

JAM tour exclusive / LIZZY in Paris

NEW MUSICAL NME EXPRESS

JONATHAN RICHMAN
The Ice Cream Man Cometh

P.23

Springtime For SIOUXSIE

P.28

HUMAN LEAGUE

*Synthesizers
in the snow...*

P.7

SCOTMALE

ALL POST
FREE'JAM' SHOE
BLACK & WHITE LEATHER
BROWN & BEIGE
LEATHER
BLACK LEATHER

£15.99 PAIR

THE ORIGINAL
'D' RING CREEPER
WITH REAL CREPE SOLESIn a choice of Black
Suede, Blue Suede, Red
Suede, White Leather and Black Leather.

£16.99 PAIR

THE ORIGINAL WINKLE PICKER
BOOTWITH ELASTIC SIDES
AND 1 1/2" HEEL
Black Leather

£15.99 PAIR

'JAM' CASUAL
BLACK & WHITE LEATHER
BROWN & BEIGE LEATHER
BLACK LEATHER

£15.99 PAIR

Scotmale Ltd., 840 High Rd., Leyton, London E15 6A3

To SCOTMALE LTD.,
840 HIGH ROAD, LEYTON, LONDON E15 6A3STATE SIZE, COLOUR AND SHOE REQUIRED (Sizes 6-10 including 1/2 sizes)I enclose crossed cheque/P.O. No. for £ payable to Scotmale Ltd. Reg. England 1380958

NAME

ADDRESS

NME3179

СТАТУИГРАД BACHDENKEL

FIVE YEARS AGO

Week ending April 2, 1974

Last This Week
1	1	BILLY DON'T BE A HERO	Paper Lace (Bus Stop)
2	2	SEASONS IN THE SUN	Terry Jacks (Bell)
3	3	EMMA	Hot Chocolate (Rak)
4	4	REMEMBER ME THIS WAY	Gary Glitter (Bell)
5	5	THE MOST BEAUTIFUL GIRL	Charlie Rich (CBS)
6	6	ANGEL FACE	Glitter Band (Bell)
7	7	I GET A LITTLE SENTIMENTAL OVER YOU	New Seekers (Polydor)
8	8	SEVEN SEAS OF RHYE	Queen (EMI)
9	9	THE AIR THAT I BREATHE	Hollies (Polydor)
10	10	JAMBALAYA/MR. GUDER	Carpenters (A&M)

TEN YEARS AGO

Week ending April 2, 1969

Last This Week
1	1	I HEARD IT THROUGH THE GRAPEVINE	Mervyn Gayer (Tama Motown)
2	2	GENTLE ON MY MIND	Dawn Marie (Reprise)
3	3	SORRY SUZANNE	Hollies (Parlophone)
4	4	THE BAD OLD DAYS	Foundations (Pye)
5	5	SURROUND YOURSELF WITH SORROW	Cilla Black (Parlophone)
6	6	WHERE DO YOU GO TO	Peter Sarstedt (United Artists)
7	7	GAME'S PEOPLE PLAY	Joe South (Capitol)
8	8	BOOM BANG-A-BANG	Lulu (Columbia)
9	9	FIRST OF MAY	Bee Gees (Polydor)
10	10	GET READY	Temptations (Tama Motown)

15 YEARS AGO

Week ending April 3, 1954

Last This Week
1	1	CAN'T BUY ME LOVE	Beatles (Parlophone)
2	2	I BELIEVE	Bachelors (Decca)
3	3	LITTLE CHILDREN	Billy J. Kramer (Parlophone)
4	4	JUST ONE LOOK	Hollies (Parlophone)
5	5	WORLD WITHOUT LOVE	Peter and Gordon (Columbia)
6	6	NOT FADE AWAY	Rolling Stones (Decca)
7	7	I LOVE YOU BECAUSE	Jim Reeves (RCA)
8	8	THAT GIRL BELONGS TO YESTERDAY	Gene Pitney (United Artists)
9	9	TELL ME WHEN	Applejacks (Decca)
10	10	BITS AND PIECES	Deve Clark Five (Columbia)

CHARTS

SINGLES

This Last Week		Week ending March 31, 1979	Highest position in chart	Weeks in chart
1	(1)	I WILL SURVIVE Gloria Gaynor (Polydor)	8	1
2	(4)	LUCKY NUMBER Lene Lovich (Stiff)	4	2
3	(2)	OLIVER'S ARMY Elvis Costello (Radar)	7	1
4	(6)	I WANT YOUR LOVE Chic (Atlantic)	5	4
5	(5)	CAN YOU FEEL THE FORCE Real Thing (Pye)	5	5
6	(7)	SOMETHING ELSE Sex Pistols (Virgin)	4	6
7	(11)	WAITING FOR AN ALIBI Thin Lizzy (Vertigo)	3	7
8	(13)	IN THE NAVY Village People (Mercury)	2	8
9	(8)	KEEP ON DANCIN' Gary's Gang (CBS)	5	8
10	(3)	TRAGEDY Bee Gees (RSO)	6	1
11	(27)	DON'T STOP ME NOW Queen (EMI)	5	11
12	(17)	MONEY IN MY POCKET Dennis Brown (Atlantic)	4	12
13	(13)	INTO THE VALLEY Skids (Virgin)	5	13
14	(19)	SULTANS OF SWING Dire Straits (Vertigo)	3	14
15	(12)	HOLD THE LINE Toto (CBS)	5	12
16	(26)	CLOG DANCE Violinski (Jet)	3	16
17	(18)	STRANGE TOWN Jam (Polydor)	2	17
18	(20)	TURN THE MUSIC UP Players Association (Vanguard)	3	18
19	(16)	GET DOWN Gene Chandler (20th Century)	8	9
20	(10)	PAINTER MAN Bonny M (Atlantic/Hansa)	4	6
21	(-)	BRIGHT EYES An Garfunkel (CBS)	1	21
22	(21)	YOU BET YOUR LOVE Herbie Hancock (CBS)	6	19
23	(-)	COOL FOR CATS Squeeze (A & M)	1	23
24	(-)	WOW Kate Bush (EMI)	1	24
25	(9)	CONTACT Edwin Starr (20th Century)	8	4
26	(24)	JUST WHAT I NEEDED Cars (Elektra)	3	24
27	(22)	FOREVER IN BLUE JEANS Neil Diamond (CBS)	3	22
28	(15)	HEART OF GLASS Blondie (Chrysalis)	10	1
29	(-)	FIRE Pointer Sisters (Planet)	1	29
30	(-)	ENGLISH CIVIL WAR Clash (CBS)	3	22

BUBBLING UNDER

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS — Sham 69 (Polydor); THE RUNNER — Three Degrees (Ariola); CHASE — Giorgio
Moroder (Casablanca); CUBA — Gibson Brothers (Island)

U.S. SINGLES

This Last Week		Week ending March 31, 1979	Highest position in chart	Weeks in chart
1	(1)	TRAGEDY Bee Gees	6	1
2	(3)	WHAT A FOOL BELIEVES Doobie Brothers	4	2
3	(2)	DA YA THINK I'M SEXY Rod Stewart	7	1
4	(4)	I WILL SURVIVE Gloria Gaynor	5	4
5	(5)	SHAKE YOUR GROOVE THING Peaches and Herb	5	5
6	(7)	SULTANS OF SWING Dire Straits	3	14
7	(11)	KNOCK ON WOOD Amii Stewart	3	22
8	(9)	EVERY TIME I THINK OF YOU The Babys	6	19
9	(13)	MUSIC BOX DANCER Frank Mills	6	19
10	(12)	LADY Little River Band	6	19
11	(8)	HEAVEN KNOWS Donna Summer	6	19
12	(21)	HEART OF GLASS Blondie	10	1
13	(14)	BIG SHOT Billy Joel	1	24
14	(19)	STUMBLIN' IN Suzi Quatro/Chris Norman	1	24
15	(15)	CRAZY LOVE Poco	1	24
16	(18)	I JUST FALL IN LOVE AGAIN Anne Murray	1	24
17	(17)	I DON'T KNOW IF IT'S RIGHT Evelyn "Champagne" King	1	24
18	(10)	WHAT YOU WONT DO FOR LOVE Bobby Caldwell	1	24
19	(25)	I WANT YOUR LOVE Chic	1	24
20	(22)	FOREVER IN BLUE JEANS Neil Diamond	1	24
21	(24)	LIVIN' IT UP (FRIDAY NIGHT) Belt & James	1	24
22	(8)	FIRE Pointer Sisters	1	24
23	(29)	HE'S THE GREATEST DANCER Sister Sledge	1	24
24	(26)	PRECIOUS LOVE Bob Welch	1	24
25	(27)	MAYBE I'M A FOOL Eddie Money	1	24
26	(16)	Y.M.C.A. Village People	1	24
27	(-)	LOVE BALLAD George Benson	1	24
28	(-)	SHAKE YOUR BODY (DOWN TO THE GROUND) The Jacksons	1	24
29	(30)	BUSTIN' LOOSE Chuck Brown & The Soul Searchers	1	24
30	(-)	TAKE ME HOME Courtney "CASH BOX"	1	24

ALBUMS

Week ending March 31, 1979

This Last Week		Week ending March 31, 1979	Highest position in chart	Weeks in chart
1	(4)	C'EST CHIC Chic (Atlantic)	8	1
2	(5)	MANLOW MAGIC Barry Manilow (Arista)	4	2
3	(1)	SPIRITS HAVING FLOWN Bee Gees (RSO)	8	1
4	(2)	PARALLEL LINES Blondie (Chrysalis)	24	1
5	(6)	THE GREAT ROCK 'N' ROLL SWINDLE Sex Pistols (Virgin)	4	5
6	(10)	BARBRA STREISAND'S GREATEST HITS VOL. 2 (CBS)	3	11
7	(3)	ARMED FORCES Elvis Costello (Radar)	11	2
8	(8)	DIRE STRAITS Dire Straits (Vertigo)	4	8
9	(9)	20 GREATEST HITS Three Degrees (Epic)	5	9
10	(16)	52nd STREET Billy Joel (CBS)	10	10
11	(23)	BAT OUT OF HELL Meat Loaf (Epic)	29	6
12	(7)	MARTY ROBBINS COLLECTION Marty Robbins (Lotus)	7	5
13	(12)	THANK YOU VERY MUCH Cliff Richard & The Shadows (EMI)	6	5
14	(11)	LIVE (X CERT) Stranglers (United Artists)	3	11
15	(15)	EQUINOXE Jean Michel Jarre (Polydor)	14	6
16	(17)	DESOLATION ANGELS Bad Company (Swansong)	2	16
17	(-)	MANIFESTO Roxy Music (Polydor)	1	17
18	(13)	THE BEST OF EARTH WIND AND FIRE VOL. 1 (CBS)	12	5
19	(27)	FEEL NO FRET Average White Band (RCA)	2	19
20	(28)	TRB TWO Tom Robinson Band (EMI)	2	20
21	(24)	BLONDES HAVE MORE FUN Rod Stewart (Rival)	17	2
22	(-)	ACTION REPLAY Various (K-Tel)	10	2
23	(22)	OUT OF THE BLUE Electric Light Orchestra (Jet)	66	3
24	(-)	20 GOLDEN GREATS Neil Diamond (MCA)	18	1
25	(-)	REFLECTIONS George Hamilton IV (Lotus)	2	23
26	(19)	SCARED TO DANCE Skids (Virgin)	2	19
27	(25)	SHEIK YERBOUT Frank Zappa (CBS)	2	25
28	(13)	NEW BOOTS & PANTIES Ian Dury & The Blockheads (Stiff)	45	5
29	(29)	NIGHTFLIGHT TO VENUS Boney M (Atlantic/Hansa)	33	1
30	(-)	BREAKFAST IN AMERICA Supertramp (A & M)	1	30

U.S. ALBUMS

This Last Week		Week ending March 31, 1979	Highest position in chart	Weeks in chart
1	(1)	SPIRITS HAVING FLOWN Bee Gees	8	1
2	(2)	MINUTE BY MINUTE Doobie Brothers	4	2
3	(4)	DIRE STRAITS Dire Straits	4	8
4	(3)	BLONDES HAVE MORE FUN Rod Stewart	17	2
5	(8)	HOT! Peaches & Herb	5	5
6	(5)	52nd STREET Billy Joel	10	10
7	(7)	LOVE TRACKS Gloria Gaynor	11	2
8	(6)	BRIEFCASE FULL OF BLUES Blues Brothers	2	19
9	(9)	CRUISIN' Village People	7	5
10	(17)	LIVIN' INSIDE YOUR LOVE George Benson	2	23
11	(14)	CHEAP TRICK AT BUDOKAN Cheap Trick	2	19
12	(15)	BUSTIN' OUT OF L SEVEN Rick James	2	19
13	(12)	C'EST CHIC Chic	8	1
14	(20)	ENLIGHTENED ROGUES Allman Brothers Band	14	6
15	(13)	LIVE AND MORE Donna Summer	2	16
16	(16)	LIFE FOR THE TAKING Eddie Money	2	16
17	(11)	TOTALLY HOT Olivia Newton-John	2	19
18	(22)	THREE HEARTS Bob Welch	2	19
19	(26)	GEORGE HARRISON George Harrison	2	19
20	(10)	ARMED FORCES Elvis Costello & The Attractions	2	19
21	(24)	LEGEND Poco	2	19
22	(30)	DESTINY The Jacksons	2	19
23	(18)	TOTO Toto	2	19
24	(25)	THE CARS The Cars	2	19
25	(23)	THE GAMBLER Kenny Rogers	2	19
26	(-)	PARALLEL LINES Blondie	2	19
27	(29)	HEAD FIRST The Babys	2	19
28	(21)	THE BEST OF EARTH, WIND & FIRE VOL. 1 Earth Wind & Fire	2	19
29	(19)	ENERGY Pointer Sisters	2	19
30	(-)	INSTANT FUNK Instant Funk Courtesy "CASH BOX"	2	19

NEWS DESK

XTC BACK ON STAGE

XTC begin an extensive tour in three weeks' time, their first since keyboards player Barry Andrews departed from the line-up. He's now been replaced by Dave Gregory, who hails from the band's hometown of Swindon — and who, in fact, plays guitar and not keyboards. Gregory's first work with XTC is on their new single 'Life Begins At The Hop', which Virgin release on April 27. The band are planning a major London concert in June, probably at the Hammer-smith Odeon, but meanwhile their provincial tour dates are:

Liverpool Eric's (April 20), Dublin University College (21), Belfast Queen's University (22), Dublin TV Club (23), Galway University (24), Leeds Polytechnic (26), Liverpool Polytechnic (27), Manchester Polytechnic (28), Reading University (May 1), Loughborough University (2), Maidstone College (4), Bradford University (5), Hatfield The Forum (7), Brighton Top Rank (8), Keele University (9), Birmingham Barbarella's (10), Southampton University (11), London School of Economics (12), Bristol Locarno (13) and Bournemouth Winter Gardens (14).

Burnel, Damned add

JEAN JACQUES BURNEL has added four gigs to his solo tour at Hanley Victoria Hall (23), Edinburgh Odeon (27), Huddersfield Polytechnic (28) and Iford Odeon (29). And his Manchester gig on April 16 is switched from The Factory to the Apollo Theatre, in view of heavy ticket demand. But the show planned for Cardiff University on April 21 has been cancelled, due to problems involved in booking the hall.

Tickets for all shows are on sale now priced £2, though any remaining on the night will cost £2.50. The only exception is London Drury Lane Theatre Royal (April 30) where they cost £3.25, £2.75, £2.25 and £2. Support acts on all dates are Rapid Eye Movement and Blood Donor. Release of Burnel's planned solo single 'Freddie Laker (Concorde and Eurobus)' has been delayed following the receipt of a letter from Sir Freddie's solicitor, though it's hoped that problems will be overcome. THE DAMNED have made several additions to, and changes in, their UK tour itinerary reported last week. Blackpool Norbreck Castle (tonight, Thursday) is cancelled; Croydon Greyhound moves back from April 1 to 29; and Cardiff Gran- nies is brought forward from April 12 to 3.

Extra dates are at Relford Porterhouse (April 6), Chester Smartys (9), Ilfracombe Top Of The Town (12), Cheltenham Witcombe Lodge (21) and Ryde I.O.W. Warners Puckpool (28). The venue for the Great Yarmouth gig on April 5 is now Star & Garter.

For the band's big London concert at the Lyceum Ballroom on Sunday, April 8, promoters Straight Music have booked U.K. Subs and The Specials as support acts. Tickets are on sale now price £2.50.

SPURNED BY POLYDOR, BUT

WEA net Upstarts

THE ANGELIC UPSTARTS, Jimmy Pursey's proteges whom Polydor refused to handle, have now landed themselves a worldwide recording deal with WEA — with British release on the Warner Brothers label. Pursey originally intended to issue the quartet's product on his own JP Productions label, which Polydor are distributing — but that company refused to have any further dealings with them, after the band were allegedly involved in a punch-up with one of its doormen.

Now WEA have picked them up, and rush-release the outfit's single 'I'm An Upstart' on April 6 in a special colour bag. It was produced by Pursey, who is currently in the studios with them, recording an album for release later in the year. The band have also been confirmed for the Rock Against Racism gala concert at London Alexandra Palace on April 14, and other dates include RAR gig at Liverpool University (April 2), Manchester Polytechnic (3), Birmingham Handsworth Cinema (4) and Nottingham Club Malibu (6).

Sham's riot on TV

The stage invasion at Middlesex Polytechnic

THE INFAMOUS Sham 69 gig at London's Middlesex Polytechnic last month, when audience provocation resulted in Jimmy Pursey's decision to give up stage work, was captured by TV cameras and is being screened as part of a documentary about the band in BBC-2's 'Arena' next Monday, April 2 (repeated the following Sunday, 8). The programme also goes behind the scenes at recording sessions for their current album 'That's Life'.

JAM 'EM IN!

UK tour in May: exclusive

THE JAM hit the road again in May for a 15-date tour, including two nights at London Rainbow, though it's possible that a few more gigs may still be added to their itinerary. In many cases, they've opted to play at smaller stand-up venues, to enable their audiences to move around more freely — and where this is happening, they have for the most part slotted in two nights, in order to accommodate as many people as possible.

Their confirmed dates are Sheffield University (May 4 and 5), Newcastle City Hall (6), Salford University (8), London Rainbow (10 and 11), Loughborough Auditorium (12), Exeter University (14), Liverpool University (15 and 16), Glasgow Strathclyde University (18 and 19), Bristol Colston Hall (21), Birmingham Odeon (22) and Portsmouth Guildhall (24). The tour is going out under the banner of 'Jam 'em In'.

It's understood the band are looking into the possibility of having the seats removed from the Rainbow for their two shows at that venue, but no decision has yet been taken. Readers are advised that tickets are not yet on sale, and full booking arrangements will be printed as soon as they become available — though it's already known that Sheffield and Glasgow bookings will be by post only.

Meanwhile, The Jam — whose new Polydor single 'Strange Town' is racing up the charts — are all set for their fourth visit to America in April, when they'll be boosting their 'All Mod Cons' album which has just been released over there.

ONLY ONES PLAY RAINBOW

THE ONLY ONES have now fixed their major London concert for the Rainbow Theatre on April 28, as the climax of their current tour. Tickets are on sale from next Tuesday (3) priced £3, £2.50 and £2, their new 12-inch single 'Out There In The Night' is issued by CBS on April 12.

Dickies due

HOT ON THE heels of the chart success of their album 'The Incredible Shrinking Dickies', the Los Angeles band return to Britain at the end of next month for an extensive tour. It opens at Birmingham Barbarella's on April 26, and they'll be playing about 25 dates throughout the country. Their full itinerary will be announced in a week or two, but it's understood that at present they have no plans to appear in London.

The Dickies are bringing over the hottest new-wave act on the West Coast at the moment, Holly & The Italians, who will be appearing as special guest on all dates. To coincide with the tour, A&M release a three-track Dickies single comprising 'Banana Splitz', 'Hideous' and 'Got It At The Store', and the band are planning to stay on in Britain to record their next album here.

HELEN ISN'T READY!

HELEN REDDY'S spring tour of Britain, which was to have opened with a week at the London Palladium from April 30, has been cancelled. Her provincial concerts had not been announced, so tickets were not on sale. But Palladium bookings were well advanced, and ticket-holders now have to apply for cash refunds.

LATEST REUNION PROSPECTS: PISTOLS, RUNAWAYS, REZILLOS

THE SEX PISTOLS are not re-forming, and The Runaways are not disbanding. These two salient facts emerged this week from the London studio where ex-Pistols Steve Jones and Paul Cook are currently recording a single with Runways leader Joan Jett.

Rumours of a Pistols reunion came to a head last week with a report, published elsewhere, indicating that they are seriously considering getting back together with their original line-up. Commented Cook: "Richard Branson (Virgin Records chief) may be thinking about it, but we ain't!"

Joan Jett said that speculation about a Runaways split was unjustified. After completing the single, she won't now be staying on to record an album, and will instead return to the States to link up with the other girls. She told NME: "As soon as we've found a new bassist to replace Laurie, we'll be going back on the road again."

● See also Thrills. FAY RIFE and Eugene Reynolds, the two singers with the now-defunct Rezillos, have decided against reuniting that outfit's name for their new band. Fay told NME this week: "We're disassociating ourselves from the past. This is a new group, and we don't want people to think in terms of a Rezillos comeback." She added that they have already decided on a new name, though they aren't announcing it for the time being.

As reported last week, guitarist Hi-Fi Harris is also in the line-up, and he has now been joined by drummer Robo Rhythm and two girl back-up singers called Jane and Trish. Eugene is playing some guitar, while Fay contributes occasionally on the organ, but they are still seeking a bassist to complete the personnel. A late spring tour by the new band is definitely being planned, confirmed Kay.

DIRE STRAITS: BIG CONCERTS

DIRE STRAITS, undoubtedly the outstanding success story of the year so far, have now confirmed the itinerary for their late-spring British concert tour. It takes in Liverpool Empire (June 8), Glasgow Apollo (9), Edinburgh Odeon (10), Sheffield City Hall (11), Birmingham Odeon (13), Newcastle City Hall (14), Manchester Apollo (15), Bristol Colston Hall (16), London Hammersmith Odeon (17) and Brighton Dome (18).

Tickets are already on sale priced £2.80, £2.40 and £1.80 at all venues — except Hammersmith where they are £3, £2.50 and £2. A support act has still to be named.

The band are currently midway through a major U.S. tour, which was sold out weeks in advance of their arrival, due to the extraordinary Stateside success of their album 'Dire Straits' and single 'Sultans Of Swing', both Top Ten hits there. They are now emulating this achievement in Britain, where both records are shooting up the charts.

Their debut album has now gone Platinum with world sales in excess of two million, and their second LP 'Communiqué' — which they recently completed in Nassau with Jerry Wexler and Barry Beckett producing — is set for simultaneous British and American release on May 18.

Doll By Doll Touring

DOLL BY DOLL, whose first album 'Remember' has just been issued to launch Nick Mobbs' Automatic label (distributed by WEA), begin a nationwide club tour this weekend. Gigs confirmed so far are Wolverhampton Lafayette (tomorrow, Friday), Manchester The Factory (Saturday), Jacksade Grey Topper (Sunday), Leeds Fan Club (April 5), Burton 76 Club (6), Nottingham Sandpiper (7), Norwich Boogie House (8), York Pop Club (9), London Marquee (10), Liverpool Eric's (12), Relford Porterhouse (13), Birmingham Barbarella's (14), Newbridge Club and Institute (15), London Marquee (18), Chesterfield Fusion Club (19), Lincoln A.J.'s (20) and Middlesbrough Rock Garden (21).

QUO TOUR

27 big concerts, two at Wembley

STATUS QUO undertake a major British tour in the late spring, comprising 27 concerts over a five week period. Besides taking in some of the country's largest halls, like Wembley Arena and Birmingham Exhibition Centre, they'll also be visiting some towns not usually covered by big-name acts — such as Bridlington and Carlisle.

Their schedule comprises London Wembley Arena (May 10 and 11), Birmingham National Exhibition Centre (12), Newcastle City Hall (15, 16, 17 and 18), Bridlington Spa Hall (19), Carlisle Market Hall (21), Edinburgh Odeon (23, 24, 25 and 26), Glasgow Apollo (27 and 28), Blackpool Opera House (31 and June 1), Sheffield City Hall (5 and 6), Manchester Apollo (9, 10, 11 and 12), Cardiff Sophia Gardens (13 and 14) and Southampton Gaumont (20 and 21).

Quo, just back from a 30-date European tour and currently in the studio mixing new material, may be adding further dates to this list. Tickets for Wembley (£5, £4 and £3) and Birmingham (£5 only) are already on sale by postal application only, and readers should contact individual box-offices for booking arrangements at other venues.

In an attempt to accommodate as many people as possible, Quo had planned special outdoor concerts in Exeter, Ipswich and Cardiff, employing the 5,000-capacity tent they had used to good effect for their French gigs. Exeter and Ipswich football clubs and the management of Cardiff's Sophia Park had already agreed to the project, but local fire officers put a stop to the plan.

Also missing from the agenda is Liverpool Empire, where the band had hoped to play on May 31 and June 1, but it seems the venue's management (Moss Empires) have withdrawn the booking for fear of upsetting the local authorities. So Quo have switched these gigs to the nearest available venue, Blackpool Opera House.

Wembley event: gigs by Denver, Gabriel, Havens?

JOHN DENVER is definite, and both Peter Gabriel and Richie Havens probable, for concert appearances next month at the Wembley Conference Centre in North London — as part of the ambitious week-long World Symposium on Humanity being staged there from April 7 to Good Friday.

Denver, who plays four shows next week at the Wembley Arena, extends his British visit in order to perform at the adjoining venue on Sunday, April 8. Havens is provisionally set for April 9, and Gabriel for Good Friday.

The event involves satellite closed-circuit TV link-ups with similar simultaneous festivals in Los Angeles and Toronto. Concert tickets are £4, including optional attendance at conference sessions which take place throughout the day.

RECORD NEWS

● Tina Turner's new single, issued by United Artists on April 6, is one of the songs from her album 'Rough' which she has been featuring to good effect on her UK tour. It's called 'Sometimes When We Touch'.

● The Lankers' second album 'God's Lonely Men', recorded in Alabama, is set for early May release by Beggar's Banquet. The band have just flown off to New York to play a couple of club dates, and for discussions on the U.S. release of the album.

● To tie in with his UK tour, Polydor issue a Neil Sedaka maxi-single on April 12, comprising 'The Hungry Years', 'All You Need Is The Music' and 'The Immigrant'. Out the same day on the subsidiary Spring label is '(Do The) Boogie Woogie' by The Feedback Band.

● 'Now Kind Of Feeling' is the title of Anne Murray's new album, issued by Capitol this weekend. Her latest single 'Just Fall In Love Again' came out last week.

● Third World's new 12-inch island single 'One Cold Vibe' — which, as already reported, comes out on April 6 — has two live tracks on the B-side, recorded during the band's British tour last year. They are 'Tribal War' and 'Rhythm Of Life'.

● Pye have signed the Aura label for distribution in Britain and Ireland. First product, available shortly, is the Allan Clarke album 'I Wasn't Born Yesterday'. Other acts on the label include Annette Peacock and Alex Chilton/Big Star.

● A new independent label called Hurricane Records, licensed to WEA, is launched this weekend with the release of the single 'Who's The Fool (Me Or You?)' by The Magnets — who are currently on tour with Eddie & The Hot Rods.

● Ex-Roogalator keyboard man Nick Phtas has his debut single 'Johnny Runaway/Your Dream Is A Daydream' issued by De la Records this weekend. He has recently worked on sessions with The Clash and Lane Lovich, and joined TRB on a temporary basis for their last European and U.S. tours. He's now forming his own band, The Hired Men.

● The latest UFO single — out on Chrysalis this week — has three tracks, plays at 33 rpm, is pressed in clear vinyl and comes in a picture bag! The titles are 'Shoot Shoot', 'Only You Can Rock Me' and 'I'm A Loser'.

● Billy J. Kramer is re-releasing his 1964 chart-topping single 'Little Children', and is donating all the royalties to the International Year of the Child fund.

● The second album by singer-composer Chris Rea, titled 'Deltics' and produced by Gus Dudgeon, is released by Magnet on April 6 with a limited edition in blue vinyl. Plans are now being finalised for Rea to undertake a new British tour in April and May.

● Dan Hartman follows up his 'This Is It' hit with a single titled 'Time And Space'. It comes from his 'Instant Replay' album and is released this weekend by Blue Sky.

● Release of the Warner Brothers album 'Van Halen 2' has been brought forward a week to tomorrow (Friday), and there are plans for the band to undertake a UK concert tour in the summer. Same label has now set April 6 for the release of Lowell George's previously-reported debut solo LP 'Thanks, I'll Eat It Here'.

● The last album made by jazzman Charles Mingus, who died earlier this year, is issued by Atlantic on April 6. Titled 'Me, Myself An Eye', it features backing by a 25-piece band including The Brecker Brothers and Larry Coryell.

● Released by TK Records this weekend is a new single by K.C. & The Sunshine Band titled 'I Will Love You Tomorrow'.

● Patti Smith's delayed new album 'Wave' has at last been scheduled for April 27 release by Arista. It was originally hoped to bring it out earlier, but recording sessions were held up when producer Todd Rundgren came to London to play some concerts and produce Tom Robinson. A single from Patti's new LP, titled 'Frederick', is also due to out next month.

ROXY PICTURE LP
ROXY MUSIC's comeback album 'Manifesto' is Polydor Records' first picture disc, and it's available in a limited edition of 20,000 from this weekend. It's part of the label's extensive campaign on the album, which is to be sustained throughout the band's UK tour in May.

WINGS TV
PAUL McCARTNEY & Wings are showcased in a 75-minute TV special titled 'Wings Over The World,' being screened by BBC-1 on Sunday, April 8 (8.10 pm). It's mainly a record of their 1975-76 U.S. tour, but also includes sequences filmed in Britain and Australia. In-concert action features 15 of their hit songs.

What Crewwe has in common with Cannes.

32 stockists in Crewe now sell the longer, milder French kings! Gauloises Longues—The cigarette of France. 52p.

Gauloises Longues

LOW TO MIDDLE TAR As defined by H.M. Government
H.M. Government Health Departments' WARNING:
CIGARETTES CAN SERIOUSLY DAMAGE YOUR HEALTH

Who comeback plan

THE WHO are planning to make their stage comeback by playing a major concert "somewhere in Europe" in May. Details are not expected to be finalised for another week or two, but NME understands that it will definitely be at a leading Continental venue, and not in this country. As far as British appearances are concerned, they intend to play a series of gigs — including one really big concert — in the early autumn. Then, after a visit to the States, they hope to do a few pre-Christmas dates in London.

BOUNCERS NEEDN'T BE THUGS

If you've had trouble, contact
Campaign for the Registration of Bouncers
32, Montague Road, Cambridge.
CB4 1BU Tel 0223 68226

Paul Cook

SILLY THING

INGREDIENTS:
CORN, VEGETABLE OIL,
SALT AND HOT SUGAR,
FOOD COLOURING

SEX PISTOLS

POP CORN

VS 240

Fresh! Crisp!

© 1979 Virgin Records Ltd.

NET WEIGHT
NOT LESS THAN 1 OZ
OR 28.3 GRAMS

THE NEW SINGLE FROM SWIZZLER AND PEGLEG

CASH FROM CHAOS IS DIRTY MONEY

STOP THE SWINDLE

From The Film THE GREAT ROCK 'N' ROLL SWINDLE

DON'T BELIEVE IN THE RUINS

AT LAST THE Sex Pistols GET DOWN TO BUSINESS!
SILLY THING / WHO KILLED Bambi A DOUBLE A SIDED SINGLE OF NO- NONSENSE PRODUCT FROM THE BAND YOU LOVE TO HATE.
SILLY THING STEVE AND PAUL'S CLASSIC ROCK SONG DELIVERED IN THE PISTOLS INIMITABLE STYLE. WHO KILLED Bambi TEN POLE TUDOR, DIRECT DEPENDENT OF HENRY VIII, SPILLS THE BEANS ON THE ASSASSINS OF INNOCENCE.
SILLY THING / WHO KILLED Bambi THE NEW SINGLE SMASH FROM THE SEX
PISTOLS GREAT ROCK 'N' ROLL SWINDLE.

THEY SWINDLED THEIR WAY TO THE RECEIVER

TRUST A HIPPIE

THE ONLY NOTES THAT MATTER ARE THE ONES THAT COME IN WADS

OUT NOW ON VIRGIN RECORDS VS 256

A career in electronics can be yours!

Novices welcome, all letters answered...

PAUL MORLEY grasps the soldering iron by the hot end, tackles the tack with THE HUMAN LEAGUE

"PROVIDING THE PRICES OF SYNTHESIZERS BECOMES LESS PROHIBITIVE, AND THERE'S EVERY SIGN THAT THAT'S HAPPENING, THERE'LL BE MORE AND MORE BANDS LIKE US..."

I HAVE just seen the future of rock and roll. And there's not a guitar in sight.

The Human League, an electronic pop group, have intuitively discovered — along with such equally primitive pioneers as Robert Rental, Daniel Miller and Thomas Leer — that you don't need guitars, drums and contorted vocals to make a music that is rock'n'roll.

All you need are a few boxes, knobs and wires plus a fair amount of insolence.

The Human League have drifted, perfectly naturally as they see it, into a procedure for making rock'n'roll that does depend for its essence on emotional input and discipline, but that does rely for its specific impact on economy and overall animation — that uses synthesizers, electronics and, for live performance, prepared backing tracks.

The potential is awesome — more so, because The Human League are undoubtedly going to be popular. A catalyst.

Whether you like it or not The Human League are the approximate shape of things to come. Let your pre-conceived notions drop away, and you'll probably like it.

RIGHT NOW, talk of synthesizers and drummerless trios tends to induce groans and frightful thoughts of sterile pretension and indulgent obscurity. But The Human League are not concerned with making a pseudo classical music, or mood music. What they've done, ingeniously and simply, is to use electronic instruments to make pop music the way everyone else uses guitars. Ultimately, they're not particularly adventurous — about as derivative as your friendly mainstream new pop group — except they are using totally the wrong instruments.

They're proving that electronic music can be fun, fresh and just about everything else thought impossible.

For instance, they'll use old man John Cage's name purely in jest, and you'll be glad to hear that they shrug indifferently at the mention of Philip Glass and Steve Reich.

"Who? No, never heard of them. No, we're interested in the, um, cultural side of electronic music."

Although they're not particularly vivid or convincing at explaining their music, they are fully acquainted with the pitfalls involved in using electronic instruments — the inviting inclination to doodle rather than dazzle, to inwardly exercise rather than outwardly agitate on instruments which, as they'll repeat many times, are the easiest of all on which to quickly play 'proper music'.

"We've listened to Stockhausen and just think it's a load of garbage. You can experiment with tonality and rhythm, but it's only of interest to the composer and a limited number of people as an academic exercise. It's not entertainment in any sense of the word. Perhaps you can get some sort of satisfaction out of understanding what was going on in the composer's brain... probably not even that."

"Tangerine Dream interested us for a while, being interested in synthesizers, but live they were totally unimpressive, absolutely boring... we just thought there must be better ways of using synthesizers. No one until recently has tried to write songs using purely electronic means... there's been plenty of long flowing pieces of music, but that's not the same as writing structured songs. We're interested in writing songs."

"We sometimes feel guilty about just doing what we want to do. We feel we've an obligation to entertain audiences. I don't believe people enjoy the intellectual experience as much as they enjoy the fun experience. There's a hell of a difference between the two."

"There's a great temptation to be indulgent when you're playing synthesizers. It's something we've always had to control — it's been a definite conscious decision, since the very beginning not to be self-indulgent. It's very easy to create something that interests you personally, because we all love synthesizer sounds, but to actually adopt self-discipline and make the music more accessible is actually a lot harder than just choosing the first crummy sound that comes out... or the first nice sound for that matter."

"We are definitely trying to popularise electronic music. It should not be elitist."

The Human League are about assault and effect, not tease. Their influences are as random as those of any other rock'n'roll group whose members are in their early 20s, except that the way they use and fuse those influences is unique because they're not tied to ordinary poses and noises.

Imagine the feeling you get from all these people and corporates; the Meels, Bolan, Bowie, Lou Reed, Zeppa, Roxy, the Goodies, Robert Fripp, early Eno, Neil Innes, Sweet, Space 1999, Rezillos, Andy Warhol, Alice Cooper, Hanna-Barbara, Roy Wood. Now mash it all together and think of a sound that doesn't flow, dawdle, float, but thumps, cracks, insists. You're now close to an impression of The Human League.

(If you think what you've arrived at is Giorgio Moroder producing The Sparks, let's just say that fab though that collaboration is, that sound is but one tenth as impressive as the League's — which is ironic considering how often Moroder's name is linked with theirs and that Sparks are the one group the band members will agree they're all keen on.)

More clown than clown, the theatre, vigour and stimulation of pop grafted into a totally radical perspective.

"We don't actually like the term pop group. It evokes too much... it almost infers you're not serious about what you're doing. Entertainers would be a more flattering description of what we're about... if a paper like the Daily Mirror called us a pop group, then that'd be fine."

"DAVID BOWIE ASKED US BEFORE WE WENT ON AT THE NASHVILLE HOW LONG WE WERE WORKING FOR. WE THOUGHT HUH? OH ABOUT FOUR YEARS I SUPPOSE... AND HE SAID NO, HOW LONG ARE YOU ON FOR... OH 43 MINUTES AND 23 SECONDS..."

THE FOUR HUMAN beings in The Human League are likeable, restless goons; they're a temperamental, dry unit.

Ian Marsh, who handles synthesizers and 'devices', is small, quiet, tense and speaks quickly and keenly. Philip Oakley is awkward, argumentative yet amenable, his conversation constantly cutting and sardonic. He has, as Siouxsie once exclaimed, "a real voice" — a smooth, strong, soulful voice that gives the group considerable melodic and emotional depth. Martin Ware, synthesizers and voice, is steady and straightforward, his comments measured and emphatic.

Gruff non-musician Adrian Wright, grandly labelled as visual technician, whose visual contributions give the group even more idiosyncratic depth, is the unseen fourth member. While they perform, Wright is perched at the side of the stage with crude programming equipment, projecting selected slides onto two screens. Such decoration, the group emphasise, is not simply a mild diversion but part of The Human League whole.

Each member is proud in his own way at the state and potential of The Human League. They also take the piss out of each other relentlessly. Wright is usually the target for (perhaps) affectionate ridicule. Halfway through our conversation in Oakley's smart Sheffield flat, Wright turns up excitedly informing the rest of the group that he's just picked up some slides from the

Continues next page

Hey hey we're The Human League...
Top left: IAN MARSH wonders: what does a synthesizer player wear under his overcoat? Pic: ALAIN DE LA MATA.
Left: the first synthesizer pop group of the spring. L-R: MARTIN WARE, IAN OVERCOAT, PHIL OAKLEY, ADRIAN WRIGHT.
Right: ADRIAN WRIGHT on lead slide projector and digital notebook. Pic: STEVE DIXON.

BOTTOM OF LEAGUE

From previous page

developers for inclusion in the act.
 "Really!" mock the group.
 "Yeah, I've got some Bonanza, Crossroads, Emmerdale Farm, Tommy Cooper."
 "Very useful."
 "Daffy Duck."
 "There's some really good programmes on TV," Oakley sighs. "Horizon, Life On Earth—where you'd get some great pictures. And he takes pictures of Tommy Cooper and Daffy Duck. The Stupid League, starring Adrian."
 Great chunks of the interview degenerate into formless and futile dialogue as the group methodically pick holes in each other's opinions and likes.
 Typical of their repartee, and the ultimate proof that The Human League are hardly the frigid, undemonstrative pseudos often assumed, was a few minutes in a Sheffield pub where we had moved towards the end of the interview. Marsh had mused aloud that... "we do want to popularise the electronic music form. I can't think of any other band like us. And that's why I think we'll do well and will become popular."
 "But," piped up Wright, " whilst they want to be popular, I want to be popular too. I want to be a famous film director!"
 "Ware: 'I want to be more popular than you!'"
 Wright: "When they've got millions when they're 30, which I can see happening."
 Oakley, mimicking Wright: "I'll still be walking through Barnsley market finding Man From Uncle cards."
 Wright: "I will be, because they come to me like a magnet... no, but the group is a vehicle for a lot of things, it's a vehicle for them to make lots of money."
 Ware: "Hey you're painting us really black here."
 Wright: "...and it's a vehicle for me to be famous and start making movies. I was really pleased when we met David Bowie, but I'd really like to meet Gerry Anderson."
 Oakley (mimicking Wright again): "I was in Barnsley Market, right, and I saw these Man From Uncle cards that I'd got, right. Now most people don't understand about The Man From Uncle, right, but Gerry Anderson does, right. I want you to write this down Gerry Anderson is my hero!"
 Wright: "What I like was that David Bowie mentioned me in the NME... he didn't mention you!"
 Ware: "I'm not bothered. I don't want to be famous. I only want the money... oops!"
 Oakley: "MONEY MONEY MONEY."
 Ware: "Yeah, I love money. No, I'm not bothered. I just want enough to be able to buy a video cassette recorder. That's quite a lot of money actually... look, we're not obsessed with money, honestly."

 Marsh (dreamily): "I know, I'd really like for us to appear on TOTP. Us appearing on TOTP like we do on stage would be quite something. I can't think of anyone who's like us, with just synthesizers."
 Ware: "You're getting a bit obsessed about us being different, a bit over the top."
 Marsh: "But there hasn't been anyone like us!"
 Ware: "What do other groups think of making money?"
 Oakley: "Do they like the feel of it in their fingers... do they like the rough jangle of it in their pockets against their thighs..."
 Ware: "Hey, you haven't asked us about our new EP!"
 Interviewer (feying exit): "Oh no. What about the new EP?"
 Ware: "We're fairly confident that the rock press is going to hate it."
 Marsh: "We're fairly confident that when we hear it we're going to hate it."
 Ware: "That's possible. It's like archive material, music from our past stuff, things we did fairly spontaneously using our new equipment. They're all instrumentals. We never get the chance to play instrumentals on stage, mainly because we never want to bore our audiences to death."
 Oakley: "So we thought we'd bore them on record."
 Ware: "We thought that before we got tied down to a major company it'd be quite nice to get it out. We don't really want to make a profit out of it... just a few pence, jangling away."
 Marsh: "It's going to be a four-part EP and it's called The Dignity Of Labour Parts 1, 2, 3 and 4."
 Oakley: "And it's on Fast Millions."
 You'll realise that not only are The Human League the most revolutionary rock act around but also the New Monkeys.

"WE'RE INTO CHEAP CULTURE BUT NOT IN A CHEAP SENSE. WE RESPECT OUR AUDIENCES. WE HAVE TO. THEY THROW THINGS AT US. IF PEOPLE COME BACK TO SEE US A SECOND TIME MAYBE THEY'LL BEGIN TO UNDERSTAND THAT THERE IS HUMOUR INVOLVED IN WHAT WE DO... BUT POSSIBLY AT THE MOMENT WE'RE NOT VERY GOOD AT PUTTING IT ACROSS. PEOPLE THINK WE'RE TRYING TO BE ENIGMATIC. BUT WE'RE NOT."

THE Human League came into being at the end of 1977. Prior to that Marsh and Ware had been involved in a group called Future. They never performed, but tapes were pushed towards record companies. "It was very much the same as now, but less melodious, less refined and virtually no vocals." They got rid of the third musician in Future, and searched for a new member. "We thought of Philip for no good reason."

