A gentle mix of moxie and comedy for CMW '99

Toronto's Westin Harbour Castle Convention Centre will once again be the setting for Canadian Music Week International (aka CMW '99) which will run from March 3 through 7.

Firmed as this year's keynote speaker is investment guru David Pullman, managing director of NYC's Pullman Group with Robert F.X. Sillerman, executive chairman of SFX Entertainment Inc. considered "the leading impresario of live entertainment", as the keynote speaker at the Ontario Association of Broadcasters (OAB) luncheon (March 6). Adding a bit of humour will be country comedian Jeff Foxworthy with a rare performance on March 4.

Pullman is credited with creating the first ever "intellectual property securitization" for David Bowie, considered "a ground breaking single A rated privated placement" in the first quarter of 1977, which created the $55 million "Bowie Bond", tagged "Euromoney's 1997 deal of the year."

He followed up the next year with the equally successful Holland Dozier Holland's $30 million "Motown Bond", backed by future music publishing royalties. The Pullman Group's experience includes more than one billion dollars in transactions through 1998.

Equally impressive is Sillerman's track record in live entertainment from Broadway musicals, heavy metal rock and demolition derbies to figure skating. Over the past year, Sillerman's new company, SFX Entertainment, has acquired a number of America's top line promoters including Bill Graham Presents, Sunshine Promotions, Contemporary Group, Southern Promotions and Cellar Door.

SFX Entertainment is considered a leading producer, promoter and venue operator for live entertainment events. It was revealed that on completion of all pending acquisitions, SFX will have "73 venues either directly owned or operated under lease or exclusive booking arrangements" in 28 of the top 50 markets, including 13 amphitheatres in nine of the top 10 markets.

SFX Entertainment also manages and develops touring Broadway shows, selling subscriptions in 39 of the estimated 60 markets that maintain active touring schedules. It was also revealed that an estimated 30 million people attended 11,300 events that was promoted and/or produced by SFX Entertainment. That includes 5,400 music concerts, 5,600 theatrical events and more than 200 specialized motor sport events.

Author, comedian and former star of his own TV sitcom, Foxworthy has released four comedy albums, the first three selling more than eight million units, putting him in the category of being "the biggest selling comedy recording artist in history." Among his many awards is a People's Choice Award as favourite male newcomer for the Jeff Foxworthy Show. He also won TNN's Comedian of the Year award three years straight.

Rumours and innuendo cloud UniGram's ??? launch

Observers and insiders, the latter wishing to hide behind anonymity, have been painting a strange scenario of the final "D Day" for the official structuring of the proposed consolidation of PolyGram and the Universal Music Group (UMG) into one company, expected to be called UniGram.

What would appear to be fairly official however, is that Ross Reynolds, currently president and CEO of Universal's Canadian operation, will assume the position of chairman of the new entity with his executive vice-president and general manager Randy Lennox becoming president and CEO.

Rumours of John Reid, currently chairman of PolyGram Canada, going to a New York posting have been confirmed, although not yet official. It's expected he will helm the Mercury label.

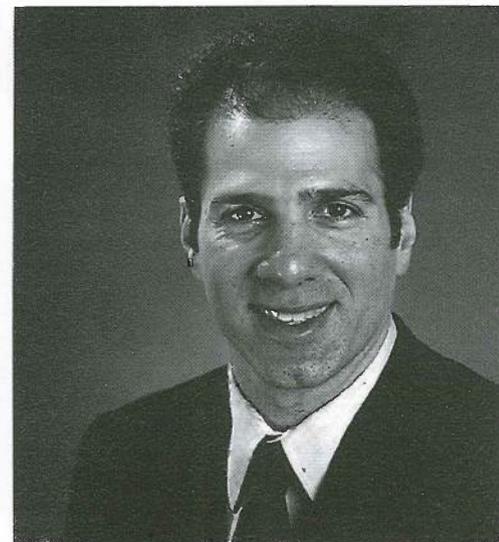

Out of respect for the major players who will be affected, they were not tapped for comment nor information. The rumour mill has become far more intriguing, but mostly entertaining.

On the rumour front again, a number of groups are reportedly ready to jump ship and move to other labels, supposedly where "their friends" will be relocated. The artists, being a threat in this way, have always surfaced during times of "their friends" moving on, but traditionally never, or very rarely, do.

Edgar Bronfman Jr., the president and CEO of Seagram, which holds the cards for Universal, is playing it pretty close to the vest, preferring to let things lie until the December close of the deal.

This is a North American dilemma and the outcome of the other shoe falling will impact the industry significantly. Unfortunately, all this is happening at a time when sales of records on both sides of the border are expected to rack up the most successful year in the history of the record business.

