

The most important
four days in WNYC history are coming May 31 to June 3

WNYC's independent future is in your hands.
Turn the page to find out what you can do.

MEMORANDUM

To: All WNYC Members
From: Irwin Schneiderman, Chairman of the WNYC Foundation
Re: A Moment in History

- * 1924... WNYC Radio signs on.
- * 1944... Mayor LaGuardia reads the Sunday funnies on the air.
- * 1971... All Things Considered premieres.
- * 1995... New York City agrees to sell radio licenses to WNYC Foundation for $20 million.

A new chapter in WNYC history is beginning. From May to June the WNYC Independence Campaign will be launched on the air, and you will have a chance to secure WNYC's future once and for all.

We will be asking each of you to contribute at least $25.00 toward the purchase of WNYC's licenses. If every WNYC listener did that, we could raise the $20 million right there! Over the last year many of you have asked what you can do to save WNYC. This is the moment you have been waiting for!

Please don't confuse this with a membership drive. WNYC listeners are not being asked to join the station, they are being asked to "buy" it. There will be no coffee mugs or ArtsCards. What there will be are many great moments from WNYC history replayed over the four days—treasures from the archives to remind us of our legacy. There will be a chance for the board, staff, and listeners alike to share what WNYC means to New York and to our own lives. And most important, there will be time for you to call in your contributions.

A transaction of this size is unprecedented in public radio history, and, quite frankly, it's something of a gamble. The future of public radio in New York is literally at stake. We are betting on your enthusiasm and commitment to make independence possible. If we succeed, we will be able to say, as we never have before, "It's Our Station!"

P.S. May 31-June 3 will be the most important moment in WNYC history. The future won't begin without you!

Oscar Brand 50th Anniversary Concert

Live from Cooper Union

Thursday, June 22, 8pm on AM820 and FM93.9

Some of the great names of folk music gather at Cooper Union's Great Hall on June 22 to celebrate the 50th year of Oscar Brand's WNYC radio series, Folksong Festival. WNYC presents a special live broadcast of the concert, which includes performances by Arlo Guthrie, Richie Havens, Odetta, Tom Paxton, Pete Seeger, Dave Van Ronk, Josh White, Jr., Beverly White, and Peter Yarrow. Folksong Festival's regular series airs every Sunday at 7pm on AM820.

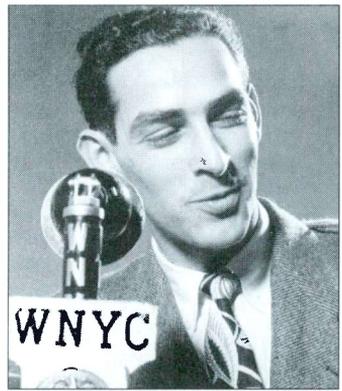

Brand created the program after his discharge from the army in 1945. He is the only radio host who has been steering the same program through five decades.

Oscar Brand's programs offered exposure to such young singers as Harry Belafonte and Emmy Lou Harris. There is even a tape in Folksong Festival archives of Bob Dylan that aired just before his first public concert. During the broadcast, Dylan declared that he had been working as a carnival roustabout since the age of 13. As Dylan sang his latest composition, "Blowin' in the Wind," Brand recalls thinking, "The song is nothing and the singer isn't going anyplace." He has since changed his mind. Huddie "Leadbelly" Ledbetter, Joan Baez, Phil Ochs, Harry Chapin, Judy Collins, Jean Ritchie, Sonny Terry, Woody and Arlo Guthrie also have visited Oscar Brand. Early on Brand was visited by a new group called The No-Name Quartet who asked the audience to come up with a new name for them. The next week the quartet, which featured young Pete Seeger, returned and announced that they would henceforth be called The Weavers. During the 1950's many blacklisted performers found a platform on Folksong Festival, leading to the program's being called "a pipeline to Communism" by the Hearst newspapers. Despite the controversy, WNYC never tried to censor the program or prevent it from airing. Fifty years after its inception, Folksong Festival continues as a forum for controversial ideas, songs, and a unique form of American music.

A limited number of tickets are available for this special event. You may reserve a pair by renewing your membership at a minimum of $150. Call 212-669-7714 during regular business hours.

Fionnula Flanagan

In Bloom

Symphony Space continues its annual tradition of presenting Bloomsday on Broadway. This year's highlights, recorded by WNYC, include "The James Joyce Songbook," as James Flannery sings some of Joyce's own settings of his poems, as well as other composers' settings of songs and poems found in "Ulysses." Another segment, "Domestic Bliss: Monsieur Joyce at Home in Paris/Mr. Bloom Returns Home in Dublin," presents memoirs of the Joyce family in Paris. And Fionnula Flanagan returns to perform the prodigious feat of reading the uncut, unexpurgated nighttime thoughts of Molly Bloom.

