

MUSICAL EXPRESS

FOOTLOOSE IN THE USA:
ROD STEWART ON ROAD, NEW RAMONES LP

WILKO JOHNSON

Nutter gets bottle back. Page 7

PHOTOGRAPH BY [illegible]

© 1977 [illegible]

BE WARNED

RIKKI
AND THE LAST DAYS OF EARTH ARE HERE ON

INTERGALACTIC TOURING BAND

Marketed by Charisma Records

FRANKIE MILLER....
THATS WHO!

A NEW 4 TRACK E.P.

JEALOUS GUY
FOOL IN LOVE
BRICKYARD BLUES
SAIL AWAY

CHS 2184

ONLY 75p

FIVE YEARS AGO

Week ending November 14, 1972

This Last Week
1	1	CLAIRE..... Gilbert O'Sullivan (MAM)
2	2	MY DING-A-LING..... Chuck Berry (Chess)
3	3	MOULDY OLD DOUGH..... Lieutenant Pigeon (Decca)
4	4	LEADER OF THE PACK..... Shammi-Las (Kama Sutra)
5	5	WHY..... Donny Osmond (MGM)
6	6	DONNA..... 10cc (UK)
7	7	CRAZY HORSES..... Osmonds (MGM)
8	8	GOODBYE TO LOVE..... Carpenters (A & M)
9	9	HELLELUJAH FREEDOM..... Junior Campbell (Derran)

TEN YEARS AGO

Week ending November 15, 1967

This Last Week
1	1	BABY NOW THAT I'VE FOUND YOU..... Foundations (Fye)
2	2	ZABADAK!..... Dave Dee, Dozy, Beaky, Mick and Tich (Fontana)
3	3	MASSACHUSETTS..... Bee Gees (Polydor)
4	4	THE LAST WALTZ..... Engelbert Humperdinck (Decca)
5	5	LOVE IS ALL AROUND..... Troggs (Page One)
6	6	AUTUMN ALMANAC..... Kinks (Fye)
7	7	LET THE HEARTACHES BEGIN..... Long John Baldry (Fye)
8	8	THERE IS A MOUNTAIN..... Donovan (Fye)
9	9	THERE MUST BE A WAY..... Frankie Vaughan (Columbia)
10	10	EVERYBODY KNOWS..... Dave Clark Five (Columbia)

15 YEARS AGO

Week ending November 16, 1962

This Last Week
1	1	LOVESICK BLUES..... Frank Ifield (Columbia)
2	2	LET'S DANCE..... Chris Moxley (London)
3	3	TELSTAR..... Tornados (Decca)
4	4	SWISS MAID..... Del Shannon (London)
5	5	VENUS IN BLUE JEANS..... Mark Wynter (Fye)
6	6	BOBBY'S GIRL..... Susan Maughan (Philips)
7	7	SHERRY..... Four Seasons (Stateside)
8	8	THE LOCOMOTION..... Little Eva (London)
9	9	DEVIL WOMAN..... Marty Robbins (CBS)
10	10	RAMBLIN' ROSE..... Nat Cole (Capitol)

CHARTS

SINGLES

— Week ending November 19, 1977

This Last Week			Weeks in chart	Highest position
1	(1)	NAME OF THE GAME..... Abba (CBS)	5	1
2	(2)	YOU'RE IN MY HEART..... Rod Stewart (Riva)	6	1
2	(4)	ROCKIN' ALL OVER THE WORLD..... Status Quo (Vertigo)	6	2
4	(5)	2 4 6 8 MOTORWAY..... Tom Robinson Band (EMI)	5	4
5	(5)	WE ARE THE CHAMPIONS..... Queen (EMI)	4	5
6	(3)	YES SIR I CAN BOOGIE..... Baccara (RCA)	8	1
7	(14)	HOW DEEP IS YOUR LOVE..... Bee Gees (RSO)	3	7
8	(15)	DANCIN' PARTY..... Showaddywaddy (Arista)	2	8
9	(10)	NEEDLES & PINS..... Smokie (Rak)	5	9
10	(8)	CALLING OCCUPANTS OF INTERPLANETARY CRAFT..... Carpenters (A & M)	6	8
11	(7)	BLACK IS BLACK..... La Belle Epoque (Harvest)	10	2
12	(15)	LIVE-IN TROUBLE..... Barron Knights (Epic)	3	12
13	(12)	VIRGINIA PLAIN..... Roxy Music (Polydor)	4	12
14	(—)	DADDY COOL..... Darts (Magnet)	1	14
15	(11)	BLACK BETTY..... Ram Jam (Epic)	10	9
16	(23)	EGYPTIAN REGGAE..... Jonathan Richman (Beserkly)	3	16
17	(9)	HOLIDAYS IN THE SUN..... Sex Pistols (Virgin)	5	6
18	(26)	BELFAST..... Boney M (Atlantic)	2	18
19	(20)	SHE'S NOT THERE..... Santana (CBS)	3	18
20	(29)	I WILL..... Ruby Winters (Creole)	2	20
21	(18)	TURN TO STONE..... Electric Light Orchestra (Jet)	3	18
22	(—)	DON'T IT MAKE MY BROWN EYES BLUE..... Crystal Gayle (United Artists)	1	22
23	(21)	NO MORE HEROES..... Stranglers (United Artists)	8	6
23	(22)	WATCHIN' THE DETECTIVES..... Elvis Costello (Stiff)	2	22
25	(28)	GOIN' PLACES..... Jacksons (Epic)	2	25
26	(12)	SILVER LADY..... David Soul (Private Stock)	12	1
27	(—)	CAPTAIN KREMMEN..... Kenny Everett/Mike Vickers (DJM)	1	27
28	(—)	FLORAL DANCE..... Brighthouse & Rastrick Band (Logo)	1	28
29	(—)	DON'T LET ME BE MISUNDERSTOOD..... Santa Esmeralda (Philips)	1	29
30	(27)	LOVE HURTS..... Nazareth (Mountain)	5	16
BUBBLING UNDER
BABY, BABY, MY LOVE'S ALL FOR YOU — Deniece Williams (CBS); MULL OF KINTYRE — Wings (Parlophone); LOVE BUG — Tina Charles (CBS); LOVE OF MY LIFE — Dooleys (GTO).

U.S. SINGLES

Week ending November 19, 1977

This Last Week
1	(1)	YOU LIGHT UP MY LIFE..... Debby Boone
2	(3)	BOOGIE NIGHTS..... Heatwave
3	(5)	DON'T IT MAKE MY BROWN EYES BLUE..... Crystal Gayle
4	(2)	NOBODY DOES IT BETTER..... Carly Simon
5	(6)	STAR WARS THEME..... Meco
6	(14)	HOW DEEP IS YOUR LOVE..... Bee Gees
7	(8)	IT'S ECSTASY WHEN YOU LAY DOWN NEXT TO ME..... Barry White
8	(9)	HEAVEN ON THE SEVENTH FLOOR..... Paul Nicholas
9	(11)	BABY, WHAT A BIG SURPRISE..... Chicago
10	(10)	JUST REMEMBER I LOVE YOU..... Firefall
11	(12)	WE'RE ALL ALONE..... Rita Coolidge
12	(13)	BLUE BAYOU..... Linda Ronstadt
13	(4)	I FEEL LOVE..... Donna Summer
14	(15)	HELP IS ON THE WAY..... Little River Band
15	(20)	ISN'T IT TIME..... The Babys
16	(17)	WE JUST DISAGREE..... Dave Mason
17	(19)	SEND IN THE CLOWNS..... Julie Collins
18	(22)	IT'S SO EASY..... Linda Ronstadt
19	(24)	YOU MAKE LOVING FUN..... Fleetwood Mac
20	(23)	YOUR SMILING FACE..... James Taylor
21	(21)	DAYBREAK..... Barry Manilow
22	(25)	GOING TOO FAR..... England Dan & John Ford Coley
23	(7)	BRICK HOUSE..... Commodores
24	(29)	SWINGTOWN..... Steve Miller Band
25	(26)	MY FAIR SHARE..... Seals & Croft
26	(16)	THAT'S ROCK 'N' ROLL..... Shaun Cassidy
27	(—)	BABY COME BACK..... Player
28	(18)	KEEP IT COMIN' LOVE..... K. C. & The Sunshine Band
29	(—)	SENTIMENTAL LADY..... Bob Welsh
30	(—)	DUSIC..... Brick

Courtesy "CASH BOX"

ALBUMS

Week ending November 19, 1977

This Last Week			Weeks in chart	Highest position
1	(1)	SOUND OF BREAD..... Bread (WEA)	3	1
2	(4)	NEVER MIND THE BOLLOCKS..... Sex Pistols (Virgin)	3	2
3	(3)	20 GOLDEN GREATS..... Diana Ross & The Supremes (Tamla Motown)	11	1
4	(5)	NO MORE HEROES..... Stranglers (United Artists)	8	2
5	(21)	FEELINGS..... Various (K-Tel)	2	5
6	(2)	40 GOLDEN GREATS..... Cliff Richard (EMI)	6	2
7	(18)	NEWS OF THE WORLD..... Queen (EMI)	3	7
8	(7)	FOOTLOOSE & FANCY FREE..... Rod Stewart (Riva)	2	7
9	(16)	MOONFLOWER..... Santana (CBS)	2	9
10	(6)	RUMOURS..... Fleetwood Mac (Warner Bros)	39	3
11	(9)	SECONDS OUT..... Genesis (Charisma)	5	8
11	(16)	GREATEST HITS VOL 2..... Elton John (DJM)	5	11
13	(10)	HEROES..... David Bowie (RCA)	4	5
14	(19)	OUT OF THE BLUE..... Electric Light Orchestra (Jet)	3	14
15	(8)	THUNDER IN MY HEART..... Leo Sayer (Chrysalis)	6	8
15	(—)	ROCKIN' ALL OVER THE WORLD..... Status Quo (Vertigo)	1	15
17	(12)	OXYGENE..... Jean Michel Jarre (Polydor)	14	1
18	(13)	PASSAGE..... Carpenters (A&M)	7	6
19	(11)	GOING FOR THE ONE..... Yes (Atlantic)	18	1
20	(22)	ELVIS IN CONCERT..... Elvis Presley (RCA)	3	20
20	(28)	30 GREATEST HITS..... Gladys Knight & The Pips (K-Tel)	2	20
22	(20)	SOUL CITY..... Various (K-Tel)	4	20
23	(27)	ABBA'S GREATEST HITS..... Abba (Epic)	73	1
24	(15)	HOME ON THE RANGE..... Slim Whitman (United Artists)	7	4
25	(—)	ECHOES OF THE 60s..... Phil Spector (Phil Spector)	1	25
26	(—)	STREET SURVIVORS..... Lynyrd Skynyrd (MCA)	1	26
27	(—)	30 GOLDEN GREATS..... Black & White Minstrels (EMI)	1	27
28	(13)	A STAR IS BORN..... Soundtrack (CBS)	32	1
29	(—)	GET STONED..... Rolling Stones (Arcade)	1	29
30	(29)	MOODY BLUE..... Elvis Presley (RCA)	13	1
BUBBLING UNDER
STICK TO ME — Graham Parker & The Rumour (Vertigo); NEW BOOTS AND PANTIES — Ian Dury (Stiff); FRONT PAGE NEWS — Wishbone Ash (MCA); LET THERE BE ROCK — AC/DC (Atlantic).

U.S. ALBUMS

Week ending November 19, 1977

This Last Week
1	(1)	RUMOURS..... Fleetwood Mac
2	(2)	SIMPLE DREAMS..... Linda Ronstadt
3	(3)	CHICAGO XI..... Chicago
4	(5)	AJA..... Steely Dan
5	(4)	SHAUN CASSIDY..... Shaun Cassidy
6	(6)	FOREIGNER..... Foreigner
7	(9)	ELVIS IN CONCERT..... Elvis Presley
8	(7)	LOVE YOU LIVE..... The Rolling Stones
9	(10)	STAR WARS..... Original Soundtrack
10	(11)	BARRY WHITE SINGS FOR SOMEONE YOU LOVE..... Barry White
11	(15)	ELTON JOHN'S GREATEST HITS VOL II..... Elton John
12	(13)	ANYTIME... ANYWHERE..... Rita Coolidge
13	(14)	TOO HOT TO HANDLE..... Heatwave
14	(19)	POINT OF NO RETURN..... Kansas
15	(16)	IN FULL BLOOM..... Rose Royce
16	(18)	LET'S GET SMALL..... Steve Martin
17	(17)	FOGHAT LIVE..... Foghat
18	(25)	STREET SURVIVORS..... Lynyrd Skynyrd
19	(12)	I, ROBOT..... Alan Parsons Project
20	(20)	MOODY BLUE..... Elvis Presley
21	(21)	CAT SCRATCH FEVER..... Ted Nugent
22	(23)	BABY IT'S ME..... Diana Ross
23	(24)	BRICK..... Brick
24	(—)	FRENCH KISS..... Bob Welch
25	(—)	YOU LIGHT UP MY LIFE..... Debby Boone
26	(8)	LIVIN' ON THE FAULT LINE..... Doobie Brothers
27	(—)	MOONFLOWER..... Santana
28	(30)	CSN..... Crosby, Stills & Nash
29	(—)	THE STRANGER..... Billy Joel
30	(26)	STAR WARS AND OTHER GALACTIC FUNK..... Meco

Courtesy "CASH BOX"

NEWS

Edited: Derek
Johnson

DESK

DURY'S
DIRTY DOZEN

FRESH FROM his round Britain jaunt as part of the Stiffs Greatest Stiffs package, Ian Dury is set for his first-ever headlining tour next month. Together with his band The Blockheads, he plays 12 major venues, culminating in a London concert a week before Christmas. And the tour goes out under the banner of "Dury's Dirty Dozen".

Confirmed gigs are Cromer West Runton Pavilion (December 2), Croydon Greyhound (4), Sheffield Top Rank (6), Edinburgh University (8), Manchester Ratters Club (9), Loughborough University (10), Liverpool Eric's (11), Leeds Polytechnic (12), Birmingham Barbarella's (13), Dunstable Queensway Hall (15), Bath Pavilion (16) and London Chalk Farm Roundhouse (18).

Dury's new single "Sweet Gene Vincent" will be released by Stiff to coincide, probably on the opening day of the tour.

Lurkers to top punk package

A PUNK PACKAGE tour, comprising several of the acts featured on the Beggars Banquet compilation album "Streets", goes on the road next week. The Lurkers headline all gigs, with varying support acts. The tour will continue until well into the New Year, and the first seven confirmed dates are at Dewsbury Pickwicks (November 21), Keighley Nikkers Club (22), London Stoke Newington Rochester Castle (December 3), Luton Royal Hotel (7), Brighton New Regent (9), Blackburn Lodestar (14) and High Wycombe Nags Head (16). Doll and Art Attax support The Lurkers at Dewsbury, Keighley, Brighton and High Wycombe; Doll alone at Stoke Newington; and Doll and John Cooper Clarke at Blackburn. More dates will be announced shortly.

RATS SWITCH

BOOMTOWN RATS have switched three of the dates in their British concert tour schedule, reported two weeks ago. They now play Leeds University on December 11 (instead of 14), Hanley Victoria Hall (12 instead of 11) and Birmingham Top Rank (14 instead of 12). And they have cancelled their previously-announced gig at Swindon Oasis Centre on December 8. All other dates remain as originally listed by NME, including London Rainbow on December 17, and Yachts are the support act at all venues.

IAN DURY

Clash London dates threatened by 'riot'

PLANS FOR The Clash to headline two major London concerts in mid-December are now in jeopardy, following near-hysterical Press reports of alleged damage caused by the audience at Bournemouth Winter Gardens, when the band played there last Wednesday (9).

The London gigs were scheduled for a major theatre on December 13 and 14, and details were due to be announced this week. But a Clash spokesman said the dates "are once again up in the air", as the venue is considering the implications of the Bournemouth reports.

According to the London Evening News, "punk fans went berserk leaving a trail of havoc behind them". It added that they caused hundreds of pounds worth of damage by ripping up seats, that several fights broke out in front of the stage, and that police ejected several fans. Significantly, though, no arrests were made!

Venue manager Ray Larcombe commented: "We haven't had trouble like this at the Winter Gardens for years, and we are still counting the cost of the damage." For good measure, he threw in the opinion that "the mentality, dress and behaviour of these herbivores leave a lot to be desired."

The Press report also made great play of the fact that many of the audience wore "bizarre" clothing, including black dustbin liners worn by some girls. It isn't clear if the dress factor is also causing concern to The Clash's potential London venue!

Elly Smith, chief Press officer at CBS Records, was at the Bournemouth gig and she told NME: "All I can say is that this story is highly exaggerated. The audience was extremely mild, and most of them were long-haired kids in denims. One youngster up front started ripping out a few seats, but he was quickly ejected by security guards. I saw no police and very little damage. Perhaps I was at the wrong gig, or perhaps Bournemouth has never seen a punk band before. I tend to believe the latter."

drummer, Terry Chimes who used to play with The Clash, at the Vortex gigs. He is the permanent replacement for Jerry Nolan, who left the outfit after a dispute at the beginning of October.

Thunders said this week that the Heartbreakers have now left Track Records. He claimed this presented no problem, as they had no contract with the label, though Track themselves declined to comment on the matter. Negotiations are now nearing completion for the band to sign a worldwide deal with CBS, Thunders told NME — and he added that, if the deal is clinched, the band may decide to leave Britain in order to base themselves in New York.

Pistols movie is ON again

MARCH TOUR PLANNED

THE SEX PISTOLS' full-length feature film is back on again, and is scheduled to go into production in a fortnight's time. The movie will keep the band fully occupied through December and January, and it's understood that plans are being laid for the Pistols to headline a concert tour in March.

The film was called off two weeks ago, when one of the financial backers withdrew and U.S. director Russ Meyer returned home. In any case, costs had escalated, and it was developing into a big-budget picture — which was not what the Pistols' manager Malcolm McLaren had originally envisaged.

Now Meyer has been replaced by a new director, another backer has been found instead of 20th Century Fox, and large parts of the script have hastily been re-written. As a result, shooting is now set to start at the beginning of December. Marianne Faithfull remains as leading lady, though it's not yet clear if the original title of "Who Killed Bambi?" will be retained.

Dates are now being pencilled in for the Pistols' concert tour in March, and several major venues have already agreed to book them. McLaren and the Cowbell Agency, who are lining up the tour, are citing the example of the recent Stranglers' tour which went off with only the barest minimum of trouble.

Commented a Pistols spokesman: "We're still having problems with some venues and councils, and the situation isn't helped by incidents like the one at The Clash's gig in Bournemouth (see story below). But some theatre managers are coming round to our way of thinking, and we expect to find enough of these to enable us to put a tour together."

Meanwhile, three record store managers have now been summoned — under the Indecent Advertisements Act — for displaying the Pistols' current album cover in their shop windows.

Ramones, Heads due

THE RAMONES and the Talking Heads are both returning to Britain in the near future, though this time they will tour separately. They were last over here earlier this year, when they appeared on the same bill at venues throughout the country, and the tour was so successful that plans were laid immediately to bring them back this autumn.

Then a couple of months ago, it was announced that The Ramones' tour was off, because of various problems they were facing involving their management, promoter and recording company. But NME understands that all difficulties have now been resolved, and they will be in Britain next month after all. Their itinerary is expected to be announced shortly, and it's likely to include some special Christmas gigs in London.

An extensive Talking Heads tour is in the process of being lined up for January and February — and here again, full details are due in a week or two.

BUZZCOCKS
NEWCOMER

THE BUZZCOCKS have now acquired a new bass player as replacement for Garth, whom they sacked last month. He is 19-year-old Mancunian Steve Garvey, and he comes into the line-up halfway through the band's British tour, which aids promotion of their new single "Orgasm Addict". So far in their itinerary, they have been using temporary bassists.

Thunders to quit U.K.?

JOHNNY THUNDERS and the Heartbreakers make two special London appearances next Monday and Tuesday (21 and 22) at the Vortex Club in Wardour Street. Support acts on the first night are The Depressions and Mean Street, and in the second show Penetration and Johnny Curious and the Strangers. Tickets cost £1.50 each, and are available on the doors. Describing the atmosphere at the band's recent Rainbow gig as "oppressive", Thunders said he hoped the Vortex dates would help remove some of the bad feeling caused by "over-zealous bouncers at the Rainbow".

The band are taking the opportunity of breaking in their new

Tubes
banned

THE TUBES' sell-out concert, scheduled for Portsmouth Guildhall last Sunday, was cancelled by order of the local council at short notice. It seems the council sent a delegation to see the band's show in Birmingham last Thursday, and held a special meeting the following morning to consider its report. This resulted in a decision to ban the show, as it "was not considered suitable for Portsmouth".

It's understood the council objected, in particular, to two aspects of The Tubes' act — the use of four-letter words and their infamous bondage sequence. An offer was made immediately to cut both offending items from the Portsmouth show, but the offer was rejected.

No other Tubes concerts have been banned. "In fact," said a spokesman, "no objections have been raised elsewhere and other councillors appear to have enjoyed the show enormously."

The Tubes have now arranged another Hammersmith gig for Tuesday, December 6, and Portsmouth ticket-holders will be given priority booking facilities for this gig. They should contact the Guildhall for further information or, if they so wish, for cash refunds.

Wonder tour in New Year

AFTER TWO YEARS of indecision and uncertainty, Stevie Wonder is at last in line for a British concert tour in the near future.

He is expected here relatively early in the New Year for a string of major dates, including at least two in London. When Wonder was in Britain at the beginning of this month for a brief four-day holiday visit, he took the opportunity of having discussions with Jeffrey Kruger, who will be promoting the tour — and Kruger flies to the States soon to clinch the details.

● Captain Beefheart was in London on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, after playing a date in Paris on Saturday with the Magic Band. He flew in for talks with promoter Fred Bannister, who is setting up a full scale tour by Beefheart for the New Year.

● Tanya Tucker is being lined up for a British tour in April.

MUSIC BY POST

Elvis Presley/Lost & Found	£1.99	Yes/Complete Vol 2	£4.50
Rod Stewart/Atlantic Crossing	£2.50	Elvis Presley/40 Greatest Hits	£1.95
Beatles/Rock 'n' Roll	£2.50	Rory Gallagher/15 Best Songs	£3.50
Beatles/Beatles	£2.50	P McCartney/Red Rose Speedway	£2.95
Beatles/Humour	£2.50	Songs of Paul Simon	£4.95
Beatles/Fantasy	£2.50	Queen/Day At The Races	£2.75
Flowerpot Mac/Rumours	£4.25	Queen/19 Songs	£2.25
Nell Diamond/Love At The Greek	£5.50	Queen/Sheer Heart Attack	£1.50
Garnica Song Book	£2.95	Queen/A Night At The Opera	£2.95
Pink Floyd/Wish You Were Here	£2.95	Songs Of David Bowie	£3.50
Blue Nile/Emancipate Us	£4.95	Bowie/Blog in words & pics	£3.75
History of the Gibson Guitar from 1953	£2.95	Shadows/Best Of Shadows	£1.95
P McCartney/Band On The Run	£2.95	Lead Guitar/Ken Achard	£2.95
Jackson Browne/21 Songs	£5.50	Fender Tutor with Record	£3.50
Nilla LoPresti/Cry Tough	£2.95	Rhythm Guitar/Sell Tutor	£2.50
Shen Rock Almanac	£2.95	Rock Bass Tutor with record	£3.50
Free/12 Big Hits	£2.50	Lead Zeppelin Complete (1-5)	£4.95
Stones Black & Blue	£2.50	Plenty 28 Songs	£1.75
Bad Co. Straight Shooter	£2.95	Rock Guitar with Record	£1.50
Gipsy Kings/Desire	£2.95	Bass Guitar with Record	£1.50
Frank Zappa/Album	£2.95	Wishbone Ash/15 Songs	£1.50
Beach Boys/20 Golden Greats	£2.95	Neil Young Complete Vol 1	£8.95
Pink Floyd/Dark Side Of The Moon	£2.50	Neil Young Complete Vol 2	£8.95
Elvis Presley/NO! 57-63	£1.95	100 Golden Oldies	£4.95
Pink Floyd/Animals	£2.50	T-Rex	£1.50
It's Easy To Play Country & Western	£1.95	Elvis Complete	£2.95
It's Easy To Play Rock & Roll	£1.95
It's Easy To Play Folk	£1.95
Baritone Complete/Guitar Or Piano each	£2.95
Statens Quo 42 songs	£2.50
Eagles & Desperado	£4.95
Janis Ian/Aftertories	£2.95
Divis Presley/Memorial Album	£1.95

PASH MUSIC STORES, 5 Elgin Cres., London W.11

ON THE ROAD

RACING CARS MINI-TOUR

RACING CARS begin a pre-Christmas mini-tour at the end of this month. The first three gigs to be confirmed are at London City University (November 25), Northampton County Ground (26) and Oxford Polytechnic (December 2). Remaining dates will be announced next week.

RUSH JOB FOR LONE STAR

LONE STAR have been drafted in as special guest attraction on the four British concert dates next month by Canadian heavy-metal band Mahogany Rush — they are at Manchester Free Trade Hall (December 2), London Hammersmith Odeon (3), Birmingham Town Hall (7), and Newcastle City Hall (8).

RADIATOR HOT ON THE TRAIL

ALAN HULL'S Radiator have extended their autumn tour into December, in order to promote their newly-released Rocket album "Isn't It Strange". Latest batch of dates, including some as support to Horslips, are Leeds University (tonight, Thursday), Birmingham Hippodrome (Friday), Leicester University (Saturday), Redcar Coatham Bowl (Sunday), Keele University (November 23), Glasgow Apollo (24), Liverpool Empire (25), Manchester Palace (27), London Rainbow (29), Liverpool University (30), Portsmouth Polytechnic (December 1) and Colchester Essex University (3). Still more are being added through until the end of the year.

MOTORHEAD, at present playing a series of British dates, add gigs at London Camden Music Machine (December 1) and Scarborough Penthouse (23). . . and MUD have also been booked for an appearance at the Music Machine on December 15.

CHEAP FLIGHTS ROUND U.K.

JOHN GRIMALDI'S Cheap Flights have a series of gigs during the next few weeks. So far confirmed are Nottingham Trent Polytechnic (tomorrow, Friday), Edinburgh College of Art (November 24), Edinburgh Napier College (25), Huddersfield Polytechnic (December 2), London Camden Dingwalls (5), Keighley Nikkers (6), Leeds Polytechnic (7), Glamorgan University (8), Nottingham University (10), London Kingsway Sound Circus (11) and London Covent Garden Rock Circus (15).

DOCTORS' TOUR EXTENSION

THE DOCTORS (of Madness) have added another five dates to their British tour itinerary, reported last week, including a third London Gig at Kensington Nashville on December 13. The other extra shows are at Abertillery Metropole Theatre (December 2), Nottingham Katie's (4), Birmingham Rebecca's (15) and Newbridge Memorial Hall (January 2).

FIVE HAND REEL ADD FIVE

FIVE HAND REEL, currently on their longest-ever British tour, have been confirmed for another five dates — making a total of 32 gigs in their itinerary. Newly set are Glasgow Queen Margaret Union (November 24), Newcastle University (29), London Marquee (December 1), Leicester University (8) and Wolverhampton Polytechnic (10). A major London concert is planned for January, after which they go into studios to record a new album for spring release.

COUSIN JOE BIRTHDAY TOUR

COUSIN JOE From New Orleans headlines a five-week European tour to celebrate his 70th birthday. The veteran blues artist opens at Manchester Belle Vue tonight (Thursday) then after a visit to the Continent, he returns to play Weymouth College of Education (November 28), Lancaster Carlisle College (29), Manchester Polytechnic (30), Leeds University (December 1), Rotherham Arts Centre (2), Leicester Prohibition Club (5), Redditch Sticky Wicket (6), Bromsgrove College of Education (7), Portsmouth Polytechnic (8), London School of Economics doubling Guildford Surrey University (9), London Guy's Hospital (10), London Oxford St., 100 Club (12) and Southampton Mountbatten Theatre (14). More European gigs follow.

WAYNE COUNTY and the Electric Chairs have a string of dates during the coming week. They play London Chalk Farm Roundhouse with The Adverts (tonight, Thursday), London Central Polytechnic (Friday), High Wycombe Town Hall (November 21), Birmingham Barbarella's (22), Liverpool Eric's (23), Manchester Polytechnic (24) and Reading University (25).

WILKO JOHNSON has added another two dates to his current British tour with his own band — at Norwich East Anglia University (November 25) and Wellington Town House (29).

RECORD NEWS

Yes rush out 12-inch single

ATLANTIC are rushing releasing a new Yes single tomorrow (Friday) — it's an edited version of the title track from their hit album "Going For The One", coupled with another edited track from the same elpee "Awaken Part 1". The first 30,000 copies are issued in 12-inch form marketed in a full-colour bag, after which it reverts to conventional seven-inch.

Burlesque's new Arista single, out on November 25, is "Space Age Blues" — an edited version of a track from their "Burlesque" album, issued this week. Flip side is an un-edited version of "Steel Appeal".

Roy Harper's new Harvest album "Commercial Break", planned for release this month, has been delayed until early next year. Reason is that the set includes most of Harper's current stage act and, at a late stage, it was decided to record some of his recent concerts. And some live tracks are now replacing the original studio recordings.

Nutz have their live album "Nutz Live Cutz" rushed out by A & M this week. It was recorded as recently as October 28 and 29 at Nottingham Boat Club. Starting later this month, the band are special guests on 11 dates in the Status quo tour.

Bristol band The Pop Group had their gig on November 6 at London Roundhouse — where they supported The Stranglers — recorded for inclusion in their upcoming album. Live sequences will be interspersed with studio tracks.

Amid continuing reports of disharmony with the Beach Boys' ranks, Capitol release a seasonal single by the group on November 25. Titles are "Little Saint Nick" and "Santa Claus Is Comin' To Town", both taken from "The Beach Boys' Christmas Album".

The Newport Male Voice Choir (whose line-up includes John Entwistle's father) have recorded the Presley classic "Love Me Tender" in The Who's Battersea studios! Entwistle himself produced the track, which is released by Polydor on November 25. The label has also withdrawn the Jean Michel Jarre single "Oxygene Part 2", which had been scheduled for release the same day.

Neil Diamond's new MCA single, issued on November 25, is "And The Grass Won't Pay No Mind" from his album "And The Singer Sings His Song". Out on the same day and label is "Animal Games" by London.

Independent Croydon label Can't Eat Records have signed a licensing deal with EMI and their first single, "Little Girl" by The Banned is now available on the Harvest label. Their second single, "Doctors And Nurses" by The Prisoners Of Destiny, will be issued shortly via the same outlet.

Private Stock release a 78rpm 12-inch single on December 2 — it's a revival of Marty Wilde's 1958 hit "Endless Sleep" by Robert Gordon with Link Wray. The nostalgia approach is maintained by the brown-paper bag packaging, showing the price as 15/-.

Farewell LP by The Band

A THREE-ALBUM set of The Band's farewell concert, recorded at San Francisco Winterland earlier this year, is released by Warner Brothers on January 6. Featured guests include Bob Dylan, Joni Mitchell, Van Morrison, Neil Diamond, and Ron Wood. The movie of the concert is expected to have its British opening in February.

Joni Mitchell's new double album "Don Juan's Wreckless Daughter" is scheduled for worldwide release in mid-December. Recorded in New York, Los Angeles and London, it includes a 17-minute piano work.

Radio Stars shows on back of lorry!

RADIO STARS are making a free tour of London this Saturday (19) to promote their new Chiswick album "Songs For Swinging Lovers". They will be playing from the back of a lorry for 15 minutes at each of eight different parts of call. Their timetable is Ladbroke Grove (12 noon), Portobello Road (12.30 pm), Kensington High Street (1.00), Chelsea King's Road (1.30), Hyde Park Corner (2.00), Oxford Street (2.30), Soho Market (3.00) and Piccadilly (3.30). Posters, badges, stickers and records will be given away at each stop. A spokesman said that plans to include the London Symphony Orchestra had to be shelved, as there was no lorry large enough to accommodate them.

You pays your money and you takes your choice.

Standby? Budget? Apex?
It all depends when you want to go. So tell your Travel Agent, and he'll fix your ticket to New York (or other U.S. destinations with an Apex fare). And Pan Am's people will do the rest. PAN AM Pan Am's People. World's most experienced.

All fares subject to Government approval and change

STRAIGHT MUSIC PRESENTS

MAHOGANY RUSH

WITH GUESTS

LONE STAR

FREE TRADE HALL
DEPT ST MANCHESTER 2
FRIDAY 2ND DECEMBER AT 7.30
TICKETS £2.50 £2.00 £1.50 (INC. VAT) ADVANCE THEATRE BOX OFFICE TEL: 248 4081
CENTRAL RECORDS • MIDDLETON & ASTON UNDER LYTH. FREE TRADE HALL BOX OFFICE: 834 9941. ON ON NIGHT

HAMMERSMITH ODEON
QUEEN CAROLINE ST. W6
SATURDAY 3RD DECEMBER AT 7.30
TICKETS £2.50 £2.00 £1.50 (INC. VAT) ADVANCE THEATRE BOX OFFICE TEL: 248 4081
LONDON THEATRE BOOKINGS, SHAFTESBURY AVE. TEL: 439 3321. PREMIER BOX OFFICE TEL: 240 2245 USUAL AGENTS ON ON NIGHT

BIRMINGHAM TOWN HALL
BIRMINGHAM B3 1DD
WEDNESDAY 7TH DECEMBER AT 7.30
TICKETS £2.50 £2.00 £1.50 (INC. VAT) ADVANCE TOWN HALL BOX OFFICE, 10-11 AM & 6-6.30 PM MON-SAT
TEL: 021 236 192. ON ON NIGHT

CITY HALL NEWCASTLE
THURSDAY 8TH DECEMBER AT 7.30
TICKETS £2.50 £2.00 £1.50 (INC. VAT) ADVANCE CITY HALL BOX OFFICE 10-11 AM & 10 PM MON-SAT
TEL: 0191 275111. ON ON NIGHT

KURSAALS SPLIT UP

KURSAAL FLYERS are the latest band to announce that they've broken up. The Southend outfit, who took their name from the local Kursaal amusement park, played their final gig last week. They have now gone their separate ways because, says an official statement, "various members of the band felt that their particular musical energies could no longer be contained within the framework of the group".

The five-piece Flyers, fronted by vocalist Paul Shuttleworth, were formed early in 1974 after three of their members had previously been together in another Southend band. They built their reputation on the pub circuit in London and the South East, and more recently graduated to major concert venues. After cutting two albums for Jonathan King's U.K. label, they signed with CBS who still have some Kursaals material in the can. See also pages 11-13.

Kinky Kristmas

THE KINKS are planning a special one-off Christmas concert at London Rainbow on Friday, December 23. Details of the show are still being finalised by Barry Dickins of MAM, and booking details will be announced shortly. It ties in with the November 25 release by Arista of the band's new single "Father Christmas", and they will also be featuring material from their latest album due out in the New Year. The Kinks leave this week for a short U.S. tour, including some concerts with Hall and Oates.

Aretha opts out

ARETHA FRANKLIN failed to turn up for her three sell out concerts at the London Palladium on Monday and Tuesday of this week, leaving nearly 7,000 ticket holders disappointed and frustrated. Promoter Jeff Kruger of Ember claims he had a "clear and binding contract which Aretha decided not to honour, for no logical reason".

Ember were given no official advice of the cancellation, and were only able to announce that the gigs were off after they phoned her home at 5.30 pm (British time) on Sunday, to find that she was asleep and not to be disturbed!

WEA Records say there was a contractual hitch which had not been resolved, but Ember deny this and are instituting legal proceedings for breach of contract and damages. Meanwhile thousands of people are now having to apply for cash refunds, as the British public suffers yet another let down.

BONNIE TYLER FORMS BAND

BONNIE TYLER, who scored a smash hit earlier this year with her single "Lost In France", has formed her own band from top Welsh musicians — Kevin Dunne (bass), Mickey Gibbs (drums), Pete King (steel guitar), Taff Williams (lead guitar) and Roger Bara (keyboards). Just back from a 20 date European tour with the band, Bonnie is currently promoting her new RCA single "Nothing But A Heartache", and she is being lined up for her first major British dates at selected venues in December.

Damned extra

THE DAMNED have added two more dates to the tail end of their British tour, which opens this week. They are at Guildford Surrey University (December 12) and Bournemouth The Village (13), and America's Dead Boys are again the support act. Their Brighton gig on November 30 is switched from the Polytechnic to the Top Rank.

QUO ADD GIG AT BRIGHTON

STATUS QUO have added yet another date to their current British tour. It's at the new 5,000 capacity Brighton Conference Centre on Monday, December 12, and British Lions are the support act. Meanwhile, British Lions have cancelled two of the gigs in their own headlining tour schedule — at Liverpool University (tomorrow, Friday) and London Middlesex Polytechnic (November 25).

JOHN MARTYN AND WINWOOD

STEVE WINWOOD makes a rare stage appearance — his first since Stomu Yamashta's "Go" concert at the Royal Albert Hall last year — when he guests in John Martyn's gig at London Rainbow next Monday (21). Other musicians joining Martyn are Hansford Rowe, Danny Thompson and Pierre Moerlen. Martyn, whose new Island album "One World" is issued on December 2, continues his current tour until November 30.

RICHARD GIGS OFF TILL '78

LITTLE RICHARD has called off his British visit planned for this month, though he says he's determined to come next summer. Far from being in semi-retirement, as is the popular belief, he's busy giving an extensive series of gospel concerts in America's Deep South.

Xmas nix by ELP

EMERSON, LAKE AND PALMER have finally decided against playing a series of Christmas concerts at London Olympia. As revealed by NME in September, they were being lined up for four gigs there on December 23, 24, 26 and 27 — with the prospect of several provincial dates to follow — and promoter Harvey Goldsmith has been trying to clinch the project ever since.

Goldsmith told NME this week: "I've now been forced to scrap the shows, partly because ELP insisted on performing with a full symphony orchestra and — with that in view — They wouldn't have time to rehearse after finishing their American tour. What's more, the cost of staging such a show would be astronomical."

It now seems that ELP will delay British appearances until the summer, when they could play larger outdoor venues, and so recoup the enormous costs. Meanwhile, Goldsmith is now trying to fill his dates at London Hammersmith Odeon on December 22 and 23, which have fallen vacant following the cancellation of the Alex Harvey tour.

FIVE MILES

JOHN MILES headlines five selected concerts next month to preview material from his upcoming album — they are at Croydon Fairfield Hall (December 9), Leicester Polytechnic (10), Plymouth Castaways (11), Norwich St. Andrew's Hall (12) and Hatfield Forum Theatre (13). Support act is Trickster. Miles is currently recording the LP in New York with producer Rupert Holmes, and a major British tour is being lined up for the New Year to coincide with its release.

Soul back in March

DAVID SOUL returns to Britain in March for a series of major concert appearances, though dates and venues have not yet been finalised. His visit, part of a world tour, coincides with the British opening of his film "The Stick Up" (formerly called "Mud") which he shot on location in this country earlier in the year.

Meanwhile his next single, a Tony Macaulay composition titled "Let's Have A Quiet Night In", is scheduled for December 2 release by Private Stock — it will be marketed in special full colour bags. The advent of this single means that Soul is almost certain to win the 1977 NME Chart Points Championship, which he is already leading.

Motors: two Xmas parties

THE MOTORS — currently on a six week U.S. tour until December 20, to promote their debut album "The Motors 1" — return home to headline two shows at London Marquee on December 22 and 23. These will take the form of The Motors' Christmas Party, and are being recorded by London's Capital Radio for broadcast in January. The band's new single "Be What You Gotta Be" is released by Virgin on November 25. They record their new LP in January, play a short series of U.K. dates in February, and headline a major British tour in April to coincide with the album's release.

Wouldn't you like to rip her to shreds?

This young lady is Deborah Harry, lead singer in Blondie, one of America's premier new wave bands.

Their new single is out now, called 'Rip Her To Shreds'. Three tracks from the debut album 'Blondie': 'X Offender/In The Flesh/Rip Her To Shreds'. First 10,000 in 12" form and special picture sleeve.

The best of the New Wave is on Sire

TALKING HEADS

RICHARD HELL AND THE VOIDOIDS

DEAD BOYS

TALKING HEADS: 77

TALKING HEADS
"TALKING HEADS: 77"
Album 9103 328

The Sire Invasion is on its way

The Dead Boys on Tour

18 Nov	Cambridge, Corn Exchange	3 Dec	Hastings, Pier Pavillion
19 Nov	Hull University, Hull	5 Dec	Southampton, Top Rank
20 Nov	Manchester, Elizabethan	6 Dec	Cardiff, Top Rank
21 Nov	Birmingham, Top Rank	7 Dec	Liverpool University
22 Nov	Coventry, Locarno	8 Dec	Huddersfield Poly
23 Nov	Sheffield, Top Rank	9 Dec	Edinburgh, Cloud Ballroom
25-27 Nov	London, Roundhouse	10 Dec	Glasgow, Strathclyde
28 Nov	Leicester, De Montfort Hall	11 Dec	Newcastle City Hall
2 Dec	Derby, Kings Hall

Exclusive representation Ed Bicknell for NEMS Agency.

marketed by phonogram

If you're bored, try a nervous breakdown

Tongue sometimes in cheek, WILKO JOHNSON describes his early life and the Feelgoods split to ANGIE ERRIGO

Pix: PENNIE SMITH

"AM THE Destroyer. I'm also the Relentless King of Terrors. I went in for the job of Dictator of the Universe, but I didn't have the right A levels that you need." So Wilko Johnson became a guitarist instead.

Believed by many to be your genuine creative madman, Wilko is back in action perpetrating himself on the public after months of depression and inactivity following the lamentably unpleasant Feelgoods split last February. And the only thing he wants to think about and do is play again, although it's taken him a long time to bounce back.

"I didn't know how to go about getting a group together, 'cause I'd never done it before. I spent six months being isolated and not knowing what to do. I had a few unfortunate experiences with people who I thought were my friends and it made me a bit wary of the music scene as a whole, so it was just a matter of sitting around waiting for people to come along who just wanted to play in a rhythm and blues group.

"It has been really boring. I had the occasional nervous breakdown just to break the monotony."

In mid-confusion old mate John Potter, who had played keyboards in the embryonic Dr Feelgood, turned up. One of the accomplished musicians working away in obscurity in the Southend flatlands, he showed up full of ideas and enthusiasm that sparked Wilko's desire to return.

"It shook me up pretty badly, parting company with the Feelgoods, and I couldn't have carried on unless it was with people who believed in me and who I believed in. If it hadn't been for Potter I would have packed it in."

Eventually, via the praises of the ubiquitous Lemmy, bassist Steve Lewins came to Wilko from The Count Bishops, in which there were "too many chiefs and not enough Indians" for Lewins's musical taste. And from the fine little blues band S.A.L.T. came drummer Alan Platt, a spirited Scot with a wry line in piss-taking.

Trying to talk to the four of them at once turned out to be chaotic, since they're four confident characters bent on running the band as a democracy. None of them seem to be suffering from any anxiety about living up to Wilko's awesome reputation.

"It ain't a backing band for me," he states. "Every individual in this band is strong. I don't feel that I have to live up to anything. It's a really good group, playing basically the same kind of music, but it's certainly not just like Dr Feelgood plus keyboards."

ON THE CURRENT, initial tour, the band are combining some new material with R and B goodies retrieved from obscurity and some of Wilko's numbers for the Feelgoods that they aren't doing any more. But all four write material and intend to consolidate their own approach after the tour. They're taking their time looking over record deals, but hope to put together an album in a few months.

For Wilko the others have provided a much needed kick in the ass.

"I was depressed and didn't feel like writing. It all started feeling a little unreal, and I don't go in for writing songs in the abstract without a band. I haven't felt this kind of excitement and enthusiasm since I was doing the pubs two or three years ago."

In the intervening years, Wilko's memories of good times have receded somewhat, but he says he doesn't spend much time dwelling on what's past.

Other people will tell you that Wilko hates the Feelgoods' guts, just as some say the Feelgoods hate him. But when I've spoken to Brilleaux and gang they have refused to say a word against him. Likewise, Wilko does not bad mouth them to me.

"It doesn't really matter that much. I don't want to talk about it that much because it makes me sound bitter and it makes it all seem much bigger than it was."

There are definitely two versions of what happened, however:

"They said, 'We don't want any slanging matches, let's not say anything about it'. Well, I haven't. But I was upset about them saying I left the band and that's not the way it was at all. What really bothered me was that Figure and Sparko never heard my side of it, Chris (Fenwick, the Feelgoods' manager) said, 'I've told them your side'."

The only time any of the principals have met since the split was an accidental encounter in the offices of United Artists. "We shook hands, but couldn't think of anything to say. It was embarrassing, so I got out as quickly as I could. I think we'll be friends again — when we're middle-aged. I hope so."

UNDENIABLY, WILKO can be a little hard to handle. Reputedly moody, he's been chatty and happy the two times I've spoken to him, but he admits he's a bundle of nerves who sometimes delights in being as perverse as possible. Wilko legends are legion — "They're all lies", he giggles — and among the stunts he was famous for on Feelgoods' tours was his penchant for hiding at airports moments before take-off while everyone went crazy thinking he'd done a bunk.

There was the additional, inevitably alienating factor of him being a teetotaler in a good time band of boozers. He ended up spending a lot of time on his own, which is not always a good thing for a shy, nervous worrier.

"I'm very aesthetic and studious really," he says self-mockingly. "I hear these stories about me that amaze me sometimes. People come up to me really expecting me to be a psychopath, and when people keep expecting something of you, you end up starting to act like it for them."

Part of the Wilko legend stems from the alternately zany and painful process of finding himself a niche as an obsessed rock and roller after attempts at writing and painting.

"I was just trying to escape from straightsville. What I'm trying to do is not have to get up in the morning. That's what it's all about."

HE WENT to London University to study economics. After six days he realised he was spending all his time reading William Blake instead of Keynes, so he left, later reading English.

"When I was 17 I was going around telling people that if I reached the age of 23 or so without becoming a great poet I was going to cut my throat. It was the only thing worth living for."

After writing at university and running a poetry magazine he took off for India "to avoid having to do anything sensible". While being a bit cosmic and pondering life there he went down with hepatitis and found himself in the isolation ward of a hospital in the middle of nowhere, where nobody spoke English.

"I was just lying there watching lizards on the wall. And I was going through this thing about would it be bad karma to kill these mosquitos that were flying around?"

"I wanted to keep this good karma so I'd let them land on me and drink my blood. In the end just one to many landed on my arm and I started to massacre them all."

Ah ha. A crucial incident, illustrating my thesis that Wilko is not a true victim type.

To pass the time he started writing what he thought was soul-stirring stuff. Just before he left hospital he was sufficiently recovered to recognise what he'd written was a bunch of shit. "I thought, 'You can't write, mate'. And then I looked out into the court-yard and I started seeing faces in the wall. And I thought, 'That's it. I've got a visual imagination, not a verbal one, when I get home I'm going to be a painter'."

■ Continues over

■ From previous page

Broke, and flown home by a highly annoyed British Consulate, he became a recluse in a council flat and spent his time dropping acid and painting pictures of Babylon.

"I was very interested in Babylon and I worked out what it ought to look like. The real Babylon out there in Iraq wasn't quite up to what I thought it should have been and I started thinking of better ones that were more mobile. It was very frustrating really because they never looked as good as I thought. Eventually it strangled up me mind."

"Then I thought that I could become a millionaire and go out there and build it. But the Premium Bonds didn't come up. I cracked up very badly. I woke up in the middle of the night and a lot of funny things were happening in my room. I spent a whole autumn taking about six tranquilizers a day to stop from seeing dragons in the street. And one of the dragons I met in the street was Lee."

Did he look like a dragon? "No, but he looked pretty mean. He was a solicitor's clerk at the time."

So the painter and the dragon decided to form a group although Wilko, 23 by this time, hadn't played his guitar for five years. "One thing I found in it then — which isn't quite so obvious to me now — is that I'd spent a lot of time being cosmic and thinking about infinity and wondering what the truth was, and doing rock and roll is the exact opposite of that. You start playing and you've got about an hour and you think 'Screw the cosmos', banging your head against the wall and being really real. I used to like that. In fact, as I said, me head was in a bit of a mess when we started the group, and it soon cleared up. So it was quite therapeutic."

Suddenly motivated, Wilko wangled himself a gig as a teacher in a comprehensive school until he became completely taken over by the Feelgoods. "And the rest is history, folks."

His former dreams of glory as a writer after the style of his hero William Blake (whose collected works, by the way, he firmly denies have ripped off volume by volume, although it is a much-repeated Wilko tale) then took a different shape as he started writing songs.

"I'd never thought of writing songs, but as I gradually got more obsessed with the group it meant I was giving up doing anything but thinking about that. It just took me over. I always wanted to say something in one way or another, and as music was the only thing I was doing I started writing some songs."

"The people round here didn't used to reckon that much to us because we were't wearing dresses and singing about spacemen. It really used to piss me off, but Lee used to be really cool about it and that impressed me. So I wrote this song called 'Keep Out Of Sight' which is about those people and the feeling that if you've got something worthwhile inside you you don't have to go around shouting about it, because if it's any good it'll dawn on people anyway."

Once it had dawned on people that the Feelgoods were good it started to be more fun. "I've stuck with this longer than I've ever stuck with anything else because rock and roll's always changing. I like the insecurity of not knowing what's going to happen in six months."

"I sometimes read interviews with people who want to write really significant songs that people are going to be thinking about in 50 years. Well, they're just idiots, 'cause rock and roll has nothing to do with 100 years' time or even six months' time. It's just immediate. It comes down to the world around you and the moment that you exist. You can't build a career in rock and roll and that's good, because once you've got something set up for life it's just a straight motorway to the cemetery."

"With the best will in the world you do get caught up in business considerations. You have to keep it in your mind that that doesn't matter. What matters is what you started doing it for in the first place. I'm in the position again now where it's started again, and I want to hang on to doing it just for the playin and be careful that I don't get too caught up in wanting to succeed."

"There are different ways of measuring success, and the way the world and the record business measure success isn't necessarily real success. It's better to be proud of everything you've done than sit and look at a load of bleeding stupid gold discs."

This is beginning to sound like he's found the Truth after all. "No, I forgot about all that. That's one good thing that's come out of rock and roll."

ambitions are. Just to survive. Yeah. Yeah."

He still has his heroes, too. If he refutes ripping off the works of Blake he will admit, "I ripped off my guitar style from Mick Green." As a spotty adolescent he once leapt on a stage and told Green he was the greatest guitarist in the universe. Green is still the Jesus to his John the Baptist in Wilko's book, and he can't quite get over the fact that they're friends now.

"He's the only person I've ever consciously copied. And he's helped me a lot over the last few months. He's a really down-to-earth bloke and he's been a real friend. I don't like to give myself away. But once I establish that I can trust people I do like to get close to them. I don't make friends easily, but I depend on close friends."

My favourite Wilko story is one of his telling, another good example of 'Wilko the Nutter' really having the upper hand all the time.

"Although I never nicked his books, I did have a thing about William Blake. In the National Portrait Gallery they have this bronze bust of him made from a mask of his actual face. I used to go in there and wait until there was no one else around and talk to him. 'Hello William, how's it going?'"

Did he ever answer, Wilk? "Well yes, he did. (Long pause) But you could see my lips move."

SO THE SLAYER OF mosquitoes is once again in control of the situation and fighting back. When it comes to what his ambitions are this time round he is reduced to biting his nails in agitated contemplation.

"Damn, I've bitten my finger off. I don't know. See, that's one of the things that's happened to me. I haven't got a clue. I am a man of ambition, but I can't think what my

ENT 9

The Boomtown Rats

Mary of the 4th Form (ALTERNATE VERSION)

Name _____

Form _____

Do The Rat

Johnnie

Simon

GERRY

NEVER MIND THE AD. BUY THE RECORD.

Ensign RECORDS

Watts

KEEP RECORDS CLEANER!

PARASTAT

Parastat Disc Cleaner £1.07

Hi-Fi Parastat £4.55

Manual Parastat £5.36

Stylus Cleaner 42p

PARASTAT

Gramophone Record Cleaning Machine

From your local Hi-Fi store or record shop or order direct adding 10% for p & p (Minimum p & p 10p). All prices include VAT

Cecil E. Watts Ltd.

Darby House, Sunbury-on-Thames, Middlesex. Tel: Sunbury-on-Thames 83252

The JAM

THE JAM SONGBOOK

Words and music to ALL AROUND THE WORLD, IN THE CITY, ART SCHOOL, BRICKS AND MORTAR, CARNABY STREET, SOUNDS FROM THE STREET, TAKIN' MY LOVE, NON STOP DANCING, AWAY FROM THE NUMBERS and TIME FOR TRUTH. Good numbers — Good book to have. If you want to follow the words on the album. And you could even play them! Plus a bunch of pictures and some poems by a mate of Paul Weller's.

Order Coupon

To: Music Sales Limited, 78 Newman Street, London W1.

Please send.....copy(ies) of The Jam — £1.50 each plus 15p post for the first copy and 10p post for each extra copy. I enclose a total of £.....by postal order cheque (tick whichever applies)

Name.....

Address.....

Block Letters Please.

MULL OF KINTYRE

Graham Hughes

WINGS DOUBLE A

Graham Hughes

GIRLS SCHOOL

THE ALBUM OF '77

the one they are afraid of!

How can you face
'78 without it?

Side 1

JANIE JONES
REMOTE CONTROL
I'M SO BORED WITH THE U.S.A.
WHITE RIOT
HATE & WAR
THAT'S MY NAME
DENY LONDON'S BURNING

THE CLASH

Mick Jones - guitar, vocals
Joe Strummer - guitar, vocals
Paul Simonon - bass guitar
Tory Crimes - drums

Side 2

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES
CHEAT
PROTEX BLUE
POLICE & THIEVES
48 HOURS
GARAGELAND

82000

Records
& Tapes

Pic: CHALKIE DAVIES

THRILLS

IT SHOULD have been nipped in the bud, of course. It wasn't, however, and as a result one of this year's most brain-belled rock factoids has been hatched and granted unquestioning credence in the most unexpected media precincts.

Where it originated is easy to define. The perpetrator of the whole disgraceful sham is one Pete Frame, the benevolent "Godfather" of Zigzag and relentless scourer of rock allegiances, however fleeting, trivial or clandestine, for the construction of innumerable, awfully 'definitive' family trees — a Zigzag speciality, certainly, and usually highly worthy projects.

In the past, the roots of such bands as Buffalo Springfield, Man — certainly, all the West Coast bands of any repute — and all their near labyrinthine off-shoots have been thoroughly explored. And recently, probably to tie in with Zigzag's recently consummated 'new wave' bent, the magazine devoted its centre-spread of two months past to a Frame Roots-of-UK-Punk family tree. A mostly commendable and accurate piece of work it was too, leaving similar attempts by other periodicals in the dust.

However, Frame, who's been given to these bursts of sheer perversity before now, chose to blemish the intensely factual nature of his findings by tossing in a ripe old red herring of a tall tale when he claimed that "Wally" — the enigmatic original guitarist for the Phase One, pre-Rotten era Sex Pistols — was, in fact, none other than Elvis Costello, in one of his various pre-Stiff incarnations. Frame actually broached the revelation in a crafty, matter of fact-ish "now-it-can-be-told" manner that may have granted it more credibility than was intended — but, whatever, the damage was done.

A flurry of letters was promptly sent to yours truly — who, having first mentioned "Wally" in a piece on Pistols manager Malcolm McLaren almost exactly a year ago, and also having interviewed Elvis Costello, was presumed to be one of the few who knew the real truth.

Then, after a few ambiguous remarks in the gossip pages of the music rags, Time Out — in an article on the Stiff package — chose during a rather vitriolic attack on Costello to take Frame's Wally-Elvis silliness as gospel. That iced it, really.

Costello hasn't yet gone on record to deny the charge — leading some to believe that Frame and one J. Riviera may have been in cahoots in constructing this piece of instant mythology for the impressionable.

The facts, though, must speak for themselves.

Wally is not Elvis Costello. Never has been for that matter.

Indeed, it's hard to recall a more agreeably mundane personality than The Sex Pistols' original guitarist. I mean, I can't even recall the poor bugger's surname.

An old mate of the original Pistols Shepherds Bush teen Mafia, he was, way back when Steve Jones couldn't make up his mind whether he wanted to be a drummer, a singer or a cat-burglar, and Paul Cook was still taking an inordinately long time to learn the rudiments of keeping time and maintaining a back-beat (Jones was his tutor, by the way).

In those days, Wally was easily the most competent player — though Glen Matlock came a fairly close second — having based his style on Ronnie Wood's Faces period work.

Unfortunately his visual, despite being topped off by a good R. Wood imitation coiffure, was not the stuff from which charismatic

THE PHANTOM SEX PISTOL
An identikit portrait of Wally, the original Johnny Rotten.

WE HERE AT NME SAY ELVIS IS NOT WALLY

(NEITHER'S MIDGE URE)
(OR JOHN LYDON)
(NOR NICK KENT NEITHER)

young pop stars are shaped. His features were amiably insipid, lacking even the character of E. Costello's twisted toadishness. A pair of heavy Hank B. Marvin horn-rims also did nothing to enhance the blandness lurking behind.

Truth to tell, probably the principle reason for his being in the group in the first place was the fact that his father, being the caretaker for the enormous, long-vacated BBC TV studios in Hammersmith, had given his son's group the key to one of the many large halls therein as a rehearsal-room. In these comparatively luxurious confines, the band worked up a small repertoire of numbers — namely The Small Faces' "Understanding" and "All Or Nothing", The Who's "Substitute". The Love Affair's "Day Without Love".

