

NEW

WELLER AND WAKELING: BEAT AGAINST THE BOMB
VOTE IN THE 1981 READERS' POLL

STREETS APART

THE GLAMOUR AND
THE GRIMNESS OF NORTHERN STREETS

Ian Penman goes on the set of the TV fantasy Coronation Street
Paul Du Noyer reflects on the decay of his hometown Liverpool

JAMES BROWN-RINGED CAME TRIBUTE TO KATHLEEN WOOD-GIRLS AT OUR BEST

UK SINGLES

ONE	Last week		Weeks in	Highest
2		BEGIN THE BEGUINE Julio Iglesias (CBS)	6	1
2	8	DADDY'S HOMECliff Richard (EMI)	3	2
3	1	UNDER PRESSURE Queen & David Bowie (EMI)	5	1
4	6	WHY DO FOOLS FALL IN LOVE Diana Ross (Capitol)	7	4
5	3	LET'S GROOVEEarth Wind & Fire (CBS)	5	3
6	4	BED SITTERSoft Cell (Some Bizzare)	4	4
7	(—)	DON'T YOU WANT ME Human League (Virgin)	1	7
8	7	IGO TO SLEEPThe Pretenders (Real)	4	7
9	(—)	IT MUST BE LOVE.....Madness (Stiff)	1	9
10	12	THUNDER IN THE MOUNTAINS Toyah (Safari)	10	4
11	5	FAVOURITE SHIRTSHaircut 100 (Arista)	4	7
12	13	AY AY AY MOOSEY Modern Romance (WEA)	4	12
13	22	CAMBODIA.....Kim Wilde (RAK)	3	13
14	11	STEPPIN' OUT.....Kool & The Gang (Delite)	5	11
15	9	PHYSICAL.....Olivia Newton John (EMI)	6	6
16	14	THE VOICE.....Ultravox (Chrysalis)	5	14
17	21	WEDDING BELLS....Godley & Creme (Polydor)	2	17
18	10	JOAN OF ARC Orchestral Manoeuvres In The Dark (Dindisc)	6	3
19	17	TONIGHT I'M YOURSRod Stewart (Riva)	8	7
20	15	THE LUNATICS HAVE TAKEN OVER THE ASYLUM.....The Fun Boy 3 (Chrysalis)	3	15
21	24	FLASHBACK.....Imagination (R & B)	2	21
22	23	LET'S ALL SING LIKE THE BIRDIES SING Tweets (PRT)	2	22
23	27	MY OWN WAYDuran Duran (EMI)	2	23
24	18	TEARS ARE NOT ENOUGHABC (Neutron)	3	18
25	29	OPEN YOUR HEARTHuman League (Virgin)	9	7
26	28	YES TONIGHT JOSEPHINEJets (EMI)	3	26
27	(—)	WILD AS THE WIND.....David Bowie (RCA)	1	27
28	(—)	LOVE NEEDS NO DISGUISE Gary Numan (Beggars Banquet)	1	28
29	(—)	SPIRITS IN THE MATERIAL WORLD The Police (A&M)	1	29
30	(—)	ROCK 'N' ROLL.....Status Quo (Vertigo)	1	30

Human League in at No. 7 and up at No. 25.

UK LONG PLAYERS

ONE	Last week		Weeks in	Highest
2		CHART HITS '81 Various (K-Tel)	3	1
2	1	QUEEN GREATEST HITS.....Queen (EMI)	5	1
3	(—)	FOR THOSE ABOUT TO ROCK AC/DC (Atlantic)	1	3
4	5	PRINCE CHARMING....Adam & The Ants (CBS)	5	1
5	10	PEARLS.....Elkie Brooks (A&M)	4	5
6	3	DARE.....Human League (Virgin)	8	1
7	4	THE BEST OF BLONDIEBlondie (Chrysalis)	6	4
8	14	SIMON & GARFUNKEL COLLECTION Simon & Garfunkel (CBS)	2	8
9	24	NON-STOP EROTIC CABARET Soft Cell (Some Bizzare)	2	9
10	12	TONIGHT I'M YOURSRod Stewart (Riva)	4	8
11	6	ARCHITECTURE AND MORALITY Orchestral Manoeuvres In The Dark (Dindisc)	5	3
12	7	DE NINA A MUJER.....Julio Iglesias (CBS)	3	7
13	8	SHAKYShakin' Stevens (Epic)	12	2
14	9	TIN DRUMJapan (Virgin)	3	9
15	15	RAISE.....Earth Wind & Fire (CBS)	4	11
16	20	ALL THE GREATEST HITS Diana Ross (Motown)	3	16
17	30	WIRED FOR SOUNDCliff Richard (EMI)	10	6
18	22	BEST OFRainbow (Polydor)	4	18
19	26	HOOKED ON CLASSICS Louis Clark/RPO (K-Tel)	11	3
20	11	GHOST IN THE MACHINEThe Police (A&M)	6	4
21	28	THE VERY BEST OF ... Showaddywaddy (Arista)	2	21
22	19	HANSIMANIA.....James Last (Polydor)	2	19
23	18	ALMOST BLUE.....Elvis Costello (F-Beat)	6	6
24	(—)	WILDER.....Teardrop Explodes (Mercury)	1	24
25	(—)	BEGIN THE BEGUINEJulio Iglesias (CBS)	1	25
26	13	SPEAK AND SPELLDepeche Mode (Mute)	5	6
27	(—)	RENEGRADE.....Thin Lizzy (Vertigo)	1	27
28	(—)	PERHAPS LOVE Placido Domingo / John Denver (CBS)	1	28
29	(—)	COUNTRY GIRL.....Billy Jo Spears (Warwick)	1	29
30	(—)	THE PICK OF BILLY CONNOLLY Billy Connolly (Polydor)	1	30

Phil Oakley pic: Anton Corbijn

INDEPENDENT SINGLES

- (4) Friday 13th (EP).....Damned (Chiswick)
- (1) Four More From ToyahToyah (Safari)
- (1) Don't Let Them Grind You Down
Exploited/Anti-Pasti (Exploited)
- (6) Lie Dream Of A CasinoFall (Kamera)
- (5) In God We Trust (EP)
Dead Kennedys (Static)
- (2) Sweetest Girl. Scritti Politti (Rough Trade)
- (3) Sunny DayPigbag (Y)
- (7) White Car In Germany
Associates (Situation 2)
- (11) Harry May.....The Business (Secret)
- (12) Lost And Lonely.....The Higsons (Wasp)
- (—) Papa's Got A Brand New Pigbag
Pigbag (Y)
- (8) 6 Guns.....Anti Pasti (Rondelet)
- (19) 3 Piece Suite.....Snipers (Crass)
- (22) CountdownUK Subs (Gem)
- (—) Distort To Deafness....Disorder (Disorder)
- (—) Eddies Out/Jazz The Glass (12" & 7")
Cabaret Voltaire (Rough Trade)
- (17) Fast Boyfriends
Girls At Our Best (Happy Birthday)
- (10) Indian Reservation999 (Albion)
- (—) Run Come Girl.....Talisman
- (—) Big Gold Dream ..Fire Engines (Pop Aural)
- (13) Kids Of The 80sInfa Riot (Secret)
- (—) This Is Your Captain Speaking
Captain Sensible (Crass)
- (—) Waterline.....A Certain Ratio (Factory)
- (14) Dead Cities EP.....Exploited (Secret)
- (27) Everything's Gone Green
New Order (Factory)
- (15) Alienation.....Crisis (Ardkore)
- (—) Demolition War (EP)
Sub Humans (Spider Leg)
- (26) No Room For YouDemob (Round Ear)
- (—) Last Rockers (EP)....Vice Squad (Riot City)
- (23) All Out Attack (EP).....Blitz (No Future)

INDEPENDENT LONG PLAYERS

- (1) Movement.....New Order (Factory)
- (2) Speak And Spell ...Depeche Mode (Mute)
- (6) Best Of The Damned ...Damned (Chiswick)
- (3) On StageExploited (Exploited)
- (4) Still.....Joy Division (Factory)
- (9) For Madmen Only.....UK Decay (Fresh)
- (11) Wild And Wandering
Wasted Youth (Bridge House)
- (14) L.C.....Durutti Column (Factory)
- (7) Carry On Oi.....Various (Secret)
- (18) Anthem.....Toyah (Safari)
- (5) Pleasure.....GAOB (Happy Birthday)
- (8) Incontinent.....Fed Gadget (Mute)
- (12) Let Them Eat Jellybeans
Various (Alternative Tentacles)
- (13) Fourth Drawer Room
Associates (Situation 2)
- (30) Punks Not DeadExploited (Secret)
- (10) Present Arms In DubUB40 (Dep Int)
- (15) Sound Of The Sand
David Thomas (R. Trade)
- (22) Unknown PleasuresJoy Division (Fact.)
- (—) Red Mecca.....Cabaret Voltaire (R. Trade)
- (16) You Scare Me To Death
Marc Bolan (Cherry Red)
- (24) Closer.....Joy Division (Factory)
- (—) Whole New Generation Of DJ
Various (Greensleeves)
- (17) HeartbreakChris And Cossey (R. Trade)
- (21) Rids The World ...Scientist (Greensleeves)
- (28) The Last Call.....Anti-Pasti (Rondelet)
- (19) Wise And Foolish.....Misty (People Unite)
- (23) Emotions/Sounds/Motions
I'm So Hollow (Illuminated)
- (—) Changes.....Mighty Diamonds (Music Work)
- (—) Weapon Of Peace
Weapon Of Peace (Safari)
- (—) Present ArmsUB40 (Dep Int)

Compiled by NME from a nationwide survey of specialist record shops

REGGAE

- Collie Man.....Bunny Wailer (Solomonic)
- Model With Me.....Ringo (Musical Ambassador)
- Soldier Take OverYellow Man (Tanka)
- Revelation 18 (12")Jah Shaka (Shaka)
- One Draw (12")Rita Marley (Tuff Gong)
- Africa Here I Come (10")Freddie McGregor
- Diseases (12")
Papa Michigan/General Smiley (Greensleeves)
- Tell Them.....Eek A Mouse (Black & White)
- Gimme The Music (Pass The Kouchie Toast)
U. Brown (Music Works)
- Pants And Blouses..Ranking Toyon (Legal Light)
- Daddy Kool, 94 Dean Street, London W.1.

FUNK

- I Just Wanna.....Alton Edwards (Streetwave)
- Make Up Your Mind *Aura (Salsoul)
- Let's CelebrateSky (Streetwave)
- Body ShakeT. C. Curtis (Groove)
- You're The One For Me *D Train (Prelude)
- 69 *Brooklyn Express (One Way)
- Jungle Wrap *Sula (Starwave)
- Sure Shot *Tracy Weber (RCA)
- What's FunkPerry Haines (Fetish)
- Strike It Up*Strikers (Prelude)

(* Denotes import)
Tim Palmer, Groove Records, 52 Greek St. W.1

INTERNATIONAL UNITED STATES SINGLES

- Physical.....Olivia Newton-John (MCA)
- Waiting For A Girl Like You..Foreigner (Atlantic)
- Every Little Thing She Does Is Magic
The Police (A&M)
- Oh No.....Commodores (Motown)
- Here I AmAir Supply (Arista)
- Private Eyes.....Daryl Hall & John Oates (RCA)
- Let's Groove
Earth, Wind & Fire (ARC/Columbia)
- Young Turks.....Rod Stewart (Warner Bros)
- Why Do Fools Fall In LoveDiana Ross (RCA)
- Start Me Up.....The Rolling Stones (Atlantic)

Courtesy 'Billboard'

ALBUMS

- 4.....Foreigner (Atlantic)
- Ghost In The Machine.....Police (A&M)
- Tattoo You.....The Rolling Stones (Atlantic)
- Escape.....Journey (Columbia)
- Raise.....Earth, Wind & Fire (ARC/Columbia)
- Nine Tonight
Bog Seger & The Silver Bullet Band (Capitol)
- Bella DonnaStevie Nicks (Atlantic)
- Physical.....Olivia Newton-John (MCA)
- Abacab.....Genesis (Atlantic)
- Exit Stage Left.....Rush (Polygram)

Courtesy 'Billboard'

FIVE YEARS AGO

- Under The Moon Of Love.....Showaddywaddy (Bell)
- Money Money MoneyAbba (Epic)
- When A Child Is BornJohnny Mathis (CBS)
- Somebody To LoveQueen (EMI)
- Living ThingElectric Light Orchestra (Jet)
- Love MeYvonne Elliman (RSD)
- If You Leave Me NowChicago (CBS)
- Portsmouth.....Mike Oldfield (Virgin)
- Stop Me (If You've Heard It All Before).....Billy Ocean (GTO)
- Lean On Me.....Mud (Private Stock)

TEN YEARS AGO

- ErnieBenny Hill (Columbia)
- JeepsterT. Rex (Fly)
- Tokoloshe Man.....John Kongos (Fly)
- Theme From 'Shaft'Isaac Hayes (Stax)
- No Matter How I Try.....Gilbert O'Sullivan (MCA)
- Gypsies, Tramps And Thieves.....Cher (MCA)
- Cos I Luv YouSlade (Polydor)
- Something Tells MeCilla Black (Parlophone)
- Banks Of The Ohio.....Olivia Newton-John (Pye)
- Softly Whispering I Love You.....Congregation (Columbia)

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

- Green Green Grass Of Home.....Tom Jones (Decca)
- What Would I Be.....Val Doonican (Decca)
- Morningtown Ride.....Seekers (Columbia)
- Good VibrationsBeach Boys (Capitol)
- My Mind's Eye.....Small Faces (Decca)
- What Becomes Of The Broken Hearted
Jimmy Ruffin (Tamil Motown)
- You Keep Me Hangin' On.....Supremes (Tamil Motown)
- Sunshine SupermanDonovan (Pye)
- Gimme Some LovingSpencer Davis Group (Fontana)
- Dead End StreetKinks (Pye)

TWENTY YEARS AGO

- Tower Of Strength.....Frankie Vaughan (Phillips)
- Moon RiverDanny Williams (HMV)
- Take Good Care Of My Baby.....Bobby Vee (London)
- Stranger On The ShoreAcker Bilk (Columbia)
- Midnight In Moscow.....Kenny Ball (Pye)
- I'll Get By.....Shirley Bassey (Columbia)
- Johnny Wm.....Pat Boone (London)
- Let There Be Drums.....Sandy Nelson (London)
- His Latest Flame.....Elvis Presley (RCA)
- Take Five.....Dave Brubeck (Fontana)

NME
NEW MUSICAL EXPRESS

INSIDE INFORMATION

GHOULS 5

GIRLS 11

SILVER SCREEN 17

LIVERPOOL 28

CORRY 43

NEXT WEEK

HAIRCUT, SKIDOO, SPRINGER AT ICA

LONDON's Institute of Contemporary Arts have announced the line-up for their sixth Rock Week, again sponsored by Capital Radio, starting at the end of this month.

The date has been especially chosen to bridge the gap between Christmas and New Year, when there's always a dearth of live rock, while at the same time showcasing bands regarded by organiser John Reid as exciting prospects for 1982 — like Haircut 100, Modern English, The Higsons, Aztec Camera and 23 Skidoo. The season also marks the solo debut of Mark Springer from Rip Rig & Panic.

The full schedule comprises Modern English, The Lemon Kittens and The Prats (December 29); The Higsons, The Electric Guitars and Gene Loves Jezebel (30); Haircut 100, Buzz and China Crisis (31); Maximum Joy, The Past Seven Days and The Chameleons (January 1); Aztec Camera, King Trigger and Artery (2); and 23 Skidoo, Mark Springer and Dislocation Dance (3).

The venue is the ICA Theatre in The Mall (doors open 7.30pm), and tickets are £2.50 per day, plus 40p membership.

Haircut 100

Pic: David Corio

Rod steals the show

ROD STEWART has stolen The Rolling Stones' thunder by arranging for Londoners to see a live satellite screening of his December 19 concert in Los Angeles. As reported last week, the Stones have abandoned plans for live global transmission of their New York show the previous evening.

First the good news: Stewart's two-hour performance will be flashed direct to London's Leicester Square Odeon, where tickets are now on sale priced £6 and £5 (also available by post from the box-office, postal orders only). It's the first time a rock concert has been satellited into a British theatre, and it's being handled by Satellite Express, who've previously been responsible for coverage of many major boxing matches.

The not-so-good news is that it's timed to start at 4.30am on Sunday morning, December 20. Australian audiences, who will also be seeing the show live, are more fortunate in that it reaches them on Sunday afternoon. In America, the show is being transmitted live on TV, and it will still be seen in the UK on cable television at Christmas — with an edited hour-long version due on the national network in the New Year.

Commented Stewart's spokesman: "Rod's not doing this for the money. It cost £13,000 to set up, and the Odeon only holds about 2,000 people. It's simply a gesture to his fans."

Jake with new boy Dolphin

Fingers out

STIFF LITTLE FINGERS take their new line-up on the road in January, playing 11 major venues under the banner of '£3.50 Or Less'. The schedule, which marks the live debut of drummer Dolphin Taylor as a member of SLF, takes in Hull Tower Ballroom (January 20), Sheffield Lyceum (21), Edinburgh Playhouse (22), Newcastle City Hall (23), Bradford St. George's Hall (24), Manchester Apollo (25), Bristol Colston Hall (26), Birmingham Odeon (27), London Hammersmith Palais (28), Poole Arts Centre (29) and Aylesbury Friars (30).

The tour coincides with the release of their new four-song Chrysalis EP, titled 'One Pound Ten Or Less' — so called because it's now illegal to fix an exact price. They negotiated a royalty cut and special concessionary rate with Chrysalis, to enable the ordinary single price to be maintained. The four tracks are 'Listen', 'That's When Your Blood Bumps', 'Sad Eyed People' and 'Two Guitars Clash'.

Pic: Anton Corbijn

Weller, Gabriel, Chrissy Boy, Buster — a unique union

IN-CND DEVICE

THE JAM, The Clash, The Specials, Madness and The Beat are among 13 top British bands featured on a unique compilation album titled 'Life In The European Theatre', released by WEA this weekend. All royalties are being donated to various anti-nukes organisations, including the Campaign For Nuclear Disarmament, Friends Of The Earth and the European Nuclear Disarmament.

Full track listing is The Clash ('London Calling'), The Jam ('Little Boy Soldiers'), The Beat ('I Am Your Flag'), The Specials ('Man At C&A'), XTC ('Living Through Another Cuba'), Peter Gabriel ('I Don't Remember'), Ian Dury & The Blockheads ('Reasons To Be Cheerful — Part 3'), Madness ('Grey Day'), Bad Manners ('Psychedelic Eric'), The Stranglers ('Nuclear Device'), The Undertones ('It's Going To Happen'), Echo & The Bunnymen ('All That Jazz') and The Au Pairs ('Diet').

● Interview with The Jam and The Beat: page 14

Pretenders TV bust-up

THE PRETENDERS pulled out of their concert last Tuesday at Chichester Festival Theatre, which was to have been filmed by the new TVS company as part of their Off The Record series — and, as a result, now find themselves involved in a controversy.

In a tersely worded statement, TVS claim they were told of the band's withdrawal on the Monday afternoon, because "two members were unfit and could not play as arranged" — yet the same evening, The Pretenders went ahead with their concert at Newcastle City Hall.

TVS managing director James Gatward commented: "This behaviour would make any company think twice in the future about promoting such concerts. The group were contracted to appear and, on this assurance, we had invited an audience from all over the region. I trust that The Pretenders will respect their audience enough to apologise."

A spokesman for the band explained that, in fact, only one member was unfit — drummer Martin Chambers, who aggravated the hand injury he sustained in America, requiring further stitches. Although he was advised of this on the Monday, the stitches were not actually inserted until after the Newcastle gig, and it was then medically essential to take two days' rest.

Nils Lofgren
New Single
'I GO TO PIECES'

c/w 'Ancient History'

(MCA 757)

From the album 'NIGHT FADES AWAY' (MCF 3121)

Also available on cassette

See him on The Old Grey Whistle Test 17th. December, and on tour:-

Saturday	12th. Dec.	NOTTINGHAM, Rock City
Sunday	13th. Dec.	BIRMINGHAM, Odeon
Tuesday	15th. Dec.	MANCHESTER, Apollo
Wednesday	16th. Dec.	EDINBURGH, Odeon
Thursday	17th. Dec.	SHEFFIELD, Lyceum
Friday	18th. Dec.	BRISTOL, Colston Hall
Saturday	19th. Dec.	BRIGHTON, Dome
Sunday	20th. Dec.	LONDON, Dominion

MCA RECORDS

1 Great Pulteney Street, London W1 3FW

"So you're Kermit, huh?" — Lennon fails his TV credibility test

REMEMBER

Remember when you were young
How the hero was never hung
Always got away
Remember how the man
Used to leave you empty-handed
Always always let you down
If you ever change your mind
About leaving it all behind
Remember remember today

Don't you worry
'Bout what you've done
Don't feel sorry
'Bout the way it's gone

Just remember, remember
The eighth of December

Adapted from 'Remember' by John Lennon, published by Northern Songs, from the 'Plastic Ono Band' LP

Passions less

THE PASSIONS have parted company with guitarist Clive Timperley, following what's described as "a violent argument". The band were playing in the Italian town of Verona at the Teatro Cristal, when a heating system exploded — destroying their equipment, PA and lights, and literally taking the roof off the theatre. It seems that the internal dispute erupted on their return to the hotel, and — according to Polydor — the rift was caused by "serious political differences".

PUDSY

"Son, just what is this psychedelic revival all about?"

Psychedelia hits celluloid

THE END of '81 is about to herald a fine line in psychedelic celluloid from two separate sources.

One is a cinema short currently being edited down from rough cut stage under a working title of The Groovy Movie, which should appear on your silver screen in January. It's not a documentary of any 'scene', nor purely a promo for the bands involved (Mood Six, The Times, The Marble Index); it's the result, in fact, of a friendship between four former Warwick University students: Mood Six manager Clive Solomon, BBC employee Nick Morris, and two members of Mood Six who at college were members of The VIPs. Morris did "a £40 promo" for The VIPs so when his mates became Mood Sixers he "was keen to do something else on that".

When the Groovy Cellar opened in May, Morris began to Mood Six re-enact ye olde how-many-elephants-can-you-get-in-a-Mini joke for the Groovy Movie.

"You know — 'how big is it', 'when will it take over from the last thing' — and it was always just a small thing, a group of friends. Because we got cynical about press coverage around then, the film became a much more accurate yardstick of what was happening for us... though obviously, whenever a camera's around people over-act."

Before he began to direct The Groovy Movie, Morris was already engaged as soundman and assistant director for a film on the Dolly Mixture (NME 2.5.81) being directed by fellow Beeb man Simon West. West agreed to reciprocate as sound man and assistant on Morris' project.

They set about fleshing out footage of events at the Clinic and the Cellar with film of the famous boat trip, a spurious / hilarious interview with notorious tailor Colin Wilde on Carnaby St in the '60s, and get seriously interested. "It was being pushed as a whole new movement around then," says a spokesman from the band.

GENE SIMMONS

TV PROGRAMMES, USA

Twilight Zone
The Outer Limits
Star Trek
Evening News (World)
Cartoons (Looney Tunes)
Wrestling

FILMS

King Kong
Island Of Lost Souls (Charles Laughton)
Hunchback of Notre Dame (Charles Laughton)
Bride Of Frankenstein (Karloff)
The Exorcist
Beauty And The Beast (Cocteau)
Things To Come (1932)
Son Of Kong
Voyage Of Sinbad
Alien

BOOKS/MAGAZINES

1984
People
Sunday New York Times
Famous Monsters
Stranger In A Strange Land

Pic: Andre Csillag

Gene (right) — his greatest ambition is still to be a traffic warden

LPs

White LP The Beatles
Led Zeppelin I
Jeff Beck Group's first LP
Disraeli Gears Cream
Live At Leeds The Who Alive I Kiss
Aftermath The Rolling Stones
Greatest Hits Dave Clark Five
Greatest Hits The Supremes
Gimme Some Lovin' Spencer Davis Group

LIKES

Cakes
Cookies
Candy
Cartoons

DISLIKES

Dieting
Bad breath
Rerun TV
Gerry
Lola

various fantasy sequences in Jags, graveyards, streets, and a house in Southgate sculpted into plastic tunnels. Clips of the Regal and other shopping haunts are included, along with snatches of chat from their proprietors and designers.

During the film's shooting, one band (Le Mat) liked their self-contained fantasy sequence enough to pull it out for a personal promo... one of several events which gave Morris and West the idea of setting themselves up as Rockumentary Films. Their Dolly Mixture film will be out in early summer.

MEANWHILE, London's Wider Television Access group has got their hands on their third hitherto : unscreened selection of American TV pop/rock shows from the '60s — and they're presenting it as a Boxing Day special. It showcases a real roster of Swinging London-era stars and gives a good impression of America's intense Anglophilia during the period.

Six Marianne Faithfull clips mingle with seemingly incessant Kinks numbers (all in full foppiness even when seated on papier mache rocks), The Who with Keith Moon resembling a fragile 15-year-old old girl, a beautiful barefoot Sandie Shaw, Twinkle, superb songs by Dusty Springfield and Aretha Franklin, several shots of The Beach Boys and — yes! — The Byrds! There's even "Mr and Mrs Bono" singing "I Got You Babe" with their bathroom-rug vests and full striped flares — plus the Shindig dancers who must be seen to be believed by anyone ever satisfied with Pan's People. Worth sitting through the dross and doubled up with a Magical Mystery programme dating back to Christmas TV '66... as well as the TV interview Mick Jagger gave to the clergy after being busted in '67.

The WTVA programme will be screened at London's Scala Cinema on December 26 at 2.00, 5.00, and 8.00.

—CYNTHIA ROSE

ARCHIVE FUN

Top: Phil Oakey.
Right: Oakey copyist Screamin' Lord David Sutch in 1964 — before he made his name as leader of the National Teenage Party

Check out the good Lord's latest baret on the Stray Cats tour starting next week, fans! "Still rocking after 21 years..."

YOU WERNT THE FIRST PHILIP OAKEY

Screamin' Lord Sutch

ENTER THE HFS/STIFF SONG CONTEST!

THE HI-FI SURPLUS STORE

THOSE XMAS AUDIO SPECIALS!

9' teen ex service goods 1" Brant New! Complete £125 System Akai AMU11 23W2C amp, BIC SP85 deck, Ontofon FF15XE cartridge, Marantz SP235 speakers (inc all leads & instructions) Akai CS-M3* Cass deck, Metal tape, HD head £59.95

Akai AT-KO2L FM/MW/LW stereo tuner. £39.95

Sonyo M4440* personal hi-fi with phones, case & presentation box £39.95!!

Akai GX4000DS Sound-on-Sound open reel deck £149

THAT COMPETITION!

1. Snap up an Akai 6/7 mixer (£59.95) or 7-track Rhythm Box / Portable Studio (£69.95) before Dec 31st.
2. Lay down 4 minutes of your own original material on cassette.
3. Send it to HFS by 15th Jan.
4. Read NME in February to find out if our HFS / NME / Stiff Records / International Musician panel likes it!

YOU COULD WIN THE CHANCE TO RECORD YOUR OWN SINGLE OR SOME SUPER EQUIPMENT PRIZES FROM HFS!

Clip our coupon today for details/entry form!

TO HFS: 62 Weymouth St 01486 9981
London W1 9.30-6(4.30 Sats)

Name _____
Address _____

Please rush me details of the HFS/Stiff contest
Plus your cat/mag/home studio price list

Please ask for our regular lists!

YAMAHA

Everybody's playing it!

Tel 0908-640202

Mead Gould Promotions

POLICE

in Leiden near Amsterdam on Saturday 9th January. The Price of £63 includes

- Tickets for the concert
- 1 night in 1st class hotel in Amsterdam
- Return luxury coach trip with reclining seats / stereo
- cross channel ferry.
- £20 deposit secures a place. Box 1

Or Want to try a Quick Cheapie?

The skipper shuttle is available with • Journey there & back by luxury coach • Ticket for concert

Price £44 — SAE for details. Box 2

QUEEN

Due to the exceptionally large following we are now taking bookings for Europe in Spring 1982. Please send £10 deposit to secure place & S.A.E. for further details.

Send Cheques/Postal Orders to:
Mead Gould Promotions, 38 Hamlet Court Rd,
Westcliff-on-Sea, Essex. Tel: (0702) 43304.

Name _____
Address _____

No. of Tickets Required.....
Box 1 ☐ Box 2 ☐ Box 3 ☐ Please Tick Box Required NAME

Get the most from your records for less than ten quid!

Precision cartridges, headphones, tonearms and audio accessories from less than ten quid to over two hundred.

Look for the name at your local hi-fi store

audio-technica

PDO II Record Cleaning System

RSP £9.95

Now a 23-piece all-women big band, the Sisterhood began in a smaller version in the summer of 1980 when two classes at the Women's Arts Alliance, one for saxophones, one for an acapella group, amalgamated for a four-song, one-off gig — and were an instant sensation. They were asked to play more gigs, and in February this year decided to make the band a regular project, since when they've added trumpets and trombones, recorded a track on the 'Making Waves' compilation, been featured in the Observer colour supplement, and had both the

Sisterhood Of Spit, left to right: you must be joking. Pic: David Corio

Alison Tomlin: "I wouldn't have gone to the sax classes if there'd been men there . . . I'd have just thought, Oh they're bound to be better than me. Here, everybody is better than me, but I don't care."

A stack of BASF LH SM cassettes. The top cassette is clearly visible, showing the BASF logo, 'LH SM cassette', '60', and '88 m'.

BASF
90 chromdioxid
SM cassette
132 m

METAL ALLOY CASSETTE

MA-C90 TDK

MA-C90 Metal Base Type II TDK

Liberators Standard Cassette Mechanism

HIGH COERCIVITY

MA-C90 TDK

A black and white photograph of a Sony 90 CHF 135m video cassette tape. The tape is shown from a front-facing perspective, highlighting the clear window where the tape reels are visible. The Sony logo and model number '90' are prominently displayed on the bottom half of the tape's casing. The text '135m' and 'CHF' are also visible, indicating the tape's length and format.

MEMOREX 90

MAX OXIDE

COMET

LOWEST PRICED BLANK CASSETTES
that's a promise

Address
Signature

COMET Call at your local Comet or use the coupon — now! ➤

Sourcream cartoon:
Viv Quillin

Everybody hoots. Sisterhood Of Spit laugh a lot, usually at themselves.

The band were very aware they were trying something different. Although many of them are experienced musicians — bands and ex-bands represented include Tour De Force, Jam Today, PMT, The Guest Stars, The Interval Band, Spoilsports, Soulyard, FIG and The Harpies — only three had played in a big band before, and about half the band were complete novices. Presumably, they found such a wide range of experience viable?

Alison Tomlin: "Well, it would sound terrible if they were all like me."

The band cracks up again. Trudy (singing, tap-dance):

"It's great working this way, cos it does encourage people. It's very supportive. It helps people to dare to try things they might not have done in a more threatening environment."

Almost as daring is the Sisterhood's penchant for dressing up. A benefit just before last July 29 turned into a "wedding extravaganza", with the entire band dressing up as brides. Another time, it was dinner suits and bow-ties; and, again, "we did a gig for Women's Monthly Event, so we all dressed up in red — that was our menstruation gig."

Despite their success, Sisterhood Of Spit restrict themselves to eight gigs per year, four in June and four in December. This is partly Sourcream 1 was the first 'official' book of feminist cartoons — entirely put together and sold via mail order, by the four women who composed its contents. Feminist publishers Sheba picked up the rights, put the book into a slightly smaller format and managed to sell out the whole run on their second reprint. This more overground success really broke ground: women all over the UK who had sketched out similar work but never thought to publish or even call themselves 'cartoonists' were encouraged to contact the book's authors. From this deluge of interest came a new, more loosely-based collective of 25 women, 13 of whom are represented in Sourcream 2, again put out by Sheba, for £1.75. The results are proof that the GLC's loan to Sheba (recently contested on the grounds that feminist - means - lesbian - means - pornographic) will be a positive gesture. Sourcream 2 from Southern Distribution, 27 Clerkenwell Close, London EC1 and Scottish and Northern Distribution, 18 Granby Row — Manchester M1.

— CYNTHIA ROSE

because the logistics of organising 23 people are extraordinarily difficult (three were missing from tonight's rehearsal), but also because

Continues over

SINGLE OUT NOW

ANTI-NOWHERE LEAGUE

DOUBLE · B · SIDE

STREETS OF LONDON

+ SO WHAT...

ON WXYZ RECORDS

ABCD1

DISTRIBUTED BY FAULTY PRODUCTS & PINNACLE

An offer for your ears only.

Sony Audio Tape are making an offer you can't refuse. There's 15p off the price of any SONY AUDIO CASSETTE. Just cut out the coupon and take it in to your Sony stockist before 15 January 1982.

PLUS a free prize draw to win one of 100 Sony Walkman 2's. Yes we're giving them away!

Just fill in the free prize draw entry form, no purchase necessary, and post to Sony, PO Box 30, Aldershot, Hants, to arrive before 15 January 1982.

PRIZE DRAW RULES

1. The Free Prize Draw is open to UK residents only, except for employees of Sony and their agencies.

2. Only one entry per person will be accepted.

3. Prize Draw will take place on 30 January 1982. Winners will be notified by post no later than 28 February 1982. Winners names and towns can be obtained by sending SAE to 'Sony Winners' at above address.

15p OFF Sony Cassette tape.

To the Consumer:-

This coupon worth 15p is valid toward the purchase of any Sony Audio cassette tape at any participating Sony Tape stockist. It must not be used towards the purchase of any other product. Complete your name, town and retailer before it will be accepted. Only one coupon will be accepted against each purchase of a single Sony Audio cassette tape or against each two or triple pack purchased. Coupon valid until 15 January 1982.

To the Retailer:-

This coupon will be redeemed by Sony (UK) Ltd provided it has been accepted as part payment for any Sony Audio cassette tape. Sony (UK) Ltd reserve the right to refuse to redeem any coupon for Sony cassette tape which they believe has not been purchased from Sony (UK) Ltd, and may require proof of such purchase. For full details of redemption and handling of coupons see your Sony Xmas Mailing or contact your local Sony Sales Office.

VALID IN UK ONLY

I like the sound of this offer, include me in.

Name _____

Town _____

Retailer _____

NME4

PLUS

WIN A WALKMAN. FREE PRIZE DRAW.

(Only one free draw entry per person see rules above)

Post to: PO Box 30, Aldershot, Hants.

Name _____

Address _____

NME4

100 SONY WALKMAN 2's MUST BE WON.

Sony Audio Cassette Tapes are available at Boots, Comet, Currys, Dixons, Laskys, Rediffusion, Telefusion, Woolworth and Sony Tape Stockists.

SISTERHOOD OF SPIT

■ From previous page

many of them are involved in other projects. The women with prior knowledge of the music business are quick to disabuse starry-eyed notions of fame and fortune.

"We're all pretty down to earth," says someone. "It's not like a big offer would turn our heads. The average age of the band is quite high."

"We'll probably die before we go professional," mutters Alison Tomlin — while someone else suggests they change their name to Spinsters of Spit.

Those gigs that the band do play are usually split between mixed and women-only audiences. Why do they do this?

Laka K (piano, singing): "We are from the Women's Movement. The women who came to the classes at the Arts Alliance heard about them through the movement, and it's important for us to keep faith with that. But it's equally important to show the boys what we're doing — so they can see what we can do, and see us having a good time together."

"But nearly all our gigs are organised and run by women, we use a women PA team and so on, because we think it's important to encourage women to do these things as much as possible."

Do you play the same set at both kinds of gig?

Caroline Giffillan: "Yeah, but the gigs are different — the mood, the atmosphere..."

Laka K: "But we've only got one set, anyway. We're still building our repertoire."

So how do you choose your repertoire? Do you pick songs that reaffirm your politics?

Sue Blanks (piano): "Not consciously. But we wouldn't sing, er..."

"Stand By Your Man," says Alison Tomlin.

Caroline Giffillan: "We haven't written much within the band. I suppose if we did, the words would be overtly feminist in some way."

But why haven't the band written much?

Caroline Giffillan: "Because women have hardly ever played in this genre. There's no tradition for us to draw on like there is in rock or folk."

Laka K: "We do play songs with a kind of political edge, like 'Respect'."

Yeah, 'Respect' I can understand. But why do you do, say, 'Hold Tight'?

Alison Tomlin: "But the first time I heard The Andrews Sisters on a record, it was just amazing... I suppose it was hearing women being so good, which sounds ridiculous for a feminist to say cos we all know women can be really good — but you hardly ever hear them on a record doing it, you know. And The Andrews Sisters were so bloody good. And that's political in itself — women being bloody good. It's great."

That describes Sisterhood Of Spit, too. 'Respect'? It's the least they deserve.

TRAMWAY TO HEAVEN

SIMON FELLOWES follows
The Lines — from Syd to PiL and beyond

The Lines L—R: Nick Cash, Richard 'Rico' Conning, Mick Lineham, Joe Forty. Pic: Jean Bernard Schiez

THE LINES are a different band. Different from what they used to be and different in the more general scheme of things. Like the lamented Furious Pig, they spurn the ego-orientated commercialistic approach to pop/rock. They have no trend to set, no wave to surf on — yet at the same time they exude style and personality.

They are four reserved individuals, living satellites of Central London, and in one coronate incarnate they have been around for four years. They have behaved very politely and got nowhere. They have vinyl under their belts and they play about one live performance a month — if you average them out over four years.

Their profile may be low in public, but in their own living space the animated verse flies like wasps between Rico (vocals, trombone and metal objects — not The Specials' trombonist) and Joe Forty (bass) — two young fathers. However Nick Cash (drums, Prag Vec, Fad Gadget — not the 999 drummer) and Mick Lineham (guitar, ATV) are as tight as a drum itself, seen but seldom heard.

The Lines have come a long way since the days of Rico's flirtation with the craft of singer / songwriter, where the three 45 rpms produced were trounced as being a mixture of Syd Barrett, XTC and The Only Ones — "That English, that whimsical and that boring" — a review that Rico can recite in full from memory. Criticism such as that was coupled with the band's growing dissatisfaction with their music. Rico forced them into a period of re-evaluation and self-discipline. The net result being their debut album 'Therapy', released on Red Records earlier this year.

The album concentrates less on song structure and more on the exploration and development of sound and rhythm.

Joe: "We slowly began to feel the way rhythm is all around you all the time, whether it be your own heartbeat or the sound of the street outside. We use any noise that excites us to create as much variety and texture as we can in order to give the listener as many different frames of aural reference as possible."

Rico: "Yeah, we wanted to get away from any linear, one-dimensional sound that might run through the whole record, like The Teardrop Explodes or the Bunnymen. The album ends up sounding almost like a compilation, it's so extreme in the approach to each track."

The music itself owes a lot to the likes of Can and PiL, without being as harsh as the latter. At times the pieces slip into soft

The Lone Groover

Benyon

Reunited in a new comedy with a new cast of characters

THE PRINCE'S TRUST

Featuring:

ROWAN ATKINSON
RONNIE BARKER
RONNIE CORBETT
ALAN BENNETT
MAX BOYCE
JASPER CARROTT
FRANK CARSON
BILLY CONNOLLY
FAWLTY TOWERS
JOYCE GRENFELL

THE GOONS
TONY HANCOCK
MIKE HARDING
BENNY HILL
ROY HUDD
NEIL INNES
SPIKE MILLIGAN
ERIC MORECAMBE
ERNIE WISE
MONTY PYTHON

PETER SELLERS
PETER USTINOV
MIKE YARWOOD
GRIFF RHYS-JONES & COMPANY
NOT THE NINE O'CLOCK NEWS
I'M SORRY I'LL READ THAT AGAIN with many others
...and representing the Commonwealth
DAME EDNA EVERAGE

A DOUBLE ALBUM
FOR THE PRICE OF A SINGLE ALBUM

ONLY £5.49
AS SEEN ON TV
AS BUNG 870 2087 CASSSETTE 4C 870 2087

The Christmas present for anyone with a sense of humour.

lyricism which is indeed reminiscent of Syd Barrett. But if Syd is currently enjoying another revival, count The Lines out. Their tracks are to be used as a vehicle, a method of feeling something or getting somewhere — and much of the disc charms you to such a degree that it succeeds unequivocally. The Lines are no '80s acid band.

However, they still seem fated to be the eternal support band. Why's that?

"Because we can't sell ourselves," says Rico. "We're shitty hustlers and anyway up until now we've never had any desire to do so."

Joe: "When we first started it was a personal, more subjective project. But as the whole creative process centres around communication and being communicative, we've had to come to terms with the performance aspect — which in turn has made us a far stronger and better band..."

Rico: "Right, because when we play now, people don't ignore us. Our motivation is so much stronger that the audience is aware of that and can't switch off like they used to."

So the game is up. Time now to get serious. The Lines have given themselves until the end of the year to make sure of some sizable feedback. Hopefully as winter starts to bite, the more sensible streetwalkers will hang up their summer salsa threads and get down to some legitimate form of soul education. The Lines have the goods, now all you have to do is go out and buy them.

— SIMON FELLOWES

POLICE STONED AFTER KILLER BLAST

Return of the druggie innuendo, courtesy of the Edinburgh Evening News

ERROL HERE, there and everywhere, dispersed across the wide range of a distraught and distempered consciousness.

I feel vibrantly happy and in love with the simple beauty of life, despite or because of my life being in something like near-total decline and ruin. Ah, but Christmas and the New Year season always does depress me; it's something about seeing everyone else (over) doing for a short while what I punish myself with (purely in the interests of insouciance) 36 hours a day, 365 days a year. For the hols, I shall be alone, buried in Edgar Allan Poe, Dostoevsky, tequila liqueurs, debt, red ribbons, specially imported tortillas, and rascally stratagems.

A sojourn in New York has left me questioning the poignancy of being forever a stranger on someone else's shore. Of course, invaluable accomplices (American Express, August Darnell, Amphetamine Di...) prevented the total rupture of my senses, but returning to London... returning to what? New York was... Hell, Ecstasy, Bowling, Being, Having, and most importantly of all Never Having To Say You Have Proof. I attended an exhibition of AESTHETIC REALISM with David Byrne, who was in a merry old Thanksgiving mood. We laughed about relations between Libya and the USA, between his good self and the rest of Talking Heads, and between good and evil. We were in stitches, made an exhibition of ourselves and inadvertently got reviewed in the Soho News as a performance by William Saroyan. We got together with Willie for a ruminative breakfast in my hotel suite — carrot juice, Tia Marias graced with Polish spirit, asparagus in grenadine and oyster sauce, wild boar steaks, cheesecake and a home box office viewing of the Terpsichorean tendernesses and strangleholds of The Postman Always Rings Twice, which somehow seemed to make more 'sense' in such surroundings.

We adjourned to the glorious White Horse bar, picking up Dudley Moore, Diana Ross, Carly Simon, half the editorial staff of Interview, Rusty Egan, Ian McKellan, William Hurt and Ariana Stassinopolous on the way. I bought them all Tia Maria and Polish spirit, a few of us fell over backwards, the expatriates amongst us explained why and how an event like the 'SDP' can and does take hold of Britain's 'Imagination' (if you're reading, Shirley, Andy would love to Interview you) and we celebrated the New Year early, together, pissed as you'll never be, in Diana's nine foot by nine foot jacuzzi.

Actually, I'd quite forgotten about that little bubble and squeak until now. Now I know where my all was spent. Sigh, once I was a pliable youth that sought but hosts and sped through many a glistening chamber...

It's Christmas. Good morning, midnight! Sleep eludes me... What better a draught to predetermine such a matter than Errol's Xmas Cocktails (price £53 but free to all you untouchable darlings next week in your vulgar extra size NME). Have no fear, some part of me will always be here, my dear...

"The World's smallest record player — The Sound Wagon — From the World's greatest video store — The Video Palace."

"Come and see for yourself or send stamped (51p) self addressed large size jiffy bag (available at P.O.s) together with money order only for £15.00 to the Video Palace, 62-64 Kensington High Street, London W8. 01-937 8587."

THE ALBUM
'SONIC ATTACK'
AVAILABLE NOW

THE SONIC ATTACK TOUR CONTINUES

DECEMBER

12th — STROUD, Leisure Centre

13th — POOLE, Arts Centre

14th — BATH, Pavillion

16th — MAIDSTONE, Mid-Kent Centre

18th — LONDON, The Rainbow

19th — DUNSTABLE, Queensway Hall

RCA

AVAILABLE ON CASSETTE

Personal Stereo— Sound Out Dixons Prices!

STREET-WISE STEREO SUPERBUYS

Tune in STEREO stations
PRINZ Cruiser 1
Personal Stereo Radio
Hear your favourite music stations as nature intended—in STEREO—with this amazing little MW, FM radio. Phenomenal performance and go-anyplace portability. Superlight stereo 'phones, built-in belt clip, pouch included.

Now Half Price
PRINZ Cruiser 2
Stereo Cassette Player
Sounds sensational—at an astounding low price! Ultracompact, complete with headphones, carrycase, strap. Dixons List Price £79.99

Amazing DOUBLE hi-fi
PRINZ Cruiser 5 Stereo
Radio/Cassette Player
Stereo FM reception PLUS stereo tape music—it's miniature hi-fi! Complete with headphones, carrycase.

Sounds sensational!
SANYO Stereo Cassette Player
The M4440 is music muscle and megastar performance! Ultra-light 'phones, case, strap included.

Total hi-fi performance!
TOSHIBA Stereo
Cassette Player PLUS
FM Tuner
New KTS1 is totally amazing! Just slip in the tuner module and it's an FM stereo radio! Normal/Chrome/Metal tape switch. 'Phones and carrycase.

World's smallest hi-fi
SONY Walkman 2
Stereo Cassette Player
Barely bigger than a cassette—delivers mind-blowing sound quality! METAL tape capability. Flyweight 'phones and fabulous accessories included.

BLANK TAPE SUPERDEALS

Here's Dixons chart-topping Christmas gift value!

DYNACOUSTIC C60 Triple Pack	Dixons List Price	GIFT PRICE
Three high quality C60 cassettes—sounds like an unbeatable bargain!	£1.79	£1.49
DYNACOUSTIC C90 Triple Pack	Dixons List Price	GIFT PRICE
Hurry to Dixons for this fantastic offer—4½ HOURS playing time. At this price it's a gift!	£2.39	£1.99

Introducing DIXONS dynamic new range of tapes! Sensational performance quality at exceptionally low prices.

DL Ferric C60	79p	DL Ferric C90	99p
DXI Superferric C60	99p	DXI Superferric C90	£1.29
DXII Chrome C60	£1.29	DXII Chrome C90	£1.59

There are always great offers at Dixons—Britain's No. 1 blank tape venue!

Fantastic Performance and Saving

PRINZ Swingalong Stereo Cassette Player

Stunning stereo sound plus anyplace, anytime portability at a shattering price reduction! Twin headphone sockets, microphone and 'hot line' button to mute the music for talkover. Comes complete with a pair of ultra-light stereo headphones, carrycase, strap and cassette pouch. Swingalong's got full line-up! Dixons List Price £39.99

SAVE £10

Now
Low Price
£29.99

NOW TWO CAN PLAY!

Listen to Dixons exclusive value
PRINZ Slim-fi 12 Micro
Stereo Headphones
Hi-performance 'phones—the perfect extra pair for personal stereo systems!
Dixons LOW Price £9.99

Dixons Christmas Specials
250 BRANCHES NATIONWIDE
For your nearest Dixons shop simply use
DIXONS 24 HOUR
PHONE SERVICE 01-581
2268

Dixons List Price - price previously charged at Brent Cross Shopping Centre, London NW4, but not necessarily for 28 consecutive days in the previous 6 months. All items subject to availability.

It's more convenient, use Dixons Mail Order Service. Just add £1.50 for p & p. Quote your Access, Barclaycard or Chargecard number or send cheque or postal order to Dixons Photographic UK Limited Dept. NME 50 Camera House, Cartwright Rd., Stevenage Herts. Orders despatched within 4 days of receipt. Place of Registration: London 504877. Regd. office 18-24 High St., Edgware, Middlesex.