Asleep at the mike: PHIL FUNNIWIG. Pic: STEVENSON.

 Oakley: "It was the word member that did it... who'd make a good member?"
 Ware: "In fact I'd known him since school."
 Oakley: "Martin has always looked up to me."
 Ware: "I have, actually."
 Oakley: "Hero worship."
 Ware: "More than that you are three inches taller than me."
 After toying with the name ABC they settled on The Human League, and played a first, moderately successful gig at a local art college—"although we've no particular affiliations."

Despite the fact that their influences and musical loves were largely obvious mainstream rock people, the guitar was spurned in favour of the synthesizer. Perhaps it was the logical extension of listening to Bowie, Bolan, Reed, Sparks, etc., being intrigued by their edge of eccentricity and bizarreness, and being fascinated by the experimentation of those people on the fringes of rock like Fripp and Eno.

Whatever, The Human League have played electronic music from the beginning, when it was totally the "unfashionable" and even reactionary thing to do.
 "Synthesizers are very easy to play. It's one of the easiest things to do to get an impressive tune out of. We've had no musical education or anything like that. It just seemed obvious to us at the time that electronic music was going to be the thing. Rock just couldn't expand any further as it was. The fact that we were interested... well, it just all seemed perfectly logical."
 There's still a considerable mystique around electronic music, with all the knobs and initials... people think it's really complex. It's not! Anyone with a modicum of common sense can play a synthesizer. Even Phil.

In those early days they committed themselves to buying good equipment on HP. "We just had to do something once we'd got that first equipment. It was an inspiration for us not to sit around."
 Almost as soon as they'd begun, the problems of presentation threatened to halt their progression.

The incorporation of slides into The Human League was initially intuitive. They quickly adapted and realised that the use of pictures was a productive and appropriate way of enhancing their performance.

Both musically and visually they have become aware of the potential of the devices they've utilised after they've committed themselves. The Human League story is one of accidents and coincidences.

It was after four shows that they realised that three straight-faced guys standing uneasily on stage was not a pretty sight, and didn't help the unpretentious effect they were after. So Wright, who had a camera, an interest in films and a passionate love for tack, trivia, pulp and general memorabilia, joined up.

"I like them. Not as people... I like the music."

Ware: "So you thought you'd donate your immense talent."

Marsh: "And he had an interest in collecting Daleks and bubblegum cards that we thought was quite amusing at the time."

Ware: "But has since got totally out of hand."

Wright: "Yeah, I got a Rin Tin Tin book today..."

Rest: "Oh gawd..."

Wright: "Yeah, and I got a Fantastic Four book that's really good."

Obviously Adrian's 'lovable' fetish for cheap comic culture helped in shaping the content of the slides, but they do blend and bolster imaginatively the edge of eccentricity, the bizarre, the tang of surrealism in the League's songs.

Ware: "I think Adrian's interest was definitely instrumental in the way the visuals were approached... The fact that Adrian is totally around the bend."

Wright: "For that first concert every song was Batman, Star Trek or a few horror ones that I'd borrowed. They were nothing to do with the music. I didn't have the slides. Didn't have the facilities."

Marsh: "Initially the slides were simply a prop because we were worried about the visual aspect of the group. But it rapidly became more than that. We soon saw the potential."

Ware: "In the beginning it was just a set of random slides, then we got into programming. The whole band now confers on slide selection. We've got a good slide pool now. About 400. Sometimes they complement the music, sometimes they contradict. They trigger off associations. Some of the associations are incredible. Like for 'Circus Of Death', the slides at one point are a rocket, the Statue of Liberty and an oil rig, and this guy came up once and said, 'Have you read Marx?' 'What, pardon?' 'It just shows where you have capitalism's going doesn't it?' 'What, huh?' 'When you put that slide up of an oil rig just know that capitalism was finished.'"

"We couldn't believe it."
 "No two people will react the same way. We'd like it so that there are six screens and people won't be able to take it all in. And they'll go away and talk about what they saw and felt, swap ideas. The slides stay on the screen for a certain amount of time, so that you can absorb the image, whereas film, which we were going to use, dictates your pattern of thought. With slides you need to use your imagination more."

After 50 shows they have established a sophisticated, seamless and suggestive balance between music and slides. They have become a strong, unique live act, most effective in a large hall—musicians all but motionless, and quite nervous, equipment sparsely laid out, their synthesizers housed in crude wooden frameworks. On either side of this bare functional activity the slides flick through swiftly and systematically.

They're fun, different to watch, never monotonous to listen to, and good to dance to.

"MUSICIANS DO HATE US. PEOPLE WANT TO SURROUND PLAYING MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS WITH A CERTAIN AMOUNT OF MYSTIQUE. ALL THIS 'WE ARE BETTER THAN YOU'. THERE'S NO CHANCE OF US GETTING BOGGED DOWN IN TECHNOLOGY AND TECHNIQUE. WE PLAY OUR MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS BECAUSE IT'S SO EASY. MORE PEOPLE OUGHT TO DO IT. PEOPLE SHOULD GO OUT AND BUY THEIR OWN SYNTHESIZERS AND CREATE THEIR OWN MUSIC."

EARLY LAST year, someone suggested that the group send a tape to Bob Last—then manager of The Rezillos—whose Fast label was emerging, taking chances and winning.

"So we did and he said yes, I'll put out a single. He initially thought the tape we sent him was good enough but we ended up doing it on two track tape."

The single, boldly wrapped, electronically yours, 'Being Boiled' b/w 'Circus Of Death' is a crude but charming representation of their sound.

Last has since become their manager.

"The way he became our manager developed from Fast. He put the record out and said he'd help us but didn't want to manage us because of The Rezillos. We didn't actually meet him until that gig in August, which was almost six months after he'd put the record out. We'd always spoken to him on the phone until then. He didn't look like we expected. He turned out to be a greasy little twerp!"

The group do, however, have faith in Last's perceptive and ambitious management, but after the 'Dignity Of Labour' release all future League product will be on a major label.

Their rise really starts here. Thanks to The Banshees (who the group toured with at the end of last year, and who you must remember are notoriously choosy about who supports them) persuading Polydor people that the group have considerable commercial potential, it looks set to be Polydor who will pull the honest

Continues page 50

Upgrade to AIWA

—with a lot of help from Cavendish

Cavendish Sales are offering selected lines of quality AIWA Hi-Fi at greater than ever savings, for a Limited Period Only. Come and test these and the whole AIWA range on our comparators.

Our Price £159.95

AIWA SX 2100
High performance 30W output FM/AM Stereo Receiver. Features include automatic tuning, frequency, high level, phase locked loop circuit on FM for low distortion.

Available at Special Period Only

AIWA SX 2100
New model high quality 30W output FM/AM Stereo Receiver. Features include automatic tuning, frequency, high level, phase locked loop circuit on FM for low distortion.

Our Price £99.95

AIWA LPR 903
Stereo Radio-cassette Recording giving 1W output MW/LP/PM Stereo (a.m., v.h.f., v.h.f., stereo wide range, auto stop and auto recording built).

Our Price £239.95

AIWA M18800
Triple automatic stereo double cassette deck featuring also time full auto stop. 1.5 inch long life tape guard head, MPX filter, double needle, Peak and VU meters, a & B of only 0.005s.

Our Price £124.95

AIWA AD 1250
First class double deck with automatic control panel for ease of operation and reliability. 1.5 inch long life tape guard head, 2 amp, 3 position controls for bias & eq. 5 kHz of only 0.005s.

Our Price £89.95

AIWA 2080
New Superb 30W output stereo receiver with FM stereo, AM radio, fm per channel output, auto or manual reverse cassette mechanism and with interference suppression circuit.

Our Price £34.95

AIWA VLT 1020R
Top quality stereo car cassette player with auto forward reverse, tape and indicator, dual range for cassette automatic stop. Really superb value.

Win-a-holiday worth £300
Buy any of these AIWA products during this period and you can qualify to enter our Win-a-holiday Competition a holiday for two to the value of £300.

Cavendish Sales
270/283 WHITEHALL RD., LONDON E1
CANNON STREET
Next to Whitechapel Underground Sta.
30 WHITEHALL RD., LONDON E1
E1 CENTRAL bus station
10 Whitechapel Underground Sta.
Tel: 01 247 3434/5 2157 24 Hour Answer Service
Access & Barclay card accepted with pleasure GUARANTEE OF SERVICE
"OVER 1000 ITEMS TO CHOOSE FROM"
ALL PRICES INCLUDE DELIVERY
FREE DELIVERY IN LONDON

ANGELIC

*I'M AN UPSTART
C/W LEAVE ME ALONE*

K17354

UpSTARTS

12" LIMITED EDITION SINGLE

Produced by Jimmy Pursey

'THIN LIZZY 'LIVE AND DANGEROUS'

"BRITISH TOUR '79 - SOLD OUT."

'Live and Dangerous' - Platinum. Album 6641 807 Cassette 7599 308

'Waiting for an Alibi' - Top Ten Smash.

"Thanks - hope to see you soon, Thin Lizzy" marketed by phonogram

THRILLS AMERICA'S BURNING

1. Gang movie violence erupts in the aisles

THE AMERICAN obsession with violence and social disorder has apparently reached new depths in the aftermath of a new Paramount film, The Warriors — an everyday story of integrated city gang warfare.

The Warriors is currently on the circuit in the USA and doing box office busting business, grossing (sic) £6 million in its first sixteen days of release. City fathers across the States have demanded that Paramount pull the movie before it triggers off a real civil war.

Already, three youths have been killed in cinema queues and lobbies where the film is showing and the film company has been forced to install armed security guards at touchy venues.

The worst violence has occurred on the West Coast. In Palm Springs a 19-year-old Hells Angel was shot in the head at a drive-in; in Ventura a 16-year-old was fatally stabbed in the lobby during a black and white gang confrontation; in Boston a teenager was killed with a hunting knife.

A recent correspondent to Gasbag — who blithely claimed that the citizens of Los Angeles knew nothing about slums, poverty et al — might be reassured by the comment of Ernest Smith, veteran of the anti-gang programme in Watts, LA's notorious black ghetto: "This film will trigger a race war if it isn't taken off the circuit."

The Warriors is simply one instance of what the trade paper Variety calls "the year of the gang flick." It shows now to an accompaniment of aisle-touring guards, sporting batons and guns. In the Flatbush area of Brooklyn one security chief commented: "Every youth gang in Brooklyn has been here for this one. Some of them have weapons... we have guns and we know how to use them. When they get real tough, we kick them out, and they threaten to come back. But talk is cheap."

Much of the film's action centres on the New York subway, and one scene depicts the common teenage practice of jumping the turnstiles — choreographed, of course. There have been several instances of gangs aping the Warriors' routine on the IRT, at least one of which ended in death for the ticket checkers. Cheap talk?

The lead role in The Warriors is taken by a 21-year-old Puerto Rican, Marcelino Sanchez. He plays the part of Rembrandt, a graffiti artist whose exploits will be immediately recognised by anyone who has seen his real life peers aiming their spray cans at passing trains.

Sanchez claims: "We had no idea of the waves this film would make. The original screenplay had more realism and moralistic views. It was crude, violent, and hit the gut. They switched it to a fantasy script, with superheroes, and Star War-type confrontations. The end result is like a cartoon."

And Paramount chairman Barry Diller says in the film's defence that it is no more responsible for inciting violence than Superman is responsible for inspiring children to believe that they can fly.

Meanwhile bone fide gangs — The V-13s, The Crisps, Reefers, Skulls, Savage Nomads, etc. — pack the cinemas, screaming approval every time their heroes assault a cop and hailing the screen with bottles and cans if the action is going against them.

Now comes the news that The Warriors will be shown uncensored in Britain.

British film censor James Ferman thought the film's content was unlikely to provoke riots in the aisles. "There have been far more violent films," he said. "A Clockwork Orange was far more sympathetic to the violence it portrayed."

Ferman attributes the violent reaction to The Warriors to Paramount's American ad campaign. Original key artwork showed a mass of armed gang members with a blurb reading: "They are 100,000 strong. They outnumber the cops five to one. They could run New York City."

The text later substituted simply says: "The Warriors can be seen at these theatres at these times."

Could it be that The Warriors is just a sign of the times, like Little Caesar, The Wild One, West Side Story and Summer Holiday were of their period? Anyone for a good stall seat, a bag of popcorn, and fifteen rounds of ammunition?

MAX BELL

THRILLS

A MINI-CYCLE of gang pictures is already in production — although all the companies concerned seem anxious to play down the connection. All are due for release later this year.

● Boulevard Knights, directed by Michael Pressman for Warner Brothers.

Featuring a cast of unknowns, it deals with a young Mexican-American who turns his back on the East Los Angeles gang culture.

● Walk Proud (originally entitled Gang) directed by Robert Collins for Universal. Stars Robbie Benson as another Hispanic gang member who gets involved with a proper young lady from a good family. Officially described by the studios as "a love story set against the background of street gangs."

● Over The Edge, directed by Jonathan Kaplan for Orion Pictures. Centres on a group of middle-class suburban kids who terrorise a community. Studio claims there are no gangs in it — the "kids travel as a bunch."

● The Wanderers directed by Phil Kaufman — a hot director thanks to his classy re-make of Invasion Of The Body Snatchers — charts the career of a tough New York street gang. Based on the novel by Richard Price — which, when it first appeared in print, received the kind of accolades first-time novelists usually dream of. Lauded by the likes of John Fowles, Hubert Selby and William Burroughs, The Wanderers should be the one to watch out for.

DICK TRACY

THRILLS

2. Punks riot in Los Angeles

IN WHATEVER chronicles are written concerning the struggling punk scene in Los Angeles, St Patrick's Day 1979 will be remembered as the day the music got busted.

The concert at downtown Elks Hall wasn't the first time the Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD) had gone cruisin' for a bruising — one recent concert was shut down by a squad armed with tear gas rifles! — but last week's action at a show headlined by local punks The Zeros surprised everyone by its size and ferocity.

As police lined the roofs of nearby buildings and an LAPD helicopter beamed powerful searchlights down into the street, some 50 riot police stormed the lobby of the Elks Hall, clearing a path up the stairs to the first floor concert hall with batons and sticks.

Though many of the bouncers were off-duty cops and a constant presence of uniformed and plain-clothes cops had been maintained in the lobby since the concert began, no warning of the close-down was given to either the promoters or the audience, who numbered most of the city's committed punk fans.

It was over fast. After the audience had been made to leave the venue through a gauntlet of baton-wielding cops, a confused and angry crowd gathered outside the main entrance and attempted to re-group. As kids were thrown out into the street, illuminated by the hovering chopper and secured by new police arrivals, the chant went up, an echo of the recent Clash concert: "White riot! White riot! White riot!"

Some of the hysterical crowd threw themselves against the police lines and received a further beating, but the majority nursed their bruises and skirmished off into the night, screaming hatred and trash the odd car, followed by a cordon of gum-chewing police to whom green hair, bondage strides and loud uncouth music is an anathema.

There were seven arrests — on charges ranging from incitement to riot to assaulting the police — and a score of injuries.

Elks Hall is not the best place to hold a concert. Sited next to MacArthur Park, the scene of massive '60s anti-Vietnam demos, the building's architect might have doubled as a designer to Cecil B. De Mille. The main auditorium is a massive room with a high false ceiling, requiring only Ursula Andress as high priestess to complete the Rيدر Haggard scene.

The surrounding area is run-down, with tacky working class bars in a Mexican neighbourhood, the whole

Continues next page

FLEMMING SCHMIDT & STEEN MARIBOE

FOR D.K.B.

PRESENT

LOU
REED

IN CONCERT ON A EUROPEAN TOUR

March 27	Stockholm	Concerthuset	SOLD OUT
March 28	Copenhagen	Falkoncentrum	SOLD OUT
March 29	Hamburg	Kongresscentre
March 30	Berlin	Eisporthe
April 1	Dusseldorf	Philipshalle
April 2	Paris	Pavillion
April 4	Mannheim	Mozarthalle
April 5	Stuttgart	Liedehalle
April 6	Offenbach	Stadthalle
April 7	Basle	Festhalle
April 8	Munich	Circus Krone
April 10	London	Hammersmith Odeon	SOLD OUT
April 12	Dublin	National Stadium	SOLD OUT

The New Lou Reed Album "BELLS." Released APRIL 20th.

Available On Arista Records & Tapes.

Capt America Against Racism

IN THE ISH presently on your news-stands, Captain America, Marvel Comics' star-spangled so-called "living embodiment of the American ideal", has turned his fighting physique to the fight against fascism — and not for the first time either.

Just ask any true believer... in 1941 in a secret laboratory frail Steve Rogers became the American super soldier, battling the Axis powers to the bitter end.

But old comic heroes don't die, they just go into suspended animation. As fate would have it, the Cap awoke in our era to embark on a perilous odyssey through a world of would-be global dominatrix, a world where, in the Marvel manner of social realism, truth and right is sometimes not quite the American way.

Captain America No. 231 contains the first episode of the Cap's run-in with the National Force, an organisation seeking to gain control by means of racial hate-mongering.

Sounds familiar, doesn't it? Subsequent issues reveal the Force to be led by a misguided character called the Grand Director, whose desire to see America become once more a great nation makes him the perfect tool for the mysterious Dr. Faustus — the real magalo-villain of the piece.

There are other pertinent points raised in this allegory of our time, but those you'll have to discover for yourselves...

Perhaps, in the wake of this and the Kiss Comics, Marvel might like to consider the idea of immortalising Tom Robinson. They could even resurrect the bizarre caricature villains based on anti-gay Bible-belt crusader Anita Bryant (first seen in Howard The Duck) and have Tom do bass-wielding battle.

KLUNK KENT
THIRLLS

BLACKMAIL THE BOZO

A man goes through changes. A man grows up. A man learns through pain and trials and the purifying fire of ROCK AND ROLL. Down those mean streets a man can walk who is not himself. (Hang on aren't we getting carried away a bit here? — Ed.)

We certainly are, but this man is one who makes people get carried away. People come away from his shows babbling like idiots or religious converts. People come away from listening to his records ready to kill anyone who slights him.

And yet... there once was a time when this mighty man was a booze. A nerd. A complete and utter dork. The one in the picture, in fact.

And he still managed to grow up to be a hero. Which hero? Aha! That's up to you, 'cause once again it's time to BLACKMAIL THE BOZO. If you can see past this absurd facade to the Real Man who lurks beneath, then a tribute to your perspicacity, ability as a Judge Of Character or simple all-round Clever Dick (or Dickette) will be paid in these very hallowed columns.

Get on the case, ace!
PO' BOY KAPP

THIRLLS

L.A. RIOT

■ From previous page.

lying within the Ramparts police district, whose very name evokes fear amongst Angelenos.

In addition to the concert, which featured some of the best LA new wave acts, including 'X', The Zeros, The Alleycats, and The Go-Gos, the Elks Hall had also booked a wedding reception and a party of Vietnamese epigres in adjoining rooms. It was to prove a recipe for trouble.

Kids from the concert, which attracted about 800 people, over-spilled into the lobby and the stair-well, dropping beer cans and Qualudes and occasionally bad-mouthing wedding guests, the majority of whom were middle-aged and middle class. The confrontation between Punks and Straight America proved too much for the sensibilities of the off-duty cops moonlighting as security, and the riot squad was called in.

This time, however, the punks had had enough. That evening, the phone lines to KROQ, a local FM radio station with the best new wave programming in LA, were besieged by angry kids. Through the night, and into the next morning, the 'ROQ of LA' played tracks ranging from Jefferson Airplane's 'Volunteers' to The Clash's 'White Riot'.

By the next day, network TV stations and the heavy guns of the LA press had got into the act, contrasting accounts from the bloodied and bruised kids with the official LAPD line — that police had been called in to quell "a potential riot situation". A hurried press conference was called, attended by emissaries from Rolling Stone, The LA Times, and a TV news crew, and the shit started hitting the media fan.

Given the disorganised state of the new music in LA — a results of concerted apathy on the part of the Rockbiz interests that control the city's musical life — the Elks Hall debacle was probably inevitable. It was the wrong venue for the wrong bands, held in the wrong part of town at the wrong time.

At various inquests held after the event, the blame was laid at many doors — the police, the concert promoters, the LA music business, and even Jimmy Carter, who has supposedly put the word out against punk.

Three days after the event, the more active members of the new wave attempted to put together a benefit for the seven jailed kids. The gig was cancelled when it was discovered that the organiser, an out-of-towner, had McLarenesque delusions and had booked the concert within three blocks of the Elks Hall, hoping to provoke an incident which would make his hands into 'the next Sex Pistols'. An uneasy postscript to the latest chapter in the saga of LA's embattled new wave scene.

JOHN TRUX

THIRLLS

JOAN JETT gives PAUL COOK some intimate advice. STEVE JONES plays Liberace. PENNIE SMITH takes the pic and runs.

RETURN OF THE RUNAWAY

'The One True Star' (Joan Jett to you) tells Messrs Cook and Jones to keep it rolling while she gives Thrills the news...

"YOOOOO DON" own mess," howls a mournful, leather-cut skylark deep in the bowels of New Bond Street's Chappell recording studio. "Don't say... er... oh, shit!"

Joan Jett stamps her sweaty sneaker petulantly, her tiny cans jiggling peevishly.

"Do it again," sighs Steve Jones in marked sing-song.

"I'm getting pissed, you guys!" snarls the petite Joanie.

"It'd be all right if you sang it in the right bloody key!" snaps the engineer from behind his impressive control panel battery, his tether all but totally terminated.

"It's not easy," sulks Jett. "I can't hit that high note... and I don't want to!"

"I'd sound like Lesley Gore," she bites, the cat.

"Um... can't we speed her voice up on that bit and then drop it back in when she gets to the chorus?" suggests a helpful Paul Cook. Zen calm as ever.

"It'll sound like bleeding Mickey Mouse," moans Jones.

"We'll do that if all else fails," shrugs the engineer. "From the top, love."

"Keep the good bits, coz my voice is going to go soon, I just know it," whines Joan, pawing at her throat for symptoms of infection.

"Just do it again!"

Ah, the trials, tribulations and sheer ho-hum tedium of the recording studio! But even if the old supergroup glamour is a bit thin on the wall-to-wall thick pile Cyril Lord, at least the occasion of what's left of The Sex Pistols and the only member of The Runaways visible to the naked eye getting together in the studio to lay down a few tracks, man, gives us a chance to answer the burning questions currently befuddling the show business demi-monde.

Like are The Sex Pistols going to reform? Have The Runaways disbanded? What does it all mean? Why are we all here? Is there any point to it all?

Joan slips out of her headphones and into something a little more comfortable — a baggy fungi-green GI 'Nam-vet jacket — and joins me and the other working-class losers up on the flight deck. Everyone in the studio is labouring under the effect of a heavy cold after another hard day of undiluted creativity, so feet killing us we peel off our panty-hose and sit around grateful for a chance to gossip, chew the cud, a bull session.

So what's all this about, Ginger? This anything permanent?

"Nah," says the drummer. "We're just doing three songs for the single to come out at the start of May, probably."

"We're doing Lesley Gore's 'You Don't Own Me' as the A-side," explains Joan, "and on the B-side there's one of my songs, 'Don't Abuse Me', and a very old, obscure toon by Arrows called 'I Love Rock And Roll'."

"Great title," titters Paul.

"It is," nods Joan seriously.

Two rumours currently emanating from the whispering gallery of the rockbiz Musical Differences Department concern the end of the road for The Runaways (California nymphettes reach the inevitable 20th birthday kids of death and start choking on their own platform-booted clichés) and some kind of renaissance for the Pistols (with a top ten album and single, rolling in the clover commercially but as artistically solvent as Kathy Kirby in the bankruptcy court).

The Runaways are without a recording contract in this country. Sandy West and Lita Ford are currently employed doing session work on the West Coast, and the band have just got through their third bassist in as many years — Jackie Fox quitting for law school after a few suicide bids, Vicki Blue eventually chucking it in after taking so many downers to combat her epilepsy on the road that she rattled, and now new girl Laurie McAllister taking off only a few weeks after joining, saying she only got involved because she thought The Runaways were still a Kim Fowley project (she's now involved with a Fowley scheme that includes Lovely Previn, daughter of Dory and Andre, plus a bunch of boys).

"The Runaways have not split up," asserts Jett, "we just haven't seen each other for a while, except on the beach... we're gonna audition a new bass player when I go back on the weekend. Last time we saw each other was when we played a gig in LA on New Year's Eve. Then Kim got to Laurie and she split... but we're still together. It's just Lita and Sandy were gonna do this session work with this guy called Alan Ross..."

I never heard of him.

"Me neither! Anyhow, there ain't much call for a rhythm guitarist session musician so I complained to Toby (Maimis, Runaways' manager) that I didn't have anything to do and he set it up for me to come to Europe to do some press — had to blow out our tour when Laurie quit, man — and to do this single with Paul and Steve while I was here. I guess I'll have to sign a recording contract, a solo one, with Phonogram for this single," she says wistfully, eyes misting over. "It's coming out on Phonogram, see... but The Runaways definitely ain't splitting up — although maybe Sandy and Lita will be upset when they find out I'm over here doing this," she adds ominously. "I dunno..."

And wherefore the Pistols, Paul? Branson has asked Steve Jones if he would consider recording with J.R. himself again ("If the price is right," was the integrity-laden riposte of our 'Sex Pistols Guitar Hero', to quote the legend sprayed on his amp), Glen Matlock's Rich Kids are getting bored shitless seeing everything they release turn immediately platinum, Sid has indicated from beyond the grave that he is up for exhumation... what about it, huh? (Personally I just can't see it myself — Lydon's not going back after the way he got treated and I doff my tiffer to him.) "Nah, we ain't gonna get back together," smiles Paul. "Richard Branson might be thinking about it but I ain't..."

Your contract with Talcu Maltz don't end for another six months, I know, but have you already split with him?

"I suppose we have, really. He was pissed off with all that stuff with retainers and that when the court said that 'The Great Rock'n'Roll Swindle' wasn't his anymore."

He's trying to get all the parts of the movie with him in it taken out, ain't he?

"Yeah, and that's most of the fucking film! That film — it's taking so fucking long to come out that by the time it's released it's gonna be soooo out of date that it ain't true..."

Have you occupied your place in the 1/9's yet, Paul?

"Nah, I ain't seen it," replies Paul, understanding my benter perfectly.

McLaren's living in Paris now, ain't he? What's the old bastard up to, then?

"Well, I know he's had lots of offers... making three films for some Dutch company, is he?"

I express astonishment that The Sex Pistols have a new single released this week ('Silly Thing' backed with Viv Westwood's 'Who Killed Bambi?') only a fortnight after I saw Legs and Co. doing the frug to 'Something Else'. Cook says that this is all down to Virgin who told him and Jones they were releasing it and ignored the inseparable bosom buddies' pleas for clemency and another choice for a new 45.

"We said we'd do something new, they said all right 'but we're releasing this one anyway'."

I notice Joan Jett's nose is coloured various ugly shades of black, blue and scarlet that match the long scar stretching from her forehead to her chinny-chin-chin.

"Oh, I got that when I got drunk with Stiv Bators of The Dead Boys and this girl I know a few years back. We went to this hotel room, then on to some apartment and I had this bottle of Tequila that nobody wanted so I drank the whole pint myself. Apparently I fell over and smashed my face up on this elevator. I was as smashed as I was the last time I saw you and Julie, right? — and Stiv and this chick had to try to get me into a cab to take me to hospital while I was trying to punch them out! The cab driver was apparently really old and straight, man, he thought I was weird! Stiv had to give him five bucks to let me into his fucking cab..."

The whistle blows and it's back to work, Joan complaining about the full, rich, fruity sax that embellishes all the cuts.

"I want that sax mixed right down," she tells Steve Jones. "The only reason that guy's on everything is because Toby brought him in to do a bit of stuff on 'You Don't Own Me' and so he thought he'd get his money's worth. Sounds like some crap my parents would listen to, 'Moon River' crap, that kinda crap, y'know?"

So how confident are you about the success of this single, Joan?

Her reply is thoughtful, calm, reasoned.

"If it doesn't make Number One I'm gonna string Toby up by his balls."

TONY PARSONS

THRILLS

LOWRY

"They've taken the concept of self-efficient, industrial rock to its logical conclusion — they brick themselves into the back of the stage while intoning earnest statements in Czechoslovakian."

Putting the squeeze on spots

YOUNG PERSONS everywhere need no longer fear the prospect of being openly ridiculed by members of the opposite sex, thanks to a marvellous new discovery by scientists at the National Institute of Health in Washington.

After intense research activity spanning more than two years the bottins have discovered an antidote to the ugly red pustules that have long disfigured adolescent visages and brought many a romantic adventure to a premature conclusion.

Yes! Throw away the Polyfills and sandpaper! There is now a cure for spots!

The formula is based on a synthetic relative of Vitamin A. It works by turning off certain skin glands, and scientists claim a 94 per cent success rate. One of the side effects is a dryness of the mucous membranes in the nose, meaning people who live in the fast lane will now be virtually indistinguishable from everybody else.

More tests have to be made before acne-ridden horrors will be able to purchase this great leap forward for cordial teenage relations at their local beauty counter.

So, zit-sufferers, keep your eyes open. (And in the meantime keep your pores clean).

KATY BOIL

THRILLS

The Return Of . . . REEFER MADNESS!!

JUST WHEN it seemed that the Stateside battle for a more lenient attitude towards marijuana was gaining ground, came trouble: The return of Reefer Madness.

Until last July the NORML (National Association for the Reform of the Marijuana Laws) bandwagon was rolling fast. President Carter had recommended the relaxation of federal penalties for marijuana users, 11 States had already passed decriminalisation bills, Chip Carter had admitted to being a user, and grass had been openly smoked on the White House lawn.

Then last July Dr Peter Bourne, President Carter's personal drug adviser and a strong advocate of decriminalisation, resigned after he was caught out forging a Quaalude tranquiliser prescription for his assistant Ellen Melstky.

Herd on the heels of this, a story was leaked from the NORML camp that Bourne had snorted coke and smoked grass at a NORML party.

This in turn led to dissension within NORML's ranks and the resignation of Keith Stroup, their National Co-ordinator, the backstage rumour being that he'd broken the unwritten law of the group — you never snitch on someone else's drug habits.

The Bourne scandal threw a fright into the White House image-makers, and the hardliner head of the Drug Enforcement Administration, Peter Besinger, saw his chance to make a move.

His initial step came last autumn at the International Association Of Police Chiefs Convention in New York, where he launched a major propaganda offensive against marijuana reminiscent of the 'Reefer Madness' campaign conducted by Harry J. Anslinger in the 1930s.

Under close investigation, Besinger's claims fall apart.

His statement that the American Cancer Society had confirmed that "marijuana represents a more serious threat than cigarettes" was totally denied by the ACS, who said they had never spoken to Besinger and, in fact, believed the opposite — namely that marijuana is far less dangerous than cigarettes.

His marijuana-causes-birth-defects story was traced to an unscientific study whereby a number of rhesus monkeys were forced to smoke 30 joints a day; the human equivalent of working through no less than 100 joints a day — surely beyond the range of even the most hardened dope fiend.

In Washington, Besinger's motives were crystal clear. His aim was to try and restore the fallen political prestige of the DEA and also to shift their activities away from the harder drugs — which they could not stop — towards marijuana where they could easily notch up an impressive arrest record.

There were further setbacks for the pro-pol lobby.

Many states, including Montana, Washington and Georgia have outlawed the sale of marijuana paraphernalia in an attempt to hit back at marijuana acceptance.

Needless to say, this is bringing a strong reaction from the Paraphernalia Trade Association who now run a $3 billion a year business. As their director put it: "We're not a bunch of stoned-out hippies carving pipes in the basement. We're normal businessmen with shirts and ties."

More problems: In a recent statement Frank Fioramonti, NORML's Eastern regional co-ordinator, told Village Voice new zingle from

PLASTIC BERTRAND

Tout La Planete

b/w

J'te FAIS Un PLAm / Hit 78

7" PICTURE SLEEVE
(FIRST 10,000 12" LONG 'DISCO' VERSION)

Sir 4012

INSIDE
DOPEBy DICK
TRACY

magazine that the organisation's activities are seriously threatened due to shortage of funds.

"It's a horrible fact, but people just don't give a damn. They take what we do for granted... Here we are fighting to get grass legalised and regulated so consumers will have an orderly market where the price is fair and the purity and potency ensured, and we have no national support.

"Dealers, who are raking it in, obviously don't want to help, while white-collar cannabis users are afraid to lend support for fear of repercussions since marijuana is still illegal, even though what we're doing is not.

"It's a sorry state of affairs that at a time when so many more millions of people smoke than in years past our money problem has become worse instead of better."

However, this view of the struggle depicted by the East Coast media is counterbalanced by the optimistic views of two women I interviewed on a recent trip to Los Angeles — Linda Lucks, the Los Angeles co-ordinator for NORML, and Phyllis J. Lesson, a scientific researcher and expert on therapeutic uses of marijuana.

It became clear from our discussion that, shortage of funds aside, NORML's activities were undergoing a radical shift. Linda Lucks explained:

"California's the vanguard for the country on all issues. We have a bill in the legislature right now which would decriminalise cultivation which, to my mind, is the key to the whole legalisation issue. If we get home cultivation then we've got control."

The bill would reduce penalties for cultivation of small amounts of marijuana to a $100 fine. This measure would permit a person to grow up to three plants and a household up to six plants with the $100 fine being a maximum penalty. A similar bill was defeated two years ago but, at time of writing, this particular move has already passed through the first stages of legislative procedure.

NORML's latest national advertising plugs the cultivation theme:

"Imagine planting a Victory Garden and reaping the harvests legally. No illegal market. No dangerous herbicides. And no hassle."

Ms Lesson, who has done scientific research on tobacco, alcohol and marijuana, pointed out that the therapeutic use of the magic weed is now a very important issue.

Among the known medical uses are: as an anti-nausea agent for cancer patients undergoing chemotherapy, as an appetite stimulant for anorexia nervosa patients, for sufferers from epilepsy, multiple-sclerosis and glaucoma, as an anti-depressant and an analgesic and, finally for preventing menstrual cramps — as Queen Victoria well knew.

Ms Lesson pointed out that "a lot of these therapeutic uses stem back thousands of years.

Four States have so far passed legislation allowing marijuana to be used as a medicine, some 20 studies into its medical uses are currently underway around the USA, and it seems clear that a lot of attitudes have been changed due to marijuana's new-found medical legitimacy.

The lessons for the UK are clear. There are too many hardliners around to expect easy victories in the battle for legalising marijuana. "Reefer madness" attitudes run deep — as does public apathy.

At present the main thrust of the British Legalise Cannabis Campaign is directed towards changes in legislation, and it seems clear we can expect little on this score in the near future.

A "grow-your-own" campaign presents one viable, if illegal, alternative which could circumvent the current stalemate, while the medical uses of marijuana could go a long way towards changing public attitudes towards a more sensible appraisal of the plant's true value.

Elvis Costello
forces his arm

AS WE GO to press a tired and emotional Thrills asks to bend your ear — so to speak. Pull up your bar stool, fix another slug of Jack Danny, and we'll tell y'a shtory. Hic...

Picture this... Our old friend Elvis Costello is propping up the counter at his favourite Chicago hostelry, during his current American bonanza, when who should mosey in? None other than Stephen Stills, ably supported by the shapely Bonnie Bramlett, female session singer and former sidekick of wheezing Delaney and croaking Clapton.

Naturally enough, 'tain't long before E.C. is setting up the round: "Make mine a coke man," says Stephen. "Mine's a light," chirps Bonnie. "Well you'd better put it out then," replies Costello, quick as a flash.

After a while, the three get into a heated tête-à-tête vis-à-vis that perennial topic... is the new the same as the old wave? And soon the conversation has degenerated to the "I don't talk to people with steel noses" standard.

Suffice to say, a frank exchange of views ensued, and Thrills is disturbed to learn that in the resulting fracas blows were struck and various diverse opinions were somewhat forcefully aired.

Finally, to cool his ardour, we hear that Ms Bramlett stuck one on last year's model — after politely removing his spectacles. This may or may not be true. It's also not beyond the realms of possibility that some of Stills' employees, who happened to be sinking a few in the self same bar, leapt into the fray to protect the aging Americans from the wrath of the slight but surly Irishman.

Elvis was shaken but not stirred. He incurred minor injuries to his arm in the process.

BUSY BEBE

THRILLS

The Lone Groover

BENYON

Catch Roxy's come-back down at Boots.

£1 off 'Manifesto'

Roxy Music are back. Bryan Ferry fronts the re-formed set-up and, with three other original members, the band's all set for a rapturous return.

You can see Roxy on tour in May. But first catch their brand new album, 'Manifesto.' You'll find it at Boots for just £3.99* — a saving of £1.00. And there's also 50p* off the cassette.

*See Boots and Boots Express for details.
*For details on participating Boots Express April 2nd.
From Boots Express Expressions and Expressions Limited.
Some discounts off Boots Retail Price.

Make the most of your Boots.

The 10 classic tracks from the four classic albums

PLUS a bonus single!

JEFFERSON STARSHIP: GOLD

Play On Love
Miracles
Fast Buck Freddie
From Red Octopus

With Your Love
St Charles
From Spitfire

Ride The Tiger
Caroline
From Dragon Fly

Count On Me
Love Too Good
Runaway
From Earth

Bonus single: Light The Sky On Fire (brand new!) b/w Hyperdrive

Record: FL 13247
Cassette: FK 13247

RCA
Records and Tapes

Crook start to a dinkum income

THE SPORTS are from Melbourne, Australia — a fact which doesn't weigh heavily in their favour as far as the British public is concerned.

Australian rock possesses an image about as right field unfashionable as it's possible to get — so right field, in fact, that their record company, Stiff, could even be expected to capitalise on the English view of folk from Down Under, as beer-swilling, foul-mouthed sheep dippers who like nothing better than to go on the rampage after a hard night's booze, scalping a few abos en route and making out with the sheilas.

I put this to Steve Cummings, lead singer, writer and principle Sports face.

"Yeah, we are pretty much like that," he deadpans. "Naaw, actually the English are patronising about us, an Australian audience is rowdy, they dance a lot and drink a lot but the kids are pretty similar, especially on campus. The major difference is the type of venue: we play on a hotel circuit whereby you start in the inner suburbs and then graduate to the larger hotels in the outer areas."

Stiff came to notice The Sports when Dave Robinson and Jake Riviera picked up on the band's privately pressed 'Fair Game' EP; then when the band supported Parker in Australia he spoke highly of their live aggression and ability. Stiff found a producer for their second album (Pete Solley of Wreckless Eric, K.C. and the Sunshine Band fame), which emerged on the home independent Mushroom Records. An EP's worth of loons surfaced in England on

Do wombats poop in the billabongs? What precisely, is a "swagman"? No use asking THE SPORTS, sport. But MAX BELL does.

Stiff, who have so far declined to release the entire disc.

"Solley wasn't the right producer but we were glad to have him — he knew all the little tricks, where we are very naive in the studio. The LP is over-produced, so Stiff want us to substitute some of the material."

The Sports appear a trifle shy, bemused by the lubricating star ethics of the English scene. Apres le gig Parker commands the normal clapping that one associates with rock at the top, the conspicuous waste, hangers-on, phonies. The Sports on the other hand are just a regular bunch of guys, quiet and reserved.

Cummings and guitarist Martin Armiger relate a tale of woe: "We had no preconceptions about England when we came, in fact we sold the people at home the line that we'd bomb out 'cos they all think you're over-reaching yourself, getting flash."

"But it can get depressing. After one gig a girl who was, how shall I say it, on the case, came over to me and the Rumour bassist (Andrew Bodnar) and said to him, 'You were good but I hated the support band' — this is right to my face. In Liverpool some kids came up to us afterwards and said they were surprised at how good we were. If people like us they are surprised — there seems to be a big barrier in getting accepted."

This is partially explained by the sight of The Saints and Radio Birdman collapsing in disarray over here, breaking up, bankrupt, embittered. The odds on another Aussie outfit making their presence felt must be pretty bad — but at least The Sports arrive with a good reputation preceding them. They've played on major bills in Sydney with Parker, Thin Lizzy, Big Wha Koo and upstaged them all.

Their dual guitar attack, Armiger and Andrew Pendlebury, are perfect rhythm and lead counterpoints, matched for ferocity by a rhythm section that sweats blood, Paul Hitchens and Robert Glover, and finally given the necessary spark of original chutzpah any band needs to separate itself from the chaff in the sheer frivolity of pianist Jim Niven's barrel-house dexterity and the magnetic attraction of Cummings, constantly snapping the beat, putting out the changes and keeping the entire show moving at a pace that demands vertical attention.

The Sports are new wave to the extent that they've updated their previous style, mellow, Little Feat tinged rockability — by the addition of a second guitar and a whole new catalogue of short, explicit material. Punk never caught on in Australia for the simple reason that the economy and the climate preclude its relevance. And anyway, Cummings and Armiger maintain, it is a conservative land.

STEVE CUMMINGS OF THE SPORTS

"Though the Pistols got daily coverage, any local punk bands suffered as a result, they'd be used to illustrate the antics of Rotten but never recognised in their own right. There is one surviving punk group, The Boys Next Door. A group like Radio Birdman were always more Americanised — even their name comes out of a Stooges song — and they live in Sydney, the most American city we have."

The Sports agree that it was essential for them to test new ground — "we'll go anywhere if it's free" — but so far they are fighting an upward battle for acceptance from the Parker fans. That should change when they get headline clubs after this tour. Some Nashville dates have been booked, and The Sports are anxious to work a real crowd over.

"Stiff already had us play the Nashville for a press function. It was fuckin' horrible, nobody danced and they'd set up cans of Fosters all round the bar. It's such a cliché, like the cover of our EP where they've used some shots from an Australian Tourist Board brochure. We're not like that at all."

The Sports shrug it off. When the time comes it'll be them doing the laughing.

What could be tastier than eight year-old Meatloaf?

"Meatloaf" is a collection of vintage rock and roll cuts from a big man who finally busted through in '78, dominating the charts and accumulating armfuls of awards.

Packaged complete with its original sleeve artwork, this album will make you ashamed that it took you so long to develop a taste for Meatloaf. PDL 2010 TC PDL 2010 featuring Stoney and Meatloaf.

Two sides of best American beef.

Revising for Exams?

Worried by the effect of school closures?

CELTIC REVISION AIDS

are designed to help.

- ★ All major CSE, GCE O and A Level subjects covered
- ★ Written by teachers and examiners
- ★ Only 60p to £1.25
- ★ Free Students Competition with super prizes
- ★ In your local bookshop NOW or

Write for free list of titles to:

Celtic Revision Aids,

Lincoln Way, Windmill Road,
Sunbury-on-Thames, Middlesex or phone

Michael McWhinnie (Sunbury 85681 ext 274)

LOOK OUT FOR THE CELTIC OWL
— IT'S THE
SYMBOL OF EXAM SUCCESS

WITH JUST one more working day to go until the kick-off of Rock Against Racism's most ambitious venture to date — the 90-odd band, month-long Militant Entertainment tour — RAR's cramped North London headquarters is on red alert.

Bouncy RAR staffer Kate (who's nothing of the sort) is putting the finishing touches to booking hotels for all concerned — no mean task when you consider she has had to arrange accommodation for several hundred people in a bewildering variety of 40-strong entourage.

The four-bands-a-night line-up is completely changed every fourth night, and no two line-ups are the same, as a different local band is brought in each night to augment each block of three bands.

"There have been some difficulties booking 40 people into one hotel. If a hotel objects to having us, they object 'cause it's a bunch of pop groups,'" she says with characteristic good nature.

