Metallica sues Napster and three universities

Warner artist Metallica and their subordinate companies - E/M Ventures and Creeping Death Music - have jointly filed suit against Napster, Inc. and a trio of US universities, including the University of Southern California, Yale University and Indiana University.

The suit, which was filed in US District Court, Central District of California, accuses the co-defendants of committing continued copyright infringements, making unlawful use of a digital audio interface device, and committing violations of the RICO (Racketeering Influenced & Corrupt Organizations) Act.

According to the suit, "Napster has devised and distributed software whose sole purpose is to permit Napster to profit by abetting and encouraging the pirating of the creative efforts of the world's most admired and successful musical artists. Facilitating that effort are the hypocritical universities and colleges who could easily block this insidious and ongoing thievery scheme. The last link in the chain are the end users of the stolen musical works, students of these universities and others who exhibit the moral fiber of common looters loading up shopping carts because 'everybody else is doing it'."

The Recording Industry Association of America (R.I.A.A.) is also suing Napster for copyright infringement. A previously scheduled court date between the two was cancelled, and a new date has not been set as of yet.

MP3.com announces majority position in mp3radio.com

MP3.com has announced it has acquired the majority position in mp3radio.com from its joint venture partner, Cox Interactive Media. mp3radio.com, which is presently located in Atlanta, will relocate to San Diego and be integrated into existing MP3.com operations.

MP3radio.com provides localized music information and free music downloads to radio stations across the country. The site, which was launched last fall, now attracts more than 400,000 visitors each month.

According to MP3.com chairman and CEO Michael Robertson, "As we began to work more closely with over-the-air radio stations to help promote the artists posted on our web site, both CIMedia and MP3.com realized that we were duplicating some of mp3radio.com's efforts on a number of fronts. To more effectively leverage our resources, both companies felt that by bringing mp3radio's operations under MP3.com, we could offer a coordinated suite of products and services to the over-the-air radio market."

Great Big Sea aids CARAS' Band Aid program

WEA recording band Great Big Sea paid a special visit to Mobile Central High school in conjunction with the Band Aid program, an ongoing campaign of giving sponsored by the Canadian Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences (CARAS).

Newfoundland's favourite sons made "a very special" presentation of $10,000 worth of musical instruments to the school. Teachers and students packed the school auditorium for the presentation.

"We're very pleased to have received the grant," said Mary Brennan, the school's music teacher, who went on to explain that the school had just set up a new band program and with the grant from CARAS "we were able to purchase 17 instruments. We are very grateful for this support and generosity. It has helped us build a solid foundation on which the band program will grow, and in turn, help our students' growth and development."

Since its inception in 1996, the result of the success of the 25th anniversary Juno Awards commemorative CD boxed set Oh What A Feeling - A Vital Collection of Canadian Music, in which CARAS shared the proceeds, Band Aid has directed funds of $10,000 each to 21 schools, a grand total of $210,000.

Five schools were allowed a $10,000 shopping spree during the 1998-99 period: Prince Albert Central Institute in Prince Albert, Saskatchewan; Toronto's Dante Alighieri Academy; St. Michael's School in Happy Valley/Goose Bay, Labrador, Mahone Bay School in Mahone Bay, Nova Scotia; and Calgary's Fairview Jr. High School.

Interesting too is that there was only enough funding for four schools, but because both St. Michael's and Mahone Bay were equally deserving, CARAS sought extra funding so that both schools

MP3radio.com affiliates will now have access to a great number of features, including MP3.com's event and community calendar, the 'Best Of MP3.com' syndicated radio program, the My.MP3.com service which allows listeners to store, manage and listen to their existing music collection via the stations' web site.

Additionally, MP3.com's 'just-in-time' compilation CD service allows stations to offer local music to listeners in a co-branded format.

Cox Radio, meanwhile, will continue to maintain its 28 MP3radio.com affiliated sites, and Cox Interactive Media expects to offer localized music information and free music downloads across its network of city sites.

Robertson added, "By linking MP3radio.com's network and industry expertise directly into MP3.com and our extensive catalogue of artists and music, we are continuing our commitment to bring music to anyone, anytime, anywhere. This acquisition is a key component of MP3.com's strategy to promote MP3.com artists on radio."

could receive the instrument grant.

EMI Music Canada president Deane Cameron was quick to make a donation of $10,000 to the Mahone Bay School, pointing out that since they were celebrating the company's 50th anniversary, he saw it as an opportunity "to give back something to an area of the country where so many of our roster artists had originated." Alanis Morissette donated a portion of the proceeds of her May 4 concert at the Saddledome, which allowed for Calgary's Fairview Jr. High to take part in the shopping spree.