They also worked out two originals: one entitled "Scarface" with lyrics by Steve Jones' father (!), and the other being "Did You No Wrong" — the arrangement and lyrics of which even then were almost an exact approximation of the number that since has appeared on the B-side of "God Save The Queen".

Indeed, it's quite possible that dear old Wally may well have actually contributed to the structure and composition of "Did You No Wrong", though I can't swear to that.

Wally's exit was actually very swiftly performed, motivated principally by Malcolm McLaren, who had taken over complete control of the group's 'creative direction' upon returning from New York.

McLaren was the absolute dictator at that point, choosing the name, stance, attitude, ideas — you name it. He resented what he considered to be Wally's insipid character and unappealing gawky visual, and at one rehearsal took total charge, informing the latter that his services were no longer needed in no uncertain terms.

Steve Jones had been bashing away for some three months on guitar, displaying sufficient proficiency in such a short time that he was told to keep working at it, while yours truly was given temporary custody of poor Wally's former post.

There was also a singer being auditioned that same night — a timid pretty-boy type called Dave for whom McLaren had high hopes, even though during the subsequent three-hour rehearsal it was adamantly proven that this fledgling had: (a) no voice/sense of pitch; (b) a total inability to project; and (c) the most weedy effeminate visual imaginable. He didn't last long, though — for that matter neither did I, but that (as they say) is another story.

As for Wally — well, there was one gig the original Swankers played — some years ago at some Chelsea niterie it was, the whole thing being engineered in McLaren's absence by one Bernard Rhodes. After three numbers, the whole affair proved so embarrassing that Rhodes signalled the four-piece off stage and left swiftly by the back-door.

In the last 12 months, Wally has apparently vanished from sight completely, not even bothering to attempt to capitalise on this whole ludicrous "enigma" his former presence in the Pistols has now created.

Some months ago, Paul Cook, Steve Jones and I had a good laugh reminiscing about the exploits of their old ally. The pair recall him with some affection, and Cook even claimed that it was Wally — no less — who first compelled the lads to have a bash at forming a group.

Also, about nine months back, Wally actually phoned me at the NME to enquire whether I knew of any groups looking for a spare rehearsal room. He gave me his number which I promptly lost, and since then — nada.

He's probably working in a bank now — who knows? And even if, in reality, he was the most ludicrously bland character ever to be granted the handle of 'minor league rock enigma', at least he's had the good taste to stay hid and not immortalise himself further as the "Pete Best of the Blank Generation".

NICK KENT

THRILLS

THE UGLY GUY LOSES A CHAMPION

THE MOST likeable band in the country played its last gig the Sunday before last, down the Mile End Road, halfway home already. The Kursaal Flyers are no more.

Talking to Thrills last week in a pub in Carnaby Street, Will Birch ruefully reckoned that may have been

The Kursaal Flyers' downfall: being too likeable. Next time out, he says, he's looking for a few "danger men".

The breaking up of the Kursaals started with the exit of Graeme Douglas early this year, was compounded by Vic Collins' departure a couple of months ago, and finalised by Paul Shuttleworth bowing out last week.

Throughout their career, they were a guaranteed good gig — right to the end. They hit the London pub circuit late 1974 with a brand of rock revivalism a tongue-in-cheek cut above their pub cohorts, and quickly signed to Jonathan King's UK Records — a calculated shot which predated the current pop chic by two long years too many.

Their debut album, "Chocs Away"

(1975) was and is sporadically superb. Shadow Morton revamped rubbed shoulders with soul dance celebrations, R&B, Chinese reggae, banjo breakdowns and C&W.

Early in '76 they released "The Great Artiste". The comedy songs were now a little too stylised, as Paul Shuttleworth dug deeper into his spiv frontman role, but the rock was getting harder. The variety that was the first set's strong point, however, was now evidently a problem.

Onstage they'd line up in strange array. From left: Graeme Douglas, great fierce guitar and most tunes, his white suit and diffident posture singling him out as the one member who very obviously took himself seriously, straining toward the straighter rock he subsequently found in the Hot Rods.

Paul Shuttleworth, taking his pencil moustache and Cockney camaraderie to extremes, pulled off miracles to hide his vocal weakness but was slightly too prepared to take cover in parody; the good vibes man.

Will Birch, the world's only intelligent drummer, writer of finely honed pop songs in the tradition of his hero Ray Davies — though he too was occasionally too inclined to hit for parody rather than forge his own style; a very basic drummer in the sweat shorts vein.

Richie Bull, rotund bassist and

● Continues over page

INSIDE INFORMATION

P. 12: Johnny Thunder in yet more agro.

P. 13: Mike Mansfield shoots Rich Kids.

P. 14: Weather Report's live licks.

P. 16: Labelle shop around, Deviants drown their sorrows.

P. 18: Superman in double trouble.

P. 19: Donna Summer bites the hacks she feeds.

P. 20: Blondie sticks her tongue out.

P. 22: The Nuns and The Suburban Reptiles — postcards from the colonies.

WILL BIRCH

RITCHIE BULL

The up and down world of punk rock ...

IT'S FUN, it's fast and anybody can do it. The pogo dance craze that is sweeping across the world of punk rock requires no skill of any kind.

□□ All you need is enough energy to jump up and down in time to the frantic fire of the music. That's the one and only 'step' to learn — the jumping up and down. After that, it's up to you what you do, and the more you add to the basic, the better.

When the pogo first began, reportedly after the example of the Sex Pistols' Sid Vicious, the dancers were usually seen to keep their bodies perfectly straight, arms by sides, whilst their heads rocketed up and down in the air like pistons.

□□ Now, more variety is coming into the dance. The better exponents are flailing arms and legs wildly and pulling the most ridiculously moronic faces possible.

Action Punk rocker Derek Gibbs says: "People got fed up with the old music — and they got fed up with the old dances. If you like this music, pogoing just comes naturally.

AN INSTANT GUIDE TO DOING THE POGO

Step 5 ... ready for the next jump

From the Acton Gazette

SOME PEOPLE HERE AT THE NME reckon that New York exiles Johnny Thunders' Heartbreakers have been pulling a few unethical headline grabbing 'strokes' on the dear old pop press over the past few months.

First, you may recall, came the traumatic news some four months back that the four-piece were suddenly being driven from the shores by some nit-picking Home Office official who stated that due to the band not having their permit papers in order for the Pistols' Anarchy tour last December, they were due for the big transatlantic heave-ho, pronto, Tonto. The period of exile was claimed to be something betwixt a year to maybe even 18 months, thus naturally nixing all the fertile groundwork they'd been putting in to establish their name in these isles.

Traumasville — but then suddenly the dreaded year of exile somehow metamorphosed into just three weeks or even less, which took the sting out of that miserable predicament most conveniently.

Then having returned from their merry sojourn in hometown N.Y., the next shocker was drummer / co-leader / ex-N.Y. Doll Jerry Nolan's sudden tantrum split. This bombshell again garnered a whole morass of headlines. Then, equally suddenly, Nolan decided to return to his old Heartbreakers drum-stool — at least for the duration of the expansive British tour which had been plotted out to give a publicity push to their simultaneously released "L.A.M.F." album.

All this headline fodder, though, has started at least certain factions of the media pegging these boys as the band who forever cry wolf.

So what happens when yet another spate of heavy rumour-mongery breaks out, this time around concerning The Heartbreakers' relationship with their record company, Track?

It all started a week last Monday when Siouxsie and the Banshees' manager Nils — a long-standing Heartbreaker ally — mentioned cryptic goings-on at the Track office. Two days later, Thrills encountered Johnny Thunders himself. His first remark was an adamant claim that the band had in fact given Track the elbow.

His main contention that one of Track's co-founders had, unexpectedly withdrawn all financial support halfway through the recently completed nationwide tour. This, Thunders claimed, was due to the character concerned taking grave

THUNDERS AND TRACK — CRYING WOLF AGAIN?

JOHNNY THUNDERS pix by EDDIE DUGGAN

KURSAAL FLYERS: THE PIER HEAD SPIVS

● From previous page

erstwhile folksy banjoman, gradually shed his C&W duds for flashy harry suits, his banjo jollity for a clipped, flowing bass style; and finally there was Vic Collins, reluctantly playing more straight rhythm and less and less of his beloved and excellent pedal steel, dropping his French onion seller guise but never relinquishing his manic stare for an instant.

As strong as they were as individuals, so too were their songs. By the time the band had crossed over to CBS in '75 and put out the excellent, directional "Golden Mile" they'd stacked up a set that was like a greatest hits, every song a winner. Most bands would (or should) be prepared to swap most of their repertoire for three-minute marvels like "Pocket Money", "Hit Records", "Speedway", "Yellow Sox", "Cruisin' For Love", "Modern Lovers", "Street Of The Music", "Radio Romance" and "Little Does She Know".

PAUL SHUTTLEWORTH

Produced by Mike Batt, "Golden Mile" gave them the Big Hit — also, surprisingly, the only Kursaal song ever covered by anyone else. Richard Antony, of all people, swanned up the French charts with "Little Does She Know", apparently modified to touch less upon lauderettes and clean underwear than the Flyers' magnificent soap operetta.

"Golden Mile" was a fine album, but it was pretty much the Kursaal's last. Graeme Douglas hated Mike Batt. Increasingly unhappy with the band's mellow image in these frenetic times, he quit in February this year, and promptly began a flirtation/rescue operation with the Hot Rods which is still contractually unresolved. CBS hold all the Hot Rods which is still individually, and Douglas's, not surprisingly, is one they're not giving away.

VIC COLLINS

Another Southend guitarist, Barry Martin, was recruited. A former colleague of Graeme's in their old jamming conglomerate, Eddie and the Blizzards, he fitted in right off. Will Birch started writing with Ritchie Bull, and when I saw the band in Oxford a few months ago I came back foaming superlatives. In the unrestricted atmosphere of a college May Ball, they ripped the ancient portals to shreds.

Searching for a harder sound to Support Loc

Beserkley
"Home of the Wild"
BZZ4

The Obligatory First 10,000 are packed in an Extremely Tasteful Yellow/Black Bag

GREG KIHN'S DEBUT

THE CLASSIC SPRIN

offence to not being taken on as the band's co-manager alongside the 'Breakers main-man, Lee Black Childers. In his usual outspoken manner, Thunders referred to the person concerned as "a great big baby".

However, this rift with Track had not left the band in the proverbial "shits", he maintained. Indeed, he expected to be putting pen to a worldwide CBS contract in the near future.

Thunders seemed to reckon that if all goes as planned, and the deal is signed, the band may well return to New York.

As for Nolan, w-e-e-ell, after much humming and ha-ing and generally stalling he's definitely out of the picture and apparently intends to start a band with the brother of his current true love, Esther, on guitar.

The Heartbreakers meanwhile have pretty much settled on using former Clash drummer Terry Chimes, whom Walter Lure claims is even better in certain respects than Nolan.

Already one provincial gig has been performed as a try-out — a total success according to all sources — and two Vortex gigs planned for this week should mark Chimes' full initiation into the post. In fact, this change in personnel has seemingly caused a burst of inspiration for the band, who've already completed four new songs — one number entitled "Laughing At You"; another as yet untitled; the third yet another Heartbreakers smack anthem based on a Chuck Berry oldie, only retitled "Too Much Junkie Business".

The fourth number, though, sounds like the most intriguing — a grit-teethed reply to Johnny Rotten's slag-off of David Johansen ("New York" from the Pistols' first album). This one is similarly vitriolic about us Limey boys and suitably entitled "London".

After talking to The Heartbreakers, Thrills approached Track for their side of the story — only to receive a cagey "No Comment" for a reply. Obviously there are business meetings still to be convened and all that, and there's still a chance that Track may yet possess a few aces-up-the-sleeve ready to nix all this current dissension.

One positive aspect is the claim by Daniel Secunda, co-producer of the horrendously mixed "L.A.M.F.", that the album is going to be re-cut, hopefully improving the cruddy production sound that has caused so much grief already amongst the group's fans.

NICK KENT

THRILLS

RICH KIDS bid the studio commissioner a polite goodbye

Pic: JILL FURMANOVSKY

MIKE MANSFIELD'S PUNK TV SPECIAL — "SO IT GOBS"??!

THE FIRST ALL PUNK TV special was cut last Friday by Supersonic director / producer Mike Mansfield, at a Wandsworth TV studio called Ewatts TV. Its working title is The Best Of British.

The show, which featured The Adverts, Glen Matlock's Rich Kids, Generation X and The Damned, will go out in January, assuming a British TV company picks it up. Considering the degree of slick professionalism of each piece of footage viewed, this seems highly likely. The show will then be used as the pilot for a projected series.

Certain sources, however, have suggested that Mike Mansfield is more interested in selling the show to a Stateside TV company.

At the filming, which had a token audience of token punks draped about the studio set, each band played three numbers. There were also vox pop (sic) interviews with members of the audience by a rather unconvincing linkman. All the footage of the bands was visually very strong indeed — though, as always seems to be the case with TV rock shows, there was a surfeit of close-ups.

Due to gig commitments on Friday evening, The Adverts had had their sequence filmed that morning. Of the other three bands, The Damned still had temporary drummer Dave Burke, on loan from Johnny Moped, providing a less arrogant version of the Scabies kitwork. Their sound was extremely good, otherwise no surprises.

Generation X and Rich Kids each turned in three strong, powerful numbers that fully justified those who're expecting them shortly to emulate the Pistols and The Clash in both commercial and artistic terms.

Generation X provided "Your Generation", "From The Heart", and the excellent new single "Wild Youth".

Matlock's Rich Kids, with new guitarist Midge Ure stage centre on lead vocals, turned out a trio of fast songs, each bristling deliciously with the kind of emotionally pure hooks (Whaat? — Ed.) that the bassist gave the first three Pistols singles.

With, from left to right, Matlock in footpad chic, Ure's spectacle-less E. Costello-like appearance and guitarist Steve New's ultimate camp version of Peter Frampton, Rich Kids have a stunning front line.

The confidence behind the mike-stand moves suggest many hours in front of the bedroom mirror getting those poses down right. On "Rich Kids", Glen and Midge come together at the same mike stand to harmonise "Talkin' bout rich kids" on the chorus line. Their studied spontaneity turned those couple of seconds into a kind of vignette detailing every facet of The Rich Kids — from the impeccable Beatle-ish roots to their obvious love of flash rock'n'roll posing.

They followed their theme song with "Bulletproof Lover" and "Young Girls".

Although Martin Wyatt, a director of The Adverts' Anchor Records, personally provided a large slice of the programme's finance, the bands' record companies were not asked to fork out — though writers of the songs being shot were asked to waive the "synchronisation fee" which they would normally pick up for each screening.

The bands were not required to clean up the gob on the studio floor.

CHRIS SALEWICZ

THRILLS

WHO FELL FROM GRACE WITH THE PROM

match their new mood onstage, they enlisted the production skills of Muff Winwood. Unfortunately, Winwood was too busy to spend an album's worth of time on the band — so they stuck out a couple of loose singles and a rather unnecessary live set, "Five Live Kursaals", when a new studio album should have been their first priority.

GRAEME DOUGLAS

Meantime manager Paul Conroy departed at the end of July to become general manager at Stiff Records, and then in August Vic Collins quit. He's now gotten himself a Canvey Island C&W outfit together, known as Tomahawk.

Yet another Southend guitarist, one Johnny Wicks, stepped in to replace Vic on rhythm, but he hardly had time to get blooded before Paul Shuttleworth announced that he was going to cut a solo record with Mike

Batt. So Paul quit the camp last week, telling the others he felt responsible for their inability to shed the unhip comedy/goodtime image that has weighed against them of late — especially in the press, where they'd only landed one decent size feature this year (in NME, natch).

BARRY MARTIN

The others promptly decided to knock it on the head.

So Graeme's a Rod, Vic's a Tomahawk, Paul's a solo singer — "an entertainer, the Max Bygraves of the Blank Generation," says Will affectionately. Ritchie is currently doing sessions, though he wants to get back into a rock band. Barry's looking around, as is Johnny — Will reckons he and Wicks may write some songs together.

As for Will Birch, he's writing some songs for Dave Edmunds, producing another Stiff single for The Yachts (he did their first), following up a few other songwriting and production possibilities... but mainly looking for his "danger men" for a new band.

Kursaal Flyers, 1974-1977. The underdog has lost a good friend.

PHIL McNEILL

JOHNNY WICKS

al Talent
SINGLE 'FOR YOU'
GSTEN SONG OUT NOW!

GREG KINN

PENNIE SMITH

JOE ZAWINUL

BOING!

disappointed." (He's referring to bassist Jaco Pastorius' over-long bass solo, which drew a vociferous negative reaction from the crowd.) "Because we were recording he thought he should get enough on tape. I explained to him later that it didn't matter, we're playing for the people and if it's good it's on the record, if it is not then it won't be. Looking back I think everything was alright, but it never really took off again because the feedback was not right after that.

"Second night though, from the very first moment on it was smoking."

Which is just as well, because the London gigs — the culmination of a long European tour — will be the basis for a live Weather Report album. Zawinul is also working on a solo album, for which he has enlisted the aid of Miles Davis. Only three tracks have been recorded so far, and he promises that it will be a departure from Weather Report's music. Beyond that, plans for the band have yet to be made.

What is sure in Zawinul's mind, though, is this:

"I have thought this for a long, long time," he declares. "It is not necessary to play bullshit in order to become popular."

PAUL RAMBALI
THRILLER

DOWNSTAIRS AT Newcastle's City Hall, Josef Zawinul has just made a very astute point. "All the originators are always great," he repeats, looking inquisitively close to be sure I understand. "But when the imitators come in, the hangers-on, they just take the music to a place where it becomes indigestible after a while. Jazz became like that, and rock is becoming like that now."

Joe Zawinul and Wayne Shorter, both now in their mid-40's, are co-leaders of the most successful jazz group of the '70s. After two decades of consistent musical brilliance, Weather Report, although they now appeal to an audience large enough to get their albums into the Top 50, are still an abrasive and daring outfit, ready to take chances all the way. Only now they now have a lot more people watching while they do it.

Zawinul was born in Vienna in '32 and moved to the States in '59, where he worked with Ben Webster and Dinah Washington, amongst others, before joining the late Cannonball Adderley's group and remaining with them for most of the '60s.

It was towards the end of that decade that he joined Miles Davis' band, contributing to a series of albums that began with "In A Silent Way" and "Bitches Brew" — the birth and still one of the few real triumphs of jazz-rock fusion.

"I felt that in the late '60s jazz had become so boring. When Sly Stone came out first, and Jimi Hendrix — their music had this other quality that jazz unfortunately didn't have."

This other quality he can't easily define, but he thinks it was an attitude more than anything. "The bands I was in always had this attitude: it was not us who held anything back. I was in Cannonball's band for a long time and we could knock the people out, while playing music."

"And finally in Weather Report we are reaching the people on the streets. Not the critics, but the people. And we don't play down to the people ever — we play what we play, and for the people to come up there with us, that is the greatest feeling."

Lester Bangs once wrote that he suspected Zawinul of having more to do with Miles' explosive injection of rock into jazz than was ever credited. Certainly it's true that of the bands spawned by Miles' music — Return To Forever, Herbie Hancock's groups — and the plethora of jazzers that have crossed over since, only Weather Report have shown the creative acumen required to be more than just old players with a funky riff and a new paint job.

Still, since their formation in '71, Weather Report's personnel has changed often, and considering their lacklustre first night at the Rainbow, I asked the obvious question.

"Yeah, I'm happy with this group. All the guys we had in the band, they were incredible musicians, but, well, I want to grow, and I don't want anybody to hold me back and I don't want to hold back no-one."

"I'm sorry that happened the first night because I myself was

The Lone Groover

BENYON

'Black Magic Night'

If you were there — you'll remember. It was one of those nights when there was a little magic in the air — the magic of Osibisa Live.
Black Magic Night.
A double album at only
£5.70 r.r.p. record and cassette.

Osibisa

BRSP 3

BRONZE

CLOVER

is growing everywhere

Love on the Wire

The new album and on tour with Graham Parker

Album 6360 155 Cassette 7138 094

NOVEMBER

17th

NEWCASTLE, City Hall

19th

BIRMINGHAM, Odeon

20th

CROYDON, Fairfield Halls

21st

BOURNEMOUTH, Wintergarden

22nd

EXETER University

25th

OXFORD, New Theatre

26th/27th

LONDON, Rainbow

28th

BRISTOL, Colston Hall

29th

BRIGHTON, Dome

Produced by Robert J. Lange marketed by

phonogram

PROMOTERS WAZZ ON DEVIANTS TOUR — FARREN GANG PLAN NEW YORK BLITZ

THE SCENE IN the pub next door to Stiff Records was set for a bizarre Daymon Runyon story: the drop-out class of musical bandits circa 1969+ were having an indentikit Lewis-leather heap-important pow-wow, propping up the bar.

Very prominent citizens (Mick Farren, Paul Rudolph, Larry Wallis, Dave Goodman) whose talents have given blood in aid of such bands as the Deviants, Pink Fairies, UFO, Hawkwind and Kicks, first discussed the difference in zipper lengths on their leather jackets, and then the sudden cancellation of the Mick Farren and the Deviants "Nasty Nostalgia" tour. It was sad news.

The history of the ill-fated event reads thus: Farren was spotted by a talent scout at CBGB's club in New York. Was he the famous MF? Would he like to make a record? He pleaded guilty on both counts and the result was the platter, "Play With Fire" on the Ork label.

Then, back in the UK, Stiff Records provided recording time at Pathway Studios for an EP titled "Screwed Up", released this week, featuring Farren, Rudolph, Wallis and friends.

Hunched over the pub bar last week, it emerged that three months ago a dozen gigs were pencilled in for the band. Unfortunately, the dates were scrubbed when the promoters found larger name crowd pullers in the same market.

Wallis, survivor of the recent Stiff national tour, is eager to get out on the road again. "I think Mick should be a recording person again, don't you? Stop writing and start singing. It's a bummer the tour is off — I wanted to see the recording culminate in live gigs. I hate the idea of not being able to go out and do it."

"Yeah," Farren agreed. "What more can you say? It's a fuckin' drag!"

On my mention of Farren's possible vocal limitations, Paul Rudolph offered: "I think you can say that in the old Deviants, as I remember it, Mick was trying to sing like other people. Now he's just being himself. It's better: he sings in time and in tune!"

A proof-sheet of the EP sleeve found its way onto the bar and was the cause of much concern. Had artist Barney Bubbles gone mad? It looked like an artistic interpretation of the true identity of Jack the Ripper: a lacerated image of Farren's face after a hack-surgeon had done a patchwork job on a razor slashing.

Manager/agent Dave Goodman spoke of future plans: "We may do a couple of Christmas shows, the Nashville, etc. Right now we're looking at a U.S. tour at the end of January."

"We're being sent the air fares for four people by Ork. They'll put us up in New York for ten days. We'll go into the studio and see what happens."

"The band will be Larry Wallis — guitar, Wayne Kramer (MCS) — guitar, Farren — vocals, a New York bass player and Alan Powell ('Wind/Kicks) on drums."

Paul Rudolph took news of his omission in his stride. "Well, I thought we were really cooking in the studio. You know, I co-wrote three of the EP tunes. What a shame!"

"I got on a plane in Vancouver in 1969 to fly to London to join The Deviants. We did that crazy American tour that ended up with The Pink Fairies being formed."

"Now two days ago I flew up from Malaga, Spain, for the tour, and here there's a free air trip? And I didn't even make the reserve team? Shit, that's showbiz, folks!"

"I'm going back to training in Spain, at least until early '78 — when I'll be back in town to record with Eno."

We'll keep you peseta'd.

JAMIE MÄNDELKAU

For more incestuous NME backslapping, see On The Town.

CHAMELEONS RISING

NONA HENDRYX (TOP) AND PATTI LABELLE UNVEIL THEIR NEW ASPIRATIONS

PUT AWAY your schoolbooks mes enfants; for the duration of this piece one into three only gives us two. From that formidable trio once known as Labelle, only Patti of that name and Nona Hendryx have so far emerged with the first fruits of their solo dreams.

Patti has gone for the disputed Queen Of Soul title, confirming her reputation as an extraordinarily emotive singer with a penchant for dramatic ballads and rough funk.

Nona is aiming to be the First Lady of rock 'n' roll.

Whatever the outcome of their split, you can quickly see why Labelle amicably agreed to call it a day.

"It was inevitable," Patti explains with a smile and no trace of bitterness. "It was 16 years of being together and doing everything alike, even though we had different likes and dislikes with regard to music. If Sarah wanted to do, say, 'Ring Around The Rosy', Nona and I would do it because we were all together — not really wanting to but compromising because of the group."

"We grew to a level where we all wanted to do different things and realised the compromise was really hurting. Rather than end up becoming ugly with one another on stage it was better to split."

"I think there's a time when ladies become a certain age, particularly in groups... what I mean is, I don't know if we could have rocked and rolled together too much longer without bumping into one another and knocking each other down. We'd have become too old up there together."

Patti was talking to me on the morning after her CBS convention appearance, for which she received a standing ovation.

Backed by The Waters Singers, her own rhythm section and an orchestra directed by producer/m.d. David Robinson, her crucial debut set hinged mainly on material from her forthcoming solo album.

Patti came through with funky colours flying.

Nona, a more independently-minded lady who writes the bulk of her own material, chose to work in New York with her own small group and an unknown producer, Michael Sherman. But even if she hadn't discovered Sherman she wouldn't have plumped for Robinson.

"The 'Chameleon' album that we did with David came off very sterile."

"The mix came out not sounding like Labelle; it was a David Robinson mix. It took me quite a few listenings to come up with a good spirit to even talk to people about that album. I won't ever let that happen to me again."

Labelle was a rebellion against the party-dress to Vegas-gown route previously expected of female singers, but even as part of Labelle Nona found she was restricted musically and personally. The industry still operates a hypocritical double standard.

"I'm a party type of person, a nightbird. I like to be on the road and I like to enjoy myself afterwards; I'm no homebody. In the unlikely event that I ever get married my husband would have to understand that."

"But I've found that, whereas it's recognised that male singers can enjoy themselves on the road, have their groupies and such, if a woman is of the same mind she's not respected. Well, why can't I be expected to have the same desires as a man?"

"As for music, I've always loved rock; always been into listening to the Stones, The Who, Randy Newman, Bob Dylan, but it was never really feasible to apply it to what Labelle were doing."

"Right now I feel strongly about punk or new wave music; I think it's good. I love 'Anarchy In The U.K.' It's healthy to have these eruptions otherwise everybody becomes so cosy in their position. Somebody's gotta say, 'Hey, watch out, don't just rest there on your laurels, something else is happening!'"

"So while there have been a few white females singing a kind of black R'n'B thing, I want to change it around and see what happens. I want to sing rock and see guys turned on like girls get turned on by male singers. And I don't just mean sitting in their seats gaping, I mean up there screaming. Not just because of sex either; from the music point of view too."

CLIFF WHITE

SEX AND DRUGS AND ROCK AND ROLL AND VIOLENCE AND HOROSCOPES

THE RECENT DRAMATIC reversal in teenage behaviour, from "peace and love" to "hate and war", may be due to a shift in the slow-moving outer planets, according to a recent edition of Horoscope magazine.

Whereas the "hippie" generation was born with Neptune in Libra — the sign of peace, harmony, and "relationships" — the succeeding generation, born 1955-62, arrived with Uranus in Leo and Neptune in Scorpio. Thus, according to Daniel Wexler in his article "The Cruelty Of Today's Youth", they "face a life-and-death conflict in their collective psyche."

"Questions of apocalypse, reincarnation, and individual survival in an extreme situation are of paramount concern to this group, whose planetary placement of Neptune in Scorpio indicates a fascination with death and the beyond."

"Uranus in Leo square Neptune in Scorpio translates to mean self-will vs. self-loss — an arrogant desire for freedom coupled with a simultaneous longing for death. In practical terms, this means the individual has to put himself in a life/death situation to get 'turned on'."

Does that sound like anyone you know? Elsewhere in the article Wexler commends us to look at the writers of the '50s who unconsciously reflected the new mass-conscious (Uranus in Leo, Neptune in Scorpio) some twenty years before the generation born at that time would reach "astrological maturity" and make their impact on society.

"The sexual precocity of the young today was anticipated by Nabokov, who published his Lolita in 1955, and by Tennessee Williams in Baby Doll (1956). The cruel potential of children was explored by William Golding in Lord Of The Flies in 1954, and decadence was examined earlier by John Van Druten in I Am A Camera, the play from which the musical Cabaret was later derived."

"Juvenile delinquency first caught public attention in the 1950s and was immortalised on celluloid in 1955 with Blackboard Jungle, Rock Around The Clock, and by James Dean in Rebel Without A Cause."

Wexler goes on: "The need to do one's own thing borders on the edge of anarchy (Uranus in Leo); yet this is in conflict with a subtle dream to be taken over by another (Neptune in Scorpio)."

"Scorpio does not tolerate shades of grey; and with Neptune here, there is a longing for things to be either black or white."

"Maybe this explains the glamourisation of the 1950s by this group whose cruel, violent, revolutionary, and elemental planetary placements seem to have little in common with the happenings of that placid time in history, yet in fact are of the same archetypal essence of the art of that period."

"These are the 'rock babies', the first generation whose initial breath coincided with that of rock and roll... and on conscious levels — in some ways are more like the 1950s than the 1950s were."

Mr Wexler goes on to point out that the last time Uranus entered Scorpio was 1890-1, coinciding with the death of Rimbaud, the suicide of Van Gogh, and the publication of Oscar Wilde's The Picture of Dorian Gray.

"Dorian's ennui (pissed off, punk) with the humanitarianism of the reform-minded Victorian Age parallels our own disenchantment with liberalism, our own apathy. Like the youth today who have despaired of technology to save us from apocalypse, the gay '90s hosted a generation which felt itself doomed to extinction. It was a now generation in perpetual readiness for the new thrill, who opted for full indulgence of the intensity of the moment over salvation at some future date."

And at some future date...

"What do you make of all this then, squire?" I asked Krumbling Kevin of The Pucking Fits one night recently at the Vortex.

"Couldn't tell yer, mate," he quipped. "I'm only here for the gear."

FYFE RUBINSTEIN

'runk's super-hunk, Clash-man Paul Simenon, ain't the kinda guy to argue with! He might have big eyes like Bambi but he's a snarling temper.

A string broke on his bag guitar during one gig so he kicked it right across the stage nearly knocking out the rest of the band. A nice fella to take home for tea, & give Granny something to talk about!

From Pink magazine, 29.10.77 — the punk with the Bambi eyes, sent by Mark Honan of Barnes.

YEEUCCH!

A SIX-YEAR-OLD boy in Cleveland recently died after he became hooked on salt.

He craved it so much that he even put it in his milk and soft drinks. In the end his abnormal appetite led him to ingest a "grossly excessive" amount at dinner one night, which caused his heart to stop.

The coroner ruled it was homicide, claiming that his foster parents should have protected him from himself.

DICK TRACY

Three-track single
"White Punks on Dope"
"Don't Touch Me There"
"What Do You Want From Life"
AVAILABLE NOW

GENERATION X WILD YOUTH

NEW SINGLE - SAT. NOV. 18

RADIATORS

On Tour with THIN LIZZY

November

- 11th NEWCASTLE, City Hall
- 12th/13th GLASGOW, Apollo
- 14th EDINBURGH, Odeon
- 16th/17th LIVERPOOL, Empire
- 18th BRIDLINGTON, Spa
- 19th OXFORD, New Theatre
- 21st/22nd BRISTOL, Colston Hall
- 23rd SHEFFIELD, City Hall
- 24th BRADFORD, St. Georges Hall
- 25th/26th MANCHESTER, Free Trade Hall
- 28th BRIGHTON, Dome
- 29th PORTSMOUTH, Guildhall
- 30th BOURNEMOUTH, Winter Gardens

December

- 2nd/3rd BIRMINGHAM, Odeon
- 4th WOVERHAMPTON, Civic Hall
- 5th LEICESTER, De Montfort Hall
- 7th SOUTHAMPTON, Gaumont
- 8th CARDIFF, Capitol
- 10th/11th LONDON, Hammersmith Odeon
- 13th/14th LONDON, Lewisham Odeon

Agency: Paul Charles, ASGARD - 01 734 3426

LOWRY

"Didn't you know that? The first two rows always hold up his cue cards."

CRIME DESK

ORGANISED CRIME is taking over the rock promotion business in America, the US Government believes. It has recently instigated Federal Grand Jury investigations in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and Las Vegas.

For years there have been rumours about Mafia involvement in the music business, but no formal accusations have surfaced. Sources close to the Grand Jury are now claiming however that these investigations are only the tip of the iceberg. It is believed that rock promotion is just the first step by a crime alliance which intends to move on into the larger entertainment areas of records, films and television production.

Among documents being studied by the Grand Jury is a history of criminal involvement in the entertainment business dating back to the 1920's. If you should happen to come across a copy, Crime Desk would be most interested to hear from you . . .

TWO FORMER GUARDS at a zoo in Memphis, Tennessee, have been charged with grand larceny after police raided their apartment and found two young 50-pound baby ostriches grazing on their living room rug.

SCOTLAND YARD have just introduced a new £3 million computerised fingerprint system capable of storing the dabs of two and a half million people. Called the Videofile, the new system will speed up the identification of fingerprints by five times or more. New prints will be stored on videotape and can instantly be compared with others in the data bank by the push of a button.

BRITAIN'S FIRST robbery by skateboard was reported recently in Hull when four kids snatched a woman's handbag and were away before the astonished victim knew what had happened.

TED HINTON, the last survivor of the six law enforcement officers who ambushed Bonnie and Clyde and shot them to death, recently died himself, aged 73, in a Dallas hospital. Hinton claimed that after the shooting he jumped over the bonnet of the car, opened the side door and then Bonnie fell into his arms, where she died. His full account of the couple's last moments is apparently recorded in a hitherto unpublished manuscript.

SHOPLIFTING AND THEFT by employees now account for losses worth $1.6 billion a year, claims the National Retail Merchants Association, which represents some 30,000 major department stores around the world. This figure represents 2% of the stores' annual sales. Commented a spokesman for the NRMA, "Many of the shopliftings are carried out by people with too low an income, others by those who need ready cash for drugs. Some people, of course, feel it a moral duty that what is owned by a store chain should instead be shared out."

Meantime figures from the Security Gazette claim that the amount stolen by burglars in Britain has trebled since 1967. Last year a total of almost £150 million worth of goods and money were taken — the equivalent of a week's take-home pay for the entire 55,000 workers at the Ford Motor Company in Britain.

A CANADIAN INVENTOR, Paul Le Blond, has developed a new weapon against rapists. Called Rapel, it's a tiny capsule of synthetic skunk oil which women can pin to their underwear and squeeze at the moment of danger. The attacker cannot escape from the lingering smell but the victim can, using an effective deodoriser supplied with the capsule. Mr. Le Blond made 1,741 tests over an eight-month period to discover the deodorising agent, and expects to sell some 66 million Rapel Kits in the first year of marketing.

WHEN WILLIE SMITH was found guilty of a series of crimes — including the mugging of a 93-year-old crippled woman — Judge Nathan O. Cohen of Manhattan told him: "Throughout this trial your constant charges of police brutality have irritated me no end." His Honour then left the bench and, before astonished court officials could intervene, punched Mr. Smith on the nose, knocked him down, and kicked him.

Resuming his seat and, presumably, his dignity, Judge Cohen continued: "That's a sample of real, honest-to-goodness police brutality. If that's what they did to you, then I suggest you apply for a retrial on those grounds."

"But if that's not what the police did to you, then go serve your sentence like a good criminal should."

See you in court.

THRILLS

THE SHOOTING OF SUPERMAN

THE SALES PITCH for the upcoming 25 million dollar Superman movie reads: "In 1978 the cinema world will still be divided into the HAVES and the HAVE NOTS. Those who have Superman and those who don't."

Logistically the making of Superman rivals the D-Day landings. Producer Ilya Salkind is actually shooting two movies at once — known for now simply as Superman 1 & 2 — a technique pioneered by his father on The Three Musketeers. On top of that, he has to co-ordinate the work of two directors: Richard Donner (The Omen), who is handling the main shooting unit at Pinewood; and Richard Lester (erstwhile Beatles/Three Musketeers director), who is supervising no less than four units, one of which is devoted entirely to flying sequences.

● Continues opposite, Batman!

SEX vs SANDWICHES —THE PRESS DECIDES

AT A LAVISH RECEPTION in a London hotel ballroom, the star rating of Donna Summer is foolishly put to the test by a nudging, winking, leering PR play.

"Ladies and Gentlemen," says a voice over the PA system. "Will the gentlemen of the press please note that Miss Donna Summer is in the room opposite. Thank you."

The gentlemen of the press, who are gorging themselves on a vast range of drinks and food, pay little or no heed to this announcement.

What the hell do these people expect? That everybody's going to start frothing at the mouth and trample each other to death in the rush to get at the Queen of Heavy Breathing?

After a few minutes, there's a further announcement, with just a trace of desperation.

"Will the gentlemen of the press note that Miss Donna Summer is in the room opposite. Just across the corridor, please."

A further pause, and a dozen or so hacks ease towards the door, barely diminishing the huge crowd of guzzling free-loaders.

As far as Fleet Street's concerned, Ms Summer is a sex object, and any views she may hold on any other aspects of her life and work inevitably take second place.

In fact, to slip into the vernacular, the lady turns out to look remarkably unlike a sex goddess. She's got up in a demure, long green velvet dress. Nothing risqué or ostentatious about her appearance or her manner.

It's a hackette who puts the inevitable question: "Donna, do you like being known as a sex symbol?"

Ms Summer is ready with an evasive, slightly trippy response. "Everything is fine," she says, a little strangely, "But everything is not fine, if it's taken to an extreme."

"Give a tongue sandwich to the boys..."

The hackette insists. "That does not answer my question. Do you like being known as a sex symbol?"

Ms Summer offers an analogy. With the carpet — of all things. She's not suggesting that people walk all over her, or that they wipe their feet. The colour of the carpet is the point.

"Parts of the carpet are red, parts of the carpet are other colours. It's not just a red carpet. I don't just consider myself a sex symbol."

"Anyway," she says, turning the tables, "do you like being known as a sex symbol?"

The hackette reddens slightly. "I'm not known as a sex symbol. I wish I was." Laughter from the assembly. First blood to Ms Summer.

Ms Summer goes on to tell us that she doesn't necessarily want to make sexy records, that's just the way she is. She is also, apparently, very religious — "I can't get to sleep at night unless I pray" — and she still sings in a church choir.

The object of the reception is to promote Ms Summer's single "Down Deep Inside", and the movie soundtrack of The Deep, from which it's taken.

The Deep is a basically a glorified version of that old Lloyd Bridges TV series Sea Hunt. The movie stars Robert Shaw, and is written by Peter Benchley, the Jaws man. American reviews suggest it's a bit of a beached whale.

Ms Summer doesn't appear in the movie, but has news of a movie she has made. Believe it or not, she wants to be a comedy actress.

Her movie's called Thank God It's Friday Night. Ms Summer describes it as "a disco comedy, a comedy set in a discotheque, that is."

The potential for laughs does not sound immense. Indeed, the movie's title sets the lady off on a maudlin train of thought.

"For you," she tells the hacks, "it's Friday night tonight, but for me it's never Friday night. It's never Sunday, either. You never get any holiday. You forfeit your privacy. You forfeit your private life."

"There's no way of getting off the bus, because there's 'x' number of people on the bus with you. You can kill yourself, of course. That's one way off the bus."

Curious how millionaire pop stars get so melodramatic and self-pitying. You'd expect someone whose music is essentially frivolous to be a little more cheerful. Alas, not so.

Ms Summer tells us how she was selected by her German record company from 300 people who auditioned in New York.

She lived originally in Boston, and began singing when she was eight. "When I was a child, when I was just born, my mother just stuck me down in front of the radio, and left me there."

After that kid in Florida who blamed television for his violent traits, no doubt that explains Ms Summer's enthusiasm for radio pap.

She acknowledges that her career was going nowhere until she moved in with the Germans. The principal criticism of the style that they've created is that it's a bit mechanical. In fact, very mechanical.

"I Feel Love" was laden with electronic effects. How did she manage to sing in an erotic way, when all she could hear in the background was machines?

"The harder the sound," she explains sweetly, "the softer I feel like singing."

If that sounds like just the sort of female stereotype that Fleet Street loves, then it may be misleading. From this brief glimpse of her, it seems that Donna Summer is rather sharper than her image or her publicity suggests. She appears to be a normal, intelligent Bostonian who's going along with the hype because you don't turn down a fortune, unless you're a fanatic or a dummie. The demure appearance is a small rebellion, though.

Back in the ballroom, the eating and drinking go on unabated. This frenzied activity stops for a while, as Ms Summer enters and makes a few polite remarks, then on it goes again.

Far from being the main event, Ms Summer proves to be no more than a diversion, upstaged by the food and the booze provided by Pyc. Clearly, voyeurism is no substitute for satisfying real appetites.

BOB EDMANDS

THRILLER

DC Comics have spent 3½ years negotiating over the script — by Mario Puzo of The Godfather — as they're so concerned about their hero's morality. It was stipulated in their contracts that the actor and actress who play Superman and Lois Lane must never have appeared in any porno movies. DC have also ruled that Superman must play no love scenes and must not swear, and every inch of film must be monitored by the comic corporation.

Salkind has the Superman rights for 25 years. He also has actor Christopher Reeve (pictured right, as Superman and left, as his alter-ego Clark Kent) on a seven- or eight-film contract, and has his huge investment covered already by selling the film in every world territory except Brazil.

The movie toplines Marlon Brando and Gene Hackman, with Margot Kidder as Lois Lane. Release is planned for late '78.

DICK TRACY

STRAIGHT MUSIC PRESENTS

FRANK MARINO

&

MAHOGANY RUSH

UK TOUR

Dec	Fri	2nd	Manchester – Free Trade Hall
..	Sat	3rd	HAMMERSMITH ODEON
..	Wed	7th	Birmingham – Town Hall
..	Thur	8th	Newcastle – City Hall

CBS
81978

“Mahogany Rush: Totally Unique

I would suggest that you grab a copy of 'World Anthem' quickly, before they all disappear from the racks. Mahogany Rush, you see, are unique.”

Geoff Barton Sounds

“Truly Extraordinary

All who like their music hard 'n' heavy should enjoy this album: check it out, it's truly extraordinary.”

Michael Oldfield Melody Maker

With Special Guests

LONE STAR

CBS
82213

CBS Records
& Tapes

Julie Covington

Only Women Bleed is her new single.
Make it yours.
Out Friday on Virgin Records VS196

NME HAS MOVED!

The NME Editorial office is now located at:

3rd Floor, 5-7 Carnaby Street, London W1V 1PG.
Telephone 01-439 8761.

For Advertisement and other departments see panel on page 79.

GRILLING THE TOAST OF MANHATTAN

ROY CARR SHOWS YOU HOW

B LONDIE ARE BACK in Britain. So soon? But they only went home about a fortnight ago. Thrills went to greet the band last week to find out why the precipitate return.

In keeping with most American new wave bands, Blondie have yet to be honoured in their own country. Big in Britain, Celebrated on the Continent, Admired in the Antipodes, Japan is next on their itinerary.

In much the same way as many Southern boogie hands receive little more than a Bronx Cheer (American for rude noise — Ed.) north of the Mason-Dixon line, Big Apple new wavers mean little outside of New York.

Both Debbie Harry and her guitar-playing beau (French for boyfriend — Ed.) Chris Stein pinpoint the major obstacles. "First," states Stein, "the American scene is still so very regionalised that unless you're real lucky and have a massive hit, it takes a lotta hard work and years of touring to reach the mass-market."

"Secondly," he continues, "there's no equivalent to the British press in the States. Whereas in Britain the press predicts the scene, the American counterparts are always months behind half of what's going on." He cites Rolling Stone's recent long overdue Sex Pistols cover story as being typical.

It's entirely due to the British press, insists Debbie, that such American bands as Blondie, The Ramones, Runaways, Television, Talking Heads, Dead Boys, Richard Hell and The Heartbreakers are not only better known but infinitely much more successful in Europe than back home — where many of them still work local bars for $250 a night.

The present lack of instant-information (McDonaldspeak for news — Ed.) in America, argues Debbie, "doesn't prepare the public for what's happening in cities like New York and L.A." On their recent coast-to-coast tour with Iggy and Bowie, they often appeared before college crowds who seemed totally oblivious to the present musical upheaval.

Their record company didn't help educate the public. Having amassed favourable critiques, they hit the road — only to discover that in each town they played the local stores weren't carrying their album. Blondie's label insisted that such matters as promotional back-up were the concern of the group's management. "Anyway" — to quote Debbie — "they thought we'd made a crummy album".

Blondie's agreement with Private Stock was promptly terminated and a new deal pact with Chrysalis. (Is this enough? Stick in a nice big Chalkie pic if you need to fill more space — Roy.)

And Another Thing[s]

We've got Four Killer Albums up and coming from

TYLA GANG GREG KIHN EARTH QUAKE

the Rubinoos called YACHTLESS, LEVELED, THE RUBINOOS and GREG KIHN AGAIN not necessarily in that order P.S. Jonathan's got a trick up his sleeve.

Don't Forget To Support Local Talent

Beserkley
Home of the Wild

COLOSSEUM II

GARY MOORE

DON AIREY

JOHN MOLE

JON HISEMAN

COLOSSEUM II TOUR DATES

16th NOVEMBER
LIVERPOOL
ERIC'S

17th NOVEMBER
LOUGHBOROUGH TOWN HALL

19th NOVEMBER
NORWICH
UNIVERSITY

20th NOVEMBER
LONDON
VICTORIA PALACE

25th NOVEMBER
EDINBURGH
UNIVERSITY

26th NOVEMBER
GLASGOW
UNIVERSITY

Sole agency representation.
International Talent Booking.
01-629 4928.

WAR DANCE

Hard on the heels of the highly acclaimed 'Electric Savage' comes 'Wardance.' "'Electric Savage' was one of the best albums this year..." said The Sunday Times. To Sounds it was "...the band at its blazing best."

WARDANCE IS THE NEXT STEP LISTEN TO WARDANCE

MCF 2817

W
A
R
D
A N
C
E

THE HOLLYWOOD BINLINER

THERE ARE 70 PUNKS IN L.A. — HERE'S MOST OF 'EM

IF INDIA SANK into the sea the Los Angeles Times would probably run the story on page 34 at the bottom of column seven. That's about the measure of importance the Angelenos attach to the rest of the world. Southern California increasingly sees itself as an insulated Garden of Eden that just can't be touched. It's sunny and affluent, and as far as its inhabitants are concerned nothing, but nothing, can happen to change that.

One night, not long ago, after a few whisky sours, I pointed out to a typical Hollywood person that if Los Angeles continued to march unheeding along its carefree isolated path, one day a column of starving Puerto Ricans would march on the city and eat everyone alive. The typical Hollywood person giggled.

"They wouldn't get very far, we'd bore them to death before they got past the city limits."

An expatriate New Yorker sitting opposite scowled.

"I've heard your IQ drops two points each month you live in L.A. It's something in the air."

Such air as there is, in between the smog.

Whether it's the air, the sun or the money, there's certainly something very wrong in the city of the angels.

Although L.A. is the undisputed capital of the music business, precious little new, creative music is being produced under its blue/brown skies. Sure, the big, important, famous bands do set up house in the big, important, famous studios with the bars, swimming pools, saunas and colour TVs, and even, in some cases, emerge with finished albums.

Equally important and famous bands also commandeer the abandoned movie sound-stages to rehearse their forthcoming global tours.

Even the late night drinking-joints suffer from this Big, Big and Nothing But Big attitude. No spiky haircuts or black leather jackets lurk in dark corners. The style is all Queen/Frampton/F. Mac. The talk is about people like Heart, Angel or The Babys. Glitter kids, everywhere else an endangered if not extinct species, abound. It's like being transported back to 1974 (and I never did like 1974 that much).

Nowhere do you hear rumours of a hot garage band who might become the new Doors or the new Beach Boys.

The new wave in Los Angeles is hardly more than a ripple. The smart joke is that there are just seventy punks in the whole city, but they move fast so they look like more. This may be snide but it's also, unfortunately, all too close to the truth. There's little room in Los Angeles for the kind of amphetamine anger that is so much a part of the scene in London or New York.

The kids in southern California seem to coast along on a psychodiet of quaaludes, booze and valium. Life is too easy to raise the kind of raging boredom that looks to anarchy as a blessed relief.

The L.A. punks may be few in number, but they do make up for it in terms of energy. The direction is possibly dubious, they seem to spend an awful lot of time poring over the pages of London and New York rock papers to cop the turn of the trends, but they have managed to produce a fortnightly paper and a handful of bands.

The new bands are hardly cutting a Free sex & drugs & rock & roll

Stiff Records have deleted Ian Dury's 'Sex & Drugs & Rock & Roll' single. Silly Sods.

Now it just so happens that we've come into a few copies ourselves..... know what I mean?

So what we're gonna do is give one free with every copy of Ian's 'New Boots and Panties!' album which we're already knocking a quid off anyway. But keep it quiet.

Virgin Records and Tapes

Birmingham
74 Bull Street
Tel: 021-236 9432

Brighton
5 Queen Street
Tel: 0273-28167

Bristol
2a Haymarket Walk
Tel: 0272-297431
Moving to 12 Merchant Street during November

Coveytry
11 City Arcade
Tel: 0203-27579

Croydon
12a Suffolk House
George Street
Tel: 01-686 3566

Edinburgh
18a Frederick Street
Tel: 031-226 4042

Leeds
145 The Briggate
Tel: 0532-449791

Liverpool
169 Market Way
St. Johns' Centre
Tel: 051-708 0366

Manchester
9 Lever Street
Tel: 061-236 4801

Newcastle
10/12 High Friars
Eldon Square
Tel: 0632-612795

Nottingham
7 King Street
Tel: 0602-42612

Plymouth
131 Cornwall Street
Tel: 0752-60435

Sheffield
137 The Moor
Tel: 0742-70929

Southampton
16 Bargate Street
Tel: 0703-34961

Swansea
34 Union Street
Tel: 0792-51499

London
9 Marble Arch W1
Tel: 01-262 6985
108 New Oxford
Street WC1
Tel: 01-580 6177
130 Notting Hill
Gate W11
Tel: 01-221 6177

WHERE PLATTERS MATTER

THIRD WORLD

96°
IN THE SHADE

BURN YER EARS

PRODUCED BY THIRD WORLD
ILPS 9443

Los Angeles UK punx, clockwise from bottom left: Penelope of The Avengers, The Weirdos, Backstage Pass, Tomato du Plenty of the Screammers, two Nuns, and, just to show that punk's now spreading throughout the whole wide world, The Suburban Reptiles from somewhere in New Zealand. All American pix courtesy of Creem magazine, from the camera of Jenny Lens (Screamers) and Jonathan Postal (the rest).

broad swathe through the music business corridors or power. They even find themselves overshadowed by bands like The Nuns and Crime who developed in the slightly more real atmosphere of San Francisco.

One of the main problems in L.A. is that the new wave bands simply don't have a place of their own in which to play and make their mark. Nothing even slightly resembling CBGB, the Roxy or the Vortex exists in the city. If you want to play in L.A. you've got to toe the line and work according to the ground rules of the big money interests. A town that's bought and paid for by the record industry is hardly the place to raise the banner of rebellion.

The bands do, however, exist and, despite the survival struggle, a few are making their mark, albeit on street level. The most popular are the five piece Weirdos. They are loud, raw, confused and tend to sound as though they were inspired by a Ramones album and a care package of UK fanzines.

The Dills describe themselves as "urine-stained communists". In hammer and sickle T-shirts, they adopt an anti-dope, anti-booze, anti-business stance that extends onto their first single "I Hate The Rich" on What Records.

The Zeros are actually from San Diego. Somewhere along the line they seem to have picked up the tag "the Mexican Ramones". As the world's first ethnic new wave band they have two singles out on Greg Shaw's Bomp label, "Wimp" and "Beat Your Heart Out".

Backstage Pass are a quartet of unashamed groupies plus a male drummer called Perv. Most of their time is spent rehearsing in a basement next to the gay cruising strip on Hollywood Boulevard. They claim to have a special relationship with Stiff Records.

Beyond these four, there are also The Germs, who proudly boast that they can't actually play; The Screamers, an Eno-influenced outfit who are quoted as saying "We're not trying to play music — we're trying to create an anxious sound"; and Vom, a rock critics' band led by Richard Meltzer, one time associate of Blue Oyster Cult.

The immediate prospects for any of these bands are hardly encouraging. It will probably take a business-backed British invasion (The Jam have already made the trip amid some interest) spearheaded by The Clash and the Pistols before any of them find a place in the spotlight. How they'll make out, even then, is of course a whole other question.

MICK FARREN

... AND THE ANIMAL LIBERATION FRONT HITS USA TOO

SINCE OUR coverage of Animal Liberation Front activities in last week's NME, the ALF tell us that the American medical establishment is worried that ALF style activities could spread over the USA.

In the lead story in the October bulletin of the National Society for Medical Research, they explain who ALF are, and quote the experience of Dr Lester Aronson, a researcher carrying out experiments on cats at the American Museum of Natural History.

On August 8, 1977, all the residents of the town of Hillsdale, New Jersey, received details in the mail of Dr Aronson's experiments "so that they can know how their neighbour earns his money."

The writers continue: "As long as there is live animal experimentation at the Museum of Natural History and people to carry out that experimentation, there will be continuous and untiring protest. When the laboratories are closed down and the experiments stopped, then the protest will also stop."

The letter called on the townspeople to write to their Federal senators demanding their tax money "not be spent for torture of live animals in research."

The address of the Committee to Stop Cat Sex Experiments in New York City is listed on the letter, but committee members deny any involvement. Because the letter contains Dr Aronson's personal address and telephone number the incident constitutes a crime of assault, and the senders are also open to Federal prosecution for using the mails in the execution of a crime.

The bulletin also mentions another incident where an unnamed pharmaceutical company have been threatened with a full-page newspaper ad calling for a boycott of their product unless they stop using pound dogs for laboratory testing. At present the company has agreed to comply with these demands.

The Bulletin comments: "The escalation of anti-vivisection activities into illegal pursuits poses serious dangers to science. We deeply regret the company's capitulation to the blackmailer. Experience should have taught that the only thing accomplished by giving into a blackmailer is to encourage him to do it again."

"We must remember that the only way to stop illegal acts is to bring the full force of the law to bear on the criminal. This requires the victim to have the courage and conviction to report the crime."

"The NSMR is very concerned about these disgusting developments and encourages all to report any suspected illegal activities to this office."

DICK TRACY

● THE OTTER last week legally became a protected species. It is now a crime to kill otters, and remember... ONLY ROTTERS HUNT OTTERS.

THE END

NOW ON NATIONWIDE U.K. TOUR

J.A.L.A.

FROM THE BAND'S NEW ALBUM... 'JUST ANOTHER LONELY NIGHT' (MAG 5018)

Their latest single.. on Mag 105

'SO GOOD'

MAGNET RECORDS

12" OF PLEASURE

BURLESQUE'S NEW ALBUM IS BURLESQUE!

Available on Arista Records & Tapes

SINGLES

STOP THE PRESSES

HOLD EVERYTHING! Leave your sandwich uneaten! Don't even stop to do your flies up! This is The Modern World, man, and I've got two of the worst records of all time to lay on y'all, so forget this "Single Of The Week" meritocratic garf and awaaaaaaaaaaaaa we go . . .

UNBELIEVABLY TERRIBLE SINGLE OF THE WEEK

MANFRED MANN'S EARTHBAND: California (Bronze). Just for openers, I really don't know why Manfred and his boys bothered to put this out as a mere single when it's really crying out to be a commercial. For what, I'm not sure, but it could be any one of the following: (a) lemon-lime shampoo (pH balanced), (b) suntan lotion, (c) cocaine, (d) potted palm trees, (e) American Express cards, (f) fake turquoise jewellery, (g) The Runaways. It starts out with acoustic guitar and some falsetto voice carolling "Californyaaaaaaa" before the rhythm section come in and the same voice overdubs a harmony. I'm afraid I got too sick to listen much further. These boys are wasting their talents making pop singles. They should be earning their bread at a real MAN'S TRADE: selling things to people. This numbskull packaging of the California lifestyle should sell well to wimps everywhere so — on second thoughts — why should the Manfreds waste their energy selling other people's product when they can sell their own? This is about the nastiest thing I ever stood still for. Buy one today. You know it makes sense. You'll never regret it. Etcetera.

SECOND MOST ABSOLUTELY TERRIBLE SINGLE OF THE WEEK

JIMMY DEAN: A Cowboy's Prayer (CBS). First the harmonica comes in with the opening phrases of "Home On The Range". Then: "You might not know me, Lord, 'cuz I ain't much for prayin' in them churches where people gather to hear yo' holy wurd, but I guess you might have seen me, Lord, out on the lonesome plains looking after the cattle . . ." It's lump-in-the-old throato time, folks, as Jimmy Dean — no, turkey, not the one who died in the car crash — recites "A Cowboy's Prayer" (from the album "A Country Christmas"). It's god-awful. You'll love it, especially since it's — gulp, throb, twitch — it's a Christmas record. On CBS Records and Tapes, a leisure service of Corporate U.S. Imperialism (the label that brought you The Clash). Watch for it!

ORDINARY MORTALS GOING ABOUT THEIR DAILY BUSINESS

BOOMTOWN RATS: Mary Of The Fourth Form (Ensign). While schnurdos everywhere are trying desperately to suss out whether The Boomtown Rats are actually punks or not, me and a bunch of other people are quite happy to dig 'em for the music, guffaw at Modest Bob Geldof's outrageously inflammatory

And first, the bad news . . .