NEW STORES

Bedford	4751 Harpur Centre
East Ham	129 High Street North
Edinburgh	130 Princes Street
Exeter	247 High Street
Inverness	12 High Street
Northwich	57 Wilton Street
Stretford	Ardale Centre
Telford	Telford Shopping Centre
OPENING SOON
Ramegate	60 High Street
West Swindon	Town Square Centre

TAKING NEW YORK THE WOOLWORTHS

THAT FIRST single, 'Going Nowhere Fast', was great. A springy, bouncy pop song with a sound poised nicely on the border between the raw and the slick, it was fresh and alive and fun. But I thought 'Politics', the second single, was already a bit tired.

But their album is doing well in England, and they came to America, so I met GAOB, and we talked.

A lot of their talk was self-serving advertisement. This is not unusual. A lot of their talk was very sharp, observant and sensible. This is less usual. Anyway, we found a few things to agree on. And then we went out to a Japanese restaurant and ate sushi and drank lots of saki and had a good time.

It was a bit sad to see GAOB playing to about thirty people on a Thursday night at Interferon. Sadder still to realise that even those thirty people weren't really there to see the band. But GAOB took an indifferent audience and won them over. Kids who had hardly glanced their way when they started playing were calling for encores by the end of the set.

GAOB onstage are three almost invisible guys and one centerpiece girl: Judy Evans (Jo to her friends); James Allen (Jez to his friends), who plays the ringing, buzzing guitar that gives the songs their punch; bassist Gerard Swift (Terry) and drummer Darren Harper (Titch).

Jo looks good up on stage, easy and comfortable, and she radiates warmth and friendliness. But her manners and moves eventually seem as limited as her voice, which is very pretty but goes on and on in a sweet, chirpy trill that doesn't change.

The same problems limit their album. The back-up is competent but characterless, and only when they come up with a particularly good hook does any one song stand out. There are a few such cases — 'Fast Boyfriends', 'Goodbye To That Jazz', and especially the title cut, 'Pleasure' — that show the pop potential in this band. GAOB are lightweights, with good chops and a chirpy, pretty lead singer and a few good ideas they are stretching too thin. But, but — they could, and they just might, come up with that one song that will take them all away, that one perfect hook that will set up Jo's voice just right and catch the ear of everyone who hears it and make them temporary big stars.

WAY!

JO AND JEZ are the core of the band. They are a couple, and stick pretty closely together. Once we started to get to know each other we got a good and easy exchange going. Bassist Terry is friendly but in the interview he lets Jo and Jez speak for the band. As for drummer Titch, he is the most painfully shy character I've ever met. In all the situations I saw him in at dinner, at a gig, at a party — I never saw him say a word to anybody.

When we met, GAOB had played in New York, Philadelphia, Washington, and Trenton. So how's it going?

Jo: "It's been really good here. I was expecting less than it is. We've had no negative reactions. Except that in England we don't usually play clubs. We prefer to play colleges. In clubs a lot of younger people can't get in, and I think the attitude at college gigs is less self-conscious. You go to see a group, not just to hang out."

You waited a long time before doing any gigs. Jo: "Yeah. That wasn't a big tactical thing or anything, it was just the fact that we didn't have any songs, and we didn't have a drummer. At one point we had four songs, and no drummer, but we had two singles out, so everybody thought we were a group, but it wasn't like that."

Coming from Leeds, GAOB have a deep suspicion of what they see as a London-dictated fashion parade of trends that dominate the English music scene.

Jez: "In England the audiences are shit scared, and the American audiences aren't. When we went out to gig in England we were already known, so it was alright. If we had gone out in England as an unknown quantity, as we've done here, we would never have got the reaction which we've received here. Even the so-called trendy clubs here like the Peppermint Lounge are nothing like the trendy clubs in England. There's something desperate about the way groups in England jump on the newest fashion, and change when the next thing comes around. They're desperate to be stars, to look the part."

Jo: "This is why we find it hard to answer questions like

RICHARD GRABEL sees Girls At Our Best through the worst of their American tour

Picture: Joe Stevens

what sort of band are you or what are you about, because we're really just doing what we want, pleasing ourselves. But we're facing this huge preconceived idea of what groups should be about."

Jez: "People don't like you for reasons that have nothing to do with music but only with those preconceived ideas. People are not sure what they're into or not into."

Resisting the dictatorship or fashion is a good thing. But aren't you being a bit overly defensive?

Jo: "The younger people are really afraid of that fashion thing. They're afraid to go into a record shop like Virgin, which is quite trendy, where any given month a certain attitude is prevalent. The W. H. Smith shops or Woolworths, where the young kids can go on a Saturday afternoon with their Mum, that's where the young kids buy their singles. There's no threat, they can just walk up to the chart rack and pick out the singles they want."

The ideal GAOB consumer? Jo: "Yeah, that's why we want to do Top Of The Pops. 'Cause there you're able to reach kids who will go out and buy it, so they won't have to feel it's underground."

So you're not into using your position as a group as a soapbox?

Jez: "No. That sort of thing is for people with great ego problems. For me the purpose is to entertain me first. I think one trouble with a lot of groups is that they write songs thinking about what the audience is going to think about what they're saying."

Their last gig in America is preceded by a press party in the upstairs room of the Mudd Club. Surprisingly few people turn up to partake of the free drink and birthday cake on offer. But the gig later on is comfortably crowded, and the band goes over very well, as usual. 'Going Nowhere Fast' still seems their most rousing song, which is worrying. But I also love their modernized 'This Train (Is Bound For Glory)'. Jo, is that your folksy roots showing?

"Yeah. Our bluesies". GAOB see themselves as defenders of rugged individualism in an English music scene gone all worried and self-conscious. The question is whether their music is distinctive enough to back up the stance. I don't think it is, yet.

But as I said, that could change. They do know how to write a good song, and if they come up with that one great one, they could be stars. It couldn't happen to a nicer bunch.

TERRY JEZ JO TITCH

Not Only Rock And Roll

Lowry

For the first time on record & cassette.

Bruce Springsteen 'Santa Claus Is Comin' To Town'

The album is 'In Harmony 2'. Bruce is together with everybody's favourite stars singing songs recorded especially for this album.

IN HARMONY 2

Plus
James Taylor
Lou Rawls &
Deniece Williams
Dr John
Kenny Loggins
Carly & Lucy Simon

Album: CBS 85451
Cassette: CBS 40/85451

Lowry

"It's another remake of the classic film — but this time he's a Marxist giant gorilla who vows to avenge himself on American imperialism . . . Viet Kong!"

Going down a real bomb

TIS THE season to connive to survive — not just to beat the Flash, but to beat it with panache! One rather controversial theatre group with your interests at heart in this respect are CAST, now touring a Christmas production of Hotel Sunshine — written by Roland Muldoon.

Hotel Sunshine is a truly underground drama; the action takes place forty feet below ground in an "ideal home of the future", according to producer Warren Lakin — it's a bunker prototype for an El Paso California multinational who hope to flog similar structures to the frightened hordes above). It's not a sober tale, though — there are plenty of "sexual politics" between the four characters to enliven proceedings.

Hotel Sunshine will appear at the Richmond pub in Richmond Place, Brighton, on Dec 10; White Rock Pavilion, Seaford, Hastings, Dec 11; Bishop Otter College, College Lane, Chichester, Dec 16; Kent Hall, Market Buildings, Maidstone, Dec 17; and Friday, Dec 18 at Riverstreet Hall, Riverstreet, Somerstown, Portsmouth. CAST stress also that they are anxious to hear from people who would like to book comedians, films, bands, theatre groups and videos, in case they can help.

Blazing Red have put together a mini-tour of live music and a disco in aid of CND, which will appear on Dec 15 at the Old Town Hall Cellar, Hemel Hempstead, and on Dec 17 at the Mad Hatters, Luton. The benefits involve bands Platinum 5, Click Click, and Blazing Red plus a mime artist, art exhibit and slide show — in addition to the 'Nuclear Free Zone' disco. Tickets for Luton are available on the door (£1.20 and £1 to unwaged) but for Hemel Hempstead they must be bought in advance. Ring Hemel 48967 or 62745 and talk to organisers Manic Rhythm on behalf of beneficiaries Youth CND.

On December 18, No Nukes music continue their local London work with a gig at Brixton Town Hall, Acre Lane. Starting time is 8pm and acts are Pigbag, The Raincoats and The Psychotics. Tickets will be £2.00 or £1.50 unwaged.

The following eve (December 19) sees a Saturday Dance Our Debts Away benefit for Undercurrents magazine at the London Film-Makers Co-op, 42 Gloucester Ave, London, NW1. Starting time is 7pm and — in tune with their recent multi-media ventures — the Co-op are offering Rita Hayworth in the film Gilda, Wa Pa Cha live, disco by the Hot Club and cabaret by Tony Allen and the one-and-only Heathcote Williams. Cost: £2; further info from Peter Culshaw on 01-253 7303 or 278 9082.

Finally, December 22 sees Partizans' unique anti-Rio Tinto Zinc (that's uranium as in radioactive, remember?) carolling session. Partizans provide the carols, you supply the lungs and then afterwards everyone repairs together to the King Charles II in Kingly St, London W1. Carolers will be assembling at 5pm at 6 St James Square, SW1 — in company with the Fall Out Marching Band and the 'renowned' Ron Bailey, and expect to arrive at the King Charles by 6.30. (Children of 12 and 13 are welcome, says the landlord, as long as they don't imbibe alcohol) For extra info phone 01-609 1852. Oh — and bring your own food if you want something non-liquid to sustain you.

—CYNTHIA ROSE

Love a Baby Cham.

NME!!! Christmas!!!

Put them together and what have you got?

Morley mauled by Meatloaf

Not for the squeamish!

Penman deflected by David Byrne

Not for long, though!

Fashion '81 undone by Lynn Hanna

Not far enough!

Arthur portrayed by Dudley Moore

Not a dry eye in the house!

Rock photographed by NME's elite

Not a whole body in sight!

Cocktails by Errol

Not a half measure, not a chance!

Narcissus by himself

No need for a royalty cheque!

And a ragged-trousered ROUNDUP of 1981 — everything from the SDP to DAF, from the Human League to the FA CUP — by every last lazy, disgruntled, panama-hatted, acid-whacked one of us.

YOUR XMAS NME

Two blockbuster issues in one!
Twice the price but ten times better!

88 pages of pulsating pleasure!

Out next Thursday

PLAY DEAD
TV EYE

NEW SINGLE

FRESH 38

Sanyo Personal Hi-Fi, M4440. Pitch, tone, balance and volume controls. Push-button operation for play, rewind/review, fast-forward/cue. Cut-in talk line facility with built-in microphone. Tape counter, headphone and 6 volt DC jack sockets. Lightweight, battery operated. Complete with headphones, carry case, cassette pouch, and shoulder strap. For only £49.95, she shall have music wherever she goes.....

SEE SANYO, THEN DECIDE

 SANYO
Technology at your fingertips

Two minutes to midnight actually. Dave Wakeling and The Jam explain why they've contributed to an anti-nuke LP to fight the lunatics running the asylum.

FOXTON

Three, and Bad Manners — who are all on the LP — hoped to come along but TOTP commitments wouldn't allow. But The Jam — Rick Buckler, Paul Weller, Bruce Foxton — were there, taking a breather from recording, and so was The Beat's Dave Wakeling (fresh off the Birmingham Inter-City and a married man of just 24 hours' standing).

So ... this is what we sat round and said. Except that my bits have been re-written to make me seem witty, pithy and articulate.

CHAS MERVYN: ALL along it's been the groups pushing. If they hadn't been so keen it would never have happened, because we're asking people to give away something for free. The bands' response has amazed me right from the start.

Paul Du Noyer: The Beat were in on the idea at the beginning, weren't they Dave?

Dave Wakeling: Yeah, we met people from the various organisations when we did 'Stand Down Margaret' (proceeds of which went to the anti-nuclear movement). When they saw there was money to be shared out, they lost their differences, whereas before they never trusted each other. So we thought it'd be a good idea to extend it.

DW: It's a fear of joining organisations. As soon as they get well-organised they end up in-fighting, over who's gonna be social secretary or something. But here, the thing we're talking about is so important, even if that bickering does go on, it's still worth taking a chance on it.

PW: It's the thought of having a card as well — it's like joining the Boy Scouts. But it's what it achieves in the end, that's what really counts ... The follow-on from all this would be getting people like Sheena Easton and The Nolans involved.

DW: Yeah, MOR Against The Bomb. Probably the majority of people who like groups on this LP already hold that view anyway ... The Nolans were quite into doing it, but I don't know if they'd be allowed to.

CM: It's not as if it's a political issue, it's something that affects everyone's lives. It's just immoral to kill millions of people.

PW: It's a question of your future. At the root of it everyone's interested in their own future, so that'll get across to most people.

DW: It's funny: I think it is having an effect, cos I don't usually think that pop music does have any effect. But the fact that groups are involved has something to do with so many

DOWN IN THE FALLOUT

WELLER

Photomontage: Pete Kennard

THERE'S A GREAT poster out now. It's done old movie-style, titled Gone With The Wind, and it shows Margaret (Scarlett O'Hara) Thatcher in a passionate clinch with cracked actor Ronald (Rhett Butler) Reagan. The caption reads something like: "She promised to follow him to the end of the earth ... He promised to organise it."

Brilliant. But let's forget the lunatics who've taken over the asylum, and look at some individuals doing their modest bit to organise the planet's survival — via music.

Survival Music, for it is they, have organised a compilation LP (see News Page) entitled 'Life In The European Theatre'. It features (mostly well-known) tracks by one of the strongest line-ups of British acts you could imagine, who've all donated their music free. Proceeds from the album go to four causes: CND, Friends Of The Earth, Anti Nuclear Campaign and European Nuclear Disarmament (END) — and then 50% to a fund set up jointly by the four campaigns, plus the musicians, plus Survival Music.

A young guy called Chas Mervyn is the driving force behind Survival Music. It was when he was working as tour manager for The Beat that the idea of an album came up — one that would raise funds, get some sort of message across, and demonstrate the strength of feeling on the nuclear issue among musicians of this generation.

Chas left The Beat to work full-time on the project. Months of planning, negotiation and arm-twisting later, the record's ready — to be put out world-wide, through WEA, with sleeve-notes by E.P. Thompson (the great writer / campaigner) and musical contributions from such as The Undertones, the Bunnymen, Stranglers, Au Pairs, Clash, XTC, Dury and Gabriel. Their record companies all co-operated, in the end, but the groups' enthusiasm was total. (Linx were keen too, but found out just too late.)

So I met Chas Mervyn to talk about it all. Madness. Terry Hall of The Specials / Fun Boy

CHAS MERVYN

"The biggest enemy is the media, especially the daily papers. Like the Right To Work march from Liverpool, that was put down in the papers as more communist infiltration and all this crap."

Paul Weller

PDN: Chas, how did you decide who to approach?

CM: It was obvious that certain groups were concerned, just by the material they were writing, and then musicians would suggest others.

DW: There was hardly anyone who said 'No'.

Paul Weller (sharply): Who was the ones that did? Give us the names.

CM (diplomatically): Later.

PDN: What was The Jam's reaction, Paul?

PW: We'd obviously do it. It was the first time we'd got involved with anything like this — not because we're lazy, but, dunno, it was only the other week that I actually even sent off for a CND membership. There must be thousands of people who are against it but don't know how to get involved. Same with us.

young people being willing to protest in England. Whereas before it used to be just Europe where they'd have big demonstrations and England'd be apathetic.

Rick Buckler: Young people have put it out of their mind in this country for a long time.

PW: But that applies to Britain politically anyway. Whereas you talk to people in Italy or France they've got definite political views.

PDN: Also they don't have this long-standing, complex emotional tangle that we have with America.

PW: But I think that feeling is changing in England now, that we're only like America's sub-let.

DW: We're just the fender on the front of the car: not an ally at all, just a cushion. One danger, though, now that people are thinking differently about America, you could easily fall into the trap of thinking Brezhnev's great — and he's just as uncaring as Reagan.

PW: That's what I liked in Tony Benn's speech at the rally, that you've got to resist American generals and Russian generals.

DW: Yeah, he did a good speech, really good.

PDN: This is the stigma, isn't it, that you're playing into the Russians' hands, that the Kremlin is rubbing its hands with glee at the demos in Western Europe.

DW: That you're not even consciously communist, that you're being duped. But every time America stands up for South Africa or whatever, the Kremlin rubs its hands with glee. They don't need a marketing budget of their own, just keep letting America make mistakes for them ...

Trouble is, neither system is working at the moment. Anyone in power can think, if they can expand that'll make it look better: all of a sudden you've got plenty of coal, plenty of steel, plenty of uniforms. Put half the unemployed in an army and get them killed, put the other half in factories making weapons.

It's a quick, simple answer. Everyone can get a flag out and feel proud cos they've got something to fight for again ... We have to to think about it any more. In the end there was loads of American groups just dashing to get on that LP, when their record companies were saying, Do you realise your two biggest competitors are on this record?

CM: But I think all the bands who've been involved with this have made it very clear from the beginning how they feel. And instead of being some limp LP that happens to have its proceeds going to a cause, it has some points to make, with a real strength of feeling.

DW: Probably the best way to sell it in America would be the idea that if there's a nuclear war, record sales would plummet. . .

INTERLUDE

A BAD MANNERED phone-call from Louis Alphonso.

Direct from the Top Of The Pops studio, Bad Manners' guitarist Louis rang me to explain their involvement (namely offering the album's one previously-unreleased cut, 'Psychedelic Eric'). When they were approached, he said, they accepted right away.

Although 'Eric' itself is not especially anti-nuclear in content, the move's a bit

"We're just the fender on the front of the car: not an ally at all, just a cushion. One danger, though, now that people are thinking differently about America, you could easily fall into the trap of thinking Brezhnev's great — and he's just as uncaring as Reagan."

Dave Wakeling

Report:
Paul Du Noyer

Pix:
Pennie Smith

SHELTER AT MIDNIGHT

pretend that all the kids on the other side of the line really hate us, so we've got to get them or they'll get us first.

RB: As soon as the level of understanding comes up the better. And obviously one way of doing it is through the youth.

DW: The main way of communication among young people is music at the moment. There ain't a newspaper you can buy every day and find out what's happening. A lot of young people rely on music, not just as a way of forming opinions, but of keeping their spirits up ... We're trying to organise a festival in Austria next year — three day event, 50,000 people — half from the East and half from the West, with some bands from the East as well. That'd be good: just to sit in a field for three days with somebody from Poland. A real education.

PW: That is the only barrier, propaganda. It's not even language, you can always overcome that.

(Chas Mervyn explains how the LP's sleeve notes will be translated for each country of release, and all the vital contact addresses will also vary. Both Weller and Wakeling emphasise how travelling in groups has made them aware of what's happening around the world, and of how much we all have in common.)

PDN: This LP contrasts with the American 'No Nukes' release. This is directly political, and specifically anti-war, where that one was more narrowly environmental, rich West Coast dodos, an extension of Me Generation politics.

DW: We definitely learned some lessons from that. It made the whole thing really respectable and comfortable, something to stick on your coffee table and you don't have surprising from a group that likes to avoid politics.

"We have basic political beliefs," Louis replies. "But we don't like to preach them."

Much as he respects groups like The Clash and Specials, Bad Manners just don't feel it's them to get too serious in song. That said, they'll use an opportunity like this LP to make a gesture of support for something important. And then the pips went.

PAUL WELLER: The biggest enemy is the media, especially the daily papers. Like the Right To Work march from Liverpool, that was put down in the papers as more communist infiltration and all this crap.

DW: I think this cause is good, because it's harder to discredit. You don't have to make a huge political decision to decide you don't want to be blown up. It's fairly common sense. But yeah, it is dangerous when the media have a vested interest in the news and what people are meant to think. As the situation becomes more extreme then music becomes more and more important as means of communication.

PW: Well at the present time it's the only form of media without some sort of censorship.

DW: Yes, cos the people in control think it's all a bleeding racket anyway. So you can get away with some fairly serious things in your songs and they pass totally un-noticed.

PW: Music is a communication system for young people, but for people in general it's the daily papers. Whatever you see splashed on the front page of the Sun, that's your topic for the day.

DW: And even if they don't totally believe it all, it's still depriving them of real information, so it works just as well. A lot of people go,

Nay, I don't believe what I read in the papers, but it's what they don't read there as well.

PW: At the root of it, what I find the most frustrating is that it's the same thing it's always been: the majority, which is us, is ruled by a minority.

CM: And yet that minority are the only ones who are safe if there is a nuclear war.

DW: I do sometimes think that it's a whole con, and the Americans and Russians know what the plan is for the next ten years, and they need to keep their populations in a state of fear to maintain their respective positions. And if it is that, then it's an even bigger waste of money ...

It's important that the LP's music is fairly different, cos it's dangerous to have a fashion thing where it's 'in' this week to wear a CND badge. Then all of a sudden, if that type of group goes out of fashion, the people don't want to wear a CND badge because it's musically what was happening last week. It's important to show the issue as being bigger than its constituent parts. In a lot of ways it's a fairly fickle situation, the pop world. And stuff like wanting to survive should be more important ...

It is embarrassing to think that we could destroy ourselves, y'know what I mean? You just feel a prat, for being part of a system that can't do any better than that.

RB: It's like knowing something's gonna fall on you, and not bothering to get out the way.

DW: We certainly feel capable of more than that. Anyone you talk to in a pub feels infinitely capable of better than that ... And this nonsense of, Give us a future, they don't own your future: it's your future, just take it. The question is, are we responsible enough to take our own futures?

(A pregnant pause. We slurp our tea. Paul Weller criticises the insensitivity of all centralised authority. Chas Mervyn relates the year's riots to that same dogmatic lack of official imagination.)

DW: That's the problem with the system at the moment. They're trying to make this early 1950s suit fit somebody who's living in the 1980s. So they keep having to put tucks in it, and hems and darts to make it fit, rather than saying perhaps we should have a new jacket for the '80s. I think Margaret Thatcher was genuinely shocked when the riots happened, really surprised that people were that angry. I used to think she was dead callous, but I think she's just dead out of touch as well! Not a clue, and yet she's making decisions on our behalf.

PDN: It must have been embarrassing for her, if nothing else, when she meets all the other heads of state. Like going to a posh party when your own kids have just crapped on the front lawn ...

MEANWHILE, THE absurdities mount up. I mentioned the case of the man who spent thousands on a nuclear shelter for his back garden. When he went out to check it, it was flooded: it was letting the rain in.

"Sounds like an Irish bomb shelter," said Bruce Foxton. "One with a sun-roof."

"Great!" laughed Dave Wakeling. "'Bomb Shelter With A Sun-Roof'. If you lot don't use that for a lyric then we will."

And, given The Beat's dedication to this album project since the word go, maybe it's right the last word should go to Dave ... Dave?

"Yeah, well, if it all goes wrong, could we just say it was The Jam's idea?"

A color photograph of a man and a woman in a social setting, likely a bar or restaurant. The man, on the left, has a beard and is wearing a light-colored blazer over a white shirt. The woman, on the right, has long blonde hair and is wearing a white dress with a colorful patterned bodice. They are both looking towards the camera. In the foreground, on a wooden table, are several items: a bottle of Ricard aperitif, a glass decanter, two tall glasses filled with a yellow liquid, a yellow box of Ricard cigarettes, and a small pile of cigarettes. The background is dark and out of focus, showing other people.

RICARD
FRANCE
LE VRAI PASTIS DE MARSEILLE

N°1 in France

Donald Sutherland up a creek without a needle

Silver Screen

DONALD DUCKS

The Eye Of The Needle

Directed by Richard Marquand
Starring Donald Sutherland and Kate Nelligan (United Artists)

JUST FOR a change, a film for the squeamish. The Eye Of The Needle is a wartime romance that brings Thomas Hardy and Len Deighton together to arrange safe passage for the allies at Normandy. It ends, like all great romances, with a fine irony and an empty bed.

The course of the war has devolved upon an ordinary woman and a ruthless Nazi spy, flung together by storm and circumstance on a remote Hebridean island. The spy has left a trail of warm bodies all the way back to the War Office, despatched with a cold stiletto and an even colder smile. In roles such as this, Donald Sutherland never fails to raise a shudder.

This charming character loses his icy grip only twice in the film, and each of these two climatic sequences occur in the driving rain (while the film's other climaxes all occur in bed). A storm wrecks his stolen boat and washes him into the arms of Lucy, the patient, frustrated wife of an embittered cripple. Lucy will not be loyal and love-starved very much longer.

Kate Nelligan as Lucy lifts the film out of the ordinary and has left a litter of used Kleenex across American cinemas. The Eye Of The Needle is a love story set in a spy thriller, and Kate Nelligan (an accomplished stage actress) relegates the mechanics of chase and subterfuge to a corner as she seizes her character and wrings the human workings out instead.

There are some truly gripping moments, and they all belong to her. One key scene comes to a literally shattering end as she crushes a glass in her hand in silent, nervous acquiescence to Donald Sutherland's calm and lethal seduction. Lucy discovers that her lover has killed her husband, and she will soon learn the reason why. Her sense of shock, confusion, hurt and fear is conveyed in overwhelming detail.

But Lucy is a victim of love, not the victim of a psychopath. Her terrified plight at the end of the film echoes all too many recent pieces of Hollywood shlock, but with two important differences. Kate Nelligan is too good an actress to let Lucy deteriorate into the usual hysteria — Lucy's panic is all the more harrowing for being held so palpably and precariously in check. And Donald Sutherland doesn't want to kill her anyway.

The final rainswept struggle is not so much between Lucy and the spy as between conflicting loyalties, his to the Fatherland, hers to her husband, and theirs to each other. Duty results in the lovers' mutual betrayal.

The Eye Of The Needle is a well-made, professional film that will appeal to prosaic tastes. The performances are exceptional, not the story or the telling. Without them, this bitter romance could have quite easily turned sour.

Paul Rambali

NATALIE WOOD

1938-1981

HOLLYWOOD'S DARK STARS come out and stay out long after the blonde sun has burnt itself out. Lorens and Taylors and Gardners and Lollo's (heiresses Joan Collins and Jaclyn Smith and Brooke Shields) make marriages and money like mad but never seem to flounder or grow seedy.

Brunettes who turn to the bottle (behind every famous blonde there's a brunette) die a death stretched over decades. I don't know why. Perhaps their personalities in the first place were so unstable that they just had to reach for the bleach bottle (I'm not good enough without BLONDE HAIR!)

Natalie Wood was the nicest dark star of all, without Taylor's awe-striking legend status, without Loren's Zen calm keep-offishness, without Gardner's swashbuckling notoriety or Lollo's bed-tempered lack of talent.

What Miss Wood did have was great beauty and an ability to act well and at will, to make usually good and often great films (Gypsy, Love With A Proper Stranger, West Side Story) as a matter of course, without months of hype, sweat and tears. Obituaries have mentioned her business sense, banality, and her beauty, naturally, but none have mentioned that she was as good at her job as any actress needs to be. Whether being cute in the '40s, flirtatious in the '50s, swinging in the '60s or stately in the '70s, Natalie Wood was something good.

Miss Wood's starry-eyed vulnerability seemed strongly to suit films with a stiff vein of melancholia beneath the dazzle — Inside Daisy Clover, Louise in Gypsy, Maria in West Side Story. Angle in Love With A Proper Stranger — and her Indian summer colouring won her roles as desirable aliens: The Puerto Rican Maria, the Jewish Marjorie Morningstar, the Italian Angle.

She was the dream girl next door, the foreigner fatale next dream. She was Tom Wolfe's Little Girl and James Dean's baby queen. She always looked young and optimistic, she could seldom be heard whining about her Hollywood childhood or her stage mother.

Her death by drowning is such a shock precisely because Natalie Wood was so bright; the words trauma and Natalie Wood have never been linked. Even her divorce from Robert Wagner ended in re-marriage. If there had been suicide attempts or brawls or hooch problems in her back scrapbook pages her death would not come as such a blow — most of our fallen idols are kind to us, letting us down gradually to their deaths, carpeting the coffin with countless seedy items in scandal sheets as time goes by. But Natalie Wood was a success — not just financially, but in the fullest sense of family and not making a fool of oneself.

Although she never did and still will not inspire a gaggle of cult followers (the dark star's qualities are not easily frozen and bottled for the big Sell) more people over the age of fifteen must have awakened this morning with a vague sense of depression than on any day in recent months. Natalie Wood made films from the age of four to the age of forty-three, so many films that not many people don't like something she's done.

There has been a particular kind of fagot logic abroad in the film world since the break-up of the beautiful studio system in the '50s, which says that if a girl is pretty and straightforward she is automatically a bad or a non-actress. If she is pretty and A Mess, Death may make things alright (see Marilyn). If she is plain, she will weep and whine around the big screen a few times and immediately be acclaimed as a genius (see Mary). But someone who sees acting as an easy, enviable job, not a heroic struggle, is condemned forever as frivolous fancy goods.

worthy of hours of analysis and hundreds of front pages of publications that should be printing NEWS. Natalie Wood's casual, professional approach was best; acting is about jerking cheap emotions, and Wood could jerk tears where Streep can't — that's acting.

She was a little California Russian girl made good. She was good. She was a good film star and she never bored her public, not with her personality or with her product. You can't say that about many actors.

She'd been on the big screen for thirty-nine years, but the public never really had enough of her. And now there's nothing left.

Julie Burchill

COLUMBIA PICTURES TAKES YOU BEYOND THE FUTURE
TO A UNIVERSE YOU'VE NEVER SEEN BEFORE...

A UNIVERSE OF MYSTERY.
A UNIVERSE OF MAGIC.
A UNIVERSE OF SEXUAL FANTASIES.
A UNIVERSE OF AWESOME GOOD.
A UNIVERSE OF TERRIFYING EVIL.

A STEP BEYOND SCIENCE FICTION.

COLUMBIA PICTURES PRESENTS
AN IVAN REITMAN — LEONARD MOGEL PRODUCTION
HEAVY METAL

PRODUCTION DESIGNER MICHAEL GROSS SCREENPLAY BY DAN GOLDBERG & LEN BLUM
BASED ON ORIGINAL ART AND STORIES BY RICHARD CORBEN, ANGUS MCKIE, DAN O'BANNON, THOMAS WARKENTIN AND BERNI WRIGHTSON
EXECUTIVE PRODUCER LEONARD MOGEL PRODUCED BY IVAN REITMAN
DIRECTED BY GERALD POTTERTON MUSIC BY ELMER BERNSTEIN

DOLBY STEREO

ALBUM AVAILABLE ON EPIC/CBS RECORDS & TAPES

The trademark "Heavy Metal" is owned by National Lampoon, Inc. © 1981 COLUMBIA PICTURES INDUSTRIES, INC. RELEASED BY COLUMBIA-TRISTAR PICTURES DISTRIBUTION

FEATURING SONGS BY

BLACK SABBATH • BLUE OYSTER CULT
CHEAP TRICK • DEVO • DONALD FAGEN • DON FELDER
GRAND FUNK RAILROAD • SAMMY HAGAR • JOURNEY
NAZARETH • STEVIE NICKS • RIGGS • TRUST

FROM THURSDAY DECEMBER 17th

COLUMBIA | classic | classic
SHAFTESBURY AVENUE | HAYMARKET | TOTTENHAM CRT. RD.

classic | ODEON | ODEON | ODEON
CHELSEA | KENSINGTON | SWISS COTTAGE | WESTBOURNE GROVE

(CINEMA DETAILS CORRECT AT TIME OF GOING TO PRESS.)

"A bloody big moth!" Ugo Tognazzi tries his hand at Punchlines.

The Tragedy Of A Ridiculous Man

Directed by Bernardo Bertolucci
Starring Ugo Tognazzi, Anouk Aimee and Laura Morante (Warner Bros)

TURNING 40, Bernardo Bertolucci seems to have got restless. Having let his filmic cycle progress from The Conformist's hardnose ruminations to the devious gossamer sensuality of La Luna, he's abruptly turned back to the wintry climate of his earliest pictures in Tragedy Of A Ridiculous Man. How you react will depend on how much you like a puzzle-box.

For Ridiculous Man is a puzzle indeed. The premise starts out simply enough: Primo Spaggiari, played with a troubled pensiveness by Ugo Tognazzi, sees his son Giovanni apparently kidnapped after a car chase not far from the family's cheese factory. Spaggiari is a wealthy self-made man who now has to look to the values he places on family and possessions. His wife Barbara (excellent Anouk Aimee, all faraway eyes and twitching mouth) is soon totting up the potential family fortune for the inevitable ransom; but Primo isn't so sure...

Nothing, really, is as it seems. Primo strikes up an odd liaison with Laura, Giovanni's girlfriend, and Adelfo, a trainee priest, both also workers in the factory; they appear to have connections with the abductors, but whose side are they on? Is Giovanni alive or dead? It soon occurs to Spaggiari senior that there may be a way of using the situation to his advantage.

In reverting to an all-Italian cast and setting, Bertolucci has chosen a very different tongue to the pastoral eloquence of Rosi's Three Brothers. His Italian countryside, where the factory and family villa are isolated, stinks of the factory piggens, is damp and snowbound in winter; the (fake) Pissarros and ham slicer in the house are part of the entrepreneurial rewards on the way up and out.

But the price of this mercantilism, curiously, is a sad burden of responsibility rather than any paranoid greed. Bertolucci seems to suggest that for his country to remain on its feet it has to rely on men like Spaggiari in more than mere economic terms.

So Primo sees that it is not simply his possessions he is being asked to surrender but the promise which his humble beginnings grew out of, a history which he recounts to Laura in one of their brief encounters. Faced with this he is adrift; left at the scene of the abduction when the police have departed he weeps helplessly for himself in the midst of a rain-sodden cornfield. This is the tragedy, if there is one.

Matters are compounded by the unpredictability of everyone else. The police marshal (a very funny cameo by Vittorio Caprioli) asks unfathomable questions and trips over the furniture; the factory workers' blank faces might be hiding a conspiracy of silence. Even Spaggiari himself seems to be nursing some secret knowledge of his own.

Nothing is resolved in the teasing ambiguity of the finale, either. Bertolucci has explained away the inexplicability by alluding to the way Italy is plagued with crimes without solutions.

A thin excuse for intrigue that struggles to be intriguing — Ridiculous Man is often laboured, sometimes ponderous — yet there are still enough ideas in this unlovely film (an almost total eschewal of La Luna's rhapsodic photography) to suggest a revitalisation that should lead to greater things.

Richard Cook

Sci-fi silliness

The Bubble

Directed by Arch Oboler
Starring Michael Cole and Deborah Walley (Tigon)

THE BUBBLE is the chief attraction of the ICA's Xmas 3-D season, being the first film made in Space Vision, a superior technique perfected in 1966 by original 3-D pioneer Arch Oboler. Whereas in normal 3-D objects seem to come out of the screen at you, in Space Vision they come out and wobble about!

This is all very well but, in lavishing his care on Space Vision, Oboler has lost sight of the other ingredients a film needs — like plot, credible acting, decent dialogue, action and so forth. I mean, it's terrific having a bloody great aeroplane wing loom out of the screen and almost scratch your nose, but it's not exactly Citizen Kane.

The Bubble is about an alien force which suddenly appears on Earth, wipes out American civilisation (the work of a few minutes) and collects bits and pieces of Americana — plus a few people — under a huge, unbreakable bubble, supposedly for observation purposes. Into this bubble, by a freak chance, fly all-American couple Mark and Cathy, with new-born babe. Most of the film is concerned with their efforts to escape, these being of a rather uninspired nature — like driving a truck at the bubble or trying to dig underneath it.

Not a lot of scope here for psychological insight, passion, tension, or even a car chase! In fact, the film's most exciting moment comes when a tray of lager floats out from the screen and hovers in front of the audience — and I speak as a teetotaler.

As 3-D goes, Space Vision is pretty impressive, although, apart from the brief craze in the 50s which produced Creature From The Black Lagoon — the genre's one indisputable classic — 3-D itself has never been much used and is now a rarity, lingering on only in odd corners. The ICA press handout reckons the latest 3-D film made was called What The Swedish Butler Saw — I don't know what that was but I doubt I'd want it in my eye.

Graham Lock

A cop is turning.
Nobody's safe.

PRINCE OF THE CITY

"PRINCE OF THE CITY"
Starring TREAT WILLIAMS
Executive Producer JAY PRESSON ALLEN
Produced by BURTT HARRIS Screenplay by JAY PRESSON ALLEN and SIDNEY LUMET
Based on the Book by ROBERT DALEY
Directed by SIDNEY LUMET

Technicolor Panavision (Technicolor available in 35mm format only)

Warner Bros. Pictures presents a Warner Bros. Production
A Warner Bros. Picture
Copyright © 1981 Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. All Rights Reserved

FROM
DEC. 17

WARNER
WEST END
LEICESTER SQUARE
439 0791

ABC
SHAFTESBURY AVE
836 8861

ABC
FULHAM ROAD
370 2636

FROM
JAN. 1

ABC
BAYSWATER
229 4149

AND FROM JAN. 3 ABC'S BEXLEYHEATH • CROYDON • GOLDERS GREEN • ROMFORD

Monty Smith sizes up the small screen

Thursday December 10
MIGHTY JOE YOUNG
(Directed by Ernest B. Schoedsack 1949). Coily credited as Mr Joseph Young, the simian hero of this silly special effects saga is predictably allowed to run completely amuck in New York. His efforts at urban redevelopment don't hold a banana to Mr K. Kong's earlier efforts, however, and the main appeal here will probably be the duff jokes and terrible acting (Terry Moore, Ben Johnson and Robert Armstrong). Camp as bottled coffee, dear! (BBC2)

Friday December 11
WINDBAG THE SAILOR
(Geoffrey Smokestack 1940). Mighty Will Hay as discredited sea-captain Ben Cutler, somehow ending up on a cannibal island. So funny, it hurts. (ITV Thames)

TARZAN TRIUMPHS
(William Thiele 1943). Do you remember the one where Johnny Weissmuller found Boy under the only gooseberry bush in the jungle? Well this one's even more stupid than that. Tarzan thwarts the Third Reich in the latest of the Beeb's crappiest 'season' since they showed all those Glenda Jackson movies. (BBC2)

DOCTOR IN TROUBLE
(Ralph Thomas 1970). The last of the long-limping series, with Leslie Phillips well past it as Simon Burke, 'juvenile' prankster of the bedpan and bromide brigade, effortlessly getting right up James Robertson Justice's generous hooter. And mine. (ITV LWT and Ulster)

Saturday December 12
THE BURNING HILLS (Stuart Heisler 1956). What a poxy 'tribute' to Natalie Wood: the sort of tired little western that gave Mel Brooks ammunition for Blazing Saddles. Tab Hunter is the klutz on the run from... oh, who cares? Natalie, apparently, even though she's an unlikely Mexican maiden. When you think of all the worthwhile films she made, the Beeb must've worked really hard to dig up this one. (BBC2)

THE COMMAND (David Butler 1953). Soldiers v Indians, and even worse than The Burning Hills simply because Natalie Wood isn't in it at all. (BBC2)

SEX AND THE SINGLE PARENT (Jackie Cooper 1979). ITV's tribute is a complete cock-up; they've got this confused with Sex and The Single Girl, in which Natalie fairly sparked as

Helen Gurley Brown. Here, Susan St James — a good foot taller than Natalie — and Mike Farrell (certainly no Tony Curtis) lead a leaden TV sitcom. (ITV all regions)

FEND WITHOUT A FACE
(Arthur Crabtree 1958). NME's nickname for famed production editor Tim Greenhalgh turns up as a sci-fi shocker (as in "shocking!", "awful!" "turn that bloody rubbish off!" etc) (ITV LWT)

WILQ ROVERS (Blake Edwards 1971). The William Holden 'season' kicks off with a horribly 'lyrical' western, sentimentalising the relationship between Holden's grizzled veteran (echoes of the magnificent Pike Bishop) and Ryan O'Neal's callow cowpoke. (BBC2)

SUPPORT YOUR LOCAL GUNFIGHTER (Burt Kennedy 1971). Broad comedy western that's not even up to James Garner's earlier effort Support Your Local Sheriff. (BBC1)

Sunday December 13
KIND HEARTS AND CORONETS (Robert Hamer 1949). I prefer some of Ealing's grittier comedies myself, but there's no denying this is a stylish exercise, acted with great wit by Alec Guinness and Dennis Price. (BBC1)

PRESS FOR TIME (Robert Asher 1966). No wit or style here but plenty of silly gags as Norman Wisdom becomes the world's oldest cub reporter. (ITV LWT)

BORN YESTERDAY (George Cukor 1950). Classy Garson Kanin comedy built around the familiar Pygmalion theme and Judy Holliday's priceless performance as the dumbest of dumb broads. William Holden's her teacher, Broderick Crawford her crooked millionaire lover, both excellent. (BBC2)

BAREFOOT IN THE PARK (Gene Saks 1967). Flimsy Neil Simon comedy, let down mostly by the casting of Jane Fonda and Robert Redford as the newlyweds, neither of whom is exactly noted for their surefire playing of snappy one-liners. For an object lesson in the art, wait for Jack Lemmon in The Prisoner Of Second Avenue, coming up at Christmas. (ITV all regions)

Monday December 14
ST IVES (J. Lee Thompson 1976). Charlie Bronson typecast as a writer (?!); don't panic, he soon chucks his pencils out the window and is off shooting at people. Not a masterpiece. (BBC1)

A STAR IS BORN (Frank Pierson 1976). When Barbra Streisand's nose came into contact with Kris Kristofferson's quivering pectorals the movies came of age. Adult Orientated Cinema and quite horrible. It'll go down a wow in Guildford. (ITV all regions)

If you can't decide between FM, ASLC and LED, why not have them all?

There are so many attractive features available in car audio systems today, you're excused if you can't decide which is best for you.

Hitachi take the point. And as we're eager for you to get really good performance, we've done the obvious.

We've put all sorts of good things together in our CSK 303X stereo/radio cassette combination.

There's an FM stereo, long and medium wave radio with Hitachi FM noise canceller and a stereo/mono switch with LED beacon.

Added to this is a unique Hitachi feature. Our integral Automatic Sound Level Control system.

As tyre noises, gear changes, fluctuating engine noises and transmission noises come up, the ASLC adjusts the speaker output, easily compensating for the disturbance without affecting the level of the performance.

The stereo cassette player automatically switches on the radio when the tape has finished playing.

For night driving, the 'Green Glow' slot makes cassette loading easy.

And like all models from the Hitachi range of in-car equipment, reliability and quality come as standard.

Shouldn't you be getting all these good things for your car?

CSK 303X

FOR MORE INFORMATION, TALK TO YOUR NEAREST HITACHI STOCKIST (SEE PANEL BELOW) - OR CONTACT US DIRECT: HITACHI SALES (UK) LTD, I.C.E. DIVISION, HITACHI HOUSE, STATION ROAD, HAYES, MIDDLESEX UB3 4DR. TELEPHONE: 01-848 8787.