"We don't say RAR are coming to beat up the NF in your town," she adds, smiling.

The thought of Kate beating up anybody is difficult to imagine. She's a friendly, wholesome looking 19-year-old who's "supposed to be doing my A-levels". Instead she's the mainstay of the RAR office. Until October she ran the office on her own, but a growth in RAR's activities has meant that two others have given up their day-time jobs to not only hold the RAR fort to make sure that the 100 or so letters RAR receive a day are answered, eventually, and that the worldwide orders for RAR badges, T-shirts, stickers and posters are dealt with as promptly as possible.

RAR receive mail from lands as varied as Japan and Scandinavia. Of late there's been a marked upsurge in communiques from America which RAR put down to The Clash's recent tour.

And that's only half the work-load, for RAR's primary function, other than to rid the isle of racist racism, is to put on gigs. Since their inception nigh on three years ago they have staged over 800 gigs, but the current tour, involving the kind of logistics that would give even an experienced promoter a headache, is by far the most significant project.

"A tour like this will put us on the map," opines John Dennis, who along with Wayne is the other full-time RAR office worker. He adds matter-of-factly: "This is just the start of RAR in rock terms."

A former adventure playground leader, Dennis is the only one of the crew wedged into RAR's office this Thursday afternoon who comes close to fulfilling any preconceived notions people may have about RAR being "a bunch of earnest politicos".

Tall and thin, with striking angular features, he has the air of a consumptive romantic poet. Neither he nor his two colleagues are remotely punky. There isn't a leather jacket between them, let alone a pair of bondage striders. Of late this trio have been working a 13 hour day seven days a week to ensure that all goes off according to plan on the tour.

Also present is RAR initiator Red Saunders — a garrulous gent of Falstaffian girth, a trifle 'paranoid' and fond of using left wing slogans — and three 'temporary helpers'.

There are two girls, one who types out copy for the latest edition of Temporary Hoarding, read aloud by Red, and Jane (I think) whose job it is to enter mail order sales of RAR 'product' (badges, posters, T-shirts) into an accounts book.

There is also Alan, a disarmingly callow-looking member of Her Majesty's Armed Forces who's set for his first-ever tour of Northern Ireland. He deals with the out-going mail.

In the last five months sales of RAR 'product' have amounted to £7,300.

"The sales go up and down," Jane tells me. "Obviously they increase after a carnival, but the maximum is about £6-700 a week."

To get any more accurate picture of the finances is impossible without further investigation into the organisation's out-goings. Certainly the rent of the office is not high — £5 a week — and neither is the amount spent on staff wages.

Until three weeks ago Kate, John

Master-minding The Militant Roadshow

Last week the ideology, this week the practicalities . . . STEVE CLARKE squeezes sideways into the R.A.R. nerve-centre to check out the organisation behind the Militant Entertainment tour. He also visits Revolutionary West Runton.

HATE KATE PIC: STEVENSON
AND MISTY PIC: VIRGINIA TURRETT

Westness at West Runton Pic: VIRGINIA TURRETT

RED SAUNDERS n. SID.
PIC: STEVENSON

and Wayne were paid a pittance, but this was increased three-fold to a figure in the region of what the ambulance drivers were being paid before their strike.

Red's contribution to the RAR effort is entirely voluntary, although temporary helpers are paid expenses. "We want to avoid the martyr syndrome," explains Kate. At present they have a solicitor engaged in doing the work which is necessary for RAR to become an official tax company.

The bulk of the organization's income comes from the sale of their fortunately ubiquitous badge. Little money is made from gigs.

"What money we do make," says Kate, "is always used to finance the next gig."

Right now they have around £1000 in their bank account which is kept at the Co-op, as much for geographical convenience as for reasons of ideology.

This, as Red is eager to point out, doesn't just sit there. And RAR are hoping to save up enough money to buy permanent premises. They've got their eyes on a building in Finsbury Park which they hope could double as a dispatch office and as a record shop. Kate, perhaps a little naively, also sees it as a place where fans could hang out before going to the Rainbow.

RAR have occupied their current office for the past two months. Since their inception they've worked from a variety of locations in the metropolis, starting out at Red's photographic studio.

The Militant Entertainment tour is, to put it mildly, a strain on the RAR finances. So much so that Kate's father magnanimously agreed to stand as guarantor for a £750 overdraft. Similarly other monies have been borrowed from friends and supporters.

No donations to any political parties are made from RAR's funds, the money instead going to keep the wheels turning and to further the cause.

"It doesn't all get put in a bag and put on the 8.15 to Prague," says Red caustically.

One other source of income that in Red's words is "something of a red herring" is the question of RAR membership. For a £1 it is possible to actually join for life and RAR estimate that 3,500 supporters have done just that.

Apart from life membership one gets a 'free' badge and reduced admission to RAR gigs. But, they point out, most 'kids' can't afford to lay out a quid on life membership, and instead just purchase a badge or a sticker.

This question of membership is being raised at RAR's July conference. It seems that one can belong to the organisation without forking out the necessary green one, as is illustrated by the fact that Leeds RAR has some 500 members each of whom is entitled to badges etc and admission to gigs at concession rates.

One other feature of the organisation that needs to be dealt with is Temporary Hoarding. Apparently this isn't produced from the North London base. All contributors, who include John Dennis, work for it for free, and one potential source of revenue RAR refuse to milk on political grounds is selling advertising space to record companies.

They are currently trying to find a major distributor for Hoarding, but so far have found that all the major publishers they've approached have refused to touch it because they're afraid it would attract too many libels. Penguin Books are, however, interested in publishing a Temporary Hoarding book and a deal is currently being negotiated.

An atmosphere of thriving chaos reigns this Thursday afternoon in the RAR office. The clutter is such that it's almost impossible to walk unimpeded around the four jammed-together desks that occupy most of the space. Lord only knows how Jane's three-month-old baby manages to sleep through the cacophony of work. As Red opines: "You have to have an incredible sense of humour to work for us."

FIVE days later and Militant Entertainment has reached its third stop, a tiny village on the Norfolk coast called West Runton — a generous spit from the better-known seaside resort of Cromer, renowned for its crab.

■ Continues page 46

U.K.