SINGLES REVIEWED By CHARLES SHAAR
MURRAY

statements to the national press and groove on regardless. "Mary Of The Fourth Form" is an alternative version of their album track of the same name backed by "Do The Rat", "a popular stage number" (to use technical music business jargon) of theirs. "Mary" is a hard-charging Feelgoods-derived song about a horny, tantalizing schoolgirl which never descends into Strangled misogyny and is a nice enough single, but after "Lookin' After Number One" it's a pity that Geldof & Co. didn't have a chance to get into the studio and cut a Real Single as a follow-up. Still, like the voices go at the end of "Do The Rat": "But what has all this got to do with punk rock?" "Uh . . . ummm . . . nothing at all."

BOB SEGER: Turn The Page (Capitol). Introspective life-on-the-road song in a quiet mode far removed from the standard Detroit Demolition stuff for which Bob S. is — quite justifiably — renowned. Even the way Seger deglamorises the life he leads in fact glamorises it, but it's nice to know he cares about the way people see him. Never be a hit in a million years.

WINGS: Mull Of Kintyre (Capitol). Nice cover pic of the Isle of Davaar on the West Coast of Scotland. This is a tribute-in-song to the area in Argyleshire where Friendly Macca has his twee little hideaway. The Campbeltown pipe band, with whom Wings posed for the cover of The Campbeltown Courier all sound good, especially Johnny Sinclair, but the song sucks on ice.

MINK DEVILLE: Cadillac Walk (Capitol). It's easy to tell from this that Willy used to be blues singer as he slips and slides over a muted street beat.

Highly wonderful, and no relation to "Cadillac Moon" as performed on the "Live At CBGBs" album.

BOB MARLEY AND THE WAILERS: Jamming / Punky Reggae Party (Island). "Punky Reggae Party" was celebrated before it was even released because of all those references to The Clash, The Jam, The Slits, The Damned, Dr. Feelgood etc. etc., but it's more of a vague goodwill gesture to the punks than anything else, sort of like those "hello hippies, this is the spades calling" records that the likes of The Chambers Brothers used to make nine years ago. It's best to regard this Lee Perry/Bob Marley collaboration effort as just a welcome, worthwhile B-side to the excellent "Jamming" (from the "Exodus" album, natch) than any kind of cosmic statement of any kind. "Jamming" is great so if you don't have the album, lay some money down and get happy.

GREG KIHN: For You (Beserkeley). A pleasant wimpy bland-out of the Bruce Springsteen song from the "Greetings From Asbury Park, N.J." album. Less frenetic than our Brucie's version (didn't he do well, ayyyyy?), but Kihn's mild-mannered plaintive approach doesn't get in the way of the song — which is just fine — so it's therefore a good single. Okay?

PENETRATION: Don't Dictate (Virgin). Listen, so many of the punk records out this week sound unreal that I'm seriously beginning to wonder how many of them are real punk records and how many are gangs of jaded sessionmen gathered together for a lark. This one, happily, sounds properly orfennic and it's by far the best thing of its ilk this week. Set to a wild mutation of Alice Cooper's "I'm Eighteen" riff, singer Pauline Noname howls defiance in a suitably 'spiky/sensitive manner. On the basis of this and their So It Goes performance, Penetration have a degree of Klass which, if there's any justice, is going to whisk them out of the Punk Div 4 limbo and into a genuinely — ahem — creative situation. One of the week's better small ones.

LEO SAYER: There Isn't Anything (Chrysalis). Chord sequence along the lines of Brenda Holloway's "Every Little Bit Hurts" and then Leo comes in singing in his wino voice. I hate it, but it'll be number one in the States — since it sounds like "When I Need Love" and that was a massive hit. It'll have 'em swooning in the Bacardi and cokes in all those places where people with taste wouldn't be seen except dead or horny. File under "Foul".

DON McLEAN: Prime Time (EMI International). After the first few bars I thought maybe McLean had gotten off his lard-arse (hi, T.P. welcome to Cliche City) and finally written a rock and roll follow up to "American Pie". Two verses on and I realised he hadn't, but nice try all the same.

ROBIN TYNER & THE HOT RODS: Till The Night Is Gone (Let's Rock) (Island). God, bring these people over to do a bit of writing like and they're

■ Continues over page

THE BEST OF KILBURN & THE HIGH ROADS

FEATURING IAN DURY
(as he was at his best)

RELEASED INDEPENDENTLY THROUGH BONAPARTE RECORDS:

Five-track E.P. (Approx. playing time 15 mins.)
Only available through aware record shops.
— Pester your dealer for it . . . or we'll send it to you in the post:
Send 99 pence to:

BONAPARTE RECORDS LTD.,

DEPT BONE 1, 101 GEORGE STREET, CROYDON, SURREY.

off into the bleedin' studio with local pop groups before you can even start hassling them for their copy. The former MCS lead singer proves that despite his increasing age and girth he can still let fly when he opens his mouth even though on this showing The Rods can't muster the manic Detroit muscle of the original 5, though it might have helped if Dave Higgs had shown up at the studio to play some rhythm guitar underneath Graeme Douglas's scorching lead. The song gives your friend and mine Mick Farren a quick mention; old would-be hoodlums with frizzy hair and leather jackets stick together. Which reminds me

MICK FARREN AND THE DEVIANTS: Screwed Up (Stiff). An E.P., no less, headed up by the excellent title song in which Micky displays a dangerous tendency to sing in tune. Keep this up, Micky, and your career as a vocalist is through, mate. Admirable stun-blast guitar throughout from Larry Wallis: old would-be hoodlums in leather jackets stick together. Which reminds me old Alice Cooper song backed up by motley assortment of ex-Fairports under the guidance of famous nutter John Cale, produced by Joe Boyd. Noteworthy principally for the acute absence of the exquisite lead guitar part counterpointing the vocals. B-side features an amiable but underpowered version of Little Feat's "Easy To Slip." Quality Product; only slightly boring.

JULIE COVINGTON: Only Women Bleed (Virgin). Little lady with punk haircut sings

AMANDA LEAR: Blood And Honey (Ariola). ve like zer muzik! ve like zer disco sound OOOHHH!!!! (with a bit of trendy s&m thrown in for the chain gang out there). eradicate. D-E-S-T-R-O-Y!

YES: Going For The One (Atlantic). Starts out like bad Zeppelin. Gets worse when the chords start opening out. Lamentable.

GENERATION X: Wild Youth (Chrysalis). Ramalamafafafa! Another great Who record from the death-defying Gen X. Several degrees hotter than the last one and a cert for a gen-u-uine Big Hit. It's also specially noteworthy for the B-side "Wild Pub" — the first extant attempt to do a dub version of a rock and roll track (as opposed to clumsy rock reggae), something that a lot of people have been yakking about for quite some time, but Gen X are the first to actually do. Hail star!

ADVERTISING: Lipstick (EMI). A considerably better punkisation of old-style clever-clever cutesy-poo pop of the sparks ilk than — say — sailor's new single. i still think that the entire genre is a drag, but someone's got to do it. now about that P.A. system, boys.

BEST 12-INCH OF THE WEEK

DR. FEELGOOD: Baby Jane/Lookin' Back/You Upset Me Baby (U.A.). The A-side is a brave attempt at a choppy Wilko-style mean-machine riff with an acetaste Nick Lowe production (if only basher Lowe had produced "Sneakin' Suspicion" . . . sigh) from der new album, but the killer is the live version of B.B. King's "You Upset Me, Baby" with John Mayo whipping out classic Chicago lead and Brilleaux singing with unbridled ferocity over a real swinging jump beat, kids. B-L-U-E-S deluxe like I ain't heard from a British band in ages. If only they could get decent original material together, the Feelgoods'd be in like Flynn for the next five years.

STATUS SINGLES

ELECTRIC CHAIRS: uck Off (Sweet F.A.) Wayne County's band of well-behaved urban menaces extend their first toe into the dark and tepid waters of the British singles market with a tasteful little toe-tapper that you'll never ever hear on the radio unless someone gets Charlie Gillett too drunk to care about what'll happen to him the moment his show finishes.

"If you don't wanta fuck me baby, fuck off," intones Wayne sweetly over a marvellously rolling Chicago blues groove embellished by the piano of Squeeze's Jools Holland and the slashing guitar of Greg Van Cook. It goes into a standard punk rock "One-Chew-Tree-Faw" riff at the end and then back to the booze for the ride-out, and I love every minute of it. Anyone who's been teased lately will identify even more strongly with this than with "She's A Windup" or any of The Stranglers mutilation-revenge fantasies. It's almost in the Elvis Costello league except that it lacks the subtlety.

KILBURN AND THE HIGH ROADS: Best of Kilburn And The High Roads Featuring Ian Dury (Bonaparte E.P.) Why Kilburn And The High Roads Never Made It Part 17 (b); you couldn't bleedin' 'ear Ian bleedin' Dury on their bleedin' records, couldja squire (cough)? The songs are great — I think — but Dury's voice is so buried on things like "Rough Kids" and "Father" that he might as well have been in the khazi. Pity, but nowadays Ian Dury's making records where — cough — you can 'ear every wurd, guv'na.

CELIA AND THE MUTATIONS: You Better Believe Me. (U.A.). This is on a major label, so there's no reason for it to be a Status Single except that it's so dreadful that the only reason for having it is to be able to claim that you know one of the musicians and got it as a gift. Choose from Terry Williams (drums), Jean-Jacques Burnel (bass) or Terry Williams (drums) or — if you wanna push your luck — Celia herself. It's terrible, but we at Status Singles never let that get in our way.

LOCKJAW: Radio Call Sign/The Young Ones (Raw) Tepper and Bennett never knew what they started when they composed this innocent piece of teenage fluff as the title song for a 1961 Cliff Richard movie. First it was done hideous damage by Viv Stanshall last year (and Harvest have just released the single to prove it), then a group called The Secret had a whack at it, and now Lockjaw. It's on the B-side of a really lousy single and if it wasn't so badly played I'd think it was a Larf by members of some jaundiced Heavy Metal group.

THE NOW: Development Corporations (Ultimate). Well-intentioned identipunk. For specialists only (unless the lead singer gets on the cover of Snoups next week, is hailed as a genius, interviewed in Ritz, does the Peel show, gets on So It Goes, etc.)

JOHN COOPER CLARKE: Innocents E.P. (Rabid). Lester Bangs heard this and sez that it confirms his theory that punx are the real inheritors of the mantle of the Beat Generation (or something like that, anyway. I wasn't listening). Mr. Clarke is a witty and perceptive person, and I'd take him over Mr. John Dowie (his closest competitor) any day of the week. Plus Rabid Records have such a nice green label!!!

SOME CHICKEN: New Religion (Raw). More identipunk. Maybe it's because Some Chicken and Lockjaw share the same producer, or maybe it's because I'm finally going deaf, but it sounds as if they're the same group. Or maybe that's just where the '70s are at, maaaaaaannnn.

● For where to buy these obscure masterpieces, see Andy's Platters Stall, page 68.

"Well, they said anything could happen."

SMIRNOFF

VODKA

STEVE HOOKER and
THE HEAT
(NOW ON TOUR WITH WILKO JOHNSON)
NEW E.P. ON TAKE-AWAY RECORDS

—IF YOU DON'T DO THE BUSINESS
—I'M HOOKED
—ROCK 'N' ROLL DOCTOR
—MARIONETTE

Phone (0702) 614992
for details
Ask for Duncan or Trevor

Their second masterpiece this year.

"WORKS" VOLUME II

"Works" Volume II by Emerson Lake & Palmer

K50422

ALSO AVAILABLE ON ATLANTIC TAPES

Allman and Woman

Two the Hard Way

Cher & Greg Allman together... on tour and on record.

Allman and Woman On Tour

Nov. 17 Thursday	CARDIFF, UNIVERSITY
Nov. 19 Saturday	BIRMINGHAM, HIPPODROME
Nov. 20 Sunday	GLASGOW, APOLLO
Nov. 22 Tuesday	MANCHESTER, APOLLO
Nov. 24 Thursday	LONDON, RAINBOW

K56436

Available on Warner Bros. records.

special guests
SPLINTER
FEATURING THEIR NEW ALBUM
'TWO MAN BAND'

K56403

Available on Dark Horse Records

The MOTORS Show

N. Garvey

STUCK FOR a suitable opening gambit? You could start with the name, I guess.

Motors, right? Not a bad name, really — redolent of vim, pep, good clean fun — but all in a fairly non-specific way. An adequate enough moniker for either heavy-metal (motor-machine-grungerama) or punk (like a roadrunner going down the highway) purposes.

At its best though, it stands aces and eights away as the perfect handle for a 70's styled... uh... 'beat group'.

You remember beat groups, don't you. The term itself flourished up to and during the mid-60's before the advent of supergroups and that other trend which dictated firmly that all rock corporates wishing to display even one dint of musical integrity should henceforth refer to themselves as 'bands'. Progress and all that.

A few points about beat groups, though. They always had their members identified only by Christian names and usually favoured album cover photographs of the collective inoffensively mucking about while holding guitars.

Onstage, they had to be highly versed in knocking out veritable reams of pep-sated, energised dancing numbers, pausing only to dash off the obligatory 'wet' ballad and prefacing the pace-change with a tart "and now here's a slow one for the girls". Thoughtful types, these beat-group geezers.

And only now, after well over a decade of crusty obsolescence, here come The Motors single-handedly primed to dust the cobwebs off that hoary old term, and resuscitate it back to fab, fab, facile, fun-packed — uh, life. Is it details you want here? Look no further.

I mean, but just give the accompanying photo the proverbial once-over for starters. Sure, there have been collective mugs as nada-indented as those you're currently scrutinising but — fair do's — never has there been a group more visually unspectacular, less appealing to the mincers and that — I mean, I'm surprised you've even bothered to read the accompanying bumf, so unbearably faceless are my subjects.

AS IT happens, mind, the group that came before The Motors — from whence were spawned its two inspiration-forces — were even uglier than this current model. Ducks Deluxe weren't a beat group really, cloistered as they were most constructively within the whole pub-rock circuit from where, unless your name was Dr Feelgood, there was no immediate escape.

The Ducks were invented primarily as a vehicle for one Sean Tyla — something of a veteran music biz jack-of-all-trades who by the early 70's had found his spiritual home blagging his talents from the comparative security of Andrew Lauder's A & R offices at United Artists flanked by various members from the whole Help Yourself, Man, Brinsley Schwarz axis.

Slowly Tyla recruited ex-B Schwarz roadie Martin Belmont for lead guitar duties, ex-Man Ken Whaley on bass and a pretty-looking drummer name of Tim Roper. When Whaley wanted out after a few months of rehearsing, one Nick Garvey, an ex-public school lay-about with a slight weight problem and touring experience courtesy of a year just spent roading for then-malcontented U.S. exiles the Flamin' Groovies, appeared by chance, offered his services and after one curt audition, was hired.

This four-piece went on, under the managerial aegis of Dai Davies (at that point also handling the Brinsley Schwarz conglomerate) to sign with RCA, make a promising first album, tour Europe, usually supporting Lou Reed — all to ultimately little avail.

R. Branson

A second album was rush-recorded showcasing in part the addition of a fifth player, Scottish Andy McMaster on piano (whose occasional composing predilections brought the band the closest they ever came to releasing a pop single in "Love's Melody") as well as providing proof, in the fact that the record itself was a frustratingly lacklustre affair, that the Ducks Deluxe days were numbered.

Bassist Garvey and McMasters were the first to split, leaving Tyla's gargantuan egoistic bluster to call the shots for a time. Then RCA dropped the band, drummer Roper exited and Tyla was finally left with the business side of Ducks Deluxe — principally publishing deals backfiring, unpaid rent on the old communal gaff in Finchley etc — surrounding him in ugly, barbed-wire ribbons with only a small pocket of Gallic fanaticism centred in Paris to console him.

SLOWLY THE various constituents of the D.D.s found alternative employment. Tyla first set off on the long, gruelling road to self-establishment leading The Tyla Gang through conditions almost as dire as the various bands he formed using the name often sounded.

Only after two years of constant pub-circuit skiffing has he finally even been allowed one proverbial foot in the door, with his current band of ex-Winkies at last securing a decent record deal with Berserkley.

Guitarist Martin Belmont next surfaced, having settled in as joint lead guitarist in Graham Parker's raucously accomplished Rumour, sharing said duties alongside former employer Brinsley Schwarz.

Drummer Tim Roper — "the pretty one" — suffered the fate of De MOTORS. Pic: MATTHEW TAYLOR

By NICK KENT

accommodating the various whims of an American wife, slipping uncertainly from here to L.A. and back, seeking out that perfect gig which so far seems to have eluded him.

Bassist Garvey, arguably that group's most talented composer — though certainly as confused as he appeared accomplished — went on to lead a fairly uncertain, indolent existence, working on building sites for pin money before being lured back to the old blighted pub circuit as guitarist for The Snakes — a similarly motivated though unrelated enterprise to Joe Strummer's 101'ers in that they played a very fixed repertoire of Chuck Berry-type rockers plus a couple of Flamin' Groovies items in casual settings which unconsciously had them primed, by dint of their backgrounds, as hardy propagators of that curious animal 'squat-rock'.

The Snakes, though, weren't exactly anything more than a most casual and diffident occasional "fun" combo — hardly primed for future highlights — while the marked absence of Garvey originals in the repertoire forced those acquainted with his potential talents as a composer to feel most frustrated at the piddling nature of the whole endeavour.

Garvey, however, had a friend in one Richard Ogden, principally known as an independent publicist who goes out of his way to pick up the most critically-despised bands possible as clients (everyone from Black Sabbath to Smokie, though recently he did display the breathtaking good taste to refuse Uriah Heep).

Ogden, originally an old school-chum of Garvey's, had involved himself in the ex-Ducks bassist's past already, having introduced him to The Flamin' Groovies and their touring schedules.

Just as The Snakes were beginning to be considered by all involved as something of a waste of time and energy, Ogden appeared, having formulated a plan to manage a group from the primary stage of its inception right through to virtual world domination, intent on initiating Garvey into the venture as the creative centre-pin.

It was a long shot certainly, but after a suitable period of dithering, Garvey, by then on a frugal wage from his new manager, played Ogden some demo-tapes of songs he'd been working on with the Ducks' old pianist McMaster. Garvey himself describes the partnership, which has since gone on to provide The Motors with all their material, as a case of two pairs of ears being better than one in honing down nascent riffs, hook-lines et al to a suitable essence.

While in the Ducks, Garvey's songs were all adequate 12-bar rock 'n' roll retreads, followed by a period of solitary experiments with a Revox attempting cute Beatlesque tunes and harmonies.

"I could never hit upon a style or an attitude, though — certainly during that time anyway — that said anything at all while at the same time allowing me to feel comfortable performing it."

When Garvey struck up with McMaster again the Scotsman had just signed a publishing deal for which he was knocking out songs that possessed great hook-lines while never possessing any real tangible direction of style of their own. Garvey, though, found himself able to slot in with McMaster, adding and subtracting riffs and ideas from the first batch of songs they wrote together, from amongst which appeared most of the tracks later to find a home on the first Motors album.

In forming an actual performing unit, Garvey and McMaster didn't appear to meet that much opposition, though both figures made decisive volte-faces in choosing their particular musical roles in the band. Garvey, a former bassist by trade (though he claims that he'd scarcely ever touched a bass fret-board before the Ducks audition), decided firmly on playing guitar — or, more specifically, the aged six-string Rickenbacker that has shaped the whole skeletal fabric of the patented Motors sound, providing an effectively light-but-terse texture to off-set the bully-boy bluster of his and McMaster's joint vocals.

McMaster himself decided to turn to bass on the spur of the moment, having to be taught the instrument from Lesson One by Garvey, though this sudden change was apparently nothing new. McMaster had, in fact, only picked up on playing piano on the off-chance after being invited to join a band by fellow-Scot Frankie Miller.

■ Continues over page

Our loudspeakers are guaranteed to last longer than many groups.

NOW CLAPTON

GROUNDHOGS TO SPLIT!

McPHEE TIGHT-LIPPED AS WORRIED AIDES SPILL BEANS

PIE SPLIT

DEFINITE: SPLIT

FAREWELL

VINEGAR JOE SPLIT

Solo careers for Julie and Robert

SPLITS

MOTT

SPLITS

REBEL SPLIT!

TO SPLIT

Blue Jays

split up

Rainbow split debut tour

Mott split in two

How many groups do you know who have lasted more than six years? Practically every week there is news of another break up. We can't promise to keep you together forever but we do guarantee to keep your speakers together for a whole lot longer.

Every ATC speaker is built with edge wound copper voice coils to get more copper into the magnetic field and improve the conduction of heat away from the voice coil. Then every one is tested before it leaves the factory. Then every one is guaranteed for six years against defective materials and workmanship, even under the toughest road conditions.

If you already use our 12" speakers you will know how reliable they are. Now we are building 9" units to the same standards of quality and design.

So if your group intends to be around in another six years ATC will guarantee to be right in there with you.

Acoustic Engineers

Pier House Laundry, Strand-on-the-Green, Chiswick, London, W4 Tel 01-995 3654

Who else would you trust?

THE MOTORS

BRAM TCHAIKOVSKY
Pic: Matthew Taylor

From previous page

Finding a drummer, next, was easy enough as one Richard Slaughter had been living just down the road from Garvey, not to mention having played drums with the latter in The Snakes. So that iced it. A second guitar player, though, was more complicated and an initial choice which favoured some long-haired 200-notes-a-second whizz-kid over the later-appointed Bram Tchaikovsky caused much friction and frustration until the situation was thus corrected.

SO FAR, manager Ogden's masterplan has been adhered to almost down to the proverbial Tee. If the band took something longer than normal to gain the requisite instrumental ability and confidence for stage work, their studio endeavours have always been remarkably cock-sure, starting with the first demos straight through to the first Motors album wherein a corporate identity and patented sound was forged with remarkable alacrity.

Right now, two new songs have just been recorded not merely re-stating the established sound but adding an ever-more redolent toughness — and without the aid of producer "Mutt" Lange this time.

This has to be The Motors' high card up the sleeve after all. I can't think of a band in the last few years, barring the cartoon monomania of The Ramones, say, and The Sex Pistols' fearsome unit-work, who sound, straight off the top, like a fully cohesive group with their own sound and who, even if accusations of eclecticism are rife, still manage to sound much greater than the sum of their parts. The sound itself, is of the high-velocity pop-product range aimed at 'now' people, mating a 60's sense of textured embellishment — that Rickenbacker 'chime' predominates — against a relentlessly butch propulsion that could (and has, over and over again so far) been likened to Status Quo.

Only The Motors make that latter 'distaff' stifling combine sound like the weeds they really are by comparison.

Also as a live band they've finally seized their time, certainly when it comes to playing the clubs anyway. The only Motors gig I've witnessed — at a Top Rank in Wales' own capital city of the dead, Cardiff — was a quite disarming experience. The corporate 'punch' and highly accomplished arrangements noted on that first album were amped out at a quite miraculously adept pace. One couldn't help but be impressed.

The next stage — after conquering the British Isles and Europe — is America of course. P.R. Ogden, you see, has been linked professionally with Aerosmith's managers Leber and Krebs for some time now and it's more than apparent that he's been taking notes on exactly how New York's dynamic duo of rock management operate.

Ogden, mind you, has his shortcomings in this respect. A most unfortunate quote, for example, appeared in a Melody Maker news-story on the group a while back, calmly mentioning that 'his boys' would be pushed as a new wave band in England and a heavy-metal band in the States where an Epic/Virgin link-up has hastened the first album's release.

In today's tetchy faction-obsessed climate, a single quote of that nature could rob any band of solid bottom-line credibility, however excellent their product might sound.

Yet, over and above all that, The Motors' patent lack of commitment to anything beyond honing out good pop product with a sharp feisty sting to it, brings us right back to the old 'beat group' slot.

Fun is still most indubitably the watchword — no poe-faced teeth-gnashing, no blathering exhortations to riot-baiting and no soft centres either. Accomplished fun with a heady sting in every hook-line. Now all they need to work up for the set is a slow one... "for the girls in the audience".

N. Kent

THE WORLD OF POP AND ROCK

An exciting new book covering the whole spectrum of the pop and rock world.
Published by Macdonald in hardback at £2.50

THE HISTORY
Historical Background • The Rise of rock 'n' roll Giants of the Sixties • Superstars • Black Music

MAKING A RECORD
Inside Recording Studios • How Records Are Made Record Companies • Songwriters

THE BUSINESS
Promotion and the Press • How the Charts Work
Gigs and Touring • The Money Men • Life at the Top

POP CULTURE
Concerts and Festivals • Pop on TV and Films
Discos and Dancing • The Future of Pop • Disc Jockeys

'I sentence you to be flung on the deck and played to death.'

RICK WAKEMAN'S CRIMINAL RECORD

On A&M Records & Tapes. AMLK/CKM/YKM 64660

JENNY AGUTTER prepares for passionate horse-play in EQUUS. "She's the thinking man's calendar girl," says DICK TRACY, who wants to go on record as an Equus-supporter.

direction is a model of painstaking craftsmanship.

Equus might have made the home stretch but for Richard Burton's preposterous psychiatrist in residence, Martin Dysart.

Dysart engages considerable pathos as a character. By driving out Strang's demons, he receives them into his own psyche to become equally fascinated by the horse. At the same time he wrestles with his professional conscience about the pros and cons of "healing" Strang, of destroying the boy's only passion, of accepting what society judges "normality".

In other words, a lot of philosophical grist to chew. But this man Burton — to hear ponderously intoning some litany of pain over lunch with a woman friend is laughable, like hearing Hamlet over endless Barry White records.

His soliloquies are even worse — so relentlessly laden with word perfect dictaphone inflection that he manages to transform Dysart into some petty, petulant solipsist, some dreary little bourgeois tyrant obsessed with the hideously grandiose. A bad case of miscasting, I fear, especially in the light of strongly observed performances from Peter Firth as the boy, Colin Blakely and Joan Plowright as his parents.

Burton's lamentable lack of tact makes Equus what it need never have been: a play that should have stayed a play.

Angus MacKinnon

Draws (X)

Directed by Chuck Vincent
(Oppidan)

A THINNER concept around which to hang a film would be hard to find. Group a dozen or so comedy sketches together under the title Winner of 10 Academy Awards — the awards in question being, for example, The Squeaky Fromme Award for Sports Commentary (I think you have to be American to understand the joke there), which after a Pythonesque cartoon intro leads into a spoof about an Olympic Sniping competition where points are scored by gunning down hapless citizens.

Other targets for send up are Soap Opera, fly-by-night religions, Jaws, King Kong (in the awesome shape of King Dong), the Happy Hooker (here the Happy Cooker, who provides nourishment, literally, for a price) and the T.V. Game Show (where the contestants, in the words of D. Costello, trade in their baby for a Chevrolet).

The humour level is zany American, rather than anarchic British and the spoofing is straight out of the pages of Harvey Kurtzman's Mad magazine, though not as inspired. Don't be confused by the title Draws, which was the result of the Motion Picture Academy taking exception to the original title, and don't worry about seeing this film unless it happens to be on with something good — strictly low budget humour, unsuitable for those with a low boredom threshold.

Paul Rambali

Black Joy (X)

Directed by Anthony Simmons
Starring Norman Beaton
(Hemdale)

BLACK JOY is the first black British movie, but its significance doesn't extend a whole lot further than that.

It's a film that doesn't know how seriously to take itself, and as a result slides between gritty cinema verité and big screen sit-com in what approaches an unholy alliance of The Harder They Come and a black Likely Lads.

The story's simple, predictable even; hick country cousin (Spar, played by Trevor) steps off the plane from British Guyana and hits big city ghetto — Brixton — where he's rooked for everything he's got by loveable rascal crooks and is subsequently further initiated into the seductive mysteries of city life by conman/hustler/partner Dave (Norman Beaton), an almost Dickensian character who informs his protegee: "Every man has to have a speciality. My speciality is collecting social security cheques, smoking ganja, chasing pussy, and spreading universal joy." Philosophy t'raas.

The movie's been attacked by liberals black and white as confirming prejudice with its racial stereotypes — a bit like slugging Sieptoe and Son for its depiction of scrap dealers. They must have forgot to laugh. It's true that Black Joy largely bypasses black respectability (credit to it for that), but unfortunately it also glosses over many serious issues — the police, for example, are conspicuous by their absence.

Still, the film — made on a shoestring budget makes no great claims as a piece of socio-realism, and provides a standard of entertainment several notches above the sanitised likes of Car Wash. The soundtrack being so rigorously promoted on TV, incidentally, bears scant relation to what's actually in the movie. Worth checking out.

Neil Spencer

March or Die (A)

Directed by Dick Richards
Starring Gene Hackman
(Columbia Pictures)

DICK RICHARDS seems like a film maker much obsessed with the cinema's past. His Farewell, My Lovely paired Robert Mitchum and Charlotte Rampling against the Bogart and Bacall of The Big Sleep. Both films were based on Raymond Chandler thrillers, and Richards' emerged as not only a warm tribute to another celluloid era but also intriguing in its own right.

Sadly, March Or Die, which purports to be a French Foreign Legion movie after the manner of Morocco, Four Feathers and Beau Geste, fails on both levels.

Gene Hackman's tough American professional soldier is a strong and accomplished performance — and also the film's only saving grace. Even Hackman is at times rendered onedimensional by an unconvincing plot and leaden script.

In short, nothing coheres, least of all Catherine Deneuve's Beautiful Widow Among Fighting Men. Her convenient appearances on balconies at strategic moments are risibly absurd.

Despite authentic attention to detail (down to the last machine gun sight) and striking desert location, March Or Die soon spoils into crass and sentimental parody as it tries to reconcile nostalgia for Romantic bygones (The Legion as maligned but courageous misfits, honour among thieves, etc.) with contemporary ethics (The Legion as occupying colonial show of strength).

Events wheeze with crippling slowness towards The Final Battle. Hundreds of Arab tribesmen are brutally mown down. Hackman is despatched by a bullet to the heart, honour of a kind is restored on all sides, and Richards himself retires hurt (I hope) to make a better feature next time round.

Angus MacKinnon

GENE HACKMAN: "Zis is not good enough..."

'NEW YORK SHUFFLE'

6059 185

The new single from

GRAHAM PARKER AND THE RUMOUR

Marketed by phonogram

DR. FEELGOOD

A. BABY JANE
B. LOOKING BACK
UP 36332

Issued in a special full colour bag

LIMITED EDITION of 12" single with extra track
YOU UPSET ME BABY

Information CITY

EDITED BY FRED DELLAR

Rebels with new cause

WHAT'S HAPPENED to Jean Paul Crocker, Paul Jeffreys and Milton Reame James, the original members of Cockney Rebel? — RICHARD OSPEDALE, Coatbridge, Lanark.

● I dunno where Jean Paul Crocker has got to, but Jeffreys and Reame-James, who briefly formed part of Bebop De Luxe, now operate a band called Chartreuse which they describe as "A New Wave band with a difference". The line-up for this outfit is Reame-James (keyboards), Jeffreys (bass), Jeff Faulkner (lead guitar), Malcolm Ashmore (drums) and Rob Elliott (vocals). Faulkner and Ashmore were previously session-musicians who met Reame-James while he was producing his musical "Venus And Superdad", while Elliott, who's the brother of synthesiser-supremo Ken Elliott, was previously with Strider and Seventh Wave.

Though no albums by the band are available, Chartreuse's version of The Kinks' "You Really Got Me" was released as a single on the Kik label just a short while back.

COULD YOU list all the albums recorded by The Crusaders, including those made during the band's Jazz Crusaders period? — JOHN GIBSON, Godalming, Surrey.

● After receiving one or two similar requests, I grabbed the nearest copy of Jepsen's Jazz Records, plus a pile of Schwann catalogues, and — many hours later — came up with the following list of fax ... After cutting some sides as The Nighthawks for Pacific Jazz, Wayne Henderson (trombone), Wilton Felder (tenor sax), Joe Sample (piano), Roy Gaines (guitar), Jimmy Bond (bass) and Nesbert "Stix" Hooper (drums) became The Jazz Crusaders, recording their first album, "Freedom Sound" (PJ 27) in May, 1961. Though the band's personnel frequently changed — jazzers such as Joe Pass, Clare Fischer, Monk Montgomery, Leroy Venegar, Bobby Haynes, Larry Gaskin and others, all recorded as Crusaders at some point — the band continued to record for Pacific Jazz throughout the '60s, cutting "Lookin' Ahead" (PJ43 - 1962); "At The Lighthouse" (PJ57 - 1963); "Tough Talk" (PJ58 - 1963); "Heat Wave" (PJ87 - 1965); "Chile Con Soul" (PJ20092 - 1968); "Lighthouse '66" (PJ20098 - 1966); "Talk That Talk" (PJ20106 - 1966); "Festival Album" (PJ20115 - 1967); "Uh Huh!" (PJ 20175 - 1968); "Lighthouse '68" (PJ20131 - 1968); "Powerhouse" (PJ20136 - 1969); and "Lighthouse '69" (PJ20165 - 1969).

Then, following a "Best Of" on PJ20175, the band re-appeared on Liberty, providing that label with "Give Peace A Chance" (Lib.11005), while a Blue Note release, "Young Rabbits" (BN LA530-H2), provided a further glimpse at some of the material cut by The Crusaders during 1962-68.

Now a less jazz-oriented band and associated with the rock movement through appearances on such items as Pacific Gas And Electric's "PG&E Suite", Hooper, Sample and Co. moved on to Chisa and Motown, recording "Old Sox-New Shoes" (Chisa 804), "Pass The Plate" (Chisa 807), and "Hollywood" (MoWest 118), an "At Their Best" appearing on Motown 796). In 1972, Bob Krasnow signed the band to Blue Thumb, since when we've had "Crusaders I" (6001), "2nd Crusade" (7000); "Unsung Heroes" (6087), "Scratch" (6010), "Southern Comfort" (9002), "Chain Reaction" (6022), "Those Southern Knights" (6024), "Free As The Wind" (6029) and the inevitable "Best Of" (6027). All the catalogue numbers listed throughout are the original U.S. releases, the majority of the band's early releases being available on import only. However, all of The Crusaders' Blue Thumb sides are in the British catalogue, on the ABC label, and are readily available from your friendly neighbourhood record dealer.

WITH REGARD to your request for more info on the recordings of The Guess Who, I can list two albums you didn't mention, these being "Hey Ho" and "It's Time", both released on the Canadian Quality label. "It's Time" was the first album to feature Burton Cummings' vocals and was also the first listed as being by The Guess Who. "Hey Ho" being recorded under the name of Chad Allen And The Expressions. The personnel on these albums is Cummings, Bachman, Peterson, Jim Cale and some other turkey whose name I can't remember. I suppose I could list the producer and suchlike but they've 'local talent' and you've probably never heard of any of them.

LES WRIGHT, Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada.

● Thanks for the maple leaf-wrapped report on the early doings of Cummings and Co. But don't knock the local talent. I mean, any country that can produce Joni Mitchell, Oscar Peterson, Gordon Lightfoot, Hank Snow, Klaatu, Maynard Ferguson, Anne Murray, BTO, Chilliwick, Gino Vannelli, The Band, Neil Young, Mahogany Rush, Crowbar, Murray McLaughlan, Bruce Cockburn, Patsy Gallant, Margaret Trudeau and the entire cast of the RCMP can't be all bad.

COULD YOU tell me who produced Bob Dylan's "Hard Rain", Billy Swan's "I Can Help", Stealers Wheel's "Ferguslie Park" and Bruce Springsteen's "The Wild, Innocent And The E Street Shuffle" and "Born To Run"? The reason I'm asking is because I collect cassettes and the record companies that provided these particular releases didn't bother to list the producers' monikers on the inlay cards. — STEVE BERRY, Pontefract, W. Yorks.

● "Hard Rain" was produced by Dylan and Don DeVito"; "I Can Help" by Chip Young and Billy Swan; and "Ferguslie Park" by Leiber and Stoller. "The E Street Shuffle" was pieced together by Springsteen, Jon Landau and Mike Appel, while "Born To Run" provided work for Mike Appel and Jim Chetecos. It's noticeable that four out of these five releases are marketed here by CBS and says much about the way that company — and others — treat tape enthusiasts. After all, cassettes have now been around for a considerable number of years and it's surely about time that the manufacturers began providing tape buyers with the same amount of info on their inserts as record buyers receive on their album sleeves.

IS THERE a Genesis Fan Club in existence these days? I know there used to be one known as the Hogweed Youth Organisation (or something like that) but I think this folded around the time that Peter Gabriel left the band. — SMITH, Warmley, Bristol.

● No Genesis or Peter Gabriel fan club currently exists though an information service for both is operated by Geoff Parkin, 54A Elizabeth Street, London S.W.1.

CHARTREUSE: version of "You Really Got Me".

Frankie Miller's gotta new EP out called 'Frankie Miller...That's Who!' Three classic tracks, 'Jealous Guy/Fool in Love/Brickyard Blues,' plus the previously unrecorded 'Sailaway,' in a special black and gold bag. All for 75p.

So grab a copy now. And grab Frankie Miller on tour too:

NOVEMBER: 10th, Lanchester Poly, Coventry; 11th, Newcastle Polytechnic; 12th, Birmingham University; 14th, Swansea University; 15th, Top Rank, Cardiff; 16th, Liverpool University; 18th, Bristol University; 19th Bradford University; 20th Pavilion, Hemel Hempstead; 23rd, Lancaster University; 24th, Town Hall, Middlesbrough; 25th, Spa Royal Hall, Bridlington; 26th, Sheffield University; 30th, Leeds University.

Get yer hands on Frankie Miller's seven inch one.

Chrysalis
Records & Tapes

Nazareth

Hot Tracks

in the charts

ON THE ROAD

Nov.30th - Apollo, Manchester.

Dec.2nd - Apollo, Glasgow.

Dec.3rd - New Theatre, Coventry.

Dec.4th - Rainbow, London.

Glad to be back

EXPECT NO MERCY

IT'S CLOSING time in the gardens of the west, but in its bed the rock and roll terminal case rails feebly for another shot to prolong its better-than-oblivion agony. As the life-blood-belief drains away with every betrayal, the gimmick gets wackier. Surfing, flower power, bisexuality, nihilism.

"Bring on the nubile!" chant the students of Sheffield University as The Runaways set up. These young princes are typical victims of the majority-rule Runaways reaction — the nudgenudge smudgesmudge of spiritually impotent old men/boys. Nearby stands an atom of that tiny but fanatical clique who view Kim Fowley as the Second Coming and The Runaways as logical heir to Andy Warhol's soup-cans in the exploitation-as-art-form market. Except a soup-can was never such a threat as Joan Jett.

Threat? You bet. It's logical for girls to grovel in the mezzanine while the stud struts his stuff up there — in our minds and on the stage. He's on top in a manner that the staunchest missionary would admire.

But boys make lousy audiences because they won't ever just lie back and enjoy it. They can't weep and plead and wet themselves — that would be role-reversal-rape. So devaluation is employed in place of awe, ridicule for adoration i.e. "Bring on the nubile!" (a favourite of the Sheffield academics). "Get 'em off" ad infinitum.

Relax, guys — them's just guitars in those girls hands, not meat cleavers. You'll go home intact.

OF COURSE, heavy-petting halfpuffs of young men to a pulp was just a twinkle in Kim Fowley's eye when The Runaways played their first gig ever on top of an apartment house back in '76.

Five hand-picked pieces of young female flesh — who could better chronicle getting old and bored in hothouse California, where to be natural is to have a very clever make-up artist? The girls acted dirty until they got a recording contract, whereupon they zipped up their lurex catsuits and cut an album.

"The Runaways" was cute, catchy and just pretentious enough to be readily acceptable. They sang about sex, though always through a veil of vague crassness that Barbara Cartland would be hard-pressed to class as explicit. Hyped as rebel queens, The Runaways were re-vamped smut-innuendo, flinging around phrases like "I'm cookin' like an oven" and "Oh my baby you're a hurricane." Cherie Currie does a fair bit of gargling while Joan Jett's aspirations to cool only serve to make her small voice sweeter, especially on the trashy soap-opera "Dead End Justice."

Their second album, "Queens Of Noise," was a fat pain. By some miracle Cherie had incorporated the soul of a 27-year-old topless waitress into the body and snottiness of a 17-year-old brat, the result of which was a voice full of overkill and affectation, and a penchant for torch songs.

Sooner or later the serious-minded Runaways kissed off the corset, along with straight-'A' student dumb Jackie Fox. They showed no such taste in dealing with Mr. Fowley, and their third album almost chokes on its own bile.

THE BLONDE Runaways are mildly attractive, girls you might look at twice if they encouraged you excessively. Lita is loud, Sandy is tough and Vickie is watchful.

Joan Jett is at once the friendliest and most impressive Runaway; small, pale, round-limbed, a tyrannical teenage complexion never detracting from her beauty. She cruises on her nerves singing snatches of Sex Pistols songs and moving fast with long lowered lashes.

Occasionally she recalls standard answers and uses them expertly; mostly she sprawls in an armchair, alien, off stage. The Buzzcocks said it for a whole lifetime of glitter-kids: "Always anticipating revelry!"

A Runaway in our hotel room in the midnight hour? My fiancé and I raise alternate eyebrows, recalling chaperone/bodyguard revelations of other Runaway jaunts. When chief hustler Smythe comes in to request that Joan accompanies the rest of the band to dinner with some local big-shots, she smiles and shrugs and shakes her head. "I'm not moving."

She has probably done most things that the modern California girl lingers

JOAN JETT. Pic: CHALKIE DAVIES

GENDER AND OTHER TRIVIA

Trouble with being a female rock 'n' roller is that male audiences just won't lie back and enjoy it. They seem to feel there's some kind of threat involved. JULIE BURCHILL talks to The Runaways' JOAN JETT and expounds on the theory.

with, but no reaction or attitude exposes her as the jaded, world-weary, willing victim of capitalism's malaise that other scam might persuade you. In her case, familiarity seems to have bred curiosity as opposed to contempt.

Do you get bored a lot, Joan?
"Not when I'm on the road. I don't.

I love seeing different things, staying in different places. I don't get bored much at all."

A lie of denial could never be so casual. I remember what Fowley once said of Joan and cohorts: "They are all just assholes who didn't understand the hustle." How much longer does he get to keep his teeth in your necks, Joan?

"We're in the process of splitting now. Kim's had offers from people like Sinatra. He wants to be where the money is, and I respect him for it."

Joan Jett is very American, and paradoxically very moral. She cusses The Damned, sneers off The Strangers and makes a damning judgement on a Kiss.

Joan Jett is the only girl I have seen transcend gender trivia on Sunday night at the Hammersmith Odeon. I thought she was trying to be a boy until I realised that this was no male-impersonation, but pure power, the property of no category. Walk on the audiences' hands? She could have walked on their heads.

"People think I'm really hard, tough, but I can be . . . romantic, I guess. I wrote 'Wait For Me' for this person I really cared about — called him up and read it out. I was crying and stuff. Then I put the phone down."

Neophyte hard — but, singing L.A.'s praises: "The streets are ruled by gangs — bunches of bull-dykes and Mexicans. And ten-year-old hit-men. The police think everyone's a runaway . . ." She stops, unsettled by her own humour . . . no, a real runaway, and if they see a car with a girl in it they'll take you in, beat you up . . . our gun-laws are all wrong."

"Los Angeles kids take downers. It's speed in England, right? I used to take downers to go to school when I was 13."

You used to dance at Rodney Bingenheimer's English Discotheque.

"There'll never be ANYTHING like Rodney's again . . . no place where you can be so INDIVIDUAL. 'Hellraiser' and 'Ballroom Blitz' . . . 11-year-olds in silver mini skirts screwing in the bathroom. You could be completely INDIVIDUAL, do ANYTHING, and people would never put you down. Punk's coming from where glitter was coming from."

Or rather, glitter was the acclimatisation to big-business boredom, with baubles, bangles and beads to ornament the apathy. The final fling before the solid emptiness of now, the final con-nihilism as industry.

"I saw Iggy Pop when Blondie toured with him. I'd never seen him before. He looked fine, dancing and stuff. Then later, Debbie and me were talking to him back at the hotel when Cherie walked in and sat on the floor. And you know how Cherie is like OBSESSED with Bowie? She kept asking 'Iggy, can you introduce me to Bowie?' Around the sixth time he turned on her and said 'If you want to be aggressive, Cherie, I'm not gonna be your pimp.' He really took her to pieces."

As Cherie might have done to The New Runaways, had not the Whiskey waitress intercepted three ashtrays the night the band flaunted corset-print T-shirts and sang a caterwauling "Cherry Bomb" — a graceless gesture also employed in their latest tour.

"Cherie likes soft music, not rock and roll, and besides she has this thing about being a singer . . . vibrato and stuff. But she really wanted to be in the band, and she's really, really stunning-looking . . . she's going to tour Japan soon, she's very popular there. The blonde hair, you see — she dyes it almost white. But first her twin goes there — she's cut a disco album for Phonogram."

The Cherie and Marie show?

"They're identical. When the band first got popular, people would run up to Marie and ask for her autograph, and she'd sign Cherie's name . . . she was really jealous."

"When The Runaways toured Japan, we appeared on a TV show which is like the equivalent of our Johnny Carson show, and we had to walk down all these steps, live. Lita and Sandy were at the bottom when all this dry ice appeared, and Jackie stopped just in front of me and Cherie. So Cherie says 'Move, bitch!' and shoves her. And Jackie slides right to the bottom of these steps — live — in front of millions of Japanese."

"The final thing was when Cherie did that photosession — one day I just picked up this magazine and she's sat on this really green grass in her corset with this look on her face like a . . . like a DOG. And another picture on the back. THE RUNAWAYS in huge letters on the front. We don't need it."

"But things have changed now. When I was with Cherie I was just totally another person. None of the band would talk to us, so our manager split us up. And straightaway I was myself again, getting rowdy and drunk and stuff. Cherie made me much more . . . sophisticated; I think."

Joan Jett is the world's last rock and roll star.

Watching The Runaways play would be second best only to admitting that (as Kim said) "Rock and roll is dead," and calling it a day.
Julie Burchill

Move onto Cherry B Long

Cherry B long with lemonade and lots of ice

Cherry B long with tonic and lots of ice

Cherry B long with soda and lots of ice

Cherry B long on the rocks with plenty of lemon

Drink it long

Fabulous T-shirt offer

You can have a Cherry B T-shirt just like the one in the picture for only £1.50 (including postage and packing) and two Cherry B foil bottle tops! Cherry B T-shirts come in three sizes: small, medium and large. All you have to do is complete the coupon and send it off with your cheque/postal order made payable to Showerings Ltd., together with 2 Cherry B foil bottle tops, to the address given. Fill in the coupon below and sign and get into Cherry B now!

Send the completed Order Form together with your remittance to: Showerings Ltd., Cherry B T-shirt Offer, Kilver Street, Shepton Mallet, Somerset BA1 5ND. Please allow 28 days from the date of posting your application for delivery. If you have a complaint, please write to the Cherry B T-shirt Offer at the above address. This offer will remain open only while stocks last, or until March 31st, 1978, whichever is the earlier.

SMALL	MEDIUM	LARGE

Please send me Cherry B T-shirt(s) fill in amount and size required.

I enclose my cheque/P.O. for £ and Cherry B foil bottle tops, representing £1.50 and two foil tops for each T-shirt.

NAME (BLOCK CAPITALS PLEASE)

ADDRESS

I am 18 years of age or over and resident in the U.K.

SIGNATURE

Cherry B

SUPER FAB COLOURING COMP.

Affix this to the back of your colouring.
NME/RUBINOOS COLOUR COMPETITION
 Free Entry Form
 Post to: NME/Rubinoos Colour Competition,
 55 Ewer Street, London SE99 6YP.

Name..... (BLOCK CAPS)

Address.....

Age.....

I declare that this entry is my original work.

Signature

Entries must be received by December 5, 1977.

(Move over Roger Dean & tell Hipgnosis the news!)

FED UP WITH persistently being fined for defacing posters? Have your talents as a graphic artist gone unrewarded? Sometimes felt like cutting off your ear? Maybe £200 would help ease your frustration?

Home Of The Hits — Beserkley Records — will shortly be airlifting The Rubinoos into Britain to back up the release of the group's first album "The Rubinoos" (a hot import).

As The Rubinoos' first UK single "I Think We're Alone Now" recently skated the charts, Beserkley are looking around for some nifty artwork for the follow up sleeve.

This is where all you budding graffiti artists come into the picture.

What you have to do is to colour in this drawing of The Rubinoos. Or, if you prefer, make another line drawing to colour so long as it's based on the above illustration.

Any medium can be used: crayons, felt tip, oils, water, colours, ketchup, blood, filth.

So what can you hope to score for your artistic endeavours?

First Prize: The best entry will be used for the front sleeve of The Rubinoos' next single, and Beserkley will pay the winner £200 — that's right, two hundred greenbacks for the use of the artwork. Not only that, if you've got natural flair the winner may be asked to produce various other artwork and designs for Beserkley Records.

Second Prize: The runner-up will cop a night out with The Rubinoos when they are in London, free tickets to one of their concerts, a copy of their album and the possibility of an opportunity to see the band record.

As a consolation prize, copies of The Rubinoos' album will be awarded for the 25 most original runners-up.

So stop moaning about how nobody ever gives you a break. Your future is in your hands, start daubing pronto.

RULES:
 The Rubinoos/NME Colour Competition is open to all readers in the British Isles (including Northern Ireland) except employees and their families of IPC Magazines, Beserkley Records and the printers of NME.

All entries must be accompanied by an entry form. The decision of the NME/Beserkley judging panel and the editor of NME is final. No entries will be returned. No correspondence can be entered into.

Closing date for all entries is December 5, 1977.

STEELEYE SPAN. THE NEW ALBUM.

'STORM FORCE TEN' IS BREATHTAKING

Steeleye's new album 'Storm Force Ten' is out now. And so is their new single, which you won't find on the album, a track called 'Boar's Head Carol', backed with 'Gaudete'/'Some Rival'.

What's more, don't miss Steeleye Span at the Hammersmith Odeon, Dec. 17th.

Chrysalis
 Records & Tapes

The Latest Rod Stewart Album . . .

THERE WAS AN INDICATION THAT Rod Stewart would prove to be as much a gamesman when dealing with the media as he is on the football field even before the reporter joined the singer's American tour.

The assignment was explicit: fly over to Washington on Friday, see The Concert the following day, travel on to New York on Sunday with Rod and do the interview, and then either return to Britain on Monday or catch another gig in Buffalo before leaving.

But on the flight out of London his travelling companion, tour photographer David Steen, said he doubted that the reporter's plans would go as smoothly as anticipated. Steen, his tongue loosened by duty free gin and brandy, began to recount his unpredictable and often hilarious dealings with Rod.

There was one particular experience that a year ago had annoyed him, but which he now related with some amusement, illustrating the kind of charades Rod enjoys playing.

At some expense he had been employed to fly over to Stewart's Hollywood home and shoot some glamour pictures for world syndication. For five days he patiently waited to get Rod in his viewfinder, but the man always found some excuse to leave the sessions until another day. Eventually, exasperated by the delaying tactics, Steen threatened to fly home immediately if Rod didn't agree to pose.

The ultimatum was treated seriously, and preparations for the session began.

First two girl hairdressers from Teasy Weasy's went out to the house to style the Stewart barnet, doubtless under Britt's steady eye. While one girl snipped off the split ends, the other brushed the shredded hair off his clothing.

Afterwards Rod retired to his dressing room, spruced himself up in an expensive suit and then headed back into the grounds where Steen had positioned his cameras. Then, just as he strolled past his swimming pool he accidentally slipped and toppled into the water.

Soaked to the skin, his costly hairdo now a bedraggled mess, Stewart heaved himself on the side of the pool and with a mischievous grin told the photographer: "Looks like we'll have to do the photos tomorrow, mate."

OF COURSE that was an incident in Rich Rod's social heyday, the reporter reminded himself — a period when Rod and Britt were The Glamour Twins, seemingly intent on establishing a high society image, with rock 'n' roll relegated to the position of being nothing more than a sordid financial income to support their high living.

Since then things have changed. Britt was two-timed and subsequently stamped out of Rod's boudoir and into the law courts with a £6 million claim for alleged services rendered.

Then there was the new album, "Foot Loose & Fancy Free", which gladly reminded the reporter of Stewart's early recordings.

With some conviction Rod had taken his powerfully talented band into the studios and successfully created a brew of rock 'n' roll so potent in sexual fantasy that it strutted clean across the turntable with images of whorly LA ladies wearing hot pants and cracking black whips.

His determination to establish himself as one of rock's greatest singers was totally convincing, and the set is equally cathartic emotionally.

The bitterness over Britt's petulant hostility manifested itself in "You Got A Nerve", yet he also sang one of his most poignant love songs, "You're In My Heart", and included, "If Loving You Is Wrong", on which the theme of a married man with a mistress must have been reflective in the jovial irony Rod saw on the situation of being caught messin' round with another girl while Britt was away.

By the time the reporter came to the final statement of the album, "I Was Only Joking", he was completely impressed by Stewart's lyrical sincerity, and believed that, at last, the man was totally dedicated to his music again.

The New York gig was great - almost as good as the Scotland - Wales game. Me and the lads had a right loon...

This song especially seemed as autobiographically frank as "Every Picture Tells A Story", with Rod projecting himself as some street corner Valentino. But the final verse was perhaps the most significant revelation, suggesting Stewart no longer needed the artifice of posh threads or the assumed breeding of a socialite.

He remembered the lines clearly. "Quietly now while I turn the page / Act one is over without costume change / The principal would like to leave the stage / The crowd don't understand."

When told by Stewart's PR, Tony Toon, that the interview had to be delayed until Monday because Rod was flying to Florida on the Sunday, the reporter reminded himself of the album's contents. He even dismissed the ludicrous idea that the delay was some kind of sport the Stewart camp indulged in for on tour entertainment. A week later he decided it was at that meeting with Toon in a Washington hotel suite that the whole publicity pantomime began.

EVERYTHING ON "Foot Loose & Fancy Free", even the title, indicated that Rod Stewart was once again living the rock 'n' roll lifestyle, and this was compounded by the activities surrounding the concert at the Capital Centre on the Saturday night.

The entourage of band members in flowing black Zoro capes, Rod's personal masseuse, his wardrobe and make-up girl, publicist, personal manager and media people, entered the 20,000 seater sports centre in a fleet of sleek limos.

In the dressing room a rough mix of the album blasted from a stout Sony placed on the table top.

Stewart was already dressed for the gig in a black leotard with glass sequins down the side of the legs. He greedily slurped at a large glass of port and brandy; cocked his leg while the wardrobe girl made last-minute repairs to his costume; played a recording of the commentary to the match in which Scotland finally qualified for the World Cup by beating Wales; posed for a few photos for Alan Ballard from The Sun; then put on the "Foot Loose", cassette again.

"Watcha think of the album, then?" He bawled at the reporter, his heavily made up face only inches away as he crouched down. And when told it was great he jogged away, apparently satisfied with the answer. Five minutes later Stewart and his six musicians trotted up to the stage still hidden from view by the white theatre curtains. They were

Here's me doing the ol' hands, knees, bumps-a-daisy on stage - well you know what THAT'S about by now. It don't half shag you out though - I was as knackered as a Don Revie England squad. Thank God for the LIMOS!

An ol' Roller won't let you down.

May", just over half way through the set, that the mayhem intensified. Amidst the yelling, cheering, dancing crowd, one girl at the front pulled her skirt to her waist in an attempt to catch Rod's eye. At the side of the stand a fearful blonde leaned over the railings desperately waving a white silk handkerchief whenever he moved in her direction.

When that failed to show results, she pulled out her boobs and waved them instead. But not even the heavies could forcibly restrain the jubilant mob when the band walloped into "Stay With Me", and Stewart booted footballs at the thousands of grasping, fighting hands. The frenzy was so total that the reporter wondered how they'd escape from the stadium without injury.

However, the getaway was well rehearsed as the band's playing. As soon as they'd completed their second encore the curtains closed, and a recording of "You're In My Heart" fooled the audience for a valuable minute as they waited for Stewart to reappear. In that time the band and leader were in the limos racing out of the building.

By the time the eager fans had reached the massive metal doors sealing off the backstage road, the cars were a mile from the venue.

Even so, an assortment of fans, groupies and rock 'n' roll pimps did make it back to the hotel. And after a meal in the restaurant and a few hours of boozy partying, Rod was later discovered in his room with half a dozen young things all willing to undress and sleep with him.

He chose one and the rest were told to leave. Funny thing is, she was never named in the nationals as his latest girlfriend.

NOW IT'S a known fact Rod's not with Britt and he's on the road on his own again. Carmine Apicce explained, "All the heavy, horrible groupies are going to be out looking for him."

Whether it was the predatory pussycats that scared Stewart off or some other reason, he disappeared on the Sunday and was not seen again by the reporter for two days.

Any plans for the interview had once again to be postponed, the pantomime dame Toon told him. The Buffalo gig was pulled, and Rod travelled not to Florida but New York, where his throat had to be nursed back to health after the torturous rigours of two weeks on the three month coast-to-coast tour.

"I think he'd rather be on the road with somebody he loved," Carmine mused aloud.

"When he was with Britt he used to get to sleep earlier and his voice was always in good shape because of it. That's why he went to New York, because he knew if he'd been with the band he would have been up partying."

There were 36 concerts to go and the reporter remained on the tour for another four. It was obvious to him that Washington was the only example of traditional and predictable rock 'n' roll lunacy, because on the days before conquering New York the band deliberately subdued themselves.

"We're building ourselves up for

TONY STEWART makes the Atlantic Crossing to queue up for a Night On The Town down Millionaire's Row (oops, sorry, Gasoline Alley) with ol' Smiler himself.

JOE STEVENS proves Every Picture Tells A Story. Don't it?

by musicians with a hit single ("You're In My Heart") and the capacity to sell out any of America's biggest venues.