Where to find your nearest stockist:-

Bedfordshire Camden Car Radio, Lake Street, Leighton Buzzard • Herbert Robinson, Winsor Road, Bedford • Berkshire Berkshires Car Radio, 1 Market Place, Bracknell • Molelec, 175 Bath Road, Slough • Birmingham A. B. Fletcher, 25 Great Eastern Street • A. T. Givens, 15 Sutton Street • Bristol Radio & Electrical Wholesale Ltd., 590 Bristol Road, Selly Oak • Studio Musica, 140 Sandy Lane, Camp Hill • Bradford Autzound, 15/17 Spring Gardens, Manningham • Bristol Winesapke Garage, 50 Winesapke Road • Cambridge Aylesstone Auto Electrical, Aylesstone Road • Cardiff Radiocraft (Sonnet) Ltd., 251/253 Cowbridge Road, Canton • Cheshire Car & Home Stereo, 219 London Road, Hale Grove, Stockport • Car Radio Centre (Sale), 183 Washway Road, Sale • Car Sound, Trafford Street, Chester • Specialised Equipment, 341 Wellington Road North, Stockport • T.S.A. Services, 33 Green Street, Stockport • Cheshire Cheshirefield Car Radio, 37 Longedge Lane, Wingerworth • Clyde T. E. Roberts (King Street) Ltd., 25 King Street, Wexham • Corwall Car Radio Fitting Specialists Ltd., 17/23 Tord Road, St Austell • Coventry Canwood Motors Ltd., Herald Way • Henleys (Midland) Ltd., Kenyon Highway • Cumbria Rickenby Ltd., Currock Road, Carlisle • Derbyshire M/S Auto Electrics, Kempton Park Close, Ascot Drive Ind Estate • Midlands Lye & Battery Service, 16 Corporation Street • Cheshirefield • R. Townsend Radio & TV The Green • Devon Mr Chesserfield • Devon Mobile Sound Centre, 248 Torquay Road, Preston, Paignton • Torbulls Garages Ltd., Brimondale, Plymouth • Doncaster Economic Factors, 10/13 Holmes Market, Whearley • Dorset Auto Radio VRS Ltd., 106 Castle Lane West, Bournemouth • Wireless Suppliers Unlimited, Old Christchurch Road, Bournemouth • Dyfed J. H. Roberts, 7 High Street, Lampeter • Wesley Brondbury Park, Aberystwyth Road, Cardigan • Essex Car Audio Specialists, 7 Myland Parade, Wood Street, Chelmsford • Essex Car Repairs, 103 Richmond • 181 Beconure Avenue, Dagenham • C.C.S. Richmond • 215 High Road, Woodford Green • Glamorgan J.B.B. Electronics, 67 St. Helens Road, Swansea • Torbulls Motors Ltd., Penrhawker Road, Torbay • Gloucester Ray Electrical, 287 High Street, Cheltenham • Gloucester Ltd., London Road • Gloucester Car Radio, 2 Gloucester Road, Cheltenham • Gwent Gwent Car Sounds, Rodney Street, Newport • Gwynedd W.A. & F.G. Evans, Regent Garage

Caernarfon Road, Criccieth • Hamphshire Autzound Ltd., 18 Vaughan Street, Llandudno • Hamphshire Makadam Ltd., 44/46 New Road, Tadley, Basingstoke • Andover Motor Factors, 8 Arnon Trading Estate, Andover • W. F. W. TV Ltd., 27 The Green, Stubbington • S.G.M. Electronics, 4A Lenton Road, Alton • Auto Services (Shirley) Ltd., 246 Shirley Road, Southampton • Dover Sound, 193 May Street, Basingstoke • H. R. Knight Ltd., 69 Milton Road, Portsmouth • Hertfordshire Harrison & Macklin, Foley Trading Estate, Baldock • E.C.P. Motors, 185/187 Turner Hill, Chesham • Autosound Services, 80 Dunsen Road, Watford • J.B. Car Radio, 94 High Street, Sevenoaks • Inca Car Audio, 11 Cole Green Lane, Woodhall Shopping Centre, Welwyn Garden City • Russell Auto Electronics, 13/27 Coates Lane, Wilford • Huddersfield Express Ignition, St. Andrews Road, Aspley • Hull Jordans of Hull, 45/47 Witham • Humber A.C.C. Limited, 38 Boothferry Road, Hull • C. H. Turner Ltd., 1/5 Corporation Street, Grimsby • Isle of Man Industrial Equipment (I.O.M.) Ltd., Tynwald Street, Douglas • Kent Inertia Motors Ltd., Lakeside Service Station, Surry Road, Canterbury • Babysouth Limited, 119/131 Whitlam Road, Gravesend • Lancashire Car Radio Installations, 28 Higher Eanam, Blackburn • R. & B. Lonsdale, 42 Carr Gate, Cliveden • Mobile Radio (Preston) Ltd., 85/87 Fyde Road, Preston • Kitchen & Calvert Ltd., Hindpool Street, Barrow-in-Furness • Moving Sound Ltd., 151/153 Burnley Road, Accrington • Arthur Shortcuts (Radio) Ltd., Hodgsons Garage, Thornton Road, Morecambe • Westhoughton Car Radio, 291 Church Road, Westhoughton, Bolton • M. Green & Son, 81 Ansdell Road, Blackpool (South Shore) • Central Drive Forecourt Station, Central Drive, Blackpool • Formby Car Electrical Services, Alcar Road, Formby • Leeds Umicar, 11 Kirkstall Road • Andrew Page & Co., Apson House, 53/59 Malpas • Leicester Epic Accessories, 38 Nelson Street • R. Croxall, 103 Green Lane Road • Hanger Motors (Leicester) Ltd., Wellford Road • Castle Motor Co., 91 Abbey Lane •

Car Electronics, 785/287 Wellford Road • Lincolnshire Eastern Tapes, 77 Corporation Street, Lincoln • J. H. Ward, 44/48 North Street, Bourne • London Car Radio Services, 925 High Road, NW12 • Muscraft, 3 High Street, Acton W3 • Karaoke Ltd., 204 North End Road, W14 • H. Lenton Ltd., 191 Francis Road, E10 • Atkinson Battery Service Ltd., 7 Pembroke Villas, W11 • Auto Audio Installations, 94/104 The Arches, Wood Lane, W17 • Bensonic, 1/A The Car Music Centre, 122 Shepherd's Bush Green, W12 • Colwood Auto Electronics, 172 Arthur Road, Wrotham SW19 • Crouch End Hi-Fi, 13 Park Road, Hove, BN1 • Dracon, Brent Cross Shopping Centre, Brent Cross NW4 • D.S. Electronics, 8 Parsons Street, Hendon NW4 • W. James Ltd., 1/A Car Audio Equipment, 351 Lea Bridge Road, Leyton • London Car Radio Centre, 25/31 Tynnon Place, NW1 • Seaton's (In Car Equipment) Ltd., 330 York Road, Wandsworth SW18 • Pinnacles, 1/A Mach One, 125 Golders Green Road, NW11 • Tanford Motor Services, 2 Woodlands Way, Pinner SW15 • Wadham Simon (Clithorne) Ltd., 59 Sidcup Road, Lee SE12 • Cavendish Sales, 781/783 Whitechapel Road, E1 • H. F. General, 39 Bedford Hill, Balham SW12 • Neasden Electronics, 51 Dudden Hill Lane, NW10 • Sounds Famous, 55/57 Anerley Road, SE19 • Stereo on Wheels, 27 Chiswick Lane, W4 • Video Wheels, 24/62 Market Square, Edmondoe • Manchester Sound & Tapes, 59 Bury New Road • Merseyside Sound Trac, 2 Chester Road, Wirral • Ellesmere Port • Wirral Car Radio, 2 Singleton Avenue, Birkenhead • Middlesbrough M.W. Motors Ltd., Granville Road Car, Granville Road • Car Sounds, 1 Union Place • Middlessex ICE Stereo Systems, 175 Stanwell Road, Ashford • S.K. Radio, 3 New Broadway Unbridge Road, Hillingdon • Sound Around, 114 Rooking Road, Greenford • Transcar Radio, 21 Hinch Road, Twickenham • Heath Car Electronics, 638 Harewood Road, Hounslow • Westhead Ltd., 110 The Green, Southall • North Darnley TV & Hi-Fi, 68 Windsor Road, Newcastle upon Tyne • Dennis Car Radio, 28/30 Scotswood Road • Irene Car Radios, 5 Burnbank Square, Sharncliffe • Norfolk Sonus

Wholesale, 128 Derrinham Road, Norwich • Northamptonshire York Ward and Rowlands, Oxford Street, Wellingborough • Nottingham Hanger Motors (Nottingham) Ltd., London Road • Audrovision (Midlands) Ltd., 27 Haywards Road, Sandiacre • Oxfordshire Harwell of Oxford, Oxford Road, Kidlington • Pembrokeshire Llanmerris, 39 High Street, Haverfordwest • Peterborough Auto Sound Centre, 1110 Lincoln Road, Walsby • Portsmouth Virgin Records, 69/73 Incom Centre, Charlotte Street • Sheffield Senior Electronic Services, 429 Stanforth Road • Shropshire Autoelectrics (Dunsmuir) Ltd., Smithfield Street, Oswestry • Staffordshire Curns Auto Electrical, Wards Lane, Off Milton Lane, Great Warley, Nr. Walsall • N. Thomas, 38 The Village, Walton on the Hill • Appleyards (Staffs) Ltd., London Road, Newcastle-under-Lyme • Stoke-on-Trent HT Electrical, 4/8 Vauxhall Street, Longdon • Oliver Rex Garages (Hanley) Ltd., Clough Street, Hanley • W. T. Bell (Burslem) Ltd., Sandbach Road, Codsbridge • Suffolk Dave Wallis Car Radio, 322 Sponage Road, Ipswich • Sunderland Offrs Service Station (Aston), 11 Wyndoor Terrace, Grangeoverton • Surrey Thomas Car Radio, 158 High Street, Egham • Car Sounds, 176 East Street, Epsom • Coventry Car Radio, 42 Thornton Road, Thornton Heath • Woking Car Radio, 9/11 Church Street, Woking • Road Sound, 182 Victoria Road, Aldershot • Ian Banning Ltd., 12c Worplesdon Road, Guildford • Universal Car Supplies, Victoria Works, The Street, Ashford • Sussex Road Radio Ltd., 41 Station Road, Burgess Hill, and branches • Harfield and Foster, Spencer Street Workshop, Bognor Regis • Dials Car Radio, 187 Lewis Road, Brighton • H.T. Motor Supplies, Automan House, Bognor Regis • Chichester Swansea Shorts Auto Electrical, 43/49 Station Road, Llandovey • West Midlands Mervale TV Service, 15 Dog Kennel Lane, Oldbury • Wentley Whitthure Contract Electrical, 86/88 Southampton Road, Salisbury • Wolverhampton Charles Clarke Ltd., 52 Dithons Street, Chapel Ash • Worcester Mobile Electric Sales, Gregorys Mill • Worcestershire Auto Radio, 110 East Parade, Knightley • Car Radio (Skepton) Ltd., Unicorn Buildings, Devonshire Place, Skepton • Croft & Blackburn, Harvesters House, Kirby Road, Ripon • Elcar Limited, Colne Road, Huddersfield • Mobile Music (Harrogate) Ltd., Back Dawson Terrace, Harrogate • Ripon Auto Electric, Blossomdale, Ripon

HITACHI
In a word, reliability.

Seasonal Choice!

An Old Fashioned Christmas

A Fabulous Yuletide Single from:

Choice

Released on the WEASEL LABEL

No. WR 4004 distributed by SPARTAN RECORDS LTD.

Wembley, Middx. Tel: 01-903 4753/6

McBride of Heseltine

JIM ALLEN'S The Spongers of a few years back was a milestone in television drama. On that, all critics are agreed, even if some had reservations about what they saw as the uncomfortably melodramatic touch of the mini-Jonestown ending. Single-handedly dragging social realism out of the mire of '60s kitchen-sink domesticana, The Spongers detailed the remorseless workings of a welfare state gone sour by focussing on the plight of a single-parent family caught in its bureaucratic cogs. It drew sharp and timely attention to the dangers of "the state" acquiring a capital S, and raised as yet unanswered questions about what constitutes a "caring society".

The bitter irony of that play's title is there too in United Kingdom, Jim Allen's latest epic, which took up 2½ hours of Tuesday evening. Again directed by Roland Joffe, United Kingdom has so many similarities with The Spongers that it's perhaps best to view it as a sequel of sorts. Certainly, the early shot of a bedroom crammed with kiddies brought with it an uncomfortable twinge of deja vu, and although this time there was no specific victim, the issues were much the same.

The political die is effectively cast before the play opens: a district council in the North East has refused to implement expenditure cuts, and a Government Commissioner is sent in to run the local authority. The early part of the play intercuts scenes of the Council-in-Exile's attempts to muster support with scenes of the nameless Commissioner's arrival. Whilst he holds a press conference, the councillors hold demonstrations; the one speaks to national mouthpieces, the other to local mouths.

Meanwhile, behind it all, Chief Constable McBride (Colin Welland) goes quietly about his business. A PR figurehead for the most part, McBride nevertheless knows exactly where he stands as regards "sedition" and civil disobedience; aware of the problems, the area's history and the imminent unrest, he opts unflinchingly for control. Seemingly incapable of viewing political protest as other than a personal affront to his authority, he acts with a decidedly heavy hand, increasing the unrest and eventually calling in the SPG to do his dirty work when he's effectively transformed a political issue into one of "law and order".

ANDY GILL promises to buy a TV licence after seeing Jim Allen's latest play

Like everyone else in the play, McBride is a victim — in his case, a victim of his past, his preconceptions, his position, and a power he can't wield properly. He'd never admit it, of course. Certain scenes stand out from the general storyline; in particular, one riveting scene in which the local bobbies call to interrogate a couple's young son, caught when his shoplifting mates did a runner. They want the names of his mates, and his unemployed dad Tony (Bill Paterson) is determined that he should co-operate and keep himself out of court; his militant councillor mum Kath (Val McLane), however, is equally determined that he should keep quiet, as there's no "charge" against him but truancy.

A minor affair, perhaps, but the confrontation escalates into violent recrimination between Kath and Tony. It's plain to see — although it's never stated — that the argument has nothing to do with whether the boy should co-operate or not, but is merely the bursting of a domestic boil long distended with the pus of poverty, unemployment and associated pressures. It had to go, or the marriage would have; it just needed the right needle.

United Kingdom deals with the nuts and bolts of political crisis, the flipside of the filtered, distanced view given by newspapers and TV; like The Spongers, it blurs the line between fiction and reality (everything McBride "says" has apparently been said before by real-life Chief Constables), to the point where you could be watching a documentary. And you are, of course — this play is happening, in slightly altered form, all over the UK of today.

As one of the councillors succinctly puts it, "Listen, girl — those people up there have effectively got their heel on the neck of local government. They've took our jobs away — they're paying us not to work — and now they're putting us in a box, closing the lid, and the boys in blue are happily sitting on top of it."

The question is: Which councillor? Ken Livingstone? The Clay Cross rent rebels? Or are they just fictions, too?

HUNDREDS OF ALBUMS AT £3.99 OR LESS.

Not just one or two, but hundreds of records are just £3.99 each at W. H. Smith. See if any other record shop can match that.

All at £3.99

Julio Iglesias Begin the Beguine
Rod Stewart Tonight I'm Yours
Diana Ross Why do fools fall in Love
Soft Cell Non Stop Erotic Cabaret
Orchestral Manoeuvres
In The Dark Architecture and Morality
Police Ghost In The Machine
Earth, Wind & Fire Raise

Teardrop Explodes Wilder
David Bowie Changestwobowie
Neil Diamond On the way to the sky
Stevie Wonder Hotter than July
Roxby Music Flesh and Blood
Abba Greatest Hits Volume 1/2 (each) Beatles Sergeant Pepper/Ballads/many other titles

AC/DC
For those about to rock

Adam and the Ants
Prince Charming

Not the Nine
O'Clock News
Hedgehog Sandwich

Cliff Richard
Wired for Sound

Plus hundreds more from artists like: Simon and Garfunkel, Shakin' Stevens, Dr Hook, Pink Floyd, Status Quo, Rod Stewart, Christopher Cross, Pretenders, Elvis Costello, Carpenters, Joan Armatrading, Supertramp, Jim Steinman, Bob Dylan, Moody Blues, Kate Bush, Bob Seger, Beach Boys, Genesis, Dire Straits, Vangelis, Bee Gees, James Last, Leo Sayer, Showaddywaddy, Barry Manilow, Michael Jackson, Art Garfunkel, Billy Joel, Jasper Carrot.

From FULL RECORD DEPARTMENTS, where you see this door sign.

W H SMITH

Offer ends 2nd January 1982. Subject to availability. Larger branches will carry larger selections.

Illustration: MARK FAIRINGTON

You've read the words, bought the records, seen the gigs . . . now VOTE!

 Most Wonderful Human Being Votes for 'me' will not be counted.	 Female Singer	 Most Missed Person
 Best Group	 Guitar	 Best New Act
 Male Singer	 Keyboards	 Songwriter
 Bass	 Best Dressed Sleeve	 Drums
 Single	 Creep Of The Year	 LP
 Radio Show	 Film	 Best Dressed Person
		 TV Show

Name

Address.....

..... Age.....

Cut this page out and send, completed, to: NME Readers Poll, 5-7 Carnaby Street, London W1V 1PG.
 Entries must arrive no later than December 31st.

MANET WOULDN'T BUY ME A «BOW WOW / WOW WOW»

The Album

SEE JUNGLE! SEE JUNGLE!
GO JOIN OUR GANG YEAH,
CITY ALL OVER
GO APE CRAZY

RCA

Now available in special cassette pack featuring bonus track
THE JOY OF EATING RAW FLESH

Special Christmas Show at the Lyceum London
23rd December
1981 reviewed by gavin martin

Illustration: Adam Peters

INTUITION ECSTASY AND EMOTION

THE ISLEY BROTHERS: Inside You (Epic)

Lying around for weeks, shamefully ignored and under-publicised this is one of the best 45s of 1981. Just think — 'Harvest For The World', 'Live It Up', 'Baby It's A Disco Night', 'That Lady' and 'Highways Of My Life' — the list of scorching '70s Isleys' singles is endless, taking its place with ease beside their celebrated moments from the '60s. Plainly, we are dealing with a rare type of genius.

The Isleys are not here to ponder any poxy fantasy, they are here to perform a noble task and, expert craftsmen that they are, they carry it off beautifully. Those vocals move like a swallow through the summer sky, those horns are like fine strokes in a Van Gogh oil painting and the Nureyhev-nimble bass has the anticipative pre-coital palpitations and unrequited desire. Which is what 'Inside You' — the meeting, the greeting and the he-he-heating — is all about: the glory of true need and the captivation of (I'll second that) emotion.

There have been some truly precious dance records in the past ten years, obvious candidates for a killer 'Disco Greatest Hits', like 'Shame', 'Boogie Wonderland' and 'You + Me = Love'. They've brought kids together, affirmed early adolescent belief and given them something to aspire to. 'Inside You' is another — clear, graceful and great. A record I'll treasure forever.

DIANA ROSS: Tenderness (Motown)

Diana's combination of lithe enticement and regal declaration — an exquisitely powerful voice — never found its proper place in the swamp of maudlin blancmange she waded through in the '70s. Her best record, apart from The Supremes material, was 'Upside Down', produced by Nile and Rodgers but the silly girl didn't know when she was lucky and left Motown to produce herself and make terrible abominations like the current 'Why Do Fools Fall In Love'.

This re-issue is proof-positive that the short sharp Chic treatment was just what she needed. 'Tenderness' is lust looking for trust. After the pallid, formula-wearing-thin of their later efforts, Bernie and Nile come up with a sharp, restructured staccato edge and send it reeling through a quintessential modern dance production. All the ingredients resonant, rhyme and reason — flying wily strings, warm slices of mellow horn funk, clasped in a post-Cropper rhythm clench.

Everything balances, makes its effect and complements the sensitive urgency of the song. Holding tight and grooving free, yearning coz it's how you feel, and dancing coz your heart won't stand still.

CANDI STATON: Count On Me (Sugarhill)

The collaboration between Station and Sugarhill was one I found, on paper, to be very dubious. Seemingly Candi had been unable to come with anything of note since 'Young Hearts Run Free' and she'd decide to sidle into the safety of the rap factory and let the thunderclaps do the talking.

Not a bit of it; both parties are too wise and talented to throw themselves away on such a spurious exercise and if this record is mostly memorable for Candi's mercurial vocals it also shows a welcome ability on the part of Sylvia Robinson's outfit to expand into new areas.

As yet they've a sturdy but unprocessed blueprint of future possibilities and this song has the transparency and jauntiness of a jingle. In spite, perhaps because of this, like all records in this section, 'Count On Me' is perfect daytime radio listening. It's not a blaring brawn-over-brain piece, but it is relaxed and subtle enough to take a little of your time and whisper something that is personal, and precious and tender.

FRANK SINATRA: It Was A Very Good Year (Reprise)

Flip over the new Sinatra single — he's still in fine voice but the song 'Bang Bang (My Baby Shot Me Down)' by Sonny Bono is well dodgy — and you get his real romantic eulogy, the autobiographical tour de force that 'My Way' could never be. This is the calendar of life flying on the wings of memory and marked by the most intimate of experiences — orgasmic, spiritual and metaphysical.

HOT HEELS HIT THE CEILING

GQ: Shake (Arista)
Spinning and writhing, jumping out of bed in the morning — somewhere exciting to go. Leaping down the street — on your way to a special night out and you're flying in your dreams. Open to suggestions, at least. GQ shimmer into a lavish cut and thrust dance floor motion. From the hip to the ankle it's 'Shake Your Body' and from the waist to the shoulder it's 'Good Times' but pushed and pumped by a savage, slashing hi-hat and an elephant-stampede of a bass guitar. So it's up and down, up and down and all around. All over, and again...

J WALTER NEGRO AND THE LOOSE JOINTS: Shoot The Pump (Zoo York Records)

Fresh from mashing up New York this is now available in this country through Island records. I'm not sure whether shooting the pump means simply bursting the water mains and watching whilst passers-by get drenched or if it refers to the noble art of graffiti — popping an aerosol and letting the world know how you feel. Whatever, this single has the immediacy and effectiveness of both pastimes, being a potent cocktail of rap babbling and caustic gut funk.

J Walter and The Loose Joints — bantam weight bouncers scampering over red hot bricks, away from suspicious mamas, bawling neighbours and flying monkey wrenches — leave you in no doubt that pump shooting is a bloody good idea. A pity about the crude, messy guitar which is the only thing standing between this mesmerising volley and true love.

SUGARHILL GANG: Apache (Sugarhill)

What would be astounding would be the entire happy soul of the trampled tribe tearing itself from years of repression and restraint and rising into the air as one ecstatic unit, but this is a rather subdued affair. The Sugarhill Gang sounding more like The Furious Five in a song that lacks the crazy exhortation of 'The Birthday Party' or the blazing invention of 'Wheels Of Steel'. Very little goes on that fulfills the promise of the hot popcorn spitting tom-tom intro, as it fades rather than flourishes into the chorus and drags out the old Shadows wet lick as a link between the raps. Like they say, the Indian used to trust the white man but now he has his reservations.

TEENA MARIE: It Must Be Magic (Motown)

Racy, saucy, spruce, bright and happy — Teena Marie (a minor league heroine) goes on a fresh faced, neatly shaped and nicely angled fling. A guaranteed floor filler at the commercial (and more enjoyable) discos it's flavoured with subtle erotica and a hint of the mystery of Heart's 'Magic Man'. Teena wrote the rhythm track herself and the smart girl (one of Motown's few successful white artists) comes up with a very topical and attractive metaphor between — click, click, ring ring — love games and pinball machines. A double bonus, play again.

DAMP SQUIBS

THE CLASH: Radio Clash (CBS)

Another rag bag of musical clichés and political simplifications, though no doubt The Clash will grow in their stature as 'valid rock statesmen', because fogey old rock critics searching for a soft place to lay their campus bred '60s ideals feel they can be salvaged from the obstacle of reality by pasting rebel chic street mythology over the fly poster.

What is wrong with The Clash is that so much is scrambled and vaguely alluded to that effectively they end up with nothing to say and, more pertinently, they have no cogent means of projecting their 'message'. So we get a sprawling, splintered fantasy which presents the zombified vision of would be media guerrillas with rampant hysteria. 'Radio Clash' is a 4 part epic — scrubbed up, dubbed down and sellotaped together. It jerks from side to side, diluting the essence of 'Magnificent Seven' and stewing it into an all-in aural refuge collection. More than any group I can think of — and that's not to say their intentions aren't sincere — The Clash highlight the age old inadequacy of the white musician as culture vulture. From 'White Riot' through 'White Man In Hammersmith Palais' they've come across as ghetto slummers and on 'Sandinista' they sealed their fate with an inability to do anything more than pay feeble lip-service to prevailing moods and music. No wonder rock critics love them.

A CERTAIN RATIO: Waterline (Factory)

Hardly the happiest men in the world, A Certain Ratio continue to float well off the beam with this ode to the London flood zone. The whole Factory, Joy Division, New Order, A Certain Ratio chic (Hitler decreed that a certain ratio of nongentile blood constituted a Jew) remains unexplained and is at best a very facile groove thang. If art is a mirror then they are simply reflecting their own lack of ideas and imagination.

If funk is a tonic this is a dose of castor oil. A pseudo-psalm over-compensates for The Sisters of The Cathedral backing vocals by swamping them with layers of dour drubbing brass and drums stockpiled with rancorous guitar and cranky computer break outs. A thoughtless and spiritless meander, from the safe complacent niche as The Clash.

LIQUID LIQUID: Successive Reflexes (99 Records)

I wake up from a flamboyant drinking spree, lying in a pool of sick, my throat tastes like a parched sewer pipe and my head is spinning like John Curry in a whirlwind. Someone puts on Liquid Liquid at full whack and I'm ready to curl up and die. It's the perfect portrayal of the hangover mood — the shadow of intoxication, the underlying sickness of the human condition and the fragile nature of substance and security. And, you know, there are still some whackos around who'll tell you that records like this are pertinent and productive additions to contemporary culture.

PUT SOME HEART IN YOUR ART

DAVID BYRNE: Big Blue Plymouth (Eyes Wide Open) (Sire)

Aha! Manic obsession. Staying up all night. Prowling like a lion. Pouncing like a panther. Mr Byrne is back with a lean and hungry look, jabbering mad-eyed from his new 'Songs From The Catherine Wheel' and he's still a jittering paranoid parody of The All American Male. This recalls the spartan glory of that marvellous first Talking Heads LP with devilled thumping drums and sabre tooth bass snarls. What's it all about? God only knows — the far fetched threat of a big Beefheart type dummy? Or running from a Lewis Carroll creation (a self propelled gargantuan water bed clammers over mountains of polystyrene foam in hot pursuit of Pinocchio played by David Byrne), in some weird other worldly nightmare?

The college drop-out is up in the loft with eyes, ears, windows and doors left open. Everything is left open, wide open. The possibilities for the video are endless.

DAVID BOWIE: Wild Is The Wind (RCA)

Admittedly a real product filler but it is a sterling performance from Bowie, from 'Station To Station' (via 'Changes Two Bowie') his best and most endurable album. In 1976 the lushness of this acoustic based ballad was a marked departure for him and is still one of the few attempts at crooning that stands up outside the select echelon of Sinatra, Bennett and Cole. Bowie's vocal performance — his best ever — is sensitive and suggestive enough not to have to try to reproduce His Master's Voices and the song still makes a refreshing and attractive addition to the charts.

ANNETTE PEACOCK: Sky-skating (Iron Records)

A dunderhead pant-chant with drippy church organ, ponderous drum machine and all manner of synthesiser mocado. Annette Peacock comes on like a precocious electronic era Melanie who's just read some G.B. Shaw and like any silly filly is now playing the character of her choice. Great stuff for the annual Knightsbridge Literary Debutants Coming Out Party — "I'm holding court again with fascinating men / But you are the one that I desire to love / And I can't dispell you from my thoughts." Dwy Martini pwese.

WITH CHRISTMAS IN MIND

BRUCE SPRINGSTEEN: Santa Claus Is Coming To Town (CBS)

Bruce Springsteen makes goodtime single shock! Actually it's quite a jolly frost melter and about the healthiest thing a big superstar could do at this time of year — spread a bit of cheer, mock himself a bit and give the kids in us all a treat. Nice tinkling piano, sleighbells and a (basso) profound 'You better be good for goodness' sake' from Clarence Clemons. A stocking filler for the nephews.

ABBA: One Of Us (Epic)

When cupid started firing arrows of adversity in the direction of Abba land, some feared the worst. But it looks as if the shrewd professionals of continental pop simply braced themselves a little tighter and walked out into the cool crisp air to come up with another spirited confirmation of their worth. 'One Of Us' is a consummate achievement: bazoukis and strings surging and swinging against self-doubt and bitter sadness.

ALTERED IMAGES: I Could Be Happy (Epic)

Simply a trite irritant and a really disposable turn-off to these ears. The song is so fragile as to be non-existent and Clair doesn't sound as if she's reached double figures yet. I'm not saying they should try to grow up, that comes naturally, but they shouldn't keep feigning nursery rhyme retardation either.

KIDS INTERNATIONAL: You Promised Me (Magnet)

MINI POPS: Video Killed The Radio Star (RCA)
Bring out the brats! What would Christmas be without legalised child pornography? All that exploitative advertising, all that soft focus idyllic imagery, and all that lovely lolly — a field day for capitalism. Keep them cute, keep them stupid, keep them in cages of convenience where the adult world can stand back and coo, sated and self satisfied with their own superiority and emotional maturity. Hang about kids, exactly who's fooling who?

SINGLES

DAVID BYRNE NEW ALBUM SONGS FROM "THE CATHERINE WHEEL"

SRK3645

 SIRE

ALSO AVAILABLE ON CASSETTE

Distributed by WEA Records Ltd. • A Warner Communications Co.

INDIE USA

American Independent Singles by Richard Grabel

Favourite Funk

BROTHER D WITH

COLLECTIVE EFFORT: How We Gonna Make The Black Nation Rise? (Clappers 12") The resurrection of a genre first popularized by The Last Poets and not heard from since — militant rap!

The label features a picture of a gun-toting Rasta, but the record has nothing to do with Jamaica. It's pure Harlem black political consciousness set to that hip-hop Bronx beat.

My first reaction on hearing this was to laugh in appreciation of its audacity, the very idea and challenge implicit in its coupling of political analysis with that bad party rhythm. But it's not a joke — the politics are serious and so is the rhythm. The total effect is stunning — it works on every level.

The rap is an indictment of the "party mentality". "Space out y'll to the disco rhyme/You're moving to the rhythm but you're wasting time". It ticks off the issues at hand: inferior schools, sub-standard food at higher prices in ghetto stores, the rise of racism and the Ku Klux Klan, the encroachment of the police state.

There's a chorus of women who don't sound like the typical chirping dolls of most backing vocals. Their voices are matter-of-fact, the voices of women you'd hear on the street, arguing with a shopkeeper or yelling to a friend. They sound real, and they sound angry.

At the end, Brother D

answers his own question:

"How we gonna make the black nation rise?/Agitate, educate, organize". So there you are, shaking your body — 'cause this is definitely a dance record — and it dawns on you that you're dancing to a political rallying-cry. Talk about confounding expectations. Talk about subversion. Talk about it!

FRANKIE SMITH: Double Dutch Bus (WMOT 12") Double Dutch is an advanced skipping game played by ghetto kids. It's also the language that goes with the game, involving sticking nonsense syllables in the middle of words.

This is a funny, funky, low-down, true street record. Its beauty lies in the way it interweaves the worlds of children's and adults' street life. The children skip and make up silly language. The adults run to catch the bus to work, stand around on the corner jiving, score something from "special man" and joke about the wife back home. All of it moves and vibrates with the feel of the street, and it's on the street, blaring out of radios and boxes everywhere.

Brother D

Pic: Joe Stevens

'SCUSE ME WHILE I KISS THE SKY THE LIFE OF JIMI HENDRIX

by David Henderson

The genius and the madness of the world's greatest rock and roll guitarist

Lavishly illustrated with rare photographs

OUT NOW IN BANTAM PAPERBACK

Smith's voice is rough, gruff and irresistibly funny, howling "Say HO if you got your funky bus fare." The track is snaky and so smooth it grabs your feet and makes them glide.

Perfect Pop

R.E.M.: Sitting Still/Radio Free Europe (Hib-Tone)

Spacious, ringing guitar chords, a haunting voice steeped in wistful memories and romantic longing, a hopping, party-time beat — 'Sitting Still' is a perfect pop construction. Delicate, breezy, beguiling, it's a thing of catchy beauty. 'Radio Free Europe' is a harder, more rocking sound, yet still far from ordinary.

R.E.M. are another band from Athens, Georgia, but much different from the rest. Their impulses are impossibly pure and urgent. Southern cousins to Orange Juice, they echo classic sounds and remind you of things you can't exactly place, but never descend into imitation. The guitar pulls like a Siren's song and the singer's voice is as comforting and intimate as that of an old friend. Innocent charm and magic at work.

MISSION OF BURMA: Signals, Calls and Marches EP (Ace Of Hearts 12")

Out of the six songs here, three are dispensable, but any value-for-money considerations are made moot by the fact that one song, 'That's When I Reach For My Revolver', is an absolute, instant classic. It's a song of coiled tension and flamboyant release, an aggressive celebration of its own dignity and strength. Venomous, deliberate, angry and proud, it takes the lessons of post-punk rock and roll and explodes them into an instantly grabbing personal anthem, an anti-romantic design for living. Nothing else here comes close, but this song should be heard.

LYRES: EP (Ace Of Hearts 12")
Anybody remember the Human Beinz? Music

R.E.M.

Pic: Sue Brisk

Machine? Sound Explosion? Before your time? Don't sweat. The Lyres are here to reintroduce the world to the joys of American garage-punk. This is not abrasive or cultish music. All the bands I just mentioned had hits once, and the Lyres will too if there's any justice. This is pop sensibility, infectious rhythms, inspired vocals, and above all, playfulness. And an understanding of the dynamics of interplay between rhythm guitar and cheesy organ that borders on the remarkable. The Lyres may be too cute to ever be a real challenge or threat, but what they do is too perfect to ever be out of fashion. Kudos to Boston's Ace Of Hearts label for being one of America's most consistent, although occasional, sources of great singles.

We Got Something New

KING SWALLOW: Subway Jam (Charlie's 12")
Well, almost new. King

Swallow is a leader in the Trinidadian "Soca" movement, meaning "soul-calypso". Soca involves taking calypso and slowing it down a bit, accenting the bass line to give it a disco feel and help it appeal to American and European dance-floor tastes. It works! It's upfull, rousing, silly but splendid hip-shaking stuff. Here, soca goes to New York, where Swallow imagines a giant party going on in the subway, all the West Indians in the city "jamming down" and all the workers leaving their posts to join in the fun. "All work cease to go on." Swallow's is the most disco-fied soca yet, heavy on the bass, and it bubbles along with heady confidence. A party vision and a party record.

Rock On

FLESHTONES: The World Has Changed (IRS)
Forget about last year's 'Upright' EP, where the Flestones got blanded-out in an LA studio. This is the 'Tones the way they've always cried out to be recorded. The harmonies leap out and grab you, the guitars are full of fuzz and crunch, the sax is dirty, sneering and low-down. Crazy percussion and electric madness reel around all over the record. It's not a replication of their live sound but a distillation on vinyl of what they're about. Manic and full of conviction. It will stand.

Be Jungle

KONK: Soka-Loka-Moki (Kayo-99)

Konk are brewing a potent blend of jungle funk, jazz and beatnik bongo madness, they get better each time I see them. This isn't the best they can do — consider it a learning step on the way to the killer record they will make. But it's still a good record; you could segue it in with A Certain Ratio or Pigbag and the sound might be a jolt but definitely not out of step. A bit of heavy breathing, horns like elephant cries, and the beat goes on

Best of the Rest

TERRY MANN: Fire (Fly By Night)

A modified reggae skank, very Police-like and full of echoey, spacy sonic touches. A black man who sounds uncannily like Sting. A sum that's a bit greater than its parts would suggest. Works equally well as a dance-floor glide or a late-night relaxant. I'm intrigued, Mr. Mann, tell me more.

VARIOUS ARTISTS: Propeller Product EP (Propeller)

More garage-punk from Boston with one great song, '6' by The Neats. It ties up two simple, droning riffs with classic rinky-dink organ sound. Reminds me of the 'Nuggets' LP, early Bizarros and The Brains but has its own identity. The rest of the EP, unfortunately, goes from bad to worse, the most offensive being a sub-Devo, robot-rhythm run-through of clichés about factory life by a band called People In Stores. But the EP is worth having for the Neats cut.

BPEOPLE: You At Eight (Faulty)

And yet more of that garage-punk sound, but done right. Of three tracks, one is an atmospheric instrumental lacking a genuine idea. But the other two songs are taut, driven, stomping little raves. 'Weather To Worry' has a sax riff a bit close to the one in The Flesters' 'Digging My Grave', but so what? It's a great riff.

Can I sneak some Jamaican stuff into this?

RITA MARLEY: One Draw (Tuff Gong)

The most popular reggae play in New York clubs right now, and with good reason. Dreamy and bright, luscious and moving — what a fun and inspirational song this is.

A "draw" means the same thing as a "toke", and on the surface the message of this snappy riddim seems to be no more than what Rita says — "I want to get high/So high." But consider the propaganda achievement. Bob Marley hadn't even been buried before newspaper columnists both here and in Jamaica were suggesting that his cancer may have been connected to his enormous consumption of herb. Consider also that the airwaves of Jamaica have been jammed with various "tributes" to Bob Marley. Now here is Marley's wife, releasing on Marley's label a tribute to the pleasures of smoking a spliff and going dancing. And it's such an irresistible, catchy, joyful record that it shoots straight to number one in the JA charts and stays there for weeks. And everyone in Jamaica from little kids to government ministers is walking around humming "I want to get high." And now, the New York hipsters are doing the same. The best tribute Marley could have had.

It's not just for herb-heads either. It's a record to make you dance and smile. Try it. It makes sense (milla).

LONE RANGER: Love Bump (Studio One)

There's a new fad among the toasters. They're all going "hibetty hibetty hibetty hibetty bump." But Lone Ranger does it best.

Ranger is funny, sexy, sly and smooth on this ode to the joys and pratfalls of romance. "Walking down the street and a sexy girl he meet/First me says me like/Then me say me love." Ranger sure knows how to woo 'em. He takes her to the show where she wanted to go. Later he gets the clap. But it's all part of getting your love bump. Ranger's voice is smooth as honey and quite seductive; the backing track is a great, springy, bounce-and-skank mover. "Love a-that love-love bump."

What's better than getting no change..?

We haven't changed a thing about these classic CBS albums. The sleeves are the originals, the tracks are untouched. So what's better?

...getting more change!

30 new titles, including

SANTANA Abraxas
ART GARFUNKEL Angel Clare
BOB DYLAN Bob Dylan
BOZ SCAGGS Silk Degrees
SANTANA Santana
JANIS IAN Aftertones
JANIS JOPLIN Cheap Thrills
BLUE OYSTER CULT First Album
DAVE BRUBECK Take Five
JUDAS PRIEST Sin After Sin
BOSTON Don't Look Back
STEVE FORBERT Alive On Arrival
HERBIE HANCOCK Head Hunters
JANIE FRICKE Singer Of Songs
WEATHER REPORT First Album
FLEETWOOD MAC The Pious Bird Of Good Omen
AL STEWART Orange

All available on cassette

NICE
PRICE
FROM CBS

The car with a hooter in the back.

AND ONE MORE THING, DANNY —ANY CHANCE OF MENTIONING THE NEW LP?...

MORNING RICHARD, what'll it be, eh?"

In the old coaching days, such assumed familiarity would've earned the inn-keeper a gentleman's glove around the chops; but today The Gentleman just summons up a half-pint of foaming lager and casts a beady eye over the staggering selection of under-glass fare.

Our scene is taking shape inside one of those synthetic 'country' pubs with, in this case, horrible great photos of modern aircraft replacing the obligatory horse-brasses and hunting horns. The clientele are standard and old. Nobody appears to have to go back to work and all conversations are conducted in a pitch something like a sombre Hindu death mantra coming up from the drains. Outsiders, particularly young(ish) outsiders with obvious accents, are not encouraged to stay till the flowing bowl runs dry. (Anton proved a problem. But I passed him off as a Welsh illiterate from the hills, a role he plays with remarkable ease, and this erased fears that he was not actually British.)

What was most remarkable about this fusion of farm-house and formica was its choice of gentle muzak. Call me a ragged old traditionalist, but I find it incongruous to have delicate clusters of elderly ladies sipping the Pimms and Tia Maria beneath hidden speakers that waft out Johnny Winter's 'Progressive Blues Experiment'. Bad Casting, I call it.

"Morning Richard," I call out. Sitting here now, the exact reasons why I wanted to talk to Ringo Starr seem fuzzy. All I can grab hold of is that, well, my sister was the girl who climbed Buckingham Palace Gates the day he got his MBE and she would drag me along to any number of strange locations as a cover note to Mum and Dad that we were only going 'a pictures'. I was raised on Beatlemania from the age of five and today, like Peter Cushing in Satan's House, I have no idea why I keep returning to this place. I think I loathe McCartney, although I like quite a few of his records, and Harrison is well and truly the real Worzel Gummidge, though he seems to have his Simpleton's Head on permanently.

However, a few weeks back I was quaintly warmed to see Ringo Starr arriving back in England to stay. Whatever he has done musically since The Beatles has been hopeless. But it was a sincere hopelessness and somehow more desirable than all the pretending and sneaking about his mates were doing. Plus, because of a Truly Great acting performance in That'll Be The Day — much of it ad-lib — I knew that he was still pretty much sane and sober.

Some people inherit millions, some people achieve millions and some people have millions thrust upon them. Ringo had millions thrust upon him and has always seemed a little bit dazed and wearied by it all. By returning home, Ringo — at the age he was always made for, anyhow — slots in. Slots into Ascot and his big old house, his animals, casual clothes and long leisured afternoons. He has a big garden too. It's called Berkshire.

Ringo is well aware that his musical output is of about the same interest to Britain as that of England Dan & John Ford Coley. He hasn't released a record for two-and-a-half years and is pushing his new one — new label — hard. During our little meet, he did not wish to speak of anything else, that was clear even to the point of such stunts as leaning over to my cassette and loudly saying the name of the album and, later on, the single. The odd scraps of other interest he delivered dutifully but minimally.

Ladies and Gentlemen, the 1981 Ringo interview.

Mr Richard Starkey meets Mr Daniel Baker for a gentlemanly chat at the local hostelry

Mr Anton Corbijn takes the pictures

SO YOU'RE back Ringo. "Yep, back." As I ask why, he begins to order some food. "I was homesick. Really. Just that. I never planned on staying away forever and I was away for six years. See I met Barbara and decided... oh beef and cheese... like where were we going to live... yeah with french bread... and I wanted to be near my kids. And half a lager."

Why here then? "You can't... it's just England y'know? You get used to somewhere and you get to feel it after six years of only being allowed in for a few days — birthdays, Christmas. Plus I say, my kids are here, they live with their mother in London."

I read that Zac has a group. "Yeah, he has. I think all of them are going to be drummers even though I'd rather they played guitar or something. His band have played this place. It was a big night for everyone. I've heard them and it's heavy. Heavy and hard, but I'm not allowed to call it heavy metal. They've got a big following in Bracknell."

When was the last time you played?

"Me? Ooh, The Last Waltz I think. I sometimes get the urge to get a band together and go on the road... but then the feeling goes away again."

What about busking it around the pubs like Led Zeppelin are doing?

"No, no. Drummers don't normally just set up and start playing in pubs, do they? Even though there's this guy on children's TV — Johnny Ball — well, he used to be — still is? — a drummer and we both worked at Butlins together years ago. He had this job of getting everyone in the bar dancing just by performing 'Knees Up Mother Brown' on the drums, like, every night. That's hard to do, I'm telling you. That's why I don't need to perform really."

Do you consider yourself a musician or an actor these days, then?

"Oh, always always a musician, a drummer. That's what I am — drummer. That's all there is to it. Can we get to the bit that says 'New Album'?"

You must know that people consider you to be just getting by in music because of...

"The Beatles. Of course. Lucky Ringo. No talent. It's silly, like the big dream where you're just standing in the right place at the right time. Simple. See we all lived in the same town at the same time. Before I joined I was always working, they didn't pick on me for some unknown reason — like I was walking past and they said 'Oi, lets have him' — we worked out well together was the reason I joined. They asked me and I said yes, because well, I thought they were the best band in Liverpool anyway. And yet there's still all that madness about I've never been on the albums and the rest of it. But, y'know, that band split up 11 years ago."

How bored are you by Beatle questions these days?

"Really bored, but I know it has to be said in any article, dunnit? Nobody ever asks me about Rory Storm or The Eddie Clayton Skiffle Group — they were good bands too."

Have you ever read a good Beatle book?

"No. I've not read many. The new single is called 'WRACK MY BRAIN'."

Do you feel old?

"Age has nothin' to do with it. Musicians can't get old, you don't turn into an old musician. I can play with anybody — OK, I am one of the older musicians, I enjoyed watching all the archive film of Cliff the other night. Then there was that young band on there doing nothing but old Cliff stuff with the suits and all. I suppose they'll get on to us next."

Why did you stop making records for that period until now?

"Boredom. I was bored with records. Going in every November — I had no enthusiasm at all and it showed through the records. I still enjoyed playing but my own records bored me."

You had a couple of hits early on, yet seemed to think in terms of LPs all the time.

"No, I still think in terms of hit singles. Sure. I'm always looking for a hit. That's the game — hits. But, especially over here, it's been very difficult, so my main market was America. I dunno, maybe because I wasn't here; or whether what I was doing just wasn't acceptable here, even though it still was in America. The later albums weren't accepted anywhere, though."

One reason given for your homecoming was that after John was murdered, you were scared of the US.

"No, that wasn't even in it. All that fear trip is exaggerated. For a while, everyone put on a little extra muscle but the reasons I came home were simply homesickness and family. England's much more relaxed, a little more courteous. Of course, it's true I can walk into any pub without bother too. The press like that fear angle. They thought it was callous of Paul and George when only I showed up after the shooting. But nobody knows how you react at times like that. We were holidaying in the Bahamas, which is close by, so once we heard — I was completely blown away — naturally the holiday was up the spout, so we just went over there to say 'Hi'. We spent eight hours there, felt very very close, and went again. But it can't be said that the others were callous in any way."

How about the music press view that LA is just full of zombies walking around making albums?

"Yeah. That's what I am. A zombie walking around making albums. This one's called 'Stop And Smell The Roses'."

THE HOUR I was with Ringo Starr passed quickly, I thought.

The hour on playing back the tape I wouldn't wish on Pink Floyd's engineer. Names like Harry Nilsson and Jim Keltner floated around, as well as a long passage about what motivates these people to make dull records. Ringo seems as oblivious of the inconsequentialities of his old circle of friends as he is about the UK music press, his own past and role as Beatle, and the problems inside this 'relaxed' and 'gentle' land. In the same way as his local would be a traditional, friendly, post-card country inn, Ringo would love to be back in England amongst the street-wit and bottles of brown ale. Both institutions are just playing at it in Surrey's cotton wool surroundings.

There was one lovely moment that seems almost unbelievable. I was talking about rock musicians and the video craze when I mentioned that Pete Townshend is making his new record on film simultaneously.

"Well, we did that," says Ringo casually. "We did that in That'll Be The Day."

That'll Be The Day?

"No, not That'll Be The Day... what was the studio one? The one where we ended up playing on the roof?"

Let It Be?

"Yeah, yeah... Let It Be... that's the one."

You probably remember it.

"Ere wack, this piece won't sell many records."

Anyone who knows his hi-fi knows that Technics is a name with real pedigree.

So a Technics system for a shade over £400 sounds like a gift horse you should look in the mouth.

But make no mistake, our ZII system is a Technics thoroughbred.

We've built it around our 25 watts per channel SU-ZII amplifier and 3 band ST-ZII stereo tuner.

Quite literally, they were made for each other.

Below them sits a cassette deck sporting the kind of features usually reserved for the idle rich.

Like soft-touch controls, Dolby noise reduction and a 3-position tape selector to accommodate the latest metal tapes.

To top it all, you get a semi-automatic turntable complete with cartridge and a built-in illuminated stroboscope for precise speed adjustment.

Of course, any system from Technics deserves pleasant surroundings.

So we've stabled the ZII in a glass-fronted cabinet with a walnut finish.

Last but not least, we include a pair of our SB-3030 3-way speakers.

Once you've heard them, we think you'll agree: breeding always tells.

Technics ZII System

300/318 Bath Road, Slough, Berks SL1 6JB.
Tel: Slough 34522.

Price inclusive of VAT and correct at time of going to press.

LIVERPOOL: THE

Paul Du Noyer returns to his hometown Liverpool to discover that amidst the decay and depression there is still a fighting spirit of optimism. Photos: Kevin Cummins

"LIVERPOOL," SAID THE poet Allen Ginsberg, back in the days (or daze) when you could get away with stuff like that, "is the centre of human consciousness."

In that case, it looks like the world's just had a lobotomy.

Liverpool isn't the centre of anything much at all now (except, as it happens, a map of the British Isles. The dead centre.) Looking at it from the outside, it's more of a black hole.

"The Bermuda Triangle of British capitalism," runs one famous phrase the local tourist board has never seen fit to use. I don't know where the world's seen a run-down on such a scale before. The post-industrial city is with us. First you have your Industrial Revolution, and everything swings for a century or more: noisily, grimly, greedily. Then one day it all starts grinding to a halt. You've peaked and there's no way left to go but down. Shut down. Silence. Ghost town.

As schoolchildren back in Ginsberg's switched-on '60s, we got taken round these bizarre civic exhibitions. There were neat little models of the clean, futuristic metropolis being built out of the ashes left by the Luftwaffe. There were slick sketches depicting tomorrow's dreamworld: ultra-modern, high-tech cityscapes, peopled by sleek little pencil-lines that wore car coats and confident grins. There were glossy shops to stock consumer desirables; there were gleaming towers and streets in the sky.

Somewhere along the line, it's all gone wrong. The money ran out; the optimism fled after it. We all know Toxteth now — worldwide, the place has burned inside a billion TV screens. But that was just the most dramatic symptom of a long, long sickness. It grips almost all of Merseyside to some degree or other. And it isn't quarantined.

Liverpool is sliding because Britain is — it's just that the most vulnerable area suffers first and worst.

Whatever's happening to this country, Liverpool (and its youth especially) is at the sharp end. And that's of more than academic interest: it could even be you'll all go through the same.

SO WHAT HAPPENED? It's only human to be wise after the event — but it seems to take a planner or politician to be so bloody stupid before. All the economic causes of the mess (collapse of UK trading base, obsolescence of port, exodus of investors, blah blah) are fascinating, but outside this article's scope. But the effects, some of them plainly avoidable, are only too obvious.

So... Liverpool now is a place of daft roads that go nowhere, scrapped in mid-programme; of dreary flats and tower-blocks, no sooner built than they have to be demolished, unfit for habitation; of sterile, ugly New Towns where no one wants to live; of deserted docklands that nobody knows what to do with. The industrial estates turn into wastelands: mile on mile of closed factories, fences and guard-dogs, futile TO LET signs. Local men take boats to the Continent to put themselves up for hire in street-corner labour auctions: the Turks, the Algerians and the Scousers, the EEC's Gastarbeitern.

FROM CHILDHOOD...

NORTH WEST AFFRONT

There's a monumentally hideous shopping precinct: a grand architectural abortion for which the old Victorian city centre had to be flattened. The place has burned down twice already: at the moment its squat concrete edifice is surrounded by clusters of makeshift market stalls, like a South American shanty town.

Merseyside, in the war, was blitzed more viciously than anywhere else (maybe because Hitler lived here once, or so the legend goes). But that was hardly anything to the destruction which has followed — whether for municipal prestige, planners' fantasies or developers' profits (three interests that are sometimes closely related: as close, shall we say, as family kinship is). Real communities, before that word passed into bogus jargon, were carved up and scattered, as if obliteration were the only cure for slum conditions. The rest were left to rot.

You get your leafy suburbs, naturally (like Shirley Williams' Crosby), and you get more modest roads where people work hard to keep up some standard of decency. But, inescapably, you also get hollow shells of abandoned buildings, stuck forlornly in bleak expanses of wasteland, dereliction with a vengeance. The bombed spots, or the forgotten sites of "cleared" neighbourhoods, these eyesores are everywhere, like the scars that would heal and disappear on a healthy body, but linger on a sick one. And old street patterns with a local logic are wiped out to cut tarmac swathes for strangers' cars — which drive through, as remote from the area they're passing and polluting as aeroplanes crossing the North Pole.