GBS's Alan Doyle explains the advantages of being a tuba player with Mobile Central student.

A panel debate on the subject was held recently (April 11) at the Indiana University campus, involving RIAA digital performance rights coalition director John Simson, Napster co-founder Sean Parker and Indiana University sophomore Chad Paulson, who founded the Students Against University Censorship organization, after the school initially barred access to Napster.

Prior to Napster being shut down on the IU campus, students utilizing the music swapping software were monopolizing 50% of the university's internet server. Access to Napster was reinstated by the university in late March, after the school devised methods to scale back the server load to acceptable levels.

During the debate, Napster co-founder Parker noted that the RIAA lawsuit is 'uncharted territory', since there is no precedence from past law. "I think at the core of the lawsuit, the issue is more about the changes in technology and new technology."

From his standpoint, Simson noted that "The way music is delivered will change fundamentally with new technology emerging," but he also added that the changes shouldn't come at the expense of the artist.

Commenting on their lawsuit against Napster, Metallica's Lars Ulrich noted, "With each project, we go through a grueling creative process to achieve music that we feel is representative of Metallica at that very moment in our lives. We take our craft - whether it be the music, the lyrics or the photos and artwork - very seriously, as do most artists. It is therefore sickening to know that our art is being traded like a commodity rather than the art that it is.

"From a business standpoint, this is about piracy - aka, taking something that doesn't belong to you; and that is morally and legally wrong. The trading of such information - whether it's music, videos, photos or whatever - is, in effect, trafficking in stolen goods."

Supergrass performance on theiceberg.com

New webcaster theiceberg.com, in conjunction with EMI Music Canada and EyeWeekly, is presenting UK artist Supergrass as the first guest on their new interactive, music webshow URLive. The interview and acoustic performance on May 8 at 8:30 pm will be seen live over the internet on two of theiceberg.com's channels - primeticket.net and 2kool4radio.com.

Supergrass band members Mick Quinn and Gaz Coombes will be in studio to chat with 2kool4radio.com's Rob Bolton. The host noted that Supergrass is an ideal group to kick off the URLive series.

"Their energy and sense of humour will make for a great first show," adds Bolton, "with many more interesting and fun acts to follow."

During the program, Quinn and Coombes will answer questions from fans - both emailed and from those live in-studio. And it will also mark one of the first opportunities for North American fans to see the band perform songs from their third, self-titled album.

Supergrass' new self-titled album is already platinum in the UK, led by a pair of top ten singles, and was released in Canada via EMI on April 6.

In addition to the online session, fans can check out the band's sold-out Toronto show through a live webcast via primeticket.net, on May 9 at 9:30 pm. Fans will also be able to access the show later on via the channel's archives.

"We are thrilled that theiceberg.com has chosen Supergrass to launch their new URLive series," notes EMI Music Canada marketing manager Angie Bazzana. "It is an incredible and unique opportunity for the band and their fans."

WALT SAYS ...!

with Elvira Caprese

I AM CANADIAN!!! They only had some blue beer or sumpthin ... so I took a pass. Consumer Minister Bob Runciman who was answering critics because the government couldn't motivate Canadians and a brewery did, says it's anti-American! He says there are better ways to show Canadian pride than showing the few differences they have left us with, but the government can't find those ways ... yet! Give them a few more decades. (EC: I think we are still their favourite country to dump and export ... to!!!) Dump? Who said dump? Name one Yankee sitcom that isn't seen in Canada?

Don't blame me!!! If I were Molsons ... I'd put a video dub of The Rant into cases of beer so that I and my friends don't have to tape copies to send to our friends in the U.S.A. All my friends are really taken by The Rant and love it ... Bob! It may increase trade and dumping!!! (EC: You have such a way with words!!!)

Blame Mafia Boy!!! It was a US network that broke the story about the Montreal bust of a hacker who they claimed disrupted various websites recently! Like it's Canada's fault! Give us back our animators, comedians, Shania, Celine and Mike Myers. (EC: Indian-giver!!!) Somehow that doesn't sound politically correct!

Media list update! A number of media lists out there are a little bit behind the times. A lot of these people are dead in the water! Washed up! Finished!

New Release Tuesdays gives support to industry

Members of the Canadian Recording Industry Association (CRIA), record retailers and CHUM speciality channels MuchMusic and MuchMoreMusic have teamed to support a record marketing campaign dubbed New Release Tuesdays.

CRIA president Brian Robertson points out that the initiative of the campaign is to increase the awareness of the recording industry's policy of releasing new recordings on a Tuesday. "It is important that consumers are aware that new releases are available on a specific day of the week rather than being subjected to some haphazard and fragmented releasing pattern."