EDDIE JOBSON

JOHN WETTON

TERRY BOZZIO

NEW ALBUM - DANGER MONEY -

THE

WHEELBARROW

offshore banking business solitary ^{CIW} confinement

~~~~~ New single ~~~~~

Virgin

VS 248

available 7" & 12" special bag

THOUGHT OF THE WEEK

After punk everything else is poppens. It's more fun this way, with a parent's unassuming, charmed attitude to pop, got naturally through one year of believing that some band will change all the bad bits of the world. Rock really isn't the Holy Grail or even an ongoing situation — it's casual '70s nature like trees and TV, immaterial to fuss about. What gap are YOU trying to stop with your disproportionate passion for pop?

JOHNNY CASH: I Will Rock And Roll With You (CBS).

Patience, but with perspective — Johnny knows, y'know. "Baby I will rock and roll with you — IF I HAVE TO" he keeps on resentfully, the song (despite cuckoo title never daring out of country) begrudging the fact that rock'n'roll ever blemished America. For once, I can see the other man's point of view like the liberals advise "A world of weirdos waiting in the wings," warns Johnny — here we go.

GENERATION X: Valley Of The Dots (Chrysalis).

SEX PISTOLS: Silly Thing (Virgin).

MEMBERS: Offshore Banking Business (Virgin).

SIMPLE MINDS: Life In A Day (Arista).

There won't be, and there isn't any left, of a movement for this generation; Punk Rock was not so much a tidal wave as a chimney sweep, leaving new improved beat bands and cute, life-enhancing novelties for the rest of your life.

Pity the poor tout: Gen X tart it up and trundle it out for another try. Cook and Jones scavenge till they drop, while the others try to act like the life-saving second-generation punkies some silly people are trying to persuade themselves can carry on where Rotten caste off. Pathetic really.

Notice how Gen X stayed quietly up shit creek till the Movement crumbled, whereupon they left free to bribe people with Disney-coloured plastic, Top Of The Pops and songs about '50s pop stars in the grand tradition of Showaddywaddy. They may as well cough up at this late stage that they're nothing more than this season's Sweet — the teenage rampage rhetoric, the empty ambition, the tunnel vision — except for a large audience and a pair of successful song-writers. This is a real plodder by Billy and Tony, about how great Billy and Tony and their two friends are. Well up to your usual standards, boys.

Cook and Jones chew their fat about how hard it is to get along with a brain-cell between the pair of them, playing for time with this prime scrap of Jack Smathurst Rock. All the little punk nouveau morons, from those who used to pogo on Revolver onwards, will probably rush out as fast as their bondage briches allow and stick this single in the charts alongside the wretched album it's lifted from. Funny how it's a this type of rookie who bleats about how disappointed they were with Public Image at the Rainbow and how Rotten has betrayed the "true punks" with his new project, and never realises that THIS asinine crap is the direct antithesis of the Sex Pistols ideal — rebellion, energy, grace, all those antiques.

Cook and Jones could just as well be refugees from The Dickies on this showing... that's probably why Joan's so fond of them.

After their hit, The Members try to act all smart and ironic within a song about how money is the root of all evil to a reggae tune, which all these short-haired young whites do at least one of to prove they don't dislike blacks. White voices just sound so feeble singing reggae, so forced — people should stop dabbling in forms they don't feel just for the sake of fashion.

Still, I feel sorry for The Members, what with all the hype that's spread the burden of the Voice Of Punk (deceased) partly on their shoulders — as Jimmy Pursey has discovered, you need to be rather intelligent to withstand the pressure of a nationwide peer group. The B-side is the best song The Members will ever manage — the very clever and funny 'Solitary Confinement', a very inferior version to their first Stiff single.

Simple Minds are already being launched into this Young Literate Punk Late-Comers To Bring Down The Government category; of course, their single is nothing new, everything old, borrowed and blue-aved-boyish.

EDDIE MONEY: Baby Hold On (CBS).

CHEAP TRICK: I Want You To Hold Me (Epic).

SHAUN CASSIDY: Hard Love (Warner Brothers).

They like these shiny minds of vinyl in America — nowhere else, though. Except Cheap Trick who are big in Japan — who isn't, what with the size of those slit eyes — and seem to have dedicated their lives to informing the world that they recently released a live Jap LP. Cheap Trick really do flog away at it — they had a studio single out three weeks ago with a cut from the live album on the back, while the A-side is the live version of the song they brought out as a single last year to no avail, and is tacked on the B-side of this.

They're annoyed at being ignored by our charts when they've been told for years what classics they fashion out of ancient Angloloop licks. They really think their ooey-doop harmonies should appeal to the cutesy-orientated English in a big way. Well, they don't.

This song, as the B-side displays, is sweet, possibly the only contender Cheap Trick possess — but the way in which they perform it live! Talk about with bad grace.

Taxi drivers take your money with more charm and imagination than this. Eddie Money has a bleat and a whine and feels all the better for it by the end of this

REVIEWED THIS WEEK

By JULIE BURCHILL

redundant re-issue.

Shaun Cassidy is game for anything in the manner of all these gormless Yankee blonds, choking covertly on the blow of having lost out to little Leif Garrett. Poor old Shaun, always the bridesmaid — I bet when beautiful big brother David was baring arse and appendix scar to all cameras in his heyday, little Shaun would smirk and dream of the time when the ever Cassidy hungry public would crawl drooling to his doorstep soon as Dave's bum dropped. Well, kid, we've been without a Cassidy all these years and we're not exactly crying out for one at the moment. Not so lanky and raunchy as YOU, anyway. Are there anymore at home about five years younger and half as hulking? Never mind, I expect we'll get by with Leif.

ADRIAN GURVITZ: The Way I Feel (J&T).
CRAIG PRUESS: Moving In The Direction Of Love (Arista).
SARAH BRIGHTMAN: The Adventures Of The Love Crusader (Arista).
THE MONKS: Nice Legs, Shame About The Face (Carrere). Token anti-sexist jape. Though I have no deep-rooted moral disgust at the way pictures of parts of girls end up on record sleeves with which they are no way connected — especially considering what eyesores an awful lot of musicians are — I don't think that the bands and record companies concerned should be too outraged if their product is judged by its most prominent selling-point.

You'd have to admire Adrian Gurtvitz's cheek if he wasn't so old and cynical. This record, a clear 12-inch with no label, is presented in a plastic bag over a 12-inch circular picture of a pretty blond Pirrelli-class model, a moonshine and tumbleweed-type girl, so that you would swear it's a picture disc. Instead it's a hideously boring attempt at making money via disco (seems to be the route currently favoured by every old hairy round), a record that's such a void as to be miles under any type of rating. Congratulations to photographer Keith Ramsden and his unidentified muse for their part in the endeavour.

The artwork on the Craig Pruess sleeve (Kelly Freas, this is your bouquet) portrays the Valkyrie as early-'60s screen-cake, Meryl Streep and Sharon Tate meeting in a negligee and sharing a transistor. Good art, shows talent — drag record, shows hand (itchy). Dull disco for dull people.

Young Sarah Brightman doesn't flaunt herself or anyone else on her sleeve, but she belongs here as an example of the type of thing ornaments get up to when they make their own records — considerably better than the men who use 'em, that's what. Mind you, Sarah has her own problems in the interior decorating department. Without that perved troupe of blacks and blondes to slither about behind her as she sings on TV, can this painfully-punned disco comedy follow 'Starship Trooper' into the chart? Things with half as much 'artistic merit' — 'Keep On Dancing' by Gary's Gang. 'Don't Stop Me Now' by Queen, anything by Sham 69 — manage to.

Meanwhile, Monks — nice legs, shame about the record.

BILLY JOEL: Until The Night (CBS).

Billy Joel must be one of the most unappetising personalities to emerge in years — which is to say, he is not offensive, he is not untalented — he is just unglamorous. Like all musically unglamorous people he sings about real situations in unreal, sterile ways, smoothing his unpleasant path into the public heart. He's so clean and tepid, singing about how sordid and vital the streets are these days. To match the suit, his voice has undergone a startling shift from shrill Manilow bitching to butch Martino simpering.

"I'll have my fears like every man / You'll have your tears like every woman." Shoot, a bit of really sensitive stereotyping there, Billy, that's what the team likes!

You know those silly, huge production jobs where people try to do a Spector and end up as the last word in blowsiness? Yes, so does Billy, intimately. We've got John Miles to support — can't America look after Joel without any help?

KEVIN COYNE: I'll Go Too (Virgin).

Great, another sensitive chap who still manages to be one of the lads. Kev writes plays about hard-core criminals, so it doesn't really matter that he sings like Worzel Gummidge, couldn't carry a tune if he presented with a ready-made one, has no sex appeal and doesn't sell records by the million. What are you, man, upright or something, not liking Kevin who's so deep?

"Little white hands in the atomic night / The face of the future so clear and bright." If that is how a sensitive person writes, please God let me be the most thick-skinned, nasty person on earth. "Come round my house, we'll have some fun / You can dance on the table and fire your gun." Or a robot, or anything that's not sensitive.

Gosh, when I listen to something as "warm" and "natural" as Kevin Coyne, I begin to see why people get kinky about Kraftwerk and that.

DON RAY: Got To Have Loving (Polydor).

Gorgeous brassy disco record which does more swooping than a culture over a Palestinian refugee camp, a gorgeous tune that you've known forever, twitchy, torchy entertainment — the best thing and the furthest disco distance since and from Gloria Gaynor's current ruler, though it too has those finger-pointing, preachy lyrics that disco dictates so naturally.

Continues over page

"Love and only love can solve our problems": at what point does this Rasta metalanguage degenerate into empty sloganeering? Is Fred Locks' 'Love And Only Love' (Tribes Man, 12") a genuine attempt to confront reality, or is it a neat sidestep, allowing reality to pass him by unscathed?

Search me, chum, I forgot to listen to the words, but it did strike me what a good record it is in every other department: dubbed-up dickiebirds, tuneless but rock-hard bass supporting the melody, and Fred's apparently committed vocal all add up to his best record, 'Black Star Liner' notwithstanding. We'll forget about the lyrics for now, eh? The reverse of my copy features, instead of the expected version, a dub cut to 'The Survivors' 'Angel Of Love', another Tribes Man 12", and a good record in its own right. Still, as the dub, with Lloydie Coxson pulling out the old equaliser on the horns, is best, I'm happy to have a copy which couples Fred and the Angel Of Love. The mistake's been rectified now, although there are probably enough copies of the faulty pressing in the shops for you to take your pick.

Prices being what they are, it's a shame that there's so little decent music around on

Fred Locks Dread

7". I quite enjoyed 'Why Do You Cry?' by Revelation (Burning Sounds), a straightforward story of confused love which isn't copped enough to deserve a Lovers' Rock tag. The perplexed bloke asks 'Why do you cry when I tell you I'm leaving you' but goes on to confess 'I'm so crazy for you'. Amiable and charming, but an essential record? Hardly, even though there are a few pleasant dub surprises tucked away on the B-side.

Also on 7", Freddie MacGregor's 'Mark Of The Beast' (Soul Syndicate) is

ROCKERS TIME

YOUR REGGAE ROUNDUP

closer to the reggae pulse, with Biblical quotations and the ghostly figure of Aleister Crowley slumped over the mixing board (the version is called 'Six Sixty Six'). After a suitably dramatic intro, Freddie makes it mystic with a warning against iniquitous Satan: 'Don't be no part of his system, I'm sure he'll make you one of his victims'. Thanks for the tip, Freddie.

Freddie's imminent album debut, it's a promising sampler, with a horn arrangement lifted from 'Satta Massa Gana' and an organ straight out of church; meanwhile Freddie strings together a few platitudes in convincing fashion. It's actually the B-side of MacGregor's version of 'Oh No Not My Baby', an over-rated song which he

Reviewed by NICK KIMBERLEY

Baroque piano and crispy horns add to the atmosphere, and our lad continues to demonstrate why he's one of reggae's few reliable men of the moment, alongside Freddie McKay, Sugar Minott and a small handful of others.

Back on 12", MacGregor pops up again with 'Third Cut (Rasta Have Faith)', an Observer production on the Observer label. Taken from treats no better than it deserves.

While Inner Circle woo the hearts and twinkling feet down at the disco with 'Everything Is Great' (Island), lead singer Jacob Miller gets back to reggae, weighing in with 'Keep On Knocking' (Joe Gibbs, 12"), which mixes a classic Gibbs rhythm with Jacob's revival of a tune he first cut for Pablo's Rockers label. With the usual Gibbs bag of tricks (someone sweeping the floor in one speaker, by the sound of it), some grumbling Clavinets, and a tuneless all-round performance, this has much the same appeal as 'Money In My Pocket'. The toasting cut (for extra sales, always feature a DJ on your discomixes) has U Brown and surplus bongos, but dispenses with the Clavinets, which would have helped a lot; while Glen Brown fans will be appalled to hear that melodica virtuoso Bubbler, star of the dub side, went to The Glen Brown Academy For Melodica. He apparently used to be a boxer — it'd help if he took off his gloves for the next session. Nevertheless he gives us a breathtaking rendition of 'This Old Man': not quite a match for Pablo's original 'Knocking Version'.

Pebb 'erd

Pablo himself is still the Discomix King; his 'East Man Sound' (Rockers) from a couple of months ago outshines everything else reviewed here, including his own more recent Rockers production: Hugh Mundell's 'That (Little) Short Man' just isn't good enough for a discomix, and only Pablo's work dubwise makes it worth a listen.

Jnr Delgado's 'Away With Your Fussing And Fighting' is much nearer the mark in every way, but again it's Pablo who provides the high spots — the dub section, called 'King David Melody', spotlights Augustus on melodica (played properly of course) over a trombone riff which recalls the best Studio One horn sections. The link between instrumental and dub is one of the clumsiest I've heard, but don't let it spoil the fun.

Tough Tosh

Derrick Harriott has taken to reissuing his vintage productions (like Scotty's 'Sesame Street' and Dennis Brown's 'Silhouettes') on 12", an eccentric habit which should be encouraged. Best so far is the Keith And Tex (Move And Groove label): the A-side has 'Stop That Train' and 'Tonight', two of the best rock steady performances neatly spliced together (take note, Pablo!); while on the other side the lads give us 'Leaving On The Train', almost as good, and a redundant cover of the Tams' 'What Kind Of Fool?'. Like the Impressions, the Tams were revered by rock steady singers, but this isn't one of the best versions of their songs. Never mind, the other three are essential and well worth forking out for if you haven't got them in the collection already.

Bragging his way through 'I'm The Toughest' (Studio One re-issue), Peter Tosh addresses the rude boys: 'Don't be no fool, do as you are told' — whose side is he on? I can't tell, but he had me quaking in my boots in contrast to his new version on Rolling Stone Records. The original (slightly re-mixed here) is ska on the point of changing into rock steady; the new version is nothing whatsoever, probably not even a hit.

SIOUXSIE AND THE BANSHEES NEW SINGLE THE STAIRCASE

D&amp;R

REGGAEMATIC CHARTS

PRE-RELEASE 7"

- 1 ANTI APARTHEID ..... Peter Tosh (Solomnic)
- 2 PRESSURE ROCK ..... Captain Sinbad / Sugar Minott (Youth Promotion)
- 3 NAW GO A FUNERAL ..... Prince Ali (Joe Gibbs)
- 4 POPE PAUL DEAD ..... Trinity (Thompson Sound)
- 5 RUB A DUB STYLE ..... Ranking Michigan (Studio One)
- 6 McDONALD ..... Prince Mohammed (Music House)
- 7 BARBER SALOON ..... Mickey Dread (Black & White)
- 8 MAN TO MAN ..... Rita Marley (Tuff Gong)
- 9 I A FIELD MARSHALL ..... Peter Brogo (Cry Tuff)
- 10 STOP THEM COMING AND COME ..... Ranking Joe (Highnote)

Chart supplied by DADDY KODOL RECORDS, 94 Dean Street, London W1

SINGLES CONTD.

From previous page

Don Ray (who wrote this with Ceramel) has a shouty white rock voice that under other circumstances might prove unbearable. Here it just melts into everything else and seems essential.

Disco is very over-rated these days, but why I like it is that approximately every three weeks a great disco single enchants men, whereas rock ones only do it about every two months. Disco, for all its image of cold calculation, rushes in again and again where rock would fear to flaunt and exhaust itself. Disco doesn't keep people hanging about, whereas rock seems to have gone back to only serving those who sit and wait for it.

M. Pop Muzik M Factor (MCA).

Ah, the page's last playpen — Modern! Moderne, to be brief and brutal, is basically people who want to be cool but can't be, so they work at being COLD instead. See? I was expecting something weird, or at least dat dere disco dat dese clever white folk do — instead it's some old hippie watching Star Trek with the sound turned down, playing old Roky records and reading... mmm... Spinoza or some equally trendy Now Philosopher For Silty Stylists — all this while posing like David on the cover of 'Low'.

Chin up, M! Didn't you know that the great thing about being a failure is never having to say you're a has-been? Excuse me while I freeze you out, young moderns, but I'm just not nice to people who don't fill my fun quota.

"DUM DUM dum diddy diddy dee dee dee diddy dum diddy diddy dee..."

Jonathan Richman is giving an interview.

"Dum dum dum diddy diddy dee dee dee diddy dum diddy diddy dee..."

Jonathan has been asked about his views on nuclear power, because he's wearing a badge opposed to nuclear power. This is his reply.

"Dum dum dum diddy diddy dee dee dee diddy dum diddy diddy dee/No folks, I don't want no nuclear power plants/in my-y-y-y life."

That's the chorus of Jonathan's song about nuclear power plants. This is one of the verses:

"I'm sure that there's many a grannie or grannie-pa in New Hampshire and Vermont/Who know at a glance that these little plants are not really what they want."

When Jonathan Richman plays this song later to a crowd of several hundred students at Sussex University, they laugh admiringly at that particular verse. Naturally, they also sing along to the chorus. It's unavoidable.

Jonathan Richman is playing a solo tour of Britain. Just him and a couple of guitars. Sometimes he sings without either of the guitars. Sometimes, he walks away from the microphone and sings without that, too.

At Sussex University, Jonathan played and sang for about two hours, and that included seven — maybe eight — encores.

People who think Jonathan Richman is crazy are crazy. He's inspired. For the first few songs, there were students standing at the back making smart sophisticated remarks to one another about how silly, how naive, how twee Jonathan was. By the end of the show, they were singing along and stamping their feet.

"To me," says Jonathan, "sophistication and gael have a lot in common."

I've just said to Jonathan that a lot of people feel the need to adopt a sophisticated pose, but he doesn't. Why's that?

"I tell you why — I don't bother," he says. "In fact, I'm getting better at not bothering. I'm aware of pressures to make one bother. I try and stop it whenever I can."

"I don't think it's healthy. I don't think that does anybody any good, least of all me. I think it's like having chains."

"If you worry too much about what other people gonna think, how much fun can you have? Be you adult or child."

"People feel they have to be cool. In the record business, it's extreme. Everybody's worried. Is this the right jacket to wear? Is this the right kind of leather to have your jacket made out of? Is this the right this and that? What an imprisonment!"

"Are these people really your friends, if they're gonna look at you funny just because of a slight deviation like that? Where's the freedom in that? There's no freedom in that."

JONATHAN has gone to the University of Sussex via an early evening commuter train from London to Brighton. In among the city gents, he stood up for half the journey as there was no seat.

At Brighton, he gets off the train with his guitar case in one hand and a bottle of apple juice in his other hand. In the station, he pauses to take off his sweater, and says "excuse me" when he reveals his stomach and chest. In the station car park, he briefly does some windmill arm exercises as he waits to get in the car. Also, he sings to himself.

I understand, Jonathan, that you've already played a gig this afternoon?

"Yes, it was a secret gig."

A record company bash?

"No."

What then? Is it really a secret?

"No, it's not really a secret. I'm just not saying. It was just a bunch of friends."

In fact, it turns out — though Jonathan doesn't say so — that he's been performing for the kids at Great Ormond Street Hospital. Just the man to do it.

A lot of people would think Jonathan's songs are deliberately

Dum dum dum diddy diddy diddy dee dee dee dee

PIE: LILIANE VITTORI

The above is JONATHAN RICHMAN'S view on nuclear power. And he doesn't mince his words on racism either — 'Dum dum diddy diddy dee dee'. Straight out with it, no holds barred. BOB EDMANDS got every word down on tape.

childish and naive. Would they be right, Jonathan?

"No."

Well, you seem to sing songs about bees going buzz-buzz. That kind of thing.

"What's naive about bees?"

Well, you don't seem to sing about the things that are the normal concerns of adults.

"What are the normal concerns of adults?"

Don't you know what the normal concerns of adults are, Jonathan?

"No, I don't know. I'd have to meet an adult first, then I'd tell you."

Why do you succeed with university audiences?

"For the same reason that I succeed with non-university audiences."

And that is?

"They like it."

ANYONE WHO thinks Jonathan Richman is naive is naive. His songs have great emotional impact. His words and his melodies are subtle and witty. You really need to see him perform to understand.

Jonathan used to have a group called The Modern Lovers. Together, they produced an all-time great single called 'Roadrunner' which many people considered to be an ultimate rock'n'roll statement.

Then Jonathan and The Modern Lovers turned themselves into an acoustic band, thus bewildering the rock critics but pleasing the general public. The instrumental tune 'Egyptian Reggae' was an even bigger hit than 'Roadrunner'.

"It outsold 'Roadrunner' by two to one," says Jonathan. "The trouble with rock critics is that they think too much. Let me tell you, I know. I used to be a rock critic. It takes one to know one."

You never theorise about your music?

"If I do, it's probably a mistake. Sometimes I do, but it's a dumb idea."

So it has to be instinctive?

"I don't know. I can't say that."

In theory, it's crazy that Jonathan Richman has gone solo and sometimes sings without a guitar or a mike. In practice, you can't really hear where on earth an electric band would have fitted into his repertoire.

"I thought people would be disappointed that I'm on my own," he says. "But no one was. People sing along — without my saying anything — not one or two at a time, but in big, giant groups. Some people dance."

At Sussex University the audience sang along to Jonathan's song about an ice-cream man. He played the song through once. Then played the chorus on its own, maybe four or five times.

Each time, the crowd sang along cheerfully, then applauded madly, and called for him to do it again. Finally, he decided to go on to another song, but he needn't have. The words are something like this:

"Well ice cream man, please ring your chimes / On this pretty afternoon so fine. Well ice cream man, you're now upon my block / I love your chimes, they reel and they rock."

Jonathan's music overflows with the spirit of the best '50s and '60s pop music, and his great gift is for melodies — whether ones he's written himself, or other people's that he's made his own.

At the sound-check, but not at the gig, he sings a tune that's one of the catchiest in his repertoire:

"When you think you're ready / Come on down to Crazy Eddy / The man who's got everything in stereo sound / His audio selection / Will meet with your perfection / And he's got the lowest prices around."

Jonathan heard that song on the radio in New York. He likes it so much, he sang it half-a-dozen times at the sound check, and the way he sings it it's one of the funniest stanzas ever written.

During the sound-check Jonathan has to deal with a hippie in an Afghan coat who says he's a student radio reporter and will Jonathan give him an interview, please?

Racism is apparently a hot topic at Sussex University, where they get excited about such things in their academic way.

The hippie says to Jonathan: "If I ask you whether you oppose racism, and you just say 'yes', would that be all right?"

Jonathan wrinkles his nose at that: "That's kind of a pointless question, isn't it? I mean, who's gonna say 'no' when you ask them whether they oppose racism? It's kinda dumb to expect me to say 'no' when you ask me whether I oppose racism."

Still, the hippie persists and asks the question when the tape is running. Jonathan just says "of course" he opposes racism, and then answers the question about nuclear power plants with his song.

The hippie looks pleased and overwhelmed and rushes off, perhaps to teach one of his classes.

The gig itself is advertised as "Jonathan Richman and The Modern Lovers", a disconcerting blunder. But why does Jonathan like being a solo performer?

"I'm naked!"

Why do you want to be naked?

"I like it!"

Isn't it scarier?

"Yes, but it's scarier in a way I like."

IN MANY WAYS the success of Jonathan Richman is a triumph for the notion of the natural man. No pretence at sophistication, no stage trappings, no band, sometimes no guitar, sometimes no mike. Just Jonathan and his songs. There's the lingering suspicion that his public personality is a pose, an affectation. Maybe it is, but the whole performance is carried out in such a brave, generous-spirited manner that the question becomes purely academic.

EVER HEARD the one about the bloke trying to write a feature on a group lead by a black Irishman? The joke has no punch-line, because more often than not, trying to produce a strong perceptive article on Thin Lizzy is a frustrating, sometimes pretty much pointless task.

Not that that should generally — or genuinely — be the case mind you. Lizzy have been in the rock writers' thumbs-up list ever since 'The Boys Are Back In Town' and the excellent 'Jailbreak' suddenly unveiled on we jaded, elitist buggers the true clout of a band previously bucked and spurned for their work and image by the press.

Three years back and things suddenly changed, jettisoned primarily by said single and album, both great '70s classics and as relevant to 'Anarchy In The UK', as 'C'Mon Everybody' in terms of the sheer epic joyous rock action hyperdrive.

Since then the flood-gates have opened and the band have been regularly counted by the media through three subsequent albums, gargantuan bouts of touring and even a recent line-up change.

Features, however, have tended to fall into categories, centering their substance (or lack of same) around Phil Lynott's loquacious manner, his 'Jack The Lad' modern Don Juan predilections and the generally held fact that he's an all-round sort. Results, with the marked exception of Chris Salewicz's excellent in-depth study of Lynott some 18 months back, covering four pages of his very paper, have all too often been genial, insubstantial, cocky, facile, pointless.

Not that Lizzy themselves don't help these tedious enterprises. They (and/or their managers) are well into sending reporters out into foreign parts for a good story. America has seen more than a few OK rock journalists on the gravy train with the band, for example — but again often to little avail with the old Lizzy stereotypes, with everything from Lynott's gift of the gab to former Lizzy guitarist Brian Robertson's volatile nature in action dutifully wrung out.

My shot at the Lizzy story caused the PRs and managers on the case to do the whole all-expenses-paid number and fly me to Paris where the band were at the point of finishing up recording and mixing the forthcoming 'Black Rose' album. The very fact that 'Rose' was the first TL studio album to be worked up in some 18 months, since the release of 'Bad Reputation', was cause enough for a check-out, not to mention the addition to the ranks of Gary Moore replacing Brian Robertson making for added human interest material.

Unfortunately circumstances — principally timing, and the ever-beckoning finger of Persian night life pleasure-seeking — caused my two-day sojourn with the band to be something of a failed mission in terms that have arguably as much to do with my own lack of discipline in such contexts as anything else.

Throughout the weekend stay, the band were extremely affable, readily forthcoming — but somehow circumstances conspired to avoid granting a good context for the soul-searching rap/interview that I was after.

Instead I elected to observe what is in effect a new group, clocking

Who're those blokes with Nick Kent...? L-R: Gorham, Kent, Lynott, Moore, Downey. Pic: CHALKIE DAVIES

the individuals and the human chemistry at work. It needed no penetrating intellect to grant me proof positive of a much-improved, four-sided relationship currently at work.

Lynott himself is in fact in a state of well-founded elation at this current set-up and doesn't hedge on the issue of Brian Robertson's departure.

"It had simply reached the point where 'Robbo' was more trouble than he was worth. It was even down to him refusing to listen to play-backs of his solos, he'd become so arrogant about his worth. That, plus the fact that there was always this tension, this really grim weight of concern around the time we were about to set out on a real important tour — the American tour for example — just praying that he'd be in control enough not to end up doing something stupid like smash his hand up in some dumb fight down at the Speakeasy."

"In fact, you asked me earlier whether Lizzy, in their pre-'Jailbreak' days, ever reached a point where we seriously felt like knocking it on the head 'n' all. Well not really — and certainly not in the sense that I later experienced when Robbo broke his hand just before a US tour and I really felt... Christ, well what's the point. That was far closer to the bone."

SO... NO amicable break-up stories fronting the 'unofficial' truth, although no grudges appear to remain and the old corporate still see each other socially.

In Robertson's place Gary Moore comes as a definite plus to the enterprise. A former rough-houser, a nasty scar permanently embellishing his lower cheek and tapering off close to the chin stands out as a vivid reminder of his days as the feisty young guitar hero with Skid Row and mid-period Lizzy. The forces of temperance and discipline, however, have caused the guitarist to drop all immature cockiness of yore and, as well as, improving his playing no end, Moore provides a sturdy, reliable quarter for the others to work off.

As for the others, Gorham, despite having the kind of brazen, all too obvious, good looks that instinctively make one suspicious of him and ready to down right dislike him, disarms those preconceptions almost instantaneously by being a regular, personable soul, and a good drinking partner with his candid reminiscences of the Old Los Angeles days when his desire for getting high got all too close to him becoming nailed to a junkies' existence, built on four years of pretty solid abuse involving narcotics and barbiturates 'until I realized that I was getting too damn close and had to clean my act pretty damn quick."

Brian Downey, drummer from the outset, isn't often regarded as an 'arbiter' of good copy by the media which is stupid considering he's no dullard and has been the backbone of Thin Lizzy since the very beginning. Downey spent the previous year checking his proverbial bearings, a task that involved dropping out of one American tour due to a firm desire to sit this one out and gather his resources for the pacing involved in this year's onslaught.

AND THEN of course there is Lynott, a perfect Flann O'Brien rock'n'roll character (were O'Brien to have penned his marvellous works in a contemporary context), a disarmingly generous, big-hearted, sly, powerful personality whose current elation revolves around the fact that he firmly believes that his band, in the context of hard rock and heavy metal, have no real rivals either here or in the U.S. and that 1979 will find the Lizzies playing Joshua to U.S. mass acceptability's Wall of Jericho.

A new deal with Warner Bros — 'Live And Dangerous' was the first work released under the terms of the deal — augurs well for this detente, and all hopes are pinned on 'Black Rose' to provide the dynamite with a solid, assiduously planned assault of the Americas (not the recently completed tour of the South supporting Nazareth which was chosen (a) to acquaint themselves to Southern audiences hitherto unswayed of Lizzy, and (b) as a warm-up shot for the up-coming European gambit shortly to be commenced.)

It was when I returned from Paris all too aware that I'd failed to glean enough grit to flesh out a piece, that I instigated a second encounter session with the band, and Lynott in particular — at this point attending to the final details of the mix and track running order with a bearded, austere professional Tony Visconti at Good Earth Studios.

And here, unfortunately, comes the rub, because now I'm able to hear the finished product pumping out of the speakers I realise that the work is not the masterpiece Lynott believes it to be.

In fact, after numerous plays, I can only conclude that 'Black Rose' is nothing more than another 'Thin Lizzy album', certainly no greater than 'Johnny The Fox' or 'Bad Rep', and depressingly bereft of anything that can lift it above the gash and thunder that will always make Lizzy a worthwhile band to check out.

No, 'Black Rose' is eminently listenable to those already enamoured with the enterprise, but it fails to break any new ground. The 18-month sabbatical has provided nothing more than a new variation on the same damn themes.

Thus 'Do Anything You Wanna' boasts great Gary Glitter type drums impeccably recorded, but the song structure itself is nothing new, and the lyrics nothing to write home about. Similarly 'Got To Give It Up', 'Toughest Street In Town', 'Get Out Of Here' and the single 'Waiting For An Alibi' serve up lusty, fist-fuck tight rock action but little to provide firm proof of new directions.

Only two numbers deviate particularly from the norm. The first is a ballad, 'My Sarah', the second, the album's touted piece de resistance, 'Black Rose' itself. 'Sarah', a Moore/Lynott ballad, is destined to be an enormous AM hit in the States, brimming as it does with an exquisite prettiness and a brilliant acoustic/electric blend-in guitar glissando from Moore.

'Black Rose', however, is a touch worrisome. The song itself is Lynott's most full-blown anthem yet to his Irish heritage, replete with amazingly adept guitar run-throughs of 'Danny Boy', 'Go Lasse Go', traditional Scottish jigs and an American folk song tossed in as well (spotlighting the Irish, Scottish, and USA origin of Lizzy's protagonists) and climaxing with a clumsily conceived run down of Ireland's finest, from Yeats, Joyce and Beahan to George Best and Van Morrison, concluding not unnaturally with Lynott himself referring to 'Whiskey In The Jar' and 'Playboys Of The Western World'.

I have few doubts that 'Black Rose' will be the first album since 'Jailbreak' to receive a real critical drubbing — mainly for the reasons stated above but also because of songs like, say, 'S & M', a well-structured rocker with lyrics meant to parody the whole daft ritual but ending up far too ambiguously and failing to state just exactly what Lynott feels about the subject — choosing to be coy instead of dogmatic.

Talking about the album Lynott maintains his sense of pride and confidence in what he's putting out, but beneath that spirit of quasi-arrogance one comes face to face with a peculiar, somewhat contradictory figure.

Here is a man, after all, whose proudest achievement was to have a book of his lyrics published as a slim volume of poetry, but who adamantly counters — "I long ago gave up trying to be Bob Dylan." More to the point, Lynott himself, I believe, hasn't come to terms with his creative potential as a songwriter — certainly not in terms of the songwriter spotlight in 'Jailbreak'.

The latter album suggested that if Lynott got totally to grips with his muse he could be as forceful, passionate and eloquent as Bruce Springsteen. But whereas Springsteen now writes from the soul, having, with 'Darkness On The Edge Of Town', stripped away all the jive street characters and bogus rock dreams in order to make honest statements, Lynott seems forever locked inside the archetypes he has created — with 'Black Rose' ultimately

Continues page 50

THE BOYS ARE BACK ON VINYL

NICK KENT wangles a trip to Gay Paree for an earful of the new THIN LIZZY album 'Black Rose'. Here's his report from the aural frontier.

BEYOND VOOD AND EVIL

FIRST SINGLE ADN 29
AVAILABLE ON 7" & 12"

338

31ST CHELTENHAM
TOWN HALL (+ ALTERNATIVE LINTON KWESI)
+ MANICURED 2015

woodrow

The Boys From Brazil

Directed by Franklin J. Schaffner
Starring Gregory Peck, Laurence Olivier and James Mason (ITC)

Serious entertainment or cheap thrills? Don't ask me, I'm still flipping the coin... Ira Levin (on whose best-seller this film is based) sure gives good thrills enough. He has a tenacious grasp of exactly what combination of skeleton and closest bangs the biggest gong. Like Rosemary's Baby before it, The Boys From Brazil seizes the fast-beating heart of popular paranoia and pumps it up to bursting point. Baby served an almost masochistically nauseous meal of witchcraft and demonic possession, whereas The Boys swings a two-edged blade: on one side, sinister gaggles of ageing Nazis in Paraguay; on the other, human genetic engineering (or, if you prefer, cloning).

Only a fool could fail to make good with Levin's material, and director Schaffner is obviously no fool. Even if it doesn't twitch as many nerve-ends as Roman Polanski's film of Baby, The Boys is hardly easy viewing, especially in its final stages. The film cuts and chops busily across the world, tracking its main protagonists through Europe, North and South America. The extent and lunatic purpose of the Fourth Reich conspiracy in question only emerges after several washes of blood, mostly.

Veteran good guy Gregory Peck turns the other — now rather puffy — cheek to wear swart white suits and play the abominable Dr Josef Mengele, a renegade Nazi 'scientist' responsible for all manner of hideous human experiments at Auschwitz concentration camp. He's unpleasantly convincing in the role.

Meanwhile Laurence Olivier, recently seen playing a Mengele-type character in Meridian Man, also shuffles his deck to become decrepid

Gregory Peck comes over all unnecessary in The Boys From Brazil.

Nazi-hunter Ezra Lieberman. He's superb, balancing the pathos of bumbling senility against fierce pragmatism and unrelenting determination to bring war criminals to book. James Mason, forever on call for German officer studies, brings his usual professionalism to the part of Colonel Seibert, but is simply under-used.

And so it all goes until the world has to decide what to do with 94 little Hitlers. Nick Lowe and Elvis Costello excepted, any offers, anyone?

But despite the film's inherent strengths, I came away confused, suspecting that the brew Levin has stirred here boils alarmingly towards the vicarious.

Levin's a painstaking writer and lends his characters more depth than they (perhaps) deserve, but there's an unwelcome air of sheer sensationalism about The Boys' plot that seems more actively distasteful than passively detached. Maybe the exiled Nazis in Paraguay and elsewhere are always hatching weird schemes to re-establish themselves in power — they certainly enjoy more than their share of tacit support from the various dictatorships across the sub-continent — and maybe they're not.

Whichever, The Boys struck me as somehow revelling in the very fact that these mass-murderers had survived at all. Even the incredibly unpleasant end meted out to Mengele fails to justify the show of interest in his activities. The moot point is made clearly enough by Mengele when he remarks that his megalomaniac plan will succeed, if only because 34 years after his death there's still an inordinate amount of interest in Hitler.

The Boys, you see, is ultimately 'irresponsible.' I'm on very slippery ground (and I'm sure I've got no more time for the Mary Whitehouses of this world than you have), but the film refuses to define its — or, for that matter, any — 'morality.'

There are neither heroes nor villains here. Maybe that makes The Boys a quintessentially contemporary film. However, I'm afraid I just happen to believe that, although by no means unique in modern history, the monstrous inhumanities committed by the Nazis should even now be roundly condemned as precisely that: an extreme example of man's inhumanity to man. I resent the fact that The Boys passes no judgment on characters and events that I think should be judged.

The Boys is actually a very good film in purely cinematic and dramatic terms. But it still, to paraphrase De Niro in The Deer Hunter, says "This and this and that is that," shrugs and leaves it there. I wasn't asking for any self-righteous propaganda against Nazism, just some tacit acknowledgement that yes, so much of what the Nazis did was — and remains — criminal in the widest sense of the term.

On this point The Boys' silence is deafening and infinitely disturbing.

Angus MacKinnon

California Suite

Directed by Herbert Ross
Starring Richard Pryor, Jane Fonda, Michael Caine and Alan Alda (Columbia)

Who would have thought so many would have been here? They keep appearing all through this undistinguished structure in twos and fours, sliding through the plastic premises of Neil Simon's latest off-Broadway superimposition for Da Movies.

California Suite? It seems to be some very extensive museum, a place of cold-stored caricatures and new perspectives on — not new perspectives on — old clichés that generate like living tissue. Though if it does grow toward some shape, those here inside can't see it. California Suite merely injects eight grammes of international box office appeal into a hopelessly beached stageplay, meandering along predictably predictable lines: the misanthropy of monogamy. Arriving at punch-lines takes, on average, more manoeuvring than a Sherman three-point-turning in a taxi rank, and is marginally less subtle.

Everybody has a fair share of the script — 'I was naughty all yesterday' 'Not with me you weren't' 'You'll just have to learn to turn up on time' — but only Fonda delivers with any level of characterisation beyond below-average sit-com. Even there, it's just too obvious, ol' Jane stereotyping away as wise-ass NY divorcee. The bureaucracy of bitchin'.

It comes as little surprise to find California Suite is this year's Royal Film. Another 'Lifestyle' film produced by a pantheon and consumed by a passive public: seductive, exclusive and aesthetic, for the maintenance of its maintenance.

Ian Penman

Eraserhead

Written and Directed by David K. Lynch
Starring John Nance and Charlotte Stewart (Mainline)

These days, a horror film that doesn't rely on nauseating pigments and pig's blood thrown up in the wake of some unspeakable devilry is a rare event indeed. But then, to label Eraserhead a horror film would be a dishonour to a genuinely strange and sinister screen experience.

In the year or so since the film first appeared on the U.S. flea-pit circuits it has won an enviable word-of-mouth reputation among the late-night cult crowd. Whatever notoriety the film has — and it now has plenty — was achieved solely through that, since the independent shoe-string production left no spare cash around to grease the usual film promotion wheels.

Inescapably, it's a product of vision and dedication — written and directed over a period of almost four years by David Lynch on sets built from scratch in an empty loft, financed by an American Film Institute grant.

And inescapable is the operative word. Eraserhead lingers in the mind like a skulking half-recalled nightmare, such is its deeply disturbing effect.

The cinematography that conjures this eerie reality is never less than totally compelling: a black and white

STRAVINSKY · SCHUBERT · HEAR THE PICTURES - SEE THE MUSIC · BACH · PONCHIELLI · BEETHOVEN · STRAVINSKY · DUKAS · AKSGROSS

NOW!
IN FULL
STEREO
WALT DISNEY'S
FRANTASY
THE ULTIMATE EXPERIENCE

ODEON HAYMARKET
TELEPHONE 930 2738
3 Performances Daily at 1.45 5.00 8.15. Late Night Show Fri. & Sat. 11.20. All Seats Bookable

ONCHIELLI · BACH · BEETHOVEN · TCHAIKOVSKY · SCHUBERT · MOUSSORGSKY

He sold his soul for rock n' roll.

BRIAN DE PALMA'S
PHANTOM OF THE PARADISE AA

Music by PAUL WILLIAMS
WEIRD... OUTRAGEOUS!

THE ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW AA

STARTS THURSDAY MARCH 29
GATE TWO CINEMA - RUSSELL SQUARE
Tel: 837 8402 837 1177

"And they thought the Nazis were weird..." John Nance in Eraserhead.

American Gothic in the tradition of Val Lewton's pulp horror flicks of the '40s such as The Cat People and I Walked With A Zombie — although film buffs will no doubt also make comparisons with the earlier German cinema in the light (or shadow) of Eraserhead's obvious and very powerful surrealism.

Yet the film's content is much more than simply surreal (and therefore at times perversely humorous). It captures the mood and logic of dreams, as if Lynch had actually plucked those small hours from the mind of the dim-witted Henry (John Nance) and transferred them wholesale onto celluloid.

If Eraserhead's immediately confused and confusing it's because Henry himself has the barest grip on his self and his existence. Like a character from a Pere Ubu song, trousers three inches too short and jacket buttoned too tight at the chest, Henry's world has him perpetually stymied.

And when this hapless protagonist becomes the victim of evolution gone wildly off the rails, all he can do is view the event with mute idiotic curiosity. When the mutant infant's night-time wailing starts to invade the sanctity of Henry's dreams, he just retreats even further. Until there's nowhere left to retreat.

Eraserhead, in the most original manner, made me feel as if I'd had too much to dream one night. I could almost touch the clammy sheets.

Paul Rambali

Brass Target

Directed by John Haugh
Starring John Cassavetes,
George Kennedy and Sophia Loren
(CIC)

Easily the dumbest and most implausible 'war' movie since Operation Crossbow — funny, Sophia Loren was in that too — Brass Target's surface sheen, all snappy '70s telephoto visuals, is absurdly at odds with its '40s melodramatic script (give or take a few mild epithets) and its '50s Cold War paranoia: George Kennedy's excruciatingly blustering General Patton mugs as remorselessly as his tiresomely cartoon Russian opposite.

What we're supposed to believe is that some naughty American quite-high-ups are planning to cover up their theft of the Reichsbank gold reserve by assassinating

George (Patton and Kennedy) ingenious? Not really, and when the 'baddies' are led by Robert Vaughn (another of his weaselly homosexual portrayals) you know everything will be cocked up, so to speak. Matters are complicated by the arrival of Max Von Sydow's urbane hitman (more doleful than ever — he, at least, must have read the script before taking part) and Ms Loren's wan mistress (just about everyone's, it transpires), suffering in a fetching line of silky underthings.

Good to bring back a bit of colour and romance to those dark days, don't you think?

Monty Smith

George Kennedy as the Brass Target marches out of Silver Screen.

Where your nightmares end...

"THE MOST ORIGINAL HORROR MOVIE IN YEARS"
— NEWSWEEK

ERASERHEAD

SCALA CINEMA (Tottenham Street) 637 9309 Prog 1.00 3.00 5.00 7.00 9.00

THE EVOLUTION OF # JOURNEY

"Evolution is a flowing, full sounding, immaculately constructed album..."

Geoff Barton—SOUNDS

Tracks include: City of Angels
Loving You Is Easy Just the Same Way

83566

Also available on cassette

Produced by Roy Thomas Baker

PSIOUXDSIE'S CORNER

Scene 1: Into The Commercial Zone!

MOVEMENT along these passages is without friction, skipping and rapid, often headlong, as if on perfect rock 'n' roller skates. Parts of the long galleries are open to the public. There are certain positions to sit in and watch the ascents or descents, depending.

Fantastic pop music charts come by, big as pantomimes; one has to go inside and search the numberless shelves, each revealing treats sharper and more modern than the last.

The labyrinthine path turns out to have been set up deliberately to give the stranger a tour of the company. Meanwhile the inspector (myself) feels obliged, impassioned and duty-bound to turn some tables. Facts collected from previous interviews are turned into states of affairs which may or may not be the case, previous 'agreements' turned into recommendations and warnings which may be either correct and appropriate or incorrect and inappropriate. The relation of the subjects to the symbolic or imaginary is the final barrier. Beyond that...

Scene 2: The First Risk!

SIOUXSIE & The Banshees are convenient. Our conversation, ostensibly to deal with their new single 'Staircase', and their upcoming Rainbow benefit gig for the National Society for Handicapped Children, was actually a long overdue occasion for conflict. It concerned the relative claims to validity or otherwise of the criteria which support the hitherto fairly inviolate, heavy and heavily credible Siouxsie & The Banshees' image. If anything, the purpose of this article is to stress that it seems impossible to either carry out or criticise the motions and articulations of recent rock and roll independently of its political and ideological inclinations. Listen to: don't just hear.

The role of instruments, techniques, institutions, events, ideas, and interests in rock was very much changed by the New Wave. Rock and roll is healthier than it's ever been, true, but it still needs to tighten up its outputs and input, interrelations, passions and questioning. Revolutionary movements or moments such as the New Wave show the desire to rearrange organisational structures — playing, publishing, providing — and at the same time replace redundant forms of identification.

Look at: just don't see. An immense complexity characterises the appearance of the concept of control of the rock medium. A succession of different mystiques announce the presence of what appears to be a vacuum.

Scene 3: The Empiricist's New Clothes!