There were nerve-racking flights on their private plane between towns, with the cabin video showing a film of the RSB playing four tracks off the album. Drunken meals in an Irish restaurant; long raps with Carmine, Jim and guitarist Gary Grainger, who revealed that when Rod contacted him to join the band he was down on his musical luck and had resorted to driving lorry loads of bananas round London shops.

But for all the friendliness they would never reveal how much they were being paid, or anything about Stewart's private life. Above all they had total respect and admiration for the singer which even transcended their own ambitions.

"I've never had any real driving desire to walk out on the street and hear people say, 'That's Gary Grainger', the man in question said. "I'm pretty certain I wouldn't like that."

Rod's still the main man. If Gary Grainger was playing Philadelphia no one would give a shit. They'd all go bowling or stay on and watch the telly. Because Rod's here it's giving me a chance to go on the stage with him, ponce about and even get drunk or something," he laughed.

Even Carmine, who, because he's American and formerly of Vanilla Fudge, Cactus and BB&A, has a strong following over there, claimed he was content to be a sideman.

"When you first come into the business", he explained, "and you're beginning to make it, that's when you have your ego trips. After you've gone through that, and the longer you're in the business, the more humble you get."

They never talked about upstaging the star, not even Billy Peck who was first recruited because Stewart saw him blow Chuck Berry off-stage, but instead enthusiastically discussed Rod's lyrical strength on the album. As the reporter later wrote in the concert review from New York, their collective aim is to become the world's greatest rock 'n' roll attraction.

"Rod's done it all," Carmine commented. "He's got to set a goal." Like, the reporter encouraged him, becoming bigger than even the Stones?

"Without a doubt," the drummer stated simply.

"He's always seemed to be in competition with them. Maybe it's because Woody's in the Stones and he's got to stay one step ahead of him."

"But I think he just wants to be bigger than anyone, because he feels he can do it at this point, and he's got the best of everything."

That's why this American tour is so long; why they half prepared the next studio album; and why they propose to play Wembley Stadium with Fleetwood Mac next year.

"They're talking about making that the biggest thing that ever happened in England," he said.

"If everything goes off the way it's planned, then I can definitely see next year being Stewart's biggest year. It'll be like," he chuckled smugly. "Stewartmania!"

WHEN NEW YORK fell to Stewart after their first concert there on the Thursday night, the nervous tension of a band waiting to devour the whole Big Apple lifted.

Two nights earlier they'd played the Philly Spectrum but, by their own admission, turned in only a mediocre set. Rod had immediately flown off, followed the next day by the band and media people. The reporter had then spent a fruitless two days pestering The Dame for the interview, complaining that meetings with Stewart were being continually blown out.

"Be patient," Toon advised somewhat petulantly, although the writer had now been around for six days, in which time two British nationals had managed to file copy.

How appropriate it was in that publicity pantomime for the reporter and NME photographer Joe Stevens to tumble down the steps on the hotel dining room exactly on the stroke of midnight. Between them, his arms thrown around the lad's necks, Rod Stewart the elusive superstar, dangled like a pet chimpanzee.

"You realise," Toon hissed, "that we've refused to see John Rockwell of The New York Times so that you can do your interview."

In the restaurant the honoured reporter saw to his horror that at least 20 people were seated around the long table, obviously under the impression this was a celebratory meal with Rod. Yet they were ignored for two hours as the Conquering Hero warmed to a talk session, going to the considerable length of seating the reporter next to him, much to the disgust of the pretty young lady who found herself displaced.

And his companion in New York, Bebe Buell, wasn't too delighted by the intrusion as she clung possessively to her escort's arm, frequently attempting to interrupt the interview, and eventually having to content herself with nicking the reporter's cup of tea.

Such gestures revealed a lot. Stewart, however, was in an exuberantly talkative mood.

One of his greatest talents, seldom mentioned in articles, is that rare ability to be the calm, tartly superstar at one moment, and then suddenly revert to his roots as one of the boys.

With some admiration the reporter thought that Stewart could mix it well with the plebs, but he also wondered which facade was the most accurate reflection of the singer.

"I tell ya," he nudged the journalist excitedly, "I wish I'd formed this band three years ago. They're so fuckin' good."

"Ron Delsener, the guy who owns the Garden, came up to me tonight and said, 'I have never seen anything like it. I've seen the place jump, but I've never seen the press box jump'."

"If I haven't got the best rock 'n' roll band in the world, then I don't know who has."

Yeah, I enjoy my job - being a rock star and everything. Here's me footloose & fancy free with the birds. Never a dull moment what!

Well - not many! I like this one - the star struck tragic lover pose is very fetching.

"And I think, unless I'm wrong, there's an incredible love between the seven of us. And admiration. When we go out to a gig it's like Scotland walking out to play England."

"It was nothing like that with The Faces. We always used to be hours late. This band pisses all over them. You know that, and I'd like you to say that please."

"Like in The Sun the other week I said there are two loves in my life: no women, just the Scotland football team and my band. And I want them to be recognised because they've given me so much power."

"Old Gary," he said with fondness, "used to sell bleedin' bananas. All of a sudden he's at Madison Square Gardens. Phil Chen's never seen a bigger audience than one at the Marquee."

"I saw them tonight before we went on — dry flipped and nervous."

"I'm not going to take any credit for the fact I knew a few names and I put them together," Stewart explained with unexpected modesty.

"And I've said it a million times before, it's more luck than judgement."

"But I'm so proud of them all. It's a great team, and I really hope it stays like that. I hope it doesn't get all silly like The Faces did, where everybody thought they were stars."

Such comments proved that Stewart was a man of extremes. His zealous praise for something he liked was equalled only by his excessive malice for something else he disliked.

During the interview the reporter noted innumerable desirous remarks by Rod: a casual mention of attending a Queen concert at Earl's Court was underlined by the fact it didn't sell out; when he talked about plans to call the new album "Boys Will Be Boys" he said the title had to be dropped because of "silly bollocks" Roger Daltrey releasing a set called "One Of The Boys".

On the other hand, Graham Parker and The Rumour were treated to a half-hour appraisal, his enthusiasm for them such that he considered recording several of Parker's songs on "Foot Loose". Eventually he stood up and shouted across to manager Billy Gaff that the gig up should be invited to play the Wembley gig.

"Mind you," Stewart added, sitting down, "he's probably an awkward bastard and won't accept it. But, if he knows I'm shouting for him —"

The writer didn't have to ask what Stewart's opinion of the new album was; he was told quite forcefully it was the best yet — although later he revealed doubts that had preceded the recording sessions.

"You know how good this band is," he stated, "and we have managed to get it on record. Before we started recording that was always a panic. We'd proved ourselves on stage, played Olympia, wiped out the whole myth of The Faces, and I wondered if I could get them on record."

Yet the suggestions that he seemed to be deliberately rejuvenating the spirit of his early albums, such as "Gasoline Alley" and "Every Picture Tells A Story", was met with an immediate denial.

"You must know this by now," he informed the journalist, "There is no intention to capture anything when you make an album. All you have to do is write the best songs you can and play with the best band you can get."

"Now, it just so happens I've got the best band, and it's a great time in my life to write great lyrics."

The reference of course was to the split with Britt, which happened during the recording of the set. Perhaps it says something about Stewart's character that instead of having a negative affect on his writing, it helped him come up with what are arguably the best songs he has written in six years.

It was Carmine who had, a couple of days earlier, told the reporter: "You can hear a lot of the aggression he was going through with the whole Britt scene in the lyrics. So maybe it was all the better for the album that he went through all that."

"If he'd just kept flowing along, him and Britt being totally in love and everything, it would have been a totally different groove on the lyrics."

The same thought occurred to Stewart.

"It could have been a bad time," he remembered. "The funny thing about it is that me and Britt were really tight when I thought of the title, and then all of a sudden it's all falling into place."

"All of those songs that I'd written, like 'Born Loose' saying 'just let me out of everything, no responsibility, fidelity don't mean a thing to me', and 'I Was Only Joking', were very sexual songs, and then we broke up."

Continued over page

● From previous page

Because of the songs?

"No, no, no..."

Because while writing the songs you suddenly realised you wanted to finish with the girl?

"Yeah. That's the way it was. The songs came first."

"I didn't actually think, 'Well, I'll put it in the songs and hope she hears them and knows what I mean'."

"But I mean," he laughed boisterously, "it's ironic that the album title and the songs came out as they did. I don't think people are going to believe it's genuine. They'll probably think we're going to get back together and drag the albums out."

He maintained, though, that his feelings expressed in song were completely sincere.

"I've never owned up so much as I have done with three or four tracks on the album. But the thing is, I don't really want to talk about it, because it's up to the people to buy it."

"The worrying thing is that this is the only album I will play. I'll listen to it and I think, 'Shit, that's good'."

"I can't listen to all the other albums I've done... so it might be a bad omen. All of a sudden I might realise that I've overdone it. I hope not. I'm desperately proud of that album."

THE SELF-doubts contained in those statements didn't pass unnoticed, and at times they seemed like some elaborate play on Stewart's part to draw sympathy and reassurance from the reporter. It was doubtless all part of Stewart's renowned astuteness at manipulating the music press.

The reporter was never quite sure whether or not Rod was setting him up in the same way that he'd been kept waiting for the interview. To pursue this matter was difficult in the circumstances: Rod frequently

CHUCKIN' OUT TIME
(Specially for that ol' bore TONY STEWART why didn't NME send ol' STEVE CLARKE?)

digressed on to the subject of football, other bands, and at several points even encouraged Carol Bayer-Sager, who was sitting opposite, to join the rap.

But anybody who's seen the album cover of "Foot Loose" will also be aware that it conveniently projects a seedy and soiled image of the singer which perfectly compliments the set's lyrical contents. In as much as the last verse of "Joking" marks the end of his Des O'Connor days of "A Night On The Town" and the beginning of new phase on his career, so does the visual projection mark the end for the present marketing campaign.

That observation only infuriated Stewart, who claimed somewhat naively, "It fell marvellously into a category where one stage of my career was over... but the thing is no one on this earth is going to believe that it never was planned."

Exactly, what with visual images being so important to the promotion of an album these days.

But Rod was surprisingly reluctant to admit that, until the reporter asked him why he kept changing the colour of his hair, it being blonde at the time.

"Oh shit, Tony, fuckin' 'ell. I change the colour of my hair because the bird I happen to know that week tells me to change it."

So you don't think image counts to any degree?

"A great deal," he eventually conceded, "but I won't let it guide my life. There are no fucking safety pins falling off me. I'm my own man and I follow what I want and do what I like."

"When people don't like it, then I'll say, 'Thank you very much, it's been a very good time', and I'll bow out."

"Now you know that's true."

At about this point the interview was becoming decidedly uncomfortable, but not through any fault of Rod's. On one side of the reporter the displaced young lady was persistently telling him to hurry up and landing a few well aimed elbows in his ribs. While from across the table Toon was insisting that Rod be left in peace so he could enjoy the meal.

Somehow, after a long discussion about LA being a rock 'n' roll town and Rod declaring that he could never have made his last three albums elsewhere, the interviewer and subject draw what must be the most obvious distinction between the RSG and his old cohorts The Faces: professionalism.

"I dunno," he hesitated, rolling a large measure of brandy in the bottom of his glass. "It sounds like the chauffeur business when you're talking about professionalism."

"There's enthusiasm, not professionalism. There's a genuine spunk about this band, which is great. They kick me up the arse, they really do. Drive me to things that I didn't think were possible."

"With The Faces we could never have played 'Georgie'. We couldn't play 'You Wear It Well', or 'Maggie'. Woody did his best, but it was never the same."

"I'm speaking now because we've done a British tour and we've seen the reactions."

He paused, and considered his answer. Then, with a smile of realisation concluded, "Okay, it's professionalism. You're right."

With the conversation subdued, Toon saw his opportunity to close the interview. They were going upstairs for a drink with the manager, he told Rod, and, hovering over star and reporter, made sure Stewart got up to leave.

"There's something I want to tell you," he commented, lingering longer by the table, "but I can't think what it is."

"The great thing about the business that we're all in is that it isn't as calculated as you seem to think. I do an album, with my thoughts and lyrics put out on a piece of plastic and that's it: as simple as that."

Whether the interview had been the same was something the reporter was not sure about when, eight days after his arrival, he flew back to London.

There were flashbacks: the star shouting at the writer across the exclusive Regine's where a party had been held in his honour; the drained bleached face of a weary rock 'n' roller at the Philadelphia soundcheck; Stewart's reluctance to finish the interview, although with so many distractions it was impossible to continue.

But one picture froze in the journalist's mind: that of Rod Stewart crushed into the back of a hotel elevator by a dozen or so friends also going to have a drink with the manager. For a split second before the lift doors firmly closed, a look of almost desperate insecurity flashed over Rod's face.

It was as if the trappings of the celebrity's lifestyle were a burden, and irrelevant to the arrogant singer in his natural habitat, strutting across the stage in some vast American stadium.

The thought probably occurred to the reporter because of something Carmine Appice had said over a drink in a hotel bar.

"If Rod ever died he'd probably love to go during a gig in a stadium while playing soccer and getting fucked or something."

THANK HEAVEN THAT'S OVER
(Now for THE BIRDS!!)

Alan Price

You remember him as an Animal.

You heard him as a Lucky Man.

On his new album you'll know him simply as

Alan Price

Marketed by UA Records Ltd

On Tour

Nov.

- 16th BRIGHTON Dome
- 17th SWINDON Wyvern Theatre
- 19th BRIDGEND Recreation Centre
- 20th NORWICH Theatre Royal
- 22nd LEICESTER De Montford Hall
- 24th BASILDON Taingate Theatre
- 25th CANTERBURY Odeon
- 26th BIRMINGHAM Town Hall
- 27th NEWCASTLE City Hall
- 29th MANCHESTER Free Trade Hall
- 30th PRESTON Guild Hall

Dec.

- 1st LEEDS Grand Theatre
- 2nd LONDON Rainbow

Album
UAS 30133

Cassette
TCK 30133

STATUS Quo

ROCKIN' HILL OVER THE WORLD

Feed the people three times a day.

"Meal Ticket are arguably Britain's best band that you can actually get to hear live."

THE OBSERVER

"The vocals are consistently superb, they deserve their evident crowd appeal."

N.M.E.

"From the sudden drum attack on the first track I was hooked. Whatever the magic is, I only wish it lasted twice as long."

MIKE DAVIS, SOUNDS.

Now see what you think.

Listen to the new album. "Three Times A Day" INS 3010 and don't forget the previous one "Code Of The Road"

BOTH AVAILABLE ON TAPE

INS 3008.

Feed The People Tour With Frankie Miller

NOVEMBER
10th LANCHESTER Poly
11th NEWCASTLE Poly
12th BIRMINGHAM University
14th SWANSEA University
15th CARDIFF Top Rank
16th LIVERPOOL University
18th BRISTOL University
19th BRADFORD University

20th HEMEL HEMPSTEAD
Pavilion
23rd LANCASTER University
24th MIDDLESBRO' Town Hall
25th BRIDLINGTON Spa
26th SHEFFIELD University
30th LEEDS University
DECEMBER
1st LONDON Rainbow

Meal Ticket.

ALBUMS

Pic: WALT DAVIDSON

Pic: GUS STEWART

THE RAMONES
Rocket To Russia (Sire)

"PURE POP for now people." Nick Lowe may have coined the phrase but it's The Ramones who really make it come to life.

Hey but Christ, initial exposure to this new work doesn't exactly lead one to drive the biro ever onward to inspiring prose; it's the third album OK but there's nothing at all innovative discernible in any of these newly pressed grooves, no dramatic departures. A formula has been established and all that needs to be broached here is its further refinement.

All the old fetishes are worked over again. The Ramones anthem — creating affection for retards gets a deft re-run with the gorgeously inane "Cretin Hop" for example, while a song like "Teenage Lobotomy" is simply the last album's "Shock Treatment" revamped for the larger contingent of Ramones vinyl investors that Sire Records boss Seymour Stein evidently hopes his recent affiliation with Warner Brothers will provide.

The comparatively ballad-like "I Wanna Be Well" gives the first album's "Boyfriend" chord progression a resurrection, while "I Can't Give You Anything" and the record's closer "Why Is It Always This Way" could just as easily have appeared on "Leave Home" without any drop in continuity.

Where the band have shown some quotient of moxy this time out is in their more luxurious adaptation of '60s surf-bop music as a change from constant head-banging. Dee Dee Ramone's "Rockaway Beach" is as naggingly addictive as the last efforts underrated ersatz "Little Honda", "Uh Oh I Love Her", while the group also display the superlative gonzo good taste to work up The Trashmen's cataclysmic artefact of pure dementia, "Surfin' Bird". All told, they give the latter epic a good run for its money, though the lamentable conclusion must be that the original does have the edge if only in terms of its hyper-maniac intensity.

The same conclusion has to be drawn concerning The Ramones' revival of Bobby Freeman's much covered "Do You Wanna Dance". Here again, the prototype they rifle their version from — this being The Beach Boys' brilliant cover — outstrips The Ramones amp-up by a country mile in terms of sheer presence, harmonic texture, and all purpose Joie de vivre.

The old single "Sheena Is A Punk Rocker" is also present by the way.

Before writing this album off as just little more than the sum of the aforementioned parts, I should draw your attention to its masterwork. "We're A Happy Family" is The Ramones at their most brutally funny, making even their pinhead paeans lame by comparison. The lyrics alone prove that these guys are no way the dummies they seem to want to the media to view them as, blithely recounting their happy family "eating refried beans / Gulping down Thorazines ... Daddy likes men / Baby's eating flies / Mommy's on pills / I'm friends with the President / I'm friends with the Pope / We're all making fortunes / Selling daddy's dope."

CARTOON COP OUTS

Give or take a track or two, that's it ("I Don't Care" from the last single is also present). Maybe the fact that this latest Ramones chapter has appeared at almost the same time as the Pistols' elpce has brought on my jaded reaction to it; perhaps actual passion, neurosis and frustration are the real meat of rock'n'roll.

And maybe I'm tired of cartoons, however adeptly amped up they come; even fun can get boring sometimes after a while y'know.

Nick Kent

BOB WELCH

French Kiss (Capitol)

FIRST, A few relevant facts. Guitarist Bob Welch joined Fleetwood Mac in April 1971 as a replacement for God-head Jeremy Spencer. After cutting five albums with Mac, Welch cashed in his chips at the end of '74 to form Paris, an artsy power trio that cut two undistinguished albums and then disappeared without causing a ripple.

As three years have elapsed since he left Mac, it seems probably that Welch will avoid being tagged a former Mac sideman, because this album stands not by association but on its own merits.

"French Kiss" is worth knickin' for the sleeve and buying for the contents. Personally, I'm highly-suspicious of the one-man-band syndrome: where the artist insists on playing everything he can lay hands on. The reason that I don't go a bundle is simply because such projects seldom work. They just stand as an exercise in studio wizardry and the artist's pomposity.

TUFF 'N' TENDER

Martyn's first for two years —

stranger, smiling stranger every day."

There are few voices so splendidly equipped to deliver his lyrics, which by turn are sensitive, sly, obsessional and elliptical, but always passionate. The man is palpably besotted with life, communicating his warmth and torment through words and music. Perplexing words, absorbing music.

"Dealer" is a tremendous, compulsive opening cut. Vicious propulsion is supplied by echoplex guitar, thunderous drums and sinuous moog as Martyn's throaty snarl snaps out the threatening narrative: "They tell me that they dig my shiv/So I sell it to them cheap/I bring my scales and check the deal/Are you scared that I might cheat?/Well you're just the spit and polish/On a fat man's shiny shoes/I think I'd hate them for it/And I think they hate me too."

The other 'nasty bit' is "Big Muff", the outcome of Martyn's trip to Jamaica for 'exploratory' sessions with Lee Perry and Jack Ruby. Co-written with Perry, "Muff" isn't overtly dub (Martyn wouldn't be that obvious) and Lord knows what it's about, but it sounds vaguely indecent as the music inexorably draws the listener into its dense rhythms.

As for the 'gentle bits', they're probably best exemplified by the title track, in which Martyn adopts his sorrowful slur to expound his utopian UN ideology. It's amazing, really, that anyone embracing all this useless old hippy shit can actually be convincing, but total commitment is part of Martyn's genius.

Anyhow, it's musically arresting, the multi-tracked flutes seductively meshing with the mellow, 'traditional' side of the echoplex. The love songs on side two are instantly affecting, a resonant bass line and organ as sweet as a double-dollop of honey gracing "Couldn't Love You More", and Rico's rasping trombone elevating "Certain Surprise" to an exhilarating, exultant expression of glowing warmth.

"Dancing", a likeable upbeat lig, grows in stature (like all the other songs) with repeated listening, before Martyn closes the album with the eight and a half minute "Small Hours". It's a mysterious affirmation of life continuing, a synthesized heartbeat underlying the languorous, unsettling incandescence of the music.

Throughout, the musicianship is exemplary, Martyn's accompanists including Stevie Winwood, John Stevens, Hansford Rowe, Morris Pert and Tristran Fry.

Mean, moogy and magnificent, "One World" is the most mesmerising album I've heard this year. More complete, even, than Bowie's. Just plain better than everything else. Monty Smith

There are always exceptions; "French Kiss" is one. For with just the aid of drummer Alvin Taylor and, on the opening cut (a remake of "Sentimental Lady" from Mac's "Bare Trees") Christine McVie, Lindsey Buckingham and Mick Fleetwood, the dapper Mr. Welch pulls the gamble off with amazing fortitude.

"French Kiss" is to paraphrase a Stiffism "Pure Pop For Now People", oozing with exhilarating ideas and with John Carter producing and Warren Dewy at the controls, doesn't sound — in these days of proven formulae — like anyone else's album.

The songs (all Welch originals) are superbly structured, skilfully performed and deftly mixed. The hooks are instant, the tonality varied, the arrangements (especially strings) spot on. I believe "Ebony Eyes" has been culled as a single. A difficult decision because almost any one of the 11 tracks would serve as a taster — "Hot Love, Cold World", "Mystery Train" are both great car radio songs.

So the love won/love lost lyrics may not leap off the page at you, but that doesn't impair enjoyment of the album. It's the overall crisp, dry and highly dimensional sound of "French Kiss" which attracts the listener. This album could easily go platinum by New Year, not as a surrogate Fleetwood Mac purchase but purely on Welch's personable talents and the flair with which he conducts himself.

Wonder what he'll call his next album — "Drummer's Roll?"

Roy Carr

GARY GLITTER

Silver Star (Arista)

THIS MAN is an innovator. He is also funny. I won't hear a word said against him ... well, not many words anyway. How many of you know his debut album was a masterpiece of lethal rock'n'roll, also the one and only essential disco record?

Who was the first man to build his music on the solid base of skin-tight, metronome, machine-drumming and lace it with irresistible fuzz-guitar? Who is the most outrageous, larger-than-life rock star of the decade? No, not Demis Roussos, don't be silly.

It's time to set the record straight on Gary Glitter. He was The Man of his time and I'll still watch him on TV because he's even funnier than Bob Harris. Music has never made me laugh so much, and I'm laughing with him as much as at him.

So what about his latest artefact? More of the same. His voice was never great, his material always pedestrian, so he's hardly faded at all over the years. The raw sound of his earliest work is gone, fattened with strings, brass and backing vocals rather than shouted chants.

"Rock and Roll (I Gave You The Best Years Of My Life)" is his first step into the MOR swamp where he'll inevitably end up, but right now you get two hits for your money, "You Belong To Me" and "A Little Boogie-Woogie".

Plus "It Takes All Night Long" for the little girls out there. Plus a handful of quality dance-numbers including "Heartbreaking Blue Eyed Boy" which approaches the spirit of the first LP and out-Gibbons Gibbons.

To say that Gary Glitter was a crucial influence on both The Clash and Donna Summer (which I think he was) might be stretching a point, but anyone who's ever bothered to listen to him now knows that even turkeys can rock and roll.

Kim Davis

ZING WENT THE FLING OF MY DARTS (Sorreee)

DARTS

Darts (Magnet)

THEY PROBABLY won't thank me for saying so, but there's no getting around the fact that there are marked — if only coincidental — similarities between this bunch of affable loonies and the defunct Sha Na Na, the American rockanbop-shoowop showband whose retrospective compilation was reviewed in last week's NME by Bob Edmunds.

The music that inspires Darts is much the same as that which Sha Na Na so fondly recreated and, just like the Yanks, Darts serve it up with great style, musical diligence and immense good humour. In fact most of the accolades that Edmunds so rightfully conferred on Sha Na Na are equally applicable here, especially his final remark, "If you want to understand the spirit of rock 'n' roll, they are almost as good a source of reference as the originals. They're certainly a good deal more fun at times." The face of Darts is never po.

I'm not sure why the American team eventually fell apart but doubtless a couple of the reasons were relatively poor record sales (despite their concert successes) and lack of good new material. Darts are already winning on both counts.

While their zappy version of an old Rays' b-side, "Daddy Cool", bops into this week's Top 30, six of the 11 tracks on this debut album show them to be capable of originating songs that might well be confused with the genuine oldies. Just as Miami Steve reworks early '60s R&B themes to such great advantage for Southside Johnny or the Lowe/Edmunds clan shuffle familiar rock 'n' roll riffs for a fresh deal, so assorted Darts have rummaged through their old London-American singles by the likes of The Shields and The Willows to come up with new songs that you'll think you remember from times past.

Most splendid is "Sometime Later", an aching doowop performed in sparkling, harmonic acappella — or wivout the band, as we say here in the rock press. "Bells In My Heart", a lively little item that also gives the singers a chance to flaunt their talent, and "Too Hot In The Kitchen", a rocker led by Rita "I remember Ruth Brown" Ray, are two more goodies, and although we only get one verse of "Fancy Man", the fact that it slots comfortably into Den's eye-rolling "I'm Mad" medley of famous oldies can't be all bad. "Shotgun" and "Stay Away (From Them Girls)" aren't quite so impressive but that's mainly because the others are so good, not because the latter are so very terrible.

Darts: More of us than you thought, eh?

Of the real oldies, "Young Blood" (written by Leiber/Stoller for The Coasters) and "Zing Went The Strings Of My Heart" (as performed by The Coasters) deserve special mention for being the best alternative versions of songs associated with that legendary group, and a slinky new arrangement of "Sh-Boom" justifies Darts' decision to include such a hoary chestnut in their repertoire. I'm not sure that producers Tommy Boyce and Richard Hartley are equally justified in their decision to add strings to the track but no doubt such an alien device will seem more acceptable after several dozen plays.

Finally, a thumbs up to the Darts' musicians, who do an excellent job throughout; to the producers, who demonstrate their love of the music by keeping everything clean and tidy (perhaps a shade too tidy); and for the notable fact that Britain has finally given birth to a group that can properly handle music that has previously been a well kept American secret. I'll drink to that.

Cliff White

10CC

Live And Let Live (Mercury)

I LIKE 10cc, honest. Maybe I should rephrase that. I liked 10cc.

They made two spiffy albums before falling prey to the How Can We Out-do Ourselves And Be Recognised As Serious Artists? schtick exemplified by the involuted narcissism which marred the dopier passages of the Mercury records.

Now they're truly 5cc and there's no getting away from it. It's written all over this live double (natch) album. Vinyl shortage? What vinyl shortage?

"This is a live recording, so we hope you'll really let your hair down and ENJOY YOURSELVES!!!"

As much, no doubt, as the lighting, stage and transportation crews, the booking agents and every other bleeder who gets a name check on the cover credits, which for sheer longevity put Gone With The Wind to shame.

We're 10cc, love us like we love you and we'll jack up your shrieks of approval in the final mix. Which has been done, to irksome effect. You get the whole, entire encore too, an appositely wearisome "Modern Man Blues".

What's the point?

With its grandiose minimoog intro (for what is essentially a prissy piece of posey-philosophising), "Feel The Benefit" sums up the entire project. The time allocated to it is way disproportionate to its worth as either a 'live' souvenir or a clever-clever example of modern mobile recording techniques.

It is possible to coldly admire the sophistication whilst being bored rigid by the intractable style as 10cc wend their convoluted way through smart-arse time changes and silly puns. Only on "Ships Don't Disappear In The Night", substantially different from the studio cut, do they actually sound like a live band, not some starch-backed waxworks attempting to emulate note-for-note what's already been done to perfection (and death).

All the Stewart-Gouldman ditties are here, including most of "Deceptive Bonds". And if you were at Hammersmith or Manchester, you're on it too.

Monty Smith

Three-track single

"White Punks on Dope"

"Don't Touch Me There"

"What Do You Want From Life"

AVAILABLE NOW

STORM WARNING
I-HURRIGANES
DEVASTATE BRITAIN!!

EYE OF THE STORM NOVEMBER
SAT 19th RED OW Ldn / MON 21st
ROOK GARDEN Ldn / TUES 22nd THE NASHVILLE Ldn / WED 23rd THE GOLDEN LION Ldn / FRI 25th THE MIDDLESEX POLY / SAT 26th H-F LONDON
POLY / MON 28th 100 CLUB Ldn /
TUES 29th BLUMPS CAMBRIDGE /
WED 30th MUSIC MACHINE Ldn

DECEMBER
THURS 1st FULHAM
GREYHOUND Ldn / FRI 2nd
THE PENTHOUSE SCARBOROUGH
SAT 3rd THE CASINO WIGAN
SUN 4th THE TOP RANK SHEFFIELD

DEBUT ALBUM - HURRIGANES - (SNTF 732)
LIMITED EDITION SINGLE - 'HEY HEY HEY' / 'ELEPHANTS BOOGIE'
-(SON 2129) - FIRST 9,217 (APPROX) COPIES IN PICTURE BAG

Sonet MARKETING BY SONET RECORDS
DISTRIBUTED IN THE UK BY PYE RECORDS

Phase the music with this fantastic automatic phase box!

We can show you how to build this for less than half the cost of buying one! The whole unit's constructed on a PCB, so it's easy to build. Just follow our step-by-step instructions!

And join TEACH-IN, our crash course for complete beginners. We can't guarantee that you'll end up a genius — but you'll certainly get the hang of electronics!

Look for details of our back numbers service, too. Over the last couple of years we've featured fuzz and other guitar effects, units and amplifiers, electric organ effects units, and other musical projects that might grab you.

Also this month:

Hazard Flasher for motorcycles & cars

Photoflash Slave

Ultrasonic Remote Control System Receiver

It's easy for everyone with

Everyday ELECTRONICS

December issue 40p

YOU'VE SEEN THE FILM

NOW ENJOY THE BOOK

When you've had your Midland cheque book a few weeks, you'll wonder how you ever managed without it. This is what you get when you first open a Midland current account.

It makes handling money a lot safer and simpler than loose cash.

And it makes budgeting easier. Because cheque stubs tell you how much you've paid, who you've paid, and when. While our regular bank statements keep you completely up to date.

A cheque book is your passport to Midland Bank teamwork.

Call in at your nearest branch soon and ask about opening an account.

You and Midland Bank.
Together, we make a great team.

We here at NME proudly present
The Little 'n' Lesser Richards Show

LITTLE RICHARD
Little Richard Now
 (Creole)

AT IRREGULAR intervals throughout the 20 years since he cut about a dozen of the greatest rock'n'roll records ever made, Little Richard has re-recorded the very same songs.

One doesn't need a Mensa mentality to judge that the reasons he keeps repeating himself are almost certainly money, insecurity and lack of new ideas, not necessarily in that order. Unfortunately for all concerned, his various re-recordings have only emphasised his confusion and deterioration instead of sustaining his reputation. Until now.

These 12 further re-recordings were taped in Nashville last autumn under the supervision of Stan Shulman, who deliberately attempted the seemingly impossible by instructing his white studio band to play exactly like the original black sessioners and, a far more difficult task, persuading

Richard to emulate his younger self.

The fact that the results are far greater than anyone familiar with Richard's self-destructive career could possibly have hoped for speaks volumes for the talents of Shulman and his musicians. More important, it provides evidence that Richard has still got it in him to blast aside all contenders for his homemade crown.

Gone are most of the affected whoops and camp histrionics that have plagued the majority of Richard's recordings and helped to destroy his stage act. Back is the exhilarating power of a voice that soars to the edge of uncontrolled frenzy without imploding into a tuneless screech.

Gone too are the clumsy accompaniments and arrangements that Richard or his various producers have intermittently employed in a vain attempt to update his talent. Back is the simple but deft rhythmic interplay of genuine rock'n'roll. The music is timeless, it needs no fixing to keep it relevant.

Now here's the snag; the "if only" qualifications. However impressive these tracks may be, many of the original versions were perfect. Literally. There's no way that Richard or anyone else could improve upon them. And since the Speciality recordings are all still available in Britain, I couldn't bring myself to recommend this album above them.

I couldn't do that even if these 12 tracks were precisely the equal of the originals but in fact they're not, mainly because some of them have a slightly clinical feel, a flat sound, a lack of atmosphere. Low presence is possibly the term I'm groping for.

However, not all of Richard's Specialty recordings were unsurpassable. For instance, "Keep A Knockin'" was, for all its riotous energy, a bit of a mess (legend has it that it was patched together from rehearsal tape) and "Chicken Little Baby" and "She Knows How To Rock" were incomplete workouts that were left in the can when he "retired" for the first time.

In contrast, this new version of "Keep A Knockin'" is dynamite; so good in fact that I shall commit heresy by opining that it's better than the original. So if only Shulman and Richard had tackled a few more of the less successful Specialty recordings this could have been a better album.

Or perhaps they did. When I spoke to Shulman earlier this year he intimated that they'd cut about 20 titles, in which case, if only Creole had been more generous with the tracks this could have been a better album.

Better still, if only Shulman and Richard had taken the time and trouble to find good new material this could have been a great album. But then it's all rather academic 'cause Richard has been and gone and retired again since recording these tracks. Some people never learn.

Cliff White

CLIFF RICHARD
40 Golden Greats (EMI)

THE VERY first edition of Top Of The Pops in 1954 carried a goodluck message from Cliff Richard. Even at that stage he was head boy of the school of British pop performers.

A decade and more later, he's still acting out the same role. He's still neat, deferential and responsible; he still hasn't moved on to higher things.

This collection belatedly compiles some of the songs that have enabled him to retain his pre-eminence. Although 40 tracks might seem a luxury, Richard's material has been so chart-orientated for so long that it's actually a squeeze. Faced with such decisions, the compilers have boobed.

They incorporated a representative sample of material from throughout his lengthy career. The years when he was far and away and the foremost figure in British pop ('52-'62, say) are hardly covered more fully than any others. This is a bad mistake, since whatever credibility Cliff retains with his original fervent audience is based on his performances over those years.

The opening track, "Move It" (according to the sleeve notes by Hank Marvin and Bruce Welch, is "a rock'n'roll classic, and anyone who says otherwise obviously disagrees") shows he could have maintained his early appeal as a straightforward rock'n'roller if "Living Doll" hadn't performed the same service for him that "It's Now Or Never" did for Elvis Presley.

But the other frenetic songs of this period — "Schoolboy Crush" and "Mean Streak" — are missing, as is his

The Pirates
SLASHED by £1.30

at these Virgin Record Stores if you show this advertisement:-

Birmingham	Marble Arch*
Brighton	New Oxford St.*
Bristol	Newcastle*
Coventry	Nottingham
Croydon	Notting Hill Gate
Edinburgh	Plymouth
Leeds*	Sheffield
Liverpool	Southampton
Manchester	Swansea

*Free Pirates movie showing at selected stores.

This offer closes
 November 30th.

K56411.

THE PIRATES.

fondly-remembered version of "Willie And The Hand Jive". Most perversely of all, there is no "Voice In The Wilderness", Cliff's original spiritual.

These tracks should have taken preference over some colourless ballads of Richard's comparatively lean years — "Wind Me Up" is thoroughly expendable — when, like others of his vintage, he almost got swept under the psychedelic carpet.

One of Cliff's surest talents, however, has been for survival. His formula has been simple, and usually turgidly undemanding, his choice of material almost cravenly unadventurous. He has regularly boarded bandwagons some years after they left town; he recorded a Stones' number, "Bluc Turns To Grey" in 1966, his tribute to hippy philosophy, "Sing A Song Of Freedom" four years after the summer of love, and a Lennon-esque anthem, "Power To All Our Friends", two years after "Power To The People".

On the credit side, there was the appealing huskiness in his voice and the invariably pretty tunes that at their best almost diverted attention from the vacuousness of the songs themselves. Nevertheless, this collection concludes with the revival he's enjoyed of late: "I Can't Ask For Anymore Than You" showed that his vocal range was greater than most imagined, and "Devil Woman" that he could still turn in a gutsy performance.

In fact Richard might be capable of much more yet, but he's so determinedly inoffensive that we're never likely to find out what.

Already his mini-recovery of status has been stymied by the annoying "My Kinda Life" which, in the context of such a pantheon of hits, is even more lyrically inappropriate than it was as a single.

Finally, no complaints about the stereo reprocessing, which is expert.

Bob Woffinden

STATUS QUO Rockin' All Over The World (Vertigo) STATUS QUO are a pop group at heart.

This is not an album to play at massive volume, to marvel at the exciting performance; like all those Quo singles that make you tap your feet as they boogie along faintly on the pub jukebox, this is for playing quietly, reassuringly, predictably. Wallpaper music.

Their songs come straight out of the '60s. "Baby Boy", for example, is almost one of those quasi-Greek pop songs like Sonny and Cher's "Bang Bang", based on a jogging two-note bass line, the melody as predictable as a folk song. In fact, folk song melodies constantly inform Quo's oeuvre — all those simplistic guitar patterns that dance around the chord like a packaged Celtic jig, most prominent here on "Hold You Back".

That's it. Them's the sum total of my observations on the new Status Quo album. I'm sure it's pretty similar to the last one; very competent, very innocuous, sentimental chord changes, superficially heavy, no surprises.

Their adeptness makes me suspicious; if they're as good as they seem to be, why play such uninspirational music? Easy answer: bucks — or rather, quids. Giving them the benefit of the doubt: maybe they actually enjoy it. Rather sweet, don't you think?

Deliberately expressionless

MAN's Deke Leonard and Bristol Fighter prepare for take off elsewhere.

The Rights (and wrongs) of Man

MAN
All's Well That Ends Well (MCA)

SO FAREWELL, Manband.

When the solos didn't go on too long, you were very very good indeed.

On this album, only "The Welsh Connection" and "Spunk Rock" suffer

From this particular Celtic malady.

When you rocked out on numbers like

"A Hard Way To Live" and "Romaine"

Or got sneaky-sinister with "the Ride And The View"

Or played superb R&B on "Let The Good Times Roll"

Like you do on this farewell album

Recorded at the Roundhouse on your last tour

You fair gladdened my heart, boys.

So have fun with Rockpile, Terry Williams,

Have a good time like with the Flying Aces, Phil Ryan

And good luck with the new bands or whatever

Micky Jones, John McKenzie

And especially Deke Leonard

Every time we get too out of it like

We'll think of you

And hope you're the same way.

Keith's Mum always said you were just a bunch of Boring old hippies

But she was always stupid like that.

E. Shaarvis Murray

music that strikes a chord of security in the listener's heart.

Quo are like Coronation Street; a soothing constant in the midst of life's turmoils, an opiate.

I know of old that the band will get aggrieved at this inference of manipulation; they're just regular dudes who happen to have hit on a formula, sorry, artistic expression, that appeals to large numbers of young people.

I also know of old that if I intimate that to buy the new Quo album is like switching on some bland TV show or picking up the latest tranquiliser prescription. Large numbers of NME readers will also get aggrieved.

Look, I don't want to annoy you. I can appreciate Coronation Street as much as the next person, and I can snooze along quite pleasantly with Quo. No hard feelings, huh? I mean, I find it best just not to think about it.

Phil McNeill

ALLMAN AND WOMAN Two The Hard Way (Warner Brothers)

THERE IS schlock and there is schlock. They are both on this album.

First of all, there's Gruntin' Gregg Allman's personalised variety of sullen mushmouth fonky-honky ramblings. Then there's Cher Allman's I'm-too-elegant-to-be-singing-this-song MOR haughtiness. Both represent schlock developed to the point where it almost spills over into the realms of pure tack. Schlock squared. Schlock to the power of n.

Still, let's leave the technical jargon out of this. "Two The Hard Way" is purest California blancmange, as might be expected from an album that has to accommodate two such disparate — uh — talents. Gregg has had to tone down some of his customary excesses — no bad thing in itself — but Cher meets him halfway by trying to sing "soulfully" and the result is musical toothache.

The material isn't to blame. Innocent victims include such classics as Little Milton's "We're Gonna Make It" (imagine the woosome twosome crooning "We may not have a cent to pay the rent but we're gonna make it"), Smokey Robinson's immortal "You Really Got A Hold On Me". Jimmy Webb's "Do What You Gotta Do", Jackson Browne's "Shadow Dream Song" and various lesser chunes. After The Miracles, The Beatles and Laura Nyro/Labette you might've thought that there was nothing more that could've been done with "You Really Got A Hold On Me", and you'd've been right.

Because of the Allman's career as stars of stage, screen, courtroom and gossip column, this album commands a degree of public interest totally out of proportion to what it actually delivers musically. Gregg has been through it over the last few years — what with the deaths of Duane Allman and Berry Oakley, the acrimonious breakup of The Allman Brothers Band, the Georgia connection with Prez Carter and his on-again-off-again-on-again marriage to Cher and the Scooter Herring bust, but all this suffering clearly hasn't helped his singing any.

On the cover, Gregg and Cher look like a couple of shop-window dummies who've fallen over each other in the display case of some Hollywood boutique.

And the billing! Jesus, at least Sonny Bono gave Cher a name check on the labels of the records, but "Allman And Woman" is so disparaging that anyone more sensitive than Cher would probably have been quite offended.

The duo's total assets would seem to be one cute navel and three good Hammond organ blues licks. You can't see the former or hear the latter so "Two The Hard Way" is pretty much a write-off.

One last thing. The album is dedicated to the kids, Chastity and Elijah. When they get old enough to hear this album and realise the kind of people they live with, if Chastity and Elijah got any sense they'll leave home.

Charles Shaar Murray

Southside Johnny & The Asbury Jukes On Tour

Earlier this year Southside Johnny's first UK tour took town's apart... one by one. Now the band's back with Cafe Jacques... for a repeat performance!

Wed. Nov. 23rd
Leeds University

Thurs. Nov. 24th
Hammersmith Odeon

Fri. Nov. 25th
Cardiff University

Sat. Nov. 26th
Strathclyde University

Supported by Café Jacques

with some great music from their impressive debut album

When Johnny & The Jukes are on stage and cooking, the electrifying atmosphere and presence that only a big band can generate will overwhelm you.

You just gotta see for yourself!

Epic
Records
& Tapes

BUZZCOCKS

COMING YOUR WAY

Nov.
15th BARBARELLAS Birmingham
18th ERIC'S Liverpool
19th COLLEGE OF EDUCATION Ilkley
20th TIFFANY'S Shrewsbury
21st MARQUEE London
22nd

END OF TOUR NO. 1

TOUR NO.2 STARTS SOON.

AGENCY: ASGARD - PAUL CHARLES TEL. NO: 734 3426

New Single

ORGASM

ADDICT

UP 36316

Sorry it took so long coming.
IN THE SHOPS NOW!

STREETS

VARIOUS ARTISTS
*Streets: Select Highlights
From Independent Labels
(Beggars Banquet)*

TURD-BRAIN-rock? New Faces New Wave? Garage Band muzak that settled for Dad's garden shed? Highlights (sic) of numerous independent record labels that sprung up in the wake of The Sex Satori?

Go treat yourself to a Zandra Rhodes safety-net and then tell me why people exercising their rights as citizens by creating a god-awful parody of Art with a capital F in the privacy of their tower-block always get these ego-bloated delusions of grandeur provoking the need to inflict their scribbles on the rest of humanity?

Go ahead — play, sing, write, paint, piss in your pants. Just don't stick it under my sinus expecting me to tick your card so you can go get your six-figure record contract.

This is puerile, trite, corny, crass, gutless, joyless and humourless; it rips off the mediocre and ruins it. Lyrically, it makes Eddie and the Hot Rods look like Bob Dylan. Musically, it makes The Muppets "Mah-Na-Mah-Na" look like "Anarchy In The UK".

Like "Trash" by The Doll; lamebrain Vibrators' "Petrol" riff over flitty limp-wrist posturing, like a Cleethorpes rent-boy trying to come on like Loopy Lou Reed, trite Mrs. Mills piano and devastating rhymes of "Honey" and "Money".

Or "Fear On The Streets" by The Members, "Be My Prisoner" by The Lurkers and "No More Rock 'N' Roll" by Tractor; the first a lack-lustre Damned rip-off (and The Damned themselves have been arseholes for a year), the second mere Billy-Cotton's-band - plays - The Ramones, the third chronic mock-erection Boys Club misogyny — the wanker on lead vocals won't go to bed with a girl unless all the rest of the band can come too, presumably to flick wet towels. Betcha their mamma bought the band's equipment.

This is so pathetic that some of it is really hilarious, although that should be qualified by adding that the thought of anyone paying money for their chortles fair turns me gours inside out.

Much mirth on the Erik Von Daniken pratitudes of Arthur Comics' "Is God A Man?", the Wibbly Wobbly Way "Hoo-hoo! Tickle my tummy, Auntie Jean!" ambience of The Dogs' "19", and the slumming submission into proletarian primitives of The Nose-bleeds' "I Ain't Bin To No Musical School".

Trouble is the guffaws are somewhat stifled because — as if you couldn't sodding guess! — all of the album is puked out amidst corny cropped cacophony like The Zeros' "Hungry", Slaughter And The Dogs' "Cranked Up Really Bad", Cane's "College Girls" and "Lookalikes" by The Drones, perhaps the most perfect expression of just what this album is about, which is nothing much. Or as The Drones put it, "You just wanna be yourself / You don't wanna be like anybody else / I don't wanna be you and you don't wanna be me / And we don't wanna conform to you".

Listen. You can hear the Government trembling at its foundations, it's a Brave New World, The Monstrous Tyranny Of Rock Culture ploughs on to the promised land-estate of a Seditious in every High Street — and John Cooper Clarke is a great poet and why the hell he allowed himself to be talked into howling some sanitised pap over a punk-aural-backdrop when he could be making albums of true worth, I just can't fathom.

Albums like this make me miss the days of vinyl-shortage. As The Zeros' sum up so succinctly, "It comes from being bored".

As in shitless.

Tony Parsons

A Drone lurking . . .

Plc: KEVIN CUMMINS

IDENTI-PUNK

PUNK
PUNK
PUNK

A Lurker droning . . .
Plc: WALT DAVIDSON

STEELEYE SPAN
Stormforce Ten
(Chrysalis)

ROUGH WEATHER; troubadours in trouble. Bob Johnson and Pete Knight are out, John Kirkpatrick and — for the second time of asking — Martin Carthy in.

Rock more or less abandoned for roots; if only they'd matched the stark lucidity of "Please To See The King". As it is "Stormforce" seems woefully drab 'n' dreary.

Unsurprisingly perhaps (since both Kirkpatrick and Carthy were members of Albion Country Band that recorded the excellent "Battle Of The Field") the current Steeleye sound a lot like Ashley Hutchings' erstwhile company. You know the deal — that sparse yet eloquent English Electric approach. Sadly though, "Stormforce" lacks any of the 'creative tension' that the Albions wrestled from their internal schisms.

There's precious little strong or suitable material here. Maddy Prior appears as comfortable singing two long-faced Bertold Brecht songs as she would on a TV ad for Xerox copiers. Other faux pas include "Chimney Sweep", an all vocal stretch that drags on for far too long, and "The Victory", another interminable seafaring tale. Even "Treadmill Song", a piece that Carthy would do proud on one of his solo albums, comes over as merely mawkish.

In addition, Carthy's admirably terse electric guitar style seems to cramp the Kemp and Pegrum rhythm axis; they sound subdued, almost flat-footed throughout. And Kirkpatrick's accordions are no real substitute for Knight's fiddle.

"Stormforce Ten" simply isn't the strong set this band could (surely will) make. Here's waiting on you, Spans-ter.

Angus MacKinnon

DAVID BEDFORD
Instructions for Angels
 (Virgin)
GORDON GILTRAP
Perilous Journey (Electric)

BOTH BEDFORD and Giltrap appear to be obsessed with the appearance of a Grand Scheme in their musical doings. Bedford, it seems, wouldn't even consider doing an album without some overall thematic concept: Homer, Coleridge, and now Kenneth Patchen have all come under his axe, none of them any the better for it.

"Instructions For Angels" originated as a short orchestral piece written to celebrate the renovation of some fifteenth-century carved wooden angels in a Kings Lynn chapel. Appropriately enough, Bedford composed some carved wooden music for the occasion. Then he was struck by the numerous references to angels in Patchen's poetry, and expanded the original piece to fit an album, each new variation supposedly inspired by a chunk of Patchen's verse.

Listening to the finished work in toto, one can only conclude that it would have been better all round had Bedford never heard of Patchen, most of the variations sounding like improvisations over Rileyesque repeated keyboard phrases. The triumph of form over content

Whereas Bedford's grand designs may be the result of his classical training, Gordon Giltrap has no such excuse for perpetrating the classical-rock tedium of "Perilous Journey" on an unsuspecting world. Starting out as a virtuoso folkie guitarist with a penchant for medieval rusticity, he made a sharp change of style with last year's "Visionary", and continues the trend on this new album. Indeed, the similarity of cover design and the statement OPUS 2 on the back cover suggest a direct continuation of the earlier work.

Most of the pieces progress from Giltrap's hot acoustic intros (which are fine in themselves) to full-blown band riffs (which are not). I'll not embarrass any of the musicians involved by mentioning their names; giving them the benefit of the doubt, their contributions are but workmanlike readings of Giltrap's limp tunes and Rod Edwards and Roger Hands' bland arrangements.

Both albums are examples of what happens when composers refuse to come to terms with their dearth of ideas and imagination: repetition of a "theme" throughout a work does not imply an overall concept, though some may be fooled into thinking it does.

Andy Gill

BURLESQUE
Burlesque (Arista)

BURLESQUE "of derisively imitative kind", it says on the sleeve. There's certainly a little bit of everyone here, but that's not automatically a bad thing. This music is strange, sometimes patchy, but when the pieces fit neatly you get good songs.

In the meantime, the puzzle itself is fun. How about "Burlesque are funny-sad-clever-dumb jazz-punks playing techno-R&B?" How about "Burlesque are odd?" It might take me a long time to come to terms with this album. It might never happen. This is a musical kaleidoscope, attractive and frustrating, bright but confusing and all I can really tell you apart from that is where the tunes are.

The best one is on "I Got Me (Babe)" which merges from "Latest Flame" to "I Ain't Got You" and flaunts flash lyrics. "Take It Out On The People" is a steam rolling heavy rocker pastiche with screams of "Judas Priest!" and a great hook.

"Steel Appeal" is a masterpiece of crip-rock, a love affair with a withered hand and a wheelchair. "Jerkin'" is a naughty lights out toe-tapper and "Bizz Fizz" is a real cute montage of snappy little tunes which would have graced any Roxy Music single.

The other tracks aren't so immediate. "Space-Age Blues" and "Rochdale / Rock stale" are apparently deliberate studies in tedium which make me yawn instead of grin.

"Going Dutch" is a great lyric with mediocre tune; "15%" starts cheerful but slips into laid-back jamming which is above my head.

Very unusual stuff from a band with humour, energy and melodies. It's nothing great but sometimes it sparkles.

Kim Davis

Levon Helm of The Band

LEVON AT THE HELM (Ouch!)

LEVON HELM AND THE RCO ALL STARS (ABC)

IT HAS been suspected for some time that The Band are rather unsure of their reasons for being together. The most telling evidence of dissolution so far is this, Levon Helm's solo album.

Levon Helm was the kid who went north in the late 50s with a rockabilly singer called Ronnie Hawkins, whose talents were dime-a dozen in Arkansas, but fairly unique in Canada. Together they recruited local musicians into Levon And The Hawks, who after a few years broke away from Hawkins and after a few more years linked up with a young, then reckless Dylan looking for a rock'n'roll sound.

The Band were Levon Helm's band before they became Bob Dylan's band (Helm, incidentally, in a fit of pique refused to join them for the first Dylan tour). Then for a few glorious years they were The Band, finally becoming Robbie Robertson's band, and then making to my mind merely good — not great — music.

Helm, the founder member, is significantly the first to make a solo album — some fifteen years after The Band's inception. It was recorded at RCO studio in Woodstock ("Big Pink" territory) and is presented as one of those friends get-together-in homely-studio-and-play-the-music-they-like-best jobs.

Once past the mawkish cover though, the music is genuine. The assembled friends are, from top to bottom, musicians of impeccable calibre. Helm plays drums and sings, Booker T. Jones, Steve Cropper and Duck Dunn (The MGs) play keyboards, guitar and bass respectively. Dr John adds guitar and keyboards, and Paul Butterfield's growing harmonica provides more than anyone ever thought possible from the instrument.

All of these players have a background similar to Helm's. They are all (except Booker T.) white, but respected for years of playing black blues and rhythm and blues — the kind of music The Hawks played and the kind of music Helm's playing on this album.

But here it's no longer a wild, illegitimate music. Instead it's mellowed and assured of its rightful existence — which is exactly what nags me about it.

The best cut is "Milk Cow Boogie". It's here that Helm demonstrates an unequalled ability to play tough, funky drums and sing with a mouthful of grit. He almost does it again on Earl King's "Sing, Sing, Sing". For the remainder he works manfully on what are, apart from a lilting workout of Chuck Berry's "Havana Moon", basically rhythm and blues songs, either Bobby Bland style or filtered through a relaxed, rural shuffle.

Inevitably it sounds like The Band, and not, as the R&B might suggest, The Feelgoods. But like recent Band albums it suffers from coming too naturally — everybody knows they're in a class of their own so they don't have to prove it anymore — and without Robertson's richly crafted songs as compensation.

If you already know this music exists in a class of its own then, like me, you'll like this album. I only wish they would prove as much again. Just once even.

Raul Rambali

RadioToons

No.3 Nothin' Happened Today

Songs for Swinging Lovers Radio Stars on Chiswick

"All's Well That Ends Well" is a live recording of Man's last three shows at London's Roundhouse.

Featuring seven of their most popular tracks including "Spunk Rock" and "Romain," together on one album.

As an added bonus the first 12,000 copies contain a special history of Man leaflet.

This is a collectors' item — so hurry to get your copy while stocks last. MCF 2815.

MCA RECORDS

MCA Records, 1 Great Pulteney Street, London W1

The Nitory Pianist's Progress

BEN SIDRAN
The Doctor Is In (Arista)

IN SOME ways Sidran is an anachronism. Though he's got something of a rock pedigree after paying his dues as sideman with Steve Miller, he pans out as a reincarnation of one of those ultra-hip pianist-vocalists who once proliferated at many Stateside nightclubs during the end of the big-band era.

By being such a throwback, he's also become the only player on the ballpark, the guy who's refreshingly different. While most other keyboardists have moved on to bewilder via an abundance of electronic gear that has much in common with Mission Control, The Doc — he won a PhD at Sussex University — still has a love affair with a Steinway, using it here to pay due homage to Thelonius Monk with an individual version of the oft-recorded but ever-welcome "Goodbye, Pork Pie Hat", before wending his acoustic way through "Silver's Serenade", receiving an invaluable assist from the economic, thoughtful hornwork of ex-John Mayall sideman Blue Mitchell, who played trumpet on Horace Silver's original version of the number, back in '63.

Vocally too, Sidran is something else. His delivery is sophisto-sharp; super-honed Georgie Fame and then some. When he's on mike, everything swings lightly and politely, such long-term cohorts as Phil Upchurch (bass), Larry Carlton (guitar) and Tony Williams (drums), providing Sidran's generally jaunty, jump-happy songs with the kind of lift that emanates from men obviously enjoying their appointed task.

For several years now Sidran's been merely a cult figure in this country, a situation not aided by the reluctance of certain record companies to provide the philosophical one with a British album release. But now, with the aid of this, his second Arista offering, plus the added impetus of some live and TV dates, Sidran should gain a little more in the way of well-deserved kudos. For though he may well present a classic case of two steps back and one step forward and maybe moving nowhere in particular, there's little doubt that he's doing it in personal and highly satisfying style.

Fred Dellar

Methinks Jah protest too much

BUNNY WAILER
Protest (Island)

ONE MILITANT reggae critic dismissed Bunny Wailer's last album, "Blackheart Man", as a mere 'rock album'.

Bunny would probably have taken that as a compliment. His stated intention was to give the album a "hard rock feel", and he evidently wanted it to possess the magical 'crossover' appeal; not merely to haul in the extra readies but to spread Jah word.

Like many Jamaican musicians, Bunny Wailer — aka Neville Livingstone, co-founder of The Wailers vocal trio — feels his inspiration is divine, and his greatest passion is to convert the faithless and delight the faithful with exquisite, heavenst music.

With "Blackheart Man" he arguably did both; it was an intricately crafted 24-track 'studio' album of ten stately, elegiac songs old and new that found popularity in both black and white camps and which in its purity and reflectiveness struck a strongly spiritual note. Its songs were medodious, catchy, crisp and challenging. The whole enterprise was too lacking in robust spontaneity for some but...

What a letdown "Protest" is then. In comparison to its predecessor it's heavyhanded, ill-considered, disjointed, expediant and unconvincing; all the more so for being so determined in its efforts to teach us all a lesson.

Now, by intention or not, all art makes moral statements, but art's duty is to entertain before it teaches and moralises — a spoonful of sugar helps the medicine go down.

Too often on "Protest" Bunny comes across as merely hectoring, the tone of his 'protest' little more than that of an incensed Sunday school teacher. And that ain't right — reggae, Rasta and Bunny are all more exciting than that.