Robertson goes on to explain, that the campaign "was developed with the retailers through their trade association (RMAC) and it was fortuitous that CHUM also identified a programming need in this

Yesterday's news! Chopped liver! It's the 21st century! We move along! (EC: I wonder if they turned out the lights ... when they left???)

Speaking of thin-skinned! (EC: Where was that???) NM is really thin-skinned! Hey ... this column made you famous! What have you done for me lately? (EC: Like his hands aren't tied!!!) Very kinky! AM is getting a lot of ink ... like nobody knew! (EC: They'll never speak to you again!!!) Or for the first time!

Self-regulation!!! How much Cancon is there on those background music systems that restaurants, hotels, malls and other public places use? No ruling here to protect us from foreign culture. The public can self-regulate themselves by not spending money where this cheap foreign content is forced on us! (EC: That of course includes Latin, British, Swedish, German and American music!!!) Make that clear to keep Runciman off my back!!!

Don't mess with Jr.!!! What better way to squash all the rumours than to up the ante. All those guys thirsting to dole out a few billion bucks, including the mouse people, and that huge European conglomerate, have had the wind knocked out of them. The big man's yard sale includes the whole shebang. No cherry picking here. And, he wants to be the boss of the new company, whatever it may be, as well. (EC: Being positive cuts out all the crap!!!)

Frequency meltdown??? Yes Virginia ... there just may be a resident Toronto country station yet. The new guy on the block ... meaning Toronto ... wants to shake up the frequencies so as to allow a little space for a country station. A little finagling ... a little muscle power ... and more confusion for those guys on the Hill. (EC: One of the richest agencies in government!!!)

area for MuchMusic and MuchMoreMusic."

The two 30-minute television shows, both titled Freshly Pressed, air Monday evening at 9 pm and 8 pm respectively.

Denise Donlon, vice-president and general manager of MuchMusic enthuses that the industry commitment to the campaign "has created a unique creative opportunity for us to customize programming for the music-buying fans.

With Freshly Pressed, we can involve Canadians in the excitement generated inside the music industry for each launch Tuesday, and join in this very worthwhile industry alliance.

All major retailers across Canada will be featuring New Release Tuesday point of purchase racks. The displays will feature the new recordings and will cross promote the Freshly Pressed shows.

Wales Theatre, the Toronto Sun went on a daily series of Meet the Lion King cast. Now, when you and your kids catch the show, if you're lucky enough to get tickets, you'll know who plays the monkey, the farting porker, the old king, Simba, the bad guy and all the other characters. Disney's Joe Etter had all his industry friends and their kids in for one of the previews, including Kris and Eva Pindoff and a couple of shady characters who will remain unmentionables. Can't comment on the show, until the opener on April 25. But I can guarantee this one will be a long run. (EC: Farting porker???)

Guess Who's on the road??? Well, contrary to what some of the record industry pundits had predicted, a tour by the Guess Who is actually firmed (see last week). The promoters are anticipating great response from fans of this foursome, who must be in their early to late forties and masters of their own life, like mortgages, kids et cetera, et cetera. BMG's Valerie Lapp is putting together a retrospective CD of their past hits. It will be interesting to watch this reunion which could net the guys (Jim Kale and Garry Peterson could really use the money) a lot of bucks, if Burton and Randy can keep out of each other's way. Looking back through the archives, The Guess who were on the cover of RPM, dated March 8, 1965. This was the original Winnipeg band and guess who they were? Garry and Jim and Randy Bachman, of course, but Chad Allen was still the bossman, and the fifth member of the band was keyboardist Bob Ashley. Hey! This is getting too long, but that's a story and a half. Check it out. Sorry! Didn't realize most Canadian libraries don't carry the early RPM's (EC: Yes! But the American libraries do!!!) By the way, if anyone out there has some early Guess Who photos; but only those with Bachman, Kale, Cummings and Peterson, contact Valerie at BMG. (EC: John Rowlands must have all of them ... but where is he now???)

Goodbye ... for awhile!!! It's been years since I've had a couple of weeks off, so I'm going away for two weeks to a warmer clime! (EC: It's spring! It's warm here!!!) It will be a chance to relax and regenerate myself. But never fear ... I will be back in the driver's seat on May 8th and Walt Says will continue to fight the battle against evil in our industry. Helping the downtrodden (EC: Where exactly are you going???) Helping the poor. Creating the star system! (EC: A luxurious resort or retreat on the Riviera???) Actually it's just a modest cruise ... a working holiday if you call rowing work! (EC: In that case bon voyage! See you in two weeks!!!)