The limited landscape re-arrangements of last summer's riots begin to look puny in comparison. Some media day-trippers to Liverpool 8 looked aghast at the smouldering ruins and spoke gravely of the inhabitants' strange "disrespect for their environment". Given so much official disrespect over the years, it'd be amazing if they'd learned ... TO TEENS ...

Julian Cope and the audience at Club Zoo anything else. (Or is that what the papers mean by "copycat rioting"? No, I don't suppose it is.)

Of course, Liverpool 8 has been treated to top-level ministerial visits and the like since then. And things have changed since the summer: they've carried on getting worse. Meanwhile, by whatever official statistic of grimness you care to look at — from unemployment and juvenile crime to lung cancer and infant mortality — the city's up there with the league leaders, as reliably as its football teams used to be.

Bad news but here's the twist ... if Liverpool looks like it's been hit by a bomb — and it does — then it must have been a sort of neutron bomb in reverse. One that destroys buildings, but leaves the people intact.

"LIVERPOOL," SAID THE psychoanalyst Carl Jung, waking up from a dream, "is the Pool of Life".

They've even put up a little statue in the old nutter's honour — in Mathew Street, by the Battle Museum, just along from the carpark the Council put in place of the Cavern. Actually, although the Pool is more of a murky-looking puddle, it's teeming with more life than a tramp's vest.

It's true that by any objective reckoning the town is in a bad way. All the harsh facts of joblessness and ugliness, and decay are there, and they can't be forgotten. And yet, what still strikes you most is the sheer gaiety of the place. If it's dying, then it's dancing into it's grave. All the private miseries, the depression and desperation, it's all kept hidden most of the time. And there's a spirit of resilience as well — a deeply impressive mix of bitterness and humour, cynicism and hope.

The civic motto, ironically, is "God has given this leisure to us" — coined by the prosperous slave-trading merchants to reflect their affluence and content, rather than the present-day "leisure" enforced by the dole. But the real and unspoken motto seems to have something to do with not letting the bastards grind you down.

When I talk about the life and vitality I don't necessarily mean the fabled Liverpool music scene. In fact young people don't go out to see the groups any more, and even Brady's has closed down now. But the pubs are packed every night of the week, with all ages. The money flies like there's no tomorrow; the pound notes pass like lemmings over the bartops.

It's as if kids are simply more interested in each other than in standing passively and watching somebody else up on stage with pretensions to being where it's at. So few groups seem to be worth the money anyway. Whatever the state of the rock circuit, Liverpool after dark is still very definitely Merseybeat was no put-on, music was always a way of looking up, not down. In the '70s, Liverpool was the national stronghold of, of all people, Roxy Music.

That influence seems to have lingered — the universal local haircut, unique to Merseyside, is a lank side-parted fringe: half Ferry, half racial memory of the Mop Tops. And when the Liverpool music scene started crawling out of hibernation in the mid-decade (beginning with Deaf School, Big In Japan, The Crucial Three of Wylie, Cope and McCulloch) both the meticulous fringe and a certain posey artfulness were much in evidence — but undercut by a keen, self-mocking sense of irony.

Central to the town's youth — or at least to that half which bothers with music at all these days — was a club called Eric's, the one Liverpool club, out of all those hundreds, that I keep my fond memories of. There's always a free-floating fund of creative talent in the city,

IT'S NEARLY TWO YEARS now since the last bandwagon rolled through the local music scene, carrying Orchestral Manoeuvres, Teardrops and Bunnymen to national status. Back on the waterfront, that left a lot of punks muttering how they could have been contenders ...

The big three I've just mentioned can't be said — and wouldn't claim — to belong to any Liverpool scene any more. And as for the groups who remain here, unknown outside, most of them would deny membership too. Although there's still a residue of jealousies, gossip, piss-taking, as well as overlapping personnel and sheer physical proximity, being a "Liverpool group" isn't much more than a statement of geographical fact. The diversity of styles and approaches is now as pronounced as it is anywhere else. And, it has to be said, most of the Liverpool groups I hear nowadays could come from anywhere else.

Taking a quick trip ... Wah! are still around,

... TO MIDDLE-AGE.
THE LIVERPOOL CYCLE

but it needs its focus. It was The Clash's first Liverpool gig, at Eric's in 1977, where The Crucial Three was born out of the audience (this mythical group barely ever existed, but it did spawn Wah!, The Teardrop Explodes and Echo And The Bunnymen).

Ironically, Wah! Heat (then newly-formed) were on the bill the night that Eric's went the way of all fleshpots. On a night in March 1980, after months of harassment and pressure, the Merseyside police descended in force, with their dogs and night-sticks (the latter a permanent feature of the city after dark). This seemed very curious, given that Eric's was the most crime-free night-spot in town. They made arrests for drugs and obstruction, said they'd oppose renewal of the licence. Inevitably, the club's creditors pulled out, and Eric's was finished.

To this day nobody understands the police action, but it was several nails in the coffin of relations with the young public.

There's not a lot left now. People moan about the lack of venues, but those that exist aren't well supported. I won't bother listing them: if you live in Liverpool you'll know them; if you live outside then you won't care anyway (you weren't figuring on going there for your holidays anyway).

But there's one hopeful project that deserves mention. The Pyramid Club, in Temple Street, achieved some fame recently as temporary home of The Teardrops' Club Zoo (though even then, attendances weren't spectacular). It's a promising venue, large and comfortable. With any luck, it'll go on offering good live acts, combined with video, under the supervision of Roger Eagle (the man who co-ran Eric's). He wants to use it as an extension of his Crackin' Up scheme in the disused Warehouse next door.

When the Crackin' Up building is ready to open, Eagle intends it to be that vitally-needed focus: studios, a cafe, a meeting place with full communication and artwork facilities for local musicians to interact and realise their ideas.

All we want now is the new wave of incandescent talents.

still poised somewhere on the brink of triumph, but yet to take a decisive final step. 1981 wasn't the year of conquest that many were expecting from them. But one debut LP and beard-amputation later, Wylie's coming out for round two and Wah! stay in contention.

Only two new bands — The Ellery Bop and The Ponderosa Glee Boys — seem to me to catch the spirit that's peculiar to Liverpool. They're rough and inventive, with a touch of insolence and some welcome fierceness. Both of them break the mould of that flowery neo-psychedelic softness, which, by some anomaly, came to epitomise music of the Mersey school after punk.

Other than that, Hambi And The Dance are wonderful and signing to record companies all over the world and on their way. The Room are altogether less flamboyant, but there's a quiet strength to their music that shouldn't be overlooked. Wild Swans and Icicle Works are always being recommended to me. Last Chant have a superb single ('Run Of The Dove') and there's been some interesting stuff put out by Systems, The Nice Men, It's Immaterial.

Dead Or Alive, fronted by the once-seen, never-forgotten Pete Burns, have survived some line-up upheavals and new recordings look set. Modern Eon, A Flock Of Seagulls and Afraid Of Mice are all local acts securing contracts and London recognition. Send No Flowers and A Formal Sigh are two more with promise. A problem, though, is the lack of independent label activity, even if Open Eye studios are moving into the gap left by the removal of Zoo and the near collapse of Inevitable, where Wah! started.

Pink Military seem to have gone AWOL — a loss I think I can endure — while the electronic Dalek I may be due for some re-emergence, led by former Teardrop Alan Gill. I still haven't mentioned The Moderates, or Blue Poland, or The Dick Smith Band or Stun The Guards — the names run endlessly on. Oh, Eat At Joe's have split, as have Alvin The Aardvark And The Fuzzy Ants. But whatever became, I wonder, of Those Naughty Lumps? Or Danger Quinton — There's A God Behind You?

They've probably all wandered, ghost-like, into the same mists of oblivion which so long

CONTINUES PAGE 57

MOVE UP TO THE BIGGER TASTE.

All the flavour of richer-roasted,
darker coffee beans...
freeze-dried for the bigger taste.

MODERN ROMANCE Adventures In Clubland (WEA)

IT NOW seems pretty certain that Modern Romance will be remembered, in years to come, as the most critically-reviled band of all time, bar none. This is no mean achievement, especially in a field where critical revulsion traditionally runs high. Why, even Emerson, Lake And Palmer had their apologists in their day, and the despised HM and "real punk" genres are regularly catered to by handmaidens of a somewhat dubious colour. But search as you will, you'll be hard pressed to find even a phrase in favour of Geoffrey Deane and David Jaymes, principal protagonists of this least edifying of operations. Why should this be so? Well, in this neck of the woods, at least, blind hatred is partly engendered by the bizarre stranglehold 'Everybody Salsa' seems to have on the collective musical imagination of the Carnaby Street Boutique Owners Club, some of whom will inflict this song as many as six times in succession on the general public — which unfortunately includes the NME offices, a stressful environment at the best of times. What's even worse, of course, is that despite the inordinate number of column inches devoted to the more fashionable exponents of Carmen Miranda revivalism, the single (as in only) commercial success of the whole Latin "boom" has been the aforementioned 'Everybody Salsa'. Now that really hurts! The months of critical groundwork, the endless dissertations on style and subtlety, the constant stream of snaps of baggy-trousered youth — all for what? All, it would appear, so that that gauche beast General Public can form conga lines at parties once again. Some payoff, eh? Still, keep telling people what they need in troubled times is escapist fun and glamour, and you can hardly blame them for opting for the cheapest fun in town ...

For their part, Deane and Jaymes have engineered a smart and seamless cash-in job, right down to their respective Jeremy Irons and Anthony Andrews personas and the brainlessly anthemic nature of their songs, each one a rallying-cry for a particular strain of contemporary pop music. 'Adventures In Clubland' is a cheap and scurrilous blend of mucho-diluto Latino ('Everybody Salsa'), insipid, broken-leg Britfunk ('Bring On The Funkateers'), monumentally trivial rapping ('Queen Of The Rapping Scene'), and mix'n'match combinations of these themes ('Salsa Rappsoody'), together with a curious obsession with the noble moose ('Ay Ay Ay Ay Moosey', 'Moose On The Loose'), the origin and point of which escapes me.

Coffin up over clubland

LPs LPs LPs

CHIC Take It Off (Atlantic)

THESE LAST couple of years haven't been the best for the Chic Organisation of Bernard Edwards and Nile Rodgers. There were the murmurings surrounding their production of the Diana Ross album — were the boys re-mixed out of it? Then there was the lukewarm response to their own 'Real People' album (not as bad as the critics made out: try listening to songs like '26'), followed by the panning of their collaboration with Harry-Stein (again, not as bad as the critics would have it — there are certain standards below which Edwards and Rodgers never fall).

C'est Chic, and obviously the new album is standards-ised and maintains a level near perfection. But 'Take It Off' is more than two craftsmen at work as both players and producers; it's also an inspiration: lost and found in music. Not only have the team produced the most disciplined, economical record of the year, they HIT you with it. This is the most elegant, classical yet hard album which Chic have ever completed: finished is the word.

The title track 'Take It Off' says it all, starting with bass and drums to close in together that they're one instrument. The vocals take the form of a male and female answering service, high on double-entendres in which sex, dance and music run together, linked by wit and cool scepticism: "Now I understand that clothes don't make the man/So I'll take them off". Incredibly, the playing on this song gets progressively wilder — and more disciplined.

This sort of scene has already been set with the two up-tempo openers 'Stage Fright' and 'Burn Hard': the female a situation involving a pricey double set with enough good stuff on it for a reasonable single, and recent devotees are going to have to buy a lot of stuff they've already got in order to get what they haven't. Nice one Warner. But there again if all you're going to do with it is wrap it up and leave it under someone you don't particularly like's tree, you don't really care, do you? By the way, if you're worried about looking cheap, don't be put off by George Benson's plain white cover. There's a twelve page colouring book, sorry, Full Colour Book, inside.

Lloyd Bradley

DAVID BOWIE Changes Two Bowie (RCA)

QUITE SIMPLY, there won't be a better rock compilation on offer this year. A follow-up, as its title so subtly insinuates, to 'Changes One Bowie', this is the man's own choice of career highlights. And with vol. one having disposed of some of the most obvious hits, that makes this more out-of-the-way selection doubly interesting.

'Oh! You Pretty Things' is the earliest, 'Fashion' and 'Ashes To Ashes' are the most recent. In between you get 'Aladdin Sane', 'Starman', '1984', 'Sound And Vision', 'Wild Is The Wind' and 'DJ'. And from 1975, there's that radical, disco-fied re-version of 'John I'm Only Dancing'.

The list should be so familiar that little needs to be said. Its stylistic scope is, obviously, immense. As evidence of Bowie's unfailing, uncanny anticipation of future trends, it's consistent. And it flows together beautifully.

Only to the veteran Bowie-bore, such as I, is the concept of a compilation a bit odd. Why settle for a fragment of 'Low' or 'Ziggy' instead of the whole? Granted, however, that there are people more cautious, this record does present an acceptable substitute.

Paul Du Noyer

PINK FLOYD A Collection Of Great Dance Songs (EMI)

IF you're going to tell a lie,

Spirit, sex,
dance,
MUSIC!

ROBERTA FLACK The Best Of (Atlantic) GEORGE BENSON Collection (WEA)

WELL in time for the seasonal 'what-on-earth can-I-get-so-and-so-for-under-a-tenner?' dilemma come these two compilations, one by an artists whose fortunes deserve a turn for the better, and the other riding high on musical and Wembley sell outs. Chalk and cheese n'est pas?

First Roberta Flack, and unlike so many Best Of's this one really is. Yes, heavy one's ha winnah!

There's eleven tracks, among them such wonders as 'Killing Me Softly', 'Where Is The Love', 'Feel Like Making Love' and 'The First Time'. It's all such a good deal that I keep wondering where the catch is. Perhaps you've got to collect the coupons from six George Benson albums before you can buy it!

Albums like this are better to receive than to give so it'd be worth being good and making some sort of agreement with the fat guy and his reindeer, but don't get

Chic. Pic: Anton Corbijn

Tall tales . . . and more shaggy dog stories upset if you never get it, he'll probably play it, then decide to keep it for himself.

Now George Benson, a person who has received so much airwave exposure of late that anyone who hasn't heard most of the songs on this set must have special filters fitted to their brains. (If that was the case though, they'd probably have made so much money banging them out on mail order that they'd own NME instead of just reading it, so I won't dwell on that.) I say probably heard most of the songs, because this set goes right back to his Creed Taylor days when he did some pretty interesting stuff and wasn't eversofamous. This unfortunately makes for dirty, normal

Bleak,
LIFE

THROBBING GRISTLE Funeral In Berlin (Zensor — readily available German import)

CAN YOU really feel it, the present dross of smug rock that minus emotions and notions of caring, while at the same time stepping so cautiously? Since the demise of Throbbing Gristle last Spring, a new middle ground, falling between TG's

CHRIS AND COSEY Heartbeat (Rough Trade)

like-minded cyn-pop strategists on the right hand and their terrorist selves on the left, has been created, occupied by bleary-eyed groups like The Sound and The Comsat Angels. Trading off their spurious reputations for sincerity and experimenting with shapes, these groups have secured for themselves a moderate success fully in keeping with their "honorable" position between commercial compromise and integrity. Unlike the Strategists, who embody the virtues they propound of confidence, quick wits and style, the MORockers are unsure of themselves, strangely satisfied with their condition and are content to convey this cosy, profitable uncertainty in song. Bound up in their sense of duty and good taste, they comfort while pretending to prod and in so doing they've diluted the essence of shock and adventure that characterised their punk and post-punk predecessors, thus shielding their followers from the realities they profess to deal with.

YOU'VE GOT FOETUS ON YOUR BREATH Deaf (Self-Immolation)

They're not even scrawny, savage predators picking at the corpse — they're embalmers prettifying it for the public to look at. They're a wet and unambitious option pushed as an alternative to pop for those still conscious of such barriers, their ready availability making it easy to ignore the more difficult excitement of the likes of

It's a cheap and nasty Xmas Party Album, and it will sell. And Deane and Jaymes will be around with other warmed-up scraps from the critical banquet until the Latin thing is dead and buried and critics chew no longer on their Creole stew. By which time the distasteful duo will no doubt be hard at work on the Big Mac bowlfulisation of whatever's served up next.

In which case, may I throw the first fistful of dirt on this particular coffin lid? It's about time, and I never did like Santana anyway.

Andy Gill

WASTED YOUTH Wild And Wandering (Bridge House) UK DECAY For Madmen Only (Fresh)

WHETHER wasted or decayed, the respective debut albums from these two British bands describe a Gothic muse.

At odds with Wasted Youth's thrashing live performances, the East End quintet here turns in a surprisingly restrained set. The band achieve an ethereal, limpid sound, with musical references to the likes of The Doors, Velvet Underground, David Bowie and Love, the semi-acoustic phrases of guitarist Rocco especially reminiscent of the latter group. Singer Ken Scott affects a vocal style somewhere between Jim Morrison and Lou Reed — as doubtless he is tired of being told — but with neither the same power or vision of these two original artists. Nor are Wasted Youth's lyrics worthy of quotation.

Where Scott's vocals do work is — Beefheart-like — as an added instrument to the overall sound. Throughout the length of 'Wild And Wandering', Wasted Youth seem to be containing themselves, supplying a deft touch where lesser bands would compensate with screeching lead guitars; the expected heavy metal bash the band always seem to be on the verge of slipping into simply never comes.

The better tracks include some autobiographical insight on the harrowing 'Housewife', a melodic 'Games' and the full blown finale 'Survivors Pt 2'.

featuring some driving rhythms and solid bass, plus the vocal performance of the set. Less enjoyable are 'I Wish I Was A Girl', which overstays its welcome far too long, and 'If Tomorrow', which is too close to Lou Reed for comfort.

The first side closes with 'Wasted' and ponders this extraordinary lyric: "I can't get no satisfaction, solid gold, easy action. Eight miles high and getting higher, come on little baby won't you light my fire — she loves you, yeah yeah yeah."

A promising first try.

'For Madmen Only', by contrast, is a barely listenable dirge. 11 songs with titles like 'Duel', 'Decadence', 'Dorian', 'Sexual', 'Shattered' and 'Stagestruck' complete their course in formulaised concept, each one ending upon a sudden halt, which may be effective in films such as if, The Hill and Marat-Sade, but grows increasingly tiresome over two sides of an LP.

"Watch out baby, what you're doing, this is more than a teenage ruin."

Penny Reel

vocals (mainly Luci Martin and Alfa Anderson) operate as a clipped choir — "Smart as a fox", the lyrics go.

By the way, the foxes' predilection for cat-gut has gone: there are no strings on the album, just the merest hint of them on 'Would You Be My Baby', while 'Telling Lies' harks back to former Chic in a similar way. 'Telling Lies', though, is most noteworthy because of Rodgers' guitar, cascading and seeping through the whole track as it does on every other. Sharp: It only gets virtuoso, even schmaltzy, on 'So Fine' whose easy option of jazzy ethereal boogie Chic have traditionally avoided.

But who's bothered? The next track is 'Flash Back', featuring rumbling expressive vocals (from Nile?) and mean dizzying bass. There's a story here of a man looking back at love and his macho self-pity puts into perspective — by a female chorus. The low-down feel of the song goes hand in hand with a certain reflectiveness, emphasised by rippling piano.

And there's better yet. 'Your Love Is Cancelled' is mean but in a more jaunty way. Edwards' bass and the guitar loop in and out of each other, and Tony Thompson's drums fill in the spaces — Chic's conception of space being something so tight and quick yet relaxed that it verges on the mystical, and taxes my metaphors.

Yes, space and time is tight, and ultimately there's something '60s R&B about the funk-disco-soul fusion of this album: the spirit of Booker T, Al Jackson and Steve Cropper and their sessions for Atlantic and Otis Redding, walk in its grooves. This is very much the pace of 'Baby Doll', the concluding instrumental cut which showcases Lenny Pickett (dig his alto on 'Just Out Of Reach') on tenor sax. This is how to end. So now you Take It Off and start again.

Paul Tickell

Pic: Philip Grey

Pic: Peter Anderson

ACR's Simon Topping blows the whistle on Spurs' Ossie Ardiles... the Cats look up in disgust and Durutti Column's Vini Reilly plays a perfect through ball for Noel Crepuscule to score...??

LPs LPs LPs

it's always best to make it a big one. I really like the tongue-in-cheekiness of whoever had the audacity to entitle this record 'A Collection Of Great Dance Songs'. What nerve!

Exactly what form of body-movement goes with Pink Floyd is anyone's guess — that slow, steady rocking motion that you see in people falling asleep on buses, I should think.

To the point. It's a Best Of thing, for the Christmas business. There are six tracks, beginning with 1971's 'One Of These Days' (i.e. it's all from the band's mega-successful, ultra-boring period, apres ThelegendarySyd blah blah) through to the appalling 'Brick In The Wall'. There's 'Shine On You Crazy Diamond', 'Sheep' and 'Wish You Were Here'.

Of particular interest — to somebody, somewhere, surely — is the remaining cut, 'Money'. For this is a special, re-recorded version of the old warhorse — meaning that if you suffer from the need to possess

Pink Floyd in their entirety, you've got to fork out for the whole LP.

Still, Christmas always was a time for giving, even if the beneficiaries are already millionaires. Personally, I'll give them a miss.

Paul Du Noyer

Roberta Flack

ALLAN CLARKE The Best Of Allan Clarke (Aura)

POOR 'AROLD — now 10 years into an off-on solo career and still without a soupcan of success in his own backyard.

But he's had a couple of lower-order chart nudgers west of Ellis Island, the best of these being 'Shadow In

The Street', an offering so melodic that it probably induced the inhabitants of St Barry's to indulge in a flurry of Hail Manilows.

For it's on such blatantly commercial excursions that Clarke is at his best, wringing out lines that accepted wimps would leave to drip-dry.

But when he tries to make it as an on-file, bristle-chinned hard man, he's hardly so convincing. his Springsteen-penned street scenes (admittedly recorded even before Brookie himself had knuckled down to real studio chores)

Okay, there are cuts here that should have made the grade — predominantly the multi-faceted 'I Wanna Sail Into Your Life', composed by Man-In-Nashville Roger Cooke. Generally though, 'Best Of Allan Clarke' presents a musical portrait of a man wrapped up in Hollie-paper and interminably struggling to extricate himself from the entrapping layers.

Fred Dellar

VARIOUS ARTISTS Ghosts Of Christmas Past/Chantons Noel (Crepuscule)

GOD, HOW I hate compilation albums. The very phrase "various artists" sends little shivers of anticipatory boredom up and down my spine. Invariably compiled by some halfwit whose idea of coherence is based on record company dictates — the strategy of the sampler, the logistics of the loss-leader — or on whatever gimmick happens to be at hand, they lie unloved and surplus to requirements in some out-of-the-way corner of the record collection, almost thrown out a dozen times or more but for that one track you might want to play again or which completes some oeuvre or other... God, I hate them. I hate them almost as much, in fact, as I hate Christmas Albums.

The Belgian Crepuscule label is very fond of issuing compilations. These are usually composed of roughly equal parts worthy avant-gardiana, British raincoat bands and utter drivel. They might not be so bad, were it not for Crepuscule's bizarre belief that people who like listening to music will also like listening to Eno being interviewed or Richard Jobson blathering on in some intelligible dialect of his own devising. Strange folk, the Belgians.

'Ghosts Of Christmas Past/Chantons Noel' contains nary an utterance of Jobbo, but still manages a pretty high utter drivel quotient nonetheless. I'll stick to the better bits, which, perhaps not too surprisingly, come from the names you might conceivably be interested in. Like Aztec Camera, whose 'Hot Club Of Christ' is a busy, Djangoesque run through a few well-known Christmas ditties. Or Michael Nyman, whose 'Cream Or Christians' is a silly but loveable fragmented organ collage in a typical English eccentric tradition.

Elsewhere, The Swinging Buildings add a note of honest irreverence with 'Praying For A Cheaper Christmas', and ACR's Simon Topping contributes a beastly, bongo-brassy little thing called 'Peep Show International' (a nativity reference?), which would have sounded a lot less formal and stilted had the likes of Rip Rig been let loose on it.

Tuxedomoon's 'Weinachtsrap' finds them in playful Residential mood, a sly cocktail of styles and sounds and rhythmic German words, whilst The Durutti Column's 'One Christmas For Your Thoughts' is exactly what you'd expect, an exquisite, gentle instrumental operating on a level where factors of "interest" and "boredom" don't figure; if I need a little Sunday morning wallpaper, Durutti designs make the most appealing patterns. Very Vini Reilly, etc.

Very Terry Riley is Cabaret Voltaire's 'Invocation', a warmly atmospheric wash of mirrored synths and clarinet echoes which gives the album its most satisfying, fully-formed few minutes of all. It's this, along with the Tuxedomoon and Durutti cuts, that makes 'GOCP/CN' worth holding on to, I'm afraid. Another unloved lump of vinyl for the corner.

God, how I hate compilation albums!

Andy Gill

VARIOUS ARTISANS The Tottenham Hotspur Party Album (Cockerel)

DISCO AND REGGAE singalongs of Cockaigne knees ups, terrace chants, Beatle ditties and the chart single 'Ossie's Dream', interspersed with Radio London commentary extracts from the 1981 FA Cup final and a personal message from skipper Steve Perryman. Or as the girls on the lawn at Tottenham High would say, Wow! pretty heavy.

There is something for every discerning Spurs fan here: their considerable following of lapsed Jewish males, sitting in the Paxton Road stand of a Saturday afternoon instead of attending shul, are remembered with 'Shine On Harvey Bloom'; their West Indian supporters are treated to 'Bye Bye Blackbird'; the Nazis get 'White Christmas'; while the club's South American connection is regaled with 'Maybe It's Because I'm A Londoner'.

In addition, former White Hart Lane glories are recounted in titles like 'I'm Henry The Eighth I Am', in memory of full back Ron Henry; the spirit of Dave Mackay is evoked on 'Roll Out The Barrel'; John White is remembered with 'White Christmas'; goalkeeper Bill Brown is paid the tribute of 'Knees Up Mother Brown'; even scarlet countenanced Phil Beal becomes the subject of 'Rudolph The Red Nosed Reindeer'. The drunkard's anthem 'Show Me The Way To Go Home' is surely included for the benefit of Jimmy Greaves.

It's a doddle for Hoddle, who sings John Lennon with 'Happy Christmas (War Is Over)' and Paul McCartney, 'Hey Jude', though a surprising omission is 'You Never Give Me Your Money' as bemoaned by Alfie Conn during the mid '70s.

File next to Max Bygraves, in the rubbish bin.

Penny Reel

Throbbing Gristle and You've Got Foetus On Your Breath.

Now that they're defunct Throbbing Gristle are, of course, far easier to handle than when they were alive. I always hated and resisted them before, interpreting their unrelenting barrage as crude manipulation of the senses but in the absence of viable, valuable extremes, like Joy Division, Cabaret Voltaire and early, fresh Siouxsie, their violent re-arrangements of pre-existing disorders are now sorely missed.

What once appeared to be a perverse apotheosis of degradation and horror, a wanton fascination with pulling wings off butterflies, comes across now — with the benefit of hindsight as a conscious submersion into the pit to purge themselves of the evils they chose to depict. 'Funeral In Berlin', recorded over two concerts in the city's chilly SO36 club.

cum-abattoir, deliberately ignores the accessible highs in favour of the many plummeting lows which turned those two nights into something akin to sitting through Ophuls' The Sorrow And The Pity in 3D.

Those moments isolated onto record are indescribably bleak flurries of dirty white noise occasionally arranged into rhythmic blocks and punctuated with Genesis's screams of fragmented media recordings. The jarring ugliness and grotesque humour haven't been lost in the transference and one year on it becomes apparent that Throbbing Gristle's skewed, twisting shapes still display more life and humanity than much of what has passed since. Sorry it took me so long to cotton on.

Ex-TGs Chris and Cosey's 'Heartbeat' is the product of persons informed by the Throbbing Gristle experience who no longer feel the need to repeat it. But like many exorcised individuals one senses that something is missing. Nevertheless, the more obvious surface warmth and sequestered sequencer patterns benefit from both their knowledge and sense of release and final tracks 'Manic Melody' and 'Heartbeat' are quite simply the best evocations of the allurements and dangers of the synthetic night since Kraftwerk's 'Neon

Lights'. Not so much coming in from the cold as wrapping up and going out into it.

If You've Got Foetus On Your Breath — a prolific San Francisco seven piece — have got one fault it is paying too much attention to what's going on in music and not the world at large. Their 'Deaf' LP is a gratifyingly funny mockery of pop's integrating preoccupation with trends.

CONTINUES

● FROM PREVIOUS PAGE

like funk ('Today I Started Slogging Again') and fashion ('Why Can't It Happen To Me'), in which they sneer at pop's inessential frivolity while looking to it for a cut of the action. However, if YGFOYB — a four piece electronic Bavarian oompah band — have one overriding attraction, it's that same brash irreverence for forms and figures. All the untutored noises tear at each other from opposing directions with scant respect for peace or minds, yet somehow fall into place without falling apart.

And if Foetus — a garrulous North London mythologist of no fixed origin — has one distinctive charm, it's his passionate vision of the downfall of the Moral Mediocrity being brought about by intense, foul-mouthed egotists wielding sackfuls of viscera and handing out armloads of 'Deaf' with the abandon of George A. Romero's Zombies. (In case you hadn't noticed that's meant as an endorsement.)

Ultimately, if there's one thing the You've Got Foetus On Your Breath operation lacks, it's good taste, and, going by today's arbiters, that's the last thing anyone should want.

Chris Bohn

BOOKS BY POST

US Imports, small presses, rare items...

JACK KEROUAC	COLIN WILSON
WILLIAMS BURROUGHS	HENRY MILLER
CHARLES BUKOWSKI	JOHN COWPER POWYS
LENNY BRUCE	WILLIAM BLAKE
TOM WOLFE	FRIEDRICH NIETZSCHE
HUNTER THOMPSON	FYDOR DOSTOIEVSKY
KURT VONNEGUT	ALAN WATTS
ALBERT CAMUS	KRISHNAMURTI
JORGE LUIS BORGES	GURDJIEFF
JAMES JOYCE	ZEN
HERMAN HESSE	TAO
CARLOS CASTANEDA	THE NEW PHYSICS

Send For Lists

GREYMITRE LTD,
14 The Warren, Radlett, Herts.

Movealonghair

PROFESSOR LONGHAIR
Mardi Gras In New Orleans
(Nighthawk)

HERE ARE two true embodiments of the spirit and rich culture of New Orleans. They represent New Orleans past and present but with no neat division between the two.

Professor Longhair (his friends called him Fess) lives on in New Orleans music — you can hear his echo in everything touched by New Orleans R&B, from the Nevilles to reggae. And the Nevilles make a modern soul music beautifully lived up by the traditions of New Orleans' past.

Fess is legend. His disciples include Allen Toussaint, Huey "Piano" Smith, Fats Domino, Lee Dorsey, Ernie K. Doe, Dr John — just about anybody who has partaken of the city's musical life. What made Fess so influential was his distinctive and potent piano rhythms, pitched somewhere between the blues and a rhumba.

He also did some rocking boogie-woogie numbers, and on those collected here you can hear rock and roll being born. But what made Fess special was his more syncopated rhythm and blues, which instead of rolling straight ahead seem to twist and turn in many directions, piano voice and horns shooting the rhythm back and forth between them.

'Mardi Gras In New Orleans' collects Professor Longhair's singles from the years 1949 to 1957. Many of these were originally issued on 78 rpm, recorded for tiny labels like Wasco and Star Talent, and most of them are incredibly rare. They don't sound dated. On them you hear the joyful yelp of a tradition being born,

NEVILLE BROTHERS
Fiyo On The Bayou (A&M) an unselfconscious sound of discovery.

Fess is most remembered for his piano playing but the greatest revelation here is his voice — the humour, wisdom and sly, worldly-wise knowingness that shines through. When he really lets go, Fess' voice is unbeatable for pure outrageousness.

It's funny too. The moment on 'She Ain't Got No Hair' when the chorus chimes in with "Oh she baldhead" is hilarious. It's also the antecedent of every great backing vocal. 'Her Mind Is Gone' is the perfect humalong for those days when you feel like you're losing yours. And check this initiation into the mysteries of romance and madness, "She jumped up on me said make up Daddy / Let me tell you what it's all about / Let me show you where the light goes / When it goes out."

It's the spirit and soul of music that matter most. Style, culture and context can take a back seat if those essentials are there. Fess' voice leaps across the decades. Besides, how can you resist a guy who calls his back-up band The Shuffling Hungarians?

Neville Brothers'

The Longhair echo... still sounding keyboardist Art Neville made his first record, 'Mardi Gras Gumbo', in 1954, and later played with the Meters. Aaron Neville had a national soul hit in 1966 with his 'Tell It Like It Is'. But I'm just reading off a piece of paper. My ears tell me the Nevilles have a grounding in something deeper than their personal histories.

'Fiyo On The Bayou' has a few nicely done ballads, very well sung. But what gets me is the fast stuff, the strutting Mardi Gras carnival songs. They sound of street drumming, call-and-response singing and wildly-dressed carnival clubs on parade. They sound happy, they sound unforced, they move me.

The Nevilles breath life into the ongoing dance by doing what they know. They go astray sometimes trying to be "pop" or "smooth funk" or whatever. But the best songs here stand for real, authentic things, a way to make music and celebrate that doesn't have to be invented or theorized because it's there, ready to go.

I could do without the cloying sentiment of 'Mona Lisa', and while the Neville's 'Sitting In Limbo' does the song justice I'd go back to the Jimmy Cliff original if I wanted to hear the song.

But the dance tracks here will have me coming back again and again. A flawed album, sure, but getting this 'Fiyo' under my feet feels warm in my heart.

Richard Grabel

dance chapter chapter II

4 track 12" single BAD 115, also anonymity AD 18
4 A D 8 hogarth road london SW5

SHINY MEN
Again (Experimental)

ON THE evidence of their softly surreal humour, dry, jazz-derived musical meddlings and the 'encouragement' of Robert Wyatt, it seems fair to deduce that Shiny Men are some Richmond-based pocket of resistance from that school of 'tache-sucking, intellectual pottering which made a home in Canterbury some ten years back.

And that's about it. Their concerns are with the general funniness of the world and its folk, which they remark upon with that air of resigned amusement usually found in eccentric teachers of English. They adopt foolish names with which to mock the wild and frenzied appearance of modern pop, in which they have no place, and are content to model a few low-key trickles of tunes and make ironic and silly personifications of predicaments and behaviours.

Occasionally bright, but never exciting, Shiny Men will tickle no-one's fancy but their own and their friends'. That won't bother them, and it don't bother me either.

Dave Hill

BERNARD SZAJNER
Superficial Music (Initial)

SUPERFICIAL? No, superlative music! If you care at all for soundtapes that eschew cheap escapes, that demand clear perception without preconception, this album will do far more than tickle the surface of your mind.

With natural French dialecticism, Szajner is now prepared to prove his mettle at opposing (but of course complementary) extremities of the musical spectrum. On the one hand, he's currently refining an uncompromising live show — with some of France's most powerful players — based on his 1980 release 'Some Deaths Take Forever'. That was unquestionably one of the decade's most accomplished fusions of sophisticated electronics and driving rock (I don't just mean grafting tired rock structures onto fussy sequencer filigrees — name your own culprits).

In contrast, this new release marks a penetrating, persuasive look into the possibilities of pure tape music. This is music of almost overwhelming purity, whether played at discreetly ambient or totally engulfing levels. Reworking old material, synthesizer tapes from his musical apprentice-piece 'Visions of Dune', it's almost Accidental Music. Except for the fact that there's a remarkably perceptive intelligence at work here.

The tapes play backwards: logic is effortlessly reversed. Half speed gives extraordinary depth to the bass. Spare but telling use of the digital harmoniser and other studio treatments spin a sensitive skin of transparent texture over the naked harmony. Particularly on the second side, the impression is of a sizeable orchestra playing just beyond sight, a stately, spacious, but somehow eerie sound.

As the redundant consonants of his name indicate, Szajner's place of origin is Poland, a country with a uniquely turbulent history, whose brooding plains soaked in millenia of usually innocent blood are spread out behind the throned Bowie/Eno collaboration Warszawa. That's exactly the sort of passionate intensity you'll discover in these tracks. And if I say that Oswiecim is the Polish version of what has become one of the most infamous place-names of the twentieth century, you may understand the compassionate edge of this music and also its inescapable though indirect celebratory impulse.

For an entirely electronic album, this has an enormous resonance, an aura of sublimity that's not at all ethereal: compare the atmospheric virtuosity of Jack Nitzche's grandiloquent St. Giles Cripplegate, coincidentally (?) re-released on this same label. It would be hard to imagine anything further from the music-for-Martians tag affixed by the French popular press, presumably encouraged by Szajner's exclusive science-fiction hairstyle.

In fact, coming full circle from its electronic genesis, Szajner talks enthusiastically about having some Gregorian Chant-like sections transcribed to perform live with a choir, always seeing further possibilities beyond his immediate involvement.

It's hard to believe, in the fashion-entranced, category-entrenched eighties, but you won't find many obvious influences here. If that sounds like critical shortchanging, I could suggest that Superficial Music occupies intellectual territory somewhere between Pierre Henry and Messiaen (without either jokiness or bombast or, come to that, the pretentiousness of most of the IRCAM school). Simultaneously in his rock mode he thrusts forward the standard so disappointingly dropped by Christian Vander. Irreconcilable? Not for Szajner.

Listen to this record with open ears. And next year, when he brings his band and his amazing laser harp to Britain for the first time, Bernard Szajner will well and truly open up your eyes as well.

Felix Jay

DIF JNZ
VIBRATING AIR

12" SINGLE ON 4AD
BAD 116

Kiltorch and MCP present

SAMMY HAGAR

PLUS SUPPORT

THE CORNISH COLISEUM
SAT. 23rd JANUARY 7.30pm
tickets £4 and £3.50 from box office tel. Par 4261

SOUTHAMPTON GAUMONT
SUN. 24th JANUARY 7.30pm
tickets £4, £3.50 and £3 from box office tel. 0703 29772

BRISTOL COLSTON HALL
MON. 25th JANUARY 7.30pm
tickets £4 and £3.50 from box office tel. 0272 291768

SHEFFIELD CITY HALL
TUES. 26th JANUARY 7.30pm
tickets £4 and £3.50 from box office tel. 0742 735295

GLASGOW APOLLO
THURS. 28th JANUARY 7.30pm
tickets £4 and £3.50 from box office tel. 041 332 6055

NEWCASTLE CITY HALL
FRI. 29th JANUARY 7.30pm
tickets £4 and £3.50 from box office tel. 0632 20007

LIVERPOOL EMPIRE
SUN. 31st JANUARY 7.30pm
tickets £4 and £3.50 from box office tel. 051 709 1555

BIRMINGHAM ODEON
TUES. 2nd FEBRUARY 7.30pm
tickets £4 and £3.50 from box office tel. 021 643 6101

IPSWICH GAUMONT
THURS. 4th FEBRUARY 7.30pm
tickets £4 and £3.50 from box office tel. 0473 53641

LANCASTER UNIVERSITY
SAT. 6th FEBRUARY 7.30pm
tickets £4 and £3.50 from box office tel. 0524 65201

MANCHESTER APOLLO
SUN. 7th FEBRUARY 7.30pm
tickets £4 and £3.50 from box office tel. 061 273 1112

HAMMERSMITH ODEON
TUES. 9th and
WED. 10th FEBRUARY 8pm
tickets £4.50 and £4.00 from box office tel. 01 748 4081 and usual agents

RECORD NEWS

● The previously reported Tom Robinson Band compilation album is available from this week on EMI. Idea of this 12-track set is to round up all the old TRB material which never made it onto an album, and put out a budget "best of the rest" collection.

● Liverpool outfit Walter Mitty's Little White Lies have been signed by RCA, and the label's first move is to reissue their first single 'Brave New England' — which originally appeared on Hip Records and enjoyed 11 weeks in the NME Indie Chart earlier this year.

● Killing Joke are currently in Germany, where they're recording material for their next album. It's still not sure when the LP will be available, but a single from it is scheduled for mid-January release.

● Release of The Soft Boys' single 'Only The Stones Remain', recorded live at London's Hope & Anchor, has been delayed by distribution problems. It's now due out tomorrow (Friday) on Armageddon.

● Frank Sinatra's new single, out this week on Reprise, is the Sonny Bono song 'Bang Bang (My Baby Shot Me Down)', taken from his new album 'She Shot Me Down'. The B-side is a track called 'Monday Morning Quarterback'.

● Much-acclaimed Nigerian percussionist Gasper Lawal has his single 'Kita Kita' out this weekend, in both 7" and disco 12". It's a remixed track from his album 'Ajomase'. Release is by Cap Records, through Stage One and Rough Trade.

● The Four Tops follow their smash hit 'When She Was My Girl' with a new single titled 'Don't Walk Away', coupled with 'I'll Never Ever Leave Again'. Both tracks are from their current album 'Tonight', and the label is Casablanca (through Phonogram).

● 'Jah Bless Africa' is the new Misty In Roots single, taken from their album 'Wise And Foolish', and released this weekend on their own People Unite label (through Spartan). The B-side is a different version of the same song.

More budget reissues

CBS and Epic are reissuing another batch of albums and tapes in their 'Nice Price' budget series, which they say should retail at around £2.99 each. Among the latest 25 titles are 'The Birth Of A Legend' and 'Early Music' by Bob Marley, 'That's The Way Of The World' by Earth Wind & Fire, 'Angel Clare' by Art Garfunkel, 'Original Singles' by The Byrds, 'Sylvia's Mother' and 'Ballad Of Lucy Jordan' by Dr Hook, 'Caravanserai' by Santana, 'Turnstiles' by Bill Joel and 'Raw Power' by Iggy & The Stooges — plus self-named albums by Reo Speedwagon, Cheap Trick and Abba.

● More information has filtered through about the album 'The Original Modern Lovers', the first release from Bomp International's new London outlet, issued this weekend with distribution by Pinnacle. It was apparently recorded in Boston in spring 1972, and features Jonathan Richman, Jerry Harrison (Talking Heads), David Robinson (Cars) and Ernie Brooks, with Kim Fowley producing.

● EMI have signed four-piece London band Talk Talk, who are currently on tour as support to Duran Duran. Between gigs, they're recording material for January release.

● 'Ghosts Of Christmas Past' is a compilation album on Belgian label Crepuscule, with UK distribution by Rough Trade. It features 13 seasonal songs written by Aztec Camera, Cabaret Voltaire, Tuxedomoon, Durutti Column and The Names, among others.

● Manchester band The Freshies have added a fifth member to their line-up, Barbara O'Donovan on guitar and vocals. She can be seen and heard on the group's new one-hour video cassette 'Razzvizz 4' — available in either VHS or Betamax formats at £15 (including recorded delivery) from Razz Records, 20 Cotton Lane, Withington, Manchester M20 9UX.

● The Kraftwerk single 'The Model' / 'Computer Love', originally issued in June, is reissued by EMI this week — in a new picture bag, and in both 7" and 12" formats — due to continuing public demand.

● Owing to the Christmas rush, Secret Records have withheld two singles planned for late November release — 'Jive Jive' by Brian Brain and 'I Can't Hold On' by Lovely Previn. These will now be issued in mid-January.

● From her chart compilation 'All The Great Hits' comes the Diana Ross single 'Tenderness', issued by Motown this week in both 7" and 12". It was recorded at the same sessions as 'Upside Down' and 'My Old Piano', and was produced by Bernard Edwards and Nile Rodgers of Chic.

● Lindsey Buckingham, of Fleetwood Mac has a solo single out this week on Mercury, titled 'Trouble'. It's taken from his recently released album 'Law And Order'.

● Clint Eastwood & General Saint, whose album 'Two Bad D.J.'s' has just been issued by Greensleeves, now release a single from the LP in both 7" and 12" — titled 'Talk About Run'. Other 12-inch disco singles from the same label include 'Christmas-a-Come' by Eek-a-Mouse, 'Bone Connection' by Nicodemus, 'Being With You' by Al Campbell and 'Holding On To My Girlfriend' by Linval Thompson.

● A re-working of The Archies' chart-topper 'Sugar Sugar' marks the debut of David Gamson on Rough Trade. He's a New Yorker who has arranged and produced the track, as well as playing synthesizers and keyboards — with the aid of Material drummer Fred Maher, plus vocalist Jessica Cleaves who's a member of the Parliament and Funkadelic crew.

● Independent West Midlands labels Inferno and Impact have released two intriguing singles, through Pinnacle, Graduate and other leading distributors. On Inferno, there's the original mid-60s Gloria Jones version of the recent Soft Cell hit 'Tainted Love'. And Impact offers a 12-incher featuring three jazz-funk tracks by keyboards ace Eddie Russ, which has been fetching up to £25 on import.

● An album-length cassette by the New York Dolls, recorded in 1972 at the Mercer St Arts Center in New York, has been issued by America's Reachout Records — produced by Marty Thau, it consists of material never before available on vinyl or tape, and it's called 'Lipstick Killers'. Other cassettes from the same source include 'Live At The Peppermint Lounge' by Shox Lumanis, 'Half Alive' by Suicide and 'Live In New York' by James Chance & The Contortions. They each cost 9.25 dollars, or the equivalent, including p & p — from ROIR Cassettes, Suite 214, 611 Broadway, New York City NY 10012.

REST OF THE TOUR NEWS

□ ORANGE JUICE make a surprise appearance as special guests of Aztec Camera at London Victoria The Venue tonight (Thursday), even though they've not yet found a permanent replacement for drummer Stephen Doherty. They'll be using a stand-in (or rather, sit-in) for this occasion.

□ LIONHEART return to live action, after a lengthy break for rehearsals and recording sessions, at London Peckham Bouncing Ball on December 14. They then appear as special guests on Saxon's Christmas mini-tour, starting in Birmingham on December 15.

□ THE BLUES BAND wind up 1981 by playing two festive shows at London Victoria The Venue on December 18 and 19. Then, while they take a New Year breather, slide guitarist and vocalist Dave Kelly sets out on a series of solo acoustic gigs — starting at Aldershot Arts Centre on January 6.

□ FUNBOY THREE, Madness and The Stray Cats will be making personal appearances next Tuesday afternoon (15) at a party for handicapped and underprivileged children at London's Forum Ballroom in Kentish Town. Wreckless Eric, Black Slate and Gorp (ex-English Subtitles) will be performing, with Richard Skinner providing the disco. In order to defray costs, a few tickets will be on sale to the general public.

□ JOHNNY & THE HURRICANES — who played a short series of dates here last month, as part of a European tour — will be returning for a more extensive tour in the New Year. Dates are currently being set for the period from mid-February to mid-March, and will be announced shortly.

□ KILLING JOKE have asked us to make it clear that they are NOT appearing at London Hammersmith Palais tonight (Thursday), although a number of media advertisements have suggested that they are.

□ THE SHAKIN' PYRAMIDS and Lonnie Donegan will not now be appearing at London Camden Dingwalls next Monday and Tuesday (14-15), as illness has forced Donegan to withdraw. It's hoped the two dates can be re-scheduled early in the New Year.

□ HOT CUISINE are playing four dates this weekend, to boost promotion of their current single 'Disco Calypso' on the Kaleidoscope label (through Epic), which is in considerable demand on the club circuit. They visit Huddersfield Stars Bar (tonight, Thursday), Nottingham Tiffany's (Friday), Blackpool Yellow Submarine (Saturday) and Gillingham King Charles Hotel (Sunday).

HOLIDAY REGGAE PACKAGE

FREDDIE MCGREGOR, Linval Thompson and Al Campbell co-headline a reggae package tour (well, actually, it's described as "a reggae showcase extravaganza"), which plays a number of dates over the holiday period — supported by Channel One Band and Moa Ambassa Sound. The show visits London Camden Town Hall (tomorrow, Friday), Huddersfield Cleopatra's (Saturday), Cardiff Sophia Gardens (December 18), Luton Drill Hall (19), Manchester PSV Club (24), Bristol Mayfair (26), Birmingham Digbeth Civic Hall (31), Nottingham Commodore International (January 1) and London Acton Town Hall (2). Admission is £5 everywhere, except Huddersfield where it's £4.