"Won't someone assist me? / Solve this mystery / Somebody assist me / Arrange the symmetry." ('Staircase') Siouxsie & The Banshees. 'At most, they are expected to provide evidence of a state of mind, an intellectual fashion, a mixture of archaism and bold conjecture, of intuition and blindness.'

— Michel Foucault

SIOUXSIE & The Banshees are irrelevant. Empiricism is, crudely, the belief that knowledge should be gained through observation and experiment, not through theory. Empiricism and romanticism are two boils on the seat of current beat music. Empirical argument — as provided by, for example, Siouxsie & The Banshees, The Pop Group, This Heat, Brian Eno and Danny Baker — tends toward common-sensical bias. Combined with classic romanticism, it will produce investments in Art — and with all the capital ambivalence that this both promises and affords.

But the real limits on expression must be clarified, before we're overrun. The first rule is no more biographies. Let's find out about the regularities and restraints which actually determine how something comes to be made, made public and publicly accepted as understood (even when not). What actually gives something value? What basis do the rock press generally work from to determine something's value?

Siouxsie says that "People keep picking on their own reactions as rules..." That's bad. I wholeheartedly agree. But don't you deserve it, I wonder?

In common with many of their contemporaries, Siouxsie & The Banshees like to present rock and roll as Art, and thus as something which one finds oneself, naturally, quite incapable of explaining or understanding.

The meaning of any music resides purely in the use to which a spectator puts or fails to put it. Beyond this, meaning is determined by common-sense dumb ideology or everyday commercial market forces. Rock and roll therefore has no real strength or resistance. Concerns, traditional or otherwise, simply don't escape any dominant assumptions. They can't do anything more than decorate, refine or polish already established structures.

Let's not pretend that there's no planning involved in somebody's use of restricted or elaborate kinds and codes of rock expression. Let's not pretend that any one entertainer is any more or less 'political' than another. Let's not even pretend that only a few have any chance of or interest in effecting real change.

You either sustain or you subvert. You try to control completely.

Scene 4: J'Accuse!

THE supercilious tone and mostly insubstantial content of drummer Kenny Morris' conversation suggest an ill-sorted sort of person suddenly elevated into a position where he feels he might safely lord it a bit with the ol' intellectual facade.

The equally supercilious tone and apparent desire to contribute a minimum to conversation that is guitarist Severin's particular pole, both suggest the same sort of person elevated into the same sort of position. Severin, however, feels as yet unsure quite how to lord it — although he is nevertheless determined to go ahead and do so. Rock journalists are suckers for this one: the sour, silent sage.

Basist McKay and singer Siouxsie are easily accomplished by comparison.

Provisionally, the inspector is accused by Severin of having made an 'infantile' remark; the group are evidently unconvinced by certain comparisons made in a Kate Bush album review (NME, late November '78):

'Lionheart' starts with words which could easily slot into 'The Scream': 'Blue on the walls, blue out of my mouth'; but where a Banshee might follow that up with, say 'Blood on the walls, blood out of my mouth'...

Well, I reply, in all your interviews you seem to be quite obsessed with 'control' at various stages of the music business. One of my doubts — by no means specific to you — is the amount of control exercised over meaning, by which I mean image — and aesthetic meanings. Is the music press wholly to blame, for instance, for your particular 'shock horror' image? Don't you leave yourself open to such things through ambivalent or ambiguous expression?

KM: "Yes, we do. But it's a very certain thing people pick on, time after time after time."

So don't you want to control it a little more? I recall that, for instance, in the recent ZigZag feature 'Staircase' was described as being about "unfathomable mystery". Doesn't such ambiguous nonsense invite cockeyed aesthetic judgement?

Siouxsie: "The song's just taking a very day-to-day thing, and the nature of that thing is very mysterious."

In what sense? 'Staircase' are mysterious? What do you expect people to take away from that? Siouxsie: "I want them to seem to take what they want to take from it. We've never tried to control people's reactions. It's just people who should know better."

BANSHEES (L-R): Siouxsie, Severin, McKay, Morris.

"No," cries IAN PENMAN sternly, "I insist we talk about the innate fallacies of Empirical Romanticism — or if you're really in a hurry, how about the onset of Western Stoicism?"

Scene 5: A Banshees' Privileged Insight Into Real Life!

YOU don't exist isolated within the music but structure. You're part of it. Just on a pragmatic level, you're part of the financial structures: income, outcome, profit. You're entangled in that up to your neck.

Scene 6: The Thing That Goes In Your Ear!

BUT what sort of information in or on a record do you find relevant?

KM: "The vinyl itself... what is actually on the vinyl."

The plastic object?

KM: "No, the thing that goes in your ear."

OK, what's important to put in there? What's going to alter people's day-to-day misery?

KM: "I don't say it will alter them. You do a thing, they can accept it or leave it, but it will affect them, it won't alter them. You do a thing, they can accept it or leave it, but it will affect them, it won't alter them. I'm not worried totally about completely changing people's attitudes, because I don't have that kind of faith or belief in people. All I know is it's there and it's for them to choose; they can take it or leave it."

I'd give up if I were you.

KM: "If they alter, they alter. But it'd be ridiculous to have faith in the belief that you're gonna alter masses of people. I'm not talking about little London, I'm talking about everywhere, the whole globe."

JM: "Why did you talk about

'giving up'? I mean, if I give up, this band falls to pieces. I don't give up. I don't give up creating. It comes out anyway."

But don't you think there's a danger there of subscribing to the belief that 'whatever comes out' is holy: the sanctity of the artist, the mystery of creation?

Sioux: "It's not at all a mystery of creation — if there's been a misunderstanding then there's been a back door."

But what comes out is a result of what you're effected by, and it's around everyone else."

Well, how do you think you affect people?

Sioux: "Because they're not being presented with a standard method."

It seems to me to be very much just a parallel standard method: exchanging one set of 'mysteries' for another.

KM: "They're not 'mysteries' — why is that a recurring word in this interview?"

Amh...

...mystically?

KM: "NO, they're obvious everyday things, but they're sort of themes and relations that usually lie strictly under the carpet in people's minds. Rather than write about something that's pure broad daylight, um, dole queue or whatever, there's no mystery involved."

But what change will that effect?

KM: "Change what?"

You're saying... your lyrics are pointing at things and you're hoping that people will go "Oh, yes, now I see!"

KM: "Not exactly. You can wipe that off for a start. As I said, we're not there to alter people, not exactly. We don't have enough faith — I certainly don't — in people."

'Faith in people' meaning what? You have faith in yourself — you being a person, presumably...

KM: "Of course I do. You can see our album looking glossy in the racks, along with everybody else's, and that's the way we want it — that's the way we know we're gonna get over to so many people. We want it there in the media with all the rot so that it'll shine out."

Scene 7: The Phantom In Your Living Room!

If you don't have 'faith in people', how do you expect them to see it shining out? What if they're not bright enough to perceive it?

KM: "Rubbish, no, it's there in the racks, shining to everyone else's eyes. They're not blind."

You said you didn't have faith in people.

KM: "No. Exactly. That's why, for one instance, out goes a single like 'Hong Kong Garden' which is readily accessible. People won't exactly — I'm sure — hardly anyone...

...ever apoke to understand the lyrics, or heard them, but it was a very good way of drawing people in. That person was excited enough by that single — whether it was a kid in the street or a housewife. We reached a whole range, a whole spectrum of people who would go to a record shop and buy the album."

It's there. It's in your living room. We want Siouxsie & The Banshees to be a living room name."

Just another object in the living room that no-one understands? I mean, what was Siouxsie & The Banshees a reaction against, initially?

Sioux: "A reaction towards the falseness of people maintaining that they were being very honest, expressive, uncontrived and everything — and it wasn't that, it was well thought out, well rehearsed."

Aren't you talking into the same trap? You said that the reason you didn't make your own record was because you wanted it to be 'perfect.'

Sioux: "We wanted to do it one hundred per cent."

You think, in other words, that there's some 'perfect' way of doing something?

Sioux: "The drive behind you is that you want to do something as perfectly as possible, yet always aware of the mistakes you made, and have to carry on going up."

We're by no means satisfied by what we've done. We're not smug or satisfied. We haven't really reached anywhere we think we will reach."

What are you reaching for?

Sioux: "Success."

In what terms?

Sioux: "Global terms. And in ourselves, as impressing ourselves."

JM: "I don't see the point in

...seemly drunk in terms of success. I think in terms of my satisfaction, I don't think I'm writing this tune for the Banshees to be globally successful."

Sioux: "No, I didn't say that."

JM: "You did in a way."

Sioux: "I said I want us to be, that's not the reason why I'm doing it."

JM: "Well that's what you said in answer to the question."

Scene 8: No Hum!

JM: "People can relate to records. Not even on a heavy level: to have a record that they like and can identify with — lyrics or even just the feeling put across, the sounds — is, like, a great thing to have in their lives, for just a while, until ...they get fed up with that album and need another one. It's just, um...

Production and consumption? One more sharply produced, sharply played pop record. Who needs it? (Well, I wouldn't mind a few more — Ed.)

Scene 9: It's A Free Marketplace!

AH, the index of 'freedom' as the right to aggressively

...the, vagrant expression and opinion. The right to the aggressively idle, vagrant Siouxsie & The Banshees. Once again, I ask, what is it in the grooves which is so vital?

Sioux: "For want of a better word, just, honest."

KM: "I dunno, I just think comparisons are obvious if you're going to ask a question like that. I don't know what you expect us to sit here and say to that. Other than, you know, we've got confidence in our creativity, we know one hundred percent what we want to do."

Damned if I do. Is it that you want to stick honest things in the ears of people in whom you've absolutely no faith, in the hope that they'll pick up and plug into the great, glossy, global gestalt where everything is evidently self-evidently supernatural, peeping out from under the deep pile of the collective carpet?

What a useful project!

Scene 10: Siouxsie & The Interglobal Building Society!

Nothing can stop them now, beyond... Reality.

"But can you take pictures of it?" asks PENNIE SMITH

£1.50 OFF* ALBUM

50p OFF* CASSETTE
 Evita: London Cast

£1.00 OFF* ALBUMS

50p OFF* CASSETTES
 Supertramp: Breakfast In America
 Bee Gees: Spirits Having Flown

80p OFF* ALBUMS

50p OFF* CASSETTES
 Blondie: Parallel Lines
 Tom Robinson Band: TRB Two
 Roxy Music: Manifesto
 Elvis Costello: Armed Forces
 Rod Stewart: Blondes Have More Fun
 Ian Dury: New Boots and Panties
 Lene Lovich: Stateless
 Elton John: A Single Man
 Stranglers: Live (X Cert)
 Billy Joel: 52nd Street
 Neil Diamond:
 You Don't Bring Me Flowers
 Johnny Mathis:
 Best Days of My Life
 Dire Straits

YOU'LL BE KNOCKED OUT BY W.H.SMITH'S RECORD PRICES.

WHSMITH

Branches throughout England and Wales.
 Merchandise subject to availability.

where you see this sign.

Times subject to alteration.

Offers close April 16th 1979

*Manufacturer's recommended price.

MAGAZINE Second-Hand Daylight (Virgin)

"Whatever your feelings about Howard Devoto are, they're no doubt strong" — the opening salvo of the last feature penned on the subject in these pages was no doubt earnestly conceived but... well, I just had to laugh because at that point I had absolutely no feelings for or against Devoto, his music, his lyrics, his stance in interviews, his high forehead, you name it.

'Spiral Scratch' was no startling revelation to me and 'Shot By Both Sides' left me impressed with the conclusion of its conceit without moving me to any fervent degree. Similarly, 'Real Life', the first Magazine album, had a half-baked quality to it — yes, there was potential and yes, there was master of ceremonies Devoto intoning intriguing obscurities — but there was also an overwhelming sense of the premature about the project. Magazine as a band were obviously still coming to terms with the task of mustering their full resources; the record was also badly produced, more often than not burying Devoto's voice when clarity was all important.

'Second-Hand Daylight' rectifies the latter vocal problem with a degree of success that is almost disarming. More essentially, the combination of a nine month lapse between 'Real Life' and the new album, also the fact that production duties have switched from John Lackie to one Colin Thurston, all this has given Devoto and Magazine a context in which they can provide the listener with a Grade A representation of their talents.

Howard Devoto, looking less manic than usual

Magazine's mad minstrel gains momentum

Where previously there was half-realised potential, there is now an austere sense of authority to the music. This becomes clear from the first bars of 'Feed The Enemy'. These are very 'Low'-period Bowiesque, right down to the stray saxophone bleats and lulling synthesiser chords, both of which are sublimated into the dark neo-Gothic sound to which Magazine seem so partial (the same ingredients precede the first moments of the second side as well).

And then Devoto begins the song itself. Lyrically an account of a plane crash (I think) with imagery that runs the gamut from the vivid to the obscure, the arrangement is precise, focused and ingenious. A fitting prelude, this, because it presents the all-important balance between band and front-man: the whole album goes on to establish Magazine have well and truly become a group.

'Rhythm Of Cruelty' is a slightly different take from the single: a wiry, jittery piece with Devoto at once presenting some of his better lyrics but vocally nodding a little too archly in the direction of Sparks' cuteness and even hitting at a Lydon sneer.

'Cut-Out-Shapes' continues the Sparks' vocalese, but this is Devoto's prime precinct. He wrote the music, an ominous motorik which the band enhance to a degree that gives the composition — at a guess, a paean to 'numbness' — just the right cutting edge. Both 'Talk To The Body' and 'I Wanted Your Body' provide diversity to good effect. The first is subversively 'poppy', the second has a really gripping melody courtesy of keyboardman David Formula and bassist Barry Adamson. Meanwhile 'I Wanted Your Heart' joins side two's 'Back To Nature' and 'Permafrost' as one of the album's three comparative masterpieces. 'Back To Nature' is the finest song and performance Devoto and Magazine have ever executed: Devoto finally finds his voice — terse, uncompromising instrument — and lets fly with floods of imagery that owe nothing to anyone, while Magazine match him punch for punch.

'Believe That I Understand' is Magazine-rock with a sterling chord change and Devoto again using his 'real' voice. It's a forceful performance but, sandwiched between 'Nature' and the final 'Permafrost', it tends to lose its momentum.

'As the day stops dead / At the place where we've stopped / I will drug you and fuck you / On the permafrost'

'Permafrost' owes passing nods to both Iggy Pop (lyrically and vocally) and John Barry (an old and burgeoning influence), but transcends its debts by establishing once and for all the animal known as Magazine. It's an appropriately chilling and seductive end to a strong album.

So, Farwell then, 'Second-Hand Daylight'. You've convinced me that Howard Devoto and Magazine are a force to be reckoned with. No mean feat, seeing as I dislike lyrics who tend to play coy and wallow in obscurity and as I also detect a plethora of influences peaking out of every note at times. But you've arrived and have harnessed your considerable potential to the dictates of 'professionalism' whilst still taking chances.

After all, as Devoto himself says — and I'll back him up to the hilt — "I've got to admire your ingenuity".

Nick Kent

Fear no dread inna Inglann

LINTON KWESI JOHNSON Forces of Victory (Island)

One of Britain's top policemen yesterday claimed that a 'simple, insidiously dangerous and damaging' campaign against the police was gaining momentum. Mr James Anderton, Chief Constable of Greater Manchester, told members of the South Lancashire Magistrates Association that it was being engineered by criminal factions and subversive elements... — The Observer, Sunday 18 March 1979. It was said by an NME colleague recently — in connection with Belfast group Stiff Little Fingers — that there existed a set of social/political conditions which none of us could ever 'fully comprehend', a kind of 'frustration none of us can understand'.

Without wishing to take particular issue here, with the reasons and ideas which lie behind those statements, let me just say that...

Here it is again. Here, the problem might possibly be one of a white critic dealing with a black music. It's not a question of certain 'art' transcending such considerations. 'Forces of Victory' is not a work which might have any such trustworthy 'universal' qualities ascribed to it.

'Forces of Victory' deals with specifics. Specifics you can neither ignore nor fail to understand. It deals with social articulations on a level of understanding. Linton Johnson deals with social frustration, understands the nature of that frustration, and the nature of the historical conditions which produced it and carry on doing so.

The Poet hears another Charlie Smithers joke

'This is the age of reality — so leggo mythology.'

Origin and application. Resolution and abolition. 'Forces of Victory' analyses and articulates the pride and problems of the black community in 'Great Britain today. It is both more effective and more accessible than Johnson's previous 'Dread, Beat and Blood' album. Here it is again: anger in the 'United Kingdom'.

Here, the problem might be one of the white critic dealing with sublimated personal responses to the predicament... were it not that 'Forces of Victory' is such a tight, cogent piece of work, is so rigorously structured as to make such doubts the subject of severe assessment and reconciliation.

The eight statements of 'Force of Victory' define the perspective. Critical of accepted (white) political ideology, it asks what lies behind the consensus that supports the domination, the oppression — the 'dread, beat and blood'.

Contempt is equal, whether it be for the fascist instruments of this country's Right, or the instrumental fascism of its Left. 'What a cheek, them think we meek, that we can't speak up for ourself... the SWP can't set we free / The IMG can't do it for we / The Communist party, true dem too arty farty.'

['Independent Interventions'] The almost flippancy ferocity is unquestionably justified. A persecuted, colonised community obviously does not need any more isolationist strategems or strategy, whether it originates from the inconclusive policies of the liberal mobilisation against-ism sector, or from the Conservative school of psychological crisis management — the isolation and branding of groups or 'minorities' who are held responsible for everything people feel to be wrong with society.

'Sonny's Lettch (AntiSus Poem)' is the perfect illustration, an indignant answer without trace of pity, the most painful realisation of the set: 'Sus' is short for Section 4 of the 1824 Vagrancy Act, through which police are granted the right to arrest, charge, and even convict someone for 'suspicious behaviour'. The poem takes the form of a letter written from Brixton prison back to the defendant's mother: one son detained on 'sus', the other on murder. The steadily narrated story is curled and clipped around the stealthily natural dub instrumentation, which cuts out noiselessly to leave Linton's surely spoken account of police brutality. 'Mama, I couldn't just stand up dere an do nuthin'. The letter closes with a plea for the mother not to be 'depressed or downhearted... Me 'ave good courage'.

Detention without charge is the next stop, tell you that. At every level the fight is to 'defeat the State', to defeat all the things a State allows. Chief Constable Anderton, for instance, was the man who allowed NF marches to carry on in secret. Things must be seen clearly.

At every level of 'Forces of Victory' the resistance and rebellion is calm and rational, whether it be the depersonalisation and degradation of our wonderful 19th Century liberal Welfare State in 'Want Fi Goh Rave' ('Me no goh work for no pittance / Me nah go draw dem assistance') or the hemmed-in historical legacy of 'Time Come' ('But it too late now, I did warn you... when you chuck me against the wall I did not bawl / but I did warn you').

Around every line of 'Forces of Victory' the subtle 1979 dub dynamo shadows, paces and emphasises. Dennis 'Blackbeard' Bovella's production of Rico, Dick Cuthell, Julio Finn and John Kaipye is restrained and refractory, a languid stoicism threatening splinters, a shadow walking behind the occupied foreground, Kaipye's guitar, especially, both the storm smashing the sky and the moisture seeping through the field after the rain, scales indexed to the relentless revision upfront.

The rhythms swimming through Johnson's lyrics and the musicians' playing are a familiar, traditional, real 'street' motion — upright and beyond reproach. Unlinked, sure and tense and almost arrogant, that singular identification caught in music, dress, speech, expressions — it's called ras. It's where, when, and how. It's music, message, and militancy. It's tight and inseparable, distinct, unselfishly structured. It's 'dressed in red and feelin' dread... It is designed to 'make we hold w' clarity'.

'Forces of Victory' is an album which makes you feel ashamed of (and angered, embarrassed, confused by) rock music's still surviving maintenance of insubstantial myths and hollow idols. It effectively, irresistibly gives lie to the old contention that 'chaos' is the only path toward change. That's a cop-out.

Linton Kwesi Johnson is a numbingly provocative commentator (not to mention political activist, teacher, journalist, broadcaster, and poet) who shows that what is needed is the right amount and right kinds of control. A rigorous approach does not rule out rhythm, or regulate its risk.

When Linton Kwesi Johnson sings 'Forces of victory and we're comin' right troo / We're the forces of victory now wacha's gonna do', there is nothing in his delivery which suggests revenge, power, ego, or superiority. Understanding and knowing how to assess accurately one's enemy means that one already possesses a necessary condition for victory. Understanding and knowing how to assess one's own forces...

You can take 'Forces of Victory' as a threat, a warning, a symptom, a rallying call, a reassurance, or maybe even an insult. But take it you must. It's so much more alive than anything else. It's music proper for the 'age of decision'.

It dread inna Inglann
Ien Penman

Radio Luxembourg 1979

- History of the World's Leading Commercial Radio-T.V. Network.
- News, Features and Pictures on the 208 DJs
- Radio Luxembourg Throughout Europe.
- Pop Quiz

Available from W. H. Smith bookshops or send postal order or cheque (no cash please) for £1.00 in the U.K. to:

Radio Luxembourg 1979 Handbook
38 Hertford Street
London W1Y 8 BA

Remember to print name and address in block capitals

Name .....

Address .....

Manfred's miserable masterpiece

Mr Mann makes the masses melancholic

MANFRED MANN'S EARTH BAND

Angel Station (Bronze)
While UK fans and reviewers drool over Munich disco, this is what the Germans are listening to.

Manfred's last album 'Watch' was the third biggest seller there last year. The first two (naturally) were 'Grease' and 'Saturday Night Fever'. In this country, Manfred's best known as the creator of chirpy chart singles, many of them versions of Bob Dylan songs.

His latest single, 'You Angel You', is yet more of the same, taken from Dylan's 'Planet Waves' album. As usual, it's elaborately arranged to create an illusion of simplicity.

This album's opener, 'Don't Kill It Carol', is also a jolly pop song, but both are atypical of the album as a whole.

As with 'Watch', the mood is predominantly both solemn and melancholy. Manfred clearly has an over-riding fondness for slow, understated ballads which convey their emotions through melodies and arrangements rather than their lyrics.

The outstanding examples on this set are sinister 'Angels At My Gate' and low-key love song, 'You Are—I Am', both of them original works by Mann.

The appeal of this kind of thing is undoubtedly strong. Clump on the headphones and you can make yourself quite miserable in a matter of minutes. But they love it in Norway, Henrik.

This is the last Manfred album to feature vocalist Chris Thompson. He's off to work with his own band Night (formerly Filthy McNasty) and they're being produced by Richard Perry.

After the subtleties of Mr Mann, Chris should find few challenges with Mr Perry's mainstream commercialism. But good luck to him, anyway. Bob Edmunds

VARIOUS ARTISTS

Lethal Weapons (Suicide import)

DUFFO

Duffo (Begger's Banquet)
Monty Python and Barry McKenzie have probably done irreparable damage to the image of Australian culture; but here are two records by real Australians which suggest they've only got themselves to blame.

Suicide is a small 'independent' label (distributed by RCA) — and 'Lethal Weapons' is their collection of Australian New Wave music. Unfortunately, the idea down under seems to be that New Wave means wearing dark glasses and trying to sound like The Rolling Stones.

Jab go as far as affecting a South London accent on one track, with jarringly ludicrous results. Excepting the dreadful arty pretentiousness of The Negatives, 'Lethal Weapons' is a mishmash of weak-kneed R&B and HM glam posturing. Only The Boys Next Door, with a powerful version of 'These Boots Were Made For Walking', show any promise, though even that's largely dissipated by their other contributions.

At least these groups remain in Australia. The same, alas, cannot be said of Duffo, now on the roster of the same peculiarly misanthropic record company that inflicted Ivor Biggun and The Doll upon suffering humanity. 'Duffo', however, beats all-corners in the Abysmal Garbage Stakes. It is, quite possibly, the worst record ever made in the entire history of the world.

A sort of Antipodean Jobriath-cum-Gumbie figure, Duffo mostly rips-off (or is it parodies?) David Bowie, with results that are entirely laughable without being the least funny. Apart from the facts that his voice and the music is woefully inadequate, Duffo's songwriting is not exactly a pinnacle of the pithy and perceptive.

One track consists only of the phrase Give me back me brain, while the one preceding has him gibbering I want to fuck your mind for what feels like an eternity.

I'm not sure Duffo would recognise a mind if one fell on him from a great height.

This album makes Rolf Harris seem like a musical Einstein.

Graham Lock

TOM SCOTT
Intimate Strangers (CBS)
Although Tom Scott has scored considerable

Tom Scott: believe it or not, he's dull successes with some of his earlier ventures on A&M — notably 'Tom Cat' and a series of intelligent horn arrangements for the creme de la creme of West Coast artists — his record of session piece work with all manner of stultified bananas indicates that this youthful slave driver is high on talent and low on what we metaphysicians like to term 'simple soul'.

In other words Scott has shot his saxophone bolt too many times to maintain any level of lasting credibility as a solo performer. This 'Intimate Strangers' malarkey comes replete with a sycophantic liner note courtesy of the editor on Down Beat that attempts to pull the wool on some fatuous concept scam wherein Scott, who's an ugly bugger whichever way you look at it, plays horny footsy with some floosie in the third row of the 'gig' (technical term) someplace ritzy like the Roxy in El Lay and, overjoyed at the brilliance of his brainwave, spreads it across many minutes of patronising funk jazz puree.

Assisted by a cast of thousands — including Jaco Pastorius, Hugh McCracken and the excellent Skyde Hyde — Scott bobs and weaves through a selection of tonic sol-fas and associated gook which aforesaid notes translate in terms of classic pseudery.

Hence 'Do You Feel Me Now' is a poignant ballad in which new love conflicts with the necessities of being on the road, for indeed, 'a music man is a one night stand'.

To which one can only add a heartful 'bollocks'.

Max Bell

KEN BOOTHE

20 Greatest Reggae Hits (Charmers)

Lloyd Charmers, in a display of wisdom as befits a former member of The Techniques, has assembled an agreeable selection of his work with Ken Boothe in the early '70s to present an LP that is guaranteed to soothe the most savage of incendiary breasts.

Culled from previous Boothe albums 'Black, Gold And Green', 'Let's Get It On', and 'Everything I Own', '20 Greatest Reggae Hits' is an item of consummate listening pleasure from this often underrated artist — one of Jamaica's finest singers.

Personal favourites on the set include 'Second Chance', 'Everything I Own' — one of the few good reggae records to penetrate the national chart; in fact the best — plus the plaintive 'Crying Over You', the argente revelry of 'Silver Words' (a Ninety the Observer production), and 'African Lady'.

Also of merit, Boothe's interpretation of Neil Young's 'Down By The River', in spite of its strident, overblown orchestration, and mostly because of the fierce organ accompaniment that punctuates the rhythm with periodic snarl.

Skyllarking Horace Andy is the man responsible for the classic reggae cut of 'Ain't No Sunshine', but Ken's treatment here runs it a close second; while his version of 'Is It Because I'm Black?' beats Delroy Wilson's hollow.

Some might argue that Ken Boothe's greatest performances were his rock-steady sides for Studio One in the '60s, and although the singer deployed fruitful activity at Brentford Road, I'm not too sure I would agree. Charmers is often overwrought in his productions, but the music on this set achieves a nice, relaxed consistency throughout its two crowded sides.

And anytime you are alone, put on this album for the one you love, and let it crystallise.

Penny Reel

A FACTORY SAMPLE
Joy Division, The Durutti Column, John Dowie, Cabaret Voltaire (Factory Records)

Conceived and executed by a handful of acute Mancunian idealists (Tony Wilson, Peter Saville and Alan Erasmus), 'A Factory Sample' attempts to represent the nature of performers who appear at the Russell Club, Manchester on Friday nights — The Factory.

The Factory eagerly and consistently concerns itself with staging rigorously and obstinately uncompromising modern entertainers whose music and attitude doesn't desire or pretend to be comfortable, comforting or complacent. Some pretty strange, terrible and wonderful people have been known to play there. "It's nonsense really" is the Factory motto and "some of it's not" is its aside.

Factory Records' first release is a nine track double EP sampler of acts and entertainers who have been associated with the club, smartly packaged in shimmering silver, the design a tender, indulgent situationist parody. Factory Records joke as much as they poke. They are not pretentious, they are affectionate.

None of the acts on "Factory Sample" complement each other — the listener doesn't feel they should — and angles and ideas jut out all over the place. Four compartments. Four noises. For anyone.

Compartment one — aside — Joy Division: Two patient, intent pieces, "Digital" and "Glass", their structure subtly suppressed, drily and dully produced by Martin Zero. Two blurred depictions of desperation and desolation, the missing link between Elvis Presley and the Banshees. The drive and decisiveness, the separation and interaction of each instrument, their unusually supple positions (high bass, drums to the front, meandering guitar) and life deep, round vocals will surprise those whose knowledge of Joy Division is limited to their sluggish EP and their dire "Electric Circus" contribution. More proof of Division's intelligent development. How much longer before an aware label will commit themselves to this individual group?

Compartment two — beside — the Durutti Column: Two rough, restless examples of an ambitious music the group spent many months attempting to perfect before splintering and all but disintegrating in the latter few months of last year. An uneasy, fluctuating blend of the extreme atmospheres and differing shapes and patterns of dub and psychedelia. Produced with restraint by Martin Zero and Laurie Latham.

Compartment three — seascapes — John Dowie:

in their thousands to get loose and judge bare tit contests. They call themselves Ignoroids and they call their women Tuna. Rolling Stone called them the generation that fetched onto the counter-culture too late to realise it was all over anyway.

They like Deep Purple, Led Zeppelin, Bad Company and the rest of the honcho heroes almost as much as they like to eat tuna.

They like Van Halen. How could they fail to like a band that sound like everything you always heard about early '70s rock but didn't think anyone would fall for after all these years... rolled into one loud, lurid frenzy of block chords, booming bass bins, bumps, grinds and shrieks.

One British music paper's readers poll voted Van Halen the best new (sic) band of '78, whilst in America they are a mere platinum disc away from stadium-scale stardom. That they will be big is spelled out by the logoisation of their name — always a good move in the dinosaur league... you can see it on denim or print or paraphernalia... helps people identify.

Ignoroids identify with Van Halen because they celebrate the most basic rock 'n' roll fantasies (in the most basic of musical mediums), the freedom of the road ("Light Up The Sky" and "Dutty Love Again"); the license to get loose indefinitely ("Somebody Get Me A Doctor"); and what seems their pet subject, licentious sex.

Van Halen's audience is mostly boys. They portray women as mostly slutish. "Beautiful girls, sit right down here" ("Beautiful Girls"), "Cum-um-um on baby, bottoms up" ("Bottoms Up"), "Pretty maids all in a row" ("Women In Love"). It's music for the insecure male. After all, there's no danger of any emotional contact with a piece of tuna, is there?

The imagery, like the music, is crude, physical and obvious — less obnoxious than some and funnier than most, because David Roth's cockrock caterwauling sounds more like an old boar on heat than the prize stud he thinks he is.

The music, like the imagery, is crass and simple; the legacy of the Purple/Sabbath powerchord axis. A strictly derivative music that leaves little room for criticism. You've heard it all before and you know by now whether you like it or not. I don't, though I by no means dislike heavy metal, and actively favour the more extreme perpetrators. But this just stays within the confines of a proven formula. It's better than their first album in that it sounds exactly the same only even more so.

The fact is, Van Halen could suffer the most severe critical drubbing and it would not make the slightest bit of difference. Ever felt like you were banging your head against a wall...?

Paul Rambali

Modern life in the UK:

Factory gets it right

Three irrational, indignant little snaps, "Acne", "Idiot" and "Hitler's Liver", deftly accompanied by members of the Albertos and artlessly produced by C. P. Lee. Dowie's arresting and vigorous delivery is, as always, on the edge of mania, and the seaside humour provides the sampler with a certain balance considering the oppressive, ponderous aura of the other three sides. As you smirk, you're nudged.

Compartment four — decide — Cabaret Voltaire: Neil the Boss opines this Sheffield trio are a bunch of pretentious barks. Me, I think the theoretical input is more attractive than the musical output. So there!

It's not a particularly constructive parallel, but when The Human League 'drop sounds' onto the floor, they do so in to a box so that the sounds collect and form; C.V. 'drop sounds' and let them spread, and the mix and flow is never definite or distinct enough — or shockingly random enough. A collection of ordinary electronic sounds and tricks without design or discipline and rarely worthwhile — as in atmospheric or alienating, edgy or evocative. Splodges and splatters. Ebbs and echoes.

What next for C.V? Research.

The sampler's sound is often untidy, and in a way the selections seem like left overs — but left overs that invite search. In five years' time rock and pop will be utterly different in form and content to what is foolishly accepted as being pop and rock now. And it'll still be changing.

Factory helps it along its way. A game of love. The only way.

Paul Morley
("A Factory Sample" is available from 86 Palatine Road, Didsbury, Manchester — price £1.80, inc. p & p).

STARZ
Coliseum Rock (Capitol)

Ever since ol' Frampton made marketing history by the simple expedient of smoothing down the harsh jagged edges of heavy metal while retaining its licks, riffs and driving beat, outfits like Starz have been flowing from Momma America's bosom like warm milk.

Reassuring, it meets all the expectations an audience could have of what an American rock act should be: a standard line up of two guitars, bass, an excellent drummer and crass singer.

The lyrics are just plain dumb, they don't even fail to quote 'category' Starz steal riffs from the Doobies, Led Zep and Thin Lizzy, anaesthetising them, cutting out the guts and sewing it all back up, producing identikit light metal for considerate teenagers.

The two tracks that would make reasonable singles — "So Young, So Bad" and "Where Will It End" — are spoiled by the compressed sound, so when the guitars should wait they whimper.

The band obviously has the power but has allowed it to be creamed off by the production.

Steve Dixon

VAN HALEN
Van Halen 2 (Werner Brothers)

Seeing as this is a review of Van Halen, I might as well begin by talking about vans in America there is a burgeoning cult based around vans — the four-wheeled variety — which began in the customised set but has grown into a fully-fledged sub culture dedicated to the premise that the more bear you can drink the more fun you must be having.

They converge at van meets

Just hear the difference...

Superwound Six-O-Six

Available with fixed ballends for Fender Precision and Jazz Basses plus the Rickenbacker 4001 use adjustable ball and cone for all other bass guitars. Now available in your music store. Superwound Ltd, Morewood Close, London Road, Sevenoaks Kent TN13 2HU England Tel: Sevenoaks (0732) 50838. TOMORROW'S MUSIC STRING — TODAY! British Patent number 1464536. Other World patents pending.

CINDY BULLENS
Desire Wire (United Artists)

ANGELO BRANDUARDI
Highdown Fair (Ariola)

Two people with guitars take on public distaste and fail miserably.

Cindy Bullens (this moment of my lazy journalism's Nicolette Larsen) comes out of Elton John (she sang on 'Blue Moves') by Bob Dylan (she trailed along on the Rolling Thunder tragedy), picks up her feeble acoustic and gives us "real 1970s rock 'n' roll" just in time for the 1980s.

Solid jobs, solid physique, solid sense — some determined effort seems to have been made by, or for, Cindy to present her as clean, asexual and mundane as any other American white chart atrocity — a long, sober way from what we once expected from that semi-successful yet glamorous ring of glittering confidence that called itself MainMan.

Some girls are born to back-up, to hurt no one but themselves when they've got their own album out. Her non-image may not hinder her in America, where low-profiled girls are always popular, but here — adoptive rich daddy of super-sexy Debbie and wildly-weird Lene — white girls personas must be strong enough to waft them like a magic carpet above the heads of numerous and faceless male competitors. We seem to like girls who really put on a music-hall act here, girls who dress up to be watched and to obsess — why, America never even bit the home-grown Quatro bait! We like girls who are leading questions. The American fetish that Cindy Bullens: One's butch...

Horny Bullens?

Cindy will probably cater to mainly, though, is their interest in credentials — maybe because they're so crass and new rich, and this is their silly little way of seeing how far they can trace things back. They make Elton John's drummer and Boz Scaggs' pianist stars in their own right; we do the dirt on the only non-blank the Sex Pistols fired. No, not the corpse or the useless lumps of indolence — the one who all the punks since 1978 hate for not recording yet another album choc-a-bloc with three-minute nursery-anthems about how soul-destroying it is to have a recording contract and how great it is to be a dole-queue-pigeon-killer living in a tent pitched in the middle of the Westway.

Still, it's better to be fickle than fawning when it comes to entertainment. If being on the John / Dylan payroll doesn't sell Cindy to her countrymen, her songwriting might; she's one of these people who could build quite a respectable composing career (until she opens her own mouth) by stealing a wagonload of their most appealing and insidious nuances from assorted rich and famous people, mainly incorporated in soaring orchestral swoops, cutesy doo-wops and raunchy piano frills.

The lyrics are six ways of blending out the eternal "ooh, baby, ahhh" theme tempered with three token girl-power platitudes, presumably so the sexless, lipstickless, axe-flaunting picture sleeve won't seem so ridiculous. It presents a silly spectacle still — three aggressive songs plus tough photo versus six soppy songs — like an earnest person trying to have an honest game of "Snap!" with himself.

If she wants to bother with matters music industry at all, Cindy really should concentrate on writing the right songs for the rich people — a couple of the swooping, moaning songs here ('Survivor', 'Knee Deep In Love') could well be Yankee hits for prettier, equally passive girls (or Boston). As a performer, she's so... so plain, so clutteredly workmanlike. I mean, do you like dungarees?

If there's anything worse than non-cute girls acting tough, it's silly men trying to sell their silliness under the brand-name 'Sensitivity'. Angelo Branduardi is Ariola's latest shit-hot hope (Child were their last giant-killers, I recall) — an "Italian superstar" hoping to cap

... the other isn't: Angelo B.

"three years of phenomenal success throughout Europe" (good lord, Ariola, you spell about as well as Angelo will sell) by appealing to the Hobbit in the English character.

His original observations are so negligible as to render him barely an artist in his own right at all — merely a minor, mawkish minstrel-link in the long line of wincing, winsome gibberish-merchants from Donovan to Chris de Burgh unto infinity.

It's a miserable introvert's life in the singer-songwriter brigade, with nothing but a problem and a guitar to work on; the more you pick it, the worse it sounds.

Julie Burchill

Finally, hip session pianist Neil Larsen has gathered together a gaggle of hip session musicians (Weeks, Newark, Brecker etc) and brought out a solo album of jazz-rock, jazz-funk, jazz-like Tom Scott is jazz, which is not very much like jazz at all. It's all very polished, easy to listen to, quite impressive in a non-challenging, nothing-out-of-the-ordinary kind of way.

Jazz without sweat. Very pleasant, very clever, very entertaining — you can even whistle some of it. It's the most listenable album of this trio, because at least it moves; even though it never really goes anywhere.

Like wallpaper is still wallpaper, even when it's Laura Ashley.

Graham Lock

BO Traditional Bard And The Future Inevitable (Planet Records)

Recorded as a 4-track demo in 24 hours, and for a minimal lay-out, this solo LP from a Doncaster-based indie label is not without distinctive character.

As its lofty title (and copyright — 'Infinite Conceptions') might well suggest, 'Traditional Bard' attempts thematic heights that its drumless rough sketches can at best only imply. Bo's lyric muse also tends to drag its heels through a mass of conventionally bleak, pessimistic phrases, or else is overbearing poetic: 'Surf the New Wave's foaming tide.'

Musically, a good half of Bo's material weighs too heavily on bland four-chord patterns, and its endearing novelty results merely from its skeletal form.

The rest is impressive — bravely discordant and imaginative 12-string arrangements, tempered by his fragile Perrett-styled vocals, the most inspired being the mutant rock 'n' roll of 'Sound Wave Air Wave', and the sweeping title track, complete with psychotic voice-over.

It ends like a cross between Robin Williamson and Ivor Cutler, which is no mean feat in itself.

Mark Ellen

Allen: And some — well, take a wild guess

JOHN GLOVER Midnight Over England (Electric) PETER ALLEN I Could Have Been A Sailor (A&M)

Singersongwriterly: session muzik, strained 'meaningful' cover shots, spineless versions of other writers' soul 'standards', spiralling strings, a perpetual diaphanous waterfall of soft 'romantic' sludge, dribbling through here like diluted Lucozade, always 'leaving' or 'sailing', 'tired', 'looking', 'wandering', 'wondering', so forth.

Singersongwriterly: the missing lie between Van Morrison and Terry Wogan.

Lan Penman

tubeway army down in the park

(from the album 'replicas')

do you need the service? beg 17

also on 12" with an extra GARY NUMAN solo track
i nearly married a human 2 beg 17c

Herbie takes it on the chin.

HERBIE HANCOCK
Feets Don't Fail Me Now
 (CBS)
RONNIE FOSTER
Love Satellite (CBS)

Two albums from black singer / songwriter / keyboard / synthesizer / discofusion players with jazz roots.

Hancock has arrived from heady days playing with the Miles Davis Quintet, through the classic funk of 'Chameleon' and on to his recent disco hit 'Thought It Was You'.

Ronnie Foster's pedigree isn't as illustrious but he hung out with Jimmy Smith and Jack McDuff in the '60s, put out three Blue Note LPs before joining George Benson and cutting 'Breezin'.

Given their recent track record it would be unfair to judge these albums by jazz standards. Even in discofusion terms neither measure up to the mighty George Duke's 'The Aura Will Prevail', which draws on similar sources. Hancock's LP works perfectly within its own terms. The first side opens with 'You Bet Your Love', long cool disco ideal for listening to when applying make-up, reading Cosmopolitan, having your hair cut and blown. Miss Seifridge muzak.

'Trust Me', the second track, stands alongside The Commodores' 'Sav' Yaah' and Marvin Gaye's 'Let's Get It On' as late night seduction music for all you disco 'players'. The treated vocals de-humanise the sound that rolls on like deodorant, cleansing and soothing. Functional in a way that Eno would love to be but isn't. You really are left with nothing to think about.

Hancock has refined disco into a seamless cocoon, the aural equivalent of making love in a sleeping bag. Cozy and intimate but no good if you want to stretch out a little.

Ronnie Foster has got names like Alphonso 'Slim' Johnson and Stevie Wonder helping with the chores and still manages to sound lame.

His voice is weak but, unlike Hancock, he hasn't had the foresight to treat his vocals and strains to phrase like Wonder. In fact the whole album smacks of sub-Wonder, revolving around mellow melodic jazz, funk and disco licks with the occasional ballad or Latin riff thrown in to vary the mixture.

The playing is perfect and inoffensive — yawn.

The cover shows a hand wearing a black leather driving glove, the type with the velcro fastening and cut out shapes where the knuckles show through, just like rally drivers wear. The hand is wrapped around the gear stick of an 'Alpine' convertible and I imagine this is to imply that the music is for smoothing out traffic noise as you nose your V8 motor down some Californian freeway.

Unless you happen to find yourself in this situation, the album is redundant.

Steve Dixon

Leo en repose, wondering what all the fuss is about

LEO SAYER
The Very Best Of Leo Sayer
 (Chrysalis)

In his recent TV series, Leo Sayer came across like Olivia Newton-John. Same expression of wide-eyed innocence. Same excessive cuteness.

In Sayer's case it's just forgiveable because he's

Sayer again

extremely talented as both a writer and a singer. No question. Six years and six albums have produced some 12 hit singles — which is no mean rate success, particularly for someone with such a twee image.

Sayer started out as a rock vocalist of some power. His first hit, 'The Show Must Go On', invited comparisons with Joe Cocker, as much for its spluttering aggression as for the exotic Cockerish hand-jive with which Sayer accompanied each performance. Sayer seemed like a man overwhelmed by his own voice. The fact that he was dressed up as a white-faced clown added to his mystique. Of course, that was a visual image that couldn't be sustained, though I must say I preferred it to what's followed. Bambi made flesh.

For the next couple of years, Sayer flogged that boy-next-door demeanour to death with corny little songs like the over-wordy 'Moonlighting'. It was his feeblest phase. In the last four years, though, Sayer's been produced by Richard Perry, and in 1977 they created a monster disco album with 'Thunder In My Heart'.

Only the title track turns up here, since this set is mainly devoted to chart singles, but it's enough to give you the idea. A song that makes much contemporary dance music sound knock-kneed.

Perry and Sayer were also responsible for sickly schmaltz like 'When I Need You' and 'Raining In My Heart' (poor Buddy). But you can't deny their talent for concocting chart-fodder.

Mainly an album for young mums, but there are lots of lessons here for anyone out to make it in the marketplace.

Bob Edmunds

PIERRE MOERLEN'S GONG

Downwind (Arista)

An impressive armoury of unusual instruments played, programmed and cipher-coded by an eclectic gathering of reputable musicians (Mike Oldfield, Mick Taylor and Steve Winwood plus the corporate Gong fixiesome) doth not experimental music make.

With the exception of the title track, the whole caboodle comes over as lurid toy-cupboard rock music first, and rock oriented free-form jazz last. And sho'nuff, all the crass old clichés are trotted out.

For openers, 'Aeroplane' exhumes Santana on a square-wheeled trolley featuring ponderous ice-rink keyboard chords and a guitar solo sounding not unlike a fork being dragged across a frying pan. Strictly for lapsed Latin rockers, it might make a suitable score for the slow-motion bits in a Kung-Fu movie.