The music tends to be a mere adjunct to the lesson for the day rather than an implicit part of it. Most of the tunes flop around lifelessly, and the standard bunch of topline JA sessioneers brought in to supply the backing — Wallace, Shakespeare, Lindo, Harvey, Smith, etc — are hard put to supply anything more than the glibly adequate.

Of the eight songs, two are old Wailers' numbers, one borrowed from elsewhere, and five new Bunny originals. One of these, "Follow Fashion Monkey", has already seen the light of day as an American 45. It's an interesting insight into Bunny's intentions; a song attacking "black Yankees" for their lack of roots culture and crass, hedonist, materialist ideals, it's set to what's almost a parody of Philly disco style, flying hi-hat and all.

See, to get the people you want to convert to listen, you

IMPORTS

JOY OF Cooking were a hot little number in '71-'72.

Headed by Wisconsin's Toni Brown and Berkeley's Terry Garthwaite, two talented female singer-songwriters, the group ploughed their way into the charts with a single called "Brownsville", cut three albums for Capitol and even logged some action on movie soundtracks, Toni Brown contributing to Roger Corman's Gas-s-s.

But now the Garthwaite-Brown duo is operational once more, working under the name of The Joy and having an album of that title out on Fantasy. Perhaps "The Joy" isn't all that it might have been and, sad to say, the girls don't always pan the gold-dust. But Toni Brown's "Snow", a tale of laundromat love, should do well for Daz sniffers everywhere and the girl's quick shuffle through Van Morrison's "Come Running", with Taj Mahal spraying hot harp all over the place, also comes up hale and hearty.

Label switching appears to be the name of the game this week. Don McLean, after spending yonks with UA, currently appears on Arista with an album titled "Prime Time". And John Stewart, who we last met on RCA, is now on RSO with "Free In The Wind", a Mentor Williams produced job; while Blood, Sweat And Tear, who've been with CBS since the day Al Kooper gave them birth, have "Brand New Day", their latest offering, out on ABC.

Do all the leading female country singers now wear cross-over bras? The point occurred after viewing the material employed on "La Costa" (Capitol), the newie from Tanya Tucker's elder sister. For her songs include The Stones' "Honky Tonk Women", England Dan and John Ford Coley's "Showboat Gambler" and Billy Joel's "Stop In Nevada" — none of 'em Opry favourites but probably what you'd expect from a country singer who cut a version of Smokey Robinson's "I Second That Emotion" for release as a recent single. The subject of country gals and their mammary supports reminds me that Dolly Parton has another RCA release in "Here You Come Again".

US Capitol, who gave the lead on The Beatles' "Rock'n'Roll Music", forcing EMI Britain to release the album, have followed up with "Love Songs", a 25-track double-album compilation featuring such previously released titles as "Girl", "P.S. I Love You", "This Boy", "Michelle" etc. A well-produced songbook is also included for those who wish to singalongatraz.

The Sex Pistols' "Anarchy In The UK" single is now arriving from France in a 12" version. Somehow it sounds a lot more vital than the 45 rpm edition — but then again it costs a lot more bread, retailing for around £2.50.

Yet another Loggins and Messina live one has surfaced on Columbia, in "Finale". Big band veterans continue to riff on, albeit often in the guise of funkmeisters. On CTI Urbie Green, trombonist with Gene Krupa back in '48, offers "Senor Blues", while at Epic they've dug out Doc Severinson, a high-flying trumpet man with Charlie Barnet in 1947-9, who's been provided with a band formed by Richard Tee, Eric Gale, Lee Ritenour, Tony Jackson and Ralph McDonald and allowed to indulge in his "Brand New Thing", an album produced and arranged by the ubiquitous Tom Scott.

Finally, there's the re-emergence of two female singer-songwriters, one being Jackie De Shannon, whose "You're Only The Dancer" (Amherst) features Randy Edelman and charts by "The Lone Arranger", while the other is Chi Coltrane, once a CBS star but now part of the T.K. production line, her "Road To Tomorrow" appearing on the Clouds label.

Fred Dellar

FOOTBALL AIN'T THE ONLY THING PLAYED WITH BALLS.

Cock Sparrer 7,500 as 12" single
WE LOVE YOU

LFR 13732

first take on their guise; rather like setting a lyric advocating the joys of free enterprise and cheap labour to a Durham miners' ballad, and about as attractive.

The Wailers' "Get Up, Stand Up" also receives a slightly ungainly disco treatment. The song's popular with white audiences though its motivation is militant Rasta — "We know and we understand that Almighty God is a living Man" — rather than political, as is usually assumed, and this version means that all three original Wailers have now recorded it solo — Marley on his live album, Peter Tosh on "Equal Rights". I'll take either of those versions, the original or Big Youth's languorous reading of the song above this mechanical jogalong.

Other old faves that receive a mauling include The Slickers' "Johnny Too Bad" (widely known from "The Harder They Come") which is reworked into a drawn out and clumsy moral tale reassuring us that Johnny really had a heart of gold inside the shell of "robbing, stabbing and shooting" — but far less convincingly and delightfully than the original. Again, moral overkill.

Then there's the ancient Wailers' number "Who Feels It Knows It"; the reincarnation succeeds fitfully when curtailing it to the three-minute mark would have made it a success; a criticism that applies to the other four tracks that are allowed to drag themselves out needlessly.

"Moses Children" and "Wanted Children" both have good riffs that could have been the basis of good songs of they'd been subjected to the same discipline that shaped the "Blackheart Man" album but here they're lost in a welter of biblical overkill and shapelessness; "Quit Trying" and "Scheme Of Things" lack even the backbone of a memorable riff.

BUNNY WAILER. Pic: KATE SIMON

The cover's already been christened "the first punk collage roots reggae sleeve" (daft when you consider collage was invented sometime around World War One). Punks often display abysmal taste in reggae, but only the old hippies among them are going to swallow this.

Hey Bunny, listen (he won't — he considers it vanity to read his own reviews) — there's more protest implicit in old Wailers' singles like "Simmer Down" or "Small Axe" than on all this album. Back to the roots.

The rest of you — if you want a Bunny Wailer album go buy "Blackheart Man"; if you want a reggae album there's plenty others to try; better still, consult NME's 'Rocker's Time' next week and splash the cash on singles.

Neil Spencer.

ALVIN STARDUST Greatest Hits (Magnet) SWEET

Golden Greats (RCA)

HOW SOON yesterday's legends become tomorrow's fag-ends.

But for me and all the other English pre-teens, early Alvin and Sweet were gospel. Much more heart-on-sleeve than tongue-in-cheek. So squeaky clean and yet so smutty — but it was a nice smut, as spankingly shiny as the black leather Alvin and assorted Sweets were wont to wear.

Even a lust for leather can't beat old age. Still, a touch of eyeliner and a mass of echo — who needs the elixir of youth? Just be all hints and smoulder and no blood — just the way the world and its big sister likes it. All risque, nothing risky.

Bernard Jewry, Shane "I'm A Moody Guy" Fenton to Stardust, and just see that pumpkin turn! In the future everyone will be famous for four singles, and the luck of the draw are "My Co Co Choo" (first thrill, never duplicated), "You You You" (numb blood-eyed obsession), "Jealous Mind" (sadistic beat married to cringing, whining lyrics) and "Red Dress" (Pop Star as benevolent bedroom dictator).

"Sweet Cheating" Rita" and "Good Love Can Never Die" hit too, though their fangs crumbled to dust even as they sunk in. What a cool fool to throw away the production of Roger Greenaway after Peter Shelley served you so well! The inclusion of "Bony Maronic", "Move It", "Come On" and Springsteen's "Growing Up" (should have changed it to "Going Bald", Al) demonstrates how easily John F. Kennedy could have made the wrong decision in 1962.

All this and heaven too? Alvin was a Government-sponsored training scheme, preparing tender young girls for the torture which awaited them as fully-fledged women, to a whimsical orchestration of jingle-jangle East End upright parlour piano clashing ecstatically with guitars screeching like a faked orgasm and a beat custom-made for the heady half-a-shandy shuffle executed at school discotheques.

Or for hints of the holocaust breathed through the tannoy, sample Sweet, the Four Grossmen of the Apunkalypse, who first insinuated themselves onto the airwaves with catchy innocence that even your parents could buy in "Funny Funny", "Co Co" and "Poppa Joe" — Phase 1.

None of that trash here. What you get is Chinn and Chapman's discovery of free-form prose in Phases 2 (Sweet as Teeny HM heroes: "Blockbuster", "Hellraiser", "Ballroom Blitz", "Teenage Rampage"), 3 (You've come a long way, baby, and now you've got a long way down: "Fox On The Run", "Action", "Turn It Down", "Lies In Your Eyes") and (Blatant Flops: "Fever Of Love", "Stairway To The Stars", "Lost Angels") by which time The Sweet were just another bunch of limp wimps though longer in the tooth than most.

But as placebos go, they were great. Brickies trying to look like flits or flits trying to look like brickies? Who knows or cares? The screeching, the explosions, the repetition, the stupidity, the colours, the frenzy; the only word that can fully convey the feel of their music is (yawn) Apocalyptic. They always made you feel like Something Was About To Happen — the oldest palliative in the world, so why do we keep falling for it?

"Up and join the Revolution/Get yourself a constitution/And join the Revolution now!" Who wrote those words? Strummer? October? Na, Chinnichap. The Revolution Will Not Be Consummated. Though from Sweet such glib salvation was vastly more forgivable; they dressed in weird clothes and smooched each other like best burlesque, never once claiming a tower-block heritage.

The problem is that throughout their career, Sweet dealt in IMAGES as opposed to REALITY (not one Sweet song examined line by line makes sense) and therein lay the appeal and the danger of these bands, through The Sweet to Roxy Music to The Clash — they only mean what you think they mean.

No public virtues and private vices for this breed of teen idol, though: just sweet, blatant artifice all down the line. No lies, no let-down, not like now. Dance to keep from thinking. Dance to keep from rebelling.

The Sweet record is great, the Stardust album less so. The last word on Rock And Roll As Voice Of Youth comes from The Sweet's "Ballroom Blitz"; "Reaching out for something and touching nothing's all I ever do."

Julie Burchill

An easy choice?

Not unless you get them both. On the one hand you've got 'Front Page News,' a stunner from the band who've consistently come up with the goods.

Then again there's Lynyrd Skynyrd's 'Street Survivors,' another fine album.

With a choice this difficult, buying them both isn't just wishful thinking — it's plain good sense.

MCA RECORDS

MCA Records, 1 Great Pulteney Street, London W1

The complete view of Santana

Since Abraxas, Santana have made six albums. Each of which has taken a different direction. Each has explored a new musical concept. During this time Devadip Carlos Santana has led a number of brilliant bands bearing his name, and stamped his unique guitar style on the history of rock.

Seven years on there is Moonflower.

Moonflower is a double album at £4.99 r.r.p. which contains eleven classic live tracks recorded in Europe, including 'Black Magic Woman' 'Soul Sacrifice' and 'Dance Little Sister' plus nine fiery new studio recordings that feature the hit single 'She's Not There'

Get Moonflower and enjoy the complete view of Santana.

SANTANA
new double album
MOONFLOWER
featuring the hit single 'She's Not There'

£4.99 r.r.p.

ON THE TOWN

Sensational Gigs Inc. proudly present Parker, The Tubes & The Rumour (though not in that order)

They came, they outraged, they conquered

The Tubes

HAMMERSMITH ODEON

THE TUBES recorded their two debut London gigs for a live album. This was indicative of either supreme confidence or supreme folly — probably a mixture of both.

The Tubes, you see, had no sure idea how a British audience would react to their onstage outrage. Prior to their arrival here and its attendant publicity the band were very much an unknown commodity.

That is beyond the odd story filtering through from the States. Like how when they first appeared some two years ago they were banned by a good percentage of American townships for overt stage nudity, or that they were prone to doing things like showering John McLaughlin audiences with white sliced bread.

The obvious recourse is to record your live album in front of an audience you know will go bananas the moment you walk on stage. The Tubes weren't even sure they had an audience, much less whether that audience would be remotely sympathetic.

That this gambit paid off is a tribute to their confidence and the effectiveness of what they do.

They are not strictly a rock band, neither are they a show, a satire, nor a marriage of rock and theatre, (although they admit early inspiration from the original Rocky Horror Show).

The Tubes are a spectacle, unlike any other.

They present a relentless two-hour onslaught of humour, outrage, parody, idiocy, music and costume — a feast for the senses.

If you saw them you will probably feel conned next time you hand over the notes to watch some other group merely stand there and play; if you didn't then this review will give only an inkling of what you missed.

Wire, the support band, played terse, monochrome songs with an admirable sense of style and potential scope that was lost in the hollow, warm-up atmosphere.

The Tubes began in white lab-technician coats with a Tubes Medley and two new songs that were low-key in the ensuing tentative, anticipatory atmosphere.

From left to right, the line-up is: Vince Welnick, playing keyboards and looking like the Mascara Snake reincarnate; Roger Steen (lead guitar), re-introduced that way every time he took a solo; Rick Anderson (bass); Tubes below-console leader Bill Spooner (guitar and occasional vocals); spoilt Hitler youth Michael Cotten (synthesizers).

Behind them on the drum podium are Prairie Prince and ex-Santana percussionist Mingo Lewis, and scattered around the stage are five video monitors that come into play with various obtuse film sequences throughout the set.

Operating amongst all this are four dancers, two stage hands, props, the sometimes glamorous and perverse Re Styles and method frontman Fee Waybill.

The stage exists in a continual chorus of activity that veers from anarchic chaos to precision orchestration with virtually no breathing space.

This becomes obvious as the expectant mood gave way to astonishment for the first sequence. The dancers somersaulted on stage in Star Wars garb and Waybill entered as an outlandish space warrior.

Together they enacted an instrumental light-sabre duel that ended in Waybill's costume being torn away to reveal the host for "What Do You Want From Life?", a cutting paean to consumerism couched, like everything The Tubes tackle, in ridiculous excess.

From then on it was simply one conceptual assault after another. The band continually assailed the senses of the audience with extremes of spectacle. At least five times I thought that's it, they're not going to top that; each time they did.

Like when after doing their duet of "Don't Touch Me There" from a motorbike, Waybill strapped Re Styles between two video monitors for "Mondo Bondage", and they followed that by debasing the whole cheap titillation routine they had just been through with "La Vie En Fuver" — a song about the psychological pressure caused by the proliferation of such cheap thrills in this world.

Or when they advertised and also mocked their albums through an absurdly funny

Waybill monologue on the video screens that revealed, when the lights went up, all eight Tubes in young generation dress dancing to a pre-recorded tape of themselves.

Admittedly, there were points when they dropped to a fairly predictable level of humour and histrionics (for instance the Johnny Bugger And The Dirt Boxes sequence, which was redeemed only by the spectacle of Waybill singing "I Saw Her Standing There" while wielding a chainsaw) but these moments were few and only to be expected in a two-hour plus set.

The finale was the appearance of Quay Lewd, Waybill's obnoxious British Rock Star replete with three-foot high platform shoes, beer can and glitter regalia.

Quay did "Boy Crazy", fell over, insulted at least half the audience, fell over, did "Stand Up And Shout", fell over, then told us: "This is the audience participation bit. When I say stand up and shout, you lot all shout... erh... 'go down on me you bitch'".

Eventually he settled for having the whole audience shout "you bleedin' wankers" on cue, fell over, and finally was buried beneath a toppling 50-foot speaker column.

Only to be revived for the encore, or final spectacle: All members of the Tubes, three fat angels, two white punks, a doctor, a human quaalude, an alien, Re Styles in roller skates, a gorilla, a circus fire-breather, Quay Lewd, two midgets, and a baby's arm holding an apple.

I have never witnessed anything remotely like The Tubes. Neither, to judge from the rapturous response and conversations overheard afterwards, had anyone else.

Amazing.

Paul Rambali

Pic: FIN COSTELLO

Do nothing until you see this band

Graham Parker & The Rumour

EDINBURGH
YEAH — Graham Parker & The Rumour — it even looks right on paper, doesn't it?

The first time I encountered this inspired combination was on their last tour with Southside Johnny; me, I reckoned there was only one side in it, and it wasn't the Americans. Y'er actual vox populi thought so too, staying on after the house lights had gone up to demand more — the best reception I've ever seen in this traditionally reserved city.

It doesn't do to expect Olympian feats twice running, but GP and the Rumour pulled it off — a stunning show that easily topped their last one.

It even neatly bypassed my two main reservations about the man.

Firstly his tendency to rewrite himself is made far less noticeable by culling his own strongest songs from all three albums and strategically reinforcing them with superb covers like Ann Peebles' "I'm Gonna Tear Your Playhouse Down", so that the material is consistently forceful throughout.

Secondly, that rather monochrome voice is more than adequately compensated for by his stage presence: his skinny little frame, all in black outfit and shades, scuttling about the stage like a scorpion.

A great performer. But it's the Rumour I go for. Now there is a band — every man a hero.

There's so much going on that's skilful, powerful and spot-on that it almost overwhelms the senses — Steve Goulding's lively but beautifully understated and varied drumming, Andy Bodnar complementing him well with his energetic, pumping bass work, the hyperactive Bob Andrews one-man show zestfully zipping in those keyboard lines and fills, the perfectly counterbalanced guitars of the nattily dressed Brinsley Schwarz and Martin Belmont, marvellously economical and lethally sharp...

Nor would it be fair not to credit their supertight and punchy brass section: John Earle — saxes, Dick Hanson — trumpet, Bluegethorn, Ray Beavis — tenor sax, and Chris Gower — trombone...

Put them all together and you've got the perfect balance of power and subtlety to drive home Parker's brand of hard nose, hard working, rousing r'n'b.

There were highlights galore, especially in the searing bursts of axe work, but one song, "The Heat In Harlem" deserves to be singled out for special praise.

The oh-so-tight interplay of the guitars, the piano build-up, swooping bass, great drumming, choice brasswork, and with the stage bathed in red light, you could practically feel the temperature rising up at you. The heat treatment, indeed.

And with Parker's own intensity and feeling spearheading the delivery, it's small wonder that they were getting ovations long before the end of the set.

Verily a band among bands. The range of their individual and collective talents and qualities, and their gift for slipping in so many deft touches amid all that power, put Graham Parker & The Rumour into what is literally a class of their own. Miss this one at your own considerable personal loss.

Support band Clover suffer heavily by comparison. Alex Call is a mediocre singer and his guitar was almost inaudible, as were Sean Hopper's keyboards. (In fact, it's not at all clear why Hopper is in the band if they're not going to let him contribute anything other in the set's strongest song.) Huey Louis' vocals and harmonica and John McFee's guitar work were both good, but Clover rely too heavily on these two stretching out weak ideas.

Ian Cranna

Pic: PENNIE SMITH

Somewhere under Rainbow

... five shades of Black

Rainbow
NEWCASTLE

BLACKMORE IS one of the few remaining Guitar Heroes, and it is apparent that this breed of musician is far from being out of favour with the rock audience in general. This alone explains the continuing pre-eminence of Rainbow when so many Heavy Metal bands are in decline right now.

What with sackings and the difficulties finding replacements, Rainbow have recently had their fair share of difficulties leading to the delay in starting their world tour. The nucleus of the band, however, is vocalist Ronnie James Dio and Cozy Powell on drums — along with Blackmore of course.

On stage you can basically forget about the new guys, Bob Daisley (bass) and David Stone (keyboards) because their contributions are minimal.

Considering that Dio, a pretty reasonable singer, and Powell, who's a strong player, have difficulty coming anywhere near the standard Blackmore sets in his playing, both Daisley and Stone will need to shape up, fast.

At Newcastle City Hall, Blackmore, who previously I'd never rated so highly, was brilliant. In rock today there are probably only a couple of guitarists who can match his subtlety, feeling, spirit of adventure and total control over the instrument.

Sadly he was let down by the quality of the material that was invariably ordinary and at its worst ("Long Live Rock 'n' Roll", the title track of their next album) dismal.

Ironically it was an old Purple number, "Mistreated" which stood on its own and was not merely a vehicle for their elaborate dynamics.

It is certainly Blackmore who will ensure Rainbow's survival, and the only aspect of their act to compete with him was the stage spectacular.

Housing 3,000 light bulbs, an arc about 30 feet high spanned the stage, and this was (naturally) the visual projection of the band's name.

As Ritchie gradually wound himself into a frenzy, so the effects became correspondingly more dazzling until Powell's drum podium rose high into the air, followed by an almighty explosion.

If Blackmore was surrounded by talent as great as his own, then quite possibly he could lead one of this country's greatest bands.

Blast Furnace And The Heatwaves
LONDON SCHOOL OF ORIENTAL AND AFRICAN STUDIES

HOT 'N' SWEATY, dapper 'n' diminutive, mean 'n' moody, fast, feisty 'n' fat... Blast Furnace dances like an amphetaminated Panda (bear as opposed to car) across the planks of the L.S.O.A.S. (yeah, that's what I thought, too) slashing with the self-conscious panache of a veteran of countless one-night stands and bedroom mirrors.

His bright red 1961 Gibson S.G. Junior snaps to erection. "We're The Heatwaves and Friday night is MUSIC night," he shouts in a thick Reading drawl. By the end of the loose-but-lethal garret-band's set of Blooze Comes In Spurts rock 'n' strut 'n' stroll, the students were dancing, singing, clapping and screaming for more like that ain't done since their last grant came through.

They were also chanting an audience affirmation of the "A Star Is Born" slogan that Blast were like a badge of courage across his pigeon-chest.

"WE LOVE YOU BLAST!" was the peoples' verdict on the proceedings. "MOOOOOOOORE!!!"

"I'm just outa fags, John, sorry", quipped the enigmatic Afro-Crop resplendant on battered leather jacket, knee-ventilation Levi's and sneezers.

The Heatwaves play a pastiche of South Side blooze and Oil City rhythm that fair warms the cockles of your new D.M.'s. Blast himself handles lead vocals of tarnished innocence quality on Ted Taylor's "Rambling Rose" (done a la mode de la MCS, though these days Rob Tyner ain't fit to lick Blast's plectrum), Willie Dixon's "I'm Ready" (a worthy tribute to Blast's avatar Muddy Waters), Robert Johnson's "Me And The Devil" and — best of all — Eddie Cochran's "Somethin' Else", (which he dedicates to a mate in the audience and cocks the words up on) ... plus other gems like Wilbert Harrison's war horse "Kansas City" and Mike "Don't Call Me Monkee" Nesmiths "Grand Ennu".

On the latter his warbling is accompanied by that of the tonsils of harp wailer / singer Skid Marx, who also handles the lyrics on Howlin' Wolf's "Worried 'Bout My Baby" and B.B. King's "Rock Me".

If The Clash are the U.K. band most responsible for channeling the spirit of J.A. into white kid rock 'n' roll then the Heatwaves surely fulfil the same function with their kind of town, Southside Chicago.

The rest of the band are Teen Appeal Tom Tom on skins (who, with Blast, is the sole possessor of decent barnet-length in what is a band of extremely rancid-looking individuals.) Blitz "Would You Believe Me If I Told You I Was Naturally Curly" Krieg sharing lead and rhythm guitar chores with the man himself, and B.Bop on excellent voluble bass-lines (although he should keep his North And South shut between numbers when he's introducing the songs he's got like Jimmy Reed's "Shame, Shame, Shame" as his talk 'n' stutter mumbling bonhomie tends to take the sting out of the set's tension).

All in all it was great, and I say that not in the spirit of the "Be Gentle With Him" Heatwave reviews that have appeared within this rag in the past, because I feel that Blast has got the bottle to assault the heights if he's got the manic Isn't It Strange.

Radiator

Ex-Lindisfarne members Alan Hull and Ray Laidlaw, together with fellow musicians Peter Kirtley, Kenny Craddock, Colin Gibson and Terry Popple are Radiator. 'Isn't it Strange' ROLL 14 is their first album.

CATCH RADIATOR ON TOUR.

16th Nov BRADFORD University
*17th Nov LEEDS University
*18th Nov BIRMINGHAM Hippodrome
19th Nov LEICESTER University
*20th Nov Coltham Bowl REDCAR
*23rd Nov KEELE University
*24th Nov Apollo GLASGOW

*25th Nov Empire LIVERPOOL
*26th Nov YORK University
*27th Nov Palace Theatre MANCHESTER
*29th Nov Rainbow LONDON
*1st Dec PORTSMOUTH Polytechnic
3rd Dec University of Essex COLCHESTER

*With Horslips

drive (a matter which must remain in doubt as he's a frozen-trifle reluctant to quit his day-job right now).

I enjoyed the Heatwaves more than I enjoyed the last three Clash gigs... and I can't put anything higher than that.

Tony Parsons

Albion Dance Band

COTTESLOE THEATRE PROFESSOR AHSLEY Hutchings, looking like some benign Master of the Revels, led the Albion Dance Band through an entertaining and invigorating set at the National Theatre's small Cottesloe Theatre, where the Albions have been busy supplying music for The Passion.

On stage were half the seminal Fairport Convention lineup, in the shape of Hutchings, Simon Nicol and Dave Mattacks, ably abetted by accordionist and master of the shaggy dog story John Tams, woodwind virtuoso Phil Pickett and the added bonus of Haringey's favourite librarian, June Tabor, who contributed three beautiful unaccompanied songs to the Albion set before joining them to add her undoubted vocal attributes to their instrumental ones.

It really was the Albion Dance Band as they careered through a three-hour set which included polkas, jigs, estampes, reels and, of course, the Albion Morris Men who gave a dazzling display of hoofing proficiency.

At times the stage looked like an all winners edition of New Faces.

The material varied from 16th Century court dances to an encore of Lennon and McCartney's 'I'm Looking Through You'. In between were Tams' moving rendition of 'Gresford Disaster', a sprinkling of Richard Thompson songs and a stirring sea-shanty.

An incongruous duff note was struck when they attempted a version of Handel's 'Sarabande' (the theme from Barry Lyndon) which struck me as heavy-handed.

At one stage during the evening Hutchings described the band as 'the English Santana'; true enough, except the Albions were far more fun.

Patrick Humphries

Pacific Eardrum; Simon Townshend Band

MUSIC MACHINE

THE SPARSE attendance at the Music Machine, Camden Town, combined with the palais-de-danse decor and an elevated stage more suited to pantomime than rock music to produce an atmosphere of bizarre unreality.

Why so few came is a slight mystery, as the reputation of Pacific Eardrum's Dave Macrae and probably the young Townshend's biggest gig to date would seem to make for an evening of more than passing interest.

I'll come clean and admit I was mainly there for the support act, though all I knew of Townshend's minor was gleaned from a Roy Carr mini-feature, in which Simon expressed a preference for 'Who's Next' rather than 'Tommy' and 'Quadrophonia', putting me on his side from the start.

At first I thought he was the guitarist with the Ronnie Wood haircut and Keith Richard moves and fell to imagining elder bro's disappointment at such a blatant lift.

Anyway, he got off some neat, if not thrilling, dual lead with his baby-face partner and I was just noting that the black bassist seemed to be sharing vocals with the pianist when the former introduced a new number as 'one of Simon's — that's him on keyboards'.

Siblings of the famous always get a rough ride, even if they're pretty good (Livingston Taylor, arguably a sharper, less soppy version of James, for instance), so S. Townshend's choice of instrument is fortunate in precluding one odious comparison.

He plays well, sounding a bit Supertrampish on his own 'Shylock', but the guitarists take most of the solos. 'Criminal Investigation' is another pleasant original, though the lyrics are again a bit too literal.

'Sail On Sailor' shows Simon to have better taste in Beach Boys numbers than the young Pete (who remembers The Who's 'Barbara Ann') but the vocals are thin and lack identity, a general failing.

Still, pleasant, melodic rock bands don't need nit-picking reviews before they've been able to develop and the Simon Townshend Band have only copped this one because of their leader's name.

Pacific Eardrum were a pleasant surprise, they were fluent rather than disjointed, avoided excess electronics and used technique as a means to an end.

Isaac Guillory, known to me only as a worthy acoustic soloist, avoided the predictable on electric lead and Jim Cuomo (sax) kept his nose clean, but it was Macrae's piano and Joy Yates' vocal that provided the warmth so often missing from this type of music.

Rock fans can expect an interesting evening.

Harry Robinson

Cleo Laine

LONDON PALLADIUM

FIRST NIGHT audiences at the Palladium rate like Halitosis Eddie in my book, and divide conveniently into Rolf Harris and those loudly spotting Rolf Harris.

That I weathered all that and went on to enjoy the show speaks volumes for the musicianship of John Dankworth and the greatness of Cleo Laine.

The first half was mainly Dankworth, the orchestra — jazz on the right, strings on the left — and a musical history of that august body from the pioneering Be-Bop Dankworth Seven, through hits like 'Three Blind Mice' and 'African Waltz'.

The usual criticism of Dankworth is that he purveys a bloodless 'Surbiton Jazz': well, he may not let it all hang out, but what hangs out works.

'All emotion, no feeling', Lennie Tristano's classic cool defence, could be enlisted on Dankworth's behalf, for his own playing on alto, soprano and in particular, clarinet, shows great imaginative gifts, secure chops, and a courtly deference to the tune.

Wisely in the all-Rolf Harris context, he cast his net widely.

The novelty 'Variations On A Theme Of Paganini' produced a good arco bass solo from Daryl Runswick and a great drum solo from Kenny Clare, who avoided the temptations of facile flash in favour of a Klookish display of control and form. The buggers had Bop and liked it.

I hadn't thought about Kenny Clare in a decade, and I'm ashamed of myself: cat's a gvnner. Classical guitarist John Williams was featured on the beautiful 'Asturias' by Albenez, an appallingly crass orchestration of Bach by Stanley Myers, and a gestural working of Rodrigo.

Cleo's half commemorated 25 years in The Biz, and despite a little more beef on the brisket, she still comes on like a hungry southpaw.

Whether she's as good as Sarah Vaughan in her heyday, is like the arguments about Getz and Zoot: at most, a whisker divides them in the technical stakes, and the divinity lies in the ear of the beholder.

The jazz training is there in the vocal gymnastics of 'Blues In The Night' — the high register miaow caught up from below by a gust of sirocco-like contralto, the energy so baffled, tucked, cuffed and flared that the listener should be issued with a coconut coaster mat. Rock has always confused this convention with check-ups At The Ear, Nose and Throat, and is thus the duller.

The two songs on the theme of loneliness, 'Streets Of London' and 'Eleanor Rigby', suit the cavernous quality in her lower register, shuffle rhythm on the latter, dubious morality on the former: does contemplation of lonely newspaper vendors really work as a tonic?

A duet with John Williams highlighted her diction and timing on 'He Was Beautiful', but, as with Sarah, I find the Bogart sibilants affected.

A well-paced and varied evening's music. Her version of Spike Milligan's 'English Teeth' brought the house down.

Brian Case

little bob story

LBS on TOUR

Wed	9th	SHEFFIELD (Polytechnic)
Thur	10th	HULL (College of Ed.)
Sat	12th	WAKEFIELD (Tech. College)
Tue	15th	LEICESTER (University)
Wed	16th	MANCHESTER (University)
Fri	18th	ABERDEEN (University)
Sat	19th	EDINBURGH (Heriot Watt Univ.)
Sun	20th	NEWCASTLE (Rex, Whytly Bay)
Mon	22nd	GLASGOW (Tiffany's)
Wed	23rd	BRADFORD (University)
Thur	24th	SWANSEA (University)
Fri	25th	MILFORD HAVEN (Torch Theatre)
Sat	26th	OXFORD (Polytechnic)
Sun	27th	CHELMSFORD (City Tavern)
Tue	29th	GUILDFORD (Civic Hall)

BOOKING AGENT — DAVE BETTERIDGE
ODEON ASSOC. (0222) 394853/394839 off the rails, Produced by SEAN TYLA

Chiswick
Distributed by Anchor/C.B.S.

WIK B

off the rails

New L.P.

off the rails

WIK

Townshend minor (keyboards, vocals); avoiding odious comparisons. Pic: JILL FURMANOVSKY

Philips. Beautiful sound you carry around.

AL 262

Here's a medium-size portable with really accurate tuning and tone controls. Sound quality is excellent. You can select LW or MW. There's an earphone socket for late-night listening.

AL 360

Run it from the mains inside. Or batteries outdoors. Choose from LW, MW or VHF using the dapper olive-green roller controls. We've also included a neat fold-away telescopic aerial.

AL 162

This LW MW baby weighs in at just under 18oz. The orange roller control stands out nicely against the grey matt silver case. Sturdy wrist strap and earphone as standard.

RL 230

Bright-silvered roller controls this time. Station-finding is made easy. We've sloped the wave-length scale. And picked out LW and MW figures in yellow and matt silver. Really superb tone control!

Simply years ahead.

PHILIPS

DON'T

Radio steps into the future

Wanna make a hit record on your radio?
Our man in the era of modern technology tells you how.
BY ROY CARR

DUNNO IF it's all down to sheer laziness or, worse still, media brainwashing, but a helluva lot of people out there don't realise that there's much more to radio than either the BBC or your local commercial station have to offer in the name of entertainment.

The fact that more portable radios than ever before incorporate cassette recorders, makes radio an even more attractive proposition to music buffs.

As it so happens, when discussing Sony's CF-900S Rhythm & Studio Mixer Portable Cassette Radio (suggested retail price £165), the three-band radio (FM/SW/MW) could almost be regarded as an added extra.

The main feature of the CF-900S is a built-in six-tempo rhythm box: an electric pulse which simulates snare drum, bass drum and a hi-hat choke cymbals. And this innovation is much more than a gimmick to pander to the insatiable appetite of the jaded hi-fi buff who has everything.

The CF-900S incorporates both a microphone and guitar input jacks which, when the cassette is switched on, allows you to make recordings with an appropriate rhythm backing. If desired, the rhythm box need not be used.

The basic rhythms are: waltz, ballad, bossa nova, swing and a choice of two rock beats. To further simplify matters, a rhythm pattern chart is included (see illustration).

And one is not restricted to just these six rhythms. When recording, it is possible to employ a combination of any of the rhythms and, with the aid of rhythm tempo control dial, to regulate the speed to suit your requirements.

For instance, I permuted the two rock buttons with the one marked ballad, set the tempo control to just over the halfway mark and got a tight back-beat that would have done the Feelgoods proud.

A combination of waltz and one rock rhythm, when set at full-tilt, sounded like Rat Scabies at his most manic; and linking the CF-900S to an Akai 4000DS reel-to-reel stereo recorder enabled me to make numerous rhythm overdubs to the point where I'm seriously thinking of jacking all this in and auditioning for Kraftwerk.

Like most portable cassette recorders, the CF-900S is paramilitary in design, yet considering that the facilities also include a mixer with four input switches and level controls, the instrument panel is extremely well designed, clearly marked and easy to operate.

The dimension of the CF-900S are 15 1/2 x 11 1/2 x 5 inches and, (including batteries) it weighs in at only 12 lbs. As an optional extra, there's a remote control foot pedal to facilitate rhythm box recordings.

In the past, I've bemoaned the undeniable fact that in many cassette recorders, the cassette machine is inferior to the radio receiver.

As far as the CF-900S is concerned (and this seems to apply to all Sony machines) such complaints don't exist.

Whether making direct recordings (an ISS switch reduces MW interference), taking a line off a TV, playing pre-recorded cassettes, transferring from disc to tape or Hors d'oeuvres.

To all of you who, with a twinge of regret, have thought that JVC couldn't possibly be your first stereo system, we have a special announcement to make.

From today you can buy an entire JVC Stereo System for under £300 including VAT. Just look at what you get to start you off.

A 20 watts RMS per channel JA-S10 amplifier, a JT-V10 AM/FM stereo tuner, the superb JL-A20 semi-automatic belt driven turntable, two JVC Hi-Fi speakers and, to keep the whole system together, a matching LK-10 purpose built stand. And just in case a few of the more technically minded of you are scratching your heads about the price, you have our assurance that our normal JVC quality hasn't been compromised by a single I.C. or kHz. Look at the figures - harmonic distortion only 0.5% THD., wow and flutter 0.03% (WRMS), tuner FM useable sensitivity 2.2µV.

Impressed?

You will be when you hear it at your local JVC dealer. And even more so when he tells you the deposit you had in mind is its actual price.

50 YEARS OF SOUND TECHNOLOGY 1927-1977
JVC
ANOTHER STEP CLOSER TO REALITY

JVC U.K. Limited, Eldonwall Trading Estate, Staples Corner, 6-8 Priestley Way, London NW2 7AF

TOUCH THAT DIAL!

Sony's CF-900S Rhythm and Studio Mixer Portable Cassette Radio . . . believe it or not.

employing the built-in Electret condenser microphone (especially the latter), the playback through this machine's 6-inch (woofer), 2-inch (tweeter) was excellent. Indeed.

Furthermore, the CF-900S can, if desired, be used as an auxiliary speaker. As a final test, I linked the CF-900S up to a Sansui amplifier and using it as a tape deck played back all my test recordings through my loudspeakers. Despite the fact that I hadn't used a Dolby, background noise was still quite minimal.

I've discovered that many portable stereo cassette-corders lay claim to the terminology by default, in that they often sound like two mono radios welded on either side of a cheap cassette machine. Sure, when stereo speakers are in such close proximity to one another you can't expect to obtain a panoramic stereo spread, but truthfully, many manufacturers don't even attempt to solve this problem.

Up until I tested the Sony CF-560S (suggested retail price £150) I'd always used JVC's splendid 9475LSB as a yardstick by which to measure all similar machines in this price bracket.

The CF-560S is a three band (FM/SW/MW) stereo cassette-corder, while the CF-570L incorporates a LW band and the nifty CF-950S (a machine I intend to test run at a later date) boasts five channels, two separate tuning scales and allows one to listen to the radio on headphones while at the same time, making cassette recordings with either the internal microphone or via an external line-in jack.

However back to the CF-560S.

Whereas many manufacturers feel the only way to a purchaser's pocket is by designing all their hardware to resemble Concorde's flight-deck, Sony have chosen to streamline the CF-560S for practicality.

It's 15 1/2 x 10 x 5 inches in size, it weighs (including batteries) 12lbs 2ozs, and the two 5-inch speakers carry considerable clout without distortion. What I particularly liked about the CF-560S was that unlike similar four-band stereo jobs, the FM band wasn't plagued by atmospherics — definitely a major plus when taping continental stereo broadcasts from German and French stations.

In the mid-price range there are very few portable mono cassette-corders that I would afford house room. Again my complaints are levelled at the sub-standard performance of the cassette recorder.

The Sony CF-210L (suggested retail price £70) is a four-band module, incorporates a heavy-duty 4-inch speaker, measures 12 1/2 x 10 1/2 x 3 1/2 inches and (including batteries) weighs 6lbs 12oz.

Though it incorporates all the regular facilities you get with other similar machines, its main advantage is its reliability. When I replayed the cassette recordings through my own hi-fi system they were most satisfactory.

These machines are currently being stocked by most hi-fi dealers. Remember, it costs nothing to fiddle about with them!

N.B. All prices are those suggested by the manufacturer which means that your local discount merchant will be offering them at quite a few quids off list price.

Liquid-cooled speakers

THE AMERICAN-based Teledyne Acoustic Research company are currently promoting their high-range speakers as being "Liquid Cooled!"

"Liquid Cooled" due to the fact that speakers often become over-heated . . . and AR have seen fit to suspend the voice coil in a magnetic solution (costing $3,000 per gallon) which acts as a heat transfer agent.

"Liquid Cooled" could also apply to the performance. Though AR are attempting to make inroads into the rock market, I found that the AR18 bookshelf speakers (approx. £90 a pair) were infinitely more suited to jazz, classical and acoustic/MOR pop.

For the young executive bachelor pad a pair of AR18's are ideal. They'll fit unobtrusively next to the bound volumes of Playboy or amongst the rubber plants and with the volume way down low, purr pleasantly. However, when I jacked up the volume and slammed either a disco cut or some hard rock through the speakers, the overall sound wasn't distorted but flattened. The reproduction lacked that essential "warmth" that one expects from rock speakers.

When I resorted to Miles Davies of Simon & Garfunkel, the response was quite the reverse. The reproduction had far more depth and clarity.

Perhaps I was using the wrong speakers for the wrong music

Six rhythms and their patterns

Rhythm	Pattern
WALTZ	High-Fat Control Waltz Beat Waltz Beat
BALLAD	Control Waltz Beat Ballad Beat Ballad Beat
BOSSANOVA	Control Waltz Beat Bossanova Beat Bossanova Beat
SWING	Control Waltz Beat Swing Beat Swing Beat
ROCK 1	Control Waltz Beat Rock Beat Rock Beat
ROCK 2	Control Waltz Beat Rock Beat Rock Beat

The Sony CF-900S rhythm chart

Heard any good books lately?

HI-FI YEAR BOOK 1978

Polkas/Motors/Turntables/Amplifiers/Headphones/Recorders/Speakers/Conductors/Audio Systems

Good listening begins with the right equipment — and the Hi-Fi Year Book gives you the low down on just about everything the market has to offer. With separate illustrated sections for every major category of equipment, it's got descriptions, prices, specifications, who makes it, where to buy it — everything you need to know. And all this information is backed by authoritative articles on the latest hi-fi developments, including quadraphonic recording. But you'd better order your copy quickly — lots of people will be pricking up their ears at news of this latest edition.

Available direct from the publishers @ £3.40 inclusive or from leading booksellers and newsagents price £3.00.

ORDER FORM

To: IPC Business Press Ltd., Room 11,

Dorset House, Stamford Street, London SE1 9LU.

Please send me: copy/copies of Hi-Fi Year Book 1978 @

£3.40 a copy inclusive, remittance enclosed.

Cheque/P.O. should be made payable to IPC Business Press Ltd.

NAME: _____

ADDRESS: _____

Registered in England No. 677428

Printed in England

Registered Office: Dorset House, Stamford Street, London SE1 9LU

Goodmans Power Range 15 years hard work backed by 50 years power experience

Goodmans are the largest manufacturer of loudspeakers in the U.K. — with over 50 years power experience. We make a rugged range of speakers — the Power Range, you can boat the guts out of them, with PA, guitar, bass and keyboards — terrific power handling, sparkling performance. Ask John, the bass player, his Goodman's 18 in. has seen most of the high (and low) spots in Europe, taken its fair share of spilled pints and with a few extra screws to hold the cab together, is still going strong.

Insist that your gear is fitted with Goodman's Power Range loudspeakers — don't gamble with your success, bank on Goodman's 50 years Power Experience. Each Goodman's loudspeaker is supplied with full information, detailed construction drawings for suitable enclosures, together with connection details for single and multiple speaker systems.

Goodmans

Goodmans Loudspeakers Limited,
Downley Road, Havant,
Hampshire, PO9 2NL,
England

Goodmans Loudspeakers Limited, Downley Road, Havant, Hampshire, PO9 2NL, England

COR BABY THAT'S REALLY FREE!

THE NEW SINGLE FROM
JOHN OTWAY & WILD WILLY BARRETT
STARS OF STAGE, T.V.
SCREEN & PUBLIC HOUSES!

ALBUM 2383 453
SINGLE 2058 951

polydor

His Holiness, the most reverend Doner Kebab

Demis Roussos PALLADIUM

WITH STAINED glass windows as a backdrop, the stage of the London Palladium is transformed onto a church. With only one god.

Dense clouds of white smoke billowed from monstrous Greek urns. (How much does a monstrous Greek urn? More than he should). The smoke looks like incense, but appropriately smells like sun, tan oil.

The mums, dads, and grandparents in the audience begin to choke quietly on the fumes, and giggle with embarrassment.

Upon high, celestial light bathes portraits of Christ and the Virgin Mary, but the incantations of the acolytes set these minor deities in context.

"Demiiiss Roououssoss, Demiiiss Roououssoss", they warble, in a remarkable approximation of the Holy One's own tremulous soprano.

In response, as though summoned forth from the underworld (or since we're near a tube line, the underground), the Spirit of the Continental Package Tours ascends from the orchestra pit.

Arms raised, like a debauched archbishop bestowing his blessings, Roussos gently rises up through swirling dry ice to tumultuous applause. Some hydraulic platform, this baby.

But was this the best they could do? The next time, maybe, they could roll away a stone.

At £7.50 a seat, worship here costs out at rather more than the usual church collection, but then you don't always get the founder of the religion along every Sunday.

In his way, though, Demis Roussos gives excellent value for money. He's on stage for almost two hours, and since the Majorcan exiles present clearly enjoy his act, they don't begrudge the need for second mortgages.

Demis runs through his hits. All both of them. And also offers much, much more in the same tear-jerk style. Oddly enough, the crowd appear to recognise everything he sings, even the songs in Greek. This is obviously a whole new sub-culture.

The only snag for Demis is that his view of the Roussos phenomenon, as he modestly dubs it, is somewhat at odds with that of his apostles.

For them, all this spiritual baloney is irrelevant. They're not there for an evening with a musical Maharishi. They just want a re-run of their fortnight on the Costa Del Sol.

No matter that Roussos is a Greek. The continent starts at Harwich, and he'll do, regardless of the precise geographical location of their own nostalgia trip.

During the interval, the bar takes on the look of a Marbella discotheque. Bank clerks got up to look like gigolos rub shoulders with flashy women in bouffants, bottled tans, and sculpted lipstick. It's a small mercy they don't hand round their photograph albums, or get out the projectors for home movies.

Back in their pews, the song that gets their strongest response turns out to be "Take Me Home Country Roads", not a Roussos song at all, but a John Denver number. This suggests some ethnic confusion in the solarium, but then limp fantasies transcend such barriers.

It's Roussos's novelty value as a singing doner kebab that remains to the fore, however. There's nothing camp about his appeal, even if it is odd that a man who looks like Peter Grant should sing like Jon Anderson. Roussos doesn't regard himself as the Liberator of the kaftan, and neither do his followers.

Their pleasure is strictly grim-faced and tightly-corseted. They even applaud with the rhythm of plodding commuters.

The saddest people around are the backing band. Roussos lets them do a number on their own, and it comes across as a weak pastiche of Yes, but the drummer works up his first and only sweat of the evening.

The response is stony, the applause ungenerous. Heavy rock has intruded like a heretic, albeit on tiptoe. Among people mourning their lost youth, such potency seems like a blasphemy. And, indeed, that's exactly what it is.

Bob Edmands

NEW WAVE IS ON THE STREETS
AND STREETS IS THE NEW WAVE ALBUM

STREETS

Includes Tracks From

The Art Attacks
Cane
John Cooper Clarke
Arthur Cornish
The Dogs
The Doll Drive
The Drones
The Exile
The Lurkers
The Members
The Nosebleeds
Park Dukes
The Reaction
Slaughter And The Dogs
Tractor
The Zeros

THIN LIZZY LIVE

BAD REPUTATION TOUR 77

Supported by Radiators from Space

NOVEMBER

16-17 Liverpool Empire
18 Bridlington Spa
19 Oxford, New Theatre
21-22 Bristol, Colston Hall

23 Sheffield City Hall
24 Bradford, St. George's Hall
25-26 Manchester Free Trade Hall
28 Brighton Dome
29 Portsmouth Guildhall
30 Bournemouth Winter Gardens

DECEMBER

2-3 Birmingham Odeon
4 Wolverhampton Civic
5 Leicester, De Montfort Hall
7 Southampton Gaumont
8 Cardiff, Capitol
10-11 London, Hammersmith Odeon
13-14 London, Lewisham Odeon

Bad Reputation
Album 9102 016
Cassette 7231 011

Nightlife
Album 6360 116
Cassette 7138 064

Fighting
Album 6360 121
Cassette 7138 070

Jailbreak
Album 9102 008
Cassette 7138 075

Johnny The Fox
Album 9102 012
Cassette 7138 082
8Track 7739 034

phonogram

UNIVERSITY OF ESSEX
ENTS PRESENTSSaturday November 19th at 8.30 pm in L.T.B. 6/7

JOHN MARTYN

+ Support
Lights & MusicTickets £1.30 from Parrot Records & S.U.
Enquiries: Telephone Colchester 63211

ROUNDHOUSE

FRIDAY 18th NOVEMBER at 7.30

THE DICTATORS
999
THE STUKASADMISSION £1.50 (INC. VAT) ADVANCE ROUNDHOUSE BOX OFFICE TEL 267 2564 OR LONDON THEATRE
BOOKINGS SHAFFESBURY AVE. W.1 TEL 419 8371. 00870000PETER OUT &
THE FADERS
LIVEAT LONG CRENDON COMMUNITY CENTRE

Friday November 18th at 9 pm

The Punk Band from the Centre of the Musical University — Aylesbury

Bookings: 0296 668185

The Band would like to thank Skyline Promotions for our last run of gigs.Seeing is Believing Bethnal

NOV.

16th. OSCARS - ILFORD
17th. MAXIMS - BARROW

19th. MANCHESTER - FREE TRADE HALL
20th. LINCOLN - THEATRE ROYAL
22nd. NEWCASTLE - CITY HALL
23rd. GLASGOW - APOLLO
24th. HAWICK - TOWN HALL
25th. DUNDEE UNIVERSITY
26th. SOUTHPORT - NEW THEATRE
27th. LONDON - THEATRE ROYAL - DURYLANE
28th. COVENTRY - LOCARNO
29th. KEIGHTLEY - VICTORIA HALLS
30th. BRADFORD UNIVERSITY

Sole agency Pete Fountain ITB (International Talent Bookings) 01-629 4928

FOXES GREYHOUND
AT THE PARK LANE, CROYDON

Sunday November 20th

BURLESQUE

+ BAZOOMIS & D.J. PETER FOX

Sun. Nov. 27th: TOM ROBINSON BAND + No Dice

Sun. Dec. 4th: IAN DURY BAND

Rock 'n' Rollers please note

A rare London appearance on THURSDAY NOVEMBER 17th

FREDDIE 'FINGERS' LEE

+ Rock 'n' Roll Disco

IN THE CRYPT

S.U. 50p

Guests 75p

North East London Poly Students Union
Greengate St., Plaistow, E.13

Tube: Plaistow Buses: 262, 69

Next Thurs. Flying Saucers

PICKWICKS

Every Monday 8.00 — 12.00

Bradford, Road,
DewsburyTHE STREETS
ALBUM PACKAGEwith THE LURKERS
ART ATTACK THE DOLLDirty Spike Spem in attendance at all gigsMonday Nov. 28th
THE DRONES
(Bone Idle)

+ Various Supports

Monday Dec. 5th

STEEL PULSE

Monday Dec. 12th

BUZZCOCKS

Booking Agents: BANKHOUSE ENTS 048-489 2478

IVANHOES

Manchester Road, Huddersfield

Every Tuesday 8.00-12.00

Tuesday Nov 22nd
A Night For The Wild 'n' WeirdDOCTORS OF MADNESS

+ The Skunks

Filthy Spike Spem in attendance at all gigsTuesday Nov 29th
The Cream of Rox
Made & Making Talent

BURLESQUE

+ Sneakers

Booking Agents: BANKHOUSE ENTS 048-489-2478

The 50p RIP-OFF

The Suburban Studs at the Marquee.

On Nov 20th and 27th.

Take this ad with you, save 50p at the door.

SUBURBAN STUDS
NEW SINGLE 'NO FAITH' Pogo

ALAN PRICE

Alan Price UK Tour

Nov.
16th BRIGHTON Dome
17th SWINDON Wyvern Theatre
19th BRIDGEND Recreation Centre
20th NORWICH Theatre Royal
22nd LEICESTER De Montford Hall
24th BASILDON Taingate Theatre
25th CANTERBURY Odeon
26th BIRMINGHAM Town Hall
27th NEWCASTLE City Hall
29th MANCHESTER Free Trade Hall
30th PRESTON Guild Hall
Dec.
1st LEEDS Grand Theatre
2nd LONDON Rainbow

Marketed by UA Records Ltd

SOUTH BANK POLYTECHNIC S.U.

Rotary St., S.E.1
Tel 01-261 1525

Friday November 18th

THE TYLA GANG

+ Bazooka Joe

Cheap drinks. Nearest tube: Elephant and Castle

Tickets 80p NUS, £1.00 others. Next Friday: Little Acre

BRUNEL UNIVERSITY

Kingston Lane, Uxbridge
Middlesex. Tel: Uxbridge 39125

Friday November 18th

Fairport
Convention

+ Support

Tickets £1.30 in advance, £1.50 on door

Friday November 25th

The Rochdale Cowboy...

MIKE HARDING

Tickets £1.00 in advance, £1.20 on door

Tickets available from Social Secretary, or City Electronics, The Shopping Precinct, Uxbridge Nearest tube: Uxbridge

THE ROCK CLUB

NEW WRITTLE ST.,
CHELMSFORD

Thurs. Nov. 17th

8-11 pm

70p

THE STUKAS

Sun. Nov. 20th

8-11 pm

60p

THE LESSER KNOWN TUNISIANS

THE TELEGRAPH

at

BRIXTON HILL

London's Newest Rock Centre
(capacity at excess of 1000) presents

CHECKMATE

+ Support

FOR ONE WEEK

FROM NOVEMBER 19th UNTIL 26th

Nearest Undergrounds: Stratham & Brixton Hill, 10 minutes away.
Food availableYOU'VE GOT THE INFO, YOUR MOVE

THE PORTERHOUSE

20 Carolgate, Retford, Notts

Friday November 18th

KRAKATOA

(featuring Terry Bennett ex-Sassafras)

Saturday November 19th

PAUL BURNETT

(Radio One D.J.)

Admission from 50p both nights. Licensed Bar 8pm — 2am

VORTEX

Monday November 21st & Tuesday November 22nd

THE

HEARTBREAKERS

Support

Monday: DEPRESSIONS, MEAN STREET, SPIZZ 77 DJ Nic Lee

Tuesday: PENETRATION, JOHNNY CURIOUS, SPIZZ 77 DJ Jerry Floyd

Admission £1.50 each night

NATIONWIDE GIG GUIDE

THE DAMNED begin their round-Britain trek (this week, with dates at Middlesbrough (Thursday), Cambridge (Friday), Hull (Saturday), Manchester (Sunday), Birmingham (Monday), Coventry (Tuesday) and Sheffield (Wednesday) — with not a spare day to catch their breath. Support act on all gigs are highly-rated U.S. band The Dead Boys.

