TRICHY ON THE

On 16th May 1939, the latest addition to the centres of All India Radio will be formally inaugurated at Trichy and will commence broadcasting. Readers might remember the period during which its future was hanging in the balance, before Government decided to complete the installation and to open it as a full-fledged centre radiating its own programmes. Even now, some are not clear why South India should have another centre when Madras can provide all that South Indians may fancy in the shape of radio entertainment; in fact, a few even doubted whether it might not result in a mere duplication of the same kind of programmes and if there would be anything individual about the new station to justify its separate existence.

Most persons know Trichy only as an obscure place down south that has given its name to the local 'cheroot', associated with the hawk-eyed detective of fiction. Being a central junction for rail-roads from all directions, no traveller in the south can help passing through it at one time or another. But the sight of the Rock Fort standing out from the level country as the most conspicuous landmark for miles around is often the only feature about the city likely to rouse the least flicker of curiosity or interest in the passerby. Compared to the polyglot capital of the province, with its Andhra, Tamil, Canarese and Malayalam population, Trichy is much less impressive, representing as it does only one culture fully, the Tamil. But from the broadcasting point of view, this is its importance.

În a scheme for providing first-class regional service together with broadcast of local programmes to distant and overseas listeners, Trichy and Madras, with their medium and short-wave transmitters, ought to form the ideal combination. The 5 K. W. transmitter at Trichy is expected to give satisfactory reception reasonably free from atmospherics, over an area roughly co-incident with what may be called the Tamil country. Its programmes will naturally be determined and circumscribed by these factors in its optimum range.

The extreme south of the Peninsula has had throughout a history of its own, which shares in the characteristic feature of everything South Indian, an indifference to things outside the separate sphere and interests. Dravidians are a nationality, but it is illustrative of their extreme self-sufficiency that there should be no compendious term belonging to the Dravidian languages themselves, to designate all the members of the nation, as distinct from other nations and peoples. The original Dravidian survives now mainly in the Tamil language which has admitted the least admixture of Sanskrit or other languages, in sharp contrast to Malayalam which has admitted most; and it continues to be a matter of pride not to borrow words for purposes which can be served by Tamil ones. While this has resulted in a vigorous effort to relate the language to modern conditions and needs, it has served always to keep alive the memory and the use of its oldest spoken forms and its literature, through so many centuries down to the present.

Programmes broadcast from Trichy are likely to be of permanent interest only to South Indians. The abundance of wit and dry humour that convulses Tamil audiences will be missed completely by strangers to the language and its nuances. In a country where even the most insignificant village has its temple, and periodical festivals surround the presiding deities with all the incidents of everyday human activity, deeprooted piety and faith are instinctive among the people and no drama is more a matter of course than that drawn from the seemingly inexhaustible storehouse of South Indian mythology. It is also perhaps to be expected of such a country that its best music should be almost completely devotional; in fact, most themes convey an impression of an almost morbid renunciation of worldliness and an excessive yearning for the salvation of the Modern influences reaching down to such a self-centred people have released numerous forces that ought to augur well for broadcasting in the South. A dissatisfaction with the state of always living in the past seems now to be more evident in the growing literature of recent days. The urgent desire for information about happenings in the world has acquired remarkable significance in recent times in an area supposed always to be meditating on past glories. Mythological themes are not always certain of success in modern dramas or films, and audiences are prepared to see humour or pathos in the portrayal of emotions of quite ordinary mortals.

The Madras station has, in the short period of its working, familiarized listeners with the Carnatic style of music, till then unknown on the air. Listeners have now begun to wonder if there is any more left and whether South Indian music is not for ever destined to remain the petrified classic it has come to be at present. But Trichy may yet succeed in showing that there is no need for such a counsel of despair. The vast body of folk-music which depends for its understanding and appreciation as much on the sense as on the sound, has waited so long for a station which can utilize it, unhampered by considerations of language. The severely classical type of Carnatic music, with its frontage of arid mathematics and infinitely permuted notes, has no doubt an intellectual appeal that will always assure for it an abiding though limited future.

But an essentially popular institution like the Radio, reaching to a common level of musical appreciation, will have to achieve a mean between conventionalized refinement and musical comedy appeal. The new Tamil music now being built up as a fairly recognizable type has a simpler melodic structure which can be presented with attractive and effective instrumentation; while the words themselves convey, to an intensely home-loving and sensitive people, the message of all their hopes and fears and joys, in language they passionately adore. Some of the compositions of Subrahmanya Bharati have acquired an incredible degree of popularity, because they attempt, for the first time in Tamil music, a portrayal of the natural beauties of the country and the relation of purely domestic emotions to the larger life of a people. This new music has also roused a dormant conscience among musicians, who discover with daily surprise the hitherto unvoiced beauties of the peoples' songs of the past. The first samples of songs from the Kuravanchi and selections from the Pillaitamil, to give two instances, have evoked among audiences an enthusiastic desire for many more of them.