STRAIGHT MUSIC PRESENTS

Stray Cats

SCREAMING LORD SUTCH and the savages

TOP RANK SUITE BRIGHTON
WEST ST. BRIGHTON
MONDAY 14th DECEMBER at 8:00
TICKETS £3.50 (INC. VAT) ADVANCE TOP RANK SUITE BOX OFFICE, TEL. 0131 250895 OR BRIGHTON VIRGIN RECORDS, POLYSONICS, CRAWLEY, CLOARS, OR £3.00 AT DOOR ON NIGHT

LYCEUM
STRAND W.C.2
TUESDAY 15th DECEMBER at 7:30
TICKETS £3.50 (INC. VAT) ADVANCE LYCEUM BOX OFFICE, TEL. 836 3715, LONDON THEATRE BOOKINGS, SHAFTESBURY AVE., TEL. 439 3371, PREMIER BOX OFFICE, TEL. 240 2245, OR ROCK ON RECORDS, 3 KENTISH TOWN RD., NW1, TEL. 485 5088

EDINBURGH ODEON
CLERN ST.
THURSDAY 17th DECEMBER at 7:30
TICKETS £3.50 £3.00 (INC. VAT) ADVANCE THEATRE BOX OFFICE 12:00 AM - 7:00 PM MON-SAT TEL. 031 667 3805, OR ON NIGHT

LYCEUM
STRAND W.C.2
SUNDAY 27th DECEMBER at 7:30
TICKETS £1.50 (INC. VAT) ADVANCE LYCEUM BOX OFFICE, TEL. 836 3715, LONDON THEATRE BOOKINGS, SHAFTESBURY AVE., TEL. 439 3371, PREMIER BOX OFFICE, TEL. 240 2245, OR ROCK ON RECORDS, 3 KENTISH TOWN RD., NW1, TEL. 485 5088

BIRMINGHAM ODEON
NEW STREET
MONDAY 28th DECEMBER at 7:30
TICKETS £3.50 £3.00 £2.50 (INC. VAT) ADVANCE THEATRE BOX OFFICE 10:30 AM - 8:00 PM MON-SAT TEL. 021 643 6101, OR ON NIGHT

STRAIGHT MUSIC PRESENTS

SQUEEZE

a flock of seagulls

LOCARNO
NEW BRISTOL CENTRE, FROMMERE ST., BRISTOL
TUESDAY 15th DECEMBER at 8:00
TICKETS £3.50 (INC. VAT) ADVANCE LOCARNO BOX OFFICE, TEL. BRISTOL 274893, OR BRISTOL VIRGIN RECORDS, RIVAL RECORDS, NEVILLER RECORDS, BATH, RECORDS UNLIMITED, OR £3.50 (INC. VAT) ON NIGHT

STRAIGHT MUSIC PRESENTS

BOW WOW WOW

JIMMY THEE HODDGER

LYCEUM
STRAND W.C.2
WEDNESDAY 23rd DECEMBER at 7:30
TICKETS £3.50 (INC. VAT) ADVANCE LYCEUM BOX OFFICE, TEL. 836 3715, LONDON THEATRE BOOKINGS, SHAFTESBURY AVE., TEL. 439 3371, PREMIER BOX OFFICE, TEL. 240 2245, OR ROCK ON RECORDS, 3 KENTISH TOWN RD., NW1, TEL. 485 5088

LIVE ADS (01-261 6153)

marquee

90 Wardour St., W.1 01-437 6603

OPEN EVERY NIGHT FROM 7.00 pm to 11.00 pm
REDUCED ADMISSION FOR STUDENTS, SOCIAL SECURITY CARD HOLDERS AND MEMBERS

Thursday 10th December (Adm £2.00)
Heavy Metal Xmas Bash!!
VARDIS
plus special guests Accent & D.J. Jerry Floyd

Friday 11th December (Adm £1.50)
SIAM
plus guests & Jerry Floyd

Saturday 12th December
Closed Private Function

Sunday 13th December (Adm £1.50)
NAUGHTY THOUGHTS
& guests and Jerry Floyd

Monday 14th December (Adm £2.00)
CHELSEA
Sudden Death Cult & Jerry Floyd

Tue 15th December (Adm £2.00)
THE BLONDES
Drastic Measures & Jerry Floyd

Wed 16th December (Adm £2.00)
BURNING RED NANHOE
Grand Zero & Jerry Floyd

Thursday 17th December (Adm £2.00)
JACKIE LYNTON
Call Of The Wind & Jerry Floyd

Hamburgers and other Hot and Cold Snacks available

LYCEUM STRAND, WC2

SUN/MON 13th/14th DECEMBER at 7.30

Tickets £3.50 (INC VAT) ADVANCE LYCEUM BOX OFFICE, TEL: 016 3715.
LONDON THEATRE BOOKINGS, SWIFFSBURY AVE., TEL: 059 3371, PREMIER BOX OFFICE, TEL: 240 2245.
OR BOOK ON RECORDS, 3 KENTISH TOWN RD., NW1, TEL: 485 5088

PRETENDERS

SUNDAY vic goddard & SUBWAY SECT THE FLYING PADDOCKS

MONDAY the belle stars •BUZZ•

IRIARS AT THE MAXWELL HALL AYLESBURY

Saturday 12th December 7.30pm

STEVE HARLEY and COCKNEY REBEL

+ ZOO RADIO + DREAM SOLDIERS

Tickets £2.50 from Earth Records Aylesbury, Scorpion High Wycombe, Old Town Records Hemel Hempstead, F1 Motors Dunstable, Luton & Betchley, Hi-Vi Buckingham, Music Market Oxford or £3.50 at door on night. Life membership 75p. Reservations Aylesbury 0456 88866. Teddy Boys are forming, it's all a little alarming.

DINGWALLS RHYTHM 'N' BOOZE

CAMDEN LOCK, CHALK FARM RD. LONDON NW1 01 267 4967

THURSDAY 10
RED BEANS 'N' RICE
£2.50

FRIDAY 11
JACKIE LYNTON'S HAPPY DAYS
x SCREEN 3
£3.50

SATURDAY 12
THE DANCE BAND
x THE DEADBEATS
£3.50

MONDAY 14
INNER CITY XMAS BASH
INNER CITY UNIT
3 LAWS A.N. OTHER £3.75

TUESDAY 15
GONZALEZ
£2.25

WEDNESDAY 16
CLOSED

THURSDAY 17
FROM JAMAICA
CHRISTMAS REGGAE WITH LOUIS LEPKE, TRISTAN PALMER, SAMMY DREAD
COMING UP... MON 21
JOHN COOPER CLARK
TUES 22
CARLENE CARTER
WED 23
WILKO JOHNSON

MCP by arrangement with ITB presents

DIARY OF A MADMAN TOUR

ZZZ

ABOURNE

plus special guests

Magnum and Girl

NEW BINGLEY HALL STAFFORD
TUESDAY 22nd DECEMBER 7.00pm TICKETS £4.50

Available from Mike Lloyd Music, Stoke-on-Trent
Sundown Records, Wolverhampton
Lotus Records, Stafford Cyclops Records, Birmingham
R.E. Cords, Derby & Burton Select a Disc, Nottingham
Penny Lane, Chester Penny Lane, Liverpool
Piccadilly Records, Manchester Virgin Records, Coventry or by postal application to Bingley Hall Stafford Cheques & Postal Orders made payable to Bingley Hall Stafford, Enclose S.A.E.

THE Venue

160-162 Victoria Street, London SW1E 5LB Tel 028 9441

Doors open 7.30pm
Main Band on at 9.30pm

THIS WEEK

Thursday 10th December £2.00
AZTEC CAMERA
+
THE BLUEBELLS
+ Special Guests

Friday 11th & Saturday 12th December £3.50
Q-TIPS

Monday 14th & Tuesday 15th December £4.00
STEVE HARLEY AND COCKNEY REBEL

Wednesday 16th December £2.50
BELLE STARS
Late Night 16th December £2.50

THE RED & WHITE CHRISTMAS BALL
featuring ROUXGE (Dance, dance, dance) £3.50

Thursday 17th December £3.50
ASWAD

Friday 18th & Saturday 19th December £4.00
THE BLUES BAND

COMING SOON

Monday 21st Dec £4.00
SUZI QUATRO

Tuesday 22nd Dec £3.50
DAVE EDMUNDS

Wednesday 23rd Dec £3.50
THE BUREAU, THE MO-DETTES, RODDY RADIATION AND THE TEARJERKERS

Thursday 24th Dec £3.50
OTWAY AND BARRETT + THE HEE-BEE-GEE-BEES + HUMPHREY OCEAN + JOHNNY G

Wednesday 30th Dec £3.00
Special re-union of SPIZZ ENERGI

HAMMERSMITH ODEON

OUTLAW AND PHIL McINTYRE PRESENT

Shirley Bassey

MON./TUES. 21st/22nd DECEMBER 7.30pm
TICKETS £4.25 £3.75 £3.25
TICKETS FROM BOX OFFICE AND USUAL AGENTS (SUBJECT TO BOOKING FEES)

SIAM

DECEMBER

TUE 8th — SHEFFIELD, CITY POLYTECHNIC
THU 10th — NOTTINGHAM, ROCK CITY
FRI 11th — MARQUEE
SAT 12th — ELECTRIC STADIUM, CHADWELL HEATH

NEW SINGLE CATRIX OUT NOW

MCP presents

SAXON

plus Special Guests

ODEON THEATRE, BIRMINGHAM
TUESDAY 15th DECEMBER 7.30 p.m.
Tickets £4.00 £3.50 £3.00
Available from B O Tel: 021 643 6101

RAINBOW THEATRE, LONDON
WEDNESDAY 16th DECEMBER 7.30 p.m.
Tickets £4.00 Available from B O Tel: 01 263 3148

CIVIC HALL, WOLVERHAMPTON
THURSDAY 17th DECEMBER 7.30 p.m.
Tickets £4.00 Available from B O Tel: 0902 28482

See Special Merchandising Offer in Current Saxon Album "Denim and Leather" on Carrere.
These Shows will be Recorded for a Live Album, ticket purchaser agrees as a member of the audience to being a part of this recording.

LIVE ADS 261 6153

THE EXCITERS

December Tour

Thurs 3rd — Cartoon, Croydon
Fri 5th — Mansfield College, Oxford
Thurs 10th — Creepers, Hastings
Sun 13th — Bowes Lyon, Stevenage
Wed 16th — Railway, Hornsey
Fri 18th — Horn of Plenty, St Albans (Christmas Party)
Sat 19th — The Three Rabbits, Manor Park
Tues 22nd — Kings Head, Fulham High St

For more info, bookings phone
Mike Malley
01-346 4109.

BRIAN KNIGHT

(legendary slide guitarist) and his BAND

The Star, London Rd, Croydon on Thursday 10th December

New Merlins Cave, Margery St., WC1 on Sunday 13th December

R & B! All enquiries phone
PVK records 0494 36301

The HAMMERSMITH BROADWAY

CLARENDON HOTEL

Take Soul and Spirit when you feel sadder than all the dead Christmas Trees in the World

Mon 21st December

MISS PIP Sounds

RIP RIG + PANIC

+ GUESTS

tickets £3.00 from Rough Trade, Honky Tonk
Premier Virgin Megastore The Venue at Victoria
Lic Bar 8pm

TBA International proudly presents

STEVE HARLEY & COCKNEY REBEL

THE Venue

14th & 15th December
Tickets £4.00

MOONLIGHT

100 West End Lane W6
West Hampstead Tube — Jubilee Line

Thursday 10th December £1.50
DRASTIC MEASURES
+ Kimbo

Friday 11th December £1.75
CUDDLY TOYS
+ Howard Jones

Saturday 12th December £1.75
CROWN OF THORNS
+ Comatose

Sunday 13th December £1.50
MOTOR BOYS MOTOR
+ Extras

Monday 14th December £1.50
Psychotic night with MILES OVER MATTER
+ The Silence

Tuesday 15th December £1.50
PERFECT CRIME
+ We're Only Human

Wednesday 16th December £1.50
THE BALLOONS
+ The Cardiacs

Thursday 17th December £1.75
BABYLON + Animal Luxury

STARLIGHT

Sundays 7.30-10.30
West Hampstead Tube — Jubilee Line

Thursday 10th December £1.50
GOING STRAIGHT
+ Heads of Agreement

Friday 11th December £1.75
BLACK MARKET
+ Output

Saturday 12th December £1.50
THE RIMSHOTS
+ The Dangersmen

Sundays — Closed

Monday 14th December £1.50
MENTAL NOTES
+ The Thin Men

Tuesday 15th December £1.50
XPERTZ
+ Oceane Eleven

Wednesday 16th December £1.50
DIRTY STRANGERS
+ Double Agents

Thursday 17th December £1.50
THE WAVES
(formerly the Soft Boys)
+ Plain Characters

LIVE ADS (01-261 6153)

Please phone before setting out, check but avoiding major disasters, here is...

WHAT'S ON AT THE ROCKGARDEN
TRUE LIFE CONFESSIONS
 THU. 10th DEC. The KAMA SUTRA set to music by boy/girl sextet. We promise to have a thespian installed.

SLOW TWITCH FIBRES
 FRI. 11th DEC. The eccentric pop-punk of styles—reggae, funk, live and then some, seasoned with wit & craft and fine for dancing.

BLACK ROOTS
 SAT. 12th DEC. Reggae band from Bristol whose declamatory vocals and galvanic rhythm section, wrote N.M.E., had more people on the dance floor than... Name withheld to avoid embarrassment.

SUN. ENGLISH DREAMS
 MON. 13th DEC. NIGHT SIGNALS & A BAND OF...
 TUE. 14th DEC. STREET VILLAIN & A BAND OF...
 THU. 17th DEC. THE MOTHMEN

THE DOORS OPEN 7.30 PM. ALL DATE EXCEPT SUNDAY WHEN IT'S 7.30 PM. 12. REAL ALE AND COCKTAILS RIGHT THROUGH YOU HAVE TO BE 18. OUR RESTAURANT IS OPEN 12.30 PM TO 11 PM. MOST OF US, WE'RE ON THE CASE OF... ST. & JAMES ST. OLD COVENT GARDEN. FOR LIVE MUSIC INFO: 606 1229. TIME FOR RESTAURANT INFO: 240 3343.

ACID - DISCO ?

CROWN OF THORNS
 + COMATOSE
 Saturday 12th December
 'moonlight club'
 West Hampstead, N.W.6
 doors open 8.30
 all CND welcome

SUNSET JAZZ
 3 North End Crescent W14
 Tel: 603 7006

Thursday 10th December
25th STREET
 Friday 11th December

ELECTRIC BLUE BIRDS
 Saturday 12th December
CHRIS BARBER'S JAZZ & BLUES BAND
 Wednesday 16th December

FAST EDDIE
 Thursday 17th December

ROCKET 88
 Friday 18th December

GERAINT WATKINS BAND
 Saturday 19th December

ROOT JACKSON
 with the GB BLUES CO

PARADISE PRESENT

GLITTER OVER CHRISTMAS

GARY GLITTER
 plus special guests
 & VENIGMAS

HAMMERSMITH PALAIS
SUNDAY 27th DECEMBER 7.30pm
 tickets £5.00 inc VAT
 Available from Hammersmith Palais Box Office London Theatre Bookings 439 3371
 Premier Box Office 240 2245 or direct from Paradise 405, Strand, London WC2, 01-379 7888

KILTORCH/OUTLAW PRESENTS
 STARRING CLUB ZOO

THE TEARDROP EXPLODES
HAMMERSMITH PALAIS at 8pm
JANUARY 3rd 4th 5th
 £3.50
 tkts. from box office tel. 748 2812

TICKETS ALSO FROM: CENTRE, LTB, PREMIER, KEITH PROWSE, STARGREEN

THE OLD QUEENS HEAD
 133 Stockwell Road, London SW9

Thursday 10th December SONS OF MAN IN ROOTS + The Creamies £1.00	Monday 14th December UKRAINE + Top Secret £1.00
Friday 11th December THE HEARTBEATS + Auntie & The Men From Uncle £1.25	Tuesday 15th December BABYLON REBELS + The Hamsters £1.00
Saturday 12th December MAINLAND + Crisis £1.00	Wednesday 16th December THE RECRUITS + Maureens Wrestling £1.00

THE BASEMENT BAR
 Clarendon Hotel, Hammersmith W6

Thursday 10th PARTISANS + The Ejected £1.25	Friday 11th RUDI + Apocalypse £1.50
Saturday 12th THE DARK + The Solicitors £1.50	Sunday 13th HIDDEN CHARMS + Modern Life £1.00
Monday 14th DIRTY STRANGERS XMAS PARTY £1.00	Tuesday 15th IDIOT BALLROOM BEACH PARTY PT II Various artists, with Sir Alias Sounds, and Random Pulse Lights. £1.00
Thursday 17th REACTION (direct from Jam Tour) + The Odd Nite £1.25

KINGS HEAD
 6, Fulham High St. SW6
 736 1413

Thursday 10th ESSENTIAL VILLAINS £1.00	Friday 11th S.A.L.T. £1.50
Saturday 12th TRIMMER & JENKINS £1.00	Sunday 13th S.A.L.T. £1.00
Monday 14th JOHN SPENCER BAND £1.00	Tuesday 15th KISSING THE PINK £1.00
Wednesday 16th RYE AND THE QUARTER BOYS £1.00	Thursday 17th GINGER £1.00

TICKETS AVAILABLE FOR LONDON CONCERTS OF THE FOLLOWING
MARCH 15, 16, 17, 18 EARTH, WIND AND FIRE

DECEMBER
 12 Exploited
 13 Ralph McTell
 14 Pretenders
 15 Stray Cats
 16, 17 Duran Duran
 16 Saxon
 17 Squeeze
 18 Hawkwind
 18 Hot Gossip
 19 Brendan Shine
 19 Rose Tattoo
 20 Ultravox
 20 Christmas on Earth, Leeds return coach available
 20 Nits Lolgren
 20 Slade
 21, 22 Gillan
 22 Ian Dury

JANUARY
 1, 2, 3 Black Sabbath
 3, 4, 5 Teardrop Explodes
 27, 28 UFO

FEBRUARY
 9, 10 Sammy Hagar
 25 Scorpions

MARCH
 10, 11 10cc
 13, 15, 16, 17, 18 Earth, Wind & Fire

APRIL
 9-12 Country Music Festival

TELEPHONE CREDIT CARD BOOKINGS ACCEPTED.
 PERSONAL CALLERS WELCOME.
 POSTAL APPLICATION ENCLOSE SAE PLEASE.
 SEND SAE FOR FREE LIST OF LONDON GIGS.
LONDON THEATRE BOOKINGS
 96 Shaftesbury Avenue, W1. Phone 439 3371

HOPÉ & ANCHOR
 UPPER STREET
 ISLINGTON, N.1

Wednesday 9th December EUROPEANS £1.00	Sunday 13th December CALLING HEARTS £1.00
Thursday 10th December THE WAVES featuring Kimberley Rew (ex Soft Boys) £1.00	Monday 14th December BABY 'N' THE MONSTERS £1.00
Friday 11th December RHYTHM METHOD £1.25	Tuesday 15th December LONDON APACHES £1.00
Saturday 12th December THE COBRAS £1.25	Wednesday 16th December THE FLYING CLUB £1.50

FINAL SOLUTION PRESENT

CLUB REVUE
 FEATURING
Vic Godard
The Subway Sect
Johnny Britton
& Lady Blue

9.30pm - Tues - Dec 15th
 Kings College
 Students Union
 Surrey Street - WC2

Tickets £3.00 From - KINGS - Rough Trade - Small Wonder - Housie Toak - Bonaparte & Premier Box Office

MIDDX POLY S.U. PRESENTS
 Live reggae with
TRIBESMAN
 Thursday 10th Dec. Middx Poly, Queensway, Enfield.
 £1.00 NUS £1.50 others

Alternative Music presents the RIFFS
 Plus PRAXIS & 11 - 53
Woolwich, THAMES POLY
 Sat 12th December 7.30 pm
 Tickets £1.25 on door. Licensed bars

NELSONS
 49 Durnford Rd
 Wimbledon SW19
 (Behind the Sportsmans public house at Wimbledon Football Club)

Saturday 12th December £2.00
ROOT JACKSON
 and the
GB BLUES CO
 + Perfect Crime

Sunday 13th December £1.50
LEE KOSMIN

Saturday 19th December £2.00
MANUFACTURED ROMANCE

101 CLUB
 101 St John's Hill
 Tel: 01 223 8309

Thursday 10th December
RICK SMITH & THE VILLAINS
 £1

Friday 11th December
 Uchun Rock Unemployment Benefit With THE INTROZE
 £1.50

Saturday 12th December
THE FEELERS
 £1.50

Sunday 13th December
DRAMA
 £1

Monday 14th December
PRECINCT
 £1

Tuesday 15th December
RED ARMY CHOIR
 £1

Wednesday 16th December
LOOSE TALK
 £1

THE 100 CLUB
 100 Oxford St W1

Thursday 10th —
 Return By Public Demand

PRINCE FAR — I
 AND THE ARABS
 "Congo Ashanti Roy"

Tuesday 15th —
CHRON — GEN
 +
 Two supporting groups

TYGERS OF PAN TANG + TWELFTH NIGHT

19 December at 8 pm
Breckland Sports Centre
 Thetford (0842) 3110

Adm £2.50

TO ADVERTISE
 01-261 6153

Derek Block in association with TBA presents

Nit's Lolgren

✦ GRAND PRIX
 + Grand Prix
 Sunday 20th December at 8pm DOMINION THEATRE W1
 Tickets £4.75, £4.25, £3.75 — Available in advance
 From Box Office 01-580 9562 and usual agents

TWICE A MAN

5/12 Stockholm, Ritz
 6/12 Köpenhamn, Saltlagret
 14/12 London, Heaven

Nationwide Gig Guide

The Jam. Pic: Anton Corbijn

The Police. Pic: Claudio Gassian

MOST OF the major autumn tours are now drawing to a close, but surprisingly — in view of the proximity of Christmas — another batch sets out this week. And the number of gigs available, well in excess of 600, is abnormally high for mid-December — particularly with the campus circuit now closing down for the holidays. So all things considered, a remarkably good week.

And that assessment is enhanced by THE JAM playing their four seasonal specials in London, from Saturday to Tuesday; THE POLICE kicking off their pre-Christmas jaunt with a string of concerts at Wembley (from Monday); and ADAM & THE ANTS playing St. Austell on Monday and Tuesday, at the outset of a five-week countryside trek.

THE STRAY CATS are on the UK road for the first time since the beginning of the year, highlighted by a London Lyceum show on Tuesday; THE EXPLOITED headline at London Rainbow on Saturday, then embark on a series of provincial gigs; and SECRET AFFAIR are back in live action after a 12-month absence.

NILS LOFGREN flies in to play a string of concerts, which get under way in Nottingham on Saturday; SAXON provide a Yuletide treat for metal freaks, beginning their 'Denim & Leather' mini-tour at Birmingham (Tuesday) and London Rainbow (Wednesday); and THE BEAT are doing a few more shows, commencing with their replacement date at Hanley on Friday.

New Year deadline

A REMINDER that, because of holiday printing arrangements, the Gig Guide for the first week of the New Year will go to press before Christmas. This covers the period from

DECEMBER 31 to JANUARY 6

If you want your gigs listed on this page for that particular week, please note that details must be received by us not later than

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 16

That is the absolute deadline. So don't put it off — bear in mind the postal delays usually incurred at this time of year, and remember that December 16 is less than a week away. Mail your New Year details at once to NME Gig Guide, 5-7 Carnaby Street, London W1V 1PG — and make sure you're not disappointed.

Thursday

10th

Eurythmics: Edinburgh

Aberystwyth University: Dr. Feelgood
Bangor University: Otway & Barrett
Birmingham Barrel Organ: Ida Red
Birmingham Golden Eagle: Here & Now / Dangerous Girls
Birmingham Mercat Cross: Sky Diver
Birmingham Odeon: Joan Armatrading
Birmingham Railway Hotel: The Last Detail
Birmingham Union Cellar Bar: The Microdots
Bolton Aquarius: The Safford Jets / Stilts
Bolton Swan Inn: The Lulu Boys
Bordon Robin Hood: Easy Street
Bournemouth Exeter Bowl: Vic Godard & Subway Sect
Bournemouth The Pinediff: The Time
Bournemouth Winter Gardens: Cliff Richard
Bracknell South Hill Park Arts Centre: Lennie Best / Ian Carr
Bradford Manhattan Club: Xero
Brighton New Regent: Manufactured Romance / Decent Assault
Bristol Arncliffe Gallery: Mike Osborne
Septet
Cambridge Great Northern Hotel: Red Star Belgrade
Cambridge Sound Cellar: Patrik Fitzgerald / Attila The Stockbroker / Anne Clark
Chadwell Heath Greyhound: The Stripes / The Reactions
Chesterfield Star Inn: Our Pete & The Wage Slips / Jumping Jeannie & The 4 1/2 Garden Gnomes
Colchester Essex University: Gary Glitter / The Gas
Coleraine New Ulster University: The King's Singers
Coventry General Wolfe: Ramrods / Street Kids
Coventry Hand & Heart: April First Movement / Furious Apples
Coventry Warwick University: Roddy Radiation & The Tearjerkers / The Bureau / The Mo-dettes
Croydon Warehouse Theatre: The Marines / Pillowhead
Derby Assembly Rooms: Gillan / Budgie
Durham University: Rio & The Robots
Eastcote Bottom Line: Barbara Thompson's Paraphernalia
Edinburgh Nite Club: Eurythmics
Exeter Boxes: In The Red

Glasgow Apollo Theatre: Echo & The Bunnymen
Great Harewood Cloggers: Al Grey / Buddy Tate
Guildford Civic Hall: The Human League / Huang Chung
Huddersfield Stars Bar: Hot Cuisine
Ipswich Gala Ballroom: Vital Disorders
Kingston Polytechnic: The Prets
Leamington Spa Crown Hotel: Fallen Angels / The Precautions
Leeds Queens Hall: Japan
Leicester Belgrave Hotel: Haste To Waste
Liverpool The Dolphin: French Lessons
Liverpool The Mayflower: The Rivals
Liverpool Whispers Club: Kinetics
London Barons Court Tavern: Ginger
London Camden Dingwalls: Red Beans & Rice
London Canning Town Bridge House: Mickey Jupp Band
London Charing Cross Duke of Buckingham: The Invisibles
London Chelsea All My Eye & Betty Martin: SJ & Her Gem
London Clapham Two Brewers: True Life Confessions
London Clapham 101 Club: Rick Smith & The Villains / The Fancy Goldfish
London Covent Garden Rock Garden: True Life Confessions
London Covent Garden The Canteen: Jimmy Witherspoon / Danny Adler & The Deluxe Blues Band (for three days)
London Deptford Royal Albert: The Electric Bluebirds
London Elephant & Castle College of Printing: Bumble & The Beez
London Enfield Middlesex Polytechnic: Tribesman
London Euston The Golf Club: The Decorators / Lucky Saddles
London Fulham Golden Lion: The Cobras
London Fulham Greyhound: Merger / The Avengers
London Fulham Kings Head: Five Hand Reel
London Gt. Portland St. The Albany: Room 13
London Hammersmith Clarendon Hotel: The Partisans / The Ejected
London Hammersmith Odeon: Squeeze
London Hampstead Giovanni's Club: Spartacus
London Hampstead Starlight Room: Going Straight / The Heads of Agreement
London Islington Hope & Anchor: The Waves featuring Kimberley Rew
London Kensington De Villiers Bar: Gold Dust Twins
London Lambeth The Angel: Rudi / Apocalypse
London Marquee Club: Vardis
London N.W.2 Hogs Grunt: Heart Patrol
London Oxford St. 100 Club: Prince Far I & The Arabs / The Beatroots
London Putney Half Moon: Ricky Cool Band
London Putney White Lion: The Machines
London Soho Pizza Express: Alex Welsh Band
London Southgate Royalty Ballroom: Crazy Cavan & The Rhythm Rockers
London Stockwell Old Queen's Head: Release De Beat / The Creamies
London Tottenham-Court Rd. The Horseshoe: Roy Ward & The Last Post
London Victoria The Venue: Aztec Camera / The Bluebells / Orange Juice

London Waterloo Royal Victoria: Freddy's Footwarmers
London West Hampstead Moonlight Club: Drastic Measures / Kimbo
London W.1 Boulevard Theatre: The Passage / The Inevitable
London W.1 Embassy Club: Le Change
Manchester Band On The Wall: Pat Crumley's Edge
Manchester Devils: Vice Squad
Manchester Polytechnic: Chelsea / Black Flag
Manchester The Hunting Lodge: Stockholm Monsters / Deli Polo Club / Beach Red
Manchester (Wythenshawe) Cock o' the North: The Permanents
Newcastle City Hall: Thin Lizzy
Newcastle Polytechnic: Lindisfarne
Newcastle The Junction: The Green Eyed Children
Northampton White Elephant: The Crew
Norwich Gals Ballroom: Vital Disorders
Nottingham Ad Lib Club: The Howdy Boys
Nottingham Hearty Good Fellow: Colin Staples Breadline / Ray Gunn & The Lasers
Nottingham Rock City: Steve Harley & Cockney Rebel
Oxford Apollo Theatre: Max Boyce
Oxford Caribbean Club: Havana Let's Go
Oxford Pennyfarthing: The Vetoos
Plymouth Ark Royal: Mr. Zoot
Portsmouth Polytechnic: Tandoori Cassette
Rickmansworth Watersmeet: Neil Innes / As Above So Below
Sheffield Big Tree Hotel: ADSR International
Sheffield City Hall: Duran Duran
Sheffield Limit Club: After The Fire
Southend Cliffs Pavilion: Nine Below Zero
Sudbury Quay Theatre: George Melly & The Footwarmers
Watford Verulam Arms: Click Click / Blazing Red / The Platitudes
Whitstable The Neptune: Baby 'n' The Monsters
Wokingham Angie's: Little Sister

Friday

11th

The Beat: Hanley

Aberdeen Vihalla's: Factory Poems
Bath Moles Club: Rye & The Quarterboys
Birkenhead Gallery Club: The Lulu Boys
Birmingham Barrel Organ: Willy & The Poor Boys

Birmingham Cedar Ballroom: Chelsea
Birmingham Digbeth Civic Hall: Ewan MacColl & Peggy Seegar
Birmingham Fighting Cocks: The Quads
Birmingham Golden Eagle: Way Of The West
Birmingham Mercat Cross: Situation Critical
Birmingham Railway Hotel: Teuser
Birmingham Star Club: Rockastyle / Eternity
Bournemouth Winter Gardens: Cliff Richard
Bracknell South Hill Park Arts Centre: Amity / Proteus Theatre Co.
Brighton Centre: Joan Armatrading
Brighton Dome: The Human League / Huang Chung
Brighton Lewes Road Inn: Crazy Cavan & The Rhythm Rockers
Bristol Polytechnic (lunchtime): Bert Drain & The Downpipes
Bristol Trinity Hall: Black Roots
Broadstairs The Pavilion: Naughty Thoughts / The Pulsaters
Cambridge Great Northern Hotel: The Waves
Cambridge Sound Cellar: Bim
Cambridge Townley Hall: The Amyl Dukes
Cannock Double M: The Androids Of Mu / Rock Goddess
Chadwell Heath Greyhound: Vardis / Triarchy
Coventry General Wolfe: Wreckless Eric / Nite Hawks
Coventry Ryton Bridge: Streetlife
Cromer West Runtion Pavilion: Nine Below Zero
Croydon The Star: The Cobras
Croydon Warehouse Theatre: Patrik Fitzgerald / John Baine / Anne Clark
Doncaster Co-op Club: Here & Now
Dudley J.B.'s Club: Dangerous Girls
Durham Ladies College: Richard Strange
Durham Trevelyan College: The 45's
Fareham Prices College: The Time / The Acclaim
Folkestone Springfield Hotel: Pete Stacey
Fort William Milton Hotel: Powerhouse Boogie Band
Grimsby Town Hall: Bucks Fizz
Guernsey C.I. The Hermitage: The Pulse
Hanley Victoria Hall: The Beat
Hastings Clarendon Hotel: Curfew
Hatfield Polytechnic: Steve Harley & Cockney Rebel
Hitchin Regal: Gary Glitter / The Gas
Ipswich Gaumont Theatre: Slade / Spider
Lancaster Trades Hall: Walled-Up Nuns
Lancaster University: Japan
Launceston White Horse Inn: In The Red / The Gift
Leeds Brannigans: Discharge / G.B.H.
Leeds University: Echo & The Bunnymen
Leicester De Montfort Hall: Gillan / Budgie
Leicester Electric Theatre: Haircut 100
London Brentford Red Lion: Chuck Farley
London Camden Dingwalls: Jackie Linton Band / Screen 3
London Camden Dublin Castle: The Sound Of Music / The Drabstyles
London Camden Southampton Arms: Jellyroll Blues Band
London Central Polytechnic: The Birthday Party / Malaria / Death In June
London Clapham Lander Hotel: Starcore

London Clapham The Roundhouse: Pressure Point / Splendour Of Rome / Malcontenta / Andreas Swann
London Clapham Two Brewers: Talk Like That London Clapham Wessex House: The Skank Orchestra
London Clapham 101 Club: The Introze
London Covent Garden Rock Garden: Slow Twitch Fibres / Empty Vessels
London Euston The Golf Club: The Blue Cats / King Kurt
London Fulham Golden Lion: Amazon
London Fulham Kings Head: Five Hand Reel
London Hammersmith Clarendon Hotel: Rudi / Apocalypse
London Hampstead Starlight Room: Black Market / Output
London Herne Hill Half Moon: Republic / Killer Wales
London Islington Hope & Anchor: Rhythm Method
London Kentish Town Bull & Gate: Crannog
London Lambeth The Angel: Wreckless Eric
London Manor Park Three Rabbits: The Escorts
London N.4 The Stapleton: Lickmalolly
London N.W.1 The Cellars: Cosmotheke
London N.W.2 Hogs Grunt: The Gulf Tides / Macondo
London Plumstead The Ship: Neuer Art / Louis — Louis
London Putney White Lion: Red Beans & Rice
London Rainbow Theatre: Sugar Minott
London School of Economics: Dr. Feelgood / City Kids
London Soho Pizza Express: Digby Fairweather Quintet
London Stockwell Old Queen's Head: The Heartbeats / Auntie & The Men From Uncle
London Stockwell The Plough: Southside
London Stoke Newington Pegasus: Juice On The Loose
London Strand King's College: Delta 5
London S.E.1 The London Dungeon: Sweet Substitute / Pete York's New York
London Twickenham St. Mary's College: The Chefs
London Upstairs at Ronnie Scott's: The Beatroots
London Victoria The Venue: Q-Tips
London Walthamstow Assembly Hall: Bauhaus / Zeitung Da / Blazing Affair
London West Hampstead Moonlight Club: Cuddy Toys / Howard Jones
London Woolwich Thames Polytechnic: Trimmer & Jenkins
London W.1 Embassy Club: Blue Chip
London W.14 Sunset Jazz: The Electric Bluebirds
Lowestoft College: Tandoori Cassette
Manchester Apollo Theatre: Duran Duran
Manchester The Legend: Vincent Sloane / Shakin' Ball / Stores & Sparks
Manchester New Century Theatre: Chris Barber Band
Manchester Refractors: Pigbag
Manchester University: Sisterhood Of Spit
Milton Keynes Starling Gate: C-Salm
Newcastle University: Roddy Radiation & The Tearjerkers / The Bureau / The Mo-dettes Norwich East Anglia University: The Pretenders / The Flying Padovans
OVER PAGE

Nationwide Gig Guide

CONTINUED

Norwich Gala Entertainments Centre: Aswad
 Nottingham Rock City: Squeeze
 Nottingham Tiffany's: Hot Cuisine
 Nottingham Town Arms: Mike Osborne
 Septet
 Oxford Apollo Theatre: Max Boyce
 Oxford Pennyfarthing: Splash
 Paignton Festival Theatre: Hawkwind
 Plymouth Ark Royal: Canyon
 Reading Caribbean Club: The Monsters
 Sandown Pier Pavilion: Billie Jo Spears
 Sheffield City Hall: Herb Miller Band
 Sheffield Polytechnic: Lindisfarne
 Shifnal Star Hotel: Straight Jocelyn
 Southport Greaves Hall: Kinetics
 Stafford North Staffs Polytechnic: Otway & Barrett
 Stockport Warren Bulkeley: Al Grey / Buddy Tate
 Stourbridge The Broadway: Sub Zero
 Tolworth Recreation Centre: Bad Manners
 Wallasey Leasowe Castle Hotel: Paul Costello & Friends
 Wakefield Breton Hall: The Cheaters
 Weston-super-Mare Old Pier: Flux Of Pink Indians
 Winchester College of Art: Vic Godard & Subway Sects
 Wokingham Angie's: Dave Ellis Band

Saturday

12th

Haircut 100: St. Albans

Aylesbury Friars: Steve Harley & Cockney Rebel
 Bicester Nowhere Club: C-Saim
 Birmingham Barrel Organ: Orphan
 Birmingham Fighting Cocks: Babylon
 Rebels / Patix
 Birmingham Imperial Cinema: Secret Affair
 Birmingham Mercat Cross: Handsome Beasts
 Birmingham National Exhibition Centre: Electric Light Orchestra / Voyager
 Birmingham Odeon: Bucks Fizz
 Blackpool Yellow Submarine: Hot Cuisine
 Boston Elizabethan Club: The Nashville Teens
 Bournemouth Winter Gardens: Cliff Richard
 Bracknell South Hill Park Arts Centre: Mike Maran & David Sheppard
 Brighton Centre: The Pretenders / The Flying Padovani
 Bristol Granary: Spider
 Bristol Greenhouse: Rye & The Quarterboys
 Bristol Trinity Hall: Animal Magic / Harold & Hilary / Mouth / Scream & Dance
 Cambridge Corn Exchange: The Androids of Mu / Rock Goddess
 Chadwell Heath Greyhound: Siam
 Chesterfield Middelcroft Leisure Centre: Dawn Fury
 Chesterfield Top Rank: Bingo Reg & The Screaming Jeannies / Stuttering Jack and the Heart Attacks
 Coventry General Wolfe: Wasted Youth / The Method
 Croydon Warehouse Theatre: Clockhouse / Triple Echo
 Derby Assembly Rooms: The Human League / Huang Chung
 Dudley JB's Club: Moscow Philharmonix
 Durham Town Hall: Maddy Prior Band
 Durham University: Roddy Radiation & The Tearjerkers / The Bureau / The Mo-dettes
 Folkestone Leas Cliff Hall: Otway & Barrett / Baby'n The Monsters
 Gloucester Brockworth House: Crazy Cavan & The Rhythm Rockers
 Huddersfield Polytechnic: Lindisfarne
 Huddersfield White Lion: Dodgy Tactics
 Leamington Bath Place: Neville Staples — Jah Baddis Sound
 Leeds Astoria Ballroom: Sisterhood Of Spit
 Leicester De Montfort Hall: Duran Duran
 Leicester University Queen's Hall: Echo & The Bunnymen
 Liverpool Empire Theatre: Japan
 Liverpool Parbold Community Centre: Kinetics
 London Brixton The Fridge: Vic Godard & Subway Sect
 London Camden Dingwalls: The Dance Band / The Deadbeats
 London Central Polytechnic: The 45's
 London Charing Cross Duke of Buckingham: The Invisibles
 London Clapham 101 Club: The Feelers
 London Covent Garden Rock Garden: Black Routs / ton tons m'assal
 London Cricklewood Production Village: The Exciters
 London Deptford The Crypt: The Electric Bluebirds
 London Euston The Golf Club: The Distractions / Lucky Saddles
 London EC1 The Loft: Conversations
 London Finsbury Park Michael Sobell Centre: The Jam / Department S / The Questions
 London Fulham Golden Lion: Mickey Jupp Band
 London Fulham Greyhound: Wreckless Eric / The Lucky Saddles
 London Fulham King's Head: Trimmer & Jenkins
 London Greenwich White Swan: Talk Like That
 London Hammersmith Clarendon Hotel: The Chuffs / The Dark
 London Hammersmith Odeon: Joan Armatrading
 London Hampstead Starlight Room: The Rimshots / The Danger Men
 London Herne Hill Half Moon: The Refreshers / Lino's Lost Patrol
 London Islington Hope & Anchor: The Cobras
 London Lambeth The Angel: Up-Sect / The Shoppers

London N4 The Stapleton: Dave Ellis Band
 London NW 2 Hogs Grunt: Fast Games / The Bac Band
 London Plumstead Lord Raglan: The Escorts
 London Putney White Lion: Juice On The Loose / Tony McPhee
 London Rainbow Theatre: The Exploited / Black Flag / Honey Bane / The Insane
 London Royal Albert Hall: The King's Singers
 London Soho Pizza Express: Danny Moss Quartet / Jeanie Lambe
 London Southgate The Rox: The Comic Strip Revue / Combo Passe
 London Stockwell Old Queen's Head: Mainland / Crisis
 London Stockwell The Plough: Jimmy Roche Band
 London Stoke Newington Pegasus: Big Chief
 London Tottenham Court Road Dominion Theatre: Platinum Needles/The Civilians/ Stormchild/Made in England ('Opportunity Rocks' final)
 London University College: The Cheaters
 London Upstairs at Ronnie Scott's: The Beatroots
 London Victoria The Venue: Q-Tips
 London West Hampstead Moonlight Club: The Almost Brothers (lunchtime) / Crown of Thorns (evening)
 London Wimbledon Nelson's Club: Root Jackson & The GB Blues Co
 London W1 Dover Street Wine Bar: Gilly Elkin Band
 London W1 Embassy Club: Diodes
 London W14 Sunset Jazz: Chris Barber Band
 Manchester Polytechnic: Dr Feelgood
 Northampton Nene College: Nation 3 / The Bootleg Beatles
 Norwich Bethel St Labour Club: Vital Disorders
 Norwich Labour Club: Vital Disorders
 Nottingham Rock City: Nils Lofgren
 Oldham The Greengate: Stits
 Oxford New Theatre: Gillan / Budgie
 Oxford Pennyfarthing: Spring Offensive
 Plymouth Ark Royal: Matrix
 Preston Guildhall: Thin Lizzy
 Reading Central Club: Aswad
 Retford Porterhouse: Way Of The West
 Sheffield Lyceum Theatre: Squeeze
 Shoreham Community Centre: Johnny & The Roccas
 Slough Studio 1: Here & Now
 Southampton Joiners Arms: The New Breed
 Southport Arts Centre: Al Grey / Buddy Tate
 St Albans City Hall: Haircut 100
 St Austell Cornwall Coliseum: Billie Jo Spears
 Stockport Mersey Precinct: Belgian Bitch
 Stoke North Staffs Polytechnic: Eurythmics
 Stroud Leisure Centre: Hawkwind
 Tonymandy Naval Club: Ohbo Paronti
 Weston-super-Mare Old Pier: The Revillos
 Wishaw Crown Hotel (lunchtime): The Pests
 Wokingham Angie's: We're Only Human

Sunday

13th

Nils Lofgren: Birmingham

Bath University: The Beat
 Birmingham Barrel Organ: Otto's Bazaar
 Birmingham Odeon: Nils Lofgren
 Birmingham Railway Hotel: The Out
 Birmingham Repertory Theatre: Sweet Substitute / Pat Halcox-Pete York All Stars / Chris Barber Band
 Birmingham Strathallan Hotel: Mike Osborne Septet
 Birmingham (Yardley) The Swan: Video
 Bradford Manhattan Club: Xero
 Bristol Locarno: The Stray Cats
 Bromley The Northover (lunchtime): Bill Scott & Ian Ellis
 Camberley Lakeside Club: Max Boyce
 Cardiff Sophia Gardens: Duran Duran
 Cardiff Top Rank: The Exploited / Black Flag
 Chadwell Heath Greyhound: Le Mat
 Cleethorpes Pier Hotel: Nosferati
 Gillingham Central Hotel: Chelsea
 Gillingham King Charles Hotel: Hot Cuisine
 Harlow Square One: Attila The Stockbroker
 Hatfield Polytechnic: Limelight
 High Wycombe Nags Head: The Alligators
 Hull Clouds: Fault
 Kendal Brewery Arts Centre (lunchtime): Duncan McFarlane Big Band
 Kettering Kings Arms (lunchtime): Dave Johnson Jazz Band & Guests
 Leeds Royal Park Hotel: Windows
 Little Sutton Municipal Golf Club: Stoneground
 London Battersea Arts Centre (lunchtime): Bob Taylor's Full Frontal Rhythm Boys
 London Battersea Nags Head: Jugular Vein
 London Charing Cross Duke of Buckingham: The Invisibles
 London Clapham Two Brewers: Results
 London Clapham 101 Club: Drama / Howard Jones
 London Covent Garden Rock Garden: English Dream / Sneaked Preview / Devotion
 London Covent Garden The Canteen: Juliet Amlet / Errol Clarke
 London Deptford The Duke: The Electric Bluebirds
 London Drury Lane Theatre Royal: Cleo Laine / John Dankworth / George Melly / John Williams
 London East Dulwich Old Cherry Tree: Starcore
 London Elephant & Castle County Terrace Tavern: Avenue
 London Finchley Torrington: The Cobras
 London Finsbury Michael Sobell Sports Centre: The Jam / Second Image / The Rimshots

London Fulham Golden Lion: The 45's
 London Fulham Greyhound: Duffo / Ronnie Golden
 London Fulham Kings Head: Salt
 London Hammersmith Clarendon Hotel: Hidden Charms / Modern Life
 London Hammersmith Odeon: Joan Armatrading
 London Islington Hope & Anchor: Calling Hearts
 London Kennington The Cricketers: Trimmer & Jenkins
 London Lambeth The Angel: The Introze / Talk
 London N.11 Standard Social Club (lunchtime): Young Jazz Big Band
 London N.W.2 Hogs Grunt: Ken Barton Band
 London Parsons Green White Horse: Double Image
 London Putney Half Moon: Barbara Thompson's Paraphernalia
 London Putney White Lion: Kevin Stenson Band
 London Soho Pizza Express: Colin Bates Duo
 London Stockwell Old Queen's Head: As, Hem, Syrup
 London Strand Lyceum Ballroom: The Pretenders/Vic Godard & Subway Sect
 London Stratford Green Man (lunchtime): The Funky B's
 London Tottenham The Railway: Talk Like That
 London Tottenham The Spurs: Lickmalolly
 London Tottenham-Court Road Dominion Theatre: Ralph McTell
 London Tottenham-Court Road The Horseshoe: Overkill / Burn
 London Wapping Autonomy Centre: Epsilons / Sinyx / Screaming Babies / Eratics
 London West Hampstead Moonlight Club: Motor Boys Motor / The Extras
 London Wimbledon Nelson's Club: Lee Kosmin
 London W.1 Dover Street Wine Bar: Pete Brown & Ian Lynn
 Manchester Apollo Theatre: Japan
 Newquay Central Hotel: The Winners
 Northampton The Roadmenders: Discharge / G.B.H.
 Oldham Birch Hall Hotel: Al Grey / Buddy Tate
 Poole Arts Centre: Hawkwind
 Peterborough Gladstone Arms: The Precautions
 Plymouth Ark Royal: Canyon (lunchtime) / Playhouse (evening)
 Plymouth Top Rank: Gary Glitter/The Gas
 Portsmouth Locarno: Aswad
 Poynton Folk Centre: The McCalmans
 Reading Top Rank: Slade / Spider
 Royston The Railway (lunchtime): Stits
 Sheffield Hallamshire Hotel: E-Plus
 Sheffield Lyceum Theatre: Roddy Radiation & The Tearjerkers / The Bureau / The Mo-dettes
 Stanmore Middlesex & Herts Country Club: Q Tips
 Swansea Dublin Arms: Ohbo Paronti
 Wokingham Angie's: Music Company