Thursday

BANGOR University: SWIFT
 BARROW Maxim's Disco: BETHNAL
 BEDFORD Mander College: HOT VULTURES
 BELFAST Queen's University: FLAVIUM
 BELFAST Whittall Hall: BARBARA DICKSON
 BIRKENHEAD Mr. Digby's: ADVERTISING
 BIRMINGHAM Barrel Organ: RICKY COOL & THE ICEBERGS
 BIRMINGHAM Golden Eagle: SHOOP SHOOP
 BIRMINGHAM Railway Hotel: MAGNUM
 BIRMINGHAM Rebecca's: XTC
 BLACKBURN Lodestar: ALAN HULL'S RADIATOR
 BLACKPOOL Downtown Bar: ACCELERATORS
 BOURNEMOUTH Town Hall: YACHTS
 BRADFORD Princeville Club: STRIFE
 BRIGHTON Conference Centre: DEMIS ROUSSOS
 BRIGHTON Polytechnic: 90° INCLUSIVE
 BRIGHTON Sussex University: DAEVID ALLEN & PLANET GONG
 BRISTOL Crookers: STONEY
 BRISTOL Granary: MARSEILLES
 BRISTOL Polytechnic: PAUL DOWNES & PHIL BEER
 BRISTOL The Glen: WHIRLWIND
 BRISTOL Yate Stars & Stripes Club: FLYING SAUCERS
 BUXTON Railway Hotel: TATUM
 CARDIFF University: ALAN HULL'S RADIATOR
 CHELMSFORD City Tavern: THE STUKAS
 COVENTRY Bulls Head: STAN TRACEY QUARTET
 COVENTRY Mercers Arms: RENO
 COVENTRY Warwick University: CHINA
 CROYDON Addington Hotel: BUSTER JAMES BAND
 DUBLIN Trinity College: FIVE HAND REEL
 DUNDEE Caird Hall: ELKIE BROOKS / RICHARD DIGANCE
 EXETER Groucho's: JULIAN PIPER'S ALL STARS
 EXETER University: JOHNNY COPPIN
 FALKIRK Maniqui: LITTLE BOB STORY
 GLASGOW Apollo Centre: CLIFF RICHARD
 HIGH WYCOMBE Nags Head: MEDIUM WAVE BAND
 HUDDERSFIELD Polytechnic: THE JAM
 LANCASTER No. 12 Club: STAMPS
 LEEDS Polytechnic: GORDON GILTRAP BAND
 LEEDS University: HORSLIPS
 LEICESTER Granby Halls: RITCHIE BLACK-MORE'S RAINBOW
 LLANHAIRAN British Legion Club: BULLETS
 LIVERPOOL Empire Theatre: THIN LIZZY / RADIATORS FROM SPACE
 LONDON BATTERSEA Arts Centre: GEORGE MELLY & THE FEETWARMERS
 LONDON CAMDEN Dingwells: CADO BELLE LONDON CAMDEN Music Machine: ROCK
 LONDON CANNING TOWN Bridge House: FILTHY McNASTY
 LONDON CHALK FARM Roundhouse: THE ADVERTS / WAYNE COUNTY / ALTERNATIVE TV / JOHNNY MOPE
 LONDON COVENT GARDEN Crawfords: THUNDERCLAP NEWMAN & BOB FLAG
 LONDON COVENT GARDEN Rock Garden: THE DOWNLINERS SECT / SMILING HARD LONDON COVENT GARDEN Seven Dials: SWINGING STRINGS 77
 LONDON EUSTON Green Man: VOID
 LONDON FULHAM Golden Lion: GRAND HOTEL
 LONDON HAMMERSMITH Red Cow: RIFF RAFF
 LONDON HAMMERSMITH The Rutland: FRED RICKSHAW'S HOT GOOLIES
 LONDON HAMMERSMITH The Swan: LANDSCAPE
 LONDON HARROW RD. Windsor Castle: LIGHTNING RAIDERS
 LONDON KENSINGTON The Nashville: THE PIRATES
 LONDON KILBURN Gaumont State: DOC WATSON
 LONDON Marquee Club: GEORGE HATCHER BAND
 LONDON OLD BROMPTON RD. Troubadour: DAVE EVANS & SAMMY MITCHELL
 LONDON OXFORD ST. 100 Club: SPITERI
 LONDON PUTNEY Star & Garter: THE ACTORS
 LONDON Rainbow Theatre: THE CHIEFTAINS
 LONDON Royal Albert Hall: LINDA LEWIS / JOHN OTWAY & SCRATCH (charity show)
 LONDON Southbank Polytechnic: NIGHTHAWKS
 LONDON SOUTHGATE Royalty Ballroom: CRAZY CAVAN 'N' THE RHYTHM ROCKERS
 LONDON STOKE NEWINGTON Rochester Castle: DEPRESSIONS
 LONDON Tooting The Castle: PAINTED LADY
 LONDON WOOLWICH Tramshed: CY GRANT
 LOUGHBOROUGH Town Hall: COLOSSEUM II
 MANCHESTER Band on the Wall: TURNING POINT
 MANCHESTER Belle Vue: COUSIN JOE FROM NEW ORLEANS
 MANCHESTER Middleton Civic Hall: BERNIE TORME
 MANCHESTER Rafter's Club: THE ONLY ONES
 MIDDLESBROUGH Penetration Club: THE DAMNED / THE DEAD BOYS
 MORECAMBE Inn On The Bay: SHABBY TIGER

NEWCASTLE City Hall: GRAHAM PARKER & THE RUMOUR / CLOVER
 NEWPORT Stowaway Club: XTC
 NORWICH Cromwell's: ROKOTTO
 NORWICH Sunshine Rooms: EATER / MONOTONES
 NOTTINGHAM Imperial Hotel: PELICAN
 NOTTINGHAM University: THE NEXT BAND
 OXFORD New Theatre: SANDY DENNY & FRIENDS
 PLYMOUTH Drake Club: SKIN TIGHT
 POYNTON Folk Centre: JOHNNY SILVO
 ROMFORD White Hart: CADILLAC
 SCARBOROUGH Ollie's Club: SCENE STEALER
 SUTTON COLDFIELD Dog Inn: STAGE FRIGHT
 SWANSEA Circles Club: SHAM 69
 SWANSEA Nutz Club: CAFE JACQUES
 SWINDON Wyvern Theatre: ALAN PRICE
 WAKEFIELD Unity Hall: RADIO STARS
 WEST BROMWICH Coach & Horses: GARBO / CELLULOID HEROES
 WIGAN Casino: THE BUZZCOCKS
 YEOVILTON Heron Club: GENO WASHINGTON

Friday

ABERDEEN Capitol Theatre: ELKIE BROOKS / RICHARD DIGANCE
 ABERDEEN University: LITTLE BOB STORY
 ABERYSTWYTH University: THE MOVIES
 ASHFORD (Kent) Stanhope Hall: HEADACHE
 BARNSTAPLE Chequers Club: GENO WASHINGTON
 BASINGSTOKE College Folk Club: FLAKY PASTRY
 BATH Hat & Feather: JUNE TABOR
 BELFAST Queen's University: GEORGE MELLY & THE FEETWARMERS
 BIRMINGHAM Barbarella's: THE ADVERTS
 BIRMINGHAM Newman College: ARBRE
 BIRMINGHAM Railway Hotel: SPITFIRE
 BRIDLINGTON Spa Pavilion: THIN LIZZY / RADIATORS FROM SPACE
 BRISTOL Railway Inn: MECHANICAL HORSETROUGH
 BRISTOL University: FRANKIE MILLER'S FULL HOUSE / MEAL TICKET
 BROMLEY The Northover: WHIRLWIND
 BURNLEY Bank Hall: STRIFF
 CAMBRIDGE Corn Exchange: THE DAMNED / DEAD BOYS
 CANTERBURY Kent University: CADO BELLE CARDIFF Capitol Theatre: SANDY DENNY & FRIENDS
 CARDIFF Top Rank: EATER / MONOTONES
 CHELTENHAM North Glos. College: JOHNNY COPPIN BAND
 CHESTER Arts Centre: TURNING POINT
 COVENTRY Lanchester Polytechnic: SCREENS
 COVENTRY Market Tavern: MERLIN
 COVENTRY New Phoenix: RENO
 CROMER West Runtion Pavilion: SHAKIN' STEVENS & THE SUNSETS
 CROYDON Addington Hotel: BUSTER JAMES BAND
 DERBY Bishop Lonsdale College: SHAM 69
 DUDLEY J.B.'s Club: WILKO JOHNSON
 EASTBOURNE Congress Theatre: TONY BENNETT
 EDINBURGH University: CHINA
 EGREMONT Tow Bar Inn: STAMPS
 FARNWORTH Veterans Club: RESTLESS ROCKERS
 GLASGOW Apollo Centre: CLIFF RICHARD
 GLASGOW University: BARBARA DICKSON
 GLOUCESTER Leisure Centre: DEMIS ROUSSOS
 GUILDFORD Surrey University: JOHN MARTYN
 HAMILTON College of Education: THE DARTS
 HARROW Technical College: CAFE JACQUES
 HEMEL HEMPSTEAD Arts Centre: BEARS / DEPRIVED / SUCKS
 HEYWOOD Seven Stars: BODY
 HIGH WYCOMBE College of Education: NIGEL MAZLYN JONES
 LANCASTER University: BERNIE TORME
 LEEDS Grobs Wine Bar: SPYDER BLUES BAND
 LEICESTER Polytechnic: SETTLERS / JIM BOWEN
 LEICESTER University: MUSCLES
 LEICESTER Villiers Hall: MUSCLES
 LINWOOD Clippens Inn: CHOU PAHROT
 LIVERPOOL Empire Theatre: HARRY BELAFONTE
 LIVERPOOL Eric's: THE BUZZCOCKS
 LIVERPOOL Polytechnic: YACHTS
 LLANDRINDOD WELLS Grand Pavilion: XTC / THE PURGES
 LONDON BATTERSEA Arts Centre: GRASS ROOTS
 LONDON BIRKBECK College: BUSTER CRABBE
 LONDON CAMDEN Brecknock: BONE IDOL
 LONDON CAMDEN Dingwells: WINDOW / LIGHTNING RAIDERS
 LONDON CAMDEN Music Machine: JENNY HAAN'S LION
 LONDON CAMDEN Southampton Arms: JELLYROLL BLUES BAND
 LONDON Central Polytechnic: WAYNE COUNTY & THE ELECTRIC CHAIRS
 LONDON CHALK FARM Roundhouse: THE DICTATORS 999
 LONDON City Polytechnic: XTC

LONDON COVENT GARDEN The Basement: THE STATISTICS
 LONDON COVENT GARDEN Rock Garden: GEORGIE FAME & THE BLUE FLAMES / ROCKETS
 LONDON COVENT GARDEN Roxy Club: THE TICKETS
 LONDON FULHAM Greyhound: BULLET
 LONDON HARROW RD. Windsor Castle: SCARECROW
 LONDON ISLINGTON Hope & Anchor: DIRE STRAITS
 LONDON KENSINGTON The Nashville: THE PIRATES
 LONDON LEICESTER-SQ. Centre Charles Peguy: CORUNNE & CO.
 LONDON Marquee Club: X-RAY SPEX
 LONDON PENGEE Freemasons Tavern: THIEF
 LONDON PUTNEY Half Moon: JOHN SPENCER'S LOOTS
 LONDON PUTNEY Star & Garter: GREIG & NIGEL'S FOLK & BLUES NIGHT
 LONDON Rainbow Theatre: THE CHIEFTAINS
 LONDON School of Economics: USERS / SOFT BOYS
 LONDON SOUTHBANK Polytechnic: TYLA GANG
 LONDON SOUTHGATE Royalty Ballroom: FOUNDATIONS
 LONDON STRAND King's College: STEEL PULSE
 LONDON Upstairs at Ronnie Scott's: EBONY STEEL BAND
 LONDON WILLESDEN White Horse: FLYING SAUCERS
 LONDON WOOLWICH Thames Polytechnic: MICHAEL CHAPMAN BAND
 LONDON W.I. Speakeasy: SPITERI
 MANCHESTER Royal Exchange Theatre: STAN TRACEY OCTET
 MANCHESTER Valentino's Club: JET HARRIS & THE DIAMONDS
 MARCH Cromwell's: ROKOTTO
 MARGATE High Cliff: AMAZORBLADES
 MILTON KEYNES The Netherfield: LEFT HAND DRIVE
 NEW BRIGHTON Empress Club: AMERICAN TRAIN
 NEWCASTLE City Hall: MIKE HARDING
 NEWCASTLE Guildhall: HOT SNAX / SCRATCH-BAND
 NEWCASTLE Mayfair Ballroom: THE JAM
 NEWCASTLE Polytechnic: GEORGE HATCHER BAND
 NORWICH Toppers: GONZALEZ
 NOTTINGHAM Hearty Good Fellow: FIRST REFUSAL
 NOTTINGHAM Test Match Inn: TATUM
 NOTTINGHAM Trent Polytechnic: CHEAP FLIGHTS
 NOTTINGHAM University: MUNGO JERRY
 OXFORD New Theatre: THE WURZELS
 OXFORD Westminster College: FIVE HAND REEL
 RETFORD Porterhouse: KRAKATOA
 RISCA Civic Centre: REDBRASS
 SALFORD University: MOTORHEAD
 SCARBOROUGH Penthouse: THE ENID
 SHEFFIELD Polytechnic: RADIO STARS / THE ESTRAS
 SOUTHPORT Coronation Hotel: PETER BOND
 STAFFORD Bingley Hall: RITCHIE BLACKMORE'S RAINBOW
 ST. HELEN'S Cindy's Club: BROWNSVILLE BANNED
 STIRLING University: TOM ROBINSON BAND
 THATCHAM Hamilton's Club: GRAND HOTEL
 UXBRIDGE Brunel University: FAIRPORT CONVENTION
 WATFORD College: TRAPEZE
 WEYBRIDGE National College of Food & Technology: THE PLEASERS
 WHALEY BRIDGE Jodrell Arms: THE NEXT BAND
 WOKINGHAM Rock Club: THE WORLD & 60 CYCLES
 WOLVERHAMPTON Lafayette: ALAN HULL'S RADIATOR
 WREXHAM College of Education: SWIFT

Saturday

ABERDEEN Capitol Theatre: DAVID ESSEX
 ANDOVER Country Bumpkin: LOVE AFFAIR
 BAGSHOT Pantiles Club: GENO WASHINGTON
 BECKENHAM ABC Cinema (morning): JIVE BUREAU
 BELFAST Queen's University: GEORGE MELLY & THE FEETWARMERS
 BIRMINGHAM Barrel Organ: BRENT FORD & THE NYLONS
 BIRMINGHAM Hippodrome: CHER & GREGG ALLMAN
 BIRMINGHAM King's Heath Hare & Hounds: JOHNNY SILVO BIRMINGHAM Odeon: GRAHAM PARKER & THE RUMOUR / CLOVER
 BIRMINGHAM Railway Hotel: STARSTRUCK
 BIRMINGHAM Sherwood Rooms: RENO
 BOLTON Institute of Technology: RADIO STARS
 BRADFORD Slackside Club: DOWNWEAVER
 BRADFORD University: FRANKIE MILLER'S FULL HOUSE / MEAL TICKET
 BRIDGEND Recreation Centre: ALAN PRICE
 BRIDGNORTH Leisure Centre: JOHNNY COPPIN BAND / PAUL DOWNES & PHIL BEER / NIGEL MAZLYN JONES
 BRIGHTON Polytechnic: THE PLEASERS
 BRIGHTON The Vault: XL5
 BRISTOL Bamboo Club: EATER / MONOTONES
 BRISTOL Granary: GRAND HOTEL
 BRISTOL Langford House: MECHANICAL HORSETROUGH
 BROMLEY Chislehurst Caves: THE SLITS / THE TICKETS
 BUCKLEY Tivoli Ballroom: STAMPS
 CAMBRIDGE Keridge Hall: TONY BENNETT
 CARDIFF Capitol Theatre: STATUS QUO
 CASTLE HEDINGHAM The Bell: THE CRACK
 COLCHESTER Essex University: JOHN MARTYN
 CORBY Nags Head: SCENE STEALER
 COVENTRY College of Education: FLAVIUM
 COVENTRY Lanchester Polytechnic: TIGER LILY
 COVENTRY Market Tavern: MERLIN
 COVENTRY Warwick University: CHEAP FLIGHTS
 CROMER West Runtion Pavilion: WINDOW
 CROYDON Red Deer: MICKEY MOUSE BAND
 DARLINGTON College of Education: PIGSTY HILL LIGHT ORCHESTRA
 DARTFORD College: THE ACTORS
 DUDLEY J.B.'s Club: HERON
 DURHAM New College: JAGUAR
 EDINBURGH Heriot Watt University: LITTLE BOB STORY
 EDINBURGH Odeon: BARBARA DICKSON
 EDINBURGH Usber Hall: ELKIE BROOKS / RICHARD DIGANCE
 EPSOM Baths Hall: CAFE JACQUES
 FISHGUARD Frenchman's Motel: THE MOVIES
 GLASGOW Apollo Centre: CLIFF RICHARD
 GLASGOW Strathclyde University: CHINA
 GLASGOW University: TOM ROBINSON BAND
 GUILDFORD Technical College: SHAM 69
 HAZEL GROVE Three Tuns: MARTIN CARTER & GRAHAM JONES

HENLEY-ON-THAMES Youth Centre: FROCK
 HITCHIN College: FIVE HAND REEL
 HITCHIN North Herts College: BUSTER CRABBE
 HULL University: THE DAMNED / DEAD BOYS
 ILKLEY Barons Club: MISTY DREAM
 ILKLEY College: THE BUZZCOCKS
 JERSEY St. Helier Forum: THE DARTS
 KETTERING Central Hall: FLYING SAUCERS
 LEEDS Ace of Clubs: MUNGO JERRY
 LEEDS Grobs Wine Bar: ICE NINE
 LEEDS University: THE JAM
 LEICESTER University: ALAN HULL'S RADIATOR
 LIVERPOOL C.F. Mott College: ARBRE
 LIVERPOOL Eric's: THE REZILLOS
 LIVERPOOL Moonstone: QUAD
 LONDON CAMDEN Brecknock: THE ROLL-UP
 LONDON CAMDEN Dingwells: S.A.L.T. / WARREN HARRY LONDON CAMDEN Music Machine: HEAVY METAL KIDS
 LONDON COVENT GARDEN Rock Garden: GEORGIE FAME & THE BLUE FLAMES / ROCKETS
 LONDON EALING College of Higher Education: SCREENS
 LONDON HAMMERSMITH Red Cow: THE HURRIGANES
 LONDON HARROW RD. Windsor Castle: SCARECROW
 LONDON ISLINGTON Hope & Anchor: YACHTS
 LONDON KENSINGTON Imperial College: XTC
 LONDON KENSINGTON The Nashville: GONZALEZ
 LONDON LEWISHAM Black Bull: DYNAMITE
 LONDON NEW BARNET Duke of Lancaster: JERRY THE FERRET
 LONDON N.I.I. Orange Tree: RED HOT
 LONDON NORBITON The Grove: CLUTCH
 LONDON PECKHAM Bouncing Ball: OZO
 LONDON STOKE NEWINGTON Rochester Castle: DEAD FINGERS TALK
 LONDON Upstairs at Ronnie Scott's: EBONY STEEL BAND
 LOUGHBOROUGH Town Hall: THE CRUISERS
 MANCHESTER Free Trade Hall: STEVE GIBBONS BAND / BETHNAL
 MANCHESTER Polytechnic: PACIFIC EARDRUM
 MANCHESTER University: GEORGE HATCHER BAND / GORDON GILTRAP BAND
 MARCH Grenadier Club: SOUL DIRECTION
 MARGATE High Cliff: CLAYSON & THE ARGONAUTS
 MATLOCK Black Rocks Club: THE NEXT BAND
 MIDDLESBROUGH Teeside Polytechnic: THE ENID / BLITZKREIG BOP
 MILTON KEYNES Stantonbury Theatre: SWINGING STRINGS 77
 MORECAMBE Inn On The Bay: J. J. JAMESON
 NORTHAMPTON County Ground: FABULOUS POODLES
 NORWICH East Anglia University: COLLOSSEUM II
 NOTTINGHAM University: FAIRPORT CONVENTION
 OXFORD New Theatre: THIN LIZZY / RADIATORS FROM SPACE
 PETERBOROUGH Focus Club: TRAPEZE
 PORTSMOUTH Polytechnic: STRIFE
 READING Target Club: BULLET
 SHEFFIELD Bishop Otter College: JENNY HAAN'S LION

THE JAM headline a major tour taking in many of the country's top venues, and climaxing in a prestige London show. Their itinerary kicks off at Huddersfield (Thursday), Newcastle (Friday), Leeds (Saturday), Liverpool (Sunday) and Cardiff (Tuesday).

MORE GIG GUIDE AND CLUB ADS OVER THE PAGE

GIG GUIDE

SHEFFIELD University: BURLSQUE
SOUTHEND Boston Hall Hotel: HYMIE BLOWS IT
SOUTHEND The Minerva: CADILLAC
ST. ALBANS City Hall: SPLIT ENZ
ST. ALBANS The Pioneer: WHIRLWIND
SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD Golden Diamond: CRAZY
CAVAN 'N' THE RHYTHM ROCKERS
TAUNTON Odeon: THE WURZELS
TONYPANDY Naval Club: THE STUKAS
WATFORD Watford College: SLIPROAD
WIGAN Casino: QUARTZ
WISHAW Crown Hotel (lunchtime): THE PESTS
WOLVERHAMPTON Polytechnic: WILKO
JOHNSON
YORK Technical College: KRAKATOA
YORK University: STEVE ASHLEY

Sunday

ACCRINGTON Lakeland Lounge: FLYING ACES
AYLESBURY Kings Head: VIC VOMIT & THE KILOMETRES
BASILDON Treble Chance: HYMIE BLOWS IT
BIRMINGHAM Barrel Organ (lunchtime): MENSCH
BLACKBURN King George's Hall: MOTORHEAD
/TRAPEZE
BLACKPOOL Opera House: DEMIS ROUSSOS
BRACKNELL Arts Centre: FLAVIUM
BRADFORD Alhambra Theatre: MIKE HARDING
BRISTOL Colston Hall: SANDY DENNY & FRIENDS
BRISTOL Hippodrome: HARRY BELAFONTE
CARDIFF Capitol Theatre: STATUS QUO
CARLISLE Coach House: DOWNWEAVER
CHELMSFORD City Tavern: LESSER KNOWN TUNISIANS
CHELTHAM Plough Hotel: FRANCES GILVRAY
& MICK BURKE
CROYDON Fairfield Hall: GRAHAM PARKER &
THE RUMOUR/CLOVER
CROYDON Greyhound: BURLSQUE
DUBLIN Greyhound: BURLSQUE
DUBLIN Olympia Theatre: GEORGE MELLY & THE FEETWARMERS
DUMFRIES Bell Castle Hotel: THE DARTS
DUNDEE University: TOM ROBINSON BAND
EDINBURGH Usher Hall: DAVID ESSEX
GLASGOW Apollo Centre: CHER & GREGG
ALLMAN
HEMEL HEMPSTEAD Great Harry: WHIRLWIND
HEMEL HEMPSTEAD Pavilion: FRANKIE MILLER'S FULL HOUSE
HIGH WYCOMBE Nags Head: STAA MARX
HITCHIN Folk Club: MECHANICAL HORSET-ROUGH
LINCOLN Theatre Royal: STEVE GIBBONS BAND/
BETHNAL
LIVERPOOL Empire Theatre: THE JAM
LIVERPOOL Eric's: FIVE HAND REEL
LONDON BATTERSEA Nags Head: TONY O'LEARY
LONDON CAMDEN Brecknock: SCARECROW
LONDON CHALK FARM Downstairs at the Roundhouse: ANDREW CRONSHAW/MARTIN
SIMPSON/JON GILLASPIE
LONDON CHALK FARM Roundhouse: PAT TRAV-ERS BAND/STRAY/NO DICE
LONDON CLAPHAM Two Brewers: PAINTED LADY
LONDON EUSTON Shaw Theatre: REDBRASS
LONDON FULHAM Golden Lion: ROCK
LONDON HARROW RD. Windsor Castle: TONIGHT
LONDON ISLINGTON Jolly Farmer: AMAZORB-LADES
LONDON KENSINGTON The Nashville: RADIO
STARS
LONDON LEWISHAM Riverdale Hall: MAX COLLIE RHYTHM ACES
LONDON Marquee Club: ILLUSION
LONDON PECKHAM Montpelier (lunchtime): BLUE MOON
LONDON STOKE NEWINGTON Pagasus: LAND-SCAPE
LONDON STOKE NEWINGTON Rochester Castle:
THE CRABS
LONDON Victoria Palace: COLOSSEUM II
LONDON W.C.1 Pindar of Wakefield: THUNDER-LAP NEWMAN & BOB FLAG
LONDON WOOLWICH Tramshed: NOEL
MURPHY/NIGEL MAZLYN JONES
MANCHESTER Ardwick Apollo: RITCHIE
BLACKMORE'S RAINBOW
MANCHESTER Belle Vue Elizabethan Rooms: THE DAMNED/DEAD BOYS
MANCHESTER Royal Exchange Theatre: SAD
CAFE
NEWBRIDGE Club & Institute: THE STUKAS
NORWICH Theatre Royal: ALAN PRICE
NOTTINGHAM Beeston Katie's: EATER / MONO-
TONES
OXFORD New Theatre: THE CHIEFTAINS
PORTSMOUTH Centre Hotel: BILL BARCLAY
PORTSMOUTH Guildhall: THE WURZELS
REDCAR Coatham Bowl: HORSLIPS
REDHILL Lakers Hotel: HOT POINTS
SALFORD The Willows: BROWNSVILLE BANNED
SHEFFIELD Polytechnic: STEVE ASHLEY
SHEFFIELD University: TURNING POINT
SHEFFIELD Top Rank: THE ENID
SHREWSBURY Tiffany's: THE BUZZCOCKS
SOUTHAMPTON University: HOT VULTURES
STAFFORD Top of the World: WILKO JOHNSON
ST. ALBANS Goat Inn: PACKIE BYRNE & BONNIE SHALJEAN
STOKE BURSLEM George Hotel: JAGUAR
SUNDERLAND Empire Theatre: BARBARA
DICKSON
WHITLEY BAY Rex Cinema: LITTLE BOB STORY
WOLVERHAMPTON Lafayette: BULLETS

Monday

BARROW Maxim's Disco: FIVE HAND REEL
BIRMINGHAM Barrel Organ: SHADES
BIRMINGHAM Drake's Drum: STAGE FRIGHT
BIRMINGHAM Railway Hotel: HOPPER
BIRMINGHAM Town Hall: CHINA
BIRMINGHAM Top Rank: THE DAMNED/DEAD
BOYS
BLACKPOOL Jenkinson's: TRAPEZE

REMEMBER OUR NEW ADDRESS

Gigs for inclusion in these pages should now be sent to:

NME Gig Guide,
5-7 Carnaby Street,
London W1V 1PG

SOUTHSIDE JOHNNY and the Asbury Jukes open their British tour on Wednesday at Leeds. Our picture shows them in action at Crystal Palace in the late summer.

URIAH HEPP have had more than their share of ups and downs recently, but they now seem to have a settled line-up, and they're all ready to start their latest concert tour at Edinburgh (Monday), Glasgow (Tuesday) and Liverpool (Wednesday). Pictured is Ken Hensley.

DAVID ESSEX sets out this weekend on his annual autumn tour with gigs at Aberdeen (Saturday), Edinburgh (Sunday), Sunderland (Monday and Tuesday) and Preston (Wednesday). His schedule culminates in a week-long London season immediately before Christmas.

Tuesday

BIRMINGHAM Barbarella's: WAYNE COUNTY &
THE ELECTRIC CHAIRS
BIRMINGHAM Odeon: STATUS QUO
BIRMINGHAM Railway Hotel: JAMESON RAID
BRISTOL Colston Hall: THIN LIZZY/RADIATORS
FROM SPACE
CAMBRIDGE Blimps: THE STUKAS
CARDIFF Capitol Theatre: RITCHIE BLACK-MORE'S RAINBOW
CARDIFF Top Rank: THE JAM
CLEETHORPES Bunny's Place: WAYNE FONTANA &
THE MINDBENDERS
COVENTRY Locarno: THE DAMNED/DEAD BOYS
CROYDON Fairfield Hall: THE WURZELS
EXETER University: GRAHAM PARKER & THE RUMOUR/CLOVER
GAINSBOROUGH Yarrowburgh Hotel: DAGABAND
GLASGOW Apollo Centre: URIAH HEPP
GLASGOW Saints and Sinners: TURNING POINT
GLASGOW Tiffany's: LITTLE BOB STORY
HIGH WYCOMBE Newland Club: EATER/
MONOTONES
HUDDERSFIELD Ivanhoe's: DOCTORS OF MADNESS
KIRKLEVINGTON Country Club: THE DARTS
LEICESTER De Montfort Hall: ALAN PRICE
LEEDS Queenswood Club: MUNGO JERRY
LIVERPOOL Empire Theatre: DEMIS ROUSSOS
LONDON CAMDEN Brecknock: JERRY EADIE
BAND
LONDON CAMDEN Dingwalls: STEEL PULSE
LONDON CAMDEN Music Machine: STRIDER
LONDON COVENT GARDEN Rock Garden: PICK-POCKET/BAZOOKA JOE
LONDON HARROW RD. Windsor Castle: ASTRA
LONDON ISLINGTON Hope & Anchor: THE STRANGLERS
LONDON KENSINGTON The Nashville: THE HURRICANES/YACHTS
LONDON LEYTON Lion & Key: FLYING SAUCERS
LONDON MANOR PARK Three Rabbits:
CADILLAC
LONDON Marquee Club: THE BUZZCOCKS
LONDON NEW BARNET Duke Of Lancaster: JERRY
THE FERRET
LONDON North Polytechnic: WARREN HARRY
LONDON N4 The Stapleton: LANDSCAPE
LONDON Old Brompton Rd. Troubadour: STEFAN
GROSSMAN
LONDON OXFORD ST. 100 Club: TYLA GANG /
TONIGHT
LONDON STOKE NEWINGTON Rochester Castle:
THE WASPS
LONDON WANDSWORTH The Ship: NEMA
LONDON WARDOUR STREET Vortex Club: PENETRATION / JOHNNY THUNDERS / THE HEARTBREAKERS / JOHNNY CURIOUS &
THE STRANGERS
LONDON WI Speakeasy: WHIRLWIND
LONDON W.C.1 Collegiate Theatre: PHILLIP
GOODHAND-TAIT
LONDON WOOLWICH Tramshed: JACKIE
LYNTON'S HAPPY DAYS / SUCKER
MALVERN The Phoenix: NIGEL MAZLYN JONES
MANCHESTER Ardwick Apollo: CHER &
GREGG ALLMAN
MANCHESTER Polytechnic: WILKO JOHNSON

NEWCASTLE City Hall: STEVE GIBBONS BAND /
BETHNAL
NOTTINGHAM Imperial Hotel: GAFFA
PLYMOUTH Castaways: THE ENID
PRESTON Guildhall: MIKE HARDING
SHEFFIELD City Hall: THE CHIEFTAINS
SOUTHAMPTON Guildhall Solent Suite: REDBRASS
SOUTHAMPTON The Ancho: HOT VULTURES
SOUTHEND Talk Of The South: J.A.L.N. BAND
ST. NEOTS Kings Head: JUNE TABOR
SUNDERLAND Empire Theatre: DAVID ESSEX
WOLVERHAMPTON King Of Clubs: EL SEVEN

Wednesday

BIRMINGHAM Barrel Organ: MR. DOWNCHILD
BIRMINGHAM Odeon: STATUS QUO
BIRMINGHAM Railway Hotel: ZETH
BOURNEMOUTH Winter Gardens: THE WURZELS
BRADFORD University: LITTLE BOB STORY
BRIGHTON Alhambra: THE STUKAS
CLEETHORPES Bunny's Place: MARVELETTES
DARLINGTON Civic Hall: BOYS OF THE LOUGH
CROYDON Fairfield Hall: NATIONAL YOUTH
JAZZ ORCHESTRA
DUNDEE Barrallinard Hotel: EATER / MONO-
TONES
EDINBURGH Nicky Tams: TURNING POINT
FIFTH Andrews University: FIVE HAND REEL
GLASGOW Apollo Centre: STEVE GIBBONS BAND
/ BETHNAL
GLOUCESTER College of Education: NIGEL
MAZLYN JONES
GUILDFORD Wooden Bridge Hotel: HOT POINTS
HAINAULT Old Maypole: FLYING SAUCERS
HUDDERSFIELD Golcar Club: MUNGO JERRY
KEELE University: HORSLIPS
LEEDS University: SOUTHSIDE JOHNNY &
ASBURY JUKES / CAFE JACQUES
LANCASTER University: FRANKIE MILLER'S FULL HOUSE / MEAL TICKET
LIVERPOOL Empire Theatre: URIAH HEPP
LIVERPOOL Eric's: WAYNE COUNTY
LIVERPOOL Havannah Club: THE NAUGHTY
LUMPS
LIVERPOOL Moonstone: ISAMBARD KINGDOM
LONDON CAMDEN Dingwalls: MICHAEL CHAP-MAN BAND
LONDON CAMDEN Music Machine: THE ENGLISH
ASSASSIN featuring NIGEL BENJAMIN LONDON CHINGFORD Queen Elizabeth: JERRY
THE FERRET
LONDON COVENT GARDEN Rock Garden: PLUM-MET AIRLINES
LONDON FULHAM Golden Lion: THE HURRICANES
LONDON HARROW RD. Windsor Castle: J.J.
JAMESON
LONDON ISLINGTON Hope & Anchor: THE PIRATES
LONDON Marquee Club: XTC
LONDON PECKHAM Montpelier: BLUE MOON
LONDON SOUTHALL White Hart: WHIRLWIND
LONDON STOKE NEWINGTON Rochester Castle:
PENETRATION
LONDON W.1 Gulliver's Club: ROKOTTO
LONDON W.14 The Kensington: RIFF RAFF
MANCHESTER Electric Circus: STEEL PULSE
MANCHESTER University: FLYING ACES
MIDDLESBROUGH Rock Garden: GEORGE HATCHER BAND
NEWCASTLE City Hall: THE CHIEFTAINS
NEWPORT Stowaway: RADIO STARS
NORTHWOOD H.M.S. Warrior: SOUL DIRECTION
OXFORD Corn Dolly: SAMSON
OXFORD New Theatre: CLIFF RICHARD
PLYMOUTH Castaways: TYLA GANG
PRESTON Guildhall: DAVID ESSEX
READING University: JOHN MARTYN
RETTFORD Porterhouse: DOCTORS OF MADNESS
RYDE I.O.W. La Babalu: J.A.L.N. BAND
SHEFFIELD City Hall: THIN LIZZY / RADIATORS
FROM SPACE
SHEFFIELD Dog & Partridge: FLYING LESSONS
SHEFFIELD Polytechnic: BOOMTOWN RATS
SHEFFIELD Top Rank: THE DAMNED / DEAD
BOYS
SOLIHULL Golden Lion: THE FIRST BAND
SOUTH WOODFORD Railway Bell: ORIGINAL
EAST SIDE STOMPERS
SUNDERLAND Boilermakers Club: ALAN HULL'S
RADIATOR
WOLVERHAMPTON Lafayette: DEPRESSIONS

Residencies

BATLEY Variety Club: THE DRIFTERS
 Week from Sunday
BRISTOL Crookers: BACK TO BACK
 Monday for three days
CLEETHORPES Bunny's Place: HARLEMS
 Thursday for three days
GLASGOW Apollo Centre: CLIFF RICHARD
 Thursday for three days
LIVERPOOL Allison's: THE BROTHERS
 Week from Sunday
LONDON Palladium: HARRY BELAFONTE
 Tuesday (22) for five days
LUTON Cesar's Palace: DANA
 Week from Sunday
MANCHESTER Fagin's: TERRY WEBSTER & DICTIONARY
 Week from Monday
MONMOUTH White Swan Hotel: NIGHT BIRD
PURFLEET Circus Tavern: GRUMBLEWEEDS
 Week from Sunday
STOCKTON Fiesta Club: BOBBY THOMPSON
 Week from Monday

RECOMMENDED TV

THURSDAY: If you fancy crumpet for supper, it's
 "Miss World" time on BBC-1, hosted by Andy Williams.
FRIDAY: Last of Jack Jones' four shows with Bruce Johnston, Sarah Vaughan and Allan
 Jones guesting (BBC-2); Steve Tilston and Joanna Cartin (BBC-West only); Cher and Gregg Allman in "Russell Harty" (London ITV);
 Jack Palance film "Torture Garden" (BBC-1).
SATURDAY: Supertramp in "Sight And Sound In Concert" (BBC-2 and Radio 1 stereo link); David Essex in "Swap Shop" (BBC-1 morning).
SUNDAY: "So It Goes" with The Jam filmed at Manchester Electric Circus and Muddy Waters at London New Victoria (some ITV regions, but screened on Saturday in London); Bob Marley and a feature on mobile sound systems in "The London Weekend Show" (London ITV); The James Bond film "You Only Live Twice" (ITV network).
MONDAY: Kenny Rogers in "D*5 O'C*nn*
 Tonight" (BBC-2).
TUESDAY: Southside Johnny and the Asbury
 Jukes in "The Old Grey Whistle Test" (BBC-2);
 "The Goodies" (BBC-2).
ROCK FOLLIES: The first three episodes of the second series are repeated by ITV as a two-hour special on Thursday, Friday or Monday, according to region. Episode 4 is screened for the first time at 9 pm on Tuesday.

MARQUEE

90 Wardour St., W.1 01-437 6603

OPEN EVERY NIGHT FROM 7.00 pm to 11 pm
REDUCED ADMISSION FOR STUDENTS & MEMBERS

Thurs. 17th Nov. (Adm 75p) GEORGE HATCHER BAND Fury & Ian Fleming	Mon. 21st & Tues. 22nd Nov. By Popular Demand the Return of... THE BUZZCOCKS The Flies & D.J. Jerry Floyd (Admission £1.30)
Fri. 18th Nov. (Adm £1.25) X RAY SPEX Plus support & Ian Fleming	Wed. 23rd Nov. (Adm 70p) XTC Plus guests & Jerry Floyd
Sat. 19th Nov. (Adm 75p) PLUMMET AIRLINES The Bazoomies & Ian Fleming	Thurs. 24th Nov. (Adm 65p) BERNIE TORME Plus support & Ian Fleming
Sun. 20th Nov. (Adm 65p) SUBURBAN STUDS Plus support & Nick Leigh

Hamburgers & other hot & Cold snacks are available

THE NASHVILLE ROOM

Hammersmith Road, W.6

Thursday Nov. 17th 75p

WIRE

FULLERS TRADITIONAL ALES

Friday Nov. 18th Free THE WARSAW PAKT	Saturday Nov. 19th Free THE HURRIGANES
Sunday Nov. 20th Free WARREN HARRY	Wednesday Nov. 23rd Free RUMBLE STRIP

Thursday Nov. 17th and Friday Nov. 18th £1.00

THE PIRATES
+ Bazoomies

Saturday Nov. 19th £1.00

GONZALEZ
+ The Pickpockets

Sunday Nov. 20th 75p

RADIO STARS
+ Solid Waste

Monday Nov. 21st 75p

THE STUKAS + THE PLEASERS

Tuesday Nov. 22nd £1.00

THE YACHTS + ADVERTISING

CORNER CROMWELL ROAD/NORTH END ROAD, W14
(Adjacent West Kensington Tube Tel 01 603 6071)

SPEAKEASY

01-580 7930

SPEAK-EARLY

Thursday November 17th
BUSTER CRABBE
Friday November 18th
SPITERI
Saturday November 19th
Ring For Details
Monday November 21st
Ring For Details
Tuesday November 22nd
WHIRLWIND
Wednesday November 23rd
ALFALPHA
Thursday November 24th
NORTHSIDE RHYTHM 'N' BLUES ENSEMBLE
Speakeasy
50 Margaret St., Oxford Circus, W1
Reservations 01-580 8810

THE ROKY CLUB

41/43 NEAL ST., COVENT GARDEN, WC2

Wednesday Nov. 16th 50p

OPEN SAW
+ Support
Thank you Generation X for jamming last Wednesday. Sorry, you failed the audition!
Thursday Nov. 17th £1.00

OUTSIDERS
+ Automatics + Goats
Friday Nov. 18th £1.00

WASPS + Tickets + Shoplifters
Saturday Nov. 19th £1.00

METAL URBAIN
(French Punk)
+ Blunt Instrument
+ Tarts
Sunday Nov. 20th

PUNK ROCK DISCO
Members Free Guests 50p
Jam Sessions welcome
Tuesday Nov. 22nd 30p

DESTROYERS
+ Peroxide Romance

THE ADVERT'S WAYNE COUNTY ALTERNATIVE T.V. JOHNNY MOPED ROUNDHOUSE

THURSDAY 17th NOVEMBER at 7.30

FREEMASONS TAVERN SE.25
81 PENGE ROAD, SE25 778 6831

Friday November 18th THIEF
Saturday November 19th SOLO RIDER
Discs every Sunday

5 hand Reel

ON TOUR

November.
18th... Oxford, Westminster College.
19th... Hitchin College.
20th... Liverpool, Eric's Club.
21st... Barrow-in-Furness, Civic Hall.
23rd... St Andrews University.
25th... Edinburgh, Herriot Watt University.

Management:
Brian Adams. Tel. 01-751 2163

RCA

BARBEQUE GRILL NOW OPEN UPSTAIRS

UPPER STREET ISLINGTON, N.1

Thursday Nov. 17th £1.00 PLUMMET AIRLINES	Monday Nov. 21st 75p MICHAEL CHAPMAN "FRONT ROW FESTIVAL"
Friday Nov. 18th £1.00 DIRE STRAITS	Tuesday Nov. 22nd £1.00 THE STRANGLERS
Saturday Nov. 19th 75p THE YACHTS	Wednesday Nov. 23rd £1.00 THE PIRATES
Sunday Nov. 20th JOHN COLLIS & JOHN GORMAN

IMPERIAL COLLEGE

Prince Consort Road, SW7
Saturday November 19th
In The Union Concert Hall

X · T · C

+ RUMBLE STRIP
Tickets 75p on the door
Saturday November 26th

THE VIBRATORS

+ THE HEADLINERS
Tickets £1.20. It is advisable to buy tickets in advance. Send s.a.e. to Ents Tickets, I.C. Union, Prince Consort Road, S.W.7.

DINGWALLS

01-267 4967 Camden Lock, Chalk Farm Road, London NW1

Thur. 17. CADOBELLE
Wed 23
MICHAEL CHAPMAN with Keef Hartly on Drums
Thur. 24 WILKO
First Central London showing of Wilko Johnson's New Band
Open 8pm-2am · Live music · Licensed Bar · Disco · Restaurant

MUSIC MACHINE

CAMDEN HIGH ST. OFF. MARININGTON CRESCENT TUBE · N.W.1

Telephone 01-387-0428/9

Wednesday Nov. 16th £1.00 PLANET GONG Featuring David Allen + Support	Monday Nov. 21st £1.00 Last London appearance this year LITTLE ACRE + Support Free admission for one with this advert before 10.30 p.m.
Thursday Nov. 17th £1.50 CHRIS STANTON BAND Featuring Bernie Holland, Mike Patto, Fred Gandi, John Halsey + Doppelganger	Tuesday Nov. 22nd £1.00 STRIDER + Support Free admission for one with this advert before 10.30 p.m.
Friday Nov. 18th £1.50 JENNY HAAN'S LION + News	Wednesday Nov. 23rd £1.00 THE ENGLISH ASSASSIN Featuring Nigel Benjamin + Support Free admission for one with this advert before 10.30 p.m.
Saturday Nov. 19th £2.00 HEAVY METAL KIDS + French Connection	Advance tickets now on sale for MOTORHEAD Thursday Dec. 1st - £1.50 and MUD Thursday Dec. 15th - £1.50

LICENSED BARS · LIVE MUSIC · DANCING
8PM - 2 AM MONDAY TO SATURDAY

ROUNDHOUSE

CHALK FARM, N.W.1

SUNDAY 20th NOVEMBER at 5.30

PAT TRAVERS

— BAND —
STRAY NO DICE

LARRY MYERS RECORDS

ADMISSION £1.20 INC. VAT ADVANCE ROUNDHOUSE BOX OFFICE, TEL 267 2564 OR LONDON THEATRE BOOKINGS, SHAFFESBURY AVE. W.1 TEL 439 3371, QUAY DOOR

THE 100 CLUB

100 Oxford St., W.1

THURSDAY 17th NOVEMBER
Reggae Star

DANNY RAY with ECLIPSE
Plus SILVER CAMEL SOUNDS
8 p.m. till 1 a.m. Bars. Food
Thurs. 24 Nov. Cimarons

ADVERTISE YOUR GIG IN NME
01-261 6153

DUKE OF LANCASTER

Beside British Rail: New Barnet
Tel. 01-499 0465

Thursday November 17th
PURPLE HAZE

Friday November 18th
NEBULA

Saturday November 19th
JERRY THE FERRET

Sunday November 20th
THE WOODS BAND

Tuesday November 22nd
JERRY THE FERRET

SPOOKY LADY

Temple Mills Lane, Hackney, E.15
The best in live groups and support acts

Wednesday November 16th 70p before 11 p.m. £1 after 11 p.m.

SUBURBAN STUDS

Thursday November 17th 70p before 11 p.m. £1 after 11 p.m.

GYPSY
Friday November 18th £1.00

T.C.O.J.
Saturday November 19th £1.00

Wednesday November 23rd 70p before 11 p.m. £1 after 11 p.m.

ADVERTISING

Licensed Bar 8.30 p.m. - 2 a.m.

CHISELHURST CAVES

Saturday 19th Nov Adm £1.00

THE SLITS

+ THE TICKETS

Tickets in advance from Bonaparte Records, Bromley; Music Town, Sidcup the Damned

DEAD BOYS

THE DRONES

ROUNDHOUSE

FRI/SAT/SUN-25/26/27 NOV at 7.30

LARRY MYERS RECORDS

ADMISSION £2.00 INC. VAT ADVANCE ROUNDHOUSE BOX OFFICE, TEL 267 2564 OR LONDON THEATRE BOOKINGS, SHAFFESBURY AVE. W.1 TEL 439 3371, QUAY DOOR

TOWN HALL, HIGH WYCOMBE

Monday November 21st at 7.30 pm

WAYNE COUNTY

+ THE ELECTRIC CHAIRS

£1.30

Monday November 28th at 7.30 pm

TOM ROBINSON BAND

+ THE BOYFRIENDS

£1.40

Tickets at door or from Sun Music, Herlequin Records or Venus in advance

LIVE!!

MOTT THE HOOPLE MAN VERDEN ALLEN'S 7 INCHES

From America
+ STUART STEPHEN ONGLEY

Disco + Support Bar Lights

Thursday Nov. 17th
QUEEN ELIZABETH COLLEGE
Campden Hill Rd., W.11
Tickets £1.00 on door

Friday Nov. 18th
KINGSTON COLLEGE OF FURTHER EDUCATION
Tickets £1.00 on door

ENTS COMMITTEE, POLYTECHNIC OF CENTRAL LONDON
115 New Cavendish Street, W.1
Friday November 18th

ELECTRIC CHAIRS

Featuring Wayne County

+ ALTERNATIVE T.V.

Tickets £1.30 on door

Sounds by Oasis Records

Licensed Bar

VICTORIA HALL — KEIGHLEY
IN CONCERT

Steve Gibbons Band

PLUS SUPPORT: BETHNAL

TUES., NOV. 29th, 7.30 p.m. to 10.30 close

ADVANCE TICKETS £1.50 ON SALE NOW

Send S.A.E. to P.G. 39 CAVENDISH ST., KEIGHLEY, YORKS.

words words words words words words words words words words words

WORDS (Barry Clarke) City Hall St. Albans
Saturday November 19th

SPLIT ENZ
+ The Master of Mime & Magic ANGELICO

Mary Jane Disco Bar Food
Advance tickets from Box Office, Chequer St.,
St. Albans. Tel. 64511 or available on door

Tuesday Nov. 29th: DARTS + Amazorblades

words words words words words words words words words words words

PROGRESSIVE — NEW WAVE BANDS + DISCO at NIKKERS CLUB
59 CAVENDISH STREET, KEIGHLEY. Tel. 602822.
TUES., NOV. 22nd., 8 p.m. to 1 a.m.
The TOM ROBINSON BAND have pulled out of this date.
In place we now have ... From the "Streets" album

3 PUNK BANDS ... THE LURKERS, ART ATTACKS and THE DOLL
A punk special night. Admission only 75p
NOV. 29th Garbo and The Celluloid Heroes
DEC. 6th. Radio Stars. Dec. 13th. XTC
CLUB CAPACITY 700 AGENTS. TEL. 602822 FOR BOOKINGS

Welcome to L.A. 'AA'
City of the One Night Stands

Premiere Attraction from Nov. 10th

The Screen on the Hill

(OPP. BELSIZE PARK TUBE) Tel: 01-435 3366

Memo to aspiring bands:

Never follow The Pirates

Steve Gibbons Band
The Pirates
ROUNDHOUSE

IS MICK GREEN a genius? It sounds like it to me, and thousands watched him blow the Steve Gibbons Band out of sight at their prestige London headliner.

It's a big mistake these days for anyone to follow the savage R&B of The Pirates. Green, Spence and Farley at their best leave a hole in the stage big enough for any act to drop into. Since they creaked out of premature retirement some months back, Britain's best-loved fossils have evolved from a nostalgic curiosity piece into a marauding, meat-eating, rock 'n' roll dinosaur, prehistoric but awe-inspiring.

Spence and Farley are a simple, solid rhythm section, little more than a show-case for Mick Green's remarkable talents. Built like an all-in wrestler, he stands motionless, chin jutting, head jerking back and forth as his fingers produce two, sometimes three guitar lines from the one fretboard. This three-piece sounds like an orchestra and the audience asked for no less than six extra

Farley in full cry

JAZZ DIARY

JAZZ CENTRE Society is arranging a tour by the Gil Evans Orchestra in March, 1978, on behalf of the Arts Council's Contemporary Music Network.

The Ken Wheeler Band will also be touring under the same banner in January, while the Globe Unity Orchestra — including Evan Parker, Peter Brotzmann, Albert Mangelndorff, Peter Kowald and Alexander von Schlippenbach — tours this December. Mike Westbrook's Brass Band has been collaborating with playwright Adrian Mitchell again, this time on "White Suit Blues", a celebration of the work of Mark Twain. Thames TV are also recording a Mitchell play, "Glad Day" including the Brass Band as musicians and actors. Next year sees a film on Mike Westbrook under the sponsorship of the Arts Council.

The Star & Garter, Putney, has Terri Quaye's Moonspirit on 19th November, The 7 Dials has Ike Isaacs on 17th, and The Phoenix features Big Chief on 23rd, a band led by Dick Heckstall-Smith. The Band On The Wall, Manchester, has Jeff Clyne's Turning Point on 17th.

Battersea Arts Centre celebrates its third birthday on 17th November with George Melly & John Chilton's Feetwarmers, plus Riverside Five + 1.

EMI are considering distributing the US Fantasy label here. Make it, EMI. Don Weller's Major Surgery has released "The First Cut" on the Next Record Label, obtainable through all reputable jazz stores, or mail order at £3.50 from 120 Church Road, Croydon.

Projection Records at 9 Grove End, Rectory Grove, Leigh-on-Sea, Essex, have managed to get the long-unobtainable "Actions" by Don Cherry & The New Eternal Rhythm Orchestra, plus Penderecki.

Impulse has released "Byablue" by Keith Jarrett, with Dewey Redman, Charlie Haden and Paul Motian. The same group also feature on "The Survivor Suite" on ECM.

Also from ECM, Ralph Towner's "Solstice — Sound And Shadows", and on the subsidiary JAPO, Ken Hyder's Talisker play the suite, "Land Of Stone", and Rena Rama — a Swedish quartet — offer "Landscapes".

The latest Pablo Live releases from Montreux are "The Count Basie Jam", "The Dizzy Gillespie Jam", "The Oscar Peterson Jam", "The Milt Jackson-Ray Brown Jam", "The Pablo All Stars Jam", "Ray Bryant", "The Tommy Flanagan Trio", "The Roy Eldridge Quartet", "The Benny Carter Quartet" and "The Eddie Lockjaw Davis Quartet."

Brian Case

numbers after the first farewell.

The first climax was "Shakin' All Over", Green thrusting his instrument suddenly into space before picking out the unmistakable lead. His own composition, "Gibson Martin Fender" was another highlight but the highest peaks were reached in the encores. Racing through about three alternative solos before the vocals even started, Green led them into the most distinctive "Johnny B Goode" I've heard since Berry's. The final number, "Honey Hush", left the Pirate kings scorching in strobos under their buccancer banner and the audience dancing in delight.

Follow that, Steve Gibbons. After a dubious introduction ("... and now for the next part of the evening") the Gibbons band wandered on and launched into a brisk boogie that they kept up with little variation for the rest of the evening. Looking fairly nondescript, their essentially efficient musicianship lay limp when thrown into violent contrast with The Pirates' stark, uncluttered excellence.

Suddenly, a tall, unkempt gentleman in an Alvin Stardust costume appears and starts spouting verse in a transatlantic drawl. "One Of The Boys", "Rollin' On", "Speed Kills", old favourites and new. With "Johnny Cool" he slips on his shades and starts to strike poses.

There's something persistently irritating in a vocalist who insists on delivering about 80% of his lines in a fake U.S. accent. Especially when he comes from Birmingham. Especially when he's a pleasant, if mannered, singer.

The audience are still on their feet, not dancing so much as swaying happily. They're even flapping a few peace signs (are they optimistic or just blind?) It's an appreciative crowd and a pleasing, if not triumphant, night for the SGB.

They reached full throttle at last with a sharp version of Dave Edmunds' instant classic "Get It" followed by the inevitable "Tulane". This sucked me to the front of the stage again, but "Tupelo Mississippi Flash", which to me highlights the group's main faults, drove me away.

The two guitarists screeching in patterned unison were annoying where Green's modest and always underplayed virtuosity was a continual pleasure.

Kim Davis

George Duke RAINBOW

THERE was once a time when I thought Duke's music had a lot going for it. This was when he was still a member of Zappa's entourage, making exceptional solo albums on the side. Since then I've come to the conclusion that Duke is committed to making the same album over and over again, and making it worse each time.

Although this opinion of his records remains, I admit that Duke has a capacity for giving the people what they want, giving them lots of it, and giving it good.

What they wanted was jazz-rock with plenty of concise, technically impressive solos and an obligatory dose of funk.

Lots of it meant a two-hour odd set with a planned intermission thwarted by the crowd's encore demands, which Duke happily complied with.

Giving it good meant pacing the set evenly, delivering the music with warmth and humour, and not allowing soloist histrionics to reach any sort of excess.

I was both surprised and entertained. Duke approaches his music with a refreshing (for the genre) lack of self-importance, and a tangible, communicated feeling that the band are enjoying what they're doing and doing it for that reason mainly.

Duke himself plays his instrument like B.B. King. He rocks his head around, his eyes become glazed, and he grimaces while playing. His actual synthesiser solos are also similar to King's. They are blues tinged but more closely related in their tidy, neat and almost classic construction.

In fact, ignoring the music for a moment, the set was delivered in much the same way as King plays his shows. There's an element of schmaltz and jive peculiar to live black music, but it's kept within tasteful boundaries. There's also a feeling that the music, though not shatteringly strong, has at least quality and class, and linked to that there is an aura of respect coming from the crowd.

It was these last points, and the band's obvious enjoyment of their capabilities, that prevented a bolt for the exit. Beyond Ndugu's supple, heart-beat drumming and the occasional Duke piano solo I still found the music too limited to convince on its own.

The Duke band has two basic licks. The first is a spacious jazz-rock samba which, despite different song titles, made up the main part of the set. The second is taking funk to heaven in '77, a hybrid of Zappa and Sly Stone that sounds like Parliament (aided by the fact that Ndugu raps just like Bootsy Collins) and arrived there more legitimately than Clinton's crew, but didn't do it first. And if these things don't convince, they at least entertained.

They finished with the latter lick and the biggest surprise of the evening — me shouting for more.

Paul Rambali

5 Hand Reel

LEEDS POLYTECHNIC

5 HAND REEL play Celtic rock with skill, passion and electricity.

They managed to arouse a torpid crowd into furious motion and in doing so, confirmed their challenge for the currently vacant crown of British folk-rock.

The cross-over from folk club to mass market is perilous but rewarding and 5 Hand Reel are ideally suited to make the leap.

Their formula is simple: they take the compulsive rhythm of the reel, add some beefy bass guitar and round it out with exquisite two, three and four part harmonies.

Jigs like "Lexboro Pony", "A Man's A Man for A That" (the title track of the new album) and "Kennedy's Hat" are marvellously simple but powerful tunes; blood from the very stone of Celtic myth.

Tom Hickland (fiddle), Dick Gaughan (guitars) and Bobby Eaglesham (guitars and keyboards) are the front-line which sets the whirling rhythms spinning. They swing, they soar and they stamp with the sheer joy of making music.

They're not entirely comfortable until the audience is up and dancing and they haven't yet learned the finer arts of audience manipulation, but when band and crowd are together, as on "A Pinch Of Snuff", the infectious joy is irresistible.

They have the sense to pace the set — it's not all galloping jigs and reels — and on the slower cuts the band demonstrates its class.

"Carrikerfergus" is a melancholic lament for the "auld sod" that wrings the heart strings even through the Guinness-thick brogue of the lyrics.

This is not reverent revival music nor hearty folk-clubbing, but dramatic rock-oriented recreation.

5 Hand Reel pound to a climax with some Irish tunes, "The Orange Robe", "Kiss Me Darling" and "Dr. Gilbert" — jigs all three.

The band are revitalising flaccid folk-rock. They're potent and homegrown and owe little or nothing to rock per se. It's time that they were given a wider hearing.

Andrew Simmons

BASF NUMBER ONE CASSETTES.

BASF invented magnetic recording tape way back in 1934.

So BASF started Number One. They've always stayed Number One.

Today BASF LH Super is the finest all purpose unadulterated ferric-oxide cassette. It is used to establish the internationally recognised DIN standard. BASF LH Super will give you the finest across the board performance, and it has been consistently recommended by consumer organisations in Europe and America.

Chromium Dioxide cassettes next. BASF Chromium Dioxide gives a performance genuinely as good as records. However, to get this quality the tape machine has to have a special Chromium Dioxide bias button. These will only be found on the more sophisticated cassette players.

All the major machine manufacturers have expressed their belief in Chrome Dioxide by fitting Chrome switching to their top machines.

The November 1976 issue of the prestigious Popular Mechanics magazine stated "Chromium Dioxide (CrO₂) was the tape that changed the world's opinion that cassettes could never be free enough from hiss, or summon enough high-frequency response to be considered high-fidelity."

For more information on the major advances in cassette technology fill in the coupon below.

Dear BASF, please send me right away everything you have on your Number One Cassettes - the very best cassettes ever made.

Name

Address

BASF UNITED KINGDOM LTD.,
Haddon House, 2-4 Fitzroy Street,
London W1P 5AD. Tel: 01-637 8971.

NME 19/11

BASF IS NUMBER ONE.

MARC BOLAN

There is nothing about my career that is an accident.

KEITH RICHARD

I only feel ill when I give up drugs.

SID VICIOUS

If I feel like killing a hippie, I will. I don't have to be angry to do that...I'm more of a robot than a person.

JOHNNY THUNDERS

We know our five chords.

CHUCK BERRY

The only Maybelline I ever knew was the name of a cow.

DAVID BOWIE

I can't feel strongly, I get so numb.

PHIL SPECTOR

My dream was to invent the word 'producer'.

JOHN LENNON

If there is such a thing as a genius, I am one y'know. And if there isn't, I don't care.

BRIAN EPSTEIN

I want to manage those four boys—it wouldn't take me more than two half days a week.

ELVIS PRESLEY

I don't know anything about music—in my line you don't have to.

MICK JAGGER

Me and Nureyev have flaming rows about whether it takes more talent and discipline to be a ballet dancer or a pop singer.

PATTI SMITH

I love to hear boys shouting for me—just like I used to shout for the Stones.

SCREAMIN' JAY HAWKINS

Don't forget—the penis is mightier than the sword.

FRANK ZAPPA

I think pop music has done more for oral intercourse than anything else that ever happened. And vice versa.

LOU REED

Frank Zappa couldn't write a decent song if you gave him a million and a year on an island in Greece.

MICK JONES

I never lived below twelve floors up.

PHIL LYNOTT

I am Johnny Cool, y'know.

LINDA RONSTADT

I finally learned how to sing. It's too bad I had to do all my learning in public.

ROD STEWART

I think Enoch Powell is the man. I'm all for him. This country is over-crowded. The immigrants should be sent home. That's it.

...and over 2000 more in the illustrated compendium of rock sayings, compiled by Jonathon Green. At good bookshops now or direct from the publishers at £1.95 plus 30p postage and packing (10p for subsequent copies).