Side one ends on 'Downwind', the only saving grace of the entire platter. An hypnotic seven minutes of Xylo-Marimba Goldfish-bowl-Glockensound, decorous flute-work, chummy concert toms and not-half-bad Korg syntha-saults. 'Downwind' stays happily in the realm of the abstract and pleasant, instead of trying to emulate a switched-on Boston pops affair.

Side two marks the beginning of the decline — it has lyrics. 'Jin-Go-Lo-Ba', another Santanic travesty, minus the fiery mustachioed guitar histrionics, plus the lumpy-Gong budge skull vibratone treatment, turns me no way but loose.

Overall, a recommended disc for dicing garlic to, or leather-dusting the rubber plants in a euthenasia clinic. Going, going, Gong.

Rick Joseph

Imports

From '72 onwards, it was usually Dave Lambert's songs that proved the rockiest segments of any Strawbs' offering. It therefore comes as no surprise to discover that 'Framed' (Polydor), Lambert's solo album, is a moderately heavy use of the batemrix, interesting if not entirely invigorating.

The title is, unfortunately, yet another of those witless wonders presumably thought up by the genius who named Creme and Godley's 'L' album plus Herbie Hancock's 'Feets Don't Fail Me Now'. But though this duplication of title (reiterating that of a successful Alex Harvey release) is a points-loser, Rentastar has somewhat atoned for this indiscretion by supplying John Entwistle and Leland Sklar (bass), Denny Seiwell (drums), Richard Bennett (rhythm guitar), Tom Hensley (keyboards) and Larry Brown (percussion) as Lambert's back-up band — an impressive line-up without being one that creaks under the weight of power-sharing. So far, so fair.

However, the songwriting — all by Lambert, with the aid of Gary Benson and producer Spencer Proffer — is more suspect. Two Lambert-Benson creations, 'Framed' and 'Dorian', have something going for them, the latter being based on Wilde's Picture Of Dorian Gray, while Lamber-Proffer's 'This Is My Neighbourhood', an East Side gang anthem, is the most potent singles-fodder on display, being the type of musical graffiti Thin Lizzy are fond of inscribing on the charts. But Lambert's smattering of ballads, the remainder of his gritty riffs and 'Crystal Virgin', an oddball item that reflects Dave Cousins' folk-Gothic approach, fail to establish any real impact. All of which, means that the album, in toto, adds up to little more than your usual everyday rock-shot.

The Count's 'I'm A Star' (Flamingo) is, on the other hand, slightly higher on the plimsoll-line. The Count, whose true moniker is Joseph A Vignone, has an oddly pitched nasal voice and comes on like a man who's spent his life ear-cooking to both Lou Reed and Tiny Tim. He also leads an outfit known as Auguste Phenomenons, who sport an excellent down-the-line line guitarist in Fred Pineau.

"I'm a rock'n'roll relic from the 1960s," The Count proclaims on the album's title track — and I guess that's where he sees himself, for his material includes a ditty that namechecks Clapton, Alvin Lee and Jimmy Page, while a re-run of Lou Reed's 'Foggy Notion' pans out like The Mysterians in full flight. But though there are obvious deficiencies and the album ultimately runs out of steam, 'I'm A Star' generally purveys a tasty line in Eel Pie riffs and toons you can tootle. So, though I won't twist your arm, you might find it worthwhile contacting Bonaparte Records, who seem to have assumed responsibility for importing this particular pressed-in-Gaul item.

Personally, my pick of the week is a mothball special, being a three album set called The Astaire Story (DRG). Originally cut for Norman Grenz's Clef label in 1952, the set contains 38 tracks featuring the urbane Astaire set against a background provided by top jazzmen Charlie Shavers (trumpet), Flip Phillips (sax), Oscar Peterson (piano), Barney Kessel (guitar), Ray Brown (bass) and Alvin Stoller (drums). All marvellous stuff with Astaire tapping his way to glory with the aid of the Oscar Peterson Trio.

Rock it ain't. But as high-grade timeless music, 'The Astaire Story' is hard to surpass. Believe me.

Fred Dellar

March 5 - April 21

Signs of Spring

One, two, free.

TDK make superb quality cassettes. And Boots make some super springtime offers.

If you hurry you can pick up three TDK C90 dynamic cassettes for the price of two. That's a saving of £1.25.

So come into Boots before April 21st and get it taped with TDK.

Boots Normal Price for 3, £3.75.
 Boots Special 3-pack Price £2.50*

Make the most of your Boots.

Access and Ban laws and welcome.
 *At this special offer price until April 21st.
 From Boots Audio Departments subject to stock availability

PHIL LYNOTT of Thin Lizzy

Pictured right, to mark the climax of their country-wide tour, are GRAHAM PARKER & THE RUMOUR (on this page) and their support act, Australian band THE SPORTS (on facing page). They and their travels at the Hammersmith Odeon on Monday and Tuesday. The line-up from left to right comprises G.P. Brinsley Schwarz, Bob Andrews, Steve Goulding, Andrew Bodnar and Martin Belmont — while The Sports comprise Steve Cummings, Andrew Pendlebury, Martin Armiger, Jim Niven and Rob Glover.

NEW TOURS OPENING

THIN LIZZY begin their spring tour this week, and a pretty comprehensive schedule it is, too. It's a virtual sell-out already, so you'd be lucky to get a ticket at this late stage. But just in case you want to give it a try, they're appearing during the next few days at Brighton (Thursday), Oxford (Saturday), Birmingham (Sunday and Monday) and Stoke (Tuesday).

KATE BUSH opens her eagerly-awaited debut tour in a few days' time — and, as with Lizzy, tickets are at a premium. She's performing with her specially-formed seven-piece band, and together they're doing the whole two-hour show themselves. First stops on their travels are at Liverpool (Tuesday) and Birmingham (Wednesday).

GLORIA GAYNOR couldn't have chose a better time to come to Britain, with her single 'I Will Survive' reaching the No. 1 spot last week. The so-called 'Queen of Disco' is bringing over her own backing unit, known as The Gloria Gaynor Experience. And prior to her short London Palladium season, she plays Manchester (Tuesday) and Glasgow (Wednesday).

JOHN DENVER — not everyone's cup of tea, but a very popular artist for all that — pays his first visit to the UK for three years — and there aren't likely to be any empty seats when he takes the stage at Manchester (Thursday), Glasgow (Friday) and London's massive Wembley Arena (Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday).

JOHN MILES is also back on the circuit after a lengthy lay-off, and he's playing major concerts practically every night in April. He has worth-while support in Banditi, who join him throughout the tour, opening at Peterborough (Monday), Oxford (Tuesday) and Liverpool (Wednesday).

JEAN-LUC PONTY qualifies as the principal one-off attraction of the week, and he plays a solitary concert at London Rainbow on Wednesday.

Thursday

Aberdeen Music Hall: Stiff Little Fingers / Carol Grimes Band / The Mekons 15-16-17
Barnstaple Chequers Club: The Pretenders
Berkhamstead, Kings Arms: George Melly & The Feetwarmers
Birmingham Odeon: David Essex
Birmingham Railway Hotel: Orphan
Birmingham The Bell: The Clerks
Blackpool Poulton College: Remainz
Bradford Textile Hall: Inner Circle
Bristol Crown Hall: The Invaders
Brighton Alhambra: Better Looking
Brighton Conference Centre: Thin Lizzy
Bristol Colston Hall: Roger Whittaker
Bristol Granary: Ricky Cool & The Icebergs
Bristol Tiffany's: Glaxo Babies
Brockenhurst College: Thieves Like Us
Burnwood Troubadour: The Amazing Dark Horse
Chatham Pembroke Club: Eyes
Chorley Joiners Arms: Anniversary
Derby Assembly Rooms: Ralph McTell
Dublin National Stadium: Eton John
Dublin Trinity College: Patrick Fitzgerald
Dundee Bloomers: The Trendies
Exeter Routes: The Pirates
Harrogate Gallip Inn: Clivvy Street
Harrow The Haycock: The Cherrons
Hatfield Polytechnic: Grand Hotel
Hemel Hempstead Pavilion: Eddie & The Hot Rods / The Members / The Magnets
High Wycombe Nags Head: MI-FI / Double Exposure
Ilford Odeon: Graham Parker & The Rumour / The Sports
Ilford The Cranbrook: Tour De Force
Leamington Spa Crown Hotel: Snoots
Leeds Fan Club: Punishment Of Luxury / Soothers
Leeds Viva Wine Bar: The Resistance
Liverpool: Bluebell Inn
Liverpool Pyramid Gate: Steroid Kiddies
London Camden Blackbook: First Aid

London Camden Dingwalls: Gary Holton's Gams
London Camden Dublin Castle: The Realists
London Camden Music Machine: Bethnal / The Next
London Canning Town Bridge House: Dog Watch
London Chadwell Heath Greyhound: Jameson Reid
London Chiswick John Bull: Electrotunes
London Covent Garden Rock Garden: Bobby Henry Band
London Epping Folk Club: John Foreman
London Fulham Golden Lion: Ex Directory
London Fulham Greyhound: F.U.X.
London Hammersmith The Swan: Beast
London Harrow Rd.: Windsor Castle: The W.P.P.
London Islington Hope & Anchor: Red Beans & Rice
London Kennington The Crickets: Manyans
London Kensington De Villiers Arms: Gold Dust Twins
London Kensington The Nashville: Recher-2 / Hazel & The Unknowns
London Knightsbridge Pizze On The Park: Martin Taylor / Ike Hazes
London Marquee Club: The Skids
London Marquee Club: Matta
London New Bernet Duke of Lancaster: The Gentry
London N.11 Orange Tree: The Crooks
London Oxford St. 100 Club: Capital Letters
London Royal Albert Hall: Nana Mouse
London Soho Pizze Express: Benny Waters Quartet
London Southgate Royalty Ballroom: Crazy Caven & The Rhythm Rockers
London St. Moritz Club: Red Tape
London Stoke Newington Pegasus: Tennis Shoes
London Tottenham The Spurs: Zlich
London Twickenham Turks Head: Ego
London Victoria The Venue: Dan Hicks
London Wembley Conference Centre: The Hollies
London W 10 Acklam Hall: Bernie Torme / The Fixations / Car Crash
Manchester Apollo Theatre: John Denver
Manchester The Factory: Agency Column /

Shenay & The Goys / Natural Shades
Newcastle Madison Centre Hotel: Light Of The World (until Saturday)
Norwich Tudor Hall: Rokotto
Nottingham: Heavy Good Fellow: The Hormones
Nottingham Imperial Hotel: Leo Region
Nottingham The Bodega: Art Failure
Oxford Caribbean Club: The Red Crayola / Laura Logie / Seint Point
Plymouth Drake Club: White
Poole Arts Centre: Tina Turner
Poynton Folk Centre: Blue Ribband Band
Reading Three Tuns: Night Rider
Rhyd Muli Disco: Delegation
Sheffield University: Brian Tchailovsky
Slough Thames Hall: Klaus Wunderlich
Southport New Theatre: Tom Robinson Band / The Soraths
Sunderland Fusion Disco: Yankee
Swansea Hafod Inn: Strange Brew
Windsor & Maidenstone College: The Only Ones
York Barge Club: York Jazz Sextet
York The Revolution: Clockwork Toys

Friday

Aberdeen Capitol Theatre: Billy Connolly
Basildon Double Six: The Crooks
Bedford Mander College: Pressure
Belfast Ulster Hall: Dr. Feelgood
Birmingham Barbera's: Eric Bell Band
Birmingham Barrel Organ: Bright Eyes
Birmingham Elizabethan Days: Bad Earth
Birmingham Fighting Cocks: July & The Options/The Utensils
Birmingham Railway Hotel: Spirit
Birmingham The Sheldon: Mean Street Dealers
Bishops Stamford Triad Leisure Centre: One Hand Clapping
Blackpool Gaiety Bar: Yankee
Blackpool Norfolk Castle: Corny Street
Bradford College: Students Union
Brighton Bombay Bar: Devil's Dykes/The Panos/Woodie
Brighton Dome: Klaus Wunderlich
Cambridge Corn Exchange: Motorhead
Cardiff Sophia Gardens: Roger Whittaker
Chester Arts Centre: South Of The Border
Chichester Technical College: Fischer-2
Croydon Danabank College: Wild Horses
Cromer West Runton Pavilion: The Cure
Dublin National Stadium: Eton John
Dudley J.B.'s Club: Melvin Mersauders
Emsborough The Cavalier: Nicky & The Dots
Farnworth Veterans Club: Short Rod
Glasgow Apollo Centre: John Denver
Harrow Technical College: The Pretenders
Hastings Pier Pavilion: Frankie Miller's Full House

NATIONWIDE

Saturday

Hull College of Education: The Damned
Kettering Windmill Club: The Bearshank Band
Knebworth Folk Club: Tim Laycock
Launceston Boars Head Hotel: The Trendies
Leeds Florde Green Hotel: Tarot
Leeds Viva Wine Bar: The Vye
Lincoln A.J.'s Club: Suba/The Skunks
Liverpool Eric's: The Fall
London Action Kings Head: Paz
London Camden Brecknock Sucker: Local Operator/The Typhoons
London Camden Dublin Castle: ABC
London Camden Southampton Arms: Jellyroll Blues Band
London Canning Town Bridge House: Lee Hart
London Covent Garden Rock Garden: Black Slate
London Fulham Golden Lion: Jackie Lynton's Happy Days
London Fulham Greyhound: Moonraker
London Hammersmith Odeon: Thie Turner
London Islington Hope & Anchor: Patrick Fitzgerald
London Islington Screen On The Green: Reyna Reyna
London Kensington The Nashville: Squeeze/Lonely Guys
London Lewisham Black Bull: Flying Saucers
London Marquee Club: After The Fire/Dog Watch
London New Bernet Duke of Lancaster: Jerry The Ferret
London N.W.1 Musicians Collective: The Inevitable
London Putney Star & Garter: Grieg & Nigel's Folk and Blues Night
London Rainbow Theatre: Eddie & The Hot Rods/The Members/The Magnets
London Soho Pizze Express: Benny Waters Quartet
London Stoke Newington Pegasus: The Books/The Soul Boys
London Tottenham White Hart: Matchbox
London Twickenham Richmond-upon-Thames College: Survivor
London Upstairs at Ronnie Scott's: Caleo
London Victoria The Venue: Larry Coryell
London Walthamstow Youth Centre: Centre: Joy Division/SX
London Walling Hillview School: Skin Deep
London West Hamstead Moonlight Club: HI-FI/The Q.T.'s
London W.1 Portman Hotel: Roger James Band
London W.10 Acklam Hall: The Red Crayola/Santa Polina/Laura Logic
Maldenstone Royal Star Hotel: Adler Bilk Band
Manchester New Century Hall: Delegation
Melton Mowbray Painted Lady: Jasper
Newcastle Polytechnic: Inner Circle
Newport The Village: The Pirates
Norwich Boogie House: Samsen
Norwich Club Malibu: Tom Robinson Band/The Struts
Nottingham Heavy Good Fellow: Last Call
Nottingham Pedlands Adult Centre: Foggy
Nottingham Trent Polytechnic: Ralph McTel
Pole's Brewers Arms: Thieves Like Us
Prestegne Memorial Hall: Ramrod
Reading Target Club: General Accident
Redruth London Hotel: The Fans
Retford Porterhouse: Punishment Of Luxury
Sandon: Lo.W. Pavilion: Max Boyce/Telephone Bill & The Smooth Operators
Scarborough Penthouse: Grand Hotel
Sheffield City Hall: Bad Company
Solihull Golden Lion: Orphan
St. Albans City Hall: Streetband/Toad The Wet Sprocket
Sunderland Mecca: The Alwoodley Jets
Uxbridge Unit One: Sledgehammer
Walsford Red Lion: Too Much
Windsor Knight Grange Barn: The V.I.P.'s
Wolverhampton Lafayette: Doll By Doll
York College of Education: Freebird/Lounge
York The Revolution: Simple Minds
York Winning Post: Red Eye

Aylesbury Friars: Motorhead / Girls School
Barrow Civic Hall: Fivepenny Piece
Birmingham Barbera's: The Only Ones
Birmingham Bogans: Diamond Head
Birmingham (Kings Heath) Hare & Hounds: Dave Cartwright
Birmingham Railway Hotel: School Sports
Bishops Stamford Triad Leisure Centre: Doppelganger
Blackpool Gaiety Bar: Yankee
Bognor Ocean Bar: The Foundations
Bournemouth Winter Gardens: Nana Mousekouri
Bridlington Cock & Lion: Snoots
Bridlington Spa Royal Hall: Tom Robinson Band / The Struts
Bristol Crown Callar Bar: The Wild Beasts
Bury St Edmunds Elmwell Hall: Boy Bastin
Cambridge Alex Wood Hall: The Soft Boys
Cambridge Kelsey Kerridge Hall: The Spinners
Canstock The Forum: Mean Street Dealers
Carnarvon St. Helier Arms: Rock Island Line
Chichester New Park Centre: Night Rider
Colchester Essex University: Deep Throats
Coventry Theatre: David Essex
Cromer West Runton Pavilion: Bram Tchailovsky
Doncaster Bircotes Leisure Centre: Wild Horses
Dudley J.B.'s Club: The Gang Of Four
Dunoon Queen's Hall: The Delf Jinks
Edinburgh Folk Festival: Alan Stivell
Edinburgh Odeon: The Hollies
Glasgow Red Lion: Shakedown
Inverness Muirton Hotel: The Trendies
Leeds Royal Park Hotel: John Hedly Haggert Band
Leeds Viva Wine Bar: Ethel The Frog
Leicester Phoenix Theatre: Pressure
Leicester Polytechnic: The Pretenders
Leicester University: Inner Circle
Lincoln College of Technology: Punishment Of Luxury
Liverpool Eric's: The Cure
Liverpool The Masonic: Mistress
Lochelly Lochview Hotel: The Buzzards
London Camden Brecknock: Fast Exit
London Camden Dingwalls: United / Mot Wate
London Camden Music Machine: Rem-rud/Skin Deep
London Canning Town Bridge House: The Minifs
London Chiswick John Bull: Fast Livin'
London Covent Garden Basement Club: Reality
London Covent Garden Rock Garden: Eric Bell Band
London Fulham Golden Lion: Simon Townsend Band
London Hammersmith Odeon: The Buzzcocks
London Hammersmith The Swan: First Aid
London Islington Hope & Anchor: Patrick Fitzgerald / The Mothers
London Kensington The Nashville: Squeeze / Mark Andrews & The Gents
London Manor Park Three Rabbits: Jerry The Ferret
London Marquee Club: Lee Farnon's Legionsaires
London Paddington Western Counties: Too Much
London Regents Park Cecil Sharp House: Tickers Jam
London Soho Pizze Express: Danny Moss
London Stoke Newington Pegasus: Big Chief
London Upstairs at Ronnie Scott's: Caleo
London Victoria The Venue: Chairman Of The Board
London West Hamstead Moonlight Club: Lightning Riders/The Herons
Loughborough Town Hall: Matchbox/Flying Saucers
Manchester Apollo Theatre: Bad Company
Manchester Ashton Spread Eagle: Fast Cars

GIG GUIDE

COMPILED
BY DEREK
JOHNSON

Manchester The Factory: The Red Crayola / Laura Logie / Scritti Politti
Matlock Baths Hall: Ricky Cool & The Icebergs
Mellon Mowbray Painted Lady: Jasper
Middlebrough Rock Garden: Fashion
Milton The Cumbria: Chevy Chase
Northampton County Ground: Frankie Miller's Full House
Northampton The Romany: Speed Limit
Norwich Boogie House: The Pirates
Nottingham Boat Club: The Pirates
Nottingham Club Malibu: Vesuvius
Nottingham Coltrane: Minnie Walters: Strange Days
Nottingham Hearty Good Fellow: Last Call
Nuneaton 77 Club: Pressure Shocks
Oxford College of Art: Dog Watch
Oxford College Of Further Education: The Ruts
Oxford Corn Dolly: Minotaur
Oxford New Theatre: Thin Lizzy
Paington Festival Theatre: Roger Whittaker
Perth York House: The Motels
Plymouth Millbridge: Bus Stop
Pools Brewery Arms: Tours
Redford Porthouse: Grand Hotel
Rhyll Little Theatre: Amsterdam / Backbeat
Sandown L.O.W. Pavilion: Max Boyce / Telephone Bill & The Smooth Operators Sleaford Ancestral Hall: E.A.M.
Slough Langley College: The Regulars
Southend College of Technology: Lew Lewis Reformer / Mickey Jupp
Southend Minerva: Gina 'n' The Rockin' Rebels
Stirling McRobert Centre: Billy Connolly
Stratford-on-Avon Green Dragon: Orphan
Telham Black Horse: Martin Carter & Graham Jones
Warrington Lion Hotel: Umeight
Warford Max's Palace: The Fashion Killers
Wishaw Crown Hotel (lunchtime): The Pests
York Oval Ball: Crazy Caven & The Rhythm Rockers York The Revolution: Immigrant

Sunday

Aberdeen Capitol Theatre: The Hollies
Accrington Lakeside Lounge: Kengaroo Alley
Arkolima Red Wall: Anniversary
Birmingham Odeon: Thin Lizzy
Birmingham Railway Hotel: Prima Donna
Birmingham Shirley Red Lion: The Crack
Bishops Stortford Triad Leisure Centre: Edix (lunchtime)/Maymaker (evening)
Blackburn King George's Hall: Tom Robinson Band/The Straits
Bradford Princeville Club: The Alwoodley Jets
Bradford Royal Standard: Clockwork Toys
Brighton Alhambra: The Piranhas

Brighton Polytechnic: The Reds
Bristol Colston Hall: Nana Mouskouri
Bristol Locarno: The Only Ones
Bromley The Northover (lunchtime): Bill Scott & Ian Ellis
Chester Arts Centre: Bob Buckle
Coventry Theatre: Roger Whittaker
Dumfries Stagecoach: Bram Tchaikovsky
Eccles Town Hall: The Accelerators
Glasgow Theatre Royal: Billy Connolly
Jackdaws Grey Topper: Doll By Doll
Raunds Woodbine Club: Strange Days
Leeds Florida Green Hotel: Wild Horses
Leeds Polytechnic: Gang Of Four / Bodiceless / Abrasive Wheels
Leeds Staging Post: 2TV
Leeds Victoria Hotel (lunchtime): Best Friends
Leeds Viva Wine Bar: Fome
Leicester De Montfort Hall: The Spinners
London Acton Kings Head: Strange Fruit
London Battersea Nags Head: Jugular Vein
London Canning Town Bridge House: Remus Down Boulevard
London Charing Cross Duke Of Buckingham: The Invisibles (for four days)
London Charing-X Rd. Astoria Theatre: "Oh Boy!" with Alvin Stardust / Joe Brown / Les Gray / Shakin' Stevens / Freddie 'Fingers' Lee / Fumble etc.
London Covent Garden Rock Garden: After Dark
London East Ham Ruskin Arms: Dog Watch
London Entfield Hop Poles: Jerry The Farmer
London Finchley Torrington: Morrissey-Mullen Band
London Fulham Golden Lion: Lew Lewis Reformer
London Harrow Rd Windsor Castle: London Zoo
London Institute of Lunar Studies: Dog Watch
London Islington Hope & Anchor: Tot & The Girls In Room 419
London Kensington: The Nashville Streetband
London Kilburn Gaumont State Theatre: Stephane Grappelli / Diz Dingley Trio
London Peckham Montpelier (lunchtime): Blue Moon
London Plumstead Green Man: The Little Jimmies
London Stoke Newington Pegasus: 64 Spoons
London Strand Lyceum Ballroom: Motorhead / Nutz / Girls School
London Tooting The Castle: Zick
London Wembley Arena: John Denver
London W.I. Portman Hotel (lunchtime): Monty Sunshine
Manchester Apollo Theatre: Bad Company
Newcastle City Hall: Klaus Wunderlich
Newquay Central Hotel: The Winners
Northampton Theatre Royal: Ralph McTell
Northampton The Romany: Spitfire
Nottingham Hearty Good Fellow: Medium Medium

Oxford New Theatre: Graham Parker & The Rumour / The Sports
Plymouth Good Companions: Bus Stop
Portsmouth Guildhall: Max Boyce / Telephone Bill & The Smooth Operators Poynton Folk Centre: Ad Hoc / Gentlemen Soldier
Redcar Coatham Bowl: The Pirates / Roxoff
Stevenage Leisure Centre: Richard Dignace
Walsall Dirty Duck (lunchtime) The Amazing Dark Horse
Wolverhampton Civic Hall: David Essex

Monday

Birmingham Barrel Organ: Freebird
Birmingham Odeon: Thin Lizzy
Birmingham Railway Hotel: Video
Brenwood Hermit Club: After The Fire
Bristol Colston Hall: David Essex
Bristol Locarno: Eddie & The Hot Rods / The Members / The Magnets
Chester Smurfs: Neon Hearts
Croydon Fairfield Hall: Ralph McTell
Dundee Caird Hall: Frankie Miller's Full House
Edinburgh Tiffany's: Bram Tchaikovsky
Edinburgh Usher Hall: Billy Connolly
Glasgow City Hall: Klaus Wunderlich
Iford Cauldwell Hotel: Original East Side Stompers
Kingston The Noise Factory (Grove Tavern): U.K. Subs
Lancaster Catholic Club: The Red Crayola / Laura Logie / Scritti Politti
Leeds Viva Wine Bar: Schlitz
Liverpool The Crown: The Clerks
Liverpool University: The Only Ones / The Angelic Upstarts / Aswad / Tontrix
London Camden Dringwall: Bitch
London Canning Town Bridge House: Wilger Campbell Band
London Covent Garden Rock Garden: Screens
London Drury Lane Theatre Royal: Elton John
London Fulham Golden Lion: The Bumpers
London Hammersmith Odeon: Graham Parker & The Rumour / The Sports
London Harrow Rd Windsor Castle: Dog Watch
London Old Brompton Rd. Troubadour: Dave Sheen
London Putney Half Moon: Derek Brimstone & Wizz Jones
London Putney Star & Garter: Penny Royal
London Tooting The Castle: The Injections
London Wembley Arena: John Denver
London West Hampstead Moonlight Club: Low Lewis Reformer / The Agents
Manchester Band On The Wall: The Naughty Boys
Newcastle The Copperage: Sebregate
Nottingham Hearty Good Fellow: The Party
Nottingham Imperial Hotel: Gwaithir
Peterborough ABC Theatre: John Miles / Bandit
Petersfield Rogate White Horse: Thieves Like Us
Portsmouth Guildhall: Motorhead
Purfleet Circus Tavern: The Drifters (for a week)
Sough Thames Hall: Max Boyce / Telephone Bill & The Smooth Operators Southampton Gaumont Theatre: Nana Mouskouri
Warrington Carlton Club: The Accelerators

Tuesday

Aberdeen Music Hall: Frankie Miller's Full House
Birmingham Barbarella's: The Fall
Birmingham Festival Rooms: The Red Crayola / Laura Logie / Scritti Politti
Birmingham Fighting Cocks: Brujo
Birmingham Mercat Cross: Killer
Birmingham Railway Hotel: Speed Limit
Bishop's Stortford Triad Leisure Centre: Buz
Brighton Alhambra: Fan Club
Bristol Polytechnic: Tot & The Girls In Room 419
Bromley Saxon Tavern: The Rest
Cardiff Grange: The Damned
Chippingham Technical College: The Cure
Derby Assembly Rooms: Motorhead
Dunstable California Ballroom: Tom Robinson Band / The Straits
Fleet Fox & Hounds: Ticklers Jam
Folkestone Lee Cuff Hall: Ralph McTell
Leeds Viva Wine Bar: Trajkic Minds
Liverpool Empire Theatre: Kite Bush
London Canning Town Bridge: Paris
London Covent Garden Rock Garden: Deadringer
London Drury Lane Theatre Royal: Elton John
London Fulham Golden Lion: Spectrum
London Fulham Grayhound: Warm Jets
London Hammersmith Odeon: Graham Parker & The Rumour / The Sports
London Kensington White Bear: Glen
London Stoke Newington Pegasus: The Method / Jade
London Wembley Arena: John Denver

JOHN MILES

London West Hampstead Moonlight Club: The Edge / The Psychodelic Furs
London Woolwich Tramshed: Grand Hotel / Too Much Manchester Apollo Theatre: Gloria Gaynor & Her Experience
Manchester Band On The Wall: Property Of... / Spherical Objects / Manchester Melon
Manchester Polytechnic: The Only Ones / The Angelic Upstarts / Aswad / Exodus
Newcastle City Hall: Billy Connolly
Oxford New Theatre: John Miles / Bandit
Portsmouth Guildhall: Nana Mouskouri
Salisbury City Hall: Wild Horses
Scunthorpe Tiffany's: Bram Tchaikovsky
Sheffield City Hall: Klaus Wunderlich
Southampton Gaumont Theatre: David Essex
Southend Cliffs Pavilion: Max Boyce
Stoke Trentham Gardens: Thin Lizzy
Swansea White Swan: Richard Dignace
Swindon Brunel Rooms: Spitfire
Walsall Dirty Duck: The Amazing Dark Horse
Wolverhampton Civic Hall: Roger Whittaker

Wednesday

Ashton-under-Lyme Birch Hotel: Steroid Kiddies
Ayr Pavilion: Nana Mouskouri
Birmingham Barrel Organ: Brujo
Birmingham Bogarts: The Studs
Birmingham Hippodrome: Kite Bush
Birmingham Railway Hotel: Raimaker
Birmingham Regal Cinema: The Angelic Upstarts / Aswad / Crisis / Igenda
Birmingham (Small Heath) The Sydneyham: The Crack
Birmingham The Haven: Mean Street Dealers
Birmingham (Yardley) Bulls Head: Roses
Bishops Stortford Triad Leisure Centre: Too Much
Bournemouth Pinescliff Hotel: Thieves Like Us
Brighton Dome: Nana Mouskouri
Cardiff New Theatre: Ralph McTell
Carrington St Helier Arms: Flying Saucers
Cheltenham Plough Inn: Roadsters
Croydon Carshalton Halls: Survivor
Derby The Old Bell: Art Fakers
Glasgow Apollo Centre: Gloria Gaynor & Her Experience
Great Yarmouth Wharfedale: Boy Bastin
Harrogate Royal Hall: Roger Whittaker
Hazel Grove Youth Centre: Juggernaut / Aeylum
High Wycombe Town Hall: Tom Robinson Band / The Straits
Leeds Viva Wine Bar: Niki Best & The Beat Nicks
Liverpool Empire Theatre: John Miles / Bandit
Liverpool The Masonic: The Accelerators
London Camden Dublin Castle: X-Films
London Camden Music Machine: Tot & The Girls In Room 419
London Covent Garden Rock Garden: Angeltrex
London Drury Lane Theatre Royal: Elton John
London Elephant & Castle Duke of Clarence: Canis Major
London Fulham Golden Lion: Bowles Bros. Band
London Hammersmith The Swan: The Puritans
London Harrow Rd Windsor Castle: First Aid
London Islington Hope & Anchor: Fashion
London Knightsbridge The Grove: Free Beer
London New Cross Amersham Arms: Tundra
London Paddington Wester Counties: Anniversary
London Peckham Montpelier: Blue Moon
London Putney Star & Garter: Dana Simmonds & Greig's Folk and Blues Showcase
London Rainbow Theatre: Jean-Luc Ponty
London Stoke Newington Pegasus: Newtown Neurotics / Japanese Toy Politicians
London Wembley Arena: John Denver
London West Hampstead Moonlight Club: Bitch / The Kamers
London Wimbledon F.C. Nelson's Club: Chas & Dave
London W 10 Acklam Hall: U.K. Subs / The Skunks
London W 14 The Kensington London Zoo
Loughborough Town Hall: The Only Ones
Manchester Free Trade Hall: Klaus Wunderlich
Manchester Midland Hotel: Danes Macabre
Newport Stowaway Club: The Fall
Nottingham Imperial Hotel: Some Children
Oxford Cape of Good Hope: Spitfire
Oxford Corn Dolly: Sludgehammer
Portsmouth Guildhall: David Essex
Reading Target Club: The Vipers
Salford City Hall: Motorhead
Salford Golden Lion: Special Clinic
South Woodford Railway Bell: Original East Side Stompers
Sunderland Bolleymakers Club: Vesuvius
Sunder Pop Club: The Red Crayola / Laura Logie / Scritti Politti

GLORIA GAYNOR

JEAN-LUC PONTY

KATE BUSH

JOHN DENVER

S.O.S. — HELP — FIND THIS MAN — WE HAVE LOST BRIAN B. SINCE HIS HAIR CUT AND AFTER THE "GIG OF THE YEAR" (Warm Jets and Dog Watch on same bill) BRIAN B HAS NOT BEEN SEEN — HE IS BELIEVED KIDNAPPED.

MARQUEE

90 Wardour St., W.1 01-437 6603

OPEN EVERY NIGHT FROM 7.30 pm to 11.30 pm
REDUCED ADMISSION FOR STUDENTS AND MEMBERS

|                                                                                            |                                                                                                                                                     |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| THE SKIDSPlus guests and Ian FlemingWed 28th & Thurs 29th March (Adm £1.75) | THE PRETENDERSPlus Friends and Ian FlemingAdvance tickets to members £1.50Non-members at the door £1.75Mon 2nd & Tue 3rd Apr |
| AFTER THE FIREPlus support & Ian FlemingFri 30th Mar (Adm £1.20)            | JOHN COOPER CLARKEPlus support & Jerry FloydWed 4th Apr (Adm £1.25)                                                                  |
| LEE FARDEN'S LEGIONNAIRESPlus support & Ian FlemingSat 31st Mar (Adm £1.00) | ZAINE GRIFFPlus friends and Ian FlemingThurs 5th Apr (Adm £1.25)                                                                     |
| FAMEPlus support & Mandy HSun 1st Apr (Adm 85p)                             |                                                                                                                                                     |

HAMBURGERS AND OTHER HOT AND COLD SNACKS AVAILABLE

READING FESTIVAL

AUGUST BANK HOLIDAY WEEKEND

THE NASH VILLE ROOM

FULLERS TRADITIONAL ALES

|                                                                                            |                                                                              |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| FISCHER Z + Hazel and the UnknownThursday March 28th 7.50pFriday March 30th | SQUEEZE + Lonely GuysSaturday March 31st                          |
| SQUEEZE + Mark Andrews and the GentsSunday April 1st                            | STREETBAND + The ZorroMonday April 2nd                            |
| INTERVIEW + TRIMMER AND JENKINSTuesday April 3rd                                | DAFNE AND THE TENDERSPOTS + Trimmer and JenkinsThursday April 5th |
| LITTLE ACRE + Matt StaggerFriday April 6th                                      |                                                                              |

CORNER CROMWELL ROAD/NORTH END ROAD, W17
Adjacent West Kensington Tube Tel: 01-603 6071

THE COAL BIN

DUBLIN CASTLE
CAMDEN TOWN
OPENING WED 4th

with

THE INMATES

Admission £1.00

WED 11th

THE COMMUTERS

Admission £1.00

HERMIT LIVE

Brentwood Youth House,
Shenfield Road,
Brentwood

Monday, 2nd April

AFTER THE FIRE

+ Special Guests
KANGAROO ALLEY

If in doubt phone recorded programme on Brentwood 218827 anytime.

words words (Barry Clarke) words words words words words

Friday March 30th at 8 pm
The Toast of London ...

STREETBAND

+ TOAD THE WET SPROCKET

TICKETS £1.20
Mary Jane Disco Bar Food

All tickets from Box Office, 37 Chequer Street, St Albans, Tel: 84511, or available on door words words words words words words

|                                                                                                                      |                                                                                                              |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Thursday 29th MarchABERDEEN MUSIC HALLMekons, Stiff Little Fingers,15.16.17 and Carol Grimes Band | Weds 4th AprilBIRMINGHAM REGAL CINEMAHANDSWORTHAswad, Angelic Upstarts,Crisis, Iganda |
| Friday 30th MarchBRADFORD COLLEGEMekons, Stiff Little Fingers,15.16.17 and Carol Grimes Band      | Friday 6th AprilNOTTINGHAM MalibuAngelic Upstarts,Aswad, Crisis                           |
| Tuesday 3rd AprilMANCHESTER POLYAngelic Upstarts, Aswad,Only Ones                                 | Watch this thing for further dates                                                                    |

ROCK AGAINST US - BOX SET - LITTLE WHITE CLOSE LONDON E.C.1

The Damned

U.K. SUBS THE SPECIALS

LYCEUM

SUNDAY 8th APRIL at 7-30

TICKETS £3.50 (incl. VAT) ADVANCE LYCEUM BOX OFFICE, TEL: 044 3715, LYNCHER THEATRE BOOKINGS, 500/750/1000/1500/2000/2500/3000/3500/4000/4500/5000/5500/6000/6500/7000/7500/8000/8500/9000/9500/10000
CASH/CHQ/CC/DEBIT/STUDENT/16-25/30-35/40-45/45-50/50-55/55-60/60-65/65-70/70-75/75-80/80-85/85-90/90-95/95-100

MUSIC MACHINE

Playing times 10.30 pm and midnight
CAMDEN HIGH SE ONE MARKINGTON CRESCENT TUBE, NW.1

|                                                                                                                          |                                                                                          |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Wednesday March 28thCASUAL BAND+ True Brit£1.00                                                | Monday April 2ndMAGNUM+ SUPPORT£1.00                           |
| Thursday March 29thAdvance tickets £1.80 from box officeBETHNAL+ The Next + Warm Jets£1.80 | Tuesday April 3rdNOEL McCALLA BAND(ex-Moon) + The Misfits£1.00 |
| Friday March 30thTRADITION+ Row£2.00                                                           | Wednesday April 4thSUCKER+ Tol and the Girls in Room£1.00      |
| Saturday March 31stRAMROD+ Skin Deep£2.00                                                      |                                                                                          |

IGGY POP

ADVANCE TICKETS £3.00 FROM BOX OFFICE

LICENSED BARS - LIVE MUSIC - DANCING
8 PM - 2 AM MONDAY TO SATURDAY
OVER 18s ONLY

SCANDAL

SHOULDN'T BE ALLOWED

On Tour

Saturday 31st March The Portershouse Club, Bedford
Monday 2nd April The Trianon, Bishopsgate, Bedford
Friday 6th April The Greyhound, Fulham Palace Road (+ support group)
Saturday 7th April The Kiosk Back Club, Chiswick
Tuesday, 10th April The Pegasus (+ support)
Friday 13th April The Hop Pole, Enfield
Saturday 14th April The Portershouse Club, Bedford
Sunday 15th April The Windsor Castle, Harrow Road Easier Monday 3.30 to 4.30 The Trianon Bedford 10.00 to 11.00 The Bedford, Camden Town
Friday 20th April The Horn Of Plenty, St Albans
Saturday 21st April The Hop Pole Enfield
Monday 23rd April The Horn Of Plenty, St Albans
Tuesday 24th April The Pegasus
Thursday 26th April The Old Mill, Mollbury
Friday 27th April The Hop Pole, Enfield
Saturday 28th April The Portershouse Club, Camden Town
You'll never close your eyes again
Band enquiries 01-804 2788

ART FAILURE

IN BRITAIN

THE PORTERHOUSE

20 CAROLITE, BEDFORD ROUTE, TEL: 704881

Friday March 31st

PUNISHMENT OF LUXURY

+ BITCH

Saturday March 31st

GRAND HOTEL

+ SCANDAL

HOPE & ANCHOR

UPPER STREET ISLINGTON, N.1

|                                                                                                     |                                                                          |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Thursday March 29thRED BEANS AND RICE7.00p                                    | Sunday April 1stTOT AND THE GIRLS IN ROOM 4197.50p |
| Friday March 30thPATRIK FITZGERALD£1                                          | Monday April 2ndPSYCHEDELIC FURS6.00p              |
| Saturday March 31st3pm maximum show - under 18's onlyPATRIK FITZGERALD30p | Tuesday April 3rdYOUNG GLOVES7.50p                 |
| Saturday March 31st, eveningIMMIGRANT£1                                       | Wednesday April 4thFASHION7.50p                    |
|                                                                                                     | Thursday April 5thNICKY &amp; THE DOTS7.50p        |

RECORDWORLD & SOUTHWEND TECH

S.U. PRESENT

in the
MAIN HALL, CAERNARVON ROAD

+ MICKEY JUPP & THE UMPIRES

+ LEW LEWIS' REFORMER

FRIDAY MARCH 30th

Ticket £1.50 in advance, £1.75 on the door

Enquiries: Southend 353937

THE Venue

100 VICTORIA ST. SW1
Opp Victoria Tube station
01-434 5500
Doors open 6pm

Wednesday March 28th & Thursday March 29th

DAN HICKS

+ Bowles Brothers
£2.00 & 12

Friday March 30th

LARRY CORVELL

£2.00 & 12

Friday April 6th

PERCY SLEDGE

£2.00 & 12

Monday April 9th & Tuesday April 10th
(just back from Europe)

STEVE HILLAGE

£3.00 (incl. free meal)
9.00

Wednesday April 11th

LONNIE DONEGAN

£3.00 & 12

Thursday April 12th

PATTI LABELLE

£3.00 & 12

Friday April 13th

JIMMY JAMES & THE VAGABONDS

£3.00 & 12

TO ADVERTISE

YOU'VE TO RING

BRIAN B

on 01-261 6153

ST. MATTHEW'S HALL

SOUTHAMPTON
7.30 FRIDAY 30th MARCH
PUNK PARTY

CRAVATS

CATCH 22 IRRITATIONS FRICTION

Bst A Temple in Terrot Production

dog watch

Thursday March 29th

CANNING TOWN

Bridge House

Friday March 30th

LONDON

Marquee (on stage 8.30pm)

Sunday April 1st

EAST HAM

Rushin Arms

Monday April 2nd

HARROW ROAD

Windor Castle

Friday April 6th

STOKES NEWINGTON

Pagoda

Sound Scene Agency
01-261 9741/9774

ROCK WITH THE CAROLITE Roadshow

MARCH

Tue 22 BEDFORD, Hampton Manor, Bedford, No Charing, Kent
Fri 30 SOUTHERN, Southend United Football Club
Sat 31 ST IVES, St Ives Centre, Westwood Road, St Ives

APRIL

Fri 6 HARESTONE, Lane 1011 Hall, with *****LYON*****
Fri 6 CHELSEA, Chesham Park Hotel, Market Road
Fri 6 WIMBORNE, Wimbome College, Wimbome
Fri 13 BANSTON, Banstons, Banstons
Fri 13 COLCHESTER, Colchester Sports Centre (Borough)
Sat 14 WIMBORNE, WIMBORNE Sports Centre
Thu 19 BANSTON, Banstons
Sat 21 STORMARKET, Mid Suffolk Sports Centre

*****LYON*****

Sat 7 LONDON, GREYHOUND, FULHAM PALACE ROAD

*****LYON*****

CAROLITE ROADSHOW ROCK CONCERTS SPENDING MARCH/APRIL
Saturday April 28th 1979. Admission £2 with LHM

* Lighthouses supported by Public, Private, F.A.I., Zero 88 and Light Sound Shave on. Leaders by Force *

+ HOWARD LIKE
Tickets £1.50 from Startime Records, Harlow

GRAHAM PARKER'S SQUEEZING OUT SPARKS

GRAHAM PARKER AND THE RUMOUR'S
NEW ALBUM
SQUEEZING OUT SPARKS
PRODUCED BY JACK NITZSCHE
FOR NORTH SPUR PRODUCTIONS INC.
AND RECORDED AND MIXED
BY MARK HOWELL

GRAHAM PARKER
AND THE RUMOUR
UK TOUR '79
MAR 28 DUNDEE ASSEMBLY ROOMS
MAR 29 GLFORD ODEON
APR 1 OXFORD NEW THEATRE
APR 2 HAMMERSMITH ODEON
APR 3 HAMMERSMITH ODEON

ALBUM DEFINITELY OUT NOW

ON THE TOWN

And the stars look very different today.

For all practical rock purposes, we may as well own up to the fact that we are now living in the '80s. Just to be arbitrary, let's assume that the '50s began when Leo Fender invented the bass guitar and Elvis Presley plastered his hillbilly leer over international horizons; the '60s began with The Beatles and the '70s opened for business with 'Virginia Plain', 'Ziggy Stardust' and 'All The Young Dudes'.

Sunday's Lyceum gig will stand as a watershed between the '70s and the '80s.

Five bands billed and one opening as an afterthought; some of the audience sniffling around looking for the '80s the way dogs look for bones and some looking for 1977 (if they find it, they pogo; if they don't they throw things). Some were looking for art, and I hope they found it; some were looking for fun, and I know they found it; some were looking for members of the opposite sex (they did okay, some of them anyway); some were looking for booze and drugs, and they got lucky as well.

Everybody found something and if it wasn't what they went out looking for... well, ace, shut your face. You want it on a plate?

Openers: heavy men in evening dress mashing down on the toes of the wife's brother's boots and then confiscating his laces on the grounds that he was some kind of aggressive skinhead like Ian Penman. Dennis Brown and Dillinger ricocheting round the hall and no white folks dancing. Ahhh, the first bondage parts of spring: one girl wearing so much metal that she drowns out the disco when she walks past.

Endocrine glands get geared up for something and then an unscheduled hors d'oeuvre. Mark Perry and two colleagues marching to the beat of a different drum machine as Good Missionaries (not ATV) attempt to exorcise various demons collected at Greenwich and Derby. Everyone is masked (except the drum machine) and the music is disguised even though Perry's rant is naked and shivering. The first section is inconsequential beyond belief, though the latter half gets almost mesmerising when a structure is imposed. Most people are puzzled, though some enjoy the tweaks and boings. As the Missionaries make their exit, kids turn to each other and murmur, "Shit, I could do that."

They are absolutely right. They probably could. Would they want to?

Mekons are next and your reporter (a '60s kid disguised as a '70s oldster and earnestly participating in the search for the '80s) is instantly reminded of a remark recently made by Graham Parker to the effect that a lot of bands nowadays sing very witty songs in Gummy voices and get theseh written about them. Mekons are a whacked-out cross between Jilted John and The Rezillos: there seem to be more of them on the stage than there actually are and they jump around like The Magic Roundabout.

Their audience rapport is instant and cheery: one of the singers gets more mileage out of blowing an attempt at a James Brown cum Rod Stewart Hot Move with his mike stand than he would've done if he'd brought it off. Guitarist Kevin Mekon

Stiff Little Fingers Gang Of Four Human League The Fall Mekons

Lyceum

GANG OF FOUR: John King (left), Andy Gill. Pic: CHRIS HORLER.

similarly gets mucho mileage out of being unable to get his red Burns guitar to stay in tune. Their killer single 'Where Were You' provokes an outburst of manic pogoing which lasts until the end of the set and earns them their encore in classic style.

Someone somewhere seems to have perpetuated the impression that there is something Arty about Mekons. There isn't. They are Big Fun, and I hope they remain Big Fun even after they've become a proper professional rock band with real Fenders, leads that don't give up halfway through numbers and soon as solorth.

Lots of young people seem to have it in for The Fall, and a fair proportion of them were at the Lyceum. The Fall were by far the most unorthodox band on the bill (i.e. they sounded less like The Clash than anybody except The Human League, since Good Missionaries weren't so much a band as an event or a happening or Art or something like that, and the intolerant boileaters who can't see that there's room for more than one sort of rock band made them pay for their daring).

They'd hardly had time to get plugged in before it became blindingly obvious why they'd entitled their album 'Live At The Witch Trials'.

Plastic glasses! Beer cans! Coke cans! Gobl! Yep, what we had here was a classic case of remembering those fabulous '70s. The low point of the set was when some spiky psycho leapt on stage and slugged Mark E Smith (Fall mileperson) two or three times and then jumped back into the audience before Smith or anybody else had time to ask him to account for his behaviour.

Okay, The Fall are Difficult And Arty, if that's how you interpret attempts to dispense with orthodox rock ideas of what structure and texture ought to be; or alternatively, if that's how you'd describe a band who can't take their music where they want it to go by using the conventional language of rock. The Fall are threatening: not in the conventional tear-ye-down sense, but threatening in that they tell you stuff that you may not want to hear in a manner to which you are not accustomed.

The Fall are not comforting in the way that even the most badass conventional rock act is: the Pistols could be incredibly comforting if you identified yourself with their threat rather than with their targets. Yeah! We're All Punks Together! Bugger the Queen!

This response is not possible with The Fall. Not yet, anyway. Maybe later, when we've all learned the words to the songs and started to dress like them and the people who threw things at them (maybe even the schisskopf who hit Smith) will be boasting about having been to this gig. Right now they are not just alienated from (a-d-a-s-a-a-a!) society but from standard rock, and that includes punk.

None of them look like punks, and the punks gave 'em the kind of response that Dr Feelgood used to get from Ted audiences when they were starting out. The worst kind of Teds are stuck in 1957 and yeah, sure, we've all been laughing at them for years, but punks stuck in 1977 (or anyone stuck anywhere, for that matter) are just as bad, and this kind of shit has GOT TO STOP NOW.

If you don't like The Fall, sod off to the bar and get quietly pissed with your mates until Stiff Little Fingers come on in approved clothes and play some approved pogo music. Alright, creeps?

Back to The Fall... Martin Bramah plays upside-down guitar on a drastically surfered Fender. All his licks sound to be upside-down as well: high squibbling rat-scratch solos when you'd expect chunky rhythms (enriched with marrowbone jelly) and verse vica. He looks both perpetually surprised and somewhere Else. Mark E Smith, who has a Prince Valiant haircut, a maroon shirt that keeps coming out at the back, an indomitably accusing voice and more personal courage than anybody else in the hall that night, kept on 'singing' after a lesser human would've split the stage in either a flood of tears or a fit of pique.

Yvonne Pawlett pats away at her piano and looks shit-scared, as well she might be. Singers and guitarists can dodge, Chrissake, and drummers have kits in front of them, but a small girl behind a small piano is vulnerable beyond belief and Rock Against Sexism does not mean that Real Men can now chuck stuff at girls on stage. (Sorry to keep going on about all this, but I was pissed off and I still am. Okay?) Her sound is misty and pervasive, gauzy and stinging.

Marc Lacey is huge and stolid and his sound is likewise: bass playing that you could build any kind of edifice upon. Karl Burns' replacement (dunno his name; sorry) kept his head down and the beat in place. The Fall impressed me enormously: haven't learned to like their records yet, but any band this powerful live has to be able to get it down in the studio somehow.

They were the only group on the bill (Perry wasn't billed, remember) who didn't do an encore, but they were the band who deserved one the most.

The glass-chuckers had temporarily exhausted themselves: it wasn't until The Human League bleaped into 'Blind Youth' that the missiles returned.

The League are electronic entertainers from Sheffield, and the only reason that anyone could find them less enthralling than the gargantuanly overrated Suicide is that they don't have any kind of New York Loft/Junk Squalour mystique going for them. Structurally, they are orthodox: it's just that they prefer synthesizers and slide shows to Les Pauls and jumping up and down.

They are Fun rather than Art (the barrier is artificial but let's talk in those terms for the benefit of glass-chuckers everywhere), performing the Righteous Brothers' 'You've Lost That Lovin' Feelin' almost properly and seguing ridiculous transcriptions of Gary Glitter's 'Rock And Roll' and Iggy Pop's 'Nightclubbing' together for their encore.

The Fall used conventional instrumentation (guitar, bass, drums, keyboards, singer) to produce unconventional music: The Human League use unconventional instrumentation (synths, drum machine) to produce what is basically rock esperanto. They got a good ride from the audience in exchange for a good gig; they were hugely enjoyable and will Go Far.

Four bands into the night and my ears were beginning to go. The Gang Of Four leapt on stage with Fenders at the ready to perform the most conventional rock music thus far. The singer windmilled his arms and shouted, guitarist Andy Gill ran about and waved his guitar and the rhythm section hammered away. They exist on a jagged line drawn between Pere Ubu and Wilko Johnson with a few reggae detours when they swapped instruments: Gill played drums and the drummer came upfront to blow some melodic in an earnest approximation of Augustus Pablo.

They were fine, and the pogoers loved 'em (if anybody threw anything I was in the bog at the time), but definitely late '70s.

This ain't even approximately doing them justice, but as noted above, my perceptions were pretty blurred by that stage. I'd like to see 'em again when not on a mission to find the '80s, 'cause they're a good contemporary rock band with nary a hint of Arty Pretension of elitism to be found anywhere about their persons.

Finally... the moment you've all been waiting for... STIFF LITTLE FINGERS!!!

Yep, present and correct: drum risers, expensive guitars, leather jackets. Success, success, success, does it matter? It's invidious and shameful to dump on a band because you don't dig the way some of their punters behave (the Sham trap beckons: please put your foot in here) but there was complacency in the air this night. Jake Burns could've told off the kids who'd mistreated The Fall and he didn't. Wasn't his fault, but Fingers have paid enough dues for two dozen bands and they should know that it's too late to stop now.

Apart from the token democracy of sticking Burns at the side of the stage (if a gazer sings lead and plays most of the guitar solos he deserves to be where more of the audience can see him), it was conventional Punk Heroic: leatherjacketed agitpop, ramalamafirebomb.

Sod the '80s: it was a Clash-surrogate late '70s punk gig by the end.

Again, I'm allowing what happened to The Fall to sour my reactions and I shouldn't be taking it out on Stiff Little Fingers. If I'd arrived just as Gang Of Four went on, I'd probably have had a whole of a time, because Stiff Little Fingers are — objectively speaking — a hell of a band with power, courage, conviction and skill.

But I saw them play like Heroes and get received like Heroes and something was wrong, because the band who had showed the most real heroism (quiet, with a small 'h') got bottled off the stage and didn't get to do the encore that — in real terms — they'd earned.

For a band to make easy gestures to an audience who only want to make easy gestures back is the most suspect device in rock, but there's no way a band can break this deadlock without either sabotaging their set or else playing Deliberately Difficult music, which puts us right back where we started, breaking our balls on the Art/Fun fence.

The '70s are going to have to learn to cope with the '60s the same way that the '60s learned to cope with the '70s (remember 'boing old fans'? If you throw a glass, check yourself out very carefully) and the '50s had to cope with the '60s and everybody had to learn to cope with rock and roll when it started in the first place.

We've still got a long way to go.

Charles Shaar Murray

SLF: Henry Cluney. Pic: CHRIS HORLER

Culture

Rainbow

London's reggae aficionados came for — and got — their culture on Saturday night. And the heavy duty harmonic assault that greeted them leaves no doubt as to which is the foremost Rockers trio on this planet.

Quite simply, Joe Hill, Albert Walker and Kenneth Paley are just that little bit special when showing the right way for a human on the stage.

Down outside the Rainbow, the rebels were freezing cold, herded into the venue like sheep by the unsmiling police. But inside Joe Hill was screaming SOUL! The Soul of Jamaica — warm and pure, joyous, righteous and quite mesmerising.

Critical perspective is rendered null and void by the effortless musical vibrancy of Culture and six-piece backing band, The Revolutionaries. Their formula is a sure-fire killer, a wonderfully loose synthesis of Rock Steady's peerless harmonies and the zany spontaneity of the best toasting. It hits right between the ears and before the senses have the time to readjust, you're either reeling back in your seat in wonder or you're on your feet in the aisles.

The trio made a convincing impact with their UK debut last year, but this time around their delivery has been well enhanced by bringing over their own sound engineer, Errol Brown. A master at the controls, he concocted some of the most surreal dubwise soundwaves yet heard in a British concert hall.

Things were set in motion by an instrumental from The Revolutionaries with drummer Mike Richards, percussionist Sticky, diminutive congo player Harry Powell and Ranche on violin-bass well to the fore. Without a horn section (next time, eh?) to embellish this richly percussive backdrop, the onus was firmly on organist Ansel Collins to fill out the sound. He did so majestically, and his subtle hooklines were a highlight — the perfect springboard for the soaring harmonic vocals.