Universal's Christmas fever begins in June

Traditionally, the excitement for the fall or Christmas season begins the end of September. But Universal Music Canada begins structuring its release schedule and marketing campaigns as early as June. This may have led to speculation that some of the expected big hitters have been held back to take advantage of a fall release that would conveniently set them in motion for increased sales for the all-important Christmas selling season. Not so, says Sarah Norris, vice-president of marketing for Universal Music Canada. "All of the records that have been breaking like the Rob Zombie, Marilyn Manson, Hole, Beck and Aerosmith went to retail as scheduled."

This fall has been somewhat different from previous years, as Norris points out, "We knew going into Autumn that we had some hits that we could definitely take to the bank. In June of last year when we were planning our Autumn releases, we had a few unknown records from a band called Chumbawamba, a band called Aqua, from Smash Mouth and even a band called Blink 182... records we didn't know were going to take off like they did. So what we had to do last year was work work and develop develop, and we had nothing going into the Autumn we felt we could be guaranteed to take home... until we heard them of course and went 'Oh! We're happening'.

"Going into this quarter and knowing that these records were coming, we knew there were some releases we could take home. I guess the surprise for us is the fact that the records we released in August and early September are maintaining for us and still selling incredibly well."

New Brunswick's music industry finally unites

On the second attempt to unite New Brunswick's industry into an association, Music/Musique NB has finally been launched. The NBMIA/AMINB formed in 1995 was considered a "learning experience," and a step towards the establishment of "a solid provincial music industry association."

So, it was great news for the province's music industry professionals when, at a press conference held Oct. 22, at Cabaret Au Deuxième in Moncton, it was announced that as New Brunswick's music industry association, Music/Musique NB is "now ready to provide services and support to members." The association's members include musicians, agents, managers, record retailers, record companies, studios, radio stations, music industry associations, entertainment venue operators, music related companies and professionals involved in the music industry such as lawyers, graphic designers and accountants.

The new association is the result of months of volunteer work by a steering committee comprising key players in the province's music industry, both from the English, French and aboriginal communities. These are Randy Clarke, Peter Rowan, Brian Francis, Johanne Landry, Jac Gautreau, Paul McGraw, Moka Case and Brent Mason (committee chair).

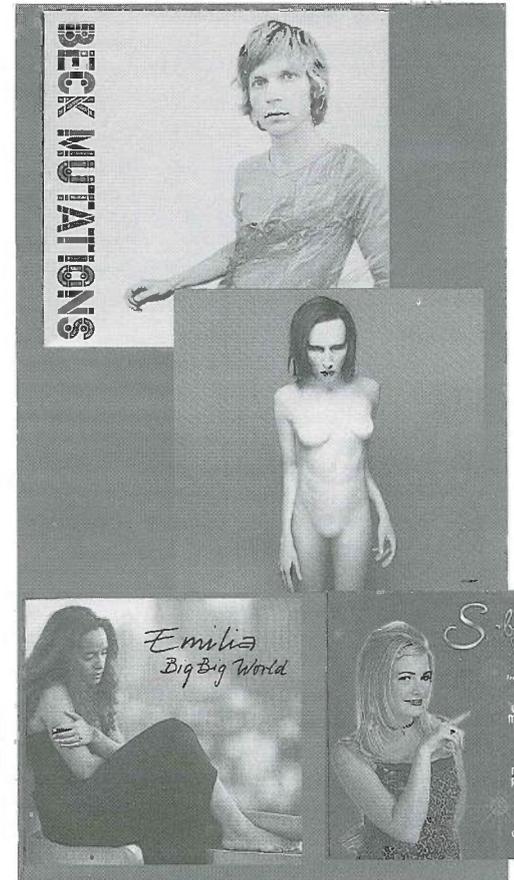

With the exception of Francis, all the above members of the steering committee were named to the interim board of directors.

It was further pointed out that the new organization's mandate is to "promote, foster and develop" the New Brunswick music industry. The steering committee also moved to set up a number of committees, including communications/media, fundraising, membership, event/special projects, technology, human resources. Music/Musique NB will also collaborate with FACTOR to assure a good representation of the province's music industry and will also collaborate with Musicaction for the Francophone industry.

Named as the interim board of directors are Randy Clarke, operator of Moncton Music Centre in Moncton; Jac Gautreau, record producer owner of Moncton's Staccato studio and independent label owner; Brent Mason, singer/songwriter based in Saint John; Peter Rowan, manager of Julie Doiron and Elevator To Hell, based in Fredericton; Moncton's Chelsea McQuade, Atlantic Canada's representative for Select, Fusion and Tidemark; Johanne Landry, musician/composer and co-owner of Moncton's Moka Promotion and Musicom; Pierre Fortier, artist manager and owner of Grand-Sault's (Grand Falls) Girafe Productions; Claudine Thériault (executive member at large) operator of Caraque's Distribution Plages Ltée; Mike Shannon (executive member at large) program director of Moncton's C103FM; Vivian Hicks (secretary) and Ivan Hicks, retired music educators based in Riverview; Conrad Simon, solo artist and instrumentalist from Big Cove; Paul McGraw (co-chair), artist/songwriter and co-owner of Miramichi River Productions; Moka Case (co-chair), owner of Moncton's Moka Music label; and Gary Morris, record producer and owner of Morris Music and Prime Time Studio based in Sussex.