Newfoundland native offers new EMI release

Damhnait Doyle: containing her hyperdramatic self

by Ron Rogers

Sometimes, it can be very tiring be a recording artist. Between recording sessions, video shoots, promotional trips and touring, an artist can easily get exhausted from the endless hours away from home.

For an artist still trying to make that 'BIG BREAKTHROUGH', the exhaustion is even more acute. The up-and-coming artist can't afford to bypass a single interview, can't afford to say no to any requests for their time. As a result, when that rare snippet of free time does arrive, they're usually too tired to even think about venturing outside their home.

Such is the case with EMI Music Canada's current hot property, Damhnait Doyle (that's Davven-net!). After finally releasing her debut with EMI, Hyperdramatic, Doyle was inundated with promotional trips, TV appearances, interviews, photo shoots, video shoots, and all the rest. Eventually, she just needed to sit at home and catch up on sleep.

"It is very tiring. And for someone like me, I like to go out a lot and check out a lot of live music, especially when friends of mine are playing. But last night, my favourite band in the world, Fur Packed Action, was playing at the Horseshoe, and I didn't go, I was so exhausted."

The Damhnait Doyle road-to-success story is one of those record industry tales that almost sounds too silly to be believed. In between semesters at university, Doyle spent a summer working in the offices of Duckworth, the east coast distributor run by Fred Brokenshire.

At the time, Doyle was just another aspiring singer, performing in local theatre, playing in a band with some friends, but not really thinking about a recording career. But that all changed, when the right person heard Doyle crooning in the office one day.

"Graham Stairs, who's now my manager, had just set up an independent label called Latitude. And he heard me sing around the office, and then he got a copy of the demo tape that I'd done and he liked it. So I came out to Toronto and started meeting different writers and started writing songs with these people."

Latitude would eventually release Doyle's debut, Shadows Wake Me, which provided an AC hit in A List Of Things, five East Coast Music Award nominations, and a Juno nomination for best new solo artist.

The classically-trained Doyle certainly knew how to sing, but she knew herself that her songwriting needed work. She was still, after all, learning how to play the guitar, and using it as a tool to create songs.

Thus, when the initial furor over Shadows

Wake Me died down, there was no immediate followup album. Instead, Doyle spent the next few years working on her guitar playing, working on her songwriting, and developing her own writing voice.

"I haven't made a record in four years, because I really wanted it to be from me, and I couldn't really do that until I became a better guitar player, a better writer, better singer."

For the Canadian major labels, Toronto continues to be the centre of the universe, so it's only natural that Doyle move to the Ontario capital to continue her recording career.

While her first trip to the big city back in her late teens may have been more traumatic, this time, there's a far greater comfort level.

"It was traumatic when I moved up here six years ago, when I was just 18, to make the first record. I was only here about six months, and that was really hard. I was just here by myself, I had no real network of people. But since I moved back here three years ago, it's been great. I miss Newfoundland, and I'd love to move back eventually, but I know that right now I need to be here."

It sounds funny to talk about Doyle 'learning' to write songs, especially when you consider the frankness, depth and honesty that she brings to the Hyperdramatic album.

Unlike some younger artists (Doyle is still only 24), the songs on Hyperdramatic reflect Doyle's willingness to confess her emotions in a song, and bare her soul, as it were, to the perfect strangers listening to the record.

And it was that part of the process she needed time to learn - not necessarily the technical details of writing a song, but the ability to transfer her thoughts and emotions onto paper.

"It was more about learning how to purely represent my thoughts, unedited or uncensored, into pieces of music that I drew from my heart. I don't worry about stuff like bridge, chorus or verse, I'm not interested in that. I'm interested in expressing myself, and writing those tunes was like therapy at times. And I'm not thinking about anyone else hearing it or reading it, because if I do, then it becomes something that's for somebody else, and that's not why I'm doing it."

The songwriting craft is often a milieu for those seeking to vent frustrations, heal wounded feelings, or even cast aspersions on others - and Doyle is no different in that sense.

Like other songwriters of note, she chooses to put words and feelings on paper, often right after they arise in her head. Then, days or weeks later she'll go back to that piece of paper and see a song forming. It's a slow formula for sure, but who ever said that creativity is formulaic?

Besides, as Doyle says, writing songs isn't like spitting out Christmas cards - there is a considerable amount of time and soul searching involved.

"It's not churning it out, it's grappling with yourself on paper. And for me, that's how I work things out. So many people keep things bottled up inside, some people chop wood - I write it down and figure it out. I look at it weeks later or days later and think, 'Oh Christ, that's what's going on.' It just happens to be that I'm a songwriter, so I put those thoughts to music."