What the future holds for broadcasting in the South, none can say with confidence now. The rapid development of hydroelectric schemes is carrying cheap electricity into villages so long thought to be remote and inaccessible. Entertainment and enlightenment will now reach a stratum hitherto untouched by the currents of the world. In this respect, Trichy can always provide a service which may come to be missed if it were discontinued. In the matter of private listening, the Tamil area has always led in the Madras Presidency; but it remains to be seen how the licence figures respond to the opening of a new station in its midst. They might grow and afford encouragement for the programme of expansion so tentatively launched upon; or, on the other hand....

We regret that through an oversight the name of Dr S. K. Sen was included in the list of members of the Advisory Committee for the Delhi Station.

THE sudden and tragic death of Mr John Foulds comes as a severe loss to broadcasting in India, a loss which may perhaps be far greater than it actually seems. Mr Foulds came to India in 1935 with the intention of making a thorough study of Indian music. He had been attracted towards Indian music through his wife, Maud MacCarthy, who had played a considerable part in arousing interest in it in England. In 1928 Foulds' Essays in the Modes were published by Senart of Paris and attracted a good deal of attention as an attempt to harmonize the pure modes of Indian music in a manner worthy of their beauty and importance. It was his continued interest in this work which led him to visit

India and he believed very strongly that a system of harmony for Indian music based on the notes of the ragas themselves could be evolved. He believed moreover that it should be evolved since he felt that the impact of western music of the cheaper kind popularized by the gramophone and the cinema might undermine the taste of the Indian public and ultimately destroy the foundations of Indian music, unless some form of harmony based on the fundamental principles of that music could be evolved to meet the growing demand for orchestration.

In 1936, John Foulds joined All India Radio and became Director of European Music at the Delhi Station. Although he was successful and enthusiastic in his work and managed with the restricted talent available to produce in two and a half years something like six hundred concerts of a remarkably high standard, it cannot be said that the work was entirely suited to his ideals. He had necessarily to work with extremely restricted funds and the task of arranging and rehearsing European programmes kept him too busy to have much time for experiments in harmonizing Indian music. At first, indeed, no

John Foulds and the Indo-European Orchestra

funds at all were available for this purpose; but in the latter half of 1937 and throughout 1938 he was allotted sufficient funds to run a small experimental orchestra for Indo-European items. It was an experiment and not an easy one since it involved the engagement of instrumentalists who required to be taught notation and trained to play as a team. During 1938 Mr Foulds devoted a great deal of enthusiasm and energy to the task of harmonizing and transcribing Indian melodies and in training his small orchestra. The transcripts remain and many of these items were also recorded. It will perhaps be for posterity to say how far the attempt was successful and how far Mr Foulds would have been able, had he lived, to arrive at some form of harmonization which would have been acceptable to India.

He was, of course, also a musician and composer of considerable repute in the West. His World Requiem conducted by him at the Albert Hall in 1923, 1924 and 1926 with an orchestra and chorus of over 1,000 and to audiences of over 10,000 was a work of considerable sweep and magnitude; his Keltic Suite is known the world over and he was also distinguished for his compositions for over thirty London theatrical productions including Bernard Shaw's Saint Joan. In 1934 he published a book under the title Music To-day.

Amongst us of All India Radio John Foulds was always a popular and charming figure. Gentle, kindly, unobtrusive, he was quick to call out the affection and friendship of those he met. Though no longer quite young, he was a shining example of enthusiasm, energy and cheerfulness, and his untimely death has removed not only a valuable member of the organization but one whom all had grown to regard as a friend.

base of the mast.