Universal has four records, Norris says "are definitely breaking for us and it's so hard to break records at this time of year, but these four are just coming on like gangbusters." One is obviously the Johnny Favourite Swing Orchestra which came out at the end of September. "We knew it was going to be a long development, but every week we continue to pick up more radio play. He's on tour selling out shows everywhere and MuchMusic is on the video. We have a band called the New Radicals out of the US who have a single called You Get What You Give that's breaking on several radio formats. It's going to be a huge pop smash. We also have a new R&B act, a woman by the name of Monifah. Her single, Touch It, is about to hit the Top 10 on CHR.

"Our fourth surprise hasn't happened yet, but we know it's going to be huge. It's a new act out of Sweden, a young girl called Emilia, who has a single, Big Big World, that is hitting radio this week,

WALT SAYS . . . !

with Elvira Caprese

No funk'n' way! Eh??? Auf Wiedersehn (EC: The power of the mighty pen!!!)

Oh! I forgot to mention!!! Yes! I'm back and still catching up on the bad news and good news that continues to plague and please the industry, depending on your emotions if you have any, and what side of the fence you happen to be on when it collapses, the fence I mean. (EC: Very profound!!!)

Have faith!!! While everyone's waiting for the other shoe to drop and the waiting, by the way, is doing a lot of damage, here's a positive message. In all the years I've been monitoring this industry, it seems that everyone fits in. People who have been turfed out, fairly or otherwise, always manage to bounce back. It's an industry that attracts aggressive people and arms them with incredible knowledge of one of the most important, exciting and fun industries in the world. That aggressiveness is already paying off for some as they move on to bigger and better things. (EC: A light at the end of the tunnel!!!)

Oh! Oh!!! Look who's back and handling a big and noisy account. PS has a big BIG challenge, but he's got that legaleze (EC: Is that a typo? Don't you mean legalsleeze???) smile down to a science and it's designed to disarm both the weak and the strong. No matter the outcome, he'll come out on top. (EC: Isn't that what they teach them at law school???) Just when you thought it was safe to put yourself in the hands of a lawyer!!! (EC: HELP!!!!)

A Bullard bulletin!!! Open Mike's Mike Bullard (EC: So, who else would it be???) expands on the announcement of a change in the lineup of the Rankins. "Raylene Rankin has left the Rankins to spend more time with her family. She had to leave her family to spend more time with her family. The remaining Rankins don't expect to be slowed down a bit and say they're excited about her replacement . . . Sammy Hagar." (EC: Get a day job Mike!!!)

Who's the greatest promoter??? I see Kid Rock made the trade last week plus a couple of his Page and Plant pictures. His photos are cute, the kind you can stick on your fridge. He spends a lot of time on the road making sure all the record company biggies get their pics on magnets. He's a piece of art when you see him in action and he's rarely turned down. He has pics of prime ministers, presidents and he even tried to snap a shot of the Pope. His photo collection must be awesome. (EC: And his fridge collection must be awesome too!!!)

Rumours! Rumours! Rumours! what a dull life this would be if we didn't have rumours. December 10 is the big day, or so they say, when the preferred list is revealed. Some of the big guys who will get the chop down south won't suffer financially. They'll just have their egos bruised for a little while. Isn't it interesting how much some companies pay to steal high-priced help from their neighbours and pay twice as much to get rid of them. That's the American way they say. How fortunate we've got a border between us, and let's hope that attitude doesn't surface up here. Oh! But it has, you say? How terrible for us. (EC: But not with price tags of millions!!!)

A time to share a smile??? DC must be rolling over in his lawn chair as he sees what's happening to the industry he spent so much of his life in. One thing you can say about him, outside of his choice of friend, and that's singular, is that he was a great record guy and he got the short shrift. He looked over his shoulder too late. (EC: Choice of friend . . . I like that!!) Stop clowning around!

Shaft those stupid Canadians!!! It reads like a bad Hollywood script or something that may open on Broadway in the near future, but it started with a smartass remark some years ago to a show business biggy. Easily offended . . . we feel the scenario began to take shape THERE! (EC: Loved the Tonys that year!) No Canadian would believe that such an elaborate plot could have been conceived to "take over" a Broadway giant operated out of Canada!!! (EC: I read with anticipation!!!)

The plot thickens!!! It was in these pages some weeks ago, when I told you the Americans were already pissed off that the two kings of Hollywood were Canadians, and they certainly wouldn't stand for the king of Broadway being a Canadian! (EC: Yes, but you're possessed by these conspiracy theories!!!) He's in trouble! Make it look worse! Buy in! Move it to the US where Chapter 11 will keep you afloat! Get his friends to buy in! Claim you were stupid not to investigate your multi-million dollar investment! Dump him and his partner! Gosh! You were swindled! Losses are astronomical! Seek US bankruptcy protection! (EC: Unbelievable!!!)

It's about theatres!!! With some of the best theatrical real estate up for grabs and with a lot of bruised egos on your side you now have the protection of chapter 11 and business goes on, somewhat, because at the end of all this, when the smoke clears, look who's out and look who owns what and look where Canada ends up in all this. (EC: Time will tell! And you claim you don't know a thing about balancing your own cheque book!!!) I have a friend who is very well connected! I find out these things! (EC: You should be writing for a daily! I'll tell you which one!!!) but already in the US it's the No. 1 most added CHR, and it's going to be a pop smash.

"So we have our Top 10 which is a combination of some rock acts and some pop acts that we are really concentrating on through this Christmas. We have our breaking acts, those four I just mentioned and then we have some excellent Canadians still developing, from Haydn to Rufus Wainwright, Cowboy Junkies, and Sloan who just got back from a sold-out tour in Japan. The Rush album is also doing incredibly well."

Marketing strategies do change for the Christmas season. And as Norris stresses, "Getting the product in front of the consumer is our priority. Obviously television is a very strong medium and we are looking to the internet as well as a vehicle for advertising this Autumn more than we have in the past."

Retail, the final link between the record company and the record buyer, is always leaned on at this time of year. Says Norris, "the importance of retail goes without saying. Retail is definitely our number one priority. We work with retail for this time of year beginning in June."

The last four months of the year, particularly the last two, has quite often made up for lagging sales earlier in the year for some companies. That wasn't the case at Universal. "We haven't felt lagging sales," says Norris. "We've been very fortunate. We've continued to build throughout this entire year. We even have new singles and videos coming in December from Rob Zombie, Marilyn Manson . . . and the Tragically Hip tour announcement is going to really catapult sales of their album into the new year. This will be their largest cross-Canada tour ever."

Norris is looking for a bountiful year, "and we're well-prepared to continue this excitement into the new year. This will definitely be a very good year for us."

Warner to cash in on big time, big hitters

Warner Music Canada has a number of priority items as they head for the holiday season, some of which were released a couple of months ago. But this past week was memorable for Warner with the release of Metallica Garage Inc. double album, "which is very special for us," says Warner Music's senior vice-president and managing director of the US division, Kim Cooke.

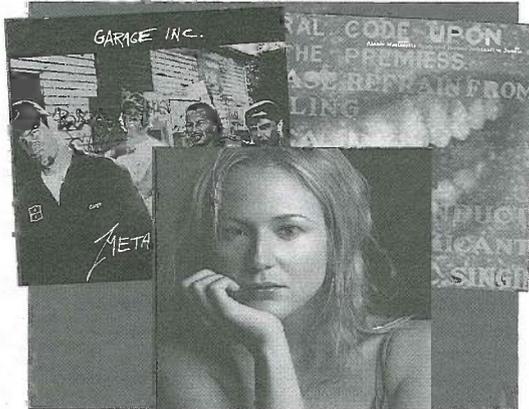

The album is a collection of cover versions and B sides, including the complete re-issue of a record released about ten years ago called Garage Days Re-Visited. The album was taken off the market five or six years ago and has been re-issued in its entirety in this Metallica package. "I guess what makes it special," says Cooke, "is that they have their biggest radio hit since Enter Sandman, the big smash that broke them, or the cover of Bob Seger's song Turn The Page, and that's just exploding at rock radio . . . a huge, huge track." A number of midnight openings across the country established the package on its release date.

Another release that Cooke is predicting to score well at retail is the follow-up to Women & Songs from last year, appropriately titled Women & Songs 2, both of which were put together by Al Fletcher who is in charge of Warner's strategic development division. "Al did nothing less than a remarkable job in creating Women & Songs. With one record he established a very identifiable brand.

The record went triple platinum plus in Canada which is quite remarkable, and if anything, Women & Songs 2 has probably raised the bar another 10 or 20 per cent in terms of the quality of the package. The enthusiasm level from the accounts is over the top . . . we're going to be shipping that album double platinum on December 8. We have very, very high hopes that it will be a potent package throughout the run-up to Christmas and it will be supported by a very major national TV buy as well."

The new Jewel album is expected to be a shoo-in for the upcoming season. The new release is the follow-up to her debut which was a 10 million selling record. Cooke is anticipating heavy impact at retail for the album being as the new single, Hands, has already broken into the Top 10 of CHR and A/C radio as well as heavy video support from both channels, MuchMusic and MuchMoreMusic.

On the question of whether some of the releases by the big hitters are sometimes stalled to take advantage of the Christmas buying season, "It always seems to work that way," says Cooke. "Certainly with the percentage of the annual business that's done at Christmas, it does make very good sense to have your record out at the prime retail time of year. I think in many cases too, the creative cycle just falls that way. But it certainly makes for a very jammed situation in stores on a tremendous amount of competition for rack space, especially right at the moment."

The importance of radio in breaking hits has never been questioned at Warner Music. "Radio is our friend," says Cooke.

But as far as changing marketing strategies for this time of year, "It's necessary because of the excitement that builds up to the holiday buying period. Many of the things that work year round are also applicable in the fourth quarter. I guess the one big element that comes seriously into play in the fourth quarter is much larger media spends by all the record companies. We've been doing it selectively this fall, certainly with Women & Songs, and we chose to mount a very major TV campaign behind the Phil Collins' Hits album as well as participating in selected account campaigns. So the huge difference in the fall is the amount of TV advertising that all record companies enter into."

As far as carry-over which is gaining in popularity and importance, based on what happened in January of this year, Cooke is confident of an even greater beginning for the new year. "We started last year with a tremendous bang with Big Shiny Tunes and Women & Songs, and we have very, very high hopes for this January with Women & Songs 2, Metallica, Alanis, Jewel and for Seal. And a lot of the records that have been going strong for a little bit now, all with tremendous legs, records like the Goo Goo Dolls, which is many singles deep, even the Barenaked Ladies, even though it's six months old and we're only into the second single on it. So, we're pretty confident that we're going to have a very strong carry-over into the new year."

With carry-over, or follow-through sales that quite often makes January a major sales month for record companies, the question of "why" has been raised. "I think it all has to do with the individual records and what they're made of and where they are in their life, which will have a tremendous influence on the degree to which they carry over," says Cooke. "But there's always a tremendous amount of business done in the first couple of weeks of January. There's a lot of kids with a lot of money, with gift certificates in their pockets. So, it's kind of the post Christmas rush before things quiet down again."

Cooke sums up with "It's been a spectacular year and a fantastic fall for us. We're just coming to the end of our fiscal year and getting ready to crank it up and do it all over again."

Sony ready to wrap a record breaking year

Sony Music Canada's fiscal year starts April 1 and goes to March 30, making the third quarter, which covers the Christmas season, its most important. Looking back over last year, Sony Music's director of central region sales, Karen Hunter, points out that the first half of last year was light as far as releases go in hit product. It was during the second half of the year when the tide turned and the big hits came down the pipe, like Titanic and Celine Dion, "that together, equalled about two and half million units, so it pulled our year through. In fact, November '97 was our largest month in the history of the company."

It was a different game this year, as Hunter points out, "We've had hits from the beginning of our year and it looks like it's not going to end until the end of our year. It looks like the hits are really consistent, and it's more hit product than just two releases driving our business."

Spice Girls et al spice up year's end for Virgin

There's more to Virgin than Spice Girls, no doubt one of the most popular of bands over the last year. But as Virgin Canada's vice-president and general manager Bill Banham points out, "We have to maintain the status of the records we already have happening for us, including the entire Spice Girls catalogue with the new single that hits on Dec. 8 and the new video. Obviously the Rolling Stones are still a big Christmas item, Janet Jackson's having another shot of more sales through the Christmas period and the Smashing Pumpkins. Those are the four big records that we have out there right now that we're expecting to see some continued sales through the Christmas period."

Virgin has been somewhat cautious in the numbers of acts they hope to break over this important part of the year. "We've picked for the most part, six acts that we will continue to break now through the Christmas season and into the new year."

He is particularly excited about Billie a UK youngster who releases on the same label as the Spice Girls.

Interestingly, the Billie campaign began in June with the release of a CD single, Because We Want To, which was relatively successful at radio and which obviously set her up for the album which was released the end of October. The key here was YTV, which went that extra mile in helping create a mystique around the 16-year old who performed on their Cycle Blast concert in August. The album is almost at 20,000 units.

Billie's American release won't be until March and it's forming a similar pattern of success the Spice Girls did, where Virgin Canada was ahead of the Americans. In fact, Ray Cooper, the co-president of Virgin America, was quoted as saying

November this year is expected to surpass last November. "We shipped over 900,000 of Celine Dion's Let's Talk About Love. So, we're having a great year, but it's over a bunch of titles instead of just two titles."

Hunter reveals that Sony's fiscal year is up about 38 per cent over last year. "We're doing well and it's primarily hits that have continued to sell from the beginning of the year like Savage Garden, Godzilla, Back To The Titanic . . . and the Philosopher Kings have sold over 100,000 units, and all the new releases; Lauryn Hill, which is already at 275,000, Mariah Carey, Oasis, Offspring, Pearl Jam, South Park, Divas . . . we have tons of releases."

Interesting too is that a lot of those albums were released in October and early November. "Retailers actually started early for Christmas sales."

that with Billie, Virgin Canada "is leading the way in North America, the same way they did with Spice Girls."

Virgin is putting much emphasis and promotion muscle on Billie and Placebo, "two new breaking acts," for this Christmas season.

With regard to changes in marketing strategies and holding back on releases for the high season, Banham claims both. "A couple of things have to happen when walking into this Christmas buying season; the company has to be totally straight on what its priorities are, which unfortunately some records may get put on the backburner until the new year . . . pushing the release date back or what have you. But the company has to be totally focused on what the priorities are, from marketing, promotion and sales. They all have to be in sync. As well, the records you pick have to be those you feel are going to be the moneymakers over the holiday season and your marketing plans and initiatives have to be geared to retail. I think it's very unprofessional if you don't have every piece of marketing tool tied into retail."

Banham has shown his marketing smarts by keeping his developing acts down to a roar, the two mentioned above, Billie and Placebo. "You're foolish if you go in with much more than two or three debut or developing acts at this time of year."

Banham is also in tune with the importance of the carry-over into January. "January is basically turning into Boxing Day month. So, you got to make sure you have your plans totally straight, again tied into retail to make sure you capitalise on that as well."

Last year was a banner year for Virgin and Banham expects this year to be on a par or even better.

As far as changes in marketing strategies for this time of year, Sony has its Christmas television campaign, "which we've run for the last ten years. This year we've added to it in that we've added internet advertising and infomercials . . . half-hour infomercial on the TV advertised titles. We've also developed a flyer that will go directly to consumers homes."

Were there any surprises this year? "The Offspring's initially looks like its performing beyond expectations and they're going to be here December 5th., so I expect that will keep going. With South Park, we anticipated that it would do alright, but I think it's going to be better than we anticipated. With Lauryn Hill, we're at close to 300,000, and that's one we weren't too sure about."

They weren't really surprises, but Hunter waxes enthusiasm about the success of a number of Sony's Canadian acts. "It's good to see the Philosopher Kings happening and Corey Hart who we're doing very well with, and Chantel Kreviazuk is still selling big and so is Our Lady Peace. And Melanie Doane is a nice surprise out of the box as well."

Included in Sony's Christmas TV campaign are tracks from Celine Dion, George Michael, Mariah Carey, Julio Iglesias and The Divas which will obviously be an influencing factor for Sony's follow-through in January.

PETE ROCK - Hip-Hop/Drum'n'Bass
Soul Survivor
Loud 07863 - N

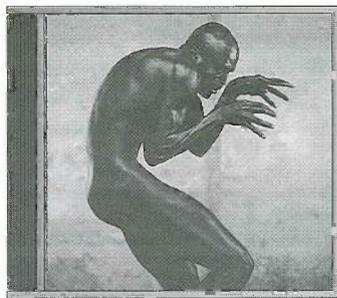

Big love and expectations for PR from BMG. Those familiar find less to none in horny loop use, but plenty in rhythm and beat attack. Tracks are heavily jazz and sample oriented and we find collaborative MC creation on tracks Strange Fruit (Tragedy Khadafi, Cappadonna) to The Game (Raekwon and Prodigy). Pete Rock has worked a broad base from Nas to Mic Geronimo, but on this LP he represents himself fully completely. True Master, which features Kurupt (Tha Dogg Pound) and Inspectah Deck (Wu Tang) is the single - to - go and is an apt (where the word actually means something) representation of the seventeen strong CD. Primarily a producer with Public Enemy, Run DMC, EPMD, and Naughty By Nature, fans may be expecting old school ways, which they get, but out to hone his solo status, Pete Rock utilizes his impressive skills to establish a school of technique that is arguably all his own. - SD

SYSTEM OF A DOWN - Alternative
System Of A Down
American 68924 - H

Politically charged lyrics that sound like a cross between Jello Biafra and Maynard Keenan. This is riff heavy product that falls under the same dark, foreboding, but very frequented ground in 1998, trampled by the likes of Tool, latter day McTallica, Rage Against The Machine, Korn, or the Deftones. It isn't awful, but they aren't lending anyone any new suggestions on how to execute a guitar riff or political ideology. This type of politicized message sounds more appropriate coming from a Cop Shoot Cop rather than a Days Of The New, but with a guaranteed audience: after all, the performance and production is strong, there will be those ready to hail it for radio, sales, and live purposes that the aforementioned acts have already flagellated themselves on, in, and of. - SD

SEAL - Pop/Soul
Human Being
Warner 46828 - P
Glittering triple platinum vocalist Seal joins up triple time with producer Trevor Horn (Art Of Noise, Cher) and revisits the silky soul sea

Seal so masterfully sails. Human Beings, the leadoff single, is commandeering airwaves everywhere. It seems Seal's conscription of musicians such as Wendy And Lisa (Prince), Anne Dudley (Art Of Noise), and William Orbit (Madonna), to his already ace duo of Jamie Huhoberac and Earl Harvin, coupled with Warner's high hopes and multi $ and format push, results in an inevitable musical and promotional dream team. - SD

NICO MATISSE - Pop
Seduces Me
Shoreline-14015 (Select Distribution)

Ginette Reno is said to have been the earliest inspiration of Celine Dion. Interesting. We're unaware if she influenced M'lie Matisse, who is also Quebec based, but there is no mistaking to our ears, the feeling and even, sound of Ginette Reno in her singing. She has the same emotional intensity and in some passages, the same vocal trills and inflections. The songs she sings here -- many of them, her own -- are not the kind that her spiritual antecedent sings but are no less effective in impact. A good debut album and worthy of custom but one hopes for something a little more mainstream on her next one. 100% MAPL as far as we can determine though not so stated on the label or package. Produced by Paul Page and recorded at Montreal's Victor Studios. Mastered by Bill Kipper. -BW

NATALIE CHOQUETTE - Opera
La Diva II
Isba Classic-5043

As Victor Borge is to concert pianists, Natalie Choquette is to opera singers. In live performance her burlesque can veer uncomfortably close to buffoonery. On recordings however, and with only occasional and deliberate over floridity, her glorious voice -- and it alone -- commands the listener's full attention. The 13 selections offered on La Diva II are well known but it must not be supposed that it's a programme of mere opera bon bons. Each one, though familiar, enjoys the full nexus of M'lie Choquette's versatile talent. That versatility is perhaps best demonstrated on the devilishly difficult and too rarely-performed Chanson hindoue from Rimsky-Korsakov's Sadko (more popularly known as Song of India) and on Nessun dorma. We cannot recall having heard a female voice essay the latter till now. Both are performed impeccably. Fact is, the album is beyond auditory reproach. -BW

PUIRT A BAROQUE - Celtic/Baroque
Return of the Wanderer

Marquis Classics-77471812232-F
We borrow unabashedly and oxymoronically from Canada's belle province publicity of some years ago in describing Return of the Wanderer as friendly, familiar and foreign. This is the third CD for the popular group and by now, its fusion of baroque and celtic music is familiar whilst still retaining a touch of esotericism. This time they've added vocals by singer Stephanie Conn performing traditional Scottish songs in both Gaelic (Scottish Gaelic, one presumes) and English in requiste sweet, just short of keening, voice. Guesting musicians include John Allan Cameron, Kate Dunlay, Abby Newton and Curly Boy Stubbs. Existing fans of Puir a Baroque will enjoy Wanderer; decent airplay and deserved front racking should bring in new ones. Produced by Paul Mills. Recorded at Lydian Sound in Richmond Hill, Ontario and mastered by Ted Carson at MusicLane in Markham, Ontario. -BW

BEN HEPPNER - Opera
NDR Sinfonieorchester - Donald Runnicles - Ben Heppner Sings German Romantic Opera

RCA Victor Red Seal-09026-63239-N
For the uninitiated, German Opera would seem filled with nothing more than sturm and drang. In fact, they offer many of the finest love songs and Ben Heppner sings some of them here. It's always a treat to hear him sing but especially on this album where his powerful voice is modulated to the tender sweetness of words of love. Among the composers presented here are Wagner of course, Beethoven, Von Weber and . . . Erich Korngold. One had almost forgotten that he was a wunderkind in his native Germany before fleeing to America where he composed scores for motion pictures (among them is that of The Sea Hawk from which John Williams respectfully confesses he "borrowed" for Star Wars). Heard here is Korngold's Oh Freund, ich werde sie nicht wiedersehen" from Die Tote Stadt. Simply beautifully. -BW

JAZZ MONTREAL - Jazz
Various Artists
Justin Time-6650

A mellifluous mélange of Montreal jazz figures presents an eclectic and, on a few tracks, electric sampling of what's good in Paris of the North jazz. The eleven tracks begin with a down and dirty Homeboy Blues by Johnny O'Neal that should be snapped up by temperance groups. We mean that seriously; the message delivered about over indulgence in the hop, the grape or the grain is, dare we say it?, a sobering one. The last track features the Danny Christianson Big Band charging valiantly on C'est Quoi? Don't wonder which of all the tracks is the best because all differ in presentation. Let it suffice that all are satisfactory. Chacun à goût, n'est ce pas? -BW

YO-YO MA - Classical
The Protecting Veil
Sony Classical-62821-H

Yo-Yo Ma is probably today's pre-eminent cellist. Till now, one might have felt that his playing lacked, or didn't display, the ineffable sweetness of a Plategorsky but no longer. Accompanied by the strings and specifically the cello of the Baltimore Symphony conducted by David Zinman he plays the sublimely intended music of John Taverner. The Protecting Veil is a work in eight continuous sections, each one relating to a major Feast on the Orthodox calendar. Each is titled and so the work becomes one of programme music but could well be untitled and accepted as absolute music. The same could be said of the other compositions, the world premiere recording of the composer's Wake Up And Die. Lest our ruminations be thought specious, let us add that they aren't truly a concern. The music is a divine experience to the ear as interpreted by Yo-Yo Ma now nearing the peak of his performing genius. In or at his hands, the cello becomes a heavenly instrument. -BW

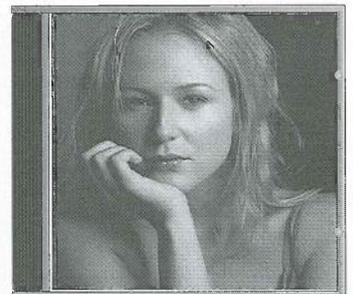

MICHAEL PICKETT - Blues
Blues Money
Wooden Teeth-001

Michael Pickett proves still fresh after three decades as one of the pre-eminent R&B men on the North American jazz scene in general and Toronto in particular. His vocals retain the necessary rough timbre and his harmonica playing continues to be an unalloyed delight. He's given excellent backing on the 12 tracks by some of Toronto's best, but the album belongs to him and he carries it well. He'll never wear out his welcome. Produced by Pickett and Doug Romanow. Recorded at John Pickering Studios and Sounds Interchange. -BW

JEWEL - Pop
Spirit
Atlantic-82950-P

Jewel (Kilcher) is back in with an incredible single, Hands, included here which will no doubt fuel sales for this album. The single has broken fast at both CHR and A/C radio. With Pieces of You, her debut album now eight-times platinum in Canada. Spirit, conveniently released in time for the Christmas-giving season, will no doubt follow that pattern of success. A Night Without Armour, a book of Jewel's poetry released earlier this year by Harper Collins, will also add to the incredible fan base she now enjoys. Next year she will make her film debut in Ride With The Devil in which she has a starring role, another major status plus for this 24-year old. The material on this release is all radio friendly, no question. Besides Hands, key are Deep Water, Barcelona, Absence of Fear and Enter From The East. Jewel's songwriting talent is also on parade here. She wrote all the songs with the exception of Hands, which she co-wrote with her producer Patrick Leonard (Madonna) and This Little Bird, a John D. Laudermilk penning, which, by the way, could be a left-fielder as a single. Retailers shouldn't have to be nudged to front-rack this gem and to use their in-store-play facility. -WG

Ottawa's Y105 Fan Jam '98 is presenting Canadian country superstar Paul Brandt and Lisa Brokop in concert at the Ottawa Civic Centre Theatre on Dec. 7. And everyone of the 3,600 tickets have been given away by the station. The station's program director Ken Geiger explains that the station's priority was not only to give every ticket away to fans in Canada's Capital for an upcoming concert, but to make sure the artists were Canadians and that the venue was large enough to host a few thousand of their listeners. "We definitely wanted a Canadian flavour to the promotion. Y105 has one of the highest commitments to Canadian music in the country." The station was heavily involved in Ottawa's winning bid for Canadian Country Music Week in September of next year.

John Gracie took time out from his promotional tour across Canada to sing the Canadian and American national anthems when the Edmonton Oilers played the Chicago Black Hawks on Nov.

29. Gracie is promoting his latest single, Highwire In A Hurricane, the title track from his new Grey-Sea album. Gracie's manager, Andree Gracie, reminds us that the song was the one that caused people to speak so positively about Gracie when he did the showcase at the Musicians' Citations luncheon at Country Music Week in Calgary last September. It was also the song all the women picked out as their favourite the night Gracie opened for Patty Loveless. Gracie's full CD will be in stores before Christmas. Gracie can be contacted in Dartmouth, Nova Scotia at 902-462-6768. fax 902-462-8387.

Royalty's hot new country includes releases by Debbie Nelson (Lovin' You Too Soon), Foster Martin Band (Missing You), Rena Gaile (Daddy's School) and Richard Hamilton (Bad Luck). The Nelson and Hamilton tracks were produced by R.Harlan Smith with Declan O'Doherty on the board for the Gaile single and Craig Fotheringham doing the production on the Foster Martin Band single.

Wendell Ferguson is planting his promotion seed early for the release of his tongue-in-cheek album, titled I Pick Therefore I Jam. The album is Ferguson at his best with lots of that well-known Ferguson humour. The album is being targeted for a February release, at which time we'll do a review.

Anne Murray and Friends, Murray's popular Classic Christmas, is scheduled as a TNN encore this year on Dec. 7 with repeats on Dec. 15, 17, 22 and 23. Barenaked Ladies perform God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen and then join Murray for Santa Claus Is Coming and I Saw Mommy Kissing Santa Claus. As well, Canadian pop star Roch Voisine performs Christmas Is Calling, a song he wrote specially for the show. Voisine then joins Murray for a medley of We Three Kings, Little Drummer Boy and Deck The Halls. Murray's husband Bill Langstroth and children Dawn and William cap the show with Silent Night. The Christmas special is a CBC/Balmur productions co-production. When first aired in Canada the special attracted more than one million viewers.

Kiley Joe Masson was featured by country radio stations across Canada on Remembrance Day (November 11) with his moving tribute of A Soldier's Memories. The 23-year old Princeton, Ontario resident wrote the song when he was just 16 and performed it during a contest sponsored by the Woodstock, Ontario Legion in honour of those Canadians who gave for their country. A specially-packaged CD single was shipped to radio in late October.