Monday

14th

The Higsons: London

Bath Pavilion: Hawkwind
 Birmingham Mercat Cross: The Thrillers
 Birmingham National Exhibition Centre: Electric Light Orchestra/Voyager
 Birmingham Odeon: John Holt
 Birmingham Railway Hotel: Chainsaw
 Birmingham Railway Hotel: Mayday
 Bordon Robin Hood: Boogie Chillun
 Brighton Dome: Gillan/Budgie
 Brighton Sherry's: The Polo Club
 Brighton Top Rank: The Stray Cats/Screaming Lord Sutch
 Bristol Locarno: The Exploited/Black Flag
 Bury St. Edmunds Theatre Royal: Chris Barber Band
 Camberley Lakeside Club: Max Boyce
 Cardiff Chapter Centre: The Beatroots
 Cardiff Sophia Gardens: Slade/Spider
 Chadwell Heath Greyhound: National Gold/Room 13
 Durham University: Dr. Feelgood
 Exeter University: The Beat/Trimmer & Jenkins
 Hertford The Woolpack: Raunch & Roll Band
 Hull Tower Ballroom: Roddy Radiation & The Tearjerkers/The Bureau/The Mo-dettes
 Ilford Cauliflower Hotel: Original East Side Stompers
 Ipswich Gaumont Theatre: Billie Jo Spears
 Leicester De Montfort Hall: Thin Lizzy
 Liverpool Pyramid Club: The Teardrop
 Liverpool (for three days): Explosives
 Liverpool Camden Dingwalls: Inner City Unit/3 Laws
 London Charing Cross Duke of Buckingham: The Polkadots
 London Charing Cross Heaven: The Higsons/Dislocation Dance
 London Clapham 101 Club: Precinct
 London Covent Garden Rock Garden: 13 At Midnight/Reverb & Barbed
 London Covent Garden The Canteen: Alain Debray
 London Epping Rendezvous Club: Anti-Establishment/The Legendary Beer/BootsPunk Band
 London Euston The Golf Club: The Past Seven Days
 London Fulham Golden Lion: Bob Kerr's Whoopie Band
 London Fulham Greyhound: Bzarre/Mad Shadows
 London Fulham King's Head: John Spencer & Johnny G
 London Hammersmith Clarendon Hotel: Paradise Of Cain/Actified/The Solicitors
 London Hammersmith Odeon: Joan Armatrading
 London Hammersmith Palais: The Jam/TV 21/Rudi

London Hampstead Starlight Room: Mental Notes/The Thin Men
 London Islington Hope & Anchor: Baby & The Monsters
 London Kennington The Cricketers: Talk Like That London Kentish Town Bull & Gate: Big Chief
 London Lambeth The Angel: The Flat Tops
 London Leytonstone Laurel & Hardy: Starcore
 London Marquee Club: Chelsea
 London N.W.2 Hogs Grunt: Sounddogs
 London Oxford St. 100 Club: Pat Crumley's Edge
 London Peckham Bouncing Ball: Lionheart/Marquis De Sade
 London Ronnie Scott's Club: George Melly & The Feetwarmers (for three weeks)
 London Stockwell Old Queen's Head: Ukraine/Top Secret
 London Stoke Newington Pegasus: That's Cooking
 London Strand Lyceum Ballroom: The Pretenders/The Flying Padovani
 London Victoria The Venue: Steve Harley & Cockney Rebel
 London Wembley Arena: The Police/Jools Holland & His Millionaires
 London West Hampstead Moonlight Club: Miles Over Matter/Second Window
 London W.1 (Baker St.) The Barracuda: Malaria
 London W.1 (Dean St.) Pink Monday at Gossips: The Gas
 London W.1 Gillyray's Bar: Fred Rickshaw's Hot Goodies
 Manchester Lesser Free Trade Hall: Durutti Column/Kevin Hewick
 Margate Winter Gardens: Bad Manners
 Middlesbrough Town Hall Crypt: Limelight
 Newcastle City Hall: Japan
 Newcastle University: The Pressure Drop
 Preston Clouds: The Cheaters
 Rugby Oakfield Club: Al Grey/Buddy Tate
 Sheffield City Hall: Bucks Fizz
 St. Austell Cornwall Coliseum: Adam & The Ants
 Swansea Top Rank: Squeeze
 Watford Bailey's: The Dooleys (for a week)
 Worthing West Cumbria College: Natural Scientist

Tuesday

15th

The Stray Cats: London

Aylesbury Grammar School: Marillion/Mari Wilson & The Imaginations
 Birmingham Barrel Organ: Cromo
 Birmingham Mercat Cross: The Ramparts
 Birmingham Odeon: Saxon / Lionheart
 Birmingham Railway Hotel: Money
 Birmingham Star Club: Strumpet
 Bournemouth Winter Gardens: Slade/Spider
 Bracknell South Hill Park Arts Centre: Pete Allen Band
 Bristol Locarno: Squeeze
 Bury The Derby Hall: Tractor
 Cardiff Sophia Gardens: The Beat
 Chadwell Heath Greyhound: The Purple Hearts/The Pencils
 Chester Edwardians Wine Bar: Stun The Guards
 Durham Brewers Arms: The Stingrays
 Edinburgh Playhouse Theatre: Japan
 Folkestone Leas Cliff Hall: Gillan/Budgie
 Gillingham King Charles Hotel: Secret Affair
 Hemel Hempstead Old Town Cellar: Blazing Red/Click Click/Agent Orange
 Leeds Parkers Wine Bar: Xero
 Leicester Braunstone Hotel: Al Grey/Buddy Tate
 Leicester De Montfort Hall: Bucks Fizz
 Leicester Palais: Gary Glitter/The Gas
 Liverpool Warehouse: Roddy Radiation & The Tearjerkers/The Bureau/The Mo-dettes
 London Camberwell Adventure Rooms: Sans Culottes
 London Canning Town The Balmoral: The Wrecktangles
 London Charing Cross Duke of Buckingham: Wit Of A Banker
 London Clapham 101 Club: Red Army Choir/Danger Men
 London Covent Garden Rock Garden: 25th Street/His The Villain/Creep Shadow Creep
 London Covent Garden The Canteen: Mitch Dakon Jam Band/Billy Mitchell
 London Euston The Golf Club: The Dark
 London Fulham Greyhound: Gerry McAvoys & Friends/Rob & The Rustlers
 London Hammersmith Clarendon Hotel: Real Imitations/Murphy Federation/Blue
 London Hammersmith Odeon: Joan Armatrading
 London Hammersmith Palais: The Jam/Ruts DC/Reaction
 London Hornsey Kings Head: Main Avenue Jazzband
 London Islington Hope & Anchor: The London Apaches
 London Kentish Town Bull & Gate: The 45's
 London Lambeth The Angel: The Telegrams
 London Marquee Club: The Blondes
 London N.W.2 Hogs Grunt: Risk A
 London Soho Pizza Express: All-Star Jazzband
 London Stockwell Old Queen's Head: Babylon Rebels/The Hamsters
 London Strand King's College: Vic Godard & Subway Sect
 London Strand Lyceum Ballroom: The Stray Cats/Screaming Lord Sutch
 London Tottenham-Court Road Dominion Theatre: The Pretenders/The Flying Padovani
 London Victoria The Venue: Steve Harley & Cockney Rebel
 London Wembley Arena: The Police/Jools Holland & His Millionaires
 London West Hampstead Moonlight Club: Perfect Crime/We're Only Human London Woolwich Tramshed: Chris Barber Band

London W.1 (Wardour St) Whisky-A-Go-Go: Nick Phtas
 Manchester Apollo Theatre: Nils Lofgren
 Poole Arts Centre: Duran Duran
 Sandown Pier Pavilion: The King's Singers
 Soutport Arts Centre: About Time
 St Albans Adelaide Wine Bar: The Nashville Teens
 St Austell Cornwall Coliseum: Adam & The Ants
 Stockport Smugglers Nitespot: Belgian Bitch
 Sunderland Fusions: The Cheaters

Wednesday

16th

Saxon: London

Aberdeen Valhallas: Radio Ghosts
 Aldershot West End Centre: Roaring Jelly
 Birmingham Barrel Organ: Osprey
 Birmingham Golden Eagle: Afrikan Star/Fast Relief
 Birmingham Locarno: Roddy Radiation & The Tearjerkers/The Bureau/The Mo-dettes
 Birmingham Odeon: Hot Gossip
 Birmingham Railway Hotel: Ezra Pound
 Birmingham (Yardley) Bulls Head: Roses
 Birmingham Town Hall: Ralph McTell
 Blackpool Jinks: The Cheaters
 Brighton Now Regent: Vic Godard & Subway Sect
 Bristol Tiffany's: Heavy Heads/Ore
 Cardiff University: Aswad
 Chadwell Heath Greyhound: Marillion/Theatre Of The Absurd
 Cheltenham Plough Inn: Roadsters
 Colwyn Bay Pier Pavilion: The Exploited
 Corby Strathclyde Hotel Rafter's Bar: Nation 3
 Croydon The Star: The 45's / The Marines
 Darlington Arts Centre: The Watersons/Martin Carthy
 Eastleigh Concorde Club: Al Grey/Buddy Tate
 Edinburgh Odeon: Nils Lofgren
 Edinburgh Royal Highland Exhibition Hall: Electric Light Orchestra/Voyager
 Epsom Baths Hall: Dollar
 Heckmondwike Craven Heifer: Not In Colour
 Kendal Brewery Arts Centre: Mountain Road
 Kingston Polytechnic: Secret Affair
 Leeds Pack Horse Hotel: Xero
 Leeds University: Verba Verba
 London Barbican Centre: The King's Singers
 London Battersea Arts Centre: John Townsend's Christmas Night
 London Brixton The Fridge: Eurythmics
 London Charing Cross Duke of Buckingham: The Invisibles
 London Chelsea College of Art: Rio & The Robots
 London City University: Sax Mania
 London Clapham 101 Club: Loose Talk
 London Covent Garden The Canteen: Johnny M & The Uptown Rhythm Boys
 London Elephant & Castle Southbank Polytechnic: Resuks
 London Euston The Golf Club: No Illusions/Graduate
 London Fulham Golden Lion: De Metro's
 London Fulham Greyhound: Shea
 Ramah/The Helicopters
 London Hammersmith Odeon: Duran Duran
 London Holborn Princess Louise: Fuchsia & The Fabled
 London Islington Hope & Anchor: The Flying Club
 London Kennington The Cricketers: The Beatroots
 London Kensington Imperial College: Wa Pa Chal
 London Knightsbridge The Grove: Fred Rickshaw's Hot Goodies
 London Lambeth The Angel: Duphoris
 London Last Dance: The Purple Panic/Hiss The Villain
 London N.W.2 Hogs Grunt: Arc Connexion
 London Oxford St 100 Club: Chris Barber Band
 London Peckham Walmer Castle: The Firm/The Elite
 London Plumstead The Ship: The Blackout
 London Rainbow Theatre: Saxon/Lionheart
 London Soho Pizza Express: Peanuts
 Hucko/Fred Hunt Trio
 London Stockwell Old Queen's Head: The Recruits/Maureen's Wrestling
 London Stoke Newington Pegasus: The Electric Bluebirds
 London Tottenham-Court Road Dominion Theatre: The Pretenders/The Flying Padovani
 London Victoria The Venue: The Belle Stars
 London Wembley Arena: The Police/Jools Holland & His Millionaires
 London West Hampstead Moonlight Club: The Balloons/The Cardiacs
 London W.1 (Dean Street) Gossips: Nightshade
 Maidstone Mid-Kent Centre: Hawkwind
 Manchester (Ashton) Shades: The Politicians
 Margate Winter Gardens: Bucks Fizz
 Newcastle The Cooperage: The Hostages
 Nottingham Rock City: Slade/Spider
 Plymouth Ark Royal: Five-a-side
 Poole Wessex Hall: Bad Manners
 Reading Hexagon Theatre: Gordon Giltrap
 Sheffield George IV Hotel: Empty Bed Blues Band
 Southampton Top Rank: Squeeze
 South Woodford Railway Ball: Original East Side Stompers
 Stanmore Middlesex & Herts Country Club: The Heartbeats
 St. Austell Cornwall Coliseum: Cliff Richard
 Stourbridge McCoy's: Sub Zero
 Swinton Duke of Wellington: Rockin Horse
 Washington Biddick Farm Arts Centre: Life Boat Boys/Let Them Eat Cake/The Kenneil Club/The Mad Daddies/Deathwish/Jump Boys
 West Bromwich Stork Hotel: The Xit
 Wokingham Angie's: The Swinging Guitars

LIVE ADS (01-261 6153)

the STAR
298 LONDON RD.
CROYDON

Open 7 nights a week
Phone
01-684 1360

Wednesday 9th December MAINLAND + The Extras £1.00	Saturday 12th December NATIONAL GOLD + EL34 £1.00 At last! Hard Rock has hit Croydon Not to be missed
Thursday 10th December R'n'B with BRIAN KNIGHT Legendary slide guitarist and His Band £1.00	Sunday lunchtime SCORPIO Free
Friday 11th December COBRAS + Messenger £1.00	Tuesday 15th December THE EXTRAS £1.00
Saturday lunchtime SOUTHERN COMFORT Backing band for Long John Baldry More Blues than the Blues Band plus natty Brass Section Free	Wednesday 16th December THE 45's + Mainland £1.00 "Irresistible to even the most hardened voyeur" — Sounds. Five-part harmonies Beach Boys? This lot are better.

FINAL SOLUTION PRESENTS

BAUHAUS
ZEITUNG-DA!
BLAZING AFFAIR
PLUS SPECIAL GUESTS
& NIGHTVISION VIDEO

7.30PM FRIDAY DEC 11TH
WALTHAMSTOW ASSEMBLY HALL
FOREST ROAD E17
(WALTHAMSTOW CENTRAL TUBE/BB)

ADVANCE TICKETS £3.50 FROM SMALL WONDER HONEY TONK ROUGH TRADE
BONAPARTS (KINGS) & PREMIER BOX OFFICE

ROCK CITY
TALBOT STREET, NOTTINGHAM
Tel: 0602 412544

Open 8 pm — 2 am

Thursday 10th December STEVE HARLEY and Cockney Rebel + Siam £3.00 adv	Thursday 22nd December STRAY CATS + Screaming Lord Sutch £3.00 adv
Saturday 12th December NILS LOFGREN £3.00 adv	Thursday 24th December XMAS FUTURIST DISCO £3.00 adv
Friday 18th December SUZI QUATRO £4.00 adv	Thursday 31st December 9 BELOW ZERO £3.00 adv

Must be 18 years of age or over. Tickets from Rock City Box Office, Way Ahead Selectadisc, Victoria Box Office, Nottingham — Records, Derby — Syd Booth, Mansfield — Pride, Newark — Record Shop, Grantham — Tracks, AW Associates, Lincoln — In the Groove, Arnold — Rock It, Ilkeston — or by Post from ROCK CITY. PLEASE ENCLOSE SAE

PERRY HAINES
PRESENTS
SAT 12th DEC
COMBO PASSE
+
20th Century Coyote
(Comic Strip)
DJ STEVE LEWIS

ROX
LONDON'S NEW DANCE CLUB
EVERY SATURDAY
ROYALTY SOUTHGATE R14
1 min Southgate Und. Stn.
Tel. 01-226 4112

£2.50 8.00pm

MCP presents

SQUEEZE
IT'S ALL HAPPENING

RAINBOW THEATRE, LONDON plus A Flock of Seagulls
THURSDAY 17th DECEMBER 7.30 p.m.
Tickets £3.50 Available from B O Tel. 01 263 3148 and usual agents.

★

FOR DETAILS OF ADVERTISING ON THE LIVE PAGE
RING 01-261 6153

FINAL SOLUTION & HAYLIN PRESENT

THE HIGSONS • DISLOCATION DANCE
TWICE A MAN • NIGHT VISION VIDEO

8.00pm MONDAY DECEMBER 14th ADMISSION £3.00 ONSET NIGHT OVERSOLD ONLY THE ARCHES, VILLIERS ST. WC2

DIVERSEN at the BARRACUDA
1 BAKER St, W1 (903 2062)

Monday 14th December From Germany MALARIA Diversen	Tuesday 22nd December INCOGNITO
--	---

Adm £3.00 members, £3.50 non-members 9.30-2.30pm
The best dance music in town spun by Parady 75 — "a double act"

THE GOLF CLUB
383 Euston Road, N.W.1
Opp Gr Portland St Tube

Licensed 8.30-1am

Thursday 10th December THE DECORATORS + Lucky Saddles £1.50	Monday 14th December THE PAST SEVEN DAYS + Support £1.50
Friday 11th December THE BLUE CATS + King Kurt £1.50	Tuesday 15th December THE DARK + Dead Man Shadow £1.50
Saturday 12th December THE DISTRACTIONS + Empty Vessels £1.75	Wednesday 16th December NO ILLUSION + Graduate £1.50

DJ FOX

SLOUGH COLLEGE
Wellington St, Slough

present their Christmas Party night with

THE BUREAU MO-DETTES
Roddy Radiation and
THE TEARJERKERS

THURSDAY 17th DECEMBER 8pm

Tickets: £2.50 Students; £3.00 non-students available from usual outlets

NO NUKES MUSIC brings you another benefit against bombs.

PIGBAG
THE RAINCOATS
THE PSYCHOTICS

Brixton Town Hall
Brixton Hill SW2

FRI 18th DEC
Doors open 7.30
Tickets £2.50
£2.25 advance
£2.00 unwaged
Enquiries 486 4564

LIVE AND 100% HEAVY ROCK at the BOUNCING BALL CLUB
43 PECKHAM HIGH STREET, LONDON SE15
6pm-11pm EVERY MONDAY 01-733 4803 (office) 01-703 3347 (club)

Dec 14
IRON HEART
Plus MARQUIS DE SADE Adm £2

Dec 21
720
Plus MARILLION Adm £2

Dec 28
NATIONAL GOLD
+ Mootier Adm £2

Jan 4
L. A. HOOKER
+ Legend Adm £2

THE CIRCUS
BOULEVARD THEATRE
WALKERS COURT, BRISTOL
LONDON W1

WED 9th DEC
MASS + DIE

THURS 10th DEC
THE PASSAGE

WED 16th DEC
THE INEVITABLE

THURS 17th DEC
ANTHONY MOORE

TICKETS £2.50
Box Office: 01-437 2661

RICHMOORE presents
The
EXPLOITED
+ SPECIAL GUESTS BLACK FLAG
TOP RANK, CARDIFF SUNDAY 13th DECEMBER 8pm
0222 26538

STEVE GIBBONS BAND + SPECIAL GUESTS
BIRMINGHAM LOCARNO — WEDNESDAY 23rd DECEMBER
021-643 1286

THE GREYHOUND
900 High Road,
Chadwell Heath,
Essex

Nearest B/R Goodmays or Chadwell Heath 900 right turn to Chadwell London

Admission £3.00
(£1.50 Fri & Sat)
8pm — midnight
10.30pm Sunday

Thursday 10th Dec Mod Night STRIPES + The Reactions £1	Friday 11th Dec Heavy Rock VARDIS + Triarchy £1.50
Saturday 12th Dec SIAM + Mad Shadows £1	Sunday 13th Dec Psychodelic Night LE MAT £1
Monday 14th Dec Hard Rock NATIONAL GOLD + Room 13 £1	Tuesday 15th Dec PURPLE HEARTS + The Pencils £1
Wednesday 16th Dec MARILLION + Theatre of the Absurd £2.50	Thursday 17th Dec SECRET AFFAIR + Bloomsbury Set (advance tks on sale £2)

THE ANGEL
on Lambeth Walk SE11.
01-735 4309
(Lambeth North Tube)

Thursday 10th RUDI + Apocalypse £1	Friday 11th WRECKLESS ERIC £1.50
Saturday 12th UP-SECT + The Shoppers £1	Sunday 13th THE INTROZE + Talk £1
Monday 14th FLAT TOPS £1	Tuesday 15th THE TELEGENTS + Support 50p
Wednesday 16th Audition Night DUPHORAS LAST DANCE + PURPLE PANIC + HISS THE VILLAIN £1	Thursday 17th DISCOVOID + Fear of Falling £1

Cinema

Scala CLUB CINEMA
KINGS CROSS 278 8052/0051

Thurs 10th
Goulding's NIGHTMARE ALLEY 4.30 8.55
+ Bette Davis in ALL ABOUT EVE 6.30

Fri 11th
Goulding's NIGHTMARE ALLEY 4.30 8.55
+ Bette Davis in ALL ABOUT EVE 2.05 6.30

Sat 12th
Goulding's NIGHTMARE ALLEY 4.30 8.55
+ Bette Davis in ALL ABOUT EVE 2.05 6.30
11.30 All night John Carpenter/Horror

Sun 13th
1.30 KAGEMUSHA (Sep part)
Goulding's THE RAZOR'S EDGE 4.30 8.35
+ THREE FACES OF EVE 7.00

Mon 14th
Goulding's THE RAZOR'S EDGE 4.30 8.35
+ THREE FACES OF EVE 3.00 7.00

Tues 15th
Goulding's THE RAZOR'S EDGE 4.30 8.35
+ THREE FACES OF EVE 3.00 7.00

Wed 16th
Pesolini's SALO 1.00 3.00 5.00 7.00

Thurs 17th
Kinski in NOSFERATU 3.10 7.15
+ BAD TIMING 1.00 5.05 9.10

ABC West End Film Guide (EMI)

ABC SHAFTESBURY AVE
Sep Pers Seats Bable Last Part Mon-Fri All weeklong parts Bar, Pkg nearby
MOMMIE DEAREST (AA)
Wk & Sun 2.0, 5.05, 8.05
Late show Sat 11.00

ABC 12.34 EDGWARE ROAD
FLESH GORDON (X)
2.45, 5.50, 9.05 Sun 5.50, 9.05
JUNGLEBUNGER (X)
1.20, 4.25, 7.30 Sun 4.25, 7.30
Late show Fri & Sat 11.15
KENTUCKY FRIED MOVIE (X)
7.05, 5.30, 9.05 Sun 5.30, 9.05
THE OTHER CINDERELLA (X)
3.40, 7.05 Sun 7.05
Late show Fri & Sat 11.15
MIDNIGHT EXPRESS (X)
Wk & Sun 4.10, 8.35
MEVIGAR (X)
2.0, 6.20 Sun 6.20
Late show Fri & Sat 11.15
SCANNERS (X)
1.30, 5.05, 8.50 Sun 5.05, 8.50
THE HILLS HAVE EYES (X)
3.70, 7.00 Sun 7.00
Late show Sat 11.15

ABC 12.3 BAYSWATER (Queensway)
1: MOMMIE DEAREST (AA)
Prigs 2.0, 4.25, 7.35 Sun 4.30, 7.35
Late show Sat 11.00

2: KENTUCKY FRIED MOVIE (X)
2.0, 5.30, 9.05 Sun 5.30, 9.05
THE OTHER CINDERELLA (X)
3.35, 7.05 Sun 7.05
Late show Tonight & Sat 11.00

3: SHOGUN (A)
Progs 1.15, 4.20, 7.25 Sun 4.30, 7.35
Late show Tonight & Sat 11.00

ABC 12.34 FULHAM ROAD
Sean Bable Last Sep Prog Lond bar
Doors open 15 mins prior

1: GALLIPOLI (A)
Sep Progs Wk & Sun 1.45, 5.0, 8.45

2: MOMMIE DEAREST (AA)
Sep Progs Wk & Sun 1.45, 5.0, 8.30

3: KENTUCKY FRIED MOVIE (X)
3.45, 9.50
THE OTHER CINDERELLA (X)
Sep Prog Wk & Sun 2.0, 8.0

4: SHOGUN (A)
Sep Progs Wk & Sun 1.45, 5.0, 8.30

5: 5th Great Month Steven Spielberg's
RAIDERS OF THE LOST ARK (A)
Sep Progs Wk & Sun 2.0, 5.0, 8.30

All Progs At EMI Cinemas Subject To Late Change

Special Offer: Monday Only All Seats £2.00 on all above. Concess for a season

ENQUIRIES for all OOO West End & Greater London Cinemas.
RING TELEDATA 01-200 0200 (24HRS)

Human League Dare

OMD Architecture & Morality

Bad Manners Gosh It's

Stray Cats Gonna Ball

UB40 Present Arms

Adam & the Ants Prince Charming

A SLEEVE FOR THE STOCKING WON'T COST AN ARM 'N' A LEG.

Especially with Woolworth Record Blitz, where you get the best choice of records and tapes at super low prices. With cassettes same price as the albums. All Blitz prices shown are below supplier's suggested prices.

BLITZ PRICE £3.99

Album or Cassette

AC/DC	For Those About To
Joan Armatrading	Walk Under Ladders
ELO	Time
Genesis	Abacab
Madness	Seven
Meatloaf	Dead Ringer
Not the Nine O'Clock News	Hedgehog Sandwich
Hazel O'Conner	Cover Plus
Ozzy Osbourne	Diary of a Madman
Police	Ghost in the Machine
Cliff Richard	Wired for Sound
Diana Ross	Why Do Fools Fall In Love
Shakin Stevens	This 'Ole House
*Soft Cell	Non Stop Erotic Cabaret
*Siouxsie & the Banshees	Pop Factory
Spandau Ballet	Journey to Glory
Starsound	Stars on 45 Vol. 2
Rod Stewart	Tonight I'm Yours
*Teardrop Explodes	Wilder
Right Fit	Back to the Sixties
Toyah	Anthem
Vangelis	Best of Vangelis

BLITZ PRICE £5.99

Album or Cassette

*Jacksons	Live
Rush	Exit Stage Left
Bob Seger	Nine Tonight

BLITZ PRICE £4.49

Album or Cassette

Bad Manners	Gosh It's
Black Sabbath	Mob Rules
Blondie	Best of Blondie
Graham Bonnett	Line Up
Marianne Faithful	Dangerous Acquaintances
Jasper Carrott	Beat the Carrott
Depeche Mode	Speak and Spell
Neil Diamond	Jazz Singer
Godley & Creme	Ismism
Hawkwind	Sonic Attack
*James Last	Hansimania
Bob Marley	Chances Are
Gary Numan	Dance
Ottowan	Greatest Hits
Sad Cafe	Ole
Shadows	Hits Right Up Your Street
Simon & Garfunkel	Collection
Ultravox	Vienna
Ultravox	Rage In Eden
Boxcar Willie	20 Great Hits

BLITZ PRICE £4.99

Album or Cassette

Gillan	Double Trouble
Queen	Greatest Hits
Rainbow	Best of Rainbow
Diana Ross	All the Great Hits

BLITZ PRICE £4.29

Album or Cassette

Elkie Brooks	Pearls
Heaven 17	Penthouse and Pavement
Imagination	Body Talk
Linx	Go Ahead
Barry Manilow	If I Should Love Again
*Pink Floyd	Collection of Great Dance Songs
Pretenders	Pretenders II
Rolling Stones	Tattoo You
Yes	Classic Yes

*Availability subject to release date.

You'll love
the change at WOOLWORTH
And Woolco

Items subject to availability. Price and availability of advertised products may be different in Northern Ireland, the Republic of Ireland and the Channel Islands.

CORONATION STREET DON'T YOU CALL IT CORRY?

THE WINDOW CLEANER

December 1981, and Britain's favourite television serial is 21 this week. To honour the occasion, IAN PENMAN (academic worry lines, holding hands with the stars) and KEVIN CUMMINS (loitering with intent, interruptions) visited the Street of a thousand million viewers. Will they — or the Street — ever be the same again? Scene One take One. Cue rooftops and trumpets...

THE AUTHOR &
HIS MOTHER FIGURE
• Julian Cope, January 1981

WHAT is the secret at the dark end of the Street? Is all human life really here... or is it only our rubbish, waiting to be recycled?

IT'S ABOUT this friend of mine, who is tough and broody-minded over all the most treacherous folds of Everyday ideology and its kept images; who cannot tolerate the 'accepted' corrals of authority, family, love and sex roles, class, politics, national traditions... or the watery reflection they present in the media, and hidden away in various pockets of culture.

So, let us suppose there existed a popular television series which — it was generally 'accepted' — everybody loved and followed and couldn't fault. A programme comprising the trails and tabulations of an 'average' working-class community; middle-aged for the most part, exclusively white, happily married or at least stoically monogamous; a tawdry pub pool positively teeming with offensive stereotypes — blokes belly-to-belly at the bar spuming common-sense and sinking pints, birds twittering over their gossips' gin and tonic; people of limited ambition and little self-reflexiveness.

In short, a working-class with politics enough to cold-shoulder Watt Tyler as a bit of a bolshy bleeder. A 'timeless' working-class taking an eternal catnap in a cherishable ice-age, and not waiting for the meltdown.

Nah, never, go on. Don't be so ridiculous; no one would credit it! And as for this friend of mine, well, they wouldn't be caught dead...

EVERYBODY WATCHES Coronation Street and everybody knows that everyone they know watches it and yet still it is assumed, from time to time, that there must be a 'secret' for its success. It's like getting halfway through a courtship or to the quarter finals of the FA Cup only to draw a halt to the gathering urgency of the proceedings, raise a pacifying palm and say wait, I must reason why!

But this — the 21st anniversary of Coronation Street — is one of those times, and we must query this 'secret'. Nobody, of course, is interested; nobody seems overly concerned to know what beats at the heart of the Street. It is not like the movies where there's always the trek after an author — a justifying director or scriptwriter or studio. There is little beyond a lighthearted acknowledgement of the Coronation Street actors and their characters, or both.

Coronation Street is hardly 21 years young, yet it seems able to maintain an impression of being both propelled by its own vast history and of staying outside the ravages of real time.

"Eee Elsie, you're ready for the knacker's yard," says someone to the resilient Mrs Tanner in one of the earliest episodes. Two decades hence and the unflattering remark would not really fit — which has less to do with the character in question than with Coronation Street's own unique metabolism. It does not pretend a cosmetic freedom from the conditions of memory; it will die on its feet, when and if.

Coronation Street is a continuum, a serial enclosed within the walls of one isolated community and restricted to its chosen world — that of everyday working-class life, of 'family drama'; the type of viewer-consuming trap that has come to be known as 'soap opera'. In such terms, Coronation Street is manifestly much better written, acted, staged and sustained (as TV narrative) than any of its immediate rivals — the most obvious one being Crossroads.

Coronation Street is viewed with the heart, with the permission of our warmer sensibilities, where Crossroads has to be manoeuvred — hopelessly marooned in plasticity and constantly on the verge of evaporation. The characters of Crossroads veer between unappealing caricature and a kind of celebrated emptiness. (Arthur Brownlow is surely the most terrifying man on TV: so remorselessly one-dimensional!) Personalities in Crossroads are only ever creditable when they are ridiculous; everyone is so humdrum it hurts, and there is not one single lovable — perhaps even likeable — character extant.

The rogues of Coronation Street are all too human. Even the Street's most endearing duffers and plodders seem to effortlessly bear, on their cruelly shaped cartoon bodies, heavy crosses of mortality, limitation and the acceptance of a long-suffered lot. (Feelings of meditative displacement are scorned as upwardly mobile, and existentialist moaners get short shrift in the Street; or, more precisely, they get killed off.)

Although Crossroads is the real soap and Coronation Street closer to 'social realism', our reliable latter does share certain devices and vices with the world of melodrama — it's where its structural homeland is, at any rate.

MELODRAMA is the pornography of our emotional lives, where too much light concentrates on a moth-mad eyelash rather than the unremitting seesaw of buttocks. As in pornography, the 'story' is subjugated out of existence, a laboured and flimsy prop whose real purpose is to facilitate as many possible opportunities for it to take place.

In melodrama's case it is a traumatic verbal intercourse, consummated in the exit of one partner (who's confessed all over the place) and the camera's subsequent over-dwelling on the emotion-raddled, lack-marked face of the other. It is an often self-defeatingly over-played grimace, and individual suffering tends to become deprived of all context. We move from drama to drama — revelation and retaliation — and perhaps recognise the motions. (Perhaps... pornography and melodrama are the truest representation of

ONE WAY

THE KEY TO THE STREET

CONTINUED

CORONATION STREET

ELSIE, EDDIE & STAN

They are all walking and talking wounded from the dawn-raids and damp squibs of love, but remain unrepentant (tremors such as Elsie's recent 'breakdown' are always resolved).

As Bet put it in an archetypal soliloquy on the cyclic vicissitudes of sexual engagement, they'll still always fall for the next fella.

They all know better, but the acceptance of this fatalism — and it is a neutral fatalism rather than a one-sided oppression — is soaked with a fierce humour and at times an equally fiercely good-humoured protest. The sly banter often heard in the Rovers is tactical, just as underhand as can be. Even Annie Walker is a hardened businessman (sic) and moves with easy cunning in the brewery world — scarcely a sorority after all. The cold, detached way she brought about Fred Gee's professional impasse this year was only the latest in a very long line of grand matriarchal coups.

In any comparison, the male characters pale into ineffectuality. Mike Baldwin's Dad is the exception who proves the rule; the candidacy for male viewer identification is a curious affair. No one (young) I know identifies with goody goody (or is he?) Brian Tilsley. For as long as there have been chaps our choice has bureaucracy, tower block paranoia, the whole insular, fragmented sweep of a social grind whose handiest painkiller is indeed television.

WE ARE STANDING, as our press release puts it, "in the middle of 2000 years of Manchester's history". Well, take your pick — Coronation Street is only 21 years old (2151 episodes after the first was broadcast on December 9, 1960), but the mud we are keeping company is in an area known as Castlefield.

It was designated a Conservation Area in 1979 and is something of a local hot spot, historically speaking. They're putting up a big museum to commemorate the fact, but we've been invited along with the rest of Fleet Street's elite to witness the inauguration of Granada's contribution to this "integration of civic and public enterprise" — the building of a new Coronation Street. The original is just around the corner, not quite lifesize so they have to shoot it at funny angles to make the doors and alleyways look convincingly negotiable.

The new Street is going to be large as life and intermittently open to the public; a real Rovers Return is planned, where "tourists can Cummins and I keep up an uninterrupted exchange of silly effusive giggles and mutually understood gazes of religious contemplation. We can't be . . . it's not really . . . real . . .

And why not? Coronation Street is something which has become irrevocably wound around our memory and outlook, a constant reference point, a fixed measure, a bloody marvel. Analytic prodding only ever takes place after the event . . . and the memory is still always a good one.

A mixture of adrenalin and unyielding awe keeps us sane as we're promptly and professionally shuttled from one interview to the next — fitted in and flagged down. At the end of the day Pat Phoenix (Elsie Tanner) takes one look at me and says, "You're tired, aren't you luv?" and I just wanted to die, it was so perfect. (Was that in the original script or added later?)

THE PRODUCER

BILL PODMORE took over as producer of Coronation Street in 1975 from Susi Hush, who had been the programme's one and only concession to radicality. (During our split and predictable urges?)

Consequently, the difference between a storm set in a boardroom and a tiff in the launderette is not — in the world of soap — so much one of class and power, but merely the same thing twice: leatherbound or latherbound. The point is in these interminable series, that the characters know they are unhappy but don't really know why. Sure they know their loved one is screwing around and they know their own melancholy, but the exhilarating leap into some more social knowledge is repressed.

There is an additional sexual dimension to this view. Melodrama — since its widespread inception in the Hollywood 'Woman's Picture' of the '40s and '50s — has always been considered somehow inherently (and often 'worthlessly') feminine . . . as well as one of the few places a woman could get the more substantial or intriguing role(s) in a moving plot. As suggested above, the pivotal shot in melodrama — the equivalent of what is known in the blunt glossary of hard core porn as the 'come shot' — is not of the aggressor and their withdrawal (of support, trust, permanence), but of a residually 'passive' victim's face and its silent, even absent quiver.

It's a bit louder, but still there in Coronation Street, which is female dominated. (Something also frequently claimed for the show's audience — an ill-considered empirical claim.)

It has a compelling cast of strong middle-aged women — and strongly sexual middle-aged women (Elsie, Bet, Rita, Vera).

been for Len Fairclough, Stan Ogden, Eddie Yates — Broddingnagian gallants, icons of advanced sloth, sodden soothsayers.

These gnarled old ne'r-do-wells we look up to not even as active losers (unlike all those snappy Hollywood 'anti'-heroes) but as complete chumps. What needs do they gratify deep within us? Do they appease our considerable guilt over ignored opportunities, misspent times, lack of adventure and childish delight in muddleheaded misadventures? They give us confidence; but confidence to be, to do what?

Stan finds a whole world in the fried bread Eddie has cooked them — "Doesn't go soft in the middle like Hilda's" — and we find solace in all their tiny victories, in all the minor desires and dust motes of their day-to-pay-day existence. But even here the values are often unreal: Stan will borrow a quid off Hilda to go down the Rovers, and even for a champ sponger like him that's not on in 1981!

We are back somewhere in the myths of time . . . surrendering to the same crafty subliminal tug employed by Hovis and John Smith's in the ad break. A hazy Englishness, something warm and dark and Northern which stirs involuntary memories, resuscitating inarticulate 'childhood' days when the little boy in the flat cap tripping up the cobbles was the carrier of tremendous hopes. When a working class community was something to be, and something like how it is portrayed in Coronation Street . . . not yoked to a destructive hegemony of NHS valium, DHSS take a little refreshment" and "maybe throw a dart". Coronation Street is just one tiny jewel in the corporate mechanism of Granada Television, a subsidiary of the Granada Group Ltd — television set rental, property investment and development, insurance and life assurance, bingo social clubs and cinemas, motorway services, book publishing and music publishing (Director's Report no 45, quoted in BFI Television Monograph no. 13 on Coronation Street) — but it's a valuable one.

At present, the site for the new Street is just that — a dreary first stage map of construction drawn in planks, cables and tyre tracks. Doris Speed (Annie Walker) is here to smile at the press photographers and press a spade into the soil from which will rise her Mecca anew. She's wearing a workman's blue boiler suit under her fur coat today.

"I feel like a pin cushion," she crackles. "I can't move for clothes."

The photo session doesn't take long and we're soon huddled inside for a warming nip or two and salmon paste rolls.

I've Jimmy Savile (travelled!) up to Castlefield not merely to chance my elbow in the rush to Doris, but for a more expansive afternoon of interviews and inspection. And maybe throw a fit.

I mean, of course I was overawed! What a day out! What a delight! I felt like a little kid let loose in Disneyland — shall I ever see so many stars gathered together in one place at one time? And strolling past me constantly, so casually. Turn the corridor's bend and . . . it's STAN! EDDIE! LEN! Photographer Kevin her stay as producer, Hush shifted a few aesthetic lines — camera angle, scene duration — and more importantly tried to wring a few 'contemporary' changes. Issues such as Northern Ireland, drugs and racial minorities seeped into the Street's hardly wide-open porous surface, albeit in sufficiently diluted measure. The ratings dropped and so was she. Bill Podmore's pre-1975 reputation rested on successful, amiable Northern comedies such as My Brother's Keeper and Nearest and Dearest. (The ratings gradually returned to where they had been, pre-Hush).

P: ONE THING that struck me in the repeats was the presence of young people. In the very first episode we had Kenneth Barlow, rebel of the family . . .

BP: Yes, he was indeed. He was brought in for that specific role, as a lad from a terraced street going to university and developing different attitudes as a result of mixing with different sorts of people, coming back and appearing as somewhat of a misfit. He was really only there to make that point and then go . . . but as things turned out they thought his character was such an interesting one they kept it in and he's still there 21 years later. Also, those early episodes seemed more serious. They had the feel of the 'kitchen sink' dramas coming up later in the '60s — Ken Loach and so forth — and therefore quite ahead of their time.

It was ahead of its time then, really. It was a forerunner of the 'kitchen sink' story, before Taste of Honey and that sort of thing. It looked more 'kitchen sink' because it was in black and white.

It's quite an interesting experiment, actually: if you turn the colour off on your set and look at it in black and white it looks far more Coronation Street! It looks more real in black and white because the colours seem to be so exaggerated on television. It's very difficult to make the Ogdens look really tatty, for instance — you really have to make it look disgusting.

There was a great opening image in the first episode of some little girls playing ball outside the corner shop . . .

Yes, we still use kids now and then, but the problem is you put them on the Street and people get interested in something they're not going to know anything about — you never know who they are. Where do those kids live? Not in the Street. We should really be featuring children more as characters. We'll be introducing a late teenager to go along with Brian.

Brian of course is now married . . . and that's been an interesting area. A lot of people have identified with the problems Brian and Gail have had with money. But the big problem with children is the licenses you require from the education authorities. How has Granada's attitude towards you changed over the years? How did they regard it in the beginning? Were they a bit cagey?

I don't think they were cagey with it. I don't think for one minute they expected it to be the success it's been. It was Tony Warren presented the idea and the first seven scripts I think it was, and Harry Latham was set up to produce it. Harry Latham had a great affection for it, for the idea, and worked very hard at maintaining it at that level . . . because one of the problems, well not problem, but at that time those sort of television series were in fact all middle-class.

They still are.

Yes, indeed they are. And it was a rather bold experiment at that time. Harry Latham as a producer really held out for that when the company did want to introduce a young doctor living in the Street, and he wasn't going to allow that to happen because it was putting middle-class into it. He resisted that very strongly and happily succeeded. But it was never expected to be so successful — I think you don't ever start a programme and expect it to last 21 years and still be number one and two in the ratings.

Was there a point where all vaguely realised it was turning into the monster it now is?

I think within a very short amount of time, yes, because it became instantly successful. It was only shown in the North of England to begin with and the whole network took it very quickly and it was an instant success, went straight to the top of the ratings. It was sold all over the world. Some of the cast went out to Australia to promote it — just as a PR job, really — and they were received like royalty. Have there been any technical innovations or shifts that really affected you?

No, not particularly. The shift going into colour, the advancement of equipment made life much easier for television generally. But the Street hopefully remains the same even though the technical facilities surrounding it look very different.

What's the foremost consideration: individual characters or the Street as a whole?

The Street as a whole, as representing the sort of community. I mean, the Street isn't any street, because the number of things that happen in the Street never really happen in any one street. But it's reflecting life in a community, so all the characters in the Street are characters you would expect to find somewhere within a community — much wider than one street, of course.

As long as you can maintain characters and find new characters to replace people like Albert Tatlock and Annie — because if the programme goes on another 21 years nature will take its toll.

This is one of the problems for the producer — new interesting characters, be they individuals or a family unit, and also looking for new writing talent to give them the words. One of the most difficult things is finding writers able to go from scene to scene — from writing a humorous scene with the Ogdens to an in-depth personal relationship between two other characters in the programme: the ability to write both ends of the spectrum . . . is a rare one, actually. I have tried some experienced writers on Coronation Street and it's been unsuccessful, it's come as somewhat of a surprise.

So that is the real headache of the producer: dealing with the story ideas and having the writers to portray them and the characters to play them.

It is unique in that sense. If you've got a long-running drama series or a long-running comedy it's within very set perimeters — the characters function in a given way. Whereas in CS a comic moment can be followed by a completely tragic one . . .

There are always two or three story threads, a minimum of two unless . . . The only exception is when you have a very dramatic situation like for example when Ernie Bishop was shot and we had the funeral. There's no way you could interlace the funeral with some comedy stuff with the Ogdens. (Laughs). That would be in rather bad taste and unbalance the programme.

So there are occasions when you have to play it straight down the line for high drama, but generally it switches from humour to light drama quite easily, quite effectively.

How far ahead do you actually plan?

The actual story ideas are about three months ahead of what's on the screen. The actual recordings are two weeks ahead. Do you plan the mood of it? Recently it seems to have been fairly pessimistic — what with the Tilsley troubles and Mike Baldwin sliding away . . .

Well, we've tried to reflect the slump, the recession, a bit . . . so Bert's been out of work for over a year. He's going to get a job, certainly. He's going to go to court as well for his DHSS fiddling. Brian's been to court — the family's full of bloody disasters, but they all grow out of it and everybody lives happily ever after. Mike Baldwin is feeling the pinch as all the clothing manufacturers are . . .

KC: There doesn't seem to be much sympathy for Mike Baldwin; he's an outsider, isn't he?

Well, he's a Londoner for a start! He's a cocky (unintelligible) who's succeeded, who's pushy. People admire him and hate him for it. He's just feeling the pinch but he'll ride that, like his setting up this stall in the market — IP: He's not exactly Michael Edwardes though, is he? I mean, he still goes in the Rovers . . .

Right. I got that idea off a friend of mine who's in the rag trade — he manufactures jeans and he was feeling the pinch so he set up stall in a market. Never looked back, actually.

KC: Do you often get stories from real life?

Yes, we do. You can read a story in the Morning Advertiser, which is the trade magazine for pubs and brewers, and you see stories in there. It's amazing how people say some story's ridiculous . . . when Stan put the washing in the dustbin and took the rubbish to the launderette. This happened to somebody I know!

IP: It's like recently when Annie Walker had the tiff with Fred and contacted all the people she knew in the trade — it was like the Mafia, she the Godmother who just had to pick up the phone and she could have someone wiped out.

The Godmother speaking — eliminate! Exterminate! Yes. We do stretch it a little sometimes — it's called artistic, dramatic license. When Fred wanted his own pub, there's no way he was going to have to be married — as we suggested. I know the head of one small privately owned brewery and he said they don't even ask if the woman he's with is married to him.

Whose hands will the Rovers pass into after Annie?

The thought of Annie ever leaving Coronation Street is something I blank out of my mind. Because she's irreplaceable. You wouldn't attempt to find a similar character — it'll have to be someone totally different.

KC: When Jack Walker died it got the headlines in the Manchester Evening News . . . more space than when President Kennedy got shot.

IP: Do you feel the need to make CS optimistic in general, to present something which has hope in terms of the characters lives?

Yes, we do. That's why with Brian and Gail, when they were having problems with their finances over this house they wanted . . . at one point we thought right, they can't afford it they'll have to stay living with Bert and Ivy. But then we thought no, let's give those young people out there hope, let's see them make it bloody work, let's see them strive to cope with the financial problems and make it work.

We don't go out of our way to make social comment, it comes quite naturally out of the stories we develop. Of course, we get pressured by all sorts of organisations and charities to make some point in their direction. Especially in this the Year Of The Disabled everybody's been writing in saying why not have somebody crippled in a wheelchair or something. If you listened to all of them you'd have a very funny Street . . .

Do you ever get any flak from Granada for any of the actual details of the programme?

No, I don't get a lot of flak because we're very careful. We're very careful about not making political issues — if we do we balance them out. We're very careful about language . . . and about sex, because we go out at 7.30pm, a very big family viewing audience. We're very careful about things like that, if somebody's having a relationship — like, Mike Baldwin bought the house and had Bet Lynch living in it; everybody, all the adults, obviously knew what was going on, but you never actually saw them going upstairs together, let alone in bed!

ONE OF THE PROPS

BERT HARRISON has serviced Coronation Street for all 21 years, and is in charge of major props. A backroom boy, invisible and integral. We conduct our interview leaning on a counter in The Kabin corner shop.

BH: MY PARTICULAR job? Well, everything you see I've got. Any props whatsoever. Action props, cigarettes, food they eat . . . anything you see I've got. IP: How do you decide what brands to use?

We don't decide on a brand normally as we're not allowed to advertise under the IBA charter. But the point is, normally they're concentrating on the artist, stuff's in the background . . . so what we try and do is every manufacturer's tins on so nobody can say they've not had a show. If in fact it's an action prop where they say, I want to buy a tin of beans, and they give them a tin of beans

THE HUSBAND

THE WIFE

THE GLAMOUR

CONTINUED

then we have to disguise that. We've tried all sorts of things — blanking things out, having labels printed, but they never look right.

It's coming Christmas as you can see, so at the moment we're Christmas cards. There is action with Christmas cards this week, they do need them in the action.