ON May 16 one more broadcasting centre will be added to the All India Radio system—the Trichy centre. Trichy will be the fifth new centre and the ninth new transmitter opened since December 1937. All India Radio now have eight medium-wave stations and five short-wave stations in daily

The Trichy centre is very similar to the Lahore and Lucknow centres. The 5 K. W. medium-wave transmitter will be radiating on a wavelength of 397 metres, which is the long-est wavelength used by the Indian mediumwave stations. This choice of wavelength has been determined by technical considerations connected with the type of soil in the Trichy area. Preliminary tests show that, in addition to covering the Trichy and Tanjore area with a first-grade service throughout the year, a very useful service will be provided to a good portion of the south of India during

The studio building contains four studios for European Music, Indian Music, Talks, and Recorded Programmes, a Control Room, as well as accommodation for the Station Director, Station Engineer, and the Programme, Technical and Office staff. In the Control Room equipment is provided for receiving the programme from any of the four studios and amplifying it a suitable amount before it is transmitted along telephone lines to the Transmitting Station. In addition to the control of the microphones in each studio, a signalling system is also provided between the Control Room and each studio, which is used by the Control Room to inform any studio when the programme is to start and the studio can also signal to the Control Room when the programme is finished. The signalling is carried out by a method of red and green lights. When a microphone in any studio is energized, a red warning light is illuminated both on the inside and outside of the studio doors. An internal telephone system is also provided from several points in the corridor to the Control Room so that continuous contact can be maintained between the Control Room and the studios. A Listening Room is also provided in which the programmes taking place in the studios can be heard. Loudspeakers are provided in all studios and in some of the offices so that the programme and technical staff can listen to the programme which is being transmitted.

The Control Room equipment for controlling the output from the microphones in the various studios is capable of handling simultaneously a normal programme transmission in one studio and a rehearsal in a second studio. Either the programme or the rehearsal may be listened to from the loudspeakers in the studios not in use, or in the Listening Rooms. During Aerial mast tuning circuit located in a small hut at the, the hours when the programme is not being radiated two rehearsals can be conducted simultaneously.

The programme taking place in a studio, after amplification and control in the Control Room is connected to the Transmitting Station by special telephone lines running between the Studio Building and the Transmitting Station. A transmitting station of the power of the Trichy transmitter must be located well outside the town if the strength of the station in the city is not to be too great to prevent other stations operating in the mediumwave band being received without interference from Trichy. It is principally for this reason that the station is located five miles away from the city.

TRANSMITTING STATION

The Transmitting building and aerial system is located on a thirty-acre site near Tiru-tem. The transmitting aerial takes the valves of the 5 K.W. modulated amplifier.

form of a single self-radiating mast 180 feet high and insulated from earth for the requisite radio frequency voltage. This is the most modern type of aerial system that is used on medium wavelengths. In order to obtain an efficient earth system 120 copper wires are buried in the earth extending outwards radially from the mast to a distance of 600 ft. The efficiency of the combined transmitting aerial and earth system is found to be very high.

The 5 K. W. medium-wave transmitters of All India Radio are the first to be put in operation in which this power is obtained with aircooled valves. Up to recently the power limit of stations with air-cooled valves has been about 2 K.W. Above this power valves with water-cooled anodes have been employed. The use of water-cooling involves additional complications which it is very desirable to avoid if possible such as pumps, water-cooling systems and water piping from the valves to the pumps and cooling system.

Another particular feature of importance is the absence of rotating machinery. The filaments of all valves used on the transmitters, except in the case of the final high frequency amplifier stage, are heated by direct current obtained by the conversion of A.C. voltage by means of copper oxide rectifiers. In the case of the final high frequency amplifier the filaments are lighted by A.C. and are connected in a special manner so as to reduce the superimposition of A.C. hum on the carrier to maintain a low hum level. The transmitter uses high power Class B modulation and a quartz crystal for the Master Oscillator system.

POWER SUPPLY

The transmitter and associated apparatus consumes approximately 30 K.W. of energy from the electric supply mains. The electric supply is obtained from the Trichy-Srirangam Electric Supply Corporation. A special extension of the supply system has been made to the Transmitting Station. The supply is carried on overhead wires at a tension of 3000 volts and is converted to a low tension of 400 volts by a sub-station near the Transmitting Station building, from whence it is led into the building by underground cable.

RECEIVING CENTRE

Work on a special receiving centre for Trichy is also proceeding. This receiving centre will pick up programmes from such places as Madras, Delhi and Daventry which will then be relayed from the Trichy Station. Such a receiving centre provided with special aerial systems and receivers can give much better reception than is possible on the average listener's receiver.

The base of the mast and the series gap lightning arrester to protect the trans-mitting equipment in the event of mitting equipment in the lightning striking the mast.

It is the penetrating, nourishing, growing and colouring properties that give beauty to your hair.

KAMINIA OIL (Regd.)

Stands apart in distinction from other hair oils which are mostly admixtures of unknown oils which have no power for increasing the growth of hair. They are not only incapable of doing any good to your hair but contrary to it, they do harm your hair.

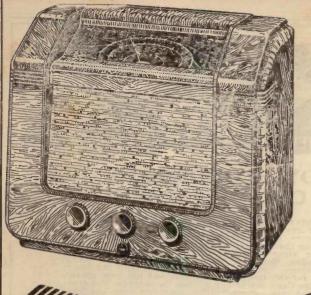

The rare medicinal herbs used in the preparation of KAMINIA OIL are bound to benefit your hair as they have done to millions of users to-day.

OUR HOMES FOR THE DESTITUTE, 2

A talk by M. K. Davis

The beggar problem is indeed a large one and it is indisputable that a great deal must be done before we can be anywhere near tackling it with success. This, however, should make us all the more gratefully appreciative of the work done by homes for the dumb or the blind, or for the children. A complete description of the existing homes for beggars of various types in the Presidency will be given in two talks.

The Radio: A talk by Durga

While the Radio has established itself as a very important factor in the life of the Western people, it is still something of a novelty in India. It has still to determine its place in the Indian home as a medium of recreation and education. Durga Dass will tonight discuss some practical suggestions for extending the usefulness of this important medium.

Was it a Sufi who said: 'I slept as a mineral, dreamt as a plant, walked as an animal and as MAN, I shall attain Divinity! 'Science has spectacularly demonstrated that it is possible to chloroform Platinum and paralyse the heart of Mimosa; but, what are all these discoveries worth if they cannot help to experience the Great not help to experience the Reality: That All Life is One?

Among Animals: A talk in Telugu by G. Ramachandra

Rao
Nature is never still. In the quietness of night one can catch the warbling of midnight birds and the padded footfall of a beast of prey. And, in the forest, Man becomes an insignificant interloper into the domain of the four-footed denizens of the wild. It is true that instinct plays a great part in the ordering of things in this kingdom but an instinct that can keep a hundred different species at ultimate peace with each other—living their own life, is it not better than an intellect that makes men fly at each other's throats?

The Way Out
It is futile to talk in terms of salaries. A fifty-rupee breadwinner with only a wife to maintain is bound to be better off than his colleague earning double this sum, but on whom the calls of his kith and kin are so numerous that he finds it impossible to make both ends meet. Individual cases need individual treatment, and it is through efficent household account-keeping and budget-making that a housewife can manage to keep the things going with something in hand for the rainy day.

Mrs Indra Sen will today tell you what she thinks is 'the way out' by given ing you concrete examples of various incomes and their possible expenditures.

> Sir Rajendranath—His Life and Work: A feature based on his life. Written and produced life. by Bimal Bose; Assisted by A I R Artists; Music by Maitrayi Basar

Mattrayi Basar

The late Sir Rajendranath, the great business magnate of Calcutta, was born of a poor but cultured orthodox family. Born in a village situated in the heart of Bengal, he had his early education in the village Pathsala. Appointed as a clerk, he rose to be a senior partner of his own firm, and opened the eyes of clerk-sick Bengali to the great possibilities that awaited them in the field of business. His life is gentle and elements so mixed in him that nature may stand up and say to all the world, This is a Man.

A Feature Programme by Prof. Gourinath Bhattacharya M.A., P.R.S., Radio-form and production by Banikumar

Music by S. K. Duttagupta Incidental Music by the Jantri Sangha, conducted by S. L.

This is a dramatic biography of Mirabai, belonging to the sixteenth cenbai, belonging to the sixteenth century. Mirabai was the Queen of Mewar, a composer of sweet religious lyrics and hers was a life dedicated to the Supreme Lord. But she had to experience a series of trials, as the programme will show. Six stages of devotional exercises of her life represent the six lotuses or Shatkamal the six principal songs of eternal desire of her life. Each song unfolds the story of this notable lady of medieval India. This account of her life is based on authentic incidents. dents.

Folk Art of India: A talk in Bengali by Ajit Mukerjee, B.A.

Folk art is not the accidental discovery of an individual, it is the product of the people, or rather of the whole community. It is an art confounded with superstitions, ratio-magical beliefs linked by folkloristic fantasies of the masses.

caricatures, one cannot get away from the fact that each race, each nation has a very definite set of traits peculiarly their own. Environment, climatic conditions and traditions have much to do with it. As music plays a great part in the life of every nation, be it in the home or in the community life, in church, ball room or concert hall, it isn't surprising to find how accurately a nation's true temperament is reflected by its music, especially its folk music and its popular music.

Chettiar Chettiar 'Cross the seas if only to earn' is an ancient Tamil proverb. The Tamil engaged in trade and industry is settled in the most unexpected places. A chettiar has built a Temple in China and fills its interior with the music of Nagaswaram. It is interesting to discuss the problems, the outlook and the future of the businessman who has left the Tamil land to settle down in a foreign country.

10.10 Gustav Holst

Played by the London Symphony Orchestra
In all of Gustav Holst's music there is a mystical tendency and in this suite he treats the magical attributes of the planets. There are seven movements one for each planet but we are presenting only 'Mars' (bringer of war) and 'Saturn' (bringer of old age) Mars suggests not the glory and glamour or war of the past, but rather the grim and terrible war of today. Relentless, growling orchestration, menacing harmony, point a forceful picture of modern warfare. Saturn shows the relentless advance of time. The ticking of a mighty clock leads to a pathetic melody. The dignity and serenity of old age are depicted and suddenly bells add solemnity to the atmosphere. It has been suggested that the ending merges time into eternity.

Chinese agriculture is remarkable for its intensity. It supports the greatest number of people per unit of land in the world—live persons for every two acres as compared to one person in western Europe. The talker, tonight, will deal with agricultural regions, crops, manufactures and foreign trades.

Money: A talk by A. G. Vere Impecunious Mr Grouser regards money with loathing. It's only paper anyway! And if there's a rash in a Wall Street my dollar bill won't be worth a pie. Now if I had a large cabbage—I hate cabbages—I might exchange it for an apple and I don't see why we in India should'nt exchange hides and nuts for machines and so on. International finance to Mr Grouser is just plain knavery.

Champa Krishna Kumari Today is the birthday anniversary of Maharana-Pratap, the immortal hero of Rajasthan. The heroic fight which Maharana Pratap gave to the great Moghal Emperor Akbar will ever be remembered in history. Success is not the criterion of a true hero. Intrinsic heroic qualities put to test in adverse circumstances, show up a man's character in true perspective. A hero never fails to appreciate the heroic qualities of his adversary. The scene of the meeting between Akbar and Rana Pratap bears testimony to the mutual appreciation of two great heroes.

The Parrot stands as a symbol for the Woman who is caged and made to talk the language of the tyrant husband, and the Man who prattles like a parrot, and the blindness of human existence itself which is like a shadowy parrot held behind the dark and inescapable bars of Destiny.

TOWN RAT AND COUNTRY RAT

A dialogue with a moral is like a mosquito; it bites, and there is a sting left which irritates. The 'country cousin' in the city has been the butt of would-be humourists. He has his turn when the city-dweller turns out to visit and patronize benighted 'mofus-sil.'

Isai Vanar Sundaramoorthy
Odhuvar of Tinnevelly
The lives of the sixty-three Tamil saints are full of incidents showing the intense devotion to Savaism and the absolute surrender of self they were prepared to make for the Deity of their choice. This is the story of Paranjoti, the Saint who called himself the 'Small servant;' though the sacrifice that he was prepared to make was of the very first magnitude.

AN AFFAIR OF THE SOUL, 2 5.0

Youth
A talk by G. S. Arundale
A man may be spiritually bald at twenty-five or a romping blade at eighty. Generally while it is pleasant to see the sun on the morning hills, it is none the less so to walk home when the cool of the evening has come. If the body is not maltreated, the natural decline of physical powers ought to leave the healthy spirit untouched with age, should indeed leave it strengthened and glowing with steadier fire. Years wrinkle the skin, but to give up enthusiasm wrinkles the soul.

KHALSA COLLEGE

BOMBAY TECHNICAL INSTITUE

King's Circle, Matunga, Bombay 19.

OR those students who are not attracted by higher studies this Institute conducts Courses in Radio and Electrical Engineering and Wireless Telegraphy. Special attention is paid to provide ample practical training in the laboratory and workshop for each course. For this purpose the Laboratories have been extensively equipped to give ample opportunities to students for practical training. The main object is to turn out students who are well up in practical work at the end of their training and who can efficiently repair and handle radio sets, electrical machines, etc.

The Institute admits students from all parts of India and works in harmony with the Radio and Electrical Engineering trade in this country. In order to avoid congestion in any one province the system of admission is based on the provincial basis whereby a limited number of students are admitted from each particular Province. The candidates who are anxious to join the coming Term are advised to write immediately and register their names to avoid disappointment.

Facilities of the College Gymkhana, Library, etc., are available for the students.

The courses begin in the month of June 1939. And the applications from students should reach the Institute not later than 30th May 1939 on which date the admissions may be closed.

The Institute is recognised by the Committee of Direction, Government of Bombay, etc.

PREMANAND JAYANTI

A talk in Gujarati by Ambalal Jani

Jani
The works of Premanand were very popular, and kept alive the traditions and maintained the atmosphere of the Puranas in the Province. He composed with incredible facility. As many as fifty-seven works are attributed to him several of them being of considerable length. His command over the resources of the language was unequalled and so was his knowledge of contemporary life. He was a profound observer; no detail escaped him. He excelled in making an old plot throb with life. Mr Ambalal Jani, a great scholar of old literature and a life-time servant of the Forbes Literary Society has made a special study of the works of Premanand and Shamal. We expect him to throw new light on one of the Akhyans of Premanand.

NATURALISTS † RUSSIA

In the late nineteenth century when all composed music followed the forms established and developed mainly by Germany and Italy, five Russians decided to develop a new music which should express an emotion or idea in the most effective and 'truthful' way. Balakirev, Cui, Borodin, Rimsky-Korsakov, and greatest of all, Moussorgsky, all musical amateurs, began composing and working together for a new Russian music which should express what Russians felt and be unfettered by forms and rules laid down by composers of foreign countries. The following programmes of vocal, piano, and orchestral music represents what they accomplished and shows the strong Oriental influence.

Inheritance of Mental Characters: A talk by Balkrishna Dass Modern Evolution theory has not advanced in idea very far beyond Darwinism but there has been a great extension of knowledge as to heredity in particular. The central fact in heredity is the continuance of specific characteristics from parents to offspring, but heredity also includes the possibility of variation. Thus an extraordinarily strong character of a man, in many individual cases, cannot be assumed as a necessary appendage of the circumstances relating to his birth, How far, therefore, such individually acquired characters can be handed on to succeeding generations and what problems of social importance arise out of this possibility?

THE ENCHANTED ACRE

A talk in Tamil by Rao Saheb C. Rajagopal Pillai

Kamavardhani

In a country of small holdings, an acre is by no means an inconsiderable area for one owner to manage. While it may not be very remunerative to cultivate it on a commercial scale, it would perhaps afford the ideal scope for the building up of a garden. The spell that such an acre can cast will be described.

Artists Artists
The officials of a secluded Panchayattown are startled out of their idyllic repose by the news that they are to be put through their paces by an Inspector travelling incognito. A Madras windbag whom chance brings there just then is taken for this Inspector. He adapts himself admirably to the part, lives merrily at the cost of the officials, and makes off in the nick of time. At a fresh meeting of the 'ruling powers' of the little town this mistake is cleared up to the great chagrin of those who have been befooled and the announcement of the real 'Inspector' having just arrived breaks over them like a fresh catastrophe.

Any Son to Any Father: A talk in Telugu by K. Rama

Gopala Rao
Dear 'Papa' is in for it. The wife —product of the new age—has decided to give him a bit of her mind. So also his first-born seventeen-year-old Sukumar. And he had imagined them to be so docile! But after all what they say is true. 'Papa' will have his say too, and as we hope, he will not be unreasonable either shall we listen?
You mustu't think that seventeen-year

You mustn't think that seventeen-year old Sukumar is rebellious. No, he is only discovering himself. He respects 'Papa' immensely. That does not mean that he is afraid of him. He admires Papa very much but that does not mean that he wants to be another lawyer or another teacher as papa is. What Sukumar wants to be is just himself. In all things, he wants to be left to himself. May be his youthful enthusiasm Sukumar expects too much, but was moderation ever a sign of youth?

Those to whom the light of knowledge was never held out in their childhood, and those literate children who forget what they learnt as soon as they quit school, present a formidable obstacle to any near approach to universal literacy. Education specially designed for adults, has been tried and will be here described.

The Talkies: A talk in Tamil by G. K. Seshagiri

The Talkie is universal in its appeal and its power for good or evil is unique. The tremendous success it has met with, in spite of indifferent qualities, shows that there is a genuine demand for this form of entertainment. It is not impossible that we could produce at least one good picture that can rank with the best of the world's productions. It behoves our producers to think out the ways and means of such

A talk by S. V. Venkataswara
The Parthasarathy Temple, Triplicane and the Kapali Temple at Mylapore are two of the oldest temples of South India. Tirugnana Sambandar himself is associated with the Mylapore temple and tradition has it that some of the Alwars sang their immortal hymns in the shadows of the Gopuram in the temple at Triplicane. Pilgrims still flock to these centre of worship from all parts of India for a dharasan of the deity reigning therein.

THE BELL MAKER

This little play by Patricia O'Mala goes back to the tale of a master craftsman of old Germany, who was given the task of casting the finest bell man ever made. You will hear what happened when the bell-maker's as-sistant poured the molten metal in the mould before it was ready for casting.

A CALL TO BUSINESS EN-TERPRISE, 3

talk in Gujarati by C. N.

Vakil

For the successful organization of large scale industries, regulation and control of banking as well as regulation and control of the import of foreign capital by the state in national interests is desirable. The regulation must aim at encouraging the increase of banking facilities on the one hand, and safeguarding the interests of the public on the other. Though we are a poor country, it is possible that by proper organization we can solve the problem of finding the necessary capital for our industrial development.

THE WAY OTHERS DO IT, 5 Labour: A talk by N. M. Joshi The conditions of work in urban industrial areas and in rural agricultural ones must be different in India from those elsewhere. But the conditions of life in agricultural areas of the western countries in earlier times were not very different from conditions prevailing in India today, and there is no doubt that we can learn a great deal from an account of how the farmers in the western countries work and live. Similarly, India is rapidly becoming industrialized and we should know how industrial labour works and lives in countries like the United States of America, England and Germany, which are among the most industrialized countries of the world. SANGA TAMIL

A talk in Tamil by T. Aiyanperumal Konar
The great days of Tamil literature are counted over with the passing of the poets who formed the original Tamil Sangam. Subsequently deteriorated into a college of reactionaries, the Sangam has in historical and recent times acquired a new life; and Sanga Tamil is synonymous with the language in all its original beauty and purity.

To Rebuild a New Things
Is it possible? Can the crumbling edifices in our social order and in the life of the people be rebuilt to suit modern requirements? And what will be the outline of the structures to be? Will they strive to eliminate the conditions that led to the decay of their predecessors? In any case it is not too early to begin the work of reconstruction.

A healthy nation: A talk in Telugu by Palakodeti Venkata Krishna Rao

It is said that the greatest Dharma (Duty) in the present age of Kaliyuga is to take care of the body. Yet, it appears as if in our blind pursuit of intellect and in the excitement of a non-stop revue of town-life we have forgotten that a healthy body houses a healthy mind. The average resistance to disease has become very low and physical fitness is certainly not one of our national characters at present. So therefore, here is a strong plea that a healthy nation must forthwith be created.

Sons and Daughters, 2: A talk in Marathi by A. A. Kanekar In previous talks, marriage as a human relationship and biganiy and divorce, as they affect this relationship, were discussed. Tonight the speaker will talk on the economic and legal side of marriage; he will also discuss the property rights of women and the proposed legislation on the subject, and the justilication, if any, of the dowry system.

WATER OR WINE WATER OR WINE
A Gujarati play written by Dhansukhlal K. Mehta
Featuring: Madhuker Randeria, Vrajlal Parekh and Keshava Dhorada.
People do like wine at times more than water. But there are occasions in one's life when that much coveted drink does not arouse any attention.
It is a terrible state when one has to choose between the two, especially when you know that one of the glasses contains poison.

Saptagram was the busiest and the most Saptagram was the busiest and the most glorious port situated in West Bengal, not only of Bengal but of India. It was the seat of culture, commerce and prosperity dating from the prehistoric ages to the eve of British Rule in India. It has a chequered history, and in this radio reconstruction, dealing not merely with its prosperous days but with its decline and fall, the true story of this forgotten and last cultural city of Bengal of sound and music interlocked with dramatic episodes. Shanta Indu Desai
What is the basis of lappy married life? Is it mutual help? Or the policy of live and let live? Or shall we say give and take? After all nothing is perfect in this world and one must take a sympathetic view of the shortcomings of one's partner in life. But what about that unavoidable factor, love? Is a successful married life possible when one is married to one person and is or was in love with another?
Yes—perhaps!

MARRIAGE—STORM
CENTRE OR REFUGE ? A discussion in Bengali between

Probodh Sanyal and Ananda Sundar Tagore

Sundar Tagore

The marriage bond, not very long ago, was considered to be the most sacred bond. Something to be enjoyed or endured as the case might be, but not to be talked about, anyway. Ideas have changed with time and there exist a few people unstable, frivolous and instinctive as they are, who proclaim that variety is the spice of hite, condemn 'marriage' and cry for divorce.

So, is it worth while to get married in these days of changed notions and ideas?

Ramachandran In classical literature, the rags are conceived as having a spiritual personality and yet being as earthly as any mortal. Each rag is either a male or a female and has a decent progeny. The rags depend on the proper treatment of musicians for their well being but they cannot always be sure of what they will get at the hands of the ministrels. But their plight on earth would seem to be nothing if it is compared with the rough handling meted out to them by the Gods. This feature is a rendering of the Puranic story depicting the unenviable fortunes of the rags in Heaven.

THE PRISONER OF ZENDA

Final Episode: 'If Love Were

NEWS,

Nellie Armstrong, brilliant soprano, who was pronounced ready for the operatic stage after only one year's training in Paris, took the name 'Melba' (from the city of Melbourne, Australia, where she was born) and met with success all over the world until she retired at the age of 65.

The great Caruso who sometimes appeared with Melba had magnificent power, sweetness of tone quality, and such perfect breath control that he could sing the longest phrases apparently with no effort. Considered one of the greatest voices that ever lived, he received a tremendous ovation at every appearance he made. Lillian Norton. American soprano, found that the Italian name 'Nordica' attracted more attention. She was one of the foremost artists of her time and used her beautiful voice with consumnate ease and skill.

Theodore Chaliapine, who died quite recently, was the son of a peasant. At the age of 17, with no training or education, he began touring with a provincial opera company and soon had leading roles. After appearing in Moscow he was appreciated and soon appeared in Italy, England and America. Not only the greatest basso but one of the most forceful and dramatic singers of the age, he was directly responsible for the popularity of Russian opera and songs in Europe and America.

KABI-O-SWAPNA

playlet by Panchu Gopal Sreemani, direction by Suren-dra Nath Sen, music by Kalidas Ganguli and Nitai 9.30 Ghatak

Musical interludes by:

Santosh Chandra, Manick Das, Kamal Ghose, Susil Sarkar, Monoranjan Sen and Ranjit Guha Thakurta

Presented by:

Maya Devi, Leela Devi, Anima Mukherjee, Bela Mukherjee, Kalpana Hazra, Katnamala Sen, Chameli Das Gupta, Sunila Das Gupta, Sadhana Basu, Geeta Mittra, Malina Bose and Ila Ghose.

A young poet whose imagination does not find expression in the bustle to the town runs away. He reachers, the vast waters inspire him, he dreams and the dream is told in folk-lore. That tale is retold here in songs and dialogue.

A WEDDING IN HISSAR

A talk by Comola Chowdhury

Some of the marriage ceremonies may appear to us fantastic, but they all have the same effect—marriage is the beginning of family life.

Mrs Chowdhury, in her talk, tonight, describes the form adopted by one of the martial races of India—the Jats.

SAGAS IN STONE, 3
The story of South Indian sculpture is a heroic poem in itself. Temples and monolithic chariots, rock-cuts and frescoes, thousands of years old, have bravely survived Time's merciless scythe and weathered the cruel on-slaught of the Invader, to whom, drunk with victory, no art was too sacred to be defiled. But, South Indian sculpture is not all religious in character. On the leeward side of huge rocks at Mahabalipuram, in the 7.15

twilight gloom of cave temples at Ajanta and in the frescoes of Sittanavasal are preserved for us intimate pictures of the life of an ancient people immortalized in galleries of art wherein a Leonardo and a Michael Angelo would tread with awe wondering at the colours of the paintings and the magnitude of the statues!

The Temple on the Sands:

A talk in Telugu by M. S. Sarma

Sarma
Thirty miles from Madras on the fringe of the blue of Bay are the seven Pagodas—huge monolithic chariots, reputed to be the very once used by the Pandava princes and perhaps their queen, and errant Karna—Kunti's first-born. Legend has it that these are but a fragment of a great fairy city built by Mahabali, who by a careless act, brought on himself the wrath of the gods and the Sea-god was asked to claim unto himself most of the great city. Washed by the blue waves to the slender music of swaying casuarina there still stands a noble temple a lone outpost guarding the relics of an ancient glory.

It is incredible what an influence on present day legislation, the oldest known systems of law have exerted. From the purely spoken and remembered Srutis, to the complicated codes of the most modern times, the thread of continuity is apparent, in addition to the evolutionary processes that have shaped the laws of the present.

HOW I FEEL TO BE, 4

A DOCTOR

A talk in Bengali by 'One' One stands outside the institution, the asylum, the prison, the theatre or the hospital, and one cannot really help wondering at things. Anyway, there are newspaper articles, and there are statistics and reports, any amount of information can be had about these, but what about the young author who does not find any place for his books in the market, or how does the young (or old) doctor feel when he walks out of his clinic after a successful operation? Listen in today and satisfy your curiosity.