The Book Of Rock Quotes
7 x 10 inches,
120 pages, illustrated
£1.95

Omnibus Press

78 Newman Street, London W1P 3LA

There (still) ain't no cure for the Summer-time Blues

DONNA SUMMER
Once Upon A Time...
(Casablanca)

WITH THE release of "I Feel Love", Donna Summer became as much an integral part of 1977 consciousness as either Bowie or the Pistols.

The only mass-market sex aid that anyone under the age of 18 could purchase without plain brown wrappers. Like practically all artificial stimulants, Donna Summer was efficient and totally soulless. In an environment where sex had become reduced to just another bodily function, Donna Summer proved to be yet another labour-saving device. Mechanical bliss, simulated ecstasy and synthetic sexuality set to the calculated coldness of a cocaine disco beat. On "I Feel Love" the machines took over. The regimented rhythm method became a reality.

Then Donna Summer made her big mistake. She should never have performed in public. She should have remained enclosed in the clinical atmosphere of the recording studio. An enigma. A graven vinyl image to sex by proxy. In person Donna Summer isn't, as one has been lead to believe, the insatiable multi-organic nymph. Basically she's the cute girl next door, blessed with above-average sex appeal and fortunate enough to get a lucky break. She's no threat to no woman.

Like the comedian who hankers to play Hamlet, Donna Summer now strikes out against her status as aural sex symbol and courts artistic integrity. "Once Upon A Time..." which she co-wrote with her producers Giorgio Moroder and Pete Bellotte, is her Big Statement. A concept album no less and a double one at that.

In keeping with her new direction, gone are the Queen Of The Nile persona, the deep breathing and, with few exceptions, the mechanical overdrive. Instead Donna looks more like Dana after a two week vacation in the tropics and dressed all in white for her first ever Heavy Date.

"Once Upon A Time..." is good clean wholesome fun, its concept deep-rooted in the tradition of all fairy tales—the dreams of the everyday shop-assistant. Impressionable young girl from austere background awakens to womanhood, gets dumped by heartless lout, works for a crust in the lonely city, fantasies that she will go to the ball (the local disco), be swept off her dainty feet by a Knight in Shining Armour (actually some heavy dude in a white convertible) and live happily ever after (on his welfare cheque).

Naturally, after four sides of repetition, her dreams do come true. The ugly duckling is in fact a beautiful white swan and Mr. Right enters bang on cue. As everyone likes a story with a happy ending (especially if you can dance to it), this album's success is assured.

True Love is never having to say sorry. I'm sitting this one out!

Roy Carr.

All this without plain wrappers!

KLAATU

Hope (Capitol)

PEOPLE ACTUALLY mistook this bunch of Canadian wimps for The Beatles? Gee, no way. The Fab Four turned out some appalling tripe in their time but never anything as fundamentally pathetic as this.

And Klaatu haven't even got a reputation to hide behind. Everyone says they sound like Queen now, but that's the idea you get from just listening to the pseudo-classical single, "The Loneliest Of Creatures."

I've suffered every fun-packed groove of this album and it also sounds like Mike Oldfield re-making "Sgt. Pepper". Or ELP without the E. Or Yes playing blindfolded. Or a crowd of Planet Gong nutters let loose with the Royal Philharmonic.

The most absurd cut is a nine minute epic depicting the fall of "Politzania", a Tolkienesque neo-fascist state. They've also got an obsession with lighthouses—very interesting but not red-hot song material.

As Art this is hilarious. As a record it will make a good table-mat.

Kim Davis

THE JACKSONS

Goin' Places (Epic)

GERMAN DISCOMAT is so contrived, crass and chronic that parallel product from the land of Uncle Sam seems quasi-positive in comparison! No psychotic grannies wielding dum-dum bullet sten-guns for these boys!

Doesn't their Gamble/Huff title track burst with a similar, if more mature job-bang which made the Jacksons' stunning Motown debut some seven years back with "I Want You Back" so indelibly memorable?

Likewise "Even Though You're Gone", again by Gamble/Huff with its sweet Chi-Lites "Have You Seen Her?" tang, conveys an Isley Brothers sense of cool in the face of unrequited crush with Jackie Wilson on stiff upper lip and Sam Cooke on trembling lower one.

There's no way you could pick your spots to "Music Is Taking Over" (as a pastiche it might have worked a treat). Their originals, "Different Kind Of Lady" and "Do What You Wanna", are overwhelmingly mediocre and prove that as songwriters they make superb cartoon characters.

Ah, I changed my mind. As an album this would have made a great single with "Goin' Places" on top and "Even Though You're Gone" underneath.

Tony Parsons

BILLY CONNOLLY

Raw Meat For The Balcony (Polydor)

THIS RECORD makes me choke. I haven't choked for some time. Derek and Clive made me snigger. Python raised a knowing smile. This offering from a far-flung corner of the Empire (Scotland) is real lung-bursting stuff.

When you learn the nature of Gandhi's revenge, discover the secrets of the ferocious Scottish infantry, hear the legend of Robin Hood's death and experience the erotic qualities of sellotape, I can guarantee that you too will be stifling at least a guilty smirk.

I can't believe you've never seen or heard Connolly before, so there's not much more I can tell you about the Big Yin's latest excursion into contemporary highland folklore without giving away the punch-lines.

This is essentially a comic album with music rather than the more obvious reverse. Taken almost entirely from a performance at the Rainbow, one of the most immediately striking qualities of this record is the vivid, atmospheric reproduction. It puts you on the stage next to Connolly, rather than the back row of the stalls which most live rock albums seem to favour.

The exception to this is one very disappointing studio cut, "Isn't It A Shame." The new single, this is a straight pop song, and whereas Connolly uses music on stage very expertly to present his humour or to punctuate it, this serious aberration is best skipped over. It sounds like Rod Stewart trying to be funny.

Most comedy albums fade after a few listens. Indeed, "Ying Tong Song" is the only comic cut that I can place as an exception, and that's lasted over 20 years! I've heard this one at least a dozen times, and despite the indulgent number of farting jokes, it's lasting better than most.

As the converted will already know, there's more to latch onto with Connolly than the jokes, specifically his minute observation of everyday life and his startling mimicry. The best example here is his perfect execution of a drunken singalong on "Closing Time" and the strident "Welly Boot Song".

Billy Connolly's appeal hasn't diminished since his original "Get Right Intac Him" masterpiece, probably because he's been almost permanently on the road. This is worth forking out for even if you only laugh at it once.

Kim Davis

DENNIS BROWN

Wolf & Leopards

(DEB Music)

DENNIS BROWN is an entertainer who can do little wrong in my estimation, and this set exemplifies the fact.

"Wolf & Leopards" purveys Brown's most recent material, his Joe Gibbs recordings notwithstanding; it includes both his own productions and those with Sir Ninety the Observer. The album represents the young singer at the peak of his talent; he barely falters throughout its length.

The title track was a monster pre-release and sound-system favourite last year that repeated its popularity via Third World release this summer, when it soared to the pinnacle of the UK reggae charts. I Roy's "Sister Maggie Breast"—Yvonne, y'all!—version was one of the most hilarious, and best, toasts committed to wax by that tongue twisting solipsist in his entire career.

"Immanuelle", following, caused a stir of considerable proportions the first time Shelly's sound cut a slate of it down the Four Aces Club earlier this year.

"Here I Come", a song of exceptional beauty, was another UK chart-topper; with Dennis urging "live up roots children, live up Rasta children" in memorable refrain. The tune is still played out at blues, and retains its power.

"Whip Them Jah" and "Created By The Father" are further chapters in the Dennis Brown success story, circa 1977. The former uses the same rhythm as both Tapper Zukie's "Pick Up The Rockers" toast and Junior Byles' "Can You Feel It" howl of nausea,—i.e. the remarkable "Natty Chariot" dub so popular last Christmas.

Also of merit: Den's reworking of the Heptones' Studio 1 "Party Time", a version I prefer to the group's own recut of the song for Lee Perry, and "Children Of Israel", another big hit.

Dennis Brown is one of reggae's top artists: "Wolf & Leopards" a triumphal declaration of the same. How long will the rest of the world ignore him? How long will the wicked judge unjustly?

Penny Reel

If this is the result of your sound experience... Join us.

EVERYTHING YOU EVER
WANTED TO KNOW ABOUT
SOUND... WE'VE GOT IT TAPED

- 350 Effects and Illustrations fully explored on 6 Cassettes, to guide you through every aspect of sound.
- 6 Concise Colour Illustrated Booklets to complement the cassettes.
- A practical explanatory glossary to make you the best informed.

No prior knowledge necessary.

TO ALL PURCHASERS

- free visit by appointment to Anemone Sound Studios to see and hear a studio in operation.
- free use of SOUND SWAP SHOP for introductions of purchasers to creative and technical partners for professional or amateur associations in all areas of sound.
- free direct line to THEATRICAL AND MUSICAL PROMOTIONS which will provide written assessments of all original material submitted by D.S.S.W. purchasers. Should they see sufficient creative and commercial potential they will undertake promotion through the facilities at their disposal:—

FREE DEMO RECORDINGS & FINANCIAL SUPPORT

The D'arblay Sound Studio Workshop

IF YOU'RE A SOUND THINKER THIS £30 COULD BE THE BEST INVESTMENT YOU EVER MAKE.

DSSW, D'arblay House, Poland Street, London, W1V 3DE

Due to physical limitations the above launching offer can only be guaranteed to the first 10,000 orders received. Thereafter purchasers will be duly advised and refunded within 14 days.

Thereafter purchasers will be duly advised and refunded within 14 days.

Please send me	D'arblay Sound Studio Workshop(s)
I enclose £	Being Payment in full/Initial Payment of installment plan

I wish to pay by Barclaycard/Access and I authorise you to debit my account with the amount of £30.
My Barclaycard/Access No. is [illegible]

NAME _____

ADDRESS

POST CODE

SIGNATURE

DATE _____

Terms of Payment:

(1) DSSW is yours for a single payment of £30 by Postal Order or Cheque OR
(2) An Initial Payment with order of £15 and a further 3 consecutive monthly payments of £7 each making a total price of £36.

All Cheques and Postal Orders to be made payable to:
D'arblay Sound Studio Workshop
D'arblay House, Poland Street
London W1V 3DE.

NME1

* Sound visit/"Sound Swap Shop" and "Theatrical and Musical Promotions" are available on completion of payment only

Keith Jarrett

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE

I LAST SAW Keith Jarrett live back in the '60s when he was the Superflash Kid in the trendy Charles Lloyd outfit.

His piano technique was astonishing, his ideas derivative and altogether less impressive, and the image — beads, kaftan, demented energy — seemed purpose-built to capture the public imagination.

Well, on his showing at Drury Lane, two of the ingredients have remained constant, while the third has been merely up-dated.

His touch, precise, plangent and instantly recognisable in the rhapsodic passages, lithe in the funkier parts, is something to be wondered at.

Jarrett still gets about the keyboard like nobody's business. Unfortunately, he still hasn't got much to say.

The two lengthy improvisations that comprised his two sets substituted manner for substance, the endlessly vamping manner giving way — slightly after my patience — to the Grand Delirium of his 19th century salon manner with the Moorish tinge.

Anyone who believes that Jarrett's phenomenal commercial success represents a return to taste, acoustic piano and the integrity of the artistic vision could well be misled: he spreads the ideas mighty thin, and the manner butterside up.

Recent solo piano concerto Dollar Brand and Paul Bley point the contrast.

Neither pianist possesses Jarrett's technique, but both use all their resources to advance their flights of imagination. Brand's use of vamp, clearly paralleled in Jarrett's second set where he worked right in among the rhythmic cycles, releases spiralling voicings from the piano. Under his attack, it sings, it moans, it moves. Jarrett got louder, deployed a threading melody line against the general boogie — the sole justification of that insistent backdrop.

Bley's subtle adjustments and re-alignments within chord structures — or Bill Evans' for that matter — illustrate the fertile interplay between harmony and melody. Jarrett's ideas tend to come in single notes and climb all the way up the scale to a gushing tiptoe summit. This is sensitivity somewhere between "The Eddie Duchin Story" and Ken Russell's Gallery of Inflatables.

The way he struts his stuff these days — throat exposed in ecstasy, fingertips poised to drop another plump pebble into the oldest millstream, or seemingly unable to play an entirely workaday rhythm without getting off the stool to writhe — renders visually obvious what is already aurally manifest. The manner is product.

Most of the audience greeted everything with reverence: Art. One dissenter in the lobby remarked that, Oh hell, he still liked the albums anyway.

Sure, they're better than this, and if anyone would like to hear what can be done with similar ingredients, plus structure, they can always check out Hampton Hawes' "The Green Leaves Of Summer" on Contemporary, recorded in 1964.

Brian Case

Sham 69

MARQUEE

A VERY cruel evening. Fascinating, exhilarating, but frightening.

This band has been so heavily praised by everyone that I was almost waiting for them to put a foot wrong: I was looking for things to criticise because, despite my faith in the New Wave, I was sick of 1977 punk rock, bored by the dozens of fifth-rate imitators with nothing new to offer, frustrated by the audiences and their safety-pinned uniforms which have already become predictable and mindless.

There were only three punk acts that I considered worth seeing and one of those was too lethargic or self-important to face live gigs. Fortunately, Sham 69 were different.

Musically they owed everything to what had gone before. Their lyrics were strong in their innocence and every song had a simple, memorable hook.

Solid stuff, but nothing different.

Jimmy Pursey is different. He probably wouldn't like to be picked out from the rest of the band. Maybe he even hates the idea of being written about by the rock press at all, but everything you've read about him is true.

He's an average singer, a derivative stage performer, but he's also the most compulsive, rivetting, hypnotic Star (sorry, Jimmy) I've seen in recent memory. Only Pete Shelley compares, but in a totally opposite way.

Sadly, it's irrelevant to discuss the set in detail, because this gig was about violence rather than music.

A crew of authentic skinheads packed in front of the stage are chanting "United! United! Bootboys!" and associated pleasantries before the band even appear. Halfway through the first number, the capacity crowd erupts and surges back to avoid the inevitable brawl.

I saw three fights during the set, clinical face-to-face mouthwackings. Pursey was furious.

Twice he stopped the band to scream, "What do you think this is, a football match? We came here to enjoy ourselves, didn't we?"

No, they didn't.

The skins were waiting outside afterwards to challenge punks. Dozens of lawmen were wandering Wardour Street, their presence for once welcome.

"If you're gonna fight, we ain't playing again anywhere!" yells Pursey. "I used to be a nobody. I don't need this. I can walk out tomorrow!"

Sham 69 are perfect because they are an exact reflection of today. 1976 was a year of enthusiasm, excitement, novelty, of shaking people's fixed ideas with no holds barred.

1977 is a year of disillusionment, a sick tedious summer with society turning energy back on the catalysts in the form of violence or censorship.

This is a time of frustration and hatred and Sham 69 are staring into the darkness. Alone.

Kim Davis

CHESECLOTH KURTA
A good quality cotton kurta with white embroidery. Only £2.70 + 20p P/P. Chest size 30" to 42". Girls size 32" to 44". Full state bust size. Hair state bust size.

COLOURED EMBROIDERED KURTA
Same style as above but 7 coloured embroidery on a white background. £2.80 + 20p P/P. Chest size 32" to 42". Bust 34" to 42".

COTTON ORILL LOONS
A good quality cotton shirt in the original herringbone. £2.80 + 40p P/P. Two pairs £6 + 70p P/P. Colours: Navy, yellow, purple. Guys waist sizes 26" to 37". Girls hips 32" to 37" (33" inside leg length). Please state alternative colours and your waist size. Girls state your hip size. Also brown, red, dark green, olive green, maroon in guys waist 26" and 28". Girls hips 32" and 33". 34".

LEE COOPER
One of the best makers of jeans in the UK. The western style jeans with flared bottoms. In blue pre-shrunk denim. £12.48 + 70p P&P. H's waist 26" to 38". Girls hips 32" to 42". 33" inseam length. Girls please state your hip size. Also same style in Corduroy £12.48 + 70p P&P. Colours: black, grey, navy. H's waist 26" to 38", hips 34" to 42". Girls please state your hip size 33" inseam length.

LEVI DENIM JACKET
A lightweight pre-shrunk blue denim jacket by Levi. £7.55 + 70p P&P. Chest sizes 38", 38", 40", 42".

Postage outside UK double. Please state your name, full address, colour and size clearly. All goods can be exchanged or returned within 10 days. Send no cheque to:

SHAPES (Dept P)
752 High Street, Waltham Cross, Hertfordshire, EN8 9TE

OUR SHOP OPEN ALL WEEK

BRUTUS STRAIGHTS OR GOLD FLARES
CALIFORNIA STYLE HEAVY DENIM JEANS. WAIST: 28, 30, 32, 34, 36. LEG: 35".

SEND CHEQUES/PO'S TO: M.D.L. SUPPLY Co. 5 CROWN ST. ACTON W3

POST FREE UK DELIVERY. PLEASE ALLOW 14 DAYS DELIVERY.

NOW your own design on a Say Shirt

Get that together feeling with a Say Shirt. Great for your Disco, Fan Club, Pool Team, School or even your mates. Now you need buy only 10 shirts to get your own exclusive design. Direct screen printed 'T' shirts and sweatshirts in a wide range of colours. We still supply shirts with your wording (up to 40 letters). Get details today of that togetherness feeling. Contact:

Say Shirts Ltd.
Dept NME 50, Box 50, 3 Guinea St.
Exeter EX1 1BX
Tel. Whimble (0404) 822329

SPECIAL COLLECTORS COPY

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF ELVIS A. PRESLEY

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF

This unique thirteen page document is an exact copy of the last will and testament of Elvis Presley, which appears on record in the Will Book of the probate court, Shelby County, Tennessee. The document is endorsed by the court and is signed by Elvis Presley. The signature of the witnesses Ginger Alden, Charles Hodge and Ann Smith also appear. A limited number of copies of this much sought after document are available at £2.50 each. ZIFWORTH LTD., 68 OLD BROMPTON RD., LONDON SW7

TO: ZIFWORTH LTD., 68 OLD BROMPTON RD., LONDON, S.W.7

Please send to me _____ copies of the last Will and Testament of ELVIS PRESLEY. I enclose my remittance of £ _____

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

OVER KNEE BOOT

Latest Fashion Boots in Navy Blue Leather and Denim. English. Sizes: 3-8.

ONLY £10.99

Please apply to:
S.K.W., 1 Priory Avenue, Caversham, Reading, Berkshire.

And include £1.00 postage and packing

CLEVER Clogs

Dept. K, 12 MARTINEAU WAY, BIRMINGHAM B2 4UL

This fabulous cowboy boot at the great price of £24.99 inclusive P&P PLUS! to every customer FREE the single ALBUM of their choice from NME Top 30! The boot has all leather upper and leather sole which is stitch welted for strength. It comes in Tan in sizes 6, 7, 7½, 8, 8½, 9, 9½, 10, 11, 12. Cut this advert out and send now with 2 album choices. Cheques/POs should be made payable to Cloggs. American Express, Barclaycard and Access are accepted gladly. Allow 21 days delivery. Fair deal as usual.

LAST WEEK'S ANSWERS

ACROSS: 1 Tom Robinson; 7 McLaren; 8 T.V. Smith; 9 (Hall &) Oates; 10 "Changes"; 12 Max's (Kansas City); 14 "Seconds (Out)"; 15 "Instant (Karma)"; 17 Elvis Costello; 18 Julie (Covington); 19 Kiki (Dec); 21 Parsons; 23 Max Romeo; 24 "Tommy". DOWN: 1 Tom Verlaine; 2 Malcolm (McLaren); 3 Bee Gees; 4 Steve Hackett; 5 (Randy) Newman; 6 "(Seconds) Out"; 11 "God Only Knows"; 13 X-Ray Spex; 14 Stooges; 16 Savile; 18 Jimmy; 19 "Karma"; 20 Gram (Parsons); 21 Pogo; 22 Sir.

- ACROSS
- Gallantry after low profile in defiance of Cornwell, Burnel & Co. Cryptic, huh? (5, 4)
 - The lesser-known Traffic. (5, 4)
 - With cover artwork by A. Warhol, the Stones pledge their collective troth. (4, 3, 4)
 - See 22 down.
 - Original bassist with Rolling Stones, he went on to form the Pretty Things with Phil May. (4, 6)
 - and 25 Wait here Dave. Bang! (anag. 7, 5, 4)
 - Commercially hottest of the new wave bands.
 - and 18 Took over when the Rich Kid was dumped out.
 - Turner or Grocer.
 - Hash rag, man. (6, 4)
 - "Where Did Our Love Go" was their first UK hit.
 - See 4.
 - See 13.
 - Dan McCafferty's lot.
 - New wave preserve?

- DOWN
- Never mind "Viva Espana" here's the bollocks! (8, 2, 3, 3)
 - Sort of desert dub, dread in-a Cairo — or loopy Jonathan doing his stuff. (8, 6)
 - 18 and 9 and 24 Spector's tour de force, snubbed by U.S. public — one of the reasons for his premature retirement.
 - Took over from 11 across.
 - Early Cockney Rebel hit. (4, 4)
 - See 16 across.
 - See 4.
 - Ex of N.Y. Dolls, formed Heartbreakers with Johnny Thunders. (5, 5)
 - Gregory the snitch.
 - See 4.
 - Now defunct they took their name from their keyboard playing leader.
 - Joni's last album.
 - and 10 Replaced Wilko in the Feelgoods.

Mean Shakes

For STRAIGHT LEG CORDS

only £8.99

FREE P&P UK & EIRE

COLOURS: BLACK, BLUE, RED, GREY, NAVY, BEIGE, BROWN. PLEASE TICK BOX.

SIZES: GUYS 26"-34" W. GIRLS 8"-16" ALL 36" INSEAM LEG. CHECK KASH/RO. TO.

FLYERS 106 CAMDEN HIGH STREET, NW1

GET INTO THE ORIGINAL GRINGO LEATHER WAISTCOAT — GREAT FOR XMAS GREAT WITH DENIMS!

The Gringo Waistcoat is made from quality, tough supple leather with copper finish stud fasteners all double stitched for strength. Colours: Tan and dark brown. Only £9.75 inc P & P!!

NEW! Also in black leather! At Only £8.95!!! inc P & P nickel finish fasteners.

Money back if not satisfied, send name, address, cheques, POs, stating chest/bust size for prompt and friendly service to:

GRINGO Casuals Co.
56 TAVISTOCK STREET, BEDFORD, BEDS.

Please state card No. with order.

AND NOW — the Gringo Belt in 4mm real hide leather — 1½" wide! (Standard Levi size). Solid brass buckle — superb quality that should last for years. ONLY £4.25 inc P & P

Colours: Brown, tan and black

Permaprints Ltd, P.O.Box 201, 96 Newington Green, London N14 4RR

PUT COLOUR ON YOUR CHEST!

MAKE SOMEONE HAPPY WITH A GIFT FROM PERMAPRINTS

679 IDIOT

T-SHIRTS
ONLY £2.20 EACH
(OR £4 ANY 2)

214. BIONIC COCK

Heavy Cotton Fleece Lined
SWEAT SHIRTS
ONLY £4.20 EACH
(OR £8 ANY 2)

611. SIXTY NINE

Cap Sleeves
Only £2.65 each
(OR £5 any 2)

Now available
HOODED SWEAT SHIRTS
Highest Quality

HEAVY COTTON, FLEECE LINED

All designs shown are available on this garment.
Sizes: S.M.L.
Med, Large

Colours: Green, Navy, Lt. Blue, Red, White

ONLY £5.65 each
(OR £10.80 any two)

250. PUNK PANTHER

700. NEW STATUS QUO

115. BLACK SABBATH

538 SOUTHERN COMFORT

All designs shown below are available on all garments.

Details as follows
Colours: Red Yellow Blue Black and White

Sizes: Sml, Med & Large (679 Type T-Shirts also available in child sizes: 26", 28", 30" & 32")

When ordering state size, colour and one alternative colour.

REALITY IS AN ILLUSION, CAUSED BY LACK OF ALCOHOL.

232. REALITY

BOOM TOWN RATS
BOOK TOWN RATS
...BOOM TOWN RATS...

717. BOOM TOWN RATS

720. YES (GLITTER)

134. GENESIS

KEEP DEATH OFF THE ROADS

220. DRIVE ON PAVEMENT

507 FLOYD

587 BUSTIN OUT

Status Quo

186. STATUS QUO

240. LYNRYD

169. EAGLE

714 LORD OF RINGS

730. GITANES

NOW AVAILABLE
1978 CALENDAR
FELT PENNANTS

All Permaprints T-Shirt designs are now available on wildly colourful pennants.
Highest quality felt material
17" x 13"

FELT CALENDARS only 95p
each (or £1.80 any 2) + 20p
P&P. When ordering state which design(s) required

Now available
MOTHER OF PEARL
UNISEX PENDANTS

Eagle design

Highest quality pendants complete with 18" silver plated chain. The ideal gift. Only £1.35 each (postage included)

FULL COLOUR POSTERS

21. YES

Also available

22. PINK FLOYD

23. QUEEN 24. THE WHO

25. WINGS 26. STATUS

QUO 27. LED ZEPPELIN

Non 21 to 27 Full colour posters 36" x 25" only 95p each + 20p P&P

SNOOPY
RAG DOLL

Complete with colourful T-shirt and Jeans
Available in two sizes.
Mini Rag Doll (7 1/2" tall)
Only £2.25
Giant Rag Doll (15" tall)
Only £3.85p

PLUSH
SNOOPY
BEAN DOLL

Soft and cuddly. 6" tall.
Only £2.45p

BENDIES

Muppet Finger Puppets
(6" tall)
(operate with your fingers). Three titles available: (1) Fozzie, (2)
Statler, (3) Waldorf.
ONLY £1.45 each
When ordering Bendies please add 25p P&P to total

NEW FROM PERMAPRINTS
— DIRECT FROM THE STATES
ROCK STAR-BELT BUCKLES

Full colour designs, super high gloss crystal enamel on polished heavy antique brass buckles, which are adjustable to all standard width belts.

B1 YES

B2 LED ZEPPELIN

B3 QUEEN

OTHER DESIGNS B5 ELO

B6 DAVID BOWIE

B7 FLEETWOOD MAC

B8 JIMI HENDRIX

All buckles are of the highest quality. Full refund given if not completely satisfied

ONLY £3.30 each

+ 20p P&P.

B9 JEFFERSON STARSHIP

ORDERS TO: PERMAPRINTS LTD.
(Dept. N.M. 177, P.O. BOX 201)
96 NEWINGTON GREEN ROAD,
LONDON, N1 4RR

Name (PRINT CLEARLY)

Address

Please send the following: State which garment required Ref. No. and title of design also size and colours for each garment

OTHER ITEMS

I enclose £

(Dept N.M. 177)

When ordering if not enough room on order form give full details on separate piece of paper

Special Offer for New Musical Express. Save £5! Stirling Cooper Jeans-normally £14.95 now only £9.95! But only while stocks last!

- Extra-quality pre-shrunk denim
- 100% cotton
- Good-looking, long-lasting
- Exclusive Stirling Cooper styling
- Price includes post & packing!

In these sizes:—

Men (waist)	Girls (hips)
27"	33"
28"	34"
29"	35"
30"	36"
31"	37"
32"	38"
34"	40"

Don't delay! Post Today!

To: 'Buxted Jeans Offer',
43, Old Queen Street,
London SW1 9JA.

(Please state quantity, size etc. clearly)

Please send me.....prs of Stirling Cooper Jeans.

Mens (size)..... Girls (size).....

I enclose a Crossed cheque/Postal order payable to 'Buxted Jeans Offer' for £.....

Name.....

Address.....

Allow up to 28 days for delivery. Naturally there's money back guarantee if you are not satisfied.

QUITAR TUNER

NEW. Beginners or accomplished guitarists. Just clamps on. Reed vibrates when correct pitch is reached.

£6.95
+ 25p p&p.
Money back guarantee.

Scott Products, 85 Sumbury Lane, Walton-on-Thames, Surrey.

★ POSTERS ★

FREDDIE MERCURY £1.10
NEW LED ZEPPELIN £1.10
MARC BOLAN

set 12 B/W
Glossy 10" x 8"
Photos — taken recently — £7.95 (incl)

THIN LIZZY 95p
SABBATH, STUDIO 95p
QUO IN STUDIO 95p
FONZIE ON BIKE 95p
ELVIS ON BIKE 90p

● SEW ON PATCHES
Stranglers, Sabbath, Zepp, Quo, Clash, Yes, Queen, Floyd, C. Angels, Fonz. 65p inc p/p

ADD 25p (1-2 posters) + 5p each extra poster
CARDS & POSTERS
22 Moor Street, BIRMINGHAM 4

CANNABIS LEAF

Unique Jewellery for you in fabulous precious metals

OUR FAMOUS LEAF PENDANT. 1 1/4" high

Solid Silver on Real Silver chain	£7.00
1 1/2" Solid Silver on Silver Plated chain	£4.50
1 1/2" Solid Silver on Real Silver ear hook	£1.99
1 1/2" 9 Carat Gold on Real Gold chain	£38.00
1 1/2" 9 Carat Gold on fine 9ct. Gold chain	£17.50
5 1/2" 9 Carat Gold on Real Gold ear hook	£29.50
Popular Solid Silver Leaf Ring	£7.50

(Send size or we make it adjustable)

Join the rush and send money to:—
ATLAS
40 SYDNEY ST., BRIGHTON

GENUINE Soft Kid Leather WESTERN BOOTS

IN LIGHT & DARK TAN
SIZES Mens 6-11
Girls 3-8
£18-95

PLUS £1 P&P

Smart round fashion toe, strong double stitched seams, leather covered stacked heel, welted stitched sole. 7-14 day delivery. If not fully satisfied money will be returned on boots returned unopened within ten days of receipt. £5 P/P all areas outside UK. Just send P/O, cheque to:

TENNESSEE BOOT CO.
413-415 Eccleshall Rd. Sheffield Yks

Elvis

A LIVING POSTER — A WORK OF ART

REPRODUCED IN FULL COLOUR. SIZE 17 1/2" x 25"

FIRST 500 ONLY WILL BE PERSONALLY SIGNED BY ARTIST. DEFINITELY A COLLECTORS PIECE.

PRICE ONLY £1.50 + 25p P. & P.

TRADE ENQUIRIES WELCOME

SEND TO: SUPERIOR PRINTS MENLIN WAY BOWERHILL ESTATE MELKSHAM WILTS. TEL. 704320

Lee Levi's

1. WRANGLER OR LEE WESTERN JKT. Original western style. 14oz heavy indigo denim. Sizes 32-34, 36, 42, 44, 46. PRICE £12.95.

2. LEVI'S HOODED SWEATSHIRT. Zip thru style. Top Quality made in USA. Colours Navy, Lt Blue, Lt Grey & Black. Sizes S, M, L, XL. State 2nd choice. PRICE £10.75.

3. LEVI'S ZIPPER SWEATSHIRT. Made in USA. Top Quality. Sizes S, M, L, XL. Colours Navy, Lt Blue, Lt Grey & Black. State 2nd choice. PRICE £8.95.

4. WRANGLER HOOD SWEATSHIRT. Zipover style. Made in USA. Top Quality. Colours Navy, Lt Blue, Lt Grey, Lt Blue & Red. Sizes S, M, L, XL. State 2nd choice of colour. PRICE £9.75.

5. LEVI'S DENIM SHIRT. 7oz washed and pre-shrunk indigo denim with copper press studs. Sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46. PRICE £11.50.

6. LEVI'S CREWNECK SWEATSHIRT. Top Quality made in USA. Colours Navy, Lt Blue, Lt Grey, Black & Red. State 2nd choice. Sizes S, M, L, XL. PRICE £6.95.

7. LEVI'S WESTERN JEAN. Original western style. 14oz heavy indigo denim. Sizes 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46. Inside leg 35 or 36. PRICE £13.50.

8. LEE BACK POCKET JEAN. Flattering baggy style. 14oz heavy indigo denim, washed and pre-shrunk. Sizes 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46. Inside leg 35 or 36. PRICE £12.99.

9. WRANGLER WESTERN JEAN. Original western style. 14oz heavy indigo denim with 26 flares, washed and pre-shrunk. Sizes 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46. Inside leg 35 or 36. PRICE £12.50.

Post free UK and Eire Cheques & P.O.s to MATCHPLACE JEANS LTD Dept. NX, 8 Station Road, West Croydon Road, Surrey. If paying by Access or Barclaycard please quote Number.

GRINGO XMAS GOODIES

Good Quality Special Offers — all items in Xmas gifts

GIRLS HAND/SHOULDER BAG. Made from Top Quality leather patchwork with zip top. Colours: brown/tan, or all brown, tan or black.

Please state 2nd (and 3rd) choice at the amazing price of £2.35 (inc. VAT & P/P) in beautifully hand made embossed leather. Bear colours with hand painted coconut colours on designs — Ideal Xmas Gift.

Basic colours: Tan, brown, green and burgundy

1. Embossed Watch Strap — £1.50, Medium, £1.70, Small, £1.90
2. Small Fanny Watch Strap — 75p
3. Lighter Holder — 85p
4. Hair Slide — 75p
5. Small Cress — 50p, Large Cress — 70p
6. Zaflex Pendant — 85p

Girls Platted Wristband (not shown) 75p (All inc. P&P) Cheques, P.O.s to GRINGO CASUALS CO., 56 Tavistock St., Bedford

only £9.95

For this six function digital watch. Limited offer, while stocks last. Send cheque or postal order giving your name and address in block capitals to:—

Trepadex Ltd., P.O. Box 36, 147 Earls Court Rd., London SW5. Delivery within 21 days.

GENERATION X

ONLY 45 DAYS TO XMAS!

MAX. ORDERS:
4-5" T-SHIRT £2.85p + 25p p&p.
GLOVES, REGGAE AND CHIEF FUN SIZES.
4-5" BADGES 20p + 10p p&p.

MARQUEE POSTERS (OFF THE WALL) (SET OF 4) £1.95p + 25p p&p.

MAIL ORDER ONLY TO:
MIGHTYMOUTH LTD (NL)
100 CHESTERTON ROAD
LONDON N1 10

LEE JEANS

14oz Pre-Shrunk back pocket bag. All sizes 26"-34", 36" inside leg.
Unwashed only £10.95
Washed only £11.95

LEE DRAIN PIPES

All sizes 26"-34", 36" inside leg.
Washed only £11.95

LEE WESTERN

All sizes 26"-34", 36" inside leg.
Washed only £12.99

Send P.O. or Cheque + 50p p & p to:
KENT MAIL ORDER COMPANY
48 Old Dover Rd., Capel-le-ferne, Folkestone, Kent

Great NEW DEAL

AFGHAN COATS!
'42" long!
Super quality soft brushed brown sheepskin. £29.90. Chest 36-44" inc. knee length. Depend on HT long trims.

Ordinary quality (36"-38" long) £18.75. Chest 30"-42" P&P £1.10

AFGHAN WAISTCOAT £12.50
JACKET £14.50
(waist length) Chest 30"-44" P&P 75p

BIG BOY JEAN CO. (SS)
48 Manor View, London, N3
(Tel. 01-346 3432 Wed. evg)

Levi's

Style 521 Western styled 22" Flares with riveted pockets in 14oz Denim. Waist sizes 26"-28" 28" 30" 32" 34" 36" 38" 40" 42". Inside leg 32" 34" 36" 38" waist and upwards 34" leg only. Sizes from 26" to 36" waist are prewashed if required. £13.50

Style 528 17" prewashed Western styled Jeans with riveted pockets in 14oz Denim. Waist sizes 26"-28" 28" 30" 32" 34" 36" 38" 40" 42". Inside leg 32" 34" 36" 38" 40" 42". Inside leg 34" only. Please state 2nd choice of colour. £12.50

Levi 17" Straight NeedleCORD Western style with riveted pockets. Colours: Navy, Navy, Sage Green, Dk Brown, Grey, Black, Bronze & Sage Green. Waist sizes 26" 30" 32" 34" 36" 38" 40" 42". Inside leg 32" 34" 36" 38" 40" 42". Inside leg 34" only. Please state 2nd choice of colour. £12.50

Denim Jacket in 14oz Denim (original style). Chest sizes 30" 32" 34" 36" 38" 40" 42" 44". 46". Prewashed if required. £14.95

Levi Denim Shirt with brass popper buttons, prewashed. Collar sizes 14" 14 1/2" 15" 15 1/2" 16" 16 1/2" 17". £10.95

Levi Cotton/Flannel Shirt with bone buttons & two breast pockets. Colours mainly in Red, Navy & Green Tartan. Collar sizes 14" 14 1/2" 15" 15 1/2" 16" 16 1/2" 17". £9.95

Levi Crew-neck Sweatshirts Colours: Red, Lt Grey, Black, Bottle Green. Sizes S, M, L, XL. Please state 2nd choice of colour. £8.95

Levi Sweatshirt with Hood, zip thru style. Colours: Navy, Red, Black, Lt Blue, Lt Grey & Dk Green. Sizes S, M, L, XL in Navy only. Please state 2nd choice of colour. £10.75

Levi Sweatshirt with Collar, zip thru style. Sizes S, M, L, XL Colours: Red, Lt Grey and Navy. £9.95

WRANGLER

Style 11018 Western styled 26" Flares in 14oz Denim. Waist sizes 26" 30" 32" 34" 36" 38" 40" 42" 44". Inside leg 32" 34" 36" 38" waist and upwards 32" and 34" inside leg only. Sizes 28" to 36" are prewashed if required. £12.50

Style 110145 prewashed Western styled fashion Jean, 18" bottoms with riveted pockets. Waist sizes 26" 30" 32" 34" 36" 38" 40" 42". Inside leg 32" 34" 36" 38" 40" waist 32" & 34" inside leg only. £12.50

Wrangler Western styled NeedleCORDS 24" Flares. Colours: Dk Brown, Black, Navy, Sage. Waist sizes 26" 30" 32" 34" 36" 38" 40" 42". Inside leg 32" 34" 36" 38" 40" waist 32" & 34" inside leg only. £12.50

Denim Shirt Western styled with pearl popper buttons. Collar sizes 14" 14 1/2" 15" 15 1/2" 16" 16 1/2" 17". £9.95

Denim Jackets in 14oz Denim. Sizes: 30" 32" 34" 36" 38" 40" 42" 44" 46" 48" 50" Chest £13.95

Wrangler extra heavyweight Cotton/Flannel Shirt with pearl popper buttons and 2 breast pockets. One colour only. Multi-check mainly Red, Navy & Beige. Sizes: S, M, L, XL. £9.95

Wrangler Western styled pin-striped Shirt with pearl popper buttons and 2 breast pockets. Colours: Navy/White, Red/White. Sizes: S, M, L, XL. £9.50

Wrangler waist length Nylon Jacket with quilted lining and simulated Navy Fur collar, zip thru style. Colour: Navy only. Sizes: S, M, L, XL. £14.95

Wrangler Long Lumber Jacket in Navy/Red check with simulated Navy fur lining, button thru style. Sizes: S, M, L, XL. Recommended price £21.00. Our price £19.95

Wrangler waist length Lumber Jacket in Brown/Green check with simulated Brown Fur lining, zip thru style. Sizes: 34" 36" 38" 40" 42". Recommended price: £18.95. Our price £16.95

Wrangler Sweatshirts with various American Universities and Academies. Sizes: S, M, L, XL Colours: Navy, Black, Lt Blue, Dk Green, White, Red. Please state 2nd choice of colour. £8.25

Wrangler Sweatshirts with Hood, zip thru style. Sizes: S, M, L, XL Colours: Red, Navy, Lt Grey, Dk Green. £10.95

If paying by ACCESS or BARCLAYCARD, please give card no. only. Cheques/P.O. made payable to: ~ST. LESLIE'S RANCH HOUSE (M. DEPT.) 1964
5 Union Street, BATH BA1 1RP, Avon.
TEL BATH 66313 :: Free p.p. UK-ÉIRE-BFPO

2 Magnificent 1978 CALENDARS

The ELVIS 1978

This commemorative calendar, with twelve large, lavishly coloured, beautifully printed pictures of Elvis is a constant reminder—every day of the year—of the eternal King of Rock. Large size, the pictures can be detached and used as wall posters. Details of Elvis' career are chronicled monthly, and the calendar contains a comprehensive list of Elvis films and records. Perfect gift for fans of all ages.

The HOLLYWOOD NOSTALGIA 1978

Plus birth dates of leading movie and TV stars, month by month throughout the year. Price: £1.00 + 25p post & packing.

Demand is already heavy so allow up to 14 days delivery.

Send coupon and cheque/P.O. to: Onahond Ltd., 102 Chepstow Rd., London W2 5QS. Registered England No. 1317585 Tel. 01-221 1044

Cheques, P.O.s should be crossed and sent to Onahond Ltd., 102 Chepstow Rd., London W2 5QS. Please send me..... Elvis Cats @ £3 + p..... Nostalgia Cats @ £1 + p&p. I enclose £..... NAME..... ADDRESS.....

NME/2

FOR DETAILS OF MAIL ORDER ADVERTISING RING

ANDY McDUFF ON 01-261 6172

Classified Section

Charge for Box Numbers is 90p. All Classifieds must be pre-paid.

RECORDS FOR SALE

14p per word

AAAGI WORLD'S Worst records. 10,000 singles in stock 60's Soul, R'n'R, Sunnys, 191's Munster Road, Fulham, London SW6, 01-385 5025

ALBUM HIRE S.A.E. details, Dianne Taw Records, Westover, Hybridge, Devon

BEST OF ELVIS — H.M.V. 10" LP. — V.G.C. Offers 0295 710339.

BOWIE, DYLAN, Zeppelin, Who, Hendrix, Quo, Stones, Alice, Purple, Joplin, Melanie and hundreds more albums at bargain prices — as new. Write or phone. — E.R.T. 1 The Hawthorns, Whitehall Rd, Woodford Wells, Essex. 01-504 1394 (daytime).

CASSETTE LIBRARY. Large selection on pop, progressive and folk cassettes — annual subscription, no hire charges. Catalogue 20p from: Centra, 176a Coombe Lane West, Kingston, Surrey.

CHARTEBUSTERS! S.a.e.: Diakery, 88/87 Western Road, Hove, Brighton. Callers welcome.

COLLECTORS — BOWIE Free Festival, Manish Boys, Elton/Bluesology, Mr. Frantic, Since I Found You, I've Been Loving You, Rod, Schoolgirl, Day Will Come, Free — Worm, Creepin' — Apple — Waits EP, Page solo — Blackmore solo 1965 — Jon Anderson 1968 Solo — Spectres (Quo) Traffic Jam (Quo) — Who EP, Move EP. Offers please — also large S.a.e. — 3,000 60's rarities — Wood, Oscar, Bolan, Beefheart, MCS, Zappa, Uglus, Idle Race, Floyd Action, Groundhogs, West Coast, Immediate, Planet — 8.8. 40 Swanside Road, Liverpool 14.

EIGHT ELVIS 78's including Jailhouse Rock. Offers — phone 942-8508 evenings.

ELVIS CLIFF Shadows, Bowie, Roxy, T. Rex, etc. 5,000 singles and albums from 20p. — 1958-77 — Lists, SAE, 3 Ashton Way, Whitby Bay, Tyne and Wear.

ELVIS HMV 45's & EP — offers, John Walker, Chester Beatty Institute, Fulham Road, London, SW3 6JB.

ELVIS H.M.V. 78's, rare EP's, LP's also Holly, Haley, Domino originals. All records v.g.c. — Corby (Northants) 4769, evenings.

ELVIS PRESLEY Rare previously unavailable press conference with Elvis, recorded Feb. 1961 in Memphis. Now available on record album import. £10 includes same day airmail postage. "Elvis Interview" P.O. Box 44, Chadstone Centre, Victoria, Australia, 3148.

ELVIS SALE of the century auction — set sale — 1000's of items. Elvis sale, 34 Narborough Road, Leicester.

FOUR ELVIS 78's for offers and details — Telephone Boston 722840.

GOLDEN OLDIES galore. Ex-lube box records from 12 1/2p. Hundreds of old hits. Most major stars. S.a.e. lists — Dept A/1, 82 Vandyke Street, Liverpool, L8 0RT.

HITMAKERS 1957-76 (45's & LP's). Large S.a.e. — TSM Records, 220 Victoria Road West, Cleveleys, Blackpool.

HIT 45's and E.P.'s from 1957. Large S.a.e. T.S.M. Records, 220 Victoria Road West, Cleveleys, Blackpool.

LIMITED EDITION Krypton Tunes single (Pic) 70p. — Black Records, 120 Church Rd, Croydon.

LOOKING FOR OLDIES? Then you need RECORD MART Europe's No. 1 Record Trading Magazine. Every issue lists 1000's of rare and interesting discs from the 50s, 60s and 70s. For this month's bumper issue send 50p P.O. to 16 London Hill, Rayleigh, Essex.

NAZZ, JOCK, MCS, 13th floor elevators, Electric Prunes, Kaleidoscope, John's Children, Left Bank, Misunderstood, Live Yardbirds, Fowley, Spirit, Troggs, Surf, Beat, Punk, Country Rock, Unbelievable large Auction/set sale, 45's/LP's. SAE please, Colin Baker, 335 Essex Road, London N.1.

OLDIES — NEW lists, send see: — 105 Canrobert St, London, E2.

OLDIES 66-76. Satisfaction guaranteed from our 28 page lists. Crammed with goodies 10p + large s.a.e. Seeking a special older? Details LPs/45s wanted. — With s.a.e. J. & J. Records Ltd., 24 Upperhall Park, Barkhamstead, Herts. Secondhand records/tapes bought and sold at our Market Stall, Watford Market. (Also Aylesbury Wednesday, Thame Tuesdays).

OVERSEAS READERS. Speedy delivery Records and Tapes. Large discounts. Free catalogue. Counterpoint, 12 Graham Road, Malvern, Worcs.

PASTBLASTERS! THOUSANDS available 56-76. S.a.e.: 24 Southwalk, Middleton, Sussex.

PICTURE SLEEVE singles, German Rock and other LP's. 1.R.C. for lists. 45's/LP's extra. — Helmut Duve, Tannenbergrasse 5, 2400 Lubbeck, W.Germany.

POP OLDIES, Rock 'n' Roll 60s best many rare items. List now available. Send stamp (Overseas send IRC) to: Dave, 28 Trinity St, Barry, Glam, S Wales, U.K.

RARE ELVIS — "Truth About" and others, T. Rex material, Pop records — Flexie, Demos, more S.A.E. J. Brown, 11 Saltwick Close, Southport, Merseyside.

SQUARE AUCTION, lotteries motley sales, goodies, UK Soul labels — SAE/IRC Square Records, 9 Hart Road, Erdington, Birmingham B24 9ER.

THE BEST OF Cream — £135 see Graffiti.

TUMBLEWEED CONNECTION oldies reissues, rarities etc. 5 Picton Place, London: W1. Tues-Sats 10.30-6.30.

3 TYRANNOSAURUS REX singles and Bolan's book. S.a.e. offers to Stuart, 192 Buxton Road, Stockport.

2600 SINGLES, albums, cassettes for sale. Private collection. Varied list. Large s.a.e. — Billy Carruthers, 59 St Mary's Mansions, St Mary's Tce, London, W2 1SX.

WHO 24 singles, including "I'm Free" 4 albums including "Generation" British releases. Sae: — 33 Birch Avenue, Whitburn, Sunderland, SR8 7AR.

RECORDS FOR SALE

14p per word

VINTAGE RECORDS Centre's vast selection of oldies offers you over 5,000+ past blasters from stock including (1955) Shake Rattle Roll — Haley, Cherry, Pinky, Earth Angel — Crewcuts etc (1956) 16 tons of Rock & Roll. Waltz Starr etc (1957) Rip it Up — Richard, Love Me Tender — Elvis, Singing The Blues — Mitchell etc (1958) Dream — Everlys, At The Hop, Danny, Breathless — Lewis (1959) Cannonball — Eddy, Hoots Rockingham, Here Comes Summer — Keller (1960) Running Bear — Preston, Good Timin' — Jones, Sweet Nuthings — Lee (1961) Rockin' Goose — Hurricanes, Riders In The Sky — Ramrods, Ebony Eyes — Everlys, (1962) Wild Wind — Leyton, Wanderer — Dion, Wilmoweh — Denver (1963) Diamonds — Harris, How Do You Do It? — Genny, Forget Him — Rydell (1964) Tulsa — Piny, Kiss Me Quick — Elvis, Little Children — Kramer, (1965) Yesterday Man — Andrews, 123 — Barry, Help — Beatles, (1966) All Or Nothing — Small Faces, I'm A Boy — Who, You Can't Hurry Love — Supremes (1967) Whiter Shade Of Pale — Procul, Purple Haze — Jimi, San Francisco — McKenzie (1968) Dock Of The Bay — Redding, Pica of Matchstick Men — 5 Quo, Classical Gas — Williams, (1969) Half As Nice — Amen Corner, Man Of The World — Fleetwood, I'd Rather Go Blind — Chicken Shack, (1970) Na Na Hey Hey — Steam, Spirit In The Sky — Greenbaum, Yellow River — Christie, (1971) Stoned Love — Supremes, Brown Sugar — Stones, Devils Answer — Rooster, (1972) Rocket Man — John, Sylvies Mother — Hook, Virginia Plain — Roxy, (1973) Whiskey In The Jar — U2, Killing Me Softly — Flack, Gaye — Ward, (1974) Rock Your Baby — McRae, Now I'm Here — Queen, Young Americans — Bowie etc etc. . . . Phew! and that's only a small selection of our stocks!!! 95% of all top 20 entries from '65-'72 in stock now! and 1000's of new / used original UK issues!! EP's/LP's as well!! Visit us soon and see what a real oldies shop has to offer! Vintage Record Centre, 91 Roman Way, London N7 (tube — Piccadilly line — Caledonian Road) Closed Mon/Tues. Telephone (01) 607 8586. The oldies shop with the worldwide reputation.

YESTERDAY MAN — Andrews, 123 — Barry, Help — Beatles, (1966) All Or Nothing — Small Faces, I'm A Boy — Who, You Can't Hurry Love — Supremes (1967) Whiter Shade Of Pale — Procul, Purple Haze — Jimi, San Francisco — McKenzie (1968) Dock Of The Bay — Redding, Pica of Matchstick Men — 5 Quo, Classical Gas — Williams, (1969) Half As Nice — Amen Corner, Man Of The World — Fleetwood, I'd Rather Go Blind — Chicken Shack, (1970) Na Na Hey Hey — Steam, Spirit In The Sky — Greenbaum, Yellow River — Christie, (1971) Stoned Love — Supremes, Brown Sugar — Stones, Devils Answer — Rooster, (1972) Rocket Man — John, Sylvies Mother — Hook, Virginia Plain — Roxy, (1973) Whiskey In The Jar — U2, Killing Me Softly — Flack, Gaye — Ward, (1974) Rock Your Baby — McRae, Now I'm Here — Queen, Young Americans — Bowie etc etc. . . . Phew! and that's only a small selection of our stocks!!! 95% of all top 20 entries from '65-'72 in stock now! and 1000's of new / used original UK issues!! EP's/LP's as well!! Visit us soon and see what a real oldies shop has to offer! Vintage Record Centre, 91 Roman Way, London N7 (tube — Piccadilly line — Caledonian Road) Closed Mon/Tues. Telephone (01) 607 8586. The oldies shop with the worldwide reputation.

BEATLES COLLECTION for sale. S.A.E. for list. Margaret Drayton, 5 Manor Way, Mitcham, Surrey.

BETTER BADGES. Beware imitations — we are the originals! B/W 20p; Boys, Clash Police, Complete Control, Snuff Rock, Obongdo, I am a Cliche, Two Sevens Clash, Anarchy, G.S.T.O. Vacant, Damned, Dave, Brian, Rat, Sensible, Ramones, Patti, Lou, Iggy, Adverts, Spex, Slaughters, Chelsea, Cortinas, Motorhead, Rings, Rasta, 999, Manics, Rode, Feelgoods, Keef, Lightning, Riders, Stuff The Jubilee, Free Wayne Kramer, MCS, Legalsie Colour 25p. Blondie Teenage Depression, Parker Guilty, Petty, Jean Jacques, Nils, Karier, Dead, Selassie, Floyd, Wish + Moon, Hawkwind — Masters + Zin + Amazing + Ritual, Bowie, Ziggy, Dope. Add 10p P&P. — Box 99, 286 Portobello Road, London W10. OK.

BLACK & WHITE prints taken by professional photographer. A set of three different 8" x 6" prints of each artist for just £2.00. Marc Bolan, Can, John Martyn, Heart, Gentle Giant, Sweet, Rory Gallagher, Peter Hamill. Send £2.00 P.O./cheque for each set required. Greg Hougate, A.R.P.S. 20 Anson Road, London, N.W.2.

COLOUR CONCERT photos. new Stranglers, Only Ones, Iggy Pop, Doobie Brothers, Also — Skyrd, Clapton, Fleetwood, Genesis, Tull, Zappa, Be Bop, Ferry, Horses, Logfren, Petty, Stewart. Set of 10 5" x 3 1/2" prints £2.90 (20p postage). Get them while they're hot — guaranteed collectors items etc! — Pete Still, 30 Claremont Road, St Margarets, Twickenham, TW1 2QY.

I REPORT ROCK MAGAZINES — SAE for details: — Graffiti (N64), 9 Shalborne, Marlborough, Wiltshire.

KRAZY KRAZY HAIR COLORS! see for colour list/order form. P.O. Box 20, Pinner, Middx, HA5 2NT.

MID SIXTIES sheet music, also Bill-board magazines, same period — 72 Hampton Road, Southport, Merseyside.

N.M.E.'s JUNE 1968-January 1970. Complete, perfect condition — offers: Jonathan Carson, 82 Chayne Court, Chelsea, London, SW3 5TT.

N.M.E.'s 1967-76 Rock file 1: RM charts 1970-77: Story of Pop (26 issues); Blues and Soul 1974-1977: Offers: Many others. S.A.E. for lists: Phil, 37 Dennett House, Winnell, Winchester, Hants.

PIN-ON BADGES — Pistols (3 designs), Stranglers, Tom Robinson, Clash, Boomtown Rats, Adverts, E. Costello, Buzzcocks, Drones. 20p each, 3 for 50p plus s.a.e. Terry Thomas, Flat 2, Springfield House, 71 Stourbridge Road, Kidderminster.

PUNK-Y SHIRTS "Destroy Red on white. Small, medium, large. £2 plus 25p P&P. Stuart Reynolds, 36a Thornhill Road, Rastick, Brighouse, Yorkshire.

PUNK T-SHIRTS — "Fifth" with nasty illustration. Black on white — small, medium, large. £2 plus 25p p&p. Stuart Reynolds, 36a Thornhill Road, Rastick, Brighouse, Yorkshire.

RECORDS FOR SALE 14p per word

BACK NUMBERS NME Disc etc 1965-71. Send International Reply coupon (obtainable through Post Office) for details. G. Parschau, Hafenstr. 25 H, 6 Frankfurt/M-1, W. Germany.

BADGES for your collection, Black Sabbath, Bowie, Status Quo, Led Zeppelin, Cockney Rebel, Rod Stewart, Alex Harvey, Bad Co. Wings, BoBop, Santana, 10cc, Deep Purple, Genesis, Yes, Dr Hook, Dr Feelgood, Heep, Wishbone Ash, Strawbs, E.L.P. Roxy, and new badges in Sex Pistols, The Jam, The Clash & Stranglers. 20p each plus s.a.e. Love and Peace, send to Julie Williams, 7 Candy St, London E3 2LH.

BADGES: STRANGERS, Pistols, Jam, Damned, Vibrators, Adverts, Kiss 25p each. Plus many more Also Scarves, Patches, Stockers, see for list. — Badge Co., 59 Piccadilly, Manchester.

BEATLES COLLECTION for sale. S.A.E. for list. Margaret Drayton, 5 Manor Way, Mitcham, Surrey.

BETTER BADGES. Beware imitations — we are the originals! B/W 20p; Boys, Clash Police, Complete Control, Snuff Rock, Obongdo, I am a Cliche, Two Sevens Clash, Anarchy, G.S.T.O. Vacant, Damned, Dave, Brian, Rat, Sensible, Ramones, Patti, Lou, Iggy, Adverts, Spex, Slaughters, Chelsea, Cortinas, Motorhead, Rings, Rasta, 999, Manics, Rode, Feelgoods, Keef, Lightning, Riders, Stuff The Jubilee, Free Wayne Kramer, MCS, Legalsie Colour 25p. Blondie Teenage Depression, Parker Guilty, Petty, Jean Jacques, Nils, Karier, Dead, Selassie, Floyd, Wish + Moon, Hawkwind — Masters + Zin + Amazing + Ritual, Bowie, Ziggy, Dope. Add 10p P&P. — Box 99, 286 Portobello Road, London W10. OK.

BLACK & WHITE prints taken by professional photographer. A set of three different 8" x 6" prints of each artist for just £2.00. Marc Bolan, Can, John Martyn, Heart, Gentle Giant, Sweet, Rory Gallagher, Peter Hamill. Send £2.00 P.O./cheque for each set required. Greg Hougate, A.R.P.S. 20 Anson Road, London, N.W.2.

COLOUR CONCERT photos. new Stranglers, Only Ones, Iggy Pop, Doobie Brothers, Also — Skyrd, Clapton, Fleetwood, Genesis, Tull, Zappa, Be Bop, Ferry, Horses, Logfren, Petty, Stewart. Set of 10 5" x 3 1/2" prints £2.90 (20p postage). Get them while they're hot — guaranteed collectors items etc! — Pete Still, 30 Claremont Road, St Margarets, Twickenham, TW1 2QY.

I REPORT ROCK MAGAZINES — SAE for details: — Graffiti (N64), 9 Shalborne, Marlborough, Wiltshire.

KRAZY KRAZY HAIR COLORS! see for colour list/order form. P.O. Box 20, Pinner, Middx, HA5 2NT.