Do you have to read the scripts to find out what you need?

I get issued with a form with prop requirements on the Friday before, so it's a quick turn round. During the week while I'm working on the list they're popping in all the time and saying, Oh, we need a side of bacon or we need three or four pounds of sugar, stuff of that nature.

How far does this extend. To cars for instance?

Any vehicle. Len's van, Annie's Rover or Alf's new sports car!

Yes, that's my job to find. My problem is that if you establish a vehicle say for Annie Walker you can't go to a hire firm because they wouldn't have it the next time. I need one that somebody's going to keep so I have to find a private owner who's willing to hire his car to me.

In fact, Annie's Rover started off with an estate agent in Tilsley; it was his Rover and he had it for a couple of years and then he sold it to a chap at Ashley. But he passed on the information to the new buyer and gave me his phone number so we're still using it even though it's changed hands.

There seems to have been a lot more outside broadcast in CS recently...

Yes, the filming has been building up. We've been very busy down at the market. All that I had to provide was jeans — the trouble being that we couldn't provide jeans with names on like Levi or Brutus or anything because they were supposed to be by Mike Baldwin! So we found some that didn't have any brand names on — and we're talking in terms of a couple of gross here, at ten pounds each.

You should have actually sold them on the day.

KC: What was the most difficult thing you ever had to find?

Sometimes you get silly little things... for instance, on one production not long ago, they wanted an Eiffel Tower, a metal Eiffel Tower about a foot or so high. But I couldn't find one anywhere. I finished up getting one from Paris. None of the prop suppliers had one so we had to ring up Granada's agent in Paris.

IP: What...

Well, the storyline was Hilda had been to France and she comes back with this Eiffel Tower and it's wrapped up and looks like a bottle. And Stan thinks he's getting a bottle. When he opens it it's the Eiffel Tower.

KC: I don't remember that one.

Well it fell flat actually. What happened was I located it and they promised they'd send it me but it never arrived in time. So we just reverted to it being a bottle.

But it's little things like that that prove difficult. Silly little things. They might come along next week and say they want one of those dunking ducks... and I mean every shop at one time had them — you try and find one now!

IP: What about all the drinks in the Rovers?

Beer is shandy, and the shorts are made up: gin is water, whisky is water with a drop of gravy browning. Champagne is Pomagne. You can't give them alcohol in the studio, because if they're all drinking real beer all day long no work would get done.

No, apart from that, really, it's an insurance thing: if somebody was to fall over something and they'd had a couple of drinks... So unless, if there's a dinner party say and there is action with opening the wine, well obviously we would give them a bottle of wine; we can mock things up but not so good that it looks absolutely like a new bottle of unopened wine. And they'd know it was wine and wouldn't drink so much.

THE STORYLINERS

THE STORYLINERS construct a skeletal Street, which is then handed over to a team of writers who provide the flesh. Esther Rose has been storylining for about ten years — "About 900 to 1000 episodes. I've actually worked on more storylines than any other storyline writer in the history of the programme." — and Peter Tonkinson for about eight years. I talked with Esther in their office, which seems to occupy quite a high position in the Street hierarchy. She was a Fleet Street journalist before she joined the programme — "I worked with Parkinson on the Daily Express, you know" — and still has a clipping of the damning article she once wrote on... guess what.

IP: HOW DETAILED are your storylines before the writers take over?

ER: There are about eight pages, broken down into scenes. They're told exactly what sets they can have and what actors and actresses they can have or have to be written out and so on. They get a pretty detailed breakdown of what's happening and they can't depart from any of that, you see. They only have five sets for each two episodes and they're told which they are and what to use and what the themes are.

What they do is flesh it out with dialogue and minor actions. What they're given is a complete scene by scene breakdown complete with ad break and cliffhanger at the end. They can't invent any major action that will carry on into the next episode; they can only invent any minor action that opens and closes within that episode.

There's six writers working simultaneously, all freelancers, without meeting. So they don't affect or contradict one another. They're given a single storyline each and they've got to stick to that — that's why they can't invent any major action, it would interfere with the episode before or after them, being written by someone else.

Do you work with actors on developing a character?

Oh, not really. But they do come up with some ideas sometimes, things they'd like to do and we listen to that — but it's not a day to day thing. They do say what they think about what they're doing and we do take notice of that.

Of course, most of them are so unlike their actual characters that their real characters never feature. I mean, Hilda Ogden (Jean Alexander) is actually a terribly quiet lady, very reserved, likes classical music and historical biographies, used to be a librarian, isn't married, lives at home with her very old mother, makes all her own clothes... She's as unlike Hilda as you could get.

And then Geoffrey Hughes who plays Eddie Yates who's supposed to be an ex-convict Liverpoolian; he lives in the country, all he likes are the country pursuits — hunting and fishing and that sort of thing — he's extremely quiet too and lives a very quiet life.

Stan Ogden (Bernard Youens) is totally different as well — very quiet and happily married to an ex-ballerina for about 40 years and he never drinks. The only person who's perhaps a little like the way she appears is Emily Bishop (Eileen Derbyshire) who's a nice quiet lady... and Betty Turpin (Betty Driver) who's a bit like that.

What's the foremost consideration: the Street, family units, who do you think of first?

We don't do it like that, we don't write like that actually. Because the thing's been running for so very very long it's built up a massive backlog of continuity and it carries itself forward, from our point of view. What happens is that every three weeks we have a conference to which we go and the six writers and the producer and there we talk about what we're going to do in the next storylines. It's based on plots, you see. It's also based on the idea of who hasn't had much to do lately, possibly.

What's your biggest difficulty?

The biggest difficulty is the fact that it's been running that long. Life's allowed to repeat itself over and over again but we're not. The difficulty is to come up with new stories all the time!

What about new topics as opposed to new stories?

Well, we constantly do that because life throws those up. So we've had one about cruelty to children, one about wife battering; life does provide some stories. We want stories connected to what goes on out there, comes up out of the daily papers, comes up out of reality. We do that all the time — this is what I think part of the show's secret is, that people recognise real life in it.

Do you ever feel tied by the fact that it is just the Street?

No, I think that's its secret.

I was saying to Bill Podmore that the show's recent pessimism seemed to reflect current realities. Is that sort of thing a conscious decision on your part?

I don't think it's new, that. I think it's always done that — it's just that the problems change outside and as the problems change outside we reflect them. We have a factory so we're reflecting the hard times that these factories have. There's 3 million unemployed so we have someone who's been unemployed for over a year. These things present themselves. We don't exist in a vacuum, in other words.

THE HUSBAND

WILLIAM ROACHE has been playing Kenneth Barlow for 21 years.

IP: HOW DO YOU think the young Ken Barlow would view the older Ken Barlow, how he's turned out?

WR: Oh, with disappointment no doubt — shattered dreams and ideals chipped away at. You get a lot of young people who you see in politics — that are left to right, whatever — put a lot of energy into their cause, fighting away and then... life, family, kids, house, mortgage, money takes over. They may get reasonably successful, their politics will change a bit for their convenience. And it's rather sad to see the ideals wane, but then this life; it's the younger ones who push and really motivate change and it's the old 'uns maintain the establishment.

I'm not saying Ken Barlow's old any more than I'm old (laughs), but certainly his early enthusiasm... mind you, it killed off his mum and his father, his brother and two wives. I think that would have a bit of a chastening effect on me! Dangerous to know — like a one man Greek tragedy! So that would have chastened him a little.

His first observation would be how much weight he's put on: I'm three stone heavier than I was then. In fact, the following morning after that episode was repeated, someone said, I'm glad to see you've got over your anorexia...

Would Ken Barlow go on a CND march these days?

No, I don't think he would. Actually, I think they (the writers) slipped up there. They don't like it, you see... they're more and more terrified of showing one side. If they show Ken pro-CND they'd have to put somebody else in anti-, otherwise they'd say it was propaganda. Politics can't really be expressed unless you show all three or four or however many sides there are. And then somebody's still going to scream that it's loaded on one side. But they avoid it.

In the early days CND didn't have a political connotation at all — it was a clean thing. I think now it's too dangerous for them. But yes, I think it would have been quite nice to have seen Ken — like a lot of the ones who originally went on CND marches are — doing it.

In the Street now there's certainly a lack of the sort of character and presence that the young Ken Barlow provided.

It wants someone young, free. There is a gap. What they've got, they've got babies — little Tracey and the Tilsley baby and (sotto voce) probably a new Barlow baby (grimaces).

It'll coincide with the Royal baby, like your weddings did.

Well, we beat them on the wedding, how about beating them on the birth? That would be good. Yes, there is the gap for the sort of rebel teenager, who does their bit, fighting causes, going to discos and whatever. And it'll be a long time before they have that unless they bring a ready made one in. You see, the community centre isn't used, which I find very sad because there there's a lot of youth activity going on. But they don't like stories that aren't actually connected with people in the Street. Although I could be involved, but only in so much as I run the centre: the characters in it would be outside of the Street. What would Ken Barlow's politics be these days? He wouldn't have joined the SDP would he?

I wonder. You see, Ken was supposed to be Left Wing, there's no doubt; in so much as they could say it. I would think now... I'd like to think that, rather like myself he's more of a philosopher than a politician, and would therefore tend to become apolitical. He might well have joined the SDP (Exactly: apolitical!). He's the sort who would have adapted. He wouldn't have sufficient fire to go hard Left Bennite and I don't think he'd become a Liberal or a Tory. So he probably would actually. But let's say he's a philosopher, has no politics.

So what's his philosophy on life?

To try to understand what we are and why we're here and then work with that rather than against it. Now, that's a nice simple little statement. But it's exceedingly difficult to follow. Basically, it's trying to understand human nature. So many things now are done externally without considering what's happening to individuals who are bleeding, crying away inside. So his job is very much in tune with what I would like and wish was shown more, which is concern for people in a community.

I think in life you've always got to be growing, developing and evolving; the minute you stop you become a brontosaurus and you die or you become dogmatic and take on a dogma. Just like I'm apolitical, I'm areligious as well — I don't have a creed. They've all got good and they've all got bad in them. So you should always look around to understand life and go with it. But it's very hard, you make mistakes all the time.

How do you view the marriage to Deirdre?

I thought it was good, in so much as you look for stories...

KC: She's not exactly the type you would have married, I didn't think. Possibly someone a little more intellectually stimulating...

Well, this is the problem with the Street. If Ken brings in somebody who's intellectually his level — well, Ken himself is already a stranger, the only reason he's in the Street is that he's from it, his roots are there. If he married someone of his own level he'd be more removed and it would get more difficult. The only way to keep him in is if he goes back... looking for a mother or sex thing or whatever, that's compatible with his roots. You can have a bit of conflict and a bit of difference. So I think it was a good move.

You see up till then Ken, since he bumped off his last wife, has lived with his weird old Uncle Albert — I mean, the Odd Couple! A very strange situation — and we really don't know what he did for his jollies. So his marriage to Deirdre sort of stabilises that, puts some background to that.

IP: Do you collaborate much with the writers?

Not really. It's a bit like the army: in the end they can pull rank and of course you've got to do it. But obviously you've got to play it and if you don't go upstairs and complain unless you've got a very good reason, then they listen and usually do something about it. This is a tricky one, because the writer has got to understand and have the same point of view on a relationship that you have.

How will the marriage progress?

Hopefully, on these lines: there will be differences, but we will show a way of resolving them that is loving, caring and built on communication and understanding. I would like to think that it would develop into a very good relationship.

There's no reason why it shouldn't. Deirdre's quite bright, whatever her background is — a bright girl, she can catch on quite quickly. Ken is an intellectual alright and he's got his work, but emotionally I think

Deirdre can assist him and he can assist her mentally.

What's the relationship between yourself and Ken Barlow? How far does he intrude upon your life?

Well, I always reverse this: I've intruded upon Ken's life a heck of a lot more. From the acting point of view, the playing of the character, Bill Roach has affected Ken Barlow very much.

KC: Your accent's changed over the years. In that first episode everyone had a very solid Northern accent, even Annie Walker.

Everybody was doing the heavy acting bit then. It's excused I suppose a certain amount by saying that someone like Ken Barlow in his job would try and improve himself a bit. But in fact all that's happened is a relaxing of the effort to some extent; imperceptibly, not consciously. So that one's natural accent comes through a bit more.

I don't think this is good. I think we should have maintained it a little more. But over the years all the characters have changed and become a bit more like the actors who play them and this is good in the way that they're more real.

I don't do and say what Ken Barlow would do and say but he says it in the way that I would. Although you could say in one way we're not acting as much, in another way the characters are more real and more alive and are part of us. The only regret I would have about Ken Barlow is that he's not a fun character. His role is a sort of serious, responsible... not a jolly one, but an important one.

IP: What are the advantages of doing the same character year in year out? It's obviously not a role written in history, like a play or a novel where you're not at liberty to change...

Yes, it's your private property, nobody else can play it and when you go it will go. It's a one off, whereas normally an actor has to do two things — get a character and then steer it through a certain sequence of events. We have the character but we have to watch how it's being written, how we're playing, guide it... it's growing. You don't have to age because you do age, your weight goes on and comes off so the character's weight goes on and comes off.

Do you do any work outside CS?

Yes, I opened a production company with my wife about three years ago. I did three years rep at Oldham and Nottingham so I've done everything from Shakespeare right down the line. And I find I enjoy comedy most — like Blythe Spirit, that sort of thing. I'm not a great classical Shakespearean actor and I don't particularly want to be. I like television as a medium, I prefer it to theatre. But theatre is important to get that audience contact, to remember what it's all about.

What's your weekly cycle on CS?

You get your script halfway through the previous week, Wednesday or Thursday. I'll usually just glance through them over the weekend. Monday we don't start till one or two in the afternoon which is a very good start to the week. Then we literally just go through the two episodes getting the moves right — you stand, you sit, you walk across the room and if you've got any problems at that juncture you discuss them. Tuesday morning you come in, you're meant to know it and you'll rehearse the first episode in the morning and the second episode in the afternoon, working from 10.30am to 6.30pm. Wednesday morning we run through and at two we do another but the producer, the writer and the camera people all come up and have a look. So it's very short: from Monday to Wednesday afternoon that's all you've got. Thursday afternoon we come in and start recording — from three till six and all day Friday from nine till six and it's all got to be in.

Is there anything Ken hasn't done so far that you'd like him to?

Yes, I would like him — if he could — to break out. I'd love to get hold of the community centre and do something lively with it and start some new trend going, some youth movement — not a sort of scout master thing which could be tedious, but a really lively... helping all these inner city problems, something like that that's genuinely of topical interest, creative and active. You never see him at work. You just see him coming into the Rovers, kissing Deirdre in the shop or rowing with his Uncle Albert at home.

Do you think CS tends to be taken less than seriously — not that it should be taken over-seriously — and perhaps a little for granted?

What happened... Initially, 1960 to 1963, we were treated Very Seriously, very heavily. We used to get written up in the Sunday Times, the New Statesman, the Listener — we were A Social Documentary, we got the big treatment and by 1963 we could draw big crowds, we were big guns.

Then we moved onto a plateau for a bit, then we dipped quite considerably and we just became Quite A Good Soap Opera That's Been Going For Some Time. Then we got left alone totally until suddenly Laurence Olivier said he liked the show and then all the Royal Shakespeare people started saying they liked Coronation Street as a folk opera rather than as a Soap Opera. Then John Betjeman said he liked it and wouldn't miss it, Willis Hall and one or two other writers said the same... and we moved into a marvellous sort of, almost like the British Museum, we were locked in on a thing whereby it was suddenly something good to say you watched. As well as, as you Change two Bowie — and change from £4.

CHANGE TWO BOWIE

ONLY
£3.99
album or tape

Get down to Boots Record Departments now. They're stacked with top albums and tapes. And in the bigger branches you can see your favourite artists on our Video Programme.

Boots Credit Card
If you're 18 or over, apply for your Boots Credit Card now. Ask for a leaflet for the written details and application form at any Boots branch or write to the address below. APR 24.9% Rate may vary. Sales Promotion Dept., Boots Ltd., Chemists Limited, Nottingham, NG2 4AA. *Credit limited.

CHART TOPPERS

Adam and the Ants	£3.99
David Bowie	£3.99
Neil Diamond	£3.99
ELO	£3.99
Linx	£3.99
Not the Nine O'Clock News
Police
Cliff Richard
Diana Ross
Soft Cell
Rod Stewart
Barry Manilow
Shakin' Stevens
Ultravox
Blondie
Elkie Brooks
Genesis
Pink Floyd
Diana Ross
Bee Gees
Queen
George Benson

Prince Charming	£3.99
Change two Bowie	£3.99
On The Way To The Sky	£3.99
Time	£3.99
Go Ahead	£3.99

Hedgehog Sandwich	£3.99
Ghost In The Machine	£3.99
Wired for Sound	£3.99
Why Do Fools Fall In Love	£3.99
Non Stop Erotic Cabaret	£3.99
Tonight I'm Yours	£3.99
If I Should Love Again	£3.99
Shaky	£4.25
Rage in Eden	£4.25
Best of Blondie	£4.25
Pearls	£4.49
Abacab	£4.49
Best of	£4.49
All the Greatest Hits	£4.49
Living Eyes	£4.49
Greatest Hits	£4.75
The George Benson Collection	£4.99

£6.49

POPULAR

Cliff Richard	£4.25
Simon & Garfunkel
James Last
Royal Philharmonic Orchestra
Various
Various
Various
Love Songs	£4.25
The Simon & Garfunkel Collection	£4.25
Hansimania	£4.49
Hooked on Classics	£5.49
Love Is...	£5.49
Misty Mornings	£5.49
Cats, Original Soundtrack	£6.75

CLASSICAL

Schubert - Trout Quintet	£3.49
Julian Bream/John Williams - Together	£4.49
John Williams - Recollections	£4.99
Brahms - Symphony 1 - Solti	£5.49
Chopin - 24 Preludes - Pollini	£5.49*
Handel - Music for Royal Fireworks - Hogwood	£5.49
Mahler - Song of the Earth - Haitink	£5.49*
Stravinsky - Rite of Spring - Davis	£5.49*
Holst - Planets - Boult	£5.75
Ravel - Bolero - Previn	£5.75

Prices the same for albums and tapes. *Album price only.

From Boots Record Departments, subject to stock availability and release dates. Prices and availability refer to Great Britain and may not apply in the Channel Islands or Northern Ireland.

Christmas with the Special Touch

Dramatis

For Future Reference

DRAMATIS NEW ALBUM FOR FUTURE REFERENCE

INCLUDES THE HIT SINGLE BY GARY NUMAN AND DRAMATIS
'LOVE NEEDS NO DISGUISE'

LP TRAIN 18
MC SHUNT 18
© 1981 DRAMATIS
PHONOGRAM

LIVE!

James Brown

Birmingham
THE GODFATHER. The Undisputed King Of Soul, The Minister Of The New New Super Heavy Funk . . . when it comes to James Brown, words are not enough. All the titles and all the accolades on earth are not sufficient, do not capture the great challenges, the profound beliefs and compelling honesty which are directly pinpointed in his music. Half the records released today are pale emascuations of the style he created and perfected in an irresistible, trailblazing series of songs and performances during the past three decades.

His combination of rhythm and blues beat music with gospel roots was never a contradiction but rather a validation and rejuvenation of both forms. Aligned to a ferocious self belief and the most pulverising rhythms ever created, Brown's songs virtually breathed freedom, passion, pride and power. All of which went hand in hand with his egotistical affirmation and unflinching sense of morality. If you have to have a hero make it James Brown; his music is some of the most uplifting and inspiring ever made.

Tonight we're almost 30 years from where it all began. The half empty Birmingham Odeon is a place so stiff and regimented that the possibility of creating an atmosphere to match that of glorious live performances like 'Live At The Apollo', 'Live At The Garden' or his reportedly startling return to form recorded live in New York earlier this year, seems very remote. Indeed, it's a little sad to look at the big void in the stalls: after all he's done, this is all the thanks he gets.

The show had been advertised as The James Brown Revue, so what one expected was a total show, from start to finish — the fine edges, the full colour and the broad scope of the values and cultures celebrated and encouraged by Brown throughout his career. Instead the production gives the impression of being scrappily and hastily arranged — the roadies play an endless stream of tracks from the 800th Steely Dan album, the support group are a tired lacklustre thudfunk outfit from Brum, and the whole affair hardly seemed conducive to building up to JB's performance.

The JB's are all here, present and correct — three trumpets, one sax, two drums, two bass and two guitars — and they start off the show proper with an unstartling introduction but quickly pep things up with their celebrated 'We Are The Funky Men'. They gradually introduce the rest of what constitutes The Revue — two back-up singers called 'Fire', and the white-suited MC Danny Ray. Now there was a time when Mr Ray's big bravado introductions would bring him encores — totally over the top showbiz parody announcing — but he's something of a quaint relic, smiling benignly and squeaking like Olive Oyl.

And then he's there — bounding onstage with a smart bow, a red suit and a smile big and bold enough to crack a department store window. It's straight into 'Rapp Payback' and the JB's are cooking spectacularly, and James is not only in fine shape physically, his voice has lost none of the old magic either. He gets right up there with the throttling rhythm and incisive horn punctuations and then — POW! — from some unheard-of energy source deep down inside he lets rip with an unearthly scream of unbridled passion. From a centrifugal point in his body he goes into a 360 degree spin, sends the mike stand on a downward spiral and gets back round to retrieve it just in time to face the audience and keep singing.

'Rapp Payback' is the best thing Brown has recorded in years, and what he could and should do once he has performed it is go surging through those golden years, knocking out the classics and bowling over the fledgling fans. Instead it's immediately followed by a dip into a muggy funk-up funk-for-funk's-sake rant. It's well into the area of form over content and it reaches the point where the rant becomes so vacuous that the whole design begins to fall apart and James Brown and The JB's are doing the unthinkable — going through the motions.

What hurts most is that there are enough flashes of brilliance and fusillades of exhortation pushing and urging forward to show that underneath all the bluster there is still the power to wrack and rip up total havoc. LET YOURSELF GO. GET UP. GET ON UP!

Occasionally he does, and with 'Superbad/Superbull' or the beginning of 'Sex Machine', James Brown reaches true greatness — but I can't forget how he willed 'Get On The Good Foot' to a close, mining the punch-drunk stance of a reeling-on-the ropes Ali in one of his unsuccessful comeback bouts . . . The problem seems to be that he's too ambitious, too anxious to prove he can do it all again, and better. Certainly the spirit and the ability was never in doubt, but when he tries to rearrange the original magic it's too often into misshapen frameworks which don't do justice to the songs.

When he plays it stark and emotional with 'It's A Man's Man's Man's World', stretching back and forth from the microphone, his performance — the evening's best — positively drips passion. But the schmaltz treatment spoils and makes a mockery out of 'Please Please Please'.

James Brown wasn't a total embarrassment, but he was a partial disappointment. Often he seemed to be warming up, but the audience payback that he needed wasn't forthcoming. Still, he's got what it takes, and I wonder how many performers we'll be able to say that about in 30 years time.

Gavin Martin

SAY IT LOUD!

*The Minister of the New New Super Heavy Funk is back, and proud as ever. Gavin Martin joins the congregation.
 Photo: Anton Corbijn.*

Billy Connolly

Cambridge Theatre

"TO THE Artist, life is like a banquet... thanks for the cheese sandwich!" — Billy Connolly's excellent riposte to tepid applause.

A ripping opening shot at the loathsome and ludicrous Ian Paisley — concentrating on his inability to communicate by anything other than a shout — reducing to appropriate absurdity by projection into an intimate situation. Humour used as a weapon against those without a sense of one. Aside from this, well... some exhilarating and body-shaking verbal dexterity in a (de)construction of a hogmanay orgy, composed of layer upon layer of vocal mayhem, was the virtuoso high-point in what I thought was a too mellow show. A bit soft. It's all that scatology, I reckon. (The Las Vegas residency may not be lined up yet — though I'd bet Negotiations Are Under Way — but soon come, and he'll be adapted to it.)

Still, more luffs than Keith Allen, less than John Cooper Clarke, he at least had the style and good grace not to encore. No small point. And he made the buggers laugh.

Mark Cordery

RIGHTEOUS TIME!

The Slits

Hammersmith Palais

ARI WAS rapping about the sometimes contradictory nature (to put it mildly) of the relation between 'reality' and the appearance thereof. "You see I could be laughing, but I might not be having fun... and we need the fun all the more now that Christmas is coming

An illusion emphasised the point: from where I was standing, at first sight Neneh Cherry looked the spitting image of Annabella. Annabella!?? Let off McLaren's Bow Wow Wow fantasy leash for the night? Now, that would be interesting.

The Palais was half-empty, which was a surprise to me, having experienced full houses recently for the execrable Bauhaus and the tremendous, though tremendously limited, Level 42. And with The Slits lately having signed to CBS too, on the understanding, on one side and/or the other, that rapidly multiplying sales units were just a kiss away... But for our pleasure... there was more space to dance in, more space to move into. "Clap clap, kiss kiss, what a relief it is..." The Slits were wonderful.

A great big welcoming, joyous sound. So inviting, so enticing. A friendly funk-up jazzed reggae soulbeat... er, you know what I mean? Well... a sound that utilised and borrowed from a lot of diverse sources / influences, and paid them all back, with interest. A vivid contrast to the sucking up and spitting out of half-digested fads which has been passing for creativity, energy, soul, funk, blah, blah, blah, these days.

"A long time I see no true warrior."

Bruce was up, up and away on, over, under and around the beat. And everything he doesn't play is brilliant. A perfect rhythm and just about the greatest tone I've ever heard.

Everything was just about right; slick, even. Ari is a top league rapper who puts some of the chinless chart wonders — talking loud, saying nothing — in their places at the depths of the lower divisions. She has the playful fascination and virtuosity with language often characteristic of people expressing themselves in other than their native tongue. (Which could apply to a lot of people, on reflection). The strangeness seems to increase the attention, and leads to picking up chances missed by those who may be taking their medium for granted.

And none of The Slits onstage was taking anything for granted. Whatever the degree of refinement and deliberation, technique and contrivance, a personal commitment is always essential to the creation of the greatest, most righteous music — with zest, skill, confidence — which is what The Slits played. A righteous quality music. A defiance of categorisations. Good Times!

Mark Cordery

Ari Slit

Pic: David Corio

HOWEVER WELL YOU PLAY YOU'LL SOUND BETTER WITH A CASIOTONE

CASIOTONE 202 R.R.P. £325

- * 49 preset sounds including Piano, Clavichord, Synth-Sound, Harp, Electric Bass, Organ, Clarinet, Viola
- * 49 key, 4 octave keyboard
- * 8 note polyphonic
- * 4 tone memories

CASIOTONE 101 R.R.P. £255

- * 8-note polyphonic 49 key keyboard
- * 25 preset sounds including Electric Piano, Harpsichord, Synth Brass, Chime, Guitar, Flute
- * 4-position tone memory
- * Vibrato and Sustain effects
- * Connections for line-out, Sustain pedal, foot volume pedal and headphone

It's the tone of a Casiotone that makes the difference. That very special Casio sound, the result of advanced microchip technology, makes amateurs sound good and professionals sound great.

So whether you play for profit or pleasure, run your eye over these outstanding features. Then go along to your local music shop and run your fingers over a Casiotone keyboard. Because the only way to appreciate the Casiotone sound is to hear it for yourself.

And while you're at the music shop, take a look at the M10 and MT30, the amazing go-anywhere instruments that are ready to play when you are—and wherever you are.

WHAT THE PROFESSIONALS SAY

Internationally famous group The Dooleys thoroughly recommend a Casiotone as an instrument that can totally transform your on-stage sound.

OUT NOW: The Dooleys' new album, "Secrets"

M10
R.R.P. £79

MT30
R.R.P. £115

CASIO

WHAT WILL THEY THINK OF NEXT?

Ask about the range at your local Casiotone retailer.

Casio Electronics Co. Ltd., Shaiburn House, 28 Scrutton Street, London EC2. Telephone: 01-377 9087.

BLOOD GROUPS

The Birthday Party Lydia Lunch

The Venue

THE AIR was thick with anticipation. A cult queen was about to create yet another debut. No one ever knows what she'll do. She can be disaster or salvation. She began as Teenage Jesus, then she was the Queen of Siam, tonight she is just Lydia Lunch.

A soundtrack plays, the theme from some tacky horror movie, moody and evil. The drummer enters with the look of every butler who has ever opened the castle door. Severin, her guest, crosses the stage and takes up his bass. An anonymous guitarist under a full face rubber hood begins to crank out long scratching, whining notes. This band are new and as usual precariously impermanent. Lydia loves chance and change.

She slouches on. Under a big hat, her eyes burn. She swills her lager down, proud and arrogant with her back to her audience. She is Teenage Jesus, she is Queen of Siam. She holds herself up with the mike stand, leans heavily across and bellows "Nooooooo" "One very very long no."

"Pools of blood in my bed," she stretches her words out, neither singing or talking.

Someone points their video at her, trying to commit her to history. She seems so impermanent and hellbent. Lydia Lunch wants to step into some nether world, but we won't go with her. She dances horrifically, jerking her limbs in slow motion. The macabre atmosphere thickens.

She takes her hat off, reveals a thatch of hair with singed flame roots. She lays on the stage; she doles herself out in tiny doses. "God will wait forever." She looks her audience in the eye; we're gift horses.

What Lydia Lunch does in the here and now is understandable if you know her past: what she'll do in the future makes her presence significant. Listen carefully.

The Birthday Party bound onto stage, over-energized, loud and reckless.

Nick Cave jumps into his adoring audience. They tear at him, reach for his hair, shake him up and down. I fear for him. Somehow he manages to scream and retch his words out. The roadies drag him back up onto the stage, and he doesn't miss a beat.

The Birthday Party are a band that inspire total commitment in their fans. They entertain, in a rock tradition with a solid beat and intense guitar. Their originality lies in their unique non-melodies, the weird key changes, Nick Cave's self-destructive footwork. They break musical rules and yet keep right in line. They finished with Iggy's classic "I'm Loose", and although following in Pop's path isn't very new, it was strong and effective. Rock death and live sacrifice. As Cave left the stage a long thin stream of blood trailed down his back.

Laura Hardy

Wah!

University of London
WHEN THE lecture theatres have been boarded up for the night, and the lecturers have gone home to Nationwide and Horlicks, the University of London becomes a spacious adequate venue with room to sit, talk, walk and breathe.

On Saturday night, incongruous snatches of The Last Chant filtered through to the bar, and their clashing chords wormed their way into my brain and jolted a headache into existence. Still, they were slightly more stimulating than the desperately 'right' High Five, with their tepid blend of weak riffs and foot-tapping mediocrity, who played a standard set and encore and then fizzled out of existence. The entwining passageways offered relief in their cool, timeless span, but were mostly blocked off by tables of sour students. By ten, the main auditorium was packed. Wah! found their way onstage and lost their direction.

In small doses, Wah! are sheer energy and joy, raw vigour that hits hard and whisks you off your feet or knocks you down flat. 'Seven Minutes To Midnight' and 'Better Screem' as singles are dynamic, furious four-minute bursts of fire and spirit, Wylie's voice a celebration of potent, punching power and sharp clarity. Having said that, there must be some explanation for their live failure. Did they play too long? Do they need a variation of material? At times, my knees were jerking but my mind was curling up at the corners. Their approach was all forceful drive with no question or changes of temperament, and after a while the incisive ardour lost its bite.

The most moody, intense music often combines relentless violence with the weird, indirect and ambiguous — something like what Wire perfected on parts

Wylie Wah!

Pic: David Corio

of 'Chairs Missing' and '154', or The Associates produce at times. Wah! have the edge over many groups in the context of technical ability, but it's all too standard and conventional. I'm not suggesting that they tinker with the frivolous — leave cocktail muzak to narcissists — just that they inject the more jaded elements of their set with a new whiplash starkness or contrasting melancholy.

'They're doing a bit of a Grateful Dead,' my companion commented at 11.20. I agreed. Wylie may hate the concept of touring, but a gig is only as redundant as the players feel.

Leyla Sanai

NOISE WAVE MUSIC

Glenn Branca

New York

GLENN BRANCA's music has everything you ever wanted to get out of great rock'n'roll. It has passion, drive, irresistible force. It knocks you over, knocks you out, stirs you up. It assaults the ears and digs deep into the emotions. It builds, it moves, it shakes the walls down. And . . . it's not rock'n'roll.

Writers have been falling all over themselves recently trying to describe what it is. So far, Kristine McKenna has my favourite line on this, calling it "a noise you've always imagined but never expected to hear". That's exactly how surprising and thrilling it is to discover this sound.

We're talking live now. Branca has an LP out, and it's very good, but it's not the same. No one has yet figured out how to capture on a recording the full range and power of the sound Branca and band make. Or perhaps our recording technology just isn't capable of doing it.

The effect of this music is very physical, not just because of its high volume but because of the density and fullness of the sound, as palpable as a punch in the gut. It's not "nice" music, and it may be hard to take if you listen in a conventional way, expecting the usual strokes. Branca demands a different expectation, a different approach to listening, and he rewards such attention with a profound experience.

Branca is a composer, writing pieces that progress through definite movements. He is a structuralist and a rocker, working with the tools of ringing guitar textures and a driving rock beat.

Tonight's piece is for ten guitars and drums. It begins with the guitars picking single, high-pitched notes, a delicate tone poem. It soon becomes a crashing tangle of chords and rhythms. It is about sound — a wall of sound, overtones that suggest choirs, colliding, massive waves of sound. It is also about motion, shifting rhythms tied up by very deep grooves.

Branca stands facing his guitar army, his back to the audience, waving his own guitar like a conductor's baton. He uses lots of body language to cue the changes in the piece, and as the pace builds up he bops and weaves and rocks furiously.

The other players look equally good. Two women, the men in modern haircuts and everyone in East Village boho-artist clothes and intensely concentrated or transfixed expressions. Playing this music looks like a great effort and a great release.

The movement of the piece is from control to chaos. Near the end is a de-tuning passage. Everyone untunes their guitars and hammers away at them, setting up a barrage of noise. But the structure never falls apart because there's always the rhythm to hold it together.

This stuff is incisive and piercing, it envelops and shoots through you. It has textures you can feel as well as hear. It excites an addictive sensation. When I hear it I want to get nearer, I want to dive right in. I swoon under the assault. Hit me with your white-hot ten-guitar rhythm stick!

Richard Grabel

Aria "CARDINAL" SERIES

HERE ARE JUST A FEW OF THE COMMENTS MADE BY MUSICIANS WHO HAVE CHOSEN THE Aria "CARDINAL" AXES

Excellent value for money, a very high standard of craftsmanship and a great sound. N. J. Whitehead. Best guitar I've ever played. Rod Crawford. Aria have done what the bigger makes could not, that is produced a decent bass at a very low cost. Thank you very much. Graham Pearson. Totally amazing, the first real bass guitar I've ever played. Michael McCready. I like the way it was set up. I did not need to touch anything. Chris Williams. Very pleased with it, really quality for money. Kevin Bradshaw. From what I know — a bargain for the quality of instrument. Ian Bird. The CSB 300 is the best low-budget bass on the market, superb quality. Phil Hammond. Best instrument I've played in years. Brian Sexton. I like the price for the good quality of the guitar. T. Cruickshank. It is superb value for money and excellent tonal capabilities. Dean Sprankling.	Very good value for money, very pleased with it. Mark Barnett. Excellent value David I. Wilson. Good quality at a low price. Steven Creasey. Love the tone of this guitar. Richard Booth. Very well made, very good sound, easy to play. Nick Roll. Impressive. Keith Bowden. Good quality, good price. M Prudden. Very impressed with quality and fast action. M. O. Harwood. The finish, tone and power are very good, excellent guitars. Alan Rimmer. In my opinion, Aria guitars are some of the best on the market! James E. Humphries Very impressed. Phil Scott. Excellent design, sound and finish. Good value for money. N. Prendergast. Good quality instrument at a reasonable price. David Thompson. A wicked sound for so little money, just right for the music I play. Thanks. Eddie Porte.
--	---

THANKS FELLAS — ENJOY THE GIGS

To find out more about Aria, send for brochures to:

GIGSVILLE Dept. N,
Phoenix Way, Heston, Middx.
01-897 3792

"CARDINAL" prices INCLUDE CASE

CS 250 £179.32	CSB 300 £193.31
CS 300 £181.28	CSB 380 £194.64
CS 400 £203.20	CSB 450 £233.50

Cave Party

Pic: David Corio

"Lordy, Lordy, Lordy..."

Pic: Peter Anderson

HE SOLD HIS SOUL FOR ROCK'N'ROLL

Cliff Richard

Hammersmith Odeon

A TRIBUTE to the powers of marketing, is Cliff. He's been successfully re-drawn to maintain the appearance of being up with all the times since he started his career, simultaneously varnishing his so-called roots into an acceptable pudding of sheer nostalgia, and moved carefully to fit the demands of new consumer age-groups. Linking the generations is a complete disinterest in pop music as anything to do with change, either as its catalyst or its reflection. Cliff has only the most cosmetic of links with reality, and it makes people very happy.

Cliff's remarkable state of preservation enables the sham of universal youth to be boosted, and allows his re-emergence as a purveyor of clinical, light drama-pop to look unridiculous. The show's 'Wired For Sound' section speaks a disguised parental language which pleases both the young and the yearning to be young in their mums and dads.

The following 'love songs' section is pure Waltons, sentimental, painless wishful-thinking. Then, following a 15 minute intermission, the rock 'n' roll section is wheeled out.

Cliff takes his understanding of rock 'n' roll very seriously. He still wants to be regarded as a rock 'n' roll singer. He makes small tributes to Presley, Little Richard, Jerry Lee and more, and then delivers versions of their songs which wantonly undermine everything they supposedly meant and did. Maybe Cliff never did see that music as anything but a bit of harmless fun that young people decided to do. He is either a total fraud, or marvellously naive, but he is certainly a tribute to certainty. Doubt, as you can imagine, does not exist in Cliff Richard's world.

His celebrated Christianity was formally absent, yet its worldview abundantly obvious. Cliff is failsafe and secure, sweetly untouchable. Cliff is an encouragement and a reward for the apparently well-behaved majority. He cuts across age and class and assures us that to accept, be patient and be humble is the true path to progress and ultimate contentment. If you want proof, then you must first believe, but the only way to believe is to spend your whole life looking the other way.

Dave Hill

Nils Lofgren

Hammersmith Odeon

THEY CAME not to dance but to see a show. Dragooned by security, they sat in line, applauded the right bits and went off into the night. There was none of the unquestioning love bestowed upon the lumbering dinosaurs of old or any of the flamboyant indifference generated by la danse moderne. There was just no edge, man.

Nils Lofgren has found himself a niche from which he won't find any ladders to climb; then again the loyal support who showed up to fill the Odeon will ensure that he doesn't slip too far down the snakes. Tonight he was unlucky, his guitar toys at his feet kept getting him down. No-one seemed to mind, even during an interminable silence after 'Code Of The Road', a laborious melodrama. He made no attempt to fill the gap, but in flared denims and an open-neck chain-store shirt, how could he?

The pacing of the show was nowhere. From the opener, 'No Mercy', to the second encore, 'Hang On Sloopy', there was hardly a change in tempo or texture; guitar, leaden drums (Charlie Watts has a lot to answer for) and the Lofgren vocals. He made an occasional foray to the piano and brought on James Honeyman-Scott to add yet more axe, but even half-decent songs like 'Cry Tough' and 'Back It Up' sank, irredeemable, into the mire.

Nils is an old troupier, so perhaps one shouldn't knock too hard, but rock'n'roll and its variants need to be all guilt and flash. His followers demand very little, which is surely what they got. The threat is gone and so is the passion. Everyone went home satisfied and that depressed me.

Piers Thompson

gemini

For all enquiries and quick delivery, phone orders to 0270 214 730

Polyester cotton shirts at £12.95 inc. p&h

1. New wing collar shirts in black, white, grey and burgundy

2. Black silk bow-tie £2.50 inc. p&h

3. Double breasted shirts in red, blue, grey and black

4. Double breasted shirts, mandarin collar in blue, grey, black and white

5. Fly front collar-less shirts in white, blue, grey and black

Sizes 34 - 42

Please state second colour choice

When ordering goods, please write your name and address clearly and be sure to state sizes, colours etc. Your co-operation will help to get the goods back to you quickly.

Kickers

The Original French Jean Boots and Shoes. Both same price. Colours: red, grey, navy, green and burgundy.

Make cheques postal order payable to Gemini Mail Order (MS) and send to Gemini Boutique, 102 Victoria St, Crewe, Cheshire.

Access and Bar to card not please your card number

Always back guarantee of returned within 7 days

WORLD CUP '82

AN IDEAL XMAS PRESENT

TRACK SUIT: £10.95

T-SHIRTS: £2.95

SWEAT SHIRTS:

100% cotton £5.25

Mixed fibres £5.95

From Lee & Allwell

Eire & Overseas £1 extra for postage & packing

PRINTED WITH

FOLLOWING MOTIFS:

- 1 "ENGLAND SPAIN '82"
- 2 BULLDOG ON UNION JACK — "ENGLAND SPAIN '82" (in white or grey only)
- 3 BULLDOG WITH SPANISH HAT — "WORLD CUP SPAIN '82"
- 4 "WORLD CUP SPAIN '82"
- 5 BULLDOG MARCHES TO SPAIN

Colours: Navy, red, sky, grey, black, white. Sizes: 36/38, 38/40, 40/42, 42/44.

ORDER FORM
QUANTITY	SIZE	COLOUR	MOTIF NO.
TRACK SUITS
SWEAT SHIRTS
T-SHIRTS

I enclose cheque/PO's for £.....

Name

Address

Barclaycard No.

Access No.

to: DEVCO ROSE LTD, Freepost, London E1 9BR (No stamps required if posted in U.K.)

BOY

153 KINGS ROAD LONDON SW3

ACME ATTRACTIONS

ZOOT

Variety of patterns including PIN STRIPE - BROAD STRIPE - JAQUARD & BRIGHT PINK

Delivery up to 21 Days Wholesale Available

Jacket	Trousers
34 36 38 40	28 30 32 34
PRICE £59.50 inc. p&h	PRICE £19.50 inc. p&h

ACNE SPOTS AND PIMPLES

Every year thousands of young men and women between the ages of 14 and 24 can find their life made miserable by the horrid spots and pimples of acne

And every year many thousands discover how to clear them up simply and quickly by pleasant liquid Torbetol

Torbetol, from your chemist. For a free leaflet on acne spots and pimples write to

Torbet Laboratories Ltd, 24 Great King Street, Edinburgh 3

A word in your ear... from JINXY KYAM

These highly individual earpieces beautifully hand crafted in precious metals and real garnets.

All pieces carry appropriate hall mark.

This is not a mass produced item, so beat the rush.

Cutlass - 2 garnets

Approx size

Bowie knife - a garnet.

Style	Sterling Silver	9ct Gold
Cutlass	£15.95	£35.00
Bowie	£12.95	£27.50

- Suitable for any pierced ear.

Cheque P.O.s to JINXY KYAM & Co, 15 Wordsworth Close, Pound Hill, Crawley, Sussex.

COTTON STRIPE GRANDAD SHIRT £3.45 + 35p P&h

Collared cotton shirt 32" to 42" chest bust. Stripes in Blue, White, Black, Navy, Purple Red and Brown. Please state your size and an alternative colour.

CHEESECLOTH KURTA only £2.90 + 35p P&h

A white natural cheesecloth Kurta with same colour embroidery. Chest sizes 26" to 44" Hips 28" to 44" bust. Please state your chest bust measurement.

COLOURED EMBROIDERED KURTA £2.95 + 35p P&h

A white natural cheesecloth with two coloured embroidery on the white natural background. Sizes 26" to 42" chest Hips 28" to 42" bust. Please state your chest bust size.

COLOURED CHEESECLOTH KURTA £3 + 35p P&h

Same coloured embroidery as the background. Colours: Blue, Black, Apricot, Pink, Green, Purple, Sky Blue. Hips 30" to 40" chest Hips 30" to 40" bust. Please state your size and an alternative colour.

SILK KURTA £5.40 + 20p P&h

A fine silk. Colours: Black, Natural white, 11 blue, Brown, Purple, Beige, Wine, Turquoise, all with white embroidery. Hips 28" to 38" chest Hips 30" to 40" bust. Please state your chest bust size and an alternative colour.

"DENIM SHORTS only £8.35 + 70p P&h

Made by Lee Jeans, a blue long sleeve denim shirt, press stud front, cuffs, and breast pockets, and finished in yoke stitching. Hips 34" to 38" chest Hips 36" to 40" bust. Please state your chest/bust size.

Please write your name, full address, colours and size clearly. All goods can be exchanged or returned / returned unused within 10 days. "Good dispatched in time for Christmas"

Send PO/cheque to Shapes (Dept B). (Sorry no catalogues).

51 Cameron Drive, Waltham Cross, Herts, EN8 8BP. (Sorry no personal callers).

Stanley's ARMY & NAVY STORES LTD

FLYING SUIT Military style Flying Suit in green/grey colour. Made from a lightweight poly/cotton, 4 zip pockets, epaulettes, very popular in Manchester. Sizes 34 to 42. £19.95 P&P 75p.

DOG TAGS Genuine ex-Army Dog Tags. New, 2 chains, 2 plates. £2.75 P&P 10p.

BERETS Genuine ex-Army Berets. Black with leather band. £1.99 P&P 10p (State size).

STEPTOE GLOVES Fingerless Mitts in green or navy. 100% acrylic. £1.75 P&P 10p.

YANK STYLE Baseball Cap. Black with embroidered eagle and laurel. Made from woolen cloth. (One size fits anyone). £3.99 P&P 25p.

CHEQUES MADE PAYABLE TO STANLEY'S ARMY & NAVY LTD. PLEASE ALLOW 21 DAYS DELIVERY

PERSONAL CALLERS WELCOME "HAVE A NICE DAY"

Stanley's ARMY & NAVY STORES LTD
13 MOORFIELD WALK, THE PRECINCT, URMISTON, MANCHESTER M31 1TT also 40-44 PICCADILLY, MANCHESTER M1 3BG TEL: 061-236 1752

GENUINE GOVT SURPLUS KIT

These Gove and Union Forces Combat Jackets are authentic - with 4 pockets, elasticated wrist & ankles on sleeves, in top quality corduroy. Size 40-42. £6.95 + £1.90 P&P (We also have matching trousers at £4.50)

£4.95 P&P FIRST CATALOGUE PLEASE

SILVERMANS
DEPT BIME, MILE END, LONDON E1
Tel: 01-788 5287 Personal Callers Also M/A
"ALMOST ANYTHING IN GOVT SURPLUS"

CANNABIS LEAF

Choose Jewellery for you in fabulous Precious Metals

Our Famous Leaf Pendant 1" High

1" Solid Silver Leaf on Real Silver Chain	£8.50
1" Solid Silver Leaf on Real Silver Chain	£15.95
1" Solid Silver Leaf on Real Silver Chain	£22.50
1" 9 carat Leaf on Real Gold Chain	£18.00
1" 9 carat Leaf on Real Gold Chain	£22.50
1" 9 carat Leaf on Real Gold Chain	£22.50
1" 9 carat Leaf on Real Gold Chain	£22.50
1" 9 carat Leaf on Real Gold Chain	£22.50
1" 9 carat Leaf on Real Gold Chain	£22.50

1" Solid Silver Leaf on Real Silver Chain (Send size or 25p for size card)

Money to: ATLAS, 2 Bennet Rd, Brighton, Sussex.