The songs on Hyperdramatic speak to Doyle's knack for bringing thoughts and emotions into a song. It's no surprise that many of the songs deal with the traumatic travails of relationships, which is an arena occupied by thousands of songwriters, past and present.

Songs like the lead single Tattooed, Lie To You, Elusive Drug, Sleep Past You and Maybe A Son, contain the same kind of guilt, anger or even vengeful tone usually witnessed in Alanis Morissette's most venomous work. But in Doyle's case, the anger or venom is more subdued, like she's smiling at you while she slips you the bad medicine.

"There's a difference between writing songs and pouring your heart out. I wrote a lot of songs after my first record came out, but I wasn't writing songs that were necessarily confessional. The songs I wrote for this record were for me, completely for me."

Tattooed continues to earn substantial airplay at radio throughout the country, and the impressive video (which involved weeks of pre and post-production and an 18-hour shooting day, according to Doyle) continues to sit in regular rotation at Much and MuchMoreMusic.

The latest good news for Doyle is being added to The Tea Party's current tour of the east coast and Quebec. The tour, which kicked off in Halifax at the Rebecca Cohn Theatre (April 20), continues throughout the maritimes and Quebec, winding up with a May 3 date in Kingston.

COUNTRY

Canadian Country Countdown will be in the air and on the land and up next, on ferries off the coast of Vancouver. A special version of the show will be the new country channel on Air Canada's En Route FM beginning this July. Cliff Dumas and Lisa Monroe will host the program which will feature the top country songs in Canada. The show will also showcase Canadian and up-and-coming talent and feature live interviews and performances. The syndicated series is heard on 50 stations across Canada.

Stephanie Beaumont won a Rosie for Backstage At The CCMA's a fast-paced look-in at the hustle and bustle that goes on behind-the-scenes at last year's Canadian Country Music Association awards program. The awards for excellence were handed out by the Alberta Motion Picture Industries Association. Produced and edited by Bridget Durnford, the program won in the light entertainment category. This is the second special Beaumont has been involved in with CMT.

We have contacted Brent Lee who has been gaining national recognition with the release of Our Home Town. He is actually listed as The Brent Lee Band. The single was taken from his CD King Of Broken Hearts released on his own BLB label. Lee wrote and produced all the tracks. The band is well-known throughout Alberta and BC and, as reported last week, will be playing Mountainfest 2000, which is part of the Merritt Mountain Music Festival scheduled for July 19 through 21. They are being billed as a "rockin' blues band." We'll have more on the Brent Lee Band over the next few weeks.

Shirley Myers has a barnburner of a single with I'm Missin' You, the most added this week entering the chart at #67. The song, a three-part Cancon release (MAL) was written by Myers, Rod Nicholson and Duane Steele. The track was taken from Myers' Stony Plain CD, There Will Come A Day, which was recorded in Nashville where it was produced by Keith Olsen. As always, Myers and her manager Peter Leggett will be attending the Variety Club Salute to Big Country which will be held in Toronto's Colony Hotel on May 24.

Adam Gregory goes from the most added last week with Horseshoes, which entered the chart at #65, to the biggest mover this week where the single jumped up to #43. The promotion campaign mounted by Sony's Dave Deeley is obviously paying off for the 14-year old from Edmonton, who turned more than a few heads at last year's Canadian Country Music Week in Ottawa. Touring is a little tough for Gregory, being that his schooling comes first, but come the summer, he will be front and centre at many of the festivals and jamborees that are being staged across Canada.

Bradley Gosseye, the friendly and always Cancon supportive music director at Brandon, Manitoba's KIX 101.1 FM The New Sound Of Country, is moving on. Bradley is joining the Brandon Wheat Kings Hockey Club as assistant marketing director. He leaves his weekly spin report in good shape for his successor. Eleven out of the Top 20 are Cancon tracks: Tara Lyn Hart's Save Me, Take The Money And Run by Julian Austin, Amanda Stott's Black Is Black, Michelle Wright's I Surrender, I Just Don't Know Anymore by Steve Fox, That'll Teach Her by Chris Cummings, Kiss 'em All by Lace, Charlie Major's One True Love, Sean Hogan's Dream Vacation, Maybe She'll Change Her Mind by The Johner Brothers, the Poverty Plainsmen's Same Things and Shania Twain's Rock This Country. And, ready to pop into the Top 20 are Julian Austin's Baby

ROBERTA MICHELE - Pop Today

Columbia-80485-H

Female singer/songwriters seem to be all the rave these days, what with the late '90s successes of Sarah McLachlan, Alanis Morissette, Chantal Kreviazuk and others. And as the music business is often a case of following trends, it should probably come as no surprise that Sony Canada has put plenty of promotional power behind their latest domestic signee, who was given the red-carpet treatment at a recent industry showcase in Toronto. Michele's music follows a similar path of Kreviazuk and McLachlan, with her plaintive voice laid out in stark isolation above lush keyboard passages, shimmering guitar licks, and relatively laid-back rhythms. Michele certainly has the voice to carry these tunes - the only question now is whether her songs are actually tuneful enough to garner significant airplay. Keeping with those previous comparisons, Michele doesn't seem to have the affinity for a good hook that the other ladies do, but she certainly isn't lacking in the emotion department. Songs like the lead single, Get Real, Pioneers, the medley of Make It With You (the old Bread classic) and He Loves Me, He Loves Me Not, Make Christina Dance and Solid Air reveal a singer supremely confident in the words she's expressing, even if the somewhat tepid melodies don't always match the urgency in her voice. Pioneers is definitely one of the true gems here, a worthy second single, and don't overlook her cover of Marc Jordan's This, a great song to hear when you really feel like bawling incessantly over the one that got away. -RR

HIGH FIDELITY O.S.T. - Pop/Rock Various Artists

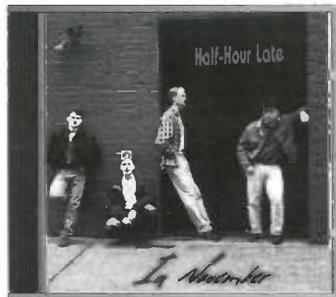

Hollywood-62188-Universal

Anyone who's read Nick Hornby's wonderful book knows that the story of High Fidelity is as much the story of relationships as it is music, but the music still plays a vital role in the protagonist's life, serving as a sonic safety net during that ponderous time when he's healing the wounds of another failed relationship. What's amazing about the book is, not only how profoundly Hornby understands the twisted turmoil of male/female relations, but also how understands the powerful metaphor music can be. Little details, like rearranging one's record collection in the wake of your lover's departure, demonstrate that Hornby knows full well the insane lengths some of us will go to keep our musical lives in order, particularly when our regular lives are going to hell. What Hornby also demonstrated is a deep knowledge of music, and that encyclopedic framework has been transplanted to the movie soundtrack, which features a host of spiffy tunes from the last four decades, many of which were hoisted up from the 'lost classic' catalogues. Tracks from The Kinks (Everybody's Gonna Be Happy), John Wesley Harding (I'm Wrong About Everything), Bob Dylan (Most Of The Time), Elvis Costello (Shipbuilding), Stereolab (La Boob Oscillator), The Velvet Underground (Oh! Sweet Nuthin, Who Loves The Sun) and Stevie Wonder (I Believe) may not get the airplay they once did, but hearing them again reminds you of the vast untapped depths of good music that exists in those back catalogues. Sometimes, it just takes another rearranging of that record collection to find great tracks like these. -RR

HALF HOUR LATE - Rock In November
Cub-12262 (Independent)

A clever quartet from Vancouver who just wanna have fun, get in the groove with their spin on good ol' rock 'n roll. The CD release is timely in view of the I Am Canadian frenzy now going on with the Molson television commercial. Their contribution is The Battle Of Queenston Heights with traditional lyrics and a little help from Rich Chambers, the band's guitarist who also does the vocal bit. Chambers is also the label owner. The other members are bassist Todd Foxcroft, guitarist Sean Gemmill, both of whom also supply vocals, and drummer Jeff Warren. All tracks fit the groove of being priority. Vocally, they impact immediately with an energized and craftily put together assault on their song messages. Most of the music and lyrics are the work of Chambers, Gemmill and Foxcroft. Check out the lyric insert for the title of the album, and perhaps a hidden meaning. No music, nothing on the disc, but the words, written in 1895 by Archibald Lampman of Ottawa, supply an historical/environmentalist view of that era that's a little chilling. The band also does an impressive cover of Johnny Cash's Folsom Prison Blues with Gemmill adding the necessary punch on the mouth harp. There's something distinctive about Half-Hour Late that's tough to put a finger on, which makes them somewhat unique with a sound that's memorable and uniquely theirs. The album was produced in Vancouver by Ted Tosoff and Larry Hennessey and the band. -WG

JANE BUNNETT & THE SPIRITS OF HAVANA
Ritmo+Soul
EMI-72435-24456-F

It'd be interesting to know Jane Bunnett's astrological sign and see if it's the same as the late Stan Kenton's. To date, she's the only

-- certainly the best -- North American musician to come close to the Afro-Cuban jazz fusion first propounded by the latter with his excellent Cuban Fire album of fond memory. Speculations aside, the attractive clarinetist/flautist is in the full measure of her powers here, leading an ensemble of mostly Cuban musicians in a programme of jazz delights fired in the emotional furnace of Latin America and tempered by the proper discipline of music (RPM - April 17, 2000). Each selection pulsates with vitality and excitement whether up tempo or slow violet. An especial delight is Track Two, Joyful Noise, on which her flute playing rivals in skill and artistry that of Ismael Morales. High praise ... and deserved. Produced by Bunnnett and Larry Cramer and recorded at Toronto's Wellesley Sound Studios. All tracks are 100% Cancon. -BW

FLIP PHILLIPS - Swing
Swing Is The Thing
Verve-31454-34772-J

The title might well include "and so is melody." Now in his ninth decade, the tenor sax king glides along melodic pathways of swing in a nice mixture of pop hits and his own compositions. Oh, he can and does still squawk and honk at times but always returns to the tune. Special guests and fellow tenor greats, James Carter and Joe Lovano join him seamlessly on respectively, a beautiful, smooth

Where Or When and an uptempo Flip The Whip. All three join forces bookending the album with pseudo bop versions of The Mark Of Zorro. Superb accompaniment is provided by Howard Alden (guitar), Christian McBride (bass), Kenny Washington (drums) and Benny Green playing inspiring piano. Front rack this one. -BW

AL JARREAU - Jazz Vocals
Tomorrow Today
GRP/Universal-31454-78842-J

We read that to enjoy the singing of Al Jarreau and his urban groove is considered a guilty pleasure. Why? He's a triple and, to date, only winner of best vocalist awards in jazz, pop and R&B and to hear him singing is true pleasure, guilty or otherwise. His voice is light but it's true and his phrasing is that of an audience savvy performer like the late Mel Tormé. He caresses lyrics rather than emphasize them and secures maximum impact regardless for what ever he's singing. And, make no mistake about it, the man can sing anything from tender ballads to joyful jump tunes. If it's sinful to enjoy such a pleasure as Jarreau's vocalizing, then we stand guilty as charged. -BW

DAVE HOLLAND QUINTET - Jazz
Prime Directive
ECM/Universal-31454-79502-J

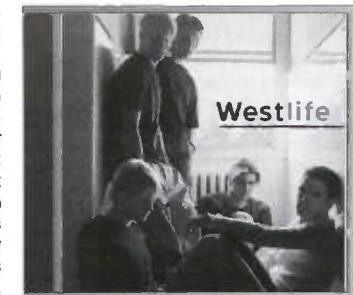

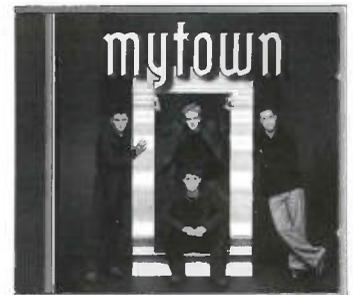

"I have been told that Wagner's music is better than it sounds," (Mark Twain). "Deja vu all over again," (Yogi Berra). "Isn't anyone out there listening?" (W.Watt) Bassist Dave Holland backs up a quartet of musicians on assorted instruments including cowbell in a programme that's supposed to be tres mod and challenging. Well, it's challenging enough and filled with so many repeated riffs that one must keep checking the player to see if the scanner is skipping. As for pretensions of modernity, there's nothing here that wasn't being done half a century ago and, in retrospect, better. The musicians here are palpably skillful but the music produced is worthy only of the opening quotations. -BW

MYTOWN - Pop

Self-titled
Universal-012 153 873-J
WESTLIFE
Self-titled
Arista-14642-N

Okay, this is starting to get ridiculous. And in fact, it's getting hard to keep track of all these boy-bands. It's hard enough to keep tabs on all the ones popping up here in North America. But there's an equal amount surfacing overseas, and in some cases, they're putting up such huge numbers that it's just impossible to ignore them. Both of these groups have racked enormous sales and radio airplay over 'ome, and given the rather fertile climate in North America right now, it's a sure bet that both bands will be able to carry their UK success overseas. Now, in order to keep them straight: Mytown is with Universal, Westlife is with Arista/BMG. Mytown has four guys (Paul, Marc, Danny and Terry), Westlife has five guys (Bryan, Shane, Mark, Nicky and Kian). Mytown's music is definitely more rhythmical, while Westlife go more for the AC ballads. And one of the bigger differences between the two, is that Mytown write their own songs, while Westlife are strictly handling tunes written by others. Mytown definitely prefer a more urban-oriented approach, as evidenced by the lead track, C'mon Everybody, featuring some laid-back rap by co-producer Shawn Stockman (Tri-Ess Productions). Most of the other tracks, like Body Bumpin', Party All Night, Girl In Tears and a cover of George Michael's Everything She Wants, also feature the uptempo, staccatoed drum machines and thumping bass lines that have become standard in today's boy-band up-tempo pop tunes. Westlife, on the other hand, prefer a gentler approach, as heard on ballads like Swear It Again, I Don't Wanna Fight, Flying Without Wings, Miss You, and We Are One, Even when they do pick up the pace, on tracks like Can't Lose What You Never Had, My Private Movie or Open Your Heart, it seems a little more tepid than the Mytown approach. To put it in a comparative sense, Mytown is to Westlife as *N Sync is to Backstreet Boys. But it doesn't really matter what anyone over 30 says about this stuff - like that infamous bunny, it just keeps going, and going, and going, and... -RR

Bye Bye, Paul Brandt's Sycamore Tree, Patricia Conroy's Nobody's Fault and You And Only You by Farmer's Daughter. Bradley will be missed by the country music community. We wish him luck.

John Gracie debuts on CMT with his new video What's This Love Coming To, which was also released to radio as his new single. The video made its debut on CMT's Screening Room and is now in regular rotation. The video was filmed in Toronto by Good Call Productions with Mike Lavelle in the producer seat and Sean Danby as director. The Dartmouth-based (Nova Scotia) Gracie has had a busy year since winning the ECMA 2000's male artist of the year (RPM - Feb. 14/2000). By the way, the actress in the little black number is top Canadian model, INEZ, who just signed a $2 million dollar US modelling contract.

Always Patsy Cline, a musical biography of one of country music's greatest female singers, opens at Toronto's New Yorker Theatre on April 26 for previews. May 4 has been tagged as the official opening night. Barry Singer and David Stein are presenting the Canadian premiere which was written by Ted Swindley. Memphis native Terri Williams stars as Patsy Cline and Jeannie Seely takes on the role of Louise Seeger. For more information contact Julie Gallagher at 416-588-3466.

Amanda Lee's new single is now at radio. Tracking for That's The Kind Of Mood I'm In, began April 19 by Deborah Wood Publicity. The single is three-parts Cancon. The track was recorded at Kavasound by Greg Kavanagh. Lee's new CD will be at retail on June 21.

George Canyon is getting ready for radio play once again. This time it's Enough Said, the follow-up to Her Everything, the video of which scored well on the CMT Top 20. The new video made its debut on CMT's Chevy Top 20 Countdown. Canyon is a singer/songwriter from Okotoks, Alberta.

Kelly Vohnn is getting a ready-for-the-eyes promotion from P.A.Y B.A.C.K. Records on the release of her new single Waitin' Tables. Written by Suzy Conn and Wendell Ferguson, the single is 100% MAPL and was taken from her debut CD, A New Beginning. The CD was produced by Ken Greer, who doubles on steel and guitar on the session. The CD was recorded at Metal Works in Mississauga, Ontario. The release also contains Sweet Dreams, Vohnn's cover of Don Gibson's big hit of 1956. Some of the best pickers in the business were in for the session: drummer Paul Kraussman, owner of the label and the man in charge of the promotion; bassist Jeff Jones; Mike Burns and Dennis Conn on guitars; Peter Nunn and James Gray on keyboards; multi-instrumentalist Don Howlett on acoustic guitar, fiddle and mandolin; steelman Burke Carroll; and Lance Bennett on mouth harp;

BLUE JAYS COME OUT TO SUPPORT VARIETY CLUB

1. For The Love Of The Game contest winner Evan Gordon enjoying the Variety Club Blue Jays luncheon. Gordon won a contest sponsored by 1050 CHUM in which he wrote a short essay detailing why he loves Blue Jays baseball. In addition to a seat at the head table at the Variety Club luncheon, Gordon also won a copy of the movie For The Love Of The Game (from Universal Home Video), tickets to every Honda Junior Jays Saturday at SkyDome, and an autographed Jays jersey and baseball.
2. Blue Jays Jose Cruz Jr., Tony Batista and Marty Cordova sign autographs for Variety Club luncheon guests, surrounded by Canadian Playboy models Katia, Samantha, Cara and Bogna.
3. Crown prosecutor Calvin Barry with Toronto mayor Mel Lastman and RPM's Stan Klees.
4. Canadian Tire executives present a cheque for $25,000 to Variety.
5. EMI Music Canada's Eddie Colero (director, special market sales) with Lori Bruner, former owner of The Book Cellar in Yorkville.
6. Blue Jays first baseman Carlos Delgado with one of Variety's kids.
7. CHUM staffers enjoying the festivities at the Blue Jays luncheon.
8. Blue Jays John Frascatore, Cito Gaston, Joey Hamilton and Alberto Castillo.