As the instrumental segues into 'Behold I Come' The Mighty Three bound onstage, led by the ebullient Joe Hill, resplendent in a gaudy red roll-neck sweat shirt. Now, this man Hill is most definitely a performer of the highest order, strutting the stage like an unbridled donkey, big brown eyeballs popping like saucers on stalks, arms flailing like windmills.

He feverishly displays some of the fanciest imported footwork seen in North London since Spurs paid a few hundred thousand for Osvaldo Ardiles.

Joe Hill is the heart and soul of Culture. He is also that vital difference between True Showmanship and miserable, perfunctory showbiz mizpah. The new James Brown?

With the lead singer firmly in the driving seat, the trio tread on natively through 'Tell Me Where You Get It', the re-vamped traditional hymn 'This Train', 'Poor Jah People', 'I'm Not Ashamed', 'Iron Sharpen Iron', 'Stop The Fussing And Fighting' and 'See Them A Come'. The set closes with a superb 'Send Some Rain' before the encores of 'Natty Dread Taking Over', 'Baldhead Bridge' and the inevitable 'Natty Never Get Weary' are demanded.

Strangely, their hottest hit 'Two Sevens Clash' is neglected, the obvious implication being that Culture can now afford to get by without it, a sure sign of a high-calibre live act.

And when the hipness is forgotten, the showmanship and the rhetoric taken or left, one irrevocable fact won't fade away: Culture truly are harder than the rest.

Adrian Thrills

Culture's heart full of soul

CULTURE's Joe Hill.

Jonathan Richman

Royalty Theatre

No Modern Lovers this time around; no hype, hit records or Hammersmith Odeons — just Jonathan, us and a set stripped bare of all but a delicate intimacy. This was a risky show, and it negotiated a tightrope between the magical and the merd; it wobbled and it toppled, but it always wiped its nose and came back smiling.

With the mass-following of his 'Roadrunner' days all but evaporated, the 'Morning Of Our Lives' began to seem the evening of Richman's career. Hence the interest of small gatherings like this — late 20's, up-market, dedicated Jonathan-people — wherein our hero meets the very bedrock of his support in a kind of private love-in.

This man will offer you his soul — or even a suck of his lollipop.

The venue's Bubbling Black Sugar props stacked casually behind, only a teensy-amp and guitar for accompaniment, Jonathan loped on in jumper and jeans. He dawdled through and doodled around the familiar loony-tune repertoire, the songs dictated by whatever the crowd called out for. Often the guitar and even the microphone were dispensed with as he doo-wopped and improvised, foot-tapped and finger-clicked his way across the gaps, gambling on sheer gloopy appeal to hold the whole affair together.

Frequently this fragile structure was abandoned as Richman struck up conversation, let the audience interview him or exposed us to his home-composed Christmas crackerisms: 'What's green and can't spell? Answer: Lots of stuff!'

Eyebrows arched, features racked by that 'desperate-to-please' look, Richman is an unadulterated ham with the makings of an all-round entertainer. His links with rock'n'roll grow ever more tenuous, reduced to the odd jelly-legged Duane Eddy run or Buddy Holly inflection. Coming on like a youth-club hopeful in a public debut he'd perform a sad, choreographed little shuffle, or complain of his cold and snuffle pathetically.

He played the sensitive buffoon almost to the point of embarrassment; put himself in the stocks.

But though superficially gauche or inept, and certainly flimsily whimsical, Jonathan Richman's new act is a triumph of vulnerability cunningly deployed. By the middle of the set (when he's beginning on those notorious 'encores') the prefabricated pathos had asserted its insidious charms. The night was won.

Paul Du Noyer

Alternative TV The Transmitters Fashion

Greenwich Theatre

This claustrophobic benefit for the Albany Theatre provokes awkward questions concerning the direction and development of rock'n'pop since 1976, particularly the nature and/or necessity of the balance between entertainment and experimentation.

Mark Perry is grappling with those questions with alarming irreverence, without caution and more effectively than is immediately obvious.

Before the shockingly fragile ATV, Birmingham's Fashion show they're trying too hard to be 'contemporary': they would very much like to be 'the new thing'.

False and flash, they're a versatile trio — a sturdy drummer who sings high; a bassist who sings carefully and plays tentative

Look Great! The French Way.

This stylish leisure jacket in white with Pernod Blue and Yellow stripes could be yours for just £3.95.

Continental styled in light and washable 'Tyvek' the jacket has knitted elasticated waist, cuffs and collar.

It's available in four sizes from Pernod Jacket Offer, 155 Templemere, Sprowston Road, Norwich, Norfolk. Please allow up to 28 days for delivery.

Offer closes on 31st July. Offer subject to availability.

£3.95 (including p&p and VAT)

Please send _____ Pernod Jackets I enclose the sum of £ _____ (Please indicate size and quantity.)

SMALL ☐ MEDIUM ☐ LARGE ☐ EXTRA LARGE ☐

Name: _____

Address: _____

NME 1

Post to: Pernod Jacket Offer, PO Box 94, Norwich, Norfolk NR3 4EX.

Registered in London No: 196820.

NEW LIVE 3 TRACK 33 1/2 E.P.

Shoot Shoot

%w Only You Can Rock Me/I'm A Loser

CHS 2318

LIMITED EDITION IN CLEAR VINYL AND PICTURE SLEEVE.
ALL TRACKS TAKEN FROM CURRENT LIVE ALBUM 'STRANGERS IN THE NIGHT' CITS

synthesizer, and an incisive guitarist who sings stylishly. Their sound is full and generous (Costello with a hard rock sensibility), and they like reggae and want everyone to know it.

They started off promisingly, a lot harder than their recent flat single 'Steady Eddie Steady' suggests, with more vigour than valium. Their songs are plenty but plain and overall their set lacked economy.

Ealing's The Transmitters are the cheekiest group I've seen since Mekons; the wackiest I've seen since Public Image (and almost as sinister). They were, of course, great. Naturally, their music is of the Velvets' ancestry: deceptively nonchalant, barely controlled, repetitive, erratic and intoxicating, presented with an odd, wry condescension.

Their inscrutable lead singer has the comedy timing of a Dave Allan, the detachment of a Devoto, the amused poise of a Mark Smith, the cool of a Sinatra. The music is feverish and jumpy.

Apart from anything else, Mark Perry is the greatest rock critic since Richard Meltzer. Why and what he's doing with himself and his music is too involved to outline here. This aborted, unstable performance (as personal yet evocative as anything you're likely to see) in front of 500 puzzled people was probably a typical ATV gig on this tour. Perry has cheerfully and naively disregarded the slightest imitation of rock 'n' pop frameworks and become totally intrigued by noise, space and improvisation.

Live, ATV expand the implications of their LP concerning the levels of absurdity in rock 'n' pop, confront the definitions of a 'good show', mock the irregularity of response, and stunned the Greenwich

Theatre audience and the susceptible gig promoters by playing free-form noise with precious few reference points.

The audience sat there enthralled, astonished, cynical; the promoters pulled them off stage after half an hour.

Appropriately, ATV opened with a vague version of 'Viva La Rock'n'Roll'. Perry on shaky sax, Dennis Burns on bass guitar, David George on drums with Here and Now's Anno singing. It was a strong and relaxed piece of music. 'The Return Of The Natives' followed, emphasising the massive humanity in Perry's music: he's pulled all structure out of his music, but the warmth remains in his abstraction.

Tapes, wordless vocals, broken piano, bass, guitars and violin were used randomly to create unsteady, indulgent, abrasive textures over the next three pieces. It was clumsy, often moving and continually embarrassing Perry's flatly appealing singing and raps, as dumb and chummy yet recognisable and reliably honest as ever, caused smiles both on his lips and the audience's.

But the four musicians, the audience and the promoters rapidly got more and more restless, and eventually the house lights came on.

After a bumpy 'Missionary' the promoters, exasperated by the 'unmusical' tone of ATV's performance, turned off the PA. Such action prompted the destruction of the old piano by the group, and the front few rows of the audience sympathetically joined in. A polite riot ensued: amplifiers were battered and two microphones pinched.

It will not be the last time Perry's current activity inspires such behaviour: his games are provocative.

Not much music has done so much to challenge perspective and definition, and as of late only John Lydon, Carla Bley, Stiff Little Fingers, The Human League and Danny Baker have altered my own perspective to such effect. No compromise, no shame. Perry has done nothing so much as specify it's all a laugh, and clarify the dangers and dogmas of rock 'n' pop.

He gets no thanks. The best critics rarely do.

Paul Morley

Slade

Watford

If ever a group personifies the volatile nature of the pop game then it's Slade. For two years from 1972 they could do no wrong... had even the heaviest critics loathing at the mouth about how wonderful they were.

They had credibility with a big C. long before Jimmy Pursey was fostering his working class myths, Slade were into bad spelling in a big way — 'Take Me Bak 'Ome', 'Mama Weer All Crazee Now', 'Gudbuy T'Jane' and 'Cum On Feel The Noise'.

Only it was fun then, and however crass you thought Slade were there's no denying they could write decent chunes.

Then they blew it.

Their movie Flame failed to ignite the public's imagination, repeated attempts "to break" Slade in America failed, and — fashionable though it was to be working class in '76 — by this time Slade were strictly out.

Still managed by ex-Animal Chas Chandler, they're now to be found working the colleges and cabaret circuit, and are regulars at Watford's Baileys.

Although acutely aware of their unenviable position, they still attack with all their old gusto.

The Baileys' audience wasn't exactly bristling with life, but for all the band seemed to care they could have been bill-topping at Earl's Court.

The glitter has gone, platform boots are left in the wardrobe (though Noddy Holder still wears his trusty tiffers), but the only concession to 1979 appeared to be Dave Hill's leather strides and a severe shearing of his locks.

Visually and musically they were tight and exciting. Hill and Jim Lea swooping stage positions with energetic dexterity.

In the final analysis there is little real difference between Slade and Status Quo or Thin Lizzy. And it could be that a hit single would shoot them back to the top.

But it could also be that they're designed to remain in the shade for the rest of their natural... time will tell.

Steve Clarke

The Undertones The Squares

Manchester

In these competitive days, the trouble with hitting upon a good formula is that everybody else immediately does it to death.

The Squares have not only hit upon a lousy formula ('power pop') but have the effrontery to do it extremely badly. After 10 minutes of tuning-up, the sound and coordination was ragged, the material worse — pulp fiction of the contrived couplet variety. Later Rudolph Valentino, The Small Faces and Buddy Holly all got a look in too (God knows why) and the whole lot was set to the collapsible harmonies of recycled riffs.

I thought squares were at least two dimensional.

After them, life could only improve with The Undertones.

The Tones have side-stepped the problem of what to do next — having made the ultimate disposable statement with 'Teenage Kicks' — by concentrating on borrowed formula and making it their very own. While the whole set (perhaps 20/25 numbers) was really that hit revisited, it was delivered in a crisp, vibrant irresistible rush. Bum notes were heard, but the vocal harmonies were spot on.

No special plugs are due for particular tunes — there were too many and you could hum all of them or for instrumental cachet — there wasn't any. That's not the point they're trying to make. But a Barrie Masters Award was due to Fergal Sharkey for being on key while leaping every which way and making me feel like a physical washout.

One more thing: when the Undertones acknowledged the applause and thanked the audience, they really were sincere. It was as if they knew it was only rock 'n' roll and hadn't quite worked out what had hit them.

If they can retain that attitude, The Undertones are going to give all of us pleasure for a long time to come.

Ian Wood

JONATHAN RICHMAN Pic: KEL EDGE

EMI WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP 1979

In 1978 EMI launched the most exciting disco dance contest ever, which was welcomed by the entertainment world and TV audiences as a fantastic success.

Applications are invited from discotheques and clubs who wish to be involved in the 1979 championship.

Please write to:—
The Co-ordinator
World Disco Dancing Championship 1979
EMI Dancing
170 Tottenham Court Road
London W1P 0HA

Nelson fails 'Boys Own' SF test

Bill Nelson's Red Noise

Theatre Royal

"I hope you noticed the sign above the door, it said Red Noise, not Be Bop Deluxe Mark 11." Thus spoke honest Bill Nelson toward the end of one of the most tedious, naive displays of misplaced sincerity this writer has ever witnessed.

Red Noise boast every sound on sound mannerism, every Pavlovian gadget known to their Euro-rock peers but come on like country cousins — retard hair-cuts, Bolshevik good humour men costumes (dub the way y'all removed the jackets in synch).

Nelson, their leader, appears to be chief culprit. He cloaks some admittedly catchy, subliminal chords around a wall of synthetics and then has the nerve to dress this samey mutton in a coating of pseudo-literary social comment, none of which bears much resemblance to life as she is lived.

Nelson gives no indication that he has followed his Boys Own guide to SF through to a logical, let alone a moral, conclusion. His assimiliations of Scientific American, cybernetics, robotics, a touch of Huxley, a whiff of Orwell have not been developed into a perspective. The automatic imagery is merely sprayed over the listener like so much brainwash. Anthony Burgess he ain't.

Maybe I'm taking Bill Nelson too seriously.

Certainly his band do not make this mistake. Their lukewarm response indicated that this was a hard core of Be Bop fans. And here's Nelson singing songs about furniture, mouthing a new rhetoric, 'Stay Young', going against the former established icon grain.

Unfortunately, Nelson plays the Modern game using a lot of the old tricks. Inverted, chummy snobbery is one of these, the old middle-class gibe: 'A Better Home In The Phantom Zone' — "This one is about people with too much money and not much life, and those people with no money but a bit of life, the ones who think their ducks on the yell are art."

Well, well Bill! That sounds very profound, was it really about all those things? You astound me. All I caught were the hackneyed rhymes and the sensationalism, vided up in post Yes, Focus, Kraftwerk, Cockney Rebel.

Moog-mauling — you name it, they've got it. Or how about bringing us all together under the BANNER OF YOUTH? "If you want to dance no-one will stop you. If they try they'll be answerable to me." Utter inactivity. Gradually a few

BILL NELSON: the melody lingers on... Pic: PAUL LYONS hardy chaps traipse forward, but guess what? One mankey bouncer sends them back with not a word from Bill. Where were you?

Or how does the anti-culture card suit you? Here's Nelson after layering us in concepts that have, ahem, suffered in remove from Marshall McLuhan: "This place (Theatre Royal) is OK for pantomime (come in Red Noise), but it's no good for rock n' roll is it?"

What ignorance. Funny that, Bill. Theatres were constructed for drama so why the hell you should be in one... 'appen you must be barmy lad, any road, next time th'li know better.

In between the self-consciousness, the utter lack of stage presence, the instrumental verbosity, Red Noise flex their muscles on titles as pompous as 'Don't Touch Me (I'm Electric)' — a shocking song — 'Stop/Go/Stop', 'Art/Empire/Industry' (whassit!) most of which revolves on a story line which Philip K. Dick wouldn't step out of his own puke to read.

The metaphors for technological fascism that Red Noise, Devo, Bowie etc all employ are dangerously close to echoing the disease they think they've spotted; the melody lingers on.

Of course, there are ways of escaping the implications; one of them is humour. Judas Priest are funnier than Red Noise.

Nelson is too lightweight to be truly influential. The majority of his ideas are copied from sources which still have their labels showing. On the other hand he's too intelligent, and my colleagues assure me — pleasant, sincere, committed — to be a fraud. I'm paid to tell you that he has fallen foul of the most sterile avenue currently open to contemporary 'pop stars' (and that's all these buggers are, when all is said and done).

This medium is about emotions, abstractions. I checked on a geezer who understood this and made some fine music a long time ago, instrumentals with titles like 'Love', 'Compassion', 'Serenity'. Without forcing a point, Red Noise possess none of these elements.

Max Bell

The Smirks

Manchester

Shock horror. Last year's most abstruse power pop formula has become this month's most deserving non-chart bound sound.

The choreography hasn't disappeared, rather it's been supplanted by equally ambitious fretboard dexterity and a quirky approach to songwriting wherein the parts make up so much more than the immediate sum.

'Shrink Case', for instance, seems to be your average stomp, but the stretched falsetto vocal parts — as delivered by Simon Milner, the Roy Orbison of today — turn out to be about a psychopath, while Neil Fitzpatrick's compact harmony riffs fuse with a neat elegance into the overall scenario.

The plot thickens with the familiar Smirkreggae, 'Up Eh Up'. 'With our backs to the wall/Not a penny on the pay/Not a minute on the day/No more overtime'.

But how can you obtain time and a half when you're still seeking employment? After 'Pro Pro', played for high-action melodrama, Milner posed to the audience the burning problem of our times, 'What do The Bee Gees know about tragedy?' he wondered.

Ah, questions, questions. The new material just blew them all away. 'Angry With Myself', the U-rated track on the new EP, featured a melodic break which would be the envy of Buzzcocks in their return-to-minimalism phase (except that The Smirks have remembered to write some lyrics, too).

'To You', as yet unrecorded, featured spot-on harmonies and a wondrous ascending chord hum along: 'Penetration' saw Milner at his most strung-out, while 'American Patriots' was just an unadulterated rock'n'roll classic.

With the superb rhythm section of Mike Doherty and Mog Morris laying down the most heavyweight of foundations, and Fitzpatrick providing the kind of searing lead breaks one would have scarcely believed him capable of a few months back, Simon Milner railed and screamed against Americanese self-indulgence.

Close your eyes and it could be Joe Strummer.

By 'OK UK' and 'Rosemary' the crowd was going nimbly ape-shit.

If I were running Job Creation I think I could safely passover this bunch. By whatever means, The Smirks are going to create a future for themselves.

Ian Wood

China Street

Hope and Anchor

The 50-odd punters who showed up on this drizzly Sunday night were treated to an hour of bippety-boppety Rastaromp. Since supporting Steel Pulse's tour last year, China Street have found their niche — and this was their last gig before a few weeks' disappearance to the unholy side of the Channel to export their saucy brand of dub'n'twang to the Europettes.

They're young white and spotty, but St Pauls choir they are not. Onstage they plected, pummelled and farted through a highly enjoyable repertoire of self-penned reggae-flavoured ditties, interspersed with boffo gags.

They demonstrated that you don't necessarily have to be Jamaican (or Black and British, for that matter) to play good, persuasive reggae, any more than you have to be Russian to play roulette.

A snippet from the lyrics of 'Oh Jamaica' — 'I love Jah music / I'm not sure about your hype' indicates that they reject the jingoistic machismo inherent in the JA music sub-culture (as it might justifiably reject them), and that... so it, they're just another good-time fourpiece, yet their group sound was clean, melodic and eminently danceworthy.

They displayed a skilful handling of electronic Echoplex (i.e. knob twiddling), which enhanced, rather than diminished the music, sending fruity cipher-coded keyboard motifs cascading round the room (took no hands).

If, pop-pickers, you're not averse to a little high-kicking bongo fury, then China Street could be your rum and pertie.

Rick Joseph

JOHN OTWAY

FRIGHTENED AND SCARED

HIS NEW SINGLE

OTWAY LIVE IN YOUR LIVING ROOM!

When you buy John Otway's new single you may be getting more than you bargained for.

Three instrumental pressings of 'Frightened and Scared' have been let loose — if you are the lucky purchaser of one of these collectors items Otway will give you a personal performance of his new release in your own home.

He will arrive laden with gifts — the official single 'Frightened and Scared', a copy of his forthcoming album 'Where Did I Go Right?' and two tickets for his concert at the Rainbow Theatre on May 12th 1979.

If Otway's voice is absent from your copy of the single send a telegram claim to 'Otway in Living Stereo', Polydor Limited, 12/13 Stratford Place, London W1N 0BL.

Warning: Otway can seriously damage your living room.

Polydor

The ordeal of entertainment night

The Only Ones

Hull
For The Only Ones, the chips are down. Two albums of classic Perrett should be good enough to give the band competitive tax problems, but along the way accidents will happen — and on this night they did. It was a shame that hard-cheese circumstantial factors and piffing hitches served to strip away some of the veneer of rock-steady self-sufficiency that The Only Ones always embody (and usually project).

"Sorry we keep breaking strings," said Perrett as he strapped on his fourth guitar of the evening. (Strings ain't what they used to be — or are they trying to tell us something?) Could the mid-encore walk-out by Alan Mair's bass-string have been a cry for help — if only we could have understood?

But this and a few other false starts hardly interfered with the quality of sound (anyone wanna score a bootleg?) and vision (see below).

Blasting off with a climax in the form of barn-stormers 'No Solution' and 'The Immortal Story', The Only Ones fluctuated mid-set until the triumphant outro secured total redemption. (The end of the scheduled set, incidentally, saw a screen-testing local loonie run cross-stage and leap headlong into a disbelieving, hostile audience, which proceeded to beat and be beaten.)

It was too bad that things didn't always come together. The Only Ones always mean business, but here they weren't given full opportunity to do anything more than break even. Between lecturing ageing punks ("Stop spitting — it's very childish") and putting the encore to a vote ("You sure you want to hear more? You weren't shouting 'very loud'"), they nevertheless played with a meticulously urbane blend of guts and finesse.

And certainly, if looks are anything to go by, The Only Ones are as polished a set of professionals as you're likely to see this side of the Royal Marines: leatherclad Perrett is even beginning to look like Lou Reed, while stately John Perry (ermin-bedecked, like a Tudor King) and Alan Mair (red-lamed, in the style of a Showaddywaddy refugee) provide the Technicolour — such is life's rich pageant.

On a strictly musical level everyone should already know that The Only Ones are among the more inventive emergent (yeah, they're still emergent) bands, and would have been superstars by now had they not had to compete with all the no-talent junk outfits vying for positions all down the line.

Here, it was tough that Perrett's lyrical and melodic sensitivity, represented best on a song like 'The Whole Of The Law', didn't go over a bundle with punters who always 'wanna move'.

Of course 'Another Girl, Another Planet' was a different ball-game, and went down a storm, as did two other old favourites, 'City Of Fun' and 'The Beast'.

From a career-opportunity point of view, The Only Ones will not be denied for much longer — but gigs like this can't do them any good. Communication is only possible between equals, and playing the kind of 'entertainment night' venues they're still apparently doomed to, they get less than they deserve.

They say 'He who pays the piper calls the tune', but sometimes it's better to leave it to the pros.

Emma Ruth

Warm Jets Dog Watch The Tickets

Music Machine

It's healthy indeed that Bridge House Records can put up a three-band bill, and that Canning Town, E.16, can dispatch two coachloads of frenzied support. Had they as much musical strength as enterprise, they'd have come across less like a self-contained mobile metropolis to the largely-indifferent Camden natives.

Heavy pop trio The Tickets opened this undistinguished package as the most inspired, least laboured East End offering. What little I saw of the set was an assured, snide, almost psychedelic tribute to basic chording, insidious punk and shambling melody, ending with a slightly shapeless 'Glad All Over'.

Dog Watch lay claim to the kind of earnest rock theatre that fuses pomp, flash, mock croc stack heels and indulgent, listless jamming with a wearisome bent for visual stimulation. A long-haired, gaunt vocalist hams through a succession of lumbering personae — Travolta buff, cadaver, hermetically sealed robot, incredible hulk. He sings in mannered squeaks, mostly through a face mask, and apart from one sharp title, 'The Discopath', novelty is not among their stronger points.

In equally irritating style Warm Jets play heavily on the eccentricities of their frontman, Paul Battance. They light him with garish floorspots, they hang a profile of his gargantuan nose as a backdrop, and they dress him as seedy youth's answer to George Melly.

In fact, complete with flapping Oxford pinstripe, very silly tie and wideboy trilby, and clutzing around stage in an inanely cumbersome fashion, the similarity to Melly is almost uncanny.

Instantly his snarling pantomime-bad-guy act disrupts their ferociously tight, stone-ground dance music. Somewhere along the line when this tenuously aggressive hard rock perfected such immediate dance rhythms, even using a fast, brazen reggae in 'Shell Shock', it forgot melody, ignored imposing lyrics, and finished up perpetrating some boorish figurehead of the rock anti-hero.

"That's what I do with my musicians!" he cackles, knocking bassist Paul Jeffreys out flat on the boards in mock submission. He tramples on their potential with ungainly authority. Warm Jets deserve better than this.

Mark Ellen

Gong

The Venue

The current Gong manifesto "What's Gong On?" (geddit?) advocates the politics of "floating anarchy." It makes statements like "Institutions Are Anathema," and "mumbles about "harmonizing human psyche."

It would be easy (and advantageous) to ignore this archaic creed — all well-intentioned, nebulous and entirely ineffectual —

ONLY ONES: in combat with the "keep movin'" Brigade.
Pic: CHRIS HORLER.

were it not for its stacks of irritating contradictions. It prescribes spiritual freedom through self-awareness, yet

it's so doctrinaire as to dictate how Gong's audience ought to respond when watching the band perform.

Their new musical direction under Pierre Moerlen is just repressive. Ornate, grandiose funk and jazz/rock, it's confined to restricted compositional frame, and also limits each instrument to a single texture. Vibes play dinky 'Tubular Bells'-type figures, percussion clutters, bass goes twang, guitar dribbles and drums sock out frantic cross-rhythms. It's a very pleasant, passive sound.

As one lengthy and indistinguishable instrumental follows the next, these clutters, twangs and dribbles cease to hold attention. Rhythms shift incessantly, solos are passed around, monotonous note patterns change hands. A spacious Gothic keyboard piece by Moerlen, with his brother Benoit adding a dischordant vibes part, makes a welcome variation.

Gong suffer from excess musical verbiage. Every idea has to be qualified by each instrument playing with equal complexity. And without vocals as an accessible focal point they tend to drift without resolution.

Allen Holdsworth, the ultimate musician's musician, adds glossy, streamlined fretwork and seems strangely out of place in such 'democratic' company.

A couple of times Moerlen does try to liven up the proceedings by attempting to sing, but the combination of his innocuous lyrics, drab vocal style and cumbersome pirouettes can only be described as uncomfortable.

By the end music and ethic seem to be poles apart — but then again, their audience are no longer the uniform Glastonbury sect. Among those touting Floyd bootlegs and the new hippy rag Sniffin' Flowers, scores of avid musos tap toes in wrapt and reverent silence.

Gong have apparently become 'intellectually' acceptable — a far cry from their incarnation in '67, inspired by Daevid Allen's 'power vision' and the 'space whispers' of the Yonic Gongcubine.

People tell me they play technically perfectionist music; others say they herald the return of Psychodelia. Gong are either dying out or making a comeback, but I never can tell which.

Mark Ellen

THE MOVIE! THE MUSIC! THE ALBUM!

MCF287

Double soundtrack album including booklet and poster featuring the hit single

'Ease on Down the Road' by Diana Ross & Michael Jackson plus
'You Can't Win' by Michael Jackson

AVAILABLE NOW

MUSIC ADAPTED & SUPERVISED BY JIMMY JONES

MCA RECORDS
© 1979 MCA Records, Inc. All Rights Reserved.

THE FILM OPENS APRIL 4th ON EXCLUSIVE RUN
DOMINION, TOTTENHAM COURT ROAD, LONDON. 01-580 9562. ALL SEATS BOOKABLE.

MILITANT TOUR

■ From page 18

The gig is The Pavilion, a prefabricated building whose one concession to rock culture is a dire sub-Roger Dean mural behind the stage. Despite its seeming unsuitability for rock and roll these days the West Runton Pavilion is Norfolk's leading rock venue. And a glance at the upcoming attractions proves that whoever runs the place knows his business.

With Cambridge and Leicester under their belts respectively RAR are in fairly good spirits, though tired and in John Dennis's case (he is in charge of finance) a little harassed. The only casualty so far is Wayne's black eye.

Wayne had intervened to restore the peace after one of RAR's security men became overzealous outside Leicester Poly the previous night (Monday), only to be mistaken for a bouncer himself — which in some thugs' eyes was enough justification to take a smack at him.

On the road RAR have an eight-man, sorry, person team, and throughout the tour are relying extensively on the local RAR groups.

"We're fortunate in that we only have to deal with the bureaucracy," says Wayne referring to the London office's role in the shindig. It does seem, however, that HQ has taken all the major decisions regarding the tour.

Given that the priority was to play towns where the National Front plans to stand a candidate at the imminent General Election, the local RAR groups suggested potential venues and dates, as well as selecting which local band should play, after which Wayne did a personal reconnaissance of all the venues to confirm their suitability.

Though each "official" has a definite role to play in the tour (Red Saunders for instance, is the tour's Master Of Ceremonies, a role which he clearly relishes), no-one is ultimately in charge of the operation.

"We're a collective," emphasised Saunders. And obviously in the best spirit of collectivism no-one shirks at doing a stint on the RAR stall; The Gang Of Four's maverick drummer was even helping out.

As for the choice of bands, this, says Kale, was "deeply debated" by the committee. Wayne and John actually dealing with the bookings. Despite the excellence of the bill there does seem to be an absence of 'name' acts.

Says John: "We wanted to get away from the bands we knew could draw."

Wayne echoes his colleague: "We've deliberately gone for smaller bands. It's very much in the RAR tradition. We were among the first to book Generation X, Tom Robinson and Shif Little Fingers. We started out booking those bands." And John again: "We're there to support new bands and they're there to support us."

Nevertheless, attempts to contact some 'name' acts like Public Image Limited, The Clash, and X Ray Spex — and even John Cooper Clarke — with a view to playing the tour proved difficult. RAR were particularly miffed at The Members' attitude towards doing Militant Entertainment since they had, after all, given The Members their first London gig.

RAR, though, are inclined to blame those who surround these bands, rather than the individual musicians themselves. They do say that getting in touch with Joe Strummer isn't as easy as it was; The Clash apparently couldn't do the tour because of their difficulties with Bernard Rhodes. Kale, for one, would have liked Ian Dury on the tour.

Perhaps I'm being over-jaundiced, but it does seem in at least some cases that bands only play RAR gigs because there's something in it for them. On the other hand there is RAR's attitude, a somewhat egotistical one at that goes along the lines of "It's not The Clash playing such and such a place, it's RAR playing."

John Dennis brings up the fact that Elton John said in last year's marathon NME interview that he would like to do a RAR gig. "It's like him too," he says with an utter lack of conviction. He explains that he prefers to book punk and reggae bands because that's how RAR started and it's these acts which RAR feel a lot in common with. "We've grown with new wave," he says.

Surely Elton playing a gig would do more for the movement than, say, Misty or whoever in terms of publicity alone. Or is RAR afraid of having some of the thunder stolen from them? Perhaps I'm being churlish...

HOW ABOUT the claims of inefficiency that have been made by some bands playing RAR gigs? "We're an organisation of rock fans who're doing it ourselves. When you look at the rock scene there aren't many organisations trying to help consumers," says John. "So there are going to be mistakes."

"It's true we're not efficient," says another of the collective. "And we're proud of it."

Originally the idea was for the bands to play for expenses only, but this was scotched in favour of splitting the profit four ways — 25 per cent to each of the three 'headlining bands' (the billing alternates so that each of the three bands gets to top the bill) and 25 per cent to RAR — where and when money was made on the gate.

I forgot to ask what, if anything the local group gets out of it, other than exposure.

No-one in the RAR set-up expects the tour to make money; to break even is all they're hoping for.

"If we were to look at it economically we wouldn't have looked at it at all," explains John. One sop for the band is that where-ever possible the entourage will stay at decent hotels. "We can't shi on the bands in both ways," is how Wayne puts it. "If they're not going to get any money then the least we can do is to give them a hotel room with a bathroom."

Last night the entourage, and it included everyone, stayed in the comfort of Leicester's Post House Hotel.

This far into the tour it's impossible to see how things are going to work out financially, but with money made at Cambridge and lost at Leicester things are working out pretty much as expected.

"The bigger gigs, like Leeds should subsidise the smaller ones like Newport," says Wayne. And no-one is expecting to make money in the wilds of Norfolk on a Tuesday night.

To cut costs universities and polytechnics are letting RAR have the use of their halls entirely free. Star Hire, the PA company, have agreed to work for 30 per cent less than their usual fee. Consequently they're working with a crew of three instead of their normal six-man operation.

"I'm so tired I can hardly talk straight," one of them told me. "Four bands playing in four hours is a very tight schedule. It's like a first night every night."

Star Hire work a great deal with reggae acts, and have received several threatening calls from people claiming to represent the NF. Moreover a Mighty Sparrow gig at the Rainbow in December, where Star Hire were working, had to be called off after a bomb hoax believed to be the work of the NF.

With so small a crew the RAR team are doubling as roadies. To add further to the collective effort, two Eastern Counties bus drivers have agreed to drive two double-decker busloads of fans the 20 miles or so from Norwich for free. Shame their employees couldn't be as generous. The Norwich branch of RAR have had to hire the buses at £90 apiece.

On the final night of the Gang Of Four, Misty, The Ruts line-up, The Ruts are topping. Second on, Gang Of Four (local outfit The Pain Killers opened — unfortunately I missed them) are given the kind of reception usually reserved for the closing act. The Pavilion is far from full, but the audience seem more than willing to make up in energy for the lack of numbers.

Halfway through the evening RAR are convinced they stand to lose at least £200 on the night, but despite this and the prospect of a six-hour drive back to London their spirits rise — Red's aided by more than the odd beer — as the music culminates in a truly devastating performance from The Ruts.

More than one record company A&R man was spotted the previous night at Leicester and A&R person/producer Muff Winwood is shifting out tonight's action. If he isn't impressed by The Ruts then his ears should be removed just as soon as he can fix up an appointment.

Following hard (and I mean HARD) on the heels of the too sanguine Misty (no malice intended, but if this is what genre does for you, forget it). The Ruts start the way they go on — with enough energy to fuel the entire Concordo fleet.

They slip with awesome ease from what can perhaps be best described as psychedelic punk (shades of Hendrix) to the kind of reggae that ought to have Misty winning into their Rasta nosh. As the Gang Of Four are about to tie the knot with EMI or CBS, The Ruts are apparently about to sign with Virgin. Mark thee, The Ruts will be enormous.

Actually Misty just about acquitted themselves in the all-bands-together encore Jamming on a reggae chant of "Rock Against Racism", they lead what seems like half the entire audience through a genuinely moving number, so full of good vibes I'm surprised that John and Yoko didn't materialise in a bag singing the 'Give Peace A Chance' refrain.

"Peace and Love", intoned one of Misty's singers. What with Red Saunders giving the audience — and it must be said nearly falling on his butt in the process — one of those "The only way this is possible is because of you the people out there" raps, I was reminded of similar so-called 'hippy' beans.

All the more a shame then, that one loud had to disgrace himself on his way out of the building by assaulting the kid selling the Socialist Worker's Party's Rebel mag.

Evidently the message hadn't got through to everyone.

fact: Shure helps Sammy do it his way.

the artist:

Superstar Sammy makes it all look so easy. What the audience doesn't see is the backstage attention to minute detail that makes every Sammy Davis, Jr. show a memorable adventure in perfection. Like his sound equipment. The natural sound of a Shure SM56 microphone is Sammy's hallmark.

And those clean violin sounds! If you look closely during his performance, you'll see a miniature SM11 microphone clipped below the bridge of each violin. That's the kind of professional touch that extends Sammy's reputation as a living legend!

Put a pro in your act. Talk to your audio dealer about Shure, the Sound of the Professionals.

the equipment:

The Shure SM56 is a unidirectional dynamic microphone with a cardioid pickup pattern that minimizes studio acoustics and background noise. Frequency Response: 40 to 15,000 Hz.

The Shure SM11 is the smallest lavalier/clip-on microphone with a dynamic element. Omnidirectional. 50 to 15,000 Hz frequency response. The SM11 weighs 7.8 grams (0.28 oz.).

professional microphones...by

Shure Electronics Limited, Eccleston Road,
Maldstone ME15 6AU. Telephone: (0622) 59881

BAD COMPANY. BUSTED!

£1 off list price of the new Bad Company L.P. -
"Desolation Angels."

The HMV Shop Top 30 Singles all at 75p each.
The HMV Shop Top 20 Cassettes all at 70p off list price
The HMV Shop Top 20 Albums up to £1.50 off list price

the HMV shop

363 Oxford Street,
London W.1.
(next to Bond Street tube)

Bedford
Birmingham
Bradford
Brighton
Bristol

Coventry
Derby
Edinburgh
Enfield
Exeter

Glasgow
Gloucester
Gravesend
Holloway
Hull

Kingston
Leeds
Leicester
Lewisham
Liverpool

Luton
Manchester
Newcastle
Nottingham
Notting Hill Gate

Plymouth
Portsmouth
Southampton
Stockton
Stratford

Sunderland
Sutton
Swansea
Wolverhampton

Oxford St

Blondie
Blondie
Blondie
Ian Dury
Bram Tchaikovsky
Kiss

All WEA 12" long version singles
Village People
Players Association
Herbie Hancock
Gary's Gang
The complete Buddy Holly Box Set, limited edition, including booklet and 8 records. Only £14.95.

Also at Oxford St JAZZ at HMV!

A vast and comprehensive selection of jazz LP's some here for the first time.
Many at special prices including

|                             |       |       |
|-----------------------------|-------|-------|
| ECM single LP's             | £4.95 | £3.95 |
| Single US Import LP's       | £6.95 | £4.95 |
| Single Japanese Import LP's | £9.95 | £7.95 |

363 Oxford Street, London W.1
Tel. 01-629 1240

Liverpool

Blondie "Heart of Glass" - 12" single Sex Pistols "Great Rock & Roll Swindle"
"Cheap Trick at Budokan" in yellow vinyl Bad Company "Desolation Angels"

Average White Band "Feel No Fret" Blondie's "Hanging on a Telephone" Picture Cover Import 7" single A few "Bob Dylan at Budokan" in stock
64 Lord Street,
Holly Box Set, limited edition, including booklet and 8 records. Only £14.95.

Nottingham

Now Back in Stock:
Dylan at Budokan - Jap Import, few only
Ian Dury "Sex, Drugs and Rock & Roll" - 7" and 12"
"YMCA" - Village People 12" Import Blondie Picture Disc "Parallell Lines" and "Heart of Glass" 12" Import Sex Pistols Picture Sleeve Singles - Holidays in the Sun
Anarchy in the UK
Pretty Vacant
8 Broadmarsh Centre
Tel. 0502 52841

Stratford

Now London Presley stockists.
Variety selection of import EP's singles and LP's
Now in stock South African Jail House Rock LP, also large selection of import Bowie products including Japanese picture sleeve and lyrics
Young Americans
Sound and Vision
Be My Wife
Golden Years
Heroes
plus many European imports
38 Broadway,
Stratford Centre, London E15 4QS.
Tel. 01-358 0312

Sutton

Now in stock import 7"
Rolling Stones
Elvis Costello
Thin Lizzy
And import 12" singles including Melba Moore
Wilbert Longmire
Kleeer
Import LP's including Crown Heights Affair
174 High Street
Tel. 01-642 0064

Shattered
Sundays Best
Cowboy Song

Pick me up and dance
Black is the colour
Keep your body workin'
Dance Lady Dance

STOP PRESS THE STORY OF GENESIS

Double LP Jap Import at all HMV Shops now

Wolverhampton

Heart of Glass Picture Disc - "Bat out of Hell"
Boston Picture Disc - First Album
Wings - Band on the Run Picture Disc
Kiss - single albums in red vinyl
Kiss - Live - I and II
Kiss - 12" single

"Hard Luck Woman"
8 The Gallery
Mandet Square
Tel. 0902 25679

All offers relate to list price
OFFERS VALID AT LEAST UNTIL 21st April
Subject to availability

Sunie's PLATTERSTALL

FOR DETAILS OF ADVERTISING ON THE PLATTERSTALL, CONTACT SUNIE ON 01-261 6172

FLYOVER RECORDS

15 Queen Caroline St., London W8

IMPORTS FROM JAPAN SPECIALS

|                                                                    |        |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------|--------|
| Ian Gillan. New studio album 'Gillan'                              | £8.50  |
| Ian Gillan. Live At The Budokan vol 1                              | £8.50  |
| Ian Gillan. Live At The Budokan vol 2                              | £8.50  |
| Alex Chilton. Solo album 'Alex Chilton'                            | £14.95 |
| Genesis. 'The Story Of Genesis' 2 album set                        | £8.50  |
| Status Quo. 'Live In Japan'                                        | £14.95 |
| Suzi Quatro. 'Live 'n' Kickin' In Japan' 2 album set               | £14.95 |
| David Bowie. 'Golden Double Special' 2 album set                   | £14.95 |
| Lennon / Ono. The Wedding Album box set                            | £9.95  |
| Single play 45s. Full colour sleeve. Stereo. Includes lyric sheet. |        |
| Blondie. Denis / No knagitation                                    | £2.50  |
| Blondie. Rip Her To Shreds / In The Flesh / X Offender             | £2.50  |
| Blondie. Kidnapper / Cautious Lp                                   | £2.50  |

Post. Singles 1-4 30p. Overseas £1.00 Lp's 90p inc insurance Europe £2.00. Less of other imports including BEATLES, BOWIE, PRESLEY, BEACH BOYS, RUNAWAYS, MISS DYLAN, Q.U.A.B.T.A., DEEP PURPLE, LED ZEPPELIN, ROLLING STONES, BOB STEWART, ELTON JOHN.

Send Stamped Addressed Envelope for each item ordered. MAIL ORDER Cheques/P.O. TO FLYOVER RECORDS (MO3), 15 QUEEN CAROLINE STREET, HAMMERSMITH BROADWAY, LONDON W8

FRANTIC

TRY THESE FRANTIC SPECIALS

|                                                  |            |
|--------------------------------------------------|------------|
| PICTURE DISCS                             |            |
| Devo Are We Not Men? 1-4 free (Real disc)        | £5.75      |
| Ian Matthews Stroll Home                         | £7.95      |
| Gene Simmons. Ace Frehley. Peter                 | £3.15      |
| Cris. Paul Stanley...                            | £5.95 each |
| Dennis Summer Best of Live and More              | £5.95      |
| P. Frampton. Frampton Comes Alive (single album) | £7.25      |
| Boyton 1st                                       | £7.25      |
| Pink Floyd. Dark Side Of The Moon                | £7.25      |
| Rush. Hemispheres                                | £7.25      |
| Steve Miller. Book Of Dreams                     | £7.25      |
| Wings. Band On The Run                           | £7.25      |
| Who. Who Are You                                 | £7.25      |
| Bob Seger Stranger In Town                       | £7.25      |
| Red Stewart Blondes Have More Fun                | £7.25      |
| Heart Dreamboat Annie                            | £8.40      |
| Elvis Presley Legendary Performer Vol II         | £8.40      |
| Mike Oldfield Tub Bells                          | £5.75      |
| Beatles Abbey Road                               | £6.75      |
| Linda Ronstadt Living In The USA                 | £8.40      |
| Sty. Pieces of Eight                             | £8.40      |
| A Phillips Wise After The Event                  | £8.40      |
| Blondie Parallel Lines                           | £8.95      |

|                                                         |                    |
|---------------------------------------------------------|--------------------|
| And the rest...                                  |                    |
| The Fall. Live at the Witch Trials                      | £3.15              |
| ATV. Vibing Up The Senile Man                           | £3.15              |
| Throbbing Gristle. D.O.A.                               | £3.15              |
| Throbbing Gristle. T.G.                                 | £3.15              |
| Genesis. Story Of Genesis (Japan-ese disc)              | £12.75             |
| Indecent Music Dubious Collaborations (Ltd Edition 500) | £2.80              |
| Pink Dukes (pink vinyl)                                 | £3.30              |
| Triumph. Rock & Roll Machine (silver plated)            | £7.80              |
| Stiff Little Fingers. Inflammable Material              | £3.30              |
| Chrome. Half Machine Lip Moves                          | £4.40              |
| ELO. 3 Light Years                                      | £9.75              |
| Beatles Beatles Collection                              | £29.95 (post free) |
| Eno + Moebius + Roedelius After The Heat                | £3.90              |
| Good Rats Birth Comes To Us All                         | £4.40              |
| Shoes Black Vinyl Shoes                                 | £3.90              |
| Loening Awareness (now the Blockheads)                  | £1.95              |
| Residents Buster and Glen                               | £3.30              |
| War Of The Worlds (Ltd edition boxed set)               | £2.25              |
| Tribsman Promotional Album                              | £2.70              |

If they're in our ad or on our list we've had some in.
A full list of FRANTIC SPECIALS is available on request.

Order to: FRANTIC SPECIALS, Anderson Road, Warley, B66 4BB

Name

Address

POST & PACKING RATES