KNOCKABOUT COMICS!
NOT FOR SALE TO TINY INFANTS
OR IGNORANT UPTIGHT IDIOTS
THE FREAK BROTHERS FULL COLOUR
STORY THOROUGHLY RIPPED £3.70
THE DESPERATE ADVENTURES OF LAZARUS LAMB £2.90
SPECIAL BOTH BOOKS £7.75
THE FREAK BROTHERS COMICS
Numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 all at 87 pence each
FAT FREDDY'S CAT COMICS
Numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 all at 72p each
KNOCKABOUT COMICS
Numbers 1, 2 & 3 @ 87p
MORE ENGLISH AND AMERICAN UNDERGROUND COMICS

Amazing Love Stories	£1.05
American Splendour 8	£1.05
Anarchy	No 1 & 2 @ 82p No 3 £1.40
Best Buy (Crumb)	£0.52
Checkered Demon	No 1 & 2 @ £1.10
Commas from Mars	No 2 @ 82p No 3 £1.10
Coolish Comic Comics (Classic)	£0.52
Dr Williams Comics (Double Issue) No 5/6	£1.40
Disquiet	No 11 £1.10
Faces of Life (Furrows)	£0.52
Feds N' Heads	£0.52
Feverdreams (Crumb)	£0.52
Homegrown (Crumb)	£1.10
Mickey Rat	No 3 £1.10
Mr Natural	No 1 & 2 @ 82p No 3 £1.10
Philbert Desanex (Shalton)	£0.52
Rip Off	No 8 & 9 £1.10
Sex and Affection	£0.77
Skull Comics	No 4 & 5 £0.52
Show and Tell	£0.52
Subvert (Freshman)	No 3 £0.52
Sea and Jonna	£1.10
Thunderdome (Hunt Emerson)	£1.10
Tra and Clio	No 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100
Turned on Cakes	£0.52
Wanted (Crumb)	No 1, 2 & 3 £1.10
Wet Seal	No 1 & 2 £0.52

Send for Complete List of Filthy Mind Rotting Garbage
Dept. N.,
Knockabout Comics,
249 Kensal Road, London W10

PUNK
STRAIGHTS IN SHINY
BLACK P.V.C. WITH ZIPS
Mens 24" to 38" waist
Girls sizes 8-16
ONLY £5.99 + £1.01 p&p
FAST DELIVERY
THE CHEAPEST AND THE BEST IN THE U.K.

Also available
In white or pink PVC or black, blue or red drill cotton with zip pockets

SEE-THRU JEANS
In natural colour plastic
£5.99 + £1.01 P&P
24" to 38" waist, girls sizes 8-16

PVC MINI. SKIRTS
Black, Pink or White
£4.99 + 51p P&P
Girls sizes 30"-42" hips
Send cheques, P.O.s or cash to
KANDA
FASHIONS (N)
BANNERMAN ROAD,
EASTON,
BRISTOL BS5 0BB

POSTERS. T-SHIRTS. POSTERS. T-SHIRTS
ROCK STAR POSTERS £1.35 EACH + P&P 1 POSTER ADD 35p, 2 OR MORE ADD 45p

494 QUEEN	495 PISTOLS	496 KISS	497 A ANT	498 B. MARLEY	499 W. SNAKE
500 J. DEAN	501 DOORS	502 M. HEAD	503 AC/DC	504 K. WILDE	505 GENESIS

T-SHIRTS £2.95. SWEATSHIRTS £4.95 POST FREE
SIZES SMALL/MEDIUM/LARGE. COLOUR ONLY BLACK

1003 CASH	1004 A.D.S.	1005 I. MAUDEN	1006 AC/DC	1007 W. SNAKE	1008 TOYAH
-----------	-------------	----------------	------------	---------------	------------

GIANT POSTERS £2.35 EACH PLUS POSTAGE & PACKING
1-4 POSTERS ADD £1.25, 5 OR MORE ADD £1.50 (SENT PARCEL POST)

515 PINK FLOYD	519 SEX PISTOLS	528 RUSH	529 DOORS
501 KISS	502 A. COOPER	504 BEATLES	508 J. HENDRIX
507 L. ZEPPELIN	511 QUEEN	518 KISS ARMY	520 TED NUGENT
521 ELVIS	525 YES	527 BLONDE

FREE CATALOGUE!!
SEND LARGE SAE (20p STAMP)
OVERSEAS SEND 31 R.C.

SEND TO: LONDON POSTERS (N11)
125 EASTERN AVE., REDBRIDGE,
ILFORD, ESSEX IG4 5AN

VIDEO * VIDEO * VIDEO * VIDEO
KILLER VIDEO
 SPECIAL OFFER ***

Our Special Price	Yes	No
BOS MARLEY - Live at the Rainbow	£1.00
REGGAE SUNDAY - Featuring Marley, Toots, Third World, etc.	£2.50
THIRD WORLD - Presents of the Street	£2.50
WAKE OCEAN - THE ESSENTIAL - Featuring "Dimensional", "Tobias Baby"	£2.50
DEVIS - THE MEN WHO MAKE THE MUSIC - Concert & studio footage	£2.50
TOYAH - Live at the Rainbow	£2.50
DEEP PURPLE - Celebrate 10 Years 1968-1978	£2.50
EDDIE GRANT - Live at Hammersmith Theatre 1980 - "Living on the Edge"	£1.50
MATTHEW - Includes "Overkill" and "Bomber"	£2.50
PINK FLOYD - LIVE AT POMPEII - Includes "Ain't No Quiet", "Set the Controls for the Heart of the Sun"	£2.50
STAMPING GROUND - Featuring Santana, Pink Floyd & Canard Head	£2.50
ROCK & THE BANDS - ONCE UPON A TIME - THE SINGLES	£2.50
QUADROPHENIA - Featuring Mike - Music by The Who	£2.50
ELO - LIVE IN CONCERT - Featuring "Mr. Blue Sky", "Roll over Beethoven"	£2.50
TO RUSSIA WITH ELTON - Featuring live concert in Moscow	£2.50
BLOOMINGDAISIES - A TONIC FOR THE TROOPS - Live and in the Studio	£2.50
ROGER DALTREY - ROCK & ROLL HORSE - Studio recordings with album	£2.50
BABY ON - Live in Concert - Music from Asylum / Ray Davies, Bonni	£2.50
THE BEST OF BLONDE - Including "Ragga on the Telephone", "Dreaming"	£2.50
THE FABULOUS MOUNTAIN GAYE - I Heard it Through the Grapevine	£2.50
WILKINSON VIDEO TAPES - 100 Great Tapes, 100 Great Tapes, 100 Great Tapes	£2.50

Full range of films available from PILE 40 LOVE STORY to ZOMBIE FLESH EATERS (not out yet) from Killer Video
EXPORT AND WHOLESALE enquiries welcome
FREE CATALOGUE sent with EVERY PRE-RECORDED FILM ORDER
For CATALOGUE ONLY send £2.50 inc. P&P (quantity)
PLEASE ADD £1.50 PER TAPE ORDERED FOR RECORDED DELIVERY POSTAGE EACH TAPE PACKED INDIVIDUALLY FOR EXTRA SECURITY
MAIL ORDER ONLY - NO CALLERS PLEASE
I enclose cheque / PO to the value of _____ payable to KILLER VIDEO

Name _____
Address _____

Return completed form to: KILLER VIDEO, 22 AVON TRADING ESTATE, AVONMORE ROAD, LONDON W14
VIDEO * VIDEO * VIDEO * VIDEO

ROCK 'N' ROLL WILL NEVER DIE
AS LONG AS
CADISS CAN MAKE THE TIE

"Punk Rock" is back with the most exciting 2" Sun Ties in the universe - and still only £2 each or 3 for £5 includes "Punk" immediately. Made in the best quality satin - Choose from:
BLACK/WHITE/CAMPY STRIPE - BLACK/WHITE THIN
STRIPES - BLUE/WHITE THIN STRIPES - RED/WHITE
THIN STRIPES - MARY/BLACK THIN STRIPES
WHITE POLKA DOTS on black, red or white background or black dots on white background
PLEASE BATH in Black, White, Red, Pink Grey or Turquoise or over 65 SPECIAL - Black Satin with a Thin gold stripe, if you're not into satin how about ROLLED GOLD VIOLET on Black, White, Wine or Blue or for the super Stars BLACK CRIPPS with Gilder Dots.
Send Cheques or P.O.s to:
PUNTERS CHOICE BY CADISS
117 HAMMERSMITH RD, LONDON W14
Hard to find but worth the effort

NEW POSTERS

SIROUSIE NO 3	£2.10	TOYAH NO 6	£1.95
---------------	-------	------------	-------

£2.10 DAVID COVERDALE £1.95 TOM SEL-
LUCK, SHAKIN' STEVENS NO 4 DURAN
DURAN NO 3 £1.90 OSSIE OSBOURNE NO 1
- NO 2 PLANT WITH PAGE, STEVE NICKS
NO 1 - NO 2 ANGUS (LATE) BON SCOUT OF
AC/DC

CARDS & POSTERS
22 Moor Street, Queensway, Birmingham 4
ADD 50p P&P for up to 2 posters. 5p each extra one

TO ADVERTISE

01-261 6172

FLASH! JUST ARRIVED!
AND IN TIME FOR CHRISTMAS!
TEESHIRTS
A FABULOUS RANGE OF SOUGHT-AFTER
ALL OFFICIALS' NO MESS! OVER 10 BRAND NEW DESIGNS
ADAM ANT, JOHN POLICE, JAPAN INC.
BADGES PATCHES
PLUS THE WIDEST SELECTION EVER SEEN OF
PLUS AN ABSOLUTELY AMAZING RANGE OF PLUS ALTERNATIVE PUNK CLOTHING AND NEW XMAS CARDS
WHOLESALE ENQUIRIES ONLY, PLEASE!
CASH AND CARRY OPEN 10 AM TILL 8 PM MONDAY TO SATURDAY
UP-TO-THE-MINUTE DESIGNS ALWAYS IN STOCK
WRITE OR PHONE FOR PRICE LIST NOW!

POPWORLD PROMOTIONS
1 THE PARADE, 211 GLEN HALL RD, LONDON W14
Telephone 01 626 9989

STUDDER LEATHER
Pyramid Studs
3 ROW BELT
£11.50

1 ROW BELT
£5.50

4 ROW WRIST BAND
£3.50

1 ROW WRIST BAND
£1.50

Conical Studs
3 ROW BELT £5.15

4 ROW WRIST BAND
£3.50

1 ROW WRIST BAND
£1.50

Pyramid Studs
£2.50 per 50
Conical Studs
£1.00 per 50

BULLET BELTS £10.50 CHEQUE OR P.O. TO: HARD BACK GUARANTEE
6 LEADERSHIP LANE,
DENTON FORD,
LEEDS LS22 7JQ

COMBAT JACKETS
GRADE 1

Top quality Italian
NATO combat jackets, olive green,
four pockets, button-up front
ONLY £6.25
Lowest Price on the market! In chest sizes 34, 36, 38
Send cheques/P.O.s
to:
SURPLUS SUPPLY STORES
27-28 HIGH STREET
WEST, SUNDERLAND,
TYNE & WEAR
Post and packing free.
Please allow up to 21 days delivery

BOY
153 KINGS ROAD LONDON S.W.3

THE PARTY DRESS

Black or White
With or without a rude print on the front
5 Buttons on the back
100% COTTON
PRICE £17.25 inc P&P

THE ROLLING STONES
EUROPEAN TOUR 1970

BY KIND PERMISSION OF THE ROLLING STONES
LIMITED EDITION OF THE ORIGINAL ROLLING STONES 1970 TOUR POSTER
(20" x 30")
FULL COLOUR ON ART PAPER
£3.50 inc. P + P. Send payment to:
'First Class Promotions,' 11, Northburgh St., London EC1.

20 PLEAT OR
6 PLEAT
BAGGIES
£15.00
INC. P&P

CAVALRY SHIRT
£13.50

SIZES:- 26"-34"
8-16

COLOURS:- BLACK GREY-DARK TARTAN

BLACK-RED
RED-BLACK WINE-GREY
GREY-WINE

LOOK IN CLASSIFIEDS FOR THE ALIEN SINGLE

CHEQUES - P.O.s - CASH TO: THE ALIEN
20, CORPORATION ST., BOLTON LANCs.
ALLOW 10 DAYS DELIVERY - ENGLISH MADE
REFUNDS GIVEN IF GOODS UNSATISFACTORY

FANTASTIC NEW STYLES LOWEST PRICES IN CARNABY STREET

UNISEX SHIRTS Cavalry style in 100% cotton with brass buttons. Sizes: S, M, L Colours: black, blue, white, yellow, red Price £11.99 RW002 UNISEX CORDUROY TROUSERS with front pleat, side pockets & cuff, lace up detail with leather. Choice of colours: black, grey, wine. Size: 24"-34" (waist) £13.00 RW003	SKI PANTS In polyester or cotton. Lime green, light grey, rust, black, brown Size 10-16 £3.50 RW002	MOD TROUSERS 15" bottoms, angled side pockets with one & a half inch loops and waist band. Black, brown, beige, grey in tweed or polyester £10.99 Size 28"-36" RW001	1920's LOOK DB jacket, 4 buttons, leather pocket. Trousers high waisted, 4 pleats, front seam pocket, baggy on thighs. 14" bottoms. Colours: black & white pin stripe, brown, black, white, grey. Size: 34 to 44 chest. £55.95. RW003	UNISEX PIRATE WAISTCOAT In leather, hip length fastened at front with leather tie. Colours: black, brown. Price £24.99 Size: S, M, L. No. RW006 UNISEX PIRATE SHIRT In poly/cotton. Colours white, red, yellow, blue black Sizes XS, S, M, L, XL £13.95 RW007	MINI SKIRT In cotton or polyester Size: 8 to 16 ALSO IN LEATHER £7.50 £14.99 (leather) No. RW0012	UNISEX BOWIE SUIT Shirt - with sided button opening at neck, pirate styled sleeves with 3/4 front opening. Sizes: S, M, L. Colours: black, white, blue, yellow, or cotton £11.99 RW004 TROUSERS available in polyester or tweed: 16, 20 or 24 pleats. 14" or 16" bottom. Sizes: 26 to 36" waist. Colours: black, brown, white, grey, blue £15.95 RW005	1930s BAGS In polyester or cotton (boasting trousers). Two pleats each side, washed pockets, semi baggy on thighs. 1 1/2" turn ups, with 18" bottoms, in white, red, or blue, black, grey, yellow Sizes 26" to 36" (waist) £11.99 RW005
--	---	--	---	--	--	---	---

HOW TO ORDER: Please state waist & inside leg measurements (girls also state hips) and second choice. Your money will be refunded if the goods are returned unworn. Cheques and Postal Orders to:

ROYS FASHIONS
MAIL ORDER DEPT, 45 CARNABY
STREET, LONDON W1

WHOLESALE
ENQUIRIES
WELCOME

SEND SAE
FOR FREE CATALOGUE

LIVERPOOL

FROM PAGE 29

ago enveloped Rory Storm And The Hurricanes. The Clayton Squares, and Faron "the Panda-footed Prince of France". And The Del Renas, who cut one great track, 'Nashville Blues', recorded live at the Rialto Ballroom in 1963 (... destroyed by molotov cocktails, 1981).

So rock still rolls, though it no longer rules. It's just a bohemian sub-culture, a minority pastime — nothing like the voice of a generation. Sometimes, self-expression is just a case of how you handle life from one day to another: self-possession under pressure. There are plenty of stars who don't need guitars.

TWO SIDES TO the Mersey: two sides to Liverpool. City and people. Decay and delight, decline and defiance. Even those riots had an intriguing dual nature.

(Not that they were the first, just as they won't be the last. In our grandparents' time there were gunboats sent up the river. Fact. Police were issued with spears. Fact. When troops shot dead two striking workers, a Catholic dock and a Protestant carter, they did more to wipe out the city's religious bigotry than anything else. And after the Great War, the army was back on Liverpool's streets with bayonets drawn, as the crowds 'celebrated' a police strike. All part of England's other history.)

Yes, the riots were ambivalent. Of course those social conditions generate frustration and hate, ready to explode when the provocation gets too much to stand. But there are things the sober commentators miss, especially the well-meaning ones — the excitement of it all, the lark, the thriving. The sort of thrill and kicks you don't get off a Duke Of Edinburgh Award Scheme. If you're going to have a revolution, said D.H. Lawrence, have it for fun. For the badness. And the madness. (But me, I'll watch it all on TV.)

One lad could be heard bragging about how he'd filled up his mother's back kitchen with box upon box of Embassies. "But what did your parents say to you?" demanded an appalled reporter.

"Oh me dad gave me a right belting," he replied. "Y'see, he'd sent me out for Marlboros."

MY CITY — AND I love every brick and breezeblock of it. That, of course, is why I left it: only exiles can afford to feel sentimental about the dump. But more and more, my trips home are happy/sad affairs — happy, because I see the city's decline in sudden, vivid jumps, which the native perhaps takes for granted.

The last night of my visit, I was scurrying through a cold wet Bootle, long after closing time. The last red-nosed boozier was shambling out of the pub, bellowing a song at the top of his voice: "And-a nowwww, the end is neeeear...": 'My Way' — it's always "I did it My Way" that they sing, these characters who've had no real control over anything that's ever happened to them in their lives, from the slums they were born in to the day their factory closes down and moves to Taiwan.

But he staggered happily away, in the direction of the docks where idle cranes stand silhouetted in the glare of arc-lamps, where the Mersey mud laps quietly up on the deserted quays, creeping inwards.

I didn't wait around to hear a soft, splashing sound, but wondered if the last man to leave Liverpool... would remember to turn off the lights.

Reggae Runnings

OUT ON the toaster's own Midnight Rock is the new LP from Jah Thomas, entitled 'Tribute To Reggae King — Bob N Marley' (MRLP 1955). Produced by Nkrumah Jah Thomas himself with rhythm tracks laid at Channel One by Roots Radics, and voiced by him at Channel One and King Tubby's, the LP is a 10 track offering 'Advice From A Doctor', administering 'Feeding Of The 5000' and providing further variation on the current 'Push Lady Push' paean to pregnancy. The title track is also issued on Midnight Rock discmix c/w 'Happy Birthday To You' (MR 7243), both sides featuring dub mixes courtesy of Scientist. Other new discos on the label are Junior Keating, 'African Queen'; Stanley Braveman, 'How You Mean?' c/w 'Rock With Roots Radics' (MR 4); and Jah Thomas with 'London Scank' (MR 1971-1981).

From the On-U Sound label comes a further individual Adrian Sherwood production featuring African Head Charge with 'My Life In A Hole In The Ground' (ON-U LP 13). Among the musicians taking part are bassist Lizard, saxophonist Deadly Headley, melodica player Doctor Pablo, plus chanter King Cry Cry, George Oban, Crucial Tony and Bongo "I" in development of improvisations such as 'Elastic Dance', 'Primal One Drop', 'Far Away Chant' and others.

The Misty family welcomes two sisters with release this week on their People Unite label of two discmixes: Jenny Maseall, 'Uptown Downtown' c/w 'No Need To Worry' (PU/JU 001) and Nathalie Xavier, 'Atomic Energy' c/w 'Set Me Free' (PU/NAT 001). Both women are backed by a band named Batanai, which includes several Misty personnel and lines up: Thungi (bass); Dennis Augustine (rhythm); Clive (drums); Donald Griffiths (lead); Bolo (keyboards) and Tetler on horns.

Other new discmix titles include: Jah Shaka, 'Revelation 18' (Jah Shaka 821); Papa Michigan & General Smiley, 'Diseases' c/w Little John, 'Dance Hall Style' (Greensleeves GRED 72); Linval Thompson, 'Holding On To My Girlfriend' c/w Nicodemus, 'Wife And Sweetheart' (Greensleeves GRED 71); Lone Ranger, 'Rose Marie' c/w Carlton Livingstone, 'You Make Your Mistake' (Black Joy DH 813); Dennis Brown, 'I've Got To Find You' (Black Joy DH 814); The Techniques, 'Linger A While' c/w a Wire and Dean Frazer instrumental variation of the same; Tappa Zukie, 'Mr Walker (Rosemarie)' (Tapper TPR 001); and Simplicity, 'Waiting' c/w 'Black Dub' (King & City KCD 003) — featuring the One Blood musicians.

Scotland's Roots Reggae Club presents the Humming Bird sound system in session at the Mayfair, Sauciehall Street, Glasgow today (Thursday) and at the Astoria, Abbymount, Edinburgh tomorrow (Friday).

Penny Reel

LAST WEEK'S ANSWERS

ACROSS:— 1 'Favourite Shirts', 9 PIL, 10 'Lost In France', 11 + 42 'No More Heroes', 12 O'Connor, 13 Nice, 15 Axe, 16 'My Guy', 17 Yes, 18 'Oh Pretty Woman', 20 Eve, 21 Faces, 23 Nelson, 24 Ely, 25 Music, 26 Laine, 27 Today, 28 'Diana', 30 O'Jays, 32 RSO, 34 'I Don't', 35 Mountain, 38 Paul Anka, 41 Foxx, 42 See 11, 43 'Sat'.

DOWN:— 1 'Follow You, Follow Me', 2 'Visions Of China', 3 Union Gap, 4 'In For A Penny', 5 Elaine, 6 'Irene', 7 Splodgenessabounds, 8 Blue Oyster Cult, 14 Crawford, 16 'Mama', 19 'Telstar', 22 Seeds, 25 'My Girl', 29 'Alfie', 31 Yin, 33 Super, 36 UFO, 37 Tex, 39 Ure, 40 Art.

X-Press

ACROSS

- 1 Small change for the Reizillos (8)
- 3 Performed, but fooled around (6)
- 10 God; it's a metal label (7)
- 11 Band's club for a 35? (6,2)
- 12 Speaker for unwanted bass (3)
- 13 Rats return to play a leading role (4)
- 15 Group in a hurry (4)
- 16 Laine confused Cole (4)
- 18 Nip back up to find an object of admiration (3,2)
- 19 Hal Ha! — wet arrangement for this bunch! (3,4)
- 21 Alternating current (2)
- 24 Music for choirs, partly (2)
- 25 Faint backing this at a gig! (4,3)
- 26 Follow a song on an album (5)
- 30 Meter in part I amended (4)
- 31 Punk's inspirational movement? — it's two chords repeated, certainly! (4)
- 32 Choose a guitar accessory (4)
- 33 27 make one alteration for a TV channel (3)
- 36 Monthly protest against nuclear warheads? (1.1.1.5)
- 37 Posh area of the capital for a group (7)

DOWN

- 39 Insular label (6)
- 40 Superior head gear for drummers? (4,4).
- 1 Cliff's second, Strange's first (7)
- 2 Untrustworthy instruments? (5)
- 4 Too much volume, and vulgar (4)
- 5 Steelman, perhaps (3,6)
- 6 Melody maker? (2)
- 7 Adam and the Ants' dedication to Charles? (6,7)
- 8 Fender stack for a low chap, it sounds (7)
- 9 Not boys at their worst! (5,2,3,4)
- 12 Bebop dance (3)
- 14 Top cubic capacity (3)
- 17 Stage lights reveal a bad complexion (5)
- 20 Cuts the journalists (5)
- 22 Past it in a reformed band (9)
- 23 Group of home-helps from abroad (2,5)
- 27 One, two, three... (3)
- 28 ...ecstasy! (3)
- 29 The return of S.U.A.H.U.A.B. (7)
- 34 Mark the fall's workman (5)
- 35 Youth includes a note in 14 (4)
- 38 Artists and Repertoire (2)

STOP PRESS! SPECTACULAR CHRISTMAS GIG-KIT FROM YAMAHA

Yamaha's Bargain Gig Package Includes Selected PS Multi-Voiced Keyboards and JX Amplifiers at way below the normal prices

Package A: PS-20 Portable Keyboard with 10 mixable voices, 8 mixable rhythms, Break, Auto-Arpeggio and Auto backing — complete with robust chrome stand. JX-20 combo amp giving 20 watts r.m.s. reliable high-definition power with Reverb and pull-boost overdrive. Expression pedal for PS-20 Leatherette carrying case. A BAND IN THE BOOT OF YOUR CAR AT £499 inc VAT!! (NORMAL RETAIL APPROX. £595!)

Package B: PS-30 Portable Keyboard with 18 mixable voices in Orchestral and Solo sections. 8 mixable rhythms, Break, Auto-Arpeggio and Auto-backing — complete with robust chrome stand. JX-30 combo amp — similar to JX-20 but with a punch 30W output, and three-way instead of two-way EQ. Expression Pedal and carrying case. SOLO VOICES, STRINGS, PIANO AND A BACKING BAND, PS STYLE AT £599 inc VAT. (NORMAL RETAIL APPROX £730!)

GET YOURS NOW AT ANY YAMAHA DEALER!

Yes I want a Yamaha PS JX Gig Kit!

Gig Kit A ☐ Gig Kit B ☐

Name

Address.....

Please send me details of my nearest Yamaha dealer

KEMBLE/YAMAHA, MOUNT AVE., BLETCHLEY, MILTON KEYNES. Tel. (0908) 640202

GASBAG

KEEP POP MUSIC
OUT OF POP PAPERS!!!

I HAD to write and say thanks to Charles Shaar Murray for his review of the Goldman Elvis book in NME; it summed up everything I felt and more. The cynicism and sheer lack of feeling in the book made me want to cry with rage. In Goldman's hatchet job EVERYONE comes out smelling of shit; which means, hopefully, it won't be taken as gospel by those who know little about the subject.

The only redeeming feature is the expose of Tom Parker for what he really was, and the enormity of what he did to Elvis right from the beginning. The fact that Elvis managed to create ANYTHING AT ALL out of this situation — let alone some of the finest music ever recorded — speaks louder than any of the unfeeling trash littering the pages of Elvis. Someone should persuade Greil Marcus to write his own Presley biography, and tell it like it REALLY was.

It took Goldman three years to write Elvis, and Elvis three hours to cut 'Hound Dog'; and it takes the latter just two and a half minutes to blow the former right out of the fucking window.

Tony Neale, Queensway, London W.2.

Letter of the century! Free Order of Lenin to this man immediately. I've had a quick glance through a review copy and my advice is DON'T BUY. Greil Marcus spells out the worth of Elvis's achievements and what the rest of us can learn from his life and death, elsewhere, but even a cursory look at this tome reveals stupid, glaring errors; a photo wrongly credited as the one from his first album cover, 'All Shook Up' mistitled as 'I'm All Shook Up', etc, bloody etc. People who don't like history rewrite it, as my old mucker Joe Stalin used to say pounding away at his Remington portable. — R.L.

The back of the knee is called the popliteal, dum dum! Mr Concise, Oxford.

Listen, Sunshine. When we've captured the commanding heights of the economy and implemented international socialism, THEN we get round to the really important matters like knees. — Ron Knee, Neasden.

Last night I went to a soul party. At this party there were no costumed poseurs, no Perry Haines, not even a whiff of soulless Spandau. Instead there was kids in denim jeans and jackets! Kids enjoying themselves without having to drink (Errol), mainly because half were unemployed. There was 'Crosswinds', Jazz Funkins', Owen Washington, the brilliant Shakatak, who invited us backstage to meet them. But the best thing about the concert was that there was not a white shirt or braces to be seen. Can I be the first to start a funk backlash so that we can have our music back? Funkinvader.

Dynamic, donkey-jacketed Labour supremo Michael Foot said earlier today that he was leaving the party because "it's up a bloody gum tree! I'm a broken man and I'm considering joining the SPG."

Thanks X. Moore for saying that all is not right with anarchist 'heroes' Crass. For too long they have stood by and done nothing about the swastikas and seig-heils that exist at many of their gigs — at least the ones I have attended. All they can say, when last interviewed in NME, is that they have also received trouble from left wingers and RAR. I cannot say that is not so, but any genuine leftist or RAR supporter would not wish to disrupt a Crass gig — that's left to those who want to put us in the army and ensure that we have no fun, no freedom and no future. You have to face up to reality, Crass, and see that you have something in common with Marxists that you'll never, ever have with fascists and that is the fact that Marx said that communism was not the final stage of mankind.

Why should I mention Marx? We should have no idols, no leaders. Of course not, I've none. But what about you? How many people follow you? How many people wear Crass T-shirts and badges? Your records may be cheap but your T-shirts and badges cost as much as those of Adam & The Ants. The price of anarchy?

You talk about Marx leading people, Freud and Sartre, but you missed yourselves out. How many people follow you, some blindly? How anyone can equate the NF or BM with you, fuck knows, but they do and do you care? To many people, too many, you are anarchy — you represent it and like it or not you're idols to thousands.

Surely the time has come to take a look around you. You are the hardest of the hardcore, standing next to prats like Wattie with his moronic and naive racism. We're fighting the system, but being what we are we have to oppose facism and we're going to have to stand up and realise that too many Crass followers are hopelessly confused and out of touch. Crass, get smart now.

Andy, Newcastle.

Replying to a question in the House, Mr Wellfed Wafflemore (Singularly Unappetizing, Old Party) said that he personally, at this moment in time, taking into account all the options open to the government and balancing the immediate confrontation situation scenario against the long term prospects for a bottoming out of the recession leading to an across the board economic recovery situation, was "up a bloody gum tree". Mr Whipmore is 217 (not out). — Hansard.

After the article on The Outcasts, I want to explain further how boring it is living in Northern Ireland. Belfast itself resembles a large cemetery; not because of the bombs and shootings but because there's nothing to do except to get drunk.

There is only one decent place apart from the Pound that a band can play without totally compromising; the A Center in Longe Lane, Belfast. There are plenty of bands but nowhere to play.

That is only part of the problem, the other bit being that no decent English band will come anywhere near Northern Ireland. We had the likes of Toyah, The Stranglers, O.M.D., Human League, even Rose Tattoo, but they are few and far between and crap, though decent enough for coming.

Why don't the Bunnymen come over or Scritti Politti, Poison Girls, Flux, Crass or even The Fall (they came to the Harp Bar years ago and have never returned)?

Why doesn't NME report on what's happening in Northern Ireland; the music, the sectarianism, the violence and the people? Why not? Northern Ireland needs bands just to give us some purposeful relief and maybe encourage other places to open up. Northern Ireland is not just bored, it's frustrated, very angry and a bit paranoid. Life here is not a bundle of fun.

Johnny Newland, Belfast. Speaking to a crowd estimated at "billions" of armed and desperate men, Iachn O'Payshock (Big Ham Party) said "We are armed and desperate men! To put it another way this is an armed and desperate siteyewation scenario. I pledge myself to fight to the last drop of your blood!", thundered O'Pastry of the extreme 'Bull in a Chinashop Tendency.'

"I want half of you men to invade Poland and would the other six help me dismantle this PORTAKABIN and SANILOO", sobbed O'Priestly ('Big Mick' O'Priestly). — Liachom' time O'Pastry.

"Eager young music journalists — one step forward." R.S.M. Paul Morley two steps back. Who would a music critic be let him wither. No "good" records, concerts or interviews this week. So what have you got? Well... there is young Mr Morley on India (mon bore). Sting and I am buddy-fuddy-dud(dy) cock-tail and Vertigo (riding on the back on a Buzzcock). There there is Mr Penman devolving from long-ish words via Mark-thist dire lectures unto the Black Bottom of aesthetic longeur. Perhaps we could use Ms Burchill on how Stalin found time to kill rock music whilst murdering 30 million others. (Strange that no humanist NME reader complained about her worship of a paranoid mass murderer; can we expect a similar piece on Hitler soon?) Of course we have the 369th instalment of Platitude Docksick by Anthony Parsons.

Oh, come on Paul — the NME is the Titanic, enclosed, self-obsessed — homing onto icebergs merely to provide the ice for this week's exotic drink.

I will be your music journalist, Paul, if I can write about what is true and important. I do not want to be the mid-wife for Spandau Shallet: I have little interest in being their under-taker. Let me write about great people and vital music: The Fall, Velvets, Elvis Costello, Ry Cooder, Beefheart, Orange Juice, John Fahey, Taj Mahal, Butch Hancock, Townes van Zandt. Let me explain why Kathy Kirby must record 'Foggy Notion'. Why Tom Verlaine and Willy de Ville are not worth talking to but are exciting listening. Let me tell the truth (so far unheard or repressed) about Bob Dylan's recent concerts at Earls Court and about Van Morrison's last album.

Careerism destroyed nearly all the merit that "punk" ever had. The same is true of the journalists thrown up at that time. Ray Lowry, and now you, have asked for a dialogue; but will you begin by acknowledging the sedative lying premise of most music journalism ie. Youth Culture is worth a toss. Sicilian Wardrobe.

In a hard hitting, no nonsense, straight from the shoulder speech here today, Lunchtime O'Gaiety of the extreme left of closet, Errol Tendency said "We're going to pack up our troubles in our old kit bags and SMILE, SMILE, SMILE!" — Tommy Rotsky.

Darling Paul,

Orgasm is mindless. Music At Its Best is quite the opposite. I want music, I need music, to make me think (not just shout slogans). I do not need music to tell me what sex is like — I can find that out for myself, thank you. The trouble is that your concept of 'sex' is inseparable from the nightclub mentality. In your mind Sex = Heaven = Japan + David Sylvian = Cocktails = Clothes = Dance = Money = Money = Money.

I want my music (the New Poetry) to help me come to terms with my emotions, not urge me to gloriously and senselessly indulge myself in what I don't fully understand.

At the risk of sounding like Raymond Lowry-Spart, if we are tired of living in shit, it's not enough just to pour perfume all over it.

Dave Webb, Whitchurch Green, Bristol.

"If we're talking cocktails, make mine a Molotov," snapped rugged, clean-limbed, balding, failed journalist turned Soviet supremo and spare-time cartoonist Lubyanka-time O'Blomov (nee Lowry-Spart) addressing a fly-past of the 018.30 jumbo to Palma, Majorca, here in Red Square, Salford. — Pravda.

It makes me feel sick, picking up Thursday's Sun and seeing the headlines "YOKO HIRED VICE GIRLS FOR LENNON" and "SEX MAD EX-BEATLE'S SECRET LIFE OF SHAME." I suppose it's the same for other famous people — when they're dead. There's always someone there to dig up shit, and get lots of money for it. Hope you see what I'm getting at.

Ian Fraser, still a Lennon fan, Nottingham.

I'll get back to you on this one, cock — apparently we've just been invaded by the armies of seventeen Capitalist powers. Life's full of surprises, I always say! — V.I. Lowryspart.

A chicken is a bird but it can't fly. Ian Penman is a journalist but he can't write. I rest my case.

Mo Beeney, Harlow, Essex. Talk among yourselves for ten minutes or so, will you? Me and my old mate Tommy Rotsky are just nipping over to Smolensk to exhort the lads to new excesses of revolutionary zeal. Anyone know how to start a motorbike? — V.I.L.

I think it's time some essential things were said (He toom me too! — failed Soviet Supremo turned shambling drunk, Lunchtime O'Hairsprayspart) about Ian Curtis and the way critics romanticize and sentimentalise his suicide. Why won't they accept the fact that he was a FAILURE?

Chris Bohn writes "Let's take consolation in the fact that Ian Curtis's death didn't so much bring Joy Division's journey to the heart of darkness to an abrupt halt as freeze it for all eternity at the brink of discovery. "I got the feeling that Chris Bohn doesn't have a clue what Ian Curtis was writing about; his journey to the heart of darkness wasn't leading anywhere except six feet under. Critics seem to believe

EDITED BY VLADIMIR ILYITCH LOWRY

Blue Rondo Visita El Planeta De Ray Lowry? ...
Illustration by John Watson

that his death was incidental to the music. Wrong. Ian Curtis's state of mind, as portrayed in the later lyrics especially, clearly needs some drastic alteration.

His way was a little too drastic. 90% of the 'Closer' lyrics present the distressing picture of Ian Curtis falling apart at the seams. For example, the guilt in "mother I tried, please believe me/I'm doing the best that I can/I'm ashamed of the things I've been put through/I'm ashamed of the person I am," the total disenchantment with life itself: "Existence, well what does it matter?"

He saw love as his destiny; for whatever reason it never worked out as it should have (ever heard a happy love song from Joy Division); hence, "destiny unfolded, I watched it slip away."

He arrived at the conclusion that his expectations were wildly above his actual situation — "now that I realise how it's all gone wrong/gotta find some therapy, this dream it takes too long." He continues later, "gotta find my destiny before it gets too late," and in 'Dead Souls' he pleads "someone take these dreams away and point me to another day."

He didn't find his destiny and no one took his dreams away. Things became so unbearable that he killed himself. Copout. It seems stupid to glorify anyone's inability to cope with life, no matter how well they articulate it. It seems at times that certain critics think we should aim to attain the status of an Ian Curtis before he died. Personally, I'd rather not go on the road to nowhere.

Almost everyone has swallowed the media myth surrounding Ian Curtis to the extent that no one dare attack him or even say they think Joy Division were crap, in print. The same reverence doesn't apply to, say, Judd, ex-Clock DVA, who killed himself probably in a similar state of mind to Curtis. Ian Curtis couldn't find empathy in his lifetime; try and understand him (warts and all) now he's dead.

D Bingham, London SW15. P.S. I do actually like Joy Division a hell of a lot but resent what I think is the distorted, pompous image you give of them.

How about 'Journey To The Heart Of Spartness', my life and litigations by failed alcoholic turned Soviet Supremo turned out of house and home (cont. back cover).

Every week I early scan Gasbag for some interesting reading, as this seems to be the only page that has anything worthy at the moment. In recent weeks it has come to my notice that there haven't been any 'sexism' letters, which is most heartbreaking as these are the best entertainment.

Could it be that you lot up there have finally given in and accepted this tenuous cause by vetting the articles that are printed? If there is anyone out there still fighting for the cause please write in, because Gasbag is boring without you. Effeminate Daryl Bigg, Worthing, W. Sussex. In a hard hitting, no nonsense speech to the fourth congress of feminist librarians, escaped lunatic Gay Leninspart asked, "Who will wrestle this mighty beast? We find ourselves at a historical crossroads" (cont. back of Cornflakes box).

H I I CAN'T quite remember my name at the moment — but I'm the one with the ingratiating simper, the pansy mannerisms, the sick-making beard and the multicoloured poncho. And I'm certainly GAME FOR A LAUGH if you are . . .

You're quite probably wondering how a plantpot like me got put in charge of a prestigious column such as this one. Well, Errol, as you know, doesn't live here any more. Alley Cat is feeling a bit run down — they're scraping him off the road at this very moment. And The Three Dorotheas were all taken out and shot. (Thank God for that — Ed) (Careful, Ed — you might be next — God) . . .

Ted Power, meanwhile, is on holiday in France. At least I'd guess so from the clippings I'm getting from French pop mags: they talk about Peter Gabriel becoming a referee, and how he did the Hull/Tranmere game, and said "Le ballon va beaucoup plus vite qu'à la télé". Regular readers will recall that Ted first revealed this item in T-Zers two months ago. And, although he's known to be GAME FOR A LAUGH, Ted Power has never been known to invent a news-story in his life . . .

Anyhow, that leaves me, whoever I am, all alone with a whole page of T-Zers to play with. Phew! Gosh! Even the NME can't hold out against the inexorable advance of Moderate Chic . . . Nor can Elton John and Steve Race — just two of the top pop personalities who've joined me in the SDP, as revealed in the Sunday Times last week . . .

Coming up: a new year LP from Captain Beefheart, entitled 'Ice Cream For Crow'. Hmm, sounds way out, doesn't it? And from ice-cream to ex-Cream, there's an LP on the way from their old drummer Eric Clapton. (It's by their bass-player, and the name's Jack Bruce, you fool. And it's co-written with Pete Brown — Ed.) Oh really? You see, to us moderates, all ex-Creamists are just as bad as each other . . .

Oh dear: there's a "streaking" revival going on in New York. In the middle of The Go-Gos' sell-out Palladium show, Joe King Carrasco ran across the stage in nothing but his birthday suit. "They put me up to it," he explained backstage after the gig. "We whipped him and beat him three nights in a row until he agreed to do it," added Go-Go Gina. "Yes, they made me do it," agreed Fiasco. "I was scared not to." Well, scared or not, I think you'll agree that Joe is certainly GAME FOR A LAUGH . . .

SO IS The Beat's Dave Wakeling. Married last week to his sweetheart Dominique, he quipped: "We're so excited by it that we've decided to start a family right away, instead of waiting the traditional nine months."

But Dave does have his frustrations too. As he said the other day: "The Beat keep missing chances; we were practising a ska version of 'Begin The Beguine' four months ago. Shit!" The boys' newest secret plan is a ska version of 'Walk In The Black Forest' — which I'm sure they'll find is a piece of cake! Ha, ha! Moderate humour, isn't it wonderful? But on a more serious note, look out for both The Beat and UB40 in next Monday's World In Action programme on youth unemployment . . .

Dexy's Midnight Runners were in the audience for James Brown's Birmingham show. Interesting to speculate whether this will lead to a 'soul' or 'funk' feel creeping into the band's future material . . .

By the way, that fantastic photo of film director Dusan Makesitupashogoesalong in last week's Silver Screen was taken by pretty, talented Jill Furmanovsky (sorry, pretty talented). Who left the credit off, then? Ooh, naughty Monty! Anyway, now you know who Neil Norman meant when he wrote "Jill says tea . . ." (Inexcusable, I says — Ed.)

Yoko Ono has cut thirty inches off her hair to mark the anniversary of John Lennon's death. The shorn barnet is apparently a traditional Japanese sign of mourning . . .

Unless you're very very GAME FOR A LAUGH then don't go along to the Hammersmith Palais this Thursday expecting to see Killing Joke. They won't be on — contrary to announcements made in certain places. In fact the group are in Germany doing their 'Empire Made' LP, and won't be playing any dates here until the new year . . .

Killing Joke's company (EMI), incidentally, tell me the new address is 21 Kensington Park Road, London W11 . . .

Boomtown Rats played a set of old covers ('Mustang Sally', 'Stir It Up', 'Stop In The Name Of Love') at a Chelsea Arts Club party given for the

One of 1981's happier contingencies was the resurgence at a grass roots level of genuine working class humour in the sense that one could not only epater le bourgeoisie but cock a snook at the fascist regime of Thatcher and her puppet show, traitors to the cause of genuine democracy to the last. Here we see Alexei 'January' Sayle, one of the comrades from The Comic Strip — a galvanising collective of brothers and sisters who took the courageous step of hiring premises from arch pornographer and sexist troglodyte Paul Raymond at no cost or media infamy to themselves — in his/her latest guise, a pungent if not caustic impersonation of Hollywood-paid 'high culture' strumpet Meryl Streep and her involvement in The Franchise Whose Tenant Roomed In, blatant re-telling of American involvement in Melvyn Bragg by director and Labour party defector Francis St John Paul George Fjord Coppaholdathis . . . (contd page 43). Pic: Adrian Boot end of filming Pink Floyd's The Wall — which sounds exactly my kind of film — in which Bob Geldof plays a big brick. There are shadowy rumours to the effect that Syd Barrett was in the audience . . .

FROM big bricks to little pricks. Rod Stewart has miraculously recovered from a stubbed toe injury thanks to . . . acupuncture! . . .

Not only is Robert Elms one of the very very nicest people in show business — and not in the least bit easily confused with Simon Dee — he's also compere of BBC Manchester's Oxford Road Show. The critics love it: a "pretentiously agitprop version of Game For A Laugh" says City Fun magazine. High praise indeed (High farce, more like. — Ed.) . . .

A message from our sponsors here: next week's NME is our regular DOUBLE FUN SIZED (and, er, double-priced) Special Christmas Issue! There's yards of adorable pictures of the year, more round-ups than Rawhide, and unusual goodies too innumerable to numerate (though if we tell you that Ralph Steadman is among them, we won't be giving too much away) . . .

After the somewhat wonderful (so I'm told) Defunkt, next signing to Joe Boyd's Hannibal label is psychedelic combo The Act, who did a version of 'Norwegian Wood' in their set at Dingwalls. In the front row was Julian Lennon . . .

Attila The Hun — poet, mandolin player (phased), agitprop entertainer and Gasbag correspondent — wishes it to be known that he's NOT, as stated in last week's report of the Poetry Olympics, from Stevenage but from Harlow. We admit it: the mistake was all a dastardly slander on the man's street credibility and professional standing. Harlow can we stoop? Ha ha! Let's keep that wacky, off-beat comedy coming . . .

Now then. Nobody, but nobody watches Celebrity Squares do they? No, because it goes out at the same time as Game For A Laugh. But if you had watched it last week, you'd have seen that game where performers like The Bachelors and Gene Pitney sit in darkened boxes. As a snatch of each act's music is played, contestants have to guess the mystery guests' identity, whereupon he/she/they appear revealed in all their glory. So let's have a big big Game For A Laugh type hand for the contestant who heard a bit of 'Little Children' and guessed that Billy J. Kramer was — John Lennon . . .

GAME FOR A LAUGH? I nearly cried . . .

NME

EDITORIAL
3rd Floor
5-7 Carnaby Street
London W1V 1PG
Phone: 01-439 8761

EDITOR
Neil Spencer

Deputy Editor
Phil McNeill
Features Editor
Tony Stewart
News Editor
Derek Johnson
Associate Editors
Monty Smith
Paul Du Noyer
Production Editor
Tim Greenhalgh
Special Projects Editor
Roy Carr
Contributing Editor
Charles Shear Murray

Staff
Adrian Thrills
Chris Bohn
Gavin Martin
Lynn Hanna
Ian Penman
Paul Morley

Design
Crunch

Photography
Pennie Smith
Anton Corbijn

Contributors
Nick Kent
Fred Dellar
Tony Parsons
Julie Burchill
Paul Rambali
Danny Baker
Chris Salewicz
Bob Edmunds
Penny Reel
Andrew Tyler
Max Bell
Andy Gill
Graham Lock
Cynthia Rose
Vivien Goldman
Richard Cook
Paul Tickell
Barney Hoskyns

Cartoons
Tony Benyon
Ray Lowry
Research
Fiona Foulgar
New York
Joe Stevens
(212) 674 5024
Mick Farren
Richard Grabel

ADVERTISEMENT DEPT.
Room 2535
Kings Reach Tower
Stamford Street
London SE1 9LS.

Ad Director
Percy Dickens
(01) 261 6080
Ad Manager
Peter Rhodes
(01) 261 6251
Classified Ads
(01) 261 6122
Live Ads
(01) 261 6153
Ad Production
Pete Christopher
Barry Cooper
Lee McDonald
(01) 261 6207

Publisher: Eric Jackson
IPC Magazines Ltd.
Production of any material without permission is strictly forbidden

BETTER BADGES

NEW BADGES

20p Each

Teardrop — Wilder 1"
Echo & Bunymen — Tour 1"
Echo & Bunymen — E 3/4"
Bush Tetras — 1" or 3/4"
Conflict — Disarm or Die 1"
U2 — October (tour) 1" or 3/4"
Joy Division — Still 1"
Bauhaus — Mask (8 diff) 3/4"
Radio Clash 1"
Bow Wow Wow — Mile High Club 1" Depeche Mode — speak & Spell 1"
Panther Burns 3/4"
Anti Pasti — Six Guns 1" Exploited — Barmy Army 1"
Banarama 1" or 3/4"
Shits — Earthbeat 3/4"
DBC — Rebel Radio 1"
Cab Voltaire — Jazz 1"
BETTER BADGES 1981 FANZINE
PACK £2.50 (inc P&P)

ADD 20p P&P FREE LIST
14 WITAN STREET,
LONDON E.2.

The motion was carried. The Bill has been passed.

And for once, Maggie, Michael and Co. are all in agreement.

From October 1st 1982, it will be illegal for learner motor cyclists to ride anything above a 125 cc, 12 bhp machine.

Luckily, we anticipated this, and designed the Yamaha SR 125.

It conforms with the new legislation to the last, bureaucratic full stop. And it conforms with Yamaha's high standards of engineering right down to the last nut and bolt.

(It's got the constitution of the Iron Lady and the winning style of Shirley Williams.)

The SR 125 copes with country lanes as easily as it does with rush hour Westminster.

But perhaps more importantly, in times like these, is the SR 125's economy drive. ("Which Bike?"* found it did around 78 mpg.)

If you're still learning to ride, or haven't even started, pop in to your local Yamaha dealer and clock the SR 125 for yourself.

For further details phone 01-397 0403.

*"Which Bike?" January issue 1982

As approved by Bill and Ben.