Foundation of the Future

Isaac Asimov was one of the great science fiction writers of this century and is credited with helping lift science fiction from its pulp magazine adventure origins to a scientifically grounded fictional exploration of historical, ethical, and social themes of the future. One of the cornerstones of Asimov's reputation lies with a group of short stories collected into a series of three novels, known collectively as The Foundation Trilogy. It was written as a "future history"—a story told in a society of the distant future.

The WNYC/Public Radio Music Source Top-10

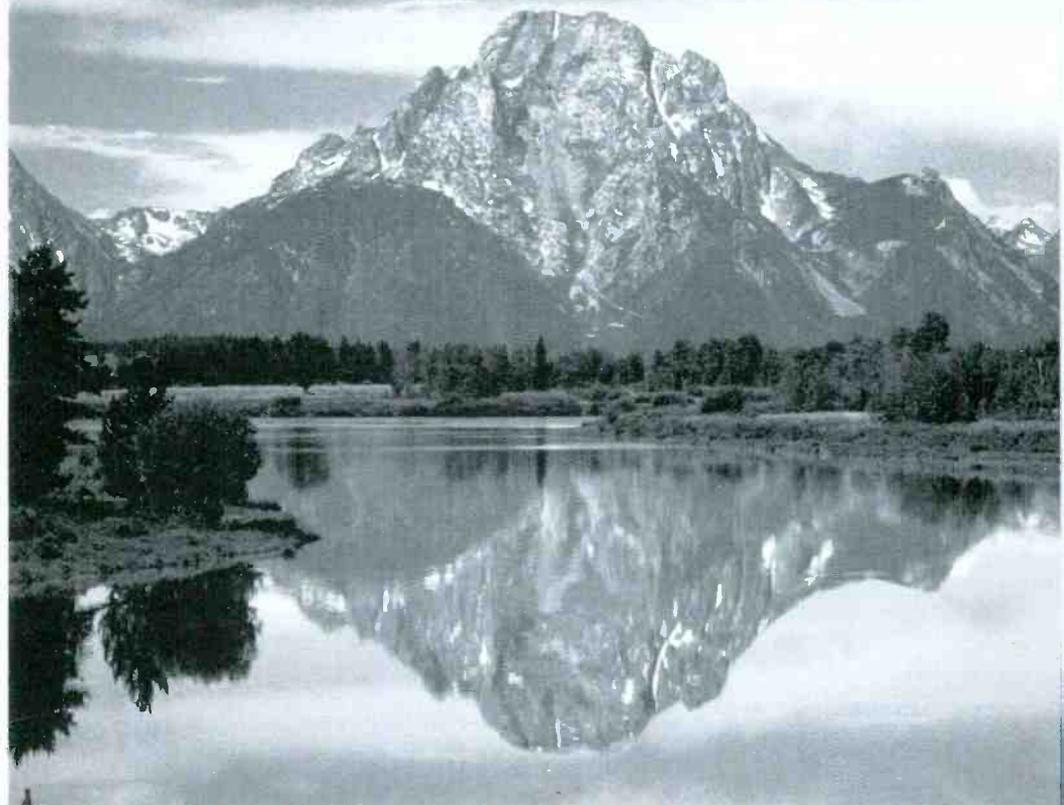

This month's list of the 10 top sellers contains a few of the usual suspects (Gorecki, the Hilliard CD, and the Norwegian "Engleskyts") but also includes a few surprises. NPR News stories on Los Panchos and the nearly autistic composer Hikari Oe (son of one of Japan's most revered writers) resulted in large numbers of requests for their recordings.

1. Henryk Gorecki: Symphony #3 [Upshaw/Zinman/London Sinfonietta] (Elektra/Nonesuch)
2. Anne-Lise Berntsen/Nils H. Asheim: Engleskyts (Kirkelig Kulturverksted)
3. Hikari Oe: The Music of Hikari Oe (Denon)
4. The Hilliard Ensemble/Jan Garbarek: Officium (ECM New Series)
5. Los Panchos/Vol. 1 & Vol. 2 "Leyenda" (Sony Discos)
6. Various artists/Tribute to Woody Guthrie (Warner Bros.)
7. Petri & Hannibal: Music for Recorder and Lute/Guitar (RCA Victor)
8. Sequentia: Canticles of Ecstasy - music of Hildegard von Bingen (Deutsche Harmonia Mundi)
9. John Luther Adams: Earth and the Great Weather (New World Records)
10. Farcas & Cellier: Music for Taragoto and Organ (Pierre Verany Records)

The Public Radio Music Source offers every recording currently in print; PRMS is a not-for-profit organization and a percentage of every purchase goes to support public radio. Hours are 8 am to 1 am, 7 days a week.

"I have been listening to WNYC since the days of Fiorello LaGuardia reading the Sunday comics. I think it's a wonderful station and I think of it as our voice, New York's voice. If you don't have a taste for juvenile smut, racist slander, sneering insults or ideological harangues in the preferred right wing style, you, like me, naturally gravitate to WNYC."