1 LP 40p, 2 LPs 50p, 3 LPs 70p, 4 LPs 90p, 5 LPs 110p, 6 LPs 130p, 7 LPs 150p, 8 LPs 170p, 9 LPs 190p, 10 LPs 210p, 11 LPs 230p, 12 LPs 250p, 13 LPs 270p, 14 LPs 290p, 15 LPs 310p, 16 LPs 330p, 17 LPs 350p, 18 LPs 370p, 19 LPs 390p, 20 LPs 410p, 21 LPs 430p, 22 LPs 450p, 23 LPs 470p, 24 LPs 490p, 25 LPs 510p, 26 LPs 530p, 27 LPs 550p, 28 LPs 570p, 29 LPs 590p, 30 LPs 610p, 31 LPs 630p, 32 LPs 650p, 33 LPs 670p, 34 LPs 690p, 35 LPs 710p, 36 LPs 730p, 37 LPs 750p, 38 LPs 770p, 39 LPs 790p, 40 LPs 810p, 41 LPs 830p, 42 LPs 850p, 43 LPs 870p, 44 LPs 890p, 45 LPs 910p, 46 LPs 930p, 47 LPs 950p, 48 LPs 970p, 49 LPs 990p, 50 LPs 1010p, 51 LPs 1030p, 52 LPs 1050p, 53 LPs 1070p, 54 LPs 1090p, 55 LPs 1110p, 56 LPs 1130p, 57 LPs 1150p, 58 LPs 1170p, 59 LPs 1190p, 60 LPs 1210p, 61 LPs 1230p, 62 LPs 1250p, 63 LPs 1270p, 64 LPs 1290p, 65 LPs 1310p, 66 LPs 1330p, 67 LPs 1350p, 68 LPs 1370p, 69 LPs 1390p, 70 LPs 1410p, 71 LPs 1430p, 72 LPs 1450p, 73 LPs 1470p, 74 LPs 1490p, 75 LPs 1510p, 76 LPs 1530p, 77 LPs 1550p, 78 LPs 1570p, 79 LPs 1590p, 80 LPs 1610p, 81 LPs 1630p, 82 LPs 1650p, 83 LPs 1670p, 84 LPs 1690p, 85 LPs 1710p, 86 LPs 1730p, 87 LPs 1750p, 88 LPs 1770p, 89 LPs 1790p, 90 LPs 1810p, 91 LPs 1830p, 92 LPs 1850p, 93 LPs 1870p, 94 LPs 1890p, 95 LPs 1910p, 96 LPs 1930p, 97 LPs 1950p, 98 LPs 1970p, 99 LPs 1990p, 100 LPs 2010p, 101 LPs 2030p, 102 LPs 2050p, 103 LPs 2070p, 104 LPs 2090p, 105 LPs 2110p, 106 LPs 2130p, 107 LPs 2150p, 108 LPs 2170p, 109 LPs 2190p, 110 LPs 2210p, 111 LPs 2230p, 112 LPs 2250p, 113 LPs 2270p, 114 LPs 2290p, 115 LPs 2310p, 116 LPs 2330p, 117 LPs 2350p, 118 LPs 2370p, 119 LPs 2390p, 120 LPs 2410p, 121 LPs 2430p, 122 LPs 2450p, 123 LPs 2470p, 124 LPs 2490p, 125 LPs 2510p, 126 LPs 2530p, 127 LPs 2550p, 128 LPs 2570p, 129 LPs 2590p, 130 LPs 2610p, 131 LPs 2630p, 132 LPs 2650p, 133 LPs 2670p, 134 LPs 2690p, 135 LPs 2710p, 136 LPs 2730p, 137 LPs 2750p, 138 LPs 2770p, 139 LPs 2790p, 140 LPs 2810p, 141 LPs 2830p, 142 LPs 2850p, 143 LPs 2870p, 144 LPs 2890p, 145 LPs 2910p, 146 LPs 2930p, 147 LPs 2950p, 148 LPs 2970p, 149 LPs 2990p, 150 LPs 3010p, 151 LPs 3030p, 152 LPs 3050p, 153 LPs 3070p, 154 LPs 3090p, 155 LPs 3110p, 156 LPs 3130p, 157 LPs 3150p, 158 LPs 3170p, 159 LPs 3190p, 160 LPs 3210p, 161 LPs 3230p, 162 LPs 3250p, 163 LPs 3270p, 164 LPs 3290p, 165 LPs 3310p, 166 LPs 3330p, 167 LPs 3350p, 168 LPs 3370p, 169 LPs 3390p, 170 LPs 3410p, 171 LPs 3430p, 172 LPs 3450p, 173 LPs 3470p, 174 LPs 3490p, 175 LPs 3510p, 176 LPs 3530p, 177 LPs 3550p, 178 LPs 3570p, 179 LPs 3590p, 180 LPs 3610p, 181 LPs 3630p, 182 LPs 3650p, 183 LPs 3670p, 184 LPs 3690p, 185 LPs 3710p, 186 LPs 3730p, 187 LPs 3750p, 188 LPs 3770p, 189 LPs 3790p, 190 LPs 3810p, 191 LPs 3830p, 192 LPs 3850p, 193 LPs 3870p, 194 LPs 3890p, 195 LPs 3910p, 196 LPs 3930p, 197 LPs 3950p, 198 LPs 3970p, 199 LPs 3990p, 200 LPs 4010p, 201 LPs 4030p, 202 LPs 4050p, 203 LPs 4070p, 204 LPs 4090p, 205 LPs 4110p, 206 LPs 4130p, 207 LPs 4150p, 208 LPs 4170p, 209 LPs 4190p, 210 LPs 4210p, 211 LPs 4230p, 212 LPs 4250p, 213 LPs 4270p, 214 LPs 4290p, 215 LPs 4310p, 216 LPs 4330p, 217 LPs 4350p, 218 LPs 4370p, 219 LPs 4390p, 220 LPs 4410p, 221 LPs 4430p, 222 LPs 4450p, 223 LPs 4470p, 224 LPs 4490p, 225 LPs 4510p, 226 LPs 4530p, 227 LPs 4550p, 228 LPs 4570p, 229 LPs 4590p, 230 LPs 4610p, 231 LPs 4630p, 232 LPs 4650p, 233 LPs 4670p, 234 LPs 4690p, 235 LPs 4710p, 236 LPs 4730p, 237 LPs 4750p, 238 LPs 4770p, 239 LPs 4790p, 240 LPs 4810p, 241 LPs 4830p, 242 LPs 4850p, 243 LPs 4870p, 244 LPs 4890p, 245 LPs 4910p, 246 LPs 4930p, 247 LPs 4950p, 248 LPs 4970p, 249 LPs 4990p, 250 LPs 5010p, 251 LPs 5030p, 252 LPs 5050p, 253 LPs 5070p, 254 LPs 5090p, 255 LPs 5110p, 256 LPs 5130p, 257 LPs 5150p, 258 LPs 5170p, 259 LPs 5190p, 260 LPs 5210p, 261 LPs 5230p, 262 LPs 5250p, 263 LPs 5270p, 264 LPs 5290p, 265 LPs 5310p, 266 LPs 5330p, 267 LPs 5350p, 268 LPs 5370p, 269 LPs 5390p, 270 LPs 5410p, 271 LPs 5430p, 272 LPs 5450p, 273 LPs 5470p, 274 LPs 5490p, 275 LPs 5510p, 276 LPs 5530p, 277 LPs 5550p, 278 LPs 5570p, 279 LPs 5590p, 280 LPs 5610p, 281 LPs 5630p, 282 LPs 5650p, 283 LPs 5670p, 284 LPs 5690p, 285 LPs 5710p, 286 LPs 5730p, 287 LPs 5750p, 288 LPs 5770p, 289 LPs 5790p, 290 LPs 5810p, 291 LPs 5830p, 292 LPs 5850p, 293 LPs 5870p, 294 LPs 5890p, 295 LPs 5910p, 296 LPs 5930p, 297 LPs 5950p, 298 LPs 5970p, 299 LPs 5990p, 300 LPs 6010p, 301 LPs 6030p, 302 LPs 6050p, 303 LPs 6070p, 304 LPs 6090p, 305 LPs 6110p, 306 LPs 6130p, 307 LPs 6150p, 308 LPs 6170p, 309 LPs 6190p, 310 LPs 6210p, 311 LPs 6230p, 312 LPs 6250p, 313 LPs 6270p, 314 LPs 6290p, 315 LPs 6310p, 316 LPs 6330p, 317 LPs 6350p, 318 LPs 6370p, 319 LPs 6390p, 320 LPs 6410p, 321 LPs 6430p, 322 LPs 6450p, 323 LPs 6470p, 324 LPs 6490p, 325 LPs 6510p, 326 LPs 6530p, 327 LPs 6550p, 328 LPs 6570p, 329 LPs 6590p, 330 LPs 6610p, 331 LPs 6630p, 332 LPs 6650p, 333 LPs 6670p, 334 LPs 6690p, 335 LPs 6710p, 336 LPs 6730p, 337 LPs 6750p, 338 LPs 6770p, 339 LPs 6790p, 340 LPs 6810p, 341 LPs 6830p, 342 LPs 6850p, 343 LPs 6870p, 344 LPs 6890p, 345 LPs 6910p, 346 LPs 6930p, 347 LPs 6950p, 348 LPs 6970p, 349 LPs 6990p, 350 LPs 7010p, 351 LPs 7030p, 352 LPs 7050p, 353 LPs 7070p, 354 LPs 7090p, 355 LPs 7110p, 356 LPs 7130p, 357 LPs 7150p, 358 LPs 7170p, 359 LPs 7190p, 360 LPs 7210p, 361 LPs 7230p, 362 LPs 7250p, 363 LPs 7270p, 364 LPs 7290p, 365 LPs 7310p, 366 LPs 7330p, 367 LPs 7350p, 368 LPs 7370p, 369 LPs 7390p, 370 LPs 7410p, 371 LPs 7430p, 372 LPs 7450p, 373 LPs 7470p, 374 LPs 7490p, 375 LPs 7510p, 376 LPs 7530p, 377 LPs 7550p, 378 LPs 7570p, 379 LPs 7590p, 380 LPs 7610p, 381 LPs 7630p, 382 LPs 7650p, 383 LPs 7670p, 384 LPs 7690p, 385 LPs 7710p, 386 LPs 7730p, 387 LPs 7750p, 388 LPs 7770p, 389 LPs 7790p, 390 LPs 7810p, 391 LPs 7830p, 392 LPs 7850p, 393 LPs 7870p, 394 LPs 7890p, 395 LPs 7910p, 396 LPs 7930p, 397 LPs 7950p, 398 LPs 7970p, 399 LPs 7990p, 400 LPs 8010p, 401 LPs 8030p, 402 LPs 8050p, 403 LPs 8070p, 404 LPs 8090p, 405 LPs 8110p, 406 LPs 8130p, 407 LPs 8150p, 408 LPs 8170p, 409 LPs 8190p, 410 LPs 8210p, 411 LPs 8230p, 412 LPs 8250p, 413 LPs 8270p, 414 LPs 8290p, 415 LPs 8310p, 416 LPs 8330p, 417 LPs 8350p, 418 LPs 8370p, 419 LPs 8390p, 420 LPs 8410p, 421 LPs 8430p, 422 LPs 8450p, 423 LPs 8470p, 424 LPs 8490p, 425 LPs 8510p, 426 LPs 8530p, 427 LPs 8550p, 428 LPs 8570p, 429 LPs 8590p, 430 LPs 8610p, 431 LPs 8630p, 432 LPs 8650p, 433 LPs 8670p, 434 LPs 8690p, 435 LPs 8710p, 436 LPs 8730p, 437 LPs 8750p, 438 LPs 8770p, 439 LPs 8790p, 440 LPs 8810p, 441 LPs 8830p, 442 LPs 8850p, 443 LPs 8870p, 444 LPs 8890p, 445 LPs 8910p, 446 LPs 8930p, 447 LPs 8950p, 448 LPs 8970p, 449 LPs 8990p, 450 LPs 9010p, 451 LPs 9030p, 452 LPs 9050p, 453 LPs 9070p, 454 LPs 9090p, 455 LPs 9110p, 456 LPs 9130p, 457 LPs 9150p, 458 LPs 9170p, 459 LPs 9190p, 460 LPs 9210p, 461 LPs 9230p, 462 LPs 9250p, 463 LPs 9270p, 464 LPs 9290p, 465 LPs 9310p, 466 LPs 9330p, 467 LPs 9350p, 468 LPs 9370p, 469 LPs 9390p, 470 LPs 9410p, 471 LPs 9430p, 472 LPs 9450p, 473 LPs 9470p, 474 LPs 9490p, 475 LPs 9510p, 476 LPs 9530p, 477 LPs 9550p, 478 LPs 9570p, 479 LPs 9590p, 480 LPs 9610p, 481 LPs 9630p, 482 LPs 9650p, 483 LPs 9670p, 484 LPs 9690p, 485 LPs 9710p, 486 LPs 9730p, 487 LPs 9750p, 488 LPs 9770p, 489 LPs 9790p, 490 LPs 9810p, 491 LPs 9830p, 492 LPs 9850p, 493 LPs 9870p, 494 LPs 9890p, 495 LPs 9910p, 496 LPs 9930p, 497 LPs 9950p, 498 LPs 9970p, 499 LPs 9990p, 500 LPs 10010p, 501 LPs 10030p, 502 LPs 10050p, 503 LPs 10070p, 504 LPs 10090p, 505 LPs 10110p, 506 LPs 10130p, 507 LPs 10150p, 508 LPs 10170p, 509 LPs 10190p, 510 LPs 10210p, 511 LPs 10230p, 512 LPs 10250p, 513 LPs 10270p, 514 LPs 10290p, 515 LPs 10310p, 516 LPs 10330p, 517 LPs 10350p, 518 LPs 10370p, 519 LPs 10390p, 520 LPs 10410p, 521 LPs 10430p, 522 LPs 10450p, 523 LPs 10470p, 524 LPs 10490p, 525 LPs 10510p, 526 LPs 10530p, 527 LPs 10550p, 528 LPs 10570p, 529 LPs 10590p, 530 LPs 10610p, 531 LPs 10630p, 532 LPs 10650p, 533 LPs 10670p, 534 LPs 10690p, 535 LPs 10710p, 536 LPs 10730p, 537 LPs 10750p, 538 LPs 10770p, 539 LPs 10790p, 540 LPs 10810p, 541 LPs 10830p, 542 LPs 10850p, 543 LPs 10870p, 544 LPs 10890p, 545 LPs 10910p, 546 LPs 10930p, 547 LPs 10950p, 548 LPs 10970p, 549 LPs 10990p, 550 LPs 11010p, 551 LPs 11030p, 552 LPs 11050p, 553 LPs 11070p, 554 LPs 11090p, 555 LPs 11110p, 556 LPs 11130p, 557 LPs 11150p, 558 LPs 11170p, 559 LPs 11190p, 560 LPs 11210p, 561 LPs 11230p, 562 LPs 11250p, 563 LPs 11270p, 564 LPs 11290p, 565 LPs 11310p, 566 LPs 11330p, 567 LPs 11350p, 568 LPs 11370p, 569 LPs 11390p, 570 LPs 11410p, 571 LPs 11430p, 572 LPs 11450p, 573 LPs 11470p, 574 LPs 11490p, 575 LPs 11510p, 576 LPs 11530p, 577 LPs 11550p, 578 LPs 11570p, 579 LPs 11590p, 580 LPs 11610p, 581 LPs 11630p, 582 LPs 11650p, 583 LPs 11670p, 584 LPs 11690p, 585 LPs 11710p, 586 LPs 11730p, 587 LPs 11750p, 588 LPs 11770p, 589 LPs 11790p, 590 LPs 11810p, 591 LPs 11830p, 592 LPs 11850p, 593 LPs 11870p, 594 LPs 11890p, 595 LPs 11910p, 596 LPs 11930p, 597 LPs 11950p, 598 LPs 11970p, 599 LPs 11990p, 600 LPs 12010p, 601 LPs 12030p, 602 LPs 12050p, 603 LPs 12070p, 604 LPs 12090p, 605 LPs 12110p, 606 LPs 12130p, 607 LPs 12150p, 608 LPs 12170p, 609 LPs 12190p, 610 LPs 12210p, 611 LPs 12230p, 612 LPs 12250p, 613 LPs 12270p, 614 LPs 12290p, 615 LPs 12310p, 616 LPs 12330p, 617 LPs 12350p, 618 LPs 12370p, 619 LPs 12390p, 620 LPs 12410p, 621 LPs 12430p, 622 LPs 12450p, 623 LPs 12470p, 624 LPs 12490p, 625 LPs 12510p, 626 LPs 12530p, 627 LPs 12550p, 628 LPs 12570p, 629 LPs 12590p, 630 LPs 12610p, 631 LPs 12630p, 632 LPs 12650p, 633 LPs 12670p, 634 LPs 12690p, 635 LPs 12710p, 636 LPs 12730p, 637 LPs 12750p, 638 LPs 12770p, 639 LPs 12790p, 640 LPs 12810p, 641 LPs 12830p, 642 LPs 12850p, 643 LPs 12870p, 644 LPs 12890p, 645 LPs 12910p, 646 LPs 12930p, 647 LPs 12950p, 648 LPs 12970p, 649 LPs 12990p, 650 LPs 13010p, 651 LPs 13030p, 652 LPs 13050p, 653 LPs 13070p, 654 LPs 13090p, 655 LPs 13110p, 656 LPs 13130p, 657 LPs 13150p, 658 LPs 13170p, 659 LPs 13190p, 660 LPs 13210p, 661 LPs 13230p, 662 LPs 13250p, 663 LPs 13270p, 664 LPs 13290p, 665 LPs 13310p, 666 LPs 13330p, 667 LPs 13350p, 668 LPs 13370p, 669 LPs 13390p, 670 LPs 13410p, 671 LPs 13430p, 672 LPs 13450p, 673 LPs 13470p, 674 LPs 13490p, 675 LPs 13510p, 676 LPs 13530p, 677 LPs 13550p, 678 LPs 13570p, 679 LPs 13590p, 680 LPs 13610p, 681 LPs 13630p, 682 LPs 13650p, 683 LPs 13670p, 684 LPs 13690p, 685 LPs 13710p, 686 LPs 13730p, 687 LPs 13750p, 688 LPs 13770p, 689 LPs 13790p, 690 LPs 13810p, 691 LPs 13830p, 692 LPs 13850p, 693 LPs 13870p, 694 LPs 13890p, 695 LPs 13910p, 696 LPs 13930p, 697 LPs 13950p, 698 LPs 13970p, 699 LPs 13990p, 700 LPs 14010p, 701 LPs 14030p, 702 LPs 14050p, 703 LPs 14070p, 704 LPs 14090p, 705 LPs 14110p, 706 LPs 14130p, 707 LPs 14150p, 708 LPs 14170p, 709 LPs 14190p, 710 LPs 14210p, 711 LPs 14230p, 712 LPs 14250p, 713 LPs 14270p, 714 LPs 14290p, 715 LPs 14310p, 716 LPs 14330p, 717 LPs 14350p, 718 LPs 14370p, 719 LPs 14390p, 720 LPs 14410p, 721 LPs 14430p, 722 LPs 14450p, 723 LPs 14470p, 724 LPs 14490p, 725 LPs 14510p, 726 LPs 14530p, 727 LPs 14550p, 728 LPs 14570p, 729 LPs 14590p, 730 LPs 14610p, 731 LPs 14630p, 732 LPs 14650p, 733 LPs 14670p, 734 LPs 14690p, 735 LPs 14710p, 736 LPs 14730p, 737 LPs 14750p, 738 LPs 14770p, 739 LPs 14790p, 740 LPs 14810p, 741 LPs 14830p, 742 LPs 14850p, 743 LPs 14870p, 744 LPs 14890p, 745 LPs 14910p, 746 LPs 14930p, 747 LPs 14950p, 748 LPs 14970p, 749 LPs 14990p, 750 LPs 15010p, 751 LPs 15030p, 752 LPs 15050p, 753 LPs 15070p, 754 LPs 15090p, 755 LPs 15110p, 756 LPs 15130p, 757 LPs 15150p, 758 LPs 15170p, 759 LPs 15190p, 760 LPs 15210p, 761 LPs 15230p, 762 LPs 15250p, 763 LPs 15270p, 764 LPs 15290p, 765 LPs 15310p, 766

■ From page 8

was quite an anti-climax."

ETC ETC ETC.

■ From page 24

DOWN: 1 Joe Jackson; 2 "Strangers in (The Night)"; 3 Albertros; 4 Ovalton; 5 "Octave"; 6 "Arrival"; 7 Lee (Dorsey); 10 Mamas and Papas; 11 (Art) Garfunkel (sng. flunk rale); 14 Yoko Ono; 18 Island; 19 Ayers; 20 (Lee) Dorsey; 21 OJays; 23 (Angus) Young; 25 (Joe Egan.

ADDRESS

Rates: UK Addresses — year £15.50; six months £7.75
USA & Canada — year $52.00; six months $26.00
Other countries — year £16.50; six months £8.25
Cheques payable to IPC Magazines

ALSO A GREAT BARGAIN!

POSTAGE AND PACKING 25p EXTRA ANY NUMBER OF RECORDS
OLDIES UNLIMITED DEPARTMENT N
 6/12 Stafford Street, St Georges, TELFORD, Shropshire TF2 9NQ

CARLTON EXPORTS
John F. Kennedy Drive Dublin.12.

Phone 505773      Telex 30544

NEW WAVE LATEST DESIGNS
AVAILABLE ON TOP QUALITY GARMENTS
T-SHIRTS £2.50+pp
SWEATS £4.50+pp s,m,l

Tees also in: Red, Yellow, Sky, blue Sweats also in: Red or Sky, blue

A SELECTION OF OUR
SUPERB VALUE
NEW  WAVE
CLOTHING

German Officers Tunic: Genuine German Army Officers Tunic Jacket, complete with original braids and badges. Blue Grey. Size chest size

US Army Fatigue Trousers. Black US Army Fatigue trousers with added fly on pockets and mastic legs. State size and inside leg.

E7.95 - 700 P. & V.
Gas Mask Containing Hyperbaric Oxygen

£4.95 + 70p P & P

Black String Vest. Old British Army coat. Really heavy string vest. The back E.M.L.

E2.50 : 350 P & P.
Send cheques or PO's to

PRINTOUT PROMOTIONS 877
28A ABINGTON SQUARE

NORTHAMPTON.

'Kansa' Fringed Moccasin Boots

Only $15.95 P.P.

Chosen from one long-top/dingo or three frisky layers—made to your own measurements.

In TAN SUEDE LEATHER, or distinctive (optional) leather—quality on request.

This is rubber soles, criss cross lacing up front. Send a z.c. for further details to Dept. BN COUNTRY FLEE, Arroyo Lido, Elmore, Barnier, York.

Also KANSAS MOCCASINS

Two Suede with outer sole, starts 3-11. Fast lace up and they're ready to wear. $25.00 post paid. Soft leather lining 15-20 cents.

Now available in Cream Blue Suede at $28.95.

UNION JACK
'JAM' JACKETS

Material: 100% cotton
Sizes: 34 to 40"
Price: Limited
Trousers $18, in each, selling at 100¢. Sizes 28"
34" any length.

Photo: custom jackets

CANNABIS LEAF
Unique jewelry for you
in fabulous precious metals
OUR EXCLUSIVE LINE

PENDANT 1 1/2" high

|                                           |         |
|-------------------------------------------|---------|
| Solid Silver on Real Silver Chain         | $3.00  |
| 14K Solid Gold on Silver-plated chain     | $4.00  |
| 14K Solid Silver on Silver-plated chain   | $1.75  |
| 1 1/2" Sintered Gold on Real Gold chain   | $26.00 |
| 1 1/2" Sintered Silver on Real Gold chain | $17.00 |
| 1 1/2" Sintered Gold on Real Gold chain   | $26.00 |
| 1 1/2" Sintered Silver on Real Gold chain | $17.00 |

(Start with us or make it your own!)
Join the rush and send money to:

ATLAS
24 KINGSTON LANE
BRIGHTON, SUSSEX

Matching trousers £75.00 in black, navy & light blue & light grey.

Button down shirt, £25.00 in white, navy, light blue & beige.

Marcelling tie £2.95

Black leather ties £3.95

Prices include P & P.

We make for The Jets, Pleasers, Showers, in T-shirts, sweaters. So why not you? T-shirts and group discounts made available.

Uniquely & P.O.'s to:

Carnaby Tavern

3 NEWBOURN STREET, LONDON, W1A 4GG

PEG TROUSERS

Flannel Pegs
in grey, d. brown & blue

E7.50 + 70p pkp
OR 2 for £14.25 + 90p
pkp

Also in Black & n. blue
Gabardine

E6.50 + 70p pkp
OR 2 for £12.50 + 90p
pkp

Sizes: 28" - 34" waist, 32" - 34" leg

Send cheque or P.O. order with name and colour
(2nd choice)

GEMINI (Dept. N)
6-7 ST AUGUSTINE RD.,
BIRMINGHAM, B24 8JH
Telephone: 549000

JET-LAG
U.S.A.
IMPORTED T-SHIRTS

100 FLORIDA WHISKY
114 LYNRYD SKYNYRD
211 VAN MORRISON WAVELENGTH FOREIGNER
115 WORLD TOUR
189 FOREIGNER WORLD TOUR 1979
113 KANSAS POINT OF NO RETURN HEART
138 HEART
212 YES
PABLO CRUISE
142 PABLO CRUISE
181 ROD STEWART - BLONDES HAVE MORE FUN
202 TOM PETTY HEARTBREAKERS
Lips
ALL AMERICAN MADE QUALITY SILK SCREEN-PRINTED T-SHIRTS
SIZE SMALL-MED 36-40 LG 42-44
ONLY $12.95 - Zip 73¢ Per garment.

SEND CHQ OR P.O. PAYABLE TO:
JET-LAG 1 STOROWSKY - HEMEL HEMPSTEAD - HURTS - WP2 878

[illegible]

PERSONAL 30p per word

AA FOR Penfriends. Personal friends, marriage partners. One year's membership £5. Free details from: Atlantic Agency, 34 Beconfield Ave., Colchester (CO3 3DJ). Telephone: (0206) 44884.

ALCOHOLIC new friends, new perspective, confidential and efficient service. Write: countrywide introduction, ME/Martin House, Brighthelm, Yorks.

CAG. HAPPY Birthday! Love always, Steve

DAVID, 18, car owner best friend, enjoy going to school. See East Midlands, London - Box No. 3777

FREE PENPAL Service: free letters 1979, scanned envelope. The Adam Trust, 181 Tidesdale Road, London, SW15

FRIENDSHIP? PEOPLE meet people through Sue Carr's Agency, Somerset Villa, Harrogate. Tel: 0423 63525. Free brochure, all ages/ages

HOW TO GET GIRLFRIENDS Overcome shyness, find the girl you fancy. See free details. Dept. NO. 38 Abbeydale, Wetherby, Leeds.

HOW TO SCORE WITH GIRLS AND BOYS INSTANTLY! Proven success for both sexes see free details: Dept. N, 4058 Christchurch Road, Bournemouth, Dorset, BH1 6AD.

LONELY GUY 22 into rock music, concert scene seeks similar sincere girl for good times and lasting friendship. Sheffield area. - Box No. 3728

PENFRIENDS U.S.A. - make interesting, lasting friendships through correspondence. Send age, interests for free reply. Harmony, Box 1X, Brooklyn, N.Y. 11223, U.S.A.

SUCCESSFUL MALE (18) seeks girl similar age for concerts and good times. Own car, etc. Sincere and forthcoming area. - Box No. 3728

WORLDWIDE PENFRIEND Service. See details - I.P.C.A., 29a Matherfield Road, Knapton Manor, Middlesex

WANTED 15p per word

FARRAH FAWCETT Box 245, 3000 Leaven 1, Balmum

GIRLS FOR New Wave concerts wanted by Mull girl (24) - Box no 3729

IAN DURY fans - please contact The Southern Whimsy, 18 South Hill, Bill, Bucks HP18 9TD see advertised, write soon to see what's happening.

KATE BUSH tickets, Sunderland Empire. Your price 0140 21205

KATE BUSH 2 tickets London - Weymouth 5900 evenings

KATE BUSH 2 tickets for Sunderland Empire, April 12th Tel 74295 Newcastle upon Tyne after 6pm

LOU REED Two tickets for Hammersmith April 10th wanted, urgently, good price paid - available 27962

MOTOWN Buy 3 - offers - Phone Newton 364

ONE KATE BUSH ticket for 20th of April, will pay £15 for good £5 ticket. Phone Joe on 01-499 6321 ask for ext 259, after 6 ext 308

PISTOLS RANTIES interview tapes etc, also anything on 999, Wire and The Clash, Phil Marshall, 105 Broadshaw St, Essendon, 3040, Victoria, Australia

RICHARD THOMPSON Concert tapes, recent and old. Details to Joost, PO Box 331, Utrecht, Netherlands

ROCK LYRICS wanted, pricing proportion. Details (s.a.s.) Robert Hoskins, 30 Sneyd Rd, Bloxwich, Staffordshire

TAUITION 30p per word

GUITAR POSTAL Courses, see 40(N) Ashley Hill, Bristol, 8

UNIQUE ELECTRIC Guitar tuition. Funk, Blues, Rock, Jazz, Jazz-rock. Theory, composition, style, technique development. Studies on Rock, Bessie, Hendrix, Santana, McLaughlin. Focus on improvisation. Serious students only! John 01-387 3885

MUSICAL SERVICES 10p per word

ABOUT 100 Bands, groups, discotheques, keyboard parties, London's leading entertainment agency! Guyman's 01-247 5531

ABSOLUTELY FREE!!! Songwriters' Magazine explains copyright, publishing, recording royalties, so on, contracts, setting your lyrics to music without paying, plus interviews, news etc free booklet from International Songwriters Association (INMA) Lyndrick City, Ireland

CAN YOU spare time to plug your band? Do you need a middle man to organise gigs, etc? - Ring 01-394 2999 after 6 on Musak P.R.

EARN MONEY songwriting. Amazing free book tell-how - L.S. 10 11 (X) Dryden Chambers, 119 Oxford Street, London, W1 7B

LYRICS WANTED - no publication fee 11 St Albans Avenue, London W4

PROFESSIONAL COMPOSER needs lyrics. See details, 12 Darnley Close, Camberley, Surrey

SONGWRITERS, SAVE $$$ Read "Songwriters Guide" including reviews of songwriting courses, 450+ publishers' addresses, vital hints on writing lyrics and music, songwriting, copyright, contracts, etc. £1. Also "British Music Index" - 450+ addresses of record companies. Both £1.50 - Dept 11, Hamilton House Productions, Stevenston, S. Devon

SONGWRITERS SERVICE - professional manuscripts, arrangements etc. Pro Music Studios, 40 Queen Street, Macclesfield, Tel 0628 24878

WRITERS YOUNG Lyrics into songs, songs into cash. Details - BCM, Leamster Music, London, WCT V0XX

INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE 10p per word

FENDER TELECASTER M/Neck Gibson Humbucker. Fitted, beautiful, £215 Marshall 50W Amp large 2 x 12, £145 - 01-778 3290

SEANIE FLYING V immaculate with case, £180 only - Robbo, 01-474 9500

MUSICIANS WANTED 10p per word

BRIGHTON, WORTHING Area. Singer with little experience but has a great gimmick. Wants to join new wave band. Box No. 3730

DRUMMER, BASSIST, Sacred wanted (Male/female) new wave band, South Wales. Tel: Llanwood 2488. Experience not essential

DRUMMER WANTED Urgently for N.W. London rock band. Must be better than Charlie Watts! Phone 01-504 5299 after 7

GUITARIST SEeks Band SE London - Bob - 01-460 7726

HEAVY ROCK Drummer wanted, rehearse Holland Park gigs ASAP. Phone 01-474 4138

ROCK RICH are forming! Exciting violin, Celtic, Drums, Keyboards. Brass to join singer/guitarist/writer to perform energy music. Instruments, adrenalin, ideas essential. Phone Brent 01-989 4120 if you want to entertain yourself and others and be in the best band in the world

NEW LABEL wants artists, interested? Write K. Sherman, 543 Staines Road, Hounslow, Middx.

SYNTHESISTS, PERCUSSIONISTS, Clarinet, Harpichord, aged, 17/18, for electronic, mystic, group, influenced. Residents, Throbbing Gristle, Visions After 2.00 pm. Phone Matt 01-508 0208

VOCALIST REQUIRED to front bass, drums, guitar, originality helpful, other musicians considered. Telford 47737

YOUNG, COMPETENT New wave guitarist required for band in Manchester area. Interested? Phone Tony 081 366 8610

SITS.

VACANT

DANCERS, topless, straight and strippers wanted for pub work. Phone Richard on 01 407 5187

DISC JOCKEYS Male and Female, 16-25 years required, without equipment, for London Pub Work. Accommodation available. Richard 01 407 5187

ESCAPE EMPLOYMENT on Liners, Oil Rigs, experience unnecessary. Details: Maritime Employment Guide, price 70p - Working Holiday & First Travel Guide, post 80p From Master Supplies, November House, Oakhill Avenue, Pinner, Middlesex

WANTED IMMEDIATELY: Piano technician / tuner to work in developing Oxford Piano Workshop. Write OPW, P.O. Box 94, Oxford.

WE DON'T guarantee you'll get employment in the music world but after reading "Music Employment Guide" and "Radio Employment Guide" we reckon your chances will certainly be improved! And to make sure: "British Music Index" gives 800+ music industry addresses / phones. Each publication 80p all three £2.00. Hamilton House Productions, Stevenston, S. Devon

A Large Entertainment Organisation Are Seeking FEMALE/MALE D.J.s in the London area with vocal or dancing experience

For auditions please ring

Ernest Smith on 01-808 4179

ROCK VENUE REQUIRES SUPERPERSON

Triad Leisure Centre & Bishop's Stamford, Herts requires an enthusiastic superperson to co-ordinate their rock music events. Age, experience and qualifications unimportant

Applicants should have a good knowledge of today's music and be willing to work long unsociable hours 8 days a week

The successful applicant will receive a lovely salary and accommodation in the kitchen.

If you are read enough to take this job, phone John Atkinson during office hours on Bishop's Stamford 56333

ACCURATE TYPIST

HOW WOULD LIKE TO BE RESPONSIBLE FOR OUR CLASSIFIED PAGES?

If you're a typist, aged over 21 with a pleasant telephone manner and an ability with figures this could be your opportunity to join NME. You will be responsible for this page, you will deal with readers' complaints and will also have general typing duties within our friendly advertisement department.

If you're interested write giving details about yourself to Peter Rhodes, Advertisement Manager, New Musical Express, Kings Reach Tower, Stamford Street, London SE1 9LS or phone 01-261 6251.

NME CLASSIFIEDS

REACH 192,000 MORE READERS THAN ITS NEAREST COMPETITOR. WHATEVER YOU WANT, WE'RE THE BEST.

IT'S YOUR PAPER - USE IT

SPECIAL NOTICES 10p per word

HAIR-PUNKER! Come and see your friend Dominica who applies crazy colour in any shade, style and design and we also supply 20 shades of crazy oil. Monday to Saturday 9-7 pm and Friday 8-6 pm. Phone 01-537 2878 and 01-807 8465. Free advice given.

TRIFUNC CONCERT Tour to be arranged shortly. Watch NME for further details

ZEM - TOO good for this world. Sadly missed already

FREE RADIO 10p per word

RADIO CAROLINE Latest, London-based 'pirate' news and offshore news in soundwaves. Issue 3 out end April. Order now! 23p to Soundwaves, Ovington, Kent.

319 RADIO CAROLINE Badges 2½, 30p and see from Soundwaves, Ovington, Kent

DISCO THEQUES 10p per word

DAVE JANSSEN 01-989 6010

JOHNNY DEANS 01-901 8617 or 01-803 0884

STEVE DAY - 01-524 2886

INSTRUMENTS WANTED 10p per word

PURCHASED FOR CASH: Guitars, Amplifiers, Memmord, Organs. Top prices - 01-836 7811

SITUATIONS WANTED 10p per word

MALE DRIVER, 19, seeks work in London - anything considered. D. White, 9 Bedford St. Ford, Plymouth

ADVERTISING FOR A JOB?

To reach over a million people ring

MILES JOHNSON 01-261 6446

for details of advertising

Checkout your future as a Record/Tape Buyer with Tesco

Tesco Home 'n' Wear is expanding fast. We sell a really exciting range of records and tapes, and this side of our business is growing all the time. Now we are looking for a man or woman to join one of the most professional buying teams in the retail trade.

This is a position rich in opportunity and scope for the right person. You will have had between two and three year's experience as a buyer with a large multiple retailer or department store. You will be something of a specialist in the music business, aware of current trends and the newest developments. You will be keen to capitalise on your experience and flair by joining a dynamic organisation where enthusiasm and hard work are recognised and rewarded.

As a Tesco Record/Tape Buyer you will be based at our bright, modern Head Office in Cheshunt, and will report to a Buying Director. Your responsibilities will include evaluating and recommending merchandise, negotiating and placing orders with manufacturers and monitoring suppliers.

Obviously you will wish to further your career, and at Tesco you will be given every encouragement to do so. If you have ability, self-confidence and a capacity for hard work, we have the opportunities. And remember - being a Tesco Buyer is the best reference you could ask for!

There is an excellent range of benefits, in addition to a good salary: company car; subsidised staff restaurant, sports and social club in the country; pension and insurance schemes; generous expenses for relocation.

Please apply to: Mrs. Shirley Phillips, Personnel Manager, Tesco Stores Limited, Tesco House, Delamare Road, Cheshunt, Herts. EN8 9SL. Tel: Waltham Cross 32222.

Checkout your future career with

TESCO

The DipH'erent graduation recipe

Two years full time Diploma of Higher Education (CMAA validated) provides a flexible and enriching degree level education. Several subjects are combined with competences and skills widely applicable in today's changing job market and throughout the course independent interests are developed and various work situations are sampled to assist the choice of a suitable job completion of the course permits students to move directly to the final year(s) of these College honours degrees

ALSO

B Ed (Hons) Primary and Middle Schools

BA (Hons) Business Studies

BA (Hons) Social Science

To start you need 2 A levels but alternative qualifications or experience will be considered

For details write to Mr. C. Rowe

HULL COLLEGE OF HIGHER EDUCATION

Dept 238, FREEPOST, Hull HU8 7BR

SOMETHING TO SELL?

SOMETHING YOU WANT?

LOOKING FOR WORK?

Advertise!

It's only 16p per word.

IT'S YOUR PAPER - USE IT

GUITARS! AMPLIFIERS! COMBOS! DRUMS! MICS! KEYBOARDS! SYNTHESISERS! SPEAKERS! DISCO-UNITS! LIGHTING! EFFECTS! AND MUCH MUCH MORE

No hassle hire purchase - cheap hire up to 50% off retail prices

MORE MUSIC

CHURCHWALL, COLCHESTER, ESSEX

Telephone 0206 41931

For instant low price quote

Part exchange. Free delivery anywhere

Guitars, amps, speakers from £20.00

Mics from £5.00, Combos from £35.00

Disco units from £40.00

All leading names in stock

MARKSHALL, M/M, WEM SHIRE

FENDER, GIBSON, IBANEZ, ARP

HOHNER, DYATON, WASP, VOX

YAMAHA, KORG, RICKENBACKER

THOUSANDS OF OTHERS

RING 0206-47151

Ask for Fred de Schutter. He'll be 500% to you free

It gives me great pleasure to declare this Bag... open!

H. R. Hatch

I don't see what the kids are complaining about. It's almost unavoidable, this 'sell-out'.

If the 'fans', 'kids' or whatever, insist on looking like a load of paranoid headcases (and often acting as same) and at the same time chasing the groups (Buzzcocks, Sham, Clash etc) and creating them as extra-special people, it can be expected that the individual members of the groups will inevitably shy away.

A normal person who, after having stardom placed on his rather inexperienced shoulders, is confronted by 40 50 or 60 over-zealous fans would have an alternative of either (a) stay around, sign autographs and act like a genuine old-fashioned arsehole, or (b) go backstage and return to a more natural surrounding. A paradoxical choice!

Paul Seery, Lancaster. Indeed! But not one that bothers the likes of Van Morrison. — M.S.

Last night at the City Hall, Newcastle, Van Morrison sang "You're holding too much back/ too much back/ I'm holding too much back myself."

And at last the deciding factor behind Van Morrison 'Live' became apparent, together with its two possibilities. The possibilities? A professional, tight, enjoyable act with soaring music and spirits (which it sadly wasn't). The factor? In one sentence — the presence/absence of an audience which appreciates the music for what it is and is capable of showing that appreciation.

Last night's band was totally into the feel of Morrison's music and the man himself occasionally hit the intensity and expression of which he is demonstrably capable. Yet through it all, the audience sat moribund, barely a head nodding throughout, clapping on cue at the end of each number. Morrison, frustrated, subtly took the piss by constantly introducing and re-introducing the band members after solos — and each time the audience clapped politely, just like their mummies taught them.

It's a tribute to his immense professionalism that he provided this for with an encore: decent versions of 'St Dominic's Preview' and 'Gloria' (during the latter, the guy next to us had his coat on ready to leave). For this civility we extend a heartfelt "thank-you" to Mr. Morrison.

As for those oh-so-trendily frozen people who didn't or couldn't respond (didn't you know Van Morrison is a soul singer and not a surrogate Dylan?) why don't you stay at home next time and spend the ticket-price on an album ("Yessongs", perhaps?) Gordon Clark and Ros Wray, Newcastle-upon-Tyne

That's one way of looking at it

Bagged by

Monty Smith

Friend to Lunchie Bunsworth and you, dear readers

Normal Bag — booze, birds and bad jokes

Illustration: Detail from The History Of Phallic Imagery In 'American' Culture by A. Burnhol

So you didn't see Van Morrison at the Glasgow Apollo the other night?

Listen, nobody saw Van Morrison at the Glasgow Apollo. And what the Dansette proportioned P.A. would let us hear was uninspired and slothful.

The stage at the Apollo is over a mile high. The band stood as far back as possible so nobody could see below their upper lips. Morrison, after retreating virtually into the drum kit for the opening "Moondance", concealed himself behind three acres of grand piano for the entire remainder of the 55 minute set. He even went behind the drums when he left the stage.

Stage front, a flouncing female who made Sally Oldfield look cool, played an ecstatic solo on her electric violin. It wasn't plugged in. Nobody seemed to care. It was the first and last entertaining moment of the set.

But the depressing thing to see was that so many people lapped it up. The rock legend is on stage — he must be good. Critical faculties seemed to have dulled with age. The audience were, well, old.

If he hasn't hit your town yet, sell your ticket, save the bus fare and buy "Wavelength". Or any of his albums. Stay at home and listen to your favourite. Enjoy his music. Because he obviously doesn't.

Colin Copland, Linlithgow, West Lothian.

and that's the other. Seems like a cantankerous old bleeder to me. Let's get back to rock'n'roll. — M.S.

A few issues back in your rag you stated that the world would end within the next 72,000,000,000 years. This is a lie. Our sect has been given Divine Word that this somewhat significant event will occur next Tuesday.

weather permitting. Philip of the Children of Was God A Palindrome. Toulouse branch.

P.S. Tell Jessica that the French have not been alerted. (They think it's going to be a public holiday, tee-hee). Serves 'em right. But what's this got to do with rock...

I enjoyed Graham Lock's article on Patrick Fitzgerald. But his mention of the theory "if the entire population of China leapt in to the air at precisely the same moment, they could shift the earth's axis" lead me to think what would happen when the poor buggers landed. They might all land in Cleethorpes!

Or did he mean the landing will knock the earth off its axis? If so, what happens if some poor bugger landed a bit later than the others, and the earth was gone. Brewster Sprocket, Walton, Liverpool.

... or, for that matter, roll? Point (when though — you don't think these lighter nights happen by themselves, do you? B.S.T. is just another Commie plot. — M.S.

Baker, you bastard! So 'enjoyment' is 'another trait of ignorance' eh? So all of us trendy pseudo-intellectuals 'into' Public Image, Siouxsie, Magazine etc are pocker-faced robots? Well sod you!

I get off over the aforementioned as much as I do over The Jam; just because that prat Penman stags off their single don't start whining and bleating about how glad you are you're ignorant if it means being able to like traditional rock music. Any reason why we shouldn't enjoy (enjoy?) PIL, Jam, B. Rats. Wire etc without narrow minded bastards like you lumping along shrieking "You can't enjoy this, mate, it's not traditional, the kids don't dance to it every bloody night, right, etc."?

I thought you were one of the last remaining bastions of outright selfish honesty left in the NME; silly me

God I enjoyed that A typically English Oaf, Tavistock, Devon.

So even personable cheeky chappie Dan 'Cor. Strike A Light Guv' (© Val Hennessy) Baker's coming in for a pasting this week. The moderne world can be very cruel. — A NOTTS COUNTY FAN

Concerning The Jam interview — you made a balls up. Linguists like me know there is a word 'moderne' and also 'modische' — 'modernische'?

Cocky know-alls. And as I write this, I see another mistake; it should be 'die modernische welt' nor der — 'cos 'welt' is feminine and nominative. Oh NME, shame on you!

Paul Doughty Up yer ass. — KHRK DOUGLAS. Kirk Douglas? There must be a movie letter coming up. — M.S.

We find it completely contradictory that in a paper such as yours, one that promotes the best and most progressive music around — problems within independent cinema — an eclectic academic approach is proffered by many — but what it needs most of all is money to be able to compete with the sort of films you review, and it is not going to get this without the sort of exposure your paper can afford.

Illustration by ex-reader Frank Lamb, incensed by trivial 'American' films and comic books.

Jon Maine and Richard Purslow, Practice Films, Nottingham.

Cue 16 ton weight. Scene 1: Your sneering at the circuits is pathetic. Scene 2: The Deer Hunter, a brilliantly made film, will long out-live the miserable carping of its detractors. Silver Screen will continue to review films that are likely to be seen by its readers. Scene 3: You want coverage for 'independent' films? Go to the specialist movie mags — and Godard may have been important to the '60s, but he's contributed bugger all to the '70s. Unfortunately, for the likes of you, 'Americans' (your peculiar inverted commas) like Arthur Penn, Robert Altman, Steven Spielberg, Martin Scorsese and Paul Schrader have — and, shame on them, they've reached the circuits. Keep practising, lads. — M.S.

What we do not comprehend is how Roy Harper can execute the supreme axe-job on such triflings as Christianity, the work ethic, imperialism, political creeds, general assumptions of sanity, in fact the whole motivations and direction of the modern world, and what gets his record banned?

It's the pure transcendental definitive statement (hitherto overlooked by rock thinkers) that the food at Watford Gap (Bacteria's Revenge) tastes like variations on the theme of bodily waste products.

I think that England is an extremely strange country and I bet you do too.

Wounded Buffalo (the wanderer)

I do, Wounded. I do. — M.S.

Charles dear, I have just read your music review in Vogue; very good. But what do "approximation... pabulum... congenitally... redolent..." mean, maaan?

Samuel Beckett (Mrs) Something about CSM preferring his congenitals smelling like baby food. Vogue readers go for that sort of thing. — M.S.

So Juan D. Cross thinks NME is an anagram of men. Well, New Musical Express, you may be interested to know, is an anagram of penis — raw sex muscle. And you criticise The Strangers?

The Knackered Civil Servant, Preston

There's no answer to that. We're all heartily ashamed of ourselves. Nought to do but go with a whimper. — M.S.

I wrote a lot of letters and put them in the same envelope. Out of all of them, I least expected you to print this one. Hope Foole, Warsaw, Notts

Are we not mice? — M.S.

'Let's get outta here before there are any more lame 'American' cracks.' 'Boyle as 'Brando'. Sutherland as Himself, a well-known 'Canadian'.

upholding and encouraging an independent industry whilst turning its back on the mega-buck financed products of the multi-nationals — that the reverse is true of the page your paper devotes to cinema reviews and features.

There are three points that we would like to make.

1. That the only films you ever review are ones that are produced by the industry, and reach the circuits.

2. That the reviews themselves are in no way adequate. Nowhere is this more apparent than in Monty Smith's review of The Deer Hunter, in which we find Mr Smith lauding a racist 'American' film. It is perhaps significant here that Mr Smith's views coincided with those of the Sunday Telegraph, though even he could see that the singing of 'God Bless America' was neither ironic nor jingoistic but American 'life affirming'.

It is probably pointless to say how this and many other firms could have been reviewed in a more constructive manner, suffice to say that The Deer Hunter adopts a definite aesthetic, that of documentary film, to influence the audience response and project the film as the truth 'as close to reality as possible'. Well, if 'this is this', then film is film, whichever way you look at it.

3. That you obviously have no knowledge of the growing independent film production within this country, that has been built up over the last ten years or so. It is no longer content to produce the self indulgent shit of the London Co-op circa the '60s, but is prepared to tackle the very real problems of film and film-making (remember Godard? You should do — the paper name dropped him a couple of times recently).

This letter was written in haste, and is perhaps not as clear as it could be, but we're angry — angry because it's something we are involved in and feel strongly about. It's a real shame when an otherwise good paper such as yours commands possibly the most interested and interesting audience around, and then doesn't always make the best use of it.

There are very real

Alright? Yeah, sure it's alright for you, you're not stuck eighty foot up in the air, hoping to bag some exclusive words with stranded daredevil cat Charlie — a moggy who'd got himself stuck in the upper branches of this massive tree and thus lured the nation's attention away from things like no-confidence votes. Middle-Eastern treaties and the like. So: T-Zers donned hard hat and spiked boots and began the three hour ascent to garner the said interview. What did we find? Not a sausage. Just a doodled-on copy of The Star and the suspicion of a feline turd. But the column must go on, and so, unable to look — let alone GET — down, T-Zers whips it out this week from on high. Our men at the foot of the tree armed with megaphones screech the lead taster to us trampling dots.

To the cheesy surrounds of London's Lyceum, where the night of what had been touted as "The Gig Of The Century!" broke upon us last Sunday. A fal' house full' notice went up outside the one time Vaudeville house as inside The Mekons, The Fall, Human League, Gang Of Four and Stiff Little Fingers limbered up to allow punters to meet the new bosses. However, up first came The Good Missionaries. The Good Missionaries? They're an, uh, experimental conglomeration — (for experimental read 'jam band') — who played their set in masks. But — shazam — T-Zers shall unmask them! 'Twas Mark the Perry and assorted dossers from the vicinity of Faulty Products and The Transmitters. Their twenty minutes of new music(k), we hear, could herald the next Step Forward for ATV, a band who have tasted the magic of being bottled and brushed offstage twice within the past fortnight (Greenwich and Derby).

Meanwhile, back at the bar, Andy Gill of Gang Of Four commenting on NME's riposte last week to Snoups' claim the week before that he and our Andy Gill were one and the same: "I couldn't have put it better myself!"

The Four, incidentally, stuck a line dedicated to Adrian Thrills into drummer Hugo's improvised 'Talkover', and finished their set with a stage full of Mekons.

Meanwhile, back in the crowd, The Fall spent their entire set ducking plastic glasses and tin cans, clanking in some berk leaping out of the audience to attack singer Mark Smith onstage. The boarder was repelled with a couple of not-too-well aimed kicks by guitarist Martin Bramah and Marc Riley. Turns out it was the same bloke who pelted them all through their Lyceum set supporting Generation X.

"This is what we find" section: Elvis Costello rumoured to be making his acting debut in Americanation. Written by former FireSign Theatre people Phillip Proctor and Peter Bergman, the film will concern itself with a gigantic telephone staged to give off national bankruptcy in the US. The main stars (sic) of the production will be (gulp) Meatloaf.

Still in 70mm, T-Zers observes rock'n'rolling Paul McCartney's growing infatuation with the world of celluloid. Paulie, subject of a recent American TV special called Wings Over The World, is currently searching for a director to work on an as yet untitled project that will take Band On The Run as its theme and feature Wings members in 'dramatic roles'. The script will come from Will Russell who wrote the stage musical John, Paul, George, Ringo and Bert. There is no truth to the story that a growing number of US teenagers are carrying small worship mats that they can use each day at noon whilst facing toward Liverpool and praying to Mecca.

One time Beatle support band The Rolling Stones are sure to be back in the controversial eye when Cavaller magazine begins publication of excerpts from the Up And Down With The Rolling Stones blue book. The book contains chapters on the infamous underground flick Cocksucker Blues which features The Stones in playful postures with groupie chums.

T-ZERS

SINGS FOR ITS SUPPER

One Pit makes you yell your head off, the other makes you give people funny looks. Keith Levine gives JR a wobbly look (Wobbly's at the pic giving 'em both a Leviney look). Pic: Joe Stevens.

To Paris and the Bryntoliah Ferrari! Following the final Paris date of the Roxy Music Euro Tour, Ferry remained in the capitol to make his acting debut in a French TV six-part soap opera. The series is set in a hotel with Meester Fairrie in the role of a Star who arrives there and has an affair with the manager's wife.

RSO about to spend £300,000 on TV advertising for the current Bae Gae's LP. Fact: in 1972 Permafex of Stoke shipped £50,000 of petroleum to Arab.

Never mind The Rich Kids what about The Runaways? Have they broken up or what? Well despite the pressures and the cash, they're still clinging on so T-Zers learns. Girls, our last offer is six pounds thirty five and not a penny more!

But list! A sad tale of Joan Jett. After completing their single A cover version of Lesley Gore's 'You Don't Own Me', see Thrills supergroup (c1970) Jones, Cook and Jet decided to celebrate by taking in Inner Circle gig at The Marquee. It seems that the trio were not long inside when Ms Jett finds herself alone, Cook and Jones having, uh, weighed in with some maidenly pair or other and scrambled. After scouring Piccadilly for three hours in search of a cab JJ finally arrives at SJ's flat on foot. SJ of course is still out on the case so JJ — (stay with this it's probably worth it) — trolls back to Soho and gets unconcho drunk within the low rent walls of a sex club (c. Carri 1972). She awakes as the cleaners arrive and goes back to sit on SJ's doorstep 'dirty, unwashed and nowhere to go...'. If you would like to adopt a runaway please write to The Kim Fowley Foundation, Los Angeles, enclosing as much as you can spare and a recording contract. Committed, dedicated, selfless conglomerate of revolutionary musicians Here & Now have, as part of their entourage, a vegetarian dog. Truly, when T-Zers asked the pooch how he found this imposed diet he just snapped "Ruff".

Dire Straits have finished their next album — tentatively titled 'Communique' — in Nassau and hope for a Spring release. Jerry Wexler produced.

From around the world T-Zers brings you news: this week disco on the whipping post. First from an official Soviet Youth Leader, 51, who issued the following statement: "Western Music is depraved, so-called Disco music is nothing but the beat of sexual intercourse designed to corrupt youth."

Whilst in the words of one 64-year-old Greek bishop, "Modern dancing is a sin equal to fornication since it looks like it." He went on to ban "sexy" short sleeve shirts from his churches. Our own Danny Baker writes: "And you still can't get a dentist on weekends."

Reports suggest Bruce Springsteen can't wash the ghost of his UK 'Born To Run' tour out of his hair. Allegedly turning down a fatful of dollars to do a large outdoor gig in the UK this Summer, Broose appears reticent to play any UK dates in the near future.

Pistols' 'Something Else' becomes their first silver disc. Despite notoriety/excellence of other waxings, none of them quite managed the 250,000 mark.

Pistols label Virgin, however, apparently can't afford to light fags with fivers just yet. They plan to take out an insurance policy on the coming XTC single to guard them against its success. An Australian tour planned to begin on May 21st would have to be cancelled if the single entered the BBC Top 50 and the band had to stay behind to promote it. Consequently, a Lloyd's broker will listen to the single next week and assess its chances before calculating the likely premium.

Young Man! The US Navy were so impressed by the latest Village People discette that they loaned the band a freshly painted nuclear missile ship and 250 sailors to use in a promotional film for the record with the condition the navy could also use the film for recruitment. Then it was pointed out that said song might not be quite the piece of John Wayne patriotism the brasshats had thought. It was decided to scrap the recruiting idea because, as one jolly jack tar put it: "We don't feel the gist quite represents what we're after." Incidentally chaps, Phonogram reveal 'YMCA' to have been their largest selling record in their history with over three million sold.

Under the name 'Ten Years Too Soon' CBS unveil a project in which they'll take the best of Sly Stones' output and remix it for the disco market. If it works, other companies are expected to follow suit. Quite who was wearing the suit nobody knows but so long as nobody goes about unearthing old Gutbucket tracks T-Zers is approving.

Handsome: The Dictators have changed their name to The Rhythm Dukes and are currently looking for two female singers.

To The Wiz a son? Top promoters Lebar and Krebs in negotiation with Elton John and Bernie Taupin for theatrical rights to a stage musical based on 'Yellow Brick Road' done a la Beatlemania. Who wants seats! Who wants seats!

The Doors album 'An American Prayer' could have included a live version of 'Gloria' but for Morrison's singing. There is a shady bunch who are to campaign for Elektra to release the cut.

Owing to the police summons issued for her drunken driving/driving a car in alleged dangerous condition following the car-crash in which Maric Botan died, Gloria Jones is probably less than enthusiastic to return from LA to these shores to promote her forthcoming 'Windstorm' LP. Gloria could face arrest as soon as she stepped off the plane.

Back in the world of the struggling artist, Paul Simon has paid CBS records $1.5 million to release him from recording another album for the label (under his contract he still owed one). Still upcoming is Simon's suit charging that CBS did not pay his royalties correctly etc. Meanwhile T-Zers suit is in Ernie's 4-Hour Cleaning service, and we've mislaid the ticket.

Epic Records have released Southside Johnny and The Asbury Jukes from their contract after the third LP 'Hearts Of Stone' failed to sell above 200,000 copies.

Another 'accidental' Stiff cock up: EMI printed up the first thousand of The Rumour single with Silver Convention's 'Fly, Robin, Fly' on the A-side. Stiff promptly sent them back to EMI by cab. Thing is, they never arrived. So, apart from the one copy Stiff held on to, there's 999 copies of point five of a good record floating around. Pity about The Rumour side.

Jam look/soundalikes The Chords celebrated the triumphant return from their sell-out world tour — it says here — with a '60s soul party in SE London's hip Borough High Street. Anybody who is nobody was there.

Close clingers and friends of the very late Elvis Presley scratching their heads after it was revealed that the Pelv has had over half of his £7½ million fortune eaten away by death duties. Contributors to the waning sun included the funeral (£25,000), removal of both Elvis and his mum's remains to a private cemetery (£5,000) and a £3,000 bill from the Memphis police for supplying extra security to cope with the mourning masses. The actual sun left, revealed as close on £4m, is far below even Elvis's closest associates expected.

And so they pack the megaphones away... and here we dot sit stranded. The wind howls around us, it's eighty feet straight down. Hold up... there's a whole bunch of people climbing towards us... what's that? You're gonna what? Oh... it appears these people work for IPC and to save the cost of bringing T-Zers down, they're bringing NME up to us.

BETTER BADGES

TOP TEN

| This week              | Last week |
|------------------------|-----------|
| 1 Clash Police         | (1)       |
| 2 Stiff Little Fingers | (3)       |
| 3 Skids                | (10)      |
| 4 The Police           | (4)       |
| 5 PIL                  | (2)       |
| 6 Maganthe             | (7)       |
| 7 Rock'n'Roll Swindle  | (8)       |
| 8 Members              | (9)       |
| 9 Moxons               | (6)       |
| 10 Jam (Tube Station)  | (5)       |

New releases 20p: Be Stiff, The Future Is Female (Wayne County), Sex Pistols: Rock'n'Roll Swindle, Never Trust A Hippie, Cash From Chaos, Believe In The Ruins, The Only Notes That Matter, They Swindled Their Way To The Top, True Love (Jared John), UK Subs C/D.

COMPILED FROM MAIL ORDER ONLY TEN BEST
SEE 'FOR SALE' SECTION FOR FULL LISTING

NME

EDITORIAL

3rd Floor
5-7 Carnaby Street
London W1V 1PG
Phone: 01-439 8761

EDITOR

Neil Spencer

Assistant Editor

Phil McNeil

News Editor

Derek Johnson

Production Editor

Jack Scott

Associate Editors

Charles Shaar Murray

Monty Smith

Special Projects Editor

Roy Carr

Staff

Tony Stewart

Steve Clarke

Tony Parsons

Julie Birchill

Angus MacKinnon

Paul Rambali

Photography

Pennie Smith

Contributors

Nick Kent

Mick Farren

Bob Edmunds

Tony Benyon

Max Bell

fred Dellar

Chris Salewicz

Cliff White

Bob Woffinden

Lester Bangs

John May

Paul Morley

Penny Reel

Adrian Thrills

Ian Penman

Andy Gill

Danny Baker

Research

Fiona Foulger

New York

Joe Stevens

(Temporary answer service)

N.Y. 686 7733

ADVERTISEMENT DEPT

Room 2529

Kings Reach Tower

Stamford Street

London SE1 9LS

Ad Director

Percy Dickens

(011 261 6080

Ad Manager:

Peter Rhodes

(011 261 6251

Classified Ads

(011 261 6122

Live Ads

(011 261 6153

Ad Production

Mike Proctor

Pete Christopher

Barry Cooper

(011 261 6207

Publisher: Ernst & Young

Editorial Consultant: Andy Gray

IPC Ad Sales Ltd

Production of any material without permission is strictly forbidden

Greatest Song Title Of All

Time (True, just like last week)

Where Did Robinson Crusoe Go

With Man Friday On A Saturday Night?

I Scream, You Scream, We All

Scream For Ice Cream

Come After Breakfast, Bring

Your Lunch And Leave Before

Super Time

But Oh How That Woman Could

Cook

My One Night In The Cathouse

Put Me In The Doghouse With You

Am I Nobody Here But Us

Chickens

Bring It, Bring It, Bring It, In

Other Words Take It Away!

MAGAZINE

ALBUM

SECONDHAND DAYLIGHT - v 2121

CASSETTE - TCV 2121

SPECIAL GUESTS

SIMPLE MINDS

(ALL DATES)

TOUR -

| APRIL                             | BOX OFFICE      |
|-----------------------------------|-----------------|
| 16 MALVERN WINTER GARDENS         | 06845 4700      |
| 17 BLACKBURN KING GEORGE'S HALL   | 0254 53092      |
| 18 SHEFFIELD TOP RANK             | 0742 21927      |
| 19 LEICESTER DE MONTFORT HALL     | 0533 27632      |
| 20 EDINBURGH CLOUDS               | 031 229 5353    |
| 21 ABERDEEN UNIVERSITY            | 0224 572751     |
| 22 ST ANDREWS UNIVERSITY          | 0334 73145      |
| 23 MANCHESTER APOLLO              | 061 273 3533    |
| 25 NEWCASTLE CITY HALL            | 0632 20007      |
| 26 HAMLEY VICTORIA HALL           | SEE LOCAL PRESS |
| 27 BIRMINGHAM ODEON               | 021 643 6101    |
| 28 SOUTHAMPTON GAUMONT            | 0203 29772/3    |
| 29 OXFORD NEW THEATRE             | 0865 44544      |
| 30 BRISTOL COLSTON HALL           | 0272 291768     |
| MAY                               |                 |
| 1 EXETER UNIVERSITY               | 0392 7791       |
| 2 LONDON THEATRE ROYAL DRURY LANE | 01 836 8108     |
| 3 CANTERBURY ODEON                | 0227 62480      |
| 4 CAMBRIDGE CORN EXCHANGE         | 0223 6221       |
| 5 LEEDS UNIVERSITY                | 0532 39071      |
| 6 LIVERPOOL EMPIRE                | 051 709 1555    |

Virgin