MID SIXTIES sheet music, also Bill-board magazines, same period — 72 Hampton Road, Southport, Merseyside.

N.M.E.'s JUNE 1968-January 1970. Complete, perfect condition — offers: Jonathan Carson, 82 Chayne Court, Chelsea, London, SW3 5TT.

N.M.E.'s 1967-76 Rock file 1: RM charts 1970-77: Story of Pop (26 issues); Blues and Soul 1974-1977: Offers: Many others. S.A.E. for lists: Phil, 37 Dennett House, Winnell, Winchester, Hants.

PIN-ON BADGES — Pistols (3 designs), Stranglers, Tom Robinson, Clash, Boomtown Rats, Adverts, E. Costello, Buzzcocks, Drones. 20p each, 3 for 50p plus s.a.e. Terry Thomas, Flat 2, Springfield House, 71 Stourbridge Road, Kidderminster.

PUNK-Y SHIRTS "Destroy Red on white. Small, medium, large. £2 plus 25p P&P. Stuart Reynolds, 36a Thornhill Road, Rastick, Brighouse, Yorkshire.

PUNK T-SHIRTS — "Fifth" with nasty illustration. Black on white — small, medium, large. £2 plus 25p p&p. Stuart Reynolds, 36a Thornhill Road, Rastick, Brighouse, Yorkshire.

RECORDS FOR SALE 14p per word

ALL YOUR UNWANTED 45's and LP's bought or part exchanged for new records. Large collections urgently required. Send records of lists with S.A.E. — F. L. Moore (Records) Ltd., 167a Dunstable Road, Luton, Beds.

A QUICK service and top prices guaranteed for your unwanted LPs and cassettes. Any quantity bought. Send details with s.a.e. for our cash offer by return of post — Gema, Dept. NME, 1 P.O. Box 54, Crockhamwell Road, Woodley, Reading, Berks.

FUNHOUSE RECORDS pay massive prices for rare UK + US albums — see for offers: — 136 High St, Margate, Kent.

VERY HIGH prices paid: Billy Preston; Sweet Lord/Long as I Got My — Eric Clapton, Roll Over / Tell the Truth (up to £20 each). Offers to: Ruzi, Bremen, Besselstrasse 21, Germany.

PERSONAL 28 per word

ALONE! MEET new friends, inexpensive, confidential and efficient service. Write: — Countrywide Introductions, ME/Martin House, Brighouse, Yorks.

ARE YOU looking for friends? Start with pen friends. For details, send SAE to Trish Riddles, 8 Alnora Avenue, Goring, Worthing, Sussex.

BEAUTIFUL GIRLS from all continents want correspondence, friendship, marriage. Sample photos free! — Hermes-Verlag, Box 110660/H, D. 1000 Berlin 11, Germany.

DOVELING. Select your own partners and penfriends. For free sample photos see/A17 P.O. Box 100, Haywards Heath, Sussex.

HOW TO GET GIRLFRIENDS, what to say, how to overcome shyness, how to date any girls you fancy. S.A.E. for free details. Dept NM, 38 Abbeydale, Winterton, Bristol.

JANE SCOTT for genuine friends. Introduction opposite sex with sincerity and thoughtfulness. — Details free. Stamp to Jane Scott, 3/NM, North Street, Quadrant, Brighton, Sussex, BN1 3GL.

LONELY... UNATTACHED... Over 18. Meet new friends. Free brochure Sue Carr's Countrywide Friendship Agency, Somerset Villa, Harrogate. Tel 0423 63525 anytime.

MAKE FRIENDS worldwide thru our exciting new magazines 50p fortnightly. Pay after receiving 6 from Leisure Times (RT 88), Chorley, Lancs.

POEMS URGENTLY WANTED for publication. Send work for Editor's free opinion and subscription details. Oakland Ltd (AO) 9/11 Kensington High St., London W8 6NP.

POETRY WANTED over £1,700 in prizes annually. Subscription £10. For free criticism send to Rogency Press, 43 New Oxford St. WC1A 1BH. Dept. A3.

POSTAL FRIENDSHIP CLUB. Introductions arranged by post for all ages. Postage stamp for our FREE colour brochure (please give your age) to Miss Chidgey, 124 NME Keys Ave, Bristol BS7 0HL.

WORLDWIDE OCCULT witchcraft, secret temple contacts etc. SAE Baraka, The Golden Wheel, Liverpool L15 3HT.

WORLDWIDE PEN FRIENDS. Write for free details: — Pen Friend Service, PL 27, SF — 20801 Turku 80, Finland.

RECORDS WANTED

14p per word

ALL YOUR UNWANTED 45's and LP's bought or part exchanged for new records. Large collections urgently required. Send records of lists with S.A.E. — F. L. Moore (Records) Ltd., 167a Dunstable Road, Luton, Beds.

A QUICK service and top prices guaranteed for your unwanted LPs and cassettes. Any quantity bought. Send details with s.a.e. for our cash offer by return of post — Gema, Dept. NME, 1 P.O. Box 54, Crockhamwell Road, Woodley, Reading, Berks.

FUNHOUSE RECORDS pay massive prices for rare UK + US albums — see for offers: — 136 High St, Margate, Kent.

VERY HIGH prices paid: Billy Preston; Sweet Lord/Long as I Got My — Eric Clapton, Roll Over / Tell the Truth (up to £20 each). Offers to: Ruzi, Bremen, Besselstrasse 21, Germany.

PERSONAL 28 per word

ALONE! MEET new friends, inexpensive, confidential and efficient service. Write: — Countrywide Introductions, ME/Martin House, Brighouse, Yorks.

ARE YOU looking for friends? Start with pen friends. For details, send SAE to Trish Riddles, 8 Alnora Avenue, Goring, Worthing, Sussex.

BEAUTIFUL GIRLS from all continents want correspondence, friendship, marriage. Sample photos free! — Hermes-Verlag, Box 110660/H, D. 1000 Berlin 11, Germany.

DOVELING. Select your own partners and penfriends. For free sample photos see/A17 P.O. Box 100, Haywards Heath, Sussex.

HOW TO GET GIRLFRIENDS, what to say, how to overcome shyness, how to date any girls you fancy. S.A.E. for free details. Dept NM, 38 Abbeydale, Winterton, Bristol.

JANE SCOTT for genuine friends. Introduction opposite sex with sincerity and thoughtfulness. — Details free. Stamp to Jane Scott, 3/NM, North Street, Quadrant, Brighton, Sussex, BN1 3GL.

LONELY... UNATTACHED... Over 18. Meet new friends. Free brochure Sue Carr's Countrywide Friendship Agency, Somerset Villa, Harrogate. Tel 0423 63525 anytime.

MAKE FRIENDS worldwide thru our exciting new magazines 50p fortnightly. Pay after receiving 6 from Leisure Times (RT 88), Chorley, Lancs.

POEMS URGENTLY WANTED for publication. Send work for Editor's free opinion and subscription details. Oakland Ltd (AO) 9/11 Kensington High St., London W8 6NP.

POETRY WANTED over £1,700 in prizes annually. Subscription £10. For free criticism send to Rogency Press, 43 New Oxford St. WC1A 1BH. Dept. A3.

POSTAL FRIENDSHIP CLUB. Introductions arranged by post for all ages. Postage stamp for our FREE colour brochure (please give your age) to Miss Chidgey, 124 NME Keys Ave, Bristol BS7 0HL.

WORLDWIDE OCCULT witchcraft, secret temple contacts etc. SAE Baraka, The Golden Wheel, Liverpool L15 3HT.

WORLDWIDE PEN FRIENDS. Write for free details: — Pen Friend Service, PL 27, SF — 20801 Turku 80, Finland.

INSTRUMENTS WANTED 10p per word

PURCHASED FOR CASH, good Guitars, Amplifiers, Hammond Organs. Top prices — 01-836 7811.

TUITION 14p per word

SITAR TABLA Tuition 01-574 8876

WANNA BE a rock journalist / photographer? Booklet explains how 65p and 10p postage and packing to: Intro Books, P.O. Box 3, Scotton, Near Catterick Garrison, N. Yorkshire, DL9 3NT.

BANDS 12p per word

A1 BANDS: 01-876 4542

DISCOTHEQUES BANDS groups. — Tel 01-361 9385

RECORDING 14p per word

ELIE JAY Records — record and sleeve manufacturing services, orders accepted now for pre-Christmas delivery. — Ring 01-908 2735

MUSICAL SERVICES

14p per word

EARN MONEY songwriting. Amazing free book tells how. — L.S.S., 10-11 (X) Dryden Chambers, 119 Oxford Street, London, W1. 7p stamp.

LYRICWRITERS — Your lyrics set to music for publishing, recording. Free details. — MSR, 1305/NE North Highland, Hollywood, California, USA 90028.

LYRICS WANTED. No publication fee. 11 St. Albans Avenue, London, WC.

LYRIC WRITERS! Make most of your words. Details (s.a.e.) 1068 Kilburn High Road, London NW8.

MARKETING SERVICE for songwriters. — Nash Associates, International Marketing Consultants, Knocking, Limerick.

PROFESSIONAL COMPOSER — needs lyrics. SAE details, 12 Dawmers Close, Heathside, Camberley, Surrey.

SONGWRITER MAGAZINE explains copyright protection, recording, publishing royalties, songwriting competitions and interviews; famous songwriters. Free sample from International Songwriters Association (NME), New Street, Limerick, Ireland.

SONGWRITERS — Your song recorded professionally at lowest rates — 061 797 0632.

YOUR SONG recorded professionally. Henshildwood, 130 Frankby, W. Kirkby, Wirral.

WANTED 14p per word

RAINBOW TAPES from the latest UK tour in excellent stereo. Top price. — P.O. Box 48, S-380 70 Borgholm, Sweden.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

Want to form or join a band — meet the boy/girl in the next street who sings or plays guitar, drums or whatever and wants to meet you? Then place your ads FREE in NME. To take advantage of this limited period free offer all you gotta do is fill in the coupon below as indicated and send it too us NOW!

LONDON & SE

MUSICIANS WANTED

NEW WAVE/R & B drummer wanted. North London / Enfield area. Nick 01-366 2690.

SONIC GRASSLAND'S require bass guitarist for recording and gigs, into Zeppelin, Stones. Contact Nigel Dorrell, 13 Soho Square, London W1.

STRUGGLING GUITARIST lead / slide seeks other musicians, solid rock, R'n'B, R & B, share interest. Write Paul 40 High St., Sturry, Kent.

NAME GROUP (theatrical rock) urgently require female lead and bass guitarist. Immediate work waiting. (No time wasters please). Phone Marilyn — 01-584 2902.

NEW WAVE drummer wanted. Must not be too experienced, but must live in N.E. London. Phone Kevin 01-551 2932.

YOUNG EXPERIENCED enthusiastic electric pianist required to complete original commercial rock band. Excellent recording, gigging prospects. Tony. Hatfield 63643 Now!

YOUNG DRUMMER for forming punk band, Camberley, Ascot area. Own gear essential. Marc, 45 Kingsway, Blackwater, Camberley, Surrey.

SOUTHAMPTON AREA. New wave bassist, drummer urgently required. Record deal imminent. No pensioners! Call, 24 Bonchurch Close, Bassett Green, Southampton.

PUNK LYRICIST (Pistols, Clash, Dolls) wants to contact brother / sister punks to form band. Phone 10am — 12am or 10pm or 10pm — 12pm weekdays (0268) 25353, Baser, Basildon.

DRUMMER FLEXIBLE efficient, wide minded, for original band ex-names. Rehearsing South Coast, conclusive accommodation available. Telephone 0304 20671 or 0304 207987.

DRUMMER, BASSIST / vocalist wanted to join 2 axe heroes in meaty rock band — no pros. Ring John, Walton-on-Thames 20158.

LUTON DRUMMER wanted. Upcoming R & B band. No previous gigging experience necessary. Phone Alan, Luton 596152.

CELLIST, BASSIST needed for newly forming group playing all original material. Details, contact 01-959 7207.

NEW WAVE artists, recording shortly, require proficient young lead guitarist with lotsa energy. 24 Bonchurch Close, Bassett Green, Southampton.

IMAGINATIVE MUSICIANS required. Bassist, vocalist and keyboardist to join rock / jazz band. Telephone Graham, Maidenhead 26800 or Kevin Maidenhead 27393.

KEEN UNMARRIED drummer needed for semi-pro rock band rehearsing near North London. Telephone evenings 01-807 9628 or 01-203 1640.

NEWER THAN new wave singer / songwriter guitarist seeks solid inventive band. Lead, bass, drums with own P.A. Phone 01-658 6792.

CHRISTIE NME's actually got us a drummer, now how about a bassist to complete band, no punks. Gordon, Haddenham 291294 (daytime).

SONGWRITING DUO guitars / bass / mandolin forming Richard Thompson / Byrds type band, need drummer and other musicians. Recording possibilities. Martyn, 01-904 3300.

DRUMMER for Uxbridge based band. Original material Lizzy / Rush — pro-outlook. Intensive rehearsals, work waiting. Transport essential. Phone Roy 01-575 3662.

EXPERIENCED TENOR / alto sax player wanted for a good jazz / rock band. Contact Angelle at 101 Halsbury Road East, Northolt, Middx.

CELLIST, BASSIST needed for newly forming group playing all original material. Details contact 01-959 7207.

DEDICATED GUITARIST wants to join new band. Am determined to succeed, prepared to move, can write. New-wave rooted style. Hastings 424380.

GUY, 19, bought guitar, too complicated so wishes to sing. Drummer, bass / lead guitarist, wishing to form new wave band. Telephone Drunstable 68854.

REALLY AWFUL electric piano player report for new orders. Be bold, ask for John Friday / Saturdays only. 01-221 4255.

LEAD GUITAR, drums, keyboards for Richmond rock band. Vocals and transport asset. No experience necessary. Phone Ren 01-876 7628 after 6pm.

IS THERE any good, and I mean good pro band out there who needs a better, crazier drummer? Phone 01-749 2937.

BASSIST, VOCALIST and guitarist required. Form group with drummer and guitarist. No pros / sulkers / punks. Gating / Streatham area. 01-727 3283, Len.

VOCALIST / GUITARIST wants competent young band into Stranglers, Rods, Boomtowns, Skynyrd n'suchlike. No time wasters. Surrey area. Noel 01-546 4890.

ENTHUSIASTIC NO-EXPERIENCE (vocalist (can learn instrument)) seeks similar musicians early 20's to form heavy-rock / R&B band after lots of practice. Phone Moira 01-455 8258.

BASSIST for new wave future stars, now preparing for take off. No beginners, no Lumberjacks. Phone 01-326 0748 or 01-286 6542 (evenings).

BORED INEXPERIENCED enthusiastic musicians / people to join female vocalist early 20's to form heavy rock / R&B band. — Moira (01) 455 8258.

BASS / KEYBOARDS - tricky - minimalist - respectively - no clever clogs — well not too clever — just a bit — subversive mentality a help but not essential. Original material. Gigging soon. 01-969 3344.

GENUINE TALENT, wasted too long, seek bass, flute and management! Futuristic acoustics, beyond acid, into new wave man. Jerry 'Mirror' 01-445 7245.

PUNKETTES WANTED to complete all girl group "XCETRA". If you can play anything or make suitable noises (I) we'd love to hear from you soon. Please phone 01-310 6682 and ask for Trace. Enthusiasm essential, exp. not essential.

EXCELLENT BASSIST required exciting and creative funk / punk / jazz / reggae fusion band with revolutionary commitment. Now, no ties. Stu, 01-986 7561.

GUITARIST SEEKS amateur musicians for jamming or band in Crystal Palace, Dulwich area. Fun only. Phone Alan 01-670 0881 after 6pm.

GOOD, SOUND guitarist and drummer. Transport an asset. Into Bowie, Cosmos. No stiffs. Phone 01-876 9449.

AMATEUR BUT good musicians wanted to form a group with great prospects. Good gear and transport essential. 01-828 2537 after 6pm.

DRIBBLING SNOTS (punk group) seek pogo style bass player. Good pickers and blowers only need apply. Bazzie. Phone 01-727 8070 daytime.

WOULD CHRIS (drums) and PAUL (guitar) please ring Tim urgently where they will hear something to their advantage! 01 751 2974.

CREATIVE BASS / vocals required now! to complete line-up of modern psychedelic outfit. Own gear and transport necessary. 01-852 1329.

VERY GOOD DRUMMER for perfect semi-pro band. 01-642 9382.

BASS GUITARIST wanted for punk group. Mark Brown, 37 Fairway, Hemel Hempstead, Herts.

LEAD GUITARIST wanted by the Abortions. Punk only, no posers. Own material, ambitious, perverted, warped and 18 minus. 01-670 9586.

VOCALS, BASS wanted to join lead and rhythm guitarists and drummer into hard rock. Phone Geoff Moss, Runtold 2826, daytime.

LEAD GUITARISTS could you be an abortion? We want an abortion punk to help a band. No posers. Evenings 01-670 9586.

URGENT, NEW wave band need lead guitarist and drummer. Must be determined. Ready for big time. Write or call Sparky, 67 Kenworthy Road, Hackney, E.9.

BASSIST REQUIRED for over-the-top metal trio now rehearsing, gigging soon. Phone 01-229 8219 and leave number for John to ring you on.

SECOND HAND bass player wanted. Four fingers o.n.o. Phone Graham 01 736 5219 anytime. Yes, even vnu!

MANIC DRUMMER, male/female for punk band. Transport essential. Phone Lance, 01 200 0202 or Steve 01 958 5047.

GUITAR (LEAD), for anarchic, eccentric, nihilistic, venomous, ugly group. Play no tunes, rhythms, beats. Just twangs away. W12 spots. Ring Sue 01 937 1234 X 7251.

LEAD GUITARIST and drummer (good gear) need other musicians to form rock band. No punks or punks. Good gear essential. Phone Harlow 30626.

ARE YOU loud, tight, ambitious? Drums, Bass/vocalist needed for R & R / Newwave combo. West London area. 01 567 2550 after 6 pm.

BASS, VOCALS wanted for RMS, old wave rock band with Hendrix, Stones, Cream, Who, Free influences. Phone Tak, Aldershot 23418.

ADVENTUROUS SAXOPHONE player required for rehearsing new wave band. Enthusiasm essential. Contact Jazz 01 734 8242 Ext 256 (day), 01 556 2205 (evenings). Don't delay, we need you.

PUNK DRUMMER wanted for energetic new wave band. Willing to rehearse, work waiting. Phone Nick 01 994 3870.

UNBIASED MUSICIANS required for writer of songs. Young record company interested. All instruments required. 01 883 0232.

FEMALE VOCALIST into loggy, New Wave, wants to form band. Anyone write, pros or not! Lust and life essential. Dolly, St. Paul's House, 87 St. Paul's Road, Southsea, Portsmouth.

HOWARD BOSSICK requires punk drummer for future gigs in Croydon area. Must be fast, pogoing type. Ring 01 653 6822.

SONGWRITER, GUITARIST into Yank 'no-wave' stiff and R & B seeks competent musicians to form band. Patrick, 25 Vauxhall Grove, SW8.

DRUMS PLUS someone who can play 'em wanted by mucho tight band. Ring Jim 01 272 5873 or John, Hornchurch 54515. Pronto!

VOCALISTS WANTED

FEMALE VOCALIST must be versatile, attractive and able to sing in tune!!! (for soft rock, semi-pro band) Telephone Doug, 01-393 4435.

GOOD VOCALIST wanted for heavy rock band. Own gear essential, between 17-22. Ring Dean, 01-856 0238.

FEMALE VOCALIST required for melodic rock band rehearsing in Amersham area. Phone Brian, West Drayton 45660 after 6 pm most days.

LEAD VOCALIST for Uxbridge based band. Original material. Lizzy/Rush, complex rock, pro-outlook. Rehearsals, work waiting. Phone Roy 01-573 3662.

VOCALIST WANTED for newly formed, new wave influenced band. No experience. Equipment if possible. Must be local 14-16 years. Phone Horley 71122.

VIXEN WANT a dynamic vocalist frontman into B.O.C. Alice Cooper, etc. We're no punk or old wave. Malcolm 01-449 6844 (evenings).

FEMALE VOCALIST/keyboard player needed for newly formed band. Phone Terry 01-980 8593 for details. Evenings only.

VOCALIST REQUIRED to join band. Rhythm guitarist preferably. P.A. an asset. Any interested callers welcome. Braintree 25558.

WORK WANTED

VOCALIST SEEKS work with natural band. Phone Horsham 69548 Punk, new wave, heavy rock.

AXE VICTIM seeks well paid working band into Faces, BoBop. Own gear, transport. No punks, junks, alcohols. Tony Cranleigh 6030. After 6.30 pm.

SELL YOUR INSTRUMENTS IN THE N.M.E.

It's only 10p a word!

GUITARIST/VOCALIST wants to join tight young band. Influences include UFO, Pistols, Boomtowns, Motors, 'n' stuff. Surrey area. Noel, 01-546 4890.

RHYTHM GUITARIST seeks to join/form new wave band. Ideas more than talent. Contact Alex, 126 Evelyn Street, Deptford SE8.

CLOUDY ELUSIVE lyricist singer needs guitarist/rock band for work anywhere. Totally imaginative, competent, original creative lyrics. 7 Brinton Walk, Nicholson St. London SE1.

AUSTRALIAN GUITARIST wanting to jam/join or form band with local musicians. John, Flat 30, Monkridge, Haslemere Road, London N8.

GUITARIST SEEKS to join/form punk or heavy metal band. Has own gear. North London area. 01-804 0056.

DRUMMER WANTS a group, please. Slit rockers only, well mostly in Brighton would be nice. Phone Carl, Handcross 400768.

FEMALE SINGER wants band into blues and rock with pro intention and a crazy sense of humour! (hardworking). Carolyn 01-851 3753.

DRUMMER WITH guts wants a band with guts (also writes lyrics) good Premier list but no transport. Phone Steve, 01-851 3753.

NEW WAVE, Bowie, vocalist, lyricist wants to form band or join existing one, for Rock 'n' roll suicide. 01-941 0355.

GUITARIST SEEKS to join/form Nils Lofgren type band. No previous experience, many other influences. Nick Reade, The Elms, Bassett Lane, Wellingale, Essex.

SOUTH W. MUSICIANS WANTED

BASSIST AND drummer needed urgently for humorous new, new wave duo. Own material. Must be ambitious. Phone Dave, Trowbridge 3735.

INEXPERIENCED GUITARIST seeks similar young (16-19) musicians, rehearse, form rivvum and bloore boogie band (Feelgoods, Quo). Ring Lee, Bridgwater 57877.

NEW WAVE VOCALIST/bass amateur wants keen amateur punks for making music. Anything considered. Own gear helps. Phone Swindon 763001.

VOCALIST/LYRICIST wants to form/Join Heavy Metal band. Into Purple, Sabbath, Rainbow, Yes. Ring Robert, Rangeworthy 597. No own gear.

CAPTAIN FELLATIO ain't no musician. Does have words, ideas, voice?? Call 17, Berrycombe Road, Bodmin, Ring 0208 2858 Hello D. O. and Blitz (etc).

PUNK GUITARIST around 17 wanted to complete group. Must be into reggae. No ego trippers. Ring like, Bristol 672455 today!

HANDY GUITARIST. No gig experience seeks similar musicians (primarily) just to play. Write: Winston, Chilton, New Road, Draycott, Chodder, Somerset.

ALL KINDS of musicians wanted to try and form group (amateurs). Telephone Cardiff 45243 weekends 7 till 10.

IMAGINATIVE INSTRUMENTALISTS with jazz leanings and balls welcomed by lonely bass and drums. — Mark, Melksham 704038 or Ken, Trowbridge 63908 — evenings.

VOCALISTS WANTED

FREDDIE MERCURY type, required by group, Cheltenham based. Please phone Bishopsgate 2182.

YOUNG VOCALIST required for Neil Young, Steely Dan, new wave inspired band who write their own material. Phone Bristol 651886.

WORK WANTED

ACOUSTIC GUITARIST wishes to join or form group. Also writes own music. Hurry! Bathesda 600238 (lan).

EXPERIENCED DRUMMER 18, excellent kit, seeks good pro/semi-pro rock band. No time wasters please. Phone Cardiff 763066. 6-7 pm.

MIDLANDS MUSICIANS WANTED

COUNTRY/ROCK guitarist, vocals essential. Own transport and good gear preferred. John 021-449 0293.

TEST TUBE Babies, hot local punk combo want good drummer. Work waiting. Ring Tony, Shirebrook 2169.

DYNAMIC BASS and drums wanted for new recording band. Write for details: "Seibourne", Meddins Lane, Kinner, West Midlands DY7682.

BASS, KEYBOARDS for jazz-funk outfit. 16-20. Lifetime Jeff Beck influence, rehearsal facilities needed. Phone Dave after six. Walsall 28673.

BASS PLAYER needed to form punk band. 15-18 Coventry area. Learner acceptable but must be dedicated. Ring John (Potters Green, Coventry) 611517.

DRUMS NEEDED quickly for new wave band. Gigs will be ready when we are. Phone Jim on Brierley Hill 77709.

WANTED DEAD or alive pianist/flautist, bassist, percussionists, singers, guitarist to join me for new venture. Please phone Mr. Boat, Rugby 890504.

THE BEST undiscovered punk combo around want a good drummer who wants to be famous. Ring Tony, Shirebrook 2169.

STOKE BASED heavy rock band, 'Forbidden Image', require drummer 16-19. Kit essential, experience not. 'Purple/Free' type band. No punk! Write: Tony 40 Parnbridge Road, Blunton, S.O.T.

DRUMS NEEDED quickly for new wave band. Gigs will be ready when we are. Phone Jim on Brierley Hill 77709.

WANTED DEAD or alive pianist/flautist, bassist, percussionists, singers, guitarist to join me for new venture. Please phone Mr. Boat, Rugby 890504.

THE BEST undiscovered punk combo around want a good drummer who wants to be famous. Ring Tony, Shirebrook 2169.

STOKE BASED heavy rock band, 'Forbidden Image', require drummer 16-19. Kit essential, experience not. 'Purple/Free' type band. No punk! Write: Tony 40 Parnbridge Road, Blunton, S.O.T.

DRUMS NEEDED quickly for new wave band. Gigs will be ready when we are. Phone Jim on Brierley Hill 77709.

WANTED DEAD or alive pianist/flautist, bassist, percussionists, singers, guitarist to join me for new venture. Please phone Mr. Boat, Rugby 890504.

THE BEST undiscovered punk combo around want a good drummer who wants to be famous. Ring Tony, Shirebrook 2169.

STOKE BASED heavy rock band, 'Forbidden Image', require drummer 16-19. Kit essential, experience not. 'Purple/Free' type band. No punk! Write: Tony 40 Parnbridge Road, Blunton, S.O.T.

DRUMS NEEDED quickly for new wave band. Gigs will be ready when we are. Phone Jim on Brierley Hill 77709.

WANTED DEAD or alive pianist/flautist, bassist, percussionists, singers, guitarist to join me for new venture. Please phone Mr. Boat, Rugby 890504.

THE BEST undiscovered punk combo around want a good drummer who wants to be famous. Ring Tony, Shirebrook 2169.

STOKE BASED heavy rock band, 'Forbidden Image', require drummer 16-19. Kit essential, experience not. 'Purple/Free' type band. No punk! Write: Tony 40 Parnbridge Road, Blunton, S.O.T.

DRUMS NEEDED quickly for new wave band. Gigs will be ready when we are. Phone Jim on Brierley Hill 77709.

WANTED DEAD or alive pianist/flautist, bassist, percussionists, singers, guitarist to join me for new venture. Please phone Mr. Boat, Rugby 890504.

THE BEST undiscovered punk combo around want a good drummer who wants to be famous. Ring Tony, Shirebrook 2169.

STOKE BASED heavy rock band, 'Forbidden Image', require drummer 16-19. Kit essential, experience not. 'Purple/Free' type band. No punk! Write: Tony 40 Parnbridge Road, Blunton, S.O.T.

DRUMS NEEDED quickly for new wave band. Gigs will be ready when we are. Phone Jim on Brierley Hill 77709.

WANTED DEAD or alive pianist/flautist, bassist, percussionists, singers, guitarist to join me for new venture. Please phone Mr. Boat, Rugby 890504.

THE BEST undiscovered punk combo around want a good drummer who wants to be famous. Ring Tony, Shirebrook 2169.

FEMALE GUITARIST rhythm/bass, harmony vocals seeks to join/form female country/rock group. Notts/Darby area. Chris, 87 Corn Close, South Normanton, Derbys.

VOCALIST WANTS work in band. Rock, new wave etc. 6 foot python willing to assist! Gary, 31 Edison Road, Stafford, o.k.

LEAD GUITARIST wanted by ambitious Coventry New Wave Band with gigs waiting. Must be adventurous. Interested? Write to: Max, 53 Burns Road, Wykes, Coventry.

E. ANGLIA

MUSICIANS WANTED

BASSIST/KEYBOARDS players required to form new band. Probably jazz-rock, blues, R'n'B but who knows. Phone Nik Sheppard, Colchester 41839.

MUSICIAN WANTED. Rhythm guitarist wants to join or form heavy rock group. No experience needed. 15 Saffron Square, Carlton, Norwich.

DRUMMER/BASSIST joining vocals, keyboard, guitar about 17 years. Into Animals, Beatles, Faces, Stones, etc. Proficient but no pros. Phone Cambridge 312563 evenings.

DRUMMER WANTED for pro-rock band. Original material, standards. Phone Cambridge 0223 880629 or 45559.

CAMBRIDGE AREA: Able bassist and drummer wanted (16-18) for new wave band. (No incompetents please!) Phone Sheffield 3631 after 6pm.

NORTH

MUSICIANS WANTED

POWERFUL VOCALIST and drummer plus PA required to form rock/new wave band. Hard workers. Ring Rod, Wakefield 257063.

TALENTED GUITARIST all styles, seeks Manchester band, new waveish, all offers welcome. Ring Kev, 061-766 5930 after 6 pm.

TYNESIDE, IMAGINATIVE, rhythmic and demented 'musicians' to form new wave group. Into Eno, Velvets, Buzzcocks, Andy, Newcastle 28935, early evenings.

MANCHESTER BASSIST needed for original new wave band. Phone Greg, 788 9808.

VOCALIST REQUIRES musicians/writers to form new wave group in or around Grimsby. Phone Carl, Grimsby 813411.

DRUMMER WANTED for new four piece group. Hard worker with no ties and pro-intentions. Ring Alan, Coxhoe 770687.

ARCHETYPAL HIPPIE instrumentalists to fuse drummer John and Jerry guitar. John, Leeds 675888 or Jerry, 7 Rochester Terrace, Leeds 6. Peace.

DRUMMER WANTED for rehearsing band — good. Rock/jazz/funk music, excellent future in store for the right one. Halifax-Rochdale area. Hebden-Briggs 4271.

GOOD BASS guitarist (17-21) with own equipment and transport needed for Liverpool new wave band, work waiting. Phone Mick, 051-427 5288.

CO-SONGWRITER WANTED into funk, Costello

DEAR STEVE CLARK, Re. your review of Neil Young's "Decade" album (NME, 12th Nov.); you state that his one time band Crazy Horse was named after a chief of the Cochise Indians.

First off Crazy Horse was a war leader and medicine man of the Oglala Sioux Indians of the northern plains of America (see Mari Sandoz's Crazy Horse: the Strange Man of the Oglalas: A Biography, University of Nebraska Press), who, very sadly, was despatched from this world by the cold-blooded hands of American troopers in about 1877; the exact date is not known and can only be guessed at. He was in fact murdered (stabbed from behind with a bayonet) by the soldiers while in captivity (voluntary captivity I might add), and was said to have immediately set up a strange chanting and singing which frightened everyone present, soldiers and Indians; his death song.

Second off, there was no such tribe of Indians as Cochise Indians. Cochise was in fact the war leader and subsequent chief of the Chiricahua Apaches, who became even more famous as a tribe later on in the 1880's under the leadership of the most famous and notorious Bedonkohe Apache, Geronimo. Cochise died of an (unspecified) illness on June 8th, 1874, the cause of which was subsequently traced to an enemy of the old chief of the tribe, who had bewitched him, for what reason no one knew then and no one knows now (see Dan L. Thrapp, Victorio and the Mimbres Apaches, University of Oklahoma Press, 1974, first edition).

I hope this clarifies the confusion some of your readers might have experienced at the sudden change of Crazy Horse's allegiance, especially when one considers that, over the years (oh too many to recount now), and via the dubious teachings of Hollywood, they have been forced to acquaint themselves with the fact he was a Sioux Indian. And likewise Cochise and Apache Indian.

I hope you will not hold it against me or think me a conceited old bore for correcting you, not that it would matter one way or the other whether you did or not. Knife to your scalp! STANLEY CANNING.

Warwick.

Please, I beg you, no smart ass retorts at the end of my letter by way of a reasoned, structured reply.

Smartass about Red Indians? Who me? No way — everyone knows Crazy Horse was the original punk... seriously though, your scholarship and regard for a civilisation and race virtually extinguished by American genocide fills me with awe. Sorry about Clarke's ignorance, but he's a game lad. Quick, duck! Here comes this week's Clash Letter. — N.S.

THIS IS what happened to me on the night of the 7th November, when I went to Birmingham to see The Clash.

I arrived at 7.45 at the Top Rank Suite to find a queue stretching back halfway down the street (the show was due to roll at 7.30). I had to wait 1½ hours to get to the door.

The reason for this was that all chains, dog collars, badges, safety pins and even paper clips were having to be removed, and dumped into trash cans.

I removed all of my decorations, except my chain and lock which could not be unlocked — no keys. I didn't even know if I would ever see any of them again, as no one said anything about collecting them (no one under 18 was allowed in, incidentally, and the Brum cops were out to "supervise").

So, it was now 9.25, and still no action. Suddenly, on came Richard Hell & The Voidoids. They played a 20 minute set, and then gave up, due to heavy gobbing. I then went and reclaimed my regalia which was still where it had been put (surprise), and had to leave to catch the 10.15 train (last one) from New Street station.

I paid £1.75 for the ticket, my train fare, and I lost a badge, all for 20 minutes of lacklustre "entertainment". (And got treated like baggage into the bargain).

The Clash shout about rioting, but all the crowd took it without a whimper. No fun!

PHIL CLARKE

This sort of thing doesn't happen at student gigs. (That'll stir it up). — N.S.

CAN ANYBODY be foolish enough to imagine that the new wave scene is still with us? It has been manipulated by businessmen more easily than anything I can remember. The initial hope it conveyed has been totally destroyed by bandwagoners and hypsters.

All the people who felt part of the scene in summer '76, and I include myself, were an innovative minority whose originality has been ruthlessly exploited by vultures and opportunists. I hope the original members of the scene will support my views. Mark Perry himself admits there is no scene left.

Bands are appearing left right and centre with nothing original to offer and wanting to do nothing but make a quick buck by conning their plastic audiences that they are new wave. It is not so much these bands that are to blame but those who control them.

The [redacted] for example (a group of rock musicians told to cut their hair and dye it blonde and adopt a punk stance) perform their set with clinical precision. But can't people see through them? They own more equipment than all the original bands put together. I hope these people admit responsibility for destroying the original scene. These people laugh at the "punks" behind their backs. Safety pins are dead, so are "destroy" T-shirts (doesn't mail order punk gear make everybody sick?).

The scene is dead — but I am not sorry. I feel something new and great is about to happen again. Something interested in creating and not purely in making money. I hope you will print this letter — I know it could get you into trouble. The truth is always dangerous. I have remained anonymous for fear of repercussions.

Sounds heavy. Can't think who's gonna get you though, especially as we took out the libels from your letter. Post-punk creativity? Hope so. N.S.

1977 MAY have been the year in which the 70's came into perspective, but in the case of NME, it's a pretty distorted perspective. By classifying the music of the 70's from a post new-wave viewpoint, you've all too frequently falsified the music as it was when it was happening.

One example will make my point. Tony Parsons, in his article on punk, writes that the 'Glitter' stars were soon "as tedious as Old Warhorse geriatrics like The Stones, The Who". Well, a quick look at NME's of 2 or 3 years ago revealed repeated ecstatic accounts of The Who. Just about every NME writer voiced his opinion that The Who were the greatest rock band in the world etc. Pete Townshend is probably amused at the volte-face, but it does seem a little too like the Ministry of Truth — punk rock takes over, so previous history is brought up to date in accordance with current punk dogma: all old NME's to be destroyed.

Incidentally, why are you so eagerly alert to any evidence of "New Wave

AT LAST — THE TRUTH CAN BE TOLD! THE STORY OF THE WILD CULT THAT WOULD NOT BE SILENCED . . .

RED BAG (No, not Commies ya fool, Indians.)

disillusionment" (Teasers)?

Are you impatient for its demise, so that you can write neatly finished histories of it?

Is this letter too serious to get printed?

CHRIS EIVA, Cambridge.

Absolutely. — N.S.

I'VE JUST read the article on Punk in the "Consumer's Guide to the 70's" series, and while I agree with its conclusions (in the main) there's a few points I'd like to add.

1. Tony Parsons' comments on Punk's early days were all about London. I live in the Midlands and didn't even hear about the new wave until it was supposedly dead on its bondage strides. So how do I support this fading movement? Do I tell you or it to piss off?

2. Although the "first" wave of new wavers seems to be fading (except the Pistols) the second and third are still very much operative, and they haven't sold out.

3. Did you really expect the new wave to change things? (almost a T. V. Smith line, that). No musical movement will change social conditions, living standards etc "at a stroke". Music's not for that. It's for pogoing, idiot dancing, boogieing, or foxtrotting to whatever happens to be your particular bent. Think on 't. P. D. CLARKE (New Waveoid), The Midlands

1. Don't follow leaders, especially when they live in London. 2. Sure. 3. Yes. What's more New Wave has changed things no end — you've just got a short memory. — N.S.

EVERY SO often you get some thick bastard trying to be clever by pointing out the word 'Musical' is your name. If the genius from last week's letter page wants nothing but music he should read the bloody Melody Maker, they even have essay competitions for him to exercise his mind.

There are a lot of us out here who care about animals and who every day have to accept that all you jolly folk out there are cramming your bilious bodies with slaughtered creatures. But we're not supposed to say or do anything, we just have to watch obscene adverts telling us all how jolly it is to eat them, how much fun it is to wear them and how important it is that we keep their number down.

Thank you NME for sparing some thought for all those persecuted souls, and balls to the rest of you. CLIVE WHITELOCK, High Wycombe, Bucks.

Thank you for your article on Barbarians in the U.K. It was welcome publicity. But Julie Birchill seems to think that upsetting fat rich slob is the main idea behind being a hunt saboteur. It is not. Saving wild animals is the main aim, any upsetting of the hunters is just a welcome bonus. After all some of the sabs are fat, some are rich, some are slob.

You do not have to be rich to enjoy sadistic mutilation of harmless wild animals. You do not have to be poor to attempt to stop the sadistic mutilation.

Could I also give some publicity to a Hunt Saboteurs collective Benefit called White Rabbit. It will be held on Saturday, 19th of November at 7.30 to 12.00 in Devonshire House, Exeter University. A. SAB, Exeter.

ANDY GILL wrote a review of the Chris Spedding gig at Sheffield for NME (5/11/77) which was nothing short of ignorant.

Instead of reviewing the gig objectively, his whole piece was based on a preconception drawn from Spedding's "story so far". Likening Spedding to a "note-perfect concert pianist who's practised so hard he's ironed out any personal peculiarities, thus preventing himself from making any personal musical contribution to a piece" is not only pretentious enough for Pseud's Corner but also wrong.

First off, Spedding's guitar sound is tougher, thicker and more individually recognisable than any guitarist I know. His basic rhythm style (head-banging eight-to-the-bar, with which he pre-dated the new wave by several years) is built on a simple fifth at the pointed end of the guitar, which any non-virtuoso idiot could play after five minutes watching him, if only they had his style.

Even so, to suggest that technical virtuosity (do you really know how to recognise it?) negates inspiration is a load of bollocks. I could (but won't) name ten leading guitarists with the "virtuosity" of Spedding who couldn't even piss as high as him when it comes to inspiration and feel.

To penalise him for his session work ("jobsworth fretboard technician") is like penalising a novelist for once having been a brilliant journalist. Next you'll be telling us that Beethoven had no inspiration because he could read music.

Of course, if you didn't like the gig, Andy, you are entitled to say so, but the reasons you gave were pathetic.

Anyway, I thought rock 'n' roll was for enjoying yourself and jumping up and down. I saw Spedding at the Croydon Greyhound last week and there were plenty of people jumping up and down.

MIKE BATT, No fixed address. P.S. By the way, if anyone wants to know why I haven't grabbed myself a nice lucrative punk band to produce, read the last paragraph of Tony Parsons' excellent appraisal of "Punk" on page 23 of NME Oct 29th.

After all those hit records Mike, I'm sure you don't need a nice lucrative punk band. I'm also sure Andy wasn't suggesting technical virtuosity precludes inspiration (I mean, him a Steely Dan fanatic and all); simply that in Mr. S's case the former outweighs the latter, an opinion shared by not a few others here at NME (sorry — you wouldn't want me to lie now would you?). Back in yer Womble suit and start jumping up and down. Personally I've always preferred dancing. — N.S.

THIS WON'T be one of the hundreds of letters you'll get this week moaning about the Pistols album or a letter congratulating Julie Birchill on marrying Tony (gulp) Parsons instead of Joey Ramone.

I am writing to say that in the last year of so the New Wave has produced more young female talented and tasty artists than the rest of history put together, thus making music a lot more enjoyable i.e. Celia (of Mutations), Gaye Advert, Patti Smith, Poly Styrene, The Slits, Blondie and Tina Weymouth (cute). But can you tell us who the lead singer of La Belle Epoque is and what chances have we got of making it with her? JIM BROOKS.

With the rest of your musical taste so out of touch with hers, very little I'd say. — N.S.

WHERE WERE you Velda when we needed you — Tony and Julie, now there was a real story. PSEUD O'NYM.

Velda sent in the story from her LA hideaway, but it was, my dears, just too hot for even the NMWT O HANDLE. Gracious. V.D.

Q: I SAY, I say, I say. What do you get if you put Elvis Costello in your fridge?

A: A Frozen Stiff!

Ha. Ha. Ha. Alright, don't laugh then.

JULIE BURCHILL'S CHAPERONE, Carshalton Beeches, Surrey.

Julie would never be escorted by anyone from Carshalton. Think of her credibility. — N.S.

WE AT Grouchos say Abbot is Costello. BOZO McTOZO and FLAKERS McDAKERS, Grouchos, Exeter.

This smart-ass one-liner business is getting a bit desperate isn't it? — N.S.

Jolly Bagman: NEIL SPENCER

Remember: Post your most to GASBAG, 5-7 Carnaby St., Lond. W1B 1PG.

Actually The Vortex reminds me of UFO now you mention it. Got any acid?

But don't you find the Punk thing full of arrogant nihilism and bad vibes?

MONSTROUS BARGAINS!

(BUDGET AD FOR A HALF PAGE RECORD)

THE SHAPE OF THINGS THAT WIN THE SHAPE OF THINGS THAT WIN

LAST 2 LAST 4

99P INC VAT

THE SHAPE OF THINGS THAT WIN

DEVIANTS SCREWED UP

YOU KNOW ALL this "Bollocks" about The Sex Pistols, right? Well, it's refusing to go away. It seems that the police — apparently unperturbed by the alarming increases in armed robbery, mugging, football hooliganism and teenage prostitution — are not only hassling independent record shops under the 1889 Indecent Advertisements Act, but also some equally antique Vagrancy Act.

American pop artist Jim Dine was done under this by-law back in the '60s for exhibiting drawings featuring people's naughty bits. And now the dear old "Bollocks" album is, by virtue of its window displays, suffering the same fate.

The Vagrancy Act, by the way, was originally intended to prohibit veterans of the Napoleonic Wars exhibiting their wounds and stumps etc. for the purpose of begging.

Not even readers of the august Sunday Times are safe from the onslaughts of Los Pistoleros, for there, on the back page at the weekend, was an interview with marlager Malcolm McLaren — enough to spoil your porridge and curl your kippers. "Yeah", said McLaren, referring to the lads. "You could say we hate each other's guts." In an engagingly sardonic piece, McLaren also gave the game away regarding, how you say, le punque: "Christ, if people bought the records for the music, this thing would have died the death long since."

However, 30-year-old McLaren, the world's first self-proclaimed nouveau riche punk's punk, is still pulling Les Pistols' strings. J Rotten, having enjoyed a recent Hawkwind gig, was asked by Charisma Records to write a review but Taley Malcy nixed it.

Following last week's T-Zer, incidentally, one of Stuart Henry's jingles for his new New Wave Radio Luxembourg show boasts the line: "The station that doesn't ignore The Sex Pistols". Better late than never, we suppose.

The boys, without Rotten, joined in the lugging at The Runaways' post-tour party during the course of which a 20-stone pumping-iron muscle-bound male stripper called Roy burst forth from a giant cake. Giggling Vicki Blue and guffawing Sandy West joined in a shambling rumba with Roy before he dispensed with his G-string.

A more sombre note was struck when it was discovered that pro-National Front propaganda adorned the back of the bar. Phonogram PR Lon Goddard, aided by a Rezillo, swiftly removed the offending material as Debbie Harry spat: "Nazis suck!"

Not in attendance were 999, support act on the tour. Relations between them and The Runaways soured as swiftly as the first night, after Pablo Labritain broke down a Sheffield hotel door in his tireless efforts to get at Sandy West. A screaming Sandy was not amused and 999 were threatened with expulsion from the tour.

But they played in Birmingham the following evening, with The Runaways supporting them. The girls opted to go on first as it was a high-risk power cut night. 999 went down a storm, the girls looked a bit silly and verbal communication ceased forthwith.

teazers

AT LEAST IT was a fruit pie," joked anti-gay crusader Anita Bryant moments after being zapped in the moony by a banana-cream confection (right), hurled at her by gay demonstrator Thom Higgins during a televised press conference in Des Moines, Iowa. Singer/poet Rod McKuen — a vigorous campaigner against Miss Bryant — actually witnessed the incident: "After the whap, there was this big silence. Suddenly, someone said 'Get him', but her husband said 'No, no, let him go. He's a sick man'."

After her initial witticism, Miss Bryant — a former beauty queen (Couldn't you have picked another word? — ed.) — began to pray and then started crying, saying "I don't know what I've done that would bring this about."

Someone yelled: "Maybe your inciting three or four people to commit murder." Miss Bryant, a sort of singing American Mary Whitehouse, is at present being sued by the mother of one murdered homosexual.

Although Miss Bryant's husband had publicly joined in prayers of forgiveness for the demonstrator, outside the studio he snatched another pie from Higgins' lover and tossed it in his face.

"How do you like it, fella?" he jeered.

Miss Bryant's notoriety has spread as far as Europe, where Austrian singer Manfred Langer has released a single protesting her activities.

AS YOU can see, it's not always terribly chummy in the dizzy world of pop. Like, for instance, The Clash refusing to have The Pirates on the same So It Goes show as them. Officially, it's because they feel their unruly followers would give The Pirates a hard time. But could be it be closer to the truth that Strummer and Co were afraid of being urinated upon from a great height by Green's experienced combo?

Is Elvis Costello considering a drastic change of stage image? Answer came their affirmative. But before The Attractions allow him to do it, they want new boots and panties too.

Jake "Don't quote me" Riviera has signed Elvis to a half million dollar deal for North America and Japan.

Meanwhile, at the house of Stiff (shortly to open a New York branch), Wreckless Eric is planning to do five London gigs in one night — two numbers at each venue.

Of 20,000 Deviants' "Screwed Up" EPs pressed, some 4,000 are advance orders for the U.S.

Rat Scabies now making ends meet by selling skateboards.

But a couple of other drummers are keeping active in more predictable ways. Motorhead's Phil Taylor, recently recovered from two broken hands after a punch-up with an Adverts roadie, was soon back in action at his local launderette when four crazed Teds attacked him. The ensuing fracas was interrupted by The Filth but although Taylor was found holding a milk bottle, he was allowed to take his dirty underwear home.

Meanwhile, Vibrators' drummer John Edwards was full of himself after a recent

32 Alexander Street London W2
Where money makes money

... can now be located just around the block from the Naked Tit strip club, and a few doors up from "French dresser — top condition — needs inspection"! Along with the rest of the NME Editorial, T-Zers has joined the bright lights generation and gone to Soho. Please despatch all future items of scurrilous gossip, half truths and downright lies to NME, 3rd Floor, 5-7 Carnaby Street, London W1V 1PG.

Two TUBES toobed at their recent reception. "Bored, dahling? Of course we're not bored. Pissed, maybe..." Dancer Louisiana (left) is currently open to offers for her middle-period ENO impressions. Pic: DENIS O'REGAN

SILLY SIGNS OF THE TIMES As MICK (above) auditions for his rhythm guitarist's forthcoming Sensurround spectacular "Birdman Of Toronto City Jail", Horslips drummer EAMON CARR (below) practises digital manipulation by the German roadside.

Canadian visit, bragging about their six Montreal dates: "For the first two nights the punters had glasses, but after that they had paper cups," says Edwards. "Shows you how well we went down..."

COMpletely out-of-touch prats, aren't they? T-Zers refers to BBC DJs and, in this instance, Noel Edmonds in particular. "I think there are a lot of average records around at the moment," chirps the Beebs golden boy. "And apart from Rod Stewart there's no other single artist or band currently capturing the imagination of the record-buying public as did The Beatles or even The Bay City Rollers." Jeez, what do these guys do all day...?

For a cool million and a half dollars much-liked rock manager Don Arden has bought the late Howard Hughes' LA home... PVK Records, optimists that they are, hoping to sign Peter Green...

Talking of barmy guitarists, Wilko's opening night at Middlesex Poly was a bit like an A&R man's convention. For the benefit of CBS' perplexed Dan Loggins, Wilko staged a minor epileptic fit in his dressing room. "I was testing him," said Wilko after Loggins had left in distress...

Graham Parker's Rumour and Clover caught in gale-lashed and flood-sodden Morecambe last week. When they finally made it to their sea-front hotel, the emergency lighting failed as they attempted to order food from a dago waiter called Manuel who couldn't speak English...

John Cleese offers his condolences to GP. And he may be doing radio ads for The Dead Boys...

London dealer Brian Gatland is refusing to carry The Tom Robinson Band's "Motorway" single because of the reference to the Free George Ince Campaign on the B-side...

Virgin preparing themselves for legal problems over Derek And Clive's "Come Again" album. T-Zers can't wait to hear the 11 and a half minute dissertation on masturbation.

As a joke, Generation X played The Roxy's audition night. They won (otherwise we probably wouldn't have heard about it).

Moscow's first disco has opened. It's dedicated to, er, Bob Dylan (it says here)...

After current tour Thin Lizzy going into studio to cut three singles-which-won't-be-on albums.

Brian Robertson is definitely back in the band, and expect a "Lizzy Live" album soon...

After jamming with Jim Capaldi at Bath recently, Steve Winwood returns to the London stage accompanying John Martyn at the Rainbow next week...

FRANK ZAPPA, suing Warner Bros for ten million dollars, includes his thoughts on the legalities in his stage version of "Titties 'n' Beer", in which Warners execs are forced to listen to disco and Black Sabbath while strapped to an explosive enema called Tower Of Power. A court injunction has been slapped on the forthcoming four-record set, Zappa In New York...

After their trouble with the girl-in-a-Titanic-lifebelt ad, Smirnoff vodka had another run-in with the Advertising Standards Authority, which claimed their new poster (depicting a girl in a telephone booth cum shower and a man holding an umbrella for her) was 'too sexy' — because the man is black. When Smirnoff threatened to go to the Race Relations Boards, the ASA graciously withdrew their objection...

Gregg "If it wasn't for Cher I'd be dead" Allman suing Springboard Records over the "Gregg And Duane Allman" double album compilation of ten year old Hourglass material...

An appeal for a Bing Crosby memorial plaque at the Brighton Centre, where he gave his last concert, raised a total of £1.50...

Big In Japan continue to languish at the bottom of the Sunday football league. At Hyde Park, even with the assistance of Deaf School's Mr Average, they went down 7-8 to a Yachts/Rich Kids XI. So much for Scouse football. Clough for England...

T-Zers recommends Trivia Press' Public Enemy Number One comic (especially Lunchie Bunsworth, who somewhat resembles NME's own Monty Smith), available from 50a Eastlake Road, London SE5. It's worth eight bob (40p) of anyone's money. Almost...

"Sweet music is doomed to peter out as a form," says Stranglers' manager Dai Davis. "Angry music like that of The Doors has always been successful." Tell that to Paul McCartney...

Macca already knows, really, since his 14-year-old daughter Heather is into The Pistols, The Clash, The Damned and London...

Following Thrills exclusive dossier on The Animal Liberation Front last week comes the timely paperback publication of William Kotzwinkle's Dr Rat, a brilliant attack on animal abuse much raved over when it appeared in hardback by NME's Neil Spencer who sees his accolade nestling proudly alongside those of The Times The Guardian and The New York Times. Price 85p in Corgi, and well worth forgoing your next picture sleeve single for...

And Paul seems to be working as hard as his daughter to forget The Beatles ever existed. On Nicky Horne's Capital Radio show, McCartney claimed never to have listened to the "Hollywood Bowl" and "Hamburg Tapes" albums.

But at least Liverpool remembers 'em. After months of indecision, a Beatles statue will be erected in the city. One Merseyside Tory councillor isn't pleased: "The Beatles can't sing for toffee..."

THE BANNED SINGLE LITTLE GIRL
Get yours now
1st 5,000 ONLY IN PICTURE SLEEVE HAR 5145

MUSICAL EXPRESS

Editorial

3rd Floor, 5-7 Carnaby Street,
London W1V 1PG
Phone: 01 439 8761

Editor: Nick Logan

Assistant Editor: Neil Spencer

News Editor: Derek Johnson

Production Editor: Jack Scott

Special Projects Editor: Roy Carr

Associate Editors (Features/Reviews):

Bob Wolfenden, Charles Shaar Murray

Contributing Editor: Mick Farren

Staff:

Tony Stewart

Steve Clarke

Phil McNeill

Tony Parsons

Julie Burchill

Monty Smith

Contributors:

Tony Tyler

Ian MacDonald

Angus MacKinnon

Nick Kent

Bob Edmands

Tony Benyon

Max Bell

Fred Dellar

Chris Salewicz

Brian Case

Cliff White

Miles

Angie Errigo

Kate Phillips

Lester Bangs

John May

Photography:

Pennie Smith

Chalkie Davies

New York:

Joe Stevens

Research:

Fiona Foulger

Advertisement Dept.

Kings Reach Tower,
Stamford Street, London SE1 9LS.

Ad Director:

Percy Dickins

(01) 261 6080

Classified Ads

(01) 261 6122

Ad Production:

Mike Proctor, Frank Lamb

(01) 261 6207

Ad Manager:

Peter Rhodes

(01) 261 6251

Publisher Eric Jackson

Editorial Consultant Andy Gray

IPC Magazines Ltd. Reproduction of any material without permission is strictly forbidden.

John Martyn

APPEARING AT THE RAINBOW THEATRE
21st NOVEMBER

SPECIAL APPEARANCE BY STEVE WINWOOD, DANNY THOMPSON,
DANNY ROWE & PIERRE MOERLEN

IF KEYS AVAILABLE FROM RAINBOW THEATRE, SEVEN SISTERS ROAD, ST. LEONARDS
WEST, LEAMINGTON SPA, CV34 5JF. TEL. 0522 34444

England can go to hell

The Independent Television Companies' Association (ITCA) and the Association of Independent Radio Contractors (AIRC), the trade associations which examine advertising for commercial television and radio, have banned advertisements for the record. A spokesman said: "We considered the record itself was unsuitable for advertising on family media like television and radio."

The BBC said last night that it had banned none of the tracks on the record.

The controversial record cover

Shops ban LP by punk band

THE Sex Pistols punk rock group, who shot to fame on a handwagon of swearing and shocking behaviour, have created a new storm with their first LP.

In London, record shop manager Mr Pete Sennett, has been warned by the police to cover up the word "bollocks."

Mr Sennett, manager of Small Wonder Records

SEX PISTOLS IN A NEW 'FOUR LETTER' STORM

BLAMED: Princess Grace of Monaco. contains a story girl who read singer in four of Pauline's baby... includes already ed twice... of the...

SEX PISTOLS FILM SHOCKER FOR GRACE

Shocking

IN PICTURE DISC

NEVER MIND THE BOLLOCKS! HERE'S THE

However, a detailed knowledge needed to appreciate implications of the title. For in Henry V, Act Two, Scene Two, loud-mouthed, thuggish Pistol says: "I do retort the solus in thy bowels. For I can take, and Pistol's cock is up, And flashing fire with names."

But a lot of wit in the words, there really is, submerged in one long, loose, live effect of bash, the long, loose, head repeated which the cur never mind what about

A SEXY bedroom scene between Sex Pistols punk rock star Sid Vicious and actress Marianne Faithfull has enraged

Mr Al Clarke, press officer for Virgin Records, said: "The LP was released 11 days ago. It

James Johnson and Kevin Murphy, RECORD-SHOP manager, was arrested this afternoon in connection with the display of the Sex Pistols' record.

The record, Bollocks, Here's the Sex Pistols, at No 1 in sales a gold disc

SEX PISTOLS ALBUM

THE ALBUM WILL LAST. THE SLEEVE MAY NOT.

New Sex Pistols record banned

By JOHN BLAKE
A SWEAR word in the title has led to the first album by the controversial Sex Pistols being banned by all branches of W. H. Smiths, Woolworths and Boots. Yet the record, Never Mind the Bollocks, Here's the Sex Pistols

WEBLEY warned yesterday that for advertising the rock LP. the record's title may be in breach of the Broadcasting Act, Television and radio