvelous.

But, Tex-

"Goodnight," he said, as he left the door, "goodnight, honey."

THAT "honey" kept me silent and stayed with me as I went up the stairs and undressed and lay down in the dark beside my sister in the little back bedroom. It was still with me

"He does like me—I know he does." I began to count the days until Satur-day—until time for me to see him again.

I knew that Tex wouldn't call me before the audition. I knew that he had to prove himself on that show first. I wanted him to make the grade for the National Barn Dance so much that I prayed and cried a little and tried a lot of funny little schemes in my head all that week. On the way home from all that week. On the way home from church that next morning I said to myself, "If that blue car passes me be-fore I get to the next telephone pole, he'll get on that show." And, of course, I slowed down and let it pass me. I helped Tex that way, I thought. Silly, wasn't it? The way a woman in love always acts is silly unless you're love always acts is silly unless you're the woman. Or I'd say to myself, "If I can get across the street before the light changes, he'll be all right-he'll

-with "Make-up" for your hair!

Gleaning Highlights Plus Flattering Color Effects

Complement your coloring . . . No matter what color your hair may be, one of the 12 smart Marchand's Rinse shades is just right for the effect you want to achieve. For example, you can highlight and brighten your natural hair color . . . or by using a different rinse shade, you may add an attractive coppery sheen.

Make the most of your hair . . . This modern hair cosmetic not only adds lustrous highlights and accents your natural hair coloring, but certain of the Marchand Rinses may be used to blend gray streaks in with your original shade.

Absolutely harmless, too . . . that's Marchand's Rinse. Not a bleach — not a permanent dye this rinse is made with Government-approved colors. It's as safe to use as lemon or vinegar . . . and does so much more for your hair!

After your next shampoo . . . dissolve a package of Marchand's Make-Up Hair Rinse in warm water and brush or pour it through your hair. Almost instantly, all trace of dulling soap film vanishes. Your hair is easier to manage, alive with new color; you're prettier than ever.

beat the light and win again. I always won in my little games with myself, but even with my little schemes on my side, I felt uneasy, afraid. I was in love for the first time in my life, and I wanted the man who lived in my heart to be happy.

I guess maybe that's why I thought about Lulu Belle. Anyone can tell that Lulu Belle's happy just by look-ing at her up there on the stage every Saturday, just by hearing her sing with Sective who's here her hushand since Scotty, who's been her husband since 1935. They both seem to shine with happiness. People call them the singhappiness. People call them the sing-ing sweethearts, you know, and that isn't just publicity. Scotty and Lulu Belle are sweethearts. I know—be-cause I've gone to their pleasant home lots of times to stay with their little boy and girl, Stevie and Linda Lou. A home reflects happiness—I know it does. There's a kind of song in the air at the Wiseman's even when no-body's singing.

body's singing.

I had my second proof of Fate's med-dling that week, when Lulu Belle called to see if I could stay with her children on Thursday night. I'd been wanting to talk with her and this was

I got to their house early on purpose, and Lulu Belle did just what I hoped she would do. She called downstairs in her warm, friendly voice and said, "Come on up, Janie, and watch me tuck my chickens in."

ALWAYS like to see Lulu Belle with her children. She's so gay and happy and vital that she just radiates warmth and love and all the things a mother and love and all the things a mother should be. This night she was dressed to go out with Scotty. She looked won-derful, and I told her so. "You're so pretty," I said. "So slender and tall--" "I'm not standing in a hole in the ground," Lulu Belle said and laughed. She was thanking me and putting me at my ease with a little joke on her-self. I liked her very much and that's why I said, after she had dimmed the lights in the rooms with the children, "Lulu Belle, can I ask you something?" I didn't have to tell her what was the matter with me. She just looked at me and said, "Why, honey, you're in love." I smiled, and I blushed, I guess, and I smiled, and I blushed, I guess, and then I whispered, "I know—I am." "Do you want to tell me who it is?" That was like Lulu Belle, too—not asking for any more than I wanted to tell her. Just waiting there, ready to listen to what I wanted to say. "It's a boy the Hoosier Hot Shots met overseas," I confided. "A tall, won-derful person—who came back—and wants to get on the National Barn Dance. He plays a guitar." "If he's got it, he'll get on," Lulu Belle said, and there was sympathy in her eyes. "If he hasn't got it—why, you know we've got a lot of listeners out there—" you know we've got a lot of listeners out there—" "Oh, I know," I said. "I know you can't help him if he doesn't have what it takes. It's a break for him to have an audition on a Saturday." "Is he going to sing for the fellows Saturday?" "After dress rehearsal," I said. "You want to be there?" Lulu Belle asked.

asked. "Oh, Lulu Belle—you know I do," I "He might not make it," she warned.

"That might be pretty hard for him." "I know," I said. "And if he doesn't it will be—" my voice trailed off.

from DRUDGERY

A married woman's life can't always be 'a bowl of cherries. But it needn't be just a tub of dirty clothes.

The up-to-date housekeeper tries to find a happy medium between work and play. And on washday, her happy medium is apt to be Fels-Naptha Soap.

To the safe and thorough cleansing assured by good, mild soap, Fels-Naptha adds the faster, dirt-loosening action of gentle naptha. This labor-saving team can bring relief from the long, tiring hours of ordinary washdays.

BANISHES

AUGMAUHA

SDAD

SHIPS

Why don't you do your wash the easier, quicker Fels-Naptha way? Remember - all work and no play makes Jill a dull companion, too.

Fels-Naptha Soap

you," Lulu Belle said softly. "I guess that's what a woman's for. And any-way, if you're there, he'll try all the harder."

Lulu Belle is awfully smart—just naturally smart. Scotty's smart, too— with a quiet kind of wisdom. Scotty with a quiet kind of wisdom. Scotty went to college and knows all the things a quiet, gentle man knows when he reads a lot and studies. But Lulu Belle, well, she's the kind of smart you are when you don't need a book-when you can pick things out of the air. And she was smart about Tex, and about me. Because what she said was true. Tex did try harder than anyone ever tried on a stage—ever—when he sang for the gang on Saturday. And all of the time that he was singing his heart out on that stage, I was listening back in the wings, and I was praying, and crying a little.

AFTER that day, I know how a wife feels when her husband is running for president and she's sitting with him when the votes are coming in over the radio, and I know how a mother feels when she watches her son read the reviews of the critics after the first night of his first play, and I can appreciate what a girl goes through while she watches the boy she's engaged to run down the field for a touchdown. Because when I sat back there behind the scenes and listened to Tex_sing those songs he had sung overseas, I was every woman in the world who's ever prayed for the success of the man she loves. But even as I sat there, I knew that my prayers—my hoping with my whole heart—weren't going to be enough.

I'm not any judge of talent. I'm not a real critic. But I've been working with the National Barn Dance long enough to know when a new person's got the spark, or the talent, or the drive, or whatever it is that carries people to the top. Lulu Belle's got it wou can see it right away. It's in her -you can see it right away. It's in her walk, and in her exciting face, and in her vitality. I guess maybe you call it showmanship—or stage personality. Anyway, whatever it is, Tex didn't have it—and I knew it as soon as he had sung his first song. He was sweet—and there was something appealing about him even if you weren't in love with him. I guess you'd say he just missed having what say Scotty's got. He was as nice as Scotty and you knew it, and you liked him, but you wanted him to do something else where he could really shine. I knew all that, without looking at the Hoosier Hot Shots or Lulu Belle, who was sitting out in front giving this strange boy courage with the honest sympathy that was in her face. I knew it before I looked at Scotty, who was frowning with a kind of grave concern that changed his pleasant look. He knew and Lulu Belle and I knew that Tex was all right over there with those homesick boys who wanted to sing the songs of our country, but that he wasn't right for professional radio where everybody has to be topnotch all the time.

They told him right that afternoon

Scotty did it—swiftly and kindly, the way a surgeon does his duty. "Look, kid," Scotty said, "you've got a nice voice and you might, after a long tough period of work, make the grade. But I don't think so. Your voice is a little thin for radio. It doesn't quite come off.

I felt every jab that Tex was feeling. Every word that Scotty had to say of course—he was that kind of fellow. And yet I knew that he was hurt. It hurts to let a dream die. And he was burying his dream right in this theater on Eighth and Wabash in Chicago. He was tucking it away, forever.

He managed a smile and a thank you, though. And he gripped Scotty's hand hard when he said, "Thank you, Scotty. You're a great guy."

The Hoosier Hot Shots talked to Tex, then, and all of them wished him luck in some other field. Only Lulu Belle didn't go to him. A woman knows that at a time like that a man wants to get away and be alone. I saw her flash him a quick smile of encouragement and belief and then turn around.

I stood there, numb, waiting for Tex to walk up that aisle and out of my life, forever.

Then I found my tongue. "Tex," I ied. "Wait for me!" And then we cried. were out on the street, and I was beside him, matching my steps to his. "Tex—"

"Don't talk about it," he commanded. His voice was tight.

I walked along silently beside him until we came to the drugstore where we'd gone last Saturday night after the show. "Look," I said, stopping by the door, "I don't think I'd better go

"That's right—you've got to go back and get ready for the show, haven't you?" he asked bitterly.

"Please come in here with me, Tex," I urged. "I want to—I have to—talk to you!" "Sometimes it doesn't do any good to "I want to-I have to-talk

"But sometimes it does. Oh, Tex-please!"

He managed to smile. "I'm sorry, honey. I'm not being very nice. This isn't your fault. Sure, I'll come." I felt a quick stab of relief as we walked across and took seats at the end of the counter. It wasn't very crowded -too near dinner time for most people to be bothering with sodas.

But I still felt shut out. I put my hand over his, but Tex was withdrawn, like a stranger. He had taken his hurt into a secret place where I couldn't follow.

"Tex—listen to me."

"Why do you even want to talk to me?" he asked suddenly. "I'm a wash-out. I'm no good!"

hand closed tightly on his. MY hand closed using that Tex-"You're not! Don't say that! Texnobody ever starts at the top. You haven't had any experience or any-thing. Maybe you'd be all right on a smaller station, to start. Maybe—" "And maybe I'd better go back to farming, where I belong." "Whatever you do," I managed to say levelly, "you'll be all right. I'll be proud of you."

His voice mocked me. "A lot I am to be proud of. The way I let you down in front of your friends." "Tex, darling." I leaned closer to him. "You couldn't let me down. It takes takes a lot more than that to let a woman down when she loves you." He just sat there, looking down at me. The hurt was still in his eyes, but

I knew that the bitterness was fading

"You're sweet, honey," he said at last. "But it's no good. You're in the big time. I'm not going to make that kind of money for years, and-

Well, now was the time to tell him. "Tex—I've been trying to tell you. I'm not in the big time. I'm not on the not in the big time.

NO DULL DRAB HAIR When You Use This Amazing

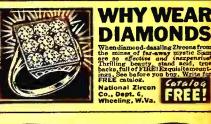

4 Purpose Rinse In one, simple, quick operation, LOVALON will do oll af these 4 important things to give YOUR hair glamaur ond beouty:

1. Gives lustrous highlights.

Rinses oway shampoo film.
 Tints the hoir os it rinses.

4. Helps keep hoir neotly in place. LOVALON does not permanently dye or bleach. It is a pure, odorless hair rinse, in 12 different shades. Try LOVALON. At stores which sell toilet goods

HEY, MOM! Don't be a Diaper HLT, MUMI Don't be a Daper Drudget Dennison Diaper Liners reduce unpleasantness in changing and washing my diaper. Just fold a Liner inside diaper next to my skin. When soiled, flush away. No hard scrubbing. Sanitary. Helps prevent diaper rash. Costs only a few cents a day. BABYPADS: 200 for $1. DOWNEE-SOFT: 200 for 694.

FREE ... To get one full day's supply of Diaper Liners write to Dennison, Dept. G-145, Framingham, Massachusetts.

"You're—you're lying, to make me feel better," he accused, and he was very angry. "I'm not," I hurried on. "Tex—look at me. I'm not lying. It's the truth, now. I didn't mean to lie to you before, about being on the show. Truly I didn't. It was just that the show meant didn't. It was just that the show meant so much to you, and I—I was afraid you wouldn't like me if you thought I was just an usher. Please, Tex!" All he said was, "As if anything in the world could make a difference in the way I feel about you!" but the words made my heart begin to sing again again.

THINK my relief and the warmth that was going through me must have been contagious. Because his next words came out in a sort of rush of release. "You know, honey, I guess maybe I never was as sure of getting on the show as I pretended to be. I guess I never really thought I was good enough."

I didn't say a word. I just let him talk.

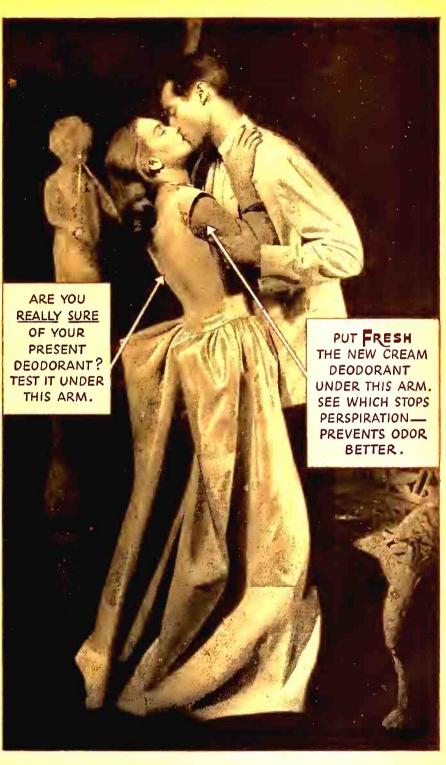

"When you said maybe I could get a job on another station, I understood what I've been feeling. Let me see if I can explain it to you. I—well, I'm a farmer. I grew up on the land, and I never had a thought of doing anything after the war but going back to the land I came from, until Gabe and Ken and the others came overseas and and the others came overseas, and talked to me. And then—well, I never, even then, thought about getting into radio. I just thought about getting on the National Barn Dance. It was— well, sort of separate in my mind. See? Well, sort of separate in my mind. See? I—I don't want to be in radio, if I can't be on the Barn Dance, honey. And that's not just sour grapes, either. None of the rest of it interests me. I'm— well, as I said, I'm a farmer. I'm not a radio performer."

I looked at him in amazement. "I love the show, honey. The friend-liness of it, the way it takes me back to

RESERVE YOUR COPY OF NEXT MONTH'S RADIO MIRROR

The demand for RADIO MIRROR makes it impossible for us to print enough copies to go round. these days. The best way to make sure that you get every issue is to buy your copy from the same newsdealer each month and tell him to save RADIO MIRROR for you regularly. Place a standing order with your dealerdon't risk disappointment.

Be lovely to love

Make the famous Fresh test. See why more women are switching to Fresh than to any other deodorant.

Fresh stops perspiration worries completely. Fresh contains the most effective perspiration-stopping ingredient known to science.

Fresh stays smooth...never sticky or gritty...doesn't dry out in the jar.

www.americanradiohistory.com

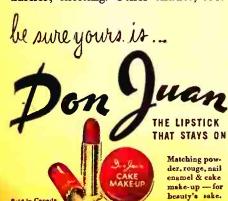

Your lips are you...to him don't spoil their charm with lipstick smears

Wear Don Juan Lipstick, and have pride and confidence in your smart appearance, on all occasions.

Don Juan stays on and your lips stay lovely, when you eat, drink or kiss, if used as directed. Don Juan Lipstick is smoothly applied and is not drying or smeary.

In fashion favored shades: try new Medium Red, a true red, flattering, youthful looking, or Raspberry, darker, exciting. Other shades, too.

the times when I was a kid, in Texas. It's the show I love, not radio." Our sodas came then, and we sat and stirred them up, and put our straws into them, not saying anything. And then the most wonderful thing hap-And then the most wondering hap-pened. Lulu Belle and Scotty came in! And they knew just what to do, bless them! They didn't try to avoid us, or leave us alone. As soon as Lulu Belle had made her purchase at the counter, they came right over and climbed up they came right over and climbed up on the stools beside us, Lulu Belle at one end and Scotty at the other, just as if we were all young people living in a little town in Minnesota or Arkansas or somewhere. Just as if we were the best of friends—and all of a sudden I knew that we were knew that we were. It was Lulu Belle who put Tex at ease. She didn't talk about the pro-gram but she didn't avoid it, either. And pretty soon Tex was telling her all about his life. About the war. About the farm in Texas where he'd been brought up, and which his mother bed sold because abo couldn't here it had sold because she couldn't keep it going alone, after he'd gone.

BUT it was Scotty who put into words what had really happened to Tex. You know, I told you that Scotty's quiet, but really awfully wise. He was going to be a teacher once, and he graduated from college and took all graduated from college and took all kinds of courses in psychology before he got on the networks back in 1933. Well, now he just looked at Tex and said something that sounded like a sage. He said, "You know, Tex, we all get about what we want—and I don't think you really wanted to live in Chicago and get in radio at all." "I thought I did, sir," Tex told him. "I thought I did, sir," Tex told him. "I thought I did, sir," Tex told him. "I thought I did, sir," the show —I didn't stop to think that I'd have to live in Chicago, along with it—that the show would only be one night out of the week, and the rest of the time—" Scotty nodded. "I knew it. I think you just wanted the world that those Scotty nodded. "I knew it. I think you just wanted the world that those songs made you lonesome for. You were homesick, Tex. You wanted to get back to the country. I guess you still do. I could tell that when you were talking, just now, to Lulu Belle about the place in Texas, and all the things you used to do on the farm. You sound like a first-class farmer, Tex—and believe me. I mean it, there's

You sound like a first-class farmer, Tex—and believe me, I mean it, there's nothing better than the land." "There isn't any land for me to go back to," Tex said, slowly. Scotty shook his head. "There's al-ways a place for a good man on a farm, somewhere," he said. "There's always a home and a job for a fellow who likes working out in the open air—who likes working out in the open air-who likes to be a farmer and wants to be a farmer, and isn't ashamed to admit it." And then Scotty went on to tell us that the Hoosier Hot Shots and most farms. "All the fellows are putting their money into land," he told us. "They aren't fooling about liking the wide open spaces. They love the country.

'Shall we tell them about our farm?" Lulu Belle asked Scotty, and when I turned to look at her I saw that her

"We've got a farm," Scotty explained. "We've got a farm," Scotty explained. "Down in North Carolina—in the Smoky Mountains, where I was born." "And Lulu Belle was born there, too," I told Tex. "Just thirty miles away. But they never knew each own until they got together on the show." "They didn't?" Tex' eyes we the burt. closed-But they never knew each other eyes were closed-in www.americanradiohistory.com

look was completely gone from his face.

"We've got a big log house there," "We've got a big log house there," Scotty went on, "and we keep putting in improvements each year." "When 'Boyer of the Barn Dance' here gets too old for romance, we're going to live down there," Lulu Belle added.

"Pat Buttram's Boyer of the Barn Dance," Scotty protested, "not me. But that's what we're planning on, Tex But that's what we're planning on, Tex —going down there to live when our show days are over. And you—hadn't you ought to think about going back to the country yourself, Tex? Back where you'll be happy?" Lulu Belle was leaning across, now, her eyes full of amusement and im-patience. "You're taking an awfully long time about it," she told Scotty. "Why don't you go ahead and say it?" Scotty looked straight at Tex. "This farm I was telling you about. Tex. Lulu

"Why don't you go anead and say it?" Scotty looked straight at Tex. "This farm I was telling you about, Tex. Lulu Belle and I thought—well, we won-dered if you'd like to go down there and live for a while. Oversee." "We need a manager," Lulu Belle put in. "We need a fellow we can trust to see that things get done." Tex just sat there, not saying a word —but one look at him told the rest of us how he felt better than any speech he could have made. When at last he found his voice, it was to say, "But you hardly know me! I might not be any good. Why, you're trusting a stranger..." "I know you," Scotty said. "I know you very well indeed. I watched you take it on the chin this afternoon. I watched you walk out of the theater like a man. I heard you making new plans when we walked in here—after a blow like that one must have been to you. I know you all right."

a blow like that one must have been to you. I know you all right." "Besides, we like your girl," Lulu Belle told him, giving my hand a little squeeze under the counter. Tex looked down at me and sud-denly he linked his arm through mine. "I like her, too. Terribly."

"THAT farm of ours needs a wo-man's touch when I'm not there," Belle went on, but Scotty Lulu

Lulu Belle went on, but Scotty wouldn't let her finish. "Lulu Belle won't let a man alone once she's got an idea into her head," Scotty told us. Then he slid off the counter stool and took his wife's hand. "Come along—let's get out of here. Maybe they'd like a little time to make a few decisions for themselves." a few decisions for themselves.

with Tex. I was thinking about keeping house, and never having to wait

And then do you know what Tex did, as soon as Lulu Belle and Scotty were out of sight? Yes, that's right. That's what he did. And he said, "Do you think you're going to like the Smoky Mountains honey do you think Smoky Mountains, honey—do you think you're going to like it away from the city, living down there all alone?" "I won't be alone," I whispered. "I'll never be alone again as long as I live." And do you know what he did, then? That's right—he kissed me again. And just then the soda clerk slid two more just then the soda clerk slid two more just then the soda clerk slid two more chocolate sodas across the counter. "On the house," he said, and winked. Somehow, that wink put a period on the whole thing. Nothing could be wrong in such a wonderful, beautiful, friendly world. Everything had to be right for us—and it would be, because we'd make it so!

Glorious Fourth

(Continued from page 50)

cottage cheese and dill adding sour cream to make desired consistency.

Stuffed Curried Eggs

- 6 hard cooked eggs
- ¹/₂ tsp. curry powder 2 tsps. lemon juice
 - Sour cream

Combine egg yolks, curry powder and lemon juice, adding enough sour cream to make mixture of desired consistency. Stuff whites with mixture.

Pickled Beets

1 can beets (sliced or whole)

cup vinegar

1 tbl. minced onion

tsp. mixed pickle spices

Drain liquid from beets. Combine spices, which have been tied in small cheesecloth bag, onion and vinegar. Simmer for 5 minutes, add beets and simmer for 5 minutes more. Remove spice bag, pour beets and vinegar into jar and let stand over night. Chill before serving.

Boiled Dressing

(for Cole Slaw or Cold Asparagus)

1 tbl. flour

tsp. salt

- tsp. dry mustard 1
- 1 tsp. sugar
- 34 cup hot milk
- 1 egg

1 egg
½ cup vinegar
3 tbls. butter or margarine
Combine dry ingredients in top of double boiler. Stir in hot milk slowly.
Add egg and mix well. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until mix-ture begins to thicken. Add vinegar.
Continue cooking and stirring until mixture is smooth and creamy. Blend in butter or margarine. Chill before serving. To use with cole slaw, add ½ tsp. celery seed to other dry seasonings. To serve over cold asparagus, add ¼ tsp. mace and 2 tsps. shredded almonds when adding butter. monds when adding butter.

Vanilla Fruit Pudding

1 package prepared vanilla pudding

2 cups milk

1-2 cups fruit

Combine pudding powder and milk and cook as directed on package. Reand cook as directed on package. Re-move from fire. Strawberries or other small berries, uncooked, may be used. Currants and gooseberries should be cooked before blending with the pud-ding mixture. Sweet cherries (pitted) may be used uncooked, but the sour ones will be improved by cooking. When using uncooked fruits, allow pudding mixture to cool before com-bining or topping with the fruit. bining or topping with the fruit.

Honeymoon

IN NEW YORK

Once, on NBC's Honeymoon in New York, there was a couple whose story was very different from the usual boymeets-girl affair. What Honeymoon In New York meant for these two people is told in the August issue of RADIO MIRROR, on sale at your newsstand on July 12.

"Me marry? I like my freedom too much"

Fiddlesticks! You're pining for a proposal. So set the scene this way:

KEEP FRESH: After you bathe-dust your body with Cashmere Bouquet Talc. Quickly it dries that lingering moisture. Leaves you ravishingly fresh.

> FEEL SMOOTH: Sprinkle extra Cashmere Bouquet Talc over chafable places. It imparts a satin-smooth sheath of protection to sensitive skin.

STAY DAINTY: Keep your feminine appeal on high. Use Cashmere Bouquet often for coolness, comfort and for the dainty way it scents you with the fragrance men love.

CASHMERE BOUQUET TALC In 10%, 20% and 35% sizes For the luxury size with velour puff ask for Cashmere Bouquet Dusting Powder 65¢

PERPENSION STREET FR

So Far Away

(Continued from page 39)

thing during the downhill dips of the

A great deal of our love takes the form of kidding. And we've never quarreled but once. After that one time I walked off with an Army flier. A week or so later Bill and I were back together again. That flier just couldn't kid around like Bill does. For one thing, he thought double talk was silly

But don't be led astray by our double talk. We have deeper bonds too. We are fond of music—particularly Rachmaninoff and his Second Concerto. The music angle is just right since all my life I've been surrounded by it. I The happy thing is that he responded so willingly. Music is in his blood too —but he just hadn't had time to find out about it.

THE thing I miss most in New York —next to Bill—is my record collec-tion which numbers almost twenty thousand. I have everything from boogie-woogie to Bach.

I have no fears about our happiness. People who like to do things together —love to dance, to drink tea and to bowl—can always get along. The bowling part came hard for me though. It was Bill who taught me—and who still teases me because the first time

I tried it I fell flat on my face. We adore sitting by the fireplace reading poetry. Recently we have fallen in love with E. B. White's book, "Stuart Little". And now I mail fairytales to Bill every week. Cats and dogs like us and we like them. Bill has two of the former and four of the latter. As you see there are many things which we can enjoy to-gether. And mutual interests make a

It's lonely in New York. I fill in the time when I'm not working by walking and window shopping. Tony's and El Borracho are my favorite restaurants. I've only been on the subway once and confess that I have never been in Brooklyn.

But my chief amuse-ment in New York is seeing "The House on 92nd Street." To date I have seen it seven times. With that and the twenty pictures of Bill that I carry in my wallet I feel a little closer to him.

And another thing that is a constant reminder is the silver bullet he gave me when I left. It has a paper dollar rolled up inside and a good luck charm dangling from one end. The special significance it has for us stems from the fact that he invariably borrowed money from me when we were dating. Then we were dating. Then he used to tease me by asking if I had any mad money left. He always paid me back, of course. I hold the silver bullet in my hand whenever

www.americanradiohistory.com

Subscriptions ...

NO ONE-YEAR

Because of the unprecedented de-mand for RADIO MIRROR, we cannot possibly print enough copies to supply all who want subscriptions for RADIO MIRROR.

New and renewal subscriptions may be deferred as much as two months until places on our subscription list are available.

Therefore, to limit subscriptions to the number that can be supplied each month, RADIO MIRROR is reluctantly forced to refuse both new and renewal one-year sub-scriptions. However, we are accept-ing, subject to delay in servicing, two-year subscriptions at $3.60 and three-year subscriptions at $3.40. These prices apply to U. S. and U. S. Possessions and Territorics, Canada and Newfoundland. For subscription prices to all other countries see information at foot of page 3.

We will continue to accept one-year subscriptions for the members of the armed forces.

me think of Bill and I feel that it brings me good luck.

Since I've met Bill I've had two am-bitions. One is to be a terrific singer —the best in the business; two is to have three kids and keep right on with my career.

Speaking of careers, I doubt that I would have amounted to anything if it hadn't been for Bill. He used to would have amounted to anything if it hadn't been for Bill. He used to shout at my mother, "You've got to make this girl do something! She has a wonderful voice and should be starred in a radio show." Well, I finally made it. And a lot of it is due to Bill's insistence that I strike out for a career of my own of my own.

None of it is due to Marymount Con-vent. When Daddy came to Hollywood in 1929 to work for Paramount, he and Eleanor put me in a series of private schools. I stayed in Marymount Convent for the longest period of time and I did learn Latin, German and French. What amuses me now is that during the years I spent at Marymount a great number of operettas were produced there. But they never let Margaret Whiting sing even a tiny part in one of them.

By next Christmas I hope Bill and I will be married. We have so many plans for our house and a wonderful life together. We celebrated last Christmas separately—and it was the last to be so celebrated. I gave Bill champagne glasses—he loves cham-pagne. And he gave me an antique gold buckle which contains another good luck charm: my sign of the zodiac, Cancer; and a small gold record on which is engraved "It Might As Well Be—well, you know what. Love, Ham-bone." As you know, my theme song on the show is "It Might As Well Be Spring".

WHEN Bill is in the mood for cooking he does an excellent job—particularly with stuffed cabbage. On the coast times. Whenever I said, "That's not right," Bill invariably retorted. "You don't know anything about cooking. Get out of here." He was right. I don't.

I miss him terribly and think often of the rides we used to take how the Atlantic is not like the Pacific-per-haps because it comes without Bill.

Most of all I'm crazy about Bill because of his unexpectedness. Hy might be on the way home from a party at two A.M. and Bill will say suddenly, "How unexpectedness. We say suddenly, "How about it? Let's drive to Santa Barbara for breakfast—it's only two hours away." Nothing ever gets done in a routine way with Bill. It might start out that way, but the end will have a twist! I know our marriage will be a happy one be-cause with Bill there will never be any bore-

NOW... pleasantly scented!

X*BAZIN

HAIR REMOVING CREAM

★ Smooth away

unwanted leg

and arm hair

in 6 to 8 minutes!

Yes! In just & to B minutes your legs and underarms can be hair-free and lovely -If you use sweet snowy while X-Bazin!

Every trace of bad "depilatory odor" Is gone from the new, improved X-Bazing Yet it's just as effective as always. No razor nicks. No stubbly after-growth. Dainty, fragrant X-Bozin is as easy and pleasant to use as your face cream!

Use X-Bazin regularly this summer to keep legs of tan-spic and span!

25c/ 60c, and $1.00 sizes at drug, variety and department stores and beauty salons.

Life Can Be Beautiful

(Continued from page 49)

almost too hard to think about. We went to Lynn Haven, Florida, on the afternoon to Lynn Haven, Florida, on the afternoon before Christmas. We got nice rooms at the one hotel in this little peninsula town. We were told there was to be a program at the church that evening, Christ-mas Eve. We went, to find a crowded house. The program was lovely. At the close of the program the Sunday School Superintendent said, "Now we think we have provided enough treat for everyone, but the children will be served first as usual but the children will be served first as usual. However we are happy to have with us tonight some friends from Illinois—let's give them a welcome." Everyone applauded. Well, we felt happy of course but somewhat embarrassed—but to top it all off, this well-meaning Superintendent said, "Our gifts will be carried through the aisles in baskets -will the person at the end of the seat take enough sacks to supply that row of people and give all children theirs and hold the others until all children have received theirs. Now first, boys, I want you to take a basket to our Illinois friends—we are mighty happy to have you with us, God bless you." And when he insisted on my husband and me accepting a treat along with the children, we almost felt out of place—but when we were dismissed it seemed every person there tried to speak to us and make us welcome. We went back to our hotel rooms. At midnight, from our windows we could both see and hear the carol singers. We were both sad and happy.

Never had I wanted to cook a Christmas dinner as on that Christmas day, but no place where I could even bake a cake or Christmas cookies for my darlings. At noon on Christmas day we went down to the hotel dining room for our dinner, trying to be brave. The hotel manager met us and asked us to go into a small room adjoining as the large dining room would be full. We followed the manager into a pretty little room and to our utter amazement, there was a dining table set for just us six—laden with a golden brown turkey and every thing any one could think of or wish for on a Christmas table.

We certainly realized and appreciated God's goodness and the kindness of those fine people.

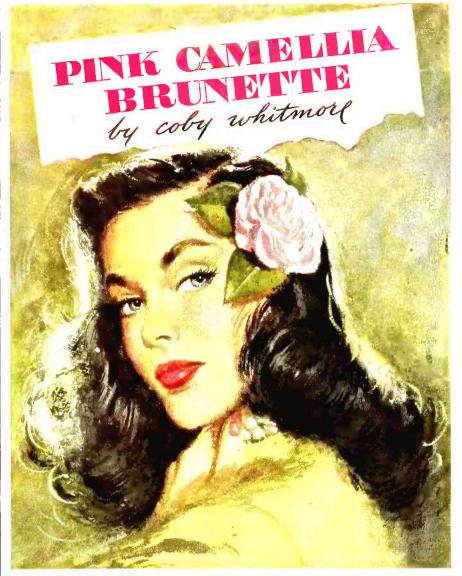

Mrs. A. O. G.

Dear Papa David:

My father was a very successful druggist in a small town. I was an only child about ten years old and I was very happy. I had about everything that could make life beautiful. I even had a doll imported from Paris which made me an important member of our club—the "Big Doll Club." Yet with all this I would often worry about many things that didn't seem to have an answer. One was Ella—her father was a barber in a little shop—her family was very poor because it was whispered, sometimes loud enough for Ella to hear—"her father drank and was no good." I liked Ella—but she couldn't belong to the "Big Doll Club" because she didn't have the first requisite—a Big Doll.

That Christmas, as a center of attraction in one of my father's store windows was a large doll. My father would say "That's the biggest doll in town—and Christmas Eve after the exercises start at the church I'll take her home and she is yours".

On the night before Christmas, at the dinner table I asked my father if I could take my doll before the church program because I wanted Santa Claus to put her on the tree for Ella. I think my father was a little disappointed because I didn't want her myself but he said

Here's the right Cashmere Bouquet shade for you! FOR LIGHT TYPES Natural, Rachel No. 1 Rachel No. 2

FOR MEDIUM TYPES Rachel No. 2, *Rose Brunette

FOR DARK TYPES Rose Brunette, Even Tan Famous artist, Coby Whitmore, shows how subtle brunette skin tones come alive with original "Flower-fresh" shade of Cashmere Bouquet Face Powder

How can a brunette become more beautiful? Here's how: apply Rose Brunette, an exciting new "Flower-fresh" shade of Cashmere Bouquet Face Powder. A joyous shade to brighten your brunette coloring. And do see how this smooth, smooth face powder masks your skin with a silk-like finish. It veils tiny blemishes, clings for hours on end. There are other "Flower-fresh" shades of Cashmere Bouquet to complement every complexion.

Lovely hair deserves fine care

... use a Du Pont Comb

THE GIRLS MEN CARE ABOUT are fussy about all the little things that are part and parcel of good grooning. Hair kept in shining order, for instance! Your best beauty bet for that is a Du Pont comb! Its rounded teeth won't worry your scalp, the smooth washable plastic just glides through your hair. And the colors are gay, enticing—colors to match your purse, your room, your mood! Du Pont combs-in exclusive Du Pont designs-10 to 50 cents, at good dealers everywhere.

Du Pont Combs

BETTER THINGS FOR BETTER LIVING ... THROUGH CHEMISTRY

I'll never forget Ella's face when Santa took that big doll from the tree and handed it to her. I began to learn what it is to be truly happy at Christmas as I watched. Many, many years after there was a Christmas Eve which due to the misfor-tunes of depression wasn't so happy. On this evening I worked late. I lived with mother and daddy. They were both ill from worry over the loss of all of our savings. In fact at that moment I couldn't go home with a simple little gift for them. There was no money.

The janitress came in to clean my office -she was going home early to her little girl. How I wanted to send something home to that sick child and I cursed my luck and all the world.

Then a knock sounded and as I stepped into the reception room a well-dressed woman and a young man entered. She said—"Oh you don't know me—you've for-gotten me—I'm Ella and this is my son who is attending military school. I just wanted to see you again and we were going thru the city and I decided to look you up," We talked and then she said, "I have a little Christmas gift I want to leave for you. I've never forgotten the biggest doll in town! You know that doll changed my whole life—it made me think I could amount to something. It was a wonder-fully kind thing you did and I could never thank you before because I was ashamed to let you see me cry. But thank you now -and a Merry Christmas.

She was gone. I called the janitress and we opened the little Christmas box and there was a hundred dollar bill.

I went to the window and looked out across the city and told God with all my heart that come what may I would always believe this world was a beautiful world. Mrs. M. B. S.

Dear Papa David:

Because of an unkindness toward me in the past, I had come to hate the entire human race ... and had lost interest in life. Not feeling well enough to be em-ployed, and not attempting anymore to secure medical aid, I neglected my personal appearance, became anti-social, and as time went by, I came to have a double reason for keeping my lips pressed together at all times.

Mrs. G. and I often used to see one another at the neighborhood grocery where I did most of the marketing for my mother, brother and myself. That was our only introduction. One day I was surprised when she brought me a fresh cherry pie she had baked. I took it without comment. I was surprised when she sent me a New Year's card. For this I said "thanks." I was I was astonished when she came to my house and said, "I want you to have your teeth fixed."

She went on hurriedly, "A woman across the street from me has had such beautiful work done, that I got the name of her dentist, and called him, saying I was calling for a friend, and asked when he could see you in regards to what has to be done, and to send me the bill."

A few days after my first visit to the dentist, I asked Mrs. G. what the amount of the bill would be, and she answered "Someday, when you're in a position to pay, I'll tell you the amount, and you can repay me, or better still, you can do the same for somebody else."

"After your teeth are fixed," she said, "I'll take you to my hair dresser for a permanent and a hair-do; then we'll buy you a new outfit and some make-up." But why? I wondered. "We're all human bewhy? I wondered. ings," she answered.

Mrs. G. is a housewife of moderate means, and her friendly interest in me and radiohistory

kindlier feelings towards people. Mrs. G. has found and gathered up the lost threads of my life, and put them in my hands again. Miss A. F.

Dear Papa David:

This story I am about to tell is about two women who were neighbors of mine and whom I loved as sisters because they both treated me as such.

I had just moved into a three-story apartment house. I had noticed the woman on the floor above me. She was the most regal-looking woman I had ever seen. I thought to myself—she would never give me a tumble as a friend. She looked so proud. I was so ordinary looking. I thought I'd never feel at ease with her.

thought I'd never feel at ease with her. The neighbor who lived on the first floor was also proud looking, although a different type. She was short. A very nice looking woman. Would either of them be friendly to me?

Here is what happened: I had lived in this house about three weeks when both of them called on me, because their children had informed them that I was ill.

I told them that I really needed an operation, but I hated to leave an unknown housekeeper in charge of my children while I would be in a hospital. Without any hesitation whatsoever, and with insistence, both of them offered to take my children into their homes. I was surprised at such a generous offer and I thanked them both for being so kind, but I really couldn't expect strangers to do such a thing for me, a new tenant. They repeated their offers every time they called on me after that, which was every day. Finally, I got so ill that I had to go for the operation. Each woman took one of my children to care for.

As if they weren't doing enough already, they sent me flowers and gifts at the hospital. When I came home my children were clean and neatly dressed. Their clothes were brought to me all laundered and ironed. One woman had baked a large cake to celebrate my arrival. Both were helping around the house to make me comfortable until a hired girl could come. Neither one seemed to realize how much they had done for me. Mrs. M. M.

Dear Papa David:

At the age of 20 I married a swindler and crook, to spite a boy I imagined myself in love with. I lived with the man seven years. In these seven years I brought three sweet little boys into the world. My husband wanted to give the second boy up for adoption, and would have, but I fought for dear life itself, and finalfy won.

One of my babies was born while my husband stayed in jail six months. He would have gone to the penitentiary, had it not been for me. We never had decent clothes to wear or had enough food to eat. I could have gone home to my parents, but pride kept me with this man, as everyone in our community had predicted an unhappy ending when I got married.

My baby was one year old, when my husband left me for a blonde. This was a terrible blow to my pride, but I didn't care anything for my husband. I gave him a divorce under the condition that I have full custody of the children.

So I started my new life with three little boys, just enough clothes to cover our bodies, and not one penny in my purse. I went home to my parents. My brothers and sister were married, so there was no one else.

My father gave me a job working in the field with the hired boy for a dollar a day. I topped fodder, pulled corn, shocked cane. Helped round up the cattle, doctor calves, drenched sheep and goats, and helped during the lambing season. I began to feel free once more. I enjoyed meeting my former friends.

My boys were healthy and so was I. Our wardrobe was beginning to look like what I wanted it to. People were beginning to say I looked ten years younger. Some even called me pretty.

The war came along, and one hired boy after another was drafted, so I did the work of the hired boy and mine too. I was unusually healthy, so I donated blood.

Then I met a man. A man who had known suffering similar to mine, for he had lost his wife and had to look after his two girls. We seemed to understand each other from the start: He, like I, lived with his parents in the country, and loved to watch things grow.

A year ago he gave me a lovely diamond ring, and soon we'll be married. We will, I'm sure, have many problems to face, with our fast growing children, but I truly believe we will meet each one squarely. I. T.

Dear Papa David:

I had infantile paralysis when I was five months old and it left me so severely handicapped that I had to attend a school for the physically handicapped.

One of the boys whom I graduated from grammar and high schools with, became good friends with me. And as we got older our friendship developed into love. My family didn't encourage this love affair because my friend was quite handicapped too.

We decided to get married, if he could get a job. It took him a year to get the first and only job he has ever had. Due to the good judgment and faith his boss has, he has risen from a jeweler's apprentice to a full-fledged jeweler and designer.

We did get married and have been very happy because people (our families included) have given us the chance to prove to ourselves and them that despite any handicap we can all become useful citizens and live a normal happy life. This I think, is a good example for our wounded soldiers to follow. These boys who fought and were injured for us deserve our faith.

Our latest conquest of ourselves and society is our own home which we just bought. It's a lovely little house almost made to order for our special needs. The people that were the most shocked over our marriage, are the proudest of our new home and our successful career.

Mrs. E. B. G.

Dear Papa David:

I'm a schoolgirl of fifteen and I live with my mother. My mother works in a laundry, and I'm not ashamed to say it. I'm very proud of my mother because she is a woman in her fifties, who stands and sweats all day at work pressing clothes.

Her feet aren't taken care of very well and they are very sore when she comes home from a hard day at work. We live in a three-room apartment, in fact it resembles a shack. I always dreamed of having a lovely comfortable apartment, someday. If I ever get married, I'll want to be settled in a house all complete and furnished. I never like to invite my girl friends up to my apartment because I'm embarrassed for them to see it.

I want to quit school after I'm sixteen so I can help my mother out a little, for she's been working since my father died, when I was a baby. She used to clean people's apartments to raise money to put me through school.

I appreciate all my mother is doing for me. For some day, please God, if she'll live till then, I'm going to take over where my mother left off. If I were rich, complete with clothes and a beautiful home I would regret it as long as I lived because I like coming up the hard way and I'll know I did something in my life.

Please send me	160-5th Ave., New York H Inrge size jar of POMATEX You pay postage and tax. I will pay postman on receipt e and tax.
Address
City	State

M.

69

When eager youngsters get together to grab and gulp at picnic, snack or party—you're likely to find the Federal "Park Avenue" tumbler sharing their hand-to-mouth adventure.

And no wonder! Its smart, practical and arresting beauty has made the Park Avenue an All-American favorite. As a matter of fact, the Park Avenue has been raised to more lips than any tumbler ever made.

In millions and millions of American homes you'll find Federalfashioned Tumblers, Tableware, Beverage Sets, Occasional and Ornamental Pieces adding their brilliant luster to everyday living.

> When you buy glassware—look for the Shield I of Federal. It tells you that each piece which wears it, is the proud product of 46 years of precision-engineered quality manufacture. What's more, the Federal Shield I assures you glassware of modern design, matchless color and clarity at very low cost.

> > THE FEDERAL GLASS COMPANY COLUMBUS 7, OHIO

What About Television?

(Continued from page 19)

though related fields—broadcasting, manufacturing, Government, and public—there is increasing evidence that ultra-high frequency television is inevitable. Not only is clear home reception within a station's service area assured, but it is also possible to send the new pictures over long distances through coaxial cable. Columbia demonstrated the process on April 19, when its color pictures were sent from New York to Washington and back—a distance of 544 miles—over the A. T. & T.'s cable link connecting these two cities.

The industry has not yet fully agreed as to when the move "upstairs" to the high frequencies should be made. Columbia believes it should be made as quickly as possible, and that it can be made within a year's time. But if the public is asked to buy low-

But if the public is asked to buy lowfrequency black-and-white receivers, a later move into the high frequencies could cause a great deal of ill will and confusion. For the low-frequency receivers can never be made to pick up the vastly improved pictures in the high frequencies, either in black-andwhite or in color.

A^S recently as a year ago, there was considerable doubt as to when the better high-frequency pictures would be brought out of research laboratories and demonstrated as commercially practical. Guesses ranged from five to ten years, and even longer. Yet CBS demonstrated the practicality of its new color television within five months after V-J Day. The pictures were infinitely better than the color pictures Columbia had first demonstrated in 1940. The transmitter radiated a signal far more powerful than the most powerful black-and-white television station operating in New York.

At the end of the war, there were high hopes that a product-starved America would have at least a part of its appetite satisfied in 1946. Strikes, material shortages, and uncertain price regulations have postponed the expected feast. To the extent of this postponement, the gap between production of black-and-white television receivers and production of color receivers has been closed. It is certain that viewers who wish to wait for color will not have to wait "indefinitely." They need not even wait "one year."

Since fewer than ten thousand people in the United States now own television sets, the chances are that you have never seen television—to say nothing of color television. Perhaps a little test will bring the case for color television closer to home, for it is stated most eloquently in the direct testimony of your own eyes.

Let your imagination, if it can, drain all color from the objects that now surround you. In your mind's eye, how much of the life, reality, and interest of your surroundings is lost with the loss of color?

Try another. As you read the following words, try to think of them in terms of the single word "gray." Red, orange, yellow, green, blue, violet... rose, zinnia, dandelion, holly, forgetme-not, lilac...apple, orange, lemon, lime, huckleberry, grape.

The case for color television, in the last analysis, is the case for color, itself.

Once We're Married

(Continued from page 27)

known would be there—a regret for having hurt his parents so deeply. He having hurt his parents so deeply. He remembered a time, long ago, when he had been sick; his mother had sat at his bedside night and day, never leav-ing, and his father had brought toys home with him in the evenings... What power they had over him, simply because they loved him! He could break that power only by fight-ing, ruthlessly, as he'd fought tonight —and he was sick of fighting, he'd had more than enough of it in the last two more than enough of it in the last two years.

years. After a long time he got up, un-dressed in the dark, and went to bed. Sally was in the drugstore, the next afternoon, when the telephone rang and a voice she didn't recognize said, "Miss Burnett? This is Berg Ruskin, at the bank. Could you spare a few minutes to come over to my office?" The telephone jerked in her hand. All day long she had been pushing her-

All day long she had been pushing her-self mechanically from one familiar duty to another, feeling nothing but a dull unhappiness. Now, at Berg's re-quest, she was suddenly alive again. She had never spoken to him in her She had never spoken to nim in ner life, but she knew him by sight, knew the spare, wiry figure, so like Phil's, the lined face and sharp eyes. She wasn't afraid of him. She wanted to talk to him. Because, after all, Phil must have told his parents they were in love and wanted to be married; this was her opportunity to make a good was her opportunity to make a good impression. "I'll be right over, Mr. Ruskin," she promised.

THE bank was closed, but one of the tellers let her in at the side door and led her to Berg's private office. She had her first qualm of uneasiness at the sight of him sitting behind his neat desk, waiting for her with an impassive face. She had wanted to make a good impression on him, but now she sensed that there was no way for her to make any sort of impression on him, either good or bad—that he had his mind

"Good afternoon, Miss Burnett," he said. "Please sit down. I asked you to come over because last night Philip told me you and he want to be mar-ried."

Sally's heart gave a single great leap. "Oh, I'm glad," she said. "I hoped that was it. I wanted him to tell you."

"Did you?" Berg asked in his dryest most unbelieving voice. "Frankly, his mother and I cannot approve of this marriage. He is of age, and there is no way we can prevent it. But if Philip does marry you, it will be without our consent and without our help. Do you understand what that means?"

Sally seemed to shrink in her chair, but she kept her eyes unwaveringly on his. "Yes, I—I guess I do," she said. "You mean you wouldn't help him to finish his education, you wouldn't give him any money or—or let him visit you.

you." Sally pressed her hands together. "Did you ask me to come over here just to tell me that?" "No. Not entirely. I thought it might perhaps affect your decision. But there is something else, too. In view of the possible connection be-tween your family and mine, I took the trouble this morning to visit your the trouble this morning to visit your brother.

Sally looked uncomprehending.

ONE MOTHER TO ANOTHER

Vacation time this year brings more opportu-nities to travel. If you happen to be near Fremont, Mich., please stop in for a visit and see how baby foods are made.

Mrs Dan Gerber

What makes a baby smile?

Food, of course! Naturally, you make it your loving responsibility to feed him quality foods. We make it our responsibility to supply those quality baby foods to you. We select just the right kinds of fruits and vegetables, wash them in pure, artesian water, then cook them the Gerber way by steam . . . to retain precious minerals and vitamins. That same stress on quality produces "just-right" texture, and pleasant taste. Be sure to get Gerber's-with "America's Best-Known Baby" on every label!

Ready for Cereals?

Start your baby on Gerber's Cereal Food and Gerber's Strained Oatmeal-two cereals which are made to suit baby's needs, from the start right through babyhood. Both cereals are enriched with added iron and B complex vitamins. Both are pre-cooked, readyto-serve, just add milk or formula.

> Remember, it is always wise to check baby's feeding program with your doctor.

19 kinds of Strained Foods, 9 kinds of Chopped Foods, 2 special Baby Coreals.

Free sample

My baby is now months old; please send me samples of Gerber's Cereal Food and Gerber's Strained Oatmeal.

Address.....

Cereals

© 1946, G. P. C.

Address: Gerber Products Co., Dept. W7-6, Fremont, Mich. Name....

City and State

"He tells me he had no idea the other two men were planning to hold up the cafe-he thought they were going in to collect some money they said Art Powers owed them."

Powers owed them." "That's true, Mr. Ruskin!" Sally said eagerly. "I know it is. Oliver's a little wild and reckless, but he isn't bad. He wouldn't commit a crime—" "It may be true," Berg interrupted her. "I rather believe it is—your brother didn't strike me as a criminal type. He's badly frightened, and it seemed to me that if he could get out of this difficulty he'd he a great deal of this difficulty he'd be a great deal more careful in the future. He said something about expecting to go into the Army soon." "Yes—he's eighteen. We both are, you know, we're twins. And he expects to be called almost any day. H He used to be awfully anxious to go.

"IF he should be convicted of being an accessory to an attempted rob-bery," Berg said, "and were sent to prison, he of course could never join the armed forces." He picked up a pencil and tapped it thoughtfully on the glass top of his desk. "It would be a pity if he had to serve a prison term. A thing like that could ruin his whole life. It like that could ruin his whole life. It occurred to me that I could talk to the district attorney about him—I have a little influence there—and under the circumstances it might be possible to get him released at the preliminary hearing.

hearing." Sally leaned forward, her eyes shin-ing. "Oh, Mr. Ruskin, if you only could! But—" She hesitated, taken aback by the continuing indifference of his face and manner. "I don't under-stand. You mean you'll do all this— just because Phil and I—are going to be married . . . and Oliver's my brother?" "Not at all," he told her. "T'll do it on the understanding that you and my son will not be married.

М

son will not be married. Sally understood then, and she sank limply back in her chair. "Oh," she whispered. "Oh, I see." There was silence in the little office, while Sally thought of Oliver, who had always been so close to her until these last few months, Oliver with his light-hearted grin guenched now in the ugly cell at grin quenched now in the ugly cell at the jail. Everything Berg had said was true: if Oliver were sent to prison it would ruin him, turn him bitter and sullen and angry at the world. She thought of her father and mother too, of their easy-going ways, their stunned bewilderment at Oliver's arrest. She could save Oliver, she could give hap-piness back to her parents. She could —if she would accept the bargain

Phil's father was offering her. She felt trapped, hemmed in by events. The rapture of a few minutes before, when she had learned that Phil had, after all, had the courage to face his parents and tell them he loved her that rapture had turned into despair that rapture had turned into despair. "This isn't fair!" she said desperately. "I can tell Phil I won't marry him—but I can't stop him from loving me. And he does love me. He showed that he does, last night, when he went and told.you so!"

"I'm sorry, but I doubt that. If Philip still loves you after he has finished college and decided what he wants to do with his life, then his mother and I will withdraw our objections. Actually, I believe he'll have forgotten about you by then." He was so positive and assured that in spite of herself she was infected with doubt. It could happen. Phil's love was real now, but even real things died if they were starved. Away from Lit-tleton, Phil would meet other girls, dance with them, laugh with them; he would find other interests, in which she would have no part. Imperceptibly, their lives would separate, and when he came back to Littleton they would meet on the street and be strangers.

AN ADVERTISEMENT OF PEPSI-COLA COMPANY

"NO!" she said violently—and it was as if she hadn't thought the answer out herself at all, as if it came out of her flesh and bones and blood. "I won't do it! I love Phil, and if he loves me ao it! I love Phil, and if he loves me and wants to marry me I won't do any-thing to stop him." "And let your brother be sent to prison?" "He hasn't been sent there yet! You said yourself that you believed him when he said he didn't know about the hold-up. Maybe the judge will be the hold-up. Maybe the judge will be-lieve him too. I'll get a lawyer for him, and do everything else I can to help him—but I won't do this!"

Her voice broke, and she jumped to her feet, keeping her face turned away from him so he wouldn't see the tears.

Back in the drugstore, she went to the washroom and did what she could the washiofin an age tears had done to her eyes. She still had two hours of work ahead of her, and people would be quick to notice that she'd been crying, if she gave them a chance, and to speculate on the reason why. And now that she had thrown Berg Ruskin's bargain back at him, she was terrified. If Oliver were actually sent to prison, it would be as if she herself had sent him there. She had told Berg bravely enough that she would find a lawyer for Oliver, but that was easier to say than to do.

"Why, Minnie Huckleberry! Hollywood hasn't changed you a bit!" mericanradiohistory o

People came into the store and she waited on some of them and they went out again. Mr. Simpson looked at her quizzically, but she didn't notice. When the clock hands finally reached six, she was out of the store in a flash six, she was out of the store in a hash and hurrying down the store to my house—to tell me everything. "Of course you weren't disloyal!" I said, and I meant it. "I never heard of such a thing, and I'll tell Berg Ruskin so myself, next time I see him! Trying to interface with the due process of law so myself, next time I see him! Trying to interfere with the due process of law, just to get his own way! The idea! You did perfectly right to refuse him, Sally Burnett, and I'm proud of you." "That makes me feel better," Sally said with a wan smile. "But it still doesn't help Oliver." "You go down tomorrow morning and talk to old Judge Lawton," I told her., "The Judge doesn't practice much any more, but he's still smart as a whip, and he'll let you take your time about paying him. I wouldn't even be surprised if he'd do it for nothing." I chuckled. "So Phil walked right out of here last night and told his folks he wanted to marry you! I hoped that was what he had in mind, but I wasn't sure."

SALLY clasped her hands around her knees. "Aunt Jenny," she said timid-ly, "you say I was right to turn Phil's father down, and I'm glad you think father down, and I'm glad you think so, only—how does anyone know what's right? I don't mean what's smartest, or best for yourself—but really right all around. For instance—" The smooth white skin of her forehead puckered into a frown. "I love Phil and he loves me, but maybe it isn't really right for us to get married. Maybe he'd be better off without me— considering who he is and who I am. and how his parents feel about me-and everything. I don't want to marry him, if it would be bad for him—if someday, a year or ten years from now, what I mean?" "I see, yes," I told her. "It's a question wise men have been puzzling over since the world began, I guess, and it does you credit to be thinking about it too. I don't know that I can answer it it, except to say that you just have to follow your heart. If it's a good heart —and yours is, Sally—it'll steer you right, nine times out of ten." "Maybe that's true," Sally mused. "That's what happened this afternoon.

I didn't think about Mr. Ruskin planning to interfere with any due process of law to help Oliver, or anything like that. I just knew I couldn't let him bribe me into giving up Phil. Not even for Oliver. That was following my heart, wasn't it?"

heart, wasn't it?" She called a neighbor of her mother's on the telephone, and sent a message that she was going to have supper with me. It was a quiet meal, just the two of us sitting at the kitchen table, eating Irish stew. Now and then Sally would glance at the clock and once, just after the'd done this, she caught my eye and she'd done this, she caught my eye and smiled. "Phil will come here tonight," she said. "I know he will." He did, soon after seven. Sally was on her feet at the sound of the door-ball ord L let her arguer it. I begad bell, and I let her answer it. I heard the murmur of their voices from the front of the house, and I smiled hap-pily to myself. I didn't disturb them. But when I finally went into the front room I knew something had gone wrong.

Phil was standing beside the center table, flipping the pages of one of the magazines that lay there-just turning BORDERLINE ANEMIA* can ruin your looks and good times!

How thousands who are pale and tired because of this blood deficiency may find renewed energy with Ironized Yeast Tablets

LMOST EVERYWHERE you go, you A see pale people, listless people, people whose enjoyment of life seems at low ebb. Yes, and so often it's a Borderline Anemia-resulting from a ferronutritional deficiency of the blood-that deprives them of vigor and fun.

Medical records reveal that up to 68% of the women examined - many men-have such a Borderline Anemia. Their red blood cells are too small to supply full vitality. Your red blood cells are your supply line of energy!

Ironized Yeast Tablets to build up red blood cells

So, if you're tired without good reason -if your color's poor - you may need the help of Ironized Yeast Tablets. Ironized Yeast Tablets are specially formulated to help combat Borderline Anemia and its effects on your red blood cells . . . appearance . . . energy. Of course, continuing tiredness, listlessness and pallor may be caused by other conditions, so consult your physician regularly. But when you have this Borderline Anemia and envy others their energy and good looks, take Ironized Yeast Tablets. They can help you build up your blood-and along with it your natural vitality and attractiveness.

*BORDERLINE ANEMIA resulting from a ferro-nutritional blood deficiency can cause TIREDNESS . LISTLESSNESS . PALLOR

Energy-Building Blood. This is a microscopic view of blood rich in energy ele-ments. Here are big, plentiful red cells that release energy to every muscle, limb, tissue.

Borderline Anemia. Thou-sands have blood like this; never know it. Cells are puny, faded. Blood like this can't release the energy you need to feel and look your best.

them over, without any purpose, and I'd have sworn not seeing them. Sally sat on the Chesterfield, watching him, her lips barely parted as if words were trembling on them which, once spoken, could never be called back. I tried to act as if I didn't notice anything; I said hello to Phil and patted Sally's shoulder as I went past to my own chair. Phil answered my greeting absently, closed the magazine, and started on another. "Aunt Jenny," Sally said suddenly, "do you remember what we were talking about—about following your heart?" She was still looking at Phil. "I'm beginning to see what you meant. "I'm beginning to see what you meant. But sometimes it's hard to do." Phil glanced up, frowning. "Follow your heart?" he asked. Sally didn't answer him, at least not directly. "Phil told his father and mother last pight that he wanted to directly. "Phil told his father and mother last night that he wanted to marry me," she said. "But he's not very happy about it." "Well," Phil exclaimed angrily, "did you expect me to be? I haven't even seen my mother today—she's been in her room with a sick headache. And her room with a sick headache. And Dad came back at me tonight with a long argument about how we could at least wait a couple of years. Lord knows, he's trying to be decent." An almost imperceptible smile touched Sally's lips, and I knew she was thinking of Berg Ruskin's proposal to her. Evidently she hadn't men-tioned that to Phil. Naturally, she wouldn't tioned that to Think wouldn't. "Do you want to wait, Phil?" "No, I don't! But I don't want to cut myself off from my father and mother, either. Don't you see?" Phil demanded. "I'm sorry for them—I'm fond of them, and I hate to make them unbanny. It's a terrible thing to break off with your parents. How would you feel, Sally, if marrying me would cut you off from yours?" "I—I'd feel the same as you do. I'd hate it."

"WELL, then. I don't know what you're complaining about. You wanted me to tell them, and I did. But I didn't promise to walk around shout-ing with joy afterwards." "No, Phil. I know you didn't. I don't blame you," Sally said in that oddly quiet voice. "I'm only—sorry." "The main thing is still that we're going to be married."

Sally shook her head. "No, we aren't," she told him. She stood up. "I was wrong, Phil. I thought that if you simply went and told your father and mother what you intended to do, that would be the end of it. Of course it isn't. They won't let it be the end. They love you, you're their only child, and they want you to have the best girl in the world for your wife. I'm not surprised that they don't think I'm her. And I know they'll never change. They won't ever accept me. So—" She took a deep, quivering breath. "I'm not going to come between you and your parents, Phil. I won't do it. It would be—wrong." "Sally!" Phil took one step toward her, and stopped. "Wait, Sally. You're upset—we both are—"

"I'm not at all upset, Phil. I have been. But not now. The minute I saw you tonight I knew I was going to have to let you go. We're not—we're just not meant to be together. And don't think I'm angry at you, or disappointed. I'm not. I simply see how things are. Right now I could make you leave your family for me. But later on, maybe a year from now, or two, you might look at me and wonder why on earth you ever did it. I couldn't stand that. I couldn't stand living, day after day, waiting for the time when it would happen—being afraid of it. Even now, I know you'd be relieved if I suggested

I know you'd be relieved if I suggested taking your father's advice and waiting until you've finished going to school." Sally paused, and Phil didn't answer. "There's no chance for us." Her voice was almost a whisper. "No chance at all. So you'd better go now." "Sally!" He tried to take her in his arms, but she shook him off. "Please-go away!" • She sounded furious, and maybe Phil thought she was; maybe he wasn't old enough to have found out that unhappiness can make your voice as harsh as anger. He stepped back, hesitantly, and then he stepped back, hesitantly, and then he stepped back, hesitantiy, and then he made up his mind, and he was gone. Sally sank down on the couch and leaned back, her eyes closed. "I did it, Aunt Jenny," she said. "I did what seemed right. And I'm sorry already." Well, it was over between Sally and

Phil, and things ought to have gone on for them just about the same as before they met. Only, as a friend of mine says, "Time is a one-way street." says,

SALLY tried her best to go back. She SALLY tried her best to go back. She be concentrated on Oliver—I went with her several times to see him. He'd had a shock, that boy—one that had done him a world of good! And fortunately, he was released at the preliminary hearing for him and the other two men (who pleaded guilty, incidentally, and got one-year sentences each). "Do you suppose Mr. Ruskin did it?" Sally asked me. "Even though I turned him down, dd you think he went ahead and helped Oliyor whom he found out I'd cont Oliver when he found out I'd sent Oliver when he found out I'd sent Phil away?" "Maybe," I said. "But in my opinion it's more likely the district attorney saw he didn't have any case against Oliver, and let him go, all by himself." Anyway, whatever the reason, and none of us could be sure of it then, Oliver was free again, and he didn't wait to be drafted, but went off to Metropole the very same day and en-listed in the Army. So as I said, Sally had nothing to worry about. She took up with all her old friends again—

Watch for This!

It doesn't look like the uniforms you've been seeing on our fighting men, because this small bronze insigne is another kind of uniform-the badge of the honorably discharged veteran.

The man who wears it in the lapel of his civilian suit may bear a visible wound, or a wound you cannot see, but in every case it speaks of suffering and sacrifice endured on your behalf. Learn to recognize the Honorable Service Emblem as instantly as you do a uniform, so that to every veteran you meet you can give the respect and consideration he deserves.

The famous U.S. Howland Hair Dry Swim Cap you've missed so much-with the suction-cup band that protects your ears and keeps your hair dry. Stunning styles. Made in sizes to fit all heads. At your favorite department or specialty store.

actually soothing to normal skins. Entirely free from irritating salts. Can be used right after under-arm shaving. Its soft, cream consistency stays that way indefinitely. Never gets stiff or grainy. Contains no chemicals to spoil clothing. Tubes or jars, 10¢, 30¢, 60¢.

Yes, Yodora is a gentle deodorant. Try it - feel Good housekeeping the wonderful difference!

dropping in to see me about once a week, but otherwise being busy going dancing and for automobile rides with half-a-dozen different boys. She used a bit more make-up, and bought some new clothes—on credit, she told me defiantly—and when you went into the drugstore you would likely as not find her joking with some young fellow sitting at the soda fountain.

It was Phil who changed. He took a job in the bank, to keep busy until time to go back to school in the fall, and from being a friendly, pleasant youngster he turned morose and uncommunicative. He did his work all right, as far as anyone could tell, but when it was over he went straight home; and at home he spent most of his time in his own room, reading and studying. He was polite to Berg and Helen, but that was all. If Helen sug-Helen, but that was all. If Helen sug-gested that he ought to go out and see some of his old friends, the boys—and, Helen really meant, the girls—he'd gone to school with, he would say, "I don't feel like it, Mother," in a tone that was so indifferent, but so final too, that Helen couldn't pursue it.

HELEN herself wasn't feeling entirely Phil had withdrawn into himself, she found herself wondering, against her will, if she and Berg had been wrong. Perhaps they should have given their consent, let Phil go ahead and marry his Sally . . . But then she would pass Simpson's drugstore, on one of her shopping trips downtown, and see Sally leaning over the counter, laughing with Harry Todd or Charlie Edwards, and her resolution would come back, as strong as it had ever been. A girl like that—why, she'd have made Phil's life one unending torment, once the first bloom of marriage had worn off!

Yet Phil's dejection nagged her conscience, and as the weeks went by and he showed no signs of shaking it off she went on trying to help him. She invented reasons for going to Metro-pole on Saturday afternoons, and asked Phil to drive her there in the car. He always agreed, as if it didn't matter where he was or what he was doing. He sat in the car or walked along the Metropole streets while she was shop-Metropole streets while she was shop-ping, and when she was through and suggested that they stay for dinner he answered, "All right, Mother. If you'd like to." They would go to the best places, and Phil would order and eat, and answer Helen's remarks with the proper words; but she always had the feeling that he wasn't actually there with her at all, that his thoughts were somewhere else.

She finally did shouldn't have done. something she

It was toward the end of April, and they were driving home from one of their excursions to Metropole. The fields on each side of the road stretched away, dim under a half moon. By day they were green, but now the green was like a pale mist hugging the ground. Phil had put the top of the roadster down, although it was cool, and the air was damp and filled with the smell of things growing. To Phil, the smell of things growing. To Phil, on a night like this, the thought of Sally was nearly unendurable. He wanted to go to her, feel her slim body velvet of her skin. But a queer inertia kept him away. She had said, "We're not meant to be together," and the words had struck him with a dull finality.

were halfway home when They Helen said, above the hum of the motor, "Phil-I've got to talk to you. I know you—you blame your father and me

"You didn't just oppose it," Phil said. "You prevented it. I told you Sally had refused me because she didn't want had refused me because she didn't want to come between me and my family." "Yes, I know," Helen said nervously. "But you must believe it was only for your own good—" "I believe you thought it was," Phil broke in. "I wish I didn't." "A girl like that— You've seen how she's been acting lately, going around with any boy that asks her. She isn't worth grieving over, Phil." Unconsciously, Phil began driving faster. "Sally has a right to go out with anyone she pleases. After the way I treated her, I certainly haven't any voice in what she does!"

"I don't know what you mean by that, Phil. She was the one who said she wouldn't marry you."

"And the reason she said it was that she saw how miserable I was over disobeying you and Dad—because she saw that I was still a kid, tied to you both, without any will of my own!" There. He'd put it into words at last—the ugly, humiliating secret that he had tried to keep even from himself. He felt a wave of relief, a slackening of the tension that had made him move of the tension that had made him move carefully and speak as little as possible all these weeks.

His mother sat up straight beside him, her eyes on the road ahead. "That's not why she said she wouldn't marry you, Phil," she told him. "It's time you knew the truth." His head jerked toward her, then "Your father called her in to his office and talked to her. He promised he'd get the charges against her brother dismissed if she would give you to. But that night she broke off with you."

Phil's hands, gripping the steering wheel so tightly the skin was stretched over his knuckles, pulled the car around a curve. "If that's true—" he around a curve. "If that's true—" he said harshly, and stopped. "It's true, Phil. Every word of it."

"She could have told me that was the reason!" he burst out bitterly. "That would have been the honest thing to do -instead of letting me think it was my fault!"

"She was ashamed, of course."

"I'D have understood—" Phil began, and stopped. Would he have under-stood, or would he have been as bitterly angry as he was now, at this very minute—angry at Sally, and at his father too? Because there had been other ways to help Oliver, honest ways, involving none of this behind-the-

"Volving none of this behind-the-scenes maneuvering. "Very clever of Dad," he said scorn-fully. That was the last time he spoke until he stopped the car in front of the Ruskin house. "Go on in, Mother," he said coldly. "I'm going downtown." "But—" Mechanically, Helen opened the door and stepped to the curb. "Why? What are you going to do?" Phil leaned over to slam the car door"

Phil leaned over to slam the car door shut. "I don't know," he said. "I have a hunch I'm going to get drunk."

In the final chapter of Once We're Married, Aunt Jenny tells how every-thing exploded between Phil and Sally -exploded in a crash that involved family, friends—Aunt Jenny most of all. Read it in the August RADIO MIR-ROR, on sale Friday, July 12.

Murder for Two

(Continued from page 37)

"I thought you might feel a bit odd here, under the circumstances," she said. "But I guess you agree with me that evil things don't live after they're done." Then suddenly she gasped and put a hand against her mouth. "My iron! I left it on—I must be going." She started toward the door, stopped on the threshold and called back, "It's nice to have this place rented again. Everyone else was so cowardly about it. I'm glad you brave people came along!'

She was gone. They could hear her footsteps moving carefully down the hall as Jerry shut the door. He found himself holding both the door-handle and his wife, who had suddenly thrown her arms around his neck. "Oh darling let's get out of here!"

"Oh, darling, let's get out of here!" she said. "I have a streak of woman's she said. "I have a streak of woman's intuition that otherwise we're going to be very unhappy!" Jerry took her arms away. "Non-sense!" said he. "I'm going out now and get our bags from our latest hotel. I'll be right back. We have a home now, Pam, and that's all that matters!" He re-opened the hall door—and a handsome young man whose eye had handsome young man whose eye had obviously been glued to the keyhole fell into the room.

"Better watch that!" Pam told him as he regained his balance. "You'll have a keyhole mark on one eye and not on the other."

HE paid no attention to her. "I'm Mr. Stone, from the apartment beneath you," he said, offering a hand to Jerry. "Oh, your gloomy mother just left," Pam said.

"Not my mother, my wife," said young Mr. Stone. Then he turned back to Jerry. "I guess you don't know how to read or you wouldn't be here," he remarked flatly.

remarked flatly. "Of course we can read—almost any-thing in English, that is," Pam said. "Well, then—read this," said Mr. Stone. He pulled a folded newspaper from his pocket, presented it to Jerry, bowed, and left abruptly. The door slammed hollowly on his quick exit. "The Stones are so abrupt," Pam lamented, staring at the door. But lerry, unfolding the newspaper lamented, staring at the door. But Jerry, unfolding the newspaper Stone had given him, whistled sud-denly, and Pam rushed to his side. She saw a newspaper with a month-old dateline—and the headline: "YOUNG WOMAN FOUND MURDERED IN PARK AVENUE APARTMENT." The story read: "Beautiful Mrs. Maria Lombardy, 26, was found murdered to-day in her richly decorated Park Ave-nue apartment. Her body, clad only in a nightgown, lay beside her bed. The murder weapon, an ordinary steel kitchen knife, was still buried in her back. She had apparently been killed around 1 A.M. Her son Robert, aged three, had been found only a few minaround I A.M. Her son Robert, aged three, had been found only a few min-utes after the murder by other re-sidents of her apartment house, crowded in the box of the dumbwaiter shaft. The murderer had evidently started to strangle him, been fright-aned by the child's screams and had ened by the child's screams, and had shoved him into the dumbwaiter box for some purpose of his own.

"The dead woman's husband, Cor-poral Sam Lombardy of the United States Army, arrived in New York City from overseas duty the day of the murder, but at present cannot be lo-

How to bring out the natural sparkling beauty of your hair like Fowers Models

Miss Phylis Ernst finds Kreml Shampoo never dries her lovely golden hair or makes it brittle

Steps in fixing the above coiffure

First wash hair with Kreml Shampoo to bring out all its natural sparkling lustre. Set hair in pin curls as indicated.

Take down pin curls. Twist hair high. Notice how Kreml Shampoo leaves hair more pliable-so ready to fall in place.

Roll twist over and around. Tuck in. Kreml Shampoo is unsurpassed for every type, color and texture of hair Leaves Hair So Silken-Soft-Bright and Glossy For Days. If you want something really worth while in shampoos-by all means 'glamour-bathe' your hair with Kreml Shampoo-it's positively seductive in intent.

Those stunning 'million dollar' Powers Models know the secret. Long ago they discovered how Kreml Shampoo thoroughly cleanses hair and scalp of dirt, grease and loose dandruff - how it actually brings out all the hair's natural sparkling highlights and lustre—how it leaves hair shining bright for days so silken soft-easier to arrange.

Helps Keep Hair From Becoming Dry or Brittle. Kreml Shampoo never leaves any excess dull, soapy film. It positively contains no harsh caustics or chemicals which rob hair of its natural oils. It never dries the hair. Instead, Kreml Shampoo is one shampoo that has a beneficial oil base which actually helps keep hair from becoming dry or brittle. It's such a mild, gentle shampoo—even for kiddies' soft baby hair.

So why not wash your hair to its natural shining loveliness with Kreml Shampoo a frankly conniving shampoo for stealing 'his' head and heart away! At all drug, dept., and 10¢ stores.

Next, in 8 minutes . . . or when mask has "set." Slosh on cool, clear water. How wonderfully soft your skin feels nowlooks smoother, finer in texture. It's actually glowing, brightened by the gentle blushing action of White Clay Pack. Not a rough patch left to cause "bumpy" makeup. Now you're a smoothie for fair!

here's a famous way to flower-fresh skin its the Edna Wallace Hopper Twin Treatment

600

for coarse dry skin flakes and clogging dirt

Then, every day . . . to help keep that underskin beauty bright. Pat on Hopper Homogenized Facial Cream with upward, outward strokes - ever-so-gently around the eyes. (See diagram.) This rich cream is an ideal make-up base-adds such a flattering finish! And, lady-what a night cream!

day-Homogenized facial crea You can start rejoicing, any day, about the new loveliness your Twin Treatment care reveals. For, day after day, this super beauty cleansing will help to keep your skin brighter, more youthful in appearance. Yours will be the true beauty of a clean skin!

Army authorities report that he went absent without leave during debarkation from his troopship, and have no clue as to his present whereabouts." "I remember that case," Pam said slowly and thoughtfully. "It wasn't solved. The police finally decided to call it 'murder by person or persons unknown.'

"I remember it too, now," Jerry agreed. "And it certainly explains why Mr. Bower was so anxious to rent us this joint. Even in these times, most people don't want an apartment with such a new and grisly history."

Pam gave a little hopeful hop. "Listen, Jerry, we can still get out of the lease. All we have to do is remind apartment." He started toward the door. "I'm going now to our hotel and get our things. I'll be right back." This time he opened the door to an empty hallway, and closed it decisively on a dejected Pam.

A LONE, she instantly felt a rush of nerves. She looked uneasily out the window into the growing darkness, wrung her hands unhappily—and went hurriedly to the bar. "I'll mix me a nurriedly to the bar. "If mix me a drink to keep up my courage," she said aloud. She mixed it, sipped it, and said aloud again, "My courage, you are keeping up!"—when suddenly there was a tinkle and a rush of sound. A rock landed on the rug at her feet. It had been thrown through the window, probably from the dark roofton perf probably from the dark rooftop next door, and there was a note fluttering from it by a piece of twine.

From it by a piece of twine. Pam, her knees weak, went over and picked up the rock. The note, written in ink in rough printed letters, said, Get out while you're still alive! "Just as you say!" Pam told it, and began running hysterically for the door. She flung it open—and saw Jerry outside sagging under number-

Jerry outside, sagging under number-less suitcases. He came staggering in

"Pretty quick trip I made, huh?" he Pretty quick trip I made, huh?" he said. "Reason for it was I found the hotel had obligingly packed our bags and left 'em in the lobby. We'd been thrown out of our room. Pam, we got this place in the nick of time, and it's got to be our happy home from now on!"

"Change that to unhappy home, and you're quite right," said Pam faintly. She shoved the rock and note forward for his study, and then sat down suddenly in the nearest chair.

But her sour omen seemed wrong for the next few hours, during which they had dinner at a cheerfully-lit restaurant, and returned to a comfortable bed. "A bed that's ours for the next year, instead of the night," Jerry told her just before they both fell asleep. But he was wrong about the bed being theirs for much of that night.

Pam awoke to find herself sitting up in sheer terror. She had begun shak-ing Jerry awake before she saw the reason for her fear. An unexpected visitor was just entering their bedroom via the fire escape outside their window-a man, silhouetted against the pre-dawn gloom. He was dressed in a huge overcoat, and Pam saw the white blur of a handkerchief over his face and the gleam from the gun in his hand.

His voice, when he spoke, was low and hoarse. "Just stay in bed with your Palate I'm search the place, and I won't hurt you unless it's necessary.

Even as the Norths' arms rose in unison, Jerry's foot kicked Pam's ankle Then, suddenly, Pam instantly under the bedclothes. he shouted, "Look!" picked up the cue and screamed at the top of her lungs. The stranger whirled—and at that moment Jerry leaped from the bed and enveloped the masked intruder in his long arms. He had the gun wrenched away in a second. In the struggle, the stranger's hat fell off and his handkerchief slipped down—and as Pamela snapped the bedside light on, he was revealed as a she. And a very beautiful blonde

she. "It's a woman!" said Jerry, amazed. "Then come out of that clinch with it," said Pam coldly.

Jerry stepped back, still clutching the gun, and immediately the lovely burglar burst into tears.

burgiar burst into tears. "I'm Maria Lombardy's sister Lola," she sobbed, "and I just got here today from my home in Oregon. I came to try and clear up the mystery of my sister's death, which the police didn't seem able to solve." She looked at both of them through wet lashes. "The superintendent wouldn't let me into superintendent wouldn't let me into the apartment. I thought it was empty, so I came up to search it by way of the fire escape—disguised just in case of emergency."

"IT would have been nicer to ring the bell," Pam said from the bed. The girl ignored her, turning to Jerry. "And I can't help wondering about my brother-in-law, Maria's hus-band. He's back in the country, you know. He came back the day of the murder. But he's disappeared. I—I just thought maybe I could straighten out a lot of things if I came." "I think so too," Jerry beamed at her. A glance from Pam changed him

A glance from Pam changed him her. hastily back into the role of loyal hus-band. Pam said sharply, "And now what can we do for you?"

"You could let me stay on your living-The girl looked at her appealingly. room couch until morning. could search for clues by daylight. It's only another couple of hours." The amiable Norths eyed her tear-stained face—and shrugged. "Okay," they said in chorus, and Pam rose to settle her in the livingroom.

In another few minutes, the dark-ened apartment was filled once more with the symphony of snores. But then again Pam found herself sitting bolt upright in bed, again peering at a dark, muffled forum coming in from the for muffled figure coming in from the fire escape-again with a concealing handkerchief over his face, and with a gun in his hand.

This time Pam didn't bother to shake Jerry. "Here's that man again," she told him wearily.

"You should change your costume for the second act, Lola," Jerry mut-tered sleepily. But he too sat up, no longer sleepy, when Lola's frightened voice called from the next room. This was a completely new intruder! And a much more business-like one than Lola.

In no time he had the Norths and Lola crowded in a corner of the bedwhile he began a systematic search of the room. He had quickly and skill-fully covered half the room when Lola suddenly gasped in reaction. Then she ran forward a few feet and said accus-ingly, "You're my brother-in-law— Maria's husband!"

LOVE WENT PACKING

Through ... done for ... all our dreams and sharing, and our little "love nest" of a home! . . . Foolish me-not to realize it was my fault our happiness was spoiled. I thought I understood about feminine hygiene. But it took my doctor to save the day for us. He pointed out, oh so emphatically: "Once-in-a-while care just isn't enough". . . and told me to use "Lysol" brand disinfectant for douching-always.

BUT CAME HOME TO STAY

New lease on love at our house now ... and a so happy Mr. and Mrs.! Of course I took the doctor's advice . . . always use dependable "Lysol" now, for douching. No more salt, soda or other homemade solutions for me, after the doctor said "Lysol" is a proved germ-killer that cleanses thoroughly, yet gently. So easy and economical to use, too - there's no reason to be careless . . . risk happiness . . . ever!

Check these facts with your Doctor

Proper feminine hygiene care is important to the happiness and charm of every woman. So, douche thoroughly with correct "Lysol" solution . . . al-ways! Powerful cleanser— "Lysol's" great spreading power means it reaches deeply into folds and crevices to search out germs. Proved germ. Filer - uniform strength. made under continued labora-tory control...far more dependable than home made solutions. Non-caustic---"Lysol" douching solution is nonirritating, not harmful to vaginal tissues. Follow easy directions. Cleanly odor-disappears after use; deodorizes. More women use "Lysol" for feminine hygiene than any other method. (For FREE feminine hygiene booklet, write opyright, 1946, by Lehn & Fink Products Corp.

Lehn & Fink, 683 Fifth Ave., Ne York 22, N.Y.)

For Feminine Hygiene use "G

"LYSOL" is the registered trade-mark of Lehn & Fink Products Corporation and any use thereof in connection with products not made by it constitutes an infringement thereof.

3

0.31

30

He moved so quickly the Norths hardly knew what happened. Without a word he stepped forward and hit Lola on the jaw. By the time she had sagged to the floor he had run out through the livingroom, and the Norths heard the front door slam behind him. "Tarzan with clothes on!" Pam said, rushing to Lola's aid. But Lola was already sitting up, rubbing her jaw thoughtfully. "No, I'm not hurt much," she assured Pam. Then she added, al-most to herself, "Of course, I could be

Meanwhile Jerry had the telephone in a strangle-hold and was yelling at the police to canvass the building and nearby streets. It was only a half hour before the telephone shrilled, with a police sergeant on the other end of the wire. "Not a thing, Mr. North," he rumbled. "Nobody we could find in the neighborhood but several men walking their dogs. And one dog walk-ing its druphen men."

ing its drunken man." "Okay, thanks for calling," Jerry told him.

Again the North apartment settled to quiet. Again three peaceful snores were the only sound in the dawngraying air. And then, suddenly, the doorbell began to ring. It kept on peal-"Tomorrow," Pam said wearily as she followed her husband out of bed, "I suggest we move to Times Square."

AT the door, Jerry looked surprised at what seemed to be an empty hall. "Why, there's no one . . ." he began. "Look down," Pam advised. He did—and saw a baby boy, not dressed for calling. He wore a striped flannel bathrobe and blue pajamas. Be-hind Jerry. Lola cried warmly, "It's hind Jerry, Lola cried warmly, "It's Maria's son Robbie! Hello, baby, you look just like your pictures!" she hugged him. Meanwhile Jerry began interviewing the baby over her shoul-

"How'd you get here, son?" he asked. Robbie lisped an answer at once. "The Tones, downthairs, have been takin' care of me. My mummy went away, you know."

away, you know. Jerry persisted, "I know, but how did you happen to come up here now?" "I dot up and unwocked the door, and tame up here," Robbie lisped, sen-sibly enough. "I wanted to thee if Mummy was back yet." "She's not—and I think you'd better come back to bed, Rob," a positive voice cut in. The Stones stood in the open doorway, both dressed in bathrobes. It was Mr. Stone who had spoken, and now he stepped forward and took a firm hold on Robbie's small hand. "We missed you, and thought maybe you'd come calling at your old home. But now you have to finish sleeping," he said.

"Oh, no!" Lola said, her voice plead-ing. She kept one arm locked around Robbie. "Let him stay here for breakfast-it's almost time for breakfast. And I haven't seen him ever before. I'm his aunt, you know. Let him stay!" Old Mrs. Stone said to her husband,

Old Mrs. Stone said to her husband, "Yes, dear, let's let him—" "Absolutely not," Mr. Stone told her flatly. He turned back to Robbie. "Come on, boy. Back to your crib." Lola turned to Pam helplessly, and Pam rallied hastily. "Let him stay," she said. "But don't give him any false hope about breakfast. We haven't any foo...."

She got that far when Jerry cut in. "I demand that Robbie stay here for breakfast," he told Stone. "Frankly, I

What's the secret?

Just this, girls! Not one, not two will do it. It takes three oils to give your hair ravishing allure. Laco's three rich oils-olive oil, coconut oil, castor oilblended together give triple-action results. Your hair is left clean, gleaming, and glorified. It's so soft and manageable you outdo yourself in creating glamourous hair-dos. So get Laco Castile Shampoo - at drug counters everywhere! Laco Products Inc., Baltimore won't take no for an answer." His tone was belligerent. So belligerent that Mr. Stone, scowling, reluctantly backed out. He nodded imperatively at his wife to follow him. Pam hastily shut the door on them. Then she stood watching how husband with the watching her husband rush to the watching her husband rush to the baby's side. "What did you see the night—the night you were put in the dumb-waiter, Robbie?" he demanded. Robbie, who had been smiling up at him, suddenly looked as if a mask had fallen before his face. He gazed back in utter, blankness. "Don't 'member," he said indifferently he said indifferently. "Yes, you do. Try, Robbie," Jerry insisted. "What did the man—or wom-an—look like? Think."

Still blank-faced, little Robbie tried to inch away from him. "Don't know," he muttered.

Pam interrupted. "Little as I know about children, Jerry," she said, "I can see that the shock of that night has made him forget everything. His mem-ory is gone. You might as well give ory is gone. You might as wen give up." Jerry rose to his feet, shaking his head in disappointment. "I'm afraid you're right. Children often forget something that terrified them—it just blots out in their minds." He paced the floor, thinking. "But he might know the answer to the whole tragedy . . . and there's some way to make him re-call it. There's something that will bring it all back."

THEN he got an idea. Jubilantly he turned to Robbie, swung him off the ground. "I have it! The dumbwaiter! We'll put him in it—maybe that will do the trick!" Robbie gurgled happily as Jerry ran with him to the dumbwaiter shaft, with Pam and Lola behind them. But with Pam and Lola behind them. But the minute Jerry slid wide the door of the dark shaft, the little boy began whimpering and straining away. "Don't wanna go in there! Dark!" he said, kicking and wrestling in Jerry's arms. And by the time Jerry had pulled the big dumbwaiter box into view, the baby was screaming in terror. Pam took a stand, with Lola back-ing her up. "Jerry, little as I still know about children, I can see he doesn't cotton to that idea." Then she took an even firmer stand. "I shall get in the box—me and my flashlight," she decided. "Maybe the murderer dropped something in the way of clues down something in the way of clues down the shaft when he was stuffing Robbie into it—anyway, we'll see. It won't

AUGUST RADIO MIRROR on Sale FRIDAY, JULY 12th

Transportation difficulties are still a problem, and we find that it helps lighten the burden if RADIO MIRROR goes on the newsstands each month at a slightly later date. RADIO MIRROR for August will go on sale Friday, July 12th. Sub-scription copies are mailed on time, but they may reach you a little late, too. It's unavoidable ---please be patient!

Thank World-Famous Surgeon and a Renowned Chemist for

THIS NEWER, SCIENTIFIC PRINCIPLE OF FEMININE HYGIENE

No other type Liquid Antiseptic-Germicide for the douche of all those tested is So Powerful yet So Safe to Delicate Tissues!

Name.

Citv

Address_____

Modern, well-informed women realize how important douching three or four times a week often is to intimate feminine cleanliness, charm, marriage happiness —how important douching is to combat one of woman's most serious and offending deodorant problems.

But there are still a shocking number of women who do not know WHAT to put in the douche. AND THIS IS SO VERY IMPORTANT!

Wise Women No Longer Use Old-Fashioned Methods

Thanks to a world-famous Surgeon and a renowned Chemist who have given the world the remarkable ZONITE PRINCIPLE -wise women no longer use old-fashioned ineffective or dangerous products.

The ZONITE principle developed by these two great men of science was truly a miracle—the first antiseptic-germicide in the world that was powerful enough yet non-poisonous and wouldn't injure the most delicate tissues.

All Drugstores—No Prescription

Doctors have found that ZONITE's power-ful strength and safety to delicate tissues make it of great worth for intimate feminine hygiene.

ZONITE actually destroys and removes odor-causing waste substances. Helps guard against infection. It's so power-fully effective no germs of any kind tested have ever been found that it will not kill on contact. You know it's not always possible to contact all the germs in the tract. BUT YOU CAN BE SURE ZONITE immediately kills every reachable germ and keeps them from multiplying.

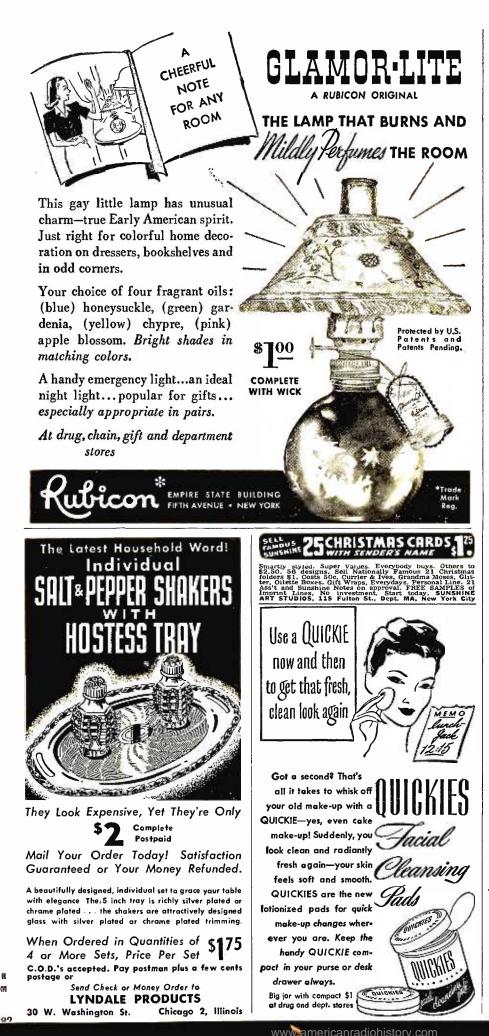

Yet despite its great strength-zonite is positively non-poisonous, non-irrital-ing, non-burning. You can use ZONITE as directed as often as needed without risk of injury.

FREE!

_ State ____

For frank discussion of intimate physical facts—mail this coupon to Zonite Products, Dept. RM-76, 370 Lexington Ave., New York 17, N. Y., and receive enlightening FREE booklet edited by several eminent Gynecologists.

R M

hurt—the least it will do is show Rob-bie there's nothing to be afraid of. Then maybe we can get something out of him." Once she had the idea, she Once she had the idea, she could hardly wait for Jerry to finish his careful testing of the ropes. Then, pulling her flapping pajamas tightly around her, she climbed into the box. A second later she had manipulated the ropes and had sunk out of sight into the dark shaft. "I'm going down a little," she called up through the gloom, "Maybe called up through the gloom, "Maybe I'll find something—a stain on the walls, at one of the other floors, or something like that. A clue!" Lola joined Jerry at the opening, with Robbie clinging to her hand. They watched the ropes moving in front of them, and heard Pam's cheerful call float up, "First Pam's cheerful call float up, "First floor down—and all's well!" Then, it seemed only a second later, the ropes in front of their eyes went dead still. A second after that and they heard

"Pam's voice, nuffled but terrified. "Jerry! Help!" she was shrieking. "I think somebody's cutting the ropes!" "I think somebody's cutting the ropes: Jerry turned sheet-white. Over his shoulder he shouted, "Lola, call the police." Desperately he began work-ing hand-over-hand on the rope that pulled the box upward. But his voice, as he called down to Pam, didn't match his sweating face at all. "Don't look now." he called lightly "but it's the his sweating face at all. "Don't look now," he called lightly, "but it's the old man to the rescue." He went on He went on doing the only thing he could—heaving on the rope, praying it wouldn't sever before he could drag her up to safety. Then, far below in the shaft, there was another scream from Pam and a crash. The rope on which Jerry was heaving leaped from his hands, almost pulling him into the shaft after it.

 ${f B}$ UT he managed to keep his hold, bracing himself against the sides of the dumbwaiter door. Meanwhile he yelled Pam's name down the shaft, his voice quavering. Muffled, embittered, her voice floated up. "Yes, my dear husband. What do you want?—And before you tell me, let me say I want to get out of here. I'm stuck in the shaft—and somehow this box has fixed it so I'm sitting on my head!"

Jerry almost grinned in his relief. Then, straining, he began lugging again at the rope. In between pulls, he called down to her, "There's no killing you off—the clumsy fool cut the wrong rope! Which dooms me to haul your hundred and fifteen pounds upward all by myself!

And finally the box appeared in sight again, with Pam balancing it in the middle of the shaft with her hands. And Pam talking copiously about the rope-cutter in particular and dumb-waiters in general. And Pam adding, as she clambered back into the apart-ment, "Another thing—my pajama coat has been over my face most of my up-side-down trip. Remind me to buy some new pajamas—I kept chewing thoughtfully on these, and I don't like the flavor of the material!"

the havor of the material? Shaking and sweating from his re-cent efforts though he was, Jerry stared at her as if she had spoken with the wisdom of Solomon. Then he snapped his fingers with an idea and said aloud, "Over your face!" A second later he had grabbed a handkerchief out of his had grabbed a handkerchief out of his pocket and hastily tied it under his eyes. While Lola and Pam stared at him in amazement, he bent down to small Robbie. "Who am I, Robbie?" he asked through the handkerchief. Robbie stared at him only for a sec-ond. Then he said, "Mither Tone," and burst into noisy, heartbreaking tears.

Everything happened fast from then on. Jerry ran into the hall, with Pam on his heels. As they headed for the stairs, four policemen got out of the elevator. "Follow us!" Jerry yelled, and all of them ran down the stairs to and all of them ran down the stairs to the floor below. A second later, they were pounding on the Stones' door. They were only just in time. Stone, hastily dressed and carrying a small bag, was caught half-way to his own door as they knocked it in. "Arrest that man," Jerry said, "for the murder of Maria Lombardy and the sttempted murder of her small son" attempted murder of her small son." Then both the Norths jumped for-ward to catch old Mrs. Stone, as she toppled to the floor in a dead faint.

Later, after Stone had been taken to police headquarters, Pam and Jerry sat in a sunny window of their apartment eating a tray breakfast.

"You can now explain everything," Pam said through a mouthful of egg.

JERRY, through his bacon, explained that young Mr. Stone, who had married old Mrs. Stone for her money, had seen in the lovely young Maria Lom-bardy a chance for even more money and love to boot. So he had wooed her, in the absence of her soldier husband, and had thought he'd won her. But But when she heard that her husband was coming home, she'd changed her mind. Infuriated, Stone had murdered her by coming in with a handkerchief over his face in the dead of night and knifing her. Little Robbie had seen the whole thing sleepily from his crib, and recognized Stone's familiar voice when Stone spoke to him through the handkerchief. So Stone, whose murder weapon was sunk deep in Maria's heart, had hastily attempted to choke the boy and had wildly put him in the dumbwaiter box—meaning, no doubt, to complete the job from his own apartment's dumbwaiter opening in a few minutes and then toss the lifeless body down the shaft.

But the boy's cries had roused kindly old Mrs. Stone, who had already dragged him from the box when young Mr. Stone reappeared. Then, in the excitement of the police investigation, Stone had decided to do journer with Stone had decided to do away with the boy after the spotlight was off the case. He and Mrs. Stone (she in innocence) had kept the police from quescence) had kept the police from ques-tioning the little boy too fully by say-ing that the shock of it would affect his mind indefinitely. In any event, Robbie remembered nothing of the horror night until Jerry's questioning. Meanwhile, Robbie's father's mys-tonious disconcerence in New York bad terious disappearance in New York had been much like Lola's visit—both wanted to find Maria's murderer without being hampered by the police. It was the father who'd come in via the fire escape and hit Lola (gently) when she identified him. But Stone was responsible for the rock thrown through the window with the scare-note attached.

"And now Robbie will find a home with his father and all will be well," Jerry wound up. Then he looked with his father and all will be well, Jerry wound up. Then he looked sharply at his wife, whose nose was buried rudely in a newspaper. "Just what are you doing?" he demanded. "Looking at the housing ads," she said without emerging from behind the newspaper. "This place will be too monotonous from now on. But here's one that sounds promising. It's an 80year-old house, with a history of ghosts, located in a Florida swamp-land...."

You'll find a unique and delightful sensation in this new antiseptic ... pleasing taste, plus the thrilling feeling of complete oral cleanliness. For health protection, breath protection and an exhilaration never known before, try Lanteen Antiseptic as a mouth wash and gargle today. In three sizes-25c, 49c, 89c. Ask your druggist.

INDATOWI. by Starcross

a dish towel twice as absorbent as ordinary dish towels

- * Twice as absorbent
- * Dries in a jiffy
- ★ Washes like a hanky
- * Practically lintless
 - At Better Stores Everywhere

STARCROSS, Inc. NEW YORK, N. Y. GREENVILLE, S. C.) R

YOUR SHOES ARE SHOWING!

EMBARRASSING, ISN'T IT? YOU SHINOLA

• You're not expected to stop what you're doing to rush out and buy Shinola. But it is a good idea to keep a supply on hand. The oily waxes in Shinola help preserve leathergive your shoes a neat-looking shine. Why DOT KEEP 'EM SHINING WITH SHINOLA?

SHINOLA WHITE works wonders with white shoes—all types, leather or fabric. It's easy to put on yet hard to rub off.

A SPECIAL NEW HAIR RINSE

Brings Golden Highlights To Dull, Faded Hair

Blondes! Here it is at last! The new Rinse and Tint made specially for blondes. Gives dull, faded hair lovely extra lustre and that little rouch of color blonde hair often needs. Called BLONDEX GOLDEN RINSE, it is not a permanent dye or bleach – washes off as easily as make-up. Made by the makers of BLONDEX, the world's largest selling blonde shampoo. Costs little to use. Sold at all good 10c, drug and department stores.

Don't You Know I Love You?

(Continued from page 47)

"Run along, you peacock," I said gaily.

"Let a woman have a chance. I went to the wardrobe, and took from its hanger the yellow dress I had worn the night Dick proposed to me. How tenderly I had cherished it! "Dear God," I prayed softly, "please help him to remember just the dear, lovely things! For this one night, any-how. Please, God!" Dick was waiting for me in the Dick was waiting for me in the livingroom. "Remember me?" I asked, smiling shyly at him from the door-But Dick didn't smile back. Inwav. way. But Dick didn't smile back. In-stead, he got slowly to his feet, and his face was white as he stared at me. "That's the way you looked when I married you," he said, his voice seem-ing to accuse me. "You look just ex-actly the same," he repeated, staring. So he had represented So he had remembered!

WANTED to hold out my arms to him, to tell him I was the same, to L let him hold me in his arms as he had then, but I knew I must not. He would do it, it was what he wanted, but later he would hate me for it. It was enough now that he found me beautiful. As through some inner mirror, I saw myself through his eyes. In that dress the color of soft sunshine, with my hairbrushed so hard for so many weeks!waving away from a face in which there must be still some sparkle of excitement, with my eyes masking their pleading with gaiety—he thought me lovely. He wanted me close. It was there, in his face, in his involuntary movement toward me. But I stepped back. "Oh, no, not really," I said lightly. "That's a coincidental resemblance, as they say in the stories. I'm far from being the same, really. Come on—fried chicken, cream gravy, hot biscuit, everything you like." Dick grinned as he followed me into the dingroup and hold my choice the diningroom and held my chair. "How are you different?" he challenged. The grin was in his voice too, as though he were just making conversation, but I thought I sensed a tenseness. "Better," I said, looking into his eyes. "Much better, Dick. Less selfish, less-my goodness. I'm getting light-headed myself. Might be starvation, don't you think?"

Laughing, chatting, deliberately keeping on the surface of things, we ate our dinner. I kept looking around the our ainner. I kept looking around the cheerful room with its pale blue and ivory paneling, which we had planned together with such pride; the delicate flowery draperies, the china, the can-dles in their silver holders that had been a gift from the Pads. Everything spoke of shared happiness. Of lives knitted together through hours of interknitted together through hours of interwoven thinking, planning, habits. Could they be broken as lightly as Dick thought? Was that what he really wanted?

It wasn't until we finished dinner, and were sitting on the couch in front of the fire, that anything definite was said. Dick spoke slowly, reluctantly. "I guess we'd better get it all said, Merry. It's —nothing new, it shouldn't be hard to being it out and face it Affer all" bring it out and face it. After all," he turned to me, but he didn't look at me; his eyes were remote, remember-ing, "we both knew we'd made a flop of our marriage. We talked about it before I went. It was plain enough

mericanradiohistory com

If Baby is cranky and irritable he may have a personal problem all his own. Perhaps his food is all wrong, or it may be his clothing, lack of proper, restful sleep— any one of a dozen things. The little fellow can't tell you what's wrong but you can be certain he doesn't enjoy being unhappy! It's up to you, Mother, to find the trouble. A fretful, listless child may often be a sick one.

And these problems of baby care and training are of vital importance. If you want your baby to be healthy, happy and grow up to be a superior person, you must know how to handle every problem during the formative years of your baby's life.

Dr. Dafoe On Baby Care

Here is your opportunity to get expert, dependable advice from a doctor that really knows about babies! In his book, How to Roise Your Boby, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician to the famous quintuplets, tells you all you need to know about your child -from infancy right through the difficult growing stages. All about baby ailments, childhood infections, breast and bottle feeding, first solid foods, training, important facts about vitamins. Teaches you to understand and what to do about shy, nervous youngsters-the child who refuses to eat. Here, mothers, is the very book you have been looking for!

Order your copy TODAY Only 2

Contents: About Quintuplets—Twins and Premature Babies . . . The Newborn Infant—How it Should be Fed . . . Feeding the Growing Baby . . . Sleep—How Much a Child Needs . . Early Training in Toilet Habits . . Growth of the Child . . . Summer Care and Feeding . . . Guarding Against Illness and Injuries . . . When the Child is Backward or Nervous . . One to Five-Year Olds—Care and Growth . . . Train-ing Hints as Child Grows Up.

BARTHOLOMEW HOUSE. INC. Dept. RM-746 205 East 42nd Street, New York 17, N. Y. Send me postpaid, Dr. Dafoe's book How to Raise Your Baby. I enclose 25c.
Name
City State

R

M

then, and the past three years haven't changed what went before. We just weren't any good together." When I didn't answer, he repeated almost an-grily, "We weren't, were we?"

I took a deep breath over the tight-ness in my throat. "No. No, we weren't Dick. But maybe-three years is a long time. I've thought a lot about us, tried to discover where we went wrong— where I went wrong." "It's over!" Dick jumped up restlessly, walked about the room, sat down again. "It'll hurt too much to drag it all up again. We decided on divorce, and we were right." "Yes," I whispered. Everything in me was tight, strained, hope and my desperate need of him tangled with the fear that I couldn't find words to reach we'd been more patient, given each other more time... Don't you see, Dick, I understand better now. I've grown up. I didn't mean to be selfish. I just didn't want our manifest "But maybe it was a mistake. If him. I just didn't want our marriage to be like so many others; like Mother's. I guess I was a little unbalanced. I wanted the right thing—but I went about it all wrong. I know that now."

"I'LL say you did." Dick was grim. He wasn't meeting me half way—not any of the way, in fact. He shook his head. "It wouldn't work. I know you mean it for the best, Merry, but it just wouldn't do. We don't see things alike." "We're older. People do change. We— we loved each other very much, once." It was the wrong thing to say. I knew

We loved each other very much, once." It was the wrong thing to say. I knew it as soon as the words were out. He didn't want to be reminded. "We did." His voice was unsteady with anger. "I loved you more than was good for either of us, I guess. I couldn't see that the friendly, happy feeling—like to-night—was just an accident, that basi-cally we had nothing to build on Ob cally we had nothing to build on. Oh, what's the use of this, Merry!" I turned from the look in his eyes, the twist of his mouth. "Let's stop this. It's dead, and I want to forget it. Let's just let and I want to lorget it. Let's just let each other go, and start out free." His words were like the official seal on a death sentence. "All right," I said, quietly. "We won't say any more then." I got up. "Would you like some music?" I walked steadily toward the piano, careful to keep my head turned so he couldn't see my face. My eyes felt as if someone had thrown a handful of as in some in the second marked of the second secon make it any easier. I sat down at the piano and began playing. That always helped me.

While I was playing, the Pads ar-rived. I had forgotten to call Darling, and had time only for a mutely apologetic glance at Dick as breathless and excited they crowded around him, all talking at once. There were still a few missing from the old crowd, some who were still in service. Some wouldn't come back at all. I saw Dick's eyes take quick note of this, and a swift shadow crossed his face, before he joined in the fun.

"Didn't we hear music while we were pounding at the door?" Darling beamed around at me. "Look, Merry, girl, when you're celebrating, this is how you do it." She popped down at the piano, began pounding out all the raucous, gay old melodies the Pads had loved to sing in the old days, the ones that had al-ways made me wince. I saw Dick glance at me, and look away, puzzled at the expression on my face. He didn't know—I hadn't had time to tell him—

NOW YOU NEED NO LONGER ENDURE Gray Hair

For a Hollywood Scientist Has Found an Easy Way to Overcome This Handicap.

Don't worry if your hoir is turning groy, or looks dry, dull ond foded. Do like men ond women from one end of the notion to the other ore doing. Get HERBOLD POMADE from your Deoler ond use os directed. Reod the Guorontee below.

WHEN YOUR HAIR is streaked with gray, faded, unsightly-lacking, yau may be handicapped in many ways. Try HERBOLD POMADE and see what it can do. Once each day take a little of this clean, fragrant substance an yaur finger tips and massage it into yaur hair. This simple pracess adds deep, rich, yauthfullooking calor to faded, gray-streaked hair, yet works so gradually, from day to day, that usually not even close friends and associates will know!

IN FACT, it largely appears that yau are simply using an excellent daily hair dressing, because HERBOLD POMADE canditions and groams the hair and helps keep it in goad farm, while adding youthful-loaking calor at the same time. It will not rub aff or stain clathing ar pillow, and is easy to use. Takes less than a minute to apply, while you are freshening-up for the day.

ALMOST TOO GOOD TO BELIEVE. Although other methods yau may have tried sounded easy but were hard to use, HERBOLD POMADE is really easier to use

M. HERBOLD, A.B.,

M.S., the Hollywood Chemist, creator of Herbold Pomode, who soys: "I hove such contidence in my pomode that I wont it sold only on the basis of com-M.S., the Hollywoo the bosis of com-plete satisfaction or money bock.

than these simple statements may lead yau to expect. UNCONDITIONAL GUARANTEE. Get HERBOLD

POMADE at drug and department stares. Use exactly as directed. If for any reason after you have used the entire cantents, you are not completely satisfied, return the empty jar to address below and your total purchase price will be refunded. Shauld your favorite stare be unable to supply you pramptly, send direct to Labora-tory. Enclose $1.00 for the Pomade plus 25c tax and

Herbold Loborotory, Inc., Dept. 32, 7212 Melrose Avenue, Hollywood 46, Colifornia

MER? GET THE This new 128-page book, "Stammering, Its Cause and Correction," describes the Bogue Unit Methor for scientific correction of stammering and stur tering-successful for 45 years. Benj, N. Begue, Dept. 1185. Circle Tower, Indianapolis 4. Ind. FREE BOOKI

FOR INVENTORS INVENTION RECORD FREE Write today for full information on patent protection and "Record of Invention" form FREE. Confidential ser-vice. RANDOLPH & BE.VERS. Registered Patent Attorneys. "910 Columbian Bldg. Washington, D. C.

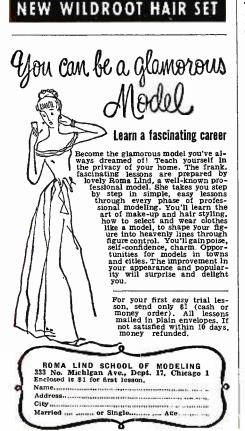

GIRLS! Want quick curls?

EYES light on lovely hair and linger there when it shines in all its natural beauty. Your hair will be soft, sparkling, and lustrous when you do it at home with new different Wildroot Hair Set that replaces old-fashioned thick gummy wave sets. Does all they do and more! Light bodied, faster drying. It contains processed LANOLIN, leaves your hair soft, natural, and at its lovely best. Style your own distinctive hair-do quickly, without fuss or disappointment! And watch those admiring glances! Ask for New Wildroot Hair Set at your toilet goods counter today!

NEW WILDROOT HATH

how I had changed about the Pads, how much Darling and her wonderful, zest-ful personality had changed my way of living, while he'd been gone. The girl he'd left would have been shrinking in a corner, in a ladylike way, ob-viously waiting for her guests to go home. Now, if it hadn't been for the emptiness inside, I would have been en-joying myself. I'd learned how, these past three years. Mentally I shrugged. But he didn't care, I reminded myself. He didn't want me, changed or no. He wouldn't wait to give us another chance. While someone else took over the piano, and I took coffee round, Darpiano, and I took coffee round, Dar-ling fell into earnest conversation with Dick. The snatches I heard only made me more hopeless. "Merry thought she was a one-woman army, the way she pounded the piano day and night for those boys," was one bit. Then there was something about Dick's mother, and the Red Cross work . . . but Dick wasn't really listening. Half an ear turned to Darling, half to the singing, his eyes on her vivacious, mobile face, he smiled as though whatever she had he smiled as though whatever she had to say would please him, even if he wasn't really listening to it.

THE Pads didn't stay long. Dick got up when they started to leave. "I'm coming along," he said loudly, almost as if he expected someone to object. "If you'll wait a minute, I want to speak to Merry, before I leave. I've got to push on to Mother's tonight. She's been sick."

'Isn't Merry going with you?" Darling's voice was as short as Dick's, as uncompromising. "After all, it's your first night, and I know your mother will want Merry, too—" Something she "Oh, well," she finished lamely, "I guess you and Merry know what you want to do." "It's all right," I said softly. "I have a headache, so I'd better stay home. If I followed Dick into our bedroom, my heart beating as if I'd been racing. My eyes flew to his face. "I'm going now, Merry," he said abruptly. "It's better this way. Easier and—quick."

I held my head high, forcing my lips smile. "You mean you won't be to smile. back?''

He nodded. "I'm sorry." Sorry! That was a foolish, empty word for the way I felt. "Let's see each other, sometimes." He nodded stiffly, almost reluctantly. After that, time ceased for me. I hardly heard what the Pads said as they left. I noted almost indifferently the compassion in Darling's eyes, the half promise. She would do what she could of course, but what could anyone do?

I stood alone in our livingroom, looking about it, seeing the ghost of a thousand dreams trailing through it, mocking me. I couldn't stand it, I thought Ing me. I couldn't stand it, I thought desperately, I'd have to do something, go somewhere. But where would I go? Back to mother's? I knew from experi-ence that wouldn't help. Ghosts have wings, they follow you. You can't get away from them. No, I might as well attay from them. No, I might as well stay right here. Maybe there were happy ghosts, too. Maybe they'd finally happy ghosts, too. May be they a many come to my rescue, if I gave them time. I walked slowly back to the piano, and sat down. What had I been play-ing? Chopin, of course. He knew about heartbreak, wreckage. I had been playgram when Dick first saw me. I don't

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with somart-ing and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep. When disorder of kidney function permits poison-ous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, pufiness under the eyes, headaches and diziness. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poison-ous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

B

M

know what he was doing in the broadcasting room. He wasn't supposed to be there, but Dick was always bobbing up where he wasn't supposed to be. I looked up, after finishing my number, my face lighted with the loveliness of the music, my spirit caught by its glory, and there was Dick smiling down at me. Somehow, his face and the music got all mixed up together right then and there, in my heart. And from that time on it was like that. Don't listen to people who say it can't happen. It does. It did to me. And it didn't seem strange, at all. It was the most natural thing in the world. I was in love.

strange, at all. It was the most natural thing in the world. I was in love. "Please," he said eagerly, "don't lose that look. Or is Chopin the only thing that makes you feel that way? You know — radiant and sort of transported."

I smiled, directly and with no hope of disguising my feeling. "Chopin was, or music was," I told him. "Up to now." And our eyes held, and held.

A month from then we were married. "Someone else might find you," Dick insisted. "I can't think how I ever had such luck, anyhow. But I won't try to stretch it out. It might not hold." _____It will hold, all right," I told him.

"It will hold, all right," I told him. "But, Dick, I want our marriage to be different from those of most of the people I've known. I couldn't bear it if it were like my parents. They're divorced now, but they weren't for years. They lived right there in the same house, and they were like strangers. Do you know I can't ever remember seeing my father kiss my mother! I don't believe he ever did. They weren't disagreeable, or cross like lots of people. I can't imagine my mother ever losing her temper. I don't even think they were unhappy. Of course, there was plenty of money, and they were gone lots of the time, but it does seem odd, don't you think, for two people to live like that—don't you suppose they were ever in love? Why did they get married if they weren't?"

DICK shook his head. "Can't imagine," he admitted. "Your mother is lovely enough for any man to love. You look like her. Look here," he grinned, "you don't suppose it runs in the family, do you?" "Not on your life. I'll show you. I'm "Not on your life. I'll show you. I'm never going to let you out of my sight. You'll see. We're not going to be a bit like them."

I didn't need to worry. We weren't like them. To begin with, we didn't have any money except Dick's salary as a reporter, and it was small. Dick wouldn't hear of my accepting the allowance my mother wanted to continue making me, which she was well able to afford. He even refused the beautiful house mother picked out as her wedding present to us. "We'll start on our own, even if it isn't too good," he insisted. But to make up for his refusal, he bought a charming little cottage, with sunlit, brilliant rooms, opening out onto a backyard gay with flowers. "On the instalment plan," he admitted sheepishly. "A dollar down, and the rest scattered over the rest of your life."

From the first moment, I loved it. It was something of my very own. Something Dick and I would have, just the two of us. How well I remember that afternoon in late spring when Dick brought me for the first time to see the little house in its bright setting of flowers.

I turned to him with swimming eyes. "I love you," I whispered, putting both arms about his neck. "I'll love you as

• Now, at bome, you can quickly tint telltale gray to natural-appearing shades—trom lightest blonde to darkest black. Brownatone and a small brusb does it—or your money back. Approved by thousands—Brownatone is guaranteed barmless when used as directed. No skin test needed. The principal coloring agent is a purely vegetable derivative with iron and copper saits added for fast action. Cannot affect waving of bair. Lasting—does not wash out. Just brusb or comb it in. One application imparts desired color. Simply retouch, as new gray appears. Easy to prove on a test lock of your bair. 60c and $1.65 at druggists. Get BROWNATONE now, or Write for FREE TEST BOTTLE Mention natural color of your hair. Send a post card today—BROWNATONE, Dept. 287, COVINGTON. KY.

82 194

87

CAUTION-USE ONLY A5 DIRECTED

long as I live and afterwards, too." "Here, here, you mustn't make rash statements. Always is a long time, and love has wings, they say. Especially love in a cottage," he teased. "They say it even flies out the windows."

I couldn't bear to have him tease. "Don't, Dick," I pleaded, "Our love won't fly out of any window. We'll keep it away from everybody. We'll shut people out. We'll keep it just for ourselves." We plan like that in our selfish blindness. I didn't know then that I had just planned the death of our marriage, right at its beginning. Deep dry sobs shook me at the memory of my weakness, the weakness in my own nature that stole happiness from me. The beautiful things of life do not come to those who shut themselves away from life, I know that now. They are born out there in the stream of living, in the relentless ebb and flow that hammers character into solid beauty.

But I didn't know that then! So I tried to shut people out of our lives.

THERE was that first time Dick ■ wanted to have his friends from the office out. "The Pads are swell, Merry. I want you to know them. They're my best friends-almost my only ones. I don't have much time. And I want to show you off to them! They're crazy to know you." I smiled at the eagerness in his voice, but I shook my head. "Not yet, Dick," I pleaded. "Please let's wait a little while. We've only had two weeks, darling. People and things will break in soon enough. You don't mind, Dick, do you—just a little while longer?"

He smiled, but a little shadow seemed to cross his face. How was I to know I'd reached a crucial moment in my life? The only warning I had was the tiny shadow that crossed his face. Why, oh, why, didn't it pierce my heart and make me understand? All my life had been making me unready for this moment. At least, that was what I told moment hat least, that was what I tood myself later, when the memory of the moment had become an agony past bearing. But it isn't life that unfits us for its big moments when we hover on the brink of momentous decisions, but our own selfish reactions to life. Our pettiness! Our greed! I had learned that too.

Dick went back to his work, back to his friends, and I was left at home. My days were filled with thoughts of him. Of our happiness. I worked around the house and garden with a heart brimming with joy, and songs trembled from my lips in an overflow of hap-piness. I planned every moment so that the time would pass quickly until he was back home again. I studied my cook-book until I knew how to cook all the things he liked best. I kept the house spotless. And when the mo-ments seemed long, I sat down and played my heart out on the mellowed ivory keys, over which I had hovered since babyhood. It had been mother's wedding present to me.

My happiness seemed so complete that I couldn't understand Dick's insistence that I have outside interests. "Keep up your radio work, Merry, dar-ling," he insisted. "I don't need outside interests," I objected, closing his arguments with a kiss. "I have you, and that's all'I kiss. want."

Dick started to say something, then eemed to change his mind. "How seemed to change his mind. about having your mother over to dinner sometime real soon-maybe to-morrow? And I'd like us to spend a

Red, Ugly Surface Pimples Better, Thanks to POSLAM

EMBARRASSED? Don't be discouraged by pimples of exter-nal origin. Dab a little Poslam on them tonight. See how fast those red, lumpy blotches fade, how your skin improves. Now you can meet people face to face!

FAST IMPROVEMENT! This powerful medication has been successfully used by thousands who had almost given up hope. Also used by many nurses as a complexion aid. Try Poslam complexion aid. Try Poslam tonight. 50c, druggists. Moneyback guarantee.

FREE SAMPLE: for convincing test box, write Poslam, Desk 7G, 254 W. 54 St., New York 19, N. Y.

or spare time. Write

Loveland, Ohio

Dept. G-833.

SO-LO WORKS, INC.,

00

day or so with my mother. You've never met her, and she doesn't live far away. You'd like that, wouldn't you?" "Of course, I would, Dick. But let's wait a little longer. Mother will understand, and your mother, too, I know. I don't want anybody else except you,

I don't want any see, right now." "But, Merry, it's all wrong. You can't go on like this. Invite your friends out to see us, and I'll bring mine. Let's make it a gathering place for our friends. I've always wanted that kind of home. How about it?" "But, Dick, I haven't any real friends.

We've only lived here a short time. And, besides, I've never cared much for friends. I've had mother, and my music. Aren't you happy with just me?"

"Of course, I'm happy with you, Merry. But it isn't the way to live. No-body could stay happy like that, not long. It just isn't normal." "But Dick, I thought we agreed that we didn't want people to clutter up our lives. You're all I want. And what nves. You're all I want. And what you're thinking, what you've been doing while you've been away, all the things to know about you—why, that's all I want ever." "Oh, darling, you're sweet. But you're wrong—wrong!" His hand was gentle on my hair, but even as he caressed me, I heard him sigh, and that sigh seemed to echo, and re-echo in my sigh seemed to echo, and re-echo in my heart-to steal out into the vastness of the world around us. And suddenly I was afraid. I moved closer to him, seeking the warmth and security he alone could give me.

IT was the next day he called me from the office to tell me to be dressed when he got home, we'd have dinner up town and go to a violin concert afterwards. "Dress up, darling, I don't want anyone to outshine you. Besides, I have a surprise for you." I was disappointed, and I showed it. "But, Dick," I urged, "I've something special planned for dinner. Couldn't we go another time?" "Not exactly." Dick's voice was dry, annoyed. "This violinist won't put off his concert because of our special din-his concert because of our special dinner." "Well, no," I laughed. "Of course he won't. But we could have dinner first you're anxious about the concert.

We'd have plenty of time." "That's funny. Look, Merry," he said, "I thought you liked music—that was why I got tickets to the concert. But if you don't want to go just say so, and I'll call it all off." "I'll be ready," I said quietly.

I hung the receiver back in its cradle, wiping the tears from my eyes as I did so. It was our first approach to a quarrel, and I didn't know what to do about it. Maybe he doesn't really love me, I thought in anguish. If he did he wouldn't always be so anxious to get away from me, would he? He wouldn't insist on my doing things without him. And I was right! He ought to have consulted me before making plans!

But, in spite of all that, I put on one of my loveliest evening frocks. A dark chiffon, with a tracery of silvery gray chilfon, with a tracery of silvery gray seeming to outline it, enchanting in its dreamlike mingling of light and shade. It was well I did, for there was un-expected competition. Dick's surprise was a birthday dinner for Darling— Anne Darling—and the rest of the Pads were there. I sat opposite her at dinner, and wondered miserably how Dick had and wondered miserably how Dick had ever happened to marry me with her around. And she was in love with him, too, I decided. You couldn't help seeing

ROSEBUD

Box 114

Woodsboro, Maryland

Just rub it on the gums

GOT A BOIL? HERE'S HOW TO GET RELIEF

Apply a ready-to-use ANTIPHLOGISTINE poultice comfortably hot. Almost at once you'll feel the moist heat go right to work helping to relieve the pain and soreness. You'll see how it helps bring the boil to a head. The moist heat of ANTIPHLOGISTINE works for several hours bringing soothing relief. Feels good -does good.

it. At least, it seemed so to me. She wasn't beautiful—not in a formal, ar-tist's way—but from the crown of her red head to the tips of her tiny feet, she was brimming with aliveness. You had only to look at her to know she was fascinated by life, eager to respond to it. She laughed at and dominated the men in the party without even making an effort, hard-boiled newspapermen though they were. But her blue eyes seemed to linger on Dick. And Dick's eyes were warm and friendly as he looked at her. My heart sank lower and lower. No wonder he'd been so keen about the Pads! If there were any more like her-like her— "Here, snap out of it, Merry—all right for me to call you that?—" a nice blond boy sitting next to me whispered. Vaguely, I remembered Dick had called him Philip. "Never show the other fellow your hand," he bent toward me, smiling, "it gives him a sure lead, you know. Besides, you hold trumps, re-member?" member?'

"I---I don't feel well-thanks, Philip." "Sure," he grinned, "did I say trumps? I meant all the cards. But, really, Darling's regular. She's swell. You'll like her."

DIDN'T. I was jealous for the first I DIDN'T. I was jeanous for the time in my life. I knew it, and was bitterly ashamed but I couldn't help it. I did my best to conceal it, but the eve-ning wasn't a success. I didn't need Dick's, "Whatever was the matter with you, Merry? I never saw you act like that. Didn't you like my friends?" "Not exactly," I admitted. "At least, not all of them." I looked at him point-edly as I spoke. "She's in love with you. I suppose you know that." "Who?" Dick looked surprised. "You

"Yes, I do too." "That's funny. It must be something new. She could have married me any new. She could have married me any time she wanted to up till the time I met you. Or any of the other men. But she couldn't see it like that." "You wanted to marry her?" "Naturally, Merry." He frowned. "We all did. It didn't mean anything. She knew that. You're not jealous, are you?" "No, of course not." But I knew I was. I turned away sick at heart. It might not mean anything to this Dar-ling woman that Dick had wanted to ling woman that Dick had wanted to marry her first, but it did to me. I brushed the tears from my lashes.

I knew Dick was disappointed in me, knew he felt I hadn't measured up. And it hurt. It does when you're very young, very inexperienced. I knew I took love too seriously. It isn't all of life, it's just the coloring, the vitalizing force back of it. I let little hurts cloud my days as if they'd been major disasters. Over the keyboard, my fingers trembled into a soft minor wail as I bowed my head and felt the tears of shame and bitter humilation fall swiftly on the ivory keys. This was the hard part of my story, the part I would so gladly blot from my memory, but even my tears could not do that. It was written into the score, written in crashing discords, in harsh, vibrant tones of violence and pain. Could they ever resolve them-selves into the tender melody of my love song again? It didn't seem so. Dick didn't give up easily. He kept trying to got me to be a port of them.

trying to get me to be a part of things. "Let's have the Pads out," he'd suggest. I always found an excuse. And yet on the one night each week which he always kept for them, I insisted on being included. I felt like an outsider. I never tried to join in their fun, but I wanted,

www.americanradiohistor

whole Wheat Macaroni and Spaghetti. Send $2 for six large 12-oz. packages of each f.o.b. Birmingham. Express will be C.O.D.

VULCAN HEALTH FOODS CO. 2101-B Morris Ave., Birmingham, Ala. Special Quantity Prices to Stores

OSELL CHRISTMAS CARDS As low as 50 for $1 With NAME Show exclusive NAME IMPRINTED Per-sonal Christmas Cards, low as 50 for $1. Amazing values bring you easy sales. BIG SELLERS IN BOX ASSORTMENTS Boost profits with 21 "Feature" $1 Christ-mas assortment - sparkling new features. Other money making assortments - in-cluding our famous Christmas Gift Wrap Ensemble, Religious, Everyday, Ollette, many others. Write today for samples. 0) 1225 Clifford Av., Dept. C-19 Sunc. Rochester 5, N.Y. JARES ART STUDIOS INC.

SOMETHING NEW IN STATIONERY!

Our Lovely Lady Stationery has 5 decorative patterns in one box of 25 sheets and 25 envelopes. Made of a fine bond paper - Env. elopes are Tinted on the inside for complete privacy. Send $1.00 or C. O. D plus postage, TO

CORNELL STATIONERY 2221 HURLEY AVE. CLEVELAND 9, OHIO

MAKE MONEY SELLING PERFUME Sell your friends these high class perfumes. Same scents as many famous hrands selling as high as $18.00 per oz. Sample kit consists of the following units: (all hottles 1 oz, size and retail price listed). Q., Derfame Intrigue$5.00 Lilac 5.30 Gardenia 5.40 Elite 6.50 Fashion$7.70 High Life.... 8.00 Society 9.30 Clique10.00 YOU PAY YOUR PROFIT • $28.60 $28.60 Start making money. Order today F. J. SCHERER CO. 2314 S. Adams St. PEORIA 2, ILL. Do You Want ONGER nd see if you are really enjoying the leasure of Attractive Hair that so often captures Love and Ro HAIR MAY GET LONGER When SCALP and HAIR conditions are normal and the dry, hrittle, breaking off hair can be retarded it has a chance to get longer and much more beautiful. Just try the JUEL LNE System 7 days and let your mirror prove results. Send $1.00 or C.O.D. plns postage, Fully guaranteed. Money JUEL CO., 19301rving ParkRd., Dept, F-S10 Chicago 13, III.

grimly, to be where Dick was, and that was all I thought of. Gradually, the tiny rift widened. Not noticeably, at first, but surely, inevitably. There was the time Dick wanted me to go for the weekend to his mother's with him. I'd been a few times, but I'd never been willing to stay over night. This time I refused again. And Dick went without me! I didn't find out until after he was gone, then one of the Pads called and gave me the message.

I began dropping in at the office. I knew he didn't like it, but on one pretext or another, scarcely a day passed without my either going or telephoning. I was ashamed of myself, and I knew I was embarrassing him, but I was like a was emparrassing him, but I was like a person with a consuming desire. To be with Dick every moment! Not to let anything matter to him more than I did. And yet I should have seen where it was all leading, should have realized that I was surely losing him. I think I did. But I seemed unable to leave him alone. Even when he came home and alone. Even when he came home, and wanted to go out for a few minutes, I insisted on going along. One night he wanted to walk down to the corner drugstore for a package of cigarettes. It was raining, and cold, but in spite of a bad head cold, I insisted on going

"You're getting impossible, Merry," he said sharply. "You know you've no business out in this weather. Can't I be trusted to walk to the drugstore alone, even?

 $\mathbf{T}_{ ext{Dick}}^{ ext{HE}}$ next day I had a high fever, and $\mathbf{D}_{ ext{Dick}}^{ ext{table}}$ had to send for Mother. When I was better, Mother tried to reason with

"I won't have my marriage turn out like yours," I snapped. "Did it ever occur to you, Merry," she said quietly, "that you might be going the same way, and much more quick-ly?"

I looked at her, speechless. "Your father loved another woman when I married him. She married another man-I didn't know until it was too late. I might have won him if I'd tried, but I was proud, and I didn't try. He never stopped loving her, thanks to What you're doing is worse. You're try-ing to fence in a thing like love, and you can't do it any more than you could uurbin. It will cosene you gu for sunshine. It will escape you, fly far away. Love is a free thing. It has wings,

Merry. "You're not happy, dear. And Dick isn't happy either. If you don't wake up very quickly, you're going to crash on the rocks you yourself have rolled into your path."

She was right. But the crash was much nearer than she guessed. I didn't guess what the result was going to be when I picked up the telephone that night. It was almost time for Dick to come home, but he called to say he couldn't make it. "And, Merry, I need your help. We have an important radio program on tonight. It's patriotic---we're trying to wake people up to the we're trying to wake people up to the danger we're in if we don't do more about this war. We'll be actually in it in a few weeks, if we wait that long. And almost nobody seems to believe it. Even Darling is singing. She has a fine voice, but she generally won't use it. What we need is an accompanist. The one we asked has flu. I'll be right out for your hopey. But on your yery gavfor you, honey. Put on your very gay-est frock, and let 'em have it."

I was frozen the instant he mentioned Darling. Whatever he'd asked of me, after that, would have been impossible.

mericanradiohisto

Spare me, please, but kill the fleas

Use the NEW SKIP-FLEA POWDER with DDT

• Yep, Boss, here's one flea powder with DDT that doesn't make me itch and scratch. You see it's a new formula with a combination of ingredients that annihilates my fleas ... without stirring them up. Like all Sergeant's products, Boss, it's heen tested plenty . . . on dogs, and in important clinical laboratories. It's safe ... it's sure ... it's fast ... it's Sergeant's SKIP-FLEA ... and we can get it at any drug store ... along with Sergeant's SKIP-FLEA Soap. Come on, Boss, let's get some today!

Here's a product that really does what it claims. It's a Doctor's wonderfully soothing yet powerfully medicated liquid called Zemo. First applications relieve itching and burning between cracked, peeling toes and aid healing. Zemo actu-ally kills on contact the vicious germs* that cause and spread this trouble. That's why Zemo has such an amazing record of continuous success. First trial record of continuous success. First trial convinces. Buy Zemo at any drugstore.

It's unheard of! A GENUINE DIAMOND Bridal Solitaire ring with a genuine diamond wedding ring to match, set in 14 Kt. or 10 Kt. YELLOW GOLD-both rings for only $9 or your choice of any one ring only 55. With genuine diamonds selling at such unbe-lievably low prices why embarras yourself by wearing imitation stones set in cheap gold plated metal. Each of our rings is stamped 14 Kt. or 10 Kt. gold. Send in your order today but send no morey unless you wish. Pay postman Price of ring or set selected plus C.O.D. and postal handling charges. If you send money order we pay all postal charges.

GUARANTEE: If not delighted with rings, return within 10 days and get your money back. Mail coupon now. Indicate by number which ring or set you prefer and also ring size. (For ring size wrap piece of string or paper around finger and send with coupon.)

And besides, I told myself with the familiar rush of bitterness, I wouldn't be a fill-in. They all knew I loved to phay; if they'd really wanted me, they'd have asked me in the first place.

I hardly waited for him to finish. "I can't, Dick," I said. "I haven't been practicing lately, and I'm rusty. Be-sides, I don't want to accompany your friend. Get someone else."

"You mean you won't play?" My heart ached at the strangeness of his

"No," I said coldly, "I won't." He hung up. And that night he didn't come home. I walked the floor half the night. I'd go to bed and stay until I go to the window. He might be com-ing! Once I called the office, but he wasn't there, and they weren't expect-ing him in. Between times, I walked the floor. When morning came, I had a raging headache. My imagination had run the gamut. I had seen him dead, run over, perhaps; I'd seen him with Darling in his arms-arms that should have been holding me; I'd seen him in all kinds of agonizing places. But as the torturing hours of the day passed, I knew I must find out where he was. Anything was better than this. "Oh, Dick. Dick," my heart kept calling, "don't leave me alone. There's nothing else in the world. Come back-back. I'll do anything, anything. come

About dark, I could bear it no longer. I put on my hat and coat, and went to the office, I'd make them tell me some-thing, I vowed. They had to know where he was; they always knew.

PUSHED my way past the girl at the information desk, and went straight to the news room. It was completely empty. But that wasn't strange. I knew the men were usually out at that hour. I'd just been hoping one of them might still be there. There was nothing for it but to wring something from the girl at the desk. I bit my lips, hating to ask her anything. Too late, I wished I'd followed Dick's advice and been more friendly. I hadn't known how to be, but I wished now I'd tried a little harder.

When I asked about Dick, she looked me over coolly. "We're not allowed to give out information," she said, indif-ferently, "but he's out of town, I can tell you that much. He'll be gone several days. Darling is covering the assignment with him."

I tried to smile as I turned away, determined not to let her know how hurt I was. Dick hadn't bothered to call and tell me, and he'd gone with the woman I hated. It didn't matter that the fault was mine—the payment was mine too. But she shouldn't know! No one should!

"Thank you," I said quietly, as I turned at the door.

Something she saw in my face must

"I wouldn't worry, Mrs. Jordan," she advised. "Two of the men and Darling are with him. They're expecting some big news to break any minute. They didn't know they were going until the last minute, and I imagine he didn't last minute, and I imagine he didn't want to wake you. It really is big news, and the men don't think when things are breaking. They move! And fast! You get used to it after a while, and don't mind so much." She smiled at me, timidly. "Really, I wouldn't worry. I'd go home and get some rest. You'll see he'll be all right" You'll see he'll be all right.'

I smiled back at her gratefully. She was trying to help me, trying to save

americanradiohistory

A lovelier bust! A smarter silhouette! Ad-miration wherever you go! Scientific, com-fortable, non-slipping PYRAMID SNAP-ONS, quickly fit into your present bra, give those alluring curves, make you a NEW YOU! $2 postpaid (or COD plus charges) plain-wrapped, absolutely guaranteed.

starvation diets, drugs or appliances. Illustrated 128-page book-only 25c postage paid.

BARTHOLOMEW HOUSE, INC.

(PLEASE PRINT)

said again-"thank you for everything.'

She was right, it was big news. I never knew just what it was, but in a few hours the whole world knew that Pearl Harbor had been attacked. And in a few hours, I knew Dick was being sent as special news correspondent from his paper: that he had asked for the assignment.

He made no excuse for going without telling me when he got home. He out telling me when he got home. He came in quietly without a word, and began throwing things into a bag. "Dick," I said pleadingly, "what are you doing? Where are you going?" "About as far away as I can get," he said coldly. "I'm washed up with all this. If marriage means what it has to us, I'm through for keeps. We're not even friends." He paused, his arms loaded with things. "Look," he said, leveling his glance at me, "maybe it's my fault: maybe we should have taken my fault; maybe we should have taken longer to know each other before we got married. Anyhow, I'm willing to take the blame if you'll just call it quits. That's what we both want, isn't it?"

I FOUGHT back the wave of blackness that threatened to engulf me. It couldn't be true! This was worse than dying. This was dying, and doing it while you looked on and knew all about it. It was dying and living at the same time. "Dick," I forced words through stiff lips, "Bick, you aren't in love with anyone else---not with Mrs. Darling, are you?" FOUGHT back the wave of blackness you?"

His look was almost contemptuous, now. "No, I'm not. It would be simpler if I were, I guess. All I want right now is to get away, to get hold of myself again. I feel as if I'd been living under wraps, tied down hand and foot. If I were in love with anyone, Merry, it would be with a real person, a grownwould be with a real person, a grown-up woman, not an immature, hysterical child whose only way of living is to grab what she wants and hide away with it, frightened of people, never letting the daylight in." He tossed a shirt angrily into the suitcase. "I don't want to hurt you, Merry, but I'm hurt myself. I had such terrific hopes for us. I thought we'd grow together, and learn, and be a wonderful combination. But you don't want any of that. and I But you don't want any of that, and I don't want your way. It would drive me insane, or break me completely, in a few more years. It's like living with a pretty picture—you like it as long a pretty picture—you like it as long as it stays pretty and your taste doesn't change, but if you get tired of it, you want it down." He shrugged. "I'm sorry, Merry, but that's the way it is. I've known it a long time." He stopped, but his words went on and on in my head.

I forced my pride to help me, whipping it into life. "I guess you're right," I said, hoping my voice lashed as his had done. "I suppose we did make a mistake. I sup-pose our love wasn't the wonderful thing we thought it." His eyes softened. I held my breath, waiting— "I guess not," he said quietly. "But I wanted it to be."

I sat down suddenly. "When are you leaving? Do you have to go right now?

Don't they usually give you a few days?" "Not when you ask for a job, and they want you in a hurry. This was the way I wanted it. It's better for us both. You'll be taken care of financially, of course. You're my wife, and you'll stay my wife until I get back. You

Here's a real big bargain—five spine-tingling murder mysteries which sold in their original form for $2.00 each—now yours for only $1.00 postpaid. We've reprinted these best sellers in convenient size and bound them with attractive, colorful but economical paper covers, and offer them to you at a tremendous cash saving. Our supply of these particular books is limited, so act fast—get your order in the mail today.

THREE SHORT BIERS by Jimmy Starr

A strangled angel swings grotesquely high above the movie set and the cry "MURDER" is raised in the studio —The midget-actress is just the right size to fit one of --The midget-actress is just the right size to fit one of three tiny caskets. Joe Medford, fast-talking reporter and super-sleuth, is in the studio when it happens. He knows, too, about those "Three Short Biers" -- and he knows there are two other midgets. Plot and counter-plot build a pattern of mystery you will want to read through without stopping. It's a fast-stepping case-long on laughs and plenty of hair-raising horror.

4 FEET IN THE GRAVE by Amelia Reynolds Long

An invitation to a Hallowe'en party at "Ghosts Walk" results in the appearance of a REAL LIVE GHOST and a few corpses to boot. "Peter" Piper, lady dick, atrives just in time to stumble on a brand new corpse and fol-lows the tangled, elusive clues to a ghostly mausoleum --where? where .

MURDER MEETS MEPHISTO by Queena Mario

Mephisto is ingeniously murdered in the middle of the historic "Faust"—Here are enough thrills and chills to give opera lovers and mystery fans a fascinating evening packed with suspense.

THE WHEELCHAIR CORPSE by Will Levinrew

A sudden impulse makes him pause. The note says simply—"Conrad Manx; Jr. will die—of—. He will be Number 1." City Editor Hite, deciding to play his hunch, sends his prize news sleuth on the case. Thereon follows a series of haffling murders and mys-tery, requiring that rare touch of the lovable scientist-turned-detective to solve.

THE DUNWICH HORROR by H. P. Lovecraft

Nameless, lurking fear—earth rumblings—colossal foot-prints—a shattering, invisible force striking only with the signal of the whippoorwill's nocturnal call— A nightmare from the outer spaces—some strange, devilish entity, alien to this earth, invades and ravishes a peaceful countryside.

Mail This Coupon Now

Bartholomew House, Inc. Dept. RM-746 205 East 42nd Street New York, 17, N. Y.

Here's my dollar---send me postpaid the five reprints of best sellers described on this page. I am also entitled to receive advance information on other hook bargains that you may offer in the future.

Name
Please	print name an	d address

Address.....

This offer applies to United States only.

- whisks end curls sa neatly into place.
- freshens and tidies any hoir-do sa quickly and easily.
- is sa canveniently easy to use and to carry—purse size, only 6-inches lang.

We want you to know the great convenience of this useful aid to hair beauty, and how it can help you keep any hair do always lovely. It's small on purpose, so you can tuck it away in your purse.

SEND NO MONEY!

You'll say it's worth its weight in gold. We ship C.O.D. at $1.25 each plus postage on Satisfaction or Money Back Guarantee. Get one. You'll thank us over and over. Colors: pastel shades of pink, blue, green, amethyst, clear. Order today.

C.O.D.	at $1	.25 (each p	lus po	stage, o e pay p	n Mon	cy-Back	Guar	rances
() pi	nk ()	blue	() (greea () at	pethyst	()) clea

JONDES BI Wash Hair Shades lighter SAFELY!

New Home Shampoo Helps Keep Blonde Hair From Darkening

Made specially for blondes, this new shampoo belps keep light hair from darkening-bright-ens faded hair. Called Blondex, its rich cleans-ing lather instantly removes the dingy film that makes hair dark, old-looking. Takes only 11 minutes at home. Gives hair lustrous high-lights. Safe for children. Get Blondex at 10c, drug and department stores.

can stay here, or go to your mother's. I'd rather you went to her, it will be better. But the house is yours. You've a right to it."

A right to it! A right to his house, to his money, but not his love! A man likes a picture unless his taste changes, then he wants it down— After he was gone, I went back to mother's. She was the one who closed the house, and saw to everything. Later, when the house shortage was acute, she re-opened it, and we rented it furnished. It was hard, but by then I was used to hard things. There were long periods when I didn't hear from Dick, at all. I began to change. Like spring emerging from the barrenness of winter, life began to move through me again, and hope began to send tiny experimental shoots above the surface.

Agony can be a very sharp knife, and it can cut through layers of selfishness, and reveal the very heart of truth. It was as if a searchlight had been turned on in me, and I turned in loathing from the thing I saw.

It was something mother said that pointed the way back. I was sitting at the window watching the slow drifting of autumn leaves to the ground. "When nature has no use for things, she discards them, to make way for new life. It takes time, but in the miracle of new life, old, outworn things take their place and help to enrich the soil for the new—and this goes on forever. Nothing that is not helpful ever sur-vives in nature long." She was knitting, and she didn't even look up as she went on. "Life is like that, and we have to accept it. Even grief is a sin, if you let it become an obstacle in the path of growth. I want you to remember that, Merry. It's time you took on new growth, time you let past hurts nourish the plant of a richer life. Pick up the old threads, and gather new ones in, and go on from there."

I DID. It wasn't easy. The first thing I did was to go to see Dick's mother, and I stayed several days the first time. ... After that, I went often, but I asked her not to tell Dick, I didn't want him to think I was trying to win him back like that. And I wasn't; I grew to love her as I did my own mother, and she grew to depend on me, to look forward to my coming. And happiness began to touch the edges of my heart again, tuning it to gladness. In my reaching out, I drew the Pads into my circle, and made friends of them. They drew me back into the radio field, and into other fields of usefulness. I often accompanied Darling, as she sang for the soldiers training for overseas duty. We became firm friends, and it seemed odd to me that I had ever hated her. She told me one day while we were talking that the boy she had been en-gaged to had been killed in an accident and that was why she had never mar-ried. But, as I looked at her, I knew some day she would love again; she was made for warmth and happiness. I smiled ruefully. "I used to be jeal-ous of you, did you know?" She nodded. "That was silly. Dick left. He told me so." "He didn't love what he thought you had become," she said gently. "But he's always loved the woman you actu-ally are. You'll find out."

I shock my head. "He must have changed. He didn't love me when he left. He told me so."

But she'd been wrong. Now he'd come—and gone. And this time, he wouldn't be coming back. I had held a dream to my heart, now the dream would have to die-to make way for other growth. But could it? I knew better. This was something that would not die. It was a rainbow spanning my world, from end to end. It was a bird's call in the early morning. It was life, and death, and life again. It was beauty, spreading wide its wings, soaring into the vast spaces of time and eternity. My fingers paused, grew still. Was that the door-bell? How long had it been ringing while music flowed from my heart in an endless triumph, through my heart in an endless triumph, through my finger tips? Who could be ringing at this late hour? Could Dick have changed his mind, had he decided to try again? He'd left his key, so he'd have to ring—the key was right there on the table where he'd left it. It must be Dick, no one else would be coming tonight. He must have changed—Darling's face flashed through my memory, there had been understanding there, and a message, something she wanted to tell me—had she made Dick see his mistake before it was too late? She might have. She was like that! Love has wings! My heart sang softly as I hurried to the door. Wings, yes. Not just to fly away. But wings with which to return, also. In my heart, the melody of my love-song sang, again, clear and sweet, above the crash of chords. Was it Dick waiting outside? Somehow I knew it was. I lifted my hand to open the door.

Consult your newspaper for exact time and station

Martha O'Driscoll appearing in "Blonde Alibi" a Universal Picture

The New Charm Sull SUPREME COLD WAVE

Cold Mave BEAUTY

NOW CHARM-KURL YOUR HAIR

TO NEW, GLAMOROUS

-it's easy as combing your hair! By tonight, thrill to a New Charm-Kurl Supreme Cold Wave Permanent. Enjoy soft, flowing waves and natural-like curls which sparkle with enticing highlights and "romance-inviting" allure. Your Charm-Kurl Cold Wave will be the envy of your friends,—and will last months and months.

The New Charm-Kurl Supreme is heatless, machineless, —yet, "takes" on any type of natural hair. Children's soft, fine hair responds marvelously. The result must compare with any beauty-shop wave costing up to $15.00 or more, or your money back on request. No wonder, Charm-Kurl Supreme outsells the combined total of all other brands.

For Sale at drug stores, cosmetic counters and 5c & 10c Stares.

NOW ONLY

Price in Canada $1.35

"I'm going to grow a hundred years old!"

... and possibly she may—for the amazing strides of medical science have added years to life expectancy

• It's a fact—a warm, wonderful fact—that this five-year-old child, or your own child, has a life expectancy almost a whole decade longer than was her mother's, and a good 18 to 20 years longer than that of her grandmother. Not only the expectation of a longer life, but of a life by far healthier.

Thank medical science for that. Thank your doctor and thousands like him... toiling ceaselessly... that you and yours may enjoy a longer, better life.

According to a recent Nationwide survey:

More Doctors smoke Camels than any other cigarette!

N OT ONE but three outstanding independent research organizations conducted this survey. And they asked not just a few thousand, but 113,597, doctors from coast to coast to name the cigarette they themselves preferred to smoke.

Answers came in by the thousands... from general physicians, diagnosticians, surgeons, nose and throat specialists too. The most-named brand was Camel.

If you are not now smoking Camels, try them. Let your "T-Zone" tell you (see right).

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.

THE "T-ZONE" TEST WILL TELL YOU

The "T-Zone"-T for taste and T for throat - is your own proving ground for any cigarette. Only your taste and throat can decide which cigarette tastes best to you... how it affects your throat.

www.americanradiohistory